296. Whenever the Court thinks that the jury or assessors should view the place in which the offence charged is alleged to have been committed, or any other place in which any other transaction material to the trial is alleged to have occurred, the Court shall make an order to that effect, and the jury or assessors shall be conducted in a body, under the care of an officer of the Court, to such place, which shall be shown to them by a person appointed by the Court.

Act X, 1872, s. 253, omitting provision as to reconducting to Court. Act X, 1875, s. 64. Taken from Livingston, Art. 357.

View by jury or assessors.

Such officer shall not suffer any other person to speak to, or hold any communication with, any of the jury or assessors, and, unless the Court otherwise directs, they shall, when the view is finished, be immediately conducted back into Court.

297. If a juror or assessor is personally acquainted with any relevant fact, it is his duty to inform the Judge that such is the case, whereupon he may be sworn, examined, cross-examined and re-examined in the same manner as any other witness.

Act X, 1872, s. 258. Act X, 1875, s. 69.

When juror or assessor may be examined.

298. If a trial is adjourned, the jury or assessors shall attend at the adjourned sitting, and at every subsequent sitting, until the conclusion of the trial.

Act X, 1872, s. 260. Act X, 1875, s. 67.

Jury or assessors to attend at adjourned sitting.

299. The High Court may from time to time make rules as to keeping the jury together during a trial before such Court lasting for more than one day, and, subject to such rules, the presiding Judge may order whether and in what manner the jurors shall be kept together under the charge of an officer of the Court, or whether they shall be allowed to return to their respective homes.

Act X, 1875, s. 65.

Locking-up jury.

F.—Conclusion of Trial in Cases tried by Jury.

300. In cases tried by jury, when the case for the defence, and the prosecutor's reply, if any, are concluded, the Court shall proceed to charge the jury, summing up the evidence for the prosecution and defence, and laying down the law by which the jury are to be guided.

Act X, 1872, s. 255. Act X, 1875, s. 90.

Charge to jury.

301. In such cases, it is the duty of the Judge—

Act X, 1872, s. 256. Act X, 1875, s. 91.

Duty of Judge.

(a) to decide all questions of law, and especially all questions as to the relevancy of facts which it is proposed to prove, the admissibility of evidence or the propriety of questions asked by or on behalf of the parties which may arise in the course of the trial, and, in his discretion, to prevent the production of inadmissible evidence, whether it is or is not objected to by the parties;

(b) to decide upon the meaning and construction of all documents given in evidence at the trial;

(c) to decide upon all matters of fact which it may be necessary to prove in order to enable evidence of particular matters to be given;

(d) to decide whether any question which arises is for himself or for the jury, and upon this point his decision shall be final.

The Judge may, if he thinks proper, in the course of his summing up, express to the jury his opinion upon any question of fact, or upon any question of mixed law and fact, relevant to the proceeding.

Illustrations.

(a.) It is proposed to prove a statement made by a person not called as a witness under circumstances which render evidence of his statement admissible.

It is for the Judge, and not for the jury, to decide whether the existence of those circumstances has been proved.

(b.) It is proposed to give secondary evidence of a document the original of which is alleged to have been lost or destroyed.

It is the duty of the Judge to decide whether the original has been lost or destroyed.

Act X, 1872, s. 257. Act X, 1875, s. 93.

302. It is the duty of the jury—

Duty of jury.

(c) to decide all questions which according to law are to be deemed questions of fact;

(d) to decide whether general indefinite expressions do or do not apply to particular cases, unless such expressions refer to legal procedure, or unless their meaning is ascertained by law, in either of which cases it is the duty of the Judge to decide their meaning.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is tried for the murder of B.

It is the duty of the Judge to explain to the jury the distinction between murder and culpable homicide, and to tell them under what views of the facts A ought to be convicted of murder, or of culpable homicide, or to be acquitted.

It is the duty of the jury to decide which view of the facts is true, and to return a verdict in accordance with the direction of the Judge, whether that direction is right or wrong, and whether they do or do not agree with it.

(b.) The question is whether a person entertained a reasonable belief on a particular point,—whether work was done with reasonable skill or due diligence.

Each of these is a question for the jury.

Act X, 1872, s. 261, p. Act X, 1875, s. 92.

303. In cases tried by jury, after the Judge has finished his charge, the jury may retire to consider their verdict.

Retirement to consider.

Except with the leave of the Court, no person other than a juror shall speak to, or hold any communication with, any member of such jury.

Act X, 1872, s. 263. Act X, 1875, s. 94.

304. When the jury have considered their verdict, the foreman shall inform the Judge what is their verdict, or what is the verdict of a majority.

Delivery of verdict.

Act X, 1872, s. 263, para. 3. Act X, 1875, s. 96.

305. If the jury are not unanimous, the Judge may require them to retire for further consideration. After such a period as the Judge considers reasonable, the jury may deliver their verdict, although they are not unanimous.

Procedure where jury differ.

Act X, 1872, s. 263, para. 2. Act X, 1875, s. 95.

306. The jury shall return a verdict on all the charges on which the accused is tried, and the Judge may ask them such questions as are necessary to ascertain what their verdict is.

Verdict to be given on each charge. Judge may question jury.

Act X, 1872, s. 263, para. 2, last sentence.

Such questions and the answers to them shall be recorded.

Questions and answers to be recorded.

New. Dears. C. C. 229.

307. When a wrong verdict is delivered, the jury may, before or immediately after it is recorded, amend the verdict, and it shall stand as ultimately amended.

Amending verdict.

Act X, 1875, ss. 97, 98.

308. When in a case tried before a High Court the jury are unanimous in their opinion, or when as many as six are of one opinion and the Judge agrees with them, the Judge shall give judgment in accordance with such opinion.

Verdict in High Court when to prevail.

When in any such case the jury are satisfied that they will not be unanimous, but six of them are of one opinion, the foreman shall so inform the Judge.

If the Judge disagrees with the majority, he shall at once discharge the jury.

Discharge of jury in other cases.

If there are not so many as six who agree in opinion, the Judge shall, after the lapse of such time as he thinks reasonable, discharge the jury.

Act X, 1872, s. 263, para. 4.

309. When in a case tried before the Court of Session the Judge does not think it necessary to express disagreement with the verdict of the jurors or of a majority of the jurors, he shall give judgment accordingly.

Verdict in Sessions Court when to prevail.

Act XI, 1871, s. 21.

If the accused is acquitted, the Judge shall record judgment of acquittal. If the accused is convicted, the Judge shall pass sentence on him according to law.

Act X, 1872, s. 263, last para: Act XI, 1874, s. 21. L. L. R. Bomb. The ... must be complete, 1 ... 2 Bomb. ...

310. If in any such case the Judge disagrees with the verdict of the jurors, or of a majority of the jurors, on all or any of the charges on which the accused has been tried, so completely that he considers it necessary for the ends of justice to submit the case to the High Court, he shall submit the case accordingly, recording the grounds of his opinion and, when the verdict is one of acquittal, stating the offence which he considers to have been committed.

I. L. R., 3 Calc. 623.

Whenever the Judge submits a case under this section, he shall not record judgment of acquittal or of conviction on any of the charges on which the accused has been tried, but he may either remand the accused to custody, or admit him to bail.

See Markby J., in I. L. R., 3 Calc. 192.

The High Court shall deal with the case so submitted as it would deal with an appeal; but it may acquit or convict the accused of any offence of which the jury could have convicted him upon the charge framed and placed before it; and if it convict him, may pass such sentence as might have been passed by the Court of Session.

G.—Re-trial of Accused after Discharge of Jury.

Act X, 1875, s. 100.

311. Whenever the jury is discharged, the accused shall be detained in custody or on bail (as the case may be), and shall be tried by another jury, unless the Judge considers that he should not be re-tried, in which case the Judge shall make an entry to that effect on the charge, and such entry shall operate as an acquittal.

Re-trial of accused after discharge of jury.

H.—Conclusion of Trial in Cases tried with Assessors.

Act X, 1872, ss. 255, 261, 262.

312. When in a case tried with the aid to assessors, the case for the defence and the prosecutor's reply (if any) are concluded, the Court shall require each of the assessors to state his opinion orally, and shall record such opinion.

Delivery of opinion of assessors.

The Judge shall then give judgment; but in doing so shall not be bound to conform to the opinion of the assessors.

Judgment.

I.—List of Jurors for High Court and summoning Jurors for that Court.

Act X, 1875, s. 39.

313. The jurors' book for the year current when this Code comes into force shall be taken as containing a correct list of persons liable to serve as jurors under this chapter;

Jurors' book.

and those persons whose names are entered in the said book as being liable to serve on special juries only shall be deemed to be persons privileged and liable to serve only as special jurors under this chapter during the year for which the said list has been prepared.

Act X, 1875, s. 40.

314. The names of not more than two hundred persons shall at any one time be entered in the special jurors' list.

Number of special jurors.

Act X, 1875, s. 41.

All persons whose names are entered in the special jurors' list shall be exempted from serving on any other than special juries, but so long only as their names are contained in such list.

Exemption of special jurors.

Act X, 1875, s. 42.

315. The Clerk of the Crown shall, before the first day of April in each year, and subject to such rules as the High Court from time to time prescribes, prepare—

Lists of common and special jurors.

(a) a list of all persons liable to serve as common jurors; and

(b) a list of persons liable to serve as special jurors only.

Regard shall be had, in the preparation of the latter list, to the property, character and education of the persons whose names are entered therein.

No persons shall be entitled to have his name entered in the special jurors' list merely because he may have been entered in the special jurors' list for a previous year.

The Governor General in Council may exempt any salaried officer of Government from serving as a juror.

Act X, 1875, s. 43.

The Clerk of the Crown shall, subject to such rules as aforesaid, have full discretion to prepare the said lists as seems to him to be proper, and there shall be no appeal from, or review of, his decision.

Discretion of officer preparing lists.

Act X, 1875, s. 44.

316. Preliminary lists of persons liable to serve as common jurors and as special jurors, respectively, signed by the Clerk of the Crown, shall be published once in the local official Gazette before the fifteenth day of April next after their preparation.

Publication of preliminary lists.

Revised lists of persons liable to serve as common jurors and special jurors, respectively, signed as aforesaid, shall be published once in the local official Gazette before the first day of May next after their preparation.

Copies of the said lists shall be affixed to some conspicuous part of the Court-house.

Act X, 1875, s. 45.

317. Out of the persons named in the revised lists aforesaid, there shall be summoned for each sessions at least twenty-seven of those who are liable to serve on special juries, and fifty-four of those who are liable to serve on common juries.

Number of jurors to be summoned.

No persons shall be so summoned more than once in six months unless the number cannot be made up without him.

If, during the continuance of any sessions, it appears that the number of persons so summoned is not sufficient, such number as may be necessary of other persons liable to serve as aforesaid shall be summoned for such sessions.

Supplementary summons.

Act X, 1875, s. 50.

318. Whenever a High Court has given notice of its intention to hold sittings at any place outside the Presidency-towns for the exercise of its original criminal jurisdiction, the Summoning jurors outside the Presidency-towns.

Court of Session at such place shall, subject to any direction which may be given by the High Court, summon a sufficient number of jurors from its own list in the manner hereinafter prescribed for summoning jurors to the Court of Session.

Act X, 1875, s. 51.

319. In addition to the persons so summoned as jurors, the said Court of Session shall, if it think needful, after communication with the Commanding Officer, cause to be summoned such number of commissioned and non-commissioned officers in Her Majesty's army resident within ten miles of its place of sitting, as the Court considers to be necessary to make up the juries required for the trial of persons charged with offences before the High Court as aforesaid.

Military jurors.

All officers so summoned shall be liable to serve on such juries notwithstanding anything contained in this Code; but no such officer shall be summoned whom his Commanding Officer desires to have excused on the ground of urgent military duty, or for any other special military reason.

Act X, 1875, s. 46.

320. Any person summoned under section 317, 318 or 319, who without lawful excuse fails to attend as required by the summons, or who, having attended, departs without having obtained the permission of the Judge, or fails to attend after an adjournment of the Court after being ordered to attend, shall be deemed guilty of a contempt and be liable by order of the Judge to such fine as he thinks fit; and, in default of payment of such fine, to imprisonment in the civil jail until the fine is paid.

Failure of jurors to attend.

J.—List of Jurors and Assessors for Court of Session, and summoning Jurors and Assessors for that Court.

Act X, 1872, s. 400.

321. The Sessions Judge and the Collector of the District, or such other officer as the Local Government appoints in this behalf, shall prepare and make out in alphabetical order a list of persons residing within ten miles from the place where trials before the Court of Session are held, or within such other distance as the Local Government directs, who are capable of serving as jurors or assessors, qualified in the judgment of the Sessions Judge and Collector or other officer as aforesaid to serve as such, and not exempt under section 327.

List of jurors and assessors.

The list shall contain the name, place of abode and quality or business of every such person; and if the person is a European or an American, the list shall mention the race to which he belongs.

Act X, 1872, s. 401, para. 1.

322. Copies of such list shall be stuck up in the office of the Collector or other officer as aforesaid, and in the Court-houses of the District Magistrate and of the District Court, and in some conspicuous place in the town or towns in or near which the persons named in the list reside.

Publication of list.

Act X, 1872, s. 401, para. 2.

323. To every such copy shall be subjoined a notice stating that objections to the list will be heard and determined by the Sessions Judge and Collector or other officer as aforesaid, at the Sessions Court-house, and at a time to be mentioned in the notice.

Objections to list.

Act X, 1872, s. 402.

324. For the hearing of such objections, the Sessions Judge shall sit with the Collector or other officer as aforesaid, and shall, at the time and place mentioned in the notice, revise the list and hear the objections (if any) of persons interested in the amendment thereof, and shall strike out the name of any person not suitable in their judgment to serve as a juror or as an assessor, or who may avail himself of the exemption from service given by section 327, and insert the name of any person omitted from the list whom they deem qualified for such service.

Revision of list.

In the event of a difference of opinion between the Collector or other officer as aforesaid and the Sessions Judge, the name of the proposed juror or assessor shall be omitted from the list.

A copy of the revised list shall be signed by the Sessions Judge and Collector or other officer as aforesaid and sent to the Court of Session.

Any order of the Sessions Judge and Collector or other officer as aforesaid in preparing and revising the list shall be final.

Act X, 1872, s. 403.

325. The list so prepared and revised shall be again revised once in every year.

Annual revision of list.

The list so revised shall be deemed a new list, and shall be subject to all the rules hereinbefore contained as to the list originally prepared.

Act X, 1872, s. 404.

326. All male persons between the ages of twenty-one and sixty resident within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court of Session, except those next hereinafter mentioned, shall be deemed capable of serving as jurors and assessors, and shall be liable to be summoned accordingly.

Jurors and assessors.

Act X, 1872, s. 405.

327. The following persons are exempt from liability to serve as jurors or as assessors, namely:—

Exemptions.

(a). Officers in civil employ superior in rank to a District Magistrate;

(b). Judges and other Judicial Officers;

(c). Commissioners and Collectors of Revenue or Customs;

(d). Persons engaged in the Preventive Service in the Customs Department;

(e). Persons engaged in the collection of the revenue whom the Collector thinks fit to exempt on the ground of official duty;

(f). Persons actually officiating as priests or ministers of their respective religions;

(g). Persons in Her Majesty's Army except when, by any law in force for the time being, they are specially made liable to serve as jurors or assessors;

(h). Surgeons and others who openly and constantly practise the medical profession;

(i). Persons employed in the Post-office and Telegraph Departments;

(j). Persons exempted by the Local Government from liability to serve as jurors, and persons exempted from personal appearance in Court under the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, sections 640 and 641.

Person exempted not bound to avail himself of his right.

The exemption from service given by this section is a right of which each person exempted may avail himself or not as he thinks fit.

Act X, 1872, s. 407.

Court to summon jurors.

328. The Sessions Judge shall ordinarily, three days at least before the time fixed for holding the sessions, send a letter to a Magistrate requesting him to summon as many persons named in the said revised list as seem to the Judge to be needed for trials by jury and trials with the aid of assessors at the said sessions, the number to be summoned not being less than double the number required for any case about to be tried at such sessions.

The names of the persons to be summoned shall be drawn by lot in open Court, excluding those on the revised list who have served within six months, unless the number cannot be made up without them; and the names so drawn shall be specified in the said letter.

Act X, 1872, s. 410.

Power to summon another set of jurors or assessors.

329. The Court of Session may direct jurors or assessors to be summoned at other periods than the period specified in section 328, when the number of trials before the Court renders the attendance of one set of jurors or assessors for a whole session oppressive, or whenever for other reasons such direction is found to be necessary.

Act X, 1872, s. 409, para. 1.

Form and service of summons.

330. Every summons to a juror or assessor shall be in writing, and shall require his attendance as a juror or assessor, as the case may be, at a time and place to be therein specified.

Act X, 1872, s. 411.

When officer of Government may be excused.

331. If any person summoned to serve as a juror or assessor be in the service of Government or of a Railway Company, the Court may excuse his attendance if it appear, on the representation of the head of the office in which he is employed, that he cannot serve as a juror or assessor, as the case may be, without inconvenience to the public service.

Act X, 1872, s. 412.

Court may excuse attendance of juror or assessor.

332. The Court of Session may for reasonable cause excuse any juror or assessor from attendance at any particular session.

Act X, 1872, s. 413.

List of jurors or assessors attending.

333. At each session, the said Court shall cause to be made a list of the names of those who serve as jurors or assessors at such session.

Such list shall be kept with the revised list of the jurors and assessors prepared under section 324.

A reference shall be made in the margin of the said revised list to each of the names which are mentioned in the list prepared under this section.

Act X, 1872, s. 414.

Penalty for non-attendance of juror or assessor.

334. Any person summoned to attend as a juror or as an assessor who, without lawful excuse, fails to attend as required by the summons, or who, having attended, departs without having obtained the permission of the Court, or fails to attend after an adjournment of the Court after being ordered to attend, shall be liable, by order of the Court of Session, to a fine not exceeding one hundred rupees.

Such fine shall be levied by the District Magistrate by attachment and sale of any moveable property belonging to such juror or assessor within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court making the order.

In default of recovery of the fine by such attachment and sale, such juror or assessor may be imprisoned in the civil jail for the term of fifteen days, unless such fine is paid before the end of the said term.

K.—Special Provisions for High Courts.

Act X, 1875, s. 146. Cf. s. 268, supra.

Power of Advocate General to stay prosecution

335. At any stage of any trial before a High Court under this Code before the return of the verdict, the Advocate General may, if he thinks fit, inform the Court on behalf of Her Majesty that he will not further prosecute the defendant upon the charge; and thereupon all proceedings on such charge against the defendant shall be stayed, and he shall be discharged of and from the same. But such discharge shall not amount to an acquittal.

Act X, 1875, s. 4.

Time of holding sittings.

336. For the exercise of its original criminal jurisdiction, every High Court shall hold sittings on such days and at such convenient intervals as the Chief Justice of such Court from time to time appoints.

Act X, 1875, s. 5.

Place of holding sittings.

337. The High Court shall hold its sittings at the place at which it now holds them, or at such other place (if any) as the Governor General in Council in the case of the High Court at Fort William, and as the Local Government in the case of the other High Courts, may direct.

But it may from time to time, in the case of the High Court at Fort William, with the consent of the Governor General in Council, in all other cases with the consent of the Local Government, hold sittings at such other places within the local limits of its appellate jurisdiction as the High Court appoints.

Notice of sittings.

Such officer as the Chief Justice directs shall give notice beforehand in the local official Gazette of all sittings intended to be held for the exercise of the original criminal jurisdiction of the High Court.

Act X, 1875, s. 27.

Intermediate custody of European British subjects.

338. The High Court may direct that all European British subjects committed or bailed for trial by it within certain specified districts or during certain specified periods of the year shall be tried at the ordinary place of sitting of the Court, or direct that they shall be tried at a particular place named.

CHAPTER XXIV.

OF TENDER OF PARDON IN CASES TRIABLE BY THE HIGH COURT OR COURT OF SESSION.

Act X, 1872, s. 347. Act IV, 1877, s. 150.

Tender of pardon to accomplice.

339. The District Magistrate, a Presidency Magistrate, any Magistrate of the first class inquiring into the case, or, with the sanction of the District Magistrate, any Magistrate duly empowered to commit to the Court of Session, may, with the view of obtaining the evidence of any person supposed to have been directly or indirectly concerned in, or privy to, any offence specified in the second schedule as triable exclusively by the Court of Session or High Court, tender a pardon to such person on condition of his making a full and true disclosure of the whole of the circumstances within his knowledge relative to such offence, and to every other person concerned in the perpetration thereof.

Every person accepting a tender under this section shall be examined as a witness in the case.

Such person, if not on bail, shall be detained in custody until the termination of the trial.

Every Magistrate, other than a District Magistrate or a Presidency Magistrate, who tenders a pardon under this section, shall record his reasons for so doing; and when he has made such tender and examined the accused person, he shall not try the case himself, although the offence which the accused person appears to have committed may be triable by such Magistrate.

Act X, 1872, s. 348, omitting "as a Court of Revision." Act X, 1875, s. 77.

Power to direct tender of pardon.

340. At any time after committal, but before judgment is passed, the High Court or Court of Session may, with the view of obtaining on the trial the evidence of any person supposed to have been directly or indirectly concerned in, or privy to, any such offence, tender, or direct the committing Magistrate to tender, a pardon on the same condition to such person.

Act X, 1872, s. 349. Act X, 1875, s. 76. Act IV, 1877, s. 151.

Commitment of person to whom pardon has been tendered.

341. Where a pardon has been tendered under section 339 or 340, if before the trial it appears to the Court making or directing the tender, or to the Magistrate, that any person who has accepted such tender has, either by wilfully concealing anything essential or by giving false evidence, not complied with the condition on which the tender was made, such Court or Magistrate may commit him for trial for the offence in respect of which the pardon was so tendered, or for any other offence of which he appears to have been guilty in connection with the same matter.

The statement made by a person under pardon may be given in evidence against him when the pardon has been withdrawn under this section.

CHAPTER XXV.

GENERAL PROVISIONS AS TO INQUIRIES AND TRIALS.

Act X, 1872, s. 356, paras. 1 and 2. Act XI, 1874, s. 13. Act X, 1875, s. 31. Act IV, 1877, s. 130. Act X, 1872, s. 356, para. 3. Act X, 1875, s. 130. Act IV, 1877, s. 131.

Right of accused to be defended.

342. Every person accused before any criminal Court may of right be defended by a pleader.

Procedure where accused does not understand proceedings.

343. If the accused, though not insane, cannot be made to understand the proceedings, the Court may proceed with the inquiry or trial; and in the case of a Court other than a High Court, if such inquiry results in a commitment, or if such trial results in a conviction, the proceedings shall be forwarded to the High Court with a report of the circumstance of the case, and the High Court shall pass thereon such order as it thinks fit.

Act X, 1872, ss. 193, 342. Act X, 1875, s. 61. Act IV, 1877, ss. 5, 7. 1 O'K. [illegible]

Power to examine the accused.

344. At any stage of any inquiry or trial the Court may, without previously warning the accused, put such questions to him as the Court considers necessary.

The accused shall not render himself liable to punishment for refusal to answer such questions, or for giving false answers to them; but the Court shall draw such inference from such refusal or false answers as it thinks just.

Act X, 1872, s. 342. Act I, 1872, s. 114 (3).

The answers given by the accused may be put in evidence against him, not only in such inquiry or trial, but also in any other inquiry into, or trial for, any other offence which such answer may tend to show he has committed.

Act X, 1872, s. 343.

No oath or affirmation shall be administered to the accused.

Act X, 1872, s. 344. Act IV, 1877, s. 149.

No influence to be used to induce disclosures.

345. Except as provided in section 339, no influence, by means of any promise or threat or otherwise, shall be used to an accused person to induce him to disclose or withhold any matter within his knowledge.

Act X, 1872, ss. 194, para. 1 and 3, 264, para. 1, 265.

Power to postpone or adjourn proceedings.

346. If, from the absence of a witness or any other reasonable cause, it becomes necessary or advisable to postpone the commencement of, or adjourn, any inquiry or trial, Act X, 1875, s. 66. Act IV, 1877, ss. 86, 124. Acts 11 & 12 Vic., c. 42, s. 21.

the Court may, by order, from time to time, postpone or adjourn the same on such terms as it thinks fit, for such time as it considers reasonable, and by a warrant, or to the like effect, remand the accused if in custody :

Remand.

Provided that no Magistrate shall remand an accused person to custody under this section for a period exceeding fifteen days at a time.

Every order made under this section by a Court other than a High Court shall be in writing signed by the presiding Judge.

EXPLANATION.—If sufficient evidence has been obtained to raise a suspicion that the accused may have committed an offence, and it appears likely that further evidence may be obtained by a remand, this is a reasonable cause for a remand.

Reasonable cause for remand.

Act X, 1872, s. 188. Act X, 1875, s. 151. Act IV, 1877, s. 133. Compare N. Y. Crim. Proc. Code, s. 731.

347. In the case of offences which may lawfully be compounded, the injured person may compound the offence out of Court, or in Court, with the permission of the Magistrate or presiding Judge. Such composition shall have the effect of an acquittal of the accused.

Compounding offences.

EXPLANATION.—The following offences, and no others, may be lawfully compounded :—

New.

(a) offences relating to the human body, except offences under the Indian Penal Code, sections 299 to 311 (both inclusive) and sections 359 to 373 (both inclusive) ;

(b) criminal breach of contracts of service ;

(c) defamation ;

(d) criminal intimidation, insult and annoyance ;

(e) offences against property, except offences under the Indian Penal Code, sections 390 to 414 (both inclusive) ;

(f) offences relating to documents, trade-marks and property-marks, except offences under the same Code, sections 463 to 477 (both inclusive) ;

(g) adultery and other offences relating to married women, under the same Code, sections 497 and 498 ;

(h) offences against Municipal and Cantonment Acts, and the conservancy-clauses of Police Acts ;

(i) abetment of any of the foregoing offences ;

(k) an attempt to commit any of the foregoing offences when such attempt is an offence.

Act X, 1872, s. 45.

348. If, in the course of an inquiry or trial before a Magistrate in any district outside the Presidency-towns, the evidence appears to him to warrant a presumption that the case is one which should be tried or committed for trial by some other Magistrate in such district, he shall stay proceedings and submit the case, with a brief report explaining its nature, to any Magistrate to whom he is subordinate, or to such other Magistrate, having jurisdiction, as the District Magistrate directs.

Procedure of Mufassal Magistrate in cases which he cannot dispose of.

Madras H. C. ruling cited Nelson, 63.

The Magistrate to whom the case is submitted shall, if so empowered, either try the case himself, or refer it to any officer subordinate to him having jurisdiction, or commit the accused for trial.

In any such case, such Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid shall examine the parties and witnesses, and shall proceed in all respects as if no proceedings had been held in any other Court.

Act X, 1872, s. 221. Act IV, 1877, s. 127.

349. If in any trial before a Magistrate it appears to him at any stage of the proceedings before signing judgment that the case is one which ought to be tried by the Court of Session or High Court, and he is empowered to commit for trial, he shall stop further proceedings and commit the accused under the provisions hereinbefore contained.

Procedure when after commencement of trial Magistrate finds case should be committed.

If such Magistrate is not empowered to commit for trial, he shall proceed under section 348.

Act X, 1872, s. 315. Act IV, 1877, s. 128.

350. Whoever, having been convicted of an offence punishable under chapter XII or XVII of the Indian Penal Code with imprisonment for a term of three years or upwards, is again accused of any offence punishable under either of those chapters with imprisonment for a term of three years or upwards, shall ordinarily, if the Magistrate before whom he is accused considers him an habitual offender, be committed to the Court of Session or High Court, as the case may be :

Trial of persons previously convicted of offences against coinage, stamp-law and property.

Provided that, in districts in which the District Magistrate has been invested with powers under section 30, the accused person may be placed on his trial before such Magistrate.

Proviso.

Act X, 1872, s. 46, inserting "different in kind from or"

351. Whenever a Magistrate of the second or third class, having jurisdiction, is of opinion upon concluding a trial that the accused is guilty, and that he ought to receive a punishment different in kind from, or more severe than, that which such Magistrate is empowered to inflict, he may record the finding and, instead of passing sentence, submit his proceedings, and forward the accused to the District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate to whom he is subordinate.

Procedure when Magistrate cannot pass sentence sufficiently severe.

The Magistrate to whom the proceedings are submitted may, if he thinks fit, examine the parties and recall and examine any witness who has already given evidence in the case ; and may call for and take any further evidence, and shall pass such judgment, sentence or order in the case as he thinks fit, and as is according to law : Provided that he shall not inflict a punishment more severe than he is empowered to inflict under sections 32 and 33.

g., he may order commitment to Sessions Court, I. L. R. 1 Madras 289.

Act X, 1872, ss. 328 and 329. Act IV, 1877, s. 156.

352. Whenever any Magistrate, after having heard the whole or any part of the evidence in an inquiry or trial, ceases to exercise jurisdiction therein, and is succeeded by another Magistrate who has and who exercises such jurisdiction, the Magistrate so succeeding may act on the evidence so recorded by his predecessor, or partly recorded by his predecessor and partly recorded by himself ; or he may re-summon the witnesses and re-commence the enquiry or trial :

Conviction on evidence partly recorded by one Magistrate and partly by another.

Provided that the accused may, when the second Magistrate commences his proceedings, demand that the witnesses be re-summoned and re-heard, in which case the inquiry or trial shall be re-commenced :

Provided also that the High Court, or, in cases tried by Magistrates subordinate to the District Magistrate, the District Magistrate may, without appeal, set aside any conviction passed on evidence not wholly recorded by the Magistrate before whom the conviction was had, if such Court or District Magistrate is of opinion that the accused has been materially prejudiced thereby ; and may order a new inquiry or trial.

Nothing in this section applies to cases in which proceedings have been stayed under section 348.

Act X, 1872, s. 104.

353. Any person attending a criminal Court, although not upon an arrest or summons, may be detained by such Court for the purpose of examination, for any offence of which such Court can take cognizance and which, from the evidence, he may appear to have committed, and may be proceeded against as though he had been arrested or summoned.

Detention of offenders attending Court.

When the detention takes place in the course of an inquiry under chapter XVIII, or after a trial has been begun, the proceedings in respect of such person shall be commenced afresh and the witnesses re-heard.

Act X, 1872, s. 187. Act X, 1875, s. 160. Act IV, 1877, s. 152.

354. The place in which any criminal Court is held for the purpose of inquiring into or trying any offence shall be deemed an open Court, to which the public generally may have access, so far as the same can conveniently contain them :

Courts to be open.

Provided that the presiding Judge may, if he thinks fit, order at any stage of any inquiry into, or trial of, any particular case, that the public generally, or any particular person, shall not have access to, or be or remain in, the room or building used by the Court.

CHAPTER XXVI.

OF THE MODE OF TAKING AND RECORDING EVIDENCE IN INQUIRIES AND TRIALS.

Act X, 1872, s. 191, para. 1. Act IV, 1877, s. 80, para. 1.

355. Except as otherwise expressly provided, all evidence taken under chapters XVIII, XX, XXI, XXII and XXIII shall be taken in the presence of the accused, or, when his personal attendance is dispensed with, in presence of his pleader.

Evidence to be taken in presence of accused.

Act X, 1872, s. 332.

356. In inquiries and trials (other than summary trials) under this Code by or before a Magistrate (other than a Presidency Magistrate) or Sessions Judge, the evidence of the witnesses shall be recorded in the following manner.

Manner of recording evidence in Mufassal.

Act X, 1872, s. 333.

357. In summons-cases tried before a Magistrate, other than a Presidency Magistrate, and in cases of the offences mentioned below when tried by a Magistrate of the first or second class, the Magistrate shall make a memorandum of the substance of the evidence of each witness as the examination of the witness proceeds.

Record in summons-cases, and in trials of certain offences by first and second class Magistrates.

Such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Magistrate with his own hand, and shall form part of the record.

If the Magistrate is prevented from making a memorandum as above required, he shall record the reason of his inability to do so, and shall cause such memorandum to be made in writing from his dictation in open Court, and shall sign the same ; and such memorandum shall form part of the record.

The offences above referred to are—

Act X, 1872, s. 223.

(1). Offences relating to weights and measures, under sections 264, 265 and 266 of the Indian Penal Code ;

(2). Hurt, under section 323 of the same Code ;

(3). Theft, under section 379 of the same Code, where the value of the property stolen does not exceed fifty rupees ;

(4). Theft, under section 380 of the same Code, where the value of the property stolen does not exceed fifty rupees ;

(5). Theft under section 381 of the same Code, where the value of the property stolen does not exceed fifty rupees ;

(6). Receiving stolen property, under section 411 of the same Code ;

(7). Mischief, under section 427 of the same Code ;

(8). House-trespass, under section 448 of the same Code ;

(9). Criminal intimidation, under sections 504 and 506 of the same Code ;

(10). Abetment of any of the foregoing offences ;

(11). Attempt to commit (when such attempt is an offence) any of the foregoing offences.

Act X, s. 364.

358. In all other trials before Courts of Session and Magistrates (other than Presidency Magistrates) and in all inquiries under chapter XVIII, the evidence of each witness shall be taken down in writing in the language of the Record in other cases in the Mufassal.

No exception of cases in which no appeal lies. 11 Beng. Appx. 6.

Court, by the Magistrate or Sessions Judge, or in his presence and hearing and under his personal direction and superintendence, and shall be signed by the Magistrate or Sessions Judge.

Evidence given in English.

When the evidence of such witness is given in English, the Magistrate or Sessions Judge may take it down in that language with his own hand, and, unless the accused is familiar with English, or the language of the Court is English, an authenticated translation of such evidence in the language of the Court shall form part of the record.

Memorandum when evidence not taken down by the Magistrate or Judge himself.

In cases in which the evidence is not taken down in writing by the Magistrate or Sessions Judge, he shall, as the examination of each witness proceeds, make a memorandum of the substance of what such witness deposes, and such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Magistrate or Sessions Judge with his own hand, and shall form part of the record.

If the Magistrate or Sessions Judge is prevented from making a memorandum as above required, he shall record the reason of his inability to make it.

Act X, 1872, s. 335.

Language of record of evidence.

359. The Local Government may direct that in any district or part of a district, or in proceedings before any Court of Session, or before any Magistrate or class of Magistrates, the evidence shall in the cases referred to in section 358 be taken down by the Sessions Judge or Magistrate with his own hand and in his mother-tongue, unless he is prevented by any sufficient reason from taking down the evidence of any witness, in which case he shall record the reason of his inability to do so, and shall cause the evidence to be taken down in writing from his dictation in open Court.

The evidence so taken down shall be signed by the Sessions Judge or Magistrate, and shall form part of the record:

Provided that, if the mother-tongue of the Sessions Judge or Magistrate is not English or the language of the Court, the Local Government may direct him to take down the evidence in the English language, or in the language of the Court.

Option to Magistrate in cases under section 357.

360. In cases of the kind mentioned in section 357, the Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, take down the evidence of any witness in the manner provided in section 358, or, if within the local limits of the jurisdiction of such Magistrate, the Local Government has made the order referred to in section 359, in the manner provided in the same section.

Mode of recording evidence under section 358 or 359.

361. Evidence taken under section 358 or 359 shall not ordinarily be taken down in the form of question and answer, but in the form of a narrative. Act X, 1872, s. 338.

The Magistrate or Sessions Judge may in his discretion take down, or cause to be taken down, any particular question and answer, if there appears any special reason for so doing, or if the prosecutor or the accused, or his pleader so requires.

Procedure in regard to such evidence when completed.

362. As the evidence of each witness taken under section 358 or 359 is completed, it shall be read over to him in the presence of the accused if in attendance, or of his pleader, when his personal attendance is dispensed with and he appears by pleader, and shall, if necessary, be corrected. Act X, 1872, s. 339.

If the witness deny the correctness of any part of the evidence when the same is read over to him, the Magistrate or Sessions Judge may, instead of correcting the evidence, make a memorandum thereon of the objection made to it by the witness, and shall add such remarks as he thinks necessary.

If the evidence be taken down in a language different from that in which it has been given, and the witness does not understand the language in which it is taken down, he may require his evidence as taken down to be interpreted to him in the language in which it was given, or in a language which he understands.

Interpretation of evidence to accused or his agent.

363. Whenever any evidence is given in a language not understood by the accused and he is present in person, it shall be interpreted to him in open Court in a language understood by him. Act X, 1872, s. 340.

If he appears by pleader and the evidence is given in a language other than the language of the Court, and not understood by the pleader, it shall be interpreted to such pleader in that language.

When documents are put in for the purpose of formal proof, it shall be in the discretion of the Court to interpret as much thereof as appears necessary.

Record of evidence in Presidency Magistrates' Courts.

364. In every case in which a Presidency Magistrate imposes a fine exceeding two hundred rupees, or imprisonment for a term exceeding six months, he shall either take down the evidence of the witnesses with his own hand, or cause it to be taken down in writing from his dictation in open Court. All evidence so taken down shall be signed by the Magistrate and shall be part of the record. Act X, 1872, s. 335. Act IV, 1877, s. 115.

Evidence so taken down shall ordinarily be recorded in the form of a narrative, but the Magistrate may in his discretion take down, or cause to be taken down, any particular question or answer. Act X, 1872, s. 338. Act IV, 1877, s. 115.

Sentences passed under section 35 on the same occasion shall, for the purposes of this section, be considered as one sentence.

Act X, 1872, s. 341.

Remarks respecting demeanour of witness.

365. Every Sessions Judge or Magistrate recording the evidence of a witness shall record such remarks as he thinks material respecting the demeanour of such witness whilst under examination.

Act X, 1872, s. 346. Act IV, 1877, ss. 84, 123.

Examination of accused how recorded.

366. Whenever the accused is examined by any Magistrate or by any Court other than a High Court established by Royal Charter, the whole of such examination, including every question put to him and every answer given by him, shall be recorded in full, and shall be shown or read to him, and he shall be at liberty to explain or add to his answers.

When the whole is made conformable to what he declares is the truth, the examination shall be signed by the accused and the Magistrate or Judge of such Court, and such Magistrate or Judge shall certify under his own hand that it was taken in his presence and in his hearing, and contains a full and true account of the statement made by the accused.

In cases in which the examination of the accused is not recorded by the Magistrate or Judge himself, he shall be bound, unless he is a Presidency Magistrate, as the examination proceeds, to make a memorandum thereof in the language of the Court or in English, if he is sufficiently acquainted with the latter language; and such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Magistrate or Judge with his own hand, and shall be annexed to the record. If the Magistrate or Judge is unable to make a memorandum as above required, he shall record the reason of such inability.

If the Court of Session or High Court finds that the provisions of this section have not been fully complied with by a Magistrate committing any person for trial to such Court, it shall take evidence that such person duly made the statement recorded: and unless the error injures the accused as to his defence on the merits, it shall not affect the admissibility of such statement.

Act X, 1875, s. 68, including Chief Court.

Record of evidence in High Court.

367. Every High Court established by Royal Charter and the Chief Court of the Panjáb may from time to time by general rule prescribe the manner in which evidence shall be taken down in cases coming before the Court in the exercise of its ordinary or its extraordinary original criminal jurisdiction, and the Judges of such Court shall take down the evidence or the substance thereof in accordance with the rule (if any) so prescribed.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Of the Judgment.

Mode of delivering judgment.

368. The judgment in every trial in any criminal Court of original jurisdiction shall be pronounced in open court either immediately or at some subsequent time of which due notice shall be given to the parties or their pleaders; and the accused shall, if in custody, be brought up, or if not in custody shall be required to attend, to hear judgment delivered, except where his personal attendance during the trial has been dispensed with and the sentence is one of fine only, in which case it may be pronounced in the presence of his pleader. Act VIII, 1859, s. 183. Act X, 1872, s. 462.

Language of judgment.

369. Every such judgment shall, except as otherwise expressly provided by this Code, be written by the presiding officer of the Court in the language of the Court, or in English, or in the presiding officer's mother-tongue, and shall contain the point or points for determination, the decision thereon, and the reasons for the decision, and shall be dated and signed by the presiding officer in open court the time of pronouncing it. Act X, 1872, s. 463. cf. Act X, 1877, s. 200.

Contents of judgment.

It shall specify the offence (if any) of which, and the section of the Indian Penal Code or other law under which, the accused is convicted, and the punishment (if any) to which he is sentenced. Act X, 1872, s. 464. cf. Act VIII, 1859, s. 186.

Judgment in alternative.

When the conviction is under the Indian Penal Code, and it is doubtful under which of two sections, or under which of two parts of the same section, of that Code the offence falls, the Court shall distinctly express the same, and pass judgment in the alternative, according to section 72 of the same Code. Act X, 1872, s. 461.

If it be a judgment of acquittal, it shall direct that the accused be set at liberty.

If the accused is convicted of an offence punishable with death, and the Court sentences him to any punishment other than death, the Court shall in its judgment state the reason why sentence of death was not passed: Act X, 1872, s. 367, para. 2.

Provided that, in trials by jury, the Court need not write a judgment, but the Court of Session shall record the heads of the charge to the jury. Act X, 1872, s. 255, last para., and 466.

Sentence of death.

370. When any person is sentenced to death, the sentence shall direct that he be hanged by the neck till he is dead. Act X, 1872, s. 321. Act X, 1877, s. 113.

Court not to alter judgment.

371. No Court when it has signed its judgment shall alter or review the same. Act X, 1872, s. 464, second sentence.

Act IV, 1877, s. 114.

372. Instead of recording a judgment in manner hereinbefore provided, a Presidency Magistrate shall record the following particulars:—

Presidency Magistrate's judgment.

(a) the serial number of the case;

(b) the date of the commission of the offence;

(c) the name of the complainant (if any);

(d) the name of the accused person;

(e) the offence complained of or proved;

(f) the plea of the accused and his examination (if any);

(g) the final order;

(h) the date of such order; and

Act IV, 1877, s. 126.

(i) in all cases in which the Magistrate inflicts imprisonment, or fine exceeding two hundred rupees, or both, a brief statement of the reasons for the conviction.

Act XI, 1874, s. 41.

373. The judgment shall be explained to the accused, and on his application a copy of the judgment or, when he so desires, a translation in his own language, if practicable, or in the language of the Court, shall be given to him without delay, and free of cost.

Judgment to be explained and copy given to accused.

When the accused is sentenced to death by a Sessions Judge, such Judge shall further inform him of the period within which, if he wishes to appeal, his appeal should be preferred.

Case of person sentenced to death.

374. The original judgment shall be filed with the record of proceedings, and where the original is recorded in a different language from that of the Court, a translation thereof into the language of the Court shall be added to such record.

Judgment to be translated.

Act X, 1872, s. 302.

375. In cases tried by the Court of Session, the Court shall forward a copy of its judgment to the District Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the trial was held.

Court of Session to send copy of judgment to District Magistrate.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

OF THE SUBMISSION OF SENTENCES FOR CONFIRMATION.

Act X, 1872, s. 287, para. 1.

376. When the Court of Session passes sentence of death, the proceedings shall be submitted to the High Court, and the sentence shall not be executed unless it is confirmed by the High Court.

Sentence of death to be submitted by Court of Session.

Act X, 1872, s. 289.

377. If when such proceedings are submitted the High Court thinks that additional evidence upon any point bearing upon the guilt or innocence of the convicted person is necessary, it may direct such evidence to be taken.

Power to direct additional evidence on such reference.

Such evidence shall not be taken in the presence of jurors or assessors, and unless the High Court otherwise directs, the presence of the convicted person may be dispensed with when the same is taken.

The result of such evidence shall be certified to the High Court.

Act X, 1872, s. 288.

378. In any case submitted under section 376, whether tried with the aid of assessors or by jury, the High Court may confirm the sentence, or pass any other sentence warranted by law, or may annul the conviction, and order a new trial on the same or an amended charge, or may acquit the accused person.

Power of High Court to confirm sentence or annul conviction.

Act X, 1872, s. 290.

379. In every case so submitted, the confirmation of the sentence or any new sentence or order passed by the High Court, shall, when such Court consists of two or more Judges, be signed by at least two of them.

Confirmation or new sentence to be signed by two Judges.

? New.

380. When any such case is heard before a bench of Judges and such Judges are equally divided, the case, with their opinions thereon, shall be laid before another Judge, and such Judge, after such examination and hearing as he thinks fit, shall deliver his opinion, and the judgment or order shall follow such opinion.

Procedure in case of difference of opinion.

Act X, 1872, s. 301, para. 2.

381. In cases submitted by the Court of Session to the High Court for the confirmation of a sentence of death, the proper officer of the High Court shall, without delay, after the order of confirmation or other order has been made by the High Court, send a copy of the order, under the seal of the High Court, and attested with his official signature, to the Court of Session.

Procedure in cases submitted to High Court for confirmation.

Act X, 1872, ss. 18 and 36. Act XI, 1874, s. 3.

382. When a sentence passed by an Assistant Sessions Judge or by a District Magistrate acting under section 34 is submitted to a Sessions Judge for confirmation, such Sessions Judge may either confirm, modify or annul such sentence or the finding on which the same is based, or if he thinks further enquiry or additional evidence upon any point bearing upon the guilt or innocence of the accused to be necessary, he may direct such inquiry or evidence to be made or taken.

Confirmation of sentence of Assistant Sessions Judge or Magistrate acting under section 34.

Unless the High Court otherwise directs, the presence of the convicted person may be dispensed with when such evidence is taken; and when the sentence has been submitted by an Assistant Sessions Judge, such evidence shall not be taken in the presence of jurors or assessors.

CHAPTER XXIX.

OF EXECUTION.

Act [illegible] s. 301, para. 1.

383. When a sentence of death passed by a Court of Session is submitted to the High Court for confirmation, such Court of Session shall, on receiving the order of the Execution of order passed under section 378.

High Court thereon, cause such order to be carried into effect by issuing a warrant or taking such other steps as may be necessary.

Act X, 1872, s. 306. Act X, 1875, s. 5, adding "to transportation for life." Act X, 1872, s. 302A. Act XI, 1874, s. 32. Act IV, 1877, s. 183.

384. If a woman sentenced to death be found pregnant, the High Court shall order the execution of the sentence to be postponed, and may commute the sentence to transportation for life.

Postponement of capital sentence on pregnant woman.

385. Where the accused is sentenced to transportation or imprisonment in cases other than those provided for by section 383, the Court shall forthwith forward him with a warrant to the jail in which he is to be confined.

Execution of sentences of transportation or imprisonment in other cases.

As to subsidiary jails, see Nelson, 290, Act X, of 1872. s. 88.

386. Every person for whose imprisonment a warrant is issued under sections 383 or 385 shall be confined in such jail or other place as the Local Government directs in his behalf.

Sentence of imprisonment where to be carried out.

Act X, 1872, s. 303. Act X, 1875, ss. 103, 104. Act IV, 1877, s. 184.

387. Every warrant for the execution of a sentence of imprisonment, shall be directed to the officer in charge of the jail or other place in which the prisoner is, or is to be, confined.

Direction and form of warrant for execution.

Act X, 1872, s. 304. Act X, 1875, s. 104.

388. When the prisoner is to be confined in a jail, the warrant shall be lodged with the jailor, if he is at the jail and if he is not at the jail, with his deputy.

Warrant with whom to be lodged.

If the jailor has no deputy, the warrant may be lodged with any officer in charge of the jail for the time being.

Act X, 1872, s. 307. Act X, 1875, s. 105. Act IV, 1877, s. 185.

389. Whenever an offender is sentenced to pay a fine, the Court passing the sentence may in its discretion issue a warrant for the levy of the amount by distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the offender, although the sentence directs that, in default of payment of the fine, the offender shall be imprisoned.

Execution of sentence of fine.

Such warrant may be executed within the local limits of the jurisdiction of such Court, and it shall authorize the distress and sale of any such property without such limits, when endorsed by the District Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such property is found.

Act IV, 1877, s. 185.

390. When a Court issues a warrant under section 389, it may, instead of at once ordering the offender to be imprisoned under section 64 of the Indian Penal Code, release him on his executing a bond with or without sureties, as the Court thinks fit, conditioned for his appearance before such Court on the day appointed for the return to such warrant, such day not being more than eight days from the time of executing the bond.

Detention of offender until return made to distress-warrant.

Act X, 1872, s. 307, last sentence. Act IV, 1877, s. 185, last sentence.

391. The warrant may be issued either by any Judge or Magistrate who, if the case had been tried by him, might have imposed the fine, or by his successor in office.

Who may issue warrant.

Act X, 1872, s. 302A, last sentence. Act IV, 1877, s. 183.

392. Where the accused is sentenced to whipping only, the sentence shall be executed at such place and time as the Court may direct.

Execution of sentence of whipping only.

Act X, 1872, s. 310. Act IV, 1877, s. 187.

393. When the accused is sentenced to whipping in addition to imprisonment in a case which is subject to appeal, the whipping shall not be inflicted until fifteen days from the date of the sentence or, if an appeal be made within that time, until the sentence is confirmed by the appellate Court: but the whipping shall be inflicted immediately on the expiry of the fifteen days or, in case of an appeal, immediately on the receipt of the order of the appellate Court confirming the sentence.

Execution of sentence of whipping, in addition to imprisonment.

Act XI, 1874, s. 33.

The whipping shall be inflicted in the presence of the officer in charge of the jail: unless the Judge or Magistrate orders it to be inflicted in his own presence.

Act X, 1872, s. 311, para. 1. Act X, 1876, s. 108. Act IV, 1877, s. 188.

394. In the case of a person of or over sixteen years of age, whipping shall be inflicted with such instrument, in such mode, and on such part of the person, as the Local Government directs; and in the case of a person under sixteen years of age, it shall be inflicted in the way of school-discipline with a light ratan.

Mode of inflicting punishment.

Act X, 1872, s. 312, [illegible]

395. In no case, if the cat-o'-nine-tails be the instrument employed, shall whipping exceed one hundred and fifty lashes, or if the ratan be employed, shall such punishment exceed thirty stripes.

Limit of number of stripes.

Act IV, 1877, s. 190.

No sentence of whipping shall be executed by instalments.

Not to be executed by instalments.

Act X, 1872, s. 313. Act XI, 1874, s. 33. Act X, 1876, s. 108. Act IV, 1877, s. 189.

396. The punishment of whipping shall not be inflicted, unless a Medical Officer, if present, certifies, or, if there is not a Medical Officer present, unless it appears to the Magistrate or officer present, that the offender is in a fit state of health to undergo such punishment.

Whipping not to be inflicted if offender not in fit state of health.

Act XI, 1874, s. 33.

If, during the execution of a sentence of whipping, a Medical Officer certifies, or it appears to the Magistrate or officer present, that the offender is not in a fit state of health to undergo the remainder of the sentence, the whipping shall be finally stopped.

Stay of execution.

Act X, 1872, s. 313. Act X, 1876, s. 108. Act IV, 1877, s. 189.

397. In any case in which, under section 396, a sentence of whipping is, wholly or partially, prevented from being executed, the offender shall be kept in custody till the Court which passed the sentence can revise it; and the said Court may, at its discretion, either remit such sentence, or sentence the offender in lieu of whipping, or in lieu of so much of the sentence of whipping as was not executed, to imprisonment for any period, which may be in addition to any other punishment to which he may have been sentenced for the same offence:

Procedure if punishment cannot be inflicted under the last section.

Provided that the whole period of imprisonment to which such offender is sentenced shall not exceed that to which he is liable by law, or that which the Court is competent to award.

Act X, 1872, s. 316. Act X, 1875, s. 110. Act IV, 1877, s. 192.

398. When sentence is passed under this Code on an escaped convict, such sentence, if of death, fine or whipping, shall take effect immediately, and if of imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation, shall take effect according to the following rules, that is to say:—

Execution of sentence on escaped convicts.

If the new sentence is severer in its quality than the sentence which such convict was undergoing when he escaped, the new sentence shall take effect immediately.

When the new sentence is not severer in its quality than the sentence the convict was undergoing when he escaped, the new sentence shall take effect after he has suffered imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation, as the case may be, for a further period equal to that which, at the time of his escape, remained unexpired of his former sentence.

Explanation.—For the purpose of this section—

(a) a sentence of transportation or penal servitude shall be deemed severer than a sentence of imprisonment;

(b) a sentence of imprisonment with solitary confinement shall be deemed severer than a sentence of the same description of imprisonment without solitary confinement; and

(c) a sentence of rigorous imprisonment shall be deemed severer than a sentence of simple imprisonment with or without solitary confinement.

Act X, 1872, s. 317. Act X, 1875, s. 111. Act IV, 1877, s. 193.

399. When a person already undergoing a sentence of imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation is sentenced to imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation, such imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation shall commence at the expiration of the imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation to which he has been previously sentenced:

Sentence on offender already sentenced for another offence.

Provided that if he is undergoing a sentence of imprisonment, and the sentence on such subsequent conviction be one of transportation, the Court may, in its discretion, direct that the latter sentence shall commence immediately, or at the expiration of the imprisonment to which he has been previously sentenced.

400. Nothing in section 398 or section 399 shall be held to excuse any person from any part of the punishment to which he is liable upon his former or subsequent conviction.

Act X, 1872, s. 317, last sentence.

Saving as to sections 398 and 399.

401. When any person under the age of sixteen years is sentenced by any Criminal Court to imprisonment for any offence, the Court may direct that such person, instead of being imprisoned in a criminal jail, shall be confined in any reformatory established by the Local Government as a fit place for confinement, in which there are means of suitable discipline and of training in some branch of useful industry, or which is kept by a person willing to obey such rules as the Government prescribes with regard to the discipline and training of persons confined therein.

Act X, 1872, s. 318. Act X, 1875, s. 112. Act V of 1876 has not yet come into force anywhere, except—

Confinement of youthful offenders in reformatories.

All persons confined under this section shall be subject to the rules so prescribed.

CHAPTER XXX.

Of Suspensions, Remissions and Commutations of Sentences.

402. When any person has been sentenced to punishment for an offence, the Governor General in Council, or the Local Government, may at any time, without conditions, or upon any conditions which the person sentenced accepts, suspend the execution of his sentence or remit the whole or any part of the punishment to which he has been sentenced.

Act X, 1872, s. 322, para. 1.

Power to suspend or remit sentences.

Whenever an application is made to the Governor General in Council or the Local Government for the suspension or remission of a sentence, the Governor General in Council or the Local Government, as the case may be, may require the presiding Judge of the Court before which the conviction was had to furnish without delay a statement of the facts proved on the trial, and of any facts having reference to the propriety of granting or refusing the application.

New.

If the person in whose favour a sentence has been suspended or remitted fails to fulfil the conditions prescribed by the Governor General in Council or the Local Government, the Governor General in Council or the Local Government, as the case may be, may cancel such suspension or remission whereupon such person may, if at large, be arrested by any police officer without warrant and remanded by any Magistrate to undergo the unexpired portion of the sentence.

Act X, 1872, s. 322, para. 2.

Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to interfere with the right of Her Majesty to grant pardons, reprieves, respites, or remissions of punishment.

Act X, 1872, s. 322, para. 3.

403. The Governor General in Council, or the Local Government, may without the consent of the person sentenced, commute

Power to commute punishment.

any one of the following sentences for any other mentioned after it:—

death, transportation, penal servitude, imprisonment.

CHAPTER XXXI.

Of previous Acquittals or Convictions.

Act X, 1872, s. 460. Act X, 1875, s. 117. Act IV, 1877, s. 113. Cf. N. Y. Code of Crim. Proc., s. 13. Form of plea under this section, N. W. P., 1875, p. 373.

404. A person who has once been tried by a Court of competent jurisdiction for an offence and convicted or acquitted of such offence shall, while such conviction or acquittal remains in force, not be liable to be tried again for the same offence, nor on the same facts for any other offence for which a different charge from the one made against him might have been made under section 239, or for which he might have been convicted under section 240.

Person once convicted or acquitted not to be tried for same offence.

A person convicted or acquitted of any offence may be afterwards tried for any distinct offence for which a separate charge might have been made against him on the former trial under section 238, paragraph one.

A person acquitted or convicted of any offence constituted by any act causing consequences which, together with such act, constituted a different offence from that for which he was acquitted or convicted, may be afterwards tried for such last-mentioned offence, if the consequences had not happened, or were not known to the Court to have happened, at the time when he was acquitted or convicted.

A person acquitted or convicted of any offence constituted by any acts may, notwithstanding such acquittal or conviction, be subsequently charged with, and tried for, any other offence constituted by the same acts which he may have committed, if the Court by which he was first tried was not competent to try the offence with which he is subsequently charged.

Act X, 1872, s. 215, expl. 2. Act X, 1875, s. 14.

Explanation.—The dismissal of a complaint, the discharge of the accused or any entry made upon a charge under section 276 is not an acquittal for the purposes of this section.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is tried upon a charge of theft as a servant and acquitted. He cannot afterwards be charged with theft as a servant, or, upon the same facts, with theft simply, or with criminal breach of trust.

(b.) A is tried upon a charge of murder and acquitted. There is no charge of robbery; but it appears from the facts that A committed robbery at the time when the murder was committed; he may afterwards be charged with, and tried for, robbery.

(c.) A is tried for an assault and convicted. The person assaulted afterwards dies. A may be tried again for culpable homicide.

(d.) A is tried, under section 270 of the Indian Penal Code, for malignantly doing an act likely to spread the infection of a disease dangerous to life, and is acquitted. The act so done afterwards causes a person permanently to lose his eyesight. A may be charged, under section 235 of the same Code, with voluntarily causing grievous hurt to that person.

(e.) A is charged before the Court of Session and convicted of the culpable homicide of B. A may not afterwards be tried on the same facts for the murder of B.

(f) A is charged by a Magistrate of the first class with, and convicted by him of, voluntarily causing hurt to B. A may not afterwards be tried for voluntarily causing grievous hurt to B on the same facts, unless the case comes within paragraph three of this section.

(g.) A is charged by a Presidency Magistrate with, and convicted by him of, theft of property from the person of B. A may be subsequently charged with, and tried for, robbery on the same facts.

(h.) A, B and C are charged by a Magistrate of the first class with, and convicted by him of, robbing D. A, B and C may afterwards be charged with, and tried for, dacoity on the facts.

PART VII.

OF APPEAL, REFERENCE AND REVISION.

CHAPTER XXXII.

Of Appeals.

405. Any person required by a Magistrate, other than the District Magistrate or a Presidency Magistrate, to give security for good behaviour under section 117 may appeal to the District Magistrate.

Act X, 1872, s. 267.

Appeal from order requiring security for good behaviour.

406. Any person convicted on a trial held by any Magistrate of the second or third class, or any person sentenced by a Sub-divisional Magistrate of the second class under section 351, may appeal to the District Magistrate.

Act X, 1872, s. 266, omitting "or to a Magistrate of first class empowered."

Appeal from sentence of Magistrate of the second or third class.

The District Magistrate may refer any appeal under this section, or any class of such appeals, to any Magistrate of the first class subordinate to him and empowered by the Local Government to hear such appeals, and may withdraw from any such Magistrate any appeal so referred.

Act X, 1872, s. 47, para. 3.

Transfer of appeals to first class Magistrate.

407. Any person convicted on a trial held by the District Magistrate or other Magistrate of the first class, or any person sentenced under section 351 by a Magistrate of the first class, may appeal to the Court of Session:

Act X, 1872, s. 269.

Appeal from sentence of Magistrate of the first class.

Provided that when a District Magistrate passes a sentence in exercise of powers conferred by section 34, and such sentence has been submitted to the Court of Session under section 382, the appeal shall lie to the High Court:

Act X, 1872, s. 270.

Provided also that any European British subject so convicted may at his option appeal either to the High Court or the Court of Session.

Act X, 1872, s. 79.

408. Any person convicted by an Assistant Sessions Judge may, when the sentence is not submitted for confirmation to the Sessions Judge, appeal to the Sessions Judge, except in the case of an European British subject, when the appeal shall lie to the High Court.

Act X, 1872, s. 270.

Appeal from sentences of Assistant Sessions Judge not requiring confirmation.

409. An appeal to the Court of Session or Sessions Judge shall be heard by the Sessions Judge or by an Additional or Joint Sessions Judge.

Appeals to Court of Session how heard.

Act X, 1872, ss. 80, 270, 271. Act XI, 1874, s. 22.

410. Any person convicted on a trial held by a Sessions Judge, or Additional or Joint Sessions Judge, or convicted by an Assistant Sessions Judge, where the case has been submitted by the Sessions Judge under section 382, may appeal to the High Court.

Appeal from sentence of Sessions Court.

Act IV, 1877, s. 167.

411. Any person convicted on a trial held by a Presidency Magistrate may appeal to the High Court if the Magistrate has sentenced him to imprisonment for a term exceeding six months or to fine exceeding two hundred rupees.

Appeal from sentence of Presidency Magistrates.

Act X, 1872, s. 273, last para. Act IV, 1872, s. 167.

412. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, where an accused person has been convicted by a Court of Session or a Presidency Magistrate on his own plea, there shall be no appeal except as to the extent or legality of the sentence.

No appeal in certain cases when accused pleads guilty.

Act X, 1872, s. 273.

413. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, there shall be no appeal by a convicted person in cases in which a Court of Session or the District Magistrate or other Magistrate of the first class passes a sentence of imprisonment not exceeding one month only, or of fine not exceeding fifty rupees only, or of whipping only.

No appeal in petty cases.

Act X, 1872, s. 274.

414. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, there shall be no appeal by a convicted person in cases tried summarily in which a Magistrate empowered to act under section 263 passes a sentence of imprisonment not exceeding three months only, or of fine not exceeding two hundred rupees only, or of whipping only.

No appeal from certain summary convictions.

Act X, 1872, s. 274, para. 2.

415. An appeal may be brought against any sentence referred to in section 413 or 414 by which any two or more of the punishments therein mentioned are combined; but not against any sentence which would not otherwise be liable to appeal, because the person convicted is ordered to find security to keep the peace.

Proviso to sections 413 and 414.

Act XI, 1874, s. 24.

EXPLANATION.—A sentence of imprisonment in default of payment of fine is not a sentence by which two or more punishments are combined within the meaning of this section.

Act X, 1872, s. 273.

416. Nothing in sections 413 and 414 applies to appeals from sentences passed on European British subjects under chapter XXXIV.

Saving of sentences on European British subjects.

Act X, 1872, s. 272. Act IV, 1877, s. 168, para. 1.

417. The Local Government may direct the Public Prosecutor to present an appeal to the High Court from an original or appellate order of acquittal, dismissal or discharge.

Appeal on behalf of Government in case of acquittal, &c.

418. An appeal may lie on a matter of fact as well as a matter of law except where the conviction was in a trial by jury, in which case the appeal shall be admissible on a matter of law only.

Act X, 1872, s. 271, last para. Compare Act X, 1877, s. 541.

Appeal on what matters admissible.

419. No appeal shall lie from any judgment or order of a Criminal Court except as provided for by this Code or by any other law for the time being in force.

Act X, 1872, ss. 285, 286. Act IV, 1877, s. 180.

Unless otherwise provided, no appeal to lie from judgment or order of Criminal Court.

420. Every appeal shall be made in the form of a petition in writing presented by the appellant, and every such petition shall be accompanied by a copy of the judgment or order appealed against, and in cases tried by a jury a copy of the heads of the charge recorded under section 369.

Act X, 1872, ss. 275, 276. Act IV, 1877, s. 169.

Petition of appeal.

421. If the appellant is in jail, he may present his petition of appeal, and the copy of the judgment or order appealed against, to the officer in charge of the jail, who shall thereupon forward such petition and copy to the proper Appellate Court.

Act X, 1872, s. 277. Act IV, 1877, s. 171.

Procedure when appellant in jail.

422. On receiving the petition and copy under section 420 or section 421, the Appellate Court shall peruse the same, and if it considers that there is no sufficient ground for interfering, it may reject the appeal summarily. Provided that no appeal presented under section 420, shall be dismissed unless the appellant or his pleader has had a reasonable opportunity of being heard in support of the same.

Act X, 1872, s. 278. Act IV, 1877, s. 172, omitting last sentence.

Summary rejection of appeal.

Before rejecting an appeal under this section, the Court may call for the record of the case, but shall not be bound to do so.

423. If the Appellate Court does not reject the appeal summarily, it shall cause notice to be given to the appellant and the Public Prosecutor of the time and place at which such appeal will be heard, and shall furnish the Public Prosecutor with a copy of the grounds of appeal;

Act X, 1872, ss. 62, 279, para. 2, 280. Act IV, 1877, s. 173.

Notice of appeal.

and in cases of appeals under section 417, the Appellate Court shall cause a like notice to be given to the accused.

Act XI, 1874, s. 27.

424. The Appellate Court shall then send for the record of the case and, after perusing the same and hearing the appellant or his pleader, if he appears, and the Public Prosecutor if he appears, may, if it considers there is no sufficient ground for interfering, reject the appeal or may—

Act X, 1872, s. 280. Act IV, 1877, ss. 174, 175.

Powers of Appellate Court in disposing of appeal.

(a) in an appeal from an order of acquittal, reverse such order and direct that further inquiry be made, or that the accused be retried or committed for trial, as the case may be, or find him guilty and pass sentence on him according to law;

(b) in an appeal from an order of discharge or dismissal, reverse such order and direct that further inquiry be made;

Act X, 1872, s. 284.

(c) in an appeal from a conviction (1) reverse the finding and sentence, and order the accused to be discharged or retried by a Court of competent jurisdiction subordinate to such Appellate Court, or (2) alter the finding, or enhance or reduce the sentence with or without altering the finding, or (3) alter the nature of the sentence with or without such enhancement or reduction and with or without altering the finding;

(d) in an appeal from any other order, alter or reverse such order:

Provided that, if the appeal is from the sentence of a Magistrate, the Appellate Court shall not inflict a greater punishment for the offence which, in the opinion of the Appellate Court, the appellant has committed than might have been inflicted for such offence by a Presidency Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class:

Provided also that nothing herein contained shall authorise the Court to alter or reverse the verdict of a jury, unless it is of opinion that such verdict is erroneous owing to a misdirection by the Judge.

425. The rules contained in chapter XXVII as to the judgment of a Criminal Court of original jurisdiction shall apply, so far as may be practicable, to the judgment of any Appellate Court other than a High Court.

Judgments of subordinate Appellate Courts.

Act X, 1872, s. 281, and sec. 297, para. 8, in case of Court of Revision. Act IV, 1877, s. 175.

426. Pending any appeal by a convicted person, the Appellate Court may order that the execution of the sentence or order appealed against be suspended and, if he is in confinement, that he be released on bail.

Suspension of sentence pending appeal: Release of appellant on bail.

When the appellant is ultimately sentenced to imprisonment, the time during which he is so released shall be excluded in computing the term of his imprisonment.

Act IV, 1877, s. 168, para. 3, I. L. R. I. Calc. 281.

427. When an appeal is presented under section 417, the High Court may order the accused person to be arrested and brought before it, and may commit him to prison pending the disposal of the appeal or admit him to bail.

Arrest of accused in appeals under section 417.

Act X, 1872, s. 283. Act IV, 1877, s. 176.

428. In dealing with any appeal under this chapter, the Appellate Court, if it thinks additional evidence to be necessary, may either take such evidence itself, or may direct it to be taken by a Magistrate.

Appellate Court may take further evidence or direct it to be taken.

When the additional evidence is taken by the Magistrate, he shall certify such evidence to the Appellate Court, and such Court shall thereupon proceed to dispose of the appeal.

Unless the Appellate Court otherwise directs, the appellant or his pleader shall be present when the additional evidence is taken; but such evidence shall not be taken in the presence of jurors or assessors.

429. When the Judges composing the Court of appeal are equally divided, the case, with their opinions thereon, shall be laid before another Judge of the same Court, and such Judge, after such examination and hearing as he thinks fit, shall deliver his opinion, and the judgment or order shall follow such opinion.

Act X, 1872, s. 271B. Act XI, 1874, s. 22.

Procedure where Judges of Court of appeal, &c., are equally divided.

430. Judgments and orders passed by an Appellate Court upon appeal shall be final, except in the cases provided for in section 417 and chapter XXXIII.

Act X, 1872, s. 285.

Finality of orders on appeal.

431. Every appeal under this chapter finally abates on the death of the appellant or, in the case of an appeal under section 417, on the death of the accused.

I. L. R., 4 Bom. 564.

Abatement of appeals.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Of Reference and Revision.

432. A Presidency Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, refer for the opinion of the High Court any question of law which arises in the hearing of any case pending before him, or may give judgment in any such case subject to the decision of the High Court on such reference; and, pending such decision, may either commit the accused to jail or release him on bail to appear for judgment when called upon.

Act IV, 1877, s. 349.

Reference by Presidency Magistrate to High Court.

433. When a question has been so referred, the High Court shall pass such order thereon as it thinks fit, and shall cause a copy of such order to be sent to the Magistrate by whom the reference was made, who shall dispose of the case conformably to the said order.

Disposal of case according to decision of High Court.

The High Court may direct by whom the costs of such reference shall be paid.

Direction as to costs.

434. When any person has, in a trial before a Judge of a High Court acting in the exercise of its original criminal jurisdiction, been convicted of an offence, the Judge, if he thinks fit, may reserve and refer for the decision of a Court consisting of two or more Judges of such Court any question of law which has arisen in the course of the trial of such person, and the determination of which would affect the event of the trial.

Act X, 1872, s. 101. Qy. confined to Charter Courts or Chief Courts.

Power to reserve questions arising in original jurisdiction of High Court.

If the Judge reserves any such question, the person convicted shall, pending the decision thereon, be remanded to jail or, if the Judge thinks fit, be admitted to bail,

Procedure when question reserved.

and the High Court shall have power to review the case, or such part of it as may be necessary, and finally determine such question, and thereupon to alter the sentence passed by the Court of original jurisdiction, and to pass such judgment and sentence as the High Court thinks fit.

Act X, 1872, ss. 294, 295. 12 Beng. 253.

435. The High Court or any Court of Session or District Magistrate may call for and examine the record of any proceeding before any inferior Criminal Court situate within the local limits of its or his jurisdiction for the purpose of satisfying itself or himself as to the legality or propriety of any finding, sentence or order recorded or passed, and as to the regularity of the proceedings of such inferior Court.

Power to call for records of inferior Courts.

Act X, 1872, s. 520, I would omit. See I. L. R. 2 Calc. 396, from which it appears that the High Court cannot interfere even under section 15 of the High Court Act.

Orders made under sections 141 and 142 are not proceedings within the meaning of this section.

Act X, 1872, s. 296, paras. 2 and 3. Act XI, 1874, s. 29. 10 Beng. 289.

436. When on examining the record of any case under section 435 the Court of Session or District Magistrate considers that such case is triable exclusively by the Court of Session, and that an accused person has been improperly discharged by the inferior Court, the Court of Session or District Magistrate may direct him to be committed for trial upon the matter of which he has been, in the opinion of the Court of Session or District Magistrate, improperly discharged:

Power to order commitment.

2 Kim. 93.

Provided that the accused has had an opportunity of shewing cause to such Court or Magistrate why the committal should not be made:

Act XI, 1874, s. 29.

Provided also that, if such Court or Magistrate thinks that the evidence shows that some other offence has been committed by the accused, such Court or Magistrate may direct the inferior Court to inquire into such offence.

Act X, 1872, s. 296. Act XI, 1874, s. 31.

437. On examining any record under section 435, the Court of Session may direct the District Magistrate by himself or by any of the Magistrates subordinate to him, or the District Magistrate may direct any subordinate Magistrate, to make further inquiry into any complaint which has been dismissed under section 204.

Power to order inquiry.

Act X, 1872, s. 296, para. 1.

438. The Court of Session or District Magistrate may, if it or he thinks fit, on examining under section 435 the record of any proceeding, report for the orders of the High Court the results of such examination.

Report to High Court.

Act X, 1872, s. 297. 1 B. L. R. 2 Calc. 118. 11 B. L. R. 139. 2 Bomb. 125; 2 Mahon 287. 2 O'Kin. 84. This will empower High Court to reduce sentence of enhanced re-trial.

439. In the case of any proceeding the record of which has been called for by itself, or which has been reported for orders, or which otherwise comes to its knowledge, the High Court may, in its discretion, exercise any of the powers conferred on a Court of Appeal by sections 424, 426, 427 and 428, and when the Judges composing the Court of revision are equally divided, the case shall be disposed of in manner provided by section 429.

High Court's powers of revision.

440. No party has any right to be heard either personally or by pleader before any High Court when exercising its powers of revision; but the High Court may, if it thinks fit, when exercising such powers, hear any party either personally or by pleader.

Act X, 1872, s. 297, last para.

Optional with Court to hear parties.

441. When the record of any proceeding of any Presidency Magistrate is called for by the High Court under section 435, the Magistrate may submit with the record a statement setting forth the grounds of his decision or order and any facts which he thinks material to the issue; and the Court shall consider such statement before overruling or setting aside the said decision or order.

Act IV, 1877, s. 182.

Statement by Magistrate of grounds of his decision to be considered by High Court.

442. Whenever a case is revised by the High Court under this chapter, it shall certify its decision or order to the Court by which the finding, sentence or order was recorded or passed. If the finding, sentence or order was recorded or passed by a Magistrate other than the District Magistrate, the certificate shall be sent through the District Magistrate.

Act X, 1872, s. 299.

Order on revision to be certified to lower Court or District Magistrate.

The Court or Magistrate to which the High Court certifies its order shall thereupon make such orders as are conformable to the decision of the High Court and, if necessary, the record shall be amended in accordance therewith.

PART VIII.

SPECIAL PROCEEDINGS.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS AGAINST EUROPEANS AND AMERICANS.

443. No charge against a European British subject shall be inquired into or tried by any Magistrate, unless he is a Justice of the Peace, and (except in the case of a Presidency Magistrate) unless he is a Magistrate of the first class and a European British subject.

Act X, 1872, s. 74.

Magistrates who may inquire into and try charges against European British subjects.

444. No charge against a European British subject shall be tried by any Sessions Court unless the presiding Judge is a European British subject.

Sessions Judge to be an European British subject.

445. Nothing in section 443 or section 444 shall prevent any Magistrate from taking cognizance of an offence committed by any European British subject in any case in which he could take cognizance of a like offence if committed by another person:

Act X, 1872, ss. 72, [illegible]

Cognizance of offence committed by European British subject.

Provided that if he issues any process for the purpose of compelling the appearance of a European British subject accused of an offence, such process shall be made returnable before a Magistrate having jurisdiction to inquire into or try the case.

Act X

Act X, 1872, s. 73.

446. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 32, or section 34, no Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate shall pass any sentence on a European British subject other than imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months, or fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or both.

Sentences which may be passed by mufassal Magistrates.

Act X, 1872, ss. 75, 438.

447. When a European British subject is accused of an offence before a Magistrate, and such offence cannot, in the opinion of such Magistrate, be adequately punished by him, and is not punishable with death or with transportation for life, such Magistrate shall, if he thinks that the accused ought to be committed, commit him to the Court of Session or, in the case of a Presidency Magistrate, to the High Court.

When commitment is to be to Court of Session and to High Court.

Act XI, 1874, s. 12.

When the offence complained of is punishable with death or transportation for life, the commitment shall be to the High Court.

448. Where any person committed to the High Court under section 447 is charged with several offences of which one is punishable with death or transportation for life and the others with a less punishment, and the High Court considers that he should not be tried for the offence punishable with death or transportation, the High Court may nevertheless try him for the other offence.

Trial for offences of which one is, and the others are not, punishable with death or transportation.

Act X, 1872, s. 76.

449. Sessions Judges, Additional Sessions Judges or Joint Sessions Judges, and, when specially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government, Assistant Sessions Judges who have been Assistant Sessions Judges for not less than three years, may pass on European British subjects any lawful sentence of imprisonment for a term which may extend to one year, or fine, or both.

Sentences which may be passed by Court of Session.

If at any stage of the proceedings in a Sessions Court, before the signing of the judgment, the presiding Judge thinks that the offence which appears to be proved cannot be adequately punished by such a sentence, he shall record his opinion to that effect and transfer the case to the High Court. Such Judge may either himself bind over, or direct the committing Magistrate to bind over, the complainant and witnesses to appear before the High Court.

Procedure when Sessions Judge finds his powers inadequate.

Act X, 1872, s. 77.

450. If the Judge of the Sessions Division within which the offence is ordinarily triable is not a European British subject, the case shall be reported by the committing Magistrate for the orders of the High Court.

Procedure when Sessions Judge is not a European British subject.

Act X, 1872, ss. 78, 85.

451. In trials of European British subjects before a High Court or Court of Session, if before the first juror is called and accepted or the first assessor is appointed, as the case may be, any such subject requires to be tried by a mixed jury, or by a mixed set of assessors, not less than half the number of the jurors or assessors shall be Europeans or Americans, or both Europeans and Americans.

Mixed jury for trial of European British subjects.

Act X, 1872, s. 86.

452. In any case in which a European British subject is accused jointly with a person not being an European British subject, and such European British subject is committed for trial before a High Court or Court of Session, such persons may be tried together, and the procedure on the trial shall be the same as it would have been had the European British subject been tried separately:

Trial of European British subject and Native jointly accused.

Act X, 1872, s. 87.

Provided that, if the European British subject requires under section 451 to be tried by a mixed jury, or by a mixed set of assessors, and the person not being a European British subject requires that he shall be tried separately, the latter person shall be tried separately in accordance with the provisions of chapter XXIII.

When Native may claim separate trial.

Act X, 1872, s. 89.

453. When any person claims to be dealt with as a European British subject, he shall state the grounds of such claim to the Magistrate before whom he is brought for the purposes of the inquiry or trial; and such Magistrate shall inquire into the truth of such statement, and allow the person making it a reasonable time within which to prove that it is true, and shall then decide whether he is or is not a European British subject, and shall deal with him accordingly. If any such person is convicted by such Magistrate and appeals from such conviction, the burden of proving that the Magistrate's decision was wrong shall lie upon him.

Procedure on claim of European British subject to be dealt with as such.

When any such person is committed by the Magistrate for trial before the Court of Session, and such person again before such Court claims to be dealt with as a European British subject, such Court shall after such further enquiry if any, as it thinks fit, decide whether he is or is not a European British subject, and shall deal with him accordingly. If he is convicted by such Court and appeals from such conviction, the burden of proving that the Court's decision was wrong shall lie upon him.

When the Court before which any person is tried decides that he is not a European British subject, such decision shall form a ground of appeal from the sentence or order passed in such trial.

Act X, [illegible] s. 94.

454. If a European British subject does not claim to be dealt with as such by the Magistrate before whom he is tried or by whom he is committed, or if, when such claim has been made before and disallowed by the committing Magistrate, it is not again made before the Court to which he is committed, he shall be held to have waived his privilege as such European British subject, and shall not assert it in any subsequent stage of the same case.

Failure to plead status a waiver.

Act X, 1872, s. 86. Unless the Magistrate has reason to believe that any person brought before him is not a European British subject, the Magistrate shall ask such person whether he is such a subject or not.

455. Where a person who is not a European British subject is dealt with under this chapter as such, and does not object, the inquiry, commitment or trial (as the case may be) shall not, by reason of such dealing, be invalid.

Trial under this chapter of person not a European British subject.

Act X, 1872, s. 81. 456. Any European British subject who is detained in custody by any person, and who considers such detention unlawful, may apply to the High Court which would have jurisdiction over him in respect of any offence committed by him at the place where he is detained, or to which he would be entitled to appeal from any conviction for any such offence, for an order directing the person detaining him to bring him before the High Court to abide such further order as it may pass.

Right of European British subject under detention to apply for order to produce his person.

X, 1872, 81. 457. The High Court, if it thinks fit, may, before issuing such order, inquire on affidavit or otherwise, into the grounds on which it is applied for, and grant or refuse such application; or it may issue the order in the first instance and, when the person applying for it is brought before it, it may make such further order in the case as it thinks fit, after such inquiry (if any) as it thinks necessary.

Procedure on such application.

X, 1872, s. 81. 458. The High Court may issue such orders throughout the territories within the local limits of its appellate criminal jurisdiction, and such other territories as the Governor General in Council may from time to time direct.

Territories throughout which High Court may issue such orders.

XXII, 70, ss. 2 459. Unless there be something repugnant in the context, all enactments heretofore or hereafter made by the Governor General in Council, which confer summary jurisdiction over offences, shall be deemed to apply to European British subjects, although such persons be not expressly referred to therein.

Application of Acts conferring summary jurisdiction.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize any court to exceed the limits prescribed by this chapter as to the amount of punishment which it may inflict on an European British subject, or to confer jurisdiction on any Magistrate not being a Justice of the Peace or on any Magistrate outside the Presidency Towns not being an European British subject.

460. In every case in which an European (not being an European British subject) or an American is the accused person, or one of the accused persons, not less than half the number of Jurors or Assessors shall, if practicable and if such European or American so desires, be Europeans, or Americans. Act X, 1872, s. 234.

Jury for trial of Europeans or Americans.

461. Whenever an European or American is charged before the Court of Session jointly with a person of any other race, and claims to be tried by a jury consisting of at least one-half of Europeans and Americans, such person shall, if he so desires, be tried separately. Act X, 1872, s. 242.

Jury when European or American charged jointly with one of another race.

462. When a trial is to be held before the Court of Session in which the accused person, or one of the accused persons, is entitled to be tried by a jury constituted under the provisions of section 451, or section 460, the Court shall, three days at least before the day fixed for holding such trial, cause to be summoned, in the manner hereinafter prescribed, as many European and American jurors as are required for the trial. Act X, 1872, s. 408.

Summoning and empannelling jurors under section 451, or 460.

The Court shall also at the same time in like manner cause to be summoned the same number of other persons named in the revised list, unless such number of such other persons has been already summoned for trials by jury at that session.

From the whole number of persons returned, the jurors who are to constitute the jury shall be chosen by lot in the manner prescribed in section 279, until a jury containing the proper number of Europeans or Americans, or a number approaching thereto as nearly as possible, has been obtained.

463. Criminal proceedings against European British subjects, Europeans not being European British subjects, and Americans before the Court of Session and High Court, shall, except as otherwise expressly provided, be conducted according to the provisions of chapter XXIII.

Conduct of criminal proceedings against European British subjects.

CHAPTER XXXV.

Lunatics.

464. When any person accused of an offence before a Magistrate holding an inquiry or a trial appears to such Magistrate to be of unsound mind and incapable of making his defence, Act X, 1872, s. 433. Act IV, 1877, s. 194.

Procedure in case of accused being lunatic.

the Magistrate shall inquire into the fact of such unsoundness, and shall cause such person to be examined by the Civil Surgeon of the district or such other medical officer as the Local Government directs, and thereupon shall examine such Surgeon or other officer as a witness, and shall reduce the examination into writing.

If such Magistrate is of opinion that the accused is of unsound mind, he shall postpone further proceedings in the case.

Act X, 1872, s. 425. Act X, 1875, s. 129. 465. If any person committed for trial before a Court of Session or a High Court appears to the Court at his trial to be of unsound mind and incapable of making his defence, the Court shall, in the first instance, try the fact of such unsoundness and incapacity and, if satisfied of the fact, shall pass judgment accordingly, and thereupon the trial shall be postponed.

Procedure in case of person committed before Court of Session or High Court being lunatic.

Act XI, 1874, s. 39. The trial of the fact of the unsoundness of mind and incapacity of the accused shall be deemed to be part of his trial before the Court.

Act X, 1872, s. 426. Act X, 1875, s. 121. Act IV, 1877, s. 196. 466. Whenever an accused person is found to be of unsound mind and incapable of making his defence, the Magistrate or Court, as the case may be, if the offence of which such person is accused is bailable, may release him on sufficient security being given that he shall be properly taken care of, and shall be prevented from doing injury to himself or to any other person, and for his appearance when required before the Magistrate or Court or such officer as the Magistrate or Court appoints in this behalf.

Release of lunatic pending investigation or trial.

If the offence is not bailable, or if sufficient security is not given, the Magistrate or Court shall report the case to the Local Government, and the Local Government may order such person to be confined in a Lunatic Asylum or other suitable place of safe custody, and the Magistrate or Court shall give effect to such order.

Custody of lunatic.

I. L. R. 2 Calc. 356. Act X, 1872, s. 427. Act X, 1875, s. 122. Act IV, 1877, s. 197. 467. Whenever an inquiry or trial is postponed under section 464 or section 465, the Magistrate or Court, as the case may be, may at any time resume the inquiry or trial, and require the accused to appear or be brought before such Magistrate or Court.

Resumption of inquiry or trial.

When the accused has been released under section 466, and the sureties for his appearance produce him to the officer whom the Magistrate or Court appoints in this behalf, the certificate of such officer that the accused is capable of making his defence shall be receivable in evidence.

Act X, 1872, s. 428. Act X, 1875, s. 123. Act IV, 1877, s. 198. 468. If, when the accused appears or is again brought before the Magistrate or the Court, as the case may be, the Magistrate or Court considers him capable of making his defence, the inquiry or trial shall proceed.

Procedure on accused appearing before Magistrate or Court.

If the Magistrate or Court considers the accused person to be still incapable of making his defence, the Magistrate or Court shall again act according to the provisions of section 464 or section 465, as the case may be.

469. When the accused appears to be of sound mind at the time of inquiry or trial, and the Magistrate is satisfied from the evidence given before him that there is reason to believe that the accused committed an act which, if he had been of sound mind, would have been an offence, and that he was at the time when the act was committed, by reason of unsoundness of mind, incapable of knowing the nature of the act or that it was contrary to law, the Magistrate shall proceed with the case and, if the offence be triable exclusively by the Court of Session or High Court, send the accused for trial before the Court of Session or High Court, as the case may be. Act X, 1872, s. 424. Act IV, 1877, s. 195.

When accused appears to have been insane.

470. Whenever any person is acquitted upon the ground that, at the time at which he is alleged to have committed an offence, he was, by reason of unsoundness of mind, incapable of knowing the nature of the act alleged as constituting the offence complained of, or that it was contrary to law, the judgment of acquittal shall state specially whether he committed the act or not. Act X, 1872, s. 429. Act X, 1875, s. 124. Act IV, 1877, s. 195. 39 & 40 Geo. III, c. 94. Reg. v. M'Naughten, 10 Cl. & Fin. 200.

Judgment of acquittal on ground of lunacy.

471. Whenever such judgment states that the accused person committed the act alleged, the Magistrate or Court before whom or which the trial has been held shall, if such act would, but for the incapacity found, have constituted an offence, order such person to be kept in safe custody in such place and manner as the Magistrate or Court thinks fit, and shall report the case for the order of the Local Government. Act X, 1872, s. 430. Act X, 1875, s. 125. Act IV, 1877, s. 195.

Person acquitted on such ground to be kept in safe custody.

The Local Government may order such person to be confined in a Lunatic Asylum, jail or other suitable place of safe custody.

472. When any person is confined under the provisions of section 466 or section 471, the Inspector General of Prisons, if such person is confined in a jail, or the visitors of the Lunatic Asylums or any two of them, if he is confined in a Lunatic Asylum, may visit him in order to ascertain his state of mind; and he shall be visited once at least in every six months by such Inspector General or by two of such visitors as aforesaid; and such Inspector General or visitors shall make a special report to the Local Government as to the state of mind of such person. Act X, 1872, s. 432. Act X, 1875, s. 127. Act IV, 1877, s. 200.

Lunatic prisoners to be visited by Inspector General.

473. If such person is confined under the provisions of section 466, and such Inspector General or visitors shall certify that, in his or their opinion, such person is capable of making Act X, 1872, s. 431. Act X, 1875, s. 126. Act IV, 1877, s. 199.

Procedure where lunatic prisoner is reported capable of making his defence.

his defence, he shall be taken before the Magistrate or Court, as the case may be, at such time as the Magistrate or Court appoints, and the Magistrate or Court shall deal with such person under the provisions of section 468; and the certificate of such Inspector General or visitors as aforesaid shall be receivable as evidence.

Act X, 1872, s. 433. Act X, 1875, s. 128. Act X, 1877, s. 203.

474. If such person is confined under the provisions of section 466 or section 471, and such Inspector General or visitors shall certify that, in his or their judgment, he may be discharged without danger of his doing injury to himself or to any other person, the Local Government may thereupon order him to be discharged, or to be detained in custody, or to be transferred to a public Lunatic Asylum if he has not been already sent to such an Asylum, and in case it orders him to be transferred to an Asylum, may appoint a commission, consisting of a judicial officer and two medical officers, whereof the chief medical officer attached to the Asylum shall be one.

Procedure where lunatic confined under section 466 or 471 is declared fit to be discharged.

The said commission shall make formal inquiry into the state of mind of such person, taking such evidence as is necessary, and shall report to the Local Government, who may order his discharge or detention as it thinks fit.

Act X, 1872, s. 434. Act X, 1875, s. 129. Act IV, 1877, s. 204.

475. Whenever any relative or friend of any person confined under the provisions of section 466 or section 471 desires that he shall be delivered over to his care and custody, the Local Government, upon the application of such relative or friend, and on his giving security to the satisfaction of such Government that the person delivered shall be properly taken care of and shall be prevented from doing injury to himself or to any other person, may order such person to be delivered to such relative or friend.

Delivery of lunatic to care of relative.

Whenever such person is so delivered, it shall be upon condition that he shall be produced for the inspection of such officer and at such times as the Local Government directs.

The provisions of sections 472 and 474 shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to persons delivered under the provisions of this section; and the certificate of the inspecting officer appointed under this section shall be dealt with as a certificate under section 474.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

PROCEEDINGS IN CASE OF CERTAIN OFFENCES AFFECTING THE ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.

Act X, 1872, s. 471, 477. Act X, 1875, s. 135. Act IV, 1877, s. 445 omit. ing last para. 1 L. R. 1 Cal. 454. 1 L. R. 1 All. 191, 193. 14 & 15 Vic. c. 100, s. 19. 217.

476. When any Court is of opinion that there is ground for enquiring into any offence referred to in section 196, and committed before it or brought under its notice in the course of a judicial proceeding, such Court, after making any preliminary inquiry that may be necessary, may send the case for enquiry to any Magistrate having power to try or commit for trial the accused for such offence, and may send the accused in custody, or take sufficient security for his appearance, before such Magistrate; and may bind over any person to appear and give evidence on such trial or enquiry.

Procedure in cases mentioned in section 196.

Such Magistrate shall thereupon proceed according to law, and may, if he is authorised to transfer cases under section 193, transfer the enquiry to some other competent Magistrate, instead of completing the inquiry himself.

477. A Court of Session may charge a person for any offence referred to in section 196 and committed before it, or brought under its notice in the course of a judicial proceeding, and may commit, or admit to bail and try, such person upon its own charge.

Act X, 1872, s. 472. Reg. v. Nomai, 4 Beng. App. Crim. Jur. 11.

Power of Session Court as to such offences committed before itself.

Such Court may direct the Magistrate to cause the attendance of any witnesses for the purposes of the trial.

478. When any such offence is committed before any Civil Court, or brought under the notice of any Civil Court in the course of a judicial proceeding and such case is triable exclusively by the High Court or Court of Session, or such Civil Court thinks that it ought to be tried by the High Court or Court of Session, such Civil Court may, instead of sending the case under section 476 to a Magistrate for enquiry, itself complete the enquiry, and commit or hold to bail the accused person to take his trial before the High Court or Court of Session, as the case may be.

Act X, 1872, s. 474, paras. 1 and 2.

Power of Civil Courts to complete investigation and commit to Sessions Court.

For the purposes of an enquiry under this section, the Civil Court may exercise all the powers of a Magistrate; and its proceedings in such enquiry shall be conducted as nearly as may be in accordance with the provisions of chapter XVIII, and shall be deemed to have been held by a Magistrate.

Act X, 1872, s. 476.

479. When any such commitment is made by a Civil Court, the Court shall send the charge with the order of commitment and the record of the case to the Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate or other Magistrate authorised to commit for trial; and such Magistrate shall bring the case before the High Court or Court of Session, as the case may be, together with the witnesses for the prosecution and defence.

Act X, 1872, s. 475.

Procedure of Civil Court in such cases.

480. When any such offence as is described in section 175, 178, 179, 180, or 228 of the Indian Penal Code is committed in the view or presence of any Court, the Court may cause the offender, whether he is a European British subject or not, to be detained in custody; and at any time before the rising of the Court on the same day* may, if it thinks fit, take cognizance of the offence and sentence the offender to fine not exceeding two hundred rupees and, in default of payment, to imprisonment in the civil jail for a term which may extend to one month, unless such fine be sooner paid.

Act X, 1872, s. 485. Act IV, 1877, s. 205.

Procedure in certain cases of contempt.

Pollard's case, L. R. 2 P. C. 106.

481. In every such case, the Court shall record the facts constituting the offence, with the statement (if any) made by the offender, as well as the finding and sentence.

Record in such cases.

If the offence is under section 228 of the Indian Penal Code, the record must show the nature and stage of the judicial proceeding in which the Court interrupted or insulted was sitting, and the nature of the interruption or insult offered.

New. 13 Bengal Appendix 40.

482. A Registrar appointed under the Indian Registration Act, 1877, shall be deemed to be a Civil Court within the meaning of section 480.

Registrar to be deemed a Civil Court within Section 480.

Act X, 1872, s. 486, para. 1. Act IV, 1877, s. 206.

483. If the Court in any case considers that a person accused of any of the offences referred to in section 480 and committed in its view or presence should be imprisoned otherwise than in default of payment of fine, or that a fine exceeding two hundred rupees should be imposed upon him, or such Court is for any other reason of opinion that the case should not be disposed of under section 480, such Court, after recording the facts constituting the offence and the statement of the accused as hereinbefore provided, may forward the case to a Magistrate having jurisdiction to try the same, and may require security to be given for the appearance of such accused person before such Magistrate or, if sufficient security is not given, shall forward such person under custody to such Magistrate.

Procedure where Court considers that case should not be dealt with under section 480.

The Magistrate to whom any person is forwarded under this section shall proceed to hear the complaint against him in manner hereinbefore provided.

Act X, 1872, s. 487. Act IV, 1877, s. 207.

484. When any Court has under section 480 or 483 adjudged an offender to punishment, or forwarded him to a Magistrate for trial, for refusing or omitting to do anything which he was lawfully required to do, or for any intentional insult or interruption, the Court may in its discretion discharge the offender or remit the punishment on his submission to the order or requisition of such Court, or on apology being made to its satisfaction.

Discharge of offender on submission or apology.

Act X, 1872, ss. 856, 864. Act X, 1875, s. 99. Act IV, 1877, s. 141.

485. If any witness before a Court refuses to answer such questions as are put to him or to produce any document in his possession or power which the Court requires him to produce, and does not offer any reasonable excuse for such refusal, such Court may sentence him to simple imprisonment, or commit him to the custody of an officer of the Court, for any term not exceeding seven days, unless in the meantime such person consents to be examined and to answer; after which, in the event of his persisting in his refusal, he may be dealt with according to the provisions of section 480 or 483, and in the case of a High Court shall be deemed guilty of a contempt.

Imprisonment or committal of person refusing to answer or produce document.

Act X, 1872, s. 485.

486. Any person convicted by any Court under section 480 or section 485 may appeal to the Court to which decrees or orders made in such Court are ordinarily appealable.

Appeals from convictions in contempt-cases.

Sections 420, 421, 422, 426 and 428 shall apply to appeals under this section, and the Appellate Court may alter or reverse the finding or sentence appealed against, and may if it sees fit enhance any punishment that has been awarded.

An appeal from such conviction by a Small Cause Court may be made to the Court of Session for the Sessions Division within which such Court is situate.

New.

An appeal from such conviction by any officer as Registrar appointed as aforesaid may, when such officer is also Judge of a Civil Court, be made to the Court to which it would, under the preceding portion of this section, be made if such conviction were a conviction by such officer in his capacity as such Judge, and in other cases may be made to the Inspector-General of Registration.

487. Except as provided in sections 477, 480, and 485, no Judge or Magistrate other than a Judge of a High Court, the Recorder of Rangoon, and the Presidency Magistrates, shall try any person for any offence referred to in section 196, when such offence is committed before himself or brought under his notice in a judicial proceeding.

Judge or Magistrate not to try offences referred to in section 481 when committed before himself.

Nothing in section 476 or 483 shall prevent a Magistrate empowered to commit to the Court of Session or High Court from committing any case to such Court, or shall prevent a Presidency Magistrate from himself disposing of any case instead of sending it for enquiry to another Magistrate.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

OF THE MAINTENANCE OF WIVES AND CHILDREN.

Act X, 1872, s. 536. Act IV, 1877, s. 294.

488. If any person having sufficient means neglects or refuses to maintain his wife or his legitimate or illegitimate child unable to maintain itself, the District Magistrate, a Presidency Magistrate, a Sub-Divisional Magistrate, or a Magistrate of the first class may, upon proof of such neglect or refusal, order such person to make a monthly allowance for the maintenance of his wife or such child, at such monthly rate, not exceeding fifty rupees in the whole, as such Magistrate thinks fit, and to pay the same to such person as the Magistrate from time to time directs.

Order for maintenance of wives and children.

Such allowance shall be payable from the date of the order.

If any person so ordered wilfully neglects to comply with the order, any such Magistrate may, for every breach of the order, issue a warrant for levying the amount due in manner hereinbefore provided for levying fines, and may sentence such person, for each month's allowance remaining unpaid, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding one month:

Enforcement of order.

Provided that, if such person offers to maintain his wife on condition of her living with him, and she refuses to live with him, such Magistrate may consider any grounds of refusal stated by her; and may make an order under this section notwithstanding such offer, if he is satisfied that such person is living in adultery, or that he has habitually treated his wife with cruelty.

Proviso.

No wife shall be entitled to receive an allowance from her husband under this section if she is living in adultery or if, without any sufficient reason, she refuses to live with her husband, or if they are living separately by mutual consent.

Act X, 1872, s. 537. Act IV, 1877, s. 235.

489. The Magistrate may, on proof of a change in the circumstances of any person receiving or ordered, under section 488, to pay a monthly allowance, his wife or child, may make such alteration in the allowance ordered as the Magistrate thinks fit, provided the monthly rate of fifty rupees be not exceeded.

Alteration in allowance.

Act X, 1872, s. 538. Act IV, 1877, s. 236.

490. A copy of the order of maintenance shall be given without payment to the person in whose favour it is made, or to his guardian, if any; and such order shall be enforceable by any Magistrate in any place where the person against whom it is made may be, on such Magistrate being satisfied as to the identity of the parties and the non-payment of the allowance due.

Enforcement of order of maintenance.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

State-Prisoners.

Ben. Reg. III, 1818, s. 2. Mad. Reg. II, 1819, s. 2. Bombay Reg. XXV of 1827, preamble and section 1.

491. Whenever, for all or any of the reasons of State hereinafter mentioned, the Governor General in Council, the Governor of Fort St. George in Council, or the Governor of Bombay in Council is of opinion that any person should be placed under personal restraint, without any immediate view to ulterior judicial proceedings, a warrant of commitment under the authority of the Governor General in Council, the Governor of Fort St. George in Council or the Governor of Bombay in Council (as the case may be) and under the hand of one of the Secretaries to Government, shall be issued to the officer in whose custody such person (hereinafter called a State-prisoner) is to be placed.

Procedure in placing persons under restraint as State-prisoners.

The reasons above referred to are as follows:—

(a) the maintenance of the alliances formed by the British Government with foreign powers;

(b) the preservation of tranquillity in the territories of Native Princes and States entitled to its protection;

(c) the security of the British dominions from foreign hostility or internal commotion.

Act III, 18 s. 2.

492. Such warrant shall authorize the detention of the State-prisoner therein mentioned in any fortress, jail or other place within British India.

Form and effect of warrant.

Ben. Reg. I 1818, s. Mad. Reg. 1819, s. Bombay R XXV, 1 s. 5, cl 2.

493. The officer in whose custody any State-prisoner has been placed under this chapter or under any enactment repealed by this Code, shall forward, with such observations as he thinks necessary, to the Government under whose authority such prisoner was so placed, every representation which he may from time to time be desirous of submitting to such Government.

Representations made by State-prisoners to be submitted to Government.

Ben. Reg. I 1818, s. Mad. Reg. 1819, s. 6 Bombay R XXV, 18 s. 5, cla 1.

494. Every officer in whose custody any State-prisoner is placed shall, as soon after taking such prisoner into his custody as may be practicable, report to such Government whether the degree of confinement to which the State-prisoner is subjected seems likely to injure his health, and whether the allowance fixed for his support is adequate to the supply of his own wants and those of his family then with him according to their rank in life.

Report to Government regarding nature of confinement, health and allowances of State-prisoners.

Ben. Reg. 1818, s. Mad. Reg. 1819, s. 6 Bombay R XXV, 18 s. 5, cla 1.

495. Whenever the Governor General in Council, the Governor of Fort St. George in Council or the Governor of Bombay in Council for any of the reasons mentioned in section 491, considers it necessary to attach the lands of any proprietor without any previous decision of a Court of justice or other judicial proceeding, he shall direct the District Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the lands are situate to attach such lands, and they shall be attached accordingly.

Attachment of lands by order of Government.

Ben. Reg. 1818, s. Mad. Reg 1819, s. Bombay R XXV, 18 s. 7.

496. The lands so attached shall be held under the management of the Collector, and shall be administered in the same manner as the estates of disqualified proprietors under the superintendence of Government.

Lands attached to be placed under management,

Ben. Reg. I 1818, s. Mad. Reg 1819, s. 1 Bombay Re XXV, 182 s. 8.

Such lands shall not be liable to be sold in execution of decrees of the Civil Courts, or for the realization of fines or otherwise, so long as they are so held under attachment, without the consent of the Government and the proprietor.

and not to be sold in execution.

But the whole or any part of the annual nett proceeds of such lands may, if the Government so directs, be applied to the satisfaction of the decrees of the Civil Courts against the proprietor.

Government to arrange for satisfying decrees.

Ben. Reg. III, 1818, s. 11. Mad. Reg. II, 1819, s. 11. Bom. Reg. XXV, 1827.

497. Whenever the Government by whose direction such lands were attached, is of opinion that the circumstances which rendered necessary the attachment have ceased to operate, and that the management of the lands can be committed to the proprietor without public hazard or inconvenience, such Government shall direct the Collector to release the lands from attachment, to adjust the accounts of the collection during the period in which they have been superintended by Government and to pay over to the proprietor the nett proceeds of the lands which have accumulated during the attachment.

Procedure where Government orders release of land from attachment.

Act XXXIV, 1850, s. 1. Act III, 1858, s. 3.

498. The warrant of commitment of any State-prisoner under this chapter may be directed to the Superintendent of the jail in any Presidency-town, or to the Commandant of any fortress, or to the officer in charge of any jail or other place, in which it is deemed expedient that such State-prisoner be confined, in any part of British India; and such warrant shall authorize the detention of such State-prisoner in the jail, fortress or other place therein mentioned.

Officers to whom warrant of commitment of State-prisoner may be directed.

Act III, 1858, s. 5.

499. The Governor General in Council may order the removal of any State-prisoner confined under this chapter or any enactment repealed by this Code from any jail, fortress or place in which he may be confined to any other jail, fortress or place of confinement within British India.

Removal of State-prisoners from one place of confinement to another.

Act XI, 1857, s. 6. Bom. Reg. XXV, 1827, chapter. 1, s. 1.

500. Nothing in this chapter applies to European British subjects.

Saving of European British subjects.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

Directions of the Nature of a Habeas Corpus.

Act X, 1875, s. 148.

501 Any of the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay may, whenever it thinks fit, direct—

Power to issue directions of the nature of a habeas corpus.

(a) that a person within the limits of its ordinary original criminal jurisdiction be brought up before the Court to be dealt with according to law;

(b) that a person illegally or improperly detained in public or private custody within such limits be set at liberty;

(c) that a prisoner detained in any gaol situate within such limits be brought before the Court to be there examined as a witness in any matter pending or to be inquired into in such Court;

(d) that a prisoner detained as aforesaid be brought before a Court-martial or any Commissioners acting under the authority of any Commission from the Governor General in Council for trial, or to be examined touching any matter depending before such Court-martial or Commissioners respectively;

(e) that a prisoner within such limits be removed from one custody to another for the purpose of trial;

(f) that the body of a defendant within such limits may be brought in on the Sheriff's return of cepi corpus to a writ of attachment.

Each of the said High Courts may from time to time frame rules to regulate the procedure in cases under this section.

Nothing in this section applies to State-prisoners detained under chapter XXXVIII or under any enactment hereby repealed.

PART IX.

SUPPLEMENTARY PROVISIONS.

CHAPTER XL.

Of the Public Prosecutor.

502. The Governor General in Council or the Local Government may appoint officers, to be called Public Prosecutors, who shall perform their functions in all or any cases or specified classes of cases in any local area, outside the Presidency-towns.

Power to appoint public prosecutors.

In any case committed for trial to the Court of Session, the District Magistrate, or, subject to the control of the District Magistrate, the Subdivisional Magistrate, may, in the absence of the Public Prosecutor, or where no Public Prosecutor has been appointed, appoint any other person, not being an officer of Police, to act as Public Prosecutor.

Act X, 1872, s. 60.

503. The Public Prosecutor may appear and plead without any written authority before any Court, in which any case of which he has charge is under inquiry, trial or appeal; and if any private person instructs a pleader to prosecute in any Court any person in any such case, the Public Prosecutor shall conduct the prosecution, and the pleader so instructed shall act therein under his directions.

Public Prosecutor may plead in all Courts in cases under his charge.

Pleaders, privately instructed, to be under his direction.

Act X, 1872, s. 61.

504. The Public Prosecutor may, with the consent of the Court, withdraw any charge against any person in any such case, and upon such withdrawal, if it is made whilst the case is under inquiry, the accused shall be discharged. If it is made when he is under trial, he shall be acquitted: provided that the charge is withdrawn, in cases tried by jury, before the return of the verdict, and in other cases, before the judgment is pronounced.

Effect of withdrawal of charge by Public Prosecutor.

Act X, 1872, s. 62, Act X, 1874, s. 1, Act X, 1877, s. 3.

505. Any Magistrate inquiring into or trying any case may permit any person to conduct the prosecution; but no person, other than the Advocate General, Standing Counsel, Government Solicitor, or public prosecutor, shall be entitled to do so without such permission.

Permission to conduct prosecution.

Any person conducting the prosecution may do so personally or by a pleader.

CHAPTER XLI.

Of Bail.

Act X, 1872, ss. 388, 393, 394, 395, 396, also ss. 203, 204, Act X, 1877, ss. 73, 74, 75, Act X, 1874, s. 2.

506. When any person is arrested or detained by a Police-officer without warrant for a bailable offence, or appears or is brought before a Court accused of any such offence, and is prepared at any time while in the custody of such Police-officer or at any stage of the proceedings before such Court to give bail, such person shall be released on bail: Provided that such officer or Court, if he or it thinks fit, may, instead of taking bail from such person, discharge him on his executing a bond without sureties for his appearance as hereinafter provided.

Bail to be taken in case of bailable offence.

Act X, 1872, ss. 388, 389, Act IV, 1877, s. 71.

507. When any person accused of any non-bailable offence is arrested or detained without warrant by a Police-officer, or appears or is brought before a Court, he shall not be released on bail if there appear reasonable grounds for believing that he has been guilty of the offence of which he is accused.

When bail shall not be taken in case of non-bailable offence.

If it appears to such officer or Court at any stage of the investigation, inquiry or trial, as the case may be, that there is not reasonable ground for believing that such person has committed such offence, but that there is sufficient ground for further inquiry into his guilt, the accused person shall be released on bail pending such inquiry.

When it may be.

Any Court may, at any subsequent stage of any proceeding under this Code, cause any person who has been released under this section to be arrested, and may commit him to custody.

508. The High Court or Court of Session may in any case, whether there be an appeal on conviction or not, direct that any accused person be admitted to bail, or that the bail required by a Police-officer or Magistrate be reduced.

Act X, 1872, s. 390. Act X, 1875, s. 136. I. L. R. 1 All. 151.

Power to direct admission to bail or reduction of bail.

Bail to be taken under this chapter shall not be excessive.

509. Before any person is released on bail or released on his own bond, a bond for such sum of money as the Police-officer or Court, as the case may be, thinks sufficient shall be executed by such person, and when he is released on bail, by one or more sufficient sureties, conditioned that such person shall attend at the time and place mentioned in the bond, and shall continue so to attend until otherwise directed by the Police-officer or Court as the case may be.

Act X, 1872, s. 391. Act IV, 1877, s. 72.

Bond of accused and sureties.

If the case so require, the bond shall also bind the person released on bail to appear when called upon at the High Court, Court of Session or other Court to answer the charge.

510. As soon as the bond has been executed, the accused shall be released; and when he is in jail, the Court admitting him to bail shall issue an order of release to the officer in charge of the jail, and such officer on receipt of the order shall release him.

Act X, 1872, s. 394. Act IV, 1877, s. 73.

Discharge from custody.

511. If, through mistake or fraud, insufficient sureties have been taken, or if they afterwards become insufficient, the Court may issue a warrant of arrest directing that the accused person be brought before it, and may order him to find sufficient sureties, and on his failing so to do may commit him to jail.

Act X, 1872, s. 392. Act IV, 1877, s. 75.

Power to order sufficient bail when that first taken is insufficient.

512. All or any sureties for the attendance and appearance of a person released on bail may at any time apply to a Magistrate to discharge the bond either wholly or so far as relates to the applicants.

Act X, 1872, s. 395. Act IV, 1877, s. 76.

Discharge of sureties.

On such application being made, the Magistrate shall issue his warrant of arrest, directing that the person so released be brought before him.

On the appearance of such person pursuant to the warrant, or on his voluntary surrender, the Magistrate shall direct the bond to be discharged either wholly or so far as relates to the applicants, and shall call upon such person to find other sufficient sureties, and if he fails to do so, may commit him to jail.

CHAPTER XLII.

Of Commissions for the Examination of Witnesses.

Act X, 1872, s. 380, paras. 1 and 2. Act X, 1875, s. 76, para. 1, omitting provision where witness is in Native State. Act IV, 1877, s. 157. Act IV, 1877, s. 158.

513. Whenever, in the course of an inquiry or trial or other proceeding under this Code, it appears to a Presidency Magistrate, a Court of Session or the High Court that the examination of a witness is necessary for the ends of justice, and that the attendance of such witness cannot be procured without an amount of delay, expense or inconvenience which, under the circumstances of the case, would be unreasonable, such Magistrate or Court may dispense with such attendance and may issue a commission to any District Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class, within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such witness resides, to take the evidence of such witness.

When attendance of witness may be dispensed with.

Issue of commission and procedure thereunder.

The Magistrate to whom the commission is issued, or, if he is the District Magistrate, such Magistrate of the first class as he appoints in this behalf, shall proceed to the place where such witness is, or shall summon such witness before him, and shall take his evidence in the same manner, and may for this purpose exercise the same powers, as in trials of warrant-cases under this Code.

Act XI, 1874, s. 25. Act X, 1875, s. 76, para. 4.

514. If the witness is within the local limits of the jurisdiction of any Presidency Magistrate, the Magistrate or Court issuing the commission may direct the same to the said Presidency Magistrate, who thereupon may compel the attendance of, and examine, such witness as if he were a witness in a case pending before himself.

Commission in case of witness being within Presidency-town.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect the power of the High Court to issue commissions under the thirty-ninth and fortieth of Victoria, chapter 46, section 3.

Act X, 1872, s. 396, para. 4. Act X, 1875, s. 76, para. 6.

515. The parties to any proceeding under this Code in which a commission is issued may respectively forward any interrogatories in writing which the Magistrate or Court directing the commission may think relevant to the issue, and the Magistrate to whom the commission is directed shall examine the witness upon such interrogatories.

Parties may examine witness.

Such parties may appear before such Magistrate by advocate, attorney or pleader, or if not in custody, in person, and may examine, cross-examine and re examine (as the case may be) the said witness.

Act X, 1872, s. 390, para. 3.

516. Whenever, in the course of a trial before any Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate, it appears that a commission ought to be issued for the examination of a witness whose evidence is necessary for the ends of justice, such Magistrate shall apply to the Court of Session to which he is subordinate, stating the reasons for the application; and such Court may either issue a commission in the manner hereinbefore provided or reject the application.

Power of mufassal Magistrate to apply for issue of commission.

Act X, 1872, s. 390, para. 4, Act X, 1875, s. 76, para. 2.

517. After any commission issued under section 513 or section 516 has been duly executed, it shall be returned, together with the deposition of the witness examined thereunder, to the Court out of which it issued; and the commission, the return thereto and the deposition of such witness shall be open at all reasonable times to inspection of the parties, and may, subject to all just exceptions, be read in evidence in the case by either party, and shall form part of the record.

Return of commission.

Act X, 1872, s. 391.

518. In every case in which a commission is directed under section 513 or section 516, the inquiry or trial may be stayed for a specified time reasonably sufficient for the execution and return of the commission.

Stay of inquiry or trial.

CHAPTER XLIII.

Special Rules of Evidence.

Act X, 1872, s. 393, Act X, 1875, s. 71, Act IV, 1877, s. 163.

519. The deposition of a Civil Surgeon or other medical witness, duly taken and duly attested by a Magistrate, may be given in evidence in any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code, although the deponent is not called as a witness.

Deposition of medical witness.

The Court may, if it thinks fit, summon and examine such deponent as to the subject-matter of his deposition.

Power to summon medical witness.

Act X, 1872, s. 395, Act X, 1875, s. 76, Act IV, 1877, s. 164.

520. Any document purporting to be a report under the hand of the Chemical Examiner or Assistant Chemical Examiner to Government, upon any matter or thing duly submitted to him for examination or analysis and report in the course of any proceeding under this Code, may be used as evidence in any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code.

Report of Chemical Examiner.

The Court may presume that the signature to any such document is genuine, and that the person signing it held the office which he purported by such signature to hold at the time when he signed the document.

Presumption as to signature.

The High Court or a Presidency Magistrate may, if it or he thinks fit, summon and examine such Chemical Examiner or Assistant Chemical Examiner as to the subject-matter of his said report.

Power to summon Chemical Examiner.

XVIII, 1872, s. 27. Act X 1872.

521. In proving the existence of circumstances as a defence under the second, third, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth or tenth Exception to section 499 of the Indian Penal Code, good faith shall be presumed until the contrary appears.

Good faith to be presumed in certain cases.

X, 1872, 336, 515, last clause. 1875, 119. 1877, 154, 230.

522. A previous conviction or acquittal may be proved in any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code—

Previous conviction or acquittal how proved.

(b) in case of a conviction, either by a certificate signed by the officer in charge of the jail in which the punishment or any part thereof was inflicted, or by production of the warrant of commitment, under which the punishment was suffered.

X, 1872, 337. X, 1875, 74. IV, 1877, 155.

523. If it be proved that an accused person has absconded, and that there is no immediate prospect of arresting him, the Court competent to try or commit for trial such person for the offence complained of may, in his absence, examine the witnesses (if any) produced on behalf of the prosecution, and record their depositions, and any such deposition may, on the arrest of such person, be put in on his trial for the offence with which he is charged, if the attendance of the deponent cannot be procured.

Record of evidence in absence of accused.

CHAPTER XLIV.

Provisions as to Bonds.

1872, s. 1875, s. V, 1877, 10.

524. When any person is required by any Court or officer to execute a bond with or without sureties, such Court or officer may, except in the case of a bond for good behaviour, permit him to deposit a sum of money or Government promissory notes to such amount as the Court or officer may fix in lieu of executing such bond.

Deposit instead of recognizance.

X, 1872, 396, 397, 502, ss. 1 to 508, 514. 1875, 137, 138. 1877, 77, 78, 228, 229.

525. Whenever it is proved before the Court by which a bond under this Code has been taken, or before the Court of a Presidency Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class, that such bond has been forfeited, such Court shall record the grounds of such proof, and may call upon any person bound by such bond to pay the penalty thereof, or to show cause why it should not be paid.

Procedure on forfeiture of bond.

If sufficient cause is not shown and the penalty is not paid, the Court may proceed to recover the same by issuing a warrant for the attachment and sale of the movable property belonging to such person.

Such warrant may be executed within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court which issued it; and it shall authorise the distress and sale of any movable property belonging to such person without such limits, when endorsed by the District Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such property is found.

If such penalty be not paid and cannot be recovered by such attachment and sale, the person so bound shall be liable, by order of the Court which issued the warrant, to imprisonment in the civil jail for a term which may extend to six months.

The Court may at its discretion remit any portion of the penalty mentioned and enforce payment in part only.

Act X, 1872, s. 398, penultimate para.

526. All orders passed under section 525 by any Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate or District Magistrate shall be appealable to the District Magistrate, or, if not so appealed, may be revised by him.

Appeals from, and revision of, orders under section 525.

Act X, 1875, s. 138, last para.

527. The High Court or Court of Session may direct any Magistrate to levy the amount due on a bond to appear and attend at such High Court or Court of Session.

Power to direct levy of amount due on certain recognizances.

Act X, 1872, s. 418. Act X, 1872, s. 115. Act IV, 1877, ss. 243 & 244. Act XI, 1874, s. 38. High Court Rule, Bombay Government Gazette, 13th Sept. 1877, p. 823. Qy. add provisions of 24 & 25 Vic. c. 96, s. 100, as to restoring stolen property on conviction of theft notwithstanding sale in market overt, and of 30 & 31 Vic., c. 35, s. 10, as to payment to innocent purchaser of stolen property of money found on convicted thief not exceeding amount of proceeds of sale, upon application and upon restitution of stolen property.

CHAPTER XLV.

Of the Disposal of Property produced under this Code.

528. When an inquiry or trial in any Criminal Court is concluded, the Court may make such order as it thinks fit for the disposal of any document or other property produced before it regarding which any offence appears to have been committed, or which has been used for the commission of any offence, or which has been produced as evidence in such inquiry or trial.

Order for disposal of property regarding which offence committed.

When a High Court or a Court of Session makes such order and cannot through its own officers conveniently deliver the property to the person entitled thereto, such Court may direct that the order be carried into effect by the committing Magistrate.

Explanation.—In this section the term "property" includes, in the case of property regarding which an offence appears to have been committed, not only such property as has been originally in the possession or under the control of any party, but also any property into or for which the same may have been converted or exchanged, and anything acquired by such conversion or exchange whether immediately or otherwise.

Act X, 1872, s. 429.

529. Any Court of appeal, confirmation, reference or revision may direct any such order passed by a Court subordinate thereto to be stayed pending consideration by the former Court, and may modify, alter or annul such order.

Stay of such order.

Act X, 1872, s. 420.

530. The order passed by any Court under section 528 or 529 may be in the form of a reference of the property to the District Magistrate or to a Sub-divisional Magistrate, who shall in such cases deal with it as if the property had been seized by the Police, and the seizure had been reported to him in the manner hereinafter mentioned

Order may take form of reference to District Magistrate.

Livingston, p. 480.

531. On a conviction under the Indian Penal Code, section 292, 293, 501 or 502, the Court may order all the copies of the thing in respect of which the conviction was had, and which remain in the possession or power of the person convicted, to be destroyed.

Destruction of libellous and other matter.

The Court may in like manner, on a conviction under the Indian Penal Code, sections 272, 273, 274 or 275, order the food, drink drug or medical preparation in respect of which the conviction was had to be destroyed.

Act X, 1872, s. 534. Act X, 1875, s. 142. Act IV, 1877, s. 233.

532. Whenever a person is convicted of using criminal force, and it appears to the Court that, by such force, any person has been dispossessed of any immoveable property, the Court may order such person to be restored to the possession of the same.

Power to restore possession of immoveable property.

No such order shall prejudice any right or interest to or in such immoveable property which any person may be able to establish in a civil suit.

Act X, 1872, s. 415. Act IV, 1877, s. 244.

533. The seizure by any Police-officer of property alleged or suspected to have been stolen or found under circumstances which create suspicion of the commission of any offence, shall be forthwith reported to a Magistrate, who shall thereupon make such order as he thinks fit respecting the delivery of such property to its owner, or if such owner cannot be ascertained, respecting the custody and production of such property.

Procedure by Police upon seizure of stolen property.

Act X, 1872, s. 416.

If the owner of such property is known, the Magistrate shall order it to be delivered to him on such condition (if any) as the Magistrate thinks fit. If the owner of such property is unknown, the Magistrate may detain it, and shall, in such case, issue a proclamation specifying the articles of which such property consists, and requiring any person who may have a claim thereto to appear before him and establish his claim within six months from the date of such proclamation.

Procedure where owner of property seized unknown.

Act X, 1872, s. 417. Act IV, 1877, s. 244.

534. If no person within such period establishes his claim to such property, and if the person in whose possession such property was found is unable to show that it was legally acquired by him, such property shall be at the disposal of the Government, and may be sold under the orders of the Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate or of a Magistrate of the first class empowered by the Local Government in this behalf.

Procedure where no claimant appears within six months.

In the case of every order passed under this section, an appeal shall be allowed to the Court to which appeals against sentences of the Court passing such order would lie.

535. If the owner of such property is unknown or absent, and such property is of a perishable nature, or the Magistrate is of opinion that its sale would be for the benefit of the owner, the Magistrate may at any time direct it to be sold; and the provisions of sections 533 and 534 shall, as nearly as may be, apply to the net proceeds of such sale.

Power to sell perishable property.

CHAPTER XLVI.

Of the Transfer of Criminal Cases.

Act X, 1872, s. 64. Act X, 1872, s. 147.

536. Whenever it is made to appear to the High Court—

High Court may transfer case, or itself try it.

(a) that a fair and impartial enquiry or trial cannot be had in any criminal Court subordinate thereto, or

(b) that some question of law of unusual difficulty is likely to arise, or

(d) that an order under this section will tend to the general convenience of the parties or witnesses—

it may order—

(1) that any offence be enquired into or tried by any Court not empowered under sections 175 to 182, but in other respects competent to enquire into or try such offence;

(2) that any particular criminal case or appeal, or class of such cases or appeals, be transferred from a Criminal Court subordinate to its authority to any other such Criminal Court of equal or superior jurisdiction, or

(3) that any particular criminal case or appeal be transferred to and tried before itself.

When the High Court withdraws for trial before itself any case from any Court other than the Court of a Presidency Magistrate, it shall except as provided in section 270, observe in such trial the same procedure which that Court would have observed if the case had not been so withdrawn.

I. L. R., 1 Calc. 223.

Every application for the exercise of the power conferred by this section shall be made by motion which shall, except when the applicant is the Advocate General, be supported by affidavit or affirmation.

Archb. 88.

When an accused person makes an application under this section, the High Court may direct him to execute a bond conditioned that he will, if convicted, pay the costs of the prosecutor.

Act IV, 1877, s. 181.

Notice to Public Prosecutor of application under this section.

Every accused person making any such application shall give to the Public Prosecutor notice in writing of the application, together with a copy of the grounds on which it is made; and no order shall be made on the merits of the application unless at least twenty-four hours have elapsed between the giving of such notice and the hearing of the application.

Act X, 1872, s. 64 A. Act XI, 1874, s. 11.

Power of Government of India to transfer criminal cases and appeals.

537. Whenever it appears to the Governor General in Council that the transfer next hereinafter mentioned will promote the ends of justice or tend to the general convenience of parties or witnesses, he may, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct the transfer of any particular criminal case or appeal from one High Court to another High Court, or from any Criminal Court subordinate to one High Court to any other Criminal Court of equal or superior jurisdiction subordinate to another High Court.

The Court to which such case or appeal is transferred shall deal with the same as if it had been originally instituted in, or presented to, such Court.

Act X, 1872, s. 47.

Magistrate may withdraw or refer cases.

538. Any District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate may withdraw any case from, or recall any case which he has made over to any Magistrate subordinate to him, and may inquire into or try such case himself, or refer it for inquiry or trial to any other such Magistrate competent to inquire into or try the same.

Act XI, 1874, s. 6.

Act X, 1872, s. 46.

Power to authorize District Magistrates to withdraw classes of cases.

The Local Government may authorize the District Magistrate to withdraw from the Magistrates subordinate to him either such classes of cases as he thinks proper, or particular classes of cases.

CHAPTER XLVII.

Of irregular Proceedings.

Act X, 1872, s. 32. Weir, p. 54.

Irregularities which do not vitiate proceedings.

539. If any Magistrate empowered by law to do under certain circumstances any of the following things, namely:—

(a) to issue a search-warrant, under section 97;

(b) to order, under section 153, the Police to investigate an offence;

(c) to hold an inquest under section 174;

(d) to issue process, under section 184, for the apprehension of a person within the local limits of his jurisdiction who has committed an offence outside such limits; or

(e) to take cognizance of an offence under section 192, clause (a) or clause (b);

(f) to transfer a case under section 193;

(g) to withdraw a case and try it himself under section 538;

by mistake or accident does that thing in the absence of any of the requisite circumstances, his proceedings shall not be set aside merely on the ground of such absence.

Act X, 1872, s. 34.

Irregularities which vitiate proceedings.

540. If any Magistrate, not being empowered by law in this behalf, does any of the following things (namely),—

(a) passes a sentence under section 351, on proceedings recorded by another Magistrate;

(b) takes cognizance under section 192, clause (c) of an offence;

(c) attaches and sells property under section 86;

(d) tries an offender summarily;

(e) decides an appeal;

(f) calls under section 435 for proceedings;

(g) issues a search-warrant for a letter in the Post-office, or a telegram in the Telegraph Department;

(h) revises under section 526 an order passed under section 525;

(i) demands security to keep the peace;

(j) discharges bonds to keep the peace;

(k) demands security for good behaviour;

(l) discharges a person lawfully bound to be of good behaviour;

(m) makes an order under section 131 as to a local nuisance;

(n) issues an order under section 141;

(o) prohibits under section 142 the repetition or continuance of a public nuisance;

(p) makes an order under chapter XII;

(q) makes an order for maintenance, or

(r) sells property under section 534 or section 535;

his proceedings shall be void.

Act X, 1872, s. 70. Act IV, 1877, s. 24.

Proceedings in wrong place.

541. No finding, sentence or order of any criminal Court shall be set aside merely on the ground that the inquiry, trial or other proceeding in the course of which it was arrived at or passed, took place in a wrong Sessions Division, District Sub-division or other local area, unless it appears that some party to such proceeding was prejudiced in the conduct of his case by such error.

Act X, 1872, s. 33. Act X, 1872, s. 25.

When irregular commitments may be validated.

542. If any Magistrate or other authority purporting to exercise powers duly conferred, but not being so conferred, commits an accused person to take his trial before a Court of Session or High Court, the Court to which the commitment is made may, after perusal of the proceedings accept the commitment if it considers that the accused has not been prejudiced, unless objection was made on behalf either of the accused or of the prosecution to the jurisdiction of such Magistrate or other authority during the inquiry and before the order of commitment.

If such Court considers that the accused was prejudiced, or if such objection as aforesaid was so made, it shall quash the commitment, and direct a fresh inquiry by a competent Magistrate.

Act X, 1872, s. 216, Expln. I.

Omission to ask question prescribed by section 454, clause 2.

543. An omission to ask any person whether he is a European British subject in a case to which the second clause of section 454 applies shall not affect the validity of any proceeding.

Act X, 1872, s. 216, Expln. II.

Effect of omission to prepare charge.

544. No finding or sentence pronounced or passed shall be deemed invalid merely on the ground that no charge was framed, unless, in the opinion of the Court of appeal or revision, a failure of justice has been occasioned thereby.

If the Court of appeal or revision thinks that a failure of justice has been occasioned by an omission to frame a charge, it shall order that a charge shall be framed, and that the trial be recommenced from the point immediately after the framing of the charge.

Act X, 1872, s. 233, Explanation.

Trial by jury of offences triable with assessors.

545. If an offence triable with the aid of assessors is tried by a jury, the trial shall not on that ground be invalid.

Trial with assessors of offences triable by jury.

If an offence triable by a jury is tried with the aid of assessors, the trial shall not on that ground only be invalid, unless the objection is taken before the Court records its finding.

Act XI, 1874, s. 41.

Errors in judgment.

546. No error or defect in any judgment shall invalidate the proceedings where such error or defect is in a matter not affecting the merits of the case.

Act X, 1872, ss. 283, 300 11 & 12 Vic., c. 43, s. 9. Act IV, 1877, ss. 117, 177. I. L. R., 1 All. 610.

Finding or sentence when reversible by reason of error or omission in charge or proceedings.

547. Subject to the provisions hereinbefore contained, no finding, sentence or order passed by a Court of competent jurisdiction shall be reversed or altered on appeal or revision on account of any error or omission in the complaint or summons or in the charge, or in the proceedings during trial, or any misdirection in any charge to a jury, unless such error or omission or misdirection has occasioned a failure of justice either by affecting the due conduct of the prosecution, or by injuring the accused person as to his defence on the merits.

Act IV, 1877, ss. 31, 178. 11 Bomb. 238.

Subject as last aforesaid, no irregularity in the proceedings prior to the commencement of the trial is a sufficient ground for reversing any sentence or order passed in a trial properly held.

Act IV, 1877, s. 185, para. 5.

Distress not illegal nor distrainer a trespasser for defect of form in proceedings.

548. No distress made under this Code shall be deemed unlawful, nor shall any person making the same be deemed a trespasser, on account of any defect or want of form in the summons, conviction, writ of distress or other proceedings relating thereto.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

Miscellaneous.

Act X, 1875, s. 149.

Courts and persons before whom affidavits may be sworn.

549. Affidavits and affirmations to be used before any High Court or any officer of such Court may be sworn and affirmed before such Court or the Clerk of the Crown, or any Commissioner or other person appointed by such Court for that purpose, or any Judge or Commissioner for taking affidavits in any Court of Record in British India, or any Commissioner to administer oaths in Chancery in England or Ireland, or any Magistrate authorized to take affidavits or affirmations in Scotland.

Act X, 1872, ss. 192 & 351. Act X, 1875, s. 80. Act IV, 1877, ss. 85 & 134.

Power to summon material witness, or examine person present.

550. Any Court may, at any stage of any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code, summon any person as a witness or examine any person in attendance, though not summoned as a witness; or recall and re-examine any person already examined; and the Court shall summon and examine or recall and re-examine any such person, if his evidence appears to it essential to the just decision of the case.

Act IV, 1877, s. 138.

Power to order prisoner in jail to be brought up for examination.

551. Notwithstanding anything contained in the Prisoners Testimony Act, 1869, any Presidency Magistrate desirous of examining, as a witness or accused person, in any case pending before him, any person confined in any jail within the local limits of his jurisdiction, may issue an order to the officer in charge of the said jail requiring him to bring such prisoner in proper custody, at a time to be therein named, to the Magistrate for examination.

The officer so in charge, on receipt of such order, shall act in accordance therewith, and shall provide for the safe custody of the prisoner during his absence from the jail for the purpose aforesaid.

Act X, 1875, s. 70. Act X, 1877, s. 422.

Interpreter to be bound to interpret truthfully.

552. When the services of an interpreter are required by any Criminal Court for the interpretation of any evidence or statement, he shall be bound to state the true interpretation of such evidence or statement.

Act X, 1875, s. 431. Act X, 1877, s. 116. Act IV, 1877, s. 544.

Expenses of complainants and witnesses.

553. Subject to any rules made by the Local Government with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, any Criminal Court may order payment, on the part of Government, of the reasonable expenses of any complainant or witness attending for the purposes of any enquiry, trial or other proceeding before such Court under this Code.

Act X, 1872, s. 308. Act X, 18 75 s. 106. Act IV, 1877, s. 186.

554. Whenever a criminal Court, under any law in force for the time being, imposes a fine or confirms in appeal or revision a sentence of fine, or a sentence of which fine forms a part, the Court may order the whole or any part of the fine to be applied—

Power of Court to pay expenses or compensation out of fine.

(a) in defraying expenses properly incurred in the prosecution;

(b) in compensation for the injury caused by the offence complained of, where substantial compensation could, in the opinion of the Court, be recovered by civil suit.

If the fine is imposed in a case which is subject to appeal, no such payment shall be made before the period allowed for presenting the appeal has elapsed, or, if an appeal be presented, before the decision of the appeal.

Act X, 1872, s. 322, para. 5. Act XI, 1874, s. 34.

555. Whenever any fine is imposed on any person for any offence, the Governor General in Council or the Local Government may (subject to the provisions of section 554) direct that the whole or any part of the fine be applied in defraying the expenses properly incurred in the prosecution.

Power of Government to pay expenses out of fine.

Act X, 1872, s. 308, last para. Act X, 1875, s. 106, last para. 22 Suth. W. R. Civil Rulings, 336.

556. At the time of awarding compensation in any subsequent civil suit relating to the same matter, the Court shall take into account any sum which may have been paid as compensation under section 554.

Payments to be taken into account in subsequent suit.

Act X, 1872, s. 276. Act XI, 1872, s. 25. Act IV, 1877, s. 170.

557. If any person affected by a judgment or order passed by a Criminal Court desires to have a copy of the Judge's charge to the jury or of any order or deposition or other part of the record, he shall, on applying for such copy, be furnished therewith: provided that he pay for the same, unless the Court, for some special reason, thinks fit to furnish it free of cost.

Copies of Proceedings.

Ben. Reg. XX of 1825.

558. When any officer or soldier or other person subject to any Act of Parliament for the time being in force for the punishment of mutiny and desertion in the army, and who is serving with any body of troops in Her Majesty's service at any place situate more than one hundred and twenty miles from the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, respectively, is accused of having committed any offence punishable under the Indian Penal Code, and which if committed in England would be punishable by the criminal law there, any Magistrate before whom such officer, soldier or other person is brought shall, unless the Governor General in Council otherwise directs, deliver him, together with a statement of the offence of which he is accused, to the commanding officer of the regiment, corps or detachment to which he belongs, or to the commanding officer of the nearest military station, for the purpose of being brought for trial before a Court-martial.

Delivery to Military authorities of persons subject to the Mutiny Act.

Every Magistrate shall, on receiving a written application for that purpose by the commanding officer of any body of troops stationed or employed at any such place, use his utmost endeavours to apprehend and secure any such officer, soldier or other person accused of an offence.

Apprehension of such persons.

Any person appointed to conduct the proceedings of a Court-martial held under any such Act may send the Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction persons required to attend before such Court-martial reside any process to compel the attendance of such persons; and the Magistrate shall aid in the execution of such process and of all other processes issued by such Courts-martial.

Enforcement of process for attendance of witnesses before Courts-martial.

Act X, 1872, s. 137.

559. Police-officers superior in rank to officers in charge of a Police-station may exercise the same powers, within the District or sub-division to which they are appointed, as may be exercised by officers in charge of Police-stations within the limits of their respective stations.

Powers of superior officers of Police.

Act IV, 1877, s. 17.

560. Upon complaint made to a Presidency Magistrate on oath of the abduction or unlawful detention of a woman, or of a female child under the age of fourteen years, for any unlawful purpose, he may make an order for the immediate restoration of such woman to her liberty, or of such female child to her husband, parent, guardian or other person having the lawful charge or government of such child, and may compel compliance with such order, using force if necessary.

Power to compel restoration of abducted females in Presidency-town.

Act IV, 1877, s. 242, omitting provision as to complaints, which is provided for elsewhere.

561. Whenever any person causes a Police-officer to arrest another person in a Presidency-town, if it appears to the Magistrate by whom the case is heard that there was no sufficient ground for causing such arrest, the Magistrate may award such compensation, not exceeding fifty rupees, to be paid by the person so causing the arrest to the person so arrested for his loss of time and expenses in the matter, as the Magistrate thinks fit.

Compensation to person groundlessly given in charge in Presidency-town.

In such cases, if more persons than one are arrested or complained against, the Magistrate may, in like manner, award to each of them such compensation, not exceeding fifty rupees, as such Magistrate thinks fit.

All compensation awarded under this section may be recovered as if it were a fine, and if it cannot be so recovered, the person by whom it is payable should be imprisoned in the civil jail for such term not exceeding thirty days as the Magistrate directs, unless such sum is sooner paid.

Act X, 1827, ss. 292, 293.

562. With the previous sanction of the Local Government, every High Court not established by Royal Charter may from time to time—

Power of certain High Courts to make rules.

(a) make rules for keeping all books, entries and accounts to be kept in all criminal Courts subordinate to it, and for the preparation and transmission of any returns or statements to be prepared and submitted by such Courts; and

(b) frame forms for every proceeding in the said Courts for which it thinks that a form should be provided;

(c) make rules for regulating its own practice and proceedings and the practice and proceedings of all criminal Courts subordinate to it:

Provided that such rules and forms be not inconsistent with this Code or any other law in force for the time being.

All rules made under this section shall be published in the official Gazette.

563. Subject to the power conferred by section 562 and by the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth of Victoria, chapter 104, section 15, the forms set forth in the fifth schedule hereto annexed, with such variation as the circumstances of each case require, shall be used for the respective purposes therein mentioned.

Forms.

Act X, 1872, s. 337.

564. The Local Government may determine what, for the purposes of this Code, shall be held to be the language of each Court, other than the High Court, established within the territories administered by such Government.

Power to decide language of the Court.

565. All powers conferred by this Code on the Local Government may be exercised from time to time as occasion requires.

Powers of Local Government exercisable from time to time.

Act X, 1872, ss. 3 & 539. Act IV, 1877 ss. 5 & 237.

566. The procedure prescribed by this Code shall be followed, so far as may be, in all cases pending in any criminal Court when this Code comes into force and in all miscellaneous criminal cases and proceedings instituted in any Court.

Pending cases and miscellaneous proceedings.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

No less than three Codes of Criminal Procedure are now in operation in British India: Act X of 1872, amended by Act XI of 1874, which is in force throughout the Mufassal; the High Courts' Act, X of 1875, which is in force in the Presidency-towns, Allahabad and Lahore, and the Presidency Magistrates' Act, IV of 1877, also in force in the Presidency-towns.

Many of the provisions of these Codes merely repeat one another; many of their rules, though dealing with the same subjects, unnecessarily vary in language; and the result is that the bulk of the Indian Statute-book is far greater than need be and that the Courts when construing one Code are often deprived of the guidance of prior decisions on another.

The primary object of this Bill, which has been framed at the suggestion of the Secretary of State, is to recast the Code of 1872, combining with it the substance of the High Courts' Act and the Presidency Magistrates' Act, and incorporating in it the numerous reported decisions on its wording, and thus at last give to India a single and complete Code of Criminal Procedure, and carry out, so far, the policy of providing a simple and uniform system of law for this country. The language and arrangement of Act X of 1872 have, for obvious reasons, been departed from only so far as is necessary for the main purpose of the Bill.

2. Though many of the outlying Acts and Regulations dealing with Criminal Procedure were repealed and re-enacted by Act X of 1872, many more are still untouched, and the secondary object of the present Bill is to consolidate these enactments, which are eleven in number:—

Acts.

XXIII of 1840 (Execution of process).
XXXIV of 1850 (State prisoners).
III of 1858 (State prisoners).
XVIII of 1862 (Administration of Criminal Justice in the High Courts).
II of 1869 (Justices of the Peace).
XXII of 1870, sections 2 and 4 (Application to European British subjects of Acts giving summary jurisdiction).

Regulations.

Bengal Regulation III, 1818 (State prisoners).
Bengal Regulation XX of 1825 (Jurisdiction of Courts Martial).
Madras Regulation II, 1819 (State prisoners).
Bombay Regulation XXV, 1827 (State prisoners).

3. The result of consolidating the Acts and Regulations above specified will be to substitute a single Act of 566 sections for fourteen enactments containing about one thousand unrepealed sections.

4. The present Bill is divided into nine Parts, the first containing the usual preliminary matter; the second dealing with the constitution and powers of the Criminal Courts and offices; the third containing some general provisions; the fourth treating of the prevention of offences; the fifth, of information to the Police and of their powers to investigate; the sixth, of proceedings in prosecutions; the seventh, of appeal, reference and revision; the eighth, of special proceedings; the ninth, of supplementary provisions.

Preliminary.

5. Part I consists of a single chapter containing the usual preliminary matter. The wording of some of the definitions in Act X of 1872 has been amended and definitions of 'to sign,' 'public prosecutor,' 'pleader,' 'offence,' 'chapter,' 'schedule' and 'place' have been added. The definition of 'European British subject' has been extended to persons naturalized in British India. Words referring to acts done are declared to extend also to illegal omissions, and words such as 'special law,' 'local law,' defined in the Penal Code will have the meanings attached to them respectively by that Code. On the other hand, the definitions of 'inquired into,' 'trial,' 'Magistrate's case,' have been omitted as not needed in the Code in its revised form.

Criminal Courts.

6. Part II (constitution and powers of the Criminal Courts and offices) consists of two chapters, of which the first deals (a) with the classes of Criminal Courts, (b) with territorial divisions, (c) with Courts outside the Presidency-towns, (d) with the Courts of the Presidency Magistrates, (e) with Justices of the Peace and (f) with the suspension and removal of Judges, Magistrates and Justices of the Peace. The second chapter treats of the powers of Judges and Magistrates, the description of offences cognizable by each Court, the sentences which may be passed by Courts of various classes, and the mode of conferring powers on the latter. The changes of the law here made are little more than verbal, save that in section 39 (= Act X of 1872, section 56), as to the continuance of powers of an officer transferred to another local area, words have been introduced to shew clearly that the direction therein mentioned may have preceded the transfer. In connection with section 33 as to power to sentence to imprisonment in default of payment of fine, it will be necessary to pass simultaneously with the Bill a short Act amending section 67 of the Penal Code, by inserting a declaration that such imprisonment shall be simple.

Section 35 declares, in accordance with a decision of the Bombay High Court, that, for the purpose of confirmation or appeal, a combined sentence, in case of simultaneous convictions for several offences, shall be deemed to be a single sentence.

General Provisions.

7. Part III contains certain general provisions which it seems convenient to group together and which, to avoid forward references, must stand near the beginning of the Code. They relate to the following matters: aid and information to the Magistrates and Police: arrest, escape and retaking: processes to compel appearance and production of documents. Here, again, the changes in the law are little more than verbal, save that, to the offences which the public are bound to assist in preventing, has been added (section 41) attempts to injure public property: that the section (44) authorizing, in the case of forcible resistance, the use of necessary means to effect arrests, has been extended to meet the case of attempts to evade them; that power has been given (section 47) to break open the doors of a house for the purpose of liberating persons who have lawfully entered for the purpose of making arrests therein: that persons making arrests have been expressly empowered (section 50) to take from the person arrested any offensive weapons which he may have about him; that the Police have been authorized to arrest, without warrant, deserters from the Navy; and that sections (63, 64) equivalent to Act XXV of 1861, section 112, have been inserted to provide for the retaking of persons escaping or rescued from lawful custody.

8. Under the present Code (Act X of 1872, section 153), summonses issued by Magistrates are ordinarily served "through a Police-officer:" the Bill (section 65) provides that they shall ordinarily be served by an officer of the Court, but that the Magistrate may direct service by the Police. Persons to or with whom a summons is delivered, tendered or left may be required (section 67) to countersign a copy of the original. Provision is made (sections 70, 71) for the service of a summons outside the local jurisdiction of the Magistrate who issues it, and for the proof of such service.

9. Section 72 requires that all warrants of arrest, whether issued in the Presidency-towns or the Mufassal, shall be sealed. Act IV of 1877, section 56, does not in such cases require a seal.

10. Section 85 clears up a doubt as to the commencement of the period provided in the corresponding section (171) of Act X of 1872, for the appearance of a person absconding against whom a warrant has been issued.

11. On the other hand, the power to arrest without warrant persons against whom a hue and cry has been raised is omitted, as that obsolete common-law process is unknown in India, and the section authorizing masters and mates to arrest deserters from ships is omitted, as the matter is sufficiently provided for by the Merchant Shipping Act.

Prevention of Offences.

12. Part IV, which relates to the prevention of offences, comes, it is considered, properly before Part VI, which relates to their prosecution. It comprises six chapters dealing respectively with lawful resistance; security for keeping the peace and for good behaviour; the dispersion of unlawful assemblies; suppression of nuisances; disputes as to immoveable property; and, lastly, the preventive action of the Police.

13. The provision (section 104) relating to lawful resistance to the commission of an offence is new. It declares that such resistance may be made by any person in the cases and to the extent in and to which he may exercise the right of private defence—a right defined and limited by the Penal Code, sections 96—106.

14. In the chapter relating to bonds for keeping the peace, and for good behaviour, provision has been made (section 116) as to the manner of conducting inquiries. We have made it clear in section 124 that a Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate, and Magistrate of the first class can cancel a bond on the application of a surety. Such Magistrates are also empowered (section 108) to require security for good behaviour.

15. In the chapter (X) on dispersion of unlawful assemblies, volunteers enrolled under the Indian Volunteers Act, 1869, are placed on the same footing as soldiers of Her Majesty's army.

Information to the Police, and their power to investigate.

16. Part V consists of a single chapter relating to information to the Police and their power to investigate. It corresponds with chapter X of Act X of 1872, and sections 379, 380 of the same Act.

17. The words "or that immediate arrest is not necessary," which are to be found in section 117 of Act X of 1872, have been omitted from section 155 of the Bill, as it is not apparent why a police-officer should be debarred from investigating a case of a cognizable offence because he does not at starting feel himself justified in arresting any person.

18. Section 162 makes it clear that confessions to Magistrates shall not only be "taken," but signed and certified, like examinations of accused persons.

19. Power resembling that conferred on Coroners by Act IV of 1871, section 11, has been given (section 174) to Magistrates authorized to hold inquests, to disinter and examine corpses in order to discover the cause of death.

Proceedings in Prosecutions.

20. Part VI treats of proceedings in prosecutions up to appeal, and is divided into seventeen chapters, arranged as follows:—

XV. Jurisdiction of Criminal Courts in Inquiries and Trials.
XVI. Complaints to Magistrates.
XVII. Commencement of Proceedings before Magistrates.
XVIII. Inquiry into cases triable by the Court of Session or High Court.
XIX. The Charge.
XX. Trial of Summons Cases by Magistrates.
XXI. Trial of Warrant Cases by Magistrates.
XXII. Summary Trials.
XXIII. Trials before High Courts and Courts of Session.
XXIV. Tender of Pardon in cases triable by the High Court or Court of Session.
XXV. General Provisions as to Inquiries and Trials.
XXVI. Evidence.
XXVII. The Judgment.
XXVIII. Submission of Sentences for Confirmation.
XXIX. Execution.
XXX. Suspensions, Remissions and Commutations of Sentences.
XXXI. Previous Acquittals or Convictions.

It will be seen that the above-mentioned chapters are arranged, as nearly as may be, according to the chronological order of the events in a prosecution.

Chapter XV (as to the jurisdiction of the Courts in inquiries and trials) deals, first, with the place of inquiry or trial: then with the time of commencing prosecutions: and, thirdly, with the conditions requisite for the initiation of proceedings.

21. "Delay," says Livingston, "inflicts punishment on the innocent, or lessens the force of example by punishing the guilty after the crime he has committed is forgotten." Sections 186-191 accordingly contain rules as to the time within which prosecutions for most offences must be commenced. There will be no limit for prosecutions for the following: offences against the State; offences relating to the Army and Navy; false evidence and offences against public justice; offences relating to coin and Government stamps; offences under the Penal Code, sections 299 to 311, 359 to 373 and 390 to 414; offences under the same Code relating to documents, trade and property-marks and marriage. Three years is the period fixed in case of the following: offences against the public tranquillity; offences by or relating to public servants; contempts of their lawful authority; offences against property other than those against trade and property-marks. For all other offences six months is the period prescribed. The time during which the accused is absent from the jurisdiction of the Court empowered to try him, or fails to surrender pursuant to a proclamation, will be excluded in computing the prescribed periods.

22. Section 196 requires that the sanction to entertain complaints of certain offences shall, so far as practicable, specify the place in which, and the occasion on which, the offence complained of was committed.

23. Chapter XVI, of complaints to Magistrates, corresponds to sections 144 to 147 of Act X of 1872, but adds (section 202) a provision that a complaint in writing made to a Magistrate not competent to entertain it shall be returned for presentation to the proper tribunal.

24. Chapter XIX. of the charge, extends to the whole of British India the amendments in Act X of 1872, sections 439 to 459, made by Act X of 1875; and with reference to Mr. Justice West's observations in Reg. v. Chand Hur, 11 Bomb. 241, on the corresponding section (457) of Act X of 1872, section 241 of the Bill has been confined to offences consisting of several particulars, a combination of some only of which constitutes a complete minor offence.

25 The provision (Act X of 1872, section 218) that the accused shall, while making his defence, be allowed to recall and cross-examine the witnesses for the prosecution has been expressly confined (section 259) to cases where the witnesses are present in the Court or its precincts.

26. In chapter XXII, summary trials, the Local Government has been authorised to confer on Benches invested with second or third class powers jurisdiction to try abetments of, and attempts to commit, the offences which they may now try summarily.

27. Chapter XXIII provides a common procedure for the High Court and the Court of Session, preserving, however, the special rules as to juries and their verdicts.

When a juror becomes unable to attend or absents himself, power is given (section 285), with the consent of the prosecutor and the accused, to proceed with the remaining jurors.

Where jurors or assessors have been taken to view the place in which the offence charged is alleged to have been committed, the Court has been empowered (section 296) to exempt them from being immediately brought back.

Where the Sessions Judge disagrees with a verdict of acquittal and submits the case to the High Court, he is required (section 310) to state the offence which he considers to have been committed, and the High Court is empowered to acquit or convict the accused of any offence of which the jury could have convicted him upon the charge framed and placed before it. This, it is believed, is the intention of the corresponding clause of section 263 of Act X of 1872.

28. Much doubt exists as to the offences which may lawfully be compounded. The Exception to section 214 of the Penal Code (in which the law on the subject is contained) is excessively obscure, and this obscurity is increased rather than diminished by the illustrations annexed to that section. The Bill repeals these illustrations; and section 347 declares in unmistakeable language that certain specified offences, and no others, may be compounded. It will be necessary to pass simultaneously with the Bill a short Act declaring that, for the Exception to section 280 of the Penal Code, the following shall be substituted:—

"Exception.—The provisions of sections 213 and 214 do not extend to any case in which the offence may lawfully be compounded."

29. In chapter XXVII, as to judgment, section 369 allows the judgments of Mufassal Courts to be written in the mother-tongue of the presiding officer.

30. In chapter XXIX, as to execution, there are no sections corresponding with sections 319, 320 of Act X of 1872. The reason for this omission is that the matter with which they deal does not belong to criminal procedure, but falls within the scope of the Prisoners' Act, 1871; and it is proposed that, simultaneously with the passing of the present Bill, a short Act be passed, substituting for section 33 of the Prisoners' Act, and for section 57 of Act IV of 1877, a section equivalent to Act X of 1872, sections 319, 320.

31. Chapter XXX, as to suspensions, remissions and commutations of sentences.—Where application is made for the suspension or remissions of a sentence, the Government is empowered (section 402) to require the presiding Judge of the Court before which the conviction was had to furnish a statement of the facts proved on the trial, and of any facts bearing on the propriety of granting or refusing the application.

Appeal, Reference and Revision.

32. Part VII deals with appeals, references and the revisional jurisdiction of the High Court.

Section 407 provides that the appeal from a District Magistrate exercising the enhanced powers conferred under section 34 shall lie to the Court of Session in cases in which the sentence has not been submitted to that Court for confirmation, and, when it has been so submitted, to the High Court. This puts the appeals in question on the same footing as appeal from an Assistant Sessions Judge. There seems to be no reason for making any distinction between the two.

33. Section 424, in accordance with a decision of the Madras High Court (I. L. R. 1 Mad. 54), declares that, when an Appellate Court enhances any punishment inflicted by the sentence appealed against, it may inflict punishment of a different kind.

34. In the case of an appeal from an acquittal, section 427 expressly authorizes the High Court to order the accused to be arrested and brought before it, and to commit him to prison pending the disposal of the appeal, or admit him to bail.

35. A section (431) suggested by a decision of the Bombay High Court (I. L. R. 2 Bomb. 564) provides that appeals by persons required to give security for good behaviour or by convicted persons abate on their death, and that appeals against acquittals abate on the death of the accused. The power of revision conferred by section 439 will enable the High Court to alter sentences even after the appeal has abated.

36. Where, in the opinion of the Court of Session or District Magistrate, an accused person has been improperly discharged by an inferior Court, the accused should not be committed without having had an opportunity of shewing cause why the committal should not be made (1 O'K. 98). Provision to this effect has been made by section 436.

37. Section 439 (corresponding with Act X of 1872, section 297) has been framed so as to allow the High Court, when exercising its revisional jurisdiction, to interfere with improper acquittals. There is reason to believe that this change is in accordance with the intention of the framers of Act X of 1872.

Special Proceedings.

38. Part VIII, as to special proceedings, deals with the procedure relating to the following matters:—criminal proceedings against Europeans and Americans: lunatics: contempts of Court and other offences affecting the administration of justice: maintenance of wives and children: State prisoners: proceedings in the nature of habeas corpus.

Section 451 removes some differences which exist in the present law between the procedure of the High Courts and Courts of Session in cases in which European British subjects are concerned and which seem unnecessary. In particular, it is provided that, in the Court of Session as well as in the High Court, the requisite moiety of the jury or Assessors may be made up of Americans as well as Europeans.

39. The power given by sections 433 and 434 of Act X of 1872, to discharge from custody or make over to his relative a person acquitted on the ground of insanity, has been extended, in sections 474 and 475 of the Bill, to the case of persons who, being found to be insane at the time of trial, are committed to custody.

40. Section 477 has been framed so as to allow a Court of Session to charge a person for giving false evidence before itself—a power of which such Courts were unintentionally deprived by section 472 of the present Code.

41. Section 487 has been redrawn so as to avoid the difficulty which is felt in determining the meaning of the words "offence committed in contempt of its own authority," which occur in the corresponding section (473) of Act X of 1872.

Supplementary Provisions.

42. Part IX contains certain provisions supplementary to the general rules of procedure contained in the Code. It deals, first, with the public prosecutor, bail, commissions for the examination of witnesses and special rules of evidence. It then contains certain provisions relating to bonds to keep the peace, for good behaviour, for appearance, &c.: the disposal of property regarding which an offence has been committed: the transfer of criminal cases: irregular proceedings, and, lastly, certain miscellaneous matters.

43. Words have been introduced into the section (502) providing for the appointment of a public prosecutor which will have the effect of putting a stop to the practice of appointing a police officer.

44. Section 505 exempts the Advocate General, Standing Counsel, Government Solicitor or other officer empowered by the Local Government from the necessity of obtaining permission to conduct prosecutions.

45. The provisions of the present law as to commissions for the examination of witnesses have been amended in two respects. The Bill (section 515) requires that the interrogatories shall be thought relevant by the Magistrate or Court directing the commission, and power is expressly given (section 518) to stay the inquiry or trial for a specified time reasonably sufficient for the execution and return of the commission.

46. In proving the existence of circumstances as a defence under the 2nd, 3rd, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th or 10th Exception to section 499 of the Penal Code, section 521 of the Bill provides that good faith shall be presumed until the contrary appears. This is now the law in the Presidency-towns (Act XVIII of 1862, section 27) and may usefully be extended to the Mufassal.

47. In accordance with a recent rule of the High Court at Bombay, section 528 declares that, when a High Court or Court of Session makes an order for the disposal of property, and cannot through its own officers conveniently deliver the property to the person entitled thereto, the Court may direct its order to be carried into effect by the committing Magistrate.

48. Section 531 provides, in case of a conviction under the Penal Code, sections 292, 293, 501 or 502, for the destruction of the obscene books and defamatory matter in respect of which the conviction was had. It also provides for the destruction of adulterated or noxious food, drink or drugs in respect of which a conviction was had under sections 272—275 of the same Code.

49. Section 536 provides, in accordance with a Minute of Sir B. Peacock, cited I. L. R. 1 Calc. 223, that applications to the High Court for the transfer of cases shall be made by motion supported by affidavit or affirmation.

Schedules.

50. Schedules II and V, which correspond respectively with schedules IV and II of Act X of 1872, have been altered so as to adapt them, not only to the Mufassal Courts, but to those of the Presidency Magistrates.

The lists of powers contained in section 21 et seq. of Act X of 1872 have been thrown into Schedules III and IV of the Bill.

51. Excluding the special provisions of the Acts relating respectively to Coroners in the Presidency-towns, extradition, European British vagrants, and criminal tribes, the Bill is now, so far as Mr. Cockerell, Mr. Fitzpatrick and myself have been able to make it, a complete body of criminal procedure. No pains have been spared to render its provisions plain and practical; and in return all competent persons are earnestly asked to point out the mistakes and omissions which they will doubtless discover in so large and complicated a work.

A Bill to Consolidate and amend the law relating to Criminal Procedure.

Preamble. WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to Criminal Procedure; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

PART I.

PRELIMINARY.

CHAPTER I.

Short title. Commencement. 1. This Act may be called "The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1879:" and shall come into force on the first day of January, 1880;

Act X, 1872, ss. 1, 2, 111, 529, 535, 540, 541. Act X, 1875, s. 143. Act IV, 1877, s. 3. Cf., Act V of 1869. Act X, 1872, s. 540.

Local extent. It extends to the whole of British India; but in the absence of any specific provision to the contrary, nothing herein contained shall affect any special or local law now in force, or any special jurisdiction or power conferred, or any special form of procedure prescribed,* by any other law now in force, or shall apply to—

(a) the Commissioner of Police or the Police in the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay;

(b) heads of villages in the Presidency of Fort Saint George;

(c) village Police-officers in the Presidency of Bombay;

(d) any officer duly authorized to try petty offences in military bázárs at cantonments and stations occupied by the troops of the said Presidencies respectively.

(c.) Courts of Magistrates of the third class.	Imprisonment for a term not exceeding one month; Fine not exceeding fifty rupees.

The Court of any Magistrate may pass any lawful sentence, combining any of the sentences which it is authorized by law to pass.

33. The Court of any Magistrate may award such term of imprisonment in default of payment of fine as is authorized by law: Act X, 1872, s. 20, Expl. s. 309, para. 3. See I. L. R. 1 Mad. 77.

Power to sentence to imprisonment in default of fine.

Provided that the term is not in excess of the Magistrate's powers under this Code:

Provided also that in no case decided by a Magistrate where imprisonment has been awarded as part of the substantive sentence shall the period of imprisonment awarded in default of payment of the fine exceed one-fourth of the period of imprisonment which such Magistrate is competent to inflict as punishment for the offence, otherwise than as imprisonment in default of payment of the fine. Act X, 1872, s. 309, para. 2. As to para. 1 of that section see Act 1 of 1868. Act IV, 1877, s. 12, omitting paras. 1 & 3.

Proviso as to cases decided by a Magistrate.

34. The Court of a District Magistrate specially empowered under section 30 may pass any sentence of imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years, including such solitary confinement as is authorized by law, or of fine, or of whipping, or of any combination of these punishments authorized by law. Act X, 1872, s. 36.

Higher powers of certain District Magistrates.

But any sentence of imprisonment for a term exceeding three years passed by any such Court shall be subject to the confirmation of the Sessions Judge.

Act X, 1872, s. 314. Act X, 1875, s. 109. Act IV, 1877, s. 13.

35. When a person is convicted, at one trial, of two or more distinct offences, the Court may sentence him, for such offences, to the several punishments prescribed therefor which such Court is competent to inflict: such punishments, when consisting of imprisonment or transportation, to commence the one after the expiration of the other in such order as the Court may direct.

Sentence in cases of simultaneous conviction of several offences.

It shall not be necessary for the Court, by reason only of the aggregate punishments for the several offences being in excess of the punishment which it is competent to inflict on conviction of a single offence, to send the offender for trial before a higher Court:

Provided that in no case shall such person be sentenced to punishment for a longer period than fourteen years:

Maximum term of imprisonment.

Provided also that, if the case is tried by a Magistrate (other than a Magistrate acting under section 34), the aggregate punishments shall not exceed twice the amount of punishment which he is, in the exercise of his ordinary jurisdiction, competent to inflict.

I. L. R. 1 Bom. 223.

For the purpose of confirmation or appeal, a combined sentence passed under this section in case of simultaneous convictions for several offences shall be deemed to be a single sentence.

C.—Ordinary and Additional Powers.

Act X, 1872, ss. 22, 24, 26, 28, 30.

36. All District Magistrates, Sub-divisional Magistrates and Magistrates of the first, second and third class have the powers hereinafter respectively conferred upon them and specified in the third schedule. Such powers are called their "ordinary powers."

Ordinary powers of Magistrates.

Act X, 1872, ss. 23, 25, 27

37. In addition to his ordinary powers, any Magistrate of the first, second or third class may be invested by the Local Government or the District Magistrate, as the case may be, with any powers specified in the fourth schedule as powers with which a Magistrate of such class may be invested by the Local Government or the District Magistrate.

Additional powers conferrible on Magistrates.

D.—Conferment, Continuance and Cancellation of Powers.

Act X, 1872, s. 48.

38. In conferring powers under this Code, the Local Government may empower persons specially by name, or classes of officials generally by their official titles.

Mode of conferring powers.

39. Whenever any person holding an office in the service of Government who has been invested with any powers under this Code throughout any local area is transferred to an equal or higher office of the same nature within a like local area, he shall, unless the Local Government otherwise directs, or has otherwise directed, continue to exercise the same powers in the local area to which he is so transferred. Act X, 1872, s. 56. I. L. R., 2 Calc., 117.

Continuance of powers of officers transferred.

40. The Local Government may vary or cancel any powers conferred on any person under this Code. Act X, 1872, s. 54.

Powers may be varied or cancelled.

PART III.

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

CHAPTER IV.

Of Aid and Information to the Magistrates and Police.

41. Every person is bound to assist a Magistrate or Police-officer demanding his aid, whether within or without the Presidency-towns, Act X, 1872, s. 91. Act IV, 1877, s. 247.

Public when to assist Magistrates and Police.

(a) in the prevention of a breach of the peace, or of any injury attempted to be committed to any public property; New as to public property.

(b) in the taking of any other person whom such Magistrate or Police-officer is authorized to arrest, or

(c) in the suppression of a riot or affray.

42. Every person, whether within or without the Presidency-towns, aware of the commission of any offence punishable under the following sections of the Indian Penal Code (namely), 121, 121A, 122, 123, 124, 124A, 125, 126, 130, 302, 303, 304, 382, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 402, 435, 436, 449, 450, 456, 457, 458, 459 and 460, shall, in the absence of reasonable excuse, the burden of proving which shall lie upon such person, give information of the same to the nearest Magistrate or to the officer in charge of the nearest Police-station. Act X, 1872, s. [illegible] Act IV, 1877, s. 2[illegible]

Public to give information of certain offences.

43. Every village-headman, village-watchman, owner or occupier of land, or the agent of any such owner or occupier, and every Native officer employed in the collection of revenue or rent of land on the part of Government or the Court of Wards, shall forthwith communicate to the nearest Magistrate, or to the officer in charge of the nearest Police-station, any information which he may obtain respecting— Act X, 1872, s. 90.

Village-headmen, landholders and others bound to report certain matters.

(a) the residence of any notorious receiver or vendor of stolen property in the village of which he is headman or watchman, or in which he owns or occupies land, or is agent, or collects revenue or rent, as the case may be;

Arrest, escape and retaking.

(b) the resort to any place within the limits of such village of any person whom he knows, or reasonably suspects, to be a thug or robber;

(c) the commission of or intention to commit any non-bailable offence in or near such village;

(d) the occurrence therein of any sudden or unnatural death.

CHAPTER V.

Of Arrest, Escape and Retaking.

A.—Arrest generally.

Act X, 1872, s. 177.

44. In making an arrest, the Police-officer or other person making the same shall actually touch or confine the body of the person to be arrested, unless there be a submission to the custody by word or action.

Arrest how made.

Act X, 1872, s. 178, adding words as to attempt to evade.

If such person forcibly resists the endeavour to arrest him, or attempts to evade the arrest, such Police-officer or other person may use all means necessary to effect the arrest.

Resisting endeavour to arrest.

Act X, 1872, ss. 99, 179.

45. If any person acting under a warrant of arrest, or any Police-officer having authority to arrest, has reason to believe that the person to be arrested has entered into, or is within, any place, the person residing in, or in charge of, such place shall, on demand of such person acting as aforesaid or such Police-officer, allow him free ingress thereto, and afford all reasonable facilities for a search therein.

Search of place entered by person sought to be arrested.

Act X, 1872, s. 100.

46. If ingress to such place cannot be obtained under section 45, it shall be lawful in any case for a person acting under a warrant, and in any case in which a warrant cannot be obtained without affording the person to be arrested an opportunity of escape, for a Police-officer, to enter such place and search therein, and in order to effect an entrance into such place, to break open any outer or inner door or window of any house or place, whether that of the person to be arrested or of any other person, if, after notification of his authority and purpose and demand of admittance duly made, he cannot otherwise obtain admittance.

Procedure where ingress not obtainable.

Act X, 1872, s. 180.

Act X, 1872, s. [illegible] which [illegible] only [illegible] person to be arrested is accused of an offence for which a warrant may issue.

Provided that, if any such place is an apartment in the actual occupancy of a woman (not being the person to be arrested) who, according to the custom of her caste, does not appear in public, such person or Police-officer shall, before entering such apartment, give notice to such woman that she is at liberty to withdraw, and shall afford her every reasonable facility for withdrawing, and may then break open the apartment and enter it.

Breaking open zanánah.

New.

47. Any Police-officer or other person authorized to make an arrest may break open any outer or inner door or window of any house in order to liberate himself or any other person who, having lawfully entered for the purpose of making an arrest, is detained therein.

Power to break open doors for purposes of liberation

Arrest, escape and retaking.

No unnecessary restraint.

Act X, 1872, s. 182.

48. The person arrested shall not be subjected to more restraint than is necessary to prevent his escape.

Act X, 1872, s. 387.

49. Whenever a person is arrested by a Police-officer under a warrant which does not provide for the taking of bail, or under a warrant which provides for the taking of bail, but the person arrested cannot furnish bail, and

Search of arrested persons.

whenever a person is arrested without warrant and cannot legally be admitted to bail, or is unable to furnish bail, the officer making the arrest or, when the arrest is made by a private person, the Police-officer to whom such private person makes over the person arrested, may search such person, and place in safe custody all articles, other than necessary wearing apparel, found upon him.

A list of such articles shall be forwarded with the daily diary or with the final report in the case.

New. Liv., p. 50.

50. The officer or other person making any arrest under this Code may take from the person arrested any offensive weapons which he has about his person, and shall deliver all weapons so taken to the Court or officer before which or whom the person making the arrest is required by this Code to produce the person arrested.

Power to seize offensive weapons.

B.—Arrest without Warrant.

Act X, 1872, s. 92, omitting clauses 1 and 3.

51. Any Police-officer may, without order from a Magistrate and without a warrant, arrest—

When Police may arrest without warrant.

firstly—any person who has been concerned in any cognizable offence or against whom a reasonable complaint has been made, or a reasonable suspicion exists, of his having been so concerned;

Cf. Livingstone, 503.

secondly—any person who has been proclaimed either under this Code or in a notification published in any official Gazette or otherwise duly promulgated by order of an officer of Government;

thirdly—any person found with property in his possession which may reasonably be suspected to be stolen property;

fourthly—any person who obstructs a Police-officer while in the execution of his duty, or who has escaped, or attempts to escape, from lawful custody; and fifthly—any person reasonably suspected of being a deserter from Her Majesty's Army or Navy.

"Or Navy" added.

Act X, 1872, s. 94.

52. Any officer in charge of a Police-station may, in like manner, arrest or cause to be arrested—

Arrest of vagabonds.

(a) any person found taking precautions to conceal his presence within the limits of such station

Arrest, escape and retaking.

under circumstances which afford reason to believe that he is taking such precautions with a view to committing an offence; or

(b) any person within the limits of such station who has no ostensible means of subsistence, or who cannot give a satisfactory account of himself; or

(c) any person who is by repute an habitual robber, house-breaker, thief, or an habitual receiver of stolen property knowing it to be stolen, or who is of a dangerous character.

Act X, 1872, s. 102.

53. When any officer in charge of a Police-station requires any officer subordinate to him to arrest without a warrant (otherwise than in his presence) any person who may lawfully be arrested by such subordinate officer without a warrant, he shall deliver to the officer required to make the arrest an order in writing, specifying the person to be arrested, and the offence for which the arrest is to be made.

Procedure when Police-officer deputes subordinate to arrest without warrant.

Act X, 1872, s. 93.

54. Any person who in the presence of a Police-officer commits or is accused of committing a non-cognizable offence, and refuses on demand of such officer to give his name and residence, or gives a name or residence which such officer has reason to believe to be false, may be arrested or detained by such officer in order that his name or residence may be ascertained; and shall, within twenty-four hours from the arrest, be forwarded to the nearest Magistrate, unless, before the expiration of that time, his true name and residence are ascertained, in which case he shall be forthwith released.

Refusal to give name and residence.

Act X, 1872, s. 103.

55. For the purpose of arresting without warrant any person whom he is authorised to arrest under this chapter, a Police-officer may pursue such person into any place in British India.

Pursuit of offenders into other jurisdictions.

Act X, 1872, s. 105.

56. Any private person may arrest any person who, in his view, commits a non-bailable and cognizable offence;

Arrest by private persons.

Act X, 1872, s. 107. N. Y. Crim. Pr. Code, s. 184.

and shall, without unnecessary delay, make over any person so arrested to a Police-officer; or in the absence of a Police-officer, take such person to the nearest Police-station.

Procedure on such arrest.

The Police shall deal with such person according to the provisions of section 51 or 54, as the case may be, and shall not detain him in custody unless he appears to be liable to arrest or detention under the section applicable.

Act X, 1872, s. 101.

57. A Police-officer making an arrest without warrant shall, without unnecessary delay and subject to the provisions herein contained as to bail, take or send the person arrested before the Magistrate having jurisdiction in the case, or before the officer in charge of a Police-station.

Person arrested to be taken before Magistrate or officer in charge of Police-station.

58. No Police-officer shall detain in custody a person arrested without warrant for a longer period than under all the circumstances of the case is reasonable, and such period shall not, in the absence of a special order of a Magistrate, exceed twenty-four hours exclusive of the time necessary for the journey from the place of arrest to the Magistrate's Court.

Act X, 1872, s. 124.

Person arrested not to be detained more than 24 hours.

59. Officers in charge of Police-stations shall report for orders to the District or Sub-divisional Magistrate the cases of all persons arrested without warrant within the limits of their respective stations, whether such persons have been admitted to bail or otherwise.

Act X, 1872, s. 132.

Police to report apprehensions.

60. No person who has been so arrested by a Police-officer shall be discharged except on his recognizance, with or without sureties, or under the special order of a Magistrate.

Act IV, 1877, s. 70, para. 1.

Discharge of person apprehended.

61. When any offence is committed in the presence of a Magistrate, he may order any person to arrest the offender and may thereupon, subject to the provisions herein contained as to bail, commit the offender to custody.

Act X, 1872, s. 108. Act IV, 1877, s. 15.

Offence committed in Magistrate's presence.

62. Any Magistrate may at any time direct the arrest, in his presence, of any person for whose arrest he is competent at the time and in the circumstances to issue a warrant.

Act X, 1872, s. 166, clause 2. Act IV, 1877, s. 62.

Arrest in presence of Magistrate.

C.—Escape and Retaking.

Act XXV, 1861, N. Y. Proc. Code, s. 186.

63. If a person in lawful custody escapes or is rescued, the person from whose custody he escaped or was rescued may immediately pursue and retake him at any time and in any place in British India.

Power, on escape, to pursue and retake.

Act XXV, 1861, N. Y. Proc. Code, s. 188.

64. To retake the person so escaping or rescued, the person so pursuing may, after notice of his intention and refusal of admittance, and subject to the provisions of section 46, break open any outer or inner door or window of any house or place.

Power to break open door.

CHAPTER VI.

Of Processes to compel Appearance.

A.—Summons.

Act X, 1872, s. 152, omitting "and sealed." Act IV, 1877, s. 47.

65. Every summons issued by a Court under this Code shall be in writing signed by the presiding officer of such Court, or by such other officer as the High Court may from time to time by rule direct.

Form of summons.

Act X, 1872, s. 153, altered.

Such summons shall ordinarily be served by an officer of the Court issuing it; but such Court may, if it thinks fit, direct the summons to be served by a Police-officer.

Summons by whom served.

Act X, 1872, s. 154. Act IV, 1877, s. [illegible]

66. If the person summoned is found, the summons shall be served on him personally by delivering or tendering the summons to him.

Summons how served.

Every person to whom a summons is so delivered or tendered shall, if so required by the serving officer, sign a receipt therefor, or countersign a copy thereof.

Signature of receipt for summons.

Act X, 1872, s. 154, 'or servant' added. Act IV, 1877, s. 49.

67. Where the person summoned cannot by the exercise of due diligence be found, the summons may be served by leaving it for him with some adult male member or servant of his family residing with him; and the person with whom the summons is so left shall, if so required by the serving officer, sign a receipt therefor, or countersign a copy thereof.

Service when person summoned cannot be found.

Act X, 1872, s. 155.

68. If the signature or countersignature mentioned in sections 66 and 67 cannot by the exercise of due diligence be obtained, the serving officer shall fix a copy of the summons on some conspicuous part of the house in which the person summoned ordinarily resides; and thereupon the summons shall be deemed to have been duly served.

Procedure when receipt cannot be obtained.

Act X, 1872, s. 158, proviso.

69. Where the person summoned is in the active service of Government or of a Railway Company, the Court issuing the summons shall send it to the head of the office in which such person is employed; and such head shall thereupon cause the summons to be served in manner provided by section 66.

Service on servant of Government or of Railway Company.

Act XXIII, 1840, s. 1. Act IV, 1877, s. 50.

70. When a Court desires that a summons issued by it shall be served at any place outside the local limits of its jurisdiction, it shall send such summons in duplicate to a Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the person summoned resides or is, to be there served.

Service of summons outside local limits.

Act IV, 1877, s. 51.

71. When a summons issued by a Court is served outside the local limits of its jurisdiction, and in any case where the officer who has served a summons is not present at the hearing of the case, the service may be proved—

Proof of service in such cases and when serving officer not present.

(a) by a solemn declaration, purporting to be made before a Magistrate, that such summons has been served; or

(b) by a copy of the summons purporting to be countersigned by the person to whom it is delivered or tendered or with whom it is left; or

(c) by a receipt under section 66 or 67.

The declaration mentioned in clause (a) may be endorsed on the copy of the summons and returned to the Court.

B.—Warrant of Arrest.

Act X, 1872, s. 159, amended. Act IV, 1877, s. 56, which does not require the seal. But see 9 Bomb. 157.

72. Every warrant for the arrest of an accused person issued by a Court shall be in writing under the hand and seal of the presiding officer.

Form of warrant of arrest.

Every such warrant remains in force until it is cancelled by the Court which issued it, or until it is executed.

Continuance of warrant of arrest.

73. Any Court issuing a warrant for the arrest of any person may in its discretion direct by endorsement on the warrant that, if such person execute a bond with sufficient sureties for his appearance before the Court on a specified day, the officer to whom the warrant is directed shall take such security and shall release such person from custody.

Act X, 1872, s. 160. Act IV, 1877, s. 58.

Court may direct security to be taken.

The endorsement shall state (a) the number of sureties, (b) the amount in which they and the person for whose arrest the warrant is issued are to be respectively bound, and (c) the day on which he is to appear before the Court.

Whenever security is taken under this section, the officer to whom the warrant is directed shall forward the bond to the Court.

Recognizance to be forwarded.

74. A warrant of arrest shall ordinarily be directed to one or more Police-officers, and, when issued by a Presidency Magistrate, shall always be so directed; but any other Court issuing such a warrant may, if its immediate execution is necessary and no Police-officer is immediately available, direct it to any other person or persons, and such person or persons shall execute the same:

Act X, 1872, s. 161. Act IV, 1877, s. 56.

Warrants to whom directed.

Provided that when a warrant is directed to more officers or persons than one, it may be executed by all, or by any one or more, of them.

Act X, 1872, s. 164. Act IV, 1877, s. 59.

Warrant to several persons.

75. A District Magistrate may direct a warrant to any landholder, farmer or manager of land within his district for the arrest of any escaped convict, proclaimed offender or person who has been accused of a non-bailable offence, and who has eluded pursuit.

Act X, 1872, s. 162.

Warrant may be directed to landholders, &c.

Such landholder, farmer or manager shall acknowledge in writing the receipt of the warrant, and shall execute it if the person for whose arrest it was issued is in, or enters on, his land or farm, or the land under his charge.

When the person against whom such warrant is issued is arrested, he shall be made over with the warrant to the nearest Police-officer, who shall cause him to be taken before the Magistrate having jurisdiction, unless security is taken under section 73.

76. When a warrant is directed to a person other than a Police-officer, any other person may aid in executing such warrant, if the person to whom it is directed is near at hand and acting in execution thereof.

Act X, 1872, s. 163.

Warrants directed to any person other than a Police-officer.

77. A warrant directed to any Police-officer may also be executed by any other Police-officer whose name is endorsed upon the warrant by the officer to whom it is directed or endorsed.

Act X, 1872, s. 165. Act IV, 1877, s. 60.

Warrant directed to Police-officer.

Act X, 1872, s. 176.

78. The Police-officer or other person executing a warrant of arrest shall notify the substance thereof to the person to be arrested and, if so required, shall show him the warrant.

Notification of substance of warrant.

Act X, 1872, s. 188.

79. The Police-officer or other person executing a warrant of arrest shall (subject to the provisions of section 73 as to security) without unnecessary delay bring the person arrested before the Court before which he is required by this Code to produce him.

Person arrested to be brought before Court without delay.

Act X, 1872, s. 167. Act IV, 1877, s. 63.

80. A warrant of arrest may be executed at any place in British India.

Where warrant may be executed.

Act X, 1872, s. 168. Act IV, 1877, s. 64.

81. When a warrant is to be executed outside the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court issuing the same, such Court may, instead of directing such warrant to a Police-officer, forward the same by post or otherwise to any Magistrate or Commissioner of Police within the local limits of whose jurisdiction it is to be executed.

Warrant forwarded to Magistrate for execution outside jurisdiction.

The Magistrate or Commissioner to whom such warrant is so forwarded shall endorse his name thereon, and cause it to be executed within the local limits of his jurisdiction.

Act IV, 1877, s. 64, paras. 5, 6, 7.

82. When a warrant directed to a Police-officer is to be executed beyond the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court issuing the same, he may take it for endorsement either to a Magistrate or to a Police-officer not below the rank of an officer in charge of a station, within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the warrant is to be executed.

Warrant directed to police-officer for execution outside jurisdiction.

Such Magistrate or Police-officer shall endorse his name thereon, and such endorsement shall be sufficient authority to the Police-officer to whom the warrant is directed to execute the same within such limits, and the local Police shall if so required assist such officer in executing such warrant.

Whenever there is reason to believe that the delay occasioned by obtaining the endorsement of the Magistrate or Police-officer within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the warrant is to be executed will prevent such execution, the Police-officer to whom it is directed may execute the same without such endorsement in any place beyond the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court which issued it.

Act X, 1872, s. 169. Act IV, 1877, s. 65, para. 1.

83. When a warrant of arrest is executed outside the district in which it was issued, the person arrested shall, unless the Court which issued the warrant is within twenty miles, or is nearer than the Magistrate or Commissioner of Police within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the arrest was made, or unless security is taken under section 73, be taken before such Magistrate or Commissioner.

Procedure on arrest of person against whom warrant issued.

84. Such Magistrate or Commissioner shall, if the person arrested appears to be the person intended by the Court which issued the warrant, direct his removal in custody to such Court, unless the offence is bailable, and such person is then ready and willing to give the security (if any) required under section 73, in which case the Magistrate or Commissioner shall take such security and forward the bond to the Court which issued the warrant.

Act X, 1872, s. 170. Act IV, 1877, s. 65, para. 2.

Procedure by Magistrate before whom person arrested is brought.

C.—Proclamation and Attachment.

85. If a Court has reason to believe that any person against whom a warrant has been issued by it is absconding or concealing himself so that such warrant cannot be executed, such Court may publish a written proclamation requiring him to appear at a specified place and at a specified time not less than thirty days from the date of such proclamation.

Act X, 1872, ss. 171 and 358. Act X, 1872, s. 82. Act IV, 1877, ss. 67 and 137. 10 Beng. App. 18.

Proclamation for person absconding.

The proclamation shall be published as follows:—

(a) it shall be publicly read in some conspicuous place of the town or village in which such person ordinarily resides;

(b) it shall be affixed on some conspicuous part of his ordinary place of abode, or on some conspicuous place of such town or village; and

(c) a copy thereof shall be affixed to some conspicuous part of the Court-house.

A statement by the Court to the effect that the proclamation was duly published on a specified day shall be conclusive evidence that the requirements of this section have been complied with, and that the proclamation was published on such day.

New as to date of publication.

86. The Court may order the attachment of any property, moveable or immoveable, or both, belonging to any such person.

Act X, 1872, ss. 172 and 3. Act IV, 1877, ss. 68, 1[illegible].

Attachment of property of person absconding.

Such order shall authorize the attachment of any property belonging to such person within the district in which it is made; and it shall authorize the attachment of any property belonging to such person without such district, when endorsed by the District Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such property is situate.

If the property ordered to be attached be immoveable, the attachment under this section shall, in the case of land paying revenue to Government, be made through the Collector of the District in which the land is situate, and in all other cases—

(a) by seizure; or

(b) by the appointment of a receiver; or

(c) by an order prohibiting the payment of rent to the absent person; or (d) by all or any two of such methods, as the Court thinks fit.

If the person so believed to be absconding or concealing himself does not appear within the time specified in the proclamation, the property under attachment shall be at the disposal of Government; but it shall not be sold until the expiration of six months from the date of the attachment, unless it is of a perishable nature, or the Court considers that the sale would be for the benefit of the owner, in either of which cases the Court may cause it to be sold whenever it thinks fit.

Act X, 1872, ss. 173, 354. Act X, 1875, s. 83. Act IV, 1877, ss. 69, 138.

87. If, within two years from the date of the attachment, any person whose property is or has been at the disposal of Government under the last paragraph of section 86 appears voluntarily or is apprehended and brought before the Magistrate having jurisdiction, and proves to the satisfaction of the Court by whose order the property was attached, that he did not abscond or conceal himself for the purpose of evading justice, such property, or, if the same has been sold, the nett proceeds of the sale, or if part only thereof has been sold, the nett proceeds of the sale and the residue of the property, shall, after satisfying thereout all costs incurred in consequence of the attachment, be delivered to him.

Restoration of attached property.

D.—Miscellaneous.

Act X, 1872, ss. 156, 552, 555. Act X, 1875, ss. 81, 84. Act IV, 1877, ss. 34, 36, 88, 135, 136, 217.

88. A Court may, in any case in which it is empowered by this Code to issue a summons for the appearance of any person, issue a warrant for his arrest—

Issue of warrant in lieu of or in addition to summons.

(a) if either before the issue of such summons, or after the issue of the same but before the time fixed for his appearance, the Court sees reason to believe that he has absconded or will not obey the summons; or

(b) if at such time he fails to appear and the summons is proved to have been duly served in time to admit of his appearing in accordance therewith and no reasonable excuse is offered for such failure.

Act X of 1872, s. 476. Act IV, 1877, s. 140.

89. When any person for whose appearance or arrest the officer presiding in any Court is empowered to issue a summons or warrant is present in such Court, such officer may require such person to execute a bond with or without sureties for his appearance in such Court.

Power to take bond for appearance.

Act X, 1872, s. 506. Act IV, 1877, s. 124, para.

90. When any person who is bound by any bond taken under this Code to appear before a Court does not so appear, the officer presiding in such Court may issue a warrant directing that such person be arrested or produced before him.

Arrest on breach of bond for appearance.

Act X, 1872, ss. 158, 185. Act IV, 1877, s. 52.

91. The provisions contained in this chapter relating to a summons and warrant and their issue, service and execution shall, so far as may be, apply to every summons and every warrant of arrest issued under this Code.

Provisions in this chapter generally applicable to summonses and warrants of arrest.

CHAPTER VII.

Of Processes to compel the Production of Documents and other Moveable Property.

A.—Summons to produce.

Act X, 1872, s. 365. Act X, 1875, s. 86. Act IV, 1877, s. 144.

92. Whenever any Court or any officer in charge of a Police-station considers that the production of any document or other thing is necessary or desirable for the purposes of any investigation, inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code by or before such Court or officer, such Court or officer may issue a summons to the person in whose possession or power such document or thing is believed to be, requiring him to attend and produce it at the time and place stated in the summons.

Summons to produce document or other thing.

Nothing in this section applies to a letter or telegram in the custody of the Postal or Telegraph Department.

New.

Act X, 1872, s. 369, last sentence. Act IV, 1877, s. 146.

93. If any letter or telegram in the custody of the Postal or Telegraph Department is, in the opinion of any District Magistrate, Chief Presidency Magistrate, High Court or Court of Session, wanted for the purpose of any investigation, inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code, such Magistrate or Court may require such Department to deliver such letter or telegram to such person as such Magistrate or Court directs.

Procedure as to letters and telegrams.

If any such letter is, in the opinion of any other Magistrate or of any Commissioner of Police, or District Superintendent of Police, wanted for any such purpose, he may require the Postal Department to cause search to be made for and to detain such letter, pending the orders of any such District Magistrate, Chief Presidency Magistrate or Court.

B.—Search-warrants.

Act X, 1872, s. 366. Act X, 1875, s. 87. Act IV, 1877, s. 145.

94. Where there is reason to believe that a person to whom a summons under section 92 or a requisition under section 93, paragraph one, has been or might be addressed will not or would not produce the document or other thing as directed in such summons,

When search-warrant may be issued.

or where such document or other thing is not known to be in the possession of any person, or where the Court considers that the purposes of any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code, will be served by a general search or inspection, it may issue a search-warrant; and the person to whom such warrant is directed may search or inspect any place within the local limits of the jurisdiction of such Court.

Act X, 1872, s. 366. Act IV, 1877, s. 139.

Nothing herein contained shall authorize any Magistrate, other than a District Magistrate, to grant a warrant to search for a letter or telegram in the custody of the Postal or Telegraph authorities.

Act X, 1872, s. 369, para. 1.

General warrant should not be the rule.

Power to restrict warrant.

95. The Court may, if it thinks fit, specify in the warrant the particular place, building or part thereof to which only the search or inspection shall extend; and the person charged with the execution of such warrant shall then search or inspect only the place, building or part so specified.

Act X, 1872, ss. 370, 371, 372, 373, 375, 376, para. 1, Act IV, 1877, s. 161.

Direction, &c., of search-warrants.

96. The provisions of sections 72, paragraph two, 74, 76, 77, 80, 81 and 82 shall, so far as may be, apply to all search-warrants issued under section 94.

Act X, 1872, s. 377. Act IV, 1877, s. 160.

Search of house suspected to contain stolen property, forged documents, &c.

97. If a District Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate, Presidency Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class, upon information and after such inquiry as he thinks necessary, has reason to believe that any place is used for the deposit or sale of stolen property, or of property which has been fraudulently obtained, or for the deposit or sale or manufacture of forged documents, false seals, or counterfeit stamps or coin, or instruments or materials for counterfeiting coin or for forging, or that any forged documents, false seals or counterfeit Government stamps, or coin, or instruments or materials used for counterfeiting coin or for forging are kept or deposited in any place, he may by his warrant authorize any Police-officer above the rank of a constable—

(a) to enter, with such assistance as may be required such place, and

(b) to search the same as specified in the warrant, and

(c) to take possession of any property, documents, seals, stamps or coins therein found which he reasonably suspects to be stolen, unlawfully obtained, forged, false or counterfeit, and also any such instruments and materials as aforesaid, and

(d) to convey such property, documents, seals, stamps, coins, instruments or materials before a Magistrate, or to guard the same on the spot until the offender is taken before a Magistrate, or otherwise to dispose thereof in some place of safety, and

(e) to take into custody and carry before a Magistrate every person found in such place who appears to have been privy to the deposit, sale or manufacture or keeping of any such property, documents, seals, stamps, coins, instruments or materials, knowing or having reasonable cause to suspect the said property to have been stolen or otherwise unlawfully obtained, or the said documents, seals, stamps, coins, instruments or materials to have been forged, falsified or counterfeited, or the said instruments or materials to have been or to be intended to be used for counterfeiting coin or for forging.

Act X, 1872, ss. 382, 384. Act IV, 1877, s. 162.

Persons in charge of closed place to allow search.

Act X, 1872, s. 383. Act IV, 1877, ss. 163, 164.

If ingress into such place cannot be so obtained, the officer or other person executing the warrant may proceed in manner provided by section 46.

Act X, 1872, s. 385. Act IV, 1877, s. 165.

Search to be made in presence of witnesses.

99. Before making a search under this chapter, the officer or other person about to make it shall call upon two or more respectable inhabitants of the locality in which the place to be searched is situate to attend and witness the search.

The search shall be made in their presence, but they shall not be required to attend the Court as witnesses unless specially summoned by it.

Occupant of place searched may attend.

The occupant of the place searched, or some person in his behalf, shall, in every instance, be permitted to attend during the search.

Act X, 1872, s. 386. Act IV, 1877, s. 166.

Mode of searching women.

100. Whenever it is necessary to cause a woman to be searched, the search shall be made with strict regard to the customs of the country.

Act X, 1872, ss. 373, para. 2, 374.

Disposal of things found in search beyond jurisdiction.

101. When, in the execution of a search-warrant at any place beyond the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court which issued the same, the thing for which search is made is found, it shall, when such place is nearer to the Magistrate having jurisdiction therein than to such Court, be immediately taken before such Magistrate; and, unless there be good cause to the contrary, such Magistrate shall make an order authorizing it to be taken to such Court.

C.—Miscellaneous.

Act X, 1872, s. 367. Act X, 1875, s. 88. Act IV, 1877, s. 147.

Power to impound document produced.

102. Any Court may, if it thinks fit, impound any document or other thing produced before it under this Code.

Act X, 1872, s. 373, para. 3.

Magistrate may direct search in his presence.

103. Any Magistrate may direct a search to be made in his presence of any place for the search of which he is competent to issue a search-warrant.

PART IV.

PREVENTION OF OFFENCES.

CHAPTER VIII.

Lawful Resistance.

New.

Lawful resistance to offences.

104. Lawful resistance to the commission of an offence may be made by any person in the cases and to the extent in and to which he may exercise the right of private defence.

CHAPTER IX.

OF SECURITY FOR KEEPING THE PEACE AND FOR GOOD BEHAVIOUR.

A.—Security for keeping the Peace on Conviction.

Act X, 1872, ss. 489, 490. Act X, 1875, s. 140. Act IV, 1877, s. 208. Bond becomes void when conviction set aside, N. W. P., 1875, p. 376.

105. Whenever a person accused of rioting, assault or other breach of the peace, or with abetting the same, or with assembling armed men or taking other unlawful measures with the evident intention of committing the same, is convicted of such offence before a High Court, a Court of Session or the Court of a Presidency Magistrate, a District Magistrate, a Sub-divisional Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class,

Security for keeping the peace on conviction.

and such Court is of opinion that it is necessary to require such person to execute a bond for keeping the peace, such Court may, at the time of passing sentence on such person, order him to execute a bond for a sum proportionate to his means, with or without sureties, for keeping the peace during such period not exceeding three years as it thinks fit to fix.

Act X, 1872, ss. 490, 493. Cf. s. 506. Act X, 1875, s. 141. Act IV, 1877, s. 209.

B.—Security for keeping the Peace in other Cases and Security for Good Behaviour.

Act X, 1872, s. 491, omitting the "explanation" Act IV, 1877 ss. 215, 231.

106. Whenever a Presidency Magistrate, a District Magistrate, a Sub-Divisional Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class receives information that any person is likely to commit a breach of the peace, or to do any act that may probably occasion a breach of the peace within the local limits of such Magistrate's jurisdiction, or that there is within such limits a person who is likely to commit a breach of the peace or do any act as aforesaid in any place beyond such limits, the Magistrate may, in manner hereinafter provided, require such person to show cause why he should not be ordered to execute a bond, with or without sureties, for keeping the peace for such period not exceeding three years as the Magistrate thinks fit to fix.

Security for keeping the peace in other cases.

One year in Act X, 1872, s. 498.

Act X, 1872, s. 494.

107. When any Magistrate not empowered to proceed under section 106, or a Court of Session or High Court, has reason to believe that any person is likely to commit a breach of the peace or to do any act that may probably occasion a breach of the peace, and that such breach of the peace cannot be prevented otherwise than by detaining such person in custody, such Magistrate or Court may issue a warrant for his arrest (if he is not already in custody), and may send him before a Magistrate empowered to deal with the case under section 106.

Procedure of Magistrate, &c., not empowered to act under section 106.

A Magistrate before whom a person is sent under this section may in his discretion detain such person in custody until the completion of the enquiry hereinafter prescribed.

108. Whenever a Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate, Sub-Divisional Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class receives information—

Act X, 1872, s. 504. Act IV, 1877, ss. 2, 231.

Security for good behaviour from vagrants and suspected persons.

(a) that any person is taking precautions to conceal his presence within the local limits of such Magistrate's jurisdiction, and that there is reason to believe that such person is taking such precautions with a view to committing an offence, or

(b) that there is within such limits a person who has no ostensible means of subsistence, or who cannot give a satisfactory account of himself, such Magistrate may, in manner hereinafter provided, require such person to show cause why he should not be ordered to execute a bond, with sureties, for his good behaviour for such period not exceeding six months as the Magistrate thinks fit to fix.

Act X, 1872, ss. 505, 506. Act IV, 1877, ss. 213, 214, 231.

Security for good behaviour from notorious offenders.

109. Whenever any such Magistrate receives information that any person within the local limits of his jurisdiction is by repute an habitual robber, housebreaker or thief, or an habitual receiver of stolen property knowing the same to have been stolen, or of a dangerous character, such Magistrate may, in manner hereinafter provided, require such person to show cause why he should not be ordered to execute a bond, with sureties, for his good behaviour for such period not exceeding three years as the Magistrate thinks fit to fix.

Act X, 1872, s. 517. Act IV, 1877, s. 232.

Proviso as to European vagrants.

110. The provisions of sections 108 and 109 do not apply to European British subjects in cases where they may be dealt with under the European Vagrancy Act, 1874.

Act X, 1872, ss. 492, 505, 515. Act IV, 1877, s. 216, para. 1, 222.

Order to be made.

111. When a Magistrate acting under section 106, section 108 or section 109 deems it necessary to require any person to show cause under such section, he shall make an order in writing, setting forth the substance of the information received, the amount of the bond to be executed, the term for which it is to be in force, and the number of sureties (if any) required.

Act X, 1872, s. 492, para. 2. Act IV, 1877, s. 216, para. 2.

Procedure in respect of person present in Court.

Act X, 1872, ss. 494, 511.

Summons or warrant in case of person not so present.

113. If such person is not present in court, the Magistrate shall issue a summons requiring him to appear, or, when such person is in custody, a warrant directing the officer in whose custody he is to bring him, before the Court:

Provided that, whenever it appears to such Magistrate, upon the report of a Police-officer or upon other information, that there is reason to fear the commission of a breach of the peace, and that such breach of the peace cannot be prevented otherwise than by the immediate arrest of such person, the Magistrate may at any time issue a warrant for his arrest.

Act IV, 1877, s. 219 provides In bad livelihood cases Police can arrest without warrant.

Copy of order under section 111 to accompany summons or warrant.

114. Every summons or warrant issued under section 113 shall be accompanied by a copy of the order made under section 111, and such copy shall be delivered by the officer serving or executing such summons or warrant to the person served with, or arrested under, the same.

Act X, 1872, s. 495. Act IV, 1877, s. 218.

Power to dispense with personal attendance.

115. The Magistrate may, if he sees sufficient cause, dispense with the personal attendance of any person called upon to shew cause why he should not be ordered to execute a bond for keeping the peace, and may permit him to appear by a pleader.

Mor. 1 O'Kin. 130.

Inquiry as to truth of information.

116. When an order under section 111 has been read or explained to a person present in Court under section 112, or when any person appears or is brought before a Magistrate in compliance with, or in execution of, a summons or warrant issued under section 113, the Magistrate shall proceed to enquire into the truth of the information upon which he has acted.

Such enquiry shall be made, as nearly as may be, where the order requires security for keeping the peace, in the manner hereinafter prescribed for conducting trials in summons-cases; and where the order requires security for good behaviour, in the manner hereinafter prescribed for conducting trials in warrant-cases, except that no charge need be framed.

Act X, 1872, s. 496. Act IV, 1877, s. 219.

Discharge of person informed against.

118. If, on an inquiry under section 116, the Magistrate is not satisfied that there is occasion to bind over the person in respect of whom such enquiry is made to keep the peace, or to be of good behaviour, as the case may be, the Magistrate shall make an entry on the record to that effect, and, if such person is in custody only for the purposes of the enquiry, shall release him.

C.—Proceedings in all Cases subsequent to Order to furnish Security.

Act X, 1872, s. 504, para. 2. Act IV, 1877, ss. 210, 224. I. L. R. 1 All. 666 n.

Commencement of period for which security is required.

119. If any person in respect of whom an order requiring security is made under section 105 or section 117 is, at the time such order is made, sentenced to, or undergoing a sentence of, imprisonment, the period for which such security is required shall commence on the expiration of such sentence.

In other cases such period shall commence on the date of such order.

Act X, 1872, s. 502, para. 6.

Contents of bond.

120. The bond to be executed by any such person shall bind him to keep the peace or to be of good behaviour to Her Majesty the Queen, Empress of India, and to all Her subjects, as the case may be, and in the latter case the commission or attempt to commit, or abetment of, any offence whatever, and wherever it may be committed, is a breach of the bond.

Act X, 1872, s. 516.

Power to reject sureties.

121. A Magistrate may refuse to accept any surety for good behaviour offered under this chapter, on the ground that such surety is an unfit person.

Act X, 1872, ss. 499, para. 3, 510. Act IV, 1877, s. 223.

Imprisonment in default of security.

Act X, 1872, ss. 507, 508. Act IV, 1877, s. 221.

Proceedings when to be laid before High Court or Court of Session.

When such person has been ordered by a Magistrate to give security for a period exceeding one year, such Magistrate shall, if such person does not give such security as aforesaid, issue a warrant directing him to be detained pending the orders of the Court of Session, or, if such Magistrate be a Presidency Magistrate, pending the orders of the High Court, and the proceedings shall be laid, as soon as conveniently may be, before such Court.

Such Court, after examining such proceedings and requiring any further information or evidence which it thinks necessary, may pass such order on the case as it thinks fit: Provided that the period (if any) for which any person is imprisoned for failure to give security shall not exceed three years.

Act X, 1872, s. 499, para. 3.

Kind of imprisonment.

Imprisonment for failure to give security for keeping the peace shall be simple.

Act X, 1872, s. 510, para.

Imprisonment for failure to give security for good behaviour may be rigorous or simple as the Court or Magistrate in each case directs.

Act X, 1872, ss. 500, Act IV, 1877, s. 225.

Power to release persons imprisoned for failing to give security.

123. Whenever the District Magistrate or a Presidency Magistrate is of opinion that any person imprisoned for failing to give security under this chapter, whether by the order of such Magistrate or that of his predecessor in office, or of some subordinate Magistrate, may be released without hazard to the community or to any other person, he may order such person to be discharged.

Act X, 1872, s. 512.

Whenever the District Magistrate or a Presidency Magistrate is of opinion that any person imprisoned for failing to give security under this chapter as ordered by the Court of Session or High Court may be safely released without such security, such Magistrate shall make an immediate report of the case for the orders of the Court of Session or High Court, as the case may be, and such Court may, if it thinks fit, order such person to be discharged.

Act X, 1872, ss. 500, 511. Act IV, 1877, s. 226.

124. Any surety for the peaceable conduct or good behaviour of another person may at any time apply to a Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class to cancel the bond.

Discharge of sureties.

On such application being made, the Magistrate shall issue his summons or warrant, as he thinks fit, requiring the person for whom such surety is bound to appear or to be brought before him.

When such person appears or is brought before the Magistrate, such Magistrate shall cancel the bond, and shall order such person to give, for the unexpired portion of the term of such bond, fresh security of the same description as the original security. Every such order shall, for the purposes of sections 120, 121, 122 and 123, be deemed to be an order made under section 105 or section 117, as the case may be.

CHAPTER X.

Unlawful Assemblies.

Act X, 1872, s. 480. Act XI, 1874, s. 43. Indian Penal Code, ss. 145, 151.

125. Any Magistrate or officer in charge of a Police-station, whether within or without the Presidency-towns, may command any unlawful assembly, or any assembly of five or more persons likely to cause a disturbance of the public peace, to disperse; and it shall thereupon be the duty of the members of such assembly to disperse accordingly.

Assembly to disperse on command of Magistrate or Police-officer.

Act X, 1872, s. 481.

126. If, upon being so commanded, any such assembly does not disperse, any Magistrate or officer in charge of a Police-station, whether within or without the Presidency-towns, may proceed to disperse such assembly by force, and may require the assistance of any male person, not being an officer or soldier in Her Majesty's Army or a Volunteer enrolled under the Indian Volunteers Act, 1869, and acting as such, for the purpose of dispersing such assembly, and, if necessary, arresting and confining the persons who form part of it in order to disperse such assembly or that they may be punished according to law.

Use of civil force to disperse.

Volunteers added.

Act X, 1872, s. 482.

127. If any such assembly cannot be otherwise dispersed, and if it is necessary for the public security that it should be dispersed, the Magistrate of the highest rank who is present may cause it to be dispersed by military force.

Use of military force.

Act X, 1872, s. 484, adding volunteers.

128. When a Magistrate determines to disperse any such assembly by military force, he may require any officer in command of any soldiers in Her Majesty's Army or of any Volunteers enrolled under the Indian Volunteers Act, 1869, to disperse such assembly by such force, and to arrest and confine such persons forming part of it as the Magistrate may direct, or as it may be necessary to arrest and confine in order to disperse the assembly, or that they may be punished according to law.

Duty of officer commanding troops required by Magistrate to disperse assembly.

Every such officer shall obey such requisition in such manner as he thinks fit; but in so doing he shall use as little force, and do as little injury to person and property, as is consistent with dispersing the assembly and arresting and detaining such persons.

Act X, 1872, s. 487.

129. When the public security is manifestly endangered by any such assembly, and when no Magistrate can be communicated with, any commissioned officer of Her Majesty's Army may disperse such assembly by military force, and may arrest and confine any persons forming part of it in order to disperse such assembly, or that they may be punished according to law; but as soon as he can communicate the facts of the case to a Magistrate, he shall do so.

Power of commissioned military officers to disperse assembly.

Act X, 1872, s. 488.

130. No prosecution against any Magistrate, Military officer, Police-officer or soldier for any act purporting to be done under this chapter shall be instituted in any criminal Court, except with the sanction of the Governor General in Council or of the Local Government; and Protection against prosecution for acts done under this chapter.

Act X, 1872, ss. 483, 485, 486.

(a) no Magistrate or Police-officer acting under this chapter in good faith;

(b) no officer acting under section 129 in good faith;

(c) no person doing any act in good faith in compliance with a requisition under section 126 or section 128, and

(d) no inferior officer or private soldier doing any act in obedience to any order which under military law he was bound to obey, shall be deemed to have thereby committed an offence.

CHAPTER XI.

Public Nuisances.

Act X, 1872, s. 521, substituting "highway" for "thoroughfare."

131. Whenever a District Magistrate, or Sub-divisional Magistrate or, when empowered by the Local Government in this behalf, a Magistrate of the first class, considers, Conditional order for removal of nuisance.

on receiving a report or other information and on taking such evidence (if any) as he thinks fit, that any unlawful obstruction or nuisance should be removed from any highway, navigable river or public place, or that any trade or occupation, by reason of its being injurious to the health or physical comfort of the community, should be suppressed or removed, or "Combustible" omitted.

that the construction of any building, or the disposal of any substance as likely to occasion conflagration or explosion, should be prevented or stopped, or that any building is in such a state of weakness that it is likely to fall and thereby cause injury to persons passing by, and that its removal in consequence is necessary, or that any tank or well adjacent to any highway should be fenced in such a manner as to prevent danger arising to the public,— such Magistrate may make a conditional order requiring the person causing such obstruction or nuisance, or carrying on such trade or occupation, or owning, possessing or controlling such building substance, tank or well, as aforesaid, within a time to be fixed in the order, to remove such obstruction or nuisance; or to suppress or remove such trade or occupation; or to prevent or stop the construction of such building; or to remove it; or to alter the disposal of such substance; or to fence such tank or well, as the case may be, or to appear before himself or some other Magistrate of the first or second class, at a time and place to be fixed by the order, and move to have the order set aside or modified in manner hereinafter provided.

No order duly made by a Magistrate under this section shall be called in question in any Civil Court.

Explanation.—A "public place" includes property belonging to the State, camping grounds, and grounds left unoccupied for sanitary and recreative purposes.

X, 1872, 532.

132. The order shall, if practicable, be served on the person against whom it is made in manner herein provided for service of a summons.

Service or notification of order.

If such order cannot be so served, it shall be notified by proclamation, and a written notice thereof shall be stuck up at such place or places as may be fittest for conveying the information to such person.

X, 1872, 530.

133. The person against whom such order is made shall—

Person to whom order is addressed to obey,

(a) perform, within the time specified in the order, the act directed thereby; or or show cause or claim jury.

(b) appear in accordance with such order and either show cause against the same, or apply to such Magistrate to appoint a jury to try whether the same is reasonable and proper.

Act X, 1872, s. 525.

134. If such person does not perform such act or appear and shew cause or apply for the appointment of a jury as required by section 133, he shall be liable to the penalty prescribed in that behalf in section 188 of the Indian Penal Code; and the order shall be made absolute.

Consequence of his failing to do so.

Act X, 1872, ss. 525, 527. Act XI, 1874, s. 45.

135. If he appears and shews cause against the order, the Magistrate shall take evidence in the matter.

Procedure where he appears to shew cause.

If the Magistrate is satisfied that the order is not reasonable and proper, no further proceedings shall be taken in the case. I O'Kin. 486.

If the Magistrate is not so satisfied, the order shall be made absolute.

Act X, 1872, s. 523, para. 2.

136. On receiving an application under section 133 to appoint a jury, the Magistrate shall—

Procedure where the claims jury.

(a) forthwith appoint a jury consisting of an uneven number of persons not less than five, of whom the foreman and one half of the remaining members shall be nominated by such Magistrate, and the other members by the applicant;

Act X, 1872, s. 524.

(b) summon such foreman and members to attend at such place and time as the Magistrate thinks fit; and

(c) fix a time within which they are to return their verdict.

Act X, 1872, ss. 523, 526.

137. If the jury or a majority of the jurors find that the order of the Magistrate is reasonable and proper as originally made, or subject to a modification which the Magistrate accepts, the Magistrate shall make the order absolute, subject to such modification (if any).

Procedure where jury finds Magistrate's order to be reasonable.

In other cases, no further proceedings shall be taken.

Act X, 1872, s. 525.

138. When an order has been made absolute under section 134, section 135, or section 137, the Magistrate shall give notice of the same to the person against whom the order was made and shall further require him to perform the act directed by the order within a time to be fixed in the notice, and inform him that, in case of disobedience, he will be liable to the penalty provided by section 188 of the Indian Penal Code:

Procedure on order being made absolute.

If such act is not performed within the time fixed, the Magistrate may cause it to be performed, and may recover the costs of performing it, either by the sale of any building, goods or other property removed by his order, or by the distress and sale of any other moveable property of such person within or without the local limits of the Magistrate's jurisdiction. If such other property is without such limits, the order shall authorize its attachment and sale when endorsed by the Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the property to be attached is found.

Consequences of disobedience to order.

Act X, 1872, s. 522, para. 4. No suit shall lie in respect of anything reasonably done under this section.

Act X, 1872, s. 523, para. 4.

Procedure on failure to appoint jury or omission to return verdict.

139. If the applicant by neglect or otherwise prevents the appointment of the jury, or if from any cause the jury appointed do not return their verdict within the time fixed or within such further time as the Magistrate may in his discretion allow, the Magistrate may pass such order as he thinks fit, and such order shall be executed in the manner provided by section 138.

Act X, 1872, s. 528.

Injunction pending inquiry.

140. If a Magistrate making an order under section 131 considers that immediate measures should be taken to prevent imminent danger or injury of a serious kind to the public, he may, whether a jury is to be, or has been, appointed or not, issue such an injunction to the person against whom the order was made as is required to obviate or prevent such danger or injury.

In default of such person forthwith obeying such injunction, the Magistrate may himself use, or cause to be used, such means as he thinks fit to obviate such danger or to prevent such injury.

No suit shall lie in respect of anything reasonably done by a Magistrate under this section.

Act X, 1872, s. 518, Expl. 1. 1 O'Kin. 58.

Power to issue order absolute at once in urgent cases.

141. In cases where, in the opinion of a District Magistrate, a Sub-divisional Magistrate, or of any other Magistrate specially empowered by the Local Government or the District Magistrate to act under this section, a speedy remedy is desirable and the delay which would be occasioned by a resort to the procedure contained in section 131 and the next following sections would occasion a greater evil than that suffered by the person against whom the order was made, or would defeat the intention of this chapter, such Magistrate may, by a written order stating the material facts of the case and served in manner provided by section 132, direct any person to abstain from a certain act or to take certain order with certain property in his possession, or under his management, if such Magistrate considers that such direction is likely to prevent, or tends to prevent, obstruction, annoyance or injury, or risk of obstruction, annoyance or injury, to any persons lawfully employed, or danger to human life, health or safety, or a riot or an affray.

Act X, 1872, s. 518. Beng. Ap. Cr. 20.

Act X, 1872, s. 518, Expl. II.

An order under this section may, in cases of emergency or in cases where the circumstances do not admit of the serving in due time of a notice upon the person against whom the order is directed be passed ex parte, and may in all cases be made upon such information as satisfies the Magistrate.

Act X, 1872, s. 518, Expl. III. As to disobedience to such orders, see Penal Code, s. 188.

An order under this section may be directed to a particular individual, or to the public generally when frequenting or visiting a particular place.

Act X, 1872, s. 518, Expl. IV.

Any Magistrate may rescind or alter any order made under this section by himself or by his predecessor in office.

Magistrate may prohibit repetition or continuance of public nuisances.

142. A Sub-divisional Magistrate or any other Magistrate empowered by the Local Government or the District Magistrate in this behalf may order any person not to repeat or continue a public nuisance.

Act X, 1872, s. 519. Penal Code, s. 291.

CHAPTER XII.

DISPUTES AS TO IMMOVEABLE PROPERTY.

Procedure where dispute concerning land, &c., is likely to cause breach of peace.

143. Whenever a District Magistrate, Sub-Divisional Magistrate, or a Magistrate of the first class, is satisfied from a Police-report or other information that a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace exists concerning any tangible immoveable property, or the boundaries thereof, within the local limits of his jurisdiction, he shall make an order in writing stating the grounds of his being so satisfied, and requiring the parties concerned in such dispute to attend his Court, in person or by agent, within a time to be fixed by such Magistrate, and to put in written statements of their respective claims as respects the fact of actual possession of the subject of dispute.

Act X, 1872, s. 530. 3 Calc. 552.

I. L. R. 3 Calc. 320.

Inquiry as to possession.

The Magistrate shall then, without reference to the merits of the claims of any of such parties to a right to possess the subject of dispute, peruse the statements so put in, hear the parties and their respective witnesses, consider the effect of the evidence and, if possible, decide whether any and which of the parties is in possession of the said subject.

1 O'Kin. 136. 2 O'Kin. 67, 264.

Party in possession to be continued until legally evicted.

If he decides that one of the parties is in possession of the said subject, he shall issue an order declaring such party to be entitled to retain possession thereof until evicted therefrom in due course of law, and forbidding all disturbance of such possession until such eviction.

Power to attach subject of dispute.

144. If such Magistrate decides that none of the parties is in possession, or is unable to satisfy himself as to which of them is in possession, of the subject of dispute, he may attach it, until a competent Civil Court has determined the rights of the parties thereto, or the person entitled to possession thereof.

Act X, 1872, s. 531. 1 O'Kin. 86.

Disputes concerning easements, &c.

145. Whenever any such Magistrate is satisfied as aforesaid that a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace exists concerning the right to do or prevent the doing of anything in or upon any tangible immoveable property situate within the local limits of his jurisdiction, he may inquire into the matter; and may, if it appears to him that such right exists, make an order permitting such thing to be done, or directing that such thing shall not be done, as the case may be, until the person objecting to such thing being done or claiming that such thing may be done, obtains the decision of a competent Civil Court, adjudging him to be entitled to prevent the doing of, or to do, such thing, as the case may be:

Provided that no order shall be passed under this section permitting the doing of anything where the right to do such thing is exerciseable at all times of the year, unless such right has been ordinarily exercised within three months next before the institution of the inquiry; or, where the right is exerciseable only at particular seasons, unless such right has been so exercised during the season next before the dispute.

Act X, 1872, s. 533.

Local inquiry.

146. Whenever a local inquiry is necessary for the purposes of this chapter, any District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate may depute any Magistrate subordinate to him to make the inquiry, and may furnish him with such instructions consistent with the law for the time being in force as may seem necessary for his guidance, and may declare by whom the whole or any part of the necessary expenses of the inquiry shall be paid.

CHAPTER XIII.

PREVENTIVE ACTION OF THE POLICE.

Act X, 1872, s. 95.

Police to prevent cognizable offences.

147. Every Police-officer may interpose for the purpose of preventing, and shall to the best of his ability prevent, the commission of any cognizable offence.

Act X, 1872, s. 96.

Information of design to commit such offences.

148. Every Police-officer receiving information of a design to commit any cognizable offence shall communicate such information to the Police-officer to whom he is subordinate, and to any other officer whom it may concern, to prevent or take cognizance of the commission of any such offence.

Act X, 1872, s. 97.

Arrest to prevent such offences.

149. A Police-officer knowing of a design to commit any cognizable offence may arrest, without orders from a Magistrate and without a warrant, the person so designing, if the commission of the offence cannot be otherwise prevented.

Act X, 1872, s. 98.

Prevention of injury to public property.

150. A Police-officer may of his own authority interpose to prevent any injury attempted to be committed in his view to any public property, moveable or immoveable, or the removal or injury of any public land-mark, or buoy or other mark used for navigation.

Act X, 1872, s. 551.

Inspection of weights and measures.

151. Any officer in charge of a Police-station may, without a warrant, enter any place within the limits of such station for the purpose of inspecting or searching for any weights or measures, or instruments for weighing, used or kept therein, whenever he has reason to believe that there are in such place any weights, measures or instruments for weighing which are false.

If he finds in such place any weights, measures or instruments for weighing which are false, he may seize the same, and shall forthwith give information of such seizure to the Magistrate having jurisdiction.

PART V.

INFORMATION TO THE POLICE AND OF THEIR POWERS TO INVESTIGATE.

CHAPTER XIV.

Act X, 1872, s. 113.

Information to be reduced to writing.

152. Every information to an officer in charge of a Police-station shall be reduced into writing by or under his direction, and shall be signed by the person giving it; and the substance thereof shall be entered in a book to be kept by such officer in such form as the Local Government may prescribe in this behalf.

Act X, 1872, s. 113.

Complaint in non-cognizable cases.

153. When a complaint is made to an officer in charge of a Police-station of the commission within the limits of such station of a non-cognizable offence, he shall refer the complainant to the Magistrate.

Act X, 1872, s. 110.

Investigation into non-cognizable cases.

No Police-officer shall investigate a non-cognizable case without the order of a Magistrate of the first or second class having power to try such case or commit the same for trial.

Any Police-officer receiving such order may exercise the same powers in respect of the investigation (except the power to arrest without warrant) as in a cognizable case.

Act X, 1872, s. 109, and s. 4, cl. (l).

Investigation into cognizable cases.

154. Any officer in charge of a Police-station may, without the order of a Magistrate, investigate any cognizable case which a Court having jurisdiction over the local area within the limits of such station would have power to enquire into or try under the provisions of chapter XV relating to the place of inquiry or trial.

Act X, 1872, s. 114, para. 1.

No proceeding of a Police-officer in any such case shall at any stage be called in question on the ground that the case was one which such officer was not empowered under this section to investigate.

Act X, 1872, s. 114.

Procedure where cognizable offence suspected.

155. If, from information received or otherwise, an officer in charge of a Police-station has reason to suspect the commission of an offence which he is empowered under section 154 to investigate, he shall send a report of the same to the nearest Magistrate having jurisdiction to receive Police-reports, and shall proceed in person, or shall depute one of his subordinate officers to proceed, to the spot to investigate the facts and circumstances of the case, and to take such measures as may be necessary for the discovery and arrest of the offender:

See Notes, 109.

Act X, 1872, s. 116.

Provided that when any information as to the commission of any such offence is given against any person by name and the case is not of a serious nature, the officer in charge of a Police-station need not proceed in person or depute a subordinate officer to make an investigation on the spot:

Where local investigation dispensed with.

Act X, 1872, s. 117, para. 1.

Provided also that, if it appear to the officer in charge of a Police-station that there is no sufficient ground for entering on an investigation, he shall not proceed to investigate the case.

Where Police-officer in charge sees no sufficient ground for investigation.

Act X, 1872, s. 117, para. 2.

156. Every report under section 155 shall, if the Local Government so directs, be submitted through such superior officer of Police as the Local Government, by general or special order, appoints in that behalf.

Reports under section 155 how submitted.

Such superior officer may give such instructions to the officer in charge of the Police-station as he thinks fit, and shall, after recording such instructions on such report, transmit the same without delay to the Magistrate having jurisdiction to receive Police-reports.

Act X, 1872, s. 115.

157. Such Magistrate, on receiving such report, may, if he thinks fit, at once proceed, or depute any Magistrate subordinate to him to proceed, to hold a preliminary inquiry into, or otherwise to dispose of, the case in manner provided in this Code.

Power to make preliminary inquiry.

Act X, 1872, s. 118.

158. Any Police-officer making an investigation under this chapter may, by order in writing, require the attendance before himself of any person being within the limits of his own or any adjoining station who, from the information given or otherwise, appears to be acquainted with the circumstances of the case; and such person shall attend as so required.

Police-officer's power to require attendance of witnesses.

Act X, 1872, ss. 119, 121.

159. Any Police-officer making an investigation under this chapter may examine orally any person supposed to be acquainted with the facts and circumstances of the case, and may reduce into writing any statement made by the person so examined.

Examination of witnesses by Police.

Such person shall be bound to answer all questions relating to such case put him by such officer other than questions the answers to which would have a tendency to expose him to a criminal charge or to a penalty or forfeiture.

Act X, 1872, s. 119, para. 2, s. 121.

160. No statement made by any person under section 159 or by an accused person to the Police shall, if reduced into writing, be signed by the person making it, nor shall it be treated as part of the record or used as evidence against the accused person.

Statements to Police not to be signed or admitted in evidence.

Act X, 1872, ss. 120, 134. Act I, 1872, s. 24.

161. No Police-officer or other person in authority shall offer or make to an accused person any such inducement, threat or promise as is mentioned in the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, section 24.

No inducement to be offered to confess.

But no Police-officer or other person shall prevent, by any caution or otherwise, an accused person from making any statement which he may be disposed to make of his own free will.

Nelson, 113.

Act X, 1872, s. 122. Act IV, 1877, s. 16.

162. Any Magistrate may record any statement made to him by any person, or any confession made to him by any accused person, in the course of an investigation under this chapter.

Power to record statements and confessions.

1. L. R. 1 Bom. 219.

Such statements shall be recorded in the manner hereinafter prescribed for recording evidence. Such confessions shall be recorded, signed and certified in the manner provided in section 366, and shall then be forwarded to the Magistrate by whom the case is inquired into or tried.

No Magistrate shall record any such confession unless, upon questioning the person making it, he has reason to believe that it was made voluntarily; and he shall make a memorandum at the foot thereof to the following effect:—

"I believe that this confession was voluntarily made. It was read over to the person making it, and was admitted by him to be correct.

"(Signed) A. B.,
"Magistrate."

Act X, 1872, s. 165.

163. Whenever an officer in charge of a Police-station, or a Police-officer making an investigation, considers that the production of any thing is necessary to the conduct of an investigation into any offence which he is authorised to investigate, he may search, or cause search to be made, for the same, in any place within the limits of the station of which he is in charge, or to which he is attached.

Search by officer in charge of Police-station.

Such officer shall, if practicable, conduct the search in person.

If he is unable to conduct the search in person, and there is no other person competent to make the search present at the time, he may require any officer subordinate to him to make the search, and he shall deliver to such subordinate officer an order in writing, specifying the thing for which search is to be made, and the place to be searched; and such subordinate officer may thereupon search for such thing in such place.

The provisions of this Code as to search-warrants shall, so far as may be, apply to a search made under this section.

Act X, 1872, s. 880.

164. An officer in charge of a Police-station may require an officer in charge of another Police-station, whether in the same or a different district, to cause a search to be made in any place, in any case in which the former officer might cause such search to be made within the limits of his own station.

When officer of Police-station may require another to issue search-warrant.

Such officer, on being so required, shall proceed according to the provisions of section 163, and shall forward the thing found, if any, to the officer at whose request the search was made.

Act X, 1872, s. 124.

165. When any investigation under this chapter has not been completed within the period of twenty-four hours fixed by section 58 and no special order has been passed under that section, and there are grounds for believing that the accusation is well-founded, the officer in charge of the Police-station shall forward the accused to the nearest Magistrate, with a statement of the offence for which he has been arrested, and such Magistrate, whether he has or has not jurisdiction to try the case, may authorise the detention of the accused. If he has not jurisdiction to try the case or commit it for trial, and considers further detention unnecessary, he may forward the accused to a Magistrate having such jurisdiction.

Procedure when investigation is not completed in twenty-four hours.

A Magistrate authorizing detention under this section shall record in writing his reasons for so doing.

If such order be given by a Magistrate other than the District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate, he shall forward a copy of his order, with his reasons for making it, to the Magistrate to whom he is subordinate.

Act X, 1872, s. 123, clause 2.

166. When any subordinate Police-officer has made any investigation under this chapter, he shall report the result of such investigation to the officer in charge of the Police-station.

Report of investigation by subordinate Police-officer.

Act X, 1872, s. 125.

167. If, upon an investigation under this chapter, it appears to the officer in charge of the Police-station that there is not sufficient evidence or reasonable ground of suspicion to justify the forwarding of the accused to a Magistrate, such officer shall, if such person is in custody, release him on his executing a bond, with or without sureties, as such officer may direct, to appear before the District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate, if and when so required.

Release of accused when evidence deficient.

Act X, 1872, ss. 123, 127, 190.

168. If upon an investigation under this chapter it appears to the officer in charge of the Police-station that there is sufficient evidence or reasonable ground as aforesaid, such officer shall forward the accused under custody to the District Magistrate, or Sub-divisional Magistrate, or some Magistrate empowered to take cognizance of offences upon a police-report, or if the offence charged is bailable and the accused is able to give security, shall take security from him for his appearance before such Magistrate on a day fixed and for his attendance from day to day before such Magistrate until otherwise directed.

Case to be sent to Magistrate when evidence is sufficient.

When the officer in charge of a Police-station forwards an accused person to a Magistrate or takes security for his appearance before such Magistrate under this section, he shall at the same time send to such Magistrate any weapon or other article which it may be necessary to produce before him, and shall require the complainant, if any, and so many of the persons who appear to be acquainted with the circumstances of the case as may be necessary to execute a bond to appear before the Magistrate and prosecute or give evidence (as the case may be) in the matter of the charge against the accused.

If the Court of the District Magistrate or Sub Divisional Magistrate be mentioned in the bond, it shall be held to include any Court to which such Magistrate may refer the case for inquiry or trial, provided notice of such reference be given to such complainant or witness.

The day fixed under this section shall be the day whereon the accused person is to appear, if security for his appearance has been taken, or the day on which he may be expected to arrive at the Court of the Magistrate, if he is to be forwarded in custody.

The officer in whose presence the bond is executed shall deliver a copy thereof to each of the persons who executed it, and shall then send the original with his report to the Magistrate having jurisdiction.

Act X, 1872, ss. 130, para. 1, para. 1.

169. No Police-officer shall accompany the complainant or witnesses on his or their way to the Court of the Magistrate, Police-officer not to accompany complainant or witnesses.

and no complainant or witness shall be subjected to unnecessary restraint or inconvenience, or required to give any security for his appearance other than his own bond:

Complainants and witnesses not to be subjected to restraint.

Act X, 1872, s. 131, para. 2.

Provided that, if any complainant or witness refuses to attend or to execute the bond directed in section 168, the officer in charge of the Police-station may forward him under custody to the Magistrate, who may detain him in custody until he executes such recognizance, or until the hearing of the case is completed.

Recusant complainant or witness may be forwarded in custody.

Act X, 1872, s. 126.

170. Every Police-officer making an investigation under this chapter shall day by day enter his proceedings in the investigation in a diary, setting forth the time at which the information reached him, the time at which he began and closed his investigation, the place or places visited by him, and a statement of the circumstances ascertained through his investigation.

Daily record of proceedings in investigation.

Any Criminal Court may send for the Police-diaries of a case under inquiry or trial in such Court, and may use such diaries to aid it in such inquiry or trial. Neither the accused nor his agents shall be entitled to call for them, nor shall he or they be entitled to see them merely because they are referred to by the Court; but if they are used by the Police-officer who made them to refresh his memory, or if the Court uses them for the purpose of contradicting such Police-officer, the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, sections 145 and 161, shall apply.

171. Every investigation under this chapter shall be completed without unnecessary delay, and as soon as it is completed, the officer in charge of the Police-station shall forward to the Magistrate having jurisdiction a report in the form prescribed by the Local Government, setting forth the names of the parties, the nature of the information and the names of the persons who appear to be acquainted with the circumstances of the case, and stating whether the accused person has been forwarded in custody, or has been released on his bond, and, if so, whether with or without sureties.

Where a superior officer of Police has been appointed under section 156, the report shall be submitted through him, and he may, pending the orders of the Magistrate, give instructions as to the conduct of the investigation.

X, 1872, 133.

172. The officer in charge of a Police-station, on receiving information that a person—

Police to inquire and report on unnatural and sudden deaths.

(a) has been killed by another, or

(b) has suddenly died, or

(c) has committed suicide, shall immediately give intimation thereof to the nearest Magistrate empowered to hold inquests, and shall proceed to the place where the body of such deceased person is, and there, in the presence of two or more respectable inhabitants of the neighbourhood, shall make an investigation, and draw up a report of the apparent cause of death, describing such wounds, fractures, bruises and other marks as may be found on the body and as may appear to have been caused by a cut or blow, and stating in what manner, or by what weapon or instrument, such marks appear to have been inflicted.

The report shall be signed by such Police-officer and other persons, or by so many of them as concur therein, and shall be forthwith forwarded to the District Magistrate or the Sub-divisional Magistrate.

When there is any doubt regarding the cause of death, the Police-officer shall forward the body, with a view to its being examined, to the nearest Civil Surgeon, or other medical officer appointed in this behalf by the Local Government, if the state of the weather and the distance admit of its being so forwarded without risk of such putrefaction on the road as would render such examination useless.

In the territories respectively administered by the Governors of Fort St. George and Bombay in Council, investigations under this section may be made by the Head of the village, who shall then report the result to the nearest Magistrate authorized to hold inquests.

The following Magistrates are empowered to hold inquests, namely, any District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate, and any Magistrate specially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government or the District Magistrate.

1872, [illegible]

173. An officer in charge of a Police-station may, by order in writing, summon two or more persons as aforesaid for the purpose of the said investigation, and any other person who appears to be acquainted with the facts of the case. Any person so summoned shall be bound to attend and to answer all questions other than questions the answers to which would have a tendency to expose him to a criminal charge, or to a penalty or forfeiture.

Power to summon persons.

[illegible] Code, ss. 178, 179.

If the facts do not disclose a cognizable offence to which section 168 applies, such persons shall not be required by the Police-officer to attend a Magistrate's Court.

Act X, 1872, s. 135.

174. The nearest Magistrate empowered to hold inquests may, and, where necessary, shall, hold an inquiry into the cause of any such death, either instead of, or in addition to, the investigation held by the Police-officer; and if he does so, he shall have all the powers in conducting it which he would have in holding an inquiry into an offence. The Magistrate holding such an inquiry shall record the evidence taken by him in connection therewith in any of the manners hereinafter prescribed, according to the circumstances of the case.

Inquiry into cause of such death by nearest Magistrate.

New, cf. Act IV, 1871, s. 11.

Whenever such Magistrate considers it expedient to make an examination of the dead body of any person who has been already interred, in order to discover the cause of his death, the Magistrate may cause the body to be disinterred and examined.

Power to disinter corpse.

PART VI.

PROCEEDINGS IN PROSECUTIONS.

CHAPTER XV.

Of the Jurisdiction of the Criminal Courts in Inquiries and Trials.

A.—Place of Inquiry or Trial.

Act X, 1872, s. 68. Act IV, 1877, s. 18.

175. Every offence shall ordinarily be inquired into and tried by a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction it was committed.

Ordinary place of inquiry and trial.

Act X, 1872, s. 68.

176. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 175, the Local Government may direct that any cases or class of cases committed for trial in any district may be tried in any Sessions Division:

Power to order cases to be tried in different Sessions divisions.

Act XI, 1874, s. 9.

Provided that such direction be not repugnant to any direction previously issued under the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth of Victoria, chapter 104, section 15, or under this Code, section 536.

Act X, 1872, s. 65. Act IV, 1877, s. 19.

177. When a person is accused of the commission of any offence by reason of anything which has been done, and of any consequence which has ensued, such offence may be inquired into or tried by a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction any such thing has been done, or any such consequence has ensued.

Accused triable in district where act is done, or where consequence ensues.

(a.) A is wounded in district X and dies in district Z. The offence of the culpable homicide of A may be inquired into and tried either in X or Z.

(b.) A is wounded in district X, and is, during ten days in district Y and during ten days more in district Z, unable in either Y or Z to follow his ordinary pursuits. The offence of causing grievous hurt to A may be inquired into and tried in X, Y or Z.

(c.) A is put in fear of injury in district X, and is thereby induced, in district Y, to deliver property to the person who put him in fear. The offence of extortion committed on A may be inquired into and tried either in X or Y.

Act X, 1872, s. 66. Act IV, 1877, s. 20.

178. When an act is an offence by reason of its relation to any other act which is also an offence, a charge of the first-mentioned offence may be inquired into and tried by a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction either act was done.

Place for trial where act is offence by reason of relation to other offence.

Illustrations.

(a.) A charge of abetment may be inquired into and tried either in the district in which the abetment was committed, or in the district in which the offence abetted was committed.

(b.) A charge of receiving or retaining stolen goods may be inquired into and tried either in the district in which the goods were stolen, or in any district in which any of them were at any time dishonestly received or retained.

(c.) A charge of wrongfully concealing a person known to have been kidnapped may be inquired into and tried in the district in which the wrongful concealing, or in the district in which the kidnapping, took place.

Act X, 1872, s. 67, illustration (c), s. 68. Act IV, 1877, s. 22.

179. The offence of being a thug, of murder as a thug, of dacoity, of dacoity with murder, of having belonged to a gang of dacoits, or of having escaped from custody, may be inquired into and tried by a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the person charged is.

Being a thug or belonging to a gang of dacoits, escape from custody, &c.

Act X, 1872, s. 67, illustration (c).

The offence of criminal misappropriation or of criminal breach of trust may be inquired into and tried by a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the property which is the subject of the offence was received by the accused person, or the offence was committed.

180. When it is uncertain in which of several local areas an offence was committed, or Place of inquiry or trial where scene of offence is uncertain; or not in one district only;

where an offence is committed partly in one local area and partly in another, or or offence is continuing;

where an offence is a continuing one, and continues to be committed in more local areas than one, or or consists of several acts, where it consists of several acts done in different local areas, it may be inquired into and tried by a Court having jurisdiction over any such local area.

Act X, 1872, s. 67, illustration (a). I Mad. H. C. Rep. 196.

181. An offence committed whilst the offender is actually in the course of performing a journey or voyage may be inquired into and tried by a Court through or into the local limits of whose jurisdiction the offender, or the person against whom, or the thing in respect of which, the offence was committed, passed in the course of that journey or voyage.

Offence committed on a journey.

Act IV, 1872, s. 238. Act LII, 1860, repealed.

182. All offences against the provisions of any law for the time being in force relating to Railways, Telegraphs, the Post-office or Arms and Ammunition may be inquired into and tried in a Presidency-town, whether the offence is stated to have been committed within such town or not: provided that the offender and the witnesses necessary for his prosecution are to be found within such town.

Magistrate's procedure on arrest.

When there are more Magistrates than one having such jurisdiction and the Magistrate acting under this section cannot satisfy himself as to the Magistrate to or before whom such person should be sent, or bound to appear, the case shall be reported for the orders of the High Court.

Act X, [illegible] s. 175.

185. If the person has been arrested under a warrant issued under section 184 by a Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate or District Magistrate, such Magistrate shall send the person arrested to the District Magistrate, unless the Magistrate having jurisdiction to inquire into or try such offence issues his warrant for the arrest of such person, in which case the person arrested shall be delivered to the Police-officer executing such warrant, or shall be sent to the Magistrate by whom such warrant was issued.

Procedure where such warrant issued by Subordinate Magistrate.

If the offence which the person arrested is alleged or suspected to have committed is one which may be inquired into or tried by any Criminal Court in the same district other than that of the Magistrate acting under section 184, such Magistrate shall send such person to the District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate to whom such Court is immediately subordinate.

B.—Time of commencing Prosecutions.

186. There is no limitation of the time within which prosecutions for the offences mentioned in this section must be commenced:—

Prosecutions for which there is no limitation.

(a) offences against the State;
(b) offences relating to the Army and Navy;
(c) false evidence and offences against public justice;
(d) offences relating to coin and Government stamps;
(e) offences under the Indian Penal Code, sections 299 to 311 (both inclusive);
(f) offences under the same Code, sections 359 to 373 (both inclusive);
(g) offences under the same Code, sections 390 to 414 (both inclusive);
(h) offences under the same Code relating to documents and to trade-marks and property-marks; and (i) offences under the same Code relating to marriage.

187. A prosecution for any of the offences mentioned in this section must be commenced within three years after the offence is committed:—

Limitation of three years.

(a) offences against the public tranquillity;
(b) offences by or relating to public servants;
(c) contempts of the lawful authority of public servants;
(d) offences against property, except those referred to in section 186, clause (h).

188. A prosecution for any other offence not expressly provided for by this chapter or by any special or local law must be commenced within six months after the offence is committed.

Limitation of six months.

189. The provisions contained in sections 186, 187 and 188 as to the offences therein mentioned or referred to, apply also to abetments of, and attempts to commit, those offences respectively.

Abetments and attempts.

190. In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any prosecution, the time during which the accused person has been absent from the jurisdiction of the Court having power under this Code to try him shall be excluded.

Exclusion of time during which accused is absent from jurisdiction.

Any person not surrendering himself pursuant to a proclamation duly made under this Code shall be deemed to be absent within the meaning of this section.

191. For the purpose of this chapter, a prosecution shall be deemed to commence when the summons or warrant is applied for, or when no such application is made, when the summons or warrant is issued; or when the person prosecuted is arrested without a warrant, when the arrest is made.

When prosecutions commence.

C.—Conditions requisite for Initiation of Proceedings.

192. Except as hereinafter provided, any Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate, and any other Magistrate specially empowered in this behalf, may take cognizance of any offence— Act X, 1872, ss. 140, 141. Act IV, 1877, ss. 25, 28.

Cognizance of offences by Magistrates.

(a) upon receiving a complaint of facts which constitute such offence;

(b) upon a Police-report of such facts;

(c) upon information received from any person other than a Police-officer, or upon his own knowledge or suspicion that such offence has been committed. Act X, 1872, s. 142, para. 1.

The Local Government, or the District Magistrate under the general or special orders of the Local Government, may specially empower any Magistrate to take cognizance under clause (a) of offences, and any Magistrate of the first or second class to take cognizance under clause (b) of offences.

The Local Government may empower any Magistrate of the first or second class to take cognizance under clause (c) of offences. Act X, 1872, ss. 23, 25, 27

193. Any District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate may transfer any case, of which he has taken cognizance, for inquiry or trial to any Magistrate subordinate to him.

Transfer of cases by District or Sub-divisional Magistrates.

Any Magistrate subordinate to a District Magistrate or Sub-Divisional Magistrate may, to the full extent of the powers with which he has been invested under this Code, deal with any case of which such District Magistrate or Sub-Divisional Magistrate has taken cognizance and which he has transferred to such Subordinate Magistrate. Act X, 1872, s. 44. Act XI, 1874, s. 6.

Cognizance of cases transferred to Subordinate Magistrate.

194. Except as otherwise expressly provided by this Code or by any other law for the time being in force, no Court of Session shall take cognizance of any offence as a Court of original jurisdiction, unless the accused person has been committed by a Magistrate duly empowered in that behalf. Act X, 1872, s. 231. Act XI, 1874, s. 18.

Cognizance of offences by Courts of Session.

Additional Session Judges and Joint Sessions Judges shall try such cases only as the Local Government by general or special order directs them to try, or as the Sessions Judge of the Division makes over to them for trial. Act X, 1872, s. 17.

Act X, 1872, s. 18.

Assistant Sessions Judges shall try such cases only as the Sessions Judge of the Division makes over to them by general or special order.

Assistant Sessions Judges.

Act X, 1875, s. 145.

195. The High Court may take cognizance of any offence upon a commitment made to it in manner hereinafter provided.

Cognizance of offences by High Court.

The sanction referred to in this section may be expressed in general terms, and need not name the accused person; but it shall, so far as practicable, specify the Court or other place in which, and the occasion on which, the offence was committed.

Nature of sanction necessary.

Such sanction may be given at any time; and a sanction in respect of any offence referred to in this section shall authorise the Court taking cognizance of the case to amend the charge to one of any other such offence disclosed by the facts.

Act X, 1872, s. 465. Act X, 1875, s. 131. Act IV, 1877, s. 38.

197. No Court shall take cognizance of any offence punishable under chapter VI of the Indian Penal Code, except section 127, or punishable under section 294A of the same Code, unless upon complaint made by order of, or under authority from, the Governor General in Council, the Local Government, or some officer empowered by the Governor General in Council in this behalf.

Prosecution for offences against the State.

Act X, 1872, s. 466. Act X, 1875, s. 132. Act IV, 1877, s. 39. 8 Bomb. 63.

198. No Court shall take cognizance of any offence of which any Judge, or any public servant not removable from his office without the sanction of the Government of India or the Local Government, is accused as such Judge or public servant, except with the previous sanction of the Government having power to order his removal, or of some officer empowered in this behalf by such Government, or of some Court or other authority to which such Judge or public servant is subordinate, and whose power to give such sanction has not been limited by such Government.

Prosecution of Judges and public servants.

Such Government may determine the person by whom, and the manner in which, the prosecution of such Judge or public servant is to be conducted, and may specify the Court before which the trial is to be held.

Power of Government as to prosecution.

199. No Court shall take cognizance of an offence falling under chapter XIX or XXI or under sections 493 to 496 (both inclusive) of the Indian Penal Code, except upon a complaint made. Act X, 1872, s. 142. Act IV, 1877, s. 29.

Prosecution for breach of contract, defamation and offences against marriage.

200. No Court shall take cognizance of an offence under section 497 or 498 of the Indian Penal Code, except upon a complaint made by the husband of the woman, or, in his absence, by some person who had care of such woman on his behalf at the time when such offence was committed. Act X, 1872, ss. 478, 479. Act IV, 1877, s. 45, Sch. [illegible]

Prosecution for adultery.

CHAPTER XVI.

Of Complaints to Magistrates.

201. A Magistrate taking cognizance of a case on complaint shall at once examine the complainant upon oath or affirmation, and the examination shall be reduced into writing and shall be signed by the complainant, and also by the Magistrate: Act X, 1872, s. 144.

Examination of complainant.

Provided that, when the case has been transferred under section 193 and the Magistrate so transferring it has already examined the complainant, the Magistrate to whom it is so transferred shall not be bound to re-examine the complainant:

Provided also that where the Magistrate is a Presidency Magistrate, such examination may be on oath or affirmation or not as the Magistrate in each case thinks fit, and the Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, before the matter of the complaint is brought before him, require it to be reduced to writing. Act IV, 1877, s. 30.

202. If the Magistrate is not competent to entertain the complaint, he shall refer the complainant to a Magistrate having jurisdiction, and if the complaint has been made in writing, shall return it for presentation to the proper tribunal. Act X, 1872, s. 145.

Procedure by Magistrate not empowered to entertain complaint.

Act X, 1872, s. 146.

203. If any Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate sees reason to distrust the truth of a complaint which he is authorized to entertain, he may postpone the issuing of process for compelling the attendance of the person complained against, and may direct a previous inquiry or investigation to be made by means of any officer immediately subordinate to such Magistrate or of a Police-officer, or in such other mode as he thinks fit, for the purpose of ascertaining the truth or falsehood of the complaint.

Postponement of issue of process.

If such inquiry or investigation is made by means of some person other than an officer exercising any of the powers of a Magistrate or a Police-officer, such person shall exercise all the powers conferred by this Code on an officer in charge of a Police-station, except that he shall not have power to arrest without warrant.

Act X, 1872, s. 147, para. 1. Act IV, 1877, s. 32.

204. The Magistrate before whom a complaint is made may, if after examining the complainant there is in his judgment no sufficient ground for proceeding, dismiss the complaint.

Dismissal of complaint.

CHAPTER XVII.

Of the Commencement of Proceedings before Magistrates.

Act X, 1872, s. 147, para. 2, 148, 149. Act IV, 1877, ss. 27, 33, 34, 35.

205. If in the opinion of a Magistrate taking cognizance of a case there is sufficient ground for believing that any person has committed an offence, he shall, if the case appears to be one in which according to the fourth column of the second schedule a summons should issue in the first instance, issue his summons, or, if the case appear to be one in which according to that column a warrant should issue in the first instance, his warrant, for causing such person to appear or be brought at a certain time and place before such Magistrate or some other Magistrate having jurisdiction:

Issue of process.

Act X, 1872, s. 148, provisos, 150.

Provided that in any case in which a summons should be issued under the foregoing part of this section, if the Magistrate sees reason to believe that the accused is about to abscond or will not obey the summons, he may, after recording his reasons in writing, instead of issuing a summons, issue a warrant in the first instance for the arrest of such person.

Act X, 1872, s. 151. Act IV, 1877, s. 37.

206. Whenever a Magistrate issues a summons, he may, if he sees reason so to do, dispense with the personal attendance of the accused, and permit him to appear by his pleader.

Magistrate may dispense with personal attendance of accused.

But such Magistrate may, in his discretion, at any stage of the proceedings, direct the personal attendance of the accused, and, if necessary, enforce such attendance in manner hereinbefore provided.

Act IV, 1877, s. 37.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Of Inquiry into Cases triable by the Court of Session or High Court.

207. Any Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate, Magistrate of the first class or any Magistrate empowered in this behalf by the Local Government may commit any person for trial to the Court of Session or High Court for any offence triable by such Court.

Power to commit for trial.

Act X, 1872, s. 193, extended to High Court.

208. The following procedure shall be adopted in inquiries before Magistrates where the case is triable exclusively by a Court of Session or High Court or, in the opinion of the Magistrate, ought to be tried by such Court.

Procedure in inquiries preparatory to commitment.

Act X, 1872, s. 189. Act IV, 1877, s. 81.

209. The Magistrate shall, when the accused appears or is brought before him, proceed to hear the complainant (if any), and take in manner hereinafter provided all such evidence as may be produced in support of the prosecution or in behalf of the accused.

Taking of evidence produced.

Act X, 1872, ss. 190, 191, 2nd parn. Act IV, 1877, s. 82.

If the complainant or accused applies to the Magistrate to issue process to compel the attendance of any witness or the production of any document or other thing, the Magistrate shall issue such process unless, for reasons to be recorded in writing, he deems it unnecessary to do so.

Process for production of further evidence.

Act X, 1872, ss. 357, 362. Act IV, 1877, s. 83, para. 2.

The Magistrate may, before summoning any witness on such application, require that his reasonable expenses incurred in attending for the purposes of the trial be deposited in Court.

Act X, 1872, s. 361, para. 2.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to require a Presidency Magistrate to record his reasons in writing.

210. When the evidence referred to in section 209 and such other evidence (if any) as the Magistrate may of his own motion cause to be produced has been taken, and the Magistrate has examined the accused in regard to such matters connected with the accusation as the Magistrate thinks fit, such Magistrate shall, if he finds that there are not sufficient grounds for committing the accused person for trial, discharge him, unless it appears to the Magistrate that such person should be tried before himself or some other Magistrate, in which case he shall proceed accordingly.

When accused person to be discharged.

Act X, 1872, s. 195, omitting the explanations. Act IV, 1877, s. 87, omitting the explanations.

211. When, upon such evidence being taken and such examination (if any) being made, the Magistrate finds that there are sufficient grounds for committing the accused for trial, he shall frame a charge under his hand, declaring with what offence the accused is charged.

When charge is to be framed.

Act X, 1872, ss. 196, 198. Act IV, 1877, s. 88. Act IV, 1877, s. 89, omitting paras. 3 and 4.

Act X, 1872, s. 199. Act X, 1875, s. 13. Act IV, 1877, s.

As soon as the charge has been framed, it shall be read and explained to the accused and a copy thereof shall, if he so require, be given to him free of cost.

Charge to be explained, and copy furnished, to accused.

Act X, 1872, s. 200. Act IV, 1877, s. 91.

212. The accused shall be required at once to give in, orally or in writing, a list of the persons (if any) whom he wishes to be summoned to give evidence on his trial.

List of witnesses for defence on trial.

The Magistrate may in his discretion allow the accused to give in any further list of witnesses at a subsequent time, and nothing in this section shall be deemed to preclude the accused from giving, at any time before his trial before the High Court, to the Clerk of the Crown a further list of the persons whom he wishes to be summoned to give evidence on such trial.

Further list.

Act X, 1872, s. 200. Act IV, 1877, s. 91.

213. The Magistrate may in his discretion summon and examine any witness named in any list given in to him under section 212.

Power of Magistrate to examine such witnesses.

Act X, 1872, ss. 198, 200. Act IV, 1877, ss. 89, para. 1, 91.

214. When the accused on being required to give in a list under section 212 has declined to do so, or when he has given in such list and the witnesses (if any) included therein whom the Magistrate desires to examine have been summoned and examined under section 213, the Magistrate may make an order committing the accused for trial by the High Court or the Court of Session (as the case may be), and (unless the Magistrate is a Presidency Magistrate) recording the reasons for such commitment.

Order of commitment.

Act X, 1872, s. 197.

215. If any person (not being an European British subject) is accused before a Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate of having committed an offence conjointly with a European British subject who is about to be committed for trial, or to be tried, before the High Court on a similar charge, and the Magistrate finds that there are sufficient grounds for committing the accused for trial, he shall commit him to take his trial before the High Court, and not before the Court of Session.

Person charged in Mofussil jointly with European British subject.

Act X, 1872, s. 197, explanation.

216. A commitment once made under section 214 or 215 by a competent Magistrate can be quashed by the High Court only, and only on a point of law.

Quashing commitments under section 214 or 215.

Act X, 1872, ss. 222, 223. Act IV, 1877, s. 93.

217. When the accused has given in any list of witnesses under section 212 and has been committed for trial, the Magistrate shall summon such of the witnesses included in the list as have not been compelled to appear before himself under section 213 to appear before the Court to which the accused has been committed:

Summons to witnesses for defence when accused is committed.

Provided that where such person has been committed to the High Court, the Magistrate may in his discretion leave such witnesses to be summoned by the Clerk of the Crown:

Act X, 1872, s. 359.

Provided also that if the Magistrate thinks that any witness is included in the list for the purpose of vexation or delay, or of defeating the ends of justice, the Magistrate may require the accused to satisfy him that there are reasonable grounds for believing that such witness is material, and if he is not so satisfied, may refuse to summon the witness, or before summoning him require such sum to be deposited as such Magistrate thinks necessary to defray the expense of obtaining the attendance of the witness.

Refusal to summon unnecessary witness unless deposit made.

Act X, 1872, ss. 360, 361. Act IV, 1877, s. 93.

218. Complainants and witnesses for the prosecution and defence, whose attendance before the Court of Session or High Court is necessary, and who appear before the Magistrate, shall execute before him bonds binding themselves, to be in attendance when called upon at the Court of Session or High Court, to prosecute or to give evidence, as the case may be.

Bond of complainants and witnesses.

If any complainant or witness refuses to attend before the Court of Session or High Court, or to execute the recognizance above directed, the Magistrate may detain him in custody until he executes such bond, or until his attendance at the Court of Session or High Court is required, when the Magistrate shall send him in custody to the Court of Session or High Court, as the case may be.

Detention in custody in case of refusal to attend or to execute recognizance.

Act X, [illegible] s. [illegible] Act X, [illegible] s. [illegible]

219. When the enquiry is concluded, the accused shall, if he demands them a reasonable time before the trial, be furnished with copies of the depositions. Such copies shall be made at his expense unless the Magistrate sees fit to give them free of cost.

Copies of depositions.

Act X, [illegible] s. 208.

220. When the accused is committed for trial, the Magistrate shall issue an order to such person as may be appointed by the Local Government in this behalf, notifying the commitment, and stating the offence in the same form as the charge, unless the Magistrate is satisfied that such person is already aware of the commitment and the form of the charge,

Commitment when to be notified.

Act X, [illegible]

and shall send the charge, the record of the enquiry and any weapon or other moveable thing which is to be produced in evidence to the Court of Session or (where the commitment is made to the High Court) to the Clerk of the Crown or other officer appointed in this behalf by the High Court.

Charge, &c., to be forwarded to High Court.

Act X, [illegible] s. 210.

The Charge.

Act X, 1872, s. 357, para. 2. Act IV, 1877, s. 91, para. 4.

221. The Magistrate may summon and examine supplementary witnesses after the commitment and before the commencement of the trial, and bind them over in manner hereinbefore provided to appear and give evidence.

Power to summon supplementary witnesses.

Such examination shall, if possible, be taken in the presence of the accused, and where the Magistrate is not a Presidency Magistrate, a copy of the evidence of such witnesses shall, if the accused so require, be given to him free of cost.

Act X, 1875, s. 26. Act IV, 1877, s. 89, para. 3.

222. Pending the trial, the Magistrate may, subject to the provisions of this Code regarding the taking of bail, commit the accused, by warrant, to custody in such jail as may from time to time be appointed by the Local Government in this behalf.

Custody of accused pending trial.

CHAPTER XIX.

Of the Charge.

Form of Charges.

Act X 1872, s. 439. Act IV, 1877, s. 94.

223. Every charge under this Code shall state the offence with which the accused is charged.

Charge to state offence.

If the law which creates the offence gives it any specific name, the offence may be described in the charge by that name only.

Specific name of offence sufficient description.

If the law which creates the offence does not give it any specific name, so much of the definition of the offence must be stated as to give the accused notice of the matter with which he is charged.

How stated where offence has no specific name.

The law and section of the law against which the offence is said to have been committed shall be mentioned in the charge.

The fact that the charge is made is equivalent to a statement that every legal condition required by law to constitute the offence charged was fulfilled in the particular case.

What implied in charges.

In the Presidency-towns the charge shall be written in English; elsewhere it shall be written either in English or in the language of the Court. If the language of the charge is not understood by the accused, the charge shall be interpreted to him in a language which he understands.

Language of charge.

Act X, 1875, s. 118. Act X, 1872, s. 439, last para. Act IV, 1877, s. 94, last para.

If the accused has been previously convicted of any offence, and it is intended to prove such previous conviction for the purpose of affecting the punishment which is to be awarded, the fact of the previous conviction must be stated in the charge. If such statement is omitted, it may be added at any time before sentence is passed, but not afterwards.

Previous conviction when to be set out.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is charged with the murder of B. This is equivalent to a statement that A's act fell within the definition of murder given in sections 299 and 300 of the Indian Penal Code; that it did not fall within any of the general exceptions of the same Code; and that it did not fall within any of the five exceptions to section 300; or that, if it did fall within exception 1, one or other of the three provisos to that exception applied to it.

(b.) A is charged, under section 326 of the Indian Penal Code, with voluntarily causing grievous hurt to B, by means of an instrument for shooting. This is equivalent to a statement that the case was not provided for by section 335 of the Indian Penal Code, and that the general exceptions did not apply to it.

(c.) A is accused of murder, cheating, theft, extortion, adultery or criminal intimidation, or using a false property-mark. The charge may state that A committed murder, or cheating, or theft, or extortion, or adultery, or criminal intimidation, or that he used a false property-mark, without reference to the definitions of those crimes contained in the Indian Penal Code; but the sections under which the offence is punishable must, in each instance, be referred to in the charge.

(d.) A is charged, under section 184 of the Indian Penal Code, with intentionally obstructing a sale of property offered for sale by the lawful authority of a public servant. The charge should be in those words.

Act X, 1872 s. 440. Act IV, 1877, s. 95.

224. The charge shall contain such particulars as to the time and place of the alleged offence, and the person (naming him) against whom, or the thing in respect of which, it was committed, as are reasonably sufficient to give the accused notice of the matter with which he is charged.

Particulars as to time, place and person.

Act X, 1872, s. 441. Act IV, 1877, s. 96.

225. When the nature of the case is such that the particulars mentioned in sections 223 and 224 do not give the accused sufficient notice of the matter with which he is charged, the charge shall also contain such particulars of the manner in which the alleged offence was committed as will be sufficient for that purpose.

When manner of committing offence must be stated.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is accused of the theft of a certain article at a certain time and place. The charge need not set out the manner in which the theft was effected.

(b.) A is accused of cheating B at a given time and place. The charge must set out the manner in which A cheated B.

(c.) A is accused of giving false evidence at a given time and place. The charge must set out that portion of the evidence given by A which is alleged to be false.

(d.) A is accused of obstructing B, a public servant, in discharge of his public functions at a given time and place. The charge must set out the manner in which A obstructed B in the discharge of his functions.

(e.) A is accused of the murder of B at a given time and place. The charge need not state the manner in which A murdered B.

(f.) A is accused of disobeying a direction of the law with intent to save B from punishment. The charge must set out the disobedience charged and the law infringed.

(g.) A is accused of dacoity. The charge should state that A conjointly with four or more others committed robbery and thereby committed dacoity.

The Charge.

Act XVIII 1862, s.82. Act IV, 1877, s. 97.

226. In every charge words used in describing an offence shall be deemed to have been used in the sense attached to them respectively by the Indian Penal Code.

Words in charges taken in sense of Penal Code.

Act X, 1872, s. 443. Act X, 1875, s. 24. Act IV, 1877, s. 98.

227. No error in stating either the offence or the particulars required to be stated in the charge, and no omission to state the offence or those particulars, shall be regarded at any stage of the case as material, unless the accused was in fact misled by such error or omission.

Effect of errors.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is charged, under section 242 of the Indian Penal Code, with "having been in possession of counterfeit coin, having known at the time when he became possessed thereof that such coin was counterfeit," the word "fraudulently" being omitted in the charge. Unless it appears that A was in fact misled by this omission, the error shall not be regarded as material.

(b.) A is charged with cheating B, and the manner in which he cheated B is not set out in the charge, or is set out incorrectly. A defends himself, calls witnesses, and gives his own account of the transaction. The Court may infer from this that the omission to set out the manner of the cheating is not material.

(c.) A is charged with cheating B, and the manner in which he cheated B is not set out in the charge. There were many transactions between A and B, and A had no means of knowing to which of them the charge referred, and offered no defence. The Court may infer from such facts that the omission to set out the manner of the cheating was, in this case, a material error.

(d.) A is charged with the murder of Khoda Baksh on the 21st January. In fact, the murdered person's name was Haidar Baksh, and the date of the murder was the 20th January. A was never charged with any murder but one, and had heard the inquiry before the Magistrate, which referred exclusively to the case of Haidar Baksh. The Court may infer from these facts that A was not misled, and that the error in the charge was immaterial.

(e.) A was charged with murdering Haidar Baksh on the 20th January and Khoda Baksh (who tried to arrest him for that murder) on the 21st January. When charged for the murder of Haidar Baksh, he was tried for the murder of Khoda Baksh. The witnesses present in his defence were witnesses in the case of Haidar Baksh. The Court may infer from this that A was misled, and that the error was material.

Act X, 1875, s. 7.

228. When any person is committed for trial before a High Court, the Clerk of the Crown, or, if there be not a Clerk of the Crown, a Judge of the High Court, shall, on receipt of the charge, peruse and consider it, and may, if it appears necessary or expedient so to do, alter or re-draw the same, having regard to the rules as to the form of charges contained in this Code.

Procedure on commitment to High Court.

Act X, 1875, s. 6. Act X, 1872, s. 446.

229. If a prisoner is committed to the Court of Session or High Court without any charge at all, the Court or (in the case of a High Court) the Clerk of the Crown or a Judge of the High Court may draw up a charge, having regard to the rules last aforesaid.

How Court of Session may deal with charge.

If a prisoner is committed upon a charge which the Court, upon reference to the proceedings before the committing Magistrate, considers improper, the Court may draw up a charge for any offence which it considers to be proved by the evidence taken before the committing Magistrate.

230. Any Court may, upon the application of the accused, or of the prosecution, or upon its own motion, alter any charge at any time before judgment is pronounced, or, in the case of trials before the Court of Session or High Court, before the verdict of the jury is returned or the opinions of the assessors are expressed.

Act X, 1872 ss. 444, 445. Act X, 1875, ss. 9, 10. Act IV, 1877, ss. 99, 100.

Magistrate may alter charge.

Every such alteration shall be read and explained to the accused.

231. If the alteration is such that proceeding immediately with the trial is not likely, in the opinion of the Court, to prejudice the accused in his defence, the Court may in its discretion, after making such alteration, proceed with the trial as if the altered charge had been the original charge.

Act X, 1872 s. 447. Act X, 1875, s. 11. Act IV, 1877, s. 101.

When trial may proceed immediately after alteration.

232. If the alteration is such that proceeding immediately with the trial is likely, in the opinion of the Court, to prejudice the accused in his defence, the Court may either direct a new trial, or suspend the trial for such period as may be necessary to enable him to make his defence to the altered charge; and after hearing his defence, the Court may if it thinks fit further adjourn the trial to admit of the appearance of any witness whose evidence the Court considers to be material to the case, or who the accused wishes to be summoned in his defence.

Act X, 1872 s. 448. Act X, 1875, s. 12. Act IV, 1877, s. 102.

When new trial may be directed, or trial suspended.

Adjournment.

233. Whenever a charge is altered by the Court, the complainant and the accused shall be allowed to recall, and examine with reference to such alteration, any witness who may have been examined.

Act X, 1872 s. 449. Act X, 1875, ss. 13, 14 [illegible] trial. Act IV, 1877, s. 103.

Recall of witnesses when charge altered.

234. If the offence stated in the altered charge is one for the prosecution of which previous sanction is necessary, the case shall not be proceeded with until such sanction is obtained, unless sanction has been already obtained for a prosecution on the same facts as those on which the altered charge is founded.

Act X, 1872 s. 450. Act X, 1875, s. 16. Act IV, 1877, s. 104.

Stay of proceedings if prosecution of offence in altered charge require previous sanction.

235. If any Appellate Court, or the High Court in the exercise of its powers of revision, is of opinion that any person convicted of an offence was in fact misled in his defence by an error in the charge, it shall direct a new trial to be had upon a charge amended in whatever manner it thinks fit.

Act X, 1872 s. 451.

Effect of material error.

If the Court is of opinion that the facts of the case are such that no valid charge could be preferred against the accused in respect of the facts proved, it shall quash the conviction.

Illustration.

Act XI, 1874, s. 40. A is convicted of an offence under section 196 of the Indian Penal Code, upon a charge which omits to state that he knew the evidence which he corruptly used or attempted to use as true or genuine was false or fabricated. If the Court thinks it probable that A had such knowledge, and that he was misled in his defence by the omission from the charge of the statement that he had it, it shall direct a new trial upon an amended charge; but if it appears probable from the proceedings that A had no such knowledge, it shall quash the conviction.

Joinder of Charges.

Act X, 1872, s. 452. Act X, 1875, s. 17, adding "before the Magistrate." Act IV, 1877, s. 106.

236. There must be a separate charge for every distinct offence of which any person is accused before the Magistrate, and every such charge must be tried separately, except in the cases mentioned in sections 237, 238, 239 and 242.

Separate charges for distinct offences.

Illustration.

A is accused of a theft on one occasion, and of causing grievous hurt on another occasion. A must be separately charged and separately tried for the theft and the causing grievous hurt.

Act X, 1872, s. 453, omitting the Explanation. Act X, 1875, s. 18, adding "against the same person." I. L. R, 3 Calc. 540. Act IV, 1877, s. 106; cf. 24 & 25 Vic., c. 96, s. 5.

237. When a person is accused at the same time of more offences than one of the same kind, committed against the same person within one year of each other, he may be charged with, and tried at one trial for, any number of them not exceeding three.

More offences than one of same kind may be charged within a year of each other.

Act X, 1872, s. 454, omitting illustration (i). Act X, 1875, s. 19. Act IV, 1877, s. 107.

238. I.—If, in one series of acts so connected together as to form the same transaction, more offences than one are committed by the same person, he may be charged with, and tried at one trial for, every such offence.

I.—Trial of more than one offence.

II.—If the acts alleged constitute an offence falling within two or more separate definitions of any law in force for the time being by which offences are defined or punished, the person accused of them may be charged with each of the offences so committed; but he must not receive a punishment more severe than could be inflicted for any of such offences.

II.—One offence falling within two definitions.

III.—If several acts, of which one or more than one would by itself constitute an offence, form, when combined, a different offence, the person accused of them may be charged with every offence, or any of the different offences, which he may have committed; but he shall not receive for such offences, collectively, a punishment more severe than could be inflicted for any one of such offences.

III.—Acts severally constituting more than one offence, but collectively coming within one definition.

Illustrations

to paragraph I—

(a.) A rescues B, a person in lawful custody, and in so doing causes grievous hurt to C, a constable in whose custody B was. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, offences under sections 225 and 333 of the Indian Penal Code.

(b.) A has in his possession several seals knowing them to be counterfeit and intending to use them for the purpose of committing several forgeries punishable under section 466 of the Indian Penal Code. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, the possession of each seal under section 473 of the Indian Penal Code.

(c.) A, with intent to cause injury to B, institutes a criminal proceeding against him, knowing that there is no just or lawful ground for such proceeding. A also falsely accuses B of having committed an offence knowing that there is no just or lawful ground for such charge. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, two offences under section 211 of the Indian Penal Code.

(d.) A, with intent to cause injury to B, falsely accuses him of having committed an offence, knowing that there is no just or lawful ground for such charge. On the trial A gives false evidence against B, intending thereby to cause B to be convicted of a capital offence. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, offences under sections 211 and 194 of the Indian Penal Code.

(e.) A, knowing that B, a female minor, has been kidnapped in order that she may be subjected to grievous hurt, wrongfully confines her and detains her against her will as a slave. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, offences under sections 368 (read with 367) and 370 of the Indian Penal Code.

(f.) A, with six others, commits the offences of rioting, grievous hurt, and of assaulting a public servant, endeavouring in the discharge of his duty as such to suppress the riot. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, offences under sections 147 and 325 and 152 of the Penal Code.

(g.) A threatens B, C and D at the same time with injury to their persons with intent to cause alarm to them. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, each of the three offences under section 506 of the Indian Penal Code.

(h.) A intentionally causes the death of three persons by upsetting a boat. A may be separately charged with, convicted of, and punished for, each of the three offences under section 302 of the Indian Penal Code.

The separate charges referred to in illustrations (a) to (h) respectively may be tried at the same time.

to paragraph II—

(i.) A wrongfully strikes B with a cane. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 352 and 323 of the Indian Penal Code; but the Presidency Magistrate who tries him may not inflict a more severe punishment than if he had convicted him under section 323 only.

(j.) A wrongfully kills a buffalo worth sixty rupees, belonging to B, and then moves the carcass in order to take it dishonestly out of B's possession without B's consent. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 429 and 379 of the Indian Penal Code; but the Presidency Magistrate who tries him may not inflict a more severe punishment than if he had convicted him under section 429 only.

(k.) Several stolen sacks of corn are made over to A and B, who know they are stolen property. A and B thereupon voluntarily assist each other to conceal the sacks at the bottom of a grain-pit. A and B may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 411 and 414 of the Indian Penal Code; but the Presidency Magistrate who tries them may not inflict a severer punishment than if he had convicted them under one of those sections only.

(l.) A dishonestly uses a forged document as genuine evidence, in order to convict B, a public servant, of an offence under section 167 of the Indian Penal Code. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 471 (read with 466) and 196 of the same Code; but the Presidency Magistrate who tries him may not inflict a severe punishment than if he had convicted him under one of those sections only.

to paragraph III—

(m.) A commits house-breaking by day with intent to commit adultery, and commits, in the house so entered, adultery with B's wife. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 454 and 497 of the Indian Penal Code; but the Presidency Magistrate who tries him may not inflict a severer punishment than if he had convicted him under section 497 only.

(n.) A commits robbery on B, and, in doing so, voluntarily causes hurt to him. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 323, 392 and 394 of the Indian Penal Code; but the Presidency Magistrate who tries him may not inflict a severer punishment than if he had convicted him under section 392 or 394 only.

(o.) A entices B, the wife of C, away from C, with intent to commit adultery with B, and then commits adultery with her. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 498 and 497 of the Indian Penal Code; but the Presidency Magistrate who tries him may not inflict a severer punishment than if he had convicted him under section 497 only.

Act X, 1872, s. 455. Act X, 1875, s. 20. Act IV, 1877, s. 108. N. W. P., 1875, p. 137.

239. If a single act or series of acts is of such a nature that it is doubtful which of several offences the facts which can be proved will constitute, the accused may be charged with having committed all or any of such offences; and any number of such charges may be tried at once, or he may be charged in the alternative with having committed some one of the said offences.

Where it is doubtful what offence has been committed.

Illustration.

A is accused of an act which may amount to theft, or receiving stolen property, or criminal breach of trust or cheating. He may be charged with theft, receiving stolen property, criminal breach of trust and cheating, or he may be charged with having committed theft, or receiving stolen property, or criminal breach of trust, or cheating.

Act X, 1872, s. 456. Act X, 1875, s. 21. Act IV, 1877, s. 109.

240. If, in the case mentioned in section 239, the accused is charged with one offence, and it appears in evidence that he committed a different offence for which he might have been charged under the provisions of that section, he may be convicted of the offence which he is shown to have committed, although he was not charged with it.

When a person is charged with one offence, he can be convicted of another.

Illustration.

A is charged with theft. It appears that he committed the offence of criminal breach of trust, or that of receiving stolen goods. He may be convicted of criminal breach of trust, or of receiving stolen goods (as the case may be), though he was not charged with such offence.

Act X, 1872, s. 457. Act X, 1875, s. 22. Act IV, 1877, s. 110. 11 Bomb. 241, per West J.

241. When a person is charged with an offence consisting of several particulars, a combination of some only of which constitutes a complete minor offence, and part of the charge is not proved, but the part which is proved amounts to a different offence, he may be convicted of the offence which he is proved to have committed, though he was not charged with it.

When offence proved included in offence charged.

Illustration.

(a.) A is charged, under section 407 of the Indian Penal Code, with criminal breach of trust in respect of property entrusted to him as a carrier. It appears that he did commit criminal breach of trust under section 406 in respect of the property, but that it was not entrusted to him as a carrier. He may be convicted of criminal breach of trust under section 406.

Act X, 1872, s. 458. Act X, 1875, s. 23. Act IV, 1877, s. 111.

242. When more persons than one are accused of the same offence, or of different offences committed in the same transaction, or when one person is accused of committing any offence, and another of abetment of, or attempt to commit, such offence, they may be charged and tried together or separately, as the Court thinks fit, and the provisions contained in the former part of this chapter shall apply to all such charges.

What persons may be charged jointly.

Illustrations.

(a.) A and B are accused of the same murder. A and B may be charged and tried together for the murder.

(b.) A and B are accused of a robbery, in the course of which A commits a murder with which B has nothing to do. A and B may be tried together on a charge, charging both of them with the robbery, and A alone with the murder.

(c.) A and B are both charged with a theft, and B is charged with two other thefts committed by him in the course of the same transaction. A and B may be both tried together on a charge, charging both with the one theft, and B alone with the two other thefts.

Act X, 1872, s. 459, omitting the Explanation. Act X, 1875, s. 24, adding "the plaintiff." Act X, 1877, s. 112. Now 243. When more charges than one are made against the same person, and when a conviction has been had on one or more of them, the complainant, or the officer conducting the prosecution, may, with the consent of the Court, withdraw, or such Court of its own accord may suspend the inquiry into, or trial of, the remaining charge or charges. Such withdrawal shall have the effect of an acquittal on such charge or charges.

Withdrawal of remaining charges on conviction on one of several charges.

CHAPTER XX.

Of the Trial of Summons-cases by Magistrates.

Act [illegible] s. [illegible]

244. The following procedure shall be observed by Magistrates in the trial of summons-cases.

Procedure in summons-cases.

Act [illegible] s. 245.

245. When the accused appears or is brought before the Magistrate, the particulars of the offence of which he is accused shall be stated to him, and he shall be asked if he has any cause to show why he should not be convicted.

Substance of accusation to be stated.

Act [illegible] s. 246.

246. If the accused admits that he has committed the offence with which he is charged, his admission shall be recorded as nearly as possible in the words used by him; and if he shows no sufficient cause why he should not be convicted, the Magistrate shall convict him accordingly.

Conviction on admission of truth of accusation.

Act [illegible] s. 247.

247. If the accused does not make such admission, the Magistrate shall proceed to hear the complainant (if any), and take all such evidence as may be produced in support of the prosecution, and also to hear the accused and take all such evidence as he produces in his defence.

Procedure when no such admission is made.

Act X, 1872, s. 361. Act IV, 1877, s. 142.

The Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, on the application of the complainant or accused, issue process to compel the attendance of any witness or the production of any document or other thing.

The Magistrate may, before summoning any witness on such application, require that his reasonable expenses incurred in attending for the purposes of the trial be deposited in Court.

Act X, 1872, s. 211, paras. 1 and 2. Act IV, 1877, s. 126.

248. If the Magistrate upon taking the evidence referred to in section 247 and such further evidence (if any) as he may, of his own motion, cause to be produced, and (if he thinks fit) examining the accused, finds the accused not guilty, he shall record an order of acquittal.

Acquittal.

If he finds the accused guilty, he shall pass sentence upon him according to law.

Sentence.

Act IV of 1877, s. 117, Nelson 206.

249. A Magistrate may, under section 246 or section 248, convict the accused of any offence triable under this chapter which, from the facts admitted or proved, he appears to have committed, whatever may be the nature of the complaint or summons.

Finding not limited by complaint or summons.

Act X, 1872, ss. 205, 212. Act IV, 1872, s. 118.

250. If the summons has been issued on complaint and upon the day appointed for the appearance of the accused or any day subsequent thereto to which the hearing may be adjourned, the complainant does not appear, the Magistrate shall, notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, acquit the accused, unless for some reason he thinks proper to adjourn the hearing of the case to some other day.

Non-appearance of complainant.

Act X, 1872, s. 210. Act IV, 1877, s. 125.

251. If a complainant, at any time before a final order is passed in any case under this chapter, satisfies the Magistrate that there are sufficient grounds for permitting him to withdraw his complaint, the Magistrate may permit him to withdraw the same, and shall thereupon acquit the accused.

Withdrawal of complaint.

252. The Magistrate may in his discretion, in any case instituted otherwise than upon complaint, stop the proceedings at any stage without pronouncing any judgment either of acquittal or conviction.

Power to stop proceedings when no complainant.

Act X, 1872, s. 209, paras. 1 and 2. Act IV, 1877, s. 242.

253. If in any case instituted upon complaint a Magistrate acquits the accused under section 248 or section 250, and is of opinion that the complaint was frivolous or vexatious, he may, in his discretion, by his order of acquittal, direct the complainant to pay to the accused, or to each of the accused where there are more than one, such compensation, not exceeding fifty rupees, as the Magistrate thinks fit.

Frivolous or vexatious complaints.

The sum so awarded shall be recoverable as if it were a fine; and if it cannot be so recovered, the complainant shall be imprisoned in the civil jail for such term, not exceeding thirty days, as the Magistrate directs, unless such sum is sooner paid.

Recovery of such compensation.

CHAPTER XXI.

Of the Trial of Warrant-cases by Magistrates.

254. The following procedure shall be observed by Magistrates in the trial of warrant-cases.

Act X, 1872, s. 213.

Procedure in warrant-cases.

255. When the accused appears or is brought before a Magistrate, such Magistrate shall proceed to hear the complainant (if any) and take all such evidence as may be produced in support of the prosecution.

See I. L. R., 3 Cal. 389.

Evidence for prosecution.

The Magistrate shall ascertain, from the complainant or otherwise, the names of any persons likely to be acquainted with the facts of the case and to be able to give evidence for the prosecution, and shall summon to give evidence before himself such of them as he thinks necessary.

Act X, 1872, s. 362, para. 1. Act IV, 1877, s. 143, para. 1.

256. If upon taking all the evidence produced under section 255, and such examination (if any) of the accused as the Magistrate thinks necessary, he finds that no offence has been proved against the accused, the Magistrate shall discharge him.

Act X, 1872, s. 215.

Discharge of accused.

257. If when such evidence and examination have been wholly or partially taken, the Magistrate is of opinion that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence triable under this chapter, which such Magistrate is competent to try, and which, in his opinion, could be adequately punished by him, he shall frame in writing a charge against the accused.

Act X, 1872, s. 216. Act XI, 1874, s. 16. Act IV, 1877, ss. 116, 122.

Charge to be framed when offence appears proved.

258. The charge shall then be read and explained to the accused, and he shall be asked whether he is guilty or has any defence to make.

Act X, 1872, s. 217. Act IV, 1877, ss. 120, 122.

Plea.

If the accused pleads guilty, the Magistrate shall record the plea, and may in his discretion convict him thereon.

Cf. Act X, 1872, ss. 287, 334.

Act X, 1872, s. 218. Act IV, 1877, s. 121.

Defence.

If the accused puts in any written statement, the Magistrate may file it with the record, but shall not be bound to do so.

Act X, 1872, s. 362. Act IV, 1877, s. 143, para 2.

260. If the accused applies to the Magistrate to issue any process for compelling the attendance of any witness (whether he has or has not been previously examined in the case) or the production of any document or other thing, the Magistrate shall issue such process unless, for reasons to be recorded by him in writing, he considers that such application should be refused.

Process for production of evidence for defence.

Cf. s. 255 and 209.

The Magistrate may, before summoning any witness on such application, require that his reasonable expenses incurred in attending for the purposes of the trial be deposited in Court.

Act X, 1872, s. 220, omitting the explanation. Act IV, 1877, s. 126, first half.

261. If in any case under this chapter in which a charge has been framed the Magistrate finds the accused not guilty, he shall record an order of acquittal.

Acquittal.

If in any such case the Magistrate finds the accused guilty, he shall pass sentence upon him according to law.

Conviction.

262. When the proceedings have been instituted upon complaint and upon any day fixed for the hearing of the case the complainant is absent and the offence may be lawfully compounded, the Magistrate may, in his discretion, notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, at any time before the charge has been framed, discharge the accused.

Absence of complainant.

CHAPTER XXII.

Of Summary Trials.

Act X, 1872, ss. 220, 222, 224.

263. Notwithstanding anything herein contained, the District Magistrate and any Magistrate of the first class specially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government may try in a summary way all or any of the following offences:—

Power to try summarily.

I. L. R. 3 Calc. 867.

(a). Offences not punishable with death, transportation, whipping, or imprisonment for a term exceeding six months;

(b). Offences relating to weights and measures, under sections 264, 265 and 266 of the Indian Penal Code;

(c). Hurt, under section 323 of the same Code;

(d). Theft, under section 379 of the same Code, where the value of the property stolen does not exceed fifty rupees;

(e). Theft, under section 380 of the same Code, where the value of the property stolen does not exceed fifty rupees;

(f). Theft, under section 381 of the same Code, where the value of the property stolen does not exceed fifty rupees;

(g). Receiving stolen property, under section 411 of the same Code;

(h). Mischief, under section 427 of the same code;

(i). House-trespass, under section 448 of the same Code;

(j). Insult with intent to provoke a breach of the peace, under section 504, and criminal intimidation, under section 505, of the same Code;

(k). Abetment of any of the foregoing offences;

(l). An attempt to commit any of the foregoing offences when such attempt is an offence.

Act X, 1872, s. 225.

264. The Local Government may confer on any Bench of Magistrates invested with the powers of a Magistrate of the second or third class power to try summarily all or any of the following offences:—

Power to invest Bench of Magistrates invested with less power.

(a). Offences against the Indian Penal Code, sections 277, 278, 279, 285, 286, 289, 290, 292, 293, 294, 323, 334, 336, 341, 352, 426 and 447;

(b). Offences against Municipal Acts, and the conservancy-clauses of Police Acts, punishable only with fine, or with imprisonment for a term not exceeding one month;

(c). Abetment of any of the foregoing offences; New.

(d). An attempt to commit any of the foregoing offences when such attempt is an offence. New.

Act X, 1872, s. 226.

265. In trials under this chapter, the procedure prescribed for summons-cases shall be followed in summons-cases, and the procedure prescribed for warrant-cases shall be followed in warrant-cases, except as hereinafter mentioned.

Procedure for summons and warrant-cases applicable with certain exceptions.

Act X, 1872, s. 227.

266. In cases where no appeal lies, the Magistrate or Bench of Magistrates need not record the evidence of the witnesses, or the reasons for passing the judgment, or frame a formal charge; but he or they shall enter in a register to be kept for the purpose the following particulars:—

Record in cases where there is no appeal.

(a) the serial number;

(b) the date of the commission of the offence;

(c) the date of the report or complaint;

(d) the name of the complainant (if any);

(e) the name, father's name and residence of the accused;

(f) the offence complained of or proved;

(g) the plea of the accused and his examination (if any);

(h) the finding, and, in the case of a conviction, a brief statement of the reasons therefor;

(i) the sentence, and

(j) the date on which the proceedings terminated.

Act X, 1872, s. 228.

267. In every case tried summarily by a Magistrate or Bench in which an appeal lies, such Magistrate or Bench shall, before passing sentence, record a judgment embodying the substance of the evidence on which the conviction was had, and also the particulars mentioned in section 266.

Record in appealable cases.

Such judgment shall be the only record in cases coming within this section.

Act X, 1872, s. 229. 268. Records made under section 266 and judgments recorded under section 267 shall be written by the presiding officer, either in English or in the language of the Court, or, if the Court to which such presiding officer is immediately subordinate so directs, in such officer's mother-tongue.

Language of judgment.

Act X, 1872, s. 230. The Local Government may authorize any Bench of Magistrates empowered to try offences summarily to prepare the aforesaid record or judgment by means of an officer appointed in this behalf by the Court to which such Bench is immediately subordinate, and the record or judgment so prepared shall be signed by each member of such Bench present taking part in the proceedings.

Bench may be authorised to employ clerk.

CHAPTER XXIII.

OF TRIALS BEFORE HIGH COURTS AND COURTS OF SESSION.

A.—Preliminary.

Act X, 1875, s. 3. 269. In this chapter the expression "High Court" means a High Court of Judicature established or to be established under the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth of Victoria, chapter 104, and includes the Chief Court of the Panjáb, and such other Courts as the Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, declare to be High Courts for the purposes of this chapter.

"High Court" defined.

Act X, 1875, s. 32. 270. All trials under this chapter before a High Court shall be by jury; Trials before High Court to be by jury.

and, notwithstanding anything contained herein, all criminal cases transferred to a High Court under this Code or under the Letters Patent of any High Court established under the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth of Victoria, chapter 104, the trial may, if the High Court so direct, be by jury.

Act X, 1872, s. 233. 271. All trials before a Court of Session shall be either by jury, or with the aid of assessors.

Trials before Sessions Court to be by jury or with assessors.

Act X, 1872, s. 233. 272. The Local Government may by order in the official Gazette direct that the trial of all offences, or of any particular class of offences, before any Court of Session, shall be by jury in any district, and from time to time revoke or alter such order.

Local Government may order trials before Court of Session to be by jury.

When the accused is triable at the same time for several offences of which some are and some are not triable by jury, he shall be tried by jury for each offence.

Act X, 1872, s. 235. 273. In every trial before a Court of Session, the prosecution shall be conducted by a Public Prosecutor.

Trial before Court of Session to be conducted by Public Prosecutor.

B.—Commencement of Proceedings.

Act X, 1872, s. 237. 274. When the Court is ready to commence the trial, the accused shall appear or be brought before it, and the charge shall be read and explained to him, and he shall be asked whether he is guilty of the offence charged, or claims to be tried.

Commencement of trial.

Act X, 1875, ss. 28. and 29.

If the accused pleads guilty, the plea shall be recorded, and he may be convicted thereon.

Plea of guilty.

Act X, 1872, s. 238. Act X, 1875, s. 30. 275. If the accused refuses to, or does not, plead, or if he claims to be tried, the Court shall proceed to choose jurors or assessors as hereinafter directed and to try the case:

Refusal to plead or claim to be tried.

Act X, 1872, s. 265. Act X, 1875, s. 34. Provided that, subject to the right of objection hereinafter mentioned, the same jury may try, or the same assessors may aid in the trial of, as many accused persons successively as the Court thinks fit.

Trial by same jury or assessors of several offenders in succession.

Act X, 1875, s. 14. Query, extend to Sessions Judges. 276. When any charge, or portion of a charge, appears to a Judge of the High Court, at any time before the commencement of the trial of the person charged, to be clearly unsustainable, such Judge may make on the charge an entry to that effect.

Entry on unsustainable charge.

Such entry shall have the effect of staying proceedings upon the charge or portion of the charge, as the case may be.

Effect of entry.

C.—Choosing a Jury.

Act X, 1875, s. 33. 277. In trials before the High Court the jury shall consist of nine persons.

Number of jury.

Act X, 1872, s. 236. In trials by jury before the Court of Session, the jury shall consist of such uneven number not being less than three, or more than nine, as the Local Government, by order applicable to any particular district or to any particular class of offences in that district, may from time to time direct.

Act X, 1872, s. 241. 278. In a trial by jury, before the Court of Session, of a person not being a European or an American, at least one half of the jury shall, if he so desires, consist of persons who are neither Europeans nor Americans.

Jury for trial of persons not Europeans or Americans before Court of Session.

Act X, 1872, s. 240. Act X, 1875, s. 33. As to practice in High Court, Bombay, see I. L. R., 1 Bombay 462. 279. The jurors shall be chosen by lot from the persons summoned to act as such—

Jurors to be chosen by lot.

in trials before the High Court, in such manner as that Court, and in trials before Sessions Courts, in such manner as the Local Government may from time to time by rule direct:

Proviso.

Act X, 1875, s. 49. Provided that—

Existing practice maintained.

1st, pending the issue under this section of rules for any Court, the practice now prevailing in such Court in respect to the choosing of jurors shall be followed.

Act X, 1872, s. 243. Act X, 1875, s. 33. 2nd, in case of a deficiency of persons summoned, the number of jurors required may, with the leave of the Court, be chosen from such other persons as may be present; and Persons not summoned when eligible.

Act X, 1875, s. 38. 3rd, in the Presidency-towns—

Trials before special jurors.

(a) if the accused person is charged with having committed an offence punishable with death, or

(b) if in any other case a Judge of the High Court so directs, the jurors shall be chosen from the special jury list hereinafter prescribed.

Act X, 1872, s. 243. Act X, 1875, s. 33. 280. As each juror is chosen, his name shall be called aloud, and upon his appearance, the accused shall be asked if he objects to be tried by such juror.

Names of jurors to be called.

Objection may then be taken to such juror by the accused or by the prosecutor, and the grounds of objection shall be stated:

Objection to jurors.

Act X, 1875, s. 47, para. 1. Provided that, in the High Court, objections without grounds stated shall be allowed to the number of eight on behalf of the Crown [illegible] on behalf of the person or all the persons tried.

[illegible] Any objection taken to a juror on any of the following grounds, if made out to the satisfaction of the Court, shall be allowed:—

Grounds of objection.

(a) some personal ground, such as alienage, infancy, old age, or deficiency in the qualification required by any law or rule having the force of law for the time being in force;

(b) his having by habit or religious vows relinquished all care of worldly affairs;

(c) his holding any office in or under the Court;

(d) his executing any duties of Police or being entrusted with Police-duties;

(e) his having been convicted of any offence which, in the opinion of the Court, renders him unfit to serve on the jury;

(f) some presumed or actual partiality in the juror;

Act X, 1872, s. 246. Act X, 1875, s. 57. (g) inability to understand the language in which the evidence is given, or when such evidence is interpreted, the language in which it is interpreted;

(h) any other circumstance which, in the opinion of the Court, renders him improper as a juror.

Act X, 1872, s. 243, para. 3. Act X, 1875, ss. 48, 55. 282. Every objection taken to a juror shall be decided by the Court, and such decision shall be final.

Decision of objection.

Act X, 1872, s. 243. Act X, 1875, s. 56. If the objection is allowed, the place of such juror shall be supplied by any other juror attending in obedience to a summons and chosen in manner provided by section 279; or, if there is no such other juror present, then by any other person present in the Court whose name is on the list of jurors, or whom the Court considers a proper person to serve on the jury, provided that no objection to such juror or other person is taken under section 281 and allowed.

Supply of place of juror against whom objection allowed.

Act X, 1872, s. 246. Act X, 1875, s. 58. 283. When the jurors have been chosen, they shall appoint one of their number to be foreman.

Foreman of jury.

The foreman shall preside in the debates of the jury, deliver the verdict of the jury, and ask any information from the Court that is required by the jury or any of the jurors.

If a majority of the jury do not, within such time as the Judge thinks reasonable, agree in the appointment of a foreman, he shall be appointed by the Court.

New. 284. When the foreman has been appointed, the jurors shall be sworn under the Indian Oaths Act, 1873.

Swearing of jurors.

Act X, 1872, s. 254. 285. If, in the course of a trial by jury, at any time before the return of the verdict, any juror, from any sufficient cause, is prevented from attending throughout the trial, or if any juror absents himself, and it is not possible to enforce his attendance,

Procedure when juror ceases to attend.

(a) a new juror shall be added; or

(b) the jury shall be discharged and a new jury chosen; or

(c) with the consent of the prosecutor and the accused, the trial shall proceed with the remaining jurors.

In cases (a) and (b) the trial shall commence anew.

Act X, 1872, s. 99. 286. The Judge may also discharge the jury whenever the prisoner becomes incapable of remaining at the bar.

Discharge of jury in case of sickness of prisoner.

D.—Choosing Assessors.

Act X, 1872, s. 239. 287. When the trial is to be held with the aid of assessors, two or more shall be chosen, as the Judge thinks fit, from the persons summoned to act as such.

Assessor how chosen.

Act X, 1872, s. 259. 288. If, in the course of a trial with the aid of assessors, at any time prior to the finding, any assessor is, from any sufficient cause, prevented from attending throughout the trial, or absents himself, and it is not possible to enforce his attendance, the trial shall proceed with the aid of the other assessor or assessors.

If all the assessors are prevented from attending or absent themselves, the proceeding shall be stayed, and a new trial shall be held with the aid of fresh assessors.

E.—Trial to Close of Cases for Prosecution and Defence.

Act X, 1872, s. 247. Act XI, 1874, s. 19. Act X, 1875, s. 59.

289. Opening case for prosecution. When the jurors or assessors have been chosen, the prosecutor shall open his case by reading from the Indian Penal Code or other law the description of the offence charged, and stating shortly by what evidence he expects to prove the guilt of the accused.

Examination of witnesses. The prosecutor shall then examine his witnesses.

Act X, 1872, s. 248. Act X, 1875, s. 60.

290. Examination of accused before Magistrate to be evidence. The examination of the accused before the committing Magistrate shall be tendered as evidence by the prosecutor, scrutinised by the presiding Judge and read as evidence.

Act X, 1872, s. 249. Act XI, 1874, s. 20. Act X, 1875, s. 75. 12 Ben. Appendix 16, 17. The exercise of this discretion may be reviewed on appeal, 11 Bomb. 282.

291. Evidence given at preliminary inquiry admissible. The evidence of a witness duly taken in the presence of the accused before the committing Magistrate may, in the discretion of the presiding Judge, if such witness is produced, be treated as evidence in the case.

Act X, 1872, s. 251. Act X, 1875, s. 62.

292. Procedure after examination of witnesses for prosecution. When the examination of the witnesses for the prosecution and the examination (if any) of the accused is concluded, the accused shall be asked whether he means to call witnesses.

In such case it is not necessary to ask the assessors their opinion—I. L. R. 1 All. 610 n.

If he says that he does not, the prosecutor may sum up his case; and if the Court wholly discredits the evidence for the prosecution, it may then, in a case tried with the aid of assessors, record a finding, or, in a case tried by a jury, direct the jury to return a verdict of not guilty.

If the accused says that he means to call witnesses, or if, on his saying that he does not mean to call witnesses, the prosecutor sums up his case and the Court believes, or merely doubts the truth of, the evidence for the prosecution, the Court shall call on the accused to enter on his defence.

Act X, 1872, s. [illegible]. Act X, 1875, s. 62.

293. Defence. The accused or his pleader, may then open his case, stating the facts or law on which he intends to rely, and whether he thinks the evidence for the prosecution insufficient or inapplicable. He may then examine his witnesses, if any, and after their cross-examination and re-examination (if any) may sum up his case.

Act X, 1872, s. 363. Act X, 1875, s. 85. Act IV, 1877, s. 91.

294. Right of accused as to examination and summoning of witness. The accused shall be allowed to examine any witness not previously named by him, if such witness is in attendance; but he shall not, except as provided in section 232, be entitled of right to have any witness summoned, other than the witnesses named in the list delivered to the Magistrate by whom he was committed for trial.

Act X, 1872, s. 253. Act X, 1875, s. 63.

295. Prosecutor's right of reply. If any evidence is produced on behalf of the accused, the prosecutor shall be entitled to reply.

Act X, 1872, s. 253, omitting provision as to reconducting to Court, Act X, 1875, s. 64. Taken from Livingston, Art. 357.

296. View by jury or assessors. Whenever the Court thinks that the jury or assessors should view the place in which the offence charged is alleged to have been committed, or any other place in which any other transaction material to the trial is alleged to have occurred, the Court shall make an order to that effect, and the jury or assessors shall be conducted in a body, under the care of an officer of the Court, to such place, which shall be shown to them by a person appointed by the Court.

Such officer shall not suffer any other person to speak to, or hold any communication with, any of the jury or assessors, and, unless the Court otherwise directs, they shall, when the view is finished, be immediately conducted back into Court.

Act X, 1872, s. 258. Act X, 1875, s. 69.

297. When juror or assessor may be examined. If a juror or assessor is personally acquainted with any relevant fact, it is his duty to inform the Judge that such is the case, whereupon he may be sworn, examined, cross-examined and re-examined in the same manner as any other witness.

Act X, 1872, s. 260. Act X, 1875, s. 67.

298. Jury or assessors to attend at adjourned sitting. If a trial is adjourned, the jury or assessors shall attend at the adjourned sitting, and at every subsequent sitting, until the conclusion of the trial.

Act X, 1875, s. 65.

299. Locking-up jury. The High Court may from time to time make rules as to keeping the jury together during a trial before such Court lasting for more than one day, and, subject to such rules, the presiding Judge may order whether and in what manner the jurors shall be kept together under the charge of an officer of the Court, or whether they shall be allowed to return to their respective homes.

F.—Conclusion of Trial in Cases tried by Jury.

Act X, 1872, s. 255. Act X, 1875, s. 90.

300. Charge to jury. In cases tried by jury, when the case for the defence, and the prosecutor's reply, if any, are concluded, the Court shall proceed to charge the jury, summing up the evidence for the prosecution and defence, and laying down the law by which the jury are to be guided.

Act X, 1872, s. 256. Act X, 1875, s. 91.

301. Duty of Judge. In such cases, it is the duty of the Judge—

(a) to decide all questions of law, and especially all questions as to the relevancy of facts which it is proposed to prove, the admissibility of evidence or the propriety of questions asked by or on behalf of the parties which may arise in the course of the trial, and, in his discretion, to prevent the production of inadmissible evidence, whether it is or is not objected to by the parties;

(b) to decide upon the meaning and construction of all documents given in evidence at the trial;

(c) to decide upon all matters of fact which it may be necessary to prove in order to enable evidence of particular matters to be given;

(d) to decide whether any question which arises is for himself or for the jury, and upon this point his decision shall be final.

The Judge may, if he thinks proper, in the course of his summing up, express to the jury his opinion upon any question of fact, or upon any question of mixed law and fact, relevant to the proceeding.

Illustrations.

(a.) It is proposed to prove a statement made by a person not called as a witness under circumstances which render evidence of his statement admissible.

It is for the Judge, and not for the jury, to decide whether the existence of those circumstances has been proved.

(b.) It is proposed to give secondary evidence of a document the original of which is alleged to have been lost or destroyed.

It is the duty of the Judge to decide whether the original has been lost or destroyed.

Act X, 1872, s. 257. Act X, 1875, s. 93.

302. Duty of jury. It is the duty of the jury—

(a) to decide which view of the facts is true, and then to return the verdict which under such view ought, according to the direction of the Judge, to be returned;

(c) to decide all questions which according to law are to be deemed questions of fact;

(d) to decide whether general indefinite expressions do or do not apply to particular cases, unless such expressions refer to legal procedure, or unless their meaning is ascertained by law, in either of which cases it is the duty of the Judge to decide their meaning.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is tried for the murder of B.

It is the duty of the Judge to explain to the jury the distinction between murder and culpable homicide, and to tell them under what views of the facts A ought to be convicted of murder, or of culpable homicide, or to be acquitted.

It is the duty of the jury to decide which view of the facts is true, and to return a verdict in accordance with the direction of the Judge, whether that direction is right or wrong, and whether they do or do not agree with it.

(b.) The question is whether a person entertained a reasonable belief on a particular point,—whether work was done with reasonable skill or due diligence.

Each of these is a question for the jury.

Act X, 1872, s. 268. Act X, 1875, s. 92.

303. Retirement to consider. In cases tried by jury, after the Judge has finished his charge, the jury may retire to consider their verdict.

Except with the leave of the Court, no person other than a juror shall speak to, or hold any communication with, any member of such jury.

Act X, 1872, s. 263. Act X, 1875, s. 94.

304. Delivery of verdict. When the jury have considered their verdict, the foreman shall inform the Judge what is their verdict, or what is the verdict of a majority.

Act X, 1872, s. 263, para. 3. Act X, 1875, s. 96.

305. Procedure where jury differ. If the jury are not unanimous, the Judge may require them to retire for further consideration. After such a period as the Judge considers reasonable, the jury may deliver their verdict, although they are not unanimous.

Act X, 1872, s. 263, para. 2. Act X, 1875, s. 95.

306. Verdict to be given on each charge. Judge may question jury. The jury shall return a verdict on all the charges on which the accused is tried, and the Judge may ask them such questions as are necessary to ascertain what their verdict is.

Act X, 1872, s. 263, para. 2, last sentence. New. Dears. C. C. 229.

Questions and answers to be recorded. Such questions and the answers to them shall be recorded.

307. Amending verdict. When a wrong verdict is delivered, the jury may, before or immediately after it is recorded, amend the verdict, and it shall stand as ultimately amended.

Act X, 1875, ss. 97, 98.

308. Verdict in High Court when to prevail. When in a case tried before a High Court the jury are unanimous in their opinion, or when as many as six are of one opinion and the Judge agrees with them, the Judge shall give judgment in accordance with such opinion.

When in any such case the jury are satisfied that they will not be unanimous, but six of them are of one opinion, the foreman shall so inform the Judge.

Discharge of jury in other cases. If the Judge disagrees with the majority, he shall at once discharge the jury.

If there are not so many as six who agree in opinion, the Judge shall, after the lapse of such time as he thinks reasonable, discharge the jury.

Act X, 1872, s. 263, para. 4.

309. Verdict in Sessions Court when to prevail. When in a case tried before the Court of Session the Judge does not think it necessary to express disagreement with the verdict of the jurors or of a majority of the jurors, he shall give judgment accordingly.

Act XI, 1874, s. 21.

If the accused is acquitted, the Judge shall record judgment of acquittal. If the accused is convicted, the Judge shall pass sentence on him according to law.

Act X, 1872, s. 263, para. 2. Act XI, 1874, s. 21. I. L. R. 1 Bomb. 10. The direction must be complete, I. L. R. 2 Bomb. 630.

310. Procedure where Judge disagrees with verdict. If in any such case the Judge disagrees with the verdict of the jurors, or of a majority of the jurors, on all or any of the charges on which the accused has been tried, so completely that he considers it necessary for the ends of justice to submit the case to the High Court, he shall submit the case accordingly, recording the grounds of his opinion and, when the verdict is one of acquittal, stating the offence which he considers to have been committed.

I. L. R., 3 Calc. 628.

Whenever the Judge submits a case under this section, he shall not record judgment of acquittal or of conviction on any of the charges on which the accused has been tried, but he may either remand the accused to custody, or admit him to bail.

See Markby J., in I. L. R., 3 Calc. 192.

The High Court shall deal with the case so submitted as it would deal with an appeal; but it may acquit or convict the accused of any offence of which the jury could have convicted him upon the charge framed and placed before it; and if it convict him, may pass such sentence as might have been passed by the Court of Session.

G.—Re-trial of Accused after Discharge of Jury.

Act X, 1875, s. 100.

311. Whenever the jury is discharged, the accused shall be detained in custody or on bail (as the case may be), and shall be tried by another jury, unless the Judge considers that he should not be re-tried, in which case the Judge shall make an entry to that effect on the charge, and such entry shall operate as an acquittal.

Re-trial of accused after discharge of jury.

H.—Conclusion of Trial in Cases tried with Assessors.

Act X, 1872, ss. 255, 261, 262.

312. When in a case tried with the aid to assessors, the case for the defence and the prosecutor's reply (if any) are concluded, the Court shall require each of the assessors to state his opinion orally, and shall record such opinion.

Delivery of opinion of assessors.

The Judge shall then give judgment; but in doing so shall not be bound to conform to the opinion of the assessors.

Judgment.

I.—List of Jurors for High Court and summoning Jurors for that Court.

Act X, 1875, s. 39.

313. The jurors' book for the year current when this Code comes into force shall be taken as containing a correct list of persons liable to serve as jurors under this chapter;

Jurors' book.

and those persons whose names are entered in the said book as being liable to serve on special juries only shall be deemed to be persons privileged and liable to serve only as special jurors under this chapter during the year for which the said list has been prepared.

Act X, 1875, s. 40.

314. The names of not more than two hundred persons shall at any one time be entered in the special jurors' list.

Number of special jurors.

Act X, 1875, s. 41.

All persons whose names are entered in the special jurors' list shall be exempted from serving on any other than special juries, but so long only as their names are contained in such list.

Exemption of special jurors.

Act X, 1875, s. 42.

315. The Clerk of the Crown shall, before the first day of April in each year, and subject to such rules as the High Court from time to time prescribes, prepare—

Lists of common and special jurors.

(a) a list of all persons liable to serve as common jurors; and

(b) a list of persons liable to serve as special jurors only.

Regard shall be had, in the preparation of the latter list, to the property, character and education of the persons whose names are entered therein.

No persons shall be entitled to have his name entered in the special jurors' list merely because he may have been entered in the special jurors' list for a previous year.

The Governor General in Council may exempt any salaried officer of Government from serving as a juror.

Act X, 1875, s. 43.

The Clerk of the Crown shall, subject to such rules as aforesaid, have full discretion to prepare the said lists as seems to him to be proper, and there shall be no appeal from, or review of, his decision.

Discretion of officer preparing lists.

Act X, 1875, s. 44.

316. Preliminary lists of persons liable to serve as common jurors and as special jurors, respectively, signed by the Clerk of the Crown, shall be published once in the local official Gazette before the fifteenth day of April next after their preparation.

Publication of preliminary lists.

Revised lists of persons liable to serve as common jurors and special jurors, respectively, signed as aforesaid, shall be published once in the local official Gazette before the first day of May next after their preparation.

Copies of the said lists shall be affixed to some conspicuous part of the Court-house.

Act X, 1875, s. 45.

317. Out of the persons named in the revised lists aforesaid, there shall be summoned for each sessions at least twenty-seven of those who are liable to serve on special juries, and fifty-four of those who are liable to serve on common juries.

Number of jurors to be summoned.

No persons shall be so summoned more than once in six months unless the number cannot be made up without him.

If, during the continuance of any sessions, it appears that the number of persons so summoned is not sufficient, such number as may be necessary of other persons liable to serve as aforesaid shall be summoned for such sessions.

Supplementary summons.

Act X, 1875, s. 50.

318. Whenever a High Court has given notice of its intention to hold sittings at any place outside the Presidency towns for the exercise of its original criminal jurisdiction, the Summoning jurors outside the Presidency-towns.

Court of Session at such place shall, subject to any direction which may be given by the High Court, summon a sufficient number of jurors from its own list in the manner hereinafter prescribed for summoning jurors to the Court of Session.

Act X, 1875, s. 51.

319. In addition to the persons so summoned as jurors, the said Court of Session shall, if it think needful, after communication with the Commanding Officer, cause to be summoned such number of commissioned and non-commissioned officers in Her Majesty's army resident within ten miles of its place of sitting, as the Court considers to be necessary to make up the juries required for the trial of persons charged with offences before the High Court as aforesaid.

Military jurors.

All officers so summoned shall be liable to serve on such juries notwithstanding anything contained in this Code; but no such officer shall be summoned whom his Commanding Officer desires to have excused on the ground of urgent military duty, or for any other special military reason.

Act X, 1875, s. 46.

320. Any person summoned under section 317, 318 or 319, who without lawful excuse fails to attend as required by the summons, or who, having attended, departs without having obtained the permission of the Judge, or fails to attend after an adjournment of the Court after being ordered to attend, shall be deemed guilty of a contempt and be liable by order of the Judge to such fine as he thinks fit; and, in default of payment of such fine, to imprisonment in the civil jail until the fine is paid.

Failure of jurors to attend.

J.—List of Jurors and Assessors for Court of Session, and summoning Jurors and Assessors for that Court.

Act X, 1872, s. 400.

321. The Sessions Judge and the Collector of the District, or such other officer as the Local Government appoints in this behalf, shall prepare and make out in alphabetical order a list of persons residing within ten miles from the place where trials before the Court of Session are held, or within such other distance as the Local Government directs, who are capable of serving as jurors or assessors, qualified in the judgment of the Sessions Judge and Collector or other officer as aforesaid to serve as such, and not exempt under section 327.

List of jurors and assessors.

The list shall contain the name, place of abode and quality or business of every such person; and if the person is a European or an American, the list shall mention the race to which he belongs.

Act X, 1872, s. 401, para. 1.

322. Copies of such list shall be stuck up in the office of the Collector or other officer as aforesaid, and in the Court-houses of the District Magistrate and of the District Court, and in some conspicuous place in the town or towns in or near which the persons named in the list reside.

Publication of list.

Act X, 1872, s. 401, para. 2.

323. To every such copy shall be subjoined a notice stating that objections to the list will be heard and determined by the Sessions Judge and Collector or other officer as aforesaid, at the Sessions Court-house, and at a time to be mentioned in the notice.

Objections to list.

Act X, 1872, s. 402.

324. For the hearing of such objections, the Sessions Judge shall sit with the Collector or other officer as aforesaid, and shall, at the time and place mentioned in the notice, revise the list and hear the objections (if any) of persons interested in the amendment thereof, and shall strike out the name of any person not suitable in their judgment to serve as a juror or as an assessor, or who may avail himself of the exemption from service given by section 327, and insert the name of any person omitted from the list whom they deem qualified for such service.

Revision of list.

In the event of a difference of opinion between the Collector or other officer as aforesaid and the Sessions Judge, the name of the proposed juror or assessor shall be omitted from the list.

A copy of the revised list shall be signed by the Sessions Judge and Collector or other officer as aforesaid and sent to the Court of Session.

Any order of the Sessions Judge and Collector or other officer as aforesaid in preparing and revising the list shall be final.

Act X, 1872, s. 403.

325. The list so prepared and revised shall be again revised once in every year.

Annual revision of list.

The list so revised shall be deemed a new list, and shall be subject to all the rules hereinbefore contained as to the list originally prepared.

Act X, 1872, s. 404.

326. All male persons between the ages of twenty-one and sixty resident within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court of Session, except those next hereinafter mentioned, shall be deemed capable of serving as jurors and assessors, and shall be liable to be summoned accordingly.

Jurors and assessors.

Act X, 1872, s. 406.

327. The following persons are exempt from liability to serve as jurors or as assessors, namely:—

Exemptions.

(a). Officers in civil employ superior in rank to a District Magistrate;

(b). Judges and other Judicial Officers;

(c). Commissioners and Collectors of Revenue or Customs;

(d). Persons engaged in the Preventive Service in the Customs Department;

(e). Persons engaged in the collection of the revenue whom the Collector thinks fit to exempt on the ground of official duty;

(f). Persons actually officiating as priests or ministers of their respective religions;

(g). Persons in Her Majesty's Army except when, by any law in force for the time being, they are specially made liable to serve as jurors or assessors;

(h). Surgeons and others who openly and constantly practise the medical profession;

(i). Persons employed in the Post-office and Telegraph Departments;

(j). Persons exempted by the Local Government from liability to serve as jurors, and persons exempted from personal appearance in Court under the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, sections 640 and 641.

Person exempted not bound to avail himself of his right.

The exemption from service given by this section is a right of which each person exempted may avail himself or not as he thinks fit.

Act X, 1872, s. 407.

Court to summon jurors.

328. The Sessions Judge shall ordinarily, three days at least before the time fixed for holding the sessions, send a letter to a Magistrate requesting him to summon as many persons named in the said revised list as seem to the Judge to be needed for trials by jury and trials with the aid of assessors at the said sessions, the number to be summoned not being less than double the number required for any case about to be tried at such sessions.

The names of the persons to be summoned shall be drawn by lot in open Court, excluding those on the revised list who have served within six months, unless the number cannot be made up without them; and the names so drawn shall be specified in the said letter.

Act X, 1872, s. 410.

Power to summon another set of jurors or assessors.

329. The Court of Session may direct jurors or assessors to be summoned at other periods than the period specified in section 328, when the number of trials before the Court renders the attendance of one set of jurors or assessors for a whole session oppressive, or whenever for other reasons such direction is found to be necessary.

Act X, 1872, s. 409, para. 1.

Form and service of summons.

330. Every summons to a juror or assessor shall be in writing, and shall require his attendance as a juror or assessor, as the case may be, at a time and place to be therein specified.

Act X, 1872, s. 411.

When officer of Government may be excused.

331. If any person summoned to serve as a juror or assessor be in the service of Government or of a Railway Company, the Court may excuse his attendance if it appear, on the representation of the head of the office in which he is employed, that he cannot serve as a juror or assessor, as the case may be, without inconvenience to the public service.

Act X, 1872, s. 412.

Court may excuse attendance of juror or assessor.

332. The Court of Session may for reasonable cause excuse any juror or assessor from attendance at any particular session.

Act X, 1872, s. 413.

List of jurors or assessors attending.

333. At each session, the said Court shall cause to be made a list of the names of those who serve as jurors or assessors at such session.

Such list shall be kept with the revised list of the jurors and assessors prepared under section 324.

A reference shall be made in the margin of the said revised list to each of the names which are mentioned in the list prepared under this section.

Act X, 1872, s. 414.

Penalty for non-attendance of juror or assessor.

334. Any person summoned to attend as a juror or as an assessor who, without lawful excuse, fails to attend as required by the summons, or who, having attended, departs without having obtained the permission of the Court, or fails to attend after an adjournment of the Court after being ordered to attend, shall be liable, by order of the Court of Session, to a fine not exceeding one hundred rupees.

Such fine shall be levied by the District Magistrate by attachment and sale of any moveable property belonging to such juror or assessor within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court making the order.

In default of recovery of the fine by such attachment and sale, such juror or assessor may be imprisoned in the civil jail for the term of fifteen days, unless such fine is paid before the end of the said term.

K.—Special Provisions for High Courts.

Act X, 1875, s. 146. Cf. s. 262, supra.

Power of Advocate General to stay prosecution

335. At any stage of any trial before a High Court under this Code before the return of the verdict, the Advocate General may, if he thinks fit, inform the Court on behalf of Her Majesty that he will not further prosecute the defendant upon the charge; and thereupon all proceedings on such charge against the defendant shall be stayed, and he shall be discharged of and from the same. But such discharge shall not amount to an acquittal.

Act X, 1876, s. 4.

Time of holding sittings.

336. For the exercise of its original criminal jurisdiction, every High Court shall hold sittings on such days and at such convenient intervals as the Chief Justice of such Court from time to time appoints.

Act X, 1875, s. 5.

Place of holding sittings.

337. The High Court shall hold its sittings at the place at which it now holds them, or at such other place (if any) as the Governor General in Council in the case of the High Court at Fort William, and as the Local Government in the case of the other High Courts, may direct.

But it may from time to time, in the case of the High Court at Fort William, with the consent of the Governor General in Council, and in all other cases with the consent of the Local Government, hold sittings at such other places within the local limits of its appellate jurisdiction as the High Court appoints.

Notice of sittings.

Such officer as the Chief Justice directs shall give notice beforehand in the local official Gazette of all sittings intended to be held for the exercise of the original criminal jurisdiction of the High Court.

Act X, 1875, s. 27.

Intermediate custody of European British subjects.

338. The High Court may direct that all European British subjects committed or bailed for trial by it within certain specified districts or during certain specified periods of the year shall be tried at the ordinary place of sitting of the Court, or direct that they shall be tried at a particular place named.

CHAPTER XXIV.

OF TENDER OF PARDON IN CASES TRIABLE BY THE HIGH COURT OR COURT OF SESSION.

Act X, 1872, s. 347. Act IV, 1877, s. 150.

Tender of pardon to accomplice.

339. The District Magistrate, a Presidency Magistrate, any Magistrate of the first class inquiring into the case, or, with the sanction of the District Magistrate, any Magistrate duly empowered to commit to the Court of Session, may, with the view of obtaining the evidence of any person supposed to have been directly or indirectly concerned in, or privy to, any offence specified in the second schedule as triable exclusively by the Court of Session or High Court, tender a pardon to such person on condition of his making a full and true disclosure of the whole of the circumstances within his knowledge relative to such offence, and to every other person concerned in the perpetration thereof.

Every person accepting a tender under this section shall be examined as a witness in the case.

Such person, if not on bail, shall be detained in custody until the termination of the trial.

Every Magistrate, other than a District Magistrate or a Presidency Magistrate, who tenders a pardon under this section, shall record his reasons for so doing; and when he has made such tender and examined the accused person, he shall not try the case himself, although the offence which the accused person appears to have committed may be triable by such Magistrate.

Act X, 1872, s. 348, omitting "as a Court of Revision." Act X, 1875, s. 77.

Power to direct tender of pardon.

340. At any time after committal, but before judgment is passed, the High Court or Court of Session may, with the view of obtaining on the trial the evidence of any person supposed to have been directly or indirectly concerned in, or privy to, any such offence, tender, or direct the committing Magistrate to tender, a pardon on the same condition to such person.

Act X, 1872, s. 349. Act X, 1876, s. 78. Act IV, 1877, s. 151.

Commitment of person to whom pardon has been tendered.

341. Where a pardon has been tendered under section 339 or 340, if before the trial it appears to the Court making or directing the tender, or to the Magistrate, that any person who has accepted such tender has, either by wilfully concealing anything essential or by giving false evidence, not complied with the condition on which the tender was made, such Court or Magistrate may commit him for trial for the offence in respect of which the pardon was so tendered, or for any other offence of which he appears to have been guilty in connection with the same matter.

The statement made by a person under pardon may be given in evidence against him when the pardon has been withdrawn under this section.

CHAPTER XXV.

GENERAL PROVISIONS AS TO INQUIRIES AND TRIALS.

Act X, 1872, ss. 186, paras. 1 and 2. Act XI, 1874, s. 13. Act X, 1875, s. 31. Act IV, 1877, s. 130. Act X, 1872, s. 186, para. 3. Act X, 1875, s. 130. Act IV, 1877, s. 131.

Right of accused to be defended.

342. Every person accused before any criminal Court may of right be defended by a pleader.

Procedure where accused does not understand proceedings.

343. If the accused, though not insane, cannot be made to understand the proceedings, the Court may proceed with the inquiry or trial; and in the case of a Court other than a High Court, if such inquiry results in a commitment, or if such trial results in a conviction, the proceedings shall be forwarded to the High Court with a report of the circumstance of the case, and the High Court shall pass thereon such order as it thinks fit.

Act X, 1872, ss. 193, 250, 342. Act X, 1875, s. 61. Act IV, 1877, ss. 5, 143. 1 O'Kin. 488.

Power to examine the accused.

344. At any stage of any inquiry or trial the Court may, without previously warning the accused, put such questions to him as the Court considers necessary.

The accused shall not render himself liable to punishment for refusal to answer such questions, or for giving false answers to them; but the Court shall draw such inference from such refusal or false answers as it thinks just.

Act X, 1872, s. 343, see Act I, 1872, s. 114, ill. (h).

Act X, 1872, s. 193.

The answers given by the accused may be put in evidence against him, not only in such inquiry or trial, but also in any other inquiry into, or trial for, any other offence which such answer may tend to show he has committed.

Act X, 1872, s. 345.

No oath or affirmation shall be administered to the accused.

Act X, 1872, s. 344. Act IV, 1877, s. 149.

No influence to be used to induce disclosures.

345. Except as provided in section 339, no influence, by means of any promise or threat or otherwise, shall be used to an accused person to induce him to disclose or withhold any matter within his knowledge.

Act X, 1872, ss. 194, para. 1 and 3, 205, para. 1, 216, 264.

Power to postpone or adjourn proceedings.

346. If, from the absence of a witness or any other reasonable cause, it becomes necessary or advisable to postpone the commencement of, or adjourn, any inquiry or trial, Act X. 1875, s. 66. Act IV, 1877, ss. 86, 124. 11 & 12 Vic., c. 42, s. 21.

the Court may, by order, from time to time, postpone or adjourn the same on such terms as it thinks fit, for such time as it considers reasonable, and by a warrant, or to the like effect, remand the accused if in custody :

Remand.

Provided that no Magistrate shall remand an accused person to custody under this section for a period exceeding fifteen days at a time.

Every order made under this section by a Court other than a High Court shall be in writing signed by the presiding Judge.

Explanation.—If sufficient evidence has been obtained to raise a suspicion that the accused may have committed an offence, and it appears likely that further evidence may be obtained by a remand, this is a reasonable cause for a remand.

Reasonable cause for remand.

Act X, 1872, s. 188. Act X, 1875, s. 151. Act IV, 1877, s. 133. Compare N. Y. Crim. Proc. Code, s. 731.

347. In the case of offences which may lawfully be compounded, the injured person may compound the offence out of Court, or in Court, with the permission of the Magistrate or presiding Judge. Such composition shall have the effect of an acquittal of the accused.

Compounding offences.

Explanation.—The following offences, and no others, may be lawfully compounded :—

(a) offences relating to the human body, except offences under the Indian Penal Code, sections 299 to 311 (both inclusive) and sections 359 to 373 (both inclusive) ;

(b) criminal breach of contracts of service ;

(c) defamation ;

(d) criminal intimidation, insult and annoyance ;

(e) offences against property, except offences under the Indian Penal Code, sections 390 to 414 (both inclusive) ;

(f) offences relating to documents, trade-marks and property-marks, except offences under the same Code, sections 463 to 477 (both inclusive) ;

(g) adultery and other offences relating to married women, under the same Code, sections 497 and 498 ;

(h) offences against Municipal and Cantonment Acts, and the conservancy-clauses of Police Acts ;

(i) abetment of any of the foregoing offences ;

(k) an attempt to commit any of the foregoing offences when such attempt is an offence.

Act X, 1872, s. 345. Madras H. C. ruling cited Nelson, 63.

348. If, in the course of an inquiry or trial before a Magistrate in any district outside the Presidency-towns, the evidence appears to him to warrant a presumption that the case is one which should be tried or committed for trial by some other Magistrate in such district, he shall stay proceedings and submit the case, with a brief report explaining its nature, to any Magistrate to whom he is subordinate, or to such other Magistrate, having jurisdiction, as the District Magistrate directs.

Procedure of Mufassal Magistrate in cases which he cannot dispose of.

The Magistrate to whom the case is submitted shall, if so empowered, either try the case himself, or refer it to any officer subordinate to him having jurisdiction, or commit the accused for trial.

In any such case, such Magistrate or other officer as aforesaid shall examine the parties and witnesses, and shall proceed in all respects as if no proceedings had been held in any other Court.

Act X, 1872, s. 221. Act IV, 1877, s. 127.

349. If in any trial before a Magistrate it appears to him at any stage of the proceedings before signing judgment that the case is one which ought to be tried by the Court of Session or High Court, and he is empowered to commit for trial, he shall stop further proceedings and commit the accused under the provisions hereinbefore contained.

Procedure when after commencement of trial Magistrate finds case should be committed.

If such Magistrate is not empowered to commit for trial, he shall proceed under section 348.

Act X, 1872, s. 315. Act IV, 1877, s. 128.

350. Whoever, having been convicted of an offence punishable under chapter XII or XVII of the Indian Penal Code with imprisonment for a term of three years or upwards, is again accused of any offence punishable under either of those chapters with imprisonment for a term of three years or upwards, shall ordinarily, if the Magistrate before whom he is accused considers him an habitual offender, be committed to the Court of Session or High Court, as the case may be :

Trial of persons previously convicted of offences against coinage, stamp-law and property.

Provided that, in districts in which the District Magistrate has been invested with powers under section 30, the accused person may be placed on his trial before such Magistrate.

Proviso.

Act X, 1872, s. 46, inserting "different in kind from or"

351. Whenever a Magistrate of the second or third class, having jurisdiction, is of opinion upon concluding a trial that the accused is guilty, and that he ought to receive a punishment different in kind from, or more severe than, that which such Magistrate is empowered to inflict, he may record the finding and, instead of passing sentence, submit his proceedings, and forward the accused to the District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate to whom he is subordinate.

Procedure when Magistrate cannot pass sentence sufficiently severe.

The Magistrate to whom the proceedings are submitted may, if he thinks fit, examine the parties and recall and examine any witness who has already given evidence in the case; and may call for and take any further evidence, and shall pass such judgment, sentence or order in the case as he thinks fit, and as is according to law : Provided that he shall not inflict a punishment more severe than he is empowered to inflict under sections 32 and 33.

e. g., he may order commital to Session Court, I. L. R. 1 Madras 289.

Act X, 1872, s. 104.

352. Whenever any Magistrate, after having heard the whole or any part of the evidence in an inquiry or trial, ceases to exercise jurisdiction therein, and is succeeded by another Magistrate who has and who exercises such jurisdiction, the Magistrate so succeeding may act on the evidence so recorded by his predecessor, or partly recorded by his predecessor and partly recorded by himself ; or he may re-summon the witnesses and re-commence the enquiry or trial :

Conviction on evidence partly recorded by one Magistrate and partly by another.

Provided that the accused may, when the second Magistrate commences his proceedings, demand that the witnesses be re-summoned and re-heard, in which case the inquiry or trial shall be re-commenced :

Provided also that the High Court, or, in cases tried by Magistrates subordinate to the District Magistrate, the District Magistrate may, without appeal, set aside any conviction passed on evidence not wholly recorded by the Magistrate before whom the conviction was had, if such Court or District Magistrate is of opinion that the accused has been materially prejudiced thereby ; and may order a new inquiry or trial.

Nothing in this section applies to cases in which proceedings have been stayed under section 348.

Act X, 1872, s. 328 and 329. Act IV, 1877, s. 156.

353. Any person attending a criminal Court, although not upon an arrest or summons, may be detained by such Court for the purpose of examination, for any offence of which such Court can take cognizance and which, from the evidence, he may appear to have committed, and may be proceeded against as though he had been arrested or summoned.

Detention of offenders attending Court.

When the detention takes place in the course of an inquiry under chapter XVIII, or after a trial has been begun, the proceedings in respect of such person shall be commenced afresh and the witnesses re-heard.

Act X, 1872, s. 187. Act X, 1875, s. 150. Act IV, 1877, s. 132.

354. The place in which any criminal Court is held for the purpose of inquiring into or trying any offence shall be deemed an open Court, to which the public generally may have access, so far as the same can conveniently contain them :

Courts to be open.

Provided that the presiding Judge may, if he thinks fit, order at any stage of any inquiry into, or trial of, any particular case, that the public generally, or any particular person, shall not have access to, or be or remain in, the room or building used by the Court.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Of the Mode of taking and recording Evidence in Inquiries and Trials.

Act X, 1872, s. 101, para. 1. Act IV, 1878, s. 85, para. 1.

355. Except as otherwise expressly provided, all evidence taken under chapters XVIII, XX, XXI, XXII and XXIII shall be taken in the presence of the accused, or, when his personal attendance is dispensed with, in presence of his pleader.

Evidence to be taken in presence of accused.

Act X, 1872, s. 332.

356. In inquiries and trials (other than summary trials) under this Code by or before a Magistrate (other than a Presidency Magistrate) or Sessions Judge, the evidence of the witnesses shall be recorded in the following manner.

Manner of recording evidence in Mufassal.

Act X, 1872, s. 333.

357. In summons-cases tried before a Magistrate, other than a Presidency Magistrate, and in cases of the offences mentioned below when tried by a Magistrate of the first or second class, the Magistrate shall make a memorandum of the substance of the evidence of each witness as the examination of the witness proceeds.

Record in summons-cases, and in trials of certain offences by first and second class Magistrates.

Such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Magistrate with his own hand, and shall form part of the record.

If the Magistrate is prevented from making a memorandum as above required, he shall record the reason of his inability to do so, and shall cause such memorandum to be made in writing from his dictation in open Court, and shall sign the same ; and such memorandum shall form part of the record.

The offences above referred to are—

Act X, 1872, s. 333.

(1). Offences relating to weights and measures, under sections 264, 265 and 266 of the Indian Penal Code ;

(2). Hurt, under section 323 of the same Code ;

(3). Theft, under section 379 of the same Code, where the value of the property stolen does not exceed fifty rupees ;

(4). Theft, under section 380 of the same Code, where the value of the property stolen does not exceed fifty rupees ;

(5). Theft under section 381 of the same Code, where the value of the property stolen does not exceed fifty rupees ;

(6). Receiving stolen property, under section 411 of the same Code ;

(7). Mischief, under section 427 of the same Code ;

(8). House-trespass, under section 448 of the same Code ;

(9). Criminal intimidation, under sections 504 and 506 of the same Code ;

(10). Abetment of any of the foregoing offences ;

(11). Attempt to commit (when such attempt is an offence) any of the foregoing offences.

Act X, 1872, s. 334.

358. In all other trials before Courts of Session and Magistrates (other than Presidency Magistrates) and in all inquiries under chapter XVIII, the evidence of each witness shall be taken down in writing in the language of the Record in other cases in the Mufassal.

No exception of cases in which no appeal lies. 11 Beng. Appx. 6.

Court, by the Magistrate or Sessions Judge, or in his presence and hearing and under his personal direction and superintendence, and shall be signed by the Magistrate or Sessions Judge.

Evidence given in English.

When the evidence of such witness is given in English, the Magistrate or Sessions Judge may take it down in that language with his own hand, and, unless the accused is familiar with English, or the language of the Court is English, an authenticated translation of such evidence in the language of the Court shall form part of the record.

Memorandum when evidence not taken down by the Magistrate or Judge himself.

In cases in which the evidence is not taken down in writing by the Magistrate or Sessions Judge, he shall, as the examination of each witness proceeds, make a memorandum of the substance of what such witness deposes, and such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Magistrate or Sessions Judge with his own hand, and shall form part of the record.

If the Magistrate or Sessions Judge is prevented from making a memorandum as above required, he shall record the reason of his inability to make it.

Act X, 1872, s. 335.

Language of record of evidence.

359. The Local Government may direct that in any district or part of a district, or in proceedings before any Court of Session, or before any Magistrate or class of Magistrates, the evidence shall in the cases referred to in section 358 be taken down by the Sessions Judge or Magistrate with his own hand and in his mother-tongue, unless he is prevented by any sufficient reason from taking down the evidence of any witness, in which case he shall record the reason of his inability to do so, and shall cause the evidence to be taken down in writing from his dictation in open Court.

The evidence so taken down shall be signed by the Sessions Judge or Magistrate, and shall form part of the record:

Provided that, if the mother-tongue of the Sessions Judge or Magistrate is not English or the language of the Court, the Local Government may direct him to take down the evidence in the English language, or in the language of the Court.

Act X, 1872, s. 336.

Option to Magistrate in cases under section 357.

360. In cases of the kind mentioned in section 357, the Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, take down the evidence of any witness in the manner provided in section 358, or, if within the local limits of the jurisdiction of such Magistrate, the Local Government has made the order referred to in section 359, in the manner provided in the same section.

Mode of recording evidence under section 358 or 359.

361. Evidence taken under section 358 or 359 shall not ordinarily be taken down in the form of question and answer, but in the form of a narrative.

Act X, 187 s. 338.

The Magistrate or Sessions Judge may in his discretion take down, or cause to be taken down, any particular question and answer, if there appears any special reason for so doing, or if the prosecutor or the accused, or his pleader so requires.

Procedure in regard to such evidence when completed.

362. As the evidence of each witness taken under section 358 or 359 is completed, it shall be read over to him in the presence of the accused if in attendance, or of his pleader, when his personal attendance is dispensed with and he appears by pleader, and shall, if necessary, be corrected.

Act X, s. 339.

If the witness deny the correctness of any part of the evidence when the same is read over to him, the Magistrate or Sessions Judge may, instead of correcting the evidence, make a memorandum thereon of the objection made to it by the witness, and shall add such remarks as he thinks necessary.

If the evidence be taken down in a language different from that in which it has been given, and the witness does not understand the language in which it is taken down, he may require his evidence as taken down to be interpreted to him in the language in which it was given, or in a language which he understands.

Interpretation of evidence to accused or his agent.

363. Whenever any evidence is given in a language not understood by the accused and he is present in person, it shall be interpreted to him in open Court in a language understood by him.

Act X, 18 s. 340.

If he appears by pleader and the evidence is given in a language other than the language of the Court, and not understood by the pleader, it shall be interpreted to such pleader in that language.

When documents are put in for the purpose of formal proof, it shall be in the discretion of the Court to interpret as much thereof as appears necessary.

Record of evidence in Presidency Magistrates' Courts.

364. In every case in which a Presidency Magistrate imposes a fine exceeding two hundred rupees, or imprisonment for a term exceeding six months, he shall either take down the evidence of the witnesses with his own hand, or cause it to be taken down in writing from his dictation in open Court. All evidence so taken down shall be signed by the Magistrate and shall be part of the record.

Act X, 187 s. 335. Act IV, 187 s. 116.

Evidence so taken down shall ordinarily be recorded in the form of a narrative, but the Magistrate may in his discretion take down, or cause to be taken down, any particular question or answer.

Act X, 18 s. 338. Act IV, 18 s. 116.

Sentences passed under section 35 on the same occasion shall, for the purposes of this section, be considered as one sentence.

Act X, 1872, s. 341.

Remarks respecting demeanour of witness.

365. Every Sessions Judge or Magistrate recording the evidence of a witness shall record such remarks as he thinks material respecting the demeanour of such witness whilst under examination.

Act X, 1872, s. 346. Act IV, 1877, ss. 84, 123.

Examination of accused how recorded.

366. Whenever the accused is examined by any Magistrate or by any Court other than a High Court established by Royal Charter, the whole of such examination, including every question put to him and every answer given by him, shall be recorded in full, and shall be shown or read to him, and he shall be at liberty to explain or add to his answers.

When the whole is made conformable to what he declares is the truth, the examination shall be signed by the accused and the Magistrate or Judge of such Court, and such Magistrate or Judge shall certify under his own hand that it was taken in his presence and in his hearing, and contains a full and true account of the statement made by the accused.

In cases in which the examination of the accused is not recorded by the Magistrate or Judge himself, he shall be bound, unless he is a Presidency Magistrate, as the examination proceeds, to make a memorandum thereof in the language of the Court or in English, if he is sufficiently acquainted with the latter language; and such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Magistrate or Judge with his own hand, and shall be annexed to the record. If the Magistrate or Judge is unable to make a memorandum as above required, he shall record the reason of such inability.

If the Court of Session or High Court finds that the provisions of this section have not been fully complied with by a Magistrate committing any person for trial to such Court, it shall take evidence that such person duly made the statement recorded: and unless the error injures the accused as to his defence on the merits, it shall not affect the admissibility of such statement.

Act X, 1875, s. 68, including Chief Court.

Record of evidence in High Court.

367. Every High Court established by Royal Charter and the Chief Court of the Panjáb may from time to time by general rule prescribe the manner in which evidence shall be taken down in cases coming before the Court in the exercise of its ordinary or its extraordinary original criminal jurisdiction, and the Judges of such Court shall take down the evidence or the substance thereof in accordance with the rule (if any) so prescribed.

CHAPTER XXVII.

OF THE JUDGMENT.

Act VIII 1859, s. 1 Act X, 1872, s. 462.

Mode of delivering judgment.

368. The judgment in every trial in any criminal Court of original jurisdiction shall be pronounced in open court either immediately or at some subsequent time of which due notice shall be given to the parties or their pleaders; and the accused shall, if in custody, be brought up, or if not in custody shall be required to attend, to hear judgment delivered, except where his personal attendance during the trial has been dispensed with and the sentence is one of fine only, in which case it may be pronounced in the presence of his pleader.

Act X, 1872, s. 463. cf. Act X 1877, s. 20

Language of judgment.

369. Every such judgment shall, except as otherwise expressly provided by this Code, be written by the presiding officer of the Court in the language of the Court, or in English, or in the presiding officer's mother-tongue, and shall contain the point or points for determination, the decision thereon, and the reasons for the decision, and shall be dated and signed by the presiding officer in open court at the time of pronouncing it.

Act X, 1872, s. 464. cf. Act VIII 1859, s. 185.

It shall specify the offence (if any) of which, and the section of the Indian Penal Code or other law under which, the accused is convicted, and the punishment (if any) to which he is sentenced.

Act

Judgment in alternative.

When the conviction is under the Indian Penal Code, and it is doubtful under which of two sections, or under which of two parts of the same section, of that Code the offence falls, the Court shall distinctly express the same, and pass judgment in the alternative, according to section 72 of the same Code.

If it be a judgment of acquittal, it shall direct that the accused be set at liberty.

Act X, 1 s. 287, 2.

If the accused is convicted of an offence punishable with death, and the Court sentences him to any punishment other than death, the Court shall in its judgment state the reason why sentence of death was not passed:

Act X, 187 s. 255, para., 464.

Provided that, in trials by jury, the Court need not write a judgment, but the Court of Session shall record the heads of the charge to the jury.

Act X, 187 s. 321. Act X, 18 s. 113.

Sentence of death.

370. When any person is sentenced to death, the sentence shall direct that he be hanged by the neck till he is dead.

Act X, 187 s. 464, sentence.

Court not to alter judgment.

371. No Court when it has signed its judgment shall alter or review the same.

372. Instead of recording a judgment in manner hereinbefore provided, a Presidency Magistrate shall record the following particulars:—

Act IV, 1877, s. 114. Presidency Magistrate's judgment.

(a) the serial number of the case;

(b) the date of the commission of the offence;

(c) the name of the complainant (if any);

(d) the name of the accused person;

(e) the offence complained of or proved;

(f) the plea of the accused and his examination (if any);

(g) the final order;

(h) the date of such order; and

Act IV, 1877, s. 126. (i) in all cases in which the Magistrate inflicts imprisonment, or fine exceeding two hundred rupees, or both, a brief statement of the reasons for the conviction.

Act XI, 1874, s. 41. 373. The judgment shall be explained to the accused, and on his application a copy of the judgment or, when he so desires, a translation in his own language, if practicable, or in the language of the Court, shall be given to him without delay, and free of cost.

Judgment to be explained and copy given to accused.

When the accused is sentenced to death by a Sessions Judge, such Judge shall further inform him of the period within which, if he wishes to appeal, his appeal should be preferred.

Case of person sentenced to death.

374. The original judgment shall be filed with the record of proceedings, and where the original is recorded in a different language from that of the Court, a translation thereof into the language of the Court shall be added to such record.

Judgment to be translated.

Act X, 1872, s. 302. 375. In cases tried by the Court of Session, the Court shall forward a copy of its judgment to the District Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the trial was held.

Court of Session to send copy of judgment to District Magistrate.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

OF THE SUBMISSION OF SENTENCES FOR CONFIRMATION.

Act X, 1872, s. 287, para. 1. 376. When the Court of Session passes sentence of death, the proceedings shall be submitted to the High Court, and the sentence shall not be executed unless it is confirmed by the High Court.

Sentence of death to be submitted by Court of Session.

Act X, 1872, s. 289. 377. If when such proceedings are submitted the High Court thinks that additional evidence upon any point bearing upon the guilt or innocence of the convicted person is necessary, it may direct such evidence to be taken.

Power to direct additional evidence on such reference.

Such evidence shall not be taken in the presence of jurors or assessors, and unless the High Court otherwise directs, the presence of the convicted person may be dispensed with when the same is taken.

The result of such evidence shall be certified to the High Court.

Act X, 1872, s. 285. 378. In any case submitted under section 376, whether tried with the aid of assessors or by jury, the High Court may confirm the sentence, or pass any other sentence warranted by law, or may annul the conviction, and order a new trial on the same or an amended charge, or may acquit the accused person.

Power of High Court to confirm sentence or annul conviction.

Act X, 1872, s. 290. 379. In every case so submitted, the confirmation of the sentence or any new sentence or order passed by the High Court, shall, when such Court consists of two or more Judges, be signed by at least two of them.

Confirmation or new sentence to be signed by two Judges.

? New. 380. When any such case is heard before a bench of Judges and such Judges are equally divided, the case, with their opinions thereon, shall be laid before another Judge, and such Judge, after such examination and hearing as he thinks fit, shall deliver his opinion, and the judgment or order shall follow such opinion.

Procedure in case of difference of opinion.

Act X, 1872, s. 301, para. 1. 381. In cases submitted by the Court of Session to the High Court for the confirmation of a sentence of death, the proper officer of the High Court shall, without delay, after the order of confirmation or other order has been made by the High Court, send a copy of the order, under the seal of the High Court, and attested with his official signature, to the Court of Session.

Procedure in cases submitted to High Court for confirmation.

Act X, 1872, ss. 18 and 36. Act XI, 1874, s. 3. 382. When a sentence passed by an Assistant Sessions Judge or by a District Magistrate acting under section 34 is submitted to a Sessions Judge for confirmation, such Sessions Judge may either confirm, modify or annul such sentence or the finding on which the same is based, or if he thinks further enquiry or additional evidence upon any point bearing upon the guilt or innocence of the accused to be necessary, he may direct such inquiry or evidence to be made or taken.

Confirmation of sentence of Assistant Sessions Judge or Magistrate acting under section 34.

Unless the High Court otherwise directs, the presence of the convicted person may be dispensed with when such evidence is taken; and when the sentence has been submitted by an Assistant Sessions Judge, such evidence shall not be taken in the presence of jurors or assessors.

CHAPTER XXIX.

OF EXECUTION.

Act X, 1872, s. 301, para. 2. 383. When a sentence of death passed by a Court of Session is submitted to the High Court for confirmation, such Court of Session shall, on receiving the order of the Execution of order passed under section 378.

High Court thereon, cause such order to be carried into effect by issuing a warrant or taking such other steps as may be necessary.

Act X, 1872, s. 306. Act X, 1875, s. 114, adding "transportation for life." 384. If a woman sentenced to death be found by the Civil Surgeon to be pregnant, the High Court shall order the execution of the sentence to be postponed, and may commute the sentence to transportation for life.

Postponement of capital sentence on pregnant woman.

Act X, 1872, s. 302A. Act XI, 1874, s. 33. Act IV, 1877, s. 183. 385. Where the accused is sentenced to transportation or imprisonment in cases other than those provided for by section 383, the Court shall forthwith forward him with a warrant to the jail in which he is to be confined.

Execution of sentences of transportation or imprisonment in other cases.

As to subsidiary jails, see Nelson, 290, Act X of 1872, s. 88. 386. Every person for whose imprisonment a warrant is issued under sections 383 or 385 shall be confined in such jail or other place as the Local Government directs in his behalf.

Sentence of imprisonment where to be carried out.

Act X, 1872, s. 303. Act X, 1875, ss. 103, 104. Act IV, 1877, s. 184. 387. Every warrant for the execution of a sentence of imprisonment, shall be directed to the officer in charge of the jail or other place in which the prisoner is, or is to be, confined.

Direction and form of warrant for execution.

Act X, 1872, s. 304. Act X, 1875, s. 104. 388. When the prisoner is to be confined in a jail, the warrant shall be lodged with the jailor, if he is at the jail and if he is not at the jail, with his deputy.

Warrant with whom to be lodged.

If the jailor has no deputy, the warrant may be lodged with any officer in charge of the jail for the time being.

Act X, 1872, s. 307. Act X, 1875, s. 105. Act IV, 1877, s. 185. 389. Whenever an offender is sentenced to pay a fine, the Court passing the sentence may in its discretion issue a warrant for the levy of the amount by distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the offender, although the sentence directs that, in default of payment of the fine, the offender shall be imprisoned.

Execution of sentence of fine.

Such warrant may be executed within the local limits of the jurisdiction of such Court, and it shall authorize the distress and sale of any such property without such limits, when endorsed by the District Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such property is found.

Act IV, 1877, s. 185. 390. When a Court issues a warrant under section 389, it may, instead of at once ordering the offender to be imprisoned under section 64 of the Indian Penal Code, release him on his executing a bond with or without sureties, as the Court thinks fit, conditioned for his appearance before such Court on the day appointed for the return to such warrant, such day not being more than eight days from the time of executing the bond.

Detention of offender until return made to distress-warrant.

Act X, 1872, s. 309. Act IV, 1877, s. 183. 391. The warrant may be issued either by any Judge or Magistrate who, if the case had been tried by him, might have imposed the fine, or by his successor in office.

Who may issue warrant.

Act X, 1872, s. 302A. Act IV, 1877, s. 183. 392. Where the accused is sentenced to whipping only, the sentence shall be executed at such place and time as the Court may direct.

Execution of sentence of whipping only.

Act X, 1872, s. 310. Act IV, 1877, s. 187. 393. When the accused is sentenced to whipping in addition to imprisonment in a case which is subject to appeal, the whipping shall not be inflicted until fifteen days from the date of the sentence or, if an appeal be made within that time, until the sentence is confirmed by the appellate Court: but the whipping shall be inflicted immediately on the expiry of the fifteen days or, in case of an appeal, immediately on the receipt of the order of the appellate Court confirming the sentence.

Execution of sentence of whipping, in addition to imprisonment.

Act XI, 1874, s. 33. The whipping shall be inflicted in the presence of the officer in charge of the jail: unless the Judge or Magistrate orders it to be inflicted in his own presence.

Act X, 1872, s. 311, para. 1. Act X, 1875, s. 108. Act IV, 1877, s. 188. 394. In the case of a person of or over sixteen years of age, whipping shall be inflicted with such instrument, in such mode, and on such part of the person, as the Local Government directs; and in the case of a person under sixteen years of age, it shall be inflicted in the way of school-discipline with a light ratan.

Mode of inflicting punishment.

Act X, 1872, s. 311, para. 2. 395. In no case, if the cat-o'-nine-tails be the instrument employed, shall the whipping exceed one hundred and fifty lashes, or if the ratan be employed, shall such punishment exceed thirty stripes.

Limit of number of stripes.

Act X, 1872, s. 311, para. 3. No sentence of whipping shall be executed by instalments.

Not to be executed by instalments.

Act X, 1872, s. 312. 396. The punishment of whipping shall not be inflicted, unless a Medical Officer, if present, certifies, or, if there is not a Medical Officer present, unless it appears to the Magistrate or officer present, that the offender is in a fit state of health to undergo such punishment.

Whipping not to be inflicted if offender not in fit state of health.

Act X, 1872, s. 313. If, during the execution of a sentence of whipping, a Medical Officer certifies, or it appears to the Magistrate or officer present, that the offender is not in a fit state of health to undergo the remainder of the sentence, the whipping shall be finally stopped.

Stay of execution.

Act X, 1872, s. 314. 397. In any case in which, under section 396, a sentence of whipping is wholly or partially prevented from being executed, the offender shall be kept in custody till the Court which passed the sentence can revise it; and the said Court may, at its discretion, either remit such sentence, or sentence the offender in lieu of whipping, or in lieu of so much of the sentence of whipping as was not executed, to imprisonment for any period, which may be in addition to any other punishment to which he may have been sentenced for the same offence:

Procedure if punishment cannot be inflicted under the last section.

Provided that the whole period of imprisonment to which such offender is sentenced shall not exceed that to which he is liable by law, or that which the Court is competent to award.

398. When sentence is passed under this Code on an escaped convict, such sentence, if of death, fine or whipping, shall take effect immediately, and if of imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation, shall take effect according to the following rules, that is to say:— Act X, 1872, [illegible] Act X, 1875, [illegible] Act X, 1877, [illegible]

Execution of sentence on escaped convicts.

If the new sentence is severer in its quality than the sentence which such convict was undergoing when he escaped, the new sentence shall take effect immediately.

When the new sentence is not severer in its quality than the sentence the convict was undergoing when he escaped, the new sentence shall take effect after he has suffered imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation, as the case may be, for a further period equal to that which, at the time of his escape, remained unexpired of his former sentence.

Explanation.—For the purpose of this section—

(a) a sentence of transportation or penal servitude shall be deemed severer than a sentence of imprisonment;

(b) a sentence of imprisonment with solitary confinement shall be deemed severer than a sentence of the same description of imprisonment without solitary confinement; and

(c) a sentence of rigorous imprisonment shall be deemed severer than a sentence of simple imprisonment with or without solitary confinement.

399. When a person already undergoing a sentence of imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation is sentenced to imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation, such imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation shall commence at the expiration of the imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation to which he has been previously sentenced: Act X, 1872, [illegible] Act X, 1877, [illegible]

Sentence on offender already sentenced for another offence.

Provided that if he is undergoing a sentence of imprisonment, and the sentence on such subsequent conviction be one of transportation, the Court may, in its discretion, direct that the latter sentence shall commence immediately, or at the expiration of the imprisonment to which he has been previously sentenced.

400. Nothing in section 398 or section 399 shall be held to exouse any person from any part of the punishment to which he is liable upon his former or subsequent conviction. Act X, 1872, s. 317, last sentence.

Saving as to sections 398 and 399.

401. When any person under the age of sixteen years is sentenced by any Criminal Court to imprisonment for any offence, the Court may direct that such person, instead of being imprisoned in a criminal jail, shall be confined in any reformatory established by the Local Government as a fit place for confinement, in which there are means of suitable discipline and of training in some branch of useful industry, or which is kept by a person willing to obey such rules as the Government prescribes with regard to the discipline and training of persons confined therein. Act X, 1872, s. 316; Act X, 1875, s. 110; Act V of 1876 has not yet come into force anywhere except—

Confinement of youthful offenders in reformatories.

All persons confined under this section shall be subject to the rules so prescribed.

CHAPTER XXX.

Of Suspensions, Remissions and Commutations of Sentences.

402. When any person has been sentenced to punishment for an offence, the Governor General in Council, or the Local Government, may at any time, without conditions, or upon any conditions which the person sentenced accepts, suspend the execution of his sentence or remit the whole or any part of the punishment to which he has been sentenced. Act X, 1872, s. 322, para. 1.

Power to suspend or remit sentences.

Whenever an application is made to the Governor General in Council or the Local Government for the suspension or remission of a sentence, the Governor General in Council or the Local Government, as the case may be, may require the presiding Judge of the Court before which the conviction was had to furnish without delay a statement of the facts proved on the trial, and of any facts having reference to the propriety of granting or refusing the application. New.

If the person in whose favour a sentence has been suspended or remitted fails to fulfil the conditions prescribed by the Governor General in Council or the Local Government, the Governor General in Council or the Local Government, as the case may be, may cancel such suspension or remission whereupon such person may, if at large, be arrested by any police officer without warrant and remanded by any Magistrate to undergo the unexpired portion of the sentence. Act X, 1872, s. 322, para. 2.

Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to interfere with the right of Her Majesty to grant pardons, reprieves, respites, or remissions of punishment. Act X, 1872, s. 322, para. 3.

403. The Governor General in Council, or the Local Government, may without the consent of the person sentenced, commute

Power to commute punishment.

any one of the following sentences for any other mentioned after it:—

death, transportation, penal servitude, imprisonment.

CHAPTER XXXI.

Of previous Acquittals or Convictions.

Act X, 1872, s. 403, Act X, 1875, s. 110, Act V of 1876 has not yet come into force anywhere except C. N. W. P. Code of Cr. Proc., s. [illegible] Form of plea under this section, N. W. P., 1875, p. 378.

404. A person who has once been tried by a Court of competent jurisdiction for an offence and convicted or acquitted of such offence shall, while such conviction or acquittal remains in force, not be liable to be tried again for the same offence, nor on the same facts for any other offence for which a different charge from the one made against him might have been made under section 239, or for which he might have been convicted under section 240.

Person once convicted or acquitted not to be tried for same offence.

A person convicted or acquitted of any offence may be afterwards tried for any distinct offence for which a separate charge might have been made against him on the former trial under section 238, paragraph one.

A person acquitted or convicted of any offence constituted by any act causing consequences which, together with such act, constituted a different offence from that for which he was acquitted or convicted, may be afterwards tried for such last-mentioned offence, if the consequences had not happened, or were not known to the Court to have happened, at the time when he was acquitted or convicted.

A person acquitted or convicted of any offence constituted by any acts may, notwithstanding such acquittal or conviction, be subsequently charged with, and tried for, any other offence constituted by the same acts which he may have committed, if the Court by which he was first tried was not competent to try the offence with which he is subsequently charged.

Act X, 1872, s. 215, expl. Act X, 1875, s. 14.

Explanation.—The dismissal of a complaint, the discharge of the accused or any entry made upon a charge under section 276 is not an acquittal for the purposes of this section.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is tried upon a charge of theft as a servant and acquitted. He cannot afterwards be charged with theft as a servant, or, upon the same facts, with theft simply, or with criminal breach of trust.

(b.) A is tried upon a charge of murder and acquitted. There is no charge of robbery; but it appears from the facts that A committed robbery at the time when the murder was committed; he may afterwards be charged with, and tried for, robbery.

(c.) A is tried for an assault and convicted. The person assaulted afterwards dies. A may be tried again for culpable homicide.

(d.) A is tried, under section 270 of the Indian Penal Code, for maliguantly doing an act likely to spread the infection of a disease dangerous to life, and is acquitted. The act spreads afterwards causes a person permanently to lose his eyesight. A may be charged, under section 235 of the same Code, with voluntarily causing grievous hurt to that person.

(e.) A is charged before the Court of Session and convicted of the culpable homicide of B. A may not afterwards be tried on the same facts for the murder of B.

(f.) A is charged by a Magistrate of the first class with, and convicted by him of, voluntarily causing hurt to B. A may not afterwards be tried for voluntarily causing grievous hurt to B on the same facts, unless the case comes within paragraph three of this section.

(g.) A is charged by a Presidency Magistrate with, and convicted by him of, theft of property from the person of B. A may be subsequently charged with, and tried for, robbery on the same facts.

(h.) A, B and C are charged by a Magistrate of the first class with, and convicted by him of, robbing D. A, B and C may afterwards be charged with, and tried for, dacoity on the facts.

PART VII.

OF APPEAL, REFERENCE AND REVISION.

CHAPTER XXXII.

Of Appeals.

405. Any person required by a Magistrate, other than the District Magistrate or a Presidency Magistrate, to give security for good behaviour under section 117 may appeal to the District Magistrate. Act X, 1872, s. 267.

Appeal from order requiring security for good behaviour.

406. Any person convicted on a trial held by any Magistrate of the second or third class, or any person sentenced by a Sub-divisional Magistrate of the second class under section 351, may appeal to the District Magistrate. Act X, 1872, s. 266, omitting "or to a Magistrate of the third class not empowered."

Appeal from sentence of Magistrate of the second or third class.

The District Magistrate may refer any appeal under this section, or may call for the record of any case in which any such Magistrate of the second class has passed a sentence, to any Magistrate of the first class subordinate to him and empowered by the Local Government to hear such appeals, and may withdraw from any such Magistrate any appeal so referred.

Transfer of appeals to first class Magistrate.

407. Any person convicted on a trial held by the District Magistrate or other Magistrate of the first class, or any person sentenced under section 351 by a Magistrate of the first class, may appeal to the Court of Session: Act X, 1872, s. [illegible]

Appeal from sentence of Magistrate of the first class.

Provided that when a District Magistrate passes a sentence in exercise of powers conferred by section 34, and such sentence has been submitted to the Court of Session under section 382, the appeal shall lie to the High Court: Act X, 1872, s. 270.

Provided also that any European British subject so convicted may at his option appeal either to the High Court or the Court of Session. Act X, 1872, s. 79.

408. Any person convicted by an Assistant Sessions Judge may, when the sentence is not submitted for confirmation to the Sessions Judge, appeal to the Sessions Judge, except in the case of an European British subject, when the appeal shall lie to the High Court. Act X, 1872, s. 270.

Appeal from sentences of Assistant Sessions Judge not requiring confirmation.

409. An appeal to the Court of Session or Sessions Judge shall be heard by the Sessions Judge or by an Additional or Joint Sessions Judge.

Appeals to Court of Session how heard.

Act X, 1872, ss. 80, 270, 271. Act XI, 1874, s. 22.

410. Any person convicted on a trial held by a Sessions Judge, or Additional or Joint Sessions Judge, or convicted by an Assistant Sessions Judge, where the case has been submitted by the Sessions Judge under section 382, may appeal to the High Court.

Appeal from sentence of Sessions Court.

Act IV, 1877, s. 167.

411. Any person convicted on a trial held by a Presidency Magistrate may appeal to the High Court if the Magistrate has sentenced him to imprisonment for a term exceeding six months or to fine exceeding two hundred rupees.

Appeal from sentence of Presidency Magistrates.

Act X, 1872, s. 273, last para. Act IV, 1872, s. 167.

412. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, where an accused person has been convicted by a Court of Session or a Presidency Magistrate on his own plea, there shall be no appeal except as to the extent or legality of the sentence.

No appeal in certain cases when accused pleads guilty.

Act X, 1872, s. 273.

413. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, there shall be no appeal by a convicted person in cases in which a Court of Session or the District Magistrate or other Magistrate of the first class passes a sentence of imprisonment not exceeding one month only, or of fine not exceeding fifty rupees only, or of whipping only.

No appeal in petty cases.

Act X, 1872, s. 274.

414. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, there shall be no appeal by a convicted person in cases tried summarily in which a Magistrate empowered to act under section 263 passes a sentence of imprisonment not exceeding three months only, or of fine not exceeding two hundred rupees only, or of whipping only.

No appeal from certain summary convictions.

Act X, 1872, s. 274, para. 2.

Proviso to sections 413 and 414.

Act XI, 1874, s. 24.

EXPLANATION.—A sentence of imprisonment in default of payment of fine is not a sentence by which two or more punishments are combined within the meaning of this section.

Act X, 1872, s. 274.

416. Nothing in sections 413 and 414 applies to appeals from sentences passed on European British subjects under chapter XXXIV.

Saving of sentences on European British subjects.

Act X, 1872, s. 272. Act IV, 1877, s. 168, para. 1.

417. The Local Government may direct the Public Prosecutor to present an appeal to the High Court from an original or appellate order of acquittal, dismissal or discharge.

Appeal on behalf of Government in case of acquittal, &c.

418. An appeal may lie on a matter of fact as well as a matter of law except where the conviction was in a trial by jury, in which case the appeal shall be admissible on a matter of law only.

Act X, 1872, s. 271, last para. Appeal Act 1877, s. 1.

Appeal on what matters admissible.

419. No appeal shall lie from any judgment or order of a Criminal Court except as provided for by this Code or by any other law for the time being in force.

Act X, 1872, ss. 285, 286. Act IV, 1877, s. 180.

Unless otherwise provided, no appeal to lie from judgment or order of Criminal Court.

420. Every appeal shall be made in the form of a petition in writing presented by the appellant, and every such petition shall be accompanied by a copy of the judgment or order appealed against, and in cases tried by a jury a copy of the heads of the charge recorded under section 369.

Act X, 1872, ss. 275, 276. Act IV, 1877, s. 169.

Petition of appeal.

421. If the appellant is in jail, he may present his petition of appeal, and the copy of the judgment or order appealed against, to the officer in charge of the jail, who shall thereupon forward such petition and copy to the proper Appellate Court.

Act X, 1872, s. 277. Act IV, 1877, s. 171.

Procedure when appellant in jail.

422. On receiving the petition and copy under section 420 or section 421, the Appellate Court shall peruse the same, and if it considers that there is no sufficient ground for interfering, it may reject the appeal summarily. Provided that no appeal presented under section 420, shall be dismissed unless the appellant or his pleader has had a reasonable opportunity of being heard in support of the same.

Act X, 1872, s. 278. Act IV, 1877, s. 172, omitting last sentence.

Summary rejection of appeal.

Before rejecting an appeal under this section, the Court may call for the record of the case, but shall not be bound to do so.

423. If the Appellate Court does not reject the appeal summarily, it shall cause notice to be given to the appellant and the Public Prosecutor of the time and place at which such appeal will be heard, and shall furnish the Public Prosecutor with a copy of the grounds of appeal;

Act X, 1872, ss. 62, 269, para. 2, 279. Act IV, 1877, s. 173.

Notice of appeal.

and in cases of appeals under section 417, the Appellate Court shall cause a like notice to be given to the accused.

Act XI, 1874, s. 27.

424. The Appellate Court shall then send for the record of the case and, after perusing the same and hearing the appellant or his pleader, if he appears, and the Public Prosecutor if he appears, may, if it considers there is no sufficient ground for interfering, reject the appeal or may—

Act X, 1872, s. 280. Act IV, 1877, ss. 174, 176.

Powers of Appellate Court in disposing of appeal.

(a) in an appeal from an order of acquittal, reverse such order and direct that further inquiry be made, or that the accused be retried or committed for trial, as the case may be, or find him guilty and pass sentence on him according to law;

(b) in an appeal from an order of discharge or dismissal, reverse such order and direct that further inquiry be made;

Act X, 1872, s. 284.

(c) in an appeal from a conviction (1) reverse the finding and sentence, and order the accused to be discharged or retried by a Court of competent jurisdiction subordinate to such Appellate Court, or (2) alter the finding, or enhance or reduce the sentence with or without altering the finding, or (3) alter the nature of the sentence with or without such enhancement or reduction and with or without altering the finding;

(d) in an appeal from any other order, alter or reverse such order:

Provided that, if the appeal is from the sentence of a Magistrate, the Appellate Court shall not inflict a greater punishment for the offence which, in the opinion of the Appellate Court, the appellant has committed than might have been inflicted for such offence by a Presidency Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class:

Provided also that nothing herein contained shall authorise the Court to alter or reverse the verdict of a jury, unless it is of opinion that such verdict is erroneous owing to a misdirection by the Judge.

425. The rules contained in chapter XXVII as to the judgment of a Criminal Court of original jurisdiction shall apply, so far as may be practicable, to the judgment of any Appellate Court other than a High Court.

Judgments of subordinate Appellate Courts.

Act X, 1872, s. 281, and sec. 297, para. 8, in case of Court of Revision. Act IV, 1877, s. 176.

426. Pending any appeal by a convicted person, the Appellate Court may order that the execution of the sentence or order appealed against be suspended and, if he is in confinement, that he be released on bail.

Suspension of sentence pending appeal.

Release of appellant on bail.

When the appellant is ultimately sentenced to imprisonment, the time during which he is so released shall be excluded in computing the term of his imprisonment.

Act IV, 1877, s. 168, para. 3, I. L. R. I. Calc. 281.

427. When an appeal is presented under section 417, the High Court may order the accused person to be arrested and brought before it, and may commit him to prison pending the disposal of the appeal or admit him to bail.

Arrest of accused in appeals under section 417.

Act X, 1872, s. 282. Act IV A 1872, s. 176.

428. In dealing with any appeal under this chapter, the Appellate Court, if it thinks additional evidence to be necessary, may either take such evidence itself, or may direct it to be taken by a Magistrate.

Appellate Court may take further evidence or direct it to be taken.

When the additional evidence is taken by the Magistrate, he shall certify such evidence to the Appellate Court, and such Court shall thereupon proceed to dispose of the appeal.

Unless the Appellate Court otherwise directs, the appellant or his pleader shall be present when the additional evidence is taken; but such evidence shall not be taken in the presence of jurors or assessors.

429. When the Judges composing the Court of appeal are equally divided, the case, with their opinions thereon, shall be laid before another Judge of the same Court, and such Judge, after such examination and hearing as he thinks fit, shall deliver his opinion, and the judgment or order shall follow such opinion.

Act X, 1872, s. 271B. Act XI, 1874, s. 22.

Procedure where Judges of Court of appeal, &c., are equally divided.

430. Judgments and orders passed by an Appellate Court upon appeal shall be final, except in the cases provided for in section 417 and chapter XXXIII.

Act X, 1872, s. 285.

Finality of orders on appeal.

431. Every appeal under this chapter finally abates on the death of the appellant or, in the case of an appeal under section 417, on the death of the accused.

I. L. R. 1 Bom. 566.

Abatement of appeals.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Of Reference and Revision.

432. A Presidency Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, refer for the opinion of the High Court any question of law which arises in the hearing of any case pending before him, or may give judgment in any such case subject to the decision of the High Court on such reference; and, pending such decision, may either commit the accused to jail or release him on bail to appear for judgment when called upon.

Act IV, 1877, s. 240.

Reference by Presidency Magistrate to High Court.

433. When a question has been so referred, the High Court shall pass such order thereon as it thinks fit, and shall cause a copy of such order to be sent to the Magistrate by whom the reference was made, who shall dispose of the case conformably to the said order.

Act IV, 1877, s. 241.

Disposal of case according to decision of High Court.

The High Court may direct by whom the costs of such reference shall be paid.

Direction as to costs.

434. When any person has, in a trial before a Judge of a High Court acting in the exercise of its original criminal jurisdiction, been convicted of an offence, the Judge, if he thinks fit, may reserve and refer for the decision of a Court consisting of two or more Judges of such Court any question of law which has arisen in the course of the trial of such person, and the determination of which would affect the event of the trial.

Act X, 1872, s. 101. Queen v. Charlesworth, Courts Chief C.

Power to reserve questions arising in original jurisdiction of High Court.

If the Judge reserves any such question, the person convicted shall, pending the decision thereon, be remanded to jail or, if the Judge thinks fit, be admitted to bail,

Procedure when question reserved.

and the High Court shall have power to review the case, or such part of it as may be necessary, and finally determine such question, and thereupon to alter the sentence passed by the Court of original jurisdiction, and to pass such judgment and sentence as the High Court thinks fit.

872, s. 294, 295. 14 Beng. 253.

435. The High Court or any Court of Session or District Magistrate may call for and examine the record of any proceeding before any inferior Criminal Court situate within the local limits of its or his jurisdiction for the purpose of satisfying itself or himself as to the legality or propriety of any finding, sentence or order recorded or passed, and as to the regularity of the proceedings of such inferior Court.

Power to call for records of inferior Courts.

Act X, 1872, s. 520, I would refer. See I. L. R. 2 Calc. 68, from which it appears that the High Court cannot interfere even under section 15 of the High Court Act.

Orders made under sections 141 and 142 are not proceedings within the meaning of this section.

X, 1872, s. 296, paras. 2, 3. XI, 1874, s. 9. Beng. 389.

436. When on examining the record of any case under section 435 the Court of Session or District Magistrate considers that such case is triable exclusively by the Court of Session, and that an accused person has been improperly discharged by the inferior Court, the Court of Session or District Magistrate may direct him to be committed for trial upon the matter of which he has been, in the opinion of the Court of Session or District Magistrate, improperly discharged:

Power to order commitment.

O'Kin. 93.

Provided that the accused has had an opportunity of shewing cause to such Court or Magistrate why the committal should not be made:

XI, 1874, s. 39.

Provided also that, if such Court or Magistrate thinks that the evidence shows that some other offence has been committed by the accused, such Court or Magistrate may direct the inferior Court to inquire into such offence.

X, 1872, s. 298. XI, 1874, s. 31.

437. On examining any record under section 435, the Court of Session may direct the District Magistrate by himself or by any of the Magistrates subordinate to him, or the District Magistrate may direct any subordinate Magistrate, to make further inquiry into any complaint which has been dismissed under section 204.

Power to order inquiry.

X, 1872, s. 296, para. 1.

438. The Court of Session or District Magistrate may, if it or he thinks fit, on examining under section 435 the record of any proceeding, report for the orders of the High Court the results of such examination.

Report to High Court.

X, 1872, s. 297. 1, R. 2 Calc. 113. All. I, 139. Bomb. 125; Nelson 287. O'Kin. 84.

439. In the case of any proceeding the record of which has been called for by itself, or which has been reported for orders, or which otherwise comes to its knowledge, the High Court may, in its discretion, exercise any of the powers conferred on a Court of Appeal by sections 424, 426, 427 and 428, and when the Judges composing the Court of revision are equally divided, the case shall be disposed of in manner provided by section 429.

High Court's powers of revision.

This will empower High Court to reduce amount of forfeited recognizance.

440. No party has any right to be heard either personally or by pleader before any High Court when exercising its powers of revision; but the High Court may, if it thinks fit, when exercising such powers, hear any party either personally or by pleader.

Optional with Court to hear parties.

Act X, 1872, s. 297, last para.

441. When the record of any proceeding of any Presidency Magistrate is called for by the High Court under section 435, the Magistrate may submit with the record a statement setting forth the grounds of his decision or order and any facts which he thinks material to the issue; and the Court shall consider such statement before overruling or setting aside the said decision or order.

Statement by Magistrate of grounds of his decision to be considered by High Court.

Act IV, 1877, s. 182.

442. Whenever a case is revised by the High Court under this chapter, it shall certify its decision or order to the Court by which the finding, sentence or order was recorded or passed. If the finding, sentence or order was recorded or passed by a Magistrate other than the District Magistrate, the certificate shall be sent through the District Magistrate.

Order on revision to be certified to lower Court or District Magistrate.

Act X, 1872, s. 299.

The Court or Magistrate to which the High Court certifies its order shall thereupon make such orders as are conformable to the decision of the High Court and, if necessary, the record shall be amended in accordance therewith.

PART VIII.

SPECIAL PROCEEDINGS.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS AGAINST EUROPEANS AND AMERICANS.

443. No charge against a European British subject shall be inquired into or tried by any Magistrate, unless he is a Justice of the Peace, and (except in the case of a Presidency Magistrate) unless he is a Magistrate of the first class and a European British subject.

Magistrates who may inquire into and try charges against European British subjects.

Act X, 1872, s. 74.

444. No charge against a European British subject shall be tried by any Sessions Court unless the presiding Judge is a European British subject.

Sessions Judge to be an European British subject.

445. Nothing in section 443 or section 444 shall prevent any Magistrate from taking cognizance of an offence committed by any European British subject in any case in which he could take cognizance of a like offence if committed by another person:

Cognizance of offence committed by European British subject.

Act X, 1872, ss. 79, 443.

Provided that if he issues any process for the purpose of compelling the appearance of a European British subject accused of an offence, such process shall be made returnable before a Magistrate having jurisdiction to inquire into or try the case.

Act X, 1872, s. 73.

446. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 32, or section 34, no Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate shall pass any sentence on a European British subject other than imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months, or fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or both.

Sentences which may be passed by mufassal Magistrates.

Act X, 1872, ss. 75, 438.

447. When a European British subject is accused of an offence before a Magistrate, and such offence cannot, in the opinion of such Magistrate, be adequately punished by him, and is not punishable with death or with transportation for life, such Magistrate shall, if he thinks that the accused ought to be committed, commit him to the Court of Session or, in the case of a Presidency Magistrate, to the High Court.

When commitment is to be to Court of Session and to High Court.

Act XI, 1874, s. 12.

When the offence complained of is punishable with death or transportation for life, the commitment shall be to the High Court.

448. Where any person committed to the High Court under section 447 is charged with several offences of which one is punishable with death or transportation for life and the others with a less punishment, and the High Court considers that he should not be tried for the offence punishable with death or transportation, the High Court may nevertheless try him for the other offence.

Trial for offences of which one is, and the others are not, punishable with death or transportation.

Act X, 1872, s. 76.

449. Sessions Judges, Additional Sessions Judges or Joint Sessions Judges, and, when specially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government, Assistant Sessions Judges who have been Assistant Sessions Judges for not less than three years, may pass on European British subjects any lawful sentence of imprisonment for a term which may extend to one year, or fine, or both.

Sentences which may be passed by Court of Session.

If at any stage of the proceedings in a Sessions Court, before the signing of the judgment, the presiding Judge thinks that the offence which appears to be proved cannot be adequately punished by such a sentence, he shall record his opinion to that effect and transfer the case to the High Court. Such Judge may either himself bind over, or direct the committing Magistrate to bind over, the complainant and witnesses to appear before the High Court.

Procedure when Sessions Judge finds his powers inadequate.

Act X, 1872, s. 77.

450. If the Judge of the Sessions Division within which the offence is ordinarily triable is not a European British subject, the case shall be reported by the committing Magistrate for the orders of the High Court.

Procedure when Sessions Judge is not a European British subject.

Act X, 1872, s. 78. Act X, 1872, s. 86.

451. In trials of European British subjects before a High Court or Court of Session, if before the first juror is called and accepted or the first assessor is appointed, as the case may be, any such subject requires to be tried by a mixed jury, or by a mixed set of assessors, not less than half the number of the jurors or assessors shall be Europeans or Americans, or both Europeans and Americans.

Mixed jury for trial of European British subjects.

Act X, 1872, s. 86.

452. In any case in which a European British subject is accused jointly with a person not being an European British subject, and such European British subject is committed for trial before a High Court or Court of Session, such persons may be tried together, and the procedure on the trial shall be the same as it would have been had the European British subject been tried separately:

Trial of European British subject and Native jointly accused.

Act X, 1872, s. 86.

Provided that, if the European British subject requires under section 451 to be tried by a mixed jury, or by a mixed set of assessors, and the person not being a European British subject requires that he shall be tried separately, the latter person shall be tried separately in accordance with the provisions of chapter XXIII.

When Native may claim separate trial.

Act X, 1872, s. 87.

453. When any person claims to be dealt with as a European British subject, he shall state the grounds of such claim to the Magistrate before whom he is brought for the purposes of the inquiry or trial; and such Magistrate shall inquire into the truth of such statement, and allow the person making it a reasonable time within which to prove that it is true, and shall then decide whether he is or is not a European British subject, and shall deal with him accordingly. If any such person is convicted by such Magistrate and appeals from such conviction, the burden of proving that the Magistrate's decision was wrong shall lie upon him.

Procedure on claim of European British subject to be dealt with as such.

Act X, 1872, s. 83.

When any such person is committed by the Magistrate for trial before the Court of Session, and such person again before such Court claims to be dealt with as a European British subject, such Court shall after such further enquiry if any, as it thinks fit, decide whether he is or is not a European British subject, and shall deal with him accordingly. If he is convicted by such Court and appeals from such conviction, the burden of proving that the Court's decision was wrong shall lie upon him.

When the Court before which any person is tried decides that he is not a European British subject, such decision shall form a ground of appeal from the sentence or order passed in such trial.

454. If a European British subject does not claim to be dealt with as such by the Magistrate before whom he is tried or by whom he is committed, or if, when such claim

Failure to plead status a waiver.

Act X, s. 84.

has been made before and disallowed by the committing Magistrate, it is not again made before the Court to which he is committed, he shall be held to have waived his privilege as such European British subject, and shall not assert it in any subsequent stage of the same case.

X, 1872, s. 455. Unless the Magistrate has reason to believe that any person brought before him is not a European British subject, the Magistrate shall ask such person whether he is such a subject or not.

Trial under this chapter of person not a European British subject.

455. Where a person who is not a European British subject is dealt with under this chapter as such, and does not object, the inquiry, commitment or trial (as the case may be) shall not, by reason of such dealing, be invalid.

X, 1872, s. 456. Any European British subject who is detained in custody by any person, and who considers such detention unlawful, may apply to the High Court which would have jurisdiction over him in respect of any offence committed by him at the place where he is detained, or to which he would be entitled to appeal from any conviction for any such offence, for an order directing the person detaining him to bring him before the High Court to abide such further order as it may pass.

Right of European British subject under detention to apply for order to produce his person.

X, 1872, s. 457. The High Court, if it thinks fit, may, before issuing such order, inquire on affidavit or otherwise, into the grounds on which it is applied for, and grant or refuse such application; or it may issue the order in the first instance and, when the person applying for it is brought before it, it may make such further order in the case as it thinks fit, after such inquiry (if any) as it thinks necessary.

Procedure on such application.

X, 1872, 458. The High Court may issue such orders throughout the territories within the local limits of its appellate criminal jurisdiction, and such other territories as the Governor General in Council may from time to time direct.

Territories throughout which High Court may issue such orders.

XXII, 459. Unless there be something repugnant in the context, all enactments heretofore or hereafter made by the Governor General in Council, which confer summary jurisdiction over offences, shall be deemed to apply to European British subjects, although such persons be not expressly referred to therein.

Application of Acts conferring summary jurisdiction.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize any court to exceed the limits prescribed by this chapter as to the amount of punishment which it may inflict on an European British subject, or to confer jurisdiction on any Magistrate not being a Justice of the Peace or on any Magistrate outside the Presidency towns not being an European British subject.

Act X, 1872, s. 234. 460. In every case in which an European (not being an European British subject) or an American is the accused person, or one of the accused persons, not less than half the number of jurors or assessors shall, if practicable and if such European or American so desires, be Europeans, or Americans.

Jury for trial of Europeans or Americans.

Act X, 1872, s. 242. 461. Whenever an European or American is charged before the Court of Session jointly with a person of any other race, and claims to be tried by a jury consisting of at least one-half of Europeans and Americans, such person shall, if he so desires, be tried separately.

Jury when European or American charged jointly with one of another race.

Act X, 1872, s. 408. 462. When a trial is to be held before the Court of Session in which the accused person, or one of the accused persons, is entitled to be tried by a jury constituted under the provisions of section 451, or section 460, the Court shall, three days at least before the day fixed for holding such trial, cause to be summoned, in the manner hereinafter prescribed, as many European and American jurors as are required for the trial.

Summoning and empannelling jurors under section 451, or 460.

The Court shall also at the same time in like manner cause to be summoned the same number of other persons named in the revised list, unless such number of such other persons has been already summoned for trials by jury at that session.

From the whole number of persons returned, the jurors who are to constitute the jury shall be chosen by lot in the manner prescribed in section 279, until a jury containing the proper number of Europeans or Americans, or a number approaching thereto as nearly as possible, has been obtained.

463. Criminal proceedings against European British subjects, Europeans not being European British subjects, and Americans before the Court of Session and High Court, shall, except as otherwise expressly provided, be conducted according to the provisions of chapter XXIII.

Conduct of criminal proceedings against European British subjects.

CHAPTER XXXV.

LUNATICS.

Act X, 1872, s. 423. Act IV, 1877, s. 194. 464. When any person accused of an offence before a Magistrate holding an inquiry or a trial appears to such Magistrate to be of unsound mind and incapable of making his defence,

Procedure in case of accused being lunatic.

the Magistrate shall inquire into the fact of such unsoundness, and shall cause such person to be examined by the Civil Surgeon of the district or such other medical officer as the Local Government directs, and thereupon shall examine such Surgeon or other officer as a witness, and shall reduce the examination into writing.

If such Magistrate is of opinion that the accused is of unsound mind, he shall postpone further proceedings in the case.

Act X, 1872, s. 425. Act X, 1875, s. 120. 465. If any person committed for trial before a Court of Session or a High Court appears to the Court at his trial to be of unsound mind and incapable of making his defence, the Court shall, in the first instance, try the fact of such unsoundness and incapacity and, if satisfied of the fact, shall pass judgment accordingly, and thereupon the trial shall be postponed.

Procedure in case of person committed before Court of Session or High Court being lunatic.

Act XI, 1874, s. 39. The trial of the fact of the unsoundness of mind and incapacity of the accused shall be deemed to be part of his trial before the Court.

Act X, 1872, s. 426. Act X, 1875, s. 121. Act IV, 1877, s. 196. 466. Whenever an accused person is found to be of unsound mind and incapable of making his defence, the Magistrate or Court, as the case may be, if the offence of which such person is accused is bailable, may release him on sufficient security being given that he shall be properly taken care of, and shall be prevented from doing injury to himself or to any other person, and for his appearance when required before the Magistrate or Court or such officer as the Magistrate or Court appoints in this behalf.

Release of lunatic pending investigation or trial.

If the offence is not bailable, or if sufficient security is not given, the Magistrate or Court shall report the case to the Local Government, and the Local Government may order such person to be confined in a Lunatic Asylum or other suitable place of safe custody, and the Magistrate or Court shall give effect to such order.

Custody of lunatic.

I. L. R. 2 Calc. 356.

Act X, 1872, s. 427. Act X, 1875, s. 122. Act IV, 1877, s. 197. 467. Whenever an inquiry or trial is postponed under section 464 or section 465, the Magistrate or Court, as the case may be, may at any time resume the inquiry or trial, and require the accused to appear or be brought before such Magistrate or Court.

Resumption of inquiry or trial.

When the accused has been released under section 466, and the sureties for his appearance produce him to the officer whom the Magistrate or Court appoints in this behalf, the certificate of such officer that the accused is capable of making his defence shall be receivable in evidence.

Act X, 1872, s. 428. Act X, 1875, s. 123. Act IV, 1877, s. 198. 468. If, when the accused appears or is again brought before the Magistrate or the Court, as the case may be, the Magistrate or Court considers him capable of making his defence, the inquiry or trial shall proceed.

Procedure on accused appearing before Magistrate or Court.

If the Magistrate or Court considers the accused person to be still incapable of making his defence, the Magistrate or Court shall again act according to the provisions of section 464 or section 465, as the case may be.

Act X, 1872, s. 424. Act IV, 1877, s. 195. 469. When the accused appears to be of sound mind at the time of inquiry or trial, and the Magistrate is satisfied from the evidence given before him that there is reason to believe that the accused committed an act which, if he had been of sound mind, would have been an offence, and that he was at the time when the act was committed, by reason of unsoundness of mind, incapable of knowing the nature of the act or that it was contrary to law, the Magistrate shall proceed with the case and, if the offence be triable exclusively by the Court of Session or High Court, send the accused for trial before the Court of Session or High Court, as the case may be.

When accused appears to have been insane.

Act X, 1872, s. 429. Act X, 1875, s. 124. Act IV, 1877, s. 199. 39 & 40 Geo. III, c. 94. Reg. v. Macnaughten, 10 Cl. & Fin. 200. 470. Whenever any person is acquitted upon the ground that, at the time at which he is alleged to have committed an offence, he was, by reason of unsoundness of mind, incapable of knowing the nature of the act alleged as constituting the offence complained of, or that it was contrary to law, the judgment of acquittal shall state specially whether he committed the act or not.

Judgment of acquittal on ground of lunacy.

Act X, 1872, s. 430. Act X, 1875, s. 125. Act IV, 1877, s. 200. 471. Whenever such judgment states that the accused person committed the act alleged, the Magistrate or Court before whom or which the trial has been held shall, if such acquittal would, but for the incapacity found, have constituted an offence, order such person to be kept in safe custody in such place and manner as the Magistrate or Court thinks fit, and shall report the case for the order of the Local Government.

Person acquitted on such ground to be kept in safe custody.

The Local Government may order such person to be confined in a Lunatic Asylum, jail or other suitable place of safe custody.

Act X, 1872, s. 432. Act X, 1875, s. 127. Act IV, 1877, s. 202. 472. When any person is confined under the provisions of section 466 or section 471, the Inspector General of Prisons, if such person is confined in a jail, or the visitors of the Lunatic Asylums or any two of them, if he is confined in a Lunatic Asylum, may visit him in order to ascertain his state of mind; and he shall be visited once at least in every six months by such Inspector General or by two of such visitors as aforesaid; and such Inspector General or visitors shall make a special report to the Local Government as to the state of mind of such person.

Lunatic prisoners to be visited by Inspector General.

Act X, 1872, s. 431. Act X, 1875, s. 126. Act IV, 1877, s. 201. 473. If such person is confined under the provisions of section 466, and such Inspector General or visitors shall certify that, in his or their opinion, such person is capable of making Procedure where lunatic prisoner is reported capable of making his defence.

his defence, he shall be taken before the Magistrate or Court, as the case may be, at such time as the Magistrate or Court appoints, and the Magistrate or Court shall deal with such person under the provisions of section 468; and the certificate of such Inspector General or visitors as aforesaid shall be receivable as evidence.

Act X, 1872, s. 483. Act X, 1875, s. 128. Act X, 1877, s. 208.

474. If such person is confined under the provisions of section 466 or section 471, and such Inspector General or visitors shall certify that, in his or their judgment, he may be discharged without danger of his doing injury to himself or to any other person, the Local Government may thereupon order him to be discharged, or to be detained in custody, or to be transferred to a public Lunatic Asylum if he has not been already sent to such an Asylum, and in case it orders him to be transferred to an Asylum, may appoint a commission, consisting of a judicial officer and two medical officers, whereof the chief medical officer attached to the Asylum shall be one.

Procedure where lunatic confined under section 466 or 471 is declared fit to be discharged.

The said commission shall make formal inquiry into the state of mind of such person, taking such evidence as is necessary, and shall report to the Local Government, who may order his discharge or detention as it thinks fit.

Act X, 1872, s. 484. Act X, 1875, s. 129. Act IV, 1877, s. 204.

475. Whenever any relative or friend of any person confined under the provisions of section 466 or section 471 desires that he shall be delivered over to his care and custody, the Local Government, upon the application of such relative or friend, and on his giving security to the satisfaction of such Government that the person delivered shall be properly taken care of and shall be prevented from doing injury to himself or to any other person, may order such person to be delivered to such relative or friend.

Delivery of lunatic to care of relative.

Whenever such person is so delivered, it shall be upon condition that he shall be produced for the inspection of such officer and at such times as the Local Government directs.

The provisions of sections 472 and 474 shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to persons delivered under the provisions of this section; and the certificate of the inspecting officer appointed under this section shall be dealt with as a certificate under section 474.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Proceedings in case of certain Offences affecting the Administration of Justice.

Act X, 1872, ss. 471, 477. Act X, 1875, s. 135. Act IV, 1877, s. 44, omitting last para. I. L. R. 1 Cal. 454. I. L. R. 1 All. 121, 193. 14 & 15 Vic., c. 100, s. 17.

476. When any Court is of opinion that there is ground for enquiring into any offence referred to in section 196, and committed before it or brought under its notice in the course of a judicial proceeding, such Court, after making any preliminary inquiry that may be necessary, may send the case for enquiry to any Magistrate having power to try or commit for trial the accused for such offence, and may send the accused in custody, or take sufficient security for his appearance, before such Magistrate; and may bind over any person to appear and give evidence on such trial or enquiry.

Procedure in cases mentioned in section 196.

Such Magistrate shall thereupon proceed according to law, and may, if he is authorised to transfer cases under section 193, transfer the enquiry to some other competent Magistrate, instead of completing the inquiry himself.

Act X, 1872, s. 472. Reg. Nomal. Beng. Crim. 11.

477. A Court of Session may charge a person for any offence referred to in section 196 and committed before it, or brought under its notice in the course of a judicial proceeding, and may commit, or admit to bail and try, such person upon its own charge.

Power of Session Court as to such offences committed before itself.

Such Court may direct the Magistrate to cause the attendance of any witnesses for the purposes of the trial.

Act X, 1872, s. 474, paras. 1 and 2.

478. When any such offence is committed before any Civil Court, or brought under the notice of any Civil Court in the course of a judicial proceeding and such case is triable exclusively by the High Court or Court of Session, or such Civil Court thinks that it ought to be tried by the High Court or Court of Session, such Civil Court may, instead of sending the case under section 476 to a Magistrate for enquiry, itself complete the enquiry, and commit or hold to bail the accused person to take his trial before the High Court or Court of Session, as the case may be.

Power of Civil Courts to complete investigation and commit to Sessions Court.

Act X, 1872, s. 476.

For the purposes of an enquiry under this section, the Civil Court may exercise all the powers of a Magistrate; and its proceedings in such enquiry shall be conducted as nearly as may be in accordance with the provisions of chapter XVIII, and shall be deemed to have been held by a Magistrate.

Act X, 1872, s. 475.

479. When any such commitment is made by a Civil Court, the Court shall send the charge with the order of commitment and the record of the case to the Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate or other Magistrate authorised to commit for trial; and such Magistrate shall bring the case before the High Court or Court of Session, as the case may be, together with the witnesses for the prosecution and defence.

Procedure of Civil Court in such cases.

Act X, 1872, s. 486. Act IV, 1877, s. 206.

480. When any such offence as is described in section 175, 178, 179, 180, or 228 of the Indian Penal Code is committed in the view or presence of any Court, the Court may cause the offender, whether he is a European British subject or not, to be detained in custody; and at any time before the rising of the Court on the same day* may, if it thinks fit, take cognizance of the offence and sentence the offender to fine not exceeding two hundred rupees and, in default of payment, to imprisonment in the civil jail for a term which may extend to one month, unless such fine be sooner paid.

Procedure in certain cases of contempt.

* Pollard's case, L. R. 2 P. C. 106.

481. In every such case, the Court shall record the facts constituting the offence, with the statement (if any) made by the offender, as well as the finding and sentence.

Record in such cases.

If the offence is under section 228 of the Indian Penal Code, the record must show the nature and stage of the judicial proceeding in which the Court interrupted or insulted was sitting, and the nature of the interruption or insult offered.

New. 13 Bengal Appendix 40.

482. A Registrar appointed under the Indian Registration Act, 1877, shall be deemed to be a Civil Court within the meaning of section 480.

Registrar to be deemed a Civil Court within section 480.

Act X, 1872, s. 486, para. 1. Act IV, 1877, s. 206.

483. If the Court in any case considers that a person accused of any of the offences referred to in section 480 and committed in its view or presence should be imprisoned otherwise than in default of payment of fine, or that a fine exceeding two hundred rupees should be imposed upon him, or such Court is for any other reason of opinion that the case should not be disposed of under section 480, such Court, after recording the facts constituting the offence and the statement of the accused as hereinbefore provided, may forward the case to a Magistrate having jurisdiction to try the same, and may require security to be given for the appearance of such accused person before such Magistrate or, if sufficient security is not given, shall forward such person under custody to such Magistrate.

Procedure where Court considers that case should not be dealt with under section 480.

The Magistrate to whom any person is forwarded under this section shall proceed to hear the complaint against him in manner hereinbefore provided.

Act X, 1872, s. 487. Act IV, 1877, s. 207.

484. When any Court has under section 480 or 483 adjudged an offender to punishment, or forwarded him to a Magistrate for trial, for refusing or omitting to do anything which he was lawfully required to do, or for any intentional insult or interruption, the Court may in its discretion discharge the offender or remit the punishment on his submission to the order or requisition of such Court, or on apology being made to its satisfaction.

Discharge of offender on submission or apology.

Act X, 1872, ss. 356, 364. Act X, 1875, s. 89. Act IV, 1877, s. 141.

485. If any witness before a Court refuses to answer such questions as are put to him or to produce any document in his possession or power which the Court requires him to produce, and does not offer any reasonable excuse for such refusal, such Court may sentence him to simple imprisonment, or commit him to the custody of an officer of the Court, for any term not exceeding seven days, unless in the meantime such person consents to be examined and to answer; after which, in the event of his persisting in his refusal, he may be dealt with according to the provisions of section 480 or 483, and in the case of a High Court shall be deemed guilty of a contempt.

Imprisonment or committal of person refusing to answer or produce document.

Omitting 'by warrant under his hand and seal.'

Act X, 1872, s. 485.

486. Any person convicted by any Court under section 480 or section 485 may appeal to the Court to which decrees or orders made in such Court are ordinarily appealable.

Appeals from convictions in contempt-cases.

Sections 420, 421, 422, 426 and 428 shall apply to appeals under this section, and the Appellate Court may alter or reverse the finding or sentence appealed against, and may if it sees fit enhance any punishment that has been awarded.

An appeal from such conviction by a Small Cause Court may be made to the Court of Session for the Sessions Division within which such Court is situate.

New.

An appeal from such conviction by any officer as Registrar appointed as aforesaid may, when such officer is also Judge of a Civil Court, be made to the Court to which it would, under the preceding portion of this section, be made if such conviction were a conviction by such officer in his capacity as such Judge, and in other cases may be made to the Inspector-General of Registration.

Act X, 1872, s. 473. I. L. R. Bomb. 1 All. 625. 7 Mad. App. Pro. See I. L. R. 1 Mad. 305. I. L. R. 1 All. 625.

487. Except as provided in sections 477, 480, and 485, no Judge or Magistrate other than a Judge of a High Court, the Recorder of Rangoon, and the Presidency Magistrates, shall try any person for any offence referred to in section 196, when such offence is committed before himself or brought under his notice in a judicial proceeding.

Judge or Magistrate not to try offences referred to in section 481 when committed before himself.

Nothing in section 476 or 483 shall prevent a Magistrate empowered to commit to the Court of Session or High Court from committing any case to such Court, or shall prevent a Presidency Magistrate from himself disposing of any case instead of sending it for enquiry to another Magistrate.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

Of the Maintenance of Wives and Children.

Act X, 1872, s. 536. Act IV, 1877, s. 234.

488. If any person having sufficient means neglects or refuses to maintain his wife or his legitimate or illegitimate child unable to maintain itself, the District Magistrate, a Presidency Magistrate, a Sub-Divisional Magistrate, or a Magistrate of the first class may, upon proof of such neglect or refusal, order such person to make a monthly allowance for the maintenance of his wife or such child, at such monthly rate, not exceeding fifty rupees in the whole, as such Magistrate thinks fit, and to pay the same to such person as the Magistrate from time to time directs.

Order for maintenance of wives and children.

Such allowance shall be payable from the date of the order.

If any person so ordered wilfully neglects to comply with the order, any such Magistrate may, for every breach of the order, issue a warrant for levying the amount due in manner hereinbefore provided for levying fines, and may sentence such person, for each month's allowance remaining unpaid, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding one month:

Enforcement of order.

Provided that, if such person offers to maintain his wife on condition of her living with him, and she refuses to live with him, such Magistrate may consider any grounds of refusal stated by her; and may make an order under this section notwithstanding such offer, if he is satisfied that such person is living in adultery, or that he has habitually treated his wife with cruelty.

Proviso.

No wife shall be entitled to receive an allowance from her husband under this section if she is living in adultery or if, without any sufficient reason, she refuses to live with her husband, or if they are living separately by mutual consent.

[illegible] 1872, s. 538, Act IV, 1877, s. 2, Act X, 1877, s. 546.

489. The Magistrate may, on proof of a change in the circumstances of any person receiving or ordered, under section 488, to pay a monthly allowance, his wife or child, may make such alteration in the allowance ordered as the Magistrate thinks fit, provided the monthly rate of fifty rupees be not exceeded.

Alteration in allowance.

Act X, 1872, s. 538, Act IV, 1877, s. 296.

490. A copy of the order of maintenance shall be given without payment to the person in whose favour it is made, or to his guardian, if any; and such order shall be enforceable by any Magistrate in any place where the person against whom it is made may be, on such Magistrate being satisfied as to the identity of the parties and the non-payment of the allowance due.

Enforcement of order of maintenance.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

State-Prisoners.

[illegible] Reg. III, 1818, s. 2. [illegible] Reg. II, 1819, s. 2. Bombay Reg. XXV of 1827, preamble and section 1.

491. Whenever, for all or any of the reasons of State hereinafter mentioned, the Governor General in Council, the Governor of Fort St. George in Council, or the Governor of Bombay in Council is of opinion that any person should be placed under personal restraint, without any immediate view to ulterior judicial proceedings, a warrant of commitment under the authority of the Governor General in Council, the Governor of Fort St. George in Council or the Governor of Bombay in Council (as the case may be) and under the hand of one of the Secretaries to Government, shall be issued to the officer in whose custody such person (hereinafter called a State-prisoner) is to be placed.

Procedure in placing persons under restraint as State-prisoners.

The reasons above referred to are as follows:—

(a) the maintenance of the alliances formed by the British Government with foreign powers;

(b) the preservation of tranquillity in the territories of Native Princes and States entitled to its protection;

(c) the security of the British dominions from foreign hostility or internal commotion.

Act III, 1858, s. 2.

492. Such warrant shall authorize the detention of the State-prisoner therein mentioned in any fortress, jail or other place within British India.

Form and effect of warrant.

Ben. Reg. III, 1818, s. 5. Mad. Reg. II, 1819, s. 5. Bombay Reg. XXV, 1827, s. 5, clause 2.

493. The officer in whose custody any State-prisoner has been placed under this chapter or under any enactment repealed by this Code, shall forward, with such observations as he thinks necessary, to the Government under whose authority such prisoner was so placed, every representation which he may from time to time be desirous of submitting to such Government.

Representations made by State-prisoners to be submitted to Government.

Ben. Reg. III, 1818, s. 6. Mad. Reg. II, 1819, s. 6. Bombay Reg. XXV, 1827, s. 5, clause 1.

494. Every officer in whose custody any State-prisoner is placed shall, as soon after taking such prisoner into his custody as may be practicable, report to such Government whether the degree of confinement to which the State-prisoner is subjected seems likely to injure his health, and whether the allowance fixed for his support is adequate to the supply of his own wants and those of his family then with him according to their rank in life.

Report to Government regarding nature of confinement, health and allowances of State-prisoners.

Ben. Reg. III, 1818, s. 9. Mad. Reg. II, 1819, s. 9. Bombay Reg. XXV, 1827, s. 7.

495. Whenever the Governor General in Council, the Governor of Fort St. George in Council or the Governor of Bombay in Council for any of the reasons mentioned in section 491, considers it necessary to attach the lands of any proprietor without any previous decision of a Court of justice or other judicial proceeding, he shall direct the District Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the lands are situate to attach such lands, and they shall be attached accordingly.

Attachment of lands by order of Government.

Ben. Reg. III, 1818, s. 10. Mad. Reg. II, 1819, s. 10. Bombay Reg. XXV, 1827, s. 8.

496. The lands so attached shall be held under the management of the Collector, and shall be administered in the same manner as the estates of disqualified proprietors under the superintendence of Government.

Lands attached to be placed under management,

Such lands shall not be liable to be sold in execution of decrees of the Civil Courts, or for the realization of fines or otherwise, so long as they are so held under attachment, without the consent of the Government and the proprietor.

and not to be sold in execution.

But the whole or any part of the annual nett proceeds of such lands may, if the Government so directs, be applied to the satisfaction of the decrees of the Civil Courts against the proprietor.

Government to arrange for satisfying decrees.

Ben. Reg. III, 1818, s. 11. Mad. Reg. II, 1819, s. 11. Bom. Reg. XXV, 1827.

497. Whenever the Government by whose direction such lands were attached, is of opinion that the circumstances which rendered necessary the attachment have ceased to operate, and that the management of the lands can be committed to the proprietor without public hazard or inconvenience, such Government shall direct the Collector to release the lands from attachment, to adjust the accounts of the collection during the period in which they have been superintended by Government and to pay over to the proprietor the nett proceeds of the lands which have accumulated during the attachment.

Procedure where Government orders release of land from attachment.

Act XXXIV, 1850, s. 1. Act III, 1858, s. 3.

498. The warrant of commitment of any State-prisoner under this chapter may be directed to the Superintendent of the jail in any Presidency-town, or to the Commandant of any fortress, or to the officer in charge of any jail or other place, in which it is deemed expedient that such State-prisoner be confined, in any part of British India; and such warrant shall authorize the detention of such State-prisoner in the jail, fortress or other place therein mentioned.

Officers to whom warrant of commitment of State-prisoner may be directed.

Act III, 1858, s. 5.

499. The Governor General in Council may order the removal of any State-prisoner confined under this chapter or any enactment repealed by this Code from any jail, fortress or place in which he may be confined to any other jail, fortress or place of confinement within British India.

Removal of State-prisoners from one place of confinement to another.

Act XI, 1857, s. 6. Bom. Reg. XXV, 1827, chapter. 1, s. 1.

500. Nothing in this chapter applies to European British subjects.

Saving of European British subjects.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

Directions of the Nature of a Habeas Corpus.

Act X, 1875, s. 148.

501. Any of the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay may, whenever it thinks fit, direct—

Power to issue directions of the nature of a habeas corpus.

(a) that a person within the limits of its ordinary original criminal jurisdiction be brought up before the Court to be dealt with according to law;

(b) that a person illegally or improperly detained in public or private custody within such limits be set at liberty;

(c) that a prisoner detained in any gaol situate within such limits be brought before the Court to be there examined as a witness in any matter pending or to be inquired into in such Court;

(d) that a prisoner detained as aforesaid be brought before a Court-martial or any Commissioners acting under the authority of any Commission from the Governor General in Council for trial, or to be examined touching any matter depending before such Court-martial or Commissioners respectively;

(e) that a prisoner within such limits be removed from one custody to another for the purpose of trial;

(f) that the body of a defendant within such limits may be brought in on the Sheriff's return of cepi corpus to a writ of attachment.

Each of the said High Courts may from time to time frame rules to regulate the procedure in cases under this section.

Nothing in this section applies to State-prisoners detained under chapter XXXVIII or under any enactment hereby repealed.

PART IX.

SUPPLEMENTARY PROVISIONS.

CHAPTER XL.

Of the Public Prosecutor.

502. The Governor General in Council or the Local Government may appoint officers, to be called Public Prosecutors, who shall perform their functions in all or any cases or specified classes of cases in any local area, outside the Presidency-towns.

Power to appoint public prosecutors.

In any case committed for trial to the Court of Session, the District Magistrate, or, subject to the control of the District Magistrate, the Subdivisional Magistrate, may, in the absence of the Public Prosecutor, or where no Public Prosecutor has been appointed, appoint any other person, not being an officer of Police, to act as Public Prosecutor.

Act X, 1872, s. 60.

503. The Public Prosecutor may appear and plead without any written authority before any Court, in which any case of which he has charge is under inquiry, trial or appeal; and if any private person instructs a pleader to prosecute in any Court any person in any such case, the Public Prosecutor shall conduct the prosecution, and the pleader so instructed shall act therein under his directions.

Public Prosecutor may plead in all Courts in cases under his charge.

Pleaders, privately instructed, to be under his direction.

Act X, 1872, s. [illegible]

504. The Public Prosecutor may, with the consent of the Court, withdraw any charge against any person in any such case, and upon such withdrawal, if it is made whilst the case is under inquiry, the accused shall be discharged. If it is made when he is under trial, he shall be acquitted: provided that the charge is withdrawn, in cases tried by jury, before the return of the verdict, and in other cases, before the judgment is pronounced.

Effect of withdrawal of charge by Public Prosecutor.

[illegible] s.

[illegible] 1874, [illegible] 1877,

505. Any Magistrate inquiring into or trying any case may permit any person to conduct the prosecution; but no person, other than the Advocate General, Standing Counsel, Government Solicitor, or public prosecutor, shall be entitled to do so without such permission.

Permission to conduct prosecution.

Any person conducting the prosecution may do so personally or by a pleader.

CHAPTER XLI.

Of Bail.

Act X, 1872, ss. 388, 393, 394, para. 2; also ss. 123 and 204. Act IV, 1877, ss. 70, 74. Cr. P. 1874, s. 371.

506. When any person is arrested or detained by a Police-officer without warrant for a bailable offence, or appears or is brought before a Court accused of any such offence, and is prepared at any time while in the custody of such Police-officer or at any stage of the proceedings before such Court to give bail, such person shall be released on bail: Provided that such officer or Court, if he or it thinks fit, may, instead of taking bail from such person, discharge him on his executing a bond without sureties for his appearance as hereinafter provided.

Bail to be taken in case of bailable offence.

Act X, 1872, ss. 126, 389. Act IV, 1877, s. 71.

507. When any person accused of any non-bailable offence is arrested or detained without warrant by a Police-officer, or appears or is brought before a Court, he shall not be released on bail if there appear reasonable grounds for believing that he has been guilty of the offence of which he is accused.

When bail shall not be taken in case of non-bailable offence.

If it appears to such officer or Court at any stage of the investigation, inquiry or trial, as the case may be, that there is not reasonable ground for believing that such person has committed such offence, but that there is sufficient ground for further inquiry into his guilt, the accused person shall be released on bail pending such inquiry.

When it may be.

Any Court may, at any subsequent stage of any proceeding under this Code, cause any person who has been released under this section to be arrested, and may commit him to custody.

Act X, 1872, s. 390. Act X, 1875, s. 136. I. L. R. 1 All. 151.

508. The High Court or Court of Session may in any case, whether there be an appeal on conviction or not, direct that any accused person be admitted to bail, or that the bail required by a Police-officer or Magistrate be reduced.

Power to direct admission to bail or reduction of bail.

Bail to be taken under this chapter shall not be excessive.

Act X, 1872, s. 391. Act IV, 1877, s. 72.

509. Before any person is released on bail or released on his own bond, a bond for such sum of money as the Police-officer or Court, as the case may be, thinks sufficient shall be executed by such person, and when he is released on bail, by one or more sufficient sureties, conditioned that such person shall attend at the time and place mentioned in the bond, and shall continue so to attend until otherwise directed by the Police-officer or Court as the case may be.

Bond of accused and sureties.

If the case so require, the bond shall also bind the person released on bail to appear when called upon at the High Court, Court of Session or other Court to answer the charge.

Act X, 1872, s. 394. Act IV, 1877, s. 73.

510. As soon as the bond has been executed, the accused shall be released; and when he is in jail, the Court admitting him to bail shall issue an order of release to the officer in charge of the jail, and such officer on receipt of the order shall release him.

Discharge from custody.

Act X, 1872, s. 392. Act IV, 1877, s. 75.

511. If, through mistake or fraud, insufficient sureties have been taken, or if they afterwards become insufficient, the Court may issue a warrant of arrest directing that the accused person be brought before it, and may order him to find sufficient sureties, and on his failing so to do may commit him to jail.

Power to order sufficient bail when that first taken is insufficient.

Act X, 1872, s. 395. Act IV, 1877, s. 76.

512. All or any sureties for the attendance and appearance of a person released on bail may at any time apply to a Magistrate to discharge the bond either wholly or so far as relates to the applicants.

Discharge of sureties.

On such application being made, the Magistrate shall issue his warrant of arrest, directing that the person so released be brought before him.

On the appearance of such person pursuant to the warrant, or on his voluntary surrender, the Magistrate shall direct the bond to be discharged either wholly or so far as relates to the applicants, and shall call upon such person to find other sufficient sureties, and if he fails to do so, may commit him to jail.

CHAPTER XLII.

Of Commissions for the Examination of Witnesses.

Act X, 1872, s. 330, parns. 1 and 2. Act X, 1875, s. 76, para. 1, omitting provision where witness is in Native State. Act IV, 1877, s. 157. Act IV, 1877, s. 158.

513. Whenever, in the course of an inquiry or trial or other proceeding under this Code, it appears to a Presidency Magistrate, a Court of Session or the High Court that the examination of a witness is necessary for the ends of justice, and that the attendance of such witness cannot be procured without an amount of delay, expense or inconvenience which, under the circumstances of the case, would be unreasonable, such Magistrate or Court may dispense with such attendance and may issue a commission to any District Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class, within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such witness resides, to take the evidence of such witness.

When attendance of witness may be dispensed with.

Issue of commission and procedure thereunder.

The Magistrate to whom the commission is issued, or, if he is the District Magistrate, such Magistrate of the first class as he appoints in this behalf, shall proceed to the place where such witness is, or shall summon such witness before him, and shall take his evidence in the same manner, and may for this purpose exercise the same powers, as in trials of warrant-cases under this Code.

Act XI, 1874, s. 35. Act X, 1875, s. 76, para. 4.

514. If the witness is within the local limits of the jurisdiction of any Presidency Magistrate, the Magistrate or Court issuing the commission may direct the same to the said Presidency Magistrate, who thereupon may compel the attendance of, and examine, such witness as if he were a witness in a case pending before himself.

Commission in case of witness being within Presidency-town.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect the power of the High Court to issue commissions under the thirty-ninth and fortieth of Victoria, chapter 46, section 3.

Act X, 1872, s. 380, para. 4. Act X, 1875, s. 76, para. 5.

515. The parties to any proceeding under this Code in which a commission is issued may respectively forward any interrogatories in writing which the Magistrate or Court directing the commission may think relevant to the issue, and the Magistrate to whom the commission is directed shall examine the witness upon such interrogatories.

Parties may examine witness.

Such parties may appear before such Magistrate by pleader, or if not in custody, in person, and may examine, cross-examine and re-examine (as the case may be) the said witness.

Act X, 1872, s. 330, para. 5.

516. Whenever, in the course of a trial before any Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate, it appears that a commission ought to be issued for the examination of a witness whose evidence is necessary for the ends of justice, such Magistrate shall apply to the Court of Session to which he is subordinate, stating the reasons for the application; and such Court may either issue a commission in the manner hereinbefore provided or reject the application.

Power of mufassal Magistrate to apply for issue of commission.

Act X, 1872, s. 330, [illegible]

517. After any commission issued under section 513 or section 516 has been duly executed, it shall be returned, together with the deposition of the witness examined thereunder, to the Court out of which it issued; and the commission, the return thereto and the deposition of such witness shall be open at all reasonable times to inspection of the parties, and may, subject to all just exceptions, be read in evidence in the case by either party, and shall form part of the record.

Return of commission.

N. Y. Civ. Proc. Code, s. 705.

518. In every case in which a commission is directed under section 513 or section 516, the inquiry or trial may be stayed for a specified time reasonably sufficient for the execution and return of the commission.

Stay of inquiry or trial.

CHAPTER XLIII.

Special Rules of Evidence.

Act X, 1872, s. 323. Act X, 1875, s. 71. Act IV, 1877, s. 152.

519. The deposition of a Civil Surgeon or other medical witness, duly taken and duly attested by a Magistrate, may be given in evidence in any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code, although the deponent is not called as a witness.

Deposition of medical witness.

The Court may, if it thinks fit, summon and examine such deponent as to the subject-matter of his deposition.

Power to summon medical witness.

Act X, 1872, s. 325. Act X, 1875, s. 72. Act IV, 1877, s. 153.

520. Any document purporting to be a report under the hand of the Chemical Examiner or Assistant Chemical Examiner to Government, upon any matter or thing duly submitted to him for examination or analysis and report in the course of any proceeding under this Code, may be used as evidence in any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code.

Report of Chemical Examiner.

The Court may presume that the signature to any such document is genuine, and that the person signing it held the office which he purported by such signature to hold at the time when he signed the document.

Presumption as to signature.

The High Court or a Presidency Magistrate may, if it or he thinks fit, summon and examine such Chemical Examiner or Assistant Chemical Examiner as to the subject-matter of his said report.

Power to summon Chemical Examiner.

Act XVIII, 1862, s. 27. Not in Act X of 1872.

521. In proving the existence of circumstances as a defence under the second, third, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth or tenth Exception to section 499 of the Indian Penal Code, good faith shall be presumed until the contrary appears.

Good faith to be presumed in certain cases.

Act X, 1872, ss. 326, 515, last clause. Act X, 1875, s. 3. Act XV, 1877, s. 260.

522. A previous conviction or acquittal may be proved in any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code—

Previous conviction or acquittal how proved.

(b) in case of a conviction, either by a certificate signed by the officer in charge of the jail in which the punishment or any part thereof was inflicted, or by production of the warrant of commitment, under which the punishment was suffered.

Act X, 1872, s. 327. Act X, 1875, s. 74. Act IV, 1877, s. 155.

523. If it be proved that an accused person has absconded, and that there is no immediate prospect of arresting him, the Court competent to try or commit for trial such person for the offence complained of may, in his absence, examine the witnesses (if any) produced on behalf of the prosecution, and record their depositions, and any such deposition may, on the arrest of such person, be put in on his trial for the offence with which he is charged, if the attendance of the deponent cannot be procured.

Record of evidence in absence of accused.

CHAPTER XLIV.

Provisions as to Bonds.

Act X, 1872, s. [illegible]. Act X, 1875, s. [illegible]. Act IV, 1877, s. 80.

524. When any person is required by any Court or officer to execute a bond with or without sureties, such Court or officer may, except in the case of a bond for good behaviour, permit him to deposit a sum of money or Government promissory notes to such amount as the Court or officer may fix in lieu of executing such bond.

Deposit instead of recognizance.

Act X, 1872, ss. 396, 397, 398, 502, paras. 1 to 5, 503, 514. Act X, 1875, ss. 137, 138. Act IV, 1877, ss. 77, 78, 79, 228, 229.

525. Whenever it is proved before the Court by which a bond under this Code has been taken, or before the Court of a Presidency Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class, that such bond has been forfeited, such Court shall record the grounds of such proof, and may call upon any person bound by such bond to pay the penalty thereof, or to show cause why it should not be paid.

Procedure on forfeiture of bond.

If sufficient cause is not shown and the penalty is not paid, the Court may proceed to recover the same by issuing a warrant for the attachment and sale of the movable property belonging to such person.

Such warrant may be executed within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court which issued it; and it shall authorise the distress and sale of any movable property belonging to such person without such limits, when endorsed by the District Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such property is found.

If such penalty be not paid and cannot be recovered by such attachment and sale, the person so bound shall be liable, by order of the Court which issued the warrant, to imprisonment in the civil jail for a term which may extend to six months.

The Court may at its discretion remit any portion of the penalty mentioned and enforce payment in part only.

526. All orders passed under section 525 by any Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate or District Magistrate shall be appealable to the District Magistrate, or, if not so appealed, may be revised by him.

Appeals from, and revision of, orders under section 525.

Act X, 1872, s. 398, penultimate para.

527. The High Court or Court of Session may direct any Magistrate to levy the amount due on a bond to appear and attend at such High Court or Court of Session.

Power to direct levy of amount due on certain recognizances.

Act X, 1872, s. 398, last para. Act X, 1875, s. 138, last para. Act X, 1872, s. 418. Act X, 1875, s. 115. Act IV, 1877, ss. 243 & 244. Act XI, 1874, s. 38. High Court Rule, Bombay Government Gazette 18th Sept. 1877, p. 838.

CHAPTER XLV.

Of the Disposal of Property produced under this Code.

Qy. add provisions of 24 & 25 Vic. c. 96, s. 100, as to restoring stolen property on conviction of theft notwithstanding sale in market overt, and of 30 & 31 Vic., c. 35, s. 10, as to payment to innocent purchaser of stolen property of moneyforfeited on convicted thief not exceeding amount of proceeds of sale, upon application and upon restitution of stolen property.

528. When an inquiry or trial in any Criminal Court is concluded, the Court may make such order as it thinks fit for the disposal of any document or other property produced before it regarding which any offence appears to have been committed, or which has been used for the commission of any offence, or which has been produced as evidence in such inquiry or trial.

Order for disposal of property regarding which offence committed.

When a High Court or a Court of Session makes such order and cannot through its own officers conveniently deliver the property to the person entitled thereto, such Court may direct that the order be carried into effect by the committing Magistrate.

Explanation.—In this section the term "property" includes, in the case of property regarding which an offence appears to have been committed, not only such property as has been originally in the possession or under the control of any party, but also any property into or for which the same may have been converted or exchanged, and anything acquired by such conversion or exchange whether immediately or otherwise.

Act X, 1872, s. 419.

529. Any Court of appeal, confirmation, reference or revision may direct any such order passed by a Court subordinate thereto to be stayed pending consideration by the former Court, and may modify, alter or annul such order.

Stay of such order.

Act X, 1872, s. 420.

530. The order passed by any Court under section 528 or 529 may be in the form of a reference of the property to the District Magistrate or to a Sub-divisional Magistrate, who shall in such cases deal with it as if the property had been seized by the Police, and the seizure had been reported to him in the manner hereinafter mentioned.

Order may take form of reference to District Magistrate.

Livingston, p. 480.

531. On a conviction under the Indian Penal Code, section 292, 293, 501 or 502, the Court may order all the copies of the thing in respect of which the conviction was had, and which remain in the possession or power of the person convicted, to be destroyed.

Destruction of libellous and other matter.

The Court may in like manner, on a conviction under the Indian Penal Code, sections 272, 273, 274 or 275, order the food, drink, drug or medical preparation in respect of which the conviction was had to be destroyed.

Act X, 1872, s. 534. Act X, 1875, s. 142. Act IV, 1877, s. 233.

532. Whenever a person is convicted of using criminal force, and it appears to the Court that, by such force, any person has been dispossessed of any immoveable property, the Court may order such person to be restored to the possession of the same.

Power to restore possession of immoveable property.

No such order shall prejudice any right or interest to or in such immoveable property which any person may be able to establish in a civil suit.

Act X, 1872, s. 415. Act IV, 1877, s. 244.

533. The seizure by any Police-officer of property alleged or suspected to have been stolen or found under circumstances which create suspicion of the commission of any offence, shall be forthwith reported to a Magistrate, who shall thereupon make such order as he thinks fit respecting the delivery of such property to its owner, or if such owner cannot be ascertained, respecting the custody and production of such property.

Procedure by Police upon seizure of stolen property.

Act X, 1872, s. 416.

If the owner of such property is known, the Magistrate shall order it to be delivered to him on such condition (if any) as the Magistrate thinks fit. If the owner of such property is unknown, the Magistrate may detain it, and shall, in such case, issue a proclamation specifying the articles of which such property consists, and requiring any person who may have a claim thereto to appear before him and establish his claim within six months from the date of such proclamation.

Procedure where owner of property seized unknown.

Act X, 1872, s. 417. Act IV, 1877, s. 244.

534. If no person within such period establishes his claim to such property, and if the person in whose possession such property was found is unable to show that it was legally acquired by him, such property shall be at the disposal of the Government, and may be sold under the orders of the Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate or of a Magistrate of the first class empowered by the Local Government in this behalf.

Procedure where no claimant appears within six months.

In the case of every order passed under this section, an appeal shall be allowed to the Court to which appeals against sentences of the Court passing such order would lie.

535. If the owner of such property is unknown or absent, and such property is of a perishable nature, or the Magistrate is of opinion that its sale would be for the benefit of the owner, the Magistrate may at any time direct it to be sold; and the provisions of sections 533 and 534 shall, as nearly as may be, apply to the net proceeds of such sale.

Power to sell perishable property.

CHAPTER XLVI.

Of the Transfer of Criminal Cases.

Act X, 1872, s. 64. Act X, 1875, s. 147.

536. Whenever it is made to appear to the High Court—

High Court may transfer case, or itself try it.

(a) that a fair and impartial enquiry or trial cannot be had in any criminal Court subordinate thereto, or

(b) that some question of law of unusual difficulty is likely to arise, or

(d) that an order under this section will tend to the general convenience of the parties or witnesses—

it may order—

(1) that any offence be enquired into or tried by any Court not empowered under sections 175 to 182, but in other respects competent to enquire into or try such offence;

(2) that any particular criminal case or appeal, or class of such cases or appeals, be transferred from a Criminal Court subordinate to its authority to any other such Criminal Court of equal or superior jurisdiction, or

(3) that any particular criminal case or appeal be transferred to and tried before itself.

When the High Court withdraws for trial before itself any case from any Court other than the Court of a Presidency Magistrate, it shall, except as provided in section 270, observe in such trial the same procedure which that Court would have observed if the case had not been so withdrawn.

I. L. R., 1 Calc. 223.

Every application for the exercise of the power conferred by this section shall be made by motion which shall, except when the applicant is the Advocate General, be supported by affidavit or affirmation.

Archb. 88.

When an accused person makes an application under this section, the High Court may direct him to execute a bond conditioned that he will, if convicted, pay the costs of the prosecutor.

Act IV, 1877, s. 181.

Every accused person making any such application shall give to the Public Prosecutor notice in writing of the application, together with a copy of the grounds on which it is made; and no order shall be made on the merits of the application unless at least twenty-four hours have elapsed between the giving of such notice and the hearing of the application.

Notice to Public Prosecutor of application under this section.

Act X, 1872, s. 46 A Act X, 1874,

537. Whenever it appears to the Governor General in Council that the transfer next hereinafter mentioned will promote the ends of justice or tend to the general convenience of parties or witnesses, he may, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct the transfer of any particular criminal case or appeal from one High Court to another High Court, or from any Criminal Court subordinate to one High Court to any other Criminal Court of equal or superior jurisdiction subordinate to another High Court.

Power of Government of India to transfer criminal cases and appeals.

The Court to which such case or appeal is transferred shall deal with the same as if it had been originally instituted in, or presented to, such Court.

Act X, 1872, s. 47.

538. Any District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate may withdraw any case from, or recall any case which he has made over to any Magistrate subordinate to him, and may inquire into or try such case himself, or refer it for inquiry or trial to any other such Magistrate competent to inquire into or try the same.

Magistrate may withdraw or refer cases.

Act XI, 1874, s. 6

Act X, 1872, s. 14.

The Local Government may authorize the District Magistrate to withdraw from the Magistrates subordinate to him either such classes of cases as he thinks proper, or particular classes of cases.

Power to authorise District Magistrates to withdraw classes of cases.

CHAPTER XLVII.

OF IRREGULAR PROCEEDINGS.

Act X, 1872, s. 22.

539. If any Magistrate empowered by law to do under certain circumstances any of the following things, namely :—

Irregularities which do not vitiate proceedings.

Weir, p. 54.

(a) to issue a search-warrant, under section 97;

(b) to order, under section 153, the Police to investigate an offence;

(c) to hold an inquest under section 174;

(d) to issue process, under section 184, for the apprehension of a person within the local limits of his jurisdiction who has committed an offence outside such limits; or

(e) to take cognizance of an offence under section 192, clause (a) or clause (b);

(f) to transfer a case under section 193;

(g) to withdraw a case and try it himself under section 538;

by mistake or accident does that thing in the absence of any of the requisite circumstances, his proceedings shall not be set aside merely on the ground of such absence.

Irregularities which vitiate proceedings.

Act X, 1872, s. 34.

540. If any Magistrate, not being empowered by law in this behalf, does any of the following things (namely),—

(a) passes a sentence under section 351, on proceedings recorded by another Magistrate;

(b) takes cognizance under section 192, clause (c) of an offence;

(c) attaches and sells property under section 86;

(d) tries an offender summarily;

(e) decides an appeal;

(f) calls under section 485 for proceedings;

(g) issues a search-warrant for a letter in the Post-office, or a telegram in the Telegraph Department;

(h) revises under section 526 an order passed under section 525;

(i) demands security to keep the peace;

(j) discharges bonds to keep the peace;

(k) demands security for good behaviour;

(l) discharges a person lawfully bound to be of good behaviour;

(m) makes an order under section 131 as to a local nuisance;

(n) issues an order under section 141.

(o) prohibits under section 142 the repetition or continuance of a public nuisance;

(p) makes an order under chapter XII;

(q) makes an order for maintenance, or

(r) sells property under section 534 or section 535;

his proceedings shall be void.

Act X, 1872, s. 70. Act IV, 1877, s. 24.

541. No finding, sentence or order of any criminal Court shall be set aside merely on the ground that the inquiry, trial or other proceeding in the course of which it was arrived at or passed, took place in a wrong Sessions Division, District Sub-division or other local area, unless it appears that some party to such proceeding was prejudiced in the conduct of his case by such error.

Proceedings in wrong place.

Act X, 1872, s. 83. Act X, 1875, s. 25.

542. If any Magistrate or other authority purporting to exercise powers duly conferred, but not being so conferred, commits an accused person to take his trial before a Court of Session or High Court, the Court to which the commitment is made may, after perusal of the proceedings accept the commitment if it con-

When irregular commitments may be validated.

siders that the accused has not been prejudiced, unless objection was made on behalf either of the accused or of the prosecution to the jurisdiction of such Magistrate or other authority during the inquiry and before the order of commitment.

If such Court considers that the accused was prejudiced, or if such objection as aforesaid was so made, it shall quash the commitment, and direct a fresh inquiry by a competent Magistrate.

Omission to ask question prescribed by section 454, clause 2.

543. An omission to ask any person whether he is a European British subject in a case to which the second clause of section 454 applies shall not affect the validity of any proceeding.

Act X, 1872, s. 216, Expln. I.

544. No finding or sentence pronounced or passed shall be deemed invalid merely on the ground that no charge was framed, unless, in the opinion of the Court of appeal or revision, a failure of justice has been occasioned thereby.

Effect of omission to prepare charge.

Act X, 1872, s. 216, Expln. II.

If the Court of appeal or revision thinks that a failure of justice has been occasioned by an omission to frame a charge, it shall order that a charge shall be framed, and that the trial be recommenced from the point immediately after the framing of the charge.

Act X, 1872, s. 233, Explanation.

545. If an offence triable with the aid of assessors is tried by a jury, the trial shall not on that ground be invalid.

Trial by jury of offences triable with assessors.

If an offence triable by a jury is tried with the aid of assessors, the trial shall not on that ground only be invalid, unless the objection is taken before the Court records its finding.

Trial with assessors of offences triable by jury.

Act XI, 1874, s. 41.

546. No error or defect in any judgment shall invalidate the proceedings where such error or defect is in a matter not affecting the merits of the case.

Errors in judgment.

Act X, 1872, ss. 283, 300 11 & 12 Vic., c. 43, s. 9. Act IV, 1877, ss. 117, 177. I. L. R., 1 All. 610.

547. Subject to the provisions hereinbefore contained, no finding, sentence or order passed by a Court of competent jurisdiction shall be reversed or altered on appeal or revision on account of any error or omission in the complaint or summons or in the charge, or in the proceedings during trial, or any misdirection in any charge to a jury, unless such error or omission or misdirection has occasioned a failure of justice either by affecting the due conduct of the prosecution, or by injuring the accused person as to his defence on the merits.

Finding or sentence when reversible by reason of error or omission in charge or proceedings.

Act IV, 1877, ss. 31, 178. 11 Bomb. 138.

Subject as last aforesaid, no irregularity in the proceedings prior to the commencement of the trial is a sufficient ground for reversing any sentence or order passed in a trial properly held.

Act X, 1872, s. 548.

548. No distress made under this Code shall be deemed unlawful, nor shall any person making the same be deemed a trespasser, on account of any defect or want of form in the summons, conviction, writ of distress or other proceedings relating thereto.

Distress not illegal nor distrainer a trespasser for defect of form in proceedings.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Act X, 1872, s. 149.

549. Affidavits and affirmations to be used before any High Court or any officer of such Court may be sworn and affirmed before such Court or the Clerk of the Crown, or any Commissioner or other person appointed by such Court for that purpose, or any Judge or Commissioner for taking affidavits in any Court of Record in British India, or any Commissioner to administer oaths in Chancery in England or Ireland, or any Magistrate authorized to take affidavits or affirmations in Scotland.

Courts and persons before whom affidavits may be sworn.

556. At the time of awarding compensation in any subsequent civil suit relating to the same matter, the Court shall take into account any sum which may have been paid as compensation under section 554.

Payments to be taken into account in subsequent suit.

Act X, 1872, s. 276. Act XI, 1872, s. 25. Act IV, 1877, s. 170.

557. If any person affected by a judgment or order passed by a Criminal Court desires to have a copy of the Judge's charge to the jury or of any order or deposition or other part of the record, he shall, on applying for such copy, be furnished therewith: provided that he pay for the same, unless the Court, for some special reason, thinks fit to furnish it free of cost.

Copies of Proceedings.

Ben. Reg. XX of 1825.

558. When any officer or soldier or other person subject to any Act of Parliament for the time being in force for the punishment of mutiny and desertion in the army, and who is serving with any body of troops in Her Majesty's service at any place situate more than one hundred and twenty miles from the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, respectively, is accused of having committed any offence punishable under the Indian Penal Code, and which if committed in England would be punishable by the criminal law there, any Magistrate before whom such officer, soldier or other person is brought shall, unless the Governor General in Council otherwise directs, deliver him, together with a statement of the offence of which he is accused, to the commanding officer of the regiment, corps or detachment to which he belongs, or to the commanding officer of the nearest military station, for the purpose of being brought for trial before a Court-martial.

Delivery to Military authorities of persons subject to the Mutiny Act.

Every Magistrate shall, on receiving a written application for that purpose by the commanding officer of any body of troops stationed or employed at any such place, use his utmost endeavours to apprehend and secure any such officer, soldier or other person accused of an offence.

Apprehension of such persons.

Any person appointed to conduct the proceedings of a Court-martial held under any such Act may send the Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction persons required to attend before such Court-martial reside any process to compel the attendance of such persons; and the Magistrate shall aid in the execution of such process and of all other processes issued by such Courts-martial.

Enforcement of process for attendance of witnesses before Courts-martial.

Act X, 1872, s. 187.

559. Police-officers superior in rank to officers in charge of a Police-station may exercise the same powers, within the District or sub-division to which they are appointed, as may be exercised by officers in charge of Police-stations within the limits of their respective stations.

Powers of superior officers of Police.

Act IV, 1877, s. 17.

560. Upon complaint made to a Presidency Magistrate on oath of the abduction or unlawful detention of a woman, or of a female child under the age of fourteen years, for any unlawful purpose, he may make an order for the immediate restoration of such woman to her liberty, or of such female child to her husband, parent, guardian or other person having the lawful charge or government of such child, and may compel compliance with such order, using force if necessary.

Power to compel restoration of abducted females in Presidency-town.

Act IV, 1877, s. 242, omitting provision as to complaints, which is provided for elsewhere.

561. Whenever any person causes a Police-officer to arrest another person in a Presidency-town, if it appears to the Magistrate by whom the case is heard that there was no sufficient ground for causing such arrest, the Magistrate may award such compensation, not exceeding fifty rupees, to be paid by the person so causing the arrest to the person so arrested for his loss of time and expenses in the matter, as the Magistrate thinks fit.

Compensation to person groundlessly given in charge in Presidency-town.

In such cases, if more persons than one are arrested or complained against, the Magistrate may, in like manner, award to each of them such compensation, not exceeding fifty rupees, as such Magistrate thinks fit.

All compensation awarded under this section may be recovered as if it were a fine, and if it cannot be so recovered, the person by whom it is payable should be imprisoned in the civil jail for such term not exceeding thirty days as the Magistrate directs, unless such sum is sooner paid.

Act X, 1827, ss. 292, 293.

562. With the previous sanction of the Local Government, every High Court not established by Royal Charter may from time to time—

Power of certain High Courts to make rules.

(a) make rules for keeping all books, entries and accounts to be kept in all criminal Courts subordinate to it, and for the preparation and transmission of any returns or statements to be prepared and submitted by such Courts; and

(b) frame forms for every proceeding in the said Courts for which it thinks that a form should be provided;

(c) make rules for regulating its own practice and proceedings and the practice and proceedings of all criminal Courts subordinate to it:

Provided that such rules and forms be not inconsistent with this Code or any other law in force for the time being.

All rules made under this section shall be published in the official Gazette.

563. Subject to the power conferred by section 562 and by the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth of Victoria, chapter 104, section 15, the forms set forth in the fifth schedule hereto annexed, with such variation as the circumstances of each case require, shall be used for the respective purposes therein mentioned.

Forms.

Act X, 1872, s. 337.

564. The Local Government may determine what, for the purposes of this Code, shall be held to be the language of each Court, other than the High Court, established within the territories administered by such Government.

Power to decide language of the Court.

565. All powers conferred by this Code on the Local Government may be exercised from time to time as occasion requires.

Powers of Local Government exercisable from time to time.

Act X, 1872, ss. 3 & [illegible] Act IV, 1877, ss. 5 & [illegible]

566. The procedure prescribed by this Code shall be followed, so far as may be, in all cases pending in any criminal Court when this Code comes into force and in all miscellaneous criminal cases and proceedings instituted in any Court.

Pending cases and miscellaneous proceedings.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

No less than three Codes of Criminal Procedure are now in operation in British India: Act X of 1872, amended by Act XI of 1874, which is in force throughout the Mufassal; the High Courts' Act, X of 1875, which is in force in the Presidency-towns, Allahabad and Lahore, and the Presidency Magistrates' Act, IV of 1877, also in force in the Presidency-towns.

Many of the provisions of these Codes merely repeat one another; many of their rules, though dealing with the same subjects, unnecessarily vary in language; and the result is that the bulk of the Indian Statute-book is far greater than need be and that the Courts when construing one Code are often deprived of the guidance of prior decisions on another.

The primary object of this Bill, which has been framed at the suggestion of the Secretary of State, is to recast the Code of 1872, combining with it the substance of the High Courts' Act and the Presidency Magistrates' Act, and incorporating in it the numerous reported decisions on its wording, and thus at last give to India a single and complete Code of Criminal Procedure, and carry out, so far, the policy of providing a simple and uniform system of law for this country. The language and arrangement of Act X of 1872 have, for obvious reasons, been departed from only so far as is necessary for the main purpose of the Bill.

2. Though many of the outlying Acts and Regulations dealing with Criminal Procedure were repealed and re-enacted by Act X of 1872, many more are still untouched, and the secondary object of the present Bill is to consolidate these enactments, which are ten in number:—

Acts.

XXIII of 1840 (Execution of process).
XXXIV of 1850 (State prisoners).
III of 1858 (State prisoners).
XVIII of 1862 (Administration of Criminal Justice in the High Courts).
II of 1869 (Justices of the Peace).
XXII of 1870, sections 2 and 4 (Application to European British subjects of Acts giving summary jurisdiction).

Regulations.

Bengal Regulation III, 1818 (State prisoners).
Bengal Regulation XX of 1825 (Jurisdiction of Courts Martial).
Madras Regulation II, 1819 (State prisoners).
Bombay Regulation XXV, 1827 (State prisoners).

3. The result of consolidating the Acts and Regulations above specified will be to substitute a single Act of 566 sections for fourteen enactments containing 1046 unrepealed sections.

4. The present Bill is divided into nine Parts, the first containing the usual preliminary matter; the second dealing with the constitution and powers of the Criminal Courts and offices; the third containing some general provisions; the fourth treating of the prevention of offences; the fifth, of information to the Police and of their powers to investigate; the sixth, of proceedings in prosecutions; the seventh, of appeal, reference and revision; the eighth, of special proceedings; the ninth, of supplementary provisions.

Preliminary.

5. Part I consists of a single chapter containing the usual preliminary matter. The wording of some of the definitions in Act X of 1872 has been amended and definitions of 'to sign,' 'public prosecutor,' 'pleader,' 'offence,' 'chapter,' 'schedule' and 'place' have been added. The definition of 'European British subject' has been extended to persons naturalized in British India. Words referring to acts done are declared to extend also to illegal omissions, and words such as 'special law,' 'local law,' defined in the Penal Code will have the meanings attached to them respectively by that Code. On the other hand, the definitions of 'inquired into,' 'trial,' 'Magistrate's case,' have been omitted as not needed in the Code in its revised form.

Criminal Courts.

6. Part II (constitution and powers of the Criminal Courts and offices) consists of two chapters, of which the first deals (a) with the classes of Criminal Courts, (b) with territorial divisions, (c) with Courts outside the Presidency-towns, (d) with the Courts of the Presidency Magistrates, (e) with Justices of the Peace and (f) with the suspension and removal of Judges, Magistrates and Justices of the Peace. The second chapter treats of the powers of Judges and Magistrates, the description of offences cognizable by each Court, the sentences which may be passed by Courts of various classes, and the mode of conferring powers on the latter. The changes of the law here made are little more than verbal, save that in section 39 (= Act X of 1872, section 56), as to the continuance of powers of an officer transferred to another local area, words have been introduced to shew clearly that the direction therein mentioned may have preceded the transfer. In connection with section 33 as to power to sentence to imprisonment in default of payment of fine, it will be necessary to pass simultaneously with the Bill a short Act amending section 67 of the Penal Code, by inserting a declaration that such imprisonment shall be simple.

Section 35 declares, in accordance with a decision of the Bombay High Court, that, for the purpose of confirmation or appeal, a combined sentence, in case of simultaneous convictions for several offences, shall be deemed to be a single sentence.

General Provisions.

7. Part III contains certain general provisions which it seems convenient to group together and which, to avoid forward references, must stand near the beginning of the Code. They relate to the following matters: aid and information to the Magistrates and Police: arrest, escape and retaking: processes to compel appearance and production of documents. Here, again, the changes in the law are little more than verbal, save that, to the offences which the public are bound to assist in preventing, has been added (section 41) attempts to injure public property: that the section (44) authorizing, in the case of forcible resistance, the use of necessary means to effect arrests, has been extended to meet the case of attempts to evade them; that power has been given (section 47) to break open the doors of a house for the purpose of liberating persons who have lawfully entered for the purpose of making arrests therein: that persons making arrests have been expressly empowered (section 50) to take from the person arrested any offensive weapons which he may have about him; that the Police have been authorized to arrest, without warrant, deserters from the Navy; and that sections (63, 64) equivalent to Act XXV of 1861, section 112, have been inserted to provide for the retaking of persons escaping or rescued from lawful custody.

8. Under the present Code (Act X of 1872, section 153), summonses issued by Magistrates are ordinarily served "through a Police-officer:" the Bill (section 65) provides that they shall ordinarily be served by an officer of the Court, but that the Magistrate may direct service by the Police. Persons to or with whom a summons is delivered, tendered or left may be required (section 67) to countersign a copy of the original. Provision is made (sections 70, 71) for the service of a summons outside the local jurisdiction of the Magistrate who issues it, and for the proof of such service.

9. Section 72 requires that all warrants of arrest, whether issued in the Presidency-towns or the Mufassal, shall be sealed. Act IV of 1877, section 56, does not in such cases require a seal.

10. Section 85 clears up a doubt as to the commencement of the period provided in the corresponding section (171) of Act X of 1872, for the appearance of a person absconding against whom a warrant has been issued.

11. On the other hand, the power to arrest without warrant persons against whom a hue and cry has been raised is omitted, as that obsolete common-law process is unknown in India, and the section authorizing masters and mates to arrest deserters from ships is omitted, as the matter is sufficiently provided for by the Merchant Shipping Act.

Prevention of Offences.

12. Part IV, which relates to the prevention of offences, comes, it is considered, properly before Part VI, which relates to their prosecution. It comprises six chapters dealing respectively with lawful resistance; security for keeping the peace and for good behaviour; the dispersion of unlawful assemblies; suppression of nuisances; disputes as to immoveable property; and, lastly, the preventive action of the Police.

13. The provision (section 104) relating to lawful resistance to the commission of an offence is new. It declares that such resistance may be made by any person in the cases and to the extent in and to which he may exercise the right of private defence—a right defined and limited by the Penal Code, sections 96—106.

14. In the chapter relating to bonds for keeping the peace, and for good behaviour, provision has been made (section 116) as to the manner of conducting inquiries. We have made it clear in section 124 that a Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate, and Magistrate of the first class can cancel a bond on the application of a surety. Such Magistrates are also empowered (section 108) to require security for good behaviour.

15. In the chapter (X) on dispersion of unlawful assemblies, volunteers enrolled under the Indian Volunteers Act, 1869, are placed on the same footing as soldiers of Her Majesty's army.

Information to the Police, and their power to investigate.

16. Part V consists of a single chapter relating to information to the Police and their power to investigate. It corresponds with chapter X of Act X of 1872, and sections 379, 380 of the same Act.

17. The words "or that immediate arrest is not necessary," which are to be found in section 117 of Act X of 1872, have been omitted from section 155 of the Bill, as it is not apparent why a police-officer should be debarred from investigating a case of a cognizable offence because he does not at starting feel himself justified in arresting any person.

18. Section 162 makes it clear that confessions to Magistrates shall not only be "taken," but signed and certified, like examinations of accused persons.

19. Power resembling that conferred on Coroners by Act IV of 1871, section 11, has been given (section 174) to Magistrates authorized to hold inquests, to disinter and examine corpses in order to discover the cause of death.

Proceedings in Prosecutions.

20. Part VI treats of proceedings in prosecutions up to appeal, and is divided into seventeen chapters, arranged as follows:—

XV. Jurisdiction of Criminal Courts in Inquiries and Trials.
XVI. Complaints to Magistrates.
XVII. Commencement of Proceedings before Magistrates.
XVIII. Inquiry into cases triable by the Court of Session or High Court.
XIX. The Charge.
XX. Trial of Summons Cases by Magistrates.
XXI. Trial of Warrant Cases by Magistrates.
XXII. Summary Trials.
XXIII. Trials before High Courts and Courts of Session.
XXIV. Tender of Pardon in cases triable by the High Court or Court of Session.
XXV. General Provisions as to Inquiries and Trials.
XXVI. Evidence.
XXVII. The Judgment.
XXVIII. Submission of Sentences for Confirmation.
XXIX. Execution.
XXX. Suspensions, Remissions and Commutations of Sentences.
XXXI. Previous Acquittals or Convictions.

It will be seen that the above-mentioned chapters are arranged, as nearly as may be, according to the chronological order of the events in a prosecution.

Chapter XV (as to the jurisdiction of the Courts in inquiries and trials) deals, first, with the place of inquiry or trial: then with the time of commencing prosecutions: and, thirdly, with the conditions requisite for the initiation of proceedings.

21. "Delay," says Livingston, "inflicts punishment on the innocent, or lessens the force of example by punishing the guilty after the crime he has committed is forgotten." Sections 186-191 accordingly contain rules as to the time within which prosecutions for most offences must be commenced. There will be no limit for prosecutions for the following: offences against the State; offences relating to the Army and Navy; false evidence and offences against public justice; offences relating to coin and Government stamps; offences under the Penal Code, sections 299 to 311, 359 to 373 and 390 to 414; offences under the same Code relating to documents, trade and property-marks and marriage. Three years is the period fixed in case of the following: offences against the public tranquillity; offences by or relating to public servants; contempts of their lawful authority; offences against property other than those against trade and property-marks. For all other offences six months is the period prescribed. That time during which the accused is absent from the jurisdiction of the Court empowered to try him, or fails to surrender pursuant to a proclamation, will be excluded in computing the prescribed periods.

22. Section 196 requires that the sanction to entertain complaints of certain offences shall, so far as practicable, specify the place in which, and the occasion on which, the offence complained of was committed.

23. Chapter XVI, of complaints to Magistrates, corresponds to sections 144 to 147 of Act X of 1872, but adds (section 202) a provision that a complaint in writing made to a Magistrate not competent to entertain it shall be returned for presentation to the proper tribunal.

24. Chapter XIX, of the charge, extends to the whole of British India the amendments in Act X of 1872, sections 439 to 459, made by Act X of 1875; and with reference to Mr. Justice West's observations in Reg. v. Chand Hur, 11 Bomb. 241, on the corresponding section (457) of Act X of 1872, section 241 of the Bill has been confined to offences consisting of several particulars, a combination of some only of which constitutes a complete minor offence.

25. The provision (Act X of 1872, section 218) that the accused shall, while making his defence, be allowed to recall and cross-examine the witnesses for the prosecution has been expressly confined (section 259) to cases where the witnesses are present in the Court or its precincts.

26. In chapter XXII, summary trials, the Local Government has been authorised to confer on Benches invested with second or third class powers jurisdiction to try abetments of, and attempts to commit, the offences which they may now try summarily.

27. Chapter XXIII provides a common procedure for the High Court and the Court of Session, preserving, however, the special rules as to juries and their verdicts.

When a juror becomes unable to attend or absents himself, power is given (section 295), with the consent of the prosecutor and the accused, to proceed with the remaining jurors.

Where jurors or assessors have been taken to view the place in which the offence charged is alleged to have been committed, the Court has been empowered (section 296) to exempt them from being immediately brought back.

Where the Sessions Judge disagrees with a verdict of acquittal and submits the case to the High Court, he is required (section 310) to state the offence which he considers to have been committed, and the High Court is empowered to acquit or convict the accused of any offence of which the jury could have convicted him upon the charge framed and placed before it. This, it is believed, is the intention of the corresponding clause of section 263 of Act X of 1872.

28. Much doubt exists as to the offences which may lawfully be compounded. The Exception to section 214 of the Penal Code (in which the law on the subject is contained) is excessively obscure, and this obscurity is increased rather than diminished by the illustrations annexed to that section. The Bill repeals these illustrations; and section 347 declares in unmistakeable language that certain specified offences, and no others, may be compounded. It will be necessary to pass simultaneously with the Bill a short Act declaring that, for the Exception to section 280 of the Penal Code, the following shall be substituted:—

"Exception.—The provisions of sections 213 and 214 do not extend to any case in which the offence may lawfully be compounded."

29. In chapter XXVII, as to judgment, section 369 allows the judgments of Mufassal Courts to be written in the mother-tongue of the presiding officer.

30. In chapter XXIX, as to execution, there are no sections corresponding with sections 319, 320 of Act X of 1872. The reason for this omission is that the matter with which they deal does not belong to criminal procedure, but falls within the scope of the Prisoners' Act, 1871; and it is proposed that, simultaneously with the passing of the present Bill, a short Act be passed, substituting for section 33 of the Prisoners' Act, and for section 57 of Act IV of 1877, a section equivalent to Act X of 1872, sections 319, 320.

31. Chapter XXX, as to suspensions, remissions and commutations of sentences.—Where application is made for the suspension or remissions of a sentence, the Government is empowered (section 402) to require the presiding Judge of the Court before which the conviction was had to furnish a statement of the facts proved on the trial, and of any facts bearing on the propriety of granting or refusing the application.

Appeal, Reference and Revision.

32. Part VII deals with appeals, references and the revisional jurisdiction of the High Court.

Section 407 provides that the appeal from a District Magistrate exercising the enhanced powers conferred under section 34 shall lie to the Court of Session in cases in which the sentence has not been submitted to that Court for confirmation, and, when it has been so submitted, to the High Court. This puts the appeals in question on the same footing as appeal from an Assistant Sessions Judge. There seems to be no reason for making any distinction between the two.

33. Section 424, in accordance with a decision of the Madras High Court (I. L. R. 1 Mad. 54), declares that, when an Appellate Court enhances any punishment inflicted by the sentence appealed against, it may inflict punishment of a different kind.

34. In the case of an appeal from an acquittal, section 427 expressly authorizes the High Court to order the accused to be arrested and brought before it, and to commit him to prison pending the disposal of the appeal, or admit him to bail.

35. A section (431) suggested by a decision of the Bombay High Court (I. L. R. 2 Bomb. 564) provides that appeals by persons required to give security for good behaviour or by convicted persons abate on their death, and that appeals against acquittals abate on the death of the accused. The power of revision conferred by section 439 will enable the High Court to alter sentences even after the appeal has abated.

36. Where, in the opinion of the Court of Session or District Magistrate, an accused person has been improperly discharged by an inferior Court, the accused should not be committed without having had an opportunity of shewing cause why the committal should not be made (1 O'K. 98). Provision to this effect has been made by section 436.

37. Section 439 (corresponding with Act X of 1872, section 297) has been framed so as to allow the High Court, when exercising its revisional jurisdiction, to interfere with improper acquittals. There is reason to believe that this change is in accordance with the intention of the framers of Act X of 1872.

Special Proceedings.

38. Part VIII, as to special proceedings, deals with the procedure relating to the following matters:—criminal proceedings against Europeans and Americans: lunatics: contempts of Court and other offences affecting the administration of justice: maintenance of wives and children: State prisoners: proceedings in the nature of habeas corpus.

Section 451 removes some differences which exist in the present law between the procedure of the High Courts and Courts of Session in cases in which European British subjects are concerned and which seem unnecessary. In particular, it is provided that, in the Court of Session as well as in the High Court, the requisite moiety of the jury or Assessors may be made up of Americans as well as Europeans.

39. The power given by sections 433 and 434 of Act X of 1872, to discharge from custody or make over to his relative a person acquitted on the ground of insanity, has been extended, in sections 474 and 475 of the Bill, to the case of persons who, being found to be insane at the time of trial, are committed to custody.

40. Section 477 has been framed so as to allow a Court of Session to charge a person for giving false evidence before itself—a power of which such Courts were unintentionally deprived by section 472 of the present Code.

41. Section 487 has been redrawn so as to avoid the difficulty which is felt in determining the meaning of the words "offence committed in contempt of its own authority," which occur in the corresponding section (473) of Act X of 1872.

Supplementary Provisions.

42. Part IX contains certain provisions supplementary to the general rules of procedure contained in the Code. It deals, first, with the public prosecutor, bail, commissions for the examination of witnesses and special rules of evidence. It then contains certain provisions relating to bonds to keep the peace, for good behaviour, for appearance, &c.: the disposal of property regarding which an offence has been committed: the transfer of criminal cases: irregular proceedings, and, lastly, certain miscellaneous matters.

43. Words have been introduced into the section (502) providing for the appointment of a public prosecutor which will have the effect of putting a stop to the practice of appointing a police officer.

44. Section 505 exempts the Advocate General, Standing Counsel, Government Solicitor or other officer empowered by the Local Government from the necessity of obtaining permission to conduct prosecutions.

45. The provisions of the present law as to commissions for the examination of witnesses have been amended in two respects. The Bill (section 515) requires that the interrogatories shall be thought relevant by the Magistrate or Court directing the commission, and power is expressly given (section 518) to stay the inquiry or trial for a specified time reasonably sufficient for the execution and return of the commission.

46. In proving the existence of circumstances as a defence under the 2nd, 3rd, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th or 10th Exception to section 499 of the Penal Code, section 521 of the Bill provides that good faith shall be presumed until the contrary appears. This is now the law in the Presidency-towns (Act XVIII of 1862, section 27) and may usefully be extended to the Mufassal.

47. In accordance with a recent rule of the High Court at Bombay, section 528 declares that, when a High Court or Court of Session makes an order for the disposal of property, and cannot through its own officers conveniently deliver the property to the person entitled thereto, the Court may direct its order to be carried into effect by the committing Magistrate.

48. Section 531 provides, in case of a conviction under the Penal Code, sections 292, 293, 501 or 502, for the destruction of the obscene books and defamatory matter in respect of which the conviction was had. It also provides for the destruction of adulterated or noxious food, drink or drugs in respect of which a conviction was had under sections 272—275 of the same Code.

49. Section 536 provides, in accordance with a Minute of Sir B. Peacock, cited I. L. R. 1 Calc. 223, that applications to the High Court for the transfer of cases shall be made by motion supported by affidavit or affirmation.

Schedules.

50. Schedules II and V, which correspond respectively with schedules IV and II of Act X of 1872, have been altered so as to adapt them, not only to the Mufassal Courts, but to those of the Presidency Magistrates.

The lists of powers contained in section 21 et seq. of Act X of 1872 have been thrown into Schedules III and IV of the Bill.

51. Excluding the special provisions of the Acts relating respectively to Coroners in the Presidency-towns, extradition, European British vagrants, and criminal tribes, the Bill is now, so far as Mr. Cockerell, Mr. Fitzpatrick and myself have been able to make it, a complete body of criminal procedure. No pains have been spared to render its provisions plain and practical; and in return all competent persons are earnestly asked to point out the mistakes and omissions which they will doubtless discover in so large and complicated a work.

PART V.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[First publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 21st May, 1879, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 5 of 1879.

A Bill to provide for the registration of Trade-marks.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the registration of trade-marks; Preamble. It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title. 1. This Act may be called "The Indian Trade-marks Act, 1879":

Local extent. It extends to the whole of British India;

Commencement. and it shall come into force at once.

Interpretation-clause. 2. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,—

"Trade-mark." "trade-mark" means a mark consisting of one or more of the following essential particulars (namely):

(a) a name of an individual or firm printed, impressed or woven in some particular and distinctive manner, or

(b) a written signature or copy of a written signature of an individual or firm, or

(c) a distinctive device, mark, heading, label or ticket:

it includes also any special and distinctive word or words, or combination of numerals or letters, used as a trade-mark before the passing of this Act:

"Registered" and "registration." "registered" and "registration" respectively mean registered and registration under this Act and the rules made hereunder and for the time being in force:

"The Court." "the Court" means the High Court of Judicature at Fort William.

Appointment of a Registrar. 3. An officer (hereinafter called "the Registrar") shall be appointed from time to time, by name or in virtue of his office, by the Governor General in Council to register trade-marks and the proprietors thereof.

Registration of trade-marks. 4. From and after the first day of January, 1880, no person shall be entitled to institute any suit or other proceeding to prevent, or to recover damages for, the infringement of any trade-mark, unless such trade-mark is registered; but nothing in this section shall apply to any device, mark, name, combination of words, or other matter or thing which has been in use as a trade-mark before the passing of this Act, and which the Registrar has refused to register under this Act.

Characteristics of registered trade-marks. 5. A trade-mark must be registered as belonging to particular goods or classes of goods; and, when registered, shall be assigned and transmitted only in connexion with the good-will of the business concerned in such particular goods or classes of goods, and shall be determinable with such good-will.

Registration of a trade-mark shall be deemed to be equivalent to public use of such mark.

Title of first proprietor of a trade-mark.

6. The registration of a person as first proprietor of a trade-mark shall be primâ facie proof, and, after the expiration of five years from the date of such registration, conclusive proof, of his right to the exclusive use of such trade-mark, subject to the provisions of this Act as to its connexion with the good-will of a business.

Title of proprietor claiming by transmitted proprietorship.

7. Every person registered as proprietor of a trade-mark subsequently to the first person so registered shall, as respects his title to such trade-mark, stand in the same position as if his title were a continuation of the title of the first person so registered.

Rectification of register.

8. If any person who is not for the time being entitled, in accordance with this Act or otherwise in accordance with law, to the exclusive use of a trade-mark is registered as a proprietor of such trade-mark, or if the Registrar refuses to register, as proprietor of a trade-mark, the name of any person who is for the time being entitled in accordance with this Act or otherwise in accordance with law to the exclusive use of such trade-mark, or if any mark is registered as a trade-mark which is not authorized to be so registered, any person aggrieved by such registration or refusal may apply by motion, or in such other manner as the Court may direct, for an order of the Court that the register may be rectified.

The Court may either refuse such application, or it may, if satisfied of the justice of the case, make an order for the rectification of the register and award damages to the party aggrieved.

Case of several persons claiming to be registered in respect of same mark.

9. When each of several persons claims to be registered as proprietor of the same trade-mark, the Registrar may refuse to comply with the claims of any of such persons until their rights have been determined by the Court.

The Registrar may himself submit, or require the claimants to submit, their rights to the Court, by stating a case under section 527 of the Code of Civil Procedure, or in such other manner as the Court may direct.

What Court may decide in proceedings under Act.

10. The Court may, in any proceeding under section eight or section nine, decide—

(a) whether a mark is or is not such a trade-mark as is authorized to be registered under this Act;

(b) any question as to the right of any person who is party to such proceeding to have his name entered on the register of trade-marks, or to have the name of some other person removed from such register; and

(c) any other question that it may be necessary or expedient to decide for the rectification of the register.

Notice to be given by order of Court.

Whenever any order has been made rectifying the register, the Court shall by its order direct that due notice of such rectification be given to the Registrar.

Registration not to be granted without leave of Court in certain cases.

11. The Registrar shall not, without the special leave of the Court, to be given on motion or in such other manner as the Court may direct, register in respect of the same goods or classes of goods—

(a) a trade-mark identical with one which is already registered with respect to such goods or classes of goods; or

(b) a trade-mark so nearly resembling a trade-mark already registered with respect to such goods or classes of goods as to be calculated to deceive.

Registration when not to be granted.

12. The Registrar shall not register, as part of, or in combination with, a trade-mark, any scandalous designs, or any words, if the exclusive use of such words would not, by reason of their being calculated to deceive or otherwise, be deemed entitled to protection in a Court.

Governor General in Council may make rules to carry out Act.

13. The Governor General in Council may from time to time make rules consistent with this Act as to—

(a) the manner in which applications for registration of trade-marks shall be made;

(b) the notices to be given by advertisement before the registration of trade-marks;

(c) the classification of goods for the purposes of this Act;

(d) the registration of first and subsequent proprietors of trade-marks;

(e) the fees to be charged for registration of trade-marks, for the continuance of a trade-mark on the register and for granting certificates of refusal to register anything as a trade-mark;

(f) the removal from the register of any trade-mark;

(g) the form of notices under this Act, the mode of addressing and serving such notices, and the proof of such service;

(h) the persons entitled to inspect the register; and

(i) generally for the purpose of carrying this Act into effect.

Such rules shall be published in the Gazette of India, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

Certificate of Registrar to be evidence.

14. The certificate of the Registrar as to any entry, matter or thing which he is authorized by this Act, or any rules made hereunder, to make or do, shall be evidence of such entry having been made and of the contents thereof, and of such matters and things having been done or left undone.

Saving of marks and devices not capable of being registered under Act.

15. When an application by any person to register as a trade-mark a device, mark, name, word, combination of words, or other matter or thing which has been in use as a trade-mark before the passing of this Act, has been refused, the Registrar shall, at the request of the applicant and on payment by him of the fee prescribed by the rules made under section thirteen, grant him a certificate of such refusal.

A certificate so granted shall be conclusive proof of such refusal.

Saving of existing jurisdiction of Courts.

16. The provisions of this Act conferring a special jurisdiction on the said High Court shall not, except so far as such jurisdiction extends, affect the jurisdiction of any other Court in suits or proceedings relating to trade-marks.

Registrar to rectify register on notice from them.

If the register requires to be rectified in consequence of any proceedings in any such other Court, due notice of such requirement shall be given to the Registrar, and he shall rectify the register accordingly.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THIS Bill has been prepared, at the request of the Government of Bombay, to meet the wishes of the Mill-owners Association and the Bombay Chamber of Commerce. Both these bodies call the attention of the Local Government to the provisions of the English Trade-marks Registration Acts of 1875 and 1876 (which have been held by the High Court of Bombay not to apply to India), and state that it seems desirable, having regard to the increase of manufactures in this country, and especially of the cotton-manufactures of Bombay, that there should be a law of a similar nature in India.

2. The Bill is nothing more than a reproduction, with the changes required to fit them to the different circumstances of this country, of the provisions of the Statutes 38 & 39 Vic., chapter 91 (An Act to establish a register of Trade-marks), and 39 & 40 Vic., chapter 33 (An Act for the amendment of the Trade-marks Registration Act, 1875). It seems desirable (more especially in the case of laws dealing with large commercial interests), when the object of one of our Acts is merely to extend the provisions of an Imperial Statute to this country, to follow closely the lines of such Statute, so as to make the law in this country as nearly as possible identical with that in England.

3. The Bill provides for the appointment of a Registrar and the registration of trade-marks, and enacts that, after a certain fixed date, no suit shall be brought for the infringement of a trade-mark, unless such trade-mark is registered in accordance with the provisions of the Bill; it further defines the essential particulars of which a trade-mark must hereafter consist; but it saves from the operation of these provisions the trade-marks which are at present in use and entitled to protection as such. The other provisions of the Bill are subsidiary to these, and the only one of them calling for notice here is that by which the High Court at Fort William is appointed the Court for the purposes of the Act. As it is understood that the registry-office will be situate at Calcutta (where alone proprietorship in copyright and specifications of inventions are registered), that Court is obviously the most convenient one to appoint.

SCHEDULE.

A Bill to amend the law relating to Civil Courts in Oudh.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to Civil Courts in Oudh; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Oudh Civil Courts Act, 1879":

Local extent.

It extends to all the territories for the time being administered by the Chief Commissioner of Oudh;

Commencement.

and it shall come into force on the first day of July, 1879.

Repeal of enactments.

2. On and from that day the Acts mentioned in the schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent specified in the third column thereof.

"District" defined.

3. In this Act, "district" means the area comprised in the local limits of the jurisdiction of the District Judge.

CHAPTER II.

CONSTITUTION OF COURTS.

Grades of Courts.

4. Besides the Courts established under any other enactment for the time being in force, there shall be four grades of Civil Courts in Oudh (namely):—

(1) the Court of the Munsif;
(2) the Court of the Subordinate Judge;
(3) the Court of the District Judge;
(4) the Court of the Judicial Commissioner.

Number of District Judges.

5. The number of District Judges, Subordinate Judges and Munsifs to be appointed under this Act shall be fixed, and may from time to time be altered, by the Local Government.

Appointment of officers under Act.

6. The Governor General in Council may appoint such person as he thinks fit to be Judicial Commissioner.

The District Judges, Subordinate Judges and Munsifs shall be appointed by the Local Government.

Additional Judges.

7. When the business pending before any District Judge requires the aid of Additional Judges for its speedy disposal, the Local Government may, upon the recommendation of the Judicial Commissioner, and with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, appoint such Additional Judges as may be requisite.

Such Additional Judges shall perform any of the duties of a Judge under chapter III of this Act that the District Judge may, with the sanction of the Judicial Commissioner, assign to them; and in the performance of such duties they shall exercise the same powers as the District Judge.

Temporary charge of the office of District Judge.

8. In the event of the death of a District Judge, or of his being incapacitated by illness or otherwise for the performance of his duties, or of his absence from the station in which his Court is held, the Additional Judge, or, if there is no Additional Judge attached to such Court, the senior Subordinate Judge of the District, shall, without relinquishing his ordinary duties, assume charge of the Judge's office;

and shall discharge such of the current duties thereof as are connected with the filing of suits and appeals, the issue of processes and the like functions;

and shall continue in charge of the office until it is resumed by the District Judge, or assumed by an officer duly appointed thereto.

Transfer of proceedings on death, &c., of Subordinate Judge.

9. In the event of the death of a Subordinate Judge, or of his being incapacitated by illness or otherwise for the performance of his duties, or of his absence on leave, when no person is appointed to act for him, the District Judge may transfer all or any of the proceedings pending in the Court of such Subordinate Judge either to his own Court or to the Court of a Subordinate Judge (if any) under his control.

All proceedings transferred under this section shall be disposed of as if they had been instituted in the Court to which they are so transferred.

Principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction.

10. The Court of the District Judge shall be deemed to be the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction in the district over which his jurisdiction extends.

Control over Civil Courts.

The control over all the Civil Courts in such district is invested in the said District Judge, but subject to the general control of the Judicial Commissioner.

Appointment of ministerial officers of Courts.

11. The Judicial Commissioner and the District Judges, and, subject to the approval of the District Judges to whose control they are respectively subject, the Subordinate Judges and Munsifs, shall appoint the ministerial officers of their Courts.

Transfer of ministerial officers.

12. The Judicial Commissioner or any District Judge may transfer any ministerial officer from any Court under his control to any other Court under his control.

Seals of Courts.

13. Every Court under this Act shall use a seal of such form and dimensions as are for the time being prescribed by the Local Government.

Place of sitting of Courts.

14. The Local Government may fix and from time to time alter the place or places at which any Court under this Act is to be held.

Power to confer Munsif's jurisdiction.

15. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, invest such persons as it thinks fit with the powers of a Munsif, subject to such restrictions in respect of the value of the subject-matter of the suit as may be deemed proper, and withdraw such jurisdiction.

CHAPTER III.

GENERAL JURISDICTION.

Power to fix local limits of jurisdiction.

16. The Local Government shall, by notification in the official Gazette, fix, and may by a like notification from time to time vary, the local limits of the jurisdiction of any Civil Court or person invested with the powers of a Civil Court under this Act.

Extent of original jurisdiction of District Judge;

17. Subject to the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, section 15,— the jurisdiction of a District Judge extends to all original suits cognizable by the Civil Courts.

of Subordinate Judge;

Subject as aforesaid, the jurisdiction of a Subordinate Judge extends to all suits in which the amount or value of the subject-matter in dispute does not exceed ten thousand rupees, and of Munsif.

the jurisdiction of a Munsif to all suits in which such amount or value does not exceed one thousand rupees.

Appeals from Munsifs.

18. Appeals from the decrees and orders of Munsifs and Subordinate Judges in original suits and proceedings shall, when such appeals are allowed by law, lie to the District Judge:

Provided that the Judicial Commissioner may, from time to time, subject to such restrictions as he may deem fit, order that all or any of the appeals from the decrees and orders of a Munsif shall be preferred to such Subordinate Judge as may be mentioned in the order; and such appeals shall thereupon be preferred accordingly.

Power to refer to Subordinate Judge appeals from Munsifs.

19. Every District Judge may, from time to time, subject to the orders of the Judicial Commissioner, refer to any Subordinate Judge under his control any appeals pending before him from the decrees and orders of Munsifs; and such Subordinate Judge shall hear and dispose of such appeals accordingly.

The District Judge may withdraw any appeals so referred, and hear and dispose of appeals so withdrawn.

Appeals from District and Additional Judges.

20. Appeals from the decrees and orders of District Judges and Additional Judges in original suits and proceedings shall, when such appeals are allowed by law, lie to the Judicial Commissioner.

When Judicial Commissioner may receive second appeal.

21. When the decision of a Subordinate Judge, District Judge or Additional Judge passed in appeal confirms the decree or order of the Court of first instance, such decision shall be final; but when such decision reverses or modifies such decree or order and is not declared by any law for the time being in force to be final, the Judicial Commissioner may receive a second appeal if, on a perusal of the grounds of appeal and of copies of the judgments of the lower Courts, he is of opinion that a further consideration of the case is requisite for the ends of justice.

Presiding officer of Court not to try suit or appeal in which he is interested.

22. No presiding officer of any Court having jurisdiction under this Act shall try any suit or appeal in which he is a party or personally interested, or any appeal against a decree or order passed by himself, or shall adjudicate upon any proceeding connected with or arising out of such suit or appeal.

Mode of disposing of such suit.

When any such suit, appeal or proceeding comes before any such presiding officer, he shall forthwith transmit the record of the case to the Court to which he is immediately subordinate, with a report of the circumstances attending the reference.

The superior Court shall thereupon dispose of the case in the manner prescribed by section 25 of Act X of 1877.

In the event of an appeal being preferred to a Judicial Commissioner from a judgment or order passed by him in any other capacity, or in which he has any personal interest, he shall report the fact to the Local Government, which may transfer the case to the High Court of the North-Western Provinces for disposal, or appoint an officer to be an Additional Judicial Commissioner for the disposal of the case.

CHAPTER IV.

SPECIAL JURISDICTION.

23. The Local Government may invest, within such local limits as it from time to time fixes, any District Judge, Additional Judge or Subordinate Judge with the jurisdiction of a Judge of a Court of Small Causes for the trial of suits cognizable by such Courts up to the amount of five hundred rupees, and any Munsif with similar jurisdiction up to the amount of fifty rupees; and may, whenever it thinks fit, withdraw such jurisdiction from the Judge or Munsif so invested.

Power to invest Subordinate Judge and Munsif with Small Cause Court jurisdiction.

24. The Judicial Commissioner may from time to time, by order, authorize any District Judge to transfer to a Subordinate Judge or Munsif under the control of such District Judge any of the proceedings next hereinafter mentioned, or any class of such proceedings specified in such order, and then pending, or thereafter instituted, before such District Judge.

Power to transfer to Subordinate Judge or Munsif certain proceedings pending before District Judge.

The proceedings herein referred to are the following (that is to say):—

(1). Proceedings under Act XL of 1858 (for making better provision for the care of the persons and property of minors in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal), or Act IX of 1861 (to amend the law relating to minors).

(2). Applications for permission to sue or appeal as a pauper.

(3). Applications for certificates under Act XXVII of 1860 (for facilitating the collection of debts on successions, and for the security of parties paying debts to the representatives of deceased persons).

The District Judge may withdraw any proceedings so transferred, and may either dispose of them himself, or, with the sanction of the Judicial Commissioner, transfer them to any other Subordinate Judge or Munsif under his control.

25. Subject to the provisions of the last clause of section twenty-four, all proceedings transferred under that section shall be disposed of by the Subordinate Judge or Munsif (as the case may be) according to the rules prescribed for the guidance of District Judges in like cases:

Disposal of proceedings so transferred.

Provided that an appeal from the order of the Subordinate Judge or Munsif in such cases shall lie to the District Judge.

An appeal from his order thereon shall lie to the Judicial Commissioner, if an appeal from the decision of the District Judge in such proceedings is allowed by the law in force for the time being.

CHAPTER V.

MISCONDUCT OF OFFICERS.

26. The Judicial Commissioner may be suspended or removed by the Governor General in Council.

Suspension and removal of Judicial Commissioner.

27. Any District Judge, Additional Judge, Subordinate Judge or Munsif may be suspended or removed by the Local Government.

Suspension or removal of subordinate judicial officers by Local Government.

28. The Judicial Commissioner may, whenever he sees urgent necessity for so doing, suspend any Subordinate Judge or Munsif under his control.

Suspension of Subordinate Judge or Munsif by Judicial Commissioner.

Whenever the Judicial Commissioner exercises this power, he shall forthwith report to the Local Government the circumstances of the suspension, and the Local Government shall make such order thereon as it thinks fit.

29. Any District Judge may, whenever he sees urgent necessity for so doing, suspend any Munsif under his control.

Suspension of Munsif by District Judge.

Whenever the District Judge suspends any such Munsif, he shall forthwith send to the Local Government, through the Judicial Commissioner, a full report of the case, with the evidence (if any); and the Local Government shall make such order thereon as it thinks fit.

30. The Judicial Commissioner may remove or suspend the ministerial officers of his Court, or fine them in an amount not exceeding one month's salary.

Removal, &c., of ministerial officers of Judicial Commissioner's Court.

31. The Judicial Commissioner, and, subject only to the general control of the Judicial Commissioner, the Judges of the District Courts, may remove or suspend the ministerial officers of such Courts, or fine them in an amount not exceeding one month's salary.

Removal, &c., of ministerial officers of Judges' Courts.

32. Any Subordinate Judge or Munsif may, by order, remove or suspend from office, or fine in an amount not exceeding one month's salary, any ministerial officer of his Court who is guilty of any misconduct or neglect in the performance of the duties of his office. And the District Judge, subject only to the general control of the Local Government, may, on appeal or otherwise, reverse or modify every such order.

Removal, &c., of ministerial officers of Subordinate Judges and Munsifs' Courts.

The Judicial Commissioner (or the District Judge within whose jurisdiction such Court is situate) may by order suspend or remove any such ministerial officer.

33. Any fine imposed under this chapter shall, if the order imposing it so directs, be recovered from the offender's salary.

Recovery of fines.

CHAPTER VI.

MISCELLANEOUS.

34. The Judicial Commissioner may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, make rules—

Petition-writers.

(a) declaring what persons shall be permitted to practise as petition-writers in the Court of Oudh;

(b) regulating the conduct of persons so practising.

Whoever breaks any rule made under this section shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

35. When a mortgagee shall, under or by virtue of a mortgage executed before the thirteenth of February, 1844, have obtained possession of any land comprised in his mortgage, the mortgagor, or any person claiming through him, shall not bring a suit to redeem the mortgage of such land, any subsequent acknowledgment of the title or right to redeem of the mortgagor, or of any person claiming through him, notwithstanding.

Bar of redemption-suits when mortgage executed before 13th February, 1844.

Nothing herein contained shall be taken to bar a suit for redemption in any case where, by the instrument of mortgage, a term was fixed within which the property comprised therein might be redeemed, and such term had not expired before the thirteenth day of February, 1856: provided that, if any such term had expired before that day, the suit shall be barred, whatever may have been the date on which the instrument was executed.

Redemption-suits not barred where fixed term for redemption had not expired before 13th February, 1856.

36. Subject to such orders as may from time to time be issued by the Governor General in Council, and to the approval of the Local Government, the Judicial Commissioner shall prepare a list of days to be observed in each year as close holidays in the Courts subordinate to him.

Vacations.

Such list shall be published in the local official Gazette, and the said days shall be observed accordingly.

37. All proceedings pending on the first day of July, 1879, shall be heard and disposed of by the Courts established under this Act that would have had jurisdiction if they had been in existence when such proceedings were instituted.

Pending proceedings.

For the purposes of this section, all appeals pending on the said date shall—

(a) if preferred from the decrees, orders or decisions of Commissioners,—be deemed to be appeals from District Judges;

(b) if preferred from the decrees, orders or decisions of Deputy Commissioners or of Assistant Commissioners, or Extra-Assistant Commissioners acting in exercise of enhanced powers conferred under the Oudh Civil Courts Act, section eleven, clause two,—be deemed to be appeals from Subordinate Judges; and

(c) if preferred from the decrees or orders of Assistant Commissioners or Extra-Assistant Commissioners otherwise acting or of Tahsildárs,—be deemed to be appeals from Munsifs.

38. For the purposes of sections eighteen to twenty-one (both inclusive), all decrees, orders and decisions passed before the date on which this Act comes into force shall be deemed—

Appeals from decrees, &c., passed before Act comes into force.

(a) if passed by a Commissioner,—to have been passed by a District Judge;

(b) if passed by a Deputy Commissioner, or by an Assistant or Extra Assistant Commissioner in exercise of enhanced powers conferred under the Oudh Civil Courts Act, section eleven, clause two,—to have been passed by a Subordinate Judge; and

(c) if passed by an Assistant or Extra Assistant Commissioner otherwise than as aforesaid, or by a Tahsildár,—to have been passed by a Munsif.

SCHEDULE.

ACTS REPEALED.

(See section 3.)

Number and year.	Title of Act.	Extent of repeal.
Act X of 1870 ...	The Land Acquisition Act, 1870 ...	So much of section 3 as declares the Commissioner of a Division to be a principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction in Oudh.
Act XXXII of 1871 ...	The Oudh Civil Courts Act, 1871	The whole, except section 40.
Act XVIII of 1876 ...	The Oudh Laws Act, 1876 ...	Sections 21, 28 and 43.
Act XIV of 1878 ...	An Act to assimilate certain powers of the Local Governments of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh.	Section 3.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to bring the law in Oudh with regard to the constitution and jurisdiction of the Civil Courts into harmony with the new state of things which will result from the separation of the judicial and executive branches of the Administration in that Province. The law at present regulating the Civil Courts in Oudh is Act XXXII of 1871 (the Oudh Civil Courts Act, 1871). It was found that, in order to fit that Act to the altered circumstances of Oudh, it would have to be practically reconstructed; and it was therefore determined to adopt the simpler and more convenient course of repealing it altogether, and of embodying such of its provisions as it might be desirable to retain in a new Act.

2. This Bill is in the main an extension to Oudh of the law regulating the Civil Courts in Bengal and the North-Western Provinces, namely, Act VI of 1871 (the Bengal Civil Courts Act, 1871), with certain modifications, which the circumstances of Oudh seem to require.

3. The chief points of variance between the Bill and the Bengal Civil Courts Act are—

1*st*.—The limitation of the original jurisdiction of Sub-Judges to suits in which the value of the subject-matter in dispute does not exceed 10,000 rupees.

2*ndly*.—The declaration of the finality of decisions or orders passed in appeal where the appellate order is in concurrence with that of the Court of first instance.

3*rdly*.—The allowance of a second appeal on the facts as well as on a point of law where the effect of the order or decision of the Appellate Court is to reverse or substantially modify the order or decision of the Court of first instance.

4*thly*.—The alteration of the course of first appeal where the value of the subject-matter of the suit exceeds 5,000 rupees, but does not exceed 10,000 rupees.

4. The reason for the first of these changes is the expediency of suits of great value and importance, and in regard to which an appeal lies as a matter of right to the Privy Council, being tried by the principal Court of original civil jurisdiction.

The second and third points of divergence from the provisions of the Bengal Courts Act comprise simply the maintenance of the principle of the existing law in Oudh in regard to appeals, which has not only worked well hitherto, but has been thought worthy of adoption to some extent for other Provinces.

The fourth change is the natural accompaniment of the first, as its effect is to bring all suits either in the original or appellate stage, where they reach the appellate stage, before the District Court.

5. Sections 23 to 25 of Act XXXII of 1871, giving the Judicial Commissioner power to refer cases to the High Court of the North-Western Provinces, and section 27 of that Act, conferring power to appoint an Additional Judicial Commissioner, have been omitted from the Bill; the former because it does not appear to be used; the latter because it is no longer necessary.

6. Section 21 of the Oudh Laws Act (XVIII of 1876), relating to the management of land attached by the Civil Courts, and section 28 of the same Act, which gives the Judicial Commissioner a power of revising the decisions of the Subordinate Courts, are repealed, because it is considered that these matters are sufficiently provided for by the Code of Civil Procedure.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 21st May, 1879, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 7 of 1879.

A Bill to provide for the revision of proceedings in trials held under the Military Cantonments Act, 1864, section 20.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the revision of the proceedings in trials held under the twentieth section of Act No. XXII of 1864 (to make provision for the Administration of Military Cantonments); It is hereby enacted as follows:— Preamble.

1. For the last clause of the said section, the following shall be substituted (that is to say):— New clause substituted in Act XXII of 1864, sec. 20.

"There shall be no appeal in any case tried under this section; but every person trying any such case shall, for the purposes of chapter XXII of the Code of Criminal Procedure, be deemed to be subordinate to the High Court, the Court of Session and the Magistrate of the District."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

IN a case tried some months ago by an officer specially invested, under section 20 of Act XXII of 1864, with power to try breaches of Cantonment rules, the Judges of the Chief Court of the Panjáb, to whom the officer's order was submitted for revision, expressed a doubt as to whether the twenty-second chapter of the Code of Criminal Procedure gave them any power of revision in such a case. They, at the same time, expressed an opinion to the effect that such a power ought to be provided. The Governor General in Council concurs as to the need of such a power, and the present Bill has been drafted to provide it.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Second publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 21st May, 1879, and was referred to a Select Committee :—

No. 5 of 1879.

A Bill to provide for the registration of Trade-marks.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the registration of trade-marks; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Preamble.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Indian Trade-marks Act, 1879":

Local extent.

It extends to the whole of British India;

Commencement.

and it shall come into force at once.

Interpretation-clause.

2. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,—

"Trade-mark."

"trade-mark" means a mark consisting of one or more of the following essential particulars (namely) :

(a) a name of an individual or firm printed, impressed or woven in some particular and distinctive manner, or

(b) a written signature or copy of a written signature of an individual or firm, or

(c) a distinctive device, mark, heading, label or ticket :

it includes also any special and distinctive word or words, or combination of numerals or letters, used as a trade-mark before the passing of this Act :

"Registered" and "registration."

"registered" and "registration" respectively mean registered and registration under this Act and the rules made hereunder and for the time being in force :

"The Court."

"the Court" means the High Court of Judicature at Fort William.

Appointment of Registrar.

3. An officer (hereinafter called "the Registrar") shall be appointed from time to time, by name or in virtue of his office, by the Governor General in Council to register trade-marks and the proprietors thereof.

Registration of trade-marks.

4. From and after the first day of January, 1880, no person shall be entitled to institute any suit or other proceeding to prevent, or to recover damages for, the infringement of any trade-mark, unless such trade-mark is registered; but nothing in this section shall apply to any device, mark, name, combination of words, or other matter or thing which has been in use as a trade-mark before the passing of this Act, and which the Registrar has refused to register under this Act.

Characteristics of registered trade-marks.

5. A trade-mark must be registered as belonging to particular goods or classes of goods; and, when registered, shall be assigned and transmitted only in connexion with the good-will of the business concerned in such particular goods or classes of goods, and shall be determinable with such good-will.

Registration of a trade-mark shall be deemed to be equivalent to public use of such mark.

Title of first proprietor of a trade-mark.

6. The registration of a person as first proprietor of a trade-mark shall be primâ facie proof, and, after the expiration of five years from the date of such registration, conclusive proof, of his right to the exclusive use of such trade-mark, subject to the provisions of this Act as to its connexion with the good-will of a business.

Title of proprietor claiming by transmitted proprietorship.

7. Every person registered as proprietor of a trade-mark subsequently to the first person so registered shall, as respects his title to such trade-mark, stand in the same position as if his title were a continuation of the title of the first person so registered.

Rectification of register.

8. If any person who is not for the time being entitled, in accordance with this Act or otherwise in accordance with law, to the exclusive use of a trade-mark is registered as a proprietor of such trade-mark, or if the Registrar refuses to register, as proprietor of a trade-mark, the name of any person who is for the time being entitled in accordance with this Act or otherwise in accordance with law to the exclusive use of such trade-mark, or if any mark is registered as a trade-mark which is not authorized to be so registered, any person aggrieved by such registration or refusal may apply by motion, or in such other manner as the Court may direct, for an order of the Court that the register may be rectified.

The Court may either refuse such application, or it may, if satisfied of the justice of the case, make an order for the rectification of the register and award damages to the party aggrieved.

Case of several persons claiming to be registered in respect of same mark.

9. When each of several persons claims to be registered as proprietor of the same trade-mark, the Registrar may refuse to comply with the claims of any of such persons until their rights have been determined by the Court.

The Registrar may himself submit, or require the claimants to submit, their rights to the Court, by stating a case under section 527 of the Code of Civil Procedure, or in such other manner as the Court may direct.

What Court may decide in proceedings under Act.

10. The Court may, in any proceeding under section eight or section nine, decide—

(a) whether a mark is or is not such a trade-mark as is authorized to be registered under this Act;

(b) any question as to the right of any person who is party to such proceeding to have his name entered on the register of trade-marks, or to have the name of some other person removed from such register; and

(c) any other question that it may be necessary or expedient to decide for the rectification of the register.

Notice to be given by order of Court.

Whenever any order has been made rectifying the register, the Court shall by its order direct that due notice of such rectification be given to the Registrar.

Registration not to be granted without leave of Court in certain cases.

11. The Registrar shall not, without the special leave of the Court, to be given on motion or in such other manner as the Court may direct, register in respect of the same goods or classes of goods—

(a) a trade-mark identical with one which is already registered with respect to such goods or classes of goods; or

(b) a trade-mark so nearly resembling a trade-mark already registered with respect to such goods or classes of goods as to be calculated to deceive.

Registration when not to be granted.

12. The Registrar shall not register, as part of, or in combination with, a trade-mark, any scandalous designs, or any words, if the exclusive use of such words would not, by reason of their being calculated to deceive or otherwise, be deemed entitled to protection in a Court.

Governor General in Council may make rules to carry out Act.

13. The Governor General in Council may from time to time make rules consistent with this Act as to—

(a) the manner in which applications for registration of trade-marks shall be made;

(b) the notices to be given by advertisement before the registration of trade-marks;

(c) the classification of goods for the purposes of this Act;

(d) the registration of first and subsequent proprietors of trade-marks;

(e) the fees to be charged for registration of trade-marks, for the continuance of a trade-mark on the register and for granting certificates of refusal to register anything as a trade-mark;

(f) the removal from the register of any trade-mark;

(g) the form of notices under this Act, the mode of addressing and serving such notices, and the proof of such service;

(h) the persons entitled to inspect the register; and

(i) generally for the purpose of carrying this Act into effect.

Such rules shall be published in the Gazette of India, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

Certificate of Registrar to be evidence.

14. The certificate of the Registrar as to any entry, matter or thing which he is authorized by this Act, or any rules made hereunder, to make or do, shall be evidence of such entry having been made and of the contents thereof, and of such matters and things having been done or left undone.

Saving of marks and devices not capable of being registered under Act.

15. When an application by any person to register as a trade-mark a device, mark, name, word, combination of words, or other matter or thing which has been in use as a trade-mark before the passing of this Act, has been refused, the Registrar shall, at the request of the applicant and on payment by him of the fee prescribed by the rules made under section thirteen, grant him a certificate of such refusal.

A certificate so granted shall be conclusive proof of such refusal.

Saving of existing jurisdiction of Courts.

16. The provisions of this Act conferring a special jurisdiction on the said High Court shall not, except so far as such jurisdiction extends, affect the jurisdiction of any other Court in suits or proceedings relating to trade-marks.

Registrar to rectify register on notice from them.

If the register requires to be rectified in consequence of any proceedings in any such other Court, due notice of such requirement shall be given to the Registrar, and he shall rectify the register accordingly.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THIS Bill has been prepared, at the request of the Government of Bombay, to meet the wishes of the Mill-owners Association and the Bombay Chamber of Commerce. Both these bodies call the attention of the Local Government to the provisions of the English Trade-marks Registration Acts of 1875 and 1876 (which have been held by the High Court of Bombay not to apply to India), and state that it seems desirable, having regard to the increase of manufactures in this country, and especially of the cotton-manufactures of Bombay, that there should be a law of a similar nature in India.

2. The Bill is nothing more than a reproduction, with the changes required to fit them to the different circumstances of this country, of the provisions of the Statutes 38 & 39 Vic., chapter 91 (An Act to establish a register of Trade-marks), and 39 & 40 Vic., chapter 33 (An Act for the amendment of the Trade-marks Registration Act, 1875). It seems desirable (more especially in the case of laws dealing with large commercial interests), when the object of one of our Acts is merely to extend the provisions of an Imperial Statute to this country, to follow closely the lines of such Statute, so as to make the law in this country as nearly as possible identical with that in England.

3. The Bill provides for the appointment of a Registrar and the registration of trade-marks, and enacts that, after a certain fixed date, no suit shall be brought for the infringement of a trade-mark, unless such trade-mark is registered in accordance with the provisions of the Bill; it further defines the essential particulars of which a trade-mark must hereafter consist; but it saves from the operation of these provisions the trade-marks which are at present in use and entitled to protection as such. The other provisions of the Bill are subsidiary to these, and the only one of them calling for notice here is that by which the High Court at Fort William is appointed the Court for the purposes of the Act. As it is understood that the registry-office will be situate at Calcutta (where alone proprietorship in copyright and specifications of inventions are registered), that Court is obviously the most convenient one to appoint.

SCHEDULE.

A Bill to amend the law relating to Civil Courts in Oudh.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to Civil Courts in Oudh; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Oudh Civil Courts Act, 1879":

Local extent.

It extends to all the territories for the time being administered by the Chief Commissioner of Oudh;

Commencement.

and it shall come into force on the first day of July, 1879.

Repeal of enactments.

2. On and from that day the Acts mentioned in the schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent specified in the third column thereof.

"District" defined.

3. In this Act, "district" means the area comprised in the local limits of the jurisdiction of the District Judge.

CHAPTER II.

CONSTITUTION OF COURTS.

Grades of Courts.

4. Besides the Courts established under any other enactment for the time being in force, there shall be four grades of Civil Courts in Oudh (namely):—

(1) the Court of the Munsif;
(2) the Court of the Subordinate Judge;
(3) the Court of the District Judge;
(4) the Court of the Judicial Commissioner.

Number of District Judges.

5. The number of District Judges, Subordinate Judges and Munsifs to be appointed under this Act shall be fixed, and may from time to time be altered, by the Local Government.

Appointment of officers under Act.

6. The Governor General in Council may appoint such person as he thinks fit to be Judicial Commissioner.

The District Judges, Subordinate Judges and Munsifs shall be appointed by the Local Government.

Additional Judges.

7. When the business pending before any District Judge requires the aid of Additional Judges for its speedy disposal, the Local Government may, upon the recommendation of the Judicial Commissioner, and with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, appoint such Additional Judges as may be requisite.

Such Additional Judges shall perform any of the duties of a Judge under chapter III of this Act that the District Judge may, with the sanction of the Judicial Commissioner, assign to them; and in the performance of such duties they shall exercise the same powers as the District Judge.

Temporary charge of the office of District Judge.

8. In the event of the death of a District Judge, or of his being incapacitated by illness or otherwise for the performance of his duties, or of his absence from the station in which his Court is held, the Additional Judge, or, if there is no Additional Judge attached to such Court, the senior Subordinate Judge of the District, shall, without relinquishing his ordinary duties, assume charge of the Judge's office;

and shall discharge such of the current duties thereof as are connected with the filing of suits and appeals, the issue of processes and the like functions;

and shall continue in charge of the office until it is resumed by the District Judge, or assumed by an officer duly appointed thereto.

Transfer of proceedings on death, &c., of Subordinate Judge.

9. In the event of the death of a Subordinate Judge, or of his being incapacitated by illness or otherwise for the performance of his duties, or of his absence on leave, when no person is appointed to act for him, the District Judge may transfer all or any of the proceedings pending in the Court of such Subordinate Judge either to his own Court or to the Court of a Subordinate Judge (if any) under his control.

All proceedings transferred under this section shall be disposed of as if they had been instituted in the Court to which they are so transferred.

Principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction.

10. The Court of the District Judge shall be deemed to be the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction in the district over which his jurisdiction extends.

Control over Civil Courts.

The control over all the Civil Courts in such district is invested in the said District Judge, but subject to the general control of the Judicial Commissioner.

Appointment of ministerial officers of Courts.

11. The Judicial Commissioner and the District Judges, and, subject to the approval of the District Judges to whose control they are respectively subject, the Subordinate Judges and Munsifs, shall appoint the ministerial officers of their Courts.

Transfer of ministerial officers.

12. The Judicial Commissioner or any District Judge may transfer any ministerial officer from any Court under his control to any other Court under his control.

Seals of Courts.

13. Every Court under this Act shall use a seal of such form and dimensions as are for the time being prescribed by the Local Government.

Place of sitting of Courts.

14. The Local Government may fix and from time to time alter the place or places at which any Court under this Act is to be held.

Power to confer Munsif's jurisdiction.

15. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, invest such persons as it thinks fit with the powers of a Munsif, subject to such restrictions in respect of the value of the subject-matter of the suit as may be deemed proper, and withdraw such jurisdiction.

CHAPTER III.

GENERAL JURISDICTION.

Power to fix local limits of jurisdiction.

16. The Local Government shall, by notification in the official Gazette, fix, and may by a like notification from time to time vary, the local limits of the jurisdiction of any Civil Court or person invested with the powers of a Civil Court under this Act.

Extent of original jurisdiction of District Judge;

17. Subject to the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, section 15,— the jurisdiction of a District Judge extends to all original suits cognizable by the Civil Courts.

of Subordinate Judge;

Subject as aforesaid, the jurisdiction of a Subordinate Judge extends to all suits in which the amount or value of the subject-matter in dispute does not exceed ten thousand rupees, and of Munsif.

the jurisdiction of a Munsif to all suits in which such amount or value does not exceed one thousand rupees.

Appeals from Munsifs.

18. Appeals from the decrees and orders of Munsifs and Subordinate Judges in original suits and proceedings shall, when such appeals are allowed by law, lie to the District Judge:

Provided that the Judicial Commissioner may, from time to time, subject to such restrictions as he may deem fit, order that all or any of the appeals from the decrees and orders of a Munsif shall be preferred to such Subordinate Judge as may be mentioned in the order; and such appeals shall thereupon be preferred accordingly.

Power to refer to Subordinate Judge appeals from Munsifs.

19. Every District Judge may, from time to time, subject to the orders of the Judicial Commissioner, refer to any Subordinate Judge under his control any appeals pending before him from the decrees and orders of Munsifs; and such Subordinate Judge shall hear and dispose of such appeals accordingly.

The District Judge may withdraw any appeals so referred, and hear and dispose of appeals so withdrawn.

Appeals from District and Additional Judges.

20. Appeals from the decrees and orders of District Judges and Additional Judges in original suits and proceedings shall, when such appeals are allowed by law, lie to the Judicial Commissioner.

When Judicial Commissioner may receive second appeal.

21. When the decision of a Subordinate Judge, District Judge or Additional Judge passed in appeal confirms the decree or order of the Court of first instance, such decision shall be final; but when such decision reverses or modifies such decree or order and is not declared by any law for the time being in force to be final, the Judicial Commissioner may receive a second appeal if, on a perusal of the grounds of appeal and of copies of the judgments of the lower Courts, he is of opinion that a further consideration of the case is requisite for the ends of justice.

Presiding officer of Court not to try suit or appeal in which he is interested.

22. No presiding officer of any Court having jurisdiction under this Act shall try any suit or appeal in which he is a party or personally interested, or any appeal against a decree or order passed by himself, or shall adjudicate upon any proceeding connected with or arising out of such suit or appeal.

Mode of disposing of such suit.

When any such suit, appeal or proceeding comes before any such presiding officer, he shall forthwith transmit the record of the case to the Court to which he is immediately subordinate, with a report of the circumstances attending the reference.

The superior Court shall thereupon dispose of the case in the manner prescribed by section 25 of Act X of 1877.

In the event of an appeal being preferred to a Judicial Commissioner from a judgment or order passed by him in any other capacity, or in which he has any personal interest, he shall report the fact to the Local Government, which may transfer the case to the High Court of the North-Western Provinces for disposal, or appoint an officer to be an Additional Judicial Commissioner for the disposal of the case.

CHAPTER IV.

SPECIAL JURISDICTION.

Power to invest Subordinate Judge and Munsif with Small Cause Court jurisdiction.

23. The Local Government may invest, within such local limits as it from time to time fixes, any District Judge, Additional Judge or Subordinate Judge with the jurisdiction of a Judge of a Court of Small Causes for the trial of suits cognizable by such Courts up to the amount of five hundred rupees, and any Munsif with similar jurisdiction up to the amount of fifty rupees; and may, whenever it thinks fit, withdraw such jurisdiction from the Judge or Munsif so invested.

Power to transfer to Subordinate Judge or Munsif certain proceedings pending before District Judge.

24. The Judicial Commissioner may from time to time, by order, authorize any District Judge to transfer to a Subordinate Judge or Munsif under the control of such District Judge any of the proceedings next hereinafter mentioned, or any class of such proceedings specified in such order, and then pending, or thereafter instituted, before such District Judge.

The proceedings herein referred to are the following (that is to say):—

(1). Proceedings under Act XL of 1858 (for making better provision for the care of the persons and property of minors in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal), or Act IX of 1861 (to amend the law relating to minors).

(2). Applications for permission to sue or appeal as a pauper.

(3). Applications for certificates under Act XXVII of 1860 (for facilitating the collection of debts on successions, and for the security of parties paying debts to the representatives of deceased persons).

The District Judge may withdraw any proceedings so transferred, and may either dispose of them himself, or, with the sanction of the Judicial Commissioner, transfer them to any other Subordinate Judge or Munsif under his control.

Disposal of proceedings so transferred.

25. Subject to the provisions of the last clause of section twenty-four, all proceedings transferred under that section shall be disposed of by the Subordinate Judge or Munsif (as the case may be) according to the rules prescribed for the guidance of District Judges in like cases:

Provided that an appeal from the order of the Subordinate Judge or Munsif in such cases shall lie to the District Judge.

An appeal from his order thereon shall lie to the Judicial Commissioner, if an appeal from the decision of the District Judge in such proceedings is allowed by the law in force for the time being.

CHAPTER V.

MISCONDUCT OF OFFICERS.

Suspension and removal of Judicial Commissioner.

26. The Judicial Commissioner may be suspended or removed by the Governor General in Council.

Suspension or removal of subordinate judicial officers by Local Government.

27. Any District Judge, Additional Judge, Subordinate Judge or Munsif may be suspended or removed by the Local Government.

Suspension of Subordinate Judge or Munsif by Judicial Commissioner.

28. The Judicial Commissioner may, whenever he sees urgent necessity for so doing, suspend any Subordinate Judge or Munsif under his control.

Whenever the Judicial Commissioner exercises this power, he shall forthwith report to the Local Government the circumstances of the suspension, and the Local Government shall make such order thereon as it thinks fit.

Suspension of Munsif by District Judge.

29. Any District Judge may, whenever he sees urgent necessity for so doing, suspend any Munsif under his control.

Whenever the District Judge suspends any such Munsif, he shall forthwith send to the Local Government, through the Judicial Commissioner, a full report of the case, with the evidence (if any); and the Local Government shall make such order thereon as it thinks fit.

Removal, &c., of ministerial officers of Judicial Commissioner's Court.

30. The Judicial Commissioner may remove or suspend the ministerial officers of his Court, or fine them in an amount not exceeding one month's salary.

Removal, &c., of ministerial officers of Judges' Courts.

31. The Judicial Commissioner, and, subject only to the general control of the Judicial Commissioner, the Judges of the District Courts, may remove or suspend the ministerial officers of such Courts, or fine them in an amount not exceeding one month's salary.

Removal, &c., of ministerial officers of Subordinate Judges and Munsifs' Courts.

32. Any Subordinate Judge or Munsif may, by order, remove or suspend from office, or fine in an amount not exceeding one month's salary, any ministerial officer of his Court who is guilty of any misconduct or neglect in the performance of the duties of his office. And the District Judge, subject only to the general control of the Local Government, may, on appeal or otherwise, reverse or modify every such order.

The Judicial Commissioner (or the District Judge within whose jurisdiction such Court is situate) may by order suspend or remove any such ministerial officer.

Recovery of fines.

33. Any fine imposed under this chapter shall, if the order imposing it so directs, be recovered from the offender's salary.

CHAPTER VI.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Petition-writers.

34. The Judicial Commissioner may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, make rules—

(a) declaring what persons shall be permitted to practise as petition-writers in the Court of Oudh;

(b) regulating the conduct of persons so practising.

Whoever breaks any rule made under this section shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

Bar of redemption-suits when mortgage executed before 13th February, 1844.

35. When a mortgagee shall, under or by virtue of a mortgage executed before the thirteenth of February, 1844, have obtained possession of any land comprised in his mortgage, the mortgagor, or any person claiming through him, shall not bring a suit to redeem the mortgage of such land, any subsequent acknowledgment of the title or right to redeem of the mortgagor, or of any person claiming through him, notwithstanding.

Redemption-suits not barred where fixed term for redemption had not expired before 13th February, 1856.

Nothing herein contained shall be taken to bar a suit for redemption in any case where, by the instrument of mortgage, a term was fixed within which the property comprised therein might be redeemed, and such term had not expired before the thirteenth day of February, 1856: provided that, if any such term had expired before that day, the suit shall be barred, whatever may have been the date on which the instrument was executed.

Vacations.

36. Subject to such orders as may from time to time be issued by the Governor General in Council, and to the approval of the Local Government, the Judicial Commissioner shall prepare a list of days to be observed in each year as close holidays in the Courts subordinate to him.

Such list shall be published in the local official Gazette, and the said days shall be observed accordingly.

Pending proceedings.

37. All proceedings pending on the first day of July, 1879, shall be heard and disposed of by the Courts established under this Act that would have had jurisdiction if they had been in existence when such proceedings were instituted.

For the purposes of this section, all appeals pending on the said date shall—

(a) if preferred from the decrees, orders or decisions of Commissioners,—be deemed to be appeals from District Judges;

(b) if preferred from the decrees, orders or decisions of Deputy Commissioners or of Assistant Commissioners, or Extra-Assistant Commissioners acting in exercise of enhanced powers conferred under the Oudh Civil Courts Act, section eleven, clause two,—be deemed to be appeals from Subordinate Judges; and

(c) if preferred from the decrees or orders of Assistant Commissioners or Extra-Assistant Commissioners otherwise acting or of Tahsildárs,—be deemed to be appeals from Munsifs.

Appeals from decrees, &c., passed before Act comes into force.

38. For the purposes of sections eighteen to twenty-one (both inclusive), all decrees, orders and decisions passed before the date on which this Act comes into force shall be deemed—

(a) if passed by a Commissioner,—to have been passed by a District Judge;

(b) if passed by a Deputy Commissioner, or by an Assistant or Extra Assistant Commissioner in exercise of enhanced powers conferred under the Oudh Civil Courts Act, section eleven, clause two,—to have been passed by a Subordinate Judge; and

(c) if passed by an Assistant or Extra Assistant Commissioner otherwise than as aforesaid, or by a Tahsildár,—to have been passed by a Munsif.

SCHEDULE.

ACTS REPEALED.

(See section 3.)

Number and year.	Title of Act.	Extent of repeal.
Act X of 1870 ...	The Land Acquisition Act, 1870 ...	So much of section 3 as declares the Commissioner of a Division to be a principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction in Oudh.
Act XXXII of 1871 ...	The Oudh Civil Courts Act, 1871	The whole, except section 40.
Act XVIII of 1876 ...	The Oudh Laws Act, 1876 ...	Sections 21, 23 and 43.
Act XIV of 1878 ...	An Act to assimilate certain powers of the Local Governments of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh.	Section 3.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to bring the law in Oudh with regard to the constitution and jurisdiction of the Civil Courts into harmony with the new state of things which will result from the separation of the judicial and executive branches of the Administration in that Province. The law at present regulating the Civil Courts in Oudh is Act XXXII of 1871 (the Oudh Civil Courts Act, 1871). It was found that, in order to fit that Act to the altered circumstances of Oudh, it would have to be practically reconstructed; and it was therefore determined to adopt the simpler and more convenient course of repealing it altogether, and of embodying such of its provisions as it might be desirable to retain in a new Act.

2. This Bill is in the main an extension to Oudh of the law regulating the Civil Courts in Bengal and the North-Western Provinces, namely, Act VI of 1871 (the Bengal Civil Courts Act, 1871), with certain modifications, which the circumstances of Oudh seem to require.

3. The chief points of variance between the Bill and the Bengal Civil Courts Act are—

1st.—The limitation of the original jurisdiction of Sub-Judges to suits in which the value of the subject-matter in dispute does not exceed 10,000 rupees.

2ndly.—The declaration of the finality of decisions or orders passed in appeal where the appellate order is in concurrence with that of the Court of first instance.

3rdly.—The allowance of a second appeal on the facts as well as on a point of law where the effect of the order or decision of the Appellate Court is to reverse or substantially modify the order or decision of the Court of first instance.

4thly.—The alteration of the course of first appeal where the value of the subject-matter of the suit exceeds 5,000 rupees, but does not exceed 10,000 rupees.

4. The reason for the first of these changes is the expediency of suits of great value and importance, and in regard to which an appeal lies as a matter of right to the Privy Council, being tried by the principal Court of original civil jurisdiction.

The second and third points of divergence from the provisions of the Bengal Courts Act comprise simply the maintenance of the principle of the existing law in Oudh in regard to appeals, which has not only worked well hitherto, but has been thought worthy of adoption to some extent for [illegible] Provinces.

The fourth change is the natural accompaniment of the first, as its effect is to bring all suits either in the original or appellate stage, where they reach the appellate stage, before the District Court.

5. Sections 23 to 25 of Act XXXII of 1871, giving the Judicial Commissioner power to refer cases to the High Court of the North-Western Provinces, and section 27 of that Act, conferring power to appoint an Additional Judicial Commissioner, have been omitted from the Bill; the former because it does not appear to be used; the latter because it is no longer necessary.

6. Section 21 of the Oudh Laws Act (XVIII of 1876), relating to the management of land attached by the Civil Courts, and section 28 of the same Act, which gives the Judicial Commissioner a power of revising the decisions of the Subordinate Courts, are repealed, because it is considered that these matters are sufficiently provided for by the Code of Civil Procedure.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 21st May, 1879, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 7 of 1879.

A Bill to provide for the revision of proceedings in trials held under the Military Cantonments Act, 1864, section 20.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the revision of the proceedings in trials held under the twentieth section of Act No. XXII of 1864 (to make provision for the Administration of Military Cantonments); It is hereby enacted as follows:—

New clause substituted in Act XXII of 1864, sec. 20.

1. For the last clause of the said section, the following shall be substituted (that is to say):—

"There shall be no appeal in any case tried under this section; but every person trying any such case shall, for the purposes of chapter XXII of the Code of Criminal Procedure, be deemed to be subordinate to the High Court, the Court of Session and the Magistrate of the District."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

IN a case tried some months ago by an officer specially invested, under section 20 of Act XXII of 1864, with power to try breaches of Cantonment rules, the Judges of the Chief Court of the Panjáb, to whom the officer's order was submitted for revision, expressed a doubt as to whether the twenty-second chapter of the Code of Criminal Procedure gave them any power of revision in such a case. They, at the same time, expressed an opinion to the effect that such a power ought to be provided. The Governor General in Council concurs as to the need of such a power, and the present Bill has been drafted to provide it.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 21st May, 1879, and was referred to a Select Committee :—

No. 5 of 1879.

A Bill to provide for the registration of Trade-marks.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the registration of trade-marks; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Preamble.

Short title. 1. This Act may be called "The Indian Trade-marks Act, 1879":

Local extent. It extends to the whole of British India;

Commencement. and it shall come into force at once.

Interpretation-clause. 2. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,—

"Trade-mark." "trade-mark" means a mark consisting of one or more of the following essential particulars (namely) :

(a) a name of an individual or firm printed, impressed or woven in some particular and distinctive manner, or

(b) a written signature or copy of a written signature of an individual or firm, or

(c) a distinctive device, mark, heading, label or ticket :

it includes also any special and distinctive word or words, or combination of numerals or letters, used as a trade-mark before the passing of this Act :

"Registered" and "registration." "registered" and "registration" respectively mean registered and registration under this Act and the rules made hereunder and for the time being in force :

"The Court." "the Court" means the High Court of Judicature at Fort William.

Appointment of a Registrar. 3. An officer (hereinafter called "the Registrar") shall be appointed from time to time, by name or in virtue of his office, by the Governor General in Council to register trade-marks and the proprietors thereof.

Registration of trade-marks. 4. From and after the first day of January, 1880, no person shall be entitled to institute any suit or other proceeding to prevent, or to recover damages for, the infringement of any trade-mark, unless such trade-mark is registered; but nothing in this section shall apply to any device, mark, name, combination of words, or other matter or thing which has been in use as a trade-mark before the passing of this Act, and which the Registrar has refused to register under this Act.

Characteristics of registered trade-marks. 5. A trade-mark must be registered as belonging to particular goods or classes of goods; and, when registered, shall be assigned and transmitted only in connexion with the good-will of the business concerned in such particular goods or classes of goods, and shall be determinable with such good-will.

Registration of a trade-mark shall be deemed to be equivalent to public use of such mark.

Title of first proprietor of a trade-mark.

6. The registration of a person as first proprietor of a trade-mark shall be primâ facie proof, and, after the expiration of five years from the date of such registration, conclusive proof, of his right to the exclusive use of such trade-mark, subject to the provisions of this Act as to its connexion with the good-will of a business.

Title of proprietor claiming by transmitted proprietorship.

7. Every person registered as proprietor of a trade-mark subsequently to the first person so registered shall, as respects his title to such trade-mark, stand in the same position as if his title were a continuation of the title of the first person so registered.

Rectification of register.

8. If any person who is not for the time being entitled, in accordance with this Act or otherwise in accordance with law, to the exclusive use of a trade-mark is registered as a proprietor of such trade-mark, or if the Registrar refuses to register, as proprietor of a trade-mark, the name of any person who is for the time being entitled in accordance with this Act or otherwise in accordance with law to the exclusive use of such trade-mark, or if any mark is registered as a trade-mark which is not authorized to be so registered, any person aggrieved by such registration or refusal may apply by motion, or in such other manner as the Court may direct, for an order of the Court that the register may be rectified.

The Court may either refuse such application, or it may, if satisfied of the justice of the case, make an order for the rectification of the register and award damages to the party aggrieved.

Case of several persons claiming to be registered in respect of same mark.

9. When each of several persons claims to be registered as proprietor of the same trade-mark, the Registrar may refuse to comply with the claims of any of such persons until their rights have been determined by the Court.

The Registrar may himself submit, or require the claimants to submit, their rights to the Court, by stating a case under section 527 of the Code of Civil Procedure, or in such other manner as the Court may direct.

What Court may decide in proceedings under Act.

10. The Court may, in any proceeding under section eight or section nine, decide—

(a) whether a mark is or is not such a trade-mark as is authorized to be registered under this Act;

(b) any question as to the right of any person who is party to such proceeding to have his name entered on the register of trade-marks, or to have the name of some other person removed from such register; and

(c) any other question that it may be necessary or expedient to decide for the rectification of the register.

Notice to be given by order of Court.

Whenever any order has been made rectifying the register, the Court shall by its order direct that due notice of such rectification be given to the Registrar.

Registration not to be granted without leave of Court in certain cases.

11. The Registrar shall not, without the special leave of the Court, to be given on motion or in such other manner as the Court may direct, register in respect of the same goods or classes of goods—

(a) a trade-mark identical with one which is already registered with respect to such goods or classes of goods; or

(b) a trade-mark so nearly resembling a trade-mark already registered with respect to such goods or classes of goods as to be calculated to deceive.

Registration when not to be granted.

12. The Registrar shall not register, as part of, or in combination with, a trade-mark, any scandalous designs, or any words, if the exclusive use of such words would not, by reason of their being calculated to deceive or otherwise, be deemed entitled to protection in a Court.

Governor General in Council may make rules to carry out Act.

13. The Governor General in Council may from time to time make rules consistent with this Act as to—

(a) the manner in which applications for registration of trade-marks shall be made;

(b) the notices to be given by advertisement before the registration of trade-marks;

(c) the classification of goods for the purposes of this Act;

(d) the registration of first and subsequent proprietors of trade-marks;

(e) the fees to be charged for registration of trade-marks, for the continuance of a trade-mark on the register and for granting certificates of refusal to register anything as a trade-mark;

(f) the removal from the register of any trade-mark;

(g) the form of notices under this Act, the mode of addressing and serving such notices, and the proof of such service;

(h) the persons entitled to inspect the register; and

(i) generally for the purpose of carrying this Act into effect.

Such rules shall be published in the Gazette of India, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

Certificate of Registrar to be evidence.

14. The certificate of the Registrar as to any entry, matter or thing which he is authorized by this Act, or any rules made hereunder, to make or do, shall be evidence of such entry having been made and of the contents thereof, and of such matters and things having been done or left undone.

Saving of marks and devices not capable of being registered under Act.

15. When an application by any person to register as a trade-mark a device, mark, name, word, combination of words, or other matter or thing which has been in use as a trade-mark before the passing of this Act, has been refused, the Registrar shall, at the request of the applicant and on payment by him of the fee prescribed by the rules made under section thirteen, grant him a certificate of such refusal.

A certificate so granted shall be conclusive proof of such refusal.

Saving of existing jurisdiction of Courts.

16. The provisions of this Act conferring a special jurisdiction on the said High Court shall not, except so far as such jurisdiction extends, affect the jurisdiction of any other Court in suits or proceedings relating to trade-marks.

Registrar to rectify register on notice from them.

If the register requires to be rectified in consequence of any proceedings in any such other Court, due notice of such requirement shall be given to the Registrar, and he shall rectify the register accordingly.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THIS Bill has been prepared, at the request of the Government of Bombay, to meet the wishes of the Mill-owners Association and the Bombay Chamber of Commerce. Both these bodies call the attention of the Local Government to the provisions of the English Trade-marks Registration Acts of 1875 and 1876 (which have been held by the High Court of Bombay not to apply to India), and state that it seems desirable, having regard to the increase of manufactures in this country, and especially of the cotton-manufactures of Bombay, that there should be a law of a similar nature in India.

2. The Bill is nothing more than a reproduction, with the changes required to fit them to the different circumstances of this country, of the provisions of the Statutes 38 & 39 Vic., chapter 91 (An Act to establish a register of Trade-marks), and 39 & 40 Vic., chapter 33 (An Act for the amendment of the Trade-marks Registration Act, 1875). It seems desirable (more especially in the case of laws dealing with large commercial interests), when the object of one of our Acts is merely to extend the provisions of an Imperial Statute to this country, to follow closely the lines of such Statute, so as to make the law in this country as nearly as possible identical with that in England.

3. The Bill provides for the appointment of a Registrar and the registration of trade-marks, and enacts that, after a certain fixed date, no suit shall be brought for the infringement of a trade-mark, unless such trade-mark is registered in accordance with the provisions of the Bill; it further defines the essential particulars of which a trade-mark must hereafter consist; but it saves from the operation of these provisions the trade-marks which are at present in use and entitled to protection as such. The other provisions of the Bill are subsidiary to these, and the only one of them calling for notice here is that by which the High Court at Fort William is appointed the Court for the purposes of the Act. As it is understood that the registry-office will be situate at Calcutta (where alone proprietorship in copyright and specifications of inventions are registered), that Court is obviously the most convenient one to appoint.

SCHEDULE.

A Bill to amend the law relating to Civil Courts in Oudh.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to Civil Courts in Oudh; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Oudh Civil Courts Act, 1879":

Local extent.

It extends to all the territories for the time being administered by the Chief Commissioner of Oudh;

Commencement.

and it shall come into force on the first day of July, 1879.

Repeal of enactments.

2. On and from that day the Acts mentioned in the schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent specified in the third column thereof.

"District" defined.

3. In this Act, "district" means the area comprised in the local limits of the jurisdiction of the District Judge.

CHAPTER II.

CONSTITUTION OF COURTS.

Grades of Courts.

4. Besides the Courts established under any other enactment for the time being in force, there shall be four grades of Civil Courts in Oudh (namely):—

(1) the Court of the Munsif;
(2) the Court of the Subordinate Judge;
(3) the Court of the District Judge;
(4) the Court of the Judicial Commissioner.

Number of District Judges.

5. The number of District Judges, Subordinate Judges and Munsifs to be appointed under this Act shall be fixed, and may from time to time be altered, by the Local Government.

Appointment of officers under Act.

6. The Governor General in Council may appoint such person as he thinks fit to be Judicial Commissioner.

The District Judges, Subordinate Judges and Munsifs shall be appointed by the Local Government.

Additional Judges.

7. When the business pending before any District Judge requires the aid of Additional Judges for its speedy disposal, the Local Government may, upon the recommendation of the Judicial Commissioner, and with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, appoint such Additional Judges as may be requisite.

Such Additional Judges shall perform any of the duties of a Judge under chapter III of this Act that the District Judge may, with the sanction of the Judicial Commissioner, assign to them; and in the performance of such duties they shall exercise the same powers as the District Judge.

Temporary charge of the office of District Judge.

8. In the event of the death of a District Judge, or of his being incapacitated by illness or otherwise for the performance of his duties, or of his absence from the station in which his Court is held, the Additional Judge, or, if there is no Additional Judge attached to such Court, the senior Subordinate Judge of the District, shall, without relinquishing his ordinary duties, assume charge of the Judge's office;

and shall discharge such of the current duties thereof as are connected with the filing of suits and appeals, the issue of processes and the like functions;

and shall continue in charge of the office until it is resumed by the District Judge, or assumed by an officer duly appointed thereto.

Transfer of proceedings on death, &c., of Subordinate Judge.

9. In the event of the death of a Subordinate Judge, or of his being incapacitated by illness or otherwise for the performance of his duties, or of his absence on leave, when no person is appointed to act for him, the District Judge may transfer all or any of the proceedings pending in the Court of such Subordinate Judge either to his own Court or to the Court of a Subordinate Judge (if any) under his control.

All proceedings transferred under this section shall be disposed of as if they had been instituted in the Court to which they are so transferred.

Principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction.

10. The Court of the District Judge shall be deemed to be the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction in the district over which his jurisdiction extends.

Control over Civil Courts.

The control over all the Civil Courts in such district is invested in the said District Judge, but subject to the general control of the Judicial Commissioner.

Appointment of ministerial officers of Courts.

11. The Judicial Commissioner and the District Judges, and, subject to the approval of the District Judges to whose control they are respectively subject, the Subordinate Judges and Munsifs, shall appoint the ministerial officers of their Courts.

Transfer of ministerial officers.

12. The Judicial Commissioner or any District Judge may transfer any ministerial officer from any Court under his control to any other Court under his control.

Seals of Courts.

13. Every Court under this Act shall use a seal of such form and dimensions as are for the time being prescribed by the Local Government.

Place of sitting of Courts.

14. The Local Government may fix and from time to time alter the place or places at which any Court under this Act is to be held.

Power to confer Munsif's jurisdiction.

15. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, invest such persons as it thinks fit with the powers of a Munsif, subject to such restrictions in respect of the value of the subject-matter of the suit as may be deemed proper, and withdraw such jurisdiction.

CHAPTER III.

GENERAL JURISDICTION.

Power to fix local limits of jurisdiction.

16. The Local Government shall, by notification in the official Gazette, fix, and may by a like notification from time to time vary, the local limits of the jurisdiction of any Civil Court or person invested with the powers of a Civil Court under this Act.

Extent of original jurisdiction of District Judge;

17. Subject to the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, section 15,— the jurisdiction of a District Judge extends to all original suits cognizable by the Civil Courts.

of Subordinate Judge;

Subject as aforesaid, the jurisdiction of a Subordinate Judge extends to all suits in which the amount or value of the subject-matter in dispute does not exceed ten thousand rupees, and of Munsif.

the jurisdiction of a Munsif to all suits in which such amount or value does not exceed one thousand rupees.

Appeals from Munsifs.

18. Appeals from the decrees and orders of Munsifs and Subordinate Judges in original suits and proceedings shall, when such appeals are allowed by law, lie to the District Judge:

Provided that the Judicial Commissioner may, from time to time, subject to such restrictions as he may deem fit, order that all or any of the appeals from the decrees and orders of a Munsif shall be preferred to such Subordinate Judge as may be mentioned in the order; and such appeals shall thereupon be preferred accordingly.

Power to refer to Subordinate Judge appeals from Munsifs.

19. Every District Judge may, from time to time, subject to the orders of the Judicial Commissioner, refer to any Subordinate Judge under his control any appeals pending before him from the decrees and orders of Munsifs; and such Subordinate Judge shall hear and dispose of such appeals accordingly.

The District Judge may withdraw any appeals so referred, and hear and dispose of appeals so withdrawn.

Appeals from District and Additional Judges.

20. Appeals from the decrees and orders of District Judges and Additional Judges in original suits and proceedings shall, when such appeals are allowed by law, lie to the Judicial Commissioner.

When Judicial Commissioner may receive second appeal.

21. When the decision of a Subordinate Judge, District Judge or Additional Judge passed in appeal confirms the decree or order of the Court of first instance, such decision shall be final; but when such decision reverses or modifies such decree or order and is not declared by any law for the time being in force to be final, the Judicial Commissioner may receive a second appeal if, on a perusal of the grounds of appeal and of copies of the judgments of the lower Courts, he is of opinion that a further consideration of the case is requisite for the ends of justice.

Presiding officer of Court not to try suit or appeal in which he is interested.

22. No presiding officer of any Court having jurisdiction under this Act shall try any suit or appeal in which he is a party or personally interested, or any appeal against a decree or order passed by himself, or shall adjudicate upon any proceeding connected with or arising out of such suit or appeal.

Mode of disposing of such suit.

When any such suit, appeal or proceeding comes before any such presiding officer, he shall forthwith transmit the record of the case to the Court to which he is immediately subordinate, with a report of the circumstances attending the reference.

The superior Court shall thereupon dispose of the case in the manner prescribed by section 25 of Act X of 1877.

In the event of an appeal being preferred to a Judicial Commissioner from a judgment or order passed by him in any other capacity, or in which he has any personal interest, he shall report the fact to the Local Government, which may transfer the case to the High Court of the North-Western Provinces for disposal, or appoint an officer to be an Additional Judicial Commissioner for the disposal of the case.

CHAPTER IV.

SPECIAL JURISDICTION.

23. The Local Government may invest, within such local limits as it from time to time fixes, any District Judge, Additional Judge or Subordinate Judge with the jurisdiction of a Judge of a Court of Small Causes for the trial of suits cognizable by such Courts up to the amount of five hundred rupees, and any Munsif with similar jurisdiction up to the amount of fifty rupees; and may, whenever it thinks fit, withdraw such jurisdiction from the Judge or Munsif so invested.

Power to invest Subordinate Judge and Munsif with Small Cause Court jurisdiction.

24. The Judicial Commissioner may from time to time, by order, authorize any District Judge to transfer to a Subordinate Judge or Munsif under the control of such District Judge any of the proceedings next hereinafter mentioned, or any class of such proceedings specified in such order, and then pending, or thereafter instituted, before such District Judge.

Power to transfer to Subordinate Judge or Munsif certain proceedings pending before District Judge.

The proceedings herein referred to are the following (that is to say):—

(1). Proceedings under Act XL of 1858 (for making better provision for the care of the persons and property of minors in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal), or Act IX of 1861 (to amend the law relating to minors).

(2). Applications for permission to sue or appeal as a pauper.

(3). Applications for certificates under Act XXVII of 1860 (for facilitating the collection of debts on successions, and for the security of parties paying debts to the representatives of deceased persons).

The District Judge may withdraw any proceedings so transferred, and may either dispose of them himself, or, with the sanction of the Judicial Commissioner, transfer them to any other Subordinate Judge or Munsif under his control.

25. Subject to the provisions of the last clause of section twenty-four, all proceedings transferred under that section shall be disposed of by the Subordinate Judge or Munsif (as the case may be) according to the rules prescribed for the guidance of District Judges in like cases:

Disposal of proceedings so transferred.

Provided that an appeal from the order of the Subordinate Judge or Munsif in such cases shall lie to the District Judge.

An appeal from his order thereon shall lie to the Judicial Commissioner, if an appeal from the decision of the District Judge in such proceedings is allowed by the law in force for the time being.

CHAPTER V.

MISCONDUCT OF OFFICERS.

26. The Judicial Commissioner may be suspended or removed by the Governor General in Council.

Suspension and removal of Judicial Commissioner.

27. Any District Judge, Additional Judge, Subordinate Judge or Munsif may be suspended or removed by the Local Government.

Suspension or removal of subordinate judicial officers by Local Government.

28. The Judicial Commissioner may, whenever he sees urgent necessity for so doing, suspend any Subordinate Judge or Munsif under his control.

Suspension of Subordinate Judge or Munsif by Judicial Commissioner.

Whenever the Judicial Commissioner exercises this power, he shall forthwith report to the Local Government the circumstances of the suspension, and the Local Government shall make such order thereon as it thinks fit.

29. Any District Judge may, whenever he sees urgent necessity for so doing, suspend any Munsif under his control.

Suspension of Munsif by District Judge.

Whenever the District Judge suspends any such Munsif, he shall forthwith send to the Local Government, through the Judicial Commissioner, a full report of the case, with the evidence (if any); and the Local Government shall make such order thereon as it thinks fit.

30. The Judicial Commissioner may remove or suspend the ministerial officers of his Court, or fine them in an amount not exceeding one month's salary.

Removal, &c., of ministerial officers of Judicial Commissioner's Court.

31. The Judicial Commissioner, and, subject only to the general control of the Judicial Commissioner, the Judges of the District Courts, may remove or suspend the ministerial officers of such Courts, or fine them in an amount not exceeding one month's salary.

Removal, &c., of ministerial officers of Judges' Courts.

32. Any Subordinate Judge or Munsif may, by order, remove or suspend from office, or fine in an amount not exceeding one month's salary, any ministerial officer of his Court who is guilty of any misconduct or neglect in the performance of the duties of his office. And the District Judge, subject only to the general control of the Local Government, may, on appeal or otherwise, reverse or modify every such order.

Removal, &c., of ministerial officers of Subordinate Judges and Munsifs' Courts.

The Judicial Commissioner (or the District Judge within whose jurisdiction such Court is situate) may by order suspend or remove any such ministerial officer.

33. Any fine imposed under this chapter shall, if the order imposing it so directs, be recovered from the offender's salary.

Recovery of fines.

CHAPTER VI.

MISCELLANEOUS.

34. The Judicial Commissioner may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, make rules—

Petition-writers.

(a) declaring what persons shall be permitted to practise as petition-writers in the Court of Oudh;

(b) regulating the conduct of persons so practising.

Whoever breaks any rule made under this section shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

35. When a mortgagee shall, under or by virtue of a mortgage executed before the thirteenth of February, 1844, have obtained possession of any land comprised in his mortgage, the mortgagor, or any person claiming through him, shall not bring a suit to redeem the mortgage of such land, any subsequent acknowledgment of the title or right to redeem of the mortgagor, or of any person claiming through him, notwithstanding.

Bar of redemption-suits when mortgage executed before 13th February, 1844.

Nothing herein contained shall be taken to bar a suit for redemption in any case where, by the instrument of mortgage, a term was fixed within which the property comprised therein might be redeemed, and such term had not expired before the thirteenth day of February, 1856: provided that, if any such term had expired before that day, the suit shall be barred, whatever may have been the date on which the instrument was executed.

Redemption-suits not barred where fixed term for redemption had not expired before 13th February, 1856.

36. Subject to such orders as may from time to time be issued by the Governor General in Council, and to the approval of the Local Government, the Judicial Commissioner shall prepare a list of days to be observed in each year as close holidays in the Courts subordinate to him.

Vacations.

Such list shall be published in the local official Gazette, and the said days shall be observed accordingly.

37. All proceedings pending on the first day of July, 1879, shall be heard and disposed of by the Courts established under this Act that would have had jurisdiction if they had been in existence when such proceedings were instituted.

Pending proceedings.

For the purposes of this section, all appeals pending on the said date shall—

(a) if preferred from the decrees, orders or decisions of Commissioners,—be deemed to be appeals from District Judges;

(b) if preferred from the decrees, orders or decisions of Deputy Commissioners or of Assistant Commissioners, or Extra-Assistant Commissioners acting in exercise of enhanced powers conferred under the Oudh Civil Courts Act, section eleven, clause two,—be deemed to be appeals from Subordinate Judges; and

(c) if preferred from the decrees or orders of Assistant Commissioners or Extra-Assistant Commissioners otherwise acting or of Tahsildárs,—be deemed to be appeals from Munsifs.

38. For the purposes of sections eighteen to twenty-one (both inclusive), all decrees, orders and decisions passed before the date on which this Act comes into force shall be deemed—

Appeals from decrees, &c., passed before Act comes into force.

(a) if passed by a Commissioner,—to have been passed by a District Judge;

(b) if passed by a Deputy Commissioner, or by an Assistant or Extra Assistant Commissioner in exercise of enhanced powers conferred under the Oudh Civil Courts Act, section eleven, clause two,—to have been passed by a Subordinate Judge; and (c) if passed by an Assistant or Extra Assistant Commissioner otherwise than as aforesaid, or by a Tahsildár,—to have been passed by a Munsif.

SCHEDULE.

ACTS REPEALED,

(See section 3.)

Number and year.	Title of Act.	Extent of repeal.
Act X of 1870 ...	The Land Acquisition Act, 1870 ...	So much of section 3 as declares the Commissioner of a Division to be a principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction in Oudh.
Act XXXII of 1871 ...	The Oudh Civil Courts Act, 1871	The whole, except section 40.
Act XVIII of 1876 ...	The Oudh Laws Act, 1876 ...	Sections 21, 28 and 43.
Act XIV of 1878 ...	An Act to assimilate certain powers of the Local Governments of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh.	Section 3.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to bring the law in Oudh with regard to the constitution and jurisdiction of the Civil Courts into harmony with the new state of things which will result from the separation of the judicial and executive branches of the Administration in that Province. The law at present regulating the Civil Courts in Oudh is Act XXXII of 1871 (the Oudh Civil Courts Act, 1871). It was found that, in order to fit that Act to the altered circumstances of Oudh, it would have to be practically reconstructed; and it was therefore determined to adopt the simpler and more convenient course of repealing it altogether, and of embodying such of its provisions as it might be desirable to retain in a new Act.

2. This Bill is in the main an extension to Oudh of the law regulating the Civil Courts in Bengal and the North-Western Provinces, namely, Act VI of 1871 (the Bengal Civil Courts Act, 1871), with certain modifications, which the circumstances of Oudh seem to require.

3. The chief points of variance between the Bill and the Bengal Civil Courts Act are—

1*st*.—The limitation of the original jurisdiction of Sub-Judges to suits in which the value of the subject-matter in dispute does not exceed 10,000 rupees.

2*ndly*.—The declaration of the finality of decisions or orders passed in appeal where the appellate order is in concurrence with that of the Court of first instance.

3*rdly*.—The allowance of a second appeal on the facts as well as on a point of law where the effect of the order or decision of the Appellate Court is to reverse or substantially modify the order or decision of the Court of first instance.

4*thly*.—The alteration of the course of first appeal where the value of the subject-matter of the suit exceeds 5,000 rupees, but does not exceed 10,000 rupees.

4. The reason for the first of these changes is the expediency of suits of great value and importance, and in regard to which an appeal lies as a matter of right to the Privy Council, being tried by the principal Court of original civil jurisdiction.

The second and third points of divergence from the provisions of the Bengal Courts Act comprise simply the maintenance of the principle of the existing law in Oudh in regard to appeals, which has not only worked well hitherto, but has been thought worthy of adoption to some extent for other Provinces.

The fourth change is the natural accompaniment of the first, as its effect is to bring all suits either in the original or appellate stage, where they reach the appellate stage, before the District Court.

5. Sections 23 to 25 of Act XXXII of 1871, giving the Judicial Commissioner power to refer cases to the High Court of the North-Western Provinces, and section 27 of that Act, conferring power to appoint an Additional Judicial Commissioner, have been omitted from the Bill; the former because it does not appear to be used; the latter because it is no longer necessary.

6. Section 21 of the Oudh Laws Act (XVIII of 1876), relating to the management of land attached by the Civil Courts, and section 28 of the same Act, which gives the Judicial Commissioner a power of revising the decisions of the Subordinate Courts, are repealed, because it is considered that these matters are sufficiently provided for by the Code of Civil Procedure.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 21st May, 1879, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 7 of 1879.

A Bill to provide for the revision of proceedings in trials held under the Military Cantonments Act, 1864, section 20.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the revision of the proceedings in trials held under the twentieth section of Act No. XXII of 1864 (to make provision for the Administration of Military Cantonments); It is hereby enacted as follows:— Preamble.

1. For the last clause of the said section, the following shall be substituted (that is to say):— New clause substituted in Act XXII of 1864, sec. 20.

"There shall be no appeal in any case tried under this section; but every person trying any such case shall, for the purposes of chapter XXII of the Code of Criminal Procedure, be deemed to be subordinate to the High Court, the Court of Session and the Magistrate of the District."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

IN a case tried some months ago by an officer specially invested, under section 20 of Act XXII of 1864, with power to try breaches of Cantonment rules, the Judges of the Chief Court of the Panjáb, to whom the officer's order was submitted for revision, expressed a doubt as to whether the twenty-second chapter of the Code of Criminal Procedure gave them any power of revision in such a case. They, at the same time, expressed an opinion to the effect that such a power ought to be provided. The Governor General in Council concurs as to the need of such a power, and the present Bill has been drafted to provide it.

PART V.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[First publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 26th June, 1879, and was referred to a Select Committee :—

No. 8 of 1879.

A Bill to provide for the grant of Probates of Wills and Letters of Administration to the estates of certain deceased persons.

Preamble. WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the grant of probate of wills and letters of administration to the estates of deceased persons in cases to which the Indian Succession Act, 1865, does not apply; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title. 1. This Act may be called "The Probate and Administration Act, 1879":

Local extent. It applies to the whole of British India;

Commencement. and it shall come into force on the first day of January, 1880.

Portions of Indian Succession Act extended to grants of probate or administration in the case of Hindús, &c. 2. The following portions of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, as amended by Act No. XIII of 1875 (to amend the law relating to Probates and Letters of Administration), by Act No. II of 1877 (to amend Act No. XIII of 1875), and by the District Delegates Act, 1879 (that is to say) :—

sections 179 to 186 (both inclusive);
sections 188 and 189;
sections 191 to 199 (both inclusive);
part XXX;
part XXXI, except section 239;
parts XXXIII to XL (both inclusive),

shall, notwithstanding anything contained in section 331, or any order passed by the Governor General in Council under section 332, of that Act, apply in the case of every Hindú, Muhammadan, Buddhist and person exempted under section 332 of that Act dying on or after the said first day of January, 1880.

Addition to section 199 of said Act. 3. The portions of the said Act thus applied shall be read as if after section 199 the following were inserted (that is to say) :—

"199A. When the deceased has died intestate, administration of his estate may be granted to any person who, according to the rules for the distribution of the estate of an intestate applicable in the case of such deceased, would be entitled to the whole or any part of such deceased's estate.

"When several such persons apply for administration, it shall be in the discretion of the Court to grant it to any one or more of them.

"When no such person applies, it may be granted to a creditor of the deceased."

Amendment of section 256 of said Act. 4. In section 256 of the said Act as applied by this Act, after the word "committed" the following shall be inserted (namely) :—

"and, if the Judge so direct, any person to whom probate shall be granted."

5. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, it shall, except in cases to which the Hindú Wills Act, 1870, applies, be in the discretion of the Court to refuse, for reasons to be recorded by it in writing, to grant any application for letters of administration made under this Act.

Power to refuse letters of administration.

6. Nothing herein contained shall—

Saving clause.

(a) validate any testamentary disposition which would otherwise have been invalid;

(b) invalidate any such disposition which would otherwise have been valid;

(c) vest in an executor or administrator any property of a deceased person which would otherwise have passed by survivorship to some other person;

(d) deprive any person of any right of maintenance to which he would otherwise have been entitled; or

(e) affect the rights, duties and privileges of the Administrator General of Bengal, Madras or Bombay.

7. In this Act, and in the said sections and parts of the Indian Succession Act as applied by this Act, all words defined in section three of that Act shall, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context, be deemed to have the same meaning as the said section three has attached to such words respectively.

Interpretation-clause.

8. No probate of a will or letters of administration to the estate of any Hindú, Muhammadan, Buddhist or person exempted as aforesaid dying on or after the said first day of January, 1880, shall be granted by any Court in British India except under this Act.

Probate and administration to be granted only under this Act.

9. The following amendments shall be made in the Hindú Wills Act, 1870 (namely):—

Amendment of Act XXI of 1870.

(a). For the portion of section two commencing with the words "sections one hundred and seventy-nine" and ending with the words "administrator with the will annexed" the words "and section one hundred and eighty-seven" shall be substituted.

(b). In section three, for the words "one hundred and three and one hundred and eighty-two" the words "and one hundred and three" shall be substituted.

(c). The third clause of the same section and the last clause of section six shall be repealed.

Nothing in this section shall apply to the case of any testator or intestate dying before the said first day of January, 1880.

10. All grants of probate of the will or letters of administration to the estate of any deceased Hindú, Muhammadan or Buddhist, or any person exempted by the Governor General in Council from the provisions of the Indian Succession Act, which may have been made since the first day of January, 1866, shall, whenever such grant would have been lawful if this Act had been in force, be deemed to have been made in accordance with law.

Validation of grants of probate and administration made since first January, 1866.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

As the law of British India at this moment stands, there is, speaking generally, no means of conferring upon any one a complete and conclusive title as representative of the estate of a deceased Hindú, Muhammadan or Buddhist or other person exempt from the operation of the Indian Succession Act.

The Hindú Wills Act is at present limited in its operation to the Presidency-towns and Lower Bengal; and, even if the proposal to extend it to other parts of British India, now under consideration, is carried out, it will still only apply to cases of testamentary succession among Hindús.

The grant of a certificate under Act XXVII of 1860 makes the person who has obtained it a representative only for certain very limited purposes; and, though in the Bombay Presidency a certificate purporting to confer larger powers may be obtained under Regulation VIII of 1827, it is by no means clear what the status of the holder of such a certificate precisely is.

In the Presidency-towns probates of the wills and letters of administration to the estates of deceased Natives can be granted under the Supreme Court Charters in cases to which the Succession Act and the Hindú Wills Act do not apply; but the representative status conferred by such grants falls far short of that conferred by similar grants in the case of deceased European British subjects.

2. From this state of things much trouble and litigation at times result. The heirs may be very numerous; their interests may differ in degree; some of them may be minors or otherwise incapacitated; others may be residing at a distance; the titles of some may be disputed; the settlement of claims against the estate may thus be a matter of endless complication; the making of a satisfactory title to any portion of it which it may be necessary to sell may be impossible.

3. The necessity of devising some means of removing these difficulties was brought to the notice of the Government of India some time ago by Mr. Broughton, then Administrator General of Bengal, and now a Judge of the Calcutta High Court; and a Bill drafted by him was circulated for the opinions of local authorities. That Bill, while guarding against any interference with the succession laws of the classes in question, went in effect to apply to them the provisions of the Indian Succession Act relating to probate and administration, and, amongst others, those provisions which make the grant of probate or letters of administration a condition precedent to the establishment of any right derived by succession from a deceased person.

4. The reports of the local authorities have now been received, and their purport may be briefly described by saying that, while there is a considerable body of opinion in favour of providing the means of obtaining probate of the will or letters of administration to the estate of any deceased person when those interested desire to do so, the proposal to insist on probate or letters of administration as essential has been generally condemned, as tending to impose upon a multitude of poor and ignorant people in cases where there is no difficulty or dispute an unnecessary amount of trouble and expense.

5. The present Bill has been drawn on the lines thus indicated. It applies to the estates of all persons not at present governed by the Indian Succession Act the portions of that Act relating to the grant of probate and administration and the powers, duties and procedure of executors and administrators, omitting, however, those sections (187 and 190) which make it compulsory to obtain probate or administration, and also those sections (200 to 207) which lay down the order according to which the various persons interested are entitled to administration on an intestacy.

6. These latter sections it would be impossible to apply, as they are in part based on a law of intestate succession differing from that of the classes for which the Bill has been drawn. The only rule it seems possible to lay down for these classes is the broad one that the grant shall follow the interest; that, when several persons inheriting portions of the estate claim administration, the Judge may grant it to any one or more of them as he thinks fit, and that, when no such person applies, he may grant it to a creditor.

7. This is the rule laid down by section 3 of the Bill; and, as it is apprehended that in some cases of family feuds a person entitled to a trifling share of the deceased's estate might apply for administration merely for the purpose of harassing his co-heirs by compelling them to apply, a full discretion has been reserved (in section 5) to refuse, for reasons recorded, to grant any application.

8. The Indian Succession Act, following the English law, provides for the taking of security for the due discharge of his office only from an administrator, it being considered that, in the case of an executor who is selected by the testator himself, such security can safely be dispensed with. But amongst the classes to which this Act will apply cases will, it is apprehended, occasionally occur in which it may be expedient to take security even from an executor; and accordingly a section (4) has been inserted in the Bill amending section 256 of the Succession Act in such a manner as to give a power to the Court to require an executor to give security.

9. Section 6 of the Bill saves in the fullest manner the substantive laws of succession of the classes to which the Bill applies.

10. Section 8 is intended to put an end to the imperfect grants of probate and administration under the old Supreme Court Charters already referred to.

11. The portions of the Hindú Wills Act specified in section 9 are repealed merely because they are re-enacted with a wider application in the present Bill. Section 10 is intended to remove all doubt as to the validity of certain grants of probate and administration which have been made in British Burma.

[First publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 26th June, 1879, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 9 of 1879.

A Bill to make further provision for the grant of Probate and Letters of Administration in non-contentious cases.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make further provision for the grant of probate and letters of administration in non-contentious cases; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

1. This Act may be called "The District Delegates Act, 1879":

Short title.

It extends to the whole of British India;

Extent.

and it shall come into force on the first day of January, 1880.

Commencement.

2. After section 235 of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, the following section shall be added:—

Addition of section after section 235 of Succession Act.

"235 A. The High Court may, from time to time, appoint such judicial officers within any district as it thinks fit, to act for the District Judge as Delegates to grant probate and letters of administration in non-contentious cases, within such local limits as it may from time to time prescribe:

Power to appoint Delegate of District Judge to deal with non-contentious cases.

Provided that, in the case of High Courts not established by Royal Charter, such appointment be made with the previous sanction of the Local Government.

Persons so appointed shall be called District Delegates."

3. After section 241 of the said Act, the following section shall be added:—

Addition of section after section 241 of same Act.

"241 A. Probate and letters of administration may, upon application for that purpose to any District Delegate, be granted by him in any case in which there is no contention, if it appears by petition (verified as hereinafter mentioned) that the testator or intestate, as the case may be, at the time of his death resided within the jurisdiction of such Delegate."

Probate and letters of administration may be granted by Delegate.

4. To sections 244 and 246 of the said Act, respectively, the following words shall be added: "and when the application is to a District Delegate, the petition shall further state that the deceased at the time of his death resided within the jurisdiction of such Delegate."

Addition to sections 244 and 246 of same Act.

5. For section 251 of the said Act, the following section shall be substituted:—

Substitution of section for section 251 of same Act.

"251. Caveats against the grant of probate or administration may be lodged with the District Judge or a District Delegate; and immediately on any caveat being lodged with any Caveats against grant of probate or administration.

District Delegate, he shall send a copy thereof to the District Judge; and immediately on a caveat being entered with the District Judge, a copy thereof shall be given to the District Delegate, if any, within whose jurisdiction it is alleged the deceased resided at the time of his death, and to any other Judge or District Delegate to whom it may appear to the District Judge expedient to transmit the same."

Amendment of section 253 of same Act.

6. In section 253 of the said Act, after the word "Judge" the words "or officer," and after the word "made" the words "or notice thereof has been given of its entry with some other Delegate," shall be inserted.

Addition of sections after section 253 of same Act.

7. After section 253 of the said Act, the following sections shall be added:—

District Delegate when not to grant probate or administration.

"253 A. A District Delegate shall not grant probate or letters of administration in any case in which there is contention as to the grant, or in which it otherwise appears to him that probate or letters of administration ought not to be granted in his Court.

"Explanation.—By 'contention' is understood the appearance of any one in person or by his recognized agent, or by a pleader duly appointed to act on his behalf to oppose the proceeding.

Power to transmit statement to District Judge in doubtful cases where no contention.

"253 B. In every case in which there is no contention, but it appears to the District Delegate doubtful whether the probate or letters of administration should or should not be granted, or when any question arises in relation to the grant, or application for the grant, of any probate or letters of administration, the District Delegate may, if he thinks proper, transmit a statement of the matter in question to the District Judge, who may direct the District Delegate to proceed in the matter of the application, according to such instructions as to the Judge may seem necessary, or may forbid any further proceeding by the District Delegate in relation to the matter of such application, leaving the party applying for the grant in question to make application to the Judge.

Procedure where there is contention, or District Delegate thinks probate or letters of administration should be refused in his Court.

"253 C. In every case in which there is contention, or the District Delegate is of opinion that the probate or letters of administration should be refused in his Court, the petition, with any documents that may have been filed therewith, shall be returned to the person by whom the application was made, in order that the same may be presented to the District Judge; unless the District Delegate thinks it necessary, for the purposes of justice, to impound the same, which he is hereby authorized to do; and in that case the same shall be sent by him to the District Judge."

Amendment of sections 254, 255 and 308 of same Act.

8. In the said Act, sections 254 and 255, respectively, after the words "I, Judge of the District of ," the words "(or Delegate appointed for granting probate or letters of administration in (here insert the limits of the Delegate's jurisdiction))"; and in section 308, after the words "District Judge by whom" the words "or by whose District Delegate" shall be inserted.

Introduction of the words "or District Delegate" in certain sections of same Act.

9. In the said Act, sections 246, 250, 255 and 259, after the words "District Judge," and in section 250 and section 254 (when it first occurs) after the word "Judge," the words "or District Delegate" shall be inserted respectively.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE Indian Succession Act as originally framed by the Law Commissioners empowered the District Judge to appoint judicial officers to act for him as delegates to grant probates and letters of administration in non-contentious cases much in the same way as the District Registrars appointed under the Court of Probate Act, 1857, do in England; but the provisions relating to this matter were struck out of the Bill by the Select Committee, partly because they were deemed unnecessary, and partly because it was apprehended that the power which was to be conferred on District Judges would give rise to abuse.

If, however, the Bill which has been drafted to provide for granting probate of the wills and administration to the estates of persons now exempted from the operation of the Indian Succession Act becomes law, it is probable that the business of granting probate and administration will increase to such an extent that the District Judges will be unable to dispose of it without assistance.

The present Bill has accordingly been framed with a view to replacing in the Succession Act, with some slight modifications in point of form, the sections removed from it by the Select Committee; but, in order to avoid as far as possible the danger of abuse apprehended by the Select Committee, the power of appointing the delegates has been vested not in the District Judges, but in the High Courts, and its exercise has in the case of High Courts not established by Royal Charter been made subject to the previous sanction of the Local Government.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 26th June, 1879, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 10 of 1879.

A Bill to amend Bengal Regulation VII of 1828.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend Bengal Regulation VII of 1828 (for amending the Provisions of Regulation XV of 1795, and for defining the Authority of the Rajah of Benares in the Mahals therein referred to) in manner hereinafter appointed; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Benares Family Domains Act, 1879";

Commencement of Act.

And it shall come into force on such day as the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint in this behalf.

Repeal of certain portions of Bengal Regulation VII of 1828.

2. The following portions of Bengal Regulation VII of 1828 shall be repealed (namely):—

(a) in section 5, the words and figures "under the rules contained in Regulation XLI, 1795";

(b) section 9;

(c) in section 14, the words "under the Regulations" in both places in which they occur;

(d) in section 19, the words "before the Court of circuit";

(e) in section 20, the proviso.

New section substituted for section 3 of same Regulation.

3. In the same Regulation, for section 3, the following shall be substituted (namely):—

Superintendence of mahals vested in Commissioner.

"3. The superintendence of the said mahals shall be vested in the Commissioner of the Benares Division, hereinafter called 'the Superintendent.'

"The Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces may from time to time appoint a Deputy Superintendent of the said mahals, and confer upon him all or any of the powers of the Superintendent, to be exercised by him subject to the general control of the Superintendent."

Amendment of same Regulation, section 7.

4. In the same Regulation, section 7, for the last twenty-two words, the following shall be substituted (namely):—

"The orders thus passed by the Superintendent shall be subject to appeal to, and revision by, the Board of Revenue, whose order thereon shall be final, unless altered or set aside by the said Lieutenant-Governor."

Clause added to section 10 of same Regulation.

5. To section 10 of the same Regulation the following clause shall be added (namely):—

"The Mahárájá may delegate to one or more of his officers the exercise of all or any of the powers vested in him under this section in the whole or any part of the said mahals."

Amendment of same Regulation, section 11.

6. In the same Regulation, section 11, for the words and figures "Regulation XI, 1822," the words "the enactments for the time being in force in the North-Western Provinces" shall be substituted.

Amendment of same Regulation, section 12.

7. In the same Regulation, section 12, for the words "Boards of Revenue," the words "Commissioners of Divisions and the Board of Revenue" shall be substituted;

and, for the words "towards the Board," the words "towards the Commissioner" shall be substituted.

Amendment of same Regulation, section 13.

8. In the same Regulation, section 13, for the words "Governor General in Council," the words "Board of Revenue" shall be substituted.

Amendment of, and addition to, same Regulation, section 16.

9. In the same Regulation, section 16, for the words "a Native Commissioner shall be maintained by the Rajah in each of the parganas referred to in Regulation XV, 1795," the following shall be substituted (namely): "A Native Commissioner or two or three Native Commissioners as the said Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time direct shall be maintained by the Mahárájá."

And to the same section the following shall be added (namely):—

"The local limits of the jurisdiction of the Native Commissioners shall be determined by the Mahárájá, and may be altered by him from time to time."

Amendment of same Regulation, section 21.

10. In the same Regulation, section 21, for the words and figures "contained in Regulation XXIII of 1814" to the end of the section, the following shall be substituted (namely): "prescribed by the said Lieutenant-Governor under section 22 of this Regulation."

Sections substituted for sections 22 to 26 of same Regulation.

11. For sections 22 to 26, both inclusive, of the same Regulation, the following sections shall be substituted (that is to say):—

"22. The said Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time make rules consistent with this Regulation to regulate the procedure and powers of the Native Commissioners, and to determine the cases in which, the mode in which, and the authority to or by which, the orders and decisions of such Commissioners shall be subject to appeal or revision.

"Such rules shall, when published in the local Gazette, have the force of law:

"Provided that no such rule shall be so published until the opinion of the Mahárájá thereon has been taken and considered by the Lieutenant-Governor.

"In matters not otherwise provided for by the rules made under this section, the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply.

Procedure in case of doubt as to Judge's jurisdiction.

"23. If, in any suit instituted or appeal presented under this Regulation in any Court, the Judge or presiding officer doubts whether he has jurisdiction, he may refer the matter to the Board of Revenue; and, on any such reference being made, the said Board may order the Judge or presiding officer either to proceed with the case, or to return the plaint or appeal for presentation in such other Court as it may in its order declare to be competent to take cognizance of the suit or appeal.

"The order of the said Board on any such reference shall be final.

Operation of general Acts.

"24. Except as provided by this Regulation or the rules made hereunder, or by any other enactment for the time being in force, the enactments for the time being in force in the North-Western Provinces shall be deemed to be in force in the Family Domains.

5 5

"25. In this Regulation, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—

Interpretation-clause.

" 'Board of Revenue' means the Board of Revenue of the North-Western Provinces, or such officer or officers as may hereafter be lawfully appointed to exercise, within the province of Benares, the powers of such Board:

'Board of Revenue:'

" 'Regulations' includes Acts for the time being in force in the North-Western Provinces."

'Regulations.'

12. All orders heretofore passed by the Governor General in Council or the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces or any other authority regarding revisions of settlement or other matters connected with the revenue administration of the tracts of territory mentioned in the preamble to Bengal Regulation VII of 1828 shall be deemed to have been passed in accordance with law; and no order or decision purporting to have been passed by any civil or revenue authority under the provisions of that Regulation shall be called in question in any Court.

Validation of past orders, &c.

13. In the Scheduled Districts Act, 1874, first schedule, Part IV, and in the Laws Local Extent Act, 1874, sixth schedule, Part IV, the following shall be repealed (that is to say):—

Parts of Acts XIV and XV of 1874 repealed.

" V. The Family Domains of the Mahárájá of Benares comprising the following parganas:—

Bhadohi and Kheyra Mángror in the Mirzapur District.

Kaswá Rájá in the Benares District."

14. In the Laws Local Extent Act, 1874, section 8, after clause (j) the following shall be inserted (namely):—

Clause added to Act XV of 1874, s. 8.

"(jj) extend to Pargana Bhadohi or Pargana Kheyra Mángror in the Mirzapur District, or to Pargana Kaswá Rájá in the Benares District, any law not now in force therein."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

1. By Bengal Regulation VII of 1828, it was provided that, in certain parganas in the Benares Division, known as the Family Domains of the Mahárájá of Benares, the settlement and collection of the revenue and the administration of justice in cases relating to land should be conducted by the Mahárájá and his officers, under the supervision of a Superintendent appointed by, and subject to the control of, the Governor General in Council.

2. For a long time past, owing to the changes that have taken place in these parganas and in the country generally, it has been found impossible to proceed in strict accordance with that Regulation. Powers which should have been exercised by the Governor General in Council have, perhaps without sufficient warrant of law, been delegated to the Board of Revenue; and the functions of the Superintendent have been to a great extent discharged by a Deputy Superintendent—an officer unknown to the law.

3. These difficulties and some others of minor importance arising from the antiquated form of the Regulation might be got over by action under the Scheduled Districts Act, 1874, in the Schedule to which the Domains are included; but this mode of proceeding would be distasteful to the Mahárájá, who objects to the Domains being treated as a Scheduled District; and the Government, being anxious as far as possible to meet his wishes, have determined to do what is required by special legislation.

4. The present Bill has accordingly been prepared to withdraw the Domains from the operation of the Scheduled Districts Act, and to enact directly the requisite amendments of the old Regulation.

5. The most important of these amendments consist in giving power to appoint a Deputy Superintendent; in placing the Superintendent and Deputy Superintendent under the control of the Board of Revenue; in empowering the Mahárájá to delegate his functions as Collector; in giving him a greater freedom as to the number of judicial officers to be appointed, and enabling him to alter the local limits of their jurisdiction; and in empowering the Lieutenant-Governor, after reference to the Mahárájá, to make rules regulating the powers and procedure of these officers and the course of appeal from their decisions.

Most of these amendments go no further than to legalize existing practice.

6. A clause has been added to remove all doubt as to the validity of past proceedings.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 26th June, 1879, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 11 of 1879.

A Bill to provide for the holding of property by certain Religious Congregations.

WHEREAS it is expedient to simplify the manner in which certain congregations associated for the purpose of maintaining religious worship may hold certain property acquired for such purpose; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

1. This Act may be called "The Religious Congregations Act, 1879":

Short title.

It shall come into force at once; and

Commencement.

shall extend to the whole of British India;

Local extent.

but nothing herein contained shall apply to any Hindús, Muhammadans or Buddhists, or any persons whom the Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, exclude from the operation of this Act.

2. When any congregation associated for the purpose of maintaining religious worship has acquired, or hereafter shall acquire, any moveable property,

Appointment of new trustee in cases not otherwise provided for.

or any immoveable property for—

(a) a church, chapel, meeting-house or other place for religious worship,

(b) a dwelling-house for the minister of such congregation, with offices and garden,

(c) a hall or rooms for the meeting and transaction of the business of such congregation, and such property has been or hereafter shall be vested in trustees in trust for such congregation, and it becomes necessary to appoint a new trustee in the place of any such trustee or of any trustee appointed in the manner hereinafter prescribed,

and no manner of appointing such new trustee is prescribed by any instrument by which such property was so vested or by which the trusts on which it is held have been declared, or such new trustee cannot for any reason be appointed in a manner so prescribed, such new trustee may be appointed in such manner as may be agreed upon by such congregation, or by a majority of not less than two-thirds of the members actually present at the meeting at which the appointment is made.

3. Every appointment of new trustees under section two shall be made to appear by some memorandum under the hand of the chairman for the time being of the meeting at which such appointment is made.

Appointment under section 2 to be recorded in a memorandum under the hand of the chairman of the meeting.

Such memorandum shall be in the form set forth in the schedule hereto annexed, or as near thereto as circumstances allow, and shall be executed in the presence of such meeting, and attested by two or more credible witnesses.

4. When any new trustees have been appointed, whether in the manner prescribed by any such instrument as aforesaid or in the manner hereinbefore provided, the property subject to the trust shall forthwith, notwithstanding anything contained in any such instrument, become vested, without any transfer, conveyance or other assurance, in such new trustees and the old continuing trustees jointly, or, if there are no old continuing trustees, in such new trustees wholly, upon the same trusts and with and subject to the same powers and provisions as it was vested in the old trustees.

Property to vest in new trustees without conveyance.

5. Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to invalidate any appointment of new trustees, or any conveyance of any property which may hereafter be made as heretofore was by law required.

Saving of existing modes of appointment and conveyance.

THE SCHEDULE.

(See section 3.)

Memorandum of the choice and appointment of new trustees of the (describe the church, chapel or other buildings and property) situate at a meeting duly convened and held for that purpose (in the vestry of the said) on the day of 18 , A. B. of Chairman.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

CERTAIN members of the Simla Union Church, so far back as the year 1873, drew the attention of Government to the hardship under which they laboured in being unable, without constantly recurring trouble and expense, to keep up a permanent and effective body of trustees to whom to commit the property of the Church. The Secretary to the Calcutta Missionary Conference about the same time made a similar representation to Government; and there are probably other bodies associated for religious purposes in India who experience like difficulties.

2. The present Bill is drawn on the lines of 13 & 14 Vic., c. 28 (commonly known as Peto's Act), which was passed to meet a similar difficulty felt by Religious Societies in England. It differs from that Act, however, first in applying only to Religious Congregations and not to Societies formed for purposes of education; and secondly, in providing for the case of moveable as well as immoveable property.

3. It simply provides that, if property of certain specified descriptions is conveyed to trustees in trust for any Religious Congregation, and no special provision is made for the appointment of new trustees, new trustees may be appointed in such manner as that Congregation may determine; and further, that on the appointment of new trustees whether in exercise of the powers thus conferred or otherwise, the property shall vest in them without any further conveyance.

4. Hindús, Muhammadans and Buddhists are excepted from the provisions of the Bill, as it is thought undesirable to interfere with the laws regulating their endowments.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Second publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 26th June, 1879, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 8 of 1879.

A Bill to provide for the grant of Probates of Wills and Letters of Administration to the estates of certain deceased persons.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the grant of probate of wills and letters of administration to the estates of deceased persons in cases to which the Indian Succession Act, 1865, does not apply; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

Short title. 1. This Act may be called "The Probate and Administration Act, 1879":

Local extent. It applies to the whole of British India;

Commencement. and it shall come into force on the first day of January, 1880.

Portions of Indian Succession Act extended to grants of probate or administration in the case of Hindús, &c. 2. The following portions of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, as amended by Act No. XIII of 1875 (to amend the law relating to Probates and Letters of Administration), by Act No. II of 1877 (to amend Act No. XIII of 1875), and by the District Delegates Act, 1879 (that is to say):—

sections 179 to 186 (both inclusive);
sections 188 and 189;
sections 191 to 199 (both inclusive);
part XXX;
part XXXI, except section 239;
parts XXXIII to XL (both inclusive),

shall, notwithstanding anything contained in section 331, or any order passed by the Governor General in Council under section 332, of that Act, apply in the case of every Hindú, Muhammadan, Buddhist and person exempted under section 332 of that Act dying on or after the said first day of January, 1880.

Addition to section 199 of said Act. 3. The portions of the said Act thus applied shall be read as if after section 199 the following were inserted (that is to say):—

"199A. When the deceased has died intestate, administration of his estate may be granted to any person who, according to the rules for the distribution of the estate of an intestate applicable in the case of such deceased, would be entitled to the whole or any part of such deceased's estate.

"When several such persons apply for administration, it shall be in the discretion of the Court to grant it to any one or more of them.

"When no such person applies, it may be granted to a creditor of the deceased."

Amendment of section 256 of said Act. 4. In section 256 of the said Act as applied by this Act, after the word "committed" the following shall be inserted (namely):—

"and, if the Judge so direct, any person to whom probate shall be granted."

5. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, it shall, except in cases to which the Hindú Wills Act, 1870, applies, be in the discretion of the Court to refuse, for reasons to be recorded by it in writing, to grant any application for letters of administration made under this Act.

Power to refuse letters of administration.

6. Nothing herein contained shall—

Saving clause.

(a) validate any testamentary disposition which would otherwise have been invalid;

(b) invalidate any such disposition which would otherwise have been valid;

(c) vest in an executor or administrator any property of a deceased person which would otherwise have passed by survivorship to some other person;

(d) deprive any person of any right of maintenance to which he would otherwise have been entitled; or

(e) affect the rights, duties and privileges of the Administrator General of Bengal, Madras or Bombay.

7. In this Act, and in the said sections and parts of the Indian Succession Act as applied by this Act, all words defined in section three of that Act shall, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context, be deemed to have the same meaning as the said section three has attached to such words respectively.

Interpretation-clause.

8. No probate of a will or letters of administration to the estate of any Hindú, Muhammadan, Buddhist or person exempted as aforesaid dying on or after the said first day of January, 1880, shall be granted by any Court in British India except under this Act.

Probate and administration to be granted only under this Act.

9. The following amendments shall be made in the Hindú Wills Act, 1870 (namely):—

Amendment of Act XXI of 1870.

(a). For the portion of section two commencing with the words "sections one hundred and seventy-nine" and ending with the words "administrator with the will annexed" the words "and section one hundred and eighty-seven" shall be substituted.

(b). In section three, for the words "one hundred and three and one hundred and eighty-two" the words "and one hundred and three" shall be substituted.

(c). The third clause of the same section and the last clause of section six shall be repealed.

Nothing in this section shall apply to the case of any testator or intestate dying before the said first day of January, 1880.

10. All grants of probate of the will or letters of administration to the estate of any deceased Hindú, Muhammadan or Buddhist, or any person exempted by the Governor General in Council from the provisions of the Indian Succession Act, which may have been made since the first day of January, 1866, shall, whenever such grant would have been lawful if this Act had been in force, be deemed to have been made in accordance with law.

Validation of grants of probate and administration made since first January, 1866.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

As the law of British India at this moment stands, there is, speaking generally, no means of conferring upon any one a complete and conclusive title as representative of the estate of a deceased Hindú, Muhammadan or Buddhist or other person exempt from the operation of the Indian Succession Act.

The Hindú Wills Act is at present limited in its operation to the Presidency-towns and Lower Bengal; and, even if the proposal to extend it to other parts of British India, now under consideration, is carried out, it will still only apply to cases of testamentary succession among Hindús.

The grant of a certificate under Act XXVII of 1860 makes the person who has obtained it a representative only for certain very limited purposes; and, though in the Bombay Presidency a certificate purporting to confer larger powers may be obtained under Regulation VIII of 1827, it is by no means clear what the status of the holder of such a certificate precisely is.

In the Presidency-towns probates of the wills and letters of administration to the estates of deceased Natives can be granted under the Supreme Court Charters in cases to which the Succession Act and the Hindú Wills Act do not apply; but the representative status conferred by such grants falls far short of that conferred by similar grants in the case of deceased European British subjects.

2. From this state of things much trouble and litigation at times result. The heirs may be very numerous; their interests may differ in degree; some of them may be minors or otherwise incapacitated; others may be residing at a distance; the titles of some may be disputed; the settlement of claims against the estate may thus be a matter of endless complication; the making of a satisfactory title to any portion of it which it may be necessary to sell may be impossible.

3. The necessity of devising some means of removing these difficulties was brought to the notice of the Government of India some time ago by Mr. Broughton, then Administrator General of Bengal, and now a Judge of the Calcutta High Court; and a Bill drafted by him was circulated for the opinions of local authorities. That Bill, while guarding against any interference with the succession laws of the classes in question, went in effect to apply to them the provisions of the Indian Succession Act relating to probate and administration, and, amongst others, those provisions which make the grant of probate or letters of administration a condition precedent to the establishment of any right derived by succession from a deceased person.

4. The reports of the local authorities have now been received, and their purport may be briefly described by saying that, while there is a considerable body of opinion in favour of providing the means of obtaining probate of the will or letters of administration to the estate of any deceased person when those interested desire to do so, the proposal to insist on probate or letters of administration as essential has been generally condemned, as tending to impose upon a multitude of poor and ignorant people in cases where there is no difficulty or dispute an unnecessary amount of trouble and expense.

5. The present Bill has been drawn on the lines thus indicated. It applies to the estates of all persons not at present governed by the Indian Succession Act the portions of that Act relating to the grant of probate and administration and the powers, duties and procedure of executors and administrators, omitting, however, those sections (187 and 190) which make it compulsory to obtain probate or administration, and also those sections (200 to 207) which lay down the order according to which the various persons interested are entitled to administration on an intestacy.

6. These latter sections it would be impossible to apply, as they are in part based on a law of intestate succession differing from that of the classes for which the Bill has been drawn. The only rule it seems possible to lay down for these classes is the broad one that the grant shall follow the interest; that, when several persons inheriting portions of the estate claim administration, the Judge may grant it to any one or more of them as he thinks fit, and that, when no such person applies, he may grant it to a creditor.

7. This is the rule laid down by section 3 of the Bill; and, as it is apprehended that in some cases of family feuds a person entitled to a trifling share of the deceased's estate might apply for administration merely for the purpose of harassing his co-heirs by compelling them to apply, a full discretion has been reserved (in section 5) to refuse, for reasons recorded, to grant any application.

8. The Indian Succession Act, following the English law, provides for the taking of security for the due discharge of his office only from an administrator, it being considered that, in the case of an executor who is selected by the testator himself, such security can safely be dispensed with. But amongst the classes to which this Act will apply cases will, it is apprehended, occasionally occur in which it may be expedient to take security even from an executor; and accordingly a section (4) has been inserted in the Bill amending section 256 of the Succession Act in such a manner as to give a power to the Court to require an executor to give security.

9. Section 6 of the Bill saves in the fullest manner the substantive laws of succession of the classes to which the Bill applies.

10. Section 8 is intended to put an end to the imperfect grants of probate and administration under the old Supreme Court Charters already referred to.

11. The portions of the Hindú Wills Act specified in section 9 are repealed merely because they are re-enacted with a wider application in the present Bill. Section 10 is intended to remove all doubt as to the validity of certain grants of probate and administration which have been made in British Burma.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 26th June, 1879, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 9 of 1879.

A Bill to make further provision for the grant of Probate and Letters of Administration in non-contentious cases.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make further provision for the grant of probate and letters of administration in non-contentious cases; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

1. This Act may be called "The District Delegates Act, 1879":

Short title.

It extends to the whole of British India;

Extent.

and it shall come into force on the first day of January, 1880.

Commencement.

2. After section 235 of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, the following section shall be added:—

Addition of section after section 235 of Succession Act.

"235 A. The High Court may, from time to time, appoint such judicial officers within any district as it thinks fit, to act for the District Judge as Delegates to grant probate and letters of administration in non-contentious cases, within such local limits as it may from time to time prescribe:

Power to appoint Delegate of District Judge to deal with non-contentious cases.

Provided that, in the case of High Courts not established by Royal Charter, such appointment be made with the previous sanction of the Local Government.

Persons so appointed shall be called District Delegates."

3. After section 241 of the said Act, the following section shall be added:—

Addition of section after section 241 of same Act.

"241 A. Probate and letters of administration may, upon application for that purpose to any District Delegate, be granted by him in any case in which there is no contention, if it appears by petition (verified as hereinafter mentioned) that the testator or intestate, as the case may be, at the time of his death resided within the jurisdiction of such Delegate."

Probate and letters of administration may be granted by Delegate.

4. To sections 244 and 246 of the said Act, respectively, the following words shall be added: "and when the application is to a District Delegate, the petition shall further state that the deceased at the time of his death resided within the jurisdiction of such Delegate."

Addition to sections 244 and 246 of same Act.

5. For section 251 of the said Act, the following section shall be substituted:—

Substitution of section for section 251 of same Act.

"251. Caveats against the grant of probate or administration may be lodged with the District Judge or a District Delegate; and immediately on any caveat being lodged with any Caveats against grant of probate or administration.

District Delegate, he shall send a copy thereof to the District Judge; and immediately on a caveat being entered with the District Judge, a copy thereof shall be given to the District Delegate, if any, within whose jurisdiction it is alleged the deceased resided at the time of his death, and to any other Judge or District Delegate to whom it may appear to the District Judge expedient to transmit the same."

Amendment of section 253 of same Act.

6. In section 253 of the said Act, after the word "Judge" the words "or officer," and after the word "made" the words "or notice thereof has been given of its entry with some other Delegate," shall be inserted.

Addition of sections after section 253 of same Act.

7. After section 253 of the said Act, the following sections shall be added:—

"253 A. A District Delegate shall not grant probate or letters of administration in any case in which there is contention as to the grant, or in which it otherwise appears to him that probate or letters of administration ought not to be granted in his Court.

District Delegate when not to grant probate or administration.

"Explanation.—By 'contention' is understood the appearance of any one in person or by his recognized agent, or by a pleader duly appointed to act on his behalf to oppose the proceeding.

"253 B. In every case in which there is no contention, but it appears to the District Delegate doubtful whether the probate or letters of administration should or should not be granted, or when any question arises in relation to the grant, or application for the grant, of any probate or letters of administration, the District Delegate may, if he thinks proper, transmit a statement of the matter in question to the District Judge, who may direct the District Delegate to proceed in the matter of the application, according to such instructions as to the Judge may seem necessary, or may forbid any further proceeding by the District Delegate in relation to the matter of such application, leaving the party applying for the grant in question to make application to the Judge.

Power to transmit statement to District Judge in doubtful cases where no contention.

"253 C. In every case in which there is contention, or the District Delegate is of opinion that the probate or letters of administration should be refused in his Court, the petition, with any documents that may have been filed therewith, shall be returned to the person by whom the application was made, in order that the same may be presented to the District Judge; unless the District Delegate thinks it necessary, for the purposes of justice, to impound the same, which he is hereby authorized to do; and in that case the same shall be sent by him to the District Judge."

Procedure where there is contention, or District Delegate thinks probate or letters of administration should be refused in his Court.

Amendment of sections 254, 255 and 308 of same Act.

8. In the said Act, sections 254 and 255, respectively, after the words "I, Judge of the District of ," the words "(or Delegate appointed for granting probate or letters of administration in (here insert the limits of the Delegate's jurisdiction))"; and in section 308, after the words "District Judge by whom" the words "or by whose District Delegate" shall be inserted.

Introduction of the words "or District Delegate" in certain sections of same Act.

9. In the said Act, sections 246, 250, 255 and 259, after the words "District Judge," and in section 250 and section 254 (when it first occurs) after the word "Judge," the words "or District Delegate" shall be inserted respectively.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE Indian Succession Act as originally framed by the Law Commissioners empowered the District Judge to appoint judicial officers to act for him as delegates to grant probates and letters of administration in non-contentious cases much in the same way as the District Registrars appointed under the Court of Probate Act, 1857, do in England; but the provisions relating to this matter were struck out of the Bill by the Select Committee, partly because they were deemed unnecessary, and partly because it was apprehended that the power which was to be conferred on District Judges would give rise to abuse.

If, however, the Bill which has been drafted to provide for granting probate of the wills and administration to the estates of persons now exempted from the operation of the Indian Succession Act becomes law, it is probable that the business of granting probate and administration will increase to such an extent that the District Judges will be unable to dispose of it without assistance.

The present Bill has accordingly been framed with a view to replacing in the Succession Act, with some slight modifications in point of form, the sections removed from it by the Select Committee; but, in order to avoid as far as possible the danger of abuse apprehended by the Select Committee, the power of appointing the delegates has been vested not in the District Judges, but in the High Courts, and its exercise has in the case of High Courts not established by Royal Charter been made subject to the previous sanction of the Local Government.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 26th June, 1879, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 10 of 1879.

A Bill to amend Bengal Regulation VII of 1828.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend Bengal Regulation VII of 1828 (for amending the Provisions of Regulation XV of 1795, and for defining the Authority of the Rajah of Benares in the Mahals therein referred to) in manner hereinafter appointed; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Benares Family Domains Act, 1879":

Commencement of Act.

And it shall come into force on such day as the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint in this behalf.

Repeal of certain portions of Bengal Regulation VII of 1828.

2. The following portions of Bengal Regulation VII of 1828 shall be repealed (namely):—

(a) in section 5, the words and figures "under the rules contained in Regulation XLI, 1795";

(b) section 9;

(c) in section 14, the words "under the Regulations" in both places in which they occur;

(d) in section 19, the words "before the Court of circuit";

(e) in section 20, the proviso.

New section substituted for section 3 of same Regulation.

3. In the same Regulation, for section 3, the following shall be substituted (namely):—

"3. The superintendence of the said mahâls shall be vested in the Commissioner of the Benares Division, hereinafter called 'the Superintendent.'

Superintendence of mahâls vested in Commissioner.

"The Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces may from time to time appoint a Deputy Superintendent of the said mahâls, and confer upon him all or any of the powers of the Superintendent, to be exercised by him subject to the general control of the Superintendent."

Amendment of same Regulation, section 7.

4. In the same Regulation, section 7, for the last twenty-two words, the following shall be substituted (namely):—

"The orders thus passed by the Superintendent shall be subject to appeal to, and revision by, the Board of Revenue, whose order thereon shall be final, unless altered or set aside by the said Lieutenant-Governor."

Clause added to section 10 of same Regulation.

5. To section 10 of the same Regulation the following clause shall be added (namely):—

"The Mahárájá may delegate to one or more of his officers the exercise of all or any of the powers vested in him under this section in the whole or any part of the said mahâls."

Amendment of same Regulation, section 11.

6. In the same Regulation, section 11, for the words and figures "Regulation XI, 1822," the words "the enactments for the time being in force in the North-Western Provinces" shall be substituted.

Amendment of same Regulation, section 12.

7. In the same Regulation, section 12, for the words "Boards of Revenue," the words "Commissioners of Divisions and the Board of Revenue" shall be substituted;

and, for the words "towards the Board," the words "towards the Commissioner" shall be substituted.

Amendment of same Regulation, section 13.

8. In the same Regulation, section 13, for the words "Governor General in Council," the words "Board of Revenue" shall be substituted.

Amendment of, and addition to, same Regulation, section 16.

9. In the same Regulation, section 16, for the words "a Native Commissioner shall be maintained by the Rajah in each of the parganas referred to in Regulation XV, 1795," the following shall be substituted (namely): "A Native Commissioner or two or three Native Commissioners as the said Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time direct shall be maintained by the Mahárájá."

And to the same section the following shall be added (namely):—

"The local limits of the jurisdiction of the Native Commissioners shall be determined by the Mahárájá, and may be altered by him from time to time."

Amendment of same Regulation, section 21.

10. In the same Regulation, section 21, for the words and figures "contained in Regulation XXIII of 1814" to the end of the section, the following shall be substituted (namely): "prescribed by the said Lieutenant-Governor under section 22 of this Regulation."

Sections substituted for sections 22 to 26 of same Regulation.

11. For sections 22 to 26, both inclusive, of the same Regulation, the following sections shall be substituted (that is to say):—

"22. The said Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time make rules consistent with this Regulation to regulate the procedure and powers of the Native Commissioners, and to determine the cases in which, the mode in which, and the authority to or by which, the orders and decisions of said Commissioners shall be subject to appeal or revision.

"Such rules shall, when published in the local Gazette, have the force of law:

"Provided that no such rule shall be so published until the opinion of the Mahárájá thereon has been taken and considered by the Lieutenant-Governor.

"In matters not otherwise provided for by the rules made under this section, the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply.

Procedure in case of doubt as to Judge's jurisdiction.

"23. If, in any suit instituted or appeal presented under this Regulation in any Court, the Judge or presiding officer doubts whether he has jurisdiction, he may refer the matter to the Board of Revenue; and, on any such reference being made, the said Board may order the Judge or presiding officer either to proceed with the case, or to return the plaint or appeal for presentation in such other Court as it may in its order declare to be competent to take cognizance of the suit or appeal.

"The order of the said Board on any such reference shall be final.

Operation of general Acts.

"24. Except as provided by this Regulation or the rules made hereunder, or by any other enactment for the time being in force, the enactments for the time being in force in the North-Western Provinces shall be deemed to be in force in the Family Domains.

"23. In this Regulation, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—

Interpretation-clause.

'Board of Revenue:'

" 'Board of Revenue' means the Board of Revenue of the North-Western Provinces, or such officer or officers as may hereafter be lawfully appointed to exercise, within the province of Benares, the powers of such Board:

'Regulations.'

" 'Regulations' includes Acts for the time being in force in the North-Western Provinces."

Validation of past orders, &c.

12. All orders heretofore passed by the Governor General in Council or the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces or any other authority regarding revisions of settlement or other matters connected with the revenue administration of the tracts of territory mentioned in the preamble to Bengal Regulation VII of 1828 shall be deemed to have been passed in accordance with law; and no order or decision purporting to have been passed by any civil or revenue authority under the provisions of that Regulation shall be called in question in any Court.

Parts of Acts XIV and XV of 1874 repealed.

13. In the Scheduled Districts Act, 1874, first schedule, Part IV, and in the Laws Local Extent Act, 1874, sixth schedule, Part IV, the following shall be repealed (that is to say):—

" V. The Family Domains of the Maháráját of Benares comprising the following parganas:—

Bhadohi and Kheyra Mángror in the Mirzapur District.

Kaswá Rájá in the Benares District."

Clause added to Act XV of 1874, s. 8.

14. In the Laws Local Extent Act, 1874, section 8, after clause (j) the following shall be inserted (namely):—

"(jj) extend to Pargana Bhadohi or Pargana Kheyra Mángror in the Mirzapur District, or to Pargana Kaswá Rájá in the Benares District, any law not now in force therein."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

1. By Bengal Regulation VII of 1828, it was provided that, in certain parganas in the Benares Division, known as the Family Domains of the Maháráját of Benares, the settlement and collection of the revenue and the administration of justice in cases relating to land should be conducted by the Maháráját and his officers, under the supervision of a Superintendent appointed by, and subject to the control of, the Governor General in Council.

2. For a long time past, owing to the changes that have taken place in these parganas and in the country generally, it has been found impossible to proceed in strict accordance with that Regulation. Powers which should have been exercised by the Governor General in Council have, perhaps without sufficient warrant of law, been delegated to the Board of Revenue; and the functions of the Superintendent have been to a great extent discharged by a Deputy Superintendent—an officer unknown to the law.

3. These difficulties and some others of minor importance arising from the antiquated form of the Regulation might be got over by action under the Scheduled Districts Act, 1874, in the Schedule to which the Domains are included; but this mode of proceeding would be distasteful to the Maháráját, who objects to the Domains being treated as a Scheduled District; and the Government, being anxious as far as possible to meet his wishes, have determined to do what is required by special legislation.

4. The present Bill has accordingly been prepared to withdraw the Domains from the operation of the Scheduled Districts Act, and to enact directly the requisite amendments of the old Regulation.

5. The most important of these amendments consist in giving power to appoint a Deputy Superintendent; in placing the Superintendent and Deputy Superintendent under the control of the Board of Revenue; in empowering the Maháráját to delegate his functions as Collector; in giving him a greater freedom as to the number of judicial officers to be appointed, and enabling him to alter the local limits of their jurisdiction; and in empowering the Lieutenant-Governor, after reference to the Maháráját, to make rules, regulating the powers and procedure of these officers and the course of appeal from their decisions.

Most of these amendments go no further than to legalize existing practice.

6. A clause has been added to remove all doubt as to the validity of past proceedings.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 26th June, 1879, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 11 of 1879.

A Bill to provide for the holding of property by certain Religious Congregations.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to simplify the manner in which certain congregations associated for the purpose of maintaining religious worship may hold certain property acquired for such purpose; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Religious Congregations Act, 1879":

Commencement.

It shall come into force at once; and

Local extent.

shall extend to the whole of British India;

but nothing herein contained shall apply to any Hindús, Muhammadans or Buddhists, or any persons whom the Governor General in Council may,

from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, exclude from the operation of this Act.

Appointment of new trustee in cases not otherwise provided for.

2. When any congregation associated for the purpose of maintaining religious worship has acquired, or hereafter shall acquire, any moveable property, or any immoveable property for—

(a) a church, chapel, meeting-house or other place for religious worship,

(b) a dwelling-house for the minister of such congregation, with offices and garden,

(c) a hall or rooms for the meeting and transaction of the business of such congregation, and such property has been or hereafter shall be vested in trustees in trust for such congregation, and it becomes necessary to appoint a new trustee in the place of any such trustee or of any trustee appointed in the manner hereinafter prescribed,

and no manner of appointing such new trustee is prescribed by any instrument by which such property was so vested or by which the trusts on which it is held have been declared, or such new trustee cannot for any reason be appointed in a manner so prescribed,

such new trustee may be appointed in such manner as may be agreed upon by such congregation, or by a majority of not less than two-thirds of the members actually present at the meeting at which the appointment is made.

Appointment under section 2 to be recorded in a memorandum under the hand of the chairman of the meeting.

3. Every appointment of new trustees under section two shall be made to appear by some memorandum under the hand of the chairman for the time being of the meeting at which such appointment is made.

Such memorandum shall be in the form set forth in the schedule hereto annexed, or as near thereto as circumstances allow, and shall be executed in the presence of such meeting, and attested by two or more credible witnesses.

Property to vest in new trustees without conveyance.

4. When any new trustees have been appointed, whether in the manner prescribed by any such instrument as aforesaid or in the manner hereinbefore provided, the property subject to the trust shall forthwith, notwithstanding anything contained in any such instrument, become vested, without any transfer, conveyance or other assurance, in such new trustees and the old continuing trustees jointly, or, if there are no old continuing trustees, in such new trustees wholly, upon the same trusts and with and subject to the same powers and provisions as it was vested in the old trustees.

Saving of existing modes of appointment and conveyance.

5. Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to invalidate any appointment of new trustees, or any conveyance of any property which may hereafter be made as heretofore was by law required.

THE SCHEDULE.

(See section 3.)

Memorandum of the choice and appointment of new trustees of the (describe the church, chapel or other buildings and property) situate at a meeting duly convened and held for that purpose (in the vestry of the said) on the day of 18 , A. B. of Chairman.

(here insert the same).

Names and descriptions of all the trustees in whom the said (chapel) and property now become legally vested.

First.—Old continuing trustees:—
(here insert the same).

Second.—New trustees now chosen and appointed:—
(here insert the same).

Dated this day of 187 .

Signed by the said A. B. as Chairman of the said Meeting, at and in the presence of the said Meeting on the day and year aforesaid in the presence of—

A. B.,
Chairman of the said Meeting.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

CERTAIN members of the Simla Union Church, so far back as the year 1873, drew the attention of Government to the hardship under which they laboured in being unable, without constantly recurring trouble and expense, to keep up a permanent and effective body of trustees to whom to commit the property of the Church. The Secretary to the Calcutta Missionary Conference about the same time made a similar representation to Government; and there are probably other bodies associated for religious purposes in India who experience like difficulties.

2. The present Bill is drawn on the lines of 13 & 14 Vic., c. 28 (commonly known as Peto's Act), which was passed to meet a similar difficulty felt by Religious Societies in England. It differs from that Act, however, first in applying only to Religious Congregations and not to Societies formed for purposes of education; and secondly, in providing for the case of moveable as well as immoveable property.

3. It simply provides that, if property of certain specified descriptions is conveyed to trustees in trust for any Religious Congregation, and no special provision is made for the appointment of new trustees, new trustees may be appointed in such manner as that Congregation may determine; and further, that on the appointment of new trustees whether in exercise of the powers thus conferred or otherwise, the property shall vest in them without any further conveyance.

4. Hindús, Muhammadans and Buddhists are excepted from the provisions of the Bill, as it is thought undesirable to interfere with the laws regulating their endowments.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 26th June, 1879, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 8 of 1879.

A Bill to provide for the grant of Probates of Wills and Letters of Administration to the estates of certain deceased persons.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the grant of probate of wills and letters of administration to the estates of deceased persons in cases to which the Indian Succession Act, 1865, does not apply; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Probate and Administration Act, 1879":

Local extent.

It applies to the whole of British India;

Commencement.

and it shall come into force on the first day of January, 1880.

Portions of Indian Succession Act extended to grants of probate or administration in the case of Hindús, &c.

2. The following portions of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, as amended by Act No. XIII of 1875 (to amend the law relating to Probates and Letters of Administration), by Act No. II of 1877 (to amend Act No. XIII of 1875), and by the District Delegates Act, 1879 (that is to say):—

sections 179 to 186 (both inclusive);
sections 188 and 189;
sections 191 to 199 (both inclusive);
part XXX;
part XXXI, except section 239;
parts XXXIII to XL (both inclusive),

shall, notwithstanding anything contained in section 331, or any order passed by the Governor General in Council under section 332, of that Act, apply in the case of every Hindú, Muhammadan, Buddhist and person exempted under section 332 of that Act dying on or after the said first day of January, 1880.

Addition to section 199 of said Act.

3. The portions of the said Act thus applied shall be read as if after section 199 the following were inserted (that is to say):—

"199A. When the deceased has died intestate, administration of his estate may be granted to any person who, according to the rules for the distribution of the estate of an intestate applicable in the case of such deceased, would be entitled to the whole or any part of such deceased's estate.

"When several such persons apply for administration, it shall be in the discretion of the Court to grant it to any one or more of them.

"When no such person applies, it may be granted to a creditor of the deceased."

Amendment of section 256 of said Act.

4. In section 256 of the said Act as applied by this Act, after the word "committed" the following shall be inserted (namely): "and, if the Judge so direct, any person to whom probate shall be granted."

5. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, it shall, except in cases to which the Hindú Wills Act, 1870, applies, be in the discretion of the Court to refuse, for reasons to be recorded by it in writing, to grant any application for letters of administration made under this Act.

Power to refuse letters of administration.

6. Nothing herein contained shall—

Saving clause.

(a) validate any testamentary disposition which would otherwise have been invalid;

(b) invalidate any such disposition which would otherwise have been valid;

(c) vest in an executor or administrator any property of a deceased person which would otherwise have passed by survivorship to some other person;

(d) deprive any person of any right of maintenance to which he would otherwise have been entitled; or

(e) affect the rights, duties and privileges of the Administrator General of Bengal, Madras or Bombay.

7. In this Act, and in the said sections and parts of the Indian Succession Act as applied by this Act, all words defined in section three of that Act shall, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context, be deemed to have the same meaning as the said section three has attached to such words respectively.

Interpretation-clause.

8. No probate of a will or letters of administration to the estate of any Hindú, Muhammadan, Buddhist or person exempted as aforesaid dying on or after the said first day of January, 1880, shall be granted by any Court in British India except under this Act.

Probate and administration to be granted only under this Act.

9. The following amendments shall be made in the Hindú Wills Act, 1870 (namely):—

Amendment of Act XXI of 1870.

(a). For the portion of section two commencing with the words "sections one hundred and seventy-nine" and ending with the words "administrator with the will annexed" the words "and section one hundred and eighty-seven" shall be substituted.

(b). In section three, for the words "one hundred and three and one hundred and eighty-two" the words "and one hundred and three" shall be substituted.

(c). The third clause of the same section and the last clause of section six shall be repealed.

Nothing in this section shall apply to the case of any testator or intestate dying before the said first day of January, 1880.

10. All grants of probate of the will or letters of administration to the estate of any deceased Hindú, Muhammadan or Buddhist, or any person exempted by the Governor General in Council from the provisions of the Indian Succession Act, which may have been made since the first day of January, 1866, shall, whenever such grant would have been lawful if this Act had been in force, be deemed to have been made in accordance with law.

Validation of grants of probate and administration made since first January, 1866.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

As the law of British India at this moment stands, there is, speaking generally, no means of conferring upon any one a complete and conclusive title as representative of the estate of a deceased Hindú, Muhammadan or Buddhist or other person exempt from the operation of the Indian Succession Act.

The Hindú Wills Act is at present limited in its operation to the Presidency-towns and Lower Bengal; and, even if the proposal to extend it to other parts of British India, now under consideration, is carried out, it will still only apply to cases of testamentary succession among Hindús.

The grant of a certificate under Act XXVII of 1860 makes the person who has obtained it a representative only for certain very limited purposes; and, though in the Bombay Presidency a certificate purporting to confer larger powers may be obtained under Regulation VIII of 1827, it is by no means clear what the status of the holder of such a certificate precisely is.

In the Presidency-towns probates of the wills and letters of administration to the estates of deceased Natives can be granted under the Supreme Court Charters in cases to which the Succession Act and the Hindú Wills Act do not apply; but the representative status conferred by such grants falls far short of that conferred by similar grants in the case of deceased European British subjects.

2. From this state of things much trouble and litigation at times result. The heirs may be very numerous; their interests may differ in degree; some of them may be minors or otherwise incapacitated; others may be residing at a distance; the titles of some may be disputed; the settlement of claims against the estate may thus be a matter of endless complication; the making of a satisfactory title to any portion of it which it may be necessary to sell may be impossible.

3. The necessity of devising some means of removing these difficulties was brought to the notice of the Government of India some time ago by Mr. Broughton, then Administrator General of Bengal, and now a Judge of the Calcutta High Court; and a Bill drafted by him was circulated for the opinions of local authorities. That Bill, while guarding against any interference with the succession laws of the classes in question, went in effect to apply to them the provisions of the Indian Succession Act relating to probate and administration, and, amongst others, those provisions which make the grant of probate or letters of administration a condition precedent to the establishment of any right derived by succession from a deceased person.

4. The reports of the local authorities have now been received, and their purport may be briefly described by saying that, while there is a considerable body of opinion in favour of providing the means of obtaining probate of the will or letters of administration to the estate of any deceased person when those interested desire to do so, the proposal to insist on probate or letters of administration as essential has been generally condemned, as tending to impose upon a multitude of poor and ignorant people in cases where there is no difficulty or dispute an unnecessary amount of trouble and expense.

5. The present Bill has been drawn on the lines thus indicated. It applies to the estates of all persons not at present governed by the Indian Succession Act the portions of that Act relating to the grant of probate and administration and the powers, duties and procedure of executors and administrators, omitting, however, those sections (187 and 190) which make it compulsory to obtain probate or administration, and also those sections (200 to 207) which lay down the order according to which the various persons interested are entitled to administration on an intestacy.

6. These latter sections it would be impossible to apply, as they are in part based on a law of intestate succession differing from that of the classes for which the Bill has been drawn. The only rule it seems possible to lay down for these classes is the broad one that the grant shall follow the interest; that, when several persons inheriting portions of the estate claim administration, the Judge may grant it to any one or more of them as he thinks fit, and that, when no such person applies, he may grant it to a creditor.

7. This is the rule laid down by section 3 of the Bill; and, as it is apprehended that in some cases of family feuds a person entitled to a trifling share of the deceased's estate might apply for administration merely for the purpose of harassing his co-heirs by compelling them to apply, a full discretion has been reserved (in section 5) to refuse, for reasons recorded, to grant any application.

8. The Indian Succession Act, following the English law, provides for the taking of security for the due discharge of his office only from an administrator, it being considered that, in the case of an executor who is selected by the testator himself, such security can safely be dispensed with. But amongst the classes to which this Act will apply cases will, it is apprehended, occasionally occur in which it may be expedient to take security even from an executor; and accordingly a section (4) has been inserted in the Bill amending section 256 of the Succession Act in such a manner as to give a power to the Court to require an executor to give security.

9. Section 6 of the Bill saves in the fullest manner the substantive laws of succession of the classes to which the Bill applies.

10. Section 8 is intended to put an end to the imperfect grants of probate and administration under the old Supreme Court Charters already referred to.

11. The portions of the Hindú Wills Act specified in section 9 are repealed merely because they are re-enacted with a wider application in the present Bill. Section 10 is intended to remove all doubt as to the validity of certain grants of probate and administration which have been made in British Burma.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 26th June, 1879, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 9 of 1879.

A Bill to make further provision for the grant of Probate and Letters of Administration in non-contentious cases.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make further provision for the grant of probate and letters of administration in non-contentious cases; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

1. This Act may be called "The District Delegates Act, 1879":

Short title.

It extends to the whole of British India;

Extent.

and it shall come into force on the first day of January, 1880.

Commencement.

2. After section 235 of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, the following section shall be added:—

Addition of section after section 235 of Succession Act.

"235 A. The High Court may, from time to time, appoint such judicial officers within any district as it thinks fit, to act for the District Judge as Delegates to grant probate and letters of administration in non-contentious cases, within such local limits as it may from time to time prescribe:

Power to appoint Delegate of District Judge to deal with non-contentious cases.

Provided that, in the case of High Courts not established by Royal Charter, such appointment be made with the previous sanction of the Local Government.

Persons so appointed shall be called District Delegates."

3. After section 241 of the said Act, the following section shall be added:—

Addition of section after section 241 of same Act.

"241 A. Probate and letters of administration may, upon application for that purpose to any District Delegate, be granted by him in any case in which there is no contention, if it appears by petition (verified as hereinafter mentioned) that the testator or intestate, as the case may be, at the time of his death resided within the jurisdiction of such Delegate."

Probate and letters of administration may be granted by Delegate.

4. To sections 244 and 246 of the said Act, respectively, the following words shall be added: "and when the application is to a District Delegate, the petition shall further state that the deceased at the time of his death resided within the jurisdiction of such Delegate."

Addition to sections 244 and 246 of same Act.

5. For section 251 of the said Act, the following section shall be substituted:—

Substitution of section for section 251 of same Act.

"251. Caveats against the grant of probate or administration may be lodged with the District Judge or a District Delegate; and immediately on any caveat being lodged with any Caveats against grant of probate or administration.

District Delegate, he shall send a copy thereof to the District Judge; and immediately on a caveat being entered with the District Judge, a copy thereof shall be given to the District Delegate, if any, within whose jurisdiction it is alleged the deceased resided at the time of his death, and to any other Judge or District Delegate to whom it may appear to the District Judge expedient to transmit the same."

Amendment of section 253 of same Act.

6. In section 253 of the said Act, after the word "Judge" the words "or officer," and after the word "made" the words "or notice thereof has been given of its entry with some other Delegate," shall be inserted.

Addition of sections after section 253 of same Act.

7. After section 253 of the said Act, the following sections shall be added:—

District Delegate when not to grant probate or administration.

"253 A. A District Delegate shall not grant probate or letters of administration in any case in which there is contention as to the grant, or in which it otherwise appears to him that probate or letters of administration ought not to be granted in his Court.

"Explanation.—By 'contention' is understood the appearance of any one in person or by his recognized agent, or by a pleader duly appointed to act on his behalf to oppose the proceeding.

Power to transmit statement to District Judge in doubtful cases where no contention.

"253 B. In every case in which there is no contention, but it appears to the District Delegate doubtful whether the probate or letters of administration should or should not be granted, or when any question arises in relation to the grant, or application for the grant, of any probate or letters of administration, the District Delegate may, if he thinks proper, transmit a statement of the matter in question to the District Judge, who may direct the District Delegate to proceed in the matter of the application, according to such instructions as to the Judge may seem necessary, or may forbid any further proceeding by the District Delegate in relation to the matter of such application, leaving the party applying for the grant in question to make application to the Judge.

Procedure where there is contention, or District Delegate thinks probate or letters of administration should be refused in his Court.

"253 C. In every case in which there is contention, or the District Delegate is of opinion that the probate or letters of administration should be refused in his Court, the petition, with any documents that may have been filed therewith, shall be returned to the person by whom the application was made, in order that the same may be presented to the District Judge; unless the District Delegate thinks it necessary, for the purposes of justice, to impound the same, which he is hereby authorized to do; and in that case the same shall be sent by him to the District Judge."

Amendment of sections 254, 255 and 308 of same Act.

8. In the said Act, sections 254 and 255, respectively, after the words "I, Judge of the District of ," the words "(or Delegate appointed for granting probate or letters of administration in (here insert the limits of the Delegate's jurisdiction)"; and in section 308, after the words "District Judge by whom" the words "or by whose District Delegate" shall be inserted.

Introduction of the words "or District Delegate" in certain sections of same Act.

9. In the said Act, sections 246, 250, 255 and 259, after the words "District Judge," and in section 250 and section 254 (when it first occurs) after the word "Judge," the words "or District Delegate" shall be inserted respectively.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE Indian Succession Act as originally framed by the Law Commissioners empowered the District Judge to appoint judicial officers to act for him as delegates to grant probates and letters of administration in non-contentious cases much in the same way as the District Registrars appointed under the Court of Probate Act, 1857, do in England; but the provisions relating to this matter were struck out of the Bill by the Select Committee, partly because they were deemed unnecessary, and partly because it was apprehended that the power which was to be conferred on District Judges would give rise to abuse.

If, however, the Bill which has been drafted to provide for granting probate of the wills and administration to the estates of persons now exempted from the operation of the Indian Succession Act becomes law, it is probable that the business of granting probate and administration will increase to such an extent that the District Judges will be unable to dispose of it without assistance.

The present Bill has accordingly been framed with a view to replacing in the Succession Act, with some slight modifications in point of form, the sections removed from it by the Select Committee; but, in order to avoid as far as possible the danger of abuse apprehended by the Select Committee, the power of appointing the delegates has been vested not in the District Judges, but in the High Courts, and its exercise has in the case of High Courts not established by Royal Charter been made subject to the previous sanction of the Local Government.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 26th June, 1879, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 10 of 1879.

A Bill to amend Bengal Regulation VII of 1828.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend Bengal Regulation VII of 1828 (for amending the Provisions of Regulation XV of 1795, and for defining the Authority of the Rajah of Benares in the Mahals therein referred to) in manner hereinafter appointed; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Benares Family Domains Act, 1879":

Commencement of Act.

And it shall come into force on such day as the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint in this behalf.

Repeal of certain portions of Bengal Regulation VII of 1828.

2. The following portions of Bengal Regulation VII of 1828 shall be repealed (namely):—

(a) in section 5, the words and figures "under the rules contained in Regulation XLI, 1795";

(b) section 9;

(c) in section 14, the words "under the Regulations" in both places in which they occur;

(d) in section 19, the words "before the Court of circuit";

(e) in section 20, the proviso.

New section substituted for section 3 of same Regulation.

3. In the same Regulation, for section 3, the following shall be substituted (namely):—

Superintendence of mahâls vested in Commissioner.

"3. The superintendence of the said mahâls shall be vested in the Commissioner of the Benares Division, hereinafter called 'the Superintendent.'

"The Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces may from time to time appoint a Deputy Superintendent of the said mahâls, and confer upon him all or any of the powers of the Superintendent, to be exercised by him subject to the general control of the Superintendent."

Amendment of same Regulation, section 7.

4. In the same Regulation, section 7, for the last twenty-two words, the following shall be substituted (namely):—

"The orders thus passed by the Superintendent shall be subject to appeal to, and revision by, the Board of Revenue, whose order thereon shall be final, unless altered or set aside by the said Lieutenant-Governor."

Clause added to section 10 of same Regulation.

5. To section 10 of the same Regulation the following clause shall be added (namely):—

"The Mahárájá may delegate to one or more of his officers the exercise of all or any of the powers vested in him under this section in the whole or any part of the said mahâls."

Amendment of same Regulation, section 11.

6. In the same Regulation, section 11, for the words and figures "Regulation XI, 1822," the words "the enactments for the time being in force in the North-Western Provinces" shall be substituted.

Amendment of same Regulation, section 12.

7. In the same Regulation, section 12, for the words "Boards of Revenue," the words "Commissioners of Divisions and the Board of Revenue" shall be substituted;

and, for the words "towards the Board," the words "towards the Commissioner" shall be substituted.

Amendment of same Regulation, section 13.

8. In the same Regulation, section 13, for the words "Governor General in Council," the words "Board of Revenue" shall be substituted.

Amendment of, and addition to, same Regulation, section 16.

9. In the same Regulation, section 16, for the words "a Native Commissioner shall be maintained by the Rajah in each of the parganas referred to in Regulation XV, 1795," the following shall be substituted (namely): "A Native Commissioner or two or three Native Commissioners as the said Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time direct shall be maintained by the Mahárájá."

And to the same section the following shall be added (namely):—

"The local limits of the jurisdiction of the Native Commissioners shall be determined by the Mahárájá, and may be altered by him from time to time."

Amendment of same Regulation, section 21.

10. In the same Regulation, section 21, for the words and figures "contained in Regulation XXIII of 1814" to the end of the section, the following shall be substituted (namely): "prescribed by the said Lieutenant-Governor under section 22 of this Regulation."

Sections substituted for sections 22 to 26 of same Regulation.

11. For sections 22 to 26, both inclusive, of the same Regulation, the following sections shall be substituted (that is to say):—

"22. The said Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time make rules consistent with this Regulation to regulate the procedure and powers of the Native Commissioners, and to determine the cases in which, the mode in which, and the authority to or by which, the orders and decisions of such Commissioners shall be subject to appeal or revision.

"Such rules shall, when published in the local Gazette, have the force of law:

"Provided that no such rule shall be so published until the opinion of the Mahárájá thereon has been taken and considered by the Lieutenant-Governor.

"In matters not otherwise provided for by the rules made under this section, the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply.

Procedure in case of doubt as to Judge's jurisdiction.

"23. If, in any suit instituted or appeal presented under this Regulation in any Court, the Judge or presiding officer doubts whether he has jurisdiction, he may refer the matter to the Board of Revenue; and, on any such reference being made, the said Board may order the Judge or presiding officer either to proceed with the case, or to return the plaint or appeal for presentation in such other Court as it may in its order declare to be competent to take cognizance of the suit or appeal.

"The order of the said Board on any such reference shall be final.

Operation of general Acts.

"24. Except as provided by this Regulation or the rules made hereunder, or by any other enactment for the time being in force, the enactments for the time being in force in the North-Western Provinces shall be deemed to be in force in the Family Domains.

"25. In this Regulation, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—

Interpretation-clause.

" 'Board of Revenue' means the Board of Revenue of the North-Western Provinces, or such officer or officers as may hereafter be lawfully appointed to exercise, within the province of Benares, the powers of such Board:

'Board of Revenue:'

" 'Regulations' includes Acts for the time being in force in the North-Western Provinces."

'Regulations.'

12. All orders heretofore passed by the Governor General in Council or the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces or any other authority regarding revisions of settlement or other matters connected with the revenue administration of the tracts of territory mentioned in the preamble to Bengal Regulation VII of 1828 shall be deemed to have been passed in accordance with law; and no order or decision purporting to have been passed by any civil or revenue authority under the provisions of that Regulation shall be called in question in any Court.

Validation of past orders, &c.

13. In the Scheduled Districts Act, 1874, first schedule, Part IV, and in the Laws Local Extent Act, 1874, sixth schedule, Part IV, the following shall be repealed (that is to say):—

Parts of Acts XIV and XV of 1874 repealed.

" V. The Family Domains of the Mahárájá of Benares comprising the following parganas:—

Bhadohi and Kheyra Mángror in the Mirzapur District.

Kaswá Rájá in the Benares District."

14. In the Laws Local Extent Act, 1874, section 8, after clause (j) the following shall be inserted (namely):—

Clause added to Act XV of 1874, s. 8.

"(jj) extend to Pargana Bhadohi or Pargana Kheyra Mángror in the Mirzapur District, or to Pargana Kaswá Rájá in the Benares District, any law not now in force therein."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

1. By Bengal Regulation VII of 1828, it was provided that, in certain parganas in the Benares Division, known as the Family Domains of the Mahárájá of Benares, the settlement and collection of the revenue and the administration of justice in cases relating to land should be conducted by the Mahárájá and his officers, under the supervision of a Superintendent appointed by, and subject to the control of, the Governor General in Council.

2. For a long time past, owing to the changes that have taken place in these parganas and in the country generally, it has been found impossible to proceed in strict accordance with that Regulation. Powers which should have been exercised by the Governor General in Council have, perhaps without sufficient warrant of law, been delegated to the Board of Revenue; and the functions of the Superintendent have been to a great extent discharged by a Deputy Superintendent—an officer unknown to the law.

3. These difficulties and some others of minor importance arising from the antiquated form of the Regulation might be got over by action under the Scheduled Districts Act, 1874, in the Schedule to which the Domains are included; but this mode of proceeding would be distasteful to the Mahárájá, who objects to the Domains being treated as a Scheduled District; and the Government, being anxious as far as possible to meet his wishes, have determined to do what is required by special legislation.

4. The present Bill has accordingly been prepared to withdraw the Domains from the operation of the Scheduled Districts Act, and to enact directly the requisite amendments of the old Regulation.

5. The most important of these amendments consist in giving power to appoint a Deputy Superintendent; in placing the Superintendent and Deputy Superintendent under the control of the Board of Revenue; in empowering the Mahárájá to delegate his functions as Collector; in giving him a greater freedom as to the number of judicial officers to be appointed, and enabling him to alter the local limits of their jurisdiction; and in empowering the Lieutenant-Governor, after reference to the Mahárájá, to make rules] regulating the powers and procedure of these officers and the course of appeal from their decisions.

Most of these amendments go no further than to legalize existing practice.

6. A clause has been added to remove all doubt as to the validity of past proceedings.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 26th June, 1879, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 11 of 1879.

A Bill to provide for the holding of property by certain Religious Congregations.

WHEREAS it is expedient to simplify the manner in which certain congregations associated for the purpose of maintaining religious worship may hold certain property acquired for such purpose; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

1. This Act may be called "The Religious Congregations Act, 1879":

Short title.

It shall come into force at once; and

Commencement.

shall extend to the whole of British India;

Local extent.

but nothing herein contained shall apply to any Hindús, Muhammadans or Buddhists, or any persons whom the Governor General in Council may,

from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, exclude from the operation of this Act.

2. When any congregation associated for the purpose of maintaining religious worship has acquired, or hereafter shall acquire, any moveable property,

Appointment of new trustee in cases not otherwise provided for.

or any immoveable property for—

(a) a church, chapel, meeting-house or other place for religious worship,

(b) a dwelling-house for the minister of such congregation, with offices and garden,

(c) a hall or rooms for the meeting and transaction of the business of such congregation, and such property has been or hereafter shall be vested in trustees in trust for such congregation, and it becomes necessary to appoint a new trustee in the place of any such trustee or of any trustee appointed in the manner hereinafter prescribed,

and no manner of appointing such new trustee is prescribed by any instrument by which such property was so vested or by which the trusts on which it is held have been declared, or such new trustee cannot for any reason be appointed in a manner so prescribed,

such new trustee may be appointed in such manner as may be agreed upon by such congregation, or by a majority of not less than two-thirds of the members actually present at the meeting at which the appointment is made.

3. Every appointment of new trustees under section two shall be made to appear by some memorandum under the hand of the chairman for the time being of the meeting at which such appointment is made.

Appointment under section 2 to be recorded in a memorandum under the hand of the chairman of the meeting.

Such memorandum shall be in the form set forth in the schedule hereto annexed, or as near thereto as circumstances allow, and shall be executed in the presence of such meeting, and attested by two or more credible witnesses.

4. When any new trustees have been appointed, whether in the manner prescribed by any such instrument as aforesaid or in the manner hereinbefore provided, the property subject to the trust shall forthwith, notwithstanding anything contained in any such instrument, become vested, without any transfer, conveyance or other assurance, in such new trustees and the old continuing trustees jointly, or, if there are no old continuing trustees, in such new trustees wholly, upon the same trusts and with and subject to the same powers and provisions as it was vested in the old trustees.

Property to vest in new trustees without conveyance.

5. Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to invalidate any appointment of new trustees, or any conveyance of any property which may hereafter be made as heretofore was by law required.

Saving of existing modes of appointment and conveyance.

THE SCHEDULE.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

CERTAIN members of the Simla Union Church, so far back as the year 1873, drew the attention of Government to the hardship under which they laboured in being unable, without constantly recurring trouble and expense, to keep up a permanent and effective body of trustees to whom to commit the property of the Church. The Secretary to the Calcutta Missionary Conference about the same time made a similar representation to Government; and there are probably other bodies associated for religious purposes in India who experience like difficulties.

2. The present Bill is drawn on the lines of 13 & 14 Vic., c. 28 (commonly known as Peto's Act), which was passed to meet a similar difficulty felt by Religious Societies in England. It differs from that Act, however, first in applying only to Religious Congregations and not to Societies formed for purposes of education; and secondly, in providing for the case of moveable as well as immoveable property.

3. It simply provides that, if property of certain specified descriptions is conveyed to trustees in trust for any Religious Congregation, and no special provision is made for the appointment of new trustees, new trustees may be appointed in such manner as that Congregation may determine; and further, that on the appointment of new trustees whether in exercise of the powers thus conferred or otherwise, the property shall vest in them without any further conveyance.

4. Hindús, Muhammadans and Buddhists are excepted from the provisions of the Bill, as it is thought undesirable to interfere with the laws regulating their endowments.

A Bill for the Relief of Indebted Agriculturists in certain parts of the Dekkhan.

WHEREAS it is expedient to relieve the agricultural classes in certain parts of the Dekkhan from indebtedness; It is hereby enacted as follows:— Preamble.

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

1. This Act may be cited as "The Dekkhan Agriculturists Relief Act, 1879": Short title.

It extends only to the districts of Puna, Sátára, Sholápur and Ahmadnagar, and it shall come into force on the first day of October, 1879. Local extent and commencement.

2. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,— Interpretation-clause.

(1) "agriculturist" means a person who earns his livelihood wholly or principally by agriculture: "agriculturist":

(2) "money" includes grain and any other agricultural produce: "money":

(3) "special judge" means the officer appointed under section fifty-one. "special judge."

CHAPTER II.

OF THE HEARING OF CERTAIN SUITS BY SUBORDINATE JUDGES.

3. The provisions of this chapter shall apply to— Application of this chapter.

(a) suits for an account instituted on or after the first day of October, 1879, by an agriculturist in the Court of a Subordinate Judge under the provisions hereinafter contained, and

(b) suits of the descriptions next hereinafter mentioned and instituted on or after the same date—

(1) when such suits are heard by Subordinate Judges of the first class and the subject-matter thereof does not exceed in amount or value five hundred rupees, or

(2) when such suits are heard by Subordinate Judges of the second class and the subject-matter thereof does not exceed in amount or value one hundred rupees, or

(3) when such suits are heard by Subordinate Judges of the second class and the subject-matter thereof exceeds one hundred rupees, but does not exceed five hundred rupees in amount or value, and the parties agree that such provisions shall apply.

The descriptions of suits referred to in clause (b) are the following (namely):—

suits of the nature cognizable by Courts of Small Causes, and suits between mortgagors, being agriculturists, and mortgagees for the foreclosure or redemption of the mortgage, for the enforcement of the mortgage lien or for the possession of the property mortgaged.

4. Where a Subordinate Judge of the first class and a Subordinate Judge of the second class have jurisdiction in the same local area, every suit referred to in section 3, clause (b), to be instituted in such local area shall, if the amount or value of the subject-matter of such suit exceeds one hundred rupees and does not exceed five hundred rupees, be instituted in the Court of the Subordinate Judge of the first class. Certain suits to be instituted in Courts of first class Subordinate Judges.

5. Notwithstanding anything contained in the Bombay Civil Courts Act, 1869, section 28, no Subordinate Judge shall, while this Act continues in force, be invested with Subordinate Judges not to act as Judges of Small Cause Courts.
the jurisdiction of a Judge of a Court of Small Causes; and any such jurisdiction heretofore conferred on any Subordinate Judge shall be deemed, except as regards suits instituted before the said first day of October, 1879, to have been withdrawn.

6. The Local Government may from time to time by notification in the local Gazette direct that any class of suits which a Subordinate Judge would be precluded from hearing by section twelve of Act XI of 1865 (to consolidate and amend the law relating to Courts of Small Causes beyond the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court of Judicature) shall be heard and determined by him and not otherwise, and may by a like notification cancel any such direction. 8. If the officer employed to serve a summons on a defendant cannot find such defendant and there is no agent empowered to accept the service of the summons in his behalf, nor any person on whom the service can be made, the serving-officer may, instead of proceeding in manner prescribed by section 80 of the Code of Civil Procedure, leave such summons for service with the Patel of the defendant's village. Service of summons.

A Patel with whom a summons is left under this section shall, if he within one week from the date on which the summons is so left finds the defendant in the village, serve such summons on the defendant in manner prescribed by section 79 of the said Code, endorse the same or cause the same to be endorsed in manner prescribed by section 81 of the said Code, sign such endorsement and return the summons by post or otherwise to the Court.

An endorsement made on a summons under this section shall be primâ facie proof of the facts stated therein, and the Court shall take judicial notice of the signature thereto.

9. No suit shall be heard ex parte, unless the Court, for reasons to be recorded in writing, thinks that it ought to be so heard. No suit to be heard ex parte.

In any suit which the Code of Civil Procedure directs to be heard ex parte, but which the Court does not think ought to be so heard, the Court shall adjourn the hearing and take steps to secure the attendance of the defendant by the issue of a fresh summons or of a warrant of arrest.

10. In suits of the nature cognizable by Courts of Small Causes no party shall be entitled to file a written statement without the permission of the Court. Written statements.

11. When the subject-matter of any suit does not exceed ten rupees in amount or value, it shall not be necessary to take down the evidence or make a memorandum thereof in manner provided by the Code of Civil Procedure; but in cases Record of evidence.

where the evidence is not so taken down and no memorandum is so made, the substance of the evidence shall be stated in the judgment.

CHAPTER III.

OF SUITS AND OTHER PROCEEDINGS TO WHICH AGRICULTURISTS ARE PARTIES.

History of transactions with agriculturist debtors to be investigated.

12. When any suit is brought for the recovery of money alleged to be due on account of money lent or advanced to, or paid for, the defendant, or as the price of goods sold or on an account stated, or on a written or unwritten engagement for the payment of money, or for the foreclosure of a mortgage, or for the possession of mortgaged property, and the defendant or any one of the defendants, not being merely a surety of the actual debtor, is an agriculturist, and when any suit is brought for the redemption of a mortgage and the plaintiff or any one of the plaintiffs is an agriculturist,

the Court shall, if the amount of the creditor's claim is disputed, enquire into the history and merits of the case, from the commencement of the transactions between the parties out of which the suit has arisen, first, with a view of ascertaining whether there is any defence to the suit on the ground of fraud, mistake, accident, undue influence or otherwise; and secondly, with a view (if necessary) to taking an account between the parties in manner hereinafter provided.

When the amount of the claim is admitted, and the Court sees no reason to doubt the truth of such admission, the Court shall not be bound so to enquire, but may do so if it thinks fit.

When the Court sees reason to doubt the truth of such admission, it shall be bound to enquire as aforesaid.

Nothing herein contained shall affect the right of the parties to require that any matter in difference between them be referred to arbitration.

Mode of taking account.

13. When the Court enquires into the history and merits of a case under section twelve, it shall, if it considers any agreement between the parties as to interest or the profits of mortgaged property or determining in any way the manner of taking the account fair and equitable, give effect to such agreement and take the account on the footing thereof; but, if it does not consider such agreement fair and equitable, it shall, notwithstanding the same, and notwithstanding any statement or settlement of account or any contract purporting to close previous dealings and create a new obligation, determine the amount due according to the following rules (that is to say):—

(a) separate accounts of principal and interest shall be taken:

(b) in the account of principal there shall be debited to the debtor only such money as may from time to time have been actually received by him or on his account from the creditor:

(c) in the account of interest there shall be debited to the debtor monthly simple interest on the balance of principal for the time being outstanding at the rate allowed by the Court as hereinafter provided:

(d) all payments by or on account of the debtor, and all profits or advantages of every description received by the creditor in the course of the transactions, shall be credited, first, on account of interest; and when any payment is more than sufficient to discharge the balance of interest due at the time it is made, the residue of such payment shall be credited to the debtor in the account of principal:

(e) the accounts of principal and interest shall be made up to the date of suit, and the aggregate of the balances (if any) of both such accounts against the debtor on that date shall be deemed to be the amount due, except when the balance of the interest account exceeds that of the principal account, in which case double the latter balance shall be deemed to be the amount due.

Interest to be allowed.

14. The interest to be awarded in taking an account according to the rules set forth in section thirteen shall be—

(a) the rate, if any, agreed upon between the parties, unless such rate is deemed by the Court to be unreasonable; or

(b) if such rate is deemed by the Court unreasonable, or if no rate was agreed upon, such rate as the Court deems reasonable:

Provided that, in any case in which the parties have agreed that the profits of mortgaged property shall be taken by the mortgagee in lieu of interest, and such agreement has been set aside under section thirteen, the rate of interest to be allowed shall be nine per cent. per annum.

Reference to arbitration in certain cases.

15. Instead of enquiring into the history and merits of a case under section twelve, or if upon so enquiring the Court is unable to satisfy itself as to the amount which should be allowed on account of principal or interest or both, the Court may, of its own motion, direct that the question be referred to arbitration.

If the parties are willing to nominate arbitrators, the arbitrators shall be nominated by them in such manner as may be agreed upon between them: if the parties are unwilling to nominate arbitrators or cannot agree in respect of such nomination, the Court shall appoint any three persons it thinks fit:

Provided that if both parties reside in the same village, town or city, and, in the opinion of the Court, three fit persons can be found among the residents of such village, town or city, it shall appoint residents of such village, town or city.

The provisions of sections 508 to 522 (both inclusive) of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply to every reference to arbitration under this section.

In the case of ancestral debts interest to be disallowed or limited.

16. If the debt, or any portion thereof, was not contracted by the person from whom the creditor seeks to obtain recovery, but by such person's father or other ancestor, the said person shall be called upon to state whether he is willing to accept the full responsibility for such debt or for such portion thereof;

and, if he accepts such responsibility, shall be held liable for the full amount payable on account of such debt, or of such portion thereof subject to the other provisions of this Act, or of any law for the time being in force relating to ancestral debts;

but if he declines to accept such responsibility, he shall not be held liable for more than the principal amount of such debt, or of such portion thereof, with interest up to the date of the death of the person who incurred such debt, or of such portion thereof, if such person was related to him in the first degree, and otherwise only for the principal amount of such debt or of such portion thereof.

Agriculturist debtors may sue for accounts.

17. Any agriculturist may sue for an account of monies lent or advanced to or paid for him by a creditor or due by him to such creditor as the price of goods sold or on a written or unwritten engagement for the payment of money and of monies paid by him to such creditor, and for a decree declaring the amount, if any, still payable by him to such creditor.

Amount of debts in such cases to be determined according to foregoing provisions.

When any such suit is brought, the amount payable by the plaintiff shall be determined under the same rules as would be applicable if the creditor had himself sued for recovery of the debt.

Decree may provide for payment by instalments.

18. A decree passed under section seventeen may, besides declaring the amount due, direct that such amount shall be paid by instalments, with or without interest; and, when any such decree so directs, the plaintiff may pay

Execution of decrees under this section.

the amount of such decree, or the amount of each instalment fixed by such decree, as it falls due, into court, in default whereof execution of the decree may be enforced by the defendant in the same manner as if he had obtained the decree in a suit to recover the debt.

Payment into court in cases under section 17.

19. The plaintiff in any suit instituted under section seventeen may at any stage of such suit deposit in court such sum of money as he considers a satisfaction in full of the defendant's claim against him.

Notice of the deposit shall be given by the Court to the defendant, and the amount of the deposit shall (unless the Court otherwise directs) be paid to the defendant on his application.

No interest shall be allowed to the defendant on any sum so deposited from the date of the receipt of such notice, whether the sum deposited be in full of the claim or fall short thereof.

Power to discharge judgment-debtor.

20. When a decree has been passed, whether before or after this Act comes into force, under which any sum less than fifty rupees is recoverable from an agriculturist, the Court may, whether in the course of execution of the said decree or otherwise, if it is satisfied that there is no other claim against him and that he is unable to pay the whole of such sum, direct the payment of a portion of the same, and grant him a discharge from such balance.

Power to direct institution of insolvency proceedings.

When the sum payable under the decree amounts to fifty rupees or upwards, or when there are other claims against the debtor, the Court may direct proceedings to be taken with respect to him as nearly as may be as if he had applied to be declared an insolvent under the provisions hereinafter contained.

Power to fix instalments in execution.

21. The Court may at any time direct that the amount of any decree against an agriculturist or the portion of the same which it directs under section twenty to be paid, shall be paid by instalments with or without interest.

Arrest and imprisonment for debt abolished.

22. Except as provided in the Code of Civil Procedure, section 359, no agriculturist shall be arrested or imprisoned on account of debt.

Land exempted from attachment and sale unless specifically pledged.

23. No agriculturist's land shall be attached or sold in execution of any decree or order unless it has been specifically pledged as security for the repayment of the debt to which such decree or order relates, and the mortgage lien still subsists.

But the Court may, when passing a decree or at any subsequent time, direct the Collector to take possession, for any period not exceeding seven years, of any land of an agriculturist judgment-debtor to the possession of which such judgment-debtor is entitled, and which, in the opinion of the Collector, is not required for the support of such judgment-debtor and the members of his family dependent on him, and deal with the same for the benefit of the decree-holder in manner provided by section thirty-one.

Ancestral debt.

24. If, upon application being made for the execution of a decree for the payment of money against an agriculturist, it appears that the person against whom execution is sought is not the person made liable by the decree for the amount thereof, but the heir of such person, the amount recoverable under the decree shall be limited in accordance with the provisions of section sixteen.

CHAPTER IV.

OF INSOLVENCY.

Subordinate Judges to have jurisdiction in agriculturists' cases.

25. Every Subordinate Judge shall have the powers conferred by sections 344 to 359 (both inclusive) of the Code of Civil Procedure, as modified by the provisions next hereinafter contained, for the purpose of dealing with applications under the Code of Civil Procedure or under this Act to have agriculturists residing within the local limits of his jurisdiction declared insolvent and proceedings taken under orders passed by him under the second clause of section twenty, and no such application or proceeding shall be dealt with by any other Court.

Agriculturist may apply for adjudication in cases not provided for by Code.

26. Any agriculturist who is in debt to the amount of fifty rupees or upwards and who resides within the said districts may apply to any Subordinate Judge within the local limits of whose jurisdiction he resides to be declared an insolvent, though he has not been arrested or imprisoned, and though no order of attachment has issued against his property in execution of decree.

27. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 351 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the Court shall declare an agriculturist an insolvent if it is satisfied that he is in insolvent circumstances, and that the application to have him declared an insolvent has been properly made under section 344 of the said Code or section twenty-six of this Act.

Modification of section 351 of the Code.

28. No person other than the Názir of the Court shall be appointed as receiver, and no receiver shall be entitled to commission.

Receiver.

29. In determining under section 352 of the said Code the amount of any claim of the nature referred to in section twelve of this Act due by an insolvent agriculturist, the Court shall proceed in the manner prescribed by sections twelve to sixteen of this Act, both inclusive.

Proof of debts.

30. Whenever any moveable property of an insolvent is liable to be sold by a receiver under section 356 of the said Code, the Court may direct that it shall not be so sold, and may, after recording the opinions of two Assessors appointed by the Court in this behalf, determine the value of such property and direct the receiver to transfer it to any of the scheduled creditors who may be entitled to receive in the distribution under the said section 356 an amount equal to or greater than the value so determined; and such creditor shall accept such property in full or partial liquidation (as the case may be) of the amount to which he is so entitled.

Power to make over moveable property to creditor at valuation.

31. No immoveable property of the insolvent shall vest in the receiver; but the Court may direct the Collector to take into his possession, for any period not exceeding seven years from the date on which the receiver has been appointed, any such property to the possession of which the insolvent is entitled, and which, in the opinion of the Collector, is not required for the support of the insolvent and the members of his family dependent on him, and, subject to any rules the Local Government may from time to time make in this behalf, to manage the same for the benefit of the creditors, by letting it on lease or otherwise:

Immoveable property not to vest in receiver,

but may be managed for benefit of creditors.

Provided that if the insolvent or his heir at any time pays into court the balance of the scheduled debts then unpaid, he shall, subject to any rights created in favour of other persons by the Collector, be entitled to recover possession of such property.

32. When any scheduled debt is secured by a mortgage of any portion of the insolvent's immoveable property, the Court may direct the Collector, if he can obtain a premium equal to the amount of such debt by letting such property rent-free for a term not exceeding twenty years, to let such property, and, if he cannot so obtain such premium, to sell such property by public auction or otherwise as he thinks fit.

Secured debts.

Where property is let under this section, the premium shall be applied to the payment of the debt.

When property is sold under this section, the sale-proceeds shall be applied, first, to the payment of the debt; and the balance, if any, shall be paid to the receiver.

33. So long as any management under section thirty-one or letting under section thirty-two continues, the insolvent and his representative in interest shall be incompetent to mortgage, charge, lease or alienate the property or any part thereof.

Insolvent incompetent to sell, &c., property dealt with under sections 31 and 32.

34. When the balance available for distribution among the scheduled creditors under section 356 of the said Code has been distributed, the claims of such creditors shall be deemed to have been discharged, except as regards the right to share in the profits of any property managed by the Collector under section thirty-one.

Scheduled debts discharged.

35. No Subordinate Judge exercising the powers conferred by section twenty-five, if he is a Subordinate Judge of the first class, shall sentence any person under section 359 of the said Code to imprisonment for a term longer than three months, or if he is a Subordinate Judge of the second class, shall so sentence any person for a term longer than one month.

Limitation to powers of Subordinate Judges under section 359 of the Code.

CHAPTER V.

OF VILLAGE-MUNSIFS.

36. The Local Government may from time to time appoint any Patel of a village to be a Village-Munsif for such village or for such village and for any other villages the sites of which are situate not more than two miles from the site of such village, and may cancel any such appointment.

Appointment of Village-Munsifs.

37. Every Village-Munsif so appointed shall take cognizance of suits for money lent, or advanced to, or paid for, the defendant, or due as the price of goods sold or on an account stated, or on a written or unwritten engagement for the payment of money when the amount or value of the claim does not exceed ten rupees, and all the defendants at the time of the commencement of the suit actually and voluntarily reside or carry on business or personally work for gain within the local area for which such Village-Munsif is appointed.

Suits triable by them.

A suit cognizable by a Village-Munsif shall not be heard by any other Court:

Jurisdiction of other Courts excluded.

Provided that the Special Judge may from time to time transfer any suit instituted before a Village-Munsif to any other Civil Court in the district for trial:

Proviso.

Provided also that no Village-Munsif shall try any suit in which he is a party or is personally interested, or shall adjudicate upon any proceeding connected with or arising out of such suit.

38. The Special Judge may on a petition being presented within thirty days from the date of any decree or order of a Village-Munsif by any party aggrieved by such decree or order, set aside such decree or order on the ground of corruption, gross partiality or misconduct of the Village-Munsif.

Special Judge's power of revision.

Except as herein provided and as provided in section 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure, every decree and order of a Village-Munsif shall be final.

39. The Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the local Gazette, make rules for regulating the procedure of Village-Munsifs and for conferring on them any of the powers for the trial of suits or the execution of decrees exercised by a Civil Court under the Code of Civil Procedure or any other enactment for the time being in force.

Power of Local Government to make rules.

CHAPTER VI.

OF CONCILIATION.

40. The Local Government may from time to time appoint any person to be a Conciliator and cancel any such appointment.

Appointment of Conciliators.

Every Conciliator so appointed shall exercise his functions under this Act in respect of matters affecting agriculturists residing within such local limits as the Local Government may from time to time determine.

41. When any dispute arises as to, or there is a prospect of litigation regarding, any matter within the cognizance of a Civil Court between two or more parties, one of whom is an agriculturist residing within any local limits for which a Conciliator has been appointed, any of such parties may apply to such Conciliator to effect an amicable settlement between them.

Matters which may be brought before Conciliator.

42. If the application be made by one of the parties only, the Conciliator shall take down, or cause to be taken down, in writing a general statement of the applicant's case, and shall thereupon, by summons or by such other means as he deems fit, invite the person against whom such application is made to attend before him upon a day to be fixed for this purpose, and shall direct the applicant also to be present on such day.

Procedure thereupon.

If the said person fails to appear on the day first fixed, the Conciliator may, if he thinks fit, from time to time extend the period for his appearance.

Day for attendance may from time to time be postponed.

43. Whenever all the parties are present, the Conciliator shall call upon each in turn to explain his case regarding the matter in question, and shall use his best endeavours to induce them to agree to an amicable settlement or to submit such matter to arbitration.

When all parties appear, Conciliator to endeavour to reconcile them.

44. The Conciliator shall hear the statement of any witness and peruse any book of account or other document produced by the parties, and if any party or witness consents in writing to affirm any statement upon oath or solemn affirmation in any form not repugnant to justice or decency and not purporting to affect any third person, shall arrange for such oath or solemn affirmation being duly taken in the presence of all the parties.

Conciliator to hear statements of witnesses, &c.

45. If on the day on which the case is first heard by the Conciliator or on any subsequent day to which he may adjourn the hearing, the parties come to any agreement, either finally disposing of the matter or for referring it to arbitration, such agreement shall be forthwith reduced to writing, and shall be read and explained to the parties, and shall be signed or otherwise attested by the Conciliator and the parties or their representatives respectively.

Any agreement arrived at to be reduced to writing.

46. When the agreement is one finally disposing of the matter, the Conciliator shall forward the same in original to the Court of the Subordinate Judge of lowest grade having jurisdiction in the place where the agriculturist who is a party thereto resides.

Procedure when agreement finally disposes of case.

The Court which receives the agreement shall order it to be filed; and it shall then take effect as if it were a decree of the said Court passed on the day on which it is ordered to be filed and from which no appeal lies.

47. When the agreement is one for referring the matter to arbitration, the Conciliator shall forward it to the Court having jurisdiction in the matter, and such Court shall cause it to be filed and proceed thereon in manner provided by sections 523 and 524 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Procedure where agreement is for reference to arbitration.

48. If the person against whom any application is made before a Conciliator cannot be found, or if he refuses or neglects, after such period as the Conciliator thinks reasonable has been allowed for his appearance, to appear before the Conciliator, or if he appears but the attempt to reconcile the parties or to induce them to resort to arbitration fails, the Conciliator shall, on demand, give to the applicant, or when there are several applicants to each applicant, a certificate under his signature to that effect.

Certificate to be given to applicant if conciliation fails.

49. No suit and no application for execution of a decree passed before the date on which this Act comes into force to which any agriculturist residing within any local limits for which a Conciliator has been appointed is a party shall be entertained by any Civil Court, unless the plaintiff or decree-holder produces a certificate as aforesaid.

Suit, &c., not to be entertained by Civil Court unless such certificate is produced.

50. The Local Government may from time to time make rules—

Local Government to frame rules.

(a) regulating the proceedings of Conciliators in matters not provided for by this Act;

(b) fixing the charges to be made by Conciliators for anything done by them under this Act; and

(c) determining what record and accounts shall be kept by Conciliators and what returns shall be framed and furnished by them.

CHAPTER VII.

SUPERINTENDENCE AND REVISION.

Special Judge.

51. The Local Government shall appoint an officer, as Special Judge, to inspect, supervise and control the proceedings of all Subordinate Judges, Village-Munsifs and Conciliators under this Act, and to discharge in respect of such proceedings before Subordinate Judges all the functions of the District Court.

The officer so appointed shall not, without the previous sanction of the Government of India, discharge any public function except those which he is required by this Act to discharge.

If any conflict of authority arises between the Special Judge and the District Judge in regard to any matter, the High Court shall pass such order thereon consistent with this Act as it thinks fit.

52. The Special Judge may—

District Judge may withdraw case from Subordinate Judge,

(a) transfer to his own file, and himself as if he were a Subordinate Judge dispose of any suit or other matter pending before the Court of any Subordinate Judge; or or sit with Subordinate Judge as a Bench for trial of any case.

(b) stay the proceedings in any such suit or matter, and sit together with such Judge as a Bench to dispose of such suit or matter in accordance with the provisions of this chapter.

If the members of any Bench sitting under this section differ in opinion, the opinion of the Special Judge shall prevail.

Appointment of Assistant or Subordinate Judge to aid Special Judge.

53. The Local Government may appoint any Assistant or Subordinate Judge to inspect and supervise, subject to the control of the Special Judge, the proceedings of all Subordinate Judges, Village-Munsifs and Conciliators under this Act in one or more districts.

Any Assistant or Subordinate Judge so appointed may in the districts for which he is so appointed, if the Special Judge so directs, exercise the powers of the Special Judge under section fifty-two of this Act, and transfer any suit under section 25 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Of revision.

54. The Special Judge may call for and examine the record of any suit or other matter tried by a Subordinate Judge for the purpose of satisfying himself of the legality or propriety of any decree or order passed, and as to the regularity of the proceedings, and may pass such order thereon as he thinks fit; and any Assistant Judge or Subordinate Judge appointed by the Local Government under section fifty-three may similarly in the districts for which he is appointed call for and examine the record of any such case, and, if he see cause therefor, may refer the same, with his remarks, for the orders of the Special Judge:

Provided that no decision or order shall be reversed or altered for any error or defect, or otherwise, unless a failure of justice appears to have taken place.

CHAPTER VIII.

REGISTRATION BY VILLAGE-REGISTRARS.

Appointment of Village-Registrars.

55. The Local Government may—

(a) appoint such persons as it thinks fit, whether public officers or not, to be Village-Registrars, for such local areas as it may from time to time prescribe;

(b) direct that the Village-Registrar for any local area may discharge the functions of a Village-Registrar for any other local areas concurrently with the Village-Registrars of such other local areas; and

(c) delegate to any person by name or in virtue of his office the powers conferred on it by this section.

Instruments executed by agriculturist not to be deemed valid unless executed before a Village-Registrar.

56. No instrument purporting to create, modify, transfer or evidence an obligation for the payment of money or a charge upon any property executed after the passing of this Act by an agriculturist residing in any local area for which a Village-Registrar has been appointed shall be admitted in evidence for any purpose by any person having by law or consent of parties authority to receive evidence, or shall be acted upon by any such person or by any public officer, unless such instrument is written by, or under the superintendence of, and is attested by, a Village-Registrar:

Provided that nothing herein contained shall prevent the admission of any instrument in evidence in any criminal proceeding.

Such instruments to be written by or under the superintendence of a Village-Registrar and executed in his presence.

57. When any persons, one or more of whom is an agriculturist, desire to execute any such instrument, they shall present themselves before the Village-Registrar appointed by the Local Government for the area in which the said agriculturist or any one of the said agriculturists resides, and such Registrar, after satisfying himself in such manner as he deems fit as to the identity of the parties, and receiving from them the fee (if any) prescribed by the Local Government and the stamp (if any) which may be necessary, shall write the instrument, or cause the same to be written under his superintendence, and require the parties to execute it in his presence.

Every instrument so written and executed shall be attested by the Village-Registrar, and also, if any of the parties thereto is unable to read and write, by two respectable witnesses.

Registration of instruments by Village-Registrars.

58. Every Village-Registrar shall keep a register of instruments executed before him in such form as shall from time to time be prescribed by the Inspector General of Registration under section sixty-one of this Act.

As soon as any instrument has been completely executed before a Village-Registrar, he shall make, or cause a copy of it to be made in his register, and shall deliver the original instrument to the party entitled to the custody of the same, and a certified copy thereof to the other party, or to each of the other parties, if there be more than one.

Previous to delivery, the original instrument and each such copy shall be endorsed under the Village-Registrar's signature with the date of registration, the name and residence of the Village-Registrar and the volume and page of the register in which the instrument has been registered.

Consideration to be fully stated in every instrument executed before a Village-Registrar.

59. In every instrument written by or under the superintendence of the Village-Registrar, the amount and nature of the consideration, if any, shall be fully stated.

The Village-Registrar shall also endorse upon the instrument a note, under his signature, recording whether or not the transfer of the consideration stated therein, or of any part thereof, took place in his presence.

If the instrument is to be executed in supersession, or partly in supersession, of a previous instrument, such instrument shall be produced before the Village-Registrar and shall be fully described in the instrument to be executed, and shall be marked by the Village-Registrar under his signature for identification.

Registration under this Act to be deemed equivalent to registration under the Indian Registration Act, 1877.

60. Every instrument executed and registered in accordance with the foregoing provisions shall be deemed to have been duly registered under the provisions of the Indian Registration Act, 1877; and no instrument which ought to have been executed before a Village-Registrar, but has been otherwise executed, shall be registered by any officer acting under the said Act, or in any public office, or shall be authenticated by any public officer.

Village-Registrars to be subordinate to the Inspector General of Registration.

61. The said Inspector General shall exercise, by himself and his subordinates, a general superintendence over all Village-Registrars, and shall have power from time to time to make rules consistent with this Act for regulating their proceedings and for providing for the custody of their records.

Exemption of instruments to which Government or any officer of Government is a party.

62. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to require any instrument to which the Government or any officer of Government in his official capacity is a party to be executed before a Village-Registrar.

Power of Local Government to make rules.

63. The Local Government may from time to time make rules regulating the appointment, suspension, dismissal and remuneration of Village-Registrars, and prescribing the fees to be levied by them.

CHAPTER IX.

OF RECEIPTS AND STATEMENTS OF ACCOUNT.

Agriculturists to be entitled to written receipts.

64. Every agriculturist who makes any payment of money in liquidation of a debt shall be entitled to receive at the time of such payment a written receipt from the person to whom such payment is made.

If such payment is made under any instrument executed before a Village-Registrar, the receipt shall, if the agriculturist so require, be endorsed on the copy of the instrument furnished to him under section fifty-eight.

and to annual statements of account;

65. Any agriculturist by whom any money is due under any instrument shall be entitled to receive from the person claiming under such instrument, within one month after the date on which by local custom annual accounts are balanced, a statement of his account up to that date.

The Local Government may, by notification in the local Gazette, declare what date shall in any district or portion of a district be taken to be the date on which annual accounts are balanced for the purpose of this section.

and to have his account made up from time to time in a pass-book.

66. Any agriculturist in whose name an account is kept by any trader or money-lender shall be entitled to receive from such trader or money-lender, on demand, a pass-book, and to require from time to time that his account up to date be written therein and attested by the signature or mark of the said trader or money-lender.

An entry so made in any such pass-book of any payment made to the trader or money-lender shall be deemed to be equivalent for the purposes of section sixty-four to the grant of a receipt for the amount so entered.

Penalty for contravention of sections 64 to 66.

67. Any person who, in contravention of section sixty-four, sixty-five or sixty-six, refuses or neglects to give a receipt or a statement of account or a pass-book, or to write, or cause to be written, any account or any part of an account in a pass-book, or to attest the same when so written, shall be punished for each such offence, with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

CHAPTER X.

LEGAL PRACTITIONERS.

Pleaders, &c., excluded in certain cases.

68. No pleader, vakíl, mukhtár, and no advocate or attorney of a High Court, shall be permitted to appear on behalf of any party to a case before a Village-Munsif or a Conciliator:

Provided that any party to any such case may be permitted, on reasonable cause being shown to the satisfaction of the Conciliator or Munsif, to employ any relative, servant or dependent, who is not, and has not previously been, a pleader, or a mukhtár or vakíl to appear either conjointly with or in lieu of such party.

When a relative, servant or dependent appears in lieu of a party, he shall be furnished by him with a power of attorney defining the extent to which he is empowered to act.

Pleaders' fees.

69. In awarding costs to any party in any suit or proceeding before a Subordinate Judge under this Act in which the subject-matter does not exceed one hundred rupees in amount or value, nothing shall be allowed on account of the fees of any pleader, vakíl, mukhtár, or of any advocate or attorney of a High Court, unless the Court, for reasons to be recorded by it in writing, thinks that professional assistance was necessary to the proper conduct of such party's case.

70. When in any suit or proceeding before a Subordinate Judge under this Act to which an agriculturist is a party, any pleader, vakíl or mukhtár, or any advocate or attorney of a High Court, appears on behalf of any party opposed to such agriculturist, the Subordinate Judge, if he is of opinion that such agriculturist has not the means of obtaining proper professional assistance, may, with the consent of such agriculturist, direct the Government pleader or some other competent person (who is willing so to do) to appear on his behalf.

Power of Court to appoint pleader for agriculturist.

CHAPTER XI.

MISCELLANEOUS.

71. No mortgage, lien or charge of or upon any immoveable property belonging to an agriculturist shall be valid unless it is created by an instrument in writing signed by the person creating such mortgage, lien or charge.

Mortgages, &c., to be valid only when written and registered.

72. In any suit against an agriculturist under this Act for the recovery of money the following periods of limitation shall be deemed to be substituted for those prescribed in the second column of the second schedule annexed to the Indian Limitation Act, 1877 (that is to say) :—

Limitation.

(a) when such suit is based on a written instrument registered under this Act or any other law in force at the date of the execution of such instrument,—twelve years;

(b) in any other case,—six years:

Provided that nothing herein contained shall revive the right to bring any suit which would have been barred by limitation if it had been instituted immediately before the passing of this Act.

73. No appeal shall lie from any decision or order in any suit or proceeding before a Subordinate Judge under this Act.

No appeal in cases tried under this Act by Subordinate Judges.

74. The decision of any Court of first instance that any person is or is not an agriculturist shall be final.

Decision as to whether person is or is not agriculturist final.

75. Except in so far as it is inconsistent with this Act, the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply in all suits and proceedings before Subordinate Judges.

Civil Procedure Code to apply in Subordinate Judges' Courts.

76. The Local Government may from time to time make all such rules as it may deem necessary for carrying out the provisions of this Act.

Additional power to make rules.

77. All rules made by the Local Government under this Act shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon, in so far as they are consistent with this Act, have the force of law.

Rules to be published.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

1. THE inquiries made into the causes of the riots which occurred in the Dekkhan districts in 1875 and the discussions which have since taken place show that the difficulties under which the agriculturists in those districts labour are due, in a great measure, to the unsatisfactory nature of the relations at present subsisting between them and the money-lending classes.

2. In order to put those relations on a better footing, it is deemed necessary—first, to provide some safeguards against the money-lenders committing frauds in their accounts and obtaining from ignorant peasants bonds for larger amounts than are actually paid to or due from them;

secondly, to arrange disputes by conciliation as far as possible; to increase the number of Courts, and to simplify and cheapen the administration of justice, and thus to afford facilities to the agriculturist to defend any suit that may be brought against him;

thirdly, to insist that in suits against agriculturists the Court shall in certain cases of its own motion investigate the entire history of the transactions between the parties, and do substantial justice between them;

fourthly, to restrict the sale of the raiyat's land in execution of decree, and to provide an insolvency-procedure more liberal to the debtor than that of the Code of Civil Procedure.

The present Bill has been drafted with a view to securing these objects, in so far as they can be secured by legislation. It extends only to the four districts in which the agricultural distress has been most felt.

3. An attempt has been made to secure the first object by sections 55 to 63, providing for the appointment of village-registrars before whom every written obligation for the payment of money by an agriculturist must be registered; by sections 64 to 67, requiring money-lenders to give receipts to agriculturists for all payments made by them, to render accounts, and to furnish a pass-book in which the agriculturist's account will be periodically written up; and by section 71, which invalidates all mortgages created by an agriculturist otherwise than by a written instrument.

4. With a view to the second of the proposed objects, the Bill provides in sections 40 to 50 for the establishment of a system of conciliation under which it is hoped a large number of disputes will be settled out of court; and in sections 36 to 39 for the appointment of village-munsifs, like those in the Madras Presidency, to dispose of petty cases. A further addition to the machinery for the disposal of suits will be made by an increase of the number of Subordinate Judges; but, as this is a matter which it is competent to the Local Government to deal with under the existing law, no reference to it will be found in the Bill.

5. As regards procedure, it is proposed, with a view to a more rapid despatch of business and to diminishing the cost of litigation, to simplify the record in certain respects (sections 10 and 11); to discourage the employment of pleaders in petty suits (section 69); and to substitute for the present system of appeals a very strict and searching supervision (sections 51 to 54).

6. Sections 12 to 16 provide in certain cases for a thorough investigation into the history of the transaction between the parties (the third of the four objects mentioned above). They prescribe the system in which the raiyat's account is to be made up in cases where the Court finds it necessary to set aside oppressive or inequitable arrangements between the parties, and they guard especially against exorbitant demands for interest.

7. The presence of the defendant being essential for the thorough investigation proposed, and the raiyats being, through various difficulties, apt to leave their suits undefended, it has been provided (in section 9) that, except for special reasons, no suit shall be decided ex parte, but that the Court shall compel the defendant to appear.

8. The last of the four objects proposed will be found provided for by sections 25 and 33, which enact that land shall not be sold to pay the debt of the owner except where it has been specifically pledged, but admit of its profits being made available to the creditor for a term of years, and by the sections relating to insolvency.

9. The chief points in which the provisions of the insolvency-chapter differ from those of the Code are that they allow an agriculturist to apply to be adjudicated an insolvent, though no process in execution has been issued against him; that they entitle him to an adjudication in all cases in which, as a matter of fact, he may be insolvent, leaving any misconduct on his part to be punished under the Code of Civil Procedure; and that they similarly entitle him in all cases to a complete discharge from debts which, after all reasonable enforcement, he is unable fully to pay.

10. This insolvency procedure is further supplemented by section 20, which gives the Court a summary power in petty cases to discharge a judgment-debtor who is clearly insolvent, and by section 22, which abolishes imprisonment for debt.

11. The only other provisions of the Bill which appear to call for special notice are section 70, which empowers the Court to direct the Government pleader to appear on behalf of a raiyat when he is unable to engage the services of a professional advocate and the opposite side is represented by a pleader, and section 72, which extends the period of limitation in suits for debt instituted against agriculturists. This latter provision has been introduced into the Bill, as there appears to be a pretty general consensus of opinion to the effect that the difficulties of the raiyat are much aggravated by the present law of limitation, which compels the money-lender at very short intervals to sue him or take a fresh bond, either of which steps commonly entails a considerable addition to the debt.

A Bill for the Relief of Indebted Agriculturists in certain parts of the Dekkhan.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to relieve the agricultural classes in certain parts of the Dekkhan from indebtedness; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. This Act may be cited as "The Dekkhan Agriculturists Relief Act, 1879";

It extends only to the districts of Puna, Sátára, Sholápur and Ahmadnagar, and it shall come into force on the first day of October, 1879.

Local extent and commencement.

2. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—

Interpretation-clause.

(1) "agriculturist" means a person who earns his livelihood wholly or principally by agriculture:

"agriculturist":

(2) "money" includes grain and any other agricultural produce:

"money":

(3) "special judge" means the officer appointed under section fifty-one.

"special judge."

CHAPTER II.

OF THE HEARING OF CERTAIN SUITS BY SUBORDINATE JUDGES.

Application of this chapter.

3. The provisions of this chapter shall apply to—

(a) suits for an account instituted on or after the first day of October, 1879, by an agriculturist in the Court of a Subordinate Judge under the provisions hereinafter contained, and

(b) suits of the descriptions next hereinafter mentioned and instituted on or after the same date—

(1) when such suits are heard by Subordinate Judges of the first class and the subject-matter thereof does not exceed in amount or value five hundred rupees, or

(2) when such suits are heard by Subordinate Judges of the second class and the subject-matter thereof does not exceed in amount or value one hundred rupees, or

(3) when such suits are heard by Subordinate Judges of the second class and the subject-matter thereof exceeds one hundred rupees, but does not exceed five hundred rupees in amount or value, and the parties agree that such provisions shall apply.

The descriptions of suits referred to in clause (b) are the following (namely):—

suits of the nature cognizable by Courts of Small Causes, and suits between mortgagors, being agriculturists, and mortgagees for the foreclosure or redemption of the mortgage, for the enforcement of the mortgage lien or for the possession of the property mortgaged.

Certain suits to be instituted in Courts of first class Subordinate Judges.

4. Where a Subordinate Judge of the first class and a Subordinate Judge of the second class have jurisdiction in the same local area, every suit referred to in section 3, clause (b), to be instituted in such local area shall, if the amount or value of the subject-matter of such suit exceeds one hundred rupees and does not exceed five hundred rupees, be instituted in the Court of the Subordinate Judge of the first class.

Subordinate Judges not to act as Judges of Small Cause Courts.

5. Notwithstanding anything contained in the Bombay Civil Courts Act, 1869, section 28, no Subordinate Judge shall, while this Act continues in force, be invested with the jurisdiction of a Judge of a Court of Small Causes; and any such jurisdiction heretofore conferred on any Subordinate Judge shall be deemed, except as regards suits instituted before the said first day of October, 1879, to have been withdrawn.

Jurisdiction of Subordinate Judge and Small Cause Court.

6. The Local Government may from time to time by notification in the local Gazette direct that any class of suits which a Subordinate Judge would be precluded from hearing by section twelve of Act XI of 1865 (to consolidate and amend the law relating to Courts of Small Causes beyond the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court of Judicature) shall be heard and determined by him and not otherwise, and may by a like notification cancel any such direction.

Summons to be for final disposal of suit.

7. In every case in which it seems to the Court possible to dispose of a suit at the first hearing, the summons shall be for the final disposal of the suit.

Service of summons.

8. If the officer employed to serve a summons on a defendant cannot find such defendant and there is no agent empowered to accept the service of the summons in his behalf, nor any person on whom the service can be made, the serving-officer may, instead of proceeding in manner prescribed by section 80 of the Code of Civil Procedure, leave such summons for service with the Patel of the defendant's village.

A Patel with whom a summons is left under this section shall, if he within one week from the date on which the summons is so left finds the defendant in the village, serve such summons on the defendant in manner prescribed by section 79 of the said Code, endorse the same or cause the same to be endorsed in manner prescribed by section 81 of the said Code, sign such endorsement and return the summons by post or otherwise to the Court.

An endorsement made on a summons under this section shall be primâ facie proof of the facts stated therein, and the Court shall take judicial notice of the signature thereto.

No suit to be heard ex parte.

9. No suit shall be heard ex parte, unless the Court, for reasons to be recorded in writing, thinks that it ought to be so heard.

In any suit which the Code of Civil Procedure directs to be heard ex parte, but which the Court does not think ought to be so heard, the Court shall adjourn the hearing and take steps to secure the attendance of the defendant by the issue of a fresh summons or of a warrant of arrest.

Written statements.

10. In suits of the nature cognizable by Courts of Small Causes no party shall be entitled to file a written statement without the permission of the Court.

Record of evidence.

11. When the subject-matter of any suit does not exceed ten rupees in amount or value, it shall not be necessary to take down the evidence or make a memorandum thereof in manner provided by the Code of Civil Procedure; but in cases where the evidence is not so taken down and no memorandum is so made, the substance of the evidence shall be stated in the judgment.

CHAPTER III.

OF SUITS AND OTHER PROCEEDINGS TO WHICH AGRICULTURISTS ARE PARTIES.

History of transactions with agriculturist debtors to be investigated.

12. When any suit is brought for the recovery of money alleged to be due on account of money lent or advanced to, or paid for, the defendant, or as the price of goods sold or on an account stated, or on a written or unwritten engagement for the payment of money, or for the foreclosure of a mortgage, or for the possession of mortgaged property, and the defendant or any one of the defendants, not being merely a surety of the actual debtor, is an agriculturist, and when any suit is brought for the redemption of a mortgage and the plaintiff or any one of the plaintiffs is an agriculturist,

the Court shall, if the amount of the creditor's claim is disputed, enquire into the history and merits of the case, from the commencement of the transactions between the parties out of which the suit has arisen, first, with a view of ascertaining whether there is any defence to the suit on the ground of fraud, mistake, accident, undue influence or otherwise; and secondly, with a view (if necessary) to taking an account between the parties in manner hereinafter provided.

When the amount of the claim is admitted, and the Court sees no reason to doubt the truth of such admission, the Court shall not be bound so to enquire, but may do so if it thinks fit.

When the Court sees reason to doubt the truth of such admission, it shall be bound to enquire as aforesaid.

Nothing herein contained shall affect the right of the parties to require that any matter in difference between them be referred to arbitration.

Mode of taking account.

13. When the Court enquires into the history and merits of a case under section twelve, it shall, if it considers any agreement between the parties as to interest or the profits of mortgaged property or determining in any way the manner of taking the account fair and equitable, give effect to such agreement and take the account on the footing thereof; but, if it does not consider such agreement fair and equitable, it shall, notwithstanding the same, and notwithstanding any statement or settlement of account or any contract purporting to close previous dealings and create a new obligation, determine the amount due according to the following rules (that is to say):—

(a) separate accounts of principal and interest shall be taken:

(b) in the account of principal there shall be debited to the debtor only such money as may from time to time have been actually received by him or on his account from the creditor:

(c) in the account of interest there shall be debited to the debtor monthly simple interest on the balance of principal for the time being outstanding at the rate allowed by the Court as hereinafter provided:

(d) all payments by or on account of the debtor, and all profits or advantages of every description received by the creditor in the course of the transactions, shall be credited, first, on account of interest; and when any payment is more than sufficient to discharge the balance of interest due at the time it is made, the residue of such payment shall be credited to the debtor in the account of principal:

(e) the accounts of principal and interest shall be made up to the date of suit, and the aggregate of the balances (if any) of both such accounts against the debtor on that date shall be deemed to be the amount due, except when the balance of the interest account exceeds that of the principal account, in which case double the latter balance shall be deemed to be the amount due.

Interest to be allowed.

14. The interest to be awarded in taking an account according to the rules set forth in section thirteen shall be—

(a) the rate, if any, agreed upon between the parties, unless such rate is deemed by the Court to be unreasonable; or

(b) if such rate is deemed by the Court unreasonable, or if no rate was agreed upon, such rate as the Court deems reasonable:

Provided that, in any case in which the parties have agreed that the profits of mortgaged property shall be taken by the mortgagee in lieu of interest and such agreement has been set aside under section thirteen, the rate of interest to be allowed shall be nine per cent. per annum.

Reference to arbitration in certain cases.

15. Instead of enquiring into the history and merits of a case under section twelve, or if upon so enquiring the Court is unable to satisfy itself as to the amount which should be allowed on account of principal or interest or both, the Court may, of its own motion, direct that the question be referred to arbitration.

If the parties are willing to nominate arbitrators, the arbitrators shall be nominated by them in such manner as may be agreed upon between them: if the parties are unwilling to nominate arbitrators or cannot agree in respect of such nomination, the Court shall appoint any three persons it thinks fit:

Provided that if both parties reside in the same village, town or city, and, in the opinion of the Court, three fit persons can be found among the residents of such village, town or city, it shall appoint residents of such village, town or city.

The provisions of sections 508 to 522 (both inclusive) of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply to every reference to arbitration under this section.

In the case of ancestral debts interest to be disallowed or limited.

16. If the debt, or any portion thereof, was not contracted by the person from whom the creditor seeks to obtain recovery, but by such person's father or other ancestor, the said person shall be called upon to state whether he is willing to accept the full responsibility for such debt or for such portion thereof;

and, if he accepts such responsibility, shall be held liable for the full amount payable on account of such debt, or of such portion thereof subject to the other provisions of this Act, or of any law for the time being in force relating to ancestral debts;

but if he declines to accept such responsibility, he shall not be held liable for more than the principal amount of such debt, or of such portion thereof, with interest up to the date of the death of the person who incurred such debt, or of such portion thereof, if such person was related to him in the first degree, and otherwise only for the principal amount of such debt or of such portion thereof.

Agriculturist debtors may sue for accounts.

17. Any agriculturist may sue for an account of monies lent or advanced to or paid for him by a creditor or due by him to such creditor as the price of goods sold or on a written or unwritten engagement for the payment of money and of monies paid by him to such creditor, and for a decree declaring the amount, if any, still payable by him to such creditor.

Amount of debts in such cases to be determined according to foregoing provisions.

When any such suit is brought, the amount payable by the plaintiff shall be determined under the same rules as would be applicable if the creditor had himself sued for recovery of the debt.

Decree may provide for payment by instalments.

18. A decree passed under section seventeen may, besides declaring the amount due, direct that such amount shall be paid by instalments, with or without interest; and, when any such decree so directs, the plaintiff may pay

Execution of decrees under this section.

the amount of such decree, or the amount of each instalment fixed by such decree, as it falls due, into court, in default whereof the execution of the decree may be enforced by the [illegible] in the same manner as if he had obtained the decree in a suit to recover the debt.

Payment into court in cases under section 17.

19. The plaintiff in any suit instituted under section seventeen may at any stage of such suit deposit in court such sum of money as he considers a satisfaction in full of the defendant's claim against him.

Notice of the deposit shall be given by the Court to the defendant, and the amount of the deposit shall (unless the Court otherwise directs) be paid to the defendant on his application.

No interest shall be allowed to the defendant on any sum so deposited from the date of the receipt of such notice, whether the sum deposited be in full of the claim or fall short thereof.

Power to discharge judgment-debtor.

20. When a decree has been passed, whether before or after this Act comes into force, under which any sum less than fifty rupees is recoverable from an agriculturist, the Court may, whether in the course of execution of the said decree or otherwise, if it is satisfied that there is no other claim against him and that he is unable to pay the whole of such sum, direct the payment of a portion of the same, and grant him a discharge from such balance.

When the sum payable under the decree amounts to fifty rupees or upwards, or when there are other claims against the debtor, the Court may direct proceedings to be taken with respect to him as nearly as may be as if he had applied to be declared an insolvent under the provisions hereinafter contained.

Power to direct institution of insolvency proceedings.

Power to fix instalments in execution.

21. The Court may at any time direct that the amount of any decree against an agriculturist or the portion of the same which it directs under section twenty to be paid, shall be paid by instalments with or without interest.

Arrest and imprisonment for debt abolished.

22. Except as provided in the Code of Civil Procedure, section 359, no agriculturist shall be arrested or imprisoned on account of debt.

Land exempted from attachment and sale unless specifically pledged.

23. No agriculturist's land shall be attached or sold in execution of any decree or order unless it has been specifically pledged as security for the repayment of the debt to which such decree or order relates, and the mortgage lien still subsists.

But the Court may, when passing a decree or at any subsequent time, direct the Collector to take possession, for any period not exceeding seven years, of any land of an agriculturist judgment-debtor to the possession of which such judgment-debtor is entitled, and which, in the opinion of the Collector, is not required for the support of such judgment-debtor and the members of his family dependent on him, and deal with the same for the benefit of the decree-holder in manner provided by section thirty-one.

Ancestral debt.

24. If, upon application being made for the execution of a decree for the payment of money against an agriculturist, it appears that the person against whom execution is sought is not the person made liable by the decree for the amount thereof, but the heir of such person, the amount recoverable under the decree shall be limited in accordance with the provisions of section sixteen.

CHAPTER IV.

OF INSOLVENCY.

Subordinate Judges to have jurisdiction in agriculturists' cases.

25. Every Subordinate Judge shall have the powers conferred by sections 344 to 359 (both inclusive) of the Code of Civil Procedure, as modified by the provisions next hereinafter contained, for the purpose of dealing with applications under the Code of Civil Procedure or under this Act to have agriculturists residing within the local limits of his jurisdiction declared insolvent and proceedings taken under orders passed by him under the second clause of section twenty, and no such application or proceeding shall be dealt with by any other Court.

Agriculturist may apply for adjudication in cases not provided for by Code.

26. Any agriculturist who is in debt to the amount of fifty rupees or upwards and who resides within the said districts may apply to any Subordinate Judge within the local limits of whose jurisdiction he resides to be declared an insolvent, though he has not been arrested or imprisoned, and though no order of attachment has issued against his property in execution of decree.

27. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 351 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the Court shall declare an agriculturist an insolvent if it is satisfied that he is in insolvent circumstances, and that the application to have him declared an insolvent has been properly made under section 344 of the said Code or section twenty-six of this Act.

Modification of section 351 of the Code.

28. No person other than the Názir of the Court shall be appointed as receiver, and no receiver shall be entitled to commission.

Receiver.

29. In determining under section 352 of the said Code the amount of any claim of the nature referred to in section twelve of this Act due by an insolvent agriculturist, the Court shall proceed in the manner prescribed by sections twelve to sixteen of this Act, both inclusive.

Proof of debts.

30. Whenever any moveable property of an insolvent is liable to be sold by a receiver under section 356 of the said Code, the Court may direct that it shall not be so sold, and may, after recording the opinions of two Assessors appointed by the Court in this behalf, determine the value of such property and direct the receiver to transfer it to any of the scheduled creditors who may be entitled to receive in the distribution under the said section 356 an amount equal to or greater than the value so determined; and such creditor shall accept such property in full or partial liquidation (as the case may be) of the amount to which he is so entitled.

Power to make over moveable property to creditor at valuation.

31. No immoveable property of the insolvent shall vest in the receiver; but the Court may direct the Collector to take into his possession, for any period not exceeding seven years from the date on which the receiver has been appointed, any such property to the possession of which the insolvent is entitled, and which, in the opinion of the Collector, is not required for the support of the insolvent and the members of his family dependent on him, and, subject to any rules the Local Government may from time to time make in this behalf, to manage the same for the benefit of the creditors, by letting it on lease or otherwise:

Immoveable property not to vest in receiver,

but may be managed for benefit of creditors.

Provided that if the insolvent or his heir at any time pays into court the balance of the scheduled debts then unpaid, he shall, subject to any rights created in favour of other persons by the Collector, be entitled to recover possession of such property.

32. When any scheduled debt is secured by a mortgage of any portion of the insolvent's immoveable property, the Court may direct the Collector, if he can obtain a premium equal to the amount of such debt by letting such property rent-free for a term not exceeding twenty years, to let such property, and, if he cannot so obtain such premium, to sell such property by public auction or otherwise as he thinks fit.

Secured debts.

Where property is let under this section, the premium shall be applied to the payment of the debt.

When property is sold under this section, the sale-proceeds shall be applied, first, to the payment of the debt; and the balance, if any, shall be paid to the receiver.

33. So long as any management under section thirty-one or letting under section thirty-two continues, the insolvent and his representative in interest shall be incompetent to mortgage, charge, lease or alienate the property or any part thereof.

Insolvent incompetent to sell, &c., property dealt with under sections 31 and 32.

34. When the balance available for distribution among the scheduled creditors under section 356 of the said Code has been distributed, the claims of such creditors shall be deemed to have been discharged, except as regards the right to share in the profits of any property managed by the Collector under section thirty-one.

Scheduled debts discharged.

35. No Subordinate Judge exercising the powers conferred by section twenty-five, if he is a Subordinate Judge of the first class, shall sentence any person under section 359 of the said Code to imprisonment for a term longer than three months, or if he is a Subordinate Judge of the second class, shall so sentence any person for a term longer than one month.

Limitation to powers of Subordinate Judges under section 359 of the Code.

CHAPTER V.

OF VILLAGE-MUNSIFS.

36. The Local Government may from time to time appoint any Patel of a village to be a Village-Munsif for such village or for such village and for any other villages the sites of which are situate not more than two miles from the site of such village, and may cancel any such appointment.

Appointment of Village-Munsifs.

37. Every Village-Munsif so appointed shall take cognizance of suits for money lent, or advanced to, or paid for, the defendant, or due as the price of goods sold or on an account stated, or on a written or unwritten engagement for the payment of money when the amount or value of the claim does not exceed ten rupees, and all the defendants at the time of the commencement of the suit actually and voluntarily reside or carry on business or personally work for gain within the local area for which such Village-Munsif is appointed.

Suits triable by them.

A suit cognizable by a Village-Munsif shall not be heard by any other Court:

Jurisdiction of other Courts excluded.

Provided that the Special Judge may from time to time transfer any suit instituted before a Village-Munsif to any other Civil Court in the district for trial:

Proviso.

Provided also that no Village-Munsif shall try any suit in which he is a party or is personally interested, or shall adjudicate upon any proceeding connected with or arising out of such suit.

38. The Special Judge may on a petition being presented within thirty days from the date of any decree or order of a Village-Munsif by any party aggrieved by such decree or order, set aside such decree or order on the ground of corruption, gross partiality or misconduct of the Village-Munsif.

Special Judge's power of revision.

Except as herein provided and as provided in section 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure, every decree and order of a Village-Munsif shall be final.

39. The Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the local Gazette, make rules for regulating the procedure of Village-Munsifs and for conferring on them any of the powers for the trial of suits or the execution of decrees exercised by a Civil Court under the Code of Civil Procedure or any other enactment for the time being in force.

Power of Local Government to make rules.

CHAPTER VI.

OF CONCILIATION.

40. The Local Government may from time to time appoint any person to be a Conciliator and cancel any such appointment.

Appointment of Conciliators.

Every Conciliator so appointed shall exercise his functions under this Act in respect of matters affecting agriculturists residing within such local limits as the Local Government may from time to time determine.

41. When any dispute arises as to, or there is a prospect of litigation regarding, any matter within the cognizance of a Civil Court between two or more parties, one of whom is an agriculturist residing within any local limits for which a Conciliator has been appointed, any of such parties may apply to the Conciliator to effect an amicable settlement between them.

Matters which may be brought before Conciliator.

42. If the application be made by one of the parties only, the Conciliator shall take down, or cause to be taken down, in writing a general statement of the applicant's case, and shall thereupon, by summons or by such other means as he deems fit, invite the person against whom such application is made to attend before him upon a day to be fixed for this purpose, and shall direct the applicant also to be present on such day.

Procedure thereupon.

If the said person fails to appear on the day first fixed, the Conciliator may, if he thinks fit, from time to time extend the period for his appearance.

Day for attendance may from time to time be postponed.

43. Whenever all the parties are present, the Conciliator shall call upon each in turn to explain his case regarding the matter in question, and shall use his best endeavours to induce them to agree to an amicable settlement or to submit such matter to arbitration.

When all parties appear, Conciliator to endeavour to reconcile them.

44. The Conciliator shall hear the statement of any witness and peruse any book of account or other document produced by the parties, and if any party or witness consents in writing to affirm any statement upon oath or solemn affirmation in any form not repugnant to justice or decency and not purporting to affect any third person, shall arrange for such oath or solemn affirmation being duly taken in the presence of all the parties.

Conciliator to hear statements of witnesses, &c.

45. If on the day on which the case is first heard by the Conciliator or on any subsequent day to which he may adjourn the hearing, the parties come to any agreement, either finally disposing of the matter or for referring it to arbitration, such agreement shall be forthwith reduced to writing, and shall be read and explained to the parties, and shall be signed or otherwise attested by the Conciliator and the parties or their representatives respectively.

Any agreement arrived at to be reduced to writing.

46. When the agreement is one finally disposing of the matter, the Conciliator shall forward the same in original to the Court of the Subordinate Judge of lowest grade having jurisdiction in the place where the agriculturist who is a party thereto resides.

Procedure when agreement finally disposes of case.

The Court which receives the agreement shall order it to be filed; and it shall then take effect as if it were a decree of the said Court passed on the day on which it is ordered to be filed and from which no appeal lies.

47. When the agreement is one for referring the matter to arbitration, the Conciliator shall forward it to the Court having jurisdiction in the matter, and such Court shall cause it to be filed and proceed thereon in manner provided by sections 523 and 524 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Procedure where agreement is for reference to arbitration.

48. If the person against whom any application is made before a Conciliator cannot be found, or if he refuses or neglects, after such period as the Conciliator thinks reasonable has been allowed for his appearance, to appear before the Conciliator, or if he appears but the attempt to reconcile the parties or to induce them to resort to arbitration fails, the Conciliator shall, on demand, give to the applicant, or when there are several applicants to each applicant, a certificate under his signature to that effect.

Certificate to be given to applicant if conciliation fails.

49. No suit and no application for execution of a decree passed before the date on which this Act comes into force to which any agriculturist residing within any local limits for which a Conciliator has been appointed is a party shall be entertained by any Civil Court, unless the plaintiff or decree-holder produces a certificate as aforesaid.

Suit, &c., not to be entertained by Civil Court unless such certificate is produced.

50. The Local Government may from time to time make rules—

Local Government to frame rules.

(a) regulating the proceedings of Conciliators in matters not provided for by this Act;

(b) fixing the charges to be made by Conciliators for anything done by them under this Act; and

(c) determining what record and accounts shall be kept by Conciliators and what returns shall be framed and furnished by them.

CHAPTER VII.

SUPERINTENDENCE AND REVISION.

Special Judge.

51. The Local Government shall appoint an officer, as Special Judge, to inspect, supervise and control the proceedings of all Subordinate Judges, Village-Munsifs and Conciliators under this Act, and to discharge in respect of such proceedings before Subordinate Judges all the functions of the District Court.

The officer so appointed shall not, without the previous sanction of the Government of India, discharge any public function except those which he is required by this Act to discharge.

If any conflict of authority arises between the Special Judge and the District Judge in regard to any matter, the High Court shall pass such order thereon consistent with this Act as it thinks fit.

52. The Special Judge may—

District Judge may withdraw case from Subordinate Judge,

(a) transfer to his own file, and himself as if he were a Subordinate Judge dispose of any suit or other matter pending before the Court of any Subordinate Judge; or or sit with Subordinate Judge as a Bench for trial of any case.

(b) stay the proceedings in any such suit or matter, and sit together with such Judge as a Bench to dispose of such suit or matter in accordance with the provisions of this chapter.

If the members of any Bench sitting under this section differ in opinion, the opinion of the Special Judge shall prevail.

Appointment of Assistant or Subordinate Judge to aid Special Judge.

53. The Local Government may appoint any Assistant or Subordinate Judge to inspect and supervise, subject to the control of the Special Judge, the proceedings of all Subordinate Judges, Village-Munsifs and Conciliators under this Act in one or more districts.

Any Assistant or Subordinate Judge so appointed may in the districts for which he is so appointed, if the Special Judge so directs, exercise the powers of the Special Judge under section fifty-two of this Act, and transfer any suit under section 25 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Of revision.

54. The Special Judge may call for and examine the record of any suit or other matter tried by a Subordinate Judge for the purpose of satisfying himself of the legality or propriety of any decree or order passed, and as to the regularity of the proceedings, and may pass such order thereon as he thinks fit; and any Assistant Judge or Subordinate Judge appointed by the Local Government under section fifty-three may similarly in the districts for which he is appointed call for and examine the record of any such case, and, if he see cause therefor, may refer the same, with his remarks, for the orders of the Special Judge:

Provided that no decision or order shall be reversed or altered for any error or defect, or otherwise, unless a failure of justice appears to have taken place.

CHAPTER VIII.

REGISTRATION BY VILLAGE-REGISTRARS.

Appointment of Village-Registrars.

55. The Local Government may—

(a) appoint such persons as it thinks fit, whether public officers or not, to be Village-Registrars, for such local areas as it may from time to time prescribe;

(b) direct that the Village-Registrar for any local area may discharge the functions of a Village-Registrar for any other local areas concurrently with the Village-Registrars of such other local areas; and

(c) delegate to any person by name or in virtue of his office the powers conferred on it by this section.

Instruments executed by agriculturist not to be deemed valid unless executed before a Village-Registrar.

56. No instrument purporting to create, modify, transfer or evidence an obligation for the payment of money or a charge upon any property executed after the passing of this Act by an agriculturist residing in any local area for which a Village-Registrar has been appointed shall be admitted in evidence for any purpose by any person having by law or consent of parties authority to receive evidence, or shall be acted upon by any such person or by any public officer, unless such instrument is written by, or under the superintendence of, and is attested by, a Village-Registrar:

Provided that nothing herein contained shall prevent the admission of any instrument in evidence in any criminal proceeding.

Such instruments to be written by or under the superintendence of a Village-Registrar and executed in his presence.

57. When any persons, one or more of whom is an agriculturist, desire to execute any such instrument, they shall present themselves before the Village-Registrar appointed by the Local Government for the area in which the said agriculturist or any one of the said agriculturists resides, and such Registrar, after satisfying himself in such manner as he deems fit as to the identity of the parties, and receiving from them the fee (if any) prescribed by the Local Government and the stamp (if any) which may be necessary, shall write the instrument, or cause the same to be written under his superintendence, and require the parties to execute it in his presence.

Attestation of such instruments.

Every instrument so written and executed shall be attested by the Village-Registrar, and also, if any of the parties thereto is unable to read and write, by two respectable witnesses.

Registration of instruments by Village-Registrars.

58. Every Village-Registrar shall keep a register of instruments executed before him in such form as shall from time to time be prescribed by the Inspector General of Registration under section sixty-one of this Act.

As soon as any instrument has been completely executed before a Village-Registrar, he shall make or cause a copy of it to be made in his register, and shall deliver the original instrument to the party entitled to the custody of the same, and a certified copy thereof to the other party, or to each of the other parties, if there be more than one.

Previous to delivery, the original instrument and each such copy shall be endorsed under the Village-Registrar's signature with the date of registration, the name and residence of the Village-Registrar and the volume and page of the register in which the instrument has been registered.

Consideration to be fully stated in every instrument executed before a Village-Registrar.

59. In every instrument written by or under the superintendence of the Village-Registrar, the amount and nature of the consideration, if any, shall be fully stated.

The Village-Registrar shall also endorse upon the instrument a note, under his signature, recording whether or not the transfer of the consideration stated therein, or of any part thereof, took place in his presence.

If the instrument is to be executed in supersession, or partly in supersession, of a previous instrument, such instrument shall be produced before the Village-Registrar and shall be fully described in the instrument to be executed, and shall be marked by the Village-Registrar under his signature for identification.

Registration under this Act to be deemed equivalent to registration under the Indian Registration Act, 1877.

60. Every instrument executed and registered in accordance with the foregoing provisions shall be deemed to have been duly registered under the provisions of the Indian Registration Act, 1877; and no instrument which ought to have been executed before a Village-Registrar, but has been otherwise executed, shall be registered by any officer acting under the said Act, or in any public office, or shall be authenticated by any public officer.

61. The said Inspector General shall exercise, [illegible] over all Village-Registrars, and shall have power from time to time to make rules consistent with this Act for regulating their proceedings and for providing for the custody of their records.

Exemption of instruments to which Government or any officer of Government is a party.

62. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to require any instrument to which the Government or any officer of Government in his official capacity is a party to be executed before a Village-Registrar.

Power of Local Government to make rules.

63. The Local Government may from time to time make rules regulating the appointment, suspension, dismissal and remuneration of Village-Registrars, and prescribing the fees to be levied by them.

CHAPTER IX.

OF RECEIPTS AND STATEMENTS OF ACCOUNT.

Agriculturists to be entitled to written receipts.

64. Every agriculturist who makes any payment of money in liquidation of a debt shall be entitled to receive at the time of such payment a written receipt from the person to whom such payment is made.

If such payment is made under any instrument executed before a Village-Registrar, the receipt shall, if the agriculturist so require, be endorsed on this copy of the instrument furnished to him under section fifty-eight.

and to annual statements of account;

65. Any agriculturist by whom any money is due under any instrument shall be entitled to receive from the person claiming under such instrument, within one month after the date on which by local custom annual accounts are balanced, a statement of his account up to that date.

The Local Government may, by notification in the local Gazette, declare what date shall in any district or portion of a district be taken to be the date on which annual accounts are balanced for the purpose of this section.

and to have his account made up from time to time in a pass-book.

66. Any agriculturist in whose name an account is kept by any trader or money-lender shall be entitled to receive from such trader or money-lender, on demand, a pass-book, and to require from time to time that his account up to date be written therein and attested by the signature or mark of the said trader or money-lender.

An entry so made in any such pass-book of any payment made to the trader or money-lender shall be deemed to be equivalent for the purposes of section sixty-four to the grant of a receipt for the amount so entered.

Penalty for contravention of sections 64 to 66.

67. Any person who, in contravention of section sixty-four, sixty-five or sixty-six, refuses or neglects to give a receipt or a statement of account or a pass-book, or to write, or cause to be written, any account or any part of an account in a pass-book, or to attest the same when so written, shall be punished for each such [illegible]

CHAPTER X.

LEGAL PRACTITIONERS.

Pleaders, &c., excluded in certain cases.

68. No pleader, vakíl, mukhtár, and no advocate or attorney of a High Court, shall be permitted to appear on behalf of any party to a case before a Village-Munsif or a Conciliator:

Provided that any party to any such case may be permitted, on reasonable cause being shown to the satisfaction of the Conciliator or Munsif, to employ any relative, servant or dependent, who is not, and has not previously been, a pleader, or a mukhtár or vakíl to appear either conjointly with or in lieu of such party.

When a relative, servant or dependent appears in lieu of a party, he shall be furnished by him with a power of attorney defining the [illegible] which he is empowered to act.

Pleaders' fees.

69. In awarding costs to any party in any suit or proceeding before a Subordinate Judge under this Act in which the subject-matter does not exceed one hundred rupees in amount or value, nothing shall be allowed on account of the fees of any pleader, vakíl, mukhtár, or of any advocate or attorney of a High Court, unless the Court for reasons to be recorded by it in writing, thinks that [illegible] assistance was necessary to the proper [illegible] such party's case.

5 c

70. When in any suit or proceeding before a Subordinate Judge under this Act to which an agriculturist is a party, any pleader, vakíl or mukhtár, or any advocate or attorney of a High Court, appears on behalf of any party opposed to such agriculturist, the Subordinate Judge, if he is of opinion that such agriculturist has not the means of obtaining proper professional assistance, may, with the consent of such agriculturist, direct the Government pleader or some other competent person (who is willing so to do) to appear on his behalf.

Power of Court to appoint pleader for agriculturist.

CHAPTER XI.

MISCELLANEOUS.

71. No mortgage, lien or charge of or upon any immoveable property belonging to an agriculturist shall be valid unless it is created by an instrument in writing signed by the person creating such mortgage, lien or charge.

Mortgages, &c., to be valid only when written and registered.

72. In any suit against an agriculturist under this Act for the recovery of money the following periods of limitation shall be deemed to be substituted for those prescribed in the second column of the second schedule annexed to the Indian Limitation Act, 1877 (that is to say) :—

Limitation.

(a) when such suit is based on a written instrument registered under this Act or any other law in force at the date of the execution of such instrument,—twelve years;

(b) in any other case,—six years:

Provided that nothing herein contained shall revive the right to bring any suit which would have been barred by limitation if it had been instituted immediately before the passing of this Act.

73. No appeal shall lie from any decision or order in any suit or proceeding before a Subordinate Judge under this Act.

No appeal in cases tried under this Act by Subordinate Judges.

74. The decision of any Court of first instance that any person is or is not an agriculturist shall be final.

Decision as to whether person is or is not agriculturist final.

75. Except in so far as it is inconsistent with this Act, the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply in all suits and proceedings before Subordinate Judges.

Civil Procedure Code to apply in Subordinate Judges' Courts.

76. The Local Government may from time to time make all such rules as it may deem necessary for carrying out the provisions of this Act.

Additional power to make rules.

77. All rules made by the Local Government under this Act shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon, in so far as they are consistent with this Act, have the force of law.

Rules to be published.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

I. THE inquiries made into the causes of the riots which occurred in the Dekkhan districts in 1875 and the discussions which have since taken place show that the difficulties under which the agriculturists in those districts labour are due, in a great measure, to the unsatisfactory nature of the relations at present subsisting between them and the money-lending classes.

2. In order to put those relations on a better footing, it is deemed necessary—first, to provide some safeguards against the money-lenders committing frauds in their accounts and obtaining from ignorant peasants bonds for larger amounts than are actually paid to or due from them;

secondly, to arrange disputes by conciliation as far as possible; to increase the number of Courts, and to simplify and cheapen the administration of justice, and thus to afford facilities to the agriculturist to defend any suit that may be brought against him;

thirdly, to insist that in suits against agriculturists the Court shall in certain cases of its own motion investigate the entire history of the transactions between the parties, and do substantial justice between them;

fourthly, to restrict the sale of the raiyat's land in execution of decree, and to provide an insolvency-procedure more liberal to the debtor than that of the Code of Civil Procedure.

The present Bill has been drafted with a view to securing these objects, in so far as they can be secured by legislation. It extends only to the four districts in which the agricultural distress has been most felt.

3. An attempt has been made to secure the first object by sections 55 to 63, providing for the appointment of village-registrars before whom every written obligation for the payment of money by an agriculturist must be registered; by sections 64 to 67, requiring money-lenders to give receipts to agriculturists for all payments made by them, to render accounts, and to furnish a pass-book in which the agriculturist's account will be periodically written up; and by section 71, which invalidates all mortgages created by an agriculturist otherwise than by a written instrument.

4. With a view to the second of the proposed objects, the Bill provides in sections 40 to 50 for the establishment of a system of conciliation under which it is hoped a large number of disputes will be settled out of court; and in sections 36 to 39 for the appointment of village-munsifs, like those in the Madras Presidency, to dispose of petty cases. A further addition to the machinery for the disposal of suits will be made by an increase of the number of Subordinate Judges; but, as this is a matter which it is competent to the Local Government to deal with under the existing law, no reference to it will be found in the Bill.

5. As regards procedure, it is proposed, with a view to a more rapid despatch of business and to diminishing the cost of litigation, to simplify the record in certain respects (sections 10 and 11); to discourage the employment of pleaders in petty suits (section 69); and to substitute for the present system of appeals a very strict and searching supervision (sections 51 to 54).

6. Sections 12 to 16 provide in certain cases for a thorough investigation into the history of the transaction between the parties (the third of the four objects mentioned above). They prescribe the system in which the raiyat's account is to be made up in cases where the Court finds it necessary to set aside oppressive or inequitable arrangements between the parties, and they guard especially against exorbitant demands for interest.

7. The presence of the defendant being essential for the thorough investigation proposed, and the raiyats being, through various difficulties, apt to leave their suits undefended, it has been provided (in section 9) that, except for special reasons, no suit shall be decided ex parte, but that the Court shall compel the defendant to appear.

8. The last of the four objects proposed will be found provided for by sections 25 and 33, which enact that land shall not be sold to pay the debt of the owner except where it has been specifically pledged, but admit of its profits being made available to the creditor for a term of years, and by the sections relating to insolvency.

9. The chief points in which the provisions of the insolvency-chapter differ from those of the Code are that they allow an agriculturist to apply to be adjudicated an insolvent, though no process in execution has been issued against him; that they entitle him to an adjudication in all cases in which, as a matter of fact, he may be insolvent, leaving any misconduct on his part to be punished under the Code of Civil Procedure; and that they similarly entitle him in all cases to a complete discharge from debts which, after all reasonable enforcement, he is unable fully to pay.

10. This insolvency procedure is further supplemented by section 20, which gives the Court a summary power in petty cases to discharge a judgment-debtor who is clearly insolvent, and by section 22, which abolishes imprisonment for debt.

11. The only other provisions of the Bill which appear to call for special notice are section 70, which empowers the Court to direct the Government pleader to appear on behalf of a raiyat when he is unable to engage the services of a professional advocate and the opposite side is represented by a pleader, and section 72, which extends the period of limitation in suits for debt instituted against agriculturists. This latter provision has been introduced into the Bill, as there appears to be a pretty general consensus of opinion to the effect that the difficulties of the raiyat are much aggravated by the present law of limitation, which compels the money-lender at very short intervals to sue him or take a fresh bond, either of which steps commonly entails a considerable addition to the debt.

77. Rules to be published.

A Bill for the Relief of Indebted Agriculturists in certain parts of the Dekkhan.

WHEREAS it is expedient to relieve the agricultural classes in certain parts of the Dekkhan from indebtedness; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

1. This Act may be cited as "The Dekkhan Agriculturists Relief Act, 1879":

Short title.

It extends only to the districts of Puna, Sátára, Sholápur and Ahmadnagar, and it shall come into force on the first day of October, 1879.

Local extent and commencement.

2. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—

Interpretation-clause.

(1) "agriculturist" means a person who earns his livelihood wholly or principally by agriculture:

"agriculturist":

(2) "money" includes grain and any other agricultural produce:

"money":

(3) "special judge" means the officer appointed under section fifty-one.

"special judge."

CHAPTER II.

OF THE HEARING OF CERTAIN SUITS BY SUBORDINATE JUDGES.

3. The provisions of this chapter shall apply to—

Application of this chapter.

(a) suits for an account instituted on or after the first day of October, 1879, by an agriculturist in the Court of a Subordinate Judge under the provisions hereinafter contained, and

(b) suits of the descriptions next hereinafter mentioned and instituted on or after the same date—

(1) when such suits are heard by Subordinate Judges of the first class and the subject-matter thereof does not exceed in amount or value five hundred rupees, or

(2) when such suits are heard by Subordinate Judges of the second class and the subject-matter thereof does not exceed in amount or value one hundred rupees, or

(3) when such suits are heard by Subordinate Judges of the second class and the subject-matter thereof exceeds one hundred rupees, but does not exceed five hundred rupees in amount or value, and the parties agree that such provisions shall apply.

The descriptions of suits referred to in clause (b) are the following (namely):—

suits of the nature cognizable by Courts of Small Causes, and suits between mortgagors, being agriculturists, and mortgagees for the foreclosure or redemption of the mortgage, for the enforcement of the mortgage lien or for the possession of the property mortgaged.

4. Where a Subordinate Judge of the first class and a Subordinate Judge of the second class have jurisdiction in the same local area, every suit referred to in section 3, clause (b), to be instituted in such local area shall, if the amount or value of the subject-matter of such suit exceeds one hundred rupees and does not exceed five hundred rupees, be instituted in the Court of the Subordinate Judge of the first class.

Certain suits to be instituted in Courts of first class Subordinate Judges.

5. Notwithstanding anything contained in the Bombay Civil Courts Act, 1869, section 28, no Subordinate Judge shall, while this Act continues in force, be invested with the jurisdiction of a Judge of a Court of Small Causes; and any such jurisdiction heretofore conferred on any Subordinate Judge shall be deemed, except as regards suits instituted before the said first day of October, 1879, to have been withdrawn.

Subordinate Judges not to act as Judges of Small Cause Courts.

6. The Local Government may from time to time by notification in the local Gazette direct that any class of suits which a Subordinate Judge would be precluded from hearing by section twelve of Act XI of 1865 (to consolidate and amend the law relating to Courts of Small Causes beyond the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court of Judicature) shall be heard and determined by him and not otherwise, and may by a like notification cancel any such direction.

Jurisdiction of Subordinate Judge and Small Cause Court.

7. In every case in which it seems to the Court possible to dispose of a suit at the first hearing, the summons shall be for the final disposal of the suit.

Summons to be for final disposal of suit.

8. If the officer employed to serve a summons on a defendant cannot find such defendant and there is no agent empowered to accept the service of the summons in his behalf, nor any person on whom the service can be made, the serving-officer may, instead of proceeding in manner prescribed by section 80 of the Code of Civil Procedure, leave such summons for service with the Patel of the defendant's village.

Service of summons.

A Patel with whom a summons is left under this section shall, if he within one week from the date on which the summons is so left finds the defendant in the village, endorse the summons on the defendant in manner prescribed by section 79 of the said Code, endorse the same or cause the same to be endorsed in manner prescribed by section 81 of the said Code, sign such endorsement and return the summons by post or otherwise to the Court.

An endorsement made on a summons under this section shall be primâ facie proof of the facts stated therein, and the Court shall take judicial notice of the signature thereto.

9. No suit shall be heard ex parte, unless the Court, for reasons to be recorded in writing, thinks that it ought to be so heard.

No suit to be heard ex parte.

In any suit which the Code of Civil Procedure directs to be heard ex parte, but which the Court does not think ought to be so heard, the Court shall adjourn the hearing and take steps to secure the attendance of the defendant by the issue of a fresh summons or of a warrant of arrest.

10. In suits of the nature cognizable by Courts of Small Causes no party shall be entitled to file a written statement without the permission of the Court.

Written statements.

11. When the subject-matter of any suit does not exceed ten rupees in amount or value, it shall not be necessary to take down the evidence or make a memorandum thereof in manner provided by the Code of Civil Procedure; but in cases

Record of evidence.

where the evidence is not so taken down and no memorandum is so made, the substance of the evidence shall be stated in the judgment.

CHAPTER III.

OF SUITS AND OTHER PROCEEDINGS TO WHICH AGRICULTURISTS ARE PARTIES.

History of transactions with agriculturist debtors to be investigated.

12. When any suit is brought for the recovery of money alleged to be due on account of money lent or advanced to, or paid for, the defendant, or as the price of goods sold or on an account stated, or on a written or unwritten engagement for the payment of money, or for the foreclosure of a mortgage, or for the possession of mortgaged property, and the defendant or any one of the defendants, not being merely a surety of the actual debtor, is an agriculturist, and when any suit is brought for the redemption of a mortgage and the plaintiff or any one of the plaintiffs is an agriculturist,

the Court shall, if the amount of the creditor's claim is disputed, enquire into the history and merits of the case, from the commencement of the transactions between the parties out of which the suit has arisen, first, with a view of ascertaining whether there is any defence to the suit on the ground of fraud, mistake, accident, undue influence or otherwise; and secondly, with a view (if necessary) to taking an account between the parties in manner hereinafter provided.

When the amount of the claim is admitted, and the Court sees no reason to doubt the truth of such admission, the Court shall not be bound so to enquire, but may do so if it thinks fit.

When the Court sees reason to doubt the truth of such admission, it shall be bound to enquire as aforesaid.

Nothing herein contained shall affect the right of the parties to require that any matter in difference between them be referred to arbitration.

Mode of taking account.

13. When the Court enquires into the history and merits of a case under section twelve, it shall, if it considers any agreement between the parties as to interest or the profits of mortgaged property or determining in any way the manner of taking the account fair and equitable, give effect to such agreement and take the account on the footing thereof; but, if it does not consider such agreement fair and equitable, it shall, notwithstanding the same, and notwithstanding any statement or settlement of account or any contract purporting to close previous dealings and create a new obligation, determine the amount due according to the following rules (that is to say):—

(a) separate accounts of principal and interest shall be taken:

(b) in the account of principal there shall be debited to the debtor only such money as may from time to time have been actually received by him or on his account from the creditor:

(c) in the account of interest there shall be debited to the debtor monthly simple interest on the balance of principal for the time being outstanding at the rate allowed by the Court as hereinafter provided:

(d) all payments by or on account of the debtor, and all profits or advantages of every description received by the creditor in the course of the transactions, shall be credited, first, on account of interest; and when any payment is more than sufficient to discharge the balance of interest due at the time it is made, the residue of such payment shall be credited to the debtor in the account of principal:

(e) the accounts of principal and interest shall be made up to the date of suit, and the aggregate of the balances (if any) of both such accounts against the debtor on that date shall be deemed to be the amount due, except when the balance of the interest account exceeds that of the principal account, in which case double the latter balance shall be deemed to be the amount due.

Interest to be allowed.

14. The interest to be awarded in taking an account according to the rules set forth in section thirteen shall be—

(a) the rate, if any, agreed upon between the parties, unless such rate is deemed by the Court to be unreasonable; or

(b) if such rate is deemed by the Court unreasonable, or if no rate was agreed upon, such rate as the Court deems reasonable:

Provided that, in any case in which the parties have agreed that the profits of mortgaged property shall be taken by the mortgagee in lieu of interest and such agreement has been set aside under section thirteen, the rate of interest to be allowed shall be nine per cent. per annum.

Reference to arbitration in certain cases.

15. Instead of enquiring into the history and merits of a case under section twelve, or if upon so enquiring the Court is unable to satisfy itself as to the amount which should be allowed on account of principal or interest or both, the Court may, of its own motion, direct that the question be referred to arbitration.

If the parties are willing to nominate arbitrators, the arbitrators shall be nominated by them in such manner as may be agreed upon between them; if the parties are unwilling to nominate arbitrators or cannot agree in respect of such nomination, the Court shall appoint any three persons it thinks fit:

Provided that if both parties reside in the same village, town or city, and, in the opinion of the Court, three fit persons can be found among the residents of such village, town or city, it shall appoint residents of such village, town or city.

The provisions of sections 508 to 522 (both inclusive) of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply to every reference to arbitration under this section.

In the case of ancestral debts interest to be disallowed or limited.

16. If the debt, or any portion thereof, was not contracted by the person from whom the creditor seeks to obtain recovery, but by such person's father or other ancestor, the said person shall be called upon to state whether he is willing to accept the full responsibility for such debt or for such portion thereof;

and, if he accepts such responsibility, shall be held liable for the full amount payable on account of such debt, or of such portion thereof subject to the other provisions of this Act, or of any law for the time being in force relating to ancestral debts;

but if he declines to accept such responsibility, he shall not be held liable for more than the principal amount of such debt, or of such portion thereof, with interest up to the date of the death of the person who incurred such debt, or of such portion thereof, if such person was related to him in the first degree, and otherwise only for the principal amount of such debt or of such portion thereof.

Agriculturist debtors may sue for accounts.

17. Any agriculturist may sue for an account of monies lent or advanced to or paid for him by a creditor or due by him to such creditor as the price of goods sold or on a written or unwritten engagement for the payment of money and of monies paid by him to such creditor, and for a decree declaring the amount, if any, still payable by him to such creditor.

Amount of debts in such cases to be determined according to foregoing provisions.

When any such suit is brought, the amount payable by the plaintiff shall be determined under the same rules as would be applicable if the creditor had himself sued for recovery of the debt.

Decree may provide for payment by instalments.

18. A decree passed under section seventeen may, besides declaring the amount due, direct that such amount shall be paid by instalments, with or without interest; and, when any such decree so directs, the plaintiff may pay

Execution of decrees under this section.

the amount of such decree, or the amount of each instalment fixed by such decree, as it falls due, into court, in default whereof execution of the decree may be enforced by the defendant in the same manner as if he had obtained the decree in a suit to recover the debt.

Payment into court in cases under section 17.

19. The plaintiff in any suit instituted under section seventeen may at any stage of such suit deposit in court such sum of money as he considers a satisfaction in full of the defendant's claim against him.

Notice of the deposit shall be given by the Court to the defendant, and the amount of the deposit shall (unless the Court otherwise directs) be paid to the defendant on his application.

No interest shall be allowed to the defendant on any sum so deposited from the date of the receipt of such notice, whether the sum deposited be in full of the claim or fall short thereof.

Power to discharge judgment-debtor.

20. When a decree has been passed, whether before or after this Act comes into force, under which any sum less than fifty rupees is recoverable from an agriculturist, the Court may, whether in the course of execution of the said decree or otherwise, if it is satisfied that there is no other claim against him and that he is unable to pay the whole of such sum, direct the payment of a portion of the same, and grant him a discharge from such balance.

Power to direct institution of insolvency proceedings.

When the sum payable under the decree amounts to fifty rupees or upwards, or when there are other claims against the debtor, the Court may direct proceedings to be taken with respect to him as nearly as may be as if he had applied to be declared an insolvent under the provisions hereinafter contained.

Power to fix instalments in execution.

21. The Court may at any time direct that the amount of any decree against an agriculturist or the portion of the same which it directs under section twenty to be paid, shall be paid by instalments with or without interest.

Arrest and imprisonment for debt abolished.

22. Except as provided in the Code of Civil Procedure, section 359, no agriculturist shall be arrested or imprisoned on account of debt.

Land exempted from attachment and sale unless specifically pledged.

23. No agriculturist's land shall be attached or sold in execution of any decree or order unless it has been specifically pledged as security for the repayment of the debt to which such decree or order relates, and the mortgage lien still subsists.

But the Court may, when passing a decree or at any subsequent time, direct the Collector to take possession, for any period not exceeding seven years, of any land of an agriculturist judgment-debtor to the possession of which such judgment-debtor is entitled, and which, in the opinion of the Collector, is not required for the support of such judgment-debtor and the members of his family dependent on him, and deal with the same for the benefit of the decree-holder in manner provided by section thirty-one.

Ancestral debt.

24. If, upon application being made for the execution of a decree for the payment of money against an agriculturist, it appears that the person against whom execution is sought is not the person made liable by the decree for the amount thereof, but the heir of such person, the amount recoverable under the decree shall be limited in accordance with the provisions of section sixteen.

CHAPTER IV.

OF INSOLVENCY.

Subordinate Judges to have jurisdiction in agriculturists' cases.

25. Every Subordinate Judge shall have the powers conferred by sections 344 to 359 (both inclusive) of the Code of Civil Procedure, as modified by the provisions next hereinafter contained, for the purpose of dealing with applications under the Code of Civil Procedure or under this Act to have agriculturists residing within the local limits of his jurisdiction declared insolvent and proceedings taken under orders passed by him under the second clause of section twenty, and no such application or proceeding shall be dealt with by any other Court.

Agriculturist may apply for adjudication in cases not provided for by Code.

26. Any agriculturist who is in debt to the amount of fifty rupees or upwards and who resides within the said districts may apply to any Subordinate Judge within the local limits of whose jurisdiction he resides to be declared an insolvent, though he has not been arrested or imprisoned, and though no order of attachment has issued against his property in execution of decree.

27. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 351 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the Court shall declare an agriculturist an insolvent if it is satisfied that he is in insolvent circumstances, and that the application to have him declared an insolvent has been properly made under section 344 of the said Code or section twenty-six of this Act.

Modification of section 351 of the Code.

28. No person other than the Názir of the Court shall be appointed as receiver, and no receiver shall be entitled to commission.

Receiver.

29. In determining under section 352 of the said Code the amount of any claim of the nature referred to in section twelve of this Act due by an insolvent agriculturist, the Court shall proceed in the manner prescribed by sections twelve to sixteen of this Act, both inclusive.

Proof of debts.

30. Whenever any moveable property of an insolvent is liable to be sold by a receiver under section 356 of the said Code, the Court may direct that it shall not be so sold, and may, after recording the opinions of two Assessors appointed by the Court in this behalf, determine the value of such property and direct the receiver to transfer it to any of the scheduled creditors who may be entitled to receive in the distribution under the said section 356 an amount equal to or greater than the value so determined; and such creditor shall accept such property in full or partial liquidation (as the case may be) of the amount to which he is so entitled.

Power to make over moveable property to creditor at valuation.

31. No immoveable property of the insolvent shall vest in the receiver; but the Court may direct the Collector to take into his possession, for any period not exceeding seven years from the date on which the receiver has been appointed, any such property to the possession of which the insolvent is entitled, and which, in the opinion of the Collector, is not required for the support of the insolvent and the members of his family dependent on him, and, subject to any rules the Local Government may from time to time make in this behalf, to manage the same for the benefit of the creditors, by letting it on lease or otherwise:

Immoveable property not to vest in receiver,

but may be managed for benefit of creditors.

Provided that if the insolvent or his heir at any time pays into court the balance of the scheduled debts then unpaid, he shall, subject to any rights created in favour of other persons by the Collector, be entitled to recover possession of such property.

32. When any scheduled debt is secured by a mortgage of any portion of the insolvent's immoveable property, the Court may direct the Collector, if he can obtain a premium equal to the amount of such debt by letting such property rent-free for a term not exceeding twenty years, to let such property, and, if he cannot so obtain such premium, to sell such property by public auction or otherwise as he thinks fit.

Secured debts.

Where property is let under this section, the premium shall be applied to the payment of the debt.

When property is sold under this section, the sale-proceeds shall be applied, first, to the payment of the debt; and the balance, if any, shall be paid to the receiver.

33. So long as any management under section thirty-one or letting under section thirty-two continues, the insolvent and his representative in interest shall be incompetent to mortgage, charge, lease or alienate the property or any part thereof.

Insolvent incompetent to sell, &c., property dealt with under sections 31 and 32.

34. When the balance available for distribution among the scheduled creditors under section 356 of the said Code has been distributed, the claims of such creditors shall be deemed to have been discharged, except as regards the right to share in the profits of any property managed by the Collector under section thirty-one.

Scheduled debts discharged.

35. No Subordinate Judge exercising the powers conferred by section twenty-five, if he is a Subordinate Judge of the first class, shall sentence any person under section 359 of the said Code to imprisonment for a term longer than three months, or if he is a Subordinate Judge of the second class, shall so sentence any person for a term longer than one month.

Limitation to powers of Subordinate Judges under section 359 of the Code.

CHAPTER V.

OF VILLAGE-MUNSIFS.

36. The Local Government may from time to time appoint any Patel of a village to be a Village-Munsif for such village or for such village and for any other villages the sites of which are situate not more than two miles from the site of such village, and may cancel any such appointment.

Appointment of Village-Munsifs.

37. Every Village-Munsif so appointed shall take cognizance of suits for money lent, or advanced to, or paid for, the defendant, or due as the price of goods sold or on an account stated, or on a written or unwritten engagement for the payment of money when the amount or value of the claim does not exceed ten rupees, and all the defendants at the time of the commencement of the suit actually and voluntarily reside or carry on business or personally work for gain within the local area for which such Village-Munsif is appointed.

Suits triable by them.

A suit cognizable by a Village-Munsif shall not be heard by any other Court:

Jurisdiction of other Courts excluded.

Provided that the Special Judge may from time to time transfer any suit instituted before a Village-Munsif to any other Civil Court in the district for trial:

Proviso.

Provided also that no Village-Munsif shall try any suit in which he is a party or is personally interested, or shall adjudicate upon any proceeding connected with or arising out of such suit.

38. The Special Judge may on a petition being presented within thirty days from the date of any decree or order of a Village-Munsif by any party aggrieved by such decree or order, set aside such decree or order on the ground of corruption, gross partiality or misconduct of the Village-Munsif.

Special Judge's power of revision.

Except as herein provided and as provided in section 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure, every decree and order of a Village-Munsif shall be final.

39. The Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the local Gazette, make rules for regulating the procedure of Village-Munsifs and for conferring on them any of the powers for the trial of suits or the execution of decrees exercised by a Civil Court under the Code of Civil Procedure or any other enactment for the time being in force.

Power of Local Government to make rules.

CHAPTER VI.

OF CONCILIATION.

40. The Local Government may from time to time appoint any person to be a Conciliator and cancel any such appointment.

Appointment of Conciliators.

Every Conciliator so appointed shall exercise his functions under this Act in respect of matters affecting agriculturists residing within such local limits as the Local Government may from time to time determine.

41. When any dispute arises as to, or there is a prospect of litigation regarding, any matter within the cognizance of a Civil Court between two or more parties, one of whom is an agriculturist residing within any local limits for which a Conciliator has been appointed, any of such parties may apply to such Conciliator to effect an amicable settlement between them.

Matters which may be brought before Conciliator.

42. If the application be made by one of the parties only, the Conciliator shall take down, or cause to be taken down, in writing a general statement of the applicant's case, and shall thereupon, by summons or by such other means as he deems fit, invite the person against whom such application is made to attend before him upon a day to be fixed for this purpose, and shall direct the applicant also to be present on such day.

Procedure thereupon.

If the said person fails to appear on the day first fixed, the Conciliator may, if he thinks fit, from time to time extend the period for his appearance.

Day for attendance may from time to time be postponed.

43. Whenever all the parties are present, the Conciliator shall call upon each in turn to explain his case regarding the matter in question, and shall use his best endeavours to induce them to agree to an amicable settlement or to submit such matter to arbitration.

When all parties appear, Conciliator to endeavour to reconcile them.

44. The Conciliator shall hear the statement of any witness and peruse any book of account or other document produced by the parties, and if any party or witness consents in writing to affirm any statement upon oath or solemn affirmation in any form not repugnant to justice or decency and not purporting to affect any third person, shall arrange for such oath or solemn affirmation being duly taken in the presence of all the parties.

Conciliator to hear statements of witnesses, &c.

45. If on the day on which the case is first heard by the Conciliator or on any subsequent day to which he may adjourn the hearing, the parties come to any agreement, either finally disposing of the matter or for referring it to arbitration, such agreement shall be forthwith reduced to writing, and shall be read and explained to the parties, and shall be signed or otherwise attested by the Conciliator and the parties or their representatives respectively.

Any agreement arrived at to be reduced to writing.

46. When the agreement is one finally disposing of the matter, the Conciliator shall forward the same in original to the Court of the Subordinate Judge of lowest grade having jurisdiction in the place where the agriculturist who is a party thereto resides.

Procedure when agreement finally disposes of case.

The Court which receives the agreement shall order it to be filed; and it shall then take effect as if it were a decree of the said Court passed on the day on which it is ordered to be filed and from which no appeal lies.

47. When the agreement is one for referring the matter to arbitration, the Conciliator shall forward it to the Court having jurisdiction in the matter, and such Court shall cause it to be filed and proceed thereon in manner provided by sections 523 and 524 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Procedure where agreement is for reference to arbitration.

48. If the person against whom any application is made before a Conciliator cannot be found, or if he refuses or neglects, after such period as the Conciliator thinks reasonable has been allowed for his appearance, to appear before the Conciliator, or if he appears but the attempt to reconcile the parties or to induce them to resort to arbitration fails, the Conciliator shall, on demand, give to the applicant, or when there are several applicants to each applicant, a certificate under his signature to that effect.

Certificate to be given to applicant if conciliation fails.

49. No suit and no application for execution of a decree passed before the date on which this Act comes into force to which any agriculturist residing within any local limits for which a Conciliator has been appointed is a party shall be entertained by any Civil Court, unless the plaintiff or decree-holder produces a certificate as aforesaid.

Suit, &c., not to be entertained by Civil Court unless such certificate is produced.

50. The Local Government may from time to time make rules—

Local Government to frame rules.

(a) regulating the proceedings of Conciliators in matters not provided for by this Act;

(b) fixing the charges to be made by Conciliators for anything done by them under this Act; and

(c) determining what record and accounts shall be kept by Conciliators and what returns shall be framed and furnished by them.

CHAPTER VII.

SUPERINTENDENCE AND REVISION.

Special Judge.

51. The Local Government shall appoint an officer, as Special Judge, to inspect, supervise and control the proceedings of all Subordinate Judges, Village-Munsifs and Conciliators under this Act, and to discharge in respect of such proceedings before Subordinate Judges all the functions of the District Court.

The officer so appointed shall not, without the previous sanction of the Government of India, discharge any public function except those which he is required by this Act to discharge.

If any conflict of authority arises between the Special Judge and the District Judge in regard to any matter, the High Court shall pass such order thereon consistent with this Act as it thinks fit.

52. The Special Judge may—

District Judge may withdraw case from Subordinate Judge,

(a) transfer to his own file, and himself as if he were a Subordinate Judge dispose of any suit or other matter pending before the Court of any Subordinate Judge; or or sit with Subordinate Judge as a Bench for trial of any case.

(b) stay the proceedings in any such suit or matter, and sit together with such Judge as a Bench to dispose of such suit or matter in accordance with the provisions of this chapter.

If the members of any Bench sitting under this section differ in opinion, the opinion of the Special Judge shall prevail.

Appointment of Assistant or Subordinate Judge to aid Special Judge.

53. The Local Government may appoint any Assistant or Subordinate Judge to inspect and supervise, subject to the control of the Special Judge, the proceedings of all Subordinate Judges, Village-Munsifs and Conciliators under this Act in one or more districts.

Any Assistant or Subordinate Judge so appointed may in the districts for which he is so appointed, if the Special Judge so directs, exercise the powers of the Special Judge under section fifty-two of this Act, and transfer any suit under section 25 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Of revision.

54. The Special Judge may call for and examine the record of any suit or other matter tried by a Subordinate Judge for the purpose of satisfying himself of the legality or propriety of any decree or order passed, and as to the regularity of the proceedings, and may pass such order thereon as he thinks fit; and any Assistant Judge or Subordinate Judge appointed by the Local Government under section fifty-three may similarly in the districts for which he is appointed call for and examine the record of any such case, and, if he see cause therefor, may refer the same, with his remarks, for the orders of the Special Judge:

Provided that no decision or order shall be reversed or altered for any error or defect, or otherwise, unless a failure of justice appears to have taken place.

CHAPTER VIII.

REGISTRATION BY VILLAGE-REGISTRARS.

Appointment of Village-Registrars.

55. The Local Government may—

(a) appoint such persons as it thinks fit, whether public officers or not, to be Village-Registrars, for such local areas as it may from time to time prescribe;

(b) direct that the Village-Registrar for any local area may discharge the functions of a Village-Registrar for any other local areas concurrently with the Village-Registrars of such other local areas; and

(c) delegate to any person by name or in virtue of his office the powers conferred on it by this section.

Instruments executed by agriculturist not to be deemed valid unless executed before a Village-Registrar.

56. No instrument purporting to create, modify, transfer or evidence an obligation for the payment of money or a charge upon any property executed after the passing of this Act by an agriculturist residing in any local area for which a Village-Registrar has been appointed shall be admitted in evidence for any purpose by any person having by law or consent of parties authority to receive evidence, or shall be acted upon by any such person or by any public officer, unless such instrument is written by, or under the superintendence of, and is attested by, a Village-Registrar:

Provided that nothing herein contained shall prevent the admission of any instrument in evidence in any criminal proceeding.

Such instruments to be written by or under the superintendence of a Village-Registrar and executed in his presence.

57. When any persons, one or more of whom is an agriculturist, desire to execute any such instrument, they shall present themselves before the Village-Registrar appointed by the Local Government for the area in which the said agriculturist or any one of the said agriculturists resides, and such Registrar, after satisfying himself in such manner as he deems fit as to the identity of the parties, and receiving from them the fee (if any) prescribed by the Local Government and the stamp (if any) which may be necessary, shall write the instrument, or cause the same to be written under his superintendence, and require the parties to execute it in his presence.

Attestation of such instruments.

Every instrument so written and executed shall be attested by the Village-Registrar, and also, if any of the parties thereto is unable to read and write, by two respectable witnesses.

Registration of instruments by Village-Registrars.

58. Every Village-Registrar shall keep a register of instruments executed before him in such form as shall from time to time be prescribed by the Inspector General of Registration under section sixty-one of this Act.

As soon as any instrument has been completely executed before a Village-Registrar, he shall make or cause a copy of it to be made in his register, and shall deliver the original instrument to the party entitled to the custody of the same, and a certified copy thereof to the other party, or to each of the other parties, if there be more than one.

Previous to delivery, the original instrument and each such copy shall be endorsed under the Village-Registrar's signature with the date of registration, the name and residence of the Village-Registrar and the volume and page of the register in which the instrument has been registered.

Consideration to be fully stated in every instrument executed before a Village-Registrar.

59. In every instrument written by or under the superintendence of the Village-Registrar, the amount and nature of the consideration, if any, shall be fully stated.

The Village-Registrar shall also endorse upon the instrument a note, under his signature, recording whether or not the transfer of the consideration stated therein, or of any part thereof, took place in his presence.

If the instrument is to be executed in supersession, or partly in supersession, of a previous instrument, such instrument shall be produced before the Village-Registrar and shall be fully described in the instrument to be executed, and shall be marked by the Village-Registrar under his signature for identification.

Registration under this Act to be deemed equivalent to registration under the Indian Registration Act, 1877.

60. Every instrument executed and registered in accordance with the foregoing provisions shall be deemed to have been duly registered under the provisions of the Indian Registration Act, 1877; and no instrument which ought to have been executed before a Village-Registrar, but has been otherwise executed, shall be registered by any officer acting under the said Act, or in any public office, or shall be authenticated by any public officer.

Village-Registrars to be subordinate to the Inspector General of Registration.

61. The said Inspector General shall exercise, by himself and his subordinates, a general superintendence over all Village-Registrars, and shall have power from time to time to make rules consistent with this Act for regulating their proceedings and for providing for the custody of their records.

Exemption of instruments to which Government or any officer of Government is a party.

62. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to require any instrument to which the Government or any officer of Government in his official capacity is a party to be executed before a Village-Registrar.

Power of Local Government to make rules.

63. The Local Government may from time to time make rules regulating the appointment, suspension, dismissal and remuneration of Village-Registrars, and prescribing the fees to be levied by them.

CHAPTER IX.

OF RECEIPTS AND STATEMENTS OF ACCOUNT.

Agriculturists to be entitled to written receipts.

64. Every agriculturist who makes any payment of money in liquidation of a debt shall be entitled to receive at the time of such payment a written receipt from the person to whom such payment is made.

If such payment is made under any instrument executed before a Village-Registrar, the receipt shall, if the agriculturist so require, be endorsed on the copy of the instrument furnished to him under section fifty-eight.

and to annual statements of account;

65. Any agriculturist by whom any money is due under any instrument shall be entitled to receive from the person claiming under such instrument, within one month after the date on which by local custom annual accounts are balanced, a statement of his account up to that date.

The Local Government may, by notification in the local Gazette, declare what date shall in any district or portion of a district be taken to be the date on which annual accounts are balanced for the purpose of this section.

and to have his account made up from time to time in a pass-book.

66. Any agriculturist in whose name an account is kept by any trader or money-lender shall be entitled to receive from such trader or money-lender, on demand, a pass-book, and to require from time to time that his account up to date be written therein and attested by the signature or mark of the said trader or money-lender.

An entry so made in any such pass-book of any payment made to the trader or money-lender shall be deemed to be equivalent for the purposes of section sixty-four to the grant of a receipt for the amount so entered.

Penalty for contravention of sections 64 to 66.

67. Any person who, in contravention of section sixty-four, sixty-five or sixty-six, refuses or neglects to give a receipt or a statement of account or a pass-book, or to write, or cause to be written, any account or any part of an account in a pass-book, or to attest the same when so written, shall be punished for each such offence, with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

CHAPTER X.

LEGAL PRACTITIONERS.

Pleaders, &c., excluded in certain cases.

68. No pleader, vakíl, mukhtár, and no advocate or attorney of a High Court, shall be permitted to appear on behalf of any party to a case before a Village-Munsif or a Conciliator:

Provided that any party to any such case may be permitted, on reasonable cause being shown to the satisfaction of the Conciliator or Munsif, to employ any relative, servant or dependent, who is not, and has not previously been, a pleader, or a mukhtár or vakíl to appear either conjointly with or in lieu of such party.

When a relative, servant or dependent appears in lieu of a party, he shall be furnished by him with a power of attorney defining the extent to which he is empowered to act.

Pleaders' fees.

69. In awarding costs to any party in any suit or proceeding before a Subordinate Judge under this Act in which the subject-matter does not exceed one hundred rupees in amount or value, nothing shall be allowed on account of the fees of any pleader, vakíl, mukhtár, or of any advocate or attorney of a High Court, unless the Court, for reasons to be recorded by it in writing, thinks that professional assistance was necessary to the proper conduct of such party's case.

70. When in any suit or proceeding before a Subordinate Judge under this Act to which an agriculturist is a party, any pleader, vakíl or mukhtár, or any advocate or attorney of a High Court, appears on behalf of any party opposed to such agriculturist, the Subordinate Judge, if he is of opinion that such agriculturist has not the means of obtaining proper professional assistance, may, with the consent of such agriculturist, direct the Government pleader or some other competent person (who is willing so to do) to appear on his behalf.

Power of Court to appoint pleader for agriculturist.

CHAPTER XI.

MISCELLANEOUS.

71. No mortgage, lien or charge of or upon any immoveable property belonging to an agriculturist shall be valid unless it is created by an instrument in writing signed by the person creating such mortgage, lien or charge.

Mortgages, &c., to be valid only when written and registered.

72. In any suit against an agriculturist under this Act for the recovery of money the following periods of limitation shall be deemed to be substituted for those prescribed in the second column of the second schedule annexed to the Indian Limitation Act, 1877 (that is to say) :—

Limitation.

(a) when such suit is based on a written instrument registered under this Act or any other law in force at the date of the execution of such instrument,—twelve years;

(b) in any other case,—six years:

Provided that nothing herein contained shall revive the right to bring any suit which would have been barred by limitation if it had been instituted immediately before the passing of this Act.

73. No appeal shall lie from any decision or order in any suit or proceeding before a Subordinate Judge under this Act.

No appeal in cases tried under this Act by Subordinate Judges.

74. The decision of any Court of first instance that any person is or is not an agriculturist shall be final.

Decision as to whether person is or is not agriculturist final.

75. Except in so far as it is inconsistent with this Act, the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply in all suits and proceedings before Subordinate Judges.

Civil Procedure Code to apply in Subordinate Judges' Courts.

76. The Local Government may from time to time make all such rules as it may deem necessary for carrying out the provisions of this Act.

Additional power to make rules.

77. All rules made by the Local Government under this Act shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon, in so far as they are consistent with this Act, have the force of law.

Rules to be published.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

1. THE inquiries made into the causes of the riots which occurred in the Dekkhan district in 1875 and the discussions which have since taken place show that the difficulties under which the agriculturists in those districts labour are due, in a great measure, to the unsatisfactory nature of the relations at present subsisting between them and the money-lending classes.

2. In order to put those relations on a better footing, it is deemed necessary—first, to provide some safeguards against the money-lenders committing frauds in their accounts and obtaining from ignorant peasants bonds for larger amounts than are actually paid to or due from them;

secondly, to arrange disputes by conciliation as far as possible; to increase the number of Courts, and to simplify and cheapen the administration of justice, and thus to afford facilities to the agriculturist to defend any suit that may be brought against him;

thirdly, to insist that in suits against agriculturists the Court shall in certain cases of its own motion investigate the entire history of the transactions between the parties, and do substantial justice between them;

fourthly, to restrict the sale of the raiyat's land in execution of decree, and to provide an insolvency-procedure more liberal to the debtor than that of the Code of Civil Procedure.

The present Bill has been drafted with a view to securing these objects, in so far as they can be secured by legislation. It extends only to the four districts in which the agricultural distress has been most felt.

3. An attempt has been made to secure the first object by sections 55 to 63, providing for the appointment of village-registrars before whom every written obligation for the payment of money by an agriculturist must be registered; by sections 64 to 67, requiring money-lenders to give receipts to agriculturists for all payments made by them, to render accounts, and to furnish a pass-book in which the agriculturist's account will be periodically written up; and by section 71, which invalidates all mortgages created by an agriculturist otherwise than by a written instrument.

4. With a view to the second of the proposed objects, the Bill provides in sections 40 to 50 for the establishment of a system of conciliation under which it is hoped a large number of disputes will be settled out of court; and in sections 36 to 39 for the appointment of village-munsifs, like those in the Madras Presidency, to dispose of petty cases. A further addition to the machinery for the disposal of suits will be made by an increase of the number of Subordinate Judges; but, as this is a matter which it is competent to the Local Government to deal with under the existing law, no reference to it will be found in the Bill.

5. As regards procedure, it is proposed, with a view to more rapid despatch of business and to diminishing the cost of litigation, to simplify the record in certain respects (sections 10 and 11); to discourage the employment of pleaders in petty suits (section 69); and to substitute for the present system of appeals a very strict and searching supervision (sections 51 to 54).

6. Sections 12 to 16 provide in certain cases for a thorough investigation into the history of the transaction between the parties (the third of the four objects mentioned above). They prescribe the system in which the raiyat's account is to be made up in cases where the Court finds it necessary to set aside oppressive or inequitable arrangements between the parties, and they guard especially against exorbitant demands for interest.

7. The presence of the defendant being essential for the thorough investigation proposed, and the raiyats being, through various difficulties, apt to leave their suits undefended, it has been provided (in section 9) that, except for special reasons, no suit shall be decided ex parte, but that the Court shall compel the defendant to appear.

8. The last of the four objects proposed will be found provided for by sections 25 and 33, which enact that land shall not be sold to pay the debt of the owner except where it has been specifically pledged, but admit of its profits being made available to the creditor for a term of years, and by the sections relating to insolvency.

9. The chief points in which the provisions of the insolvency-chapter differ from those of the Code are that they allow an agriculturist to apply to be adjudicated an insolvent, though no process in execution has been issued against him; that they entitle him to an adjudication in all cases in which, as a matter of fact, he may be insolvent, leaving any misconduct on his part to be punished under the Code of Civil Procedure; and that they similarly entitle him in all cases to a complete discharge from debts which, after all reasonable enforcement, he is unable fully to pay.

10. This insolvency procedure is further supplemented by section 20, which gives the Court a summary power in petty cases to discharge a judgment-debtor who is clearly insolvent, and by section 22, which abolishes imprisonment for debt.

11. The only other provisions of the Bill which appear to call for special notice are section 70, which empowers the Court to direct the Government pleader to appear on behalf of a raiyat when he is unable to engage the services of a professional advocate and the opposite side is represented by a pleader, and section 72, which extends the period of limitation in suits for debt instituted against agriculturists. This latter provision has been introduced into the Bill, as there appears to be a pretty general consensus of opinion to the effect that the difficulties of the raiyat are much aggravated by the present law of limitation, which compels the money-lender at very short intervals to sue him or take a fresh bond, either of which steps commonly entails a considerable addition to the debt.

[First publication.]

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Code of Civil Procedure, the Registration Act, 1877, and the Limitation Act, 1877, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 17th July, 1879 :—

SINCE the last report on this Bill was presented, we have received and considered the communications noted in the annexed list. They have suggested certain amendments, both of the Bill and the Code, which we now proceed to specify.

We have altered the definition of "decree" and section 588 of the Code, so as to make this definition comprise all orders rejecting plaints, directing accounts to be taken, or determining any questions mentioned or referred to in section 244 but not specified in section 588. The result will be to give two appeals from all orders as to questions relating to execution of decrees, except orders under sections 261, 294, 312, paragraph 1, and 313. We think that appeals from orders under sections 261, 294, 312, paragraph 1, and 313 should, like appeals from orders in insolvency matters, lie directly to the High Court; and we have altered section 589 accordingly.

We have modified section 3 so as to save expressly all proceedings after decree that may have been commenced and were still pending on the 1st October, 1877. This embodies the conclusion arrived at by Mr. Justice Jackson in 2 Calc. Rep. 391 and by the majority of the Judges of the Bombay High Court in I. L. R. 2 Bom. 148. We have declared that all orders heretofore passed purporting to transfer cases to Collectors under section 320 shall be deemed to have been passed in accordance with law.

We have repealed and re-enacted Act XVIII of 1878 (to amend the Code of Civil Procedure, section 4).

We have inserted some words in section 5 to make it clear that Courts on which Small Cause jurisdiction has been conferred are to exercise that jurisdiction according to the procedure provided for Small Cause Courts.

We have amended the section (13) as to res judicata so as to make it clear that the Courts may not try any suit in which the matter directly and substantially in issue, having been directly and substantially in issue in a former suit, was heard and finally decided therein; but that a decision on a matter collaterally in question or incidentally cognizable is not binding on any Court other than that which pronounced it. We have struck out the explanation which we proposed to add to this section, since it would not, apparently, have suited any part of British India but the Lower Provinces. There the local legislature will be able, if it thinks fit, to declare that a Court trying a suit under a rent-law shall not be deemed by any Court trying a suit under any other law, as regards the title to the immoveable property in respect of which the suit is brought, a Court of competent jurisdiction within the meaning of this section.

We have added to section 43 a paragraph declaring that, for the purpose of this section, an obligation and a collateral security for its performance shall be deemed to constitute but one cause of action.

Where a summons has been issued to a defendant and returned unserved and the plaintiff fails for a year to apply for a fresh summons and to satisfy the Court that he has used his best endeavours to find the defendant, we have empowered (section 99A) the Court to dismiss the suit as against such defendant.

We have made it clear that the expression "mesne profits" as used in section 211 includes interest on such profits.

We have declared (section 215A) that in suits for an account between principals and agents, and in all suits not otherwise provided for where an account is necessary, the Court shall pass a preliminary order directing such accounts to be taken as it thinks fit.

We have amended section 223, clause (c), so as to enable a Munsif passing a decree directing a sale of immoveable property situate within the district, but outside the local limits of his jurisdiction, to send the decree for execution to another Court.

Section 232 of the Code provides that when any decree against several persons has been transferred to one of them, it shall not be executed against the others. But if A obtains a decree for land against B and C, and B purchases the decree from A, there is ordinarily no reason why B should not execute the decree against C, if C happens to be in possession of the land. We have therefore limited this provision to decrees for money.

We think that no agreement to give time for the satisfaction of a judgment-debt should be valid unless the Court which passed the decree sanctions the agreement and deems the consideration reasonable. We also think that agreements for the satisfaction of judgment-debts should not without the like sanction provide for any payment in excess of the sum due, or to accrue due, under the decree. We have introduced a section (257A) to give effect to these views. We have also amended section 258 so as to make it comprise payments under such agreements.

We have declared (section 271), in accordance with the law of England, that no officer taking moveable property in execution shall break open any outer door of a dwelling-house. We have also ruled that such persons shall not for that purpose enter any dwelling-house after sunset and before sunrise.

We have provided in section 289 that in the case of revenue-paying land a copy of the proclamation of sale shall be fixed up in the Collector's office.

We think that attachment of salary should be made by an order requiring the disbursing officer to withhold every month such portion as the Court may direct, until the further order of the Court. The Court will then continue to distribute the salary, under section 295, pro ratâ among the executing decree-holders, and not withdraw the attachment until the whole of their decrees are fully paid off.

We have provided in section 295 for cases in which immoveable property is sold for the discharge of an incumbrance thereon.

We think that the certificate given to the purchaser at an execution-sale of immoveable property should state the property sold, and we have amended section 316 accordingly. This will enable the Courts to make a difference between the certificate granted in ordinary cases where only the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtor at the date of attachment passes and the certificate granted in mortgage cases where the purchaser takes his interest at the date of the creation of the security. We have also altered section 316 so as to make it clear that the title to property sold vests from the date of the certificate only when the decree under which the sale took place was still subsisting at that date. This will preclude the doubt which has, we understand, arisen in Bombay, where a certificate was granted to an auction-purchaser in ignorance of the fact that the decree under which the sale took place had been previously reversed on appeal.

We have redrawn sections 321 to 325 (both inclusive), and as the changes here made are of considerable importance, we deem it right to state our reasons at length. In order to prevent judicial sales at inadequate prices of judgment-debtors' lands, and to carry out the intention of the law to arrest unnecessary sales, the Code of 1877, in addition to the powers given to the Court by Act VIII of 1859, provides that Local Governments may direct that the execution of decrees ordering the sale of immoveable property, or of decrees in execution of which a sale of such property had been ordered, shall be transferred to the Collector.

Whenever the execution of a decree has been so transferred, the Collector is empowered not only to sell in such lots as he thinks fit but to fix reserved prices on each lot, to adjourn the sale (if such adjournment is necessary to obtain a proper price), and to buy in and resell.

These powers, it will be observed, the Collector may exercise in the case of all decrees for the sale of land of which execution has been transferred to him.

As to a particular class of decrees, for money, in execution of which a sale of immoveable property has been ordered, as distinguished from decrees specifically ordering a sale of immoveable property, larger powers are conferred on the Collector. He is empowered to give time to the judgment-debtor to raise the amount of the decree, or if it appears to him that the judgment-debts of the judgment-debtor can be satisfied without the sale of the whole of the property of which a sale has been ordered, he may call on all persons holding decrees against the judgment-debtor to notify the same to the Collector, and proceed to raise the amount necessary to discharge such debts by leasing in perpetuity or for a term on payment of a premium equivalent to such amount the whole or any part of the judgment-debtor's immoveable property, by mortgaging the whole or any part of such property, by selling any part of such property, by letting on farm, or himself managing the whole or any part of such property for a term not exceeding twenty years from the date of the original order for sale, or partly by one of such modes, and partly by another or others of them.

Doubts have arisen as to the meaning of these provisions. It has been contended that the words "if he has reason to believe that the judgment-debts can be discharged without a sale of the whole of such property," referring, as they do, to the property ordered for sale, indicate, notwithstanding the use of the words "the whole of the judgment-debtor's immoveable property" in a subsequent paragraph, that the action of the Collector is to be confined to the property of which a sale has been ordered. It has also been questioned whether the judgment-debts for which the Collector is authorized to provide are only debts due on decrees for money, or include also mortgage-debts for the satisfaction of which decrees have specifically ordered sales of land.

We think the intention was to confine the action of the Collector to mere decrees for money but to give him authority to deal with the whole of the judgment-debtor's immoveable property, of course without derogation to any mortgage or other incumbrances affecting it.

In the first place, had it been the intention to empower the Collector to deal with mortgage-debts, the introductory words of section 322 would not have indicated so distinctly that the powers conferred by the section were to take effect only when the execution of a mere money-decree had been transferred. No reason can be suggested why the same powers should not be given to the Collector on the transference to him for execution of a decree ordering a sale of immoveable property in pursuance of a contract specifically affecting the same, if it had been intended that he should interfere otherwise than in the conduct of the sales with the execution of such decrees.

On the other hand, there are, as it appears to us, very strong reasons for refusing to the Collector power to interfere with rights created by special contract. Where money is lent on the express condition that its repayment shall be secured on a particular date failing which the lender may have recourse to a particular fund, it is manifestly inequitable to interfere with the contract, especially when this interference is occasioned by acts to which the lender is not a party—the incurring by the borrower of a simple money-debt which he fails to discharge.

Of course, the greater number of mortgage-loans are made by professional money-lenders, and to them it may matter little if they get their money back at any time with the interest stipulated; but there are also in all parts of India lenders of money on mortgage who are not by profession money-lenders, and to these persons it may be of much importance to recover their investments at the date agreed on; and even in the case of professional money-lenders, seeing that the Courts as a rule award no more than six per cent. interest after decree, whatever be the interest stipulated in the contract, hardship will be worked if the realization of their securities be postponed as it might be (if section 332 applied to such debts) for a period of twenty years.

In the second place, that it was the intention of the legislature to permit the Collector, in order to prevent the unnecessary sale of land of which a sale had been ordered, to deal with the whole of the judgment-debtor's immoveable property is, we think, apparent not only from the express terms of the second paragraph of section 322, but from this consideration, that if the Court has done its duty it will have ordered the sale only of such property as will be sufficient to satisfy the single decree, and that by a sale. Such property would clearly not suffice to meet all the judgment-debts of the judgment-debtor and the provisions for raising the amount otherwise than by sale would be ineffectual.

Having determined to amend the language of the Code so as to remove the ambiguities above noticed, the question arises, what is the best method to secure the ends at which the law aims—the realization of judgment-debts and the preservation to the debtor of so much of his immoveable property as can be saved from sale without injustice to his creditors?

Four courses have been suggested for our adoption :—

(1) to confine the action of the Collector to such decrees for money on execution of which a sale of land has been ordered and to the land only of which a sale has been ordered;

(2) to confine it to the last-mentioned decrees, but to extend it to the whole immoveable property of the judgment-debtor;

(3) to extend it to all decrees, whether money-decrees or decrees specifically ordering sales of land for the satisfaction of incumbrances and to the whole of the immoveable property of the judgment-debtor;

(4) to extend it to all claims, and not only to decreed claims, against the judgment-debtor, and to the whole of his property, whether moveable or immoveable.

In support of the first course, it is argued that it is inexpedient in the interests of the judgment-debtor to invite persons having decrees or other claims against him, but who are at present content to show him forbearance or to look to funds other than his immoveable property, to bring forward their claims at once and to insist on their satisfaction from the immoveable property, and that it is unreasonable to expose a judgment-debtor to the liability of being deprived of the present enjoyment of the whole of his immoveable property because a portion of it—and it may be an inconsiderable portion—has been attached and ordered to be sold.

The end of these provisions being to avert a sale, it is contended by the opponents of the first course that this will rarely be achieved if the action of the Collector is confined to the property of which a sale has been ordered; for, if the Court has fairly done its duty, it will have ordered the sale of so much only as will by sale suffice to satisfy the decree; and unless owing to special circumstances the selling value of the property is, as compared with the annual profits, abnormally low, it would be idle to expect that the amount required could be raised at once or in a reasonable time by mortgage, lease or management.

The second course, the extension of the powers of the Collector to the whole of the immoveable property of the judgment-debtor, obviously increases greatly the probability that a sale of any portion of it may be avoided, and the objection that the judgment-debtor would be deprived unreasonably of the present enjoyment of his property would in practice be found unimportant; for, if the judgment-debtor has any considerable surplus of immoveable property beyond that which has been attached, he can forestall the necessity for the intervention of the Collector by raising on mortgage the sum required to discharge the decrees in execution of which the sale has been ordered; and if the surplus is not considerable, yet sufficient to afford a margin of security, there is a greater probability that the sum will be raised by the Collector than by the judgment-debtor, and on easier terms than the judgment-debtor could procure.

It is also evident that by giving the Collector power to deal with the whole immoveable property of the debtor, if compelled to have recourse to a sale, he will be able to elect what property shall be sold, and it may be to avoid the sale of property which, in the interest of the judgment-debtor, or for political reasons, it may be expedient to save from sale, by disposing of other property to the sale of which no such objections attach or attach in a less degree.

But it is objected that, in confining the action of the Collector to the single decree transferred to him for execution, injustice will be done to other holders of decrees for money. These persons are entitled, in case of sale of any portion of the immoveable property of these judgment-debtors in execution of a decree, to bring in their decrees and share in the distribution of the sale-proceeds, and they are also entitled to proceed against the immoveable property of the judgment-debtor other than that which has been already attached. If the Collector's action is confined to the original decree transferred and to the property attached in that decree, there may be as many schemes of management arranged and worked by the Collector as there are decrees of which execution is taken out; this would obviously not only impose a great deal of work on the Collector, but increase the difficulty of making such arrangements as would save the property or any part of it from sale; and if the Collector be empowered to deal with the whole immoveable property of the debtor for the satisfaction of the decree originally transferred, the rights of the other decree-holders are annulled or seriously impaired: Act X of 1877, in order to avoid this injustice, requires the Collector to give notice, so that all decree-holders desirous of executing their decrees may come in and obtain satisfaction from the proceeds of the scheme he may arrange.

It seems to us that sections 321 to 325 as now redrawn follow most closely the provisions of the existing Code, and are best calculated to effect the object contemplated with the least hardship on the judgment-debtor and the least injustice to any persons having claims on him.

If a judgment-debtor is involved in debt to such an extent that it is only a question of time when his whole property must pass out of his hands for the satisfaction of his debts, it is a mere waste of the time of the Collector to endeavour to arrange a scheme which must eventually fail in its object. We have, therefore, empowered the Collector to examine the judgment-debtor as to his circumstances: if he finds that the judgment-debtor is insolvent, and that if there are not decrees against him, there are claims which will absorb the whole of his estate, the Collector will simply execute the decree or decrees transferred to him for execution. If, on the other hand, he finds that the property, after deducting the claims of incumbrancers, is more than sufficient to answer all other claims on the judgment-debtor, he will proceed to arrange a scheme for the liquidation of all money-decrees of which execution may be taken out. To enable him to deal with the estate most advantageously, we have conferred on the Collector power to discharge incumbrances either out of the profits or by the mortgage, letting or sale of portions of the estate. The Collector will in effect, so long as the estate continues in his hands, exercise all the powers of a prudent owner. Having discharged incumbrances, if he thinks fit, and made provision for claims for maintenance, the Collector will proceed to discharge money-decrees out of surplus profits or sale of portions of the estate.

It may be objected that this scheme injuriously affects creditors who have not obtained decrees against the debtor; but they have the opportunity of obtaining decrees pending the interval before the Collector proceeds to settle a scheme; and if, instead of managing the property, the Collector had simply effected a sale, they could not without having obtained decrees have claimed to share in the proceeds of the sale. Our scheme does not prevent them from obtaining decrees which they may execute against the moveable property of the judgment-debtor and against any immoveable property remaining to the judgment-debtor after the conclusion of the period of management.

Power has been given to the Collector to delegate to the District Court the issue of notices and the subsequent inquiry; and the decisions of the Court in any dispute arising in the inquiry will be deemed as between the parties thereto a decree.

It would, in our judgment, impose far too much labour on Collectors to require them to deal with the moveable as well as immoveable property of the judgment-debtor and with all claims against him. If this were necessary, it were better that the estate should be dealt with by the Court in the exercise of its insolvent jurisdiction; and, in order to give effect to the desire of the Legislature to avoid, where possible, the sale of immoveable property for the satisfaction of debts, we have, in the Districts in which execution of decrees ordering sales of land have been transferred to the Collector, required the Court in the case of all insolvents who are holders of lands paying revenue to Government or held or let for agricultural purposes, before proceeding to dispose of such lands, to forward to the Collector of the District a report setting out the amount of unsatisfied claims against the judgment-debtor and the immoveable property possessed by him; and thereupon the Collector will proceed to raise the sum required by exercising the powers conferred on him by sections 322 to 325 as now redrawn, and will hold the sums so raised at the disposal of the Insolvent Court.

We have prohibited (section 336) the breaking open of outer doors of dwelling-houses for the purpose of making arrests, and we have made provision regarding the entry into zanánas. The discrepancy between the provisions of section 271 and section 336, which has more than once been remarked, will thus disappear.

We think that a judgment-debtor should be discharged from jail, without the order of the Court, on the amount mentioned in the warrant of committal being paid to the jailor; and we have altered section 341 accordingly.

We have extended the chapter (XX) on Insolvency to persons against whose property orders of attachment have issued in execution of money-decrees; we have empowered any holder of a money-decree to apply that the judgment-debtor be declared an insolvent: we have required the Receiver, before distributing the balance among the scheduled creditors, to discharge, according to their respective priorities, all debts secured by mortgage of the insolvent's property; we have relieved the insolvent's property from liability to attachment and sale when the debts due to the scheduled creditors are satisfied to the extent of one-third and, in case of such satisfaction, we have empowered (in accordance with the law in force in the Presidency-towns—11 & 12 Vic., c. 21, section 59) the Court to declare him absolved from further liability in respect of such debts: we have provided that sentences under section 359 shall be by order in writing; and, lastly, we have exempted from this chapter Courts having jurisdiction in Rangoon, Maulmain, Akyab and Bassein where the property of the judgment-debtor exceeds rupees 2,500 in value, or such property is wholly or partially situate outside British Burma, or the amount of the pecuniary claims against him exceeds rupees 5,000. With such cases the Recorder of Rangoon will deal under Act XVII of 1875, section 66.

Where a defendant dies and the plaintiff fails to apply within the proper period to have the legal representative of the deceased made a defendant in his stead, we have provided (section 368 of the Code) that the suit shall abate.

We have amended section 375 of the Code so as to provide for cases in which part of the claim has been compromised.

We have altered section 386 so as to enable the Court issuing a commission to direct it either to a Court not being a High Court or the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon, or to an advocate or pleader of a High Court.

It is considered by the Military Department that not only warrants of arrest, but other processes, when executed within the limits of a Cantonment, should be backed by the Commanding Officer. We have amended section 469 accordingly.

We have amended section 478 so as to make it clear that the order for bringing the defendant before the Court therein mentioned is a warrant of arrest within the meaning of section 648.

Where a defendant is imprisoned under section 481 for failure to obey an order to give security or find fresh security, we have provided that he shall not be detained after he has complied with the order.

We think that where public charities are situate in the Mufassal, the powers conferred by section 539 on the Advocate General might often be exercised as effectively and more cheaply by the Collector, and we have altered that section accordingly.

We have provided that in sections 363 and 365 the word "plaintiff" shall be held to include an appellant. At present it is only by analogy that an Appellate Court can exercise the power of substituting the name of a deceased appellant's representative on the record for that of the original appellant.

We think that in section 561 it will be enough to require that the notice of the respondent's objections should be filed not less than a week before the date fixed for hearing the appeal. The present requirement cannot be complied with when (as often happens) the appellant has no pleader, and is himself absent till a day or two before the hearing of the appeal takes place.

We are of opinion, on further consideration, that the words "some specified" should not be struck out of section 584.

We think that there should be one appeal from all orders returning plaints, and that an order in an interpleader suit adjudicating the title to the thing claimed should be treated as a decree. We have altered section 588 accordingly. We have added the following to the list of appealable orders :—

orders under section 36 or section 66, directing that a party shall appear in person :

orders under section 111, setting-off, or refusing to set-off, one debt against another :

orders under section 113, where a party fails to present a written statement within the time fixed by the Court :

orders under section 116 or section 245, rejecting, or returning for amendment, written statements or applications for execution of decrees :

orders under sections 143 and 145, directing anything to be impounded :

orders under section 162 for the attachment and sale of moveable property :

orders under section 294 (as amended by the present Bill) for setting aside a sale of immoveable property :

orders under section 366, paragraph two, section 367 or 368, in case of the death of a plaintiff or defendant :

orders under section 371, refusing to set aside the abatement or dismissal of a suit :

orders under section 454, 455 or 458, directing a next friend or guardian for the suit to pay costs :

orders for the arrest of any person.

We have extended section 622, as to the High Court's revisional jurisdiction, to cases in which the lower Court appears to have acted in the exercise of its jurisdiction illegally, or with material irregularity. The change is a serious one and must be understood as made tentatively. But the High Court of Bombay at present exercises such a jurisdiction under Bombay Regulation II of 1827, section 5, and both Sir Charles Turner and Mr. Justice Innes are of opinion that the change should be made.

We have been urged to insert in section 641 words empowering the Local Government to exempt certain Natives of rank from personally signing and verifying their plaints. But we think no good ground has been shown for such exemption.

We have extended the paragraph which we propose to add to section 649 to cases where the Court which passed the decree referred to has ceased to have jurisdiction to execute it.

We have, lastly, repealed the second paragraph of section 221, as it assumes the existence in the Mufassal of a lien unknown to the law.

In the second schedule to the Limitation Act we have made the following further amendments :—

We have altered No. 161 so as to suit the new wording of section 258 of the Code, and have extended the period from fifteen to twenty days.

We have extended No. 171 to cases where appellants have died.

For applications to set aside an execution-sale on the ground that the decree-holder purchased without the Court's permission, we have provided a period of thirty days from the date of sale.

For applications by the defendant under section 366 of the Code, we have provided a period of sixty days from the date of the plaintiff's death.

We desire, in conclusion, to acknowledge the great assistance which Sir Charles Turner has given us in revising this important Bill, especially the sections relating to the execution of decrees by Collectors.

We recommend that the Bill as now amended be passed.

We do not think that it need be republished. But we recommend that this Report be printed in the Gazette of India with the Bill when passed.

[First publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 24th July, 1879, and was referred to a Select Committee :—

No. 13 of 1879.

A Bill to amend the law relating to District Cesses and Rural Police in British Burma.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make better provision for the maintenance of Rural Police, the construction of works of public utility, the promotion of education and the maintenance of a local postal service in British Burma ; Preamble.

and whereas it is also expedient to declare and amend the law relating to Rural Police in the said Province ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Preliminary.

1. This Act may be called "The Burma District Cesses and Rural Police Act, 1879": Short title.

and it shall come into force on such date as the Chief Commissioner of British Burma may, by notification in the local Gazette, direct. Commencement.

It extends to all the territories for the time being administered by the said Chief Commissioner : Local extent.

Provided that the said Chief Commissioner may, from time to time, by notification in the local Gazette, exempt any portion of the said territories from its operation and cancel such exemption :

Provided also that nothing herein contained applies to any town to which the British Burma Municipal Act, 1874, for the time being extends.

2. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context, Interpretation-clause.

(a) "land-revenue" means revenue assessed upon land under the provisions of the Burma Land and Revenue Act, 1876 :

(b) "revenue-officer" means any person appointed a revenue-officer under the same Act.

3. In the said Burma Land and Revenue Act, 1876, sections 31 and 32, in sections 37 and 46 the words "five per cent. cess" and the word "cess" wherever it occurs are repealed ; but all cesses imposed under that Act shall be deemed to have been imposed under this Act. Repeal.

Cesses.

4. On all lands assessed to land-revenue there shall be levied, in addition to the land-revenue and to other charges, an annual cess of ten per cent. on the amount of such revenue. Cess on land.

5. In any town, village or hamlet in which at the date on which this Act comes into force a house-tax is levied, such tax shall continue to be levied. But the Chief Commissioner may, by notification in the local Gazette, direct that such tax shall cease. Saving of existing house-tax.

6. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time, by notification in the local Gazette, direct that in any town, village or hamlet there shall be levied from the occupier of each house an annual cess, to be fixed in manner hereinafter provided, but which shall in no case exceed two rupees : Cess on houses.

Provided that such cess shall not be levied—

(a) in any place in which the house-tax referred to in section five is levied, or

(b) in respect of any monastery, pagoda, sacred building, Government building, public rest-house or school :

Provided also that in respect of any house occupied by a person paying cess under section four no larger amount shall be levied under this section than will, together with the cess so paid by such person, amount to two rupees.

"House" in this section means any building used as a human dwelling or for the custody of property.

7. Subject to the provisions of this Act and of any rules made under it, the Deputy Commissioner of the district may from time to time— Powers of Deputy Commissioner.

(a) determine what shall for the purposes of this Act be held to be a house ;

(b) determine the amount of cess to be levied in respect of each house ;

(c) remit such cess in whole or in part.

8. A separate account for each district shall be kept of all cesses and house-tax levied under this Act in such district ; Purposes to which funds are to be applied.

and such cesses and tax shall be appropriated in that district, in such proportions as the Chief Commissioner may, by notification in the local Gazette, from time to time direct, to all or any of the following local objects (namely) :—

(a) the maintenance of the Rural Police appointed under this Act ;

(b) the construction and maintenance of district roads and other works of public utility ;

(c) sanitary improvement ;

(d) the promotion of education ; and

(e) the maintenance of a local postal service :

Provided that the Chief Commissioner may from time to time transfer any balance in the account of any district to the account of any other district in the same division.

9. All cesses and house-tax levied under this Act shall be payable for the year of assessment of land-revenue as fixed under the Burma Land and Revenue Act, 1876, section 41, and shall be payable at the place at which and to the person to whom the land-revenue is from time to time payable, or at such place and to such person as the Chief Commissioner may direct. Time and mode of payment of cesses, &c.

Sums assessed on the amount of land-revenue shall fall due on the date on which the land-revenue falls due.

Sums assessed on houses shall fall due on such dates as the Chief Commissioner may from time to time in that behalf direct.

10. All sums assessed under this Act on the amount of any land-revenue may be recovered as if they were part of such revenue. Realization of cesses, &c.

All other sums payable under this Act may be recovered in the manner prescribed in sections 44 and 45 of the Burma Land and Revenue Act, 1876.

Rural Police.

11. The Rural Police shall be of two classes,— Rural Police.

(a) headmen of hamlets or groups of hamlets, or of villages or towns, or sections of villages or towns, hereinafter called "headmen" ;

(b) headmen of circuits, hereinafter called "goungs."

12. Subject to the rules made under this Act and for the time being in force, the appointment, suspension and removal of headmen and goungs, and the determination of the limits of the beats of headmen and the circuits of goungs, shall rest with the Deputy Commissioner of the district : Appointment of Rural Police.

Provided that all kyaydúngyís and yazawut goungs holding office as such in any local areas on the date on which this Act comes into force shall be deemed to be respectively headmen and goungs appointed under this Act, and such local areas shall be deemed to have been fixed as their beats and circuits respectively under this Act.

13. Every headman shall perform the following duties (namely) :— Duties of headmen.

(a) he shall give immediate information to the goung of the circuit in which his beat is situated, or the officer in charge of the police-station appointed for his beat, of all disputes within his beat which may come to his knowledge likely to lead to any riot or serious affray ;

(b) he shall report to the goung or police-officer aforesaid the arrival in or in the neighbourhood of his beat of suspicious characters and of persons who have been convicted under chapters XII and XVII of the Indian Penal Code ; and the movements of all bad characters within his beat :

(c) he shall report to the goung or police-officer aforesaid all breaches of excise and opium laws and rules within his beat which may come to his knowledge :

(d) he shall supply to the best of his ability any local information which any Magistrate or revenue-officer or officer of police may require, and shall promptly execute all lawful orders issued to him by or by authority of the Deputy Commissioner :

(e) he shall attend the revenue-officer of the circle, so long as such officer is within his beat, for the purpose of assessing or collecting land-revenue, cesses or taxes, and shall give him all available information regarding the cultivation of land and other matters relating to the revenue :

(f) he shall, in accordance with such rules as may from time to time be made by the Chief Commissioner, keep up a register of all births, marriages and deaths within his beat, and collect and register any other vital statistics which may be prescribed by such rules :

(g) he shall afford all assistance in his power to Government officers, and on the order of the Deputy Commissioner to other persons, in procuring food, labour, carriage and other requisites of travel.

14. The duties of a goung in respect of his circuit shall, mutatis mutandis, be the same as those of a headman in respect of his beat. Duties of goungs.

15. For the purpose of preventing the commission of any offence or arresting any offenders whom he is authorized to arrest, any headman or goung may require any male person between the ages of eighteen and sixty within his beat or circuit at the time to assist him in preventing the commission of such offence or in making such arrest, and in guarding and escorting the person arrested. Power of headmen and goungs to demand help.

Every person as aforesaid shall, in the absence of reasonable excuse, the burden of proving which shall lie upon such person, be bound to comply with any requisition made to him under this section. Obligation to render help.

16. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time, by notification in the local Gazette, make rules consistent with this Act conferring upon headmen and goungs any powers, protection or privileges which may be exercised or enjoyed by a police-officer under any enactment for the time being in force, imposing upon headmen and goungs any duties imposed on a police-officer by any enactment for the time being in force and regulating the exercise, enjoyment and discharge of such powers, protection, privileges and duties by such headmen and goungs. Powers of police-officers may be conferred on headmen and goungs.

17. Every headman or goung who— Penalties for breach of duty.

(a) is guilty of cowardice or of wilful misconduct in his office, or of neglect of duty ; or

(b) withdraws from the duties of his office without having obtained permission from the Deputy Commissioner, or without having given to the Deputy Commissioner at least two months' notice of his intention to withdraw from such duties ; or

(c) offers any unnecessary personal violence to any person in his custody, may, in addition to any other penalty to which he may be liable, be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month, or with fine which may amount to fifty rupees, or both.

No complaint against a headman or goung of any act or omission punishable under this section shall be entertained by any Court unless the prosecution be instituted by order of or under authority from the Deputy Commissioner. Bar of prosecution.

18. Any prosecution against any person for any thing purporting to be done under this Act shall be commenced within three months next after the act complained of has been committed. Limitation of prosecution.

No suit shall be brought for anything so purporting to be done until the expiration of one month next after notice in writing has been delivered or left at the place of abode of such person, or at the office of the Deputy Commissioner of the district in which the act was done, Notice of suit to be given.

stating the cause of suit and the name and place of abode of the plaintiff.

If any person to whom any such notice of suit is given shall before such suit is brought tender sufficient amends to the plaintiff, such plaintiff shall not recover.

Previous tender of amends.

Miscellaneous.

19. No prosecution shall be instituted against any police-officer for any act done by him in such capacity, under the authority of a warrant issued by a Magistrate, notwithstanding any defect of jurisdiction in such Magistrate.

Protection to officers acting under warrant.

20. If within or in the immediate neighbourhood of any town, village or hamlet a dákáití or a robbery is committed or attempted, or dákáits or robbers are harboured, sheltered or assisted, and if the inhabitants of such town, village or hamlet without reasonable excuse fail to render active assistance in preventing the crime and in arresting and securing the offenders, the Chief Commissioner may, after such enquiry as he may deem necessary, impose upon such town, village or hamlet, or upon any section thereof, a fine, to be assessed upon the inhabitants according to his judgment of their respective means.

Help in cases of dákáiti and robbery.

21. For the purposes of this Act, the Chief Commissioner may from time to time, by notification in the British Burma Gazette, invest any revenue-officer with any of the powers, and impose on him any of the duties, with which he may invest him or which he may impose upon him under the Burma Land and Revenue Act, 1876, and the rules framed under it.

Powers and duties of revenue-officers.

22. All proceedings of any Deputy Commissioner or revenue-officer under this Act shall be subject to control, revision and alteration by the Commissioner to whom he is subordinate and by the Chief Commissioner.

Control of Commissioner and Chief Commissioner.

23. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time make rules for the guidance of officers in all matters connected with its enforcement.

Power to make rules.

All such rules and all other rules made under this Act shall be published in the British Burma Gazette, and shall thereupon, in so far as they are consistent with this Act, have the force of law.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE need of an efficient rural police to supplement the regular police and act as a link between them and the people has been long felt in British Burma.

The materials of such a body exist in the village headmen or "kyaydangyees" and the "goungs" who supervise them; but the status and duties of these officers are ill-defined and imperfectly understood, and the funds available for their remuneration have, as the country has advanced in wealth, become altogether insufficient to secure the services of respectable men.

The present Bill has been drawn with a view to putting these two classes of officials on a proper legal footing and providing adequate funds for their remuneration.

2. As regards this latter object, it will be observed that the chief source from which it is proposed to raise the money required is an enhancement of the cess at present levied for local objects under sections 31 and 32 of the Burma Land Act from five to ten per cent. on the land-revenue; but as it would be obviously unjust to throw completely upon the agricultural classes the burthen of providing for expenditure by which the non-agricultural population of the villages and rural towns will equally benefit, the Chief Commissioner has been empowered to impose a house cess, not to exceed two rupees per house, on persons who do not pay the agricultural cess.

3. In a large number of towns in Burma a house-tax of this description has been levied for many years past; and the Bill provides that it shall continue to be levied so long as the Chief Commissioner may direct, and that its proceeds shall be credited to the district fund, along with the proceeds of the agricultural cess and the new house cess; but in any town or village in which this old house-tax is retained the new house cess will not be imposed.

4. It is intended that the funds thus made available for the remuneration of rural police officers shall be supplemented by the Government from the revenue derived from fisheries, and further by grants of land revenue-free or by exempting from revenue lands already held by those officers; but as these measures can be carried out under the existing law, they find no place in the present Bill.

5. The present opportunity has been taken for enforcing in British Burma (see section 20 of this Bill) the rule established in some other parts of British India, that the inhabitants of any town, village or hamlet are bound to aid in the prevention of dákáití and robbery in such town, village or hamlet, and, when such offence has been committed, to aid in securing the offenders.

The enforcement of this rule is especially necessary in Burma, where the inhabitants of a village, in some instances owing to apathy and in others owing to a disposition to aid the offenders, as a rule grossly neglect the duty they owe to the public in this particular.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 24th July, 1879, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 14 of 1879.

A Bill to amend the Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act, 1872.

WHEREAS it is expedient to empower Magistrates to arrest persons found in British India and suspected of having committed offences out of British India for which they are liable to be delivered up under the Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act, 1872; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

1. This Act may be called "The Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act, 1879"; and it shall come into force at once.

Short title.

Commencement.

2. After section fourteen of the Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act, 1872, the following sections shall be inserted (that is to say):—

Insertion of sections after section 14 of Act XI, 1872.

"14A. Whenever any person accused or suspected of having committed an offence out of British India is within the local limits of the jurisdiction of a Magistrate in British India, and it appears to such Magistrate that the Political Agent for any State could, under the provisions of section eleven, issue a warrant for the arrest of such person, or that the persons for the time being administering the executive government of any part of the dominions of Her Majesty or the territory of any Foreign Prince or State could demand his surrender, such Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, issue a warrant for the arrest of such person, on such information or complaint and such evidence as would, in his opinion, justify the issue of such a warrant if the offence had been committed within the local limits of his jurisdiction.

Magistrate may in certain cases issue warrant for arrest of person accused of having committed an offence out of British India.

"14B. Any Magistrate issuing a warrant under section 14A shall at once report his proceedings to the Local Government, and the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, order the warrant to be cancelled and the accused person, if arrested, to be released.

"Every person arrested on a warrant issued by a Magistrate under section 14A shall be discharged, on the expiry of such reasonable period not exceeding two months as, with reference to the circumstances of the case, the Magistrate may fix, unless within such period the Magistrate receives a warrant under section eleven from the Political Agent of any State for the delivery of such person or an order with reference to him under section fourteen from the Governor General in Council or Local Government, or such person is in accordance with law delivered up to some Foreign Prince or State.

Person arrested to be released after certain time if not proceeded against.

"14C. The provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure in respect of bail shall apply in the case of any person arrested under section 14A in the same manner as if such person were accused of committing in British India the offence with which he is charged."

Bail.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE eighth section of the English Extradition Act of 1870 empowers a Magistrate, when any person is charged with having committed an offence abroad, to issue a warrant of arrest in anticipation of a request being made for extradition by the State within whose limits the offence has been committed. Sections 19 and 20 of Act VII of 1854 contained similar provisions; but they were omitted in Act XI of 1872, the present Extradition Act, which consolidated and amended the existing law on the subject. Certain recent cases in which persons have committed offences in the Nizam's territory and taken refuge in British India have shown that some such provisions are still required to prevent failures of justice. The present Bill, which has been prepared to meet this want, practically re-enacts, with [illegible] the law in force up to the year 1872.

[Second publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 24th July, 1879, and was referred to a Select Committee :—

No. 13 of 1879.

A Bill to amend the law relating to District Cesses and Rural Police in British Burma.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make better provision for the maintenance of Rural Police, the construction of works of public utility, the promotion of education and the maintenance of a local postal service in British Burma ; Preamble.

and whereas it is also expedient to declare and amend the law relating to Rural Police in the said Province ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Preliminary.

1. This Act may be called "The Burma District Cesses and Rural Police Act, 1879": Short title.

and it shall come into force on such date as the Chief Commissioner of British Burma may, by notification in the local Gazette, direct. Commencement.

It extends to all the territories for the time being administered by the said Chief Commissioner : Local extent.

Provided that the said Chief Commissioner may, from time to time, by notification in the local Gazette, exempt any portion of the said territories from its operation and cancel such exemption :

Provided also that nothing herein contained applies to any town to which the British Burma Municipal Act, 1874, for the time being extends.

2. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,— Interpretation-clause.

(a) "land-revenue" means revenue assessed upon land under the provisions of the Burma Land and Revenue Act, 1876 :

(b) "revenue-officer" means any person appointed a revenue-officer under the same Act.

3. In the said Burma Land and Revenue Act, 1876, sections 31 and 32, in sections 37 and 46 the words "five per cent. cess" and the word "cess" wherever it occurs are repealed ; but all cesses imposed under that Act shall be deemed to have been imposed under this Act. Repeal.

Cesses.

4. On all lands assessed to land-revenue there shall be levied, in addition to the land-revenue and to other charges, an annual cess of ten per cent. on the amount of such revenue. Cess on land.

5. In any town, village or hamlet in which at the date on which this Act comes into force a house-tax is levied, such tax shall continue to be levied. But the Chief Commissioner may, by notification in the local Gazette, direct that such tax shall cease. Saving of existing house-tax.

6. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time, by notification in the local Gazette, direct that in any town, village or hamlet there shall be Cess on houses.

levied from the occupier of each house an annual cess, to be fixed in manner hereinafter provided, but which shall in no case exceed two rupees:

Provided that such cess shall not be levied—

(a) in any place in which the house-tax referred to in section five is levied, or

(b) in respect of any monastery, pagoda, sacred building, Government building, public rest-house or school:

Provided also that in respect of any house occupied by a person paying cess under section four no larger amount shall be levied under this section than will, together with the cess so paid by such person, amount to two rupees.

"House" in this section means any building used as a human dwelling or for the custody of property.

Powers of Deputy Commissioner.

7. Subject to the provisions of this Act and of any rules made under it, the Deputy Commissioner of the district may from time to time—

(a) determine what shall for the purposes of this Act be held to be a house;

(b) determine the amount of cess to be levied in respect of each house;

(c) remit such cess in whole or in part.

Purposes to which funds are to be applied.

8. A separate account for each district shall be kept of all cesses and house-tax levied under this Act in such district; and such cesses and tax shall be appropriated in that district, in such proportions as the Chief Commissioner may, by notification in the local Gazette, from time to time direct, to all or any of the following local objects (namely):—

(a) the maintenance of the Rural Police appointed under this Act;

(b) the construction and maintenance of district roads and other works of public utility;

(c) sanitary improvement;

(d) the promotion of education; and

(e) the maintenance of a local postal service:

Provided that the Chief Commissioner may from time to time transfer any balance in the account of any district to the account of any other district in the same division.

Time and mode of payment of cesses, &c.

9. All cesses and house-tax levied under this Act shall be payable for the year of assessment of land-revenue as fixed under the Burma Land and Revenue Act, 1876, section 41, and shall be payable at the place at which and to the person to whom the land-revenue is from time to time payable, or at such place and to such person as the Chief Commissioner may direct.

Sums assessed on the amount of land-revenue shall fall due on the date on which the land-revenue falls due.

Sums assessed on houses shall fall due on such dates as the Chief Commissioner may from time to time in that behalf direct.

Realization of cesses, &c.

10. All sums assessed under this Act on the amount of any land-revenue may be recovered as if they were part of such revenue.

All other sums payable under this Act may be recovered in the manner prescribed in sections 44 and 45 of the Burma Land and Revenue Act, 1876.

Rural Police.

Rural Police.

11. The Rural Police shall be of two classes,—

(a) headmen of hamlets or groups of hamlets, or of villages or towns, or sections of villages or towns, hereinafter called "headmen";

(b) headmen of circuits, hereinafter called "goungs."

Appointment of Rural Police.

12. Subject to the rules made under this Act and for the time being in force, the appointment, suspension and removal of headmen and goungs, and the determination of the limits of the beats of headmen and the circuits of goungs, shall rest with the Deputy Commissioner of the district:

Provided that all kyaydúngyís and yazawut goungs holding office as such in any local areas on the date on which this Act comes into force shall be deemed to be respectively headmen and goungs appointed under this Act, and such local areas shall be deemed to have been fixed as their beats and circuits respectively under this Act.

Duties of headmen.

13. Every headman shall perform the following duties (namely):—

(a) he shall give immediate information to the goung of the circuit in which his beat is situated, or the officer in charge of the police-station appointed for his beat, of all disputes within his beat which may come to his knowledge likely to lead to any riot or serious affray:

(b) he shall report to the goung or police-officer aforesaid the arrival in or in the neighbourhood of his beat of suspicious characters and of persons who have been convicted under chapters XII and XVII of the Indian Penal Code; and the movements of all bad characters within his beat:

(c) he shall report to the goung or police-officer aforesaid all breaches of excise and opium laws and rules within his beat which may come to his knowledge:

(d) he shall supply to the best of his ability any local information which any Magistrate or revenue-officer or officer of police may require, and shall promptly execute all lawful orders issued to him by or by authority of the Deputy Commissioner:

(e) he shall attend the revenue-officer of the circle, so long as such officer is within his beat, for the purpose of assessing or collecting land-revenue, cesses or taxes, and shall give him all available information regarding the cultivation of land and other matters relating to the revenue:

(f) he shall, in accordance with such rules as may from time to time be made by the Chief Commissioner, keep up a register of all births, marriages and deaths within his beat, and collect and register any other vital statistics which may be prescribed by such rules:

(g) he shall afford all assistance in his power to Government officers, and on the order of the Deputy Commissioner to other persons, in procuring food, labour, carriage and other requisites of travel.

Duties of goungs.

14. The duties of a goung in respect of his circuit shall, mutatis mutandis, be the same as those of a headman in respect of his [illegible]

Power of headmen and goungs to demand help.

15. For the purpose of preventing the commission of any offence or arresting any offenders whom he is authorized to arrest, any headman or goung may require any male person between the ages of eighteen and sixty within his beat or circuit at the time to assist him in preventing the commission of such offence or in making such arrest, and in guarding and escorting the person arrested.

Obligation to render help.

Every person as aforesaid shall, in the absence of reasonable excuse, the burden of proving which shall lie upon such person, be bound to comply with any requisition made to him under this section.

Powers of police-officers may be conferred on headmen and goungs.

16. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time, by notification in the local Gazette, make rules consistent with this Act conferring upon headmen and goungs any powers, protection or privileges which may be exercised or enjoyed by a police-officer under any enactment for the time being in force, imposing upon headmen and goungs any duties imposed on a police-officer by any enactment for the time being in force and regulating the exercise, enjoyment and discharge of such powers, protection, privileges and duties by such headmen and goungs.

Penalties for breach of duty.

17. Every headman or goung who—

(a) is guilty of cowardice or of wilful misconduct in his office, or of neglect of duty; or

(b) withdraws from the duties of his office without having obtained permission from the Deputy Commissioner, or without having given to the Deputy Commissioner at least two months' notice of his intention to withdraw from such duties; or may, in addition to any other penalty to which he may be liable, be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month, or with fine which may amount to fifty rupees, or both.

(c) offers any unnecessary personal violence to any person in his custody,

Bar of prosecution.

No complaint against a headman or goung of any act or omission punishable under this section shall be entertained by any Court unless the prosecution be instituted by order of or under authority from the Deputy Commissioner.

Limitation of prosecution.

18. Any prosecution against any person for any thing purporting to be done under this Act shall be commenced within three months next after the act complained of has been committed.

Notice of suit to be given.

No suit shall be brought for anything so purporting to be done until the expiration of one month next after notice in writing has been delivered or left at the place of abode of such person, or at the office of the Deputy Commissioner of the district in which the act was done, stating the cause of suit and the name and place of abode of the plaintiff.

Previous tender of amends.

If any person to whom any such notice of suit is given shall before such suit is brought tender sufficient amends to the plaintiff, such plaintiff shall not recover.

Miscellaneous.

Protection to officers acting under warrant.

19. No prosecution shall be instituted against any police-officer for any act done by him in such capacity, under the authority of a warrant issued by a Magistrate, notwithstanding any defect of jurisdiction in such Magistrate.

Help in cases of dákáiti and robbery.

20. If within or in the immediate neighbourhood of any town, village or hamlet a dákáití or a robbery is committed or attempted, or dákáits or robbers are harboured, sheltered or assisted, and if the inhabitants of such town, village or hamlet without reasonable excuse fail to render active assistance in preventing the crime and in arresting and securing the offenders, the Chief Commissioner may, after such enquiry as he may deem necessary, impose upon such town, village or hamlet, or upon any section thereof, a fine, to be assessed upon the inhabitants according to his judgment of their respective means.

Powers and duties of revenue-officers.

21. For the purposes of this Act, the Chief Commissioner may from time to time, by notification in the British Burma Gazette, invest any revenue-officer with any of the powers, and impose on him any of the duties, with which he may invest him or which he may impose upon him under the Burma Land and Revenue Act, 1876, and the rules framed under it.

Control of Commissioner and Chief Commissioner.

22. All proceedings of any Deputy Commissioner or revenue-officer under this Act shall be subject to control, revision and alteration by the Commissioner to whom he is subordinate and by the Chief Commissioner.

Power to make rules.

23. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time make rules for the guidance of officers in all matters connected with its enforcement.

All such rules and all other rules made under this Act shall be published in the British Burma Gazette, and shall thereupon, in so far as they are consistent with this Act, have the force of law.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE need of an efficient rural police to supplement the regular police and act as a link between them and the people has been long felt in British Burma.

The materials of such a body exist in the village headmen or "kyaydangyees" and the "goungs" who supervise them; but the status and duties of these officers are ill-defined and imperfectly understood, and the funds available for their remuneration have, as the country has advanced in wealth, become altogether insufficient to secure the services of respectable men.

The present Bill has been drawn with a view to putting these two classes of officials on a proper legal footing and providing adequate funds for their remuneration.

2. As regards this latter object, it will be observed that the chief source from which it is proposed to raise the money required is an enhancement of the cess at present levied for local objects under sections 31 and 32 of the Burma Land Act from [illegible] ten per cent. on the land-revenue; but as it would be obviously unjust to throw completely upon the agricultural classes the burthen of providing for expenditure by which the non-agricultural population of the villages and rural towns will equally benefit, the Chief Commissioner has been empowered to impose a house cess, not to exceed two rupees per house, on persons who do not pay the agricultural cess.

3. In a large number of towns in Burma a house-tax of this description has been levied for many years past; and the Bill provides that it shall continue to be levied so long as the Chief Commissioner may direct, and that its proceeds shall be credited to the district fund, along with the proceeds of the agricultural cess and the new house cess; but in any town or village in which this old house-tax is retained the new house cess will not be imposed.

4. It is intended that the funds thus made available for the remuneration of rural police officers shall be supplemented by the Government from the revenue derived from fisheries, and further by grants of land revenue-free or by exempting from revenue lands already held by those officers; but as these measures can be carried out under the existing law, they find no place in the present Bill.

5. The present opportunity has been taken for enforcing in British Burma (see section 20 of this Bill) the rule established in some other parts of British India, that the inhabitants of any town, village or hamlet are bound to aid in the prevention of dákáití and robbery in such town, village or hamlet, and, when such offence has been committed, to aid in securing the offenders.

The enforcement of this rule is especially necessary in Burma, where the inhabitants of a village, in some instances owing to apathy and in others owing to a disposition to aid the offenders, as a rule grossly neglect the duty they owe to the public in this particular.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 24th July, 1879, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 14 of 1879.

A Bill to amend the Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act, 1872.

WHEREAS it is expedient to empower Magistrates to arrest persons found in British India and suspected of having committed offences out of British India for which they are liable to be delivered up under the Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act, 1872; It is hereby enacted as follows:— Preamble.

1. This Act may be called "The Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act, 1879"; and it shall come into force at once. Short title. Commencement.

2. After section fourteen of the Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act, 1872, the following sections shall be inserted (that is to say):— Insertion of sections after section 14 of Act XI, 1872.

"14A. Whenever any person accused or suspected of having committed an offence out of British India is within the local limits of the jurisdiction of a Magistrate in British India, and it appears to such Magistrate that the Political Agent for any State could, under the provisions of section eleven, issue a warrant for the arrest of such person, or that the persons for the time being administering the executive government of any part of the dominions of Her Majesty or the territory of any Foreign Prince or State could demand his surrender, such Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, issue a warrant for the arrest of such person, on such information or complaint and such evidence as would, in his opinion, justify the issue of such a warrant if the offence had been committed within the local limits of his jurisdiction. Magistrate may in certain cases issue warrant for arrest of person accused of having committed an offence out of British India.

"14B. Any Magistrate issuing a warrant under section 14A shall at once report his proceedings to the Local Government, and the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, order the warrant to be cancelled and the accused person, if arrested, to be released. Magistrate at once to report arrest to Local Government.

"Every person arrested on a warrant issued by a Magistrate under section 14A shall be discharged, on the expiry of such reasonable period not exceeding two months as, with reference to the circumstances of the case, the Magistrate may fix, unless within such period the Magistrate receives a warrant under section eleven from the Political Agent of any State for the delivery of such person or an order with reference to him under section fourteen from the Governor General in Council or Local Government, or such person is in accordance with law delivered up to some Foreign Prince or State. Person arrested to be released after certain time if not proceeded against.

"14C. The provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure in respect of bail shall apply in the case of any person arrested under section 14A in the same manner as if such person were accused of committing in British India the offence with which he is charged." Bail.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE eighth section of the English Extradition Act of 1870 empowers a Magistrate, when any person is charged with having committed an offence abroad, to issue a warrant of arrest in anticipation of a request being made for extradition by the State within whose limits the offence has been committed. Sections 19 and 20 of Act VII of 1854 contained similar provisions; but they were omitted in Act XI of 1872, the present Extradition Act, which consolidated and amended the existing law on the subject. Certain recent cases in which persons have committed offences in the Nizam's territory and taken refuge in British India have shown that some such provisions are still required to prevent failures of justice. The present Bill, which has been prepared to meet this want, practically re-enacts, with certain unimportant modifications, what was the law in India up to the year 1872.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[THIRD PUBLICATION.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 24th July, 1879, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 13 of 1879.

A Bill to amend the law relating to District Cesses and Rural Police in British Burma.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make better provision for the maintenance of Rural Police, the construction of works of public utility, the promotion of education and the maintenance of a local postal service in British Burma; Preamble.

and whereas it is also expedient to declare and amend the law relating to Rural Police in the said Province; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preliminary.

1. This Act may be called "The Burma District Cesses and Rural Police Act, 1879": Short title.

and it shall come into force on such date as the Chief Commissioner of British Burma may, by notification in the local Gazette, direct. Commencement.

It extends to all the territories for the time being administered by the said Chief Commissioner: Local extent.

Provided that the said Chief Commissioner may, from time to time, by notification in the local Gazette, exempt any portion of the said territories from its operation and cancel such exemption:

Provided also that nothing herein contained applies to any town to which the British Burma Municipal Act, 1874, for the time being extends.

2. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,— Interpretation-clause.

(a) "land-revenue" means revenue assessed upon land under the provisions of the Burma Land and Revenue Act, 1876:

(b) "revenue-officer" means any person appointed a revenue-officer under the same Act.

3. In the said Burma Land and Revenue Act, 1876, sections 31 and 32, in sections 37 and 46 the words "five per cent. cess" and the word "cess" wherever it occurs are repealed; but all cesses imposed under that Act shall be deemed to have been imposed under this Act. Repeal.

Cesses.

4. On all lands assessed to land-revenue there shall be levied, in addition to the land-revenue and to other charges, an annual cess of ten per cent. on the amount of such revenue. Cess on land.

5. In any town, village or hamlet in which at the date on which this Act comes into force a house-tax is levied, such tax shall continue to be levied. But the Chief Commissioner may, by notification in the local Gazette, direct that such tax shall cease. Saving of existing house-tax.

6. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time, by notification in the local Gazette, direct that in any town, village or hamlet there shall be Cess on houses.

levied from the occupier of each house an annual cess, to be fixed in manner hereinafter provided, but which shall in no case exceed two rupees:

Provided that such cess shall not be levied—

(a) in any place in which the house-tax referred to in section five is levied, or

(b) in respect of any monastery, pagoda, sacred building, Government building, public rest-house or school:

Provided also that in respect of any house occupied by a person paying cess under section four no larger amount shall be levied under this section than will, together with the cess so paid by such person, amount to two rupees.

"House" in this section means any building used as a human dwelling or for the custody of property.

Powers of Deputy Commissioner.

7. Subject to the provisions of this Act and of any rules made under it, the Deputy Commissioner of the district may from time to time—

(a) determine what shall for the purposes of this Act be held to be a house;

(b) determine the amount of cess to be levied in respect of each house;

(c) remit such cess in whole or in part.

Purposes to which funds are to be applied.

8. A separate account for each district shall be kept of all cesses and house-tax levied under this Act in such district; and such cesses and tax shall be appropriated in that district, in such proportions as the Chief Commissioner may, by notification in the local Gazette, from time to time direct, to all or any of the following local objects (namely):—

(a) the maintenance of the Rural Police appointed under this Act;

(b) the construction and maintenance of district roads and other works of public utility;

(c) sanitary improvement;

(d) the promotion of education; and

(e) the maintenance of a local postal service:

Provided that the Chief Commissioner may from time to time transfer any balance in the account of any district to the account of any other district in the same division.

Time and mode of payment of cesses, &c.

9. All cesses and house-tax levied under this Act shall be payable for the year of assessment of land-revenue as fixed under the Burma Land and Revenue Act, 1876, section 41, and shall be payable at the place at which and to the person to whom the land-revenue is from time to time payable, or at such place and to such person as the Chief Commissioner may direct.

Sums assessed on the amount of land-revenue shall fall due on the date on which the land-revenue falls due.

Sums assessed on houses shall fall due on such dates as the Chief Commissioner may from time to time in that behalf direct.

Realization of cesses, &c.

10. All sums assessed under this Act on the amount of any land-revenue may be recovered as if they were part of such revenue.

All other sums payable under this Act may be recovered in the manner prescribed in sections 44 and 45 of the Burma Land and Revenue Act, 1876.

Rural Police.

Rural Police.

11. The Rural Police shall be of two classes,—

(a) headmen of hamlets or groups of hamlets, or of villages or towns, or sections of villages or towns, hereinafter called "headmen";

(b) headmen of circuits, hereinafter called "goungs."

Appointment of Rural Police.

12. Subject to the rules made under this Act and for the time being in force, the appointment, suspension and removal of headmen and goungs, and the determination of the limits of the beats of headmen and the circuits of goungs, shall rest with the Deputy Commissioner of the district:

Provided that all kyaydúngyís and yazawut goungs holding office as such in any local areas on the date on which this Act comes into force shall be deemed to be respectively headmen and goungs appointed under this Act, and such local areas shall be deemed to have been fixed as their beats and circuits respectively under this Act.

Duties of headmen.

13. Every headman shall perform the following duties (namely):—

(a) he shall give immediate information to the goung of the circuit in which his beat is situated, or the officer in charge of the police-station appointed for his beat, of all disputes within his beat which may come to his knowledge likely to lead to any riot or serious affray:

(b) he shall report to the goung or police-officer aforesaid the arrival in or in the neighbourhood of his beat of suspicious characters and of persons who have been convicted under chapters XII and XVII of the Indian Penal Code; and the movements of all bad characters within his beat:

(c) he shall report to the goung or police-officer aforesaid all breaches of excise and opium laws and rules within his beat which may come to his knowledge:

(d) he shall supply to the best of his ability any local information which any Magistrate or revenue-officer or officer of police may require, and shall promptly execute all lawful orders issued to him by or by authority of the Deputy Commissioner:

(e) he shall attend the revenue-officer of the circle, so long as such officer is within his beat, for the purpose of assessing or collecting land-revenue, cesses or taxes, and shall give him all available information regarding the cultivation of land and other matters relating to the revenue:

(f) he shall, in accordance with such rules as may from time to time be made by the Chief Commissioner, keep up a register of all births, marriages and deaths within his beat, and collect and register any other vital statistics which may be prescribed by such rules:

(g) he shall afford all assistance in his power to Government officers, and on the order of the Deputy Commissioner, to other persons, in procuring food, labour, carriage and other requisites of travel.

Duties of goungs.

14. The duties of a goung in respect of his circuit shall, mutatis mutandis, be the same as those of a headman in respect of his beat.

Power of headmen and goungs to demand help.

15. For the purpose of preventing the commission of any offence or arresting any offenders whom he is authorized to arrest, any headman or goung may require any male person between the ages of eighteen and sixty within his beat or circuit at the time to assist him in preventing the commission of such offence or in making such arrest, and in guarding and escorting the person arrested.

Obligation to render help.

Every person as aforesaid shall, in the absence of reasonable excuse, the burden of proving which shall lie upon such person, be bound to comply with any requisition made to him under this section.

Powers of police-officers may be conferred on headmen and goungs.

16. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time, by notification in the local Gazette, make rules consistent with this Act conferring upon headmen and goungs any powers, protection or privileges which may be exercised or enjoyed by a police-officer under any enactment for the time being in force, imposing upon headmen and goungs any duties imposed on a police-officer by any enactment for the time being in force and regulating the exercise, enjoyment and discharge of such powers, protection, privileges and duties by such headmen and goungs.

Penalties for breach of duty.

17. Every headman or goung who—

(a) is guilty of cowardice or of wilful misconduct in his office, or of neglect of duty; or

(b) withdraws from the duties of his office without having obtained permission from the Deputy Commissioner, or without having given to [illegible] of his intention to withdraw from such duties; or may, in addition to any other penalty to which he may be liable, be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month, or with fine which may amount to fifty rupees, or both.

(c) offers any unnecessary personal violence to any person in his custody,

Bar of prosecution.

No complaint against a headman or goung of any act or omission punishable under this section shall be entertained by any Court unless the prosecution be instituted by order of or under authority from the Deputy Commissioner.

Limitation of prosecution.

18. Any prosecution against any person for any thing purporting to be done under this Act shall be commenced within three months next after the act complained of has been committed.

Notice of suit to be given.

No suit shall be brought for anything so purporting to be done until the expiration of one month next after notice in writing has been delivered or left at the place of abode of such person, or at the office of the Deputy Commissioner of the district in which the act was done, stating the cause of suit and the name and place of abode of the plaintiff.

Previous tender of amends.

If any person to whom any such notice of suit is given shall before such suit is brought tender sufficient amends to the plaintiff, such plaintiff shall not recover.

Miscellaneous.

Protection to officers acting under warrant.

19. No prosecution shall be instituted against any police-officer for any act done by him in such capacity, under the authority of a warrant issued by a Magistrate, notwithstanding any defect of jurisdiction in such Magistrate.

Help in cases of dákáiti and robbery.

20. If within or in the immediate neighbourhood of any town, village or hamlet a dákáití or a robbery is committed or attempted, or dákáits or robbers are harboured, sheltered or assisted, and if the inhabitants of such town, village or hamlet without reasonable excuse fail to render active assistance in preventing the crime and in arresting and securing the offenders, the Chief Commissioner may, after such enquiry as he may deem necessary, impose upon such town, village or hamlet, or upon any section thereof, a fine, to be assessed upon the inhabitants according to his judgment of their respective means.

Powers and duties of revenue-officers.

21. For the purposes of this Act, the Chief Commissioner may from time to time, by notification in the British Burma Gazette, invest any revenue-officer with any of the powers, and impose on him any of the duties, with which he may invest him or which he may impose upon him under the Burma Land and Revenue Act, 1876, and the rules framed under it.

Control of Commissioner and Chief Commissioner.

22. All proceedings of any Deputy Commissioner or revenue-officer under this Act shall be subject to control, revision and alteration by the Commissioner to whom he is subordinate and by the Chief Commissioner.

Power to make rules.

23. The Chief Commissioner may from time to time make rules for the guidance of officers in all matters connected with its enforcement.

All such rules and all other rules made under this Act shall be published in the British Burma Gazette, and shall thereupon, in so far as they are consistent with this Act, have the force of law.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE need of an efficient rural police to supplement the regular police and act as a link between them and the people has been long felt in British Burma.

The materials of such a body exist in the village headmen or "kyaydangyees" and the "goungs" who supervise them; but the status and duties of these officers are ill-defined and imperfectly understood, and the funds available for their remuneration have, as the country has advanced in wealth, become altogether insufficient to secure the services of respectable men.

The present Bill has been drawn with a view to putting these two classes of officials on a proper legal footing and providing adequate funds for their remuneration.

2. As regards this latter object, it will be observed that the chief source from which it is proposed to raise the money required is an enhancement of the cess at present levied for local objects under sections 31 and 32 of the Burma Land Act from five to ten per cent. on the land-revenue; but as it would be obviously unjust to throw completely upon the agricultural classes the burthen of providing for expenditure by which the non-agricultural population of the villages and rural towns will equally benefit, the Chief Commissioner has been empowered to impose a house cess, not to exceed two rupees per house, on persons who do not pay the agricultural cess.

3. In a large number of towns in Burma a house-tax of this description has been levied for many years past; and the Bill provides that it shall continue to be levied so long as the Chief Commissioner may direct, and that its proceeds shall be credited to the district fund, along with the proceeds of the agricultural cess and the new house cess; but in any town or village in which this old house-tax is retained the new house cess will not be imposed.

4. It is intended that the funds thus made available for the remuneration of rural police officers shall be supplemented by the Government from the revenue derived from fisheries, and further by grants of land revenue-free or by exempting from revenue lands already held by those officers; but as these measures can be carried out under the existing law, they find no place in the present Bill.

5. The present opportunity has been taken for enforcing in British Burma (see section 20 of this Bill) the rule established in some other parts of British India, that the inhabitants of any town, village or hamlet are bound to aid in the prevention of dákáití and robbery in such town, village or hamlet, and, when such offence has been committed, to aid in securing the offenders.

The enforcement of this rule is especially necessary in Burma, where the inhabitants of a village, in some instances owing to apathy and in others owing to a disposition to aid the offenders, as a rule grossly neglect the duty they owe to the public in this particular.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 24th July, 1879, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 14 of 1879.

A Bill to amend the Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act, 1872.

WHEREAS it is expedient to empower Magistrates to arrest persons found in British India and suspected of having committed offences out of British India for which they are liable to be delivered up under the Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act, 1872; It is hereby enacted as follows:— Preamble.

1. This Act may be called "The Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act, 1879"; and it shall come into force at once. Short title. Commencement.

2. After section fourteen of the Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act, 1872, the following sections shall be inserted (that is to say):— Insertion of sections after section 14 of Act XI, 1872.

"14A. Whenever any person accused or suspected of having committed an offence out of British India is within the local limits of the jurisdiction of a Magistrate in British India, and it appears to such Magistrate that the Political Agent for any State could, under the provisions of section eleven, issue a warrant for the arrest of such person, or that the persons for the time being administering the executive government of any part of the dominions of Her Majesty or the territory of any Foreign Prince or State could demand his surrender, such Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, issue a warrant for the arrest of such person, on such information or complaint and such evidence as would, in his opinion, justify the issue of such a warrant if the offence had been committed within the local limits of his jurisdiction. Magistrate may in certain cases issue warrant for arrest of person accused of having committed an offence out of British India.

"14B. Any Magistrate issuing a warrant under section 14A shall at once report his proceedings to the Local Government, and the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, order the warrant to be cancelled and the accused person, if arrested, to be released. Magistrate at once to report arrest to Local Government.

"Every person arrested on a warrant issued by a Magistrate under section 14A shall be discharged, on the expiry of such reasonable period not exceeding two months as, with reference to the circumstances of the case, the Magistrate may fix, unless within such period the Magistrate receives a warrant under section eleven from the Political Agent of any State for the delivery of such person or an order with reference to him under section fourteen from the Governor General in Council or Local Government, or such person is in accordance with law delivered up to some Foreign Prince or State. Person arrested to be released after certain time if not proceeded against.

"14C. The provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure in respect of bail shall apply in the case of any person arrested under section 14A in the same manner as if such person were accused of committing in British India the offence with which he is charged." Bail.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE eighth section of the English Extradition Act of 1870 empowers a Magistrate, when any person is charged with having committed an offence abroad, to issue a warrant of arrest in anticipation of a request being made for extradition by the State within whose limits the offence has been committed. Sections 19 and 20 of Act VII of 1854 contained similar provisions; but they were omitted in Act XI of 1872, the present Extradition Act, which consolidated and amended the existing law on the subject. Certain recent cases in which persons have committed offences in the Nizam's territory and taken refuge in British India have shown that some such provisions are still required to prevent failures of justice. The present Bill, which has been prepared to meet this want, practically re-enacts, with certain unimportant modifications, what was the law in India up to the year 1872.

PART V.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[First publication.]

The following Report of a Select Committee, together with the Bill as settled by them, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 21st August 1879:—

We, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend the Pleaders, Mukhtárs and Revenue-agents Act, 1865, was referred, have the honour to report that we have considered the papers specified in the annexed list and made some amendments which have been urged upon us as desirable.

2. We have, at the instance of the Local Governments concerned, made the Bill directly applicable to the Central Provinces and Coorg.

3. Sections 45 and 46 of Act XX of 1865 have been objected to on the ground that they enable an Advocate, Vakíl or Attorney of a High Court who has failed in practice, or perhaps is under a cloud in his own province but has not been struck off the roll, to withdraw to another province and practice in the subordinate Courts there, subject to no control, except such as might possibly be exercised over him by the circuitous process of moving his own High Court, which would have no longer any interest in his proceedings, to strike him off its roll. To guard against this, we have in sections 4 and 5 of the Bill made it a condition of an Advocate, Vakíl or Attorney of a High Court being entitled to practice in another province that he shall be ordinarily practising in his own province. The result of this will be that such Advocates, Vakíls and Attorneys as may occasionally be retained to appear in a case in a neighbouring province can appear in the Courts there as at present, but that if an Advocate, Vakíl or Attorney desires to migrate from his own province and settle down to practise in another province, he must have himself enrolled in that other province.

4. In order to remove a doubt which has been felt in some quarters as to the functions which an Attorney practising under this Bill and a Mukhtár and Revenue-agent may discharge, we have in sections 5, 11, 16 and 17 empowered the High Court and Chief Controlling Revenue authority to define those functions.

5. At the suggestion of Mr. Justice Jackson we have restricted the exceptional privilege conferred on Revenue-agents in Bengal by Act IV of 1876, of acting as Pleaders in the Munsifs' Courts, to Revenue-agents admitted before this Bill becomes law.

6. The power given by section 16 of Act XX of 1865 to any Court before which a Pleader or Mukhtár was charged with misconduct to suspend him from practising in such Court seemed to place the Pleader or Mukhtár so suspended in the anomalous position of being suspended in one Court and being permitted to practise in another Court perhaps held in the next room. For this reason, as well as because it has been urged by several of the authorities consulted that Judges of the lowest grades should not have power to suspend a Pleader or Mukhtár on their own authority, we have (in section 14) restricted the power of suspension to the District Judge, District Magistrate and Collector, and inferior officers acting with their previous sanction; and we have made the suspension general and absolute instead of being restricted to the particular Court before which the offender may be charged.

7. In section 39 we have provided that when a person who holds certificates both as Mukhtár and Revenue-agent is suspended or dismissed in one capacity, he shall be deemed to be suspended or dismissed in the other as well.

8. We have carefully considered the question, which has more than once been discussed, and has now again been raised, as to the necessity of placing some restriction upon contracts, regarding the remuneration for services performed by legal practitioners. We are not prepared to recommend the adoption of the very stringent provisions on this point which appeared in the Bill introduced in 1871; but we think it desirable to provide, as we have done in section 28, that such agreements, when made, should be in writing and should be filed in Court. This we think will not only afford some protection to the client, but will also serve to inform the Court and place it on its guard in those cases in which the Pleader has by the agreement acquired a pecuniary interest in the result of the suit.

9. We have also thought it well to provide expressly in section 29, though it may be that we are here only confirming the existing law, that, when a suit is brought on an agreement between a legal practitioner and his client, the Court, unless such agreement is proved to be fair and reasonable, may reduce the amount payable under it, or set it aside altogether.

10. Section 36 has been framed to put a stop to what is commonly known as the "touting" system—a system under which certain legal practitioners reward a Mukhtár or other hanger-on of the Court who brings them business by allowing him a percentage on their fees. It is obvious that such a system, besides the degradation it involves to legal practitioners who resort to it as a means of obtaining business, also holds out to the Mukhtár or other go-between a strong temptation to retain for his employer, not the most skilful Pleader he can get for the fee allowed, but the Pleader who will pay him the largest commission.

The only objection we have heard to the abolition of this most objectionable system has proceeded from certain Mukhtárs, who urge that the commission allowed them by Vakíls is not a remuneration for procuring the employment of such Vakíls, but a payment for assistance rendered by them to such Vakíls by performing certain duties which would in other cases be performed by an Attorney.

The answer to this objection, it appears to us, is that, when the transaction is one bonâ fide of the nature thus described, the Mukhtár can find no difficulty in agreeing with his employer to receive direct from him any remuneration to which he may be entitled.

11. It has been suggested to us that we might shorten the Bill considerably and improve its form by consolidating into one series of enactments the portion of it relating to Vakíls and Mukhtárs and that relating to Revenue-agents. We have, however, abstained from doing so, as we fear that Local Governments desiring to extend the former portion without the latter, as, e.g., it is probable the Government of Madras will wish to do, would not find the Act so convenient for their purposes if thus altered.

12. The Bill in its second stage and preliminary Report of the Select Committee were published in English in the Gazette of India and the Central Provinces Gazette, and in English and the vernacular in the Calcutta Gazette. Subject to further consideration of the request of the Government of the Panjáb, that the Chief Court of that Province should be empowered to enrol Advocates in the same way as the High Courts are empowered by their Letters Patent, we recommend that the Bill as now amended be passed; but, looking to the alterations we have made in the existing law, we think it well that it should first be published with this report, so as to allow an opportunity for criticism by the public before the subject is again brought up in Council.

A Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Legal Practitioners.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to Legal Practitioners in the Lower Provinces of Bengal, the North-Western Provinces, the Panjáb, Oudh, the Central Provinces, Assam and Coorg; and to empower each of the Local Governments of the rest of British India to extend to the territories administered by it such portions of this Act as such Government may think fit; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.—Preliminary.

Short title. Commencement of Act.

1. This Act may be called "The Legal Practitioners Act, 1879": and shall come into force on the first day of November, 1879.

Local extent.

This section and section two extend to the whole of British India.

The rest of this Act extends, in the first instance, only to the territories respectively administered by the Lieutenant-Governors of the Lower Provinces of Bengal, the North-Western Provinces and the Panjáb, and the Chief Commissioners of Oudh, the Central Provinces, Assam and Coorg. But any other Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, extend all or any of the provisions of the rest of this Act to the whole or any part of the territories under its administration.

Repeal of enactments.

2. On and from the first day of November, 1879, the enactments mentioned in the first schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent specified therein.

Saving of rules, &c.

All rules and appointments made, penalties prescribed, fees fixed, persons admitted, names enrolled, certificates issued, sanctions given and orders passed under any enactment hereby repealed shall be deemed to be respectively made, prescribed, fixed, admitted, enrolled, issued, given and passed under this Act.

References to repealed enactments.

All references made to any enactment hereby repealed, in any Act or Regulation passed, or notification published, shall be read as if made to the corresponding provisions of this Act.

Interpretation-clause.

3. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,—

"Judge":

"Judge" means the presiding judicial officer in every civil and criminal Court, by whatever title he is designated:

"Subordinate Court":

"Subordinate Court" means all Courts subordinate to the High Court, including Courts of small causes established under Act No. IX of 1850 or Act No. XI of 1865:

"Revenue-office":

"Revenue-office" includes all Courts (other than civil Courts) trying suits under any Act for the time being in force relating to landholders and their tenants or agents:

"Legal practitioner" means an Advocate, Vakíl or Attorney of any High Court, a Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent.

CHAPTER II.—Of Advocates, Vakíls and Attorneys.

Advocates and Vakíls of chartered High Court.

4. Every person now or hereafter entered as an Advocate or Vakíl on the roll of any High Court under the Letters Patent constituting such Court and who ordinarily practises in such Court or some Court subordinate thereto shall, notwithstanding anything herein contained, be entitled, as such, to practise in any Court in British India other than a High Court on whose roll he is not entered, or, with the permission of the Court, in any High Court on whose roll he is not entered and in any Revenue-office, subject, nevertheless, to the rules in force relating to the language in which the Court or office is to be addressed by Pleaders or Revenue-agents.

Provided that no such Vakíl shall be entitled to practise under this section before a Judge of the High Court, Division Court or High Court exercising original jurisdiction.

Attorneys of High Court.

5. Every person now or hereafter entered as an Attorney on the roll of any High Court and who ordinarily practises in such Court or some Court subordinate thereto shall, notwithstanding anything herein contained, be entitled, as such, to practise in any Court in British India other than a High Court established by Royal Charter on the roll of which he is not entered, and in any Revenue-office.

The High Court of the Province in which an Attorney practises under this section may from time to time make rules declaring what shall be deemed to be the functions, powers and duties of an Attorney so practising.

CHAPTER III.—Of Pleaders and Mukhtárs.

Power to make rules as to qualification, &c., of Pleaders and Mukhtárs.

6. The High Court may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Act as to the following matters (namely):—

(a) the qualification, admission and certificates of proper persons to be Pleaders of the subordinate Courts, and of the Revenue-offices situate within the local limits of its appellate jurisdiction, and, in the case of a High Court not established by Royal Charter, of such Court:

(b) the qualification, admission and certificates of proper persons to be Mukhtárs of the subordinate Courts, and, in the case of a High Court not established by Royal Charter, of such Court:

(c) the fees to be paid for the examination and admission of such persons; and

(d) their suspension and dismissal.

Publication of rules.

All such rules shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law: Provided that in the case of rules made by a High Court not established by Royal Charter such rules have been previously approved by the Local Government.

Certificates to Pleaders and Mukhtárs.

7. On the admission, under section six, of any person as a Pleader or Mukhtár, the High Court shall cause a certificate, signed by such officer as the Court from time to time appoints in this behalf, to be issued to such person authorizing him to practise up to the end of the current year in the Courts, and, in the case of a Pleader, also the Revenue-offices specified therein.

At the expiration of such period, the holder of the certificate, if he desires to continue to practise, shall, subject to any rules consistent with this Act which may from time to time be made by the High Court in this behalf, be entitled to have his certificate renewed by the Judge of the District Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction he then ordinarily practises, or by such officer as the High Court from time to time appoints in this behalf.

On every such renewal, the certificate then in possession of such Pleader or Mukhtár shall be cancelled and retained by such Judge or officer.

Every certificate so renewed shall be signed by such Judge or officer, and shall continue in force up to the end of the current year.

Every Judge or officer so renewing a certificate shall notify such renewal to the High Court.

8. Every Pleader holding a certificate issued under section seven may apply to be enrolled in any Court or Revenue-office mentioned therein and situate within the local limits of the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court by which he has been admitted; and, subject to such rules consistent with this Act as the High Court or the Chief Controlling Revenue authority may from time to time make in this behalf, the presiding Judge or officer shall enrol him accordingly; and thereupon he may appear, plead and act in such Court or office or in any Court or Revenue-office subordinate thereto.

Pleaders on enrolment may practise in Courts and Revenue-offices.

9. Every Mukhtár holding a certificate issued under section seven may apply to be enrolled in any civil or criminal Court mentioned therein and situate within the same limits; and, subject to such rules as the High Court may from time to time make in this behalf, the presiding Judge shall enrol him accordingly; and thereupon he may practise as a Mukhtár in any such civil Court and any Court subordinate thereto, and may (subject to the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, section 186) appear, plead and act in any such criminal Court and any Court subordinate thereto.

Mukhtárs on enrolment may practise in Courts.

10. Except as provided by this Act or any other enactment for the time being in force, no person shall practise as a Pleader or Mukhtár in any Court not established by Royal Charter unless he holds a certificate issued under section seven and has been enrolled in such Court or in some Court to which it is subordinate:

No person to practise as Pleader or Mukhtár unless qualified.

Provided that persons who have been admitted as Revenue-agents before the first day of November, 1879, and hold certificates, as such, under this Act in the territories subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal may be enrolled in manner provided by section nine in any Munsif's Court in the said territories, and on being so enrolled may appear, plead and act in such Court in suits under Bengal Act No. VIII of 1869 (to amend the procedure in suits between Landlord and Tenant) or under any other Act for the time being in force regulating the procedure in suits between landholders and their tenants and agents.

Revenue-agents may appear, plead and act in Munsif's Courts in suits under Bengal Act VIII of 1869.

11. The High Court may from time to time make rules declaring what shall be deemed to be the functions, powers and duties of Mukhtárs practising in the subordinate Courts, and, in the case of a High Court not established by Royal Charter, in such Court.

Power to determine functions of Mukhtárs.

12. The High Court may suspend or dismiss any Pleader or Mukhtár holding a certificate issued under section seven who is convicted of any criminal offence.

Dismissal of Pleader or Mukhtár convicted of criminal offence.

13. The High Court may also, after such enquiry as it thinks fit, suspend or dismiss any Pleader or Mukhtár holding a certificate as aforesaid who is guilty of fraudulent or grossly improper conduct in the discharge of his professional duty, or for any other reasonable cause.

Dismissal of Pleader or Mukhtár guilty of unprofessional conduct.

14. If any such Pleader or Mukhtár practising in any subordinate Court or in any Revenue-office is charged in such Court or office with any such misconduct as aforesaid, the presiding officer shall send him a copy of the charge and also a notice that, on a day to be therein appointed, such charge will be taken into consideration.

Procedure when charge of unprofessional conduct is brought in a subordinate Court or Revenue-office.

Such copy and notice shall be served upon the Pleader or Mukhtár at least ten days before the day so appointed.

On such day or on any subsequent day to which the enquiry may be adjourned, the presiding officer shall receive and record all evidence properly produced in support of the charge, or by the Pleader or Mukhtár, and shall proceed to adjudicate on the charge.

If such officer finds the charge established, and considers that the Pleader or Mukhtár should be suspended or dismissed in consequence, he shall record his finding and the grounds thereof, and shall report the same to the High Court, and the High Court may acquit, suspend or dismiss the Pleader or Mukhtár.

Any District Judge, or with his sanction any Judge subordinate to him, any District Magistrate, or with his sanction any Magistrate subordinate to him, and any Revenue authority not inferior to a Collector, or with the Collector's sanction, any Revenue-officer subordinate to him, may, pending the investigation and the orders of the High Court, suspend from practice any Pleader or Mukhtár charged before him or it under this section.

Suspension pending investigation.

Every report made to the High Court under this section shall—

(a) when made by any Civil Judge subordinate to the District Judge, be made through such Judge;

(b) when made by a Magistrate subordinate to the Magistrate of the District, be made through the Magistrate of the District and the Sessions Judge;

(c) when made by the Magistrate of the District, be made through the Sessions Judge;

(d) when made by any Revenue-officer subordinate to the Chief Controlling Revenue authority, be made through such Revenue authorities as the Chief Controlling Revenue authority may from time to time direct.

Every such report shall be accompanied by the opinion of each Judge, Magistrate or Revenue authority through whom or which it is made.

15. The High Court, in any case in which a Pleader or Mukhtár has been acquitted under section fourteen otherwise than by an order of the High Court, may call for the record and pass such order thereon as it thinks fit.

Power to call for record in case of acquittal under section 14.

16. Notwithstanding anything contained in any Letters Patent or in the Code of Civil Procedure, section 37, clause (a), any High Court established by Royal Charter may from time to time make rules consistent with this Act as to the following matters (namely):—

Power to make rules for Mukhtárs on Appellate side of High Court.

(a) the qualification and admission of proper persons to be Mukhtárs practising on the Appellate side of such Court;

(b) the fees to be paid for the examination and admission of such persons;

(c) the security which they may be required to give for their honesty and good conduct;

(d) their suspension and dismissal; and

(e) declaring what shall be deemed to be their functions, powers and duties;

and may prescribe and impose fines for the infringement of such rules not exceeding in any case five hundred rupees; and such fines, when imposed, may be recovered as if they had been imposed in the exercise of the High Court's ordinary original criminal jurisdiction.

CHAPTER IV.—Of Revenue-agents.

17. The Chief Controlling Revenue authority may from time to time make rules consistent with this Act as to the following matters (namely):—

Power to make rules as to qualifications, &c., of Revenue-agents.

(a) the qualification, admission and certificates of proper persons to be Revenue-agents;

(b) the fees to be paid for the examination and admission of such persons;

(c) their suspension and dismissal; and

(d) declaring what shall be deemed to be their functions, powers and duties.

All such rules shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

Publication of rules.

18. On the admission of any person as a Revenue-agent under section seventeen, the Chief Controlling Revenue authority shall cause a certificate, signed by such officer as such Authority from time to time appoints in this behalf, to be issued to such person, authorizing him to practise up to the end of the current year in such Revenue-offices as may be specified therein.

Certificates to Revenue-agents.

At the expiration of such period, the holder of the certificate, if he desires to continue to practise, shall be entitled to have his certificate renewed by the Secretary of the Chief Controlling Revenue authority, or by any other officer, authorized by such Authority in that behalf.

On every such renewal, the certificate then in the possession of such Revenue-agent shall be cancelled and retained by such Secretary or other officer.

Every certificate so renewed shall be signed by such Secretary or other officer and shall continue in force to the end of the current year.

Every officer so renewing a certificate shall notify the renewal to the Chief Controlling Revenue authority.

19. Every Revenue-agent holding a certificate issued under section eighteen may apply to be enrolled in any Revenue-office mentioned therein and situate within the limits of the territory under the Chief Controlling Revenue authority; and, subject to such rules as the Chief Controlling Revenue authority may from time to time make in this behalf, the officer presiding in such office shall enrol him accordingly, and thereupon he may practise as a Revenue-agent in such office and in any Revenue-office subordinate thereto.

Enrolment of Revenue-agent.

20. Except as provided by any enactment for the time being in force, no person, other than a Pleader duly qualified under the provisions hereinbefore contained, shall practise as a Revenue-agent in any Revenue-office, unless he holds a certificate issued under section eighteen and has been enrolled in such office or some other office to which it is subordinate:

No person to act as agent in Revenue-offices unless qualified.

Provided that any person duly authorized in this behalf may, with the sanction of the Chief Controlling Revenue authority, or of an officer empowered by the Local Government in this behalf, transact all or any business in which his employer may be concerned in any Revenue-office.

The sanction mentioned in this section may be general or special, and may at any time be revoked or suspended by the authority or officer granting the same.

21. The Chief Controlling Revenue authority may suspend or dismiss any Revenue-agent holding a certificate issued under this Act who is convicted of any criminal offence.

Dismissal of Revenue-agent convicted of criminal offence.

22. The Chief Controlling Revenue authority may also, after making such enquiry as it thinks fit, suspend or dismiss any Revenue-agent holding a certificate issued under this Act who is guilty of fraudulent or grossly improper conduct in the discharge of his professional duty, or for any other reasonable cause.

Dismissal of Revenue-agent guilty of unprofessional conduct.

23. If any Revenue-agent holding a certificate issued under this Act is charged before the Chief Controlling Revenue authority, or in the Court of any Munsif, the officer at the head of such office, or such Munsif, as the case may be, shall send him a copy of the charge, and also a notice that, on a day to be therein appointed, such charge will be taken into consideration.

Procedure when Revenue-agent is charged with unprofessional conduct in any office subordinate to the Chief Controlling Revenue authority, or in the Court of any Munsif.

Such copy and notice shall be served upon the person charged at least ten days before the day so appointed. On such day or on any other day to which the enquiry may be adjourned, the officer or Munsif shall receive all evidence properly produced in support of the charge, or by the person charged, and shall proceed to adjudicate on the charge.

If the officer or Munsif finds the charge established, and considers that the person charged should be suspended or dismissed in consequence, he shall record his finding and the grounds thereof, and report the same to the Chief Controlling Revenue authority; and such Authority shall proceed to acquit, suspend or dismiss him.

Any Revenue-officer not inferior to a Collector, and with the Collector's sanction, any Revenue-officer subordinate to him, or any Munsif in his district, may, pending the investigation and the orders of the Chief Controlling Revenue authority, suspend from practice any Revenue-agent charged before him under this section.

Where any officer acting under this section is subordinate to the Commissioner of a Division, he shall transmit the report through such Commissioner, who shall forward with the same an expression of his own opinion on the case.

Power to Chief Controlling Revenue authority to call for record.

24. The Chief Controlling Revenue authority, in any case in which a Revenue-agent has been acquitted under section twenty-three otherwise than by an order of the Chief Controlling Revenue authority, may call for the record and pass such order thereon as seems fit.

CHAPTER V.—Of Certificates.

Fee for certificates.

25. Every certificate, whether original or renewed, issued under this Act shall be written upon stamped paper of the value prescribed therefor in the second schedule hereto annexed:

Provided that a certificate issued on or after the first day of July in any year may be written on stamped paper of half the value so prescribed.

Dismissed practitioners to surrender certificates.

26. When any Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent is suspended or dismissed under this Act, he shall forthwith deliver up his certificate to the Court or officer at the head of the office before or in which he was practising at the time he was so suspended or dismissed, or to any Court or officer to which the High Court or Chief Controlling Revenue authority (as the case may be) orders him to deliver the same.

CHAPTER VI.—Of the Remuneration of Pleaders, Mukhtárs and Revenue-agents.

High Court and Chief Controlling Revenue authority to fix fees on civil and revenue proceedings.

27. The High Court shall from time to time fix and regulate the fees payable by any party in respect of the fees of his adversary's Advocate, Pleader, Vakíl, Mukhtár or Attorney upon all proceedings (a) on the appellate side of such Court, (b) in the case of a High Court not established by Royal Charter, on its original side, and (c) in subordinate Courts.

The Chief Controlling Revenue authority shall from time to time fix and regulate the fees payable upon all proceedings in the Revenue-offices by any party in respect of the fees of his adversary's Advocate, Pleader, Vakíl, Attorney, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent.

Tables of the fees so fixed shall be published in the local official Gazette.

Exception as to Agents mentioned in section 20.

Nothing in this section applies to the Agents mentioned in the proviso to section twenty.

Agreements with clients.

28. No agreement entered into by any Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent with any person retaining or employing him respecting the amount and manner of payment for the whole or any part of any past or future services, fees, charges or disbursements in respect of business done or to be done by such Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent, shall be valid unless it is made in writing signed by such person, and is, within fifteen days from the day on which it is executed, filed in the District Court or in some Court in which some portion of the business in respect of which it has been executed has been or is to be done.

Power to modify or cancel agreements.

29. Where a suit is brought to enforce any such agreement, if the agreement is not proved to be fair and reasonable, the Court may reduce the amount payable thereunder or order it to be cancelled, and the costs, fees, charges and disbursements in respect of the business done to be ascertained in the same manner as if no such agreement had been made.

Agreements to exclude further claims.

30. Such an agreement shall exclude any further claim of the Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent beyond the terms of the agreement in respect of any services, fees, charges or disbursements in relation to the conduct and completion of the business in respect of which the agreement is made, except such services, fees, charges or disbursements, if any, as are expressly excepted by the agreement.

Reservation of responsibility for negligence.

31. A provision in any such agreement that the Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent shall not be liable for negligence, or that he shall be relieved from any responsibility to which he would otherwise be subject as such Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent, shall be wholly void.

CHAPTER VII.—Penalties.

On persons illegally practising as Pleaders, Mukhtárs or Revenue-agents.

32. Any person who practises in any Court or Revenue-office in contravention of the provisions of section ten or section twenty shall be liable, by order of such Court or the officer at the head of such office, to a fine not exceeding ten times the amount of the stamp required by this Act for a certificate authorizing him so to practise in such Court or office, and, in default of payment, to imprisonment in the civil jail for a term which may extend to six months.

He shall also be incapable of maintaining any suit for, or enforcing any lien in respect of, any fee or reward for, or in respect of, anything done or any disbursement made by him as Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent whilst he has been contravening the provisions of either of such sections.

On suspended or dismissed Pleader, &c., failing to deliver certificate.

33. Any Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent failing to deliver up his certificate as required by section twenty-six shall be liable, by order of the Court, Authority or officer to which or to whom, or according to whose orders, the delivery should be made, to a fine not exceeding two hundred rupees, and, in default of payment, to imprisonment in the civil jail for a term which may extend to three months.

On suspended or dismissed practitioner practising during suspension or after dismissal.

34. Any Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent, who, under the provisions of this Act, has been suspended or dismissed, and who, during such suspension or after such dismissal, practises as a Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent in any Court or Revenue-office, shall be liable, by order of such Court or the officer at the head of such office, to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, and, in default of payment, to imprisonment in the civil jail for a term which may extend to six months.

Revision of fines.

35. Every order under section thirty-two, thirty-three or thirty-four shall be subject to revision by the High Court where the order has been passed by a subordinate Court, and by the Chief Controlling Revenue authority where the order has been passed by an officer subordinate to such Authority.

Penalty for receiving or giving commission.

36. Whoever commits any of the following offences:—

(a.) solicits or receives from any legal practitioner any gratification in consideration of procuring or having procured his employment in any legal business:

(b.) retains any gratification out of remuneration paid or delivered or agreed to be paid or delivered to any legal practitioner for such employment:

(c.) being a legal practitioner, tenders, gives or consents to the retention of any gratification for procuring or having procured the employment in any legal business of himself or any other legal practitioner:

shall be punished with simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

CHAPTER VIII.—Miscellaneous.

Local Government to appoint examiners.

37. To facilitate the ascertainment of the qualifications respectively mentioned in sections six and seventeen, the Local Government shall from time to time appoint persons to be examiners for the purposes aforesaid, and make regulations for conducting such examinations.

Exemption of High Court practitioners from certain parts of Act.

38. Except as provided by sections four, five, sixteen, and twenty-seven and in chapter VII, nothing in this Act applies to Advocates, Vakíls and Attorneys admitted and enrolled by any High Court under the Letters Patent by which such Court is constituted, or to Mukhtárs practising in such Court.

Suspension or dismissal of person holding Mukhtárs and Revenue-agent's certificates.

39. When any person who holds a certificate as a Mukhtár under section seven and a certificate as a Revenue-agent under section eighteen is suspended or dismissed in one of such capacities, he shall be deemed to be suspended or dismissed, as the case may be, also in the other.

PART V.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Second publication.]

The following further Report of a Select Committee, together with the Bill as settled by them, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 21st August 1879:—

WE, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend the Pleaders, Mukhtárs and Revenue-agents Act, 1865, was referred, have the honour to report that we have considered the papers specified in the annexed list and made some amendments which have been urged upon us as desirable.

2. We have, at the instance of the Local Governments concerned, made the Bill directly applicable to the Central Provinces and Coorg.

3. Sections 45 and 46 of Act XX of 1865 have been objected to on the ground that they enable an Advocate, Vakíl or Attorney of a High Court who has failed in practice, or perhaps is under a cloud in his own province but has not been struck off the roll, to withdraw to another province and practise in the subordinate Courts there, subject to no control, except such as might possibly be exercised over him by the circuitous process of moving his own High Court, which would have no longer any interest in his proceedings, to strike him off its roll. To guard against this, we have in sections 4 and 5 of the Bill made it a condition of an Advocate, Vakíl or Attorney of a High Court being entitled to practise in another province that he shall be ordinarily practising in his own province. The result of this will be that such Advocates, Vakíls and Attorneys as may occasionally be retained to appear in a case in a neighbouring province can appear in the Courts there as at present, but that if an Advocate, Vakíl or Attorney desires to migrate from his own province and settle down to practise in another province, he must have himself enrolled in that other province.

4. In order to remove a doubt which has been felt in some quarters as to the functions which an Attorney practising under this Bill and a Mukhtár and Revenue-agent may discharge, we have in sections 5, 11, 16 and 17 empowered the High Court and Chief Controlling Revenue-authority to define those functions.

5. At the suggestion of Mr. Justice Jackson we have restricted the exceptional privilege conferred on Revenue-agents in Bengal by Act IV of 1876, of acting as Pleaders in the Munsifs' Courts, to Revenue-agents admitted before this Bill becomes law.

6. The power given by section 16 of Act XX of 1865 to any Court before which a Pleader or Mukhtár was charged with misconduct to suspend him from practising in such Court seemed to place the Pleader or Mukhtár so suspended in the anomalous position of being suspended in one Court and being permitted to practise in another Court perhaps held in the next room. For this reason, as well as because it has been urged by several of the authorities consulted that Judges of the lowest grades should not have power to suspend a Pleader or Mukhtár on their own authority, we have (in section 14) restricted the power of suspension to the District Judge, District Magistrate and Collector, and inferior officers acting with their previous sanction; and we have made the suspension general and absolute instead of being restricted to the particular Court before which the offender may be charged.

7. In section 39 we have provided that when a person who holds certificates both as Mukhtár and Revenue-agent is suspended or dismissed in one capacity, he shall be deemed to be suspended or dismissed in the other as well.

8. We have carefully considered the question, which has more than once been discussed, and has now again been raised, as to the necessity of placing some restriction upon contracts, regarding the remuneration for services performed by legal practitioners. We are not prepared to recommend the adoption of the very stringent provisions on this point which appeared in the Bill introduced in 1871; but we think it desirable to provide, as we have done in section 28, that such agreements, when made, should be in writing and should be filed in Court. This we think will not only afford some protection to the client, but will also serve to inform the Court and place it on its guard in those cases in which the Pleader has by the agreement acquired a pecuniary interest in the result of the suit.

9. We have also thought it well to provide expressly in section 29, though it may be that we are here only confirming the existing law, that, when a suit is brought on an agreement between a legal practitioner and his client, the Court, unless such agreement is proved to be fair and reasonable, may reduce the amount payable under it, or set it aside altogether.

10. Section 36 has been framed to put a stop to what is commonly known as the "touting" system—a system under which certain legal practitioners reward a Mukhtár or other hanger-on of the Court who brings them business by allowing him a percentage on their fees. It is obvious that such a system, besides the degradation it involves to legal practitioners who resort to it as a means of obtaining business, also holds out to the Mukhtár or other go-between a strong temptation to retain for his employer, not the most skilful Pleader he can get for the fee allowed, but the Pleader who will pay him the largest commission.

The only objection we have heard to the abolition of this most objectionable system has proceeded from certain Mukhtárs, who urge that the commission allowed them by Vakíls is not a remuneration for procuring the employment of such Vakíls, but a payment for assistance rendered by them to such Vakíls by performing certain duties which would in other [illegible] performed by an Attorney.

The answer to this objection, it appears to us, is that, when the transaction is one bonâ fide of the nature thus described, the Mukhtár can find no difficulty in agreeing with his employer to receive direct from him any remuneration to which he may be entitled.

11. It has been suggested to us that we might shorten the Bill considerably and improve its form by consolidating into one series of enactments the portion of it relating to Vakíls and Mukhtárs and that relating to Revenue-agents. We have, however, abstained from doing so, as we fear that Local Governments desiring to extend the former portion without the latter, as, e.g., it is probable the Government of Madras will wish to do, would not find the Act so convenient for their purposes if thus altered.

12. The Bill in its second stage and preliminary Report of the Select Committee were published in English in the Gazette of India and the Central Provinces Gazette, and in English and the vernacular in the Calcutta Gazette. Subject to further consideration of the request of the Government of the Panjáb, that the Chief Court of that Province should be empowered to enrol Advocates in the same way as the High Courts are empowered by their Letters Patent, we recommend that the Bill as now amended be passed; but, looking to the alterations we have made in the existing law, we think it well that it should first be published with this report, so as to allow an opportunity for criticism by the public before the subject is again brought up in Council.

CHAPTER VIII.—Miscellaneous.
37. Local Government to appoint establishment.
38. Exemption [illegible] from certain parts of Act.
39. Suspension or dismissal of person holding Mukhtár's and Revenue-agent's certificates.

THE FIRST SCHEDULE.—Enactments repealed.
THE SECOND SCHEDULE.—Fees for certificates.

A Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Legal Practitioners.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to Legal Practitioners in the Lower Provinces of Bengal, the North-Western Provinces, the Panjáb, Oudh, the Central Provinces, Assam and Coorg; and to empower each of the Local Governments of the rest of British India to extend to the territories administered by it such portions of this Act as such Government may think fit; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

CHAPTER I.—Preliminary.

1. This Act may be called "The Legal Practitioners Act, 1879": and shall come into force on the first day of November, 1879.

Short title. Commencement of Act.

This section and section two extend to the whole of British India.

Local extent.

The rest of this Act extends, in the first instance, only to the territories respectively administered by the Lieutenant-Governors of the Lower Provinces of Bengal, the North-Western Provinces and the Panjáb, and the Chief Commissioners of Oudh, the Central Provinces, Assam and Coorg. But any other Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, extend all or any of the provisions of the rest of this Act to the whole or any part of the territories under its administration.

2. On and from the first day of November, 1879, the enactments mentioned in the first schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent specified therein.

Repeal of enactments.

All rules and appointments made, penalties prescribed, fees fixed, persons admitted, names enrolled, certificates issued, sanctions given and orders passed under any enactment hereby repealed shall be deemed to be respectively made, prescribed, fixed, admitted, enrolled, issued, given and passed under this Act.

Saving of rules, &c.

All references made to any enactment hereby repealed, in any Act or Regulation passed, or notification published, shall be read as if made to the corresponding provisions of this Act.

References to repealed enactments.

3. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,—

Interpretation-clause.

"Judge" means the presiding judicial officer in every civil and criminal Court, by whatever title he is designated.

"Judge":

"Subordinate Court" means all Courts subordinate to the High Court, [illegible] established under Act No. IX of 1859 or Act No. XI of 1865:

"Revenue-office" includes all Courts (other than civil Courts) trying suits under any Act for the time being in force relating to landholders and their tenants or agents:

"Legal practitioner" means an Advocate, Vakíl or Attorney of any High Court, a Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent.

CHAPTER II.—Of Advocates, Vakíls and Attorneys.

4. Every person now or hereafter entered as an Advocate or Vakíl on the roll of any High Court under the Letters Patent constituting such Court and who ordinarily practises in such Court or some Court subordinate thereto shall, notwithstanding anything herein contained, be entitled, as such, to practise in any Court in British India other than a High Court on whose roll he is not entered, or, with the permission of the Court, in any High Court on whose roll he is not entered and in any Revenue-office, subject, nevertheless, to the rules in force relating to the language in which the Court or office is to be addressed by Pleaders or Revenue-agents:

Advocates and Vakíls of Chartered High Court.

Provided that no such Vakíl shall be entitled to practise under this section before a Judge of the High Court, Division Court or High Court exercising original jurisdiction.

5. Every person now or hereafter entered as an Attorney on the roll of any High Court and who ordinarily practises in such Court or some Court subordinate thereto shall, notwithstanding anything herein contained, be entitled, as such, to practise in any Court in British India other than a High Court established by Royal Charter on the roll of which he is not entered, and in any Revenue-office.

Attorneys of High Court.

The High Court of the Province in which an Attorney practises under this section may from time to time make rules declaring what shall be deemed to be the functions, powers and duties of an Attorney so practising.

CHAPTER III.—Of Pleaders and Mukhtárs.

6. The High Court may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Act as to the following matters (namely):—

Power to make rules as to qualification, &c., of Pleaders and Mukhtárs.

(a) the qualification, admission and certificates of proper persons to be Pleaders of the subordinate Courts, and of the Revenue-offices situate within the local limits of its appellate jurisdiction, and, in the case of a High Court not established by Royal Charter, of such Court:

(b) the qualification, admission and certificates of proper persons to be Mukhtárs of the subordinate Courts, and, in the case of a High Court not established by Royal Charter, of such Court:

(c) the fees to be paid for the examination and admission of such persons; and

(d) their suspension and dismissal.

All such rules shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law: Provided that in the case of rules made by a High Court not established by Royal Charter, such rules have been previously approved by the Local Government.

Publication of rules.

7. On the admission, under section six, of any person as a Pleader or Mukhtár, the High Court shall cause a certificate, signed by such officer as the Court from time to time appoints in this behalf, to be issued to such person authorizing him to practise up to the end of the current year in the Courts, and, in the case of a Pleader, also the Revenue-offices specified therein.

Certificates to Pleaders and Mukhtárs.

At the expiration of such period, the holder of the certificate, if he desires to continue to practise, shall, subject to any rules consistent with this Act which may from time to time be made by the High Court in this behalf, be entitled to have his certificate renewed by the Judge of the District Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction he then ordinarily practises, or by such officer as the High Court from time to time appoints in this behalf.

On every such renewal, the certificate then in possession of such Pleader or Mukhtár shall be cancelled and retained by such Judge or officer.

Every certificate so renewed shall be signed by such Judge or officer, and shall continue in force up to the end of the current year.

Every Judge or officer so renewing a certificate shall notify such renewal to the High Court.

8. Every Pleader holding a certificate issued under section seven may apply to be enrolled in any Court or Revenue-office mentioned therein and situate within the local limits of the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court by which he has been admitted; and, subject to such rules consistent with this Act as the High Court or the Chief Controlling Revenue authority may from time to time make in this behalf, the presiding Judge or officer shall enrol him accordingly; and thereupon he may appear, plead and act in such Court or office or in any Court or Revenue-office subordinate thereto.

Pleaders on enrolment may practise in Courts and Revenue-offices.

9. Every Mukhtár holding a certificate issued under section seven may apply to be enrolled in any civil or criminal Court mentioned therein and situate within the same limits; and, subject to such rules as the High Court may from time to time make in this behalf, the presiding Judge shall enrol him accordingly; and thereupon he may practise as a Mukhtár in any such civil Court and any Court subordinate thereto, and may (subject to the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, section 186) appear, plead and act in any such criminal Court and any Court subordinate thereto.

Mukhtárs on enrolment may practise in Courts.

10. Except as provided by this Act or any other enactment for the time being in force, no person shall practise as a Pleader or Mukhtár in any Court not established by Royal Charter unless he holds a certificate issued under section seven and has been enrolled in such Court or in some Court to which it is subordinate:

No person to practise as Pleader or Mukhtár unless qualified.

Provided that persons who have been admitted as Revenue-agents before the first day of November, 1879, and hold certificates, as such, under this Act in the territories subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal may be enrolled in manner provided by section nine in any Munsif's Court in the said territories, and on being so enrolled may appear, plead and act in such Court in suits under Bengal Act No. VIII of 1869 (to amend the procedure in suits between Landlord and Tenant) or under any other Act for the time being in force regulating the procedure in suits between landholders and their tenants and agents.

Revenue-agents may appear, plead and act in Munsif's Courts in suits under Bengal Act VIII of 1869.

11. The High Court may from time to time make rules declaring what shall be deemed to be the functions, powers and duties of Mukhtárs practising in the subordinate Courts, and, in the case of a High Court not established by Royal Charter, in such Court.

Power to determine functions of Mukhtárs.

12. The High Court may suspend or dismiss any Pleader or Mukhtár holding a certificate issued under section seven who is convicted of any criminal offence.

Dismissal of Pleader or Mukhtár convicted of criminal offence.

13. The High Court may also, after such enquiry as it thinks fit, suspend or dismiss any Pleader or Mukhtár holding a certificate as aforesaid who is guilty of fraudulent or grossly improper conduct in the discharge of his professional duty, or for any other reasonable cause.

Dismissal of Pleader or Mukhtár guilty of unprofessional conduct.

14. If any such Pleader or Mukhtár practising in any subordinate Court or in any Revenue-office is charged in such Court or office with any such misconduct as aforesaid, the presiding officer shall send him a copy of the charge and also a notice that, on a day to be therein appointed, such charge will be taken into consideration.

Procedure when charge of unprofessional conduct is brought in a subordinate Court or Revenue-office.

Such copy and notice shall be served upon the Pleader or Mukhtár at least ten days before the day so appointed.

On such day or on any subsequent day to which the enquiry may be adjourned, the presiding officer shall receive and record all evidence properly produced in support of the charge, or by the Pleader or Mukhtár, and shall proceed to adjudicate on the charge.

If such officer finds the charge established, and considers that the Pleader or Mukhtár should be suspended or dismissed in consequence, he shall record his finding and the grounds thereof, and shall report the same to the High Court, and the High Court may acquit, suspend or dismiss the Pleader or Mukhtár.

Any District Judge, or with his sanction any Judge subordinate to him, any District Magistrate, or with his sanction any Magistrate subordinate to him, and any Revenue authority not inferior to a Collector, or with the Collector's sanction, any Revenue-officer subordinate to him, may, pending the investigation and the orders of the High Court, suspend from practice any Pleader or Mukhtár charged before him or it under this section.

Suspension pending investigation.

Every report made to the High Court under this section shall—

(a) when made by any Civil Judge subordinate to the District Judge, be made through such Judge;

(b) when made by a Magistrate subordinate to the Magistrate of the District, be made through the Magistrate of the District and the Sessions Judge;

(c) when made by the Magistrate of the District, be made through the Sessions Judge;

(d) when made by any Revenue-officer subordinate to the Chief Controlling Revenue authority, be made through such Revenue authorities as the Chief Controlling Revenue authority may from time to time direct.

Every such report shall be accompanied by the opinion of each Judge, Magistrate or Revenue authority through whom or which it is made.

15. The High Court, in any case in which a Pleader or Mukhtár has been acquitted under section fourteen otherwise than by an order of the High Court, may call for the record and pass such order thereon as it thinks fit.

Power to call for record in case of acquittal under section 14.

16. Notwithstanding anything contained in any Letters Patent or in the Code of Civil Procedure, section 37, clause (a), any High Court established by Royal Charter may from time to time make rules consistent with this Act as to the following matters (namely):—

Power to make rules for Mukhtárs on Appellate side of High Court.

(a) the qualification and admission of proper persons to be Mukhtárs practising on the Appellate side of such Court;

(b) the fees to be paid for the examination and admission of such persons;

(c) the security which they may be required to give for their honesty and good conduct;

(d) their suspension and dismissal; and

(e) declaring what shall be deemed to be their functions, powers and duties;

and may prescribe and impose fines for the infringement of such rules not exceeding in any case five hundred rupees; and such fines, when imposed, may be recovered as if they had been imposed in the exercise of the High Court's ordinary original criminal jurisdiction.

CHAPTER IV.—Of Revenue-agents.

17. The Chief Controlling Revenue authority may from time to time make rules consistent with this Act as to the following matters (namely):—

Power to make rules as to qualifications, &c., of Revenue-agents.

(a) the qualification, admission and certificates of proper persons to be Revenue-agents;

(b) the fees to be paid for the examination and admission of such persons;

(c) their suspension and dismissal; and

(d) declaring what shall be deemed to be their functions, powers and duties.

All such rules shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

Publication of rules.

18. On the admission of any person as a Revenue-agent under section seventeen, the Chief Controlling Revenue authority, signed by such officer as such Authority from time to time appoints in this behalf, to be issued to such person, authorizing him to practise up to the end of the current year in such Revenue-offices as may be specified therein.

Certificates to Revenue-agents.

At the expiration of such period, the holder of the certificate, if he desires to continue to practise, shall be entitled to have his certificate renewed by the Secretary of the Chief Controlling Revenue authority, or by any other officer authorized by such Authority in that behalf.

On every such renewal, the certificate then in the possession of such Revenue-agent shall be cancelled and retained by such Secretary or other officer.

Every certificate so renewed shall be signed by such Secretary or other officer and shall continue in force to the end of the current year.

Every officer so renewing a certificate shall notify the renewal to the Chief Controlling Revenue authority.

19. Every Revenue-agent holding a certificate issued under section eighteen may apply to be enrolled in any Revenue-office mentioned therein and situate within the limits of the territory under the Chief Controlling Revenue authority; and, subject to such rules as the Chief Controlling Revenue authority may from time to time make in this behalf, the officer presiding in such office shall enrol him accordingly, and thereupon he may practise as a Revenue-agent in such office and in any Revenue-office subordinate thereto.

Enrolment of Revenue-agent.

20. Except as provided by any enactment for the time being in force, no person, other than a Pleader duly qualified under the provisions hereinbefore contained, shall practise as a Revenue-agent in any Revenue-office, unless he holds a certificate issued under section eighteen and has been enrolled in such office or some other office to which it is subordinate:

No person to act as agent in Revenue-offices unless qualified.

Provided that any person duly authorized in this behalf may, with the sanction of the Chief Controlling Revenue authority, or of an officer empowered by the Local Government in this behalf, transact all or any business in which his employer may be concerned in any Revenue-office.

The sanction mentioned in this section may be general or special, and may at any time be revoked or suspended by the authority or officer granting the same.

21. The Chief Controlling Revenue authority may suspend or dismiss any Revenue-agent holding a certificate issued under this Act who is convicted of any criminal offence.

Dismissal of Revenue-agent convicted of criminal offence.

22. The Chief Controlling Revenue authority may also, after making such enquiry as it thinks fit, suspend or dismiss any Revenue-agent holding a certificate issued under this Act who is guilty of fraudulent or grossly improper conduct in the discharge of his professional duty, or for any other reasonable cause.

Dismissal of Revenue-agent guilty of unprofessional conduct.

23. If any Revenue-agent holding a certificate issued under this Act is charged with any such misconduct in any office subordinate to the Chief Controlling Revenue authority, or in the Court of any Munsif, the officer at the head of such office, or such Munsif, as the case may be, shall send him a copy of the charge, and also a notice that, on a day to be therein appointed, such charge will be taken into consideration.

Procedure when charge of unprofessional conduct is brought in a subordinate office.

Such copy and notice shall be served upon the person charged at least ten days before the day so appointed. On such day or on any other day to which the enquiry may be adjourned, the officer or Munsif shall receive all evidence properly produced in support of the charge, or by the person charged, and shall proceed to adjudicate on the charge.

If the officer or Munsif finds the charge established, and considers that the person charged should be suspended or dismissed in consequence, he shall record his finding and the grounds thereof, and report the same to the Chief Controlling Revenue authority; and such Authority shall proceed to acquit, suspend or dismiss him.

Any Revenue-officer not inferior to a Collector, and with the Collector's sanction, any Revenue-officer subordinate to him, or any Munsif in his district, may, pending the investigation and the orders of the Chief Controlling Revenue authority, suspend from practice any Revenue-agent charged before him under this section.

Where any officer acting under this section is subordinate to the Commissioner of a Division, he shall transmit the report through such Commissioner, who shall forward with the same an expression of his own opinion on the case.

Power to Chief Controlling Revenue authority to call for record.

24. The Chief Controlling Revenue authority, in any case in which a Revenue-agent has been acquitted under section twenty-three otherwise than by an order of the Chief Controlling Revenue authority, may call for the record and pass such order thereon as seems fit.

CHAPTER V.—Of Certificates.

Fee for certificates.

25. Every certificate, whether original or renewed, issued under this Act shall be written upon stamped paper of the value prescribed therefor in the second schedule hereto annexed:

Provided that a certificate issued on or after the first day of July in any year may be written on stamped paper of half the value so prescribed.

Dismissed practitioners to surrender certificates.

26. When any Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent is suspended or dismissed under this Act, he shall forthwith deliver up his certificate to the Court or officer at the head of the office before or in which he was practising at the time he was so suspended or dismissed, or to any Court or officer to which the High Court or Chief Controlling Revenue authority (as the case may be) orders him to deliver the same.

CHAPTER VI.—Of the Remuneration of Pleaders, Mukhtárs and Revenue-agents.

High Court and Chief Controlling Revenue authority to fix fees on civil and revenue proceedings.

27. The High Court shall from time to time fix and regulate the fees payable by any party in respect of the fees of his adversary's Advocate, Pleader, Vakíl, Mukhtár or Attorney upon all proceedings (a) on the Appellate side of such Court, (b) in the case of a High Court not established by Royal Charter, on its original side, and (c) in subordinate Courts.

The Chief Controlling Revenue authority shall from time to time fix and regulate the fees payable upon all proceedings in the Revenue-offices by any party in respect of the fees of his adversary's Advocate, Pleader, Vakíl, Attorney, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent.

Tables of the fees so fixed shall be published in the local official Gazette.

Exception as to Agents mentioned in section 20.

Nothing in this section applies to the Agents mentioned in the proviso to section twenty.

Agreements with clients.

28. No agreement entered into by any Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent with any person retaining or employing him respecting the amount and manner of payment for the whole or any part of any past or future services, fees, charges or disbursements in respect of business done or to be done by such Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent, shall be valid unless it is made in writing signed by such person, and is, within fifteen days from the day on which it is executed, filed in the District Court or in some Court in which some portion of the business in respect of which it has been executed has been or is to be done.

Power to modify or cancel agreements.

29. Where a suit is brought to enforce any such agreement, if the agreement is not proved to be fair and reasonable, the Court may reduce the amount payable thereunder or order it to be cancelled, and the costs, fees, charges and disbursements in respect of the business done to be ascertained in the same manner as if no such agreement had been made.

Agreements to exclude further claims.

30. Such an agreement shall exclude any further claim of the Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent beyond the terms of the agreement in respect of any services, fees, charges or disbursements in relation to the conduct and completion of the business in respect of which the agreement is made, except such services, fees, charges or disbursements, if any, as are expressly excepted by the agreement.

Reservation of responsibility for negligence.

31. A provision in any such agreement that the Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent shall not be liable for negligence, or that he shall be relieved from any responsibility to which he would otherwise be subject as such Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent, shall be wholly void.

CHAPTER VII.—Penalties.

On persons illegally practising as Pleaders, Mukhtárs or Revenue-agents.

32. Any person who practises in any Court or Revenue-office in contravention of the provisions of section ten or section twenty shall be liable, by order of such Court or the officer at the head of such office, to a fine not exceeding ten times the amount of the stamp required by this Act for a certificate authorizing him so to practise in such Court or office, and, in default of payment, to imprisonment in the civil jail for a term which may extend to six months.

He shall also be incapable of maintaining any suit for, or enforcing any lien in respect of, any fee or reward for, or in respect of, anything done or any disbursement made by him as Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent whilst he has been contravening the provisions of either of such sections.

On suspended or dismissed Pleader, &c., failing to deliver certificate.

33. Any Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent failing to deliver up his certificate as required by section twenty-six shall be liable, by order of the Court, Authority or officer to which or to whom, or according to whose orders, the delivery should be made, to a fine not exceeding two hundred rupees, and, in default of payment, to imprisonment in the civil jail for a term which may extend to three months.

On suspended or dismissed practitioner practising during suspension or after dismissal.

34. Any Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent who, under the provisions of this Act, has been suspended or dismissed, and who, during such suspension or after such dismissal, practises as a Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent in any Court or Revenue-office, shall be liable, by order of such Court or the officer at the head of such office, to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, and, in default of payment, to imprisonment in the civil jail for a term which may extend to six months.

Revision of fines.

35. Every order under section thirty-two, thirty-three or thirty-four shall be subject to revision by the High Court where the order has been passed by a subordinate Court, and by the Chief Controlling Revenue authority where the order has been passed by an officer subordinate to such Authority.

Penalty for receiving or giving commission.

36. Whoever commits any of the following offences—

(a) solicits or receives from any legal practitioner any gratification in consideration of procuring or having procured his employment in any legal business:

(b) retains any gratification out of remuneration paid or delivered or agreed to be paid or delivered to any legal practitioner for such employment:

(c) being a legal practitioner, tenders, gives or consents to the retention of any gratification for procuring or having procured the employment in any legal business of himself or any other legal practitioner, shall be punished with simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

CHAPTER VIII.—Miscellaneous.

Local Government to appoint examiners.

37. To facilitate the ascertainment of the qualifications respectively mentioned in sections six and seventeen, the Local Government shall from time to time appoint persons to be examiners for the purposes aforesaid, and make regulations for conducting such examinations.

Exemption of High Court practitioners from certain parts of Act.

38. Except as provided by sections four, five, sixteen, and twenty-seven and in chapter VII, nothing in this Act applies to Advocates, Vakíls and Attorneys admitted and enrolled by any High Court under the Letters Patent by which such Court is constituted, or to Mukhtárs practising [illegible]

Suspension or dismissal of person holding Mukhtár's and Revenue-agent's certificates.

39. When any person who holds a certificate as a Mukhtár under section seven and a certificate as a Revenue-agent under section eighteen is suspended or dismissed in one of such capacities, he shall be deemed to be suspended or dismissed, as the case may be, also in the other.

PART V.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third publication.]

[illegible] was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 21st August 1879 :—

We, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend the Pleaders, Mukhtárs and Revenue-agents Act, 1865, was referred, have the honour to report that we have considered the papers specified in the annexed list and made some amendments which have been urged upon us as desirable.

2. We have, at the instance of the Local Governments concerned, made the Bill directly applicable to the Central Provinces and Coorg.

3. Sections 45 and 46 of Act XX of 1865 have been objected to on the ground that they enable an Advocate, Vakíl or Attorney of a High Court who has failed in practice, or perhaps is under a cloud in his own province but has not been struck off the roll, to withdraw to another province and practise in the subordinate Courts there, subject to no control, except such as might possibly be exercised over him by the circuitous process of moving his own High Court, which would have no longer any interest in his proceedings, to strike him off its roll. To guard against this, we have in sections 4 and 5 of the Bill made it a condition of an Advocate, Vakíl or Attorney of a High Court being entitled to practise in another province that he shall be ordinarily practising in his own province. The result of this will be that such Advocates, Vakíls and Attorneys as may occasionally be retained to appear in a case in a neighbouring province can appear in the Courts there as at present, but that if an Advocate, Vakíl or Attorney desires to migrate from his own province and settle down to practise in another province, he must have himself enrolled in that other province.

4. In order to remove a doubt which has been felt in some quarters as to the functions which an Attorney practising under this Bill and a Mukhtár and Revenue-agent may discharge, we have in sections 5, 11, 16 and 17 empowered the High Court and Chief Controlling Revenue-authority to define those functions.

5. At the suggestion of Mr. Justice Jackson we have restricted the exceptional privilege conferred on Revenue-agents in Bengal by Act IV of 1876, of acting as Pleaders in the Munsifs' Courts, to Revenue-agents admitted before this Bill becomes law.

6. The power given by section 16 of Act XX of 1865 to any Court before which a Pleader or Mukhtár was charged with misconduct to suspend him from practising in such Court seemed to place the Pleader or Mukhtár so suspended in the anomalous position of being suspended in one Court and being permitted to practise in another Court perhaps held in the next room. For this reason, as well as because it has been urged by several of the authorities consulted that Judges of the lowest grades should not have power to suspend a Pleader or Mukhtár on their own authority, we have (in section 14) restricted the power of suspension to the District Judge, District Magistrate and Collector, and inferior officers acting with their previous sanction; and we have made the suspension general and absolute instead of being restricted to the particular Court before which the offender may be charged.

7. In section 39 we have provided that when a person who holds certificates both as Mukhtár and Revenue-agent is suspended or dismissed in one capacity, he shall be deemed to be suspended or dismissed in the other as well.

8. We have carefully considered the question, which has more than once been discussed, and has now again been raised, as to the necessity of placing some restriction upon contracts, regarding the remuneration for services performed by legal practitioners. We are not prepared to recommend the adoption of the very stringent provisions on this point which appeared in the Bill introduced in 1871; but we think it desirable to provide, as we have done in section 28, that such agreements, when made, should be in writing and should be filed in Court. This we think will not only afford some protection to the client, but will also serve to inform the Court and place it on its guard in those cases in which the Pleader has by the agreement acquired a pecuniary interest in the result of the suit.

9. We have also thought it well to provide expressly in section 29, though it may be that we are here only confirming the existing law, that, when a suit is brought on an agreement between a legal practitioner and his client, the Court, unless such agreement is proved to be fair and reasonable, may reduce the amount payable under it, or set it aside altogether.

10. Section 36 has been framed to put a stop to what is commonly known as the "touting" system—a system under which certain legal practitioners reward a Mukhtár or other hanger-on of the Court who brings them business by allowing him a percentage on their fees. It is obvious that such a system, besides the degradation it involves to legal practitioners who resort to it as a means of obtaining business, also holds out to the Mukhtár or other go-between a strong temptation to retain for his employer, not the most skilful Pleader he can get for the fee allowed, but the Pleader who will pay him the largest commission.

The only objection we have heard to the abolition of this most objectionable system has proceeded from certain Mukhtárs, who urge that the commission allowed them by Vakíls is not a remuneration for procuring the employment of such Vakíls, but a payment for assistance rendered by them to such Vakíls by performing certain duties which would in other cases be performed by an Attorney.

The answer to this objection, it appears to us, is that, when the transaction is one bond fide of the nature thus described, the Mukhtár can find no difficulty in agreeing with his employer to receive direct from him any remuneration to which he may be entitled.

11. It has been suggested to us that we might shorten the Bill considerably and improve its form by consolidating into one series of enactments the portion of it relating to Vakíls and Mukhtárs and that relating to Revenue-agents. We have, however, abstained from doing so, as we fear that Local Governments desiring to extend the former portion without the latter, as, e.g., it is probable the Government of Madras will wish to do, would not find the Act so convenient for their purposes if thus altered.

12. The Bill in its second stage and preliminary Report of the Select Committee were published in English in the Gazette of India and the Central Provinces Gazette, and in English and the vernacular in the Calcutta Gazette. Subject to further consideration of the request of the Government of the Panjáb, that the Chief Court of that Province should be empowered to enrol Advocates in the same way as the High Courts are empowered by their Letters Patent, we recommend that the Bill as now amended be passed; but, looking to the alterations we have made in the existing law, we think it well that it should first be published with this report, so as to allow an opportunity for criticism by the public before the subject is again brought up in Council.

A Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Legal Practitioners.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to Legal Practitioners in the Lower Provinces of Bengal, the North-Western Provinces, the Panjáb, Oudh, the Central Provinces, Assam and Coorg; and to empower each of the Local Governments of the rest of British India to extend to the territories administered by it such portions of this Act as such Government may think fit; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

CHAPTER I.—Preliminary.

1. This Act may be called "The Legal Practitioners Act, 1879": and shall come into force on the first day of November, 1879.

Short title. Commencement of Act.

This section and section two extend to the whole of British India.

Local extent.

The rest of this Act extends, in the first instance, only to the territories respectively administered by the Lieutenant-Governors of the Lower Provinces of Bengal, the North-Western Provinces and the Panjáb, and the Chief Commissioners of Oudh, the Central Provinces, Assam and Coorg. But any other Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, extend all or any of the provisions of the rest of this Act to the whole or any part of the territories under its administration.

2. On and from the first day of November, 1879, the enactments mentioned in the first schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent specified therein.

Repeal of enactments.

All rules and appointments made, penalties prescribed, fees fixed, persons admitted, names enrolled, certificates issued, sanctions given and orders passed under any enactment hereby repealed shall be deemed to be respectively made, prescribed, fixed, admitted, enrolled, issued, given and passed under this Act.

Saving of rules, &c.

All references made to any enactment hereby repealed, in any Act or Regulation passed, or notification published, shall be read as if made to the corresponding provisions of this Act.

References to repealed enactments.

3. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,—

Interpretation-clause.

"Judge" means the presiding judicial officer in every civil and criminal Court, by whatever title he is designated:

"Judge":

"Subordinate Court" means all Courts subordinate to the High Court, including Courts of small causes established under Act No. IX of 1850 or Act No. XI of 1865:

"Subordinate Court":

"Revenue-office" includes all Courts (other than civil Courts) trying suits under any Act for the time being in force relating to landholders and their tenants or agents:

"Revenue-office."

"Legal practitioner" means an Advocate, Vakíl or Attorney of any High Court, a Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent.

CHAPTER II.—Of Advocates, Vakíls and Attorneys.

4. Every person now or hereafter entered as an Advocate or Vakíl on the roll of any High Court under the Letters Patent constituting such Court and who ordinarily practises in such Court or some Court subordinate thereto shall, notwithstanding anything herein contained, be entitled, as such, to practise in any Court in British India other than a High Court on whose roll he is not entered, or, with the permission of the Court, in any High Court on whose roll he is not entered and in any Revenue-office, subject, nevertheless, to the rules in force relating to the language in which the Court or office is to be addressed by Pleaders or Revenue-agents:

Advocates and Vakíls of Chartered High Court.

Provided that no such Vakíl shall be entitled to practise under this section before a Judge of the High Court, Division Court or High Court exercising original jurisdiction.

5. Every person now or hereafter entered as an Attorney on the roll of any High Court and who ordinarily practises in such Court or some Court subordinate thereto shall, notwithstanding anything herein contained, be entitled, as such, to practise in any Court in British India other than a High Court established by Royal Charter on the roll of which he is not entered, and in any Revenue-office.

Attorneys of High Court.

The High Court of the Province in which an Attorney practises under this section may from time to time make rules declaring what shall be deemed to be the functions, powers and duties of an Attorney so practising.

CHAPTER III.—Of Pleaders and Mukhtárs.

6. The High Court may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Act as to the following matters (namely):—

Power to make rules as to qualification, &c., of Pleaders and Mukhtárs.

(a) the qualification, admission and certificates of proper persons to be Pleaders of the subordinate Courts, and of the Revenue-offices situate within the local limits of its appellate jurisdiction, and, in the case of a High Court not established by Royal Charter, of such Court:

(b) the qualification, admission and certificates of proper persons to be Mukhtárs of the subordinate Courts, and, in the case of a High Court not established by Royal Charter, of such Court:

(c) the fees to be paid for the examination and admission of such persons; and

(d) their suspension and dismissal.

All such rules shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law: Provided that in the case of rules made by a High Court not established by Royal Charter such rules have been previously approved by the Local Government.

Publication of rules.

7. On the admission, under section six, of any person as a Pleader or Mukhtár, the High Court shall cause a certificate, signed by such officer as the Court from time to time appoints in this behalf, to be issued to such person authorizing him to practise up to the end of the current year in the Courts, and, in the case of a Pleader, also the Revenue-offices specified therein.

Certificates to Pleaders and Mukhtárs.

At the expiration of such period, the holder of the certificate, if he desires to continue to practise, shall, subject to any rules consistent with this Act which may from time to time be made by the High Court in this behalf, be entitled to have his certificate renewed by the Judge of the District Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction he then ordinarily practises, or by such officer as the High Court from time to time appoints in this behalf.

On every such renewal, the certificate then in possession of such Pleader or Mukhtár shall be cancelled and retained by such Judge or officer.

Every certificate so renewed shall be signed by such Judge or officer, and shall continue in force up to the end of the current year.

Every Judge or officer so renewing a certificate shall notify such renewal to the High Court.

8. Every Pleader holding a certificate issued under section seven may apply to be enrolled in any Court or Revenue-office mentioned therein and situate within the local limits of the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court by which he has been admitted; and, subject to such rules consistent with this Act as the High Court or the Chief Controlling Revenue authority may from time to time make in this behalf, the presiding Judge or officer shall enrol him accordingly; and thereupon he may appear, plead and act in such Court or office or in any Court or Revenue-office subordinate thereto.

Pleaders on enrolment may practise in Courts and Revenue-offices.

9. Every Mukhtár holding a certificate issued under section seven may apply to be enrolled in any civil or criminal Court mentioned therein and situate within the same limits; and, subject to such rules as the High Court may from time to time make in this behalf, the presiding Judge shall enrol him accordingly; and thereupon he may practise as a Mukhtár in any such civil Court and any Court subordinate thereto, and may (subject to the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, section 186) appear, plead and act in any such criminal Court and any Court subordinate thereto.

Mukhtárs on enrolment may practise in Courts.

10. Except as provided by this Act or any other enactment for the time being in force, no person shall practise as a Pleader or Mukhtár in any Court not established by Royal Charter unless he holds a certificate issued under section seven and has been enrolled in such Court or in some Court to which it is subordinate:

No person to practise as Pleader or Mukhtár unless qualified.

Provided that persons who have been admitted as Revenue-agents before the first day of November, 1879, and hold certificates, as such, under this Act in the territories subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal may be enrolled in manner provided by section nine in any Munsif's Court in the said territories, and on being so enrolled may appear, plead and act in such Court in suits under Bengal Act No. VIII of 1869 (to amend the procedure in suits between Landlord and Tenant) or under any other Act for the time being in force regulating the procedure in suits between landholders and their tenants and agents.

Revenue-agents may appear, plead and act in Munsif's Courts in suits under Bengal Act VIII of 1869.

11. The High Court may from time to time make rules declaring what shall be deemed to be the functions, powers and duties of Mukhtárs practising in the subordinate Courts, and, in the case of a High Court not established by Royal Charter, in such Court.

Power to determine functions of Mukhtárs.

12. The High Court may suspend or dismiss any Pleader or Mukhtár holding a certificate issued under section seven who is convicted of any criminal offence.

Dismissal of Pleader or Mukhtár convicted of criminal offence.

13. The High Court may also, after such enquiry as it thinks fit, suspend or dismiss any Pleader or Mukhtár holding a certificate as aforesaid who is guilty of fraudulent or grossly improper conduct in the discharge of his professional duty, or for any other reasonable cause.

Dismissal of Pleader or Mukhtár guilty of unprofessional conduct.

14. If any such Pleader or Mukhtár practising in any subordinate Court or in any Revenue-office is charged in such Court or office with any such misconduct as aforesaid, the presiding officer shall send him a copy of the charge and also a notice that, on a day to be therein appointed, such charge will be taken into consideration.

Procedure when charge of unprofessional conduct is brought in a subordinate Court or Revenue-office.

Such copy and notice shall be served upon the Pleader or Mukhtár at least ten days before the day so appointed.

On such day or on any subsequent day to which the enquiry may be adjourned, the presiding officer shall receive and record all evidence properly produced in support of the charge, or by the Pleader or Mukhtár, and shall proceed to adjudicate on the charge.

If such officer finds the charge established, and considers that the Pleader or Mukhtár should be suspended or dismissed in consequence, he shall record his finding and the grounds thereof, and shall report the same to the High Court, and the High Court may acquit, suspend or dismiss the Pleader or Mukhtár.

Any District Judge, or with his sanction any Judge subordinate to him, any District Magistrate, or with his sanction any Magistrate subordinate to him, and any Revenue authority not inferior to a Collector, or with the Collector's sanction, any Revenue-officer subordinate to him, may, pending the investigation and the orders of the High Court, suspend from practice any Pleader or Mukhtár charged before him or it under this section.

Suspension pending investigation

Every report made to the High Court under this section shall—

(a) when made by any Civil Judge subordinate to the District Judge, be made through such Judge;

(b) when made by a Magistrate subordinate to the Magistrate of the District, be made through the Magistrate of the District and the Sessions Judge;

(c) when made by the Magistrate of the District, be made through the Sessions Judge;

(d) when made by any Revenue-officer subordinate to the Chief Controlling Revenue authority, be made through such Revenue authorities as the Chief Controlling Revenue authority may from time to time direct.

Every such report shall be accompanied by the opinion of each Judge, Magistrate or Revenue authority through whom or which it is made.

15. The High Court, in any case in which a Pleader or Mukhtár has been acquitted under section fourteen otherwise than by an order of the High Court, may call for the record and pass such order thereon as it thinks fit.

Power to call for record in case of acquittal under section 14.

16. Notwithstanding anything contained in any Letters Patent or in the Code of Civil Procedure, section 37, clause (a), any High Court established by Royal Charter may from time to time make rules consistent with this Act as to the following matters (namely):—

Power to make rules for Mukhtárs on Appellate side of High Court.

(a) the qualification and admission of proper persons to be Mukhtárs practising on the Appellate side of such Court;

(b) the fees to be paid for the examination and admission of such persons;

(c) the security which they may be required to give for their honesty and good conduct;

(d) their suspension and dismissal; and

(e) declaring what shall be deemed to be their functions, powers and duties;

and may prescribe and impose fines for the infringement of such rules not exceeding in any case five hundred rupees; and such fines, when imposed, may be recovered as if they had been imposed in the exercise of the High Court's ordinary original criminal jurisdiction:

CHAPTER IV.—Of Revenue-agents.

17. The Chief Controlling Revenue authority may from time to time make rules consistent with this Act as to the following matters (namely):—

Power to make rules as to qualifications, &c., of Revenue-agents.

(a) the qualification, admission and certificates of proper persons to be Revenue-agents;

(b) the fees to be paid for the examination and admission of such persons;

(c) their suspension and dismissal; and

(d) declaring what shall be deemed to be their functions, powers and duties.

All such rules shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

Publication of rules.

18. On the admission of any person as a Revenue-agent under section seventeen, the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority shall cause a certificate, signed by such officer as such Authority from time to time appoints in this behalf, to be issued to such person, authorizing him to practise up to the end of the current year in such Revenue-offices as may be specified therein.

Certificates to Revenue-agents.

At the expiration of such period, the holder of the certificate, if he desires to continue to practise, shall be entitled to have his certificate renewed by the Secretary of the Chief Controlling Revenue authority, or by any other officer authorized by such Authority in that behalf.

On every such renewal, the certificate then in the possession of such Revenue-agent shall be cancelled and retained by such Secretary or other officer.

Every certificate so renewed shall be signed by such Secretary or other officer and shall continue in force to the end of the current year.

Every officer so renewing a certificate shall notify the renewal to the Chief Controlling Revenue authority.

19. Every Revenue-agent holding a certificate issued under section eighteen may apply to be enrolled in any Revenue-office mentioned therein and situate within the limits of the territory under the Chief Controlling Revenue authority; and, subject to such rules as the Chief Controlling Revenue authority may from time to time make in this behalf, the officer presiding in such office shall enrol him accordingly, and thereupon he may practise as a Revenue-agent in such office and in any Revenue-office subordinate thereto.

Enrolment of Revenue-agent.

20. Except as provided by any enactment for the time being in force, no person, other than a Pleader duly qualified under the provisions hereinbefore contained, shall practise as a Revenue-agent in any Revenue-office, unless he holds a certificate issued under section eighteen and has been enrolled in such office or some other office to which it is subordinate:

No person to act as agent in Revenue-offices unless qualified.

Provided that any person duly authorized in this behalf may, with the sanction of the Chief Controlling Revenue authority, or of an officer empowered by the Local Government in this behalf, transact all or any business in which his employer may be concerned in any Revenue-office.

The sanction mentioned in this section may be general or special, and may at any time be revoked or suspended by the authority or officer granting the same.

21. The Chief Controlling Revenue authority may suspend or dismiss any Revenue-agent holding a certificate issued under this Act who is convicted of any criminal offence.

Dismissal of Revenue-agent convicted of criminal offence.

22. The Chief Controlling Revenue authority may also, after making such enquiry as it thinks fit, suspend or dismiss any Revenue-agent holding a certificate issued under this Act who is guilty of fraudulent or grossly improper conduct in the discharge of his professional duty, or for any other reasonable cause.

Dismissal of Revenue-agent guilty of unprofessional conduct.

23. If any Revenue-agent holding a certificate issued under this Act is charged with any such conduct in any office subordinate to the Chief Controlling Revenue authority, or in the Court of any Munsif, the officer at the head of such office, or such Munsif, as the case may be, shall send him a copy of the charge, and also a notice that, on a day to be therein appointed, such charge will be taken into consideration.

Procedure when Revenue-agent is so charged in subordinate office.

Such copy and notice shall be served upon the person charged at least ten days before the day so appointed. On such day or on any other day to which the enquiry may be adjourned, the officer or Munsif shall receive all evidence properly produced in support of the charge, or by the person charged, and shall proceed to adjudicate on the charge.

If the officer or Munsif finds the charge established, and considers that the person charged should be suspended or dismissed in consequence, he shall record his finding and the grounds thereof, and report the same to the Chief Controlling Revenue authority; and such Authority shall proceed to acquit, suspend or dismiss him.

Any Revenue-officer not inferior to a Collector, and with the Collector's sanction, any Revenue-officer subordinate to him, or any Munsif in his district, may, pending the investigation and the orders of the Chief Controlling Revenue authority, suspend from practice any Revenue-agent charged before him under this section.

Where any officer acting under this section is subordinate to the Commissioner of a Division, he shall transmit the report through such Commissioner, who shall forward with the same an expression of his own opinion on the case.

Power to Chief Controlling Revenue authority to call for record.

24. The Chief Controlling Revenue authority, in any case in which a Revenue-agent has been acquitted under section twenty-three otherwise than by an order of the Chief Controlling Revenue authority, may call for the record and pass such order thereon as seems fit.

CHAPTER V.—Of Certificates.

Fee for certificates.

25. Every certificate, whether original or renewed, issued under this Act shall be written upon stamped paper of the value prescribed therefor in the second schedule hereto annexed:

Provided that a certificate issued on or after the first day of July in any year may be written on stamped paper of half the value so prescribed.

Dismissed practitioners to surrender certificates.

26. When any Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent is suspended or dismissed under this Act, he shall forthwith deliver up his certificate to the Court or officer at the head of the office before or in which he was practising at the time he was so suspended or dismissed, or to any Court or officer to which the High Court or Chief Controlling Revenue authority (as the case may be) orders him to deliver the same.

CHAPTER VI.—Of the Remuneration of Pleaders, Mukhtárs and Revenue-agents.

High Court and Chief Controlling Revenue authority to fix fees on civil and revenue proceedings.

27. The High Court shall from time to time fix and regulate the fees payable by any party in respect of the fees of his adversary's Advocate, Pleader, Vakíl, Mukhtár or Attorney upon all proceedings (a) on the Appellate side of such Court, (b) in the case of a High Court not established by Royal Charter, on its original side, and (c) in subordinate Courts.

The Chief Controlling Revenue authority shall from time to time fix and regulate the fees payable upon all proceedings in the Revenue-offices by any party in respect of the fees of his adversary's Advocate, Pleader, Vakíl, Attorney, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent.

Tables of the fees so fixed shall be published in the local official Gazette.

Exception as to Agents mentioned in section 20.

Nothing in this section applies to the Agents mentioned in the proviso to section twenty.

Agreements with clients.

28. No agreement entered into by any Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent with any person retaining or employing him respecting the amount and manner of payment for the whole or any part of any past or future services, fees, charges or disbursements in respect of business done or to be done by such Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent, shall be valid unless it is made in writing signed by such person, and is, within fifteen days from the day on which it is executed, filed in the District Court or in some Court in which some portion of the business in respect of which it has been executed has been or is to be done.

Power to modify or cancel agreements.

29. Where a suit is brought to enforce any such agreement, if the agreement is not proved to be fair and reasonable, the Court may reduce the amount payable thereunder or order it to be cancelled, and the costs, fees, charges and disbursements in respect of the business done to be ascertained in the same manner as if no such agreement had been made.

Agreements to exclude further claims.

30. Such an agreement shall exclude any further claim of the Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent beyond the terms of the agreement in respect of any services, fees, charges or disbursements in relation to the conduct and completion of the business in respect of which the agreement is made, except such services, fees, charges or disbursements, if any, as are expressly excepted by the agreement.

Reservation of responsibility for negligence.

31. A provision in any such agreement that the Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent shall not be liable for negligence, or that he shall be relieved from any responsibility to which he would otherwise be subject as such Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent, shall be wholly void.

CHAPTER VII.—Penalties.

On persons illegally practising as Pleaders, Mukhtárs or Revenue-agents.

32. Any person who practises in any Court or Revenue-office in contravention of the provisions of section ten or section twenty shall be liable, by order of such Court or the officer at the head of such office, to a fine not exceeding ten times the amount of the stamp required by this Act for a certificate authorizing him so to practise in such Court or office, and, in default of payment, to imprisonment in the civil jail for a term which may extend to six months.

He shall also be incapable of maintaining any suit for, or enforcing any lien in respect of, any fee or reward for, or in respect of, anything done or any disbursement made by him as Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent whilst he has been contravening the provisions of either of such sections.

On suspended or dismissed Pleader, &c., failing to deliver certificate.

33. Any Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent failing to deliver up his certificate as required by section twenty-six shall be liable, by order of the Court, Authority or officer to which or to whom, or according to whose orders, the delivery should be made, to a fine not exceeding two hundred rupees, and, in default of payment, to imprisonment in the civil jail for a term which may extend to three months.

On suspended or dismissed practitioner practising during suspension or after dismissal.

34. Any Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent who, under the provisions of this Act, has been suspended or dismissed, and who, during such suspension or after such dismissal, practises as a Pleader, Mukhtár or Revenue-agent in any Court or Revenue-office, shall be liable, by order of such Court or the officer at the head of such office, to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, and, in default of payment, to imprisonment in the civil jail for a term which may extend to six months.

Revision of fines.

35. Every order under section thirty-two, thirty-three or thirty-four shall be subject to revision by the High Court where the order has been passed by a subordinate Court, and by the Chief Controlling Revenue authority where the order has been passed by an officer subordinate to such Authority.

Penalty for receiving or giving commission.

36. Whoever commits any of the following offences—

(a) solicits or receives from any legal practitioner any gratification in consideration of procuring or having procured his employment in any legal business:

(b) retains any gratification out of remuneration paid or delivered or agreed to be paid or delivered to any legal practitioner for such employment:

(c) being a legal practitioner, tenders, gives or consents to the retention of any gratification for procuring or having procured the employment in any legal business of himself or any other legal practitioner, shall be punished with simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

CHAPTER VIII.—Miscellaneous.

Local Government to appoint examiners.

37. To facilitate the ascertainment of the qualifications respectively mentioned in sections six and seventeen, the Local Government shall from time to time appoint persons to be examiners for the purposes aforesaid, and make regulations for conducting such examinations.

Exemption of High Court practitioners from certain parts of Act.

38. Except as provided by sections four, five, sixteen, and twenty-seven and in chapter VII, nothing in this Act applies to Advocates, Vakíls and Attorneys admitted and enrolled by any High Court under the Letters Patent by which such Court is constituted, or to Mukhtárs practising in such Court.

Suspension or dismissal of person holding Mukhtár's and Revenue-agent's certificates.

39. When any person who holds a certificate as a Mukhtár under section seven and a certificate as a Revenue-agent under section eighteen is suspended or dismissed in one of such capacities, he shall be deemed to be suspended or dismissed, as the case may be, also in the other.

A Bill relating to Merchant Shipping.

WHEREAS it is expedient to prevent the departure of unsafe ships from British India; Preamble.

and whereas it is also expedient to provide for the relief of distressed seamen and apprentices at ports in British India, and for the recovery of wages due to and expenses incurred in respect of such seamen and apprentices in cases to which sections 211 to 213 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, and section 16 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1855, do not apply of their own force;

and whereas it is also expedient to provide in other respects hereinafter appearing for the regulation and control of merchant shipping; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

1. This Act may be called "The Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1880": Short title.

and it shall come into force on the first day of January 1880. Commencement.

2. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,— Interpretation-clause.

"ship", except in chapter III, includes anything made for the conveyance by water of human beings or property: "ship":

"master" means any person (except a pilot or harbour-master) having for the time being the charge or control of a ship; "master":

"wreck" includes jetsam, flotsam, lagan and derelict found in or on the shores of the sea or any tidal water: "wreck":

"port" in any provision of this Act includes also any part of a river or channel leading to a port which for the purposes of such provision the Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, declare to be included in such port. "port".

CHAPTER II.

UNSEAWORTHY AND UNSAFE SHIPS.

3. Nothing in this chapter contained shall apply to any ship belonging to, or in the service of, Her Majesty or the Government of India. Saving clause.

In this chapter, "British Indian ship" means a ship registered under Act No. XIX of 1838, Act No. X of 1841, or Act No. XI of 1856, or under any other law passed by the Governor General in Council and for the time being in force for the registration of ships in India; and Interpretation-clause. "British Indian ship":

"British ship" includes a British Indian ship; "British ship":

"manner prescribed" means such manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, by rules published in the official Gazette prescribe. "manner prescribed":

A ship is "unsafe" within the meaning of this chapter when by reason of the defective condition of her hull, equipments or machinery, or by reason of overloading or improper loading, she is unfit to proceed to sea without serious danger to human life, having regard to the nature of the service for which she is intended. "unsafe".

4. Every person who sends or attempts to send a British Indian ship to sea in such unseaworthy state that the life of any person is likely to be thereby endangered, shall, unless he proves that he used all reasonable means to insure her being sent to sea in a seaworthy state, or that her going to sea in such unseaworthy state was under the circumstances reasonable and justifiable, be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both. Every person sending unseaworthy ship to sea liable to penalty.

Every master of a British Indian ship who knowingly takes such ship to sea in such unseaworthy state that the life of any person is likely to be thereby endangered shall, unless he proves that her going to sea in such unseaworthy state was under the circumstances reasonable and justifiable, be punished with imprisonment which may extend to three years, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both. Master taking unseaworthy ship to sea liable to penalty.

For the purpose of giving such proof, every person charged under this section may give evidence in the same manner as any other witness.

No prosecution under this section shall be instituted except by, or with the consent of, the Local Government. Prosecution to be by, or with consent of, Local Government.

Implied Condition of Seaworthiness in Contract of Service.

5. In every contract of service, express or implied, between the owner of a British Indian ship and the master or any seaman thereof, and in every instrument of apprenticeship whereby any person is bound to serve as an apprentice on board any such ship, there shall be implied, notwithstanding any agreement to the contrary, an obligation on the owner that such owner and the master, and every agent charged with the loading of such ship or the preparing thereof for sea, or the sending thereof to sea, shall use all reasonable means to secure the seaworthiness of such ship for the voyage at the time when such voyage commences, and to keep her in a seaworthy state for the voyage during the same: Obligation of owner to crew with respect to use of reasonable efforts to secure seaworthiness.

Provided that nothing in this section shall subject such owner to any liability by reason of such ship being sent to sea in an unseaworthy state where, owing to special circumstances, the so sending her to sea is reasonable and justifiable. Proviso.

Detention of Unsafe Ships by the Local Government.

6. The Local Government, if it has reason to believe, on complaint or otherwise, that a British ship, in any port to which it may from time to time specially extend this section, is unsafe, may pro- Provisional detention by Local Government.

visionally order the detention of such ship for the purpose of being surveyed.

A written statement of the grounds of such detention shall be forthwith served on the master of such ship.

Service of grounds on master.

7. The Local Government may, if it thinks fit, when it provisionally orders the detention of any ship, appoint some competent person to survey such ship and report thereon, and, on receiving the report of such person, may either order the ship to be released, or, if in its opinion the ship is unsafe, may order her to be finally detained.

Power to appoint surveyor.

Action on receipt of his report.

An order of final detention under this section may be either absolute or until the performance of such conditions with respect to the execution of repairs or alterations, or the unloading or reloading of cargo, as the Local Government thinks necessary for the protection of human life; and the Local Government may, from time to time, vary or add to any such order:

Order of final detention.

Provided that, before an order for final detention is made, a copy of the report shall be served upon the master of the ship, and within seven days after such service the owner or master may appeal against such report, in the manner prescribed, to the Court of Survey (hereinafter mentioned) for the port where the ship is detained.

Service of report on master and appeal to Court of Survey.

8. Where a ship has been provisionally detained and a person has been appointed under section seven to survey such ship, the owner or master of the ship, at any time before such person makes such survey, may require that he shall be accompanied by such person as such owner or master may select out of the list of assessors for the Court of Survey (nominated as hereinafter mentioned); and

Option to owner or master of appointing assessor to accompany surveyor.

in such case, if the surveyor and assessor agree that the ship should be detained or released, the Local Government shall cause the ship to be detained or released accordingly, and the owner or master shall have no appeal;

Procedure where surveyor and assessor agree;

but if the surveyor and assessor differ in their report the Local Government may act as if the requisition had not been made, and the owner or master shall have such appeal touching the report of the surveyor as is hereinbefore provided.

where they differ.

9. When a ship has been provisionally detained, the Local Government may at any time, instead of following the procedure hereinbefore provided, refer the matter to the Court of Survey for the port where the ship is detained.

Power to refer to Court of Survey.

Detaining-Officers.

10. For the better execution of this chapter, the Local Government may, from time to time, appoint a sufficient number of fit persons as its officers, and may suspend or remove any of them.

Detaining-officers.

Every officer so appointed (hereinafter referred to as a detaining-officer) shall have, for the purpose of his duties under this chapter, the following powers (that is to say):—

Their powers generally.

(a) he may go on board any British ship and may inspect the same or any part thereof, or any of the machinery, boats or equipments on board thereof, not unnecessarily detaining or delaying her from proceeding on any voyage;

(b) he may, by summons under his hand, require the attendance of all such persons as he thinks fit to call before him and examine, and may require answers or returns to any inquiries he thinks fit to make;

(c) he may require and enforce the production of all books, papers or documents which he considers important; and

(d) he may administer oaths, or may, in lieu of requiring or administering an oath, require every person examined by him to make and subscribe a declaration of the truth of the statements made by him in his examination.

11. Every detaining-officer shall, in addition to the powers hereinbefore conferred, have the same power as the Local Government has under sections six and seven respectively of provisionally ordering the detention of a ship for the purpose of being surveyed, and of appointing a person to survey her; and if he thinks that a ship so detained by him is not unsafe, may order her to be released.

Their power to order provisional detention and survey.

Every such officer shall forthwith report to the Local Government any order made by him for the detention or release of a ship.

Detaining-officer to report to Local Government.

Of the Court of Survey and of Appeals and References thereto.

12. A Court of Survey for a port shall consist of a Judge sitting with two assessors.

Constitution of Court of Survey.

13. The Judge shall be such person as may be summoned for the case, in the manner prescribed, out of a list (from time to time approved for the port by the Local Government) of District Judges, Judges of Courts of Small Causes, Presidency Magistrates, Magistrates of the first class and other fit persons.

The Judge.

14. The assessors shall be persons of nautical, engineering or other special skill and experience. One of them shall be appointed by the Local Government either generally or in each case, and the other shall be summoned, in the manner prescribed, by the Registrar of the Court (to be appointed as hereinafter declared) out of a list of persons periodically nominated for the purpose by the Local Government, or, if there is no such list, shall be appointed by the Judge.

The assessors.

15. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint some fit person to be the Registrar of the Court.

Registrar of the Court.

16. The Registrar shall, on receiving notice of an appeal or a reference from the Local Government, immediately summon the Court, in the manner prescribed, to meet forthwith.

Registrar to summon Court.

17. Every such appeal and reference shall be heard in open Court.

Case to be heard in open Court.

18. The Judge and each assessor shall, for the purposes of this chapter, have the same powers as are by section ten conferred on a detaining-officer.

Powers of Judge and assessors.

19. The Judge may appoint any competent person to survey the ship and report thereon to the Court.

Judge may appoint surveyor.

20. The owner and master of the ship and any person appointed by the owner or master, and also any person appointed by the Local Government, may attend at any inspection or survey made in exercise or pursuance of the powers conferred by section eighteen or section nineteen.

Owner or master may attend at survey.

21. The Judge shall have the same power as the Local Government has to order the ship to be released or finally detained; but, unless one of the assessors concurs in an order for the detention of the ship, the ship shall be released.

Power of Judge to detain or release ship.

22. The Judge shall report the proceedings of the Court in each case to the Local Government in the manner prescribed, and each assessor shall either sign such report or report to the Local Government the reasons for his dissent.

Report to Local Government by Court.

23. The Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, from time to time make rules to carry into effect the provisions of this chapter with respect to a Court of Survey, and in particular with respect to—

Power of Local Government to make rules with respect to Court of Survey.

(a) the procedure before the Court;

(b) the requiring, on an appeal, of security for costs and damages;

(c) the amount and application of fees; and

(d) the ascertainment, in case of dispute, of the proper amount of costs under this chapter.

Such rules shall be published in the official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

Scientific Referees.

24. If the Local Government is of opinion that an appeal under this chapter involves a question of construction or design, or of scientific difficulty or important principle, it may refer the matter to such one or more out of a list of scientific referees, to be from time to time approved by the Local Government, as may appear to possess the special qualifications necessary for the particular case, and may be selected by agreement between the Local Government and the appellant, or, in default of any such agreement, by the Governor General in Council; and thereupon the appeal shall be determined by the referee or referees instead of by the Court of Survey.

Power to appoint referee to hear appeal.

25. The Local Government, if the appellant in any such appeal so requires and gives security to its satisfaction to pay the costs of and incidental to the reference, shall refer such appeal to a referee or referees selected as aforesaid.

Option to appellant to require referee to be appointed.

26. The referee or referees to whom an appeal is referred under section twenty-four or section twenty-five shall have the same powers as a Judge of the Court of Survey.

Referee to have powers of Court of Survey.

Costs of Detention and Damages incidental thereto.

27. If it appears that there was not reasonable and probable cause, by reason of the condition of the ship or the act or default of the owner, for the provisional detention of the ship, the Government shall be liable to pay to the owner of the ship his costs of and incidental to the detention and survey of the ship, and also compensation for any loss or damage sustained by him by reason of the detention or survey.

Liability of Government for costs and damages when ship wrongly detained.

28. If a ship is finally detained under this chapter, or if it appears that a ship provisionally detained was at the time of such detention unsafe, the owner of the ship shall be liable to pay to Government its costs of and incidental to the detention and survey of the ship; and such costs shall, without prejudice to any other remedy, be recoverable as salvage is recoverable.

Liability of shipowner for costs when ship rightly detained.

29. For the purposes of this chapter, the costs of and incidental to any proceeding before a Court of Survey, and a reasonable amount in respect of the remuneration of the surveyor or officer of the Local Government, shall be deemed to be part of the costs of the detention and survey of the ship.

What included in costs of detention and survey.

30. When a complaint is made to the Local Government or a detaining-officer that a British ship is unsafe, it shall be in the discretion of such Government or officer (as the case may be) to require the complainant to give security to the satisfaction of such Government or officer for the costs and compensation which such complainant may become liable to pay as hereinafter mentioned:

Power to require from complainant security for costs, &c.

Provided that where the complaint is made by one-fourth, being not less than three, of the seamen belonging to the ship, and is not in the opinion of such Government or officer frivolous or vexatious, such security shall not be required; and such Government or officer shall, if the complaint is made in sufficient time before the sailing of the ship, take proper steps to ascertain whether the ship ought to be detained under this chapter.

Proviso as to complaint by one-fourth of crew.

31. Where a ship is detained in consequence of any complaint, and the circumstances are such that Government is liable under this chapter to pay to the owner of the ship any costs or compensation, the complainant shall be liable to pay to Government all such costs and compensation as Government incurs, or is liable to pay, in respect of the detention and survey of the ship.

Costs, &c., payable by Government recoverable from complainant.

Grain Cargoes.

32. No cargo of which more than one-third consists of any kind of grain, corn, rice, paddy, pulse, seeds, nuts or nut-kernels (hereinafter referred to as grain cargo) shall be carried on board any British Indian ship unless the same be contained in bags, sacks or barrels, or secured from shifting by boards or bulkheads or otherwise.

Stowage of cargo of grain, &c.

Penalty for improper stowage of such cargo.

If the owner or master of any ship, or any agent of such owner who is charged with the loading of such ship or the sending her to sea, knowingly allows any grain cargo or part of a grain cargo to be shipped therein for carriage contrary to the provisions of this section, he shall be punished with fine which may extend to three thousand rupees.

Deck and Load Lines.

Marking of deck-lines.

33. Every British Indian ship (except ships under eighty tons register employed solely in the coasting trade, ships employed solely in fishing and pleasure yachts) shall be permanently and conspicuously marked with lines of not less than twelve inches in length and one inch in breadth painted longitudinally on each side amidships or as near thereto as is practicable, and indicating the position of each deck which is above water.

The upper edge of each of these lines shall be level with the upper side of the deck plank next the waterway at the place of marking. The lines shall be white or yellow on a dark ground or black on a light ground.

Marking of load-line.

34. The owner or master of every British ship (except ships under eighty tons register employed solely in the coasting trade, ships employed solely in fishing and pleasure yachts) shall, before entering his ship outwards from any port in British India upon any voyage for which he is required so to enter her, or if that is not practicable, as soon after as may be, mark upon each of her sides amidship, or as near thereto as is practicable, in white or yellow on a dark ground, or in black on a light ground, a circular disc twelve inches in diameter with a horizontal line eighteen inches in length drawn through the centre.

The centre of such disc shall indicate the maximum load-line in salt water to which the owner intends to load such ship for that voyage.

Owner to make statement to Customs-officer in application for entry outwards as to position of such disc with regard to deck-lines.

35. The owner or master of every such ship shall also, upon so entering her, insert, in the form of application for entry outwards made to the Customs-collector, a statement in writing of the distances in feet and inches between the centre of such disc and the upper edge of each of the lines indicating the position of the ship's deck which is above such centre: and if default is made in delivering this statement, the Customs-collector may refuse to enter the ship outwards.

Master to enter copy of this statement in the log-book and agreement with the crew.

36. The master of every such ship shall enter a copy of this statement in the official log-book and also in the agreement with the crew before it is signed by any member of the crew; and no shipping master shall proceed with the engagement of the crew till this entry is made.

Ship to be kept so marked till her return to a port in British India.

37. When a ship has been marked as by section thirty-four required, she shall be kept so marked until she next returns to a port of discharge in British India or arrives at a port in the United Kingdom.

Penalty for neglecting to mark, for concealing marks, &c.

38. Any owner or master of a ship who neglects to cause his ship to be marked as by this chapter required, or to keep her so marked, or who allows the ship to be so loaded as to submerge in salt water the centre of the disc, and any person who conceals, removes, alters, defaces or obliterates, or suffers any person under his control to conceal, remove, alter, deface or obliterate, any of the said marks, except in the event of the particulars thereby denoted being lawfully altered, or except for the purpose of escaping capture by an enemy, shall be punished for each such offence with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees.

Penalty on owner for having misleading marks.

39. If any of the marks required by this chapter is in any respects inaccurate so as to be likely to mislead, the owner and master of the ship shall be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees.

Saving of ships marked in the United Kingdom.

40. The provisions of this chapter as to load-lines shall not apply to ships coming from ports in the United Kingdom and marked with such lines in accordance with the provisions of the laws for the time being there in force.

Supplemental Provisions.

Release of ship at any time by Local Government.

41. The Local Government may at any time, if satisfied that a ship detained under this chapter is not unsafe, order her to be released either upon or without any conditions.

Who may enforce detention of ship.

42. When under this chapter a ship is authorized or ordered to be detained, any commissioned officer on full pay in the naval or military service of Her Majesty, or any Master Attendant, Harbour-master, Conservator of a port or officer of Customs, may detain the ship.

Penalty for proceeding to sea after detention.

43. If any ship after such detention, or after service on the master of any notice of or order for such detention, proceeds to sea before she is released by competent authority, the master of the ship shall be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees.

Penalty for carrying to sea officer in execution of his duty.

44. When a ship so proceeding to sea takes to sea, when on board thereof in the execution of his duty, any person authorized to detain or survey such ship, the owner and master of such ship shall each be liable to pay all expenses of and incidental to such person being so taken to sea, and shall also be punishable with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees.

When any owner or master is convicted of an offence under this section, the convicting Magistrate may enquire into and determine the amount payable on account of expenses by such owner or master under this section, and may direct that the same shall be recovered from him in manner provided for the recovery of fines.

Detained ship not to be released because British registry closed.

45. When a ship has been detained under this chapter, she shall not be released by reason of her British or British Indian register being subsequently closed.

Powers of person authorized to survey ship.

46. For the purposes of the survey of a ship under this chapter, any person authorized to make the same may go on board the ship and inspect the same, and every part thereof, and the machinery, equipments and cargo, and may require the unloading or removal of any cargo, ballast or tackle.

Certain persons to be deemed public servants.

47. Every Judge, assessor, officer or surveyor under this chapter shall be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

Service of order where there is no master or resident owner, &c.

48. Where any order, notice, statement or document is required for the purpose of any provision of this chapter to be served on the master of a ship, the same shall be served, where there is no master, on the owner of the ship, if he resides in the port where the ship is detained, or, if there is no owner residing there, on some agent of the owner residing there; or where such owner or agent is unknown or cannot be found, a copy of such order, notice, statement or document shall be affixed to the mast of the ship, and shall thereupon be deemed to be duly served.

Order, &c., how to be served.

49. Any such order, notice, statement or document may be served by delivering a copy thereof personally to the person to be served, or by leaving the same at his last place of abode, or, in the case of a master, by leaving it for him on board the ship with the person being or appearing to be in command or charge of the ship.

Delegation of powers to Calcutta Port Commissioners.

50. The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal may, from time to time, by notification in the Calcutta Gazette, delegate to the Commissioners for making improvements in the Port of Calcutta, either absolutely or subject to such conditions or restrictions as he thinks fit, all or any of the powers, and require the said Commissioners to discharge all or any of the functions, of a Local Government under the foregoing sections of this Act, except the powers conferred by sections thirteen and fifteen, the power of nominating assessors under section fourteen and the power of making rules, and may cancel any such notification.

While any such notification remains in force, all costs and damages which would otherwise be recoverable under this Act by or from the Government shall be recoverable in like manner by or from the said Commissioners; and the said Commissioners shall, notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in any enactment now in force, receive or pay, as the case may be, the amount of any costs or damages so recovered to or from the funds held by them in trust as such Commissioners.

CHAPTER III.

DISTRESSED SEAMEN.

Chapter to be taken as part of Act I of 1859.

51. This chapter shall be read with, and taken as part of, Act No. I of 1859 (for the amendment of the law relating to Merchant Seamen).

Saving of provisions of Merchant Shipping Acts, 1854 and 1855.

But nothing in this chapter contained applies to seamen or apprentices to whom the provisions of section 211 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, or section 16 of the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1855, apply.

Definition of "ship;" "local authority."

In this chapter "ship" includes every description of vessel used in navigation, not propelled by oars; and "local authority" means such person as the Local Government may from time to time appoint by name or in virtue of his office to exercise the powers conferred, and to perform the duties imposed on the local authority under this chapter.

Power to suspend or dismiss.

Every person so appointed may be suspended or dismissed by the Local Government which appointed him.

Relief of distressed seamen at Indian ports.

52. The local authority may, subject to the rules hereinafter mentioned, provide for the subsistence—

(a) of all seamen and apprentices, being Native Indian subjects of Her Majesty, who have been shipwrecked, discharged or left behind at any place in British India, whether from any British ship employed in the merchant service, or from any of Her Majesty's ships, or who have been engaged by any person acting either as principal or agent to serve in any ship belonging to any foreign power, or to the subject of any foreign State, and who are in distress in any such place; and

(b) of all seamen and apprentices not being Native Indian subjects who have been shipwrecked, discharged or left behind at any place in British India from any British ship, registered in British India and who are in distress in any such place, until such time as such authority is able to provide them with a passage as hereinafter provided.

Distressed seamen to be sent home on board British ship wanting seamen to make up its crew.

53. Subject as aforesaid, the local authority may cause such seamen or apprentices to be put on board some ship belonging to any subject of Her Majesty which is in want of men to make up its complement, and is bound—

(a) in the case of seamen or apprentices who are Native Indian subjects of Her Majesty, to their home or to a port in British India near their home;

(b) in the case of other British seamen or apprentices, to any port in the United Kingdom or the British possession to which they belong (as the case requires); and

(c) in the case of seamen or apprentices not being subjects of Her Majesty, to such place as the local authority, subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, may in each case determine.

In default of such ship, on board of any ship.

54. In default of any such ship, the local authority may, subject as aforesaid, provide such seamen or apprentices with a passage in any ship (whether British or foreign) bound as aforesaid.

Name and other particulars with regard to seamen to be indorsed on agreement of British ship.

55. The local authority shall indorse on the agreement of any British ship on board of which any seaman or apprentice is sent under section fifty-three or section fifty-four, the name of every person so sent on board thereof, with such particulars concerning the case as the Governor General in Council may from time to time by rule prescribe.

Master of British ship compelled to convey and give subsistence to such seamen.

56. The master of every British ship bound as aforesaid shall receive and afford a passage and subsistence to all seamen and apprentices whom he is required to take on board his ship under the provisions of section fifty-three or section fifty-four not exceeding one for every fifty tons burden, and shall, during the passage, provide every such seaman or apprentice with a proper berth or sleeping place effectually protected against sea and weather.

Penalty for refusing so to do.

57. If the master of any such ship fails or refuses to receive on board his ship, or to give a passage or subsistence to, or to provide for, any such seaman or apprentice contrary to the provisions of section fifty-six, he shall, for each seaman and apprentice with respect to whom he so fails or refuses, be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or, when he is tried at any place beyond the limits of British India, to the equivalent of one thousand rupees in the currency of such place.

Conditions under which master may claim payment.

58. When any master of a British ship has conveyed a seaman or apprentice in excess of the number (if any) wanted to make up the complement of his crew to any place in accordance with the requisition of a local authority under this chapter, such master shall be entitled to be paid by the Secretary of State for India in Council in respect of the subsistence and passage of such seaman or apprentice such sum per diem as the Governor General in Council from time to time appoints:

Provided that no payment shall be made under this section except on the production of the following documents (that is to say):—

(a) a certificate signed by the local authority by whose direction such seaman or apprentice was received on board, specifying the name of such seaman or apprentice, and the time when he was received on board; and

(b) a declaration in writing by such master made and verified in manner hereinafter provided, and stating—

(1) the number of days during which such seaman or apprentice received subsistence and was provided for as aforesaid on board his ship;

(2) the number of men and boys forming the complement of his crew;

(3) the number of seamen and apprentices employed on board his ship during the time such seaman or apprentice was on board; and

(4) every variation (if any) of such number.

The declaration required by this section shall, in the case of a ship conveying Native Indian subjects of Her Majesty to a port in British India, be made before a Shipping-master or such other officer as the Local Government may appoint. In other cases such declaration shall be made and verified in the same manner as declarations made under section 212 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854.

Wages and expenses incurred in respect of distressed seamen to be charged on ship to which they belong in certain cases.

59. (a). If any seaman or apprentice, being a Native Indian subject of Her Majesty and belonging to any British ship, is discharged or left behind at any place in British India without full compliance on the part of the master with all the provisions in that behalf of the law for the time being in force, and becomes distressed and is relieved under the provisions of this chapter; or

(b) if any such seaman or apprentice, after having been engaged by any person (whether acting as principal or agent) to serve in any ship belonging to any foreign power or to the subject of any foreign power, becomes distressed and is relieved as aforesaid; or

(c) if any seaman or apprentice belonging to any British ship, registered in British India, and not being a Native Indian subject of Her Majesty, is discharged or left behind at any place in British India without full compliance as aforesaid, and becomes distressed and is relieved as aforesaid, the wages (if any) due to such seaman or apprentice, and all expenses incurred for his subsistence, necessary clothing, conveyance home, and, in case he should die before reaching home, for his burial, shall be a charge upon the ship, whether British or foreign, to which he so belonged as aforesaid.

Mode of recovering such wages and expenses.

60. All such wages and expenses shall be recoverable with costs either from the master of such ship or from the person who is owner thereof for the time being, or in the case of an engagement for service in a foreign ship, from such master or owner, or from the person by whom such engagement was so made, in the same manner as other debts due to the Secretary of State for India in Council, or in the same manner and by the same form and process in which wages due to the seaman or apprentice would be recoverable by him.

Local Government may authorize persons to recover same.

61. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, authorize, either generally or specially, such persons as it thinks fit to sue for any such wages and expenses and recover the same.

Such persons to be deemed persons filling a public office.

And every person so authorized shall be entitled to sue and recover accordingly, and shall be deemed to be a person filling a public office within the meaning of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, section 57, clause 7.

Board of Trade may recover such amount from master or owner in certain cases.

62. When any such wages and expenses are due to or in respect of a seaman or apprentice mentioned in section fifty-nine, clause (c), they may, instead of being recovered by a person authorized under section sixty-one, be recovered by the Board of Trade in manner provided by the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, section 213, and when so recovered shall be paid by the said Board to the Secretary of State for India in Council.

What shall be evidence of distress and expenses incurred.

63. In all proceedings under this chapter, whether in India or elsewhere, the production of a certificate signed by the local authority by which any seaman or apprentice named therein was relieved, or any expenses were incurred, under this chapter, to the effect that such seaman or apprentice was in distress, and that such expenses were incurred in respect of such seaman or apprentice, shall be sufficient evidence that such seaman or apprentice was relieved, conveyed home or buried (as the case may be) at the expense of the revenues of India.

Power of Governor General in Council to make rules.

64. The Governor General in Council may, from time to time, make rules to determine under what circumstances and subject to what conditions seamen or apprentices may be relieved and provided with passages under this chapter and generally to carry out the provisions of this chapter.

All such rules shall be published in the Gazette of India, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

CHAPTER IV.

MARINE SURVEYORS.

Local Government to appoint examiners,

65. The Local Government may, from time to time, appoint competent persons for the purpose of examining the qualifications of persons desirous of practising the profession of a marine surveyor in the territories administered by such Government, and subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, make rules—and to make rules as to qualification, &c., of marine surveyors.

(a) for the conduct of such examinations and the qualifications to be required,

(b) for the grant of certificates to qualified persons,

(c) for the fees to be paid for such examinations and certificates,

(d) for holding inquiries into charges of incompetency and misconduct on the part of holders of such certificates, and

(e) for the suspension and cancelment of such certificates.

Publication of rules.

All such rules shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

No person to practise as marine surveyor unless qualified.

66. No person shall, in any port in which there is a person exercising the profession of a marine surveyor and holding a certificate issued under section sixty-five, exercise such profession in such port unless he holds a certificate issued under that section.

Penalty for practising as marine surveyor without certificate.

67. Any person who exercises such profession, in contravention of the provisions of section sixty-six, shall be punished with fine not exceeding one thousand rupees, and in default of payment with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months. He shall also be incapable of maintaining any suit for any fee or reward for anything done by him whilst acting as a marine surveyor in contravention of the provisions of section sixty-six.

CHAPTER V.

RECEIVERS OF WRECK.

Repeal of chapter V of Indian Ports Act, 1875.

68. Chapter V of the Indian Ports Act, 1875, is hereby repealed.

Appointment of wreck-receivers.

69. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, appoint such persons as it thinks fit to receive and take possession of wreck and to perform such duties connected therewith as are hereinafter mentioned within such local limits as it may from time to time prescribe.

Persons so appointed shall be called receivers of wreck.

Rules to be observed by persons finding wreck.

70. Whenever any wreck is found within any local limits for which a receiver of wreck has been so appointed, the finder shall as soon as practicable—

if he be the owner;

(a) if he be the owner thereof, give the receiver of wreck notice in writing of the finding thereof and of the marks by which such wreck is distinguished;

if he be not the owner.

(b) if he be not the owner of such wreck, deliver the same to the receiver of wreck.

Government or person finding wreck entitled to salvage.

71. Whenever any wreck is found by the receiver of wreck or has been delivered to him in accordance with the provisions of section seventy by any person, not being the owner thereof, the Government or such other person so delivering such wreck, as the case may be, shall be entitled to receive a reasonable sum for salvage, having regard to all the circumstances of the case.

Disputes concerning amount of salvage.

Any dispute arising concerning the amount due under this section shall be determined by a Magistrate, upon application to him for that purpose by either of the disputing parties.

Notice to be given by wreck-receiver.

72. The receiver of wreck shall, on taking possession of any wreck, publish a notification, in such manner and at such place as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe in this behalf, containing a description of the same and the time at which and the place where the same was found.

Wreck may in certain cases be sold.

73. If after the publication of such notification the wreck is unclaimed, or if the person claiming the same fails to pay the amount due for salvage and for charges incurred by the receiver of wreck in respect thereof, the receiver of wreck may sell such wreck by public auction, if of a perishable nature, forthwith, and if not of a perishable nature, at any period not less than six months after such notification as aforesaid.

Proceeds how applied.

74. On the realization of the proceeds of such sale, the amount due for salvage and charges as aforesaid, together with the expenses of the sale, shall be deducted therefrom, and the balance shall be paid to the owner of the wreck, or, if no such person appear and claim the same, shall be held in deposit for payment, without interest, to any person thereafter establishing his right to the same:

Provided that he makes his claim within one year from the date of the sale.

Penalty for failure to give notice of, or to deliver, wreck to the receiver of wreck.

75. Any person omitting to give notice of the finding of, or to deliver, any wreck to the receiver of wreck as required by section seventy shall be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, and in the case of omission to deliver any wreck, shall, in addition to such fine, forfeit all claim to salvage, and pay to the owner of such wreck if the same is claimed, or if the same is unclaimed to the Government, a penalty not exceeding twice the value of such wreck.

CHAPTER VI.

INSPECTION OF SHIPS WITH REGARD TO LIGHT AND FOG-SIGNALS.

Saving clause.

76. Nothing in this chapter contained shall apply to any ship belonging to, or in the service of, Her Majesty or the Government of India or any foreign prince or State.

Appointment of inspectors of lights and fog-signals.

77. The Local Government may, from time to time, appoint persons to inspect ships in any port for the purpose of seeing that the same are properly provided with lights and with the means of making fog-signals in pursuance of the regulations for preventing collisions at sea, issued under the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1862, or any other similar law for the time being in force, and may suspend or remove any person so appointed.

Every person so appointed shall in the port for which he is appointed have, for the purposes of such inspection, the powers given to detaining-officers by section ten.

Notice of deficiency to be given to master or owner by such inspectors.

78. If any such person finds that any ship is not so provided, he shall give to the master or owner notice in writing pointing out the deficiency, and also what is, in his opinion, requisite in order to remedy the same.

Ship not to be cleared by Customs-collector till inspector certifies it is properly provided with lights, &c.

79. Every notice so given shall be communicated, in such manner as the Local Government may direct, to the Customs-collector at any port from which such ship may seek to clear; and no Customs-collector to whom such communication is made shall grant such ship a port-clearance or allow her to proceed to sea without a certificate under the hand of some person appointed as aforesaid, to the effect that the said ship is properly provided with lights and with the means of making fog-signals in pursuance of the said regulations.

CHAPTER VII.

PORT-INSPECTORS.

Addition to Act XII of 1875, after section 18.

80. In the Indian Ports Act, 1875, after section eighteen, the following sections shall be inserted (that is to say):—

Appointment and powers of Port-inspectors.

"18A. The Local Government may, from time to time, appoint in any port subject to this Act an officer to be called the Port-inspector, and suspend or remove such officer.

Every officer so appointed shall, subject to the control of the Local Government, have the following powers within the limits of the port for which he is appointed (that is to say):—

(a) he may at any time enter any vessel and may inspect the same and every part thereof, and the provisions and water provided for the use of the persons on board such vessel and the medicines and appliances and the accommodation for the seamen;

(b) he may medically examine all or any of the persons on board such vessel;

(c) he may require and enforce the production of the log and any other books, papers or documents which he thinks necessary for the purpose of enquiring into the health and medical condition of the persons on board such vessel;

(d) he may call before him and examine for such purpose all or any of such persons, and may require answers to any inquiries he thinks fit to make;

(e) he may require any persons so examined by him to make and subscribe a declaration of the truth of the statements made by such person."

Port-inspector to inquire into complaints,

"18B. The Port-inspector shall, on first entering any vessel after its arrival, inquire whether any seaman or apprentice on board such vessel desires to make any complaint against the master or any of the crew thereof.

In the event of any seaman or apprentice so desiring, the Port-inspector shall hear such complaint and record the particulars thereof in writing, and may, for the purpose of ascertaining the truth of the same, exercise any of the powers mentioned in section 18A.

and report the same to Shipping-master.

The Port-inspector shall forthwith report in writing to the Shipping-master the particulars of any complaint made to him under this section, together with his opinion thereon."

CHAPTER VIII.

AMENDMENT OF THE INDIAN MERCHANT SHIPPING ACT, 1875.

New section substituted for section 3 of Act IV of 1875.

81. In the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1875, for section three, the following shall be substituted:—

Notice of accidents to be given to the Local Government.

"3. When—

(a) any ship has been lost, abandoned, stranded or damaged on or near the coasts of India; or

(b) by reason of any casualty happening to or on board of any ship on or near such coasts, loss of life has ensued; or

(c) any ship has caused loss or damage to any other ship on or near such coasts; or

(d) any such loss, abandonment, stranding, damage or casualty has happened elsewhere, and any competent witnesses thereof have arrived or are to be found at any place in India;

(e) or any ship is supposed to have been lost, and any evidence can be obtained in India as to the circumstances under which she proceeded to sea or was last heard of;

and any Magistrate or any officer appointed by the Local Government in this behalf receives information of the same, he shall without delay communicate such information to the Local Government.

In cases under clauses (a), (b) and (c), the master, pilot, harbour-master or other person in charge of the ship or (where two ships are concerned) in charge of each ship at the time of such loss, abandonment, stranding, damage or casualty, and in cases under clause (d), where the ship concerned proceeds direct from the place where such loss, abandonment, stranding, damage or casualty has occurred to any place in India, the master of such ship at the time she arrives at such place, shall, on arriving in India, give immediate notice of such loss, abandonment, stranding, damage or casualty to the nearest Magistrate, or, when he arrives at a port, to the officer appointed at such port as aforesaid.

Any person bound to give notice under this section and wilfully failing to give the same shall be punished with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, and, in default of payment, to simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months."

Insertion of section after section 25 of same Act.

82. After section twenty-five of the same Act, the following section shall be inserted (that is to say):—

Scale of provisions to be furnished to lascars.

"25A. In the case of such agreements with lascars or other Native seamen, the scale of the provisions agreed to be furnished to each of such seamen shall not be less than a scale to be from time to time fixed and published by the Local Government with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council.

Any master entering into an agreement with lascars or other Native seamen for a scale of provisions less than the scale so fixed and published shall be punished with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE provisions of this Bill may be roughly divided into three parts (namely):—

I. those relating to unseaworthy ships contained in chapter II;

II. those relating to the relief and conveyance home of distressed seamen contained in chapter III;

III. those contained in the subsequent chapters which make additions to, and amendments of, the existing law as to Merchant Shipping on various miscellaneous points.

I.—Unseaworthy Ships.

2. The whole law enacted by Parliament on the subject of seaworthiness of ships is now contained in the Statute 39 & 40 Vic., c. 80. There are two main reasons why that Statute does not meet the requirements of this country:

First.—None of its provisions apply to ships of British Indian register as distinguished from ships of British register. Ships of British Indian register (or "British Indian ships" as they are termed in the Bill) are a somewhat peculiar class of vessels, registered under Acts of the Indian legislature, and only possessing the status of British ships within certain defined limits in Eastern waters. As there is a large number of such ships sailing from ports in India, it is obvious that any law which does not include them is incomplete and inadequate.

Secondly.—Even with regard to British ships, to which the Statute does apply, though many of its provisions extend to them wherever they may be, still some—and perhaps the most important—are confined to such ships when sailing from ports in the United Kingdom, and are, therefore, totally inoperative in this country.

3. It is the object of this Bill to supplement the Statute, and by extending certain of its provisions to this country to make all ships, whether British or British Indian, sailing from ports in India subject to provisions similar to those to which British ships are subject in the United Kingdom.

In doing this, however, care has been taken strictly to confine the provisions of the Bill to those cases to which the Statute does not apply, and in no way to trench upon ground which its provisions already cover.

4. The sections of the Statute which have been adopted in this Bill are sections 4 to 13 inclusive, and sections 15, 22, 25, 26, 28, 34 and 35.

The effect of these provisions may be shortly stated as follows.

Section 4 makes it penal for any person to send, and any master to take, a ship to sea when she is in such an unseaworthy state that the life of any person is likely to be thereby endangered.

Section 5 makes it an implied condition in every contract of service with a seaman and in every instrument of apprenticeship that all reasonable efforts will be used to secure the seaworthiness of the ship.

Section 6 empowers the Board of Trade to order the detention of any British ship which they believe to be unsafe; and sections 7, 8 and 9 deal with the constitution and procedure of the Court of Survey, to which appeals may be made from such order.

Section 10 lays down the cases in which the Board and shipowner respectively shall be liable for costs of detention and survey. Section 11 empowers the Board to require security for costs from a complainant; whilst section 12 is taken up with general supplemental provisions as to the detention of ships.

By section 15, in cases of scientific difficulty, a special Court of appeal of scientific men is provided.

Section 22 enacts in what way only grain cargoes may be stowed.

Sections 25 and 26 lay down certain rules as to the marking of ships with deck and load lines—the former to indicate the position of each deck which is above water, and the latter the depth in the water up to which the owner intends to load the ship; and section 28 inflicts certain penalties for offences in relation to these marks.

Sections 34 and 35 contain miscellaneous provisions as to the enforcement of the detention of ships and service of orders, notices, &c., on masters.

5. Of the above provisions, sections 4, 5, 22 and 25 apply to British ships wherever they may be. They, therefore, already apply proprio vigore to such ships in India; and, accordingly, the Bill extends them only to British Indian ships. The other sections apply to British ships only when in ports in the United Kingdom; and, therefore, the Bill extends them both to British and British Indian ships in this country.

6. In adapting to India an English Act of this nature, it seems advisable to make the Indian Act as nearly as possible identical with the English one. In drafting this chapter therefore, the provisions of 39 & 40 Vic., c. 80, have been followed as closely as possible, not merely in substance, but also in wording. The different circumstances of India have, however, required certain alterations in the authorities who are to carry out the provisions of the chapter. For example, it has been necessary to substitute "Local Government" for "Board of Trade," and to alter the list of persons from whom the Judge of the Court of Survey shall be summoned; and the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal has been authorized to delegate his powers under the proposed Act to the Calcutta Port Commissioners (section 50); but, as a rule, the provisions of the English Act have been adopted as they stand.

II.—Distressed Seamen.

7. The main provisions of the existing law relating to the relief and conveyance home of distressed seamen are contained in sections 211 and 212 of the Merchant Shipping Act of 1854, forming a portion of Part III of the Act. Section 109 of the Act applies these provisions to—

(a) all ships registered in any British possession when they are out of the jurisdiction of that possession;

(b) all ships registered in any British possession and plying between any place in the United Kingdom and any place not situated in that possession;

(c) all sea-going ships registered in the United Kingdom, with some exceptions immaterial for the present purpose; and

(d) the owners, masters and crews of all such ships.

There may thus be ships registered in India to which these provisions apply, e.g., an Indian ship at Singapore or Hong-Kong, or one plying between Galle and London. There may also be ships of English register, though plying exclusively within British Indian waters and manned by Native crews, to which the same provisions apply, as is the case with some of the vessels of the British Indian Steam Navigation Company, which are registered in Glasgow.

8. Sections 211 and 212 of the Act made provisions in favour of distressed seamen "being subjects of Her Majesty," and it is clear that in this expression all subjects, whatever their place of birth, are included.

9. By subsequent enactments powers have been conferred on the Board of Trade to issue binding instructions for the regulation of the relief of distressed seamen. The enactment now operative for this purpose is the twenty-second section of the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act of 1862. The instructions issued by the Board relate to distressed seamen generally, making no distinction between different classes. They appear clearly to apply to all seamen over whom the Act of 1854 gives jurisdiction, e.g., they would apply to Bengal lascars in distress at Penang.

10. A question arises as to the circumstances under which these instructions, which, as shown above, apply to some ships while in Indian waters and also include lascars who are British subjects, become applicable to such lascars. This arises on the interpretation of the conditions laid down in the Act, which are that the seamen, besides being distressed, shall be abroad and desire to be conveyed home. These words may equally, accurately and literally be construed either of the place or the possession at or in which the seaman is, and it is possible to do little more than guess at the construction they should receive.

11. It is thus clear that, on the most restrictive construction of the Act, there are many cases occurring in British India to which the Act and instructions apply, but that from the vagueness of the terms used in the Act, it is impossible to tell how far such cases may extend.

12. It is not competent to the Government of India to effect of its own motion any amendment of the terms of sections 211 and 212 of the Act of 1854. It might do so possibly if that Act stood by itself; but the instructions issued by the Board of Trade, which are the means whereby these sections are worked, are no part of the Act of 1854, but depend for their authority on the Act of 1862, which it is beyond the power of the Government of India to repeal or affect. On the other hand, there are cases not falling within those enumerated in paragraph seven as governed by the Merchant Shipping Act of 1854, for which the Government of this country has power to legislate.

13. It is with these latter cases that chapter III of the Bill deals. Under the first construction of the words "abroad" and "home" referred to in paragraph ten, the case mentioned in clause (a) of section 52 of the Bill is no doubt to some extent provided for by the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854; but on either construction of these words it will be admitted that there are some places in British India where a Native seaman may be which are not abroad to him, though not actually his home. These cases will be provided for, while, as the Bill does not purport to provide for any case in which the Board of Trade have power to issue instructions, any possibility of conflict between the Local and Imperial Acts will be avoided.

14. Following section 16 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1855, the local authorities in India have been empowered to send home distressed foreign as well as British seamen, and further to send seamen home in foreign ships. This extended power may be found useful in the case of some Asiatic seamen not subjects of Her Majesty.

15. The money paid in respect of the seamen referred to in clause (a) of section 52 should be recovered from the ship to which the distressed seaman belonged by the Secretary of State in Council; and section 61 accordingly provides for its being recovered in India by him. In the case mentioned in clause (c) of section 59, it would appear that, under section 288 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, the Government of India can empower the Board of Trade to recover the money for it by adapting the provisions of section 213 of the Act to the case. Accordingly, there has been added in section 62 a power to the Board of Trade to recover for the Government of India, which will probably be found useful when the money has to be recovered in England or in British possessions abroad.

16. A draft of these provisions has been submitted to the Board of Trade, who have agreed to issue new instructions in conformity with the Bill, and to adopt as the rate of subsistence for Native Indian seamen that to be fixed for such persons by the Government of India under the Bill. The result is that, if these provisions become law, the instructions of the Board of Trade and this Act will cover the whole ground, although it may still remain uncertain how much is covered by the instructions of the Board and how much by the Act.

III.—Miscellaneous Amendments.

17. The other provisions of the Bill do not call for much notice. They have all been introduced to provide for cases in which it appears that the provisions of the existing law are wanting or insufficient.

18. By a recent order of Government, all officers holding port appointments have been prohibited from undertaking private surveys. It having since been represented that considerable inconvenience is caused by this order, in consequence of the private surveyors at some ports not possessing the confidence of the mercantile community, provision has been made in the Bill (chapter IV) for the examination and licensing of fit persons to be marine surveyors, and prohibiting any unlicensed person from acting as a marine surveyor in any port where there may be any such licensed surveyor.

19. Chapter V, providing for the appointment of receivers of wreck, has been introduced at the suggestion of the Secretary of State, who considers that some provisions on the subject similar to those in the English Merchant Shipping Act of 1854 are desirable. In the event of this portion of the Bill becoming law, chapter V of the Indian Ports Act, relating to salvage in ports, will become unnecessary, and it is accordingly proposed to repeal it.

20. Chapter VI provides for the appointment of persons to inspect ships for the purpose of seeing whether they are properly furnished with lights and with the means of making fog-signals in accordance with the regulations for preventing collisions at sea. Section 30 of the English Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1862, deals with this point. Though under it the Board of Trade is apparently given power to appoint persons to inspect ships for such purpose anywhere, still it is doubtful whether it was intended to give them this power in a British possession abroad, and still more doubtful whether the Board would be willing to exercise this power. It has, therefore, been considered the best course for the legislature of this country to take independent power in the matter.

21. Chapter VII, by an addition to the Ports Act, 1875, provides for the appointment of an officer called a "Port-inspector." This officer, in addition to performing the duties at present performed by the Health-officer (for the performance of which duties he is by the Bill invested with certain legal powers), is intrusted with the duty of inquiring into any complaints which may be made on the arrival of a ship in port by any of the crew against the master or any others of the crew. This latter provision has been inserted, in compliance with the desire of the Secretary of State, for the protection of lascars or other Oriental seamen when serving on board a European ship.

22. Chapter VIII makes two amendments of the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1875. The one extends the provisions of section 3 of that Act so as to give power to hold Marine Courts of Enquiry in certain cases which are at present unprovided for. This change has been introduced at the request of the local Marine authorities, and is in accordance with the provisions of the English law as recently amended. The other amendment gives the Local Government power to fix a scale of provisions, for less than which it will be penal for a master to contract with any lascar or Native seaman—a provision which has been found to be essential for the protection of such seamen.

A Bill relating to Merchant Shipping.

WHEREAS it is expedient to prevent the departure of unsafe ships from British India; Preamble.

and whereas it is also expedient to provide for the relief of distressed seamen and apprentices at ports in British India, and for the recovery of wages due to and expenses incurred in respect of such seamen and apprentices in cases to which sections 211 to 213 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, and section 16 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1855, do not apply of their own force;

and whereas it is also expedient to provide in other respects hereinafter appearing for the regulation and control of merchant shipping; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

1. This Act may be called "The Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1880": Short title.

and it shall come into force on the first day of January 1880. Commencement.

2. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,— Interpretation-clause.

"ship", except in chapter III, includes anything made for the conveyance by water of human beings or property: "ship":

"master" means any person (except a pilot or harbour-master) having for the time being the charge or control of a ship: "master":

"wreck" includes jetsam, flotsam, lagan and derelict found in or on the shores of the sea or any tidal water: "wreck":

"port" in any provision of this Act includes also any part of a river or channel leading to a port which for the purposes of such provision the Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, declare to be included in such port. "port".

CHAPTER II.

UNSEAWORTHY AND UNSAFE SHIPS.

3. Nothing in this chapter contained shall apply to any ship belonging to, or in the service of, Her Majesty or the Government of India. Saving clause.

In this chapter, "British Indian ship" means a ship registered under Act No. XIX of 1838, Act No. X of 1841, or Act No. XI of 1856, or under any other law passed by the Governor General in Council and for the time being in force for the registration of ships in India; and Interpretation-clause. "British Indian ship":

"British ship": "British ship" includes also British Indian ships: "British ship":

"manner prescribed" means [illegible] Local Government [illegible] "manner prescribed":

[illegible] published in the official [illegible]

A ship is "unsafe" within the meaning of this chapter when by reason of the defective condition of her hull, equipments or machinery, or by reason of overloading or improper loading, she is unfit to proceed to sea without serious danger to human life, having regard to the nature of the service for which she is intended.

"unsafe".

4. Every person who sends or attempts to send a British Indian ship to sea in such unseaworthy state that the life of any person is likely to be thereby endangered, shall, unless he proves that he used all reasonable means to insure her being sent to sea in a seaworthy state, or that her going to sea in such unseaworthy state was under the circumstances reasonable and justifiable, be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both.

Every person sending unseaworthy ship to sea liable to penalty.

Every master of a British Indian ship who knowingly takes such ship to sea in such unseaworthy state that the life of any person is likely to be thereby endangered shall, unless he proves that her going to sea in such unseaworthy state was under the circumstances reasonable and justifiable, be punished with imprisonment which may extend to three years, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both.

Master taking unseaworthy ship to sea liable to penalty.

For the purpose of giving such proof, every person charged under this section may give evidence in the same manner as any other witness.

No prosecution under this section shall be instituted except by, or with the consent of, the Local Government.

Prosecution to be by, or with consent of, Local Government.

Implied Condition of Seaworthiness in Contract of Service.

5. In every contract of service, express or implied, between the owner of a British Indian ship and the master or any seaman thereof, and in every instrument of apprenticeship whereby any person is bound to serve as an apprentice on board any such ship, there shall be implied, notwithstanding any agreement to the contrary, an obligation on the owner that such owner and the master, and every agent charged with the loading of such ship or the preparing thereof for sea, or the sending thereof to sea, shall use all reasonable means to secure the seaworthiness of such ship for the voyage at the time when such voyage commences, and to keep her in a seaworthy state for the voyage during the same:

Obligation of owner to crew with respect to use of reasonable efforts to secure seaworthiness.

Provided that nothing in this section shall subject such owner to any liability by reason of such ship being sent to sea in an unseaworthy state where, owing to special circumstances, the so sending her to sea is reasonable and justifiable.

Proviso.

Detention of Unsafe Ships by the Local Government.

6. The Local Government, if it has reason to believe, on complaint or otherwise, that a British ship, in any port to which it may from time to time specially extend this section, is unsafe, may provisionally order the detention of such ship for the purpose of being surveyed.

Provisional detention by Local Government.

A written statement of the grounds of such detention shall be forthwith served on the master of such ship.

Service of grounds on master.

7. The Local Government may, if it thinks fit, when it provisionally orders the detention of any ship, appoint some competent person to survey such ship and report thereon, and, on receiving the report of such person, may either order the ship to be released, or, if in its opinion the ship is unsafe, may order her to be finally detained.

Power to appoint surveyor.

Action on receipt of his report.

An order of final detention under this section may be either absolute or until the performance of such conditions with respect to the execution of repairs or alterations, or the unloading or reloading of cargo, as the Local Government thinks necessary for the protection of human life; and the Local Government may, from time to time, vary or add to any such order:

Order of final detention.

Provided that, before an order for final detention is made, a copy of the report shall be served upon the master of the ship, and within seven days after such service the owner or master may appeal against such report, in the manner prescribed, to the Court of Survey (hereinafter mentioned) for the port where the ship is detained.

Service of report on master and appeal to Court of Survey.

8. Where a ship has been provisionally detained and a person has been appointed under section seven to survey such ship, the owner or master of the ship, at any time before such person makes such survey, may require that he shall be accompanied by such person as such owner or master may select out of the list of assessors for the Court of Survey (nominated as hereinafter mentioned); and

Option to owner or master of appointing assessor to accompany surveyor.

in such case, if the surveyor and assessor agree that the ship should be detained or released, the Local Government shall cause the ship to be detained or released accordingly, and the owner or master shall have no appeal;

Procedure where surveyor and assessor agree;

but if the surveyor and assessor differ in their report the Local Government may act as if the requisition had not been made, and the owner or master shall have such appeal touching the report of the surveyor as is hereinbefore provided.

where they differ.

9. When a ship has been provisionally detained, the Local Government may at any time, instead of following the procedure hereinbefore provided, refer the matter to the Court of Survey for the port where the ship is detained.

Power to refer to Court of Survey.

Detaining-Officers.

10. For the better execution of this chapter, the Local Government may, from time to time, appoint a sufficient number of fit persons as its officers, and may suspend or remove any of them.

Detaining-officers.

Every officer so appointed (hereinafter referred to as a detaining-officer) shall have, for the purpose

Their powers generally.

of his duties under this chapter, the following powers (that is to say):—

(b) he may, by summons under his hand, require the attendance of all such persons as he thinks fit to call before him and examine, and may require answers or returns to any inquiries he thinks fit to make;

(c) he may require and enforce the production of all books, papers or documents which he considers important; and

(d) he may administer oaths, or may, in lieu of requiring or administering an oath, require every person examined by him to make and subscribe a declaration of the truth of the statements made by him in his examination.

11. Every detaining-officer shall, in addition to the powers hereinbefore conferred, have the same power as the Local Government has under sections six and seven respectively of provisionally ordering the detention of a ship for the purpose of being surveyed, and of appointing a person to survey her; and if he thinks that a ship so detained by him is not unsafe, may order her to be released.

Their power to order provisional detention and survey.

Every such officer shall forthwith report to the Local Government any order made by him for the detention or release of a ship.

Detaining-officer to report to Local Government.

Courts of Survey and of Appeals and References thereto.

12. A Court of Survey for a port shall consist of a Judge sitting with two assessors.

Constitution of Court of Survey.

13. The Judge shall be such person as may be summoned for the case, in the manner prescribed, out of a list (from time to time approved for the port by the Local Government) of District Judges, Judges of Courts of Small Causes, Presidency Magistrates, Magistrates of the first class and other fit persons.

The Judge.

14. The assessors shall be persons of nautical, engineering or other special skill and experience. One of them shall be appointed by the Local Government either generally or in each case, and the other shall be summoned, in the manner prescribed, by the Registrar of the Court (to be appointed as hereinafter declared) out of a list of persons periodically nominated for the purpose by the Local Government, or, if there is no such list, shall be appointed by the Judge.

The assessors.

15. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint some fit person to be the Registrar of the Court.

Registrar of the Court.

16. The Registrar shall, on receiving notice of an appeal or a reference from the Local Government, immediately summon the Court, in the manner prescribed, to meet forthwith.

Registrar to summon Court.

17. Every such appeal and reference shall be heard in open Court.

Case to be heard in open Court.

18. The Judge and each assessor shall, for the purposes of this chapter, have the same powers as are by section ten conferred on a detaining-officer.

Powers of Judge and assessors.

19. The Judge may appoint any competent person to survey the ship and report thereon to the Court.

Judge may appoint surveyor.

20. The owner and master of the ship and any person appointed by the owner or master, and also any person appointed by the Local Government, may attend at any inspection or survey made in exercise or pursuance of the powers conferred by section eighteen or section nineteen.

Owner or master may attend at survey.

21. The Judge shall have the same power as the Local Government has to order the ship to be released or finally detained; but, unless one of the assessors concurs in an order for the detention of the ship, the ship shall be released.

Power of Judge to detain or release ship.

22. The Judge shall report the proceedings of the Court in each case to the Local Government in the manner prescribed, and each assessor shall either sign such report or report to the Local Government the reasons for his dissent.

Report to Local Government by Court.

23. The Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, from time to time make rules to carry into effect the provisions of this chapter with respect to a Court of Survey, and in particular with respect to—

Power of Local Government to make rules with respect to Court of Survey.

(a) the procedure before the Court;

(b) the requiring, on an appeal, of security for costs and damages;

(c) the amount and application of fees; and

(d) the ascertainment, in case of dispute, of the proper amount of costs under this chapter.

Such rules shall be published in the official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

Scientific Referees.

24. If the Local Government is of opinion that an appeal under this chapter involves a question of construction or design, or of scientific difficulty or important principle, it may refer the matter to such one or more out of a list of scientific referees, to be from time to time approved by the Local Government, as may appear to possess the special qualifications necessary for the particular case, and may be selected by agreement between the Local Government and the appellant, or, in default of any such agreement, by the Governor General in Council; and thereupon the appeal shall be determined by the referee or referees instead of by the Court of Survey.

Power to appoint referee to hear appeal.

25. The Local Government, if the appellant in any such appeal so requires and gives security to its satisfaction to pay the costs of and incidental to the reference, shall refer such appeal to a referee or referees selected as aforesaid.

Option to appellant to require referee to be appointed.

Referee to have powers of Court of Survey.

26. The referee or referees to whom an appeal is referred under section twenty-four or section twenty-five shall have the same powers as a Judge of the Court of Survey.

Costs of Detention and Damages incidental thereto.

Liability of Government for costs and damages when ship wrongly detained.

27. If it appears that there was not reasonable and probable cause, by reason of the condition of the ship or the act or default of the owner, for the provisional detention of the ship, the Government shall be liable to pay to the owner of the ship his costs of and incidental to the detention and survey of the ship, and also compensation for any loss or damage sustained by him by reason of the detention or survey.

Liability of shipowner for costs when ship rightly detained.

28. If a ship is finally detained under this chapter, or if it appears that a ship provisionally detained was at the time of such detention unsafe, the owner of the ship shall be liable to pay to Government its costs of and incidental to the detention and survey of the ship; and such costs shall, without prejudice to any other remedy, be recoverable as salvage is recoverable.

What included in costs of detention and survey.

29. For the purposes of this chapter, the costs of and incidental to any proceeding before a Court of Survey, and a reasonable amount in respect of the remuneration of the surveyor or officer of the Local Government, shall be deemed to be part of the costs of the detention and survey of the ship.

Power to require from complainant security for costs, &c.

30. When a complaint is made to the Local Government or a detaining-officer that a British ship is unsafe, it shall be in the discretion of such Government or officer (as the case may be) to require the complainant to give security to the satisfaction of such Government or officer for the costs and compensation which such complainant may become liable to pay as hereinafter mentioned:

Proviso as to complaint by one-fourth of crew.

Provided that where the complaint is made by one-fourth, being not less than three, of the seamen belonging to the ship, and is not in the opinion of such Government or officer frivolous or vexatious, such security shall not be required; and such Government or officer shall, if the complaint is made in sufficient time before the sailing of the ship, take proper steps to ascertain whether the ship ought to be detained under this chapter.

Costs, &c., payable by Government recoverable from complainant.

31. Where a ship is detained in consequence of any complaint, and the circumstances are such that Government is liable under this chapter to pay to the owner of the ship any costs or compensation, the complainant shall be liable to pay to Government all such costs and compensation as Government incurs, or is liable to pay, in respect of the detention and survey of the ship.

Grain Cargoes.

Stowage of cargo of grain, &c.

32. No cargo of which more than one-third consists of any kind of grain, corn, rice, paddy, pulse, seeds, nuts or nut-kernels (hereinafter referred to as grain cargo) shall be carried on board any British Indian ship unless the same be contained in bags, sacks or barrels, or secured from shifting by boards or bulkheads or otherwise.

Penalty for improper stowage of such cargo.

If the owner or master of any ship, or any agent of such owner who is charged with the loading of such ship or the sending her to sea, knowingly allows any grain cargo or part of a grain cargo to be shipped therein for carriage contrary to the provisions of this section, he shall be punished with fine which may extend to three thousand rupees.

Deck and Load Lines.

Marking of deck-lines.

33. Every British Indian ship (except ships under eighty tons register employed solely in the coasting trade, ships employed solely in fishing and pleasure yachts) shall be permanently and conspicuously marked with lines of not less than twelve inches in length and one inch in breadth painted longitudinally on each side amidships or as near thereto as is practicable, and indicating the position of each deck which is above water.

The upper edge of each of these lines shall be level with the upper side of the deck plank next the waterway at the place of marking. The lines shall be white or yellow on a dark ground or black on a light ground.

Marking of load-line.

34. The owner or master of every British ship (except ships under eighty tons register employed solely in the coasting trade, ships employed solely in fishing and pleasure yachts) shall, before entering his ship outwards from any port in British India upon any voyage for which he is required so to enter her, or if that is not practicable, as soon after as may be, mark upon each of her sides amidship, or as near thereto as is practicable, in white or yellow on a dark ground, or in black on a light ground, a circular disc twelve inches in diameter with a horizontal line eighteen inches in length drawn through the centre.

The centre of such disc shall indicate the maximum load-line in salt water to which the owner intends to load such ship for that voyage.

Owner to make statement to Customs-officer in application for entry outwards as to position of such disc with regard to deck-lines.

35. The owner or master of every such ship shall also, upon so entering her, insert, in the form of application for entry outwards made to the Customs-collector, a statement in writing of the distances in feet and inches between the centre of such disc and the upper edge of each of the lines indicating the position of the ship's deck which is above such centre: and if default is made in delivering this statement, the Customs-collector may refuse to enter the ship outwards.

Master to enter copy of this statement in the log-book and agreement with the crew.

36. The master of every such ship shall enter a copy of this statement in the official log-book and also in the agreement with the crew before it is signed by any member of the crew; and no shipping master shall proceed with the engagement of the crew till this entry is made.

Ship to be kept so marked till her return to a port in British India.

37. When a ship has been marked as by section thirty-four required, she shall be kept so marked until she next returns to a port of discharge in British India or arrives at a port in the United Kingdom.

Penalty for neglecting to mark, for concealing marks, &c.

38. Any owner or master of a ship who neglects to cause his ship to be marked as by this chapter required, or to keep her so marked, or who allows the ship to be so loaded as to submerge in salt water the centre of the disc, and any person who conceals, removes, alters, defaces or obliterates, or suffers any person under his control to conceal, remove, alter, deface or obliterate, any of the said marks, except in the event of the particulars thereby denoted being lawfully altered, or except for the purpose of escaping capture by an enemy, shall be punished for each such offence with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees.

Penalty on owner for having misleading marks.

39. If any of the marks required by this chapter is in any respects inaccurate so as to be likely to mislead, the owner and master of the ship shall be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees.

Saving of ships marked in the United Kingdom.

40. The provisions of this chapter as to load-lines shall not apply to ships coming from ports in the United Kingdom and marked with such lines in accordance with the provisions of the laws for the time being there in force.

Supplemental Provisions.

Release of ship at any time by Local Government.

41. The Local Government may at any time, if satisfied that a ship detained under this chapter is not unsafe, order her to be released either upon or without any conditions.

Who may enforce detention of ship.

42. When under this chapter a ship is authorized or ordered to be detained, any commissioned officer on full pay in the naval or military service of Her Majesty, or any Master Attendant, Harbour-master, Conservator of a port or officer of Customs, may detain the ship.

Penalty for proceeding to sea after detention.

43. If any ship after such detention, or after service on the master of any notice of or order for such detention, proceeds to sea before she is released by competent authority, the master of the ship shall be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees.

Penalty for carrying to sea officer in execution of his duty.

44. When a ship so proceeding to sea takes to sea, when on board thereof in the execution of his duty, any person authorized to detain or survey such ship, the owner and master of such ship shall each be liable to pay all expenses of and incidental to such person being so taken to sea, and shall also be punishable with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees.

When any owner or master is convicted of an offence under this section, the convicting Magistrate may enquire into and determine the amount payable on account of expenses by such owner or master under this section, and may direct that the same shall be recovered from him in manner provided for the recovery of fines.

Detained ship not to be released because British registry closed.

45. When a ship has been detained under this chapter, she shall not be released by reason of her British or British Indian register being subsequently closed.

Powers of person authorized to survey ship.

46. For the purposes of the survey of a ship under this chapter, any person authorized to make the same may go on board the ship and inspect the same, and every part thereof, and the machinery, equipments and cargo, and may require the unloading or removal of any cargo, ballast or tackle.

Certain persons to be deemed public servants.

47. Every Judge, assessor, officer or surveyor under this chapter shall be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

Service of order where there is no master or resident owner, &c.

48. Where any order, notice, statement or document is required for the purpose of any provision of this chapter to be served on the master of a ship, the same shall be served, where there is no master, on the owner of the ship, if he resides in the port where the ship is detained, or, if there is no owner residing there, on some agent of the owner residing there; or where such owner or agent is unknown or cannot be found, a copy of such order, notice, statement or document shall be affixed to the mast of the ship, and shall thereupon be deemed to be duly served.

Order, &c., how to be served.

49. Any such order, notice, statement or document may be served by delivering a copy thereof personally to the person to be served, or by leaving the same at his last place of abode, or, in the case of a master, by leaving it for him on board the ship with the person being or appearing to be in command or charge of the ship.

Delegation of powers to Calcutta Port Commissioners.

50. The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal may, from time to time, by notification in the Calcutta Gazette, delegate to the Commissioners for making improvements in the Port of Calcutta, either absolutely or subject to such conditions or restrictions as he thinks fit, all or any of the powers, and require the said Commissioners to discharge all or any of the functions, of a Local Government under the foregoing sections of this Act, except the powers conferred by sections thirteen and fifteen, the power of nominating assessors under section fourteen and the power of making rules, and may cancel any such notification.

While any such notification remains in force, all costs and damages which would otherwise be recoverable under this Act by or from the Government shall be recoverable in like manner by or from the said Commissioners; and the said Commissioners shall, notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in any enactment now in force, credit or pay, as the case may be, the amount of any costs or damages so recovered to or from the funds held by them in trust as such Commissioners.

CHAPTER III.

DISTRESSED SEAMEN.

Chapter to be taken as part of Act I of 1859.

51. This chapter shall be read with, and taken as part of, Act No. I of 1859 (for the amendment of the law relating to Merchant Seamen).

Saving of provisions of Merchant Shipping Acts, 1854 and 1855.

But nothing in this chapter contained applies to seamen or apprentices to whom the provisions of section 211 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, or section 16 of the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1855, apply.

Definition of "ship:"

In this chapter "ship" includes every description of vessel used in navigation, not propelled by oars;

"local authority."

and "local authority" means such person as the Local Government may from time to time appoint by name or in virtue of his office to exercise the powers conferred, and to perform the duties imposed on the local authority under this chapter.

Power to suspend or dismiss.

Every person so appointed may be suspended or dismissed by the Local Government which appointed him.

Relief of distressed seamen at Indian ports.

52. The local authority may, subject to the rules hereinafter mentioned, provide for the subsistence—

(a) of all seamen and apprentices, being Native Indian subjects of Her Majesty, who have been shipwrecked, discharged or left behind at any place in British India, whether from any British ship employed in the merchant service, or from any of Her Majesty's ships, or who have been engaged by any person acting either as principal or agent to serve in any ship belonging to any foreign power, or to the subject of any foreign State, and who are in distress in any such place; and

(b) of all seamen and apprentices not being Native Indian subjects who have been shipwrecked, discharged or left behind at any place in British India from any British ship, registered in British India and who are in distress in any such place, until such time as such authority is able to provide them with a passage as hereinafter provided.

Distressed seamen to be sent home on board British ship wanting seamen to make up its crew.

53. Subject as aforesaid, the local authority may cause such seamen or apprentices to be put on board some ship belonging to any subject of Her Majesty which is in want of men to make up its complement, and is bound—

(a) in the case of seamen or apprentices who are Native Indian subjects of Her Majesty, to their home or to a port in British India near their home;

(b) in the case of other British seamen or apprentices, to any port in the United Kingdom or the British possession to which they belong (as the case requires); and

(c) in the case of seamen or apprentices not being subjects of Her Majesty, to such place as the local authority, subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, may in each case determine.

In default of such ship, on board of any ship.

54. In default of any such ship, the local authority may, subject as aforesaid, provide such seamen or apprentices with a passage in any ship (whether British or foreign) bound as aforesaid.

Name and other particulars with regard to seamen to be indorsed on agreement of British ship.

55. The local authority shall indorse on the agreement of any British ship on board of which any seaman or apprentice is sent under section fifty-three or section fifty-four, the name of every person so sent on board thereof, with such particulars concerning the case as the Governor General in Council may from time to time by rule prescribe.

Master of British ship compelled to convey and give subsistence to such seamen.

56. The master of every British ship bound as aforesaid shall receive and afford a passage and subsistence to all seamen and apprentices whom he is required to take on board his ship under the provisions of section fifty-three or section fifty-four not exceeding one for every fifty tons burden, and shall, during the passage, provide every such seaman or apprentice with a proper berth or sleeping place effectually protected against sea and weather.

Penalty for refusing so to do.

57. If the master of any such ship fails or refuses to receive on board his ship, or to give a passage or subsistence to, or to provide for, any such seaman or apprentice contrary to the provisions of section fifty-six, he shall, for each seaman and apprentice with respect to whom he so fails or refuses, be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or, when he is tried at any place beyond the limits of British India, to the equivalent of one thousand rupees in the currency of such place.

Conditions under which master may claim payment.

58. When any master of a British ship has conveyed a seaman or apprentice in excess of the number (if any) wanted to make up the complement of his crew to any place in accordance with the requisition of a local authority under this chapter, such master shall be entitled to be paid by the Secretary of State for India in Council in respect of the subsistence and passage of such seaman or apprentice such sum per diem as the Governor General in Council from time to time appoints:

Provided that no payment shall be made under this section except on the production of the following documents (that is to say):—

(b) a declaration in writing by such master made and verified in manner hereinafter provided, and stating—

(1) the number of days during which such seaman or apprentice received subsistence and was provided for as aforesaid on board his ship;

(2) the number of men and boys forming the complement of his crew;

(3) the number of seamen and apprentices employed on board his ship during the time such seaman or apprentice was on board; and

(4) every variation (if any) of such number.

The declaration required by this section shall, in the case of a ship conveying Native Indian subjects of Her Majesty to a port in India,

India, be made before a Shipping-master or such other officer as the Local Government may appoint. In other cases such declaration shall be made and verified in the same manner as declarations made under section 212 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854.

Wages and expenses incurred in respect of distressed seamen to be charged on ship to which they belong in certain cases.

59. (a). If any seaman or apprentice, being a Native Indian subject of Her Majesty and belonging to any British ship, is discharged or left behind at any place in British India without full compliance on the part of the master with all the provisions in that behalf of the law for the time being in force, and becomes distressed and is relieved under the provisions of this chapter; or

(c) if any seaman or apprentice belonging to any British ship, registered in British India, and not being a Native Indian subject of Her Majesty, is discharged or left behind at any place in British India without full compliance as aforesaid, and becomes distressed and is relieved as aforesaid, the wages (if any) due to such seaman or apprentice, and all expenses incurred for his subsistence, necessary clothing, conveyance home, and, in case he should die before reaching home, for his burial, shall be a charge upon the ship, whether British or foreign, to which he so belonged aforesaid.

Mode of recovering such wages and expenses.

60. All such wages and expenses shall be recoverable with costs either from the master of such ship or from the person who is owner thereof for the time being, or in the case of an engagement for service in a foreign ship, from such master or owner, or from the person by whom such engagement was so made, in the same manner as other debts due to the Secretary of State for India in Council, or in the same manner and by the same form and process in which wages due to the seaman or apprentice would be recoverable by him.

Local Government may authorize persons to recover same.

61. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, authorize, either generally or specially, such persons as it thinks fit to sue for any such wages and expenses and recover the same.

Such persons to be deemed persons filling a public office.

And every person so authorized shall be entitled to sue and recover accordingly, and shall be deemed to be a person filling a public office within the meaning of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, section 57, clause 7.

Board of Trade may recover such amount from master or owner in certain cases.

62. When any such wages and expenses are due to or in respect of a seaman or apprentice mentioned in section fifty-nine, clause (c), they may, instead of being recovered by a person authorized under section sixty-one, be recovered by the Board of Trade in manner provided by the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, section 213, and when so recovered shall be paid by the said Board to the Secretary of State for India in Council.

What shall be evidence of distress and expenses incurred.

63. In all proceedings under this chapter, whether in India or elsewhere, the production of a certificate signed by the local authority by which any seaman or apprentice named therein was relieved, or any expenses were incurred, under this chapter, to the effect that such seaman or apprentice was in distress, and that such expenses were incurred in respect of such seaman or apprentice, shall be sufficient evidence that such seaman or apprentice was relieved, conveyed home or buried (as the case may be) at the expense of the revenues of India.

Power of Governor General in Council to make rules.

64. The Governor General in Council may, from time to time, make rules to determine under what circumstances and subject to what conditions seamen or apprentices may be relieved and provided with passages under this chapter and generally to carry out the provisions of this chapter.

All such rules shall be published in the Gazette of India, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

CHAPTER IV.

MARINE SURVEYORS.

Local Government to appoint examiners,

65. The Local Government may, from time to time, appoint competent persons for the purpose of examining the qualifications of persons desirous of practising the profession of a marine surveyor in the territories administered by such Government, and subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, make rules—and to make rules as to qualification, &c., of marine surveyors.

(a) for the conduct of such examinations and the qualifications to be required,

(b) for the grant of certificates to qualified persons,

(c) for the fees to be paid for such examinations and certificates,

(d) for holding inquiries into charges of incompetency and misconduct on the part of holders of such certificates, and

(e) for the suspension and cancelment of such certificates.

Publication of rules.

All such rules shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

No person to practise as marine surveyor unless qualified.

66. No person shall, in any port in which there is a person exercising the profession of a marine surveyor and holding a certificate issued under section sixty-five, exercise such profession in such port unless he holds a certificate issued under that section.

Penalty for practising as marine surveyor without certificate.

67. Any person who exercises such profession, in contravention of the provisions of section sixty-six, shall be punished with fine not exceeding one thousand rupees, and in default of payment with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months. He shall also be incapable of maintaining any suit for any fee or reward for anything done by him whilst acting as a marine surveyor in contravention of the provisions of section sixty-six.

CHAPTER V.

RECEIVERS OF WRECK.

Repeal of chapter V of Indian Ports Act, 1875.

68. Chapter V of the Indian Ports Act, 1875, is hereby repealed.

Appointment of wreck-receivers.

69. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, appoint such persons as it thinks fit to receive and take possession of wreck and to perform such duties connected therewith as are hereinafter mentioned within such local limits as it may from time to time prescribe.

Persons so appointed shall be called receivers of wreck.

Rules to be observed by persons finding wreck.

70. Whenever any wreck is found within any local limits for which a receiver of wreck has been so appointed, the finder shall as soon as practicable—

if he be the owner;

(a) if he be the owner thereof, give the receiver of wreck notice in writing of the finding thereof and of the marks by which such wreck is distinguished;

if he be not the owner.

(b) if he be not the owner of such wreck, deliver the same to the receiver of wreck.

Government or person finding wreck entitled to salvage.

71. Whenever any wreck is found by the receiver of wreck or has been delivered to him in accordance with the provisions of section seventy by any person, not being the owner thereof, the Government or such other person so delivering such wreck, as the case may be, shall be entitled to receive a reasonable sum for salvage, having regard to all the circumstances of the case.

Disputes concerning amount of salvage.

Any dispute arising concerning the amount due under this section shall be determined by a Magistrate, upon application to him for that purpose by either of the disputing parties.

Notice to be given by wreck-receiver.

72. The receiver of wreck shall, on taking possession of any wreck, publish a notification, in such manner and at such place as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe in this behalf, containing a description of the same and the time at which and the place where the same was found.

Wreck may in certain cases be sold.

73. If after the publication of such notification the wreck is unclaimed, or if the person claiming the same fails to pay the amount due for salvage and for charges incurred by the receiver of wreck in respect thereof, the receiver of wreck may sell such wreck by public auction, if of a perishable nature, forthwith, and if not of a perishable nature, at any period not less than six months after such notification as aforesaid.

Proceeds how applied.

74. On the realization of the proceeds of such sale, the amount due for salvage and charges as aforesaid, together with the expenses of the sale, shall be deducted therefrom, and the balance shall be paid to the owner of the wreck, or, if no such person appear and claim the same, shall be held in deposit for payment, without interest, to any person thereafter establishing his right to the same:

Provided that he makes his claim within one year from the date of the sale.

Penalty for failure to give notice of, or to deliver, wreck to the receiver of wreck.

75. Any person omitting to give notice of the finding of, or to deliver, any wreck to the receiver of wreck as required by section seventy shall be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, and in the case of omission to deliver any wreck, shall, in addition to such fine, forfeit all claim to salvage, and pay to the owner of such wreck if the same is claimed, or if the same is unclaimed to the Government, a penalty not exceeding twice the value of such wreck.

CHAPTER VI.

INSPECTION OF SHIPS WITH [illegible] FOG-SIGNALS.

Saving clause.

76. Nothing in this chapter contained shall apply to any ship belonging to, or in the service of, Her Majesty or the Government of India or any foreign prince or State.

Appointment of inspectors of lights and fog-signals.

77. The Local Government may, from time to time, appoint persons to inspect ships in any port for the purpose of seeing that the same are properly provided with lights and with the means of making fog-signals in pursuance of the regulations for preventing collisions at sea, issued under the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1862, or any other similar law for the time being in force, and may suspend or remove any person so appointed.

Every person so appointed shall in the port for which he is appointed have, for the purposes of such inspection, the powers given to detaining-officers by section ten.

Notice of deficiency to be given to master or owner by such inspectors.

78. If any such person finds that any ship is not so provided, he shall give to the master or owner notice in writing pointing out the deficiency, and also what is, in his opinion, requisite in order to remedy the same.

Ship not to be cleared by Customs-collector till inspector certifies it is properly provided with lights, &c.

79. Every notice so given shall be communicated in such manner as the Local Government may direct, and the Customs-collector at any port from which such ship may seek to clear; and no Customs-collector to whom such communication is made shall grant such ship a port-clearance or allow her to proceed to sea without a certificate under the hand of some person appointed as aforesaid, to the effect that the said ship is properly provided with lights and with the means of making fog-signals in pursuance of the said regulations.

CHAPTER VII.

PORT-INSPECTORS.

Addition to Act XII of 1875, after section 18.

80. In the Indian Ports Act, 1875, after section eighteen, the following sections shall be inserted (that is to say):—

Appointment and powers of Port-inspectors.

"18A. The Local Government may, from time to time, appoint in any port subject to this Act an officer to be called the Port-inspector, and suspend or remove such officer.

Every officer so appointed shall, subject to the control of the Local Government, have the following powers within the limits of the port for which he is appointed (that is to say):—

(a) he may at any time enter any vessel and may inspect the same and every part thereof, and the provisions and water provided for the use of the persons on board such vessel and the medicines and appliances and the accommodation for the seamen;

(b) he may medically examine all or any of the persons on board such vessel;

(c) he may require and enforce the production of the log and any other books, papers or documents which he thinks necessary for the purpose of enquiring into the health and medical condition of the persons on board such vessel;

(d) he may call before him and examine for the [illegible] any of such persons, and may require answers to any inquiries he thinks fit to make;

(e) he may require any persons so examined by him to make and subscribe a declaration of the truth of the statements made by such person."

Port-inspector to inquire into complaints,

"18B. The Port-inspector shall, on first entering any vessel after its arrival, inquire whether any seaman or apprentice on board such vessel desires to make any complaint against the master or any of the crew thereof.

In the event of any seaman or apprentice so desiring, the Port-inspector shall hear such complaint and record the particulars thereof in writing, and may, for the purpose of ascertaining the truth of the same, exercise any of the powers mentioned in section 18A.

and report the same to Shipping-master.

The Port-inspector shall forthwith report in writing to the Shipping-master the particulars of any complaint made to him under this section, together with his opinion thereon."

CHAPTER VIII.

AMENDMENT OF THE INDIAN MERCHANT SHIPPING ACT, 1875.

New section substituted for section 3 of Act IV of 1875.

81. In the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1875, for section three, the following shall be substituted:—

Notice of accidents to be given to the Local Government.

"3. When—

(a) any ship has been lost, abandoned, stranded or damaged on or near the coasts of India; or

(c) any ship has caused loss or damage to any other ship on or near such coasts; or

(d) any such loss, abandonment, stranding, damage or casualty has happened elsewhere, and any competent witnesses thereof have arrived or are to be found at any place in India;

(e) or any ship is supposed to have been lost, and any evidence can be obtained in India as to the circumstances under which she proceeded to sea or was last heard of;

and any Magistrate or any officer appointed by the Local Government in this behalf receives information of the same, he shall without delay communicate such information to the Local Government.

In cases under clauses (a), (b) and (c), the master, pilot, harbour-master or other person in charge of the ship or (where two ships are concerned) in charge of each ship at the time of such loss, abandonment, stranding, damage or casualty, and in cases under clause (d), where the ship concerned proceeds direct from the place where such loss, abandonment, stranding, damage or casualty has occurred to any place in India, the master of such ship at the time she arrives at such place, shall, on arriving in India, give immediate notice of such loss, abandonment, stranding, damage or casualty to the nearest Magistrate, or, when he arrives at a port, to the officer appointed at such port as aforesaid.

Any person bound to give notice under this section and wilfully failing to give the same shall be punished with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, and, in default of payment, to simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months."

Insertion of section after section 25 of same Act.

82. After section twenty-five of the same Act, the following section shall be inserted (that is to say):—

Scale of provisions to be furnished to lascars.

"25A. In the case of such agreements with lascars or other Native seamen, the scale of the provisions agreed to be furnished to each of such seamen shall not be less than a scale to be from time to time fixed and published by the Local Government with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council.

Any master entering into an agreement with lascars or other Native seamen for a scale of provisions less than the scale so fixed and published shall be punished with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE provisions of this Bill may be roughly divided into three parts (namely) :—

I. those relating to unsafe and unseaworthy ships contained in chapter II;

II. those relating to the relief and conveyance home of distressed seamen contained in chapter III;

III. those contained in the subsequent chapters which make additions to, and amendments of, the existing law as to Merchant Shipping on various miscellaneous points.

I.—Unseaworthy Ships.

2. The whole law enacted by Parliament on the subject of seaworthiness of ships is now contained in the Statute 39 & 40 Vic., c. 80. There are two main reasons why that Statute does not meet the requirements of this country :

First.—None of its provisions apply to ships of British Indian register as distinguished from ships of British register. Ships of British Indian register (or "British Indian ships" as they are termed in the Bill) are a somewhat peculiar class of vessels, registered under Acts of the Indian legislature, and only possessing the status of British ships within certain defined limits in Eastern waters. As there is a large number of such ships sailing from ports in India, it is obvious that any law which does not include them is incomplete and inadequate.

Secondly.—Even with regard to British ships, to which the Statute does apply, though many of its provisions extend to them wherever they may be, still some—and perhaps the most important—are confined to such ships when sailing from ports in the United Kingdom, and are, therefore, totally inoperative in this country.

3. It is the object of this Bill to supplement the Statute, and by extending certain of its provisions to this country to make all ships, whether British or British Indian, sailing from ports in India subject to provisions similar to those to which British ships are subject in the United Kingdom.

In doing this, however, care has been taken strictly to confine the provisions of the Bill to those cases to which the Statute does not apply, and in no way to trench upon ground which its provisions already cover.

4. The sections of the Statute which have been adopted in this Bill are sections 4 to 12 inclusive, and sections 15, 22, 25, 26, 28, 34 and 35.

The effect of these provisions may be shortly stated as follows.

Section 4 makes it penal for any person to send, and any master to take, a ship to sea when she is in such an unseaworthy state that the life of any person is likely to be thereby endangered.

Section 5 makes it an implied condition in every contract of service with a seaman and in every instrument of apprenticeship that all reasonable efforts will be used to secure the seaworthiness of the ship.

Section 6 empowers the Board of Trade to order the detention of any British ship which they believe to be unsafe; and sections 7, 8 and 9 deal with the constitution and procedure of the Court of Survey, to which appeals may be made from such order.

Section 10 lays down the cases in which the Board and shipowner respectively shall be liable for costs of detention and survey. Section 11 empowers the Board to require security for costs from a complainant; whilst section 12 is taken up with general supplemental provisions as to the detention of ships.

By section 15, in cases of scientific difficulty, a special Court of appeal of scientific men is provided.

Section 22 enacts in what way only grain cargoes may be stowed.

Sections 25 and 26 lay down certain rules as to the marking of ships with deck and load lines—the former to indicate the position of each deck which is above water, and the latter the depth in the water up to which the owner intends to load the ship; and section 28 inflicts certain penalties for offences in relation to these marks.

Sections 34 and 35 contain miscellaneous provisions as to the enforcement of the detention of ships and service of orders, notices, &c., on masters.

5. Of the above provisions, sections 4, 5, 22 and 25 apply to British ships wherever they may be. They, therefore, already apply proprio vigore to such ships in India; and, accordingly, the Bill extends them only to British Indian ships. The other sections apply to British ships only when in ports in the United Kingdom; and, therefore, the Bill extends them both to British and British Indian ships in this country.

6. In adapting to India an English Act of this nature, it seems advisable to make the Indian Act as nearly as possible identical with the English one. In drafting this chapter therefore, the provisions of 39 & 40 Vic., c. 80, have been followed as closely as possible, not merely in substance, but also in wording. The different circumstances of India have, however, required certain alterations in the authorities who are to carry out the provisions of the chapter. For example, it has been necessary to substitute "Local Government" for "Board of Trade," and to alter the list of persons from whom the Judge of the Court of Survey shall be summoned; and the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal has been authorized to delegate his powers under the proposed Act to the Calcutta Port Commissioners (section 50); but, as a rule, the provisions of the English Act have been adopted as they stand.

II.—Distressed Seamen.

7. The main provisions of the existing law relating to the relief and conveyance home of distressed seamen are contained in sections 211 and 212 of the Merchant Shipping Act of 1854, forming a portion of Part III of the Act. Section 109 of the Act applies these provisions to—

(a) all ships registered in any British possession when they are out of the jurisdiction of that possession;

(b) all ships registered in any British possession and plying between any place in the United Kingdom and any place not situated in that possession;

(c) all sea-going ships registered in the United Kingdom, with some exceptions immaterial for the present purpose; and

(d) the owners, masters and crews of all such ships.

There may thus be ships registered in India to which these provisions apply, e.g., an Indian ship at Singapore or Hong-Kong, or one plying between Galle and London. There may also be ships of English register, though plying exclusively within British Indian waters and manned by Native crews, to which the same provisions apply, as is the case with some of the vessels of the British Indian Steam Navigation Company, which are registered in Glasgow.

8. Sections 211 and 212 of the Act made provisions in favour of distressed seamen "being subjects of Her Majesty," and it is clear that in this expression all subjects, whatever their place of birth, are included.

9. By subsequent enactments powers have been conferred on the Board of Trade to issue binding instructions for the regulation of the relief of distressed seamen. The enactment now operative for this purpose is the twenty-second section of the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act of 1862. The instructions issued by the Board relate to distressed seamen generally, making no distinction between different classes. They appear clearly to apply to all seamen over whom the Act of 1854 gives jurisdiction, e.g., they would apply to Bengal lascars in distress at Penang.

10. A question arises as to the circumstances under which these instructions, which, as shown above, apply to some ships while in Indian waters and also include lascars who are British subjects, become applicable to such lascars. This arises on the interpretation of the conditions laid down in the Act, which are that the seamen, besides being distressed, shall be abroad and desire to be conveyed home. These words may equally, accurately and literally be construed either of the place or the possession at or in which the seaman is, and it is possible to do little more than guess at the construction they should receive.

11. It is thus clear that, on the most restrictive construction of the Act, there are many cases occurring in British India to which the Act and instructions apply, but that from the vagueness of the terms used in the Act, it is impossible to tell how far such cases may extend.

12. It is not competent to the Government of India to effect of its own motion any amendment of the terms of sections 211 and 212 of the Act of 1854. It might do so possibly if that Act stood by itself; but the instructions issued by the Board of Trade, which are the means whereby these sections are worked, are no part of the Act of 1854, but depend for their authority on the Act of 1862, which it is beyond the power of the Government of India to repeal or affect. On the other hand, there are cases not falling within those enumerated in paragraph seven as governed by the Merchant Shipping Act of 1854, for which the Government of this country has power to legislate.

13. It is with these latter cases that chapter III of the Bill deals. Under the first construction of the words "abroad" and "home" referred to in paragraph ten, the case mentioned in clause (a) of section 52 of the Bill is no doubt to some extent provided for by the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854; but on either construction of these words it will be admitted that there are some places in British India where a Native seaman may be which are not abroad to him, though not actually his home. These cases will be provided for, while, as the Bill does not purport to provide for any case in which the Board of Trade have power to issue instructions, any possibility of conflict between the Local and Imperial Acts will be avoided.

14. Following section 16 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1855, the local authorities in India have been empowered to send home distressed foreign as well as British seamen, and further to send seamen home in foreign ships. This extended power may be found useful in the case of some Asiatic seamen not subjects of Her Majesty.

15. The money paid in respect of the seamen referred to in clause (a) of section 52 should be recovered from the ship to which the distressed seaman belonged by the Secretary of State in Council; and section 61 accordingly provides for its being recovered in India by him. In the case mentioned in clause (c) of section 59, it would appear that, under section 288 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, the Government of India can empower the Board of Trade to recover the money for it by adapting the provisions of section 213 of the Act to the case. Accordingly, there has been added in section 62 a power to the Board of Trade to recover for the Government of India, which will probably be found useful when the money has to be recovered in England or in British possessions abroad.

16. A draft of these provisions has been submitted to the Board of Trade, who have agreed to issue new instructions in conformity with the Bill, and to adopt as the rate of subsistence for Native Indian seamen that to be fixed for such persons by the Government of India under the Bill. The result is that, if these provisions become law, the instructions of the Board of Trade and this Act will cover the whole ground, although it may still remain uncertain how much is covered by the instructions of the Board and how much by the Act.

III.—Miscellaneous Amendments.

17. The other provisions of the Bill do not call for much notice. They have all been introduced to provide for cases in which it appears that the provisions of the existing law are wanting or insufficient.

18. By a recent order of Government, all officers holding port appointments have been prohibited from undertaking private surveys. It having since been represented that considerable inconvenience is caused by this order, in consequence of the private surveyors at some ports not possessing the confidence of the mercantile community, provision has been made in the Bill (chapter IV) for the examination and licensing of fit persons to be marine surveyors, and prohibiting any unlicensed person from acting as a marine surveyor in any port where there may be any such licensed surveyor.

19. Chapter V, providing for the appointment of receivers of wreck, has been introduced at the suggestion of the Secretary of State, who considers that some provisions on the subject similar to those in the English Merchant Shipping Act of 1854 are desirable. In the event of this portion of the Bill becoming law, chapter V of the Indian Ports Act, relating to salvage in ports, will become unnecessary, and it is accordingly proposed to repeal it.

20. Chapter VI provides for the appointment of persons to inspect ships for the purpose of seeing whether they are properly furnished with lights and with the means of making fog-signals in accordance with the regulations for preventing collisions at sea. Section 30 of the English Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1862, deals with this point. Though under it the Board of Trade is apparently given power to appoint persons to inspect ships for such purpose anywhere, still it is doubtful whether it was intended to give them this power in a British possession abroad, and still more doubtful whether the Board would be willing to exercise this power. It has, therefore, been considered the best course for the legislature of this country to take independent power in the matter.

21. Chapter VII, by an addition to the Ports Act, 1875, provides for the appointment of an officer called a "Port-inspector." This officer, in addition to performing the duties at present performed by the Health-officer (for the performance of which duties he is by the Bill invested with certain legal powers), is intrusted with the duty of inquiring into any complaints which may be made on the arrival of a ship in port by any of the crew against the master or any others of the crew. This latter provision has been inserted, in compliance with the desire of the Secretary of State, for the protection of lascars or other Oriental seamen when serving on board a European ship.

22. Chapter VIII makes two amendments of the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1875. The one extends the provisions of section 3 of that Act so as to give power to hold Marine Courts of Enquiry in certain cases which are at present unprovided for. This change has been introduced at the request of the local Marine authorities, and is in accordance with the provisions of the English law as recently amended. The other amendment gives the Local Government power to fix a scale of provisions, for less than which it will be penal for a master to contract with any lascar or Native seaman—a provision which has been found to be essential for the protection of such seamen.

A Bill relating to Merchant Shipping.

WHEREAS it is expedient to prevent the departure of unsafe ships from British India; Preamble.

and whereas it is also expedient to provide for the relief of distressed seamen and apprentices at ports in British India, and for the recovery of wages due to and expenses incurred in respect of such seamen and apprentices in cases to which sections 211 to 213 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, and section 16 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1855, do not apply of their own force;

and whereas it is also expedient to provide in other respects hereinafter appearing for the regulation and control of merchant shipping; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

1. This Act may be called "The Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1880": Short title.

and it shall come into force on the first day of January 1880. Commencement.

2. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context, Interpretation-clause.

"ship", except in chapter III, includes anything made for the conveyance by water of human beings or property: "ship":

"master" means any person (except a pilot or harbour-master) having for the time being the charge or control of a ship: "master":

"wreck" includes jetsam, flotsam, lagan and derelict found in or on the shores of the sea or any tidal water: "wreck":

"port" in any provision of this Act includes also any part of a river or channel leading to a port which for the purposes of such provision the Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, declare to be included in such port. "port".

CHAPTER II.

UNSEAWORTHY AND UNSAFE SHIPS.

3. Nothing in this chapter contained shall apply to any ship belonging to, or in the service of, Her Majesty or the Government of India. Saving clause.

In this chapter, "British Indian ship" means a ship registered under Act No. XIX of 1838, Act No. X of 1841, or Act No. XI of 1856, or under any other law passed by the Governor General in Council and for the time being in force for the registration of ships in India; and Interpretation-clause. "British Indian ship":

"British ship" includes a British Indian ship: "British ship":

"manner prescribed" means such manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, by rules published in the official Gazette prescribe. "manner prescribed":

A ship is "unsafe" within the meaning of this chapter when by reason of the defective condition of her hull, equipments or machinery, or by reason of overloading or improper loading, she is unfit to proceed to sea without serious danger to human life, having regard to the nature of the service for which she is intended.

"unsafe".

4. Every person who sends or attempts to send a British Indian ship to sea in such unseaworthy state that the life of any person is likely to be thereby endangered, shall, unless he proves that he used all reasonable means to insure her being sent to sea in a seaworthy state, or that her going to sea in such unseaworthy state was under the circumstances reasonable and justifiable, be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both.

Every person sending unseaworthy ship to sea liable to penalty.

Every master of a British Indian ship who knowingly takes such ship to sea in such unseaworthy state that the life of any person is likely to be thereby endangered shall, unless he proves that her going to sea in such unseaworthy state was under the circumstances reasonable and justifiable, be punished with imprisonment which may extend to three years, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both.

Master taking unseaworthy ship to sea liable to penalty.

For the purpose of giving such proof, every person charged under this section may give evidence in the same manner as any other witness.

No prosecution under this section shall be instituted except by, or with the consent of, the Local Government.

Prosecution to be by, or with consent of, Local Government.

Implied Condition of Seaworthiness in Contract of Service.

5. In every contract of service, express or implied, between the owner of a British Indian ship and the master or any seaman thereof, and in every instrument of apprenticeship whereby any person is bound to serve as an apprentice on board any such ship, there shall be implied, notwithstanding any agreement to the contrary, an obligation on the owner that such owner and the master, and every agent charged with the loading of such ship or the preparing thereof for sea, or the sending thereof to sea, shall use all reasonable means to secure the seaworthiness of such ship for the voyage at the time when such voyage commences, and to keep her in a seaworthy state for the voyage during the same:

Obligation of owner to crew with respect to use of reasonable efforts to secure seaworthiness.

Provided that nothing in this section shall subject such owner to any liability by reason of such ship being sent to sea in an unseaworthy state where, owing to special circumstances, the so sending her to sea is reasonable and justifiable.

Proviso.

Detention of Unsafe Ships by the Local Government.

6. The Local Government, if it has reason to believe, on complaint or otherwise, that a British ship, in any port to which it may from time to time specially extend this section, is unsafe, may provisionally order the detention of such ship for the purpose of being surveyed.

Provisional detention by Local Government.

A written statement of the grounds of such detention shall be forthwith served on the master of such ship.

Service of grounds on master.

7. The Local Government may, if it thinks fit, when it provisionally orders the detention of any ship, appoint some competent person to survey such ship and report thereon, and, on receiving the report of such person, may either order the ship to be released, or, if in its opinion the ship is unsafe, may order her to be finally detained.

Power to appoint surveyor.

Action on receipt of his report.

An order of final detention under this section may be either absolute or until the performance of such conditions with respect to the execution of repairs or alterations, or the unloading or reloading of cargo, as the Local Government thinks necessary for the protection of human life; and the Local Government may, from time to time, vary or add to any such order:

Order of final detention.

Provided that, before an order for final detention is made, a copy of the report shall be served upon the master of the ship, and within seven days after such service the owner or master may appeal against such report, in the manner prescribed, to the Court of Survey (hereinafter mentioned) for the port where the ship is detained.

Service of report on master and appeal to Court of Survey

8. Where a ship has been provisionally detained and a person has been appointed under section seven to survey such ship, the owner or master of the ship, at any time before such person makes such survey, may require that he shall be accompanied by such person as such owner or master may select out of the list of assessors for the Court of Survey (nominated as hereinafter mentioned); and

Option to owner or master of appointing assessor to accompany surveyor.

in such case, if the surveyor and assessor agree that the ship should be detained or released, the Local Government shall cause the ship to be detained or released accordingly, and the owner or master shall have no appeal;

Procedure where surveyor and assessor agree;

but if the surveyor and assessor differ in their report the Local Government may act as if the requisition had not been made, and the owner or master shall have such appeal touching the report of the surveyor as is hereinbefore provided.

where they differ.

9. When a ship has been provisionally detained, the Local Government may at any time, instead of following the procedure hereinbefore provided, refer the matter to the Court of Survey for the port where the ship is detained.

Power to refer to Court of Survey.

Detaining-Officers.

10. For the better execution of this chapter, the Local Government may, from time to time, appoint a sufficient number of fit persons as its officers, and may suspend or remove any of them.

Detaining-officers.

Every officer so appointed (hereinafter referred to as a detaining-officer) shall have, for the purpose of his duties under this chapter, the following powers (that is to say):—

Their powers generally.

(b) he may, by summons under his hand, require the attendance of all such persons as he thinks fit to call before him and examine, and may require answers or returns to any inquiries he thinks fit to make;

(c) he may require and enforce the production of all books, papers or documents which he considers important; and

(d) he may administer oaths, or may, in lieu of requiring or administering an oath, require every person examined by him to make and subscribe a declaration of the truth of the statements made by him in his examination.

11. Every detaining-officer shall, in addition to the powers hereinbefore conferred, have the same power as the Local Government has under sections six and seven respectively of provisionally ordering the detention of a ship for the purpose of being surveyed, and of appointing a person to survey her; and if he thinks that a ship so detained by him is not unsafe, may order her to be released.

Their power to order provisional detention and survey.

Every such officer shall forthwith report to the Local Government any order made by him for the detention or release of a ship.

Detaining-officer to report to Local Government.

Of the Court of Survey and of Appeals and References thereto.

12. A Court of Survey for a port shall consist of a Judge sitting with two assessors.

Constitution of Court of Survey.

13. The Judge shall be such person as may be summoned for the case, in the manner prescribed, out of a list (from time to time approved for the port by the Local Government) of District Judges, Judges of Courts of Small Causes, Presidency Magistrates, Magistrates of the first class and other fit persons.

The Judge.

14. The assessors shall be persons of nautical, engineering or other special skill and experience. One of them shall be appointed by the Local Government either generally or in each case, and the other shall be summoned, in the manner prescribed, by the Registrar of the Court (to be appointed as hereinafter declared) out of a list of persons periodically nominated for the purpose by the Local Government, or, if there is no such list, shall be appointed by the Judge.

The assessors.

15. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint some fit person to be the Registrar of the Court.

Registrar of the Court.

16. The Registrar shall, on receiving notice of an appeal or a reference from the Local Government, immediately summon the Court, in the manner prescribed, to meet forthwith.

Registrar to summon Court.

17. Every such appeal and reference shall be heard in open Court.

Case to be heard in open Court.

18. The Judge and each assessor shall, for the purposes of this chapter, have the same powers as are by section ten conferred on a detaining-officer.

Powers of Judge and assessors.

19. The Judge may appoint any competent person to survey the ship and report thereon to the Court.

Judge may appoint surveyor.

20. The owner and master of the ship and any person appointed by the owner or master, and also any person appointed by the Local Government, may attend at any inspection or survey made in exercise or pursuance of the powers conferred by section eighteen or section nineteen.

Owner or master may attend at survey.

21. The Judge shall have the same power as the Local Government has to order the ship to be released or finally detained; but, unless one of the assessors concurs in an order for the detention of the ship, the ship shall be released.

Power of Judge to detain or release ship.

22. The Judge shall report the proceedings of the Court in each case to the Local Government in the manner prescribed, and each assessor shall either sign such report or report to the Local Government the reasons for his dissent.

Report to Local Government by Court.

23. The Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, from time to time make rules to carry into effect the provisions of this chapter with respect to a Court of Survey, and in particular with respect to—

Power of Local Government to make rules with respect to Court of Survey.

(a) the procedure before the Court;

(b) the requiring, on an appeal, of security for costs and damages;

(c) the amount and application of fees; and

(d) the ascertainment, in case of dispute, of the proper amount of costs under this chapter.

Such rules shall be published in the official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

Scientific Referees.

24. If the Local Government is of opinion that an appeal under this chapter involves a question of construction or design, or of scientific difficulty or important principle, it may refer the matter to such one or more out of a list of scientific referees, to be from time to time approved by the Local Government, as may appear to possess the special qualifications necessary for the particular case, and may be selected by agreement between the Local Government and the appellant, or, in default of any such agreement, by the Governor General in Council; and thereupon the appeal shall be determined by the referee or referees instead of by the Court of Survey.

Power to appoint referee to hear appeal.

25. The Local Government, if the appellant in any such appeal so requires and gives security to its satisfaction to pay the costs of and incidental to the reference, shall refer such appeal to a referee or referees selected as aforesaid.

Option to appellant to require referee to be appointed.

26. The referee or referees to whom an appeal is referred under section twenty-four or section twenty-five shall have the same powers as a Judge of the Court of Survey.

Referee to have powers of Court of Survey.

Costs of Detention and Damages incidental thereto.

27. If it appears that there was not reasonable and probable cause, by reason of the condition of the ship or the act or default of the owner, for the provisional detention of the ship, the Government shall be liable to pay to the owner of the ship his costs of and incidental to the detention and survey of the ship, and also compensation for any loss or damage sustained by him by reason of the detention or survey.

Liability of Government for costs and damages when ship wrongly detained.

28. If a ship is finally detained under this chapter, or if it appears that a ship provisionally detained was at the time of such detention unsafe, the owner of the ship shall be liable to pay to Government its costs of and incidental to the detention and survey of the ship; and such costs shall, without prejudice to any other remedy, be recoverable as salvage is recoverable.

Liability of shipowner for costs when ship rightly detained.

29. For the purposes of this chapter, the costs of and incidental to any proceeding before a Court of Survey, and a reasonable amount in respect of the remuneration of the surveyor or officer of the Local Government, shall be deemed to be part of the costs of the detention and survey of the ship.

What included in costs of detention and survey.

30. When a complaint is made to the Local Government or a detaining-officer that a British ship is unsafe, it shall be in the discretion of such Government or officer (as the case may be) to require the complainant to give security to the satisfaction of such Government or officer for the costs and compensation which such complainant may become liable to pay as hereinafter mentioned:

Power to require from complainant security for costs, &c.

Provided that where the complaint is made by one-fourth, being not less than three, of the seamen belonging to the ship, and is not in the opinion of such Government or officer frivolous or vexatious, such security shall not be required; and such Government or officer shall, if the complaint is made in sufficient time before the sailing of the ship, take proper steps to ascertain whether the ship ought to be detained under this chapter.

Proviso as to complaint by one-fourth of crew.

31. Where a ship is detained in consequence of any complaint, and the circumstances are such that Government is liable under this chapter to pay to the owner of the ship any costs or compensation, the complainant shall be liable to pay to Government all such costs and compensation as Government incurs, or is liable to pay, in respect of the detention and survey of the ship.

Costs, &c., payable by Government recoverable from complainant.

Grain Cargoes.

32. No cargo of which more than one-third consists of any kind of grain, corn, rice, paddy, pulse, seeds, nuts or nut-kernels (hereinafter referred to as grain cargo) shall be carried on board any British Indian ship unless the same be contained in bags, sacks or barrels, or secured from shifting by boards or bulkheads or otherwise.

Stowage of cargo of grain, &c.

If the owner or master of any ship, or any agent of such owner who is charged with the loading of such ship or the sending her to sea, knowingly allows any grain cargo or part of a grain cargo to be shipped therein for carriage contrary to the provisions of this section, he shall be punished with fine which may extend to three thousand rupees.

Penalty for improper stowage of such cargo.

Deck and Load Lines.

33. Every British Indian ship (except ships under eighty tons register employed solely in the coasting trade, ships employed solely in fishing and pleasure yachts) shall be permanently and conspicuously marked with lines of not less than twelve inches in length and one inch in breadth painted longitudinally on each side amidships or as near thereto as is practicable, and indicating the position of each deck which is above water.

Marking of deck-lines.

The upper edge of each of these lines shall be level with the upper side of the deck plank next the waterway at the place of marking. The lines shall be white or yellow on a dark ground or black on a light ground.

34. The owner or master of every British ship (except ships under eighty tons register employed solely in the coasting trade, ships employed solely in fishing and pleasure yachts) shall, before entering his ship outwards from any port in British India upon any voyage for which he is required so to enter her, or if that is not practicable, as soon after as may be, mark upon each of her sides amidship, or as near thereto as is practicable, in white or yellow on a dark ground, or in black on a light ground, a circular disc twelve inches in diameter with a horizontal line eighteen inches in length drawn through the centre.

Marking of load-line.

The centre of such disc shall indicate the maximum load-line in salt water to which the owner intends to load such ship for that voyage.

35. The owner or master of every such ship shall also, upon so entering her, insert, in the form of application for entry outwards made to the Customs-collector, a statement in writing of the distances in feet and inches between the centre of such disc and the upper edge of each of the lines indicating the position of the ship's deck which is above such centre: and if default is made in delivering this statement, the Customs-collector may refuse to enter the ship outwards.

Owner to make statement to Customs-officer in application for entry outwards as to position of such disc with regard to deck-lines.

36. The master of every such ship shall enter a copy of this statement in the official log-book and also in the agreement with the crew before it is signed by any member of the crew; and no shipping master shall proceed with the engagement of the crew till this entry is made.

Master to enter copy of this statement in the log-book and agreement with the crew.

37. When a ship has been marked as by section thirty-four required, she shall be kept so marked until she next returns to a port of discharge in British India or arrives at a port in the United Kingdom.

Ship to be kept so marked till her return to a port in British India.

38. Any owner or master of a ship who neglects to cause his ship to be marked as by this chapter required, or to keep her so marked, or who allows the ship to be so loaded as to submerge in salt water the centre of the disc,

Penalty for neglecting to mark, for concealing marks, &c.

and any person who conceals, removes, alters, defaces or obliterates, or suffers any person under his control to conceal, remove, alter, deface or obliterate, any of the said marks, except in the event of the particulars thereby denoted being lawfully altered, or except for the purpose of escaping capture by an enemy, shall be punished for each such offence with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees.

39. If any of the marks required by this chapter is in any respects inaccurate so as to be likely to mislead, the owner and master of the ship shall be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees.

Penalty on owner for having misleading marks.

40. The provisions of this chapter as to load-lines shall not apply to ships coming from ports in the United Kingdom and marked with such lines in accordance with the provisions of the laws for the time being there in force.

Saving of ships marked in the United Kingdom.

Supplemental Provisions.

41. The Local Government may at any time, if satisfied that a ship detained under this chapter is not unsafe, order her to be released either upon or without any conditions.

Release of ship at any time by Local Government.

42. When under this chapter a ship is authorized or ordered to be detained, any commissioned officer on full pay in the naval or military service of Her Majesty, or any Master Attendant, Harbour-master, Conservator of a port or officer of Customs, may detain the ship.

Who may enforce detention of ship.

43. If any ship after such detention, or after service on the master of any notice of or order for such detention, proceeds to sea before she is released by competent authority, the master of the ship shall be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees.

Penalty for proceeding to sea after detention.

44. When a ship so proceeding to sea takes to sea, when on board thereof in the execution of his duty, any person authorized to detain or survey such ship, the owner and master of such ship shall each be liable to pay all expenses of and incidental to such person being so taken to sea, and shall also be punishable with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees.

Penalty for carrying to sea officer in execution of his duty.

When any owner or master is convicted of an offence under this section, the convicting Magistrate may enquire into and determine the amount payable on account of expenses by such owner or master under this section, and may direct that the same shall be recovered from him in manner provided for the recovery of fines.

45. When a ship has been detained under this chapter, she shall not be released by reason of her British or British Indian register being subsequently closed.

Detained ship not to be released because British registry closed.

46. For the purposes of the survey of a ship under this chapter, any person authorized to make the same may go on board the ship and inspect the same, and every part thereof, and the machinery, equipments and cargo, and may require the unloading or removal of any cargo, ballast or tackle.

Powers of person authorized to survey ship.

47. Every Judge, assessor, officer or surveyor under this chapter shall be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

Certain persons to be deemed public servants.

48. Where any order, notice, statement or document is required for the purpose of any provision of this chapter to be served on the master of a ship, the same shall be served, where there is no master, on the owner of the ship, if he resides in the port where the ship is detained, or, if there is no owner residing there, on some agent of the owner residing there; or where such owner or agent is unknown or cannot be found, a copy of such order, notice, statement or document shall be affixed to the mast of the ship, and shall thereupon be deemed to be duly served.

Service of order where there is no master or resident owner, &c.

49. Any such order, notice, statement or document may be served by delivering a copy thereof personally to the person to be served, or by leaving the same at his last place of abode, or, in the case of a master, by leaving it for him on board the ship with the person being or appearing to be in command or charge of the ship.

Order, &c., how to be served.

50. The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal may, from time to time, by notification in the Calcutta Gazette, delegate to the Commissioners for making improvements in the Port of Calcutta, either absolutely or subject to such conditions or restrictions as he thinks fit, all or any of the powers, and require the said Commissioners to discharge all or any of the functions, of a Local Government under the foregoing sections of this Act, except the powers conferred by sections thirteen and fifteen, the power of nominating assessors under section fourteen and the power of making rules, and may cancel any such notification.

Delegation of powers to Calcutta Port Commissioners.

While any such notification remains in force, all costs and damages which would otherwise be recoverable under this Act by or from the Government shall be recoverable in like manner by or from the said Commissioners; and the said Commissioners shall, notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in any enactment now in force, credit or pay, as the case may be, the amount of any costs or damages so recovered to or from the funds held by them in trust as such Commissioners.

CHAPTER III.

DISTRESSED SEAMEN.

Chapter to be taken as part of Act I of 1859.

51. This chapter shall be read with, and taken as part of, Act No. 1 of 1859 (for the amendment of the law relating to Merchant Seamen).

Saving of provisions of Merchant Shipping Acts, 1854 and 1855.

But nothing in this chapter contained applies to seamen or apprentices to whom the provisions of section 211 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, or section 16 of the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1855, apply.

Definition of "ship:"

In this chapter "ship" includes every description of vessel used in navigation, not propelled by oars;

"local authority."

and "local authority" means such person as the Local Government may from time to time appoint by name or in virtue of his office to exercise the powers conferred, and to perform the duties imposed on the local authority under this chapter.

Power to suspend or dismiss.

Every person so appointed may be suspended or dismissed by the Local Government which appointed him.

Relief of distressed seamen at Indian ports.

52. The local authority may, subject to the rules hereinafter mentioned, provide for the subsistence—

(a) of all seamen and apprentices, being Native Indian subjects of Her Majesty, who have been shipwrecked, discharged or left behind at any place in British India, whether from any British ship employed in the merchant service, or from any of Her Majesty's ships, or who have been engaged by any person acting either as principal or agent to serve in any ship belonging to any foreign power, or to the subject of any foreign State, and who are in distress in any such place; and

(b) of all seamen and apprentices not being Native Indian subjects who have been shipwrecked, discharged or left behind at any place in British India from any British ship, registered in British India and who are in distress in any such place, until such time as such authority is able to provide them with a passage as hereinafter provided.

Distressed seamen to be sent home on board British ship wanting seamen to make up its crew.

53. Subject as aforesaid, the local authority may cause such seamen or apprentices to be put on board some ship belonging to any subject of Her Majesty which is in want of men to make up its complement, and is bound—

(a) in the case of seamen or apprentices who are Native Indian subjects of Her Majesty, to their home or to a port in British India near their home;

(b) in the case of other British seamen or apprentices, to any port in the United Kingdom or the British possession to which they belong (as the case requires); and

(c) in the case of seamen or apprentices not being subjects of Her Majesty, to such place as the local authority, subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, may in each case determine.

In default of such ship, on board of any ship.

54. In default of any such ship, the local authority may, subject as aforesaid, provide such seamen or apprentices with a passage in any ship (whether British or foreign) bound as aforesaid.

Name and other particulars with regard to seamen to be indorsed on agreement of British ship.

55. The local authority shall indorse on the agreement of any British ship on board of which any seaman or apprentice is sent under section fifty-three or section fifty-four, the name of every person so sent on board thereof, with such particulars concerning the case as the Governor General in Council may from time to time by rule prescribe.

Master of British ship compelled to convey and give subsistence to such seamen.

56. The master of every British ship bound as aforesaid shall receive and afford a passage and subsistence to all seamen and apprentices whom he is required to take on board his ship under the provisions of section fifty-three or section fifty-four not exceeding one for every fifty tons burden, and shall, during the passage, provide every such seaman or apprentice with a proper berth or sleeping place effectually protected against sea and weather.

Penalty for refusing so to do.

57. If the master of any such ship fails or refuses to receive on board his ship, or to give a passage or subsistence to, or to provide for, any such seaman or apprentice contrary to the provisions of section fifty-six, he shall, for each seaman and apprentice with respect to whom he so fails or refuses, be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or, when he is tried at any place beyond the limits of British India, to the equivalent of one thousand rupees in the currency of such place.

Conditions under which master may claim payment.

58. When any master of a British ship has conveyed a seaman or apprentice in excess of the number (if any) wanted to make up the complement of his crew to any place in accordance with the requisition of a local authority under this chapter, such master shall be entitled to be paid by the Secretary of State for India in Council in respect of the subsistence and passage of such seaman or apprentice such sum per diem as the Governor General in Council from time to time appoints:

Provided that no payment shall be made under this section except on the production of the following documents (that is to say):—

(b) a declaration in writing by such master made and verified in manner hereinafter provided, and stating—

(1) the number of days during which such seaman or apprentice received subsistence and was provided for as aforesaid on board his ship;

(2) the number of men and boys forming the complement of his crew;

(3) the number of seamen and apprentices employed on board his ship during the time such seaman or apprentice was on board; and

(4) every variation (if any) of such number.

The declaration required by this section shall, in the case of a ship conveying Native Indian subjects of Her Majesty to a port in British India, be made before a Shipping-master or such other officer as the Local Government may appoint. In other cases such declaration shall be made and verified in the same manner as declarations made under section 212 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854.

Wages and expenses incurred in respect of distressed seamen to be charged on ship to which they belong in certain cases.

59. (a). If any seaman or apprentice, being a Native Indian subject of Her Majesty and belonging to any British ship, is discharged or left behind at any place in British India without full compliance on the part of the master with all the provisions in that behalf of the law for the time being in force, and becomes distressed and is relieved under the provisions of this chapter; or

(c) if any seaman or apprentice belonging to any British ship, registered in British India, and not being a Native Indian subject of Her Majesty, is discharged or left behind at any place in British India without full compliance as aforesaid, and becomes distressed and is relieved as aforesaid, the wages (if any) due to such seaman or apprentice, and all expenses incurred for his subsistence, necessary clothing, conveyance home, and, in case he should die before reaching home, for his burial, shall be a charge upon the ship, whether British or foreign, to which he so belonged as aforesaid.

Mode of recovering such wages and expenses.

[illegible] such wages and expenses shall be recoverable with costs either from the master of such ship or from the person who is owner thereof for the time being, or in the case of an engagement for service in a foreign ship, from such master or owner, or from the person by whom such engagement was so made, in the same manner as other debts due to the Secretary of State for India in Council, or in the same manner and by the same form and process in which wages due to the seaman or apprentice would be recoverable by him.

Local Government may authorize persons to recover wages.

60. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, authorize, either generally or specially, such persons as it thinks fit to sue for any such wages and expenses and recover the same.

[illegible] to be public officer] filling

And every person so authorized shall be entitled to sue and recover accordingly, and shall be deemed to be a person filling a public office within the meaning of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, section 57, clause 7.

[illegible] Board of Trade may [illegible] seaman or owner [illegible]

61. When any such wages and expenses are due to or in respect of a seaman or apprentice mentioned in section fifty-nine, clause (c), they may, instead of being recovered by a person authorized under section sixty-one, be recovered by the Board of Trade in manner provided by the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, section 213, and when so recovered shall be paid by the said Board to the Secretary of State for India in Council.

What shall be evidence of distress and expenses incurred.

63. In all proceedings under this chapter, whether in India or elsewhere, the production of a certificate signed by the local authority by which any seaman or apprentice named therein was relieved, or any expenses were incurred, under this chapter, to the effect that such seaman or apprentice was in distress, and that such expenses were incurred in respect of such seaman or apprentice, shall be sufficient evidence that such seaman or apprentice was relieved, conveyed home or buried (as the case may be) at the expense of the revenues of India.

Power of Governor General in Council to make rules.

64. The Governor General in Council may, from time to time, make rules to determine under what circumstances and subject to what conditions seamen or apprentices may be relieved and provided with passages under this chapter and generally to carry out the provisions of this chapter.

All such rules shall be published in the Gazette of India, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

CHAPTER IV.

MARINE SURVEYORS.

Local Government to appoint examiners,

65. The Local Government may, from time to time, appoint competent persons for the purpose of examining the qualifications of persons desirous of practising the profession of a marine surveyor in [illegible] and to make rules as [illegible] the territories administered [illegible] subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, make rules—

(a) for the conduct of such examinations and the qualifications to be required,

(b) for the grant of certificates to qualified persons,

(c) for the fees to be paid for such examinations and certificates,

(d) for holding inquiries into charges of incompetency and misconduct on the part of holders of such certificates, and

(e) for the suspension and cancelment of such certificates.

Publication of rules.

All such rules shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

No person to practise as marine surveyor unless qualified.

66. No person shall, in any port in which there is a person exercising the profession of a marine surveyor and holding a certificate issued under section sixty-five, exercise such profession in such port unless he holds a certificate issued under that section.

Penalty for practising as marine surveyor without certificate.

67. Any person who exercises such profession in contravention of the provisions of section sixty-six, shall be punished with fine not exceeding [illegible] rupees, and in default of payment with imprisonment ment for a term which may extend to six months. He shall also be incapable of maintaining any suit for any fee or reward for anything done by him whilst acting as a marine surveyor in contravention of the provisions of section sixty-six.

CHAPTER V.

RECEIVERS OF WRECK.

Repeal of chapter V of Indian Ports Act, 1875.

68. Chapter V of the Indian Ports Act, 1875, is hereby repealed.

Appointment of wreck-receivers.

69. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, appoint such persons as it thinks fit to receive and take possession of wreck and to perform such duties connected therewith as are hereinafter mentioned within such local limits as it may from time to time prescribe.

Persons so appointed shall be called receivers of wreck.

Rules to be observed by persons finding wreck.

70. Whenever any wreck is found within any local limits for which a receiver of wreck has been so appointed, the finder shall as soon as practicable—

if he be the owner;

(a) if he be the owner thereof, give the receiver of wreck notice in writing of the finding thereof and of the marks by which such wreck is distinguished;

if he be not the owner.

(b) if he be not the owner of such wreck, deliver the same to the receiver of wreck.

Government or person finding wreck entitled to salvage.

71. Whenever any wreck is found by the receiver of wreck or has been delivered to him in accordance with the provisions of section seventy by any person, not being the owner thereof, the Government or such other person so delivering such wreck, as the case may be, shall be entitled to receive a reasonable sum for salvage, having regard to all the circumstances of the case.

Any dispute arising concerning the amount due under this section shall be determined by a Magistrate, upon application to him for that purpose by either of the disputing parties.

Disputes concerning amount of salvage.

Notice to be given by wreck-receiver.

72. The receiver of wreck shall, on taking possession of any wreck, publish a notification, in such manner and at such place as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe in this behalf, containing a description of the same and the time at which and the place where the same was found.

Wreck may in certain cases be sold.

73. If after the publication of such notification the wreck is unclaimed, or if the person claiming the same fails to pay the amount due for salvage and for charges incurred by the receiver of wreck in respect thereof, the receiver of wreck may sell such wreck by public auction, if of a perishable nature, forthwith, and if not of a perishable nature, at any period not less than six months after such notification as aforesaid.

Proceeds how applied.

74. On the realization of the proceeds of such sale, the amount due for salvage and charges as aforesaid, together with the expenses of the sale, shall be deducted therefrom, and the balance shall be paid to the owner of the wreck, or, if no such person appear and claim the same, shall be held in deposit for payment, without interest, to any person thereafter establishing his right to the same:

Provided that he makes his claim within one year from the date of the sale.

Penalty for failure to give notice of, or to deliver, wreck to the receiver of wreck.

75. Any person omitting to give notice of the finding of, or to deliver, any wreck to the receiver of wreck as required by section seventy shall be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, and in the case of omission to deliver any wreck, shall, in addition to such fine, forfeit all claim to salvage, and pay to the owner of such wreck if the same is claimed, or if the same is unclaimed to the Government, a penalty not exceeding twice the value of such wreck.

CHAPTER VI.

INSPECTION OF SHIPS WITH REGARD TO LIGHT AND FOG-SIGNALS.

Saving clause.

76. Nothing in this chapter contained shall apply to any ship belonging to, or in the service of, Her Majesty or the Government of India or any foreign prince or State.

Appointment of inspectors of lights and fog-signals.

77. The Local Government may, from time to time, appoint persons to inspect ships in any port for the purpose of seeing that the same are properly provided with lights and with the means of making fog-signals in pursuance of the regulations for preventing collisions at sea, issued under the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1862, or any other similar law for the time being in force, and may suspend or remove any person so appointed.

Every person so appointed shall in the port for which he is appointed have, for the purposes of such inspection, the powers given to detaining-officers by section ten.

Notice of deficiency to be given to master or owner by such inspectors.

78. If any such person finds that any ship is not so provided, he shall give to the master or owner notice in writing pointing out the deficiency, and also what is, in his opinion, requisite in order to remedy the same.

Ship not to be cleared by Customs-collector till inspector certifies it is properly provided with lights, &c.

79. Every notice so given shall be communicated, in such manner as the Local Government may direct, to the Customs-collector at any port from which such ship may seek to clear; and no Customs-collector to whom such communication is made shall grant such ship a port-clearance or allow her to proceed to sea without a certificate under the hand of some person appointed as aforesaid, to the effect that the said ship is properly provided with lights and with the means of making fog-signals in pursuance of the said regulations.

CHAPTER VII.

PORT-INSPECTORS.

Addition to Act XII of 1875, after section 18.

80. In the Indian Ports Act, 1875, after section eighteen, the following sections shall be inserted (that is to say):—

Appointment and powers of Port-inspectors.

"18A. The Local Government may, from time to time, appoint in any port subject to this Act an officer to be called the Port-inspector, and suspend or remove such officer.

Every officer so appointed shall, subject to the control of the Local Government, have the following powers within the limits of the port for which he is appointed (that is to say):—

(a) he may at any time enter any vessel and may inspect the same and every part thereof, and the provisions and water provided for the use of the persons on board such vessel and the medicines and appliances and the accommodation for the seamen;

(b) he may medically examine all or any of the persons on board such vessel;

(c) he may require and enforce the production of the log and any other books, papers or documents which he thinks necessary for the purpose of enquiring into the health and medical condition of the persons on board such vessel;

(d) he may call before him and examine for such purposes all or any of such persons, and may require answers to any inquiries he thinks fit to make;

(e) he may require any persons so examined by him to make and subscribe a declaration of the truth of the statements made by such person."

Port-inspector to inquire into complaints.

"18B. The Port-inspector shall, on first entering any vessel after its arrival, inquire whether any seaman or apprentice on board such vessel desires to make any complaint against the master or any of the crew thereof.

In the event of any seaman or apprentice so desiring, the Port-inspector shall hear such complaint and record the particulars thereof in writing, and may, for the purpose of ascertaining the truth of the same, exercise any of the powers mentioned in section 18A.

The Port-inspector shall forthwith report in writing to the Shipping-master the particulars of any complaint made to him under this section, together with his opinion thereon."

CHAPTER VIII.

AMENDMENT OF THE INDIAN MERCHANT SHIPPING ACT, 1875.

New section substituted for section 3 of Act IV of 1875.

81. In the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1875, for section three, the following shall be substituted:—

Notice of accidents to be given to the Local Government.

"3. When—

(a) any ship has been lost, abandoned, stranded or damaged on or near the coasts of India; or

(c) any ship has caused loss or damage to any other ship on or near such coasts; or

(d) any such loss, abandonment, stranding, damage or casualty has happened elsewhere, and any competent witnesses thereof have arrived or are to be found at any place in India;

(e) or any ship is supposed to have been lost, and any evidence can be obtained in India as to the circumstances under which she proceeded to sea or was last heard of;

and any Magistrate or any officer appointed by the Local Government in this behalf receives information of the same, he shall without delay communicate such information to the Local Government.

In cases under clauses (a), (b) and (c), the master, pilot, harbour-master or other person in charge of the ship or (where two ships are concerned) in charge of each ship at the time of such loss, abandonment, stranding, damage or casualty, and in cases under clause (d), where the ship concerned proceeds direct from the place where such loss, abandonment, stranding, damage or casualty has occurred to any place in India, the master of such ship at the time she arrives at such place, shall, on arriving in India, give immediate notice of such loss, abandonment, stranding, damage or casualty to the nearest Magistrate, or, when he arrives at a port, to the officer appointed at such port as aforesaid.

Any person bound to give notice under this section and wilfully failing to give the same shall be punished with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, and, in default of payment, to simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months."

Insertion of section after section 25 of same Act.

82. After section twenty-five of the same Act, the following section shall be inserted (that is to say):—

Scale of provisions to be furnished to lascars.

"25A. In the case of such agreements with lascars or other Native seamen, the scale of the provisions agreed to be furnished to each of such seamen shall not be less than a scale to be from time to time fixed and published by the Local Government with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council.

Any master entering into an agreement with lascars or other Native seamen for a scale of provisions less than the scale so fixed and published shall be punished with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE provisions of this Bill may be roughly divided into three parts (namely) :—

I. those relating to unsafe and unseaworthy ships contained in chapter II;

II. those relating to the relief and conveyance home of distressed seamen contained in chapter III;

III. those contained in the subsequent chapters which make additions to, and amendments of, the existing law as to Merchant Shipping on various miscellaneous points.

I.—Unseaworthy Ships.

2. The whole law enacted by Parliament on the subject of seaworthiness of ships is now contained in the Statute 39 & 40 Vic., c. 80. There are two main reasons why that Statute does not meet the requirements of this country :

First.—None of its provisions apply to ships of British Indian register as distinguished from ships of British register. Ships of British Indian register (or "British Indian ships" as they are termed in the Bill) are a somewhat peculiar class of vessels, registered under Acts of the Indian legislature, and only possessing the status of British ships within certain defined limits in Eastern waters. As there is a large number of such ships sailing from ports in India, it is obvious that any law which does not include them is incomplete and inadequate.

Secondly.—Even with regard to British ships, to which the Statute does apply, though many of its provisions extend to them wherever they may be, still some—and perhaps the most important—are confined to such ships when sailing from ports in the United Kingdom, and are, therefore, totally inoperative in this country.

3. It is the object of this Bill to supplement the Statute, and by extending certain of its provisions to this country to make all ships, whether British or British Indian, sailing from ports in India subject to provisions similar to those to which British ships are subject in the United Kingdom.

In doing this, however, care has been taken strictly to confine the provisions of the Bill to those cases to which the Statute does not apply, and in no way to trench upon ground which its provisions already cover.

4. The sections of the Statute which have been adopted in this Bill are sections 4 to 12 inclusive, and sections 15, 22, 25, 26, 28, 34 and 35.

The effect of these provisions may be shortly stated as follows.

Section 4 makes it penal for any person to send, and any master to take, a ship to sea when she is in such an unseaworthy state that the life of any person is likely to be thereby endangered.

Section 5 makes it an implied condition in every contract of service with a seaman and in every instrument of apprenticeship that all reasonable efforts will be used to secure the seaworthiness of the ship.

Section 6 empowers the Board of Trade to order the detention of any British ship which they believe to be unsafe; and sections 7, 8 and 9 deal with the constitution and procedure of the Court of Survey, to which appeals may be made from such order.

Section 10 lays down the cases in which the Board and shipowner respectively shall be liable for costs of detention and survey. Section 11 empowers the Board to require security for costs from a complainant; whilst section 12 is taken up with general supplemental provisions as to the detention of ships.

By section 15, in cases of scientific difficulty, a special Court of appeal of scientific men is provided.

Section 22 enacts in what way only grain cargoes may be stowed.

Sections 25 and 26 lay down certain rules as to the marking of ships with deck and load lines—the former to indicate the position of each deck which is above water, and the latter the depth in the water up to which the owner intends to load the ship; and section 28 inflicts certain penalties for offences in relation to these marks.

Sections 34 and 35 contain miscellaneous provisions as to the enforcement of the detention of ships and service of orders, notices, &c., on masters.

5. Of the above provisions, sections 4, 5, 22 and 25 apply to British ships wherever they may be. They, therefore, already apply proprio vigore to such ships in India; and accordingly, the Bill extends them only to British Indian ships. The other sections apply to British ships only when in ports in the United Kingdom; and, therefore, the Bill extends them both to British and British Indian ships in this country.

6. In adapting to India an English Act of this nature, it seems advisable to make the Indian Act as nearly as possible identical with the English one. In drafting this chapter therefore, the provisions of 39 & 40 Vic., c. 80, have been followed as closely as possible, not merely in substance, but also in wording. The different circumstances of India have, however, required certain alterations in the authorities who are to carry out the provisions of the chapter. For example, it has been necessary to substitute "Local Government" for "Board of Trade," and to alter the list of persons from whom the Judge of the Court of Survey shall be summoned; and the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal has been authorized to delegate his powers under the proposed Act to the Calcutta Port Commissioners (section 50); but, as a rule, the provisions of the English Act have been adopted as they stand.

II.—Distressed Seamen.

7. The main provisions of the existing law relating to the relief and conveyance home of distressed seamen are contained in sections 211 and 212 of the Merchant Shipping Act of 1854, forming a portion of Part III of the Act. Section 109 of the Act applies these provisions to—

(a) all ships registered in any British possession when they are out of the jurisdiction of that possession;

(b) all ships registered in any British possession and plying between any place in the United Kingdom and any place not situated in that possession;

(c) all sea-going ships registered in the United Kingdom, with some exceptions immaterial for the present purpose; and

(d) the owners, masters and crews of all such ships.

There may thus be ships registered in India to which these provisions apply, e.g., an Indian ship at Singapore or Hong-Kong, or one plying between Galle and London. There may also be ships of English register, though plying exclusively within British Indian waters and manned by Native crews, to which the same provisions apply, as is the case with some of the vessels of the British Indian Steam Navigation Company, which are registered in Glasgow.

8. Sections 211 and 212 of the Act made provisions in favour of distressed seamen "being subjects of Her Majesty," and it is clear that in this expression all subjects, whatever their place of birth, are included.

9. By subsequent enactments powers have been conferred on the Board of Trade to issue binding instructions for the regulation of the relief of distressed seamen. The enactment now operative for this purpose is the twenty-second section of the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act of 1862. The instructions issued by the Board relate to distressed seamen generally, making no distinction between different classes. They appear clearly to apply to all seamen over whom the Act of 1854 gives jurisdiction, e.g., they would apply to Bengal lascars in distress at Penang.

10. A question arises as to the circumstances under which these instructions, which, as shown above, apply to some ships while in Indian waters and also include lascars who are British subjects, become applicable to such lascars. This arises on the interpretation of the conditions laid down in the Act, which are that the seamen, besides being distressed, shall be abroad and desire to be conveyed home. These words may equally, accurately and literally be construed either of the place or the possession at or in which the seaman is, and it is possible to do little more than guess at the construction they should receive.

11. It is thus clear that, on the most restrictive construction of the Act, there are many cases occurring in British India to which the Act and instructions apply, but that from the vagueness of the terms used in the Act, it is impossible to tell how far such cases may extend.

12. It is not competent to the Government of India to effect of its own motion any amendment of the terms of sections 211 and 212 of the Act of 1854. It might do so possibly if that Act stood by itself; but the instructions issued by the Board of Trade, which are the means whereby these sections are worked, are no part of the Act of 1854, but depend for their authority on the Act of 1862, which it is beyond the power of the Government of India to repeal or affect. On the other hand, there are cases not falling within those enumerated in paragraph seven as governed by the Merchant Shipping Act of 1854, for which the Government of this country has power to legislate.

13. It is with these latter cases that chapter III of the Bill deals. Under the first construction of the words "abroad" and "home" referred to in paragraph ten, the case mentioned in clause (a) of section 52 of the Bill is no doubt to some extent provided for by the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854; but on either construction of these words it will be admitted that there are some places in British India where a Native seaman may be which are not abroad to him, though not actually his home. These cases will be provided for, while, as the Bill does not purport to provide for any case in which the Board of Trade have power to issue instructions, any possibility of conflict between the Local and Imperial Acts will be avoided.

14. Following section 16 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1855, the local authorities in India have been empowered to send home distressed foreign as well as British seamen, and further to send seamen home in foreign ships. This extended power may be found useful in the case of some Asiatic seamen not subjects of Her Majesty.

15. The money paid in respect of the seamen referred to in clause (a) of section 52 should be recovered from the ship to which the distressed seaman belonged by the Secretary of State in Council; and section 61 accordingly provides for its being recovered in India by him. In the case mentioned in clause (c) of section 59, it would appear that, under section 288 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, the Government of India can empower the Board of Trade to recover the money for it by adapting the provisions of section 213 of the Act to the case. Accordingly, there has been added in section 62 a power to the Board of Trade to recover for the Government of India, which will probably be found useful when the money has to be recovered in England or in British possessions abroad.

16. A draft of these provisions has been submitted to the Board of Trade, who have agreed to issue new instructions in conformity with the Bill, and to adopt as the rate of subsistence for Native Indian seamen that to be fixed for such persons by the Government of India under the Bill. The result is that, if these provisions become law, the instructions of the Board of Trade and this Act will cover the whole ground, although it may still remain uncertain how much is covered by the instructions of the Board and how much by the Act.

III.—Miscellaneous Amendments.

17. The other provisions of the Bill do not call for much notice. They have all been introduced to provide for cases in which it appears that the provisions of the existing law are wanting or insufficient.

18. By a recent order of Government, all officers holding port appointments have been prohibited from undertaking private surveys. It having since been represented that considerable inconvenience is caused by this order, in consequence of the private surveyors at some ports not possessing the confidence of the mercantile community, provision has been made in the Bill (chapter IV) for the examination and licensing of fit persons to be marine surveyors, and prohibiting any unlicensed person from acting as a marine surveyor in any port where there may be any such licensed surveyor.

19. Chapter V, providing for the appointment of receivers of wreck, has been introduced at the suggestion of the Secretary of State, who considers that some provisions on the subject similar to those in the English Merchant Shipping Act of 1854 are desirable. In the event of this portion of the Bill becoming law, chapter V of the Indian Ports Act, relating to salvage in ports, will become unnecessary, and it is accordingly proposed to repeal it.

20. Chapter VI provides for the appointment of persons to inspect ships for the purpose of seeing whether they are properly furnished with lights and with the means of making fog-signals in accordance with the regulations for preventing collisions at sea. Section 30 of the English Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1862, deals with this point. Though under it the Board of Trade is apparently given power to appoint persons to inspect ships for such purpose anywhere, still it is doubtful whether it was intended to give them this power in a British possession abroad, and still more doubtful whether the Board would be willing to exercise this power. It has, therefore, been considered the best course for the legislature of this country to take independent power in the matter.

21. Chapter VII, by an addition to the Ports Act, 1875, provides for the appointment of an officer called a "Port-inspector." This officer, in addition to performing the duties at present performed by the Health-officer (for the performance of which duties he is by the Bill invested with certain legal powers), is intrusted with the duty of inquiring into any complaints which may be made on the arrival of a ship in port by any of the crew against the master or any others of the crew. This latter provision has been inserted, in compliance with the desire of the Secretary of State, for the protection of lascars or other Oriental seamen when serving on board a European ship.

22. Chapter VIII makes two amendments of the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1875. The one extends the provisions of section 3 of that Act so as to give power to hold Marine Courts of Enquiry in certain cases which are at present unprovided for. This change has been introduced at the request of the local Marine authorities, and is in accordance with the provisions of the English law as recently amended. The other amendment gives the Local Government power to fix a scale of provisions, for less than which it will be penal for a master to contract with any lascar or Native seaman—a provision which has been found to be essential for the protection of such seamen.

The following preliminary Report of a Select Committee, together with the Bill as settled by them, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 11th September, 1879 :—

WE, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to provide for the holding of property by certain Religious Congregations was referred, have the honour to report that we have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin.

From Secretary, Calcutta Missionary Conference, dated 18th July, 1879 [Paper No. 1].
" Honorary Treasurer, Union Church, Simla, dated 11th July, 1879 [Paper No 2].
" Secretary to Government, Panjáb, No. 609C, dated 4th August, 1879 [Paper No 3].
" Secretary for Birár to Resident, Haidarábád, No. 17, dated 21st August, 1879 [Paper No. 4].
" Officiating Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, No. 2560-191, dated 28th August, 1879, and enclosure [Papers No. 5].
" Chief Commissioner, Ajmer and Merwára, No. 703, dated 30th August, 1879 [Paper No. 6].

2. We have extended the operation of the Bill to property of every description held by religious bodies, as it has been represented to us that it would be of little practical use to certain of those bodies if it were restricted in the manner originally intended.

3. We have added sections based on sections 13 and 14 of Act XXI of 1860, providing for the dissolution of religious bodies and for the disposal of their property when they are dissolved.

4. We have also added a section (8 of the Bill as now amended) providing for a reference to the High Court in the event of any question arising as to whether any person is a member of a religious body or as to the validity of any appointment made under the Act.

5. The Bill and Statement of Objects and Reasons have been published in the Madras, the Calcutta, the Panjáb, the Central Provinces, the British Burma and the Rájputána Gazettes. Having regard to the importance of the amendments now made, we think it desirable that the Bill should be republished.

No. II.

A Bill to provide for the holding of property by certain Religious Bodies.

WHEREAS it is expedient to simplify the manner in which certain bodies of persons associated for the purpose of maintaining religious worship may hold property acquired for such purpose; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Preamble.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Religious Societies Act, 1879";

Commencement.

It shall come into force at once; and

Local extent.

shall extend to the whole of British India;

but nothing herein contained shall apply to any Hindús, Muhammadans or Buddhists, or to any persons whom the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, exclude from the operation of this Act.

Appointment of new trustee in cases not otherwise provided for.

2. When any body of persons associated for the purpose of maintaining religious worship has acquired, or hereafter shall acquire, any property, and such property has been or hereafter shall be vested in trustees in trust for such body, and it becomes necessary to appoint a new trustee in the place of any such trustee or of any trustee appointed in the manner hereinafter prescribed,

and no manner of appointing such new trustee is prescribed by any instrument by which such property was so vested or by which the trusts on which it is held have been declared, or such new trustee cannot for any reason be appointed in a manner so prescribed, such new trustee may be appointed in such manner as may be agreed upon by such body, or by a majority of not less than two-thirds of the members of such body actually present at the meeting at which the appointment is made.

Appointment under section 2 to be recorded in a memorandum under the hand of the chairman of the meeting.

3. Every appointment of new trustees under section two shall be made to appear by some memorandum under the hand of the chairman for the time being of the meeting at which such appointment is made.

Such memorandum shall be in the form set forth in the schedule hereto annexed, or as near thereto as circumstances allow, and shall be executed in the presence of such meeting, and attested by two or more credible witnesses.

Property to vest in new trustees without conveyance.

4. When any new trustees have been appointed, whether in the manner prescribed by any such instrument as aforesaid or in the manner hereinbefore provided, the property subject to the trust shall forthwith, notwithstanding anything contained in any such instrument, become vested, without any conveyance or other assurance, in such new trustees and the old continuing trustees jointly, or, if there are no old continuing trustees, in such new trustees wholly, upon the same trusts and with and subject to the same powers and provisions as it was vested in the old trustees.

Saving of existing modes of appointment and conveyance.

5. Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to invalidate any appointment of new trustees, or any conveyance of any property which may hereafter be made as heretofore was by law required.

Provision for dissolution of societies and adjustment of their affairs.

6. Any number not less than three-fifths of the members of any such body as aforesaid may at any meeting convened for the purpose determine that such body shall be dissolved; and thereupon it shall be dissolved forthwith, or at the time then agreed upon; and all necessary steps shall be taken for the disposal and settlement of the property of such body, its claims and liabilities, according to the rules of such body applicable thereto, if any, and, if not, then as such body at such meeting may determine:

provided that, in the event of any dispute arising among the members of such body, the adjustment of its affairs shall be referred to the principal Court of original civil jurisdiction of the district in which the chief building of such body is situate; and the Court shall make such order in the matter as it deems fit.

Upon a dissolution no member to receive profit.

7. If upon the dissolution of any such body there remains, after the satisfaction of all its debts and liabilities, any property whatsoever, the same shall not be paid to or distributed among the members of such body or any of them, but shall be given to some other body of persons associated for the purpose of maintaining religious worship to be determined by the votes of not less than three-fifths of the members present at a meeting convened for the purpose, or in default thereof by such Court as last aforesaid.

Questions may be submitted to High Court.

8. When any question arises as to whether any person is a member of any such body as aforesaid, or as to the validity of any appointment under this Act, any person interested in such question may apply by petition to the High Court for its opinion on such question. A copy of such petition shall be served upon, and the hearing thereof may be attended by, such other persons interested in the question as the Court thinks fit.

Any opinion given by the Court on an application under this section shall be deemed to have the force of a declaratory decree.

The costs of every application under this section shall be in the discretion of the Court.

(11) "vaccination season" means the period between the first day of November in any year and the last of February in the next following year.

Application of this Act to municipalities, and to cantonments in British India.

3. The Lieutenant-Governors of the North-Western Provinces and the Panjáb, and the Chief Commissioners of Oudh, the Central Provinces, British Burma, Assam, Ajmer and Coorg, may, by notification in the official Gazette, apply this Act to any municipality in the territories administered by them respectively, and, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, to any cantonment situate within such territories.

Application of this Act to cantonments in India but not in British India.

The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, apply this Act to any British cantonment in India but not in British India.

Prohibition of inoculation.

4. In any municipality or cantonment to which the provisions of this Act have been applied, inoculation shall be prohibited; and

Inoculated persons not allowed to enter a municipality or cantonment subject to this Act.

no person who has undergone the operation of inoculation shall enter a municipality or cantonment before the lapse of forty days from the date of inoculation without a certificate from a qualified medical officer stating that such person is no longer likely to cause contagion.

Vaccination quarters.

5. Every municipality or cantonment to which this Act may be applied shall be divided into a number of quarters; and

Appointment of vaccinators and assistant vaccinators.

vaccinators and assistant vaccinators shall be appointed in each quarter.

Superintendent and deputy-superintendent vaccinators.

A superintendent vaccinator or superintendent vaccinators, and, if necessary, a deputy-superintendent vaccinator, shall be appointed for each such municipality or cantonment; and in the event of the superintendent vaccinators being more than one in a municipality or cantonment, a certain number of quarters shall be assigned to each.

Private vaccinators.

6. In any such municipality or cantonment the Local Government or the Governor General in Council, as the case may be, may by written license authorize private vaccinators to perform vaccination in any quarter subject to the rules which the Local Government or the Governor General in Council may from time to time deem fit to prescribe.

Unprotected children to be vaccinated.

7. When any unprotected child has resided for a period of not less than three months during the vaccination season in any municipality or cantonment to which the provisions of this Act have been applied, and before the expiration of such period of three months such child has attained the age of one year, the parent or guardian of such child shall take it, or cause it to be taken, to a vaccinator to be vaccinated, or procure its vaccination at his own house by a vaccinator.

Vaccinator is bound to vaccinate children, or deliver certificates of postponement.

Such vaccinator shall vaccinate the child and deliver to the parent or guardian of such child a memorandum containing the date on which the vaccination has been performed and the date on which the child shall be inspected, or shall, if he finds it in a state unfit for vaccination, deliver to the parent or guardian of such child a certificate under his hand to the effect that the child is in a state unfit for vaccination for the whole or part of that vaccination season.

Inspection.

8. The parent or guardian of every child who has been vaccinated shall, on the date of inspection contained in the memorandum, take the child, or cause it to be taken, to a vaccinator for inspection, or get it inspected at his own house by a vaccinator, that he may ascertain the result of the operation; and the said vaccinator shall then state in the memorandum that the child has been inspected and the result of such vaccination.

Procedure when vaccination is successful.

9. When the operation of vaccination has been performed upon a child and it has been ascertained at the time of inspection that the same has been successful, a certificate shall be delivered by the vaccinator to the parent or guardian of such child to that effect, and such child shall thereafter be deemed to be protected.

Procedure when vaccination is unsuccessful.

10. In the event of the vaccination being unsuccessful, the parent or guardian shall, if the vaccinator so direct, cause the child to be forthwith again vaccinated and subsequently inspected.

Procedure when child unfit for vaccination.

11. The certificate showing the unfitness of a child for vaccination shall remain in force for the period stated in it, and on the lapse of that period, or, if that period terminates after the vaccination season is over, when the next vaccination season begins, the parent or guardian of such child shall take the child, or cause it to be taken, to a vaccinator to be vaccinated, or procure its vaccination at his own house by a vaccinator; and if the child is still found to be in a state unfit for vaccination, the certificate of the postponement of vaccination shall be renewable.

Renewal of postponement certificates.

Certificates of insusceptibility to successful vaccination.

12. If any vaccinator finds that a child whom he has three times unsuccessfully vaccinated is insusceptible of successful vaccination, he shall deliver to the parent or guardian of such child a certificate under his hand to that effect, and the parent or guardian shall thenceforth not be required to cause the child to be vaccinated.

Vaccination to be performed ordinarily with animal lymph; under special circumstances with human lymph.

13. The vaccination of a child shall ordinarily be performed with animal lymph, but in case animal lymph is not procurable, with human lymph: provided the parent or guardian of such child has consented to have the child so vaccinated, or the Governor General in Council has so directed by notification in the Gazette of India, and has fixed the period for which such mode of vaccination shall be adopted.

Human lymph shall not be taken without the consent of parent or guardian.

14. No vaccinator shall take lymph from any vaccinated child without the consent of its parent or guardian, and it shall be lawful to offer any remuneration to obtain such consent.

No fee to be charged for vaccination by any vaccinator except a private vaccinator.

15. No fee or remuneration shall be charged by any vaccinator except a private vaccinator to the parent or guardian of any child for any of the duties enjoined on such vaccinator under the provisions of this Act:

Proviso.

Provided that it shall be lawful for a vaccinator to accept a fee for vaccinating a child by request of the parent or guardian elsewhere than in the quarter in which the said vaccinator is stationed.

Duties of superintendent vaccinator.

16. The superintendent vaccinator, in addition to the performance of other duties, shall ascertain whether all unprotected children within the quarters under his superintendence have been vaccinated, and shall, if he has reason to believe that the vaccination of an unprotected child has not been procured, as required by section seven, or that such child has not been brought for inspection under the provisions of section eight, or that the parent or guardian of such child has refused to procure its vaccination as required by section ten or section eleven, personally go to the house of the said parent or guardian, and hold enquiries on the spot, and shall, if the fact is proved forthwith, deliver to the said parent or guardian, or cause to be stuck to the house of the said parent or guardian, a notice to the effect that the vaccination of the child be procured, or (as the case may be) that the child be brought for inspection, within a certain period.

Summons issued by Magistrate ordering the appearance of a guardian or parent.

17. If such notice is disregarded, the superintendent vaccinator shall report the matter to the Magistrate, who shall summon the parent or guardian of the child and demand his explanation, and shall, if the said explanation is not satisfactory, make an order directing such parent or guardian to meet the requirements of the notice within a certain time.

If at the expiration of such time the parent or guardian has not obeyed the order without any just excuse, the superintendent vaccinator shall forward a report to the said Magistrate requesting him to prosecute the said parent or guardian.

Power to make rules for municipalities.

18. When this Act has been applied to any municipality, the Committee of such municipality may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Act for the proper enforcement of this Act within the limits of such municipality, in the manner in which, under the law for the time being in force, it makes rules or bye-laws for the regulation of other matters within such limits.

Every rule made under this section shall, when confirmed by the Local Government, be published in the local Gazette, and have the force of law:

Provided that the Local Government may at any time rescind or modify any such rule.

Power to make rules for cantonments in British India.

19. When this Act has been applied to any cantonment in British India, the Local Government may, from time to time, subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, make such rules.

Power to make rules for cantonments in India but not in British India.

20. When this Act has been applied to any British cantonment in India but not in British India, the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, make such rules.

What rules under sections 18, 19 and 20 may provide for.

21. The rules to be made under sections eighteen, nineteen and twenty may, among other matters, provide for

(a) the division of the municipality or cantonment into various quarters for the performance of vaccination;

(b) the appointment of a place in each vaccination quarter as a public vaccine station, and the posting of some distinguishing mark in a conspicuous place near such station;

(c) the preparation and keeping of registers in each vaccination quarter showing the names of children born on or after the date of the application of this Act;

the names of unprotected children born previous to the application of this Act, and of the age of fourteen years or under fourteen years;

the names of unprotected children brought to reside in that vaccination quarter at any time after the application of this Act, provided that such children have already been there for a month or more than a month;

the result of such vaccination or its postponement, and the delivery of certificates, if any;

(d) the assistance to be received from Municipal Commissioners and other municipal servants in the preparation of these registers, and in other matters;

(e) the appointment of superintendent, deputy-superintendent and assistant vaccinators, and the licensing of private vaccinators—determining the qualifications to be required of them respectively, and determining the officer or officers with whom the appointment, suspension and dismissal of public vaccinators and the licensing and the suspension and cancellation of the licenses of private vaccinators shall rest respectively, and in case of private vaccinators, regulating the amount of fee chargeable by them, and prescribing rules for their guidance, fixing the time of attendance of these vaccinators, except private vaccinators, at the vaccine stations, and regulating their residence within the limits of the vaccination quarters, appointing some distinguishing mark or badge to be worn by each, except a private vaccinator;

(f) the facilities afforded to people in procuring the vaccination of their children at their own houses;

(g) the grant of certificates of successful vaccination, of unfitness for vaccination or of insusceptibility to vaccination;

(h) the supply of a sufficient quantity of animal lymph;

(i) the remuneration to be given to the parent or guardian of a child for taking lymph from its arm;

(j) the fee to be accepted by a vaccinator for vaccinating a child beyond the vaccination quarter at the request of the parent or guardian of the said child;

(k) the exercise of general supervision and control by the Civil Surgeon, the Sanitary Commissioner or other officer;

(l) the preparation of vaccination reports and returns, and the forms of registers and certificates.

Offences and their penalties.

22. Each of the undermentioned offences shall be punishable, on conviction before a Magistrate, in the manner prescribed (that is to say):—

(a) violating the provisions of section four—with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months, or with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, or with both;

(b) neglecting without just excuse to obey an order made under section seventeen; or

(c) breaking any of the rules made under section eighteen, nineteen or twenty,

with a fine that may extend to fifty rupees.

Penalty for making or signing false certificates.

23. Whoever wilfully signs or makes, or procures the signing or making of, a false certificate under this Act shall be punished with imprisonment of either description, within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees, or with both.

Municipal and cantonment funds to receive fines and meet expenditure.

24. All fines imposed under this Act, and all expenditure incurred under this Act, shall in municipalities respectively go to, and be defrayed from, the municipal fund, and in cantonments where there is a cantonment fund, to such fund.

Municipal Commissioners and other Native gentlemen may be invested with powers of an Assistant Magistrate.

25. The Local Government may, from time to time, invest any Municipal Commissioners or other Native gentlemen with the powers of an Assistant Magistrate within the limits of a municipality for the purposes of this Act, and with the cognizance of cases triable under section twenty-two, clauses (b) and (c).

Vaccinators to be deemed public servants.

26. Every vaccinator appointed under this Act shall be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

OWING to the vast number of deaths caused every year by small-pox in India, it has been found necessary to enact special measures for checking the growth and spread of the disease and preventing the ravages caused by it.

2. This Bill has been drafted with the object of providing the required law. Its provisions are intended to extend to the municipalities and military cantonments of all those provinces which do not possess local legislatures. But it has been left to the power of the Local Governments to extend the provisions of the proposed law to any municipality and, with the previous sanction of the Governor General of India in Council, to any military cantonment of British forces situate in British India, and to the power of the Governor General in Council to extend them to any cantonment situate within the territories of Native States.

3. Most of the provisions of this Bill have been taken from the Bengal Inoculation Act of 1865 and the Bombay Vaccination Act of 1877, with such modifications as are deemed necessary in consideration of the circumstances of the provinces in which the proposed law is intended to be promulgated.

4. In preparing the draft, it has been especially kept in view that the proposed law should find popularity among the people, and not interfere with their customs and ways of life.

5. Provision is made to enable municipalities to establish vaccination quarters and stations which would facilitate the vaccination of children and render the operation of the proposed law free from practical difficulties. In order to secure the success of the proposed legislation, it has been provided that children may be vaccinated at their own residences, whilst the co-operation of Municipal Commissioners (most of whom usually are Native gentlemen of respectability and local influence) required by the Bill is calculated to secure its popularity. For similar reasons, the provisions of sections 16 and 17 have been framed to restrict as far as possible the interference of the police; and, by entrusting Municipal Commissioners and the Superintendent of Vaccinators with the duty of keeping registers of the names of unprotected children and making investigations, it is expected that all unnecessary inconvenience will be avoided which would arise from enforcing the attendance of children and their guardians before Magistrates.

6. Considering the physical constitution and the notions of the natives of India, the minimum age for vaccination has been fixed at one year and the maximum at fourteen years.

7. In consideration of the prejudices (whether well-founded or not) of the Native gentry against the extraction of virus from the arms of their children, the Bill expressly prohibits such a practice; and provision is made for securing the virus under special circumstances, with the consent of the parents or guardians of children, by payment of compensation.

8. Special care has been taken in providing punishments for the contravention of the proposed law, and they have been restricted for the most part to pecuniary fines.

9. As the circumstances of different parts of the country are not alike, it has been left to the discretion of the Local Governments, and in case of military cantonments of British forces in Native States to the Governor General of India in Council, to frame rules, not inconsistent with the proposed law, for facilitating its practical working. At the same time, the essential principles which should be kept in mind in framing such rules have been expressly specified in section 21 of the Bill.

(3) "guardian" means any person to whom the care, nurture or custody of any child falls by law, or by natural right or recognized usage, or who has accepted or assumed the care, nurture or custody of any child:

"child":

(4) "child" includes a child of an age of one year or upwards but not exceeding fourteen years:

"unprotected child":

(5) "unprotected child" means a child who has not been protected from small-pox by having had that disease either naturally or by inoculation, or by having been successfully vaccinated, and who has not been certified under the provisions of this Act to be insusceptible to vaccination:

"inoculation":

(6) "inoculation" means the operation performed with the object of producing the disease of small-pox in any person by means of variolous matter, or of anything impregnated with variolous matter:

"animal lymph":

(7) "animal lymph" means vaccine taken from the calf:

"human lymph":

(8) "human lymph" means the variolous matter produced in a human being by means of animal lymph:

"vaccination quarter":

(9) "vaccination quarter" means one of the parts into which a municipality or cantonment has been divided under this Act for the performance of vaccination:

"vaccinator":

(10) "vaccinator" means any vaccinator appointed under this Act to perform the operation of vaccination in a municipality or cantonment, or any private person authorized by Government in manner hereinafter provided to perform the same operation in any municipality or cantonment; and it includes a "superintendent," a "deputy-superintendent" and an "assistant vaccinator":

"vaccination season."

(11) "vaccination season" means the period between the first day of November in any year and the last of February in the next following year.

Application of this Act to municipalities, and

3. The Lieutenant-Governors of the North-Western Provinces and the Panjáb, and the Chief Commissioners of Oudh, the Central Provinces, British Burma, Assam, Ajmer and Coorg, may, by notification in the official Gazette, apply this Act to any municipality in the territories administered by them respectively, and, to cantonments in British India.

with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, to any cantonment situate within such territories.

Application of this Act to cantonments in India but not in British India.

The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, apply this Act to any British cantonment in India but not in British India.

Prohibition of inoculation.

4. In any municipality or cantonment to which the provisions of this Act have been applied, inoculation shall be prohibited; and

Inoculated persons not allowed to enter a municipality or cantonment subject to this Act.

no person who has undergone the operation of inoculation shall enter a municipality or cantonment before the lapse of forty days from the date of inoculation without a certificate from a qualified medical officer stating that such person is no longer likely to cause contagion.

Vaccination quarters.

5. Every municipality or cantonment to which this Act may be applied shall be divided into a number of quarters; and

Appointment of vaccinators and assistant vaccinators.

vaccinators and assistant vaccinators shall be appointed in each quarter.

Superintendent and deputy-superintendent vaccinators.

A superintendent vaccinator or superintendent vaccinators, and, if necessary, a deputy-superintendent vaccinator, shall be appointed for each such municipality or cantonment; and in the event of the superintendent vaccinators being more than one in a municipality or cantonment, a certain number of quarters shall be assigned to each.

Private vaccinators.

6. In any such municipality or cantonment the Local Government or the Governor General in Council, as the case may be, may by written license authorize private vaccinators to perform vaccination in any quarter subject to the rules which the Local Government or the Governor General in Council may from time to time deem fit to prescribe.

Unprotected children to be vaccinated.

7. When any unprotected child has resided for a period of not less than three months during the vaccination season in any municipality or cantonment to which the provisions of this Act have been applied, and before the expiration of such period of three months such child has attained the age of one year, the parent or guardian of such child shall take it, or cause it to be taken, to a vaccinator to be vaccinated, or procure its vaccination at his own house by a vaccinator.

Vaccinator is bound to vaccinate children, or deliver certificates of postponement.

Such vaccinator shall vaccinate the child and deliver to the parent or guardian of such child a memorandum containing the date on which the vaccination has been performed and the date on which the child shall be inspected, or shall, if he finds it in a state unfit for vaccination, deliver to the parent or guardian of such child a certificate under his hand to the effect that the child is in a state unfit for vaccination for the whole or part of that vaccination season.

Inspection.

8. The parent or guardian of every child who has been vaccinated shall, on the date of inspection contained in the memorandum, take the child, or cause it to be taken, to a vaccinator for inspection, or get it inspected at his own house by a vaccinator, that he may ascertain the result of the operation; and the said vaccinator shall then state in the memorandum that the child has been inspected and the result of such vaccination.

Procedure when vaccination is successful.

9. When the operation of vaccination has been performed upon a child and it has been ascertained at the time of inspection that the same has been successful, a certificate shall be delivered by the vaccinator to the parent or guardian of such child to that effect, and such child shall thereafter be deemed to be protected.

Procedure when vaccination is unsuccessful.

10. In the event of the vaccination being unsuccessful, the parent or guardian shall, if the vaccinator so direct, cause the child to be forthwith again vaccinated and subsequently inspected.

Procedure when child unfit for vaccination.

11. The certificate showing the unfitness of a child for vaccination shall remain in force for the period stated in it, and on the lapse of that period, or, if that period terminates after the vaccination season is over, when the next vaccination season begins, the parent or guardian of such child shall take the child, or cause it to be taken, to a vaccinator to be vaccinated, or procure its vaccination at his own house by a vaccinator; and if the child is still found to be in a state unfit for vaccination, the certificate of the postponement of vaccination shall be renewable.

Renewal of postponement certificates.

Certificates of insusceptibility to successful vaccination.

12. If any vaccinator finds that a child whom he has three times unsuccessfully vaccinated is insusceptible of successful vaccination, he shall deliver to the parent or guardian of such child a certificate under his hand to that effect, and the parent or guardian shall thenceforth not be required to cause the child to be vaccinated.

Vaccination to be performed ordinarily with animal lymph; under special circumstances with human lymph.

13. The vaccination of a child shall ordinarily be performed with animal lymph, but in case animal lymph is not procurable, with human lymph: provided the parent or guardian of such child has consented to have the child so vaccinated, or the Governor General in Council has so directed by notification in the Gazette of India, and has fixed the period for which such mode of vaccination shall be adopted.

Human lymph shall not be taken without the consent of parent or guardian.

14. No vaccinator shall take lymph from any vaccinated child without the consent of its parent or guardian, and it shall be lawful to offer any remuneration to obtain such consent.

No fee to be charged for vaccination by any vaccinator except a private vaccinator.

15. No fee or remuneration shall be charged by any vaccinator except a private vaccinator to the parent or guardian of any child for any of the duties enjoined on such vaccinator under the provisions of this Act:

Proviso.

Provided that it shall be lawful for a vaccinator to accept a fee for vaccinating a child by request of the parent or guardian elsewhere than in the quarter in which the said vaccinator is stationed.

Duties of superintendent vaccinator.

16. The superintendent vaccinator, in addition to the performance of other duties, shall ascertain whether all unprotected children within the quarters under his superintendence have been vaccinated, and shall, if he has reason to believe that the vaccination of an unprotected child has not been procured, as required by section seven, or that such child has not been brought for inspection under the provisions of section eight, or that the parent or guardian of such child has refused to procure its vaccination as required by section ten or section eleven, personally go to the house of the said parent or guardian, and hold enquiries on the spot, and shall, if the fact is proved forthwith, deliver to the said parent or guardian, or cause to be stuck to the house of the said parent or guardian, a notice to the effect that the vaccination of the child be procured, or (as the case may be) that the child be brought for inspection, within a certain period.

Summons issued by Magistrate ordering the appearance of a guardian or parent.

17. If such notice is disregarded, the superintendent vaccinator shall report the matter to the Magistrate, who shall summon the parent or guardian of the child and demand his explanation, and shall, if the said explanation is not satisfactory, make an order directing such parent or guardian to meet the requirements of the notice within a certain time.

If at the expiration of such time the parent or guardian has not obeyed the order without any just excuse, the superintendent vaccinator shall forward a report to the said Magistrate requesting him to prosecute the said parent or guardian.

Power to make rules for municipalities.

18. When this Act has been applied to any municipality, the Committee of such municipality may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Act for the proper enforcement of this Act within the limits of such municipality, in the manner in which, under the law for the time being in force, it makes rules or bye-laws for the regulation of other matters within such limits.

Every rule made under this section shall, when confirmed by the Local Government, be published in the local Gazette, and have the force of law:

Provided that the Local Government may at any time rescind or modify any such rule.

Power to make rules for cantonments in British India.

19. When this Act has been applied to any cantonment in British India, the Local Government may, from time to time, subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, make such rules.

Power to make rules for cantonments in India but not in British India.

20. When this Act has been applied to any British cantonment in India but not in British India, the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, make such rules.

What rules under sections 18, 19 and 20 may provide for.

21. The rules to be made under sections eighteen, nineteen and twenty may, among other matters, provide for

(a) the division of the municipality or cantonment into various quarters for the performance of vaccination;

(b) the appointment of a place in each vaccination quarter as a public vaccine station, and the posting of some distinguishing mark in a conspicuous place near such station;

(c) the preparation and keeping of registers in each vaccination quarter showing the names of children born on or after the date of the application of this Act;

the names of unprotected children born previous to the application of this Act, and of the age of fourteen years or under fourteen years;

the names of unprotected children brought to reside in that vaccination quarter at any time after the application of this Act, provided that such children have already been there for a month or more than a month;

the result of each vaccination or its postponement, and the delivery of certificates, if any;

(d) the assistance to be received from Municipal Commissioners and other municipal servants in the preparation of these registers, and in other matters;

(e) the appointment of superintendent, deputy-superintendent and assistant vaccinators, and the licensing of private vaccinators—determining the qualifications to be required of them respectively, and determining the officer or officers with whom the appointment, suspension and dismissal of public vaccinators and the licensing and the suspension and cancellation of the licenses of private vaccinators shall rest respectively, and in case of private vaccinators, regulating the amount of fees chargeable by them, and prescribing rules for their guidance, fixing the time of attendance of these vaccinators, except private vaccinators, at the vaccine stations, and regulating their residence within the limits of the vaccination quarters, appointing some distinguishing mark or badge to be worn by each, except a private vaccinator;

(f) the facilities afforded to people in procuring the vaccination of their children at their own houses;

(g) the grant of certificates of successful vaccination, of unfitness for vaccination or of insusceptibility to vaccination;

(h) the supply of a sufficient quantity of animal lymph;

(i) the remuneration to be given to the parent or guardian of a child for taking lymph from its arm;

(j) the fee to be accepted by a vaccinator for vaccinating a child beyond the vaccination quarter at the request of the parent or guardian of the said child;

(k) the exercise of general supervision and control by the Civil Surgeon, the Sanitary Commissioner or other officer;

(l) the preparation of vaccination reports and returns, and the forms of registers and certificates.

Offences and their penalties.

22. Each of the undermentioned offences shall be punishable, on conviction before a Magistrate, in the manner prescribed (that is to say):—

(a) violating the provisions of section four—with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months, or with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, or with both;

(b) neglecting without just excuse to obey an order made under section seventeen; or

(c) breaking any of the rules made under section eighteen, nineteen or twenty,

with a fine that may extend to fifty rupees.

Penalty for making or signing false certificates.

23. Whoever wilfully signs or makes, or procures the signing or making of, a false certificate under this Act shall be punished with imprisonment of either description, within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees, or with both.

Municipal and cantonment funds to receive fines and meet expenditure.

24. All fines imposed under this Act, and all expenditure incurred under this Act, shall in municipalities respectively go to, and be defrayed from, the municipal fund, and in cantonments where there is a cantonment fund, to such fund.

Municipal Commissioners and other Native gentlemen may be invested with powers of an Assistant Magistrate.

25. The Local Government may, from time to time, invest any Municipal Commissioners or other Native gentlemen with the powers of an Assistant Magistrate within the limits of a municipality for the purposes of this Act, and with the cognizance of cases triable under section twenty-two, clauses (b) and (c).

Vaccinators to be deemed public servants.

26. Every vaccinator appointed under this Act shall be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

OWING to the vast number of deaths caused every year by small-pox in India, it has been found necessary to enact special measures for checking the growth and spread of the disease and preventing the ravages caused by it.

2. This Bill has been drafted with the object of providing the required law. Its provisions are intended to extend to the municipalities and military cantonments of all those provinces which do not possess local legislatures. But it has been left to the power of the Local Governments to extend the provisions of the proposed law to any municipality and, with the previous sanction of the Governor General of India in Council, to any military cantonment of British forces situate in British India, and to the power of the Governor General in Council to extend them to any cantonment situate within the territories of Native States.

3. Most of the provisions of this Bill have been taken from the Bengal Inoculation Act of 1865 and the Bombay Vaccination Act of 1877, with such modifications as are deemed necessary in consideration of the circumstances of the provinces in which the proposed law is intended to be promulgated.

4. In preparing the draft, it has been especially kept in view that the proposed law should find popularity among the people, and not interfere with their customs and ways of life.

5. Provision is made to enable municipalities to establish vaccination quarters and stations which would facilitate the vaccination of children and render the operation of the proposed law free from practical difficulties. In order to secure the success of the proposed legislation, it has been provided that children may be vaccinated at their own residences, whilst the co-operation of Municipal Commissioners (most of whom usually are Native gentlemen of respectability and local influence) required by the Bill is calculated to secure its popularity. For similar reasons, the provisions of sections 16 and 17 have been framed to restrict as far as possible the interference of the police; and, by entrusting Municipal Commissioners and the Superintendent of Vaccinators with the duty of keeping registers of the names of unprotected children and making investigations, it is expected that all unnecessary inconvenience will be avoided which would arise from enforcing the attendance of children and their guardians before Magistrates.

6. Considering the physical constitution and the notions of the natives of India, the minimum age for vaccination has been fixed at one year and the maximum at fourteen years.

7. In consideration of the prejudices (whether well-founded or not) of the Native gentry against the extraction of virus from the arms of their children, the Bill expressly prohibits such a practice; and provision is made for securing the virus under special circumstances, with the consent of the parents or guardians of children, by payment of compensation.

8. Special care has been taken in providing punishments for the contravention of the proposed law, and they have been restricted for the most part to pecuniary fines.

[illegible] the circumstances of different parts of the country are not alike, it has been left to the discretion of the Local Governments, and in case of military cantonments of British forces in Native States to the Governor General of India in Council, to frame rules, not inconsistent with the proposed law, for facilitating its practical working. At the same time, the essential principles which should be kept in mind in framing such rules have been expressly specified in section 21 of the Bill.

A Bill for giving power to prohibit the practice of inoculation, and to make the vaccination of children compulsory in certain Municipalities and Cantonments.

WHEREAS it is expedient to give power to prohibit the practice of inoculation and make the vaccination of children compulsory in certain municipalities and cantonments; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Preamble.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Vaccination Act, 1879": and

Local extent.

it shall extend only to such municipalities and cantonments as it may be applied to in manner hereinafter provided.

Interpretation-clause.

2. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,

"Municipal Commissioners":

(1) "Municipal Commissioners" mean a body of Municipal Commissioners or a Municipal Committee constituted under the provisions of any enactment for the time being in force:

"parent":

(2) "parent" means the father of a legitimate child and the mother of an illegitimate child:

"guardian":

(3) "guardian" means any person to whom the care, nurture or custody of any child falls by law, or by natural right or recognized usage, or who has accepted or assumed the care, nurture or custody of any child:

"child":

(4) "child" includes a child of an age of one year or upwards but not exceeding fourteen years:

"unprotected child":

(5) "unprotected child" means a child who has not been protected from small-pox by having had that disease either naturally or by inoculation, or by having been successfully vaccinated, and who has not been certified under the provisions of this Act to be insusceptible to vaccination:

"inoculation":

(6) "inoculation" means the operation performed with the object of producing the disease of small-pox in any person by means of variolous matter, or of anything impregnated with variolous matter:

"animal lymph":

(7) "animal lymph" means vaccine taken from the calf:

"human lymph":

(8) "human lymph" means the variolous matter produced in a human being by means of animal lymph:

"vaccination quarter":

(9) "vaccination quarter" means one of the parts into which a municipality or cantonment has been divided under this Act for the performance of vaccination:

"vaccinator":

(10) "vaccinator" means any vaccinator appointed under this Act to perform the operation of vaccination in a municipality or cantonment, or any private person authorized by Government in manner hereinafter provided to perform the same operation in any municipality or cantonment; and it includes a "superintendent," a "deputy-superintendent" and an "assistant vaccinator":

"vaccination season."

(11) "vaccination season" means the period between the first day of November in any year and the last of February in the next following year.

Application of this Act to municipalities, and

3. The Lieutenant-Governors of the North-Western Provinces and the Panjáb, and the Chief Commissioners of Oudh, the Central Provinces, British Burma, Assam, Ajmer and Coorg, may, by notification in the official Gazette, apply this Act to any municipality in the territories administered by them respectively, and, to cantonments in British India.

with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, to any cantonment situate within such territories.

Application of this Act to cantonments in India but not in British India.

The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, apply this Act to any British cantonment in India but not in British India.

Prohibition of inoculation.

4. In any municipality or cantonment to which the provisions of this Act have been applied, inoculation shall be prohibited; and

Inoculated persons not allowed to enter a municipality or cantonment subject to this Act.

no person who has undergone the operation of inoculation shall enter a municipality or cantonment before the lapse of forty days from the date of inoculation without a certificate from a qualified medical officer stating that such person is no longer likely to cause contagion.

Vaccination quarters.

5. Every municipality or cantonment to which this Act may be applied shall be divided into a number of quarters; and

Appointment of vaccinators and assistant vaccinators.

vaccinators and assistant vaccinators shall be appointed in each quarter.

Superintendent and deputy-superintendent vaccinators.

A superintendent vaccinator or superintendent vaccinators, and, if necessary, a deputy-superintendent vaccinator, shall be appointed for each such municipality or cantonment; and in the event of the superintendent vaccinators being more than one in a municipality or cantonment, a certain number of quarters shall be assigned to each.

Private vaccinators.

6. In any such municipality or cantonment the Local Government or the Governor General in Council, as the case may be, may by written license authorize private vaccinators to perform vaccination in any [illegible] the Local Government or [illegible] Council may from time to time deem fit to prescribe.

Unprotected children to be vaccinated.

7. When any unprotected child has resided for a period of not less than three months during the vaccination season in any municipality or cantonment to which the provisions of this Act have been applied, and before the expiration of such period of three months such child has attained the age of one year, the parent or guardian of such child shall take it, or cause it to be taken, to a vaccinator to be vaccinated, or procure its vaccination at his own house by a vaccinator.

Vaccinator is bound to vaccinate children, or deliver certificates of postponement.

Such vaccinator shall vaccinate the child and deliver to the parent or guardian of such child a memorandum containing the date on which the vaccination has been performed and the date on which the child shall be inspected, or shall, if he finds it in a state unfit for vaccination, deliver to the parent or guardian of such child a certificate under his hand to the effect that the child is in a state unfit for vaccination for the whole or part of that vaccination season.

Inspection.

8. The parent or guardian of every child who has been vaccinated shall, on the date of inspection contained in the memorandum, take the child, or cause it to be taken, to a vaccinator for inspection, or get it inspected at his own house by a vaccinator, that he may ascertain the result of the operation; and the said vaccinator shall then state in the memorandum that the child has been inspected and the result of such vaccination.

Procedure when vaccination is successful.

9. When the operation of vaccination has been performed upon a child and it has been ascertained at the time of inspection that the same has been successful, a certificate shall be delivered by the vaccinator to the parent or guardian of such child to that effect, and such child shall thereafter be deemed to be protected.

Procedure when vaccination is unsuccessful.

10. In the event of the vaccination being unsuccessful, the parent or guardian shall, if the vaccinator so direct, cause the child to be forthwith again vaccinated and subsequently inspected.

Procedure when child unfit for vaccination.

11. The certificate showing the unfitness of a child for vaccination shall remain in force for the period stated in it, and on the lapse of that period, or, if that period terminates after the vaccination season is over, when the next vaccination season begins, the parent or guardian of such child shall take the child, or cause it to be taken, to a vaccinator to be vaccinated, or procure its vaccination at his own house by a vaccinator; and if the child is still found to be in a state unfit for vaccination, the certificate of the postponement of vaccination shall be renewable.

Renewal of postponement certificates.

Certificate of insusceptibility to successful vaccination.

12. If any vaccinator finds that a child whom he has three times unsuccessfully vaccinated is insuseeptible of successful vaccination, he shall deliver to the parent or guardian of such child a certificate under his hand to that effect, and the parent or guardian shall thenceforth not be required to cause the child to be vaccinated.

Vaccination to be performed ordinarily with animal lymph, under special circumstances with human lymph.

13. The vaccination of a child shall ordinarily be performed with animal lymph, but in case animal lymph is not procurable, with human lymph: provided the parent or guardian of such child has consented to have the child so vaccinated, or the Governor General in Council has so directed by notification in the Gazette of India, and has fixed the period for which such mode of vaccination shall be adopted.

Human lymph shall not be taken without the consent of parent or guardian.

14. No vaccinator shall take lymph from any vaccinated child without the consent of its parent or guardian, and it shall be lawful to offer any remuneration to obtain such consent.

No fee to be charged for vaccination by any vaccinator except a private vaccinator.

15. No fee or remuneration shall be charged by any vaccinator except a private vaccinator to the parent or guardian of any child for any of the duties enjoined on such vaccinator under the provisions of this Act:

Proviso.

Provided that it shall be lawful for a vaccinator to accept a fee for vaccinating a child by request of the parent or guardian elsewhere than in the quarter in which the said vaccinator is stationed.

Duties of superintendent vaccinator.

16. The superintendent vaccinator, in addition to the performance of other duties, shall ascertain whether all unprotected children within the quarters under his superintendence have been vaccinated, and shall, if he has reason to believe that the vaccination of an unprotected child has not been procured, as required by section seven, or that such child has not been brought for inspection under the provisions of section eight, or that the parent or guardian of such child has refused to procure its vaccination as required by section ten or section eleven, personally go to the house of the said parent or guardian, and hold enquiries on the spot, and shall, if the fact is proved forthwith, deliver to the said parent or guardian, or cause to be stuck to the house of the said parent or guardian, a notice to the effect that the vaccination of the child be procured, or (as the case may be) that the child be brought for inspection, within a certain period.

Summons issued by Magistrate ordering the appearance of a guardian or parent.

17. If such notice is disregarded, the superintendent vaccinator shall report the matter to the Magistrate, who shall summon the parent or guardian of the child and demand his explanation, and shall, if the said explanation is not satisfactory, make an order directing such parent or guardian to meet the requirements of the notice within a certain time.

If at the expiration of such time the parent or guardian has not obeyed the order without any just excuse, the superintendent vaccinator shall forward a report to the said Magistrate requesting him to prosecute the said parent or guardian.

Power to make rules for municipalities.

18. When this Act has been applied to any municipality, the Committee of such municipality may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Act for the proper enforcement of this Act within the limits of such municipality, in the manner in which, under the law for the time being in force, it makes rules or bye-laws for the regulation of other matters within such limits.

Every rule made under this section shall, when confirmed by the Local Government, be published in the local Gazette, and have the force of law:

Provided that the Local Government may at any time rescind or modify any such rule.

Power to make rules for cantonments in British India.

19. When this Act has been applied to any cantonment in British India, the Local Government may, from time to time, subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, make such rules.

Power to make rules for cantonments in India but not in British India.

20. When this Act has been applied to any British cantonment in India but not in British India, the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, make such rules.

What rules under sections 18, 19 and 20 may provide for.

21. The rules to be made under sections eighteen, nineteen and twenty may, among other matters, provide for

(a) the division of the municipality or cantonment into various quarters for the performance of vaccination;

(b) the appointment of a place in each vaccination quarter as a public vaccine station, and the posting of some distinguishing mark in a conspicuous place near such station;

(c) the preparation and keeping of registers in each vaccination quarter showing the names of children born on or after the date of the application of this Act;

the names of unprotected children born previous to the application of this Act, and of the age of fourteen years or under fourteen years;

the names of unprotected children brought to reside in that vaccination quarter at any time after the application of this Act, provided that such children have already been there for a month or more than a month;

the result of each vaccination or its postponement, and the delivery of certificates, if any;

(d) the assistance to be received from Municipal Commissioners and other municipal servants in the preparation of these registers, and in other matters;

(e) the appointment of superintendent, deputy-superintendent and assistant vaccinators, and the licensing of private vaccinators—determining the qualifications to be required of them respectively, and determining the officer or officers with whom the appointment, suspension and dismissal of public vaccinators and the licensing and the suspension and cancellation of the licenses of private vaccinators shall rest respectively, and in case of private vaccinators, regulating the amount of fee chargeable by them, and prescribing rules for their guidance, fixing the time of attendance of these vaccinators, except private vaccinators, at the vaccine stations, and regulating their residence within the limits of the vaccination quarters, appointing some distinguishing mark or badge to be worn by each, except a private vaccinator;

(f) the facilities afforded to people in procuring the vaccination of their children at their own houses;

(g) the grant of certificates of successful vaccination, of unfitness for vaccination or of insusceptibility to vaccination;

(h) the supply of a sufficient quantity of animal lymph;

(i) the remuneration to be given to the parent or guardian of a child for taking lymph from its arm;

(j) the fee to be accepted by a vaccinator for vaccinating a child beyond the vaccination quarter at the request of the parent or guardian of the said child;

(k) the exercise of general supervision and control by the Civil Surgeon, the Sanitary Commissioner or other officer;

(l) the preparation of vaccination reports and returns, and the forms of registers and certificates.

Offences and their penalties.

22. Each of the undermentioned offences shall be punishable, on conviction before a Magistrate, in the manner prescribed (that is to say):—

(a) violating the provisions of section four—with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months, or with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, or with both;

(b) neglecting without just excuse to obey an order made under section seventeen; or

(c) breaking any of the rules made under section eighteen, nineteen or twenty,

with a fine that may extend to fifty rupees.

Penalty for making or signing false certificates.

23. Whoever wilfully signs or makes, or procures the signing or making of, a false certificate under this Act shall be punished with imprisonment of either description, within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees, or with both.

Municipal and cantonment funds to receive fines and meet expenditure.

24. All fines imposed under this Act, and all expenditure incurred under this Act, shall in municipalities respectively go to, and be defrayed from, the municipal fund, and in cantonments where there is a cantonment fund, to such fund.

Municipal Commissioners and other Native gentlemen may be invested with powers of an Assistant Magistrate.

25. The Local Government may, from time to time, invest any Municipal Commissioners or other Native gentlemen with the powers of an Assistant Magistrate within the limits of a municipality for the purposes of this Act, and with the cognizance of cases triable under section twenty-two, clauses (b) and (c).

Vaccinators to be deemed public servants.

26. Every vaccinator appointed under this Act shall be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

OWING to the vast number of deaths caused every year by small-pox in India, it has been found necessary to enact special measures for checking the growth and spread of the disease and preventing the ravages caused by it.

2. This Bill has been drafted with the object of providing the required law. Its provisions are intended to extend to the municipalities and military cantonments of all those provinces which do not possess local legislatures. But it has been left to the power of the Local Governments to extend the provisions of the proposed law to any municipality and, with the previous sanction of the Governor General of India in Council, to any military cantonment of British forces situate in British India, and to the power of the Governor General in Council to extend them to any cantonment situate within the territories of Native States.

3. Most of the provisions of this Bill have been taken from the Bengal Inoculation Act of 1865 and the Bombay Vaccination Act of 1877, with such modifications as are deemed necessary in consideration of the circumstances of the provinces in which the proposed law is intended to be promulgated.

4. In preparing the draft, it has been especially kept in view that the proposed law should find popularity among the people, and not interfere with their customs and ways of life.

5. Provision is made to enable municipalities to establish vaccination quarters and stations which would facilitate the vaccination of children and render the operation of the proposed law free from practical difficulties. In order to secure the success of the proposed legislation, it has been provided that children may be vaccinated at their own residences, whilst the co-operation of Municipal Commissioners (most of whom usually are Native gentlemen of respectability and local influence) required by the Bill is calculated to secure its popularity. For similar reasons, the provisions of sections 16 and 17 have been framed to restrict as far as possible the interference of the police; and, by entrusting Municipal Commissioners and the Superintendent of Vaccinators with the duty of keeping registers of the names of unprotected children and making investigations, it is expected that all unnecessary inconvenience will be avoided which would arise from enforcing the attendance of children and their guardians before Magistrates.

6. Considering the physical constitution and the notions of the natives of India, the minimum age for vaccination has been fixed at one year and the maximum at fourteen years.

7. In consideration of the prejudices (whether well-founded or not) of the Native gentry against the extraction of virus from the arms of their children, the Bill expressly prohibits such a practice; nd provision is made for securing the virus under special circumstances, with the consent of the parents or guardians of children, by payment of compensation.

8. Special care has been taken in providing punishments for the contravention of the proposed law, and they have been restricted for the most part to pecuniary fines.

9. As the circumstances of different parts of the country are not alike, it has been left to the discretion of the Local Governments, and in case of military cantonments of British forces in Native States to the Governor General of India in Council, to frame rules, not inconsistent with the proposed law, for facilitating its practical working. At the same time, the essential principles which should be kept in mind in framing such rules have been expressly specified in section 21 of the Bill.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill for the relief of Indebted Agriculturists in certain parts of the Dekkhan, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 17th October, 1879:—

REPORT.

WE, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill for the relief of indebted agriculturists in certain parts of the Dekkhan was referred, have the honour to report that we have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin.

From Pandit Eshwant Sridhar, Puna, dated 17th August, 1879 [Printed paper No. 1].
Notes by Mr. Ganesh Wassudeo Joshi, Joint Secretary, Puna Arbitration Court, dated 9th August, 1879 [Printed paper No. 2].
From Acting Chief Secretary to Government, Bombay, No. 4495, dated 27th August, 1879 [Printed paper No. 3].
Note by Mr. Ganesh Wassudeo Joshi, Joint Secretary, Puna Arbitration Court, dated 25th August, 1879 [Printed paper No. 4].
Observations by Hon'ble Justice R. West, dated 10th September, 1879 [Printed paper No. 5].
Abstract of letter of Bombay Government, No. 4495, dated 27th August, 1879 [Printed paper No. 6].
From Acting Chief Secretary to Government, Bombay, No. 4787, dated 8th September, 1879, and enclosures [Printed papers No. 7].
" Ditto ditto, No. 4774, dated 8th September, 1879, and enclosures [Printed papers No. 8].
" Ditto ditto, No. 4838, dated 11th September, 1879, and enclosures [Printed papers No. 9].
" Mr. Shivram Hary Sathé, Secretary, Puna Sarvajanak Sabhá, No. 89, dated 6th September, 1879, and enclosures [Printed papers No. 10].
" Acting Chief Secretary to Government, Bombay, No. 5088, dated 22nd September, 1879, and enclosures [Printed papers No. 11].

2. We have not been so fortunate as to agree among ourselves on all the points presented for our consideration; but we do not deem it necessary to refer in the body of this report to such differences of opinion as have arisen. The most convenient course, we think, will be to treat the conclusions of the majority as the conclusions of the Committee, leaving individual members to record separate dissents upon such points as they think fit.

We shall refer to such of the amendments made by us as seem to us to call for special notice in the order of the sections of the Bill as introduced.

3. Section 8, providing for the service of summons by patels, which was inserted on a suggestion made here at the time the Bill was prepared, has been struck out, as it has not met with the approval of the Government of Bombay.

4. Section 9, empowering the Courts, instead of hearing the case ex parte, to issue a warrant for the apprehension of a defendant who does not appear and requiring them to adopt this procedure as the general rule, has given rise to some difference of opinion. On the one hand, it has been urged that the habit which the raiyats of the Dekkhan have fallen into of allowing suits instituted against them to go undefended has contributed in no small degree to produce the evils which this Bill is intended to remedy. On the other, the obvious hardship of forcibly dragging a man away from his home and his cultivation, perhaps at a season when every day is of importance to him, merely with a view to compelling him to appear in a suit to which he has no defence, has been much dwelt on by Mr. Justice West, Mr. Naylor and others.

After weighing the arguments on both sides, we have come to the conclusion that those which may be urged against the introduction of this novel and very stringent rule preponderate; and we are confirmed in this conclusion when we remember that under section 12 of the Bill the Court is bound to make an investigation into the history of the case, even though it is not defended, and that, if it is necessary for the proper conduct of such investigation to have the defendant in Court, the Civil Procedure Code gives power to summon him as a witness.

5. In order to prevent the provisions of chapter III of the Bill being evaded, as it has been pointed out to us they might be, by entering into contracts with the agriculturists of the four districts to which the Bill extends at places beyond the limits of those districts, we have introduced a section in the beginning of chapter III requiring suits against such agriculturists to be brought where the defendants reside.

6. The next provisions of the Bill calling for notice are those contained in sections 12 to 15, commonly described as the sections requiring the Court "to go behind the bond," and they are by far the most important we have had to consider.

Section 12 is in the main merely introductory to those that follow. It provides that, when the amount of a claim is disputed, the Court shall inquire into the history and merits of the case, partly with a view to ascertaining whether there is any defence to the suit on the ground of fraud, &c., and partly with a view to taking the account between the parties according to the rules laid down in the following sections; but that, when the amount of the claim is admitted, the Court shall not be bound to institute such inquiry, unless it sees reason to doubt the truth of the admission.

7. The Government of Bombay object to the latter portion of the rule. We have felt some doubt as to the precise grounds of their objection as set forth in paragraph 10 of their letter of the 27th August; but we understand that their view is that it is necessary to institute the inquiry in every case, even though the defendant may admit the claim and there may be no reason to doubt the truth of his admission.

We are not prepared to go quite this length. There must, it appears to us, be some cases in which it will be clear enough for all practical purposes that the admission of a defendant is true and reasonable—cases, for example, in which, though the defendant is an agriculturist within the meaning of the Bill, he is a man of some little education and as well able to keep an account of his transactions and understand his position as the plaintiff. In such cases we think we should be inflicting an unnecessary hardship on both parties and wasting the time of the Court by insisting on an inquiry which, even where both parties were agreed, would, if the judge were to be put in possession of the whole history of the case, often be lengthy and troublesome. We have, however, introduced an amendment which we believe will, in practice, secure all that the Government of Bombay desire, by providing in section 12 that, in cases where the defendant admits the claim, the Court shall nevertheless inquire into the history of the case, unless, for reasons to be recorded by it in writing, it believes that the admission is true and is made by the debtor with a full knowledge of his legal rights as against the creditor. The result of this amendment will be that it will no longer be possible for an indolent judge, as it would be under the Bill as introduced, to shirk the labour of the inquiry by saying that he sees no reason to doubt the truth of the admission. The inquiry must be made, unless the judge is prepared to give some specific reason for accepting the admission—some such reason, e.g., as might be given in a case of the description just referred to.

8. Section 13, which lays down the mode in which, after the inquiry prescribed by section 12 has been made, the account between the parties should be taken, has been recast in order to bring it as nearly as possible into accordance with the views of the Government of Bombay.

As it originally stood, it provided that, if the Court found that there was any agreement between the parties as to the mode of taking the account and considered such agreement fair and equitable, the account should be taken in accordance with such agreement; but that otherwise the account should be taken according to certain rules, the principal of which were—first, that compound interest should not be allowed in any shape or under any circumstances;

secondly, that all profits and advantages received by the plaintiff in connection with the transaction should be brought to credit at a value to be determined by the Court; and thirdly, that the Hindú rule of dám-dupat, by which the sum recovered on account of interest shall not exceed the sum recovered on the same occasion on account of principal, should be observed in all cases without reference to the religion of the parties.

9. The Government of Bombay desire to have the two first of these rules applied absolutely and in all cases without any regard to the agreement between the parties, even where such agreement may, under the circumstances, be a fair and equitable one.

The third rule they desire to have similarly applied, but with a modification in favour of the debtor of so extensive a nature as to make it in form and in substance a completely new rule.

In short, the Bill, as it at present stands, goes far in the direction of setting aside contracts which under the law hitherto in force have been held good. The Government of Bombay desire to make it go much further.

10. The question is accordingly one of those of degree, of more or less, on which opinions will necessarily differ.

On the one side it is urged that it is necessary, on political grounds, to adopt strong and unusual measures in favour of the raiyats in order to prevent irritation and discontent.

On the other it is urged that, in so far as the question can be considered to have assumed a political aspect, we must be careful lest by going too far in our efforts to allay the discontent of one class we excite the disaffection of the other.

11. Turning from the political to the economical aspect of the question, we have, on the one hand, the very obvious arguments as to the desirability of providing for the raiyats some means of escape from their present thraldom and of giving them a fresh start on something like a solvent footing; on the other, we have been much pressed with the argument that by going too far in subverting contracts, we may destroy the credit of the raiyats, and thus in the long run both aggravate their pecuniary difficulties and place the Government revenue in jeopardy.

12. Amid these conflicting considerations we have, we need hardly say, desired to be guided, as far as possible, by the views of the Government of Bombay. There is indeed much in the Bill as now settled by us which, if it were not for the deference we feel for the strongly expressed opinion of that Government, we should propose to alter. But we cannot altogether devolve upon others, whatever our respect for their views may be, the duty of forming an opinion on the important questions submitted to us.

Looking at the matter in this way and having given it our most anxious consideration, we find ourselves in a position to recommend that the views of the Government of Bombay be adopted fully in regard to one of the three rules above referred to, and partially in regard to the other two.

13. To begin with the rule as to crediting profits irrespective of any agreement which may have been made regarding them, we think that that rule may, without any great danger of injustice, be made, as the Government of Bombay wish it to be, applicable to all cases.

It is true that, in the case of a usufructuary mortgage, it sets aside agreements which have hitherto not only been enforced when expressly entered into by the parties, but which the law [redacted] (Bombay Regulation V of 1827, section 15) presumes, in the absence of any express [redacted] to be implied: we mean agreements to the effect that the profits of the mortgaged [redacted] shall be taken by the mortgagee without account in lieu of interest. But such agreements when made between the parties to a mortgage, whether expressly or by tacit reference to the Regulation just mentioned, usually proceed on the calculation that the profits of the property will be equivalent to reasonable interest on the loan; and there can accordingly be no great hardship in providing that the approximate estimate of the profits made by the parties shall be set aside and an actual account taken, reasonable interest being at the same time allowed to the mortgagee.

14. In regard to the matter of compound interest, we are unable to adopt in their entirety the proposals of the Government of Bombay. We have no doubt that, in a very large proportion of the cases that will come before the Courts under this Bill, it will be found that the debt has been unduly swollen by frequent rests and consolidations of interest with principal; but it seems to us that there must be some cases in which a consolidation of interest with principal, or perhaps a novation, as a lawyer would term it, of the entire transaction, has taken place under such circumstances that the refusal to recognize it would work a gross injustice. This being so, we deem it impossible to lay down any absolutely hard-and-fast rule on the point; but in order to bring the Bill in this particular as nearly as we can venture to do into conformity with the views of the Government of Bombay, we have, following a course similar to that which we have adopted in regard to section 12, provided that compound interest shall be disallowed, unless the Court, for reasons to be recorded by it in writing, is of opinion that it is fair and equitable to allow it. We may add that we feel confident that the law as thus amended will fully secure the object which we understand the Government of Bombay to have in view.

15. As regards the Hindú rule of dám-dupat, it has, at the desire of the Government of Bombay, been extended to the whole agriculturist population of the four districts without reference to creed or sect. We now propose, in further compliance with the views of that Government, to make it an absolute rule overriding all contracts between the parties; but it is in our opinion quite impossible to adopt the extensive modification of the rule, or, speaking more properly, the completely new rule which is now proposed. That new rule, which would provide that the total amount claimable from first to last on account of interest shall in no case exceed the principal, has not, like the rule of dám-dupat, the authority of Native law or ancient custom to support it. It rests on no principle that we have been able to discern; and from the tenth paragraph of a letter from the Government of Bombay, No. 4579, dated 5th September, 1878, which has been laid before us by the Secretary, it would appear that it was introduced merely in order to provide an additional mode of reducing the claims of saukárs. We would further observe that no attempt has been made as far as appears to estimate its effect upon existing claims; but we gather from the papers before us and the report of the Dekkhan Riots Commission that in the case of a very large proportion of those claims interest in excess of principal has already been paid; and wherever this is so, the result of the rule would be that, when the claim had been cut down in the various modes required by the very stringent provisions of section 13, it would be necessary again to reduce it by one-half. It appears to us impossible to enact arbitrarily a new rule of this description.

16. We have next to refer to a section which appeared in the drafts submitted by the Government of Bombay in January 1878 and in April last, but which was omitted from the Bill as prepared here, and for the reintroduction of which the Bombay Government now strongly press.

The section in question, as it appeared in the Bill submitted in January 1878, provided that where the nature or extent of the transactions between the parties was doubtful, the Court should determine the "amount of money lent upon an equitable estimate with reference" to such considerations as the means and position of the parties, the state of the borrower's credit at the time, the occasion on which the money was advanced, the needs of the borrower, &c. Mr. Naylor, the Legal Remembrancer to the Government of Bombay, in the able paper submitted by him, seems still to press for the introduction of the section in this form. He considers it to be one of the two essential points of the proposed measure that the Courts should be empowered, when "the evidence is doubtful, to determine the amount payable upon equitable considerations."

Now, it is common enough to speak of adjusting rights on equitable grounds; but we are altogether at a loss to understand what is meant by deciding a pure question of fact "upon an equitable estimate" or "upon equitable considerations."

We apprehend, however, that if we adopted the section in this its original form, as Mr. Naylor would apparently have us do, it would probably be construed by the lower Courts as an instruction to them in default of satisfactory proof to make a guess at the amount of the loan, and in making such guess to have a special regard to circumstances which would, as a rule, tell in favour of the debtor.

17. In the Bill submitted in April last, this section appeared in a new shape, namely, as a provision simply to the effect that the circumstances above referred to, namely, the means of the parties, &c., should, upon any question arising as to the extent of a transaction, be relevant facts; and it is apparently in this shape that the Government of Bombay now advocate its reintroduction. In pressing us to reintroduce it, however, they are apparently influenced by what appears to us to be a misapprehension as to the existing state of the law. They speak of it as "a relaxation of the rigour of the existing practice as to the admission of evidence." This, as it appears to us, it would not be. We are clearly of opinion that the facts referred to, though their weight in evidence would as a rule be small, would be relevant facts within the meaning of the Evidence Act, and that accordingly the proposed section would be simply nugatory, that is to say, without any legal operation.

We are by no means sure, however, that if it became law it would not indirectly work mischief. We are inclined to think that an enactment expressly requiring the facts referred to to be treated as relevant facts would lead the Courts to attach an artificial weight to them over and above the weight which naturally belongs to them; and we are strengthened in this opinion when we see the extraordinary importance which the Government of Bombay and some of the local authorities appear to attach to the proposed section,—an importance which could scarcely be attributed to it if the facts to which it refers were to be estimated at their natural value.

The great anxiety shown by the Government of Bombay for the reintroduction of this section must be our excuse for stating at such length our reasons for rejecting it.

18. Sections 16 and 24, which go to relieve an heir from a portion of his ancestor's debt, though he may have inherited from that ancestor property sufficient to pay that debt, have been struck out.

The Government of Bombay do not appear to attach much importance to them, the Judges of the High Court have objected to them, and it is hard to see why, when the ancestor's debt has under the ample powers contained in sections 12 to 15 of the Bill been fully inquired into and reduced to its just limits, the heir should not be bound to pay it to the extent of the property he has inherited. The obligation binding him to do so is, as observed by the Hon'ble Sayyad Ahmad in his speech when the Bill was introduced, a matter of natural equity common to the English, Hindú and Muhammadan legal systems. Moreover, it is an obligation with the force of which the people of this country are perhaps more strongly impressed than those of any other country, and the sense of which, as observed in a letter from the Government of Bombay of the 6th April, 1877, is one of the best traits in their character.

19. Section 30 of the Bill, which empowers the Insolvency Court, instead of selling the moveable property of an insolvent, to insist on one of his creditors accepting it at a valuation in payment or part payment of his claim, has given rise to much discussion. On the one hand, the danger of property being sold at a great loss when put up to public auction has been much dwelt upon; on the other, the hardship of forcing upon a creditor an article for which he may have no use for himself, and which ex hypothesi it is not easy to sell, has been urged especially by Mr. Justice West. On the whole, it appears to us that the arguments against this section preponderate over those in its favour, and we have accordingly struck it out.

20. We have, in accordance with the views of the Government of Bombay, removed the restriction in section 36 of the Bill under which no one but a patel could be appointed to the office of Village-munsif. Under the section as now amended any person possessing local influence may be appointed.

21. Section 35, limiting the power of the Subordinate Judges to commit fraudulent insolvents to jail under section 359 of the Code of Civil Procedure, has been omitted, and a section providing for an appeal from the orders of Subordinate Judges in such cases substituted for it, at the instance of the Government of Bombay.

22. We have deemed it necessary to guard against the dangers adverted to by the Hon'ble Sayyad Ahmad in his speech, by the introduction of words in section 40 excluding revenue and police officers from the office of Conciliator.

We have further, in order to furnish a simple and inoffensive means of getting rid of a conciliator who proves unfit for the position, added a clause in the same section providing that conciliators shall vacate their office at the end of three years but shall be re-eligible.

23. In section 49 we have, adopting the view of the High Court and the Legal Remembrancer, struck out the words which made the conciliation system applicable to proceedings in execution of decrees passed before the new law comes into force as well as to suits.

We find it difficult to understand why this system should be applied to decrees passed before this Bill becomes law and not to those passed after, unless upon the assumption that the decrees already passed were unfair to the judgment-debtors and that some pressure should be brought to bear to induce the holders of such decrees to forego some portion of what they are entitled to claim under them. We can give no countenance to any such assumption. The Courts will no doubt, if this Bill becomes law, proceed in future on principles more favourable to the debtor than those on which they have been hitherto proceeding; but when a man has obtained a decree from our Courts in accordance with the law for the time being in force, we cannot think it right to enact that his decree should be placed on the same footing as an unproved claim. If the judgment-debtor requires time to pay, the Bill gives the fullest power to the Courts to allow time. If he is altogether unable to pay, the Insolvency Courts are open to him; but we cannot admit that under any circumstances the rights of the decree-holder under his decree should be brought in question.

24. The question whether appeals should be allowed in any cases tried under chapter VII of the Bill or whether we should trust entirely to the powers of superintendence and revision conferred by chapter VII has given rise to much discussion. It is not so important as might at first sight appear, inasmuch as there can be little doubt that, if the right of appeal were withheld, petitions for revision would take the place of petitions of appeal, and then the chief difference would be that an application for revision not being, like the presentation of an appeal, a matter of right, might be more summarily dealt with by the superior Court. Having considered all that has been said on both sides, we have come to the conclusion that in mortgage cases, in which questions of difficulty and importance are likely to arise, an appeal should be allowed, and we have amended the Bill accordingly.

25. If an appeal is to be allowed in these cases, which form a very large class, and the most important class, of cases to be heard under the Bill, we think that the special judge who was to have been appointed to strengthen and superintend the staff of officers employed in the work of revision will no longer be required, and we have accordingly omitted all reference to him and transferred his duties to the District Judges.

26. We have omitted section 69, which empowered the Subordinate Judge to refuse in petty cases to allow any costs between parties on account of pleader's fees, as it has been argued, and we think with great force, that, owing to the smallness of the fees in such cases, it would rarely effect the object desired, namely, that of deterring parties from employing pleaders; and further that, in so far as it had any effect, it would tend to render the pleaders subservient to [illegible].

27. We have been urged to introduce in the place of this section the provision of the draft Bill submitted by the Government of Bombay, which would have as a rule excluded pleaders in these cases altogether; but we deem it undesirable to do so.

We believe that well-qualified pleaders are a material aid to the Judge in dealing with a case of any complication or difficulty, and there is nothing in the letters from the Government of Bombay to lead us to suppose that the pleaders practising in the Dekkhan Courts are not well qualified. If the view of those who urge us to adopt this novel provision is that in suits under Rs. 100 in value the aid of pleaders cannot be required, we think it a mistaken view, inasmuch as the difficulty of a case does not depend on the amount at issue, and as for any notion that the ryots would be placed on something more like a footing of equal advantage with the saukárs by the exclusion of pleaders, we are of opinion that it would be directly the reverse, inasmuch as the saukár, having ordinarily a good deal of business in Court, would be able to employ as his servant, and send to Court on his behalf, some man who, though not a professional legal practitioner, would have a considerable knowledge of law and of the ways of the Court, whereas the raiyat would have to appear in person and depend upon himself.

On the whole, we are convinced that it will be best not to interfere with the existing law on this particular point.

28. The only other amendment made by us which calls for special notice in this report is the insertion of section 71 of the Bill as now amended, requiring all mortgages below Rs. 100 in value executed before the Bill becomes law to be registered within one year. This section has been inserted at the instance of the Government of Bombay and of some of the other authorities consulted, and it appears to us to be necessary in order to guard against documents being forged with dates prior to the passing of the Bill with a view to evading the provisions of the chapter on village registration.

29. The Bill has been published in English in the Bombay Government Gazette of the 24th and 31st July and 7th August last, and in Maráthí in the same Gazette of the 9th instant. Some of the amendments we have made are doubtless of importance; but, looking to the urgency of the measure and the very full discussion it has already undergone, we think no further publication is necessary, and we recommend that the Bill as now amended be passed.

* I CANNOT accept the conclusions arrived at by the majority of the Committee on several paragraphs of this report. In exceptional legislation of this kind applicable to a limited tract of country which has for years been subject to great distress from various causes, I am of opinion that the fullest freedom should be given to the Local Government as to the agency it should employ for carrying out the purposes of the Bill, and I would not impose any restrictions upon that freedom as advocated in the first clause of paragraph 22 of the report. I think, too, under the special circumstances of the case, and when the primary object in view is to bring about, not so much by the technical procedure of Civil Courts as by conciliation between the parties, the adjustment of long-standing disputes, the rejection of the proposal to have a Special Judge to supervise all the proceedings under the Act is a mistake. As the Bombay Government were prepared to meet the expenses of such an arrangement, I would retain it, and would prefer that such officer should be vested with general powers of revision, and that the provision for appeals and the intervention of pleaders in any class of suits up to Rs. 100 should be given up.

There are some minor points (section 30, sale of moveables, and section 49, conciliation on old decrees) in which I differed from the majority of the Committee; but as I shall have an opportunity of stating the reasons of my dissent when the report comes up for consideration in Council, I need say nothing further on those points at present.

RIVERS THOMPSON.

The 13th October, 1879.

I REGRET that I am unable to sign this report, even pro formâ. It contains some inaccuracies; the Bill it supports overrules, even in many matters of secondary importance, the opinions of the Local Governments and other authorities in the best position to judge rightly; and its fourth, sixteenth, seventeenth, nineteenth and twenty-second to twenty-seventh paragraphs in particular seem to me to support by insufficient arguments conclusions fatal in the aggregate to the success of the measure.

SECTIONS.
1. Short title.
Commencement.
Local extent.
2. Interpretation-clause.
3. Inspectors.
4. Age of employment.
5. Hours of employment.
6. No child or young person to be engaged in certain dangerous work.
7. Fencing.
8. Notice to be given of injuries to persons in factories.
9. Penalties.
Only one penalty for same kind of offence on one day.
Right to compensation saved.
10. Occupier primarily liable for breaches of provisions of Act.
11. Local Government may make rules.

A Bill to regulate labour in Factories.

PREAMBLE. WHEREAS it is expedient to regulate labour in Factories; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title. 1. This Act may be called "The Factories Act, 1880":

Commencement. and it shall come into force at once.

Local extent. This section applies to the whole of British India; the other sections of this Act apply only to those parts of British India to which they may, from time to time, be extended by the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by a notification in the official Gazette.

Interpretation-clause. 2. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,—

"Factory": "Factory" means any premises in the same occupation, situate in the same town or place, and constituting one trade establishment in, on or within the precincts of which fifty or more persons are employed in any manual labour exercised by way of trade or for purposes of gain in or incidental to the making any article or part thereof, or the altering, repairing, ornamenting, finishing or otherwise adapting the same for sale;

and every part of a factory shall be deemed to be a factory, except any part used exclusively as a dwelling:

"child": "child" means a child under the age of twelve years:

"young person": "young person" means a person between the ages of twelve and sixteen years:

"mill-gearing": "mill-gearing" includes every shaft, whether upright, oblique or horizontal, and every wheel, drum or pulley, by which the motion of the first moving power is communicated to any machine.

Inspectors. 3. The Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint such persons as it thinks fit to be Inspectors of Factories for any place or district.

Such persons shall be deemed public servants within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

Such Inspectors may enter any factory whenever any person is employed therein.

Age of employment. 4. No person shall be employed in any factory—

(a) during the first year in which this section applies to the part of British India in which such factory is situate, if he is under the age of seven years;

(b) after that year, if he is under the age of eight years.

Hours of employment. 5. No child shall be employed more than six and no young person more than eight hours in any factory in any one day.

No child or young person to be engaged in certain dangerous work. 6. No occupier of a factory shall allow any child or young person to clean any part of the mill-gearing or machinery of such factory while the same is in motion, or to work between the fixed and traversing parts of any self-acting machine while such machine is in motion by the action of the steam-engine, water-wheel or other mechanical power, as the case may be.

Fencing. 7. Every fly-wheel directly connected with a steam-engine or water-wheel or other mechanical power in any part of a factory, and every part of a steam-engine or water-wheel, and every hoist or teagle or other part of the machinery or mill-gearing of a factory which may, in the opinion of the local Inspector of Factories, be dangerous if left unfenced, and near which any child or young person is liable to pass or be employed, shall, while the same is in motion, if such Inspector so requires, be kept by the occupier of such factory securely fenced.

Notice to be given of injuries to persons in factories. 8. Every occupier of a factory, or, in his absence, his principal agent in the management of such factory, shall send such notice of injuries occurring to persons therein to such authorities and within such time as the Local Government may, from time to time, by rule direct.

Penalties. 9. Any person who, in breach of this Act,—

(a) employs any child or young person in any factory;

(b) allows any child or young person to perform the work forbidden by, or to work in contravention of, section six;

(c) neglects to securely fence any machinery or mill-gearing in any factory; or

(d) neglects to give notice of any injury,

shall be liable to a fine not exceeding two hundred rupees;

Provided that no such person shall be liable to more than one penalty for any one description of offence committed on the same day:

Only one penalty for same kind of offence on one day.

Provided also that nothing in this Act shall affect the right of any person injured by any breach of the provisions of this Act to obtain compensation therefor according to law.

Right to compensation saved.

10. Every occupier of a factory shall be deemed primarily liable for any breach therein of the provisions of this Act; but he may discharge himself from liability by proof to the satisfaction of the local Inspector of Factories, before prosecution therefor, that such breach was committed by some other person without his knowledge or consent; and the person committing such breach shall be liable therefor.

Occupier primarily liable for breaches of provisions of Act.

11. The Local Government may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Act to provide, with respect to factories under this Act, for—

Local Government may make rules.

(a) the fencing of machinery;

(b) inspection;

(c) the notices to be given by occupiers or agents of factories of injuries occurring therein;

(d) otherwise carrying out the provisions of this Act.

Such rules shall be published in the official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The subject of the regulation of labour in factories has been for a long time under discussion, and there has been much difference of opinion regarding it. The Governor General in Council, having now considered the different views that have been put forward and the various suggestions that have been made, has come to the conclusion that the legislation to be undertaken at present should be restricted to the following points, namely:—

1*st*—The determination of the age at which children may be employed;

2*nd*—The limitation of the hours of labour for children and young persons;

3*rd*—The prohibition of the employment of children and young persons on certain dangerous work;

4*th*—The fencing of dangerous machinery;

5*th*—The reporting of accidents, and,

6*th*—The appointment of Government inspectors.

The present Bill has been prepared on these lines, and will apply only to those parts of British India to which it may be extended by the Local Governments, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill for the relief of Indebted Agriculturists in certain parts of the Dekkhan, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 17th October, 1879:—

REPORT.

We, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill for the relief of indebted agriculturists in certain parts of the Dekkhan was referred, have the honour to report that we have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin.

From Pandit Eshwant Sridhar, Puna, dated 17th August, 1879 [Printed paper No. 1].
Notes by Mr. Ganesh Wassudeo Joshi, Joint Secretary, Puna Arbitration Court, dated 9th August, 1879 [Printed paper No. 2].
From Acting Chief Secretary to Government, Bombay, No. 4495, dated 27th August, 1879 [Printed paper No. 3].
Note by Mr. Ganesh Wassudeo Joshi, Joint Secretary, Puna Arbitration Court, dated 25th August, 1879 [Printed paper No. 4].
Observations by Hon'ble Justice R. West, dated 10th September, 1879 [Printed paper No. 5].
Abstract of letter of Bombay Government, No. 4495, dated 27th August, 1879 [Printed paper No. 6].
From Acting Chief Secretary to Government, Bombay, No. 4787, dated 8th September, 1879, and enclosures [Printed papers No. 7].
" Ditto ditto, No. 4774, dated 8th September, 1879, and enclosures [Printed papers No. 8].
" Ditto ditto, No. 4838, dated 11th September, 1879, and enclosures [Printed papers No. 9].
" Mr. Shivram Hary Sathé, Secretary, Puna Sarvajanik Sabhá, No. 89, dated 6th September, 1879, and enclosures [Printed papers No. 10].
Acting Chief Secretary to Government, Bombay, No. 5088, dated 22nd September, 1879, and enclosures [Printed papers No. 11].

2. We have not been so fortunate as to agree among ourselves on all the points presented for our consideration; but we do not deem it necessary to refer in the body of this report to such differences of opinion as have arisen. The most convenient course, we think, will be to treat the conclusions of the majority as the conclusions of the Committee, leaving individual members to record separate dissents upon such points as they think fit.

We shall refer to such of the amendments made by us as seem to us to call for special notice in the order of the sections of the Bill as introduced.

3. Section 8, providing for the service of summons by patels, which was inserted on a suggestion made here at the time the Bill was prepared, has been struck out, as it has not met with the approval of the Government of Bombay.

4. Section 9, empowering the Courts, instead of hearing the case ex parte, to issue a warrant for the apprehension of a defendant who does not appear and requiring them to adopt this procedure as the general rule, has given rise to some difference of opinion. On the one hand, it has been urged that the habit which the raiyats of the Dekkhan have fallen into of allowing suits instituted against them to go undefended has contributed in no small degree to produce the evils which this Bill is intended to remedy. On the other, the obvious hardship of forcibly dragging a man away from his home and his cultivation, perhaps at a season when every day is of importance to him, merely with a view to compelling him to appear in a suit to which he has no defence, has been much dwelt on by Mr. Justice West, Mr. Naylor and others.

After weighing the arguments on both sides, we have come to the conclusion that those which may be urged against the introduction of this novel and very stringent rule preponderate; and we are confirmed in this conclusion when we remember that under section 12 of the Bill the Court is bound to make an investigation into the history of the case, even though it is not defended, and that, if it is necessary for the proper conduct of such investigation to have the defendant in Court, the Civil Procedure Code gives power to summon him as a witness.

5. In order to prevent the provisions of chapter III of the Bill being evaded, as it has been pointed out to us they might be, by entering into contracts with the agriculturists of the four districts to which the Bill extends at places beyond the limits of those districts, we have introduced a section in the beginning of chapter III requiring suits against such agriculturists to be brought where the defendants reside.

6. The next provisions of the Bill calling for notice are those contained in sections 12 to 15, commonly described as the sections requiring the Court "to go behind the bond," and they are by far the most important we have had to consider.

Section 12 is in the main merely introductory to those that follow. It provides that, when the amount of a claim is disputed, the Court shall inquire into the history and merits of the case, partly with a view to ascertaining whether there is any defence to the suit on the ground of fraud, &c., and partly with a view to taking the account between the parties according to the rules laid down in the following sections; but that, when the amount of the claim is admitted, the Court shall not be bound to institute such inquiry, unless it sees reason to doubt the truth of the admission.

7. The Government of Bombay object to the latter portion of the rule. We have felt some doubt as to the precise grounds of their objection as set forth in paragraph 10 of their letter of the 27th August; but we understand that their view is that it is necessary to institute the inquiry in every case, even though the defendant may admit the claim and there may be no reason to doubt the truth of his admission.

We are not prepared to go quite this length. There must, it appears to us, be some cases in which it will be clear enough for all practical purposes that the admission of a defendant is true and reasonable—cases, for example, in which, though the defendant is an agriculturist within the meaning of the Bill, he is a man of some little education and as well able to keep an account of his transactions and understand his position as the plaintiff. In such cases we think we should be inflicting an unnecessary hardship on both parties and wasting the time of the Court by insisting on an inquiry which, even where both parties were agreed, would, if the judge were to be put in possession of the whole history of the case, often be lengthy and troublesome. We have, however, introduced an amendment which we believe will, in practice, secure all that the Government of Bombay desire, by providing in section 12 that, in cases where the defendant admits the claim, the Court shall nevertheless inquire into the history of the case, unless, for reasons to be recorded by it in writing, it believes that the admission is true and is made by the debtor with a full knowledge of his legal rights as against the creditor. The result of this amendment will be that it will no longer be possible for an indolent judge, as it would be under the Bill as introduced, to shirk the labour of the inquiry by saying that he sees no reason to doubt the truth of the admission. The inquiry must be made, unless the judge is prepared to give some specific reason for accepting the admission—some such reason, e.g., as might be given in a case of the description just referred to.

8. Section 13, which lays down the mode in which, after the inquiry prescribed by section 12 has been made, the account between the parties should be taken, has been recast in order to bring it as nearly as possible into accordance with the views of the Government of Bombay.

As it originally stood, it provided that, if the Court found that there was any agreement between the parties as to the mode of taking the account and considered such agreement fair and equitable, the account should be taken in accordance with such agreement; but that otherwise the account should be taken according to certain rules, the principal of which were—first, that compound interest should not be allowed in any shape or under any circumstances;

secondly, that all profits and advantages received by the plaintiff in connection with the transaction should be brought to credit at a value to be determined by the Court; and thirdly, that the Hindú rule of dám-dupat, by which the sum recovered on account of interest shall not exceed the sum recovered on the same occasion on account of principal, should be observed in all cases without reference to the religion of the parties.

9. The Government of Bombay desire to have the two first of these rules applied absolutely and in all cases without any regard to the agreement between the parties, even where such agreement may, under the circumstances, be a fair and equitable one.

The third rule they desire to have similarly applied, but with a modification in favour of the debtor of so extensive a nature as to make it in form and in substance a completely new rule.

In short, the Bill, as it at present stands, goes far in the direction of setting aside contracts which under the law hitherto in force have been held good. The Government of Bombay desire to make it go much further.

10. The question is accordingly one of those of degree, of more or less, on which opinions will necessarily differ.

On the one side it is urged that it is necessary, on political grounds, to adopt strong and unusual measures in favour of the raiyats in order to prevent irritation and discontent.

On the other it is urged that, in so far as the question can be considered to have assumed a political aspect, we must be careful lest by going too far in our efforts to allay the discontent of one class we excite the disaffection of the other.

11. Turning from the political to the economical aspect of the question, we have, on the one hand, the very obvious arguments as to the desirability of providing for the raiyats some means of escape from their present thraldom and of giving them a fresh start on something like a solvent footing; on the other, we have been much pressed with the argument that by going too far in subverting contracts, we may destroy the credit of the raiyats, and thus in the long run both aggravate their pecuniary difficulties and place the Government revenue in jeopardy.

12. Amid these conflicting considerations we have, we need hardly say, desired to be guided, as far as possible, by the views of the Government of Bombay. There is indeed much in the Bill as now settled by us which, if it were not for the deference we feel for the strongly expressed opinion of that Government, we should propose to alter. But we cannot altogether devolve upon others, whatever our respect for their views may be, the duty of forming an opinion on the important questions submitted to us.

Looking at the matter in this way and having given it our most anxious consideration, we find ourselves in a position to recommend that the views of the Government of Bombay be adopted fully in regard to one of the three rules above referred to, and partially in regard to the other two.

13. To begin with the rule as to crediting profits irrespective of any agreement which may have been made regarding them, we think that that rule may, without any great danger of injustice, be made, as the Government of Bombay wish it to be, applicable to all cases.

It is true that, in the case of a usufructuary mortgage, it sets aside agreements which have hitherto not only been enforced when expressly entered into by the parties, but which the law in Bombay (Bombay Regulation V of 1827, section 15) presumes, in the absence of any express agreement, to be implied: we mean agreements to the effect that the profits of the mortgaged property shall be taken by the mortgagee without account in lieu of interest. But such agreements when made between the parties to a mortgage, whether expressly or by tacit reference to the Regulation just mentioned, usually proceed on the calculation that the profits of the property will be equivalent to reasonable interest on the loan; and there can accordingly be no great hardship in providing that the approximate estimate of the profits made by the parties shall be set aside and an actual account taken, reasonable interest being at the same time allowed to the mortgagee.

14. In regard to the matter of compound interest, we are unable to adopt in their entirety the proposals of the Government of Bombay. We have no doubt that, in a very large proportion of the cases that will come before the Courts under this Bill, it will be found that the debt has been unduly swollen by frequent rests and consolidations of interest with principal; but it seems to us that there must be some cases in which a consolidation of interest with principal, or perhaps a novation, as a lawyer would term it, of the entire transaction, has taken place under such circumstances that the refusal to recognize it would work a gross injustice. This being so, we deem it impossible to lay down any absolutely hard-and-fast rule on the point; but in order to bring the Bill in this particular as nearly as we can venture to do into conformity with the views of the Government of Bombay, we have, following a course similar to that which we have adopted in regard to section 12, provided that compound interest shall be disallowed, unless the Court, for reasons to be recorded by it in writing, is of opinion that it is fair and equitable to allow it. We may add that we feel confident that the law as thus amended will fully secure the object which we understand the Government of Bombay to have in view.

15. As regards the Hindú rule of dám-dupat, it has, at the desire of the Government of Bombay, been extended to the whole agriculturist population of the four districts without reference to creed or sect. We now propose, in further compliance with the views of that Government, to make it an absolute rule overriding all contracts between the parties; but it is in our opinion quite impossible to adopt the extensive modification of the rule, or, speaking more properly, the completely new rule which is now proposed. That new rule, which would provide that the total amount claimable from first to last on account of interest shall in no case exceed the principal, has not, like the rule of dám-dupat, the authority of Native law or ancient custom to support it. It rests on no principle that we have been able to discern; and from the tenth paragraph of a letter from the Government of Bombay, No. 4579, dated 5th September, 1878, which has been laid before us by the Secretary, it would appear that it was introduced merely in order to provide an additional mode of reducing the claims of saukárs. We would further observe that no attempt has been made as far as appears to estimate its effect upon existing claims; but we gather from the papers before us and the report of the Dekkhan Riots Commission that in the case of a very large proportion of those claims interest in excess of principal has already been paid; and wherever this is so, the result of the rule would be that, when the claim had been cut down in the various modes required by the very stringent provisions of section 13, it would be necessary again to reduce it by one-half. It appears to us impossible to enact arbitrarily a new rule of this description.

16. We have next to refer to a section which appeared in the drafts submitted by the Government of Bombay in January 1878 and in April last, but which was omitted from the Bill as prepared here, and for the reintroduction of which the Bombay Government now strongly press.

The section in question, as it appeared in the Bill submitted in January 1878, provided that where the nature or extent of the transactions between the parties was doubtful, the Court should determine the "amount of money lent upon an equitable estimate with reference" to such considerations as the means and position of the parties, the state of the borrower's credit at the time, the occasion on which the money was advanced, the needs of the borrower, &c. Mr. Naylor, the Legal Remembrancer to the Government of Bombay, in the able paper submitted by him, seems still to press for the introduction of the section in this form. He considers it to be one of the two essential points of the proposed measure that the Courts should be empowered, when "the evidence is doubtful, to determine the amount payable upon equitable considerations."

Now, it is common enough to speak of adjusting rights on equitable grounds; but we are altogether at a loss to understand what is meant by deciding a pure question of fact "upon an equitable estimate" or "upon equitable considerations."

We apprehend, however, that if we adopted the section in this its original form, as Mr. Naylor would apparently have us do, it would probably be construed by the lower Courts as an instruction to them in default of satisfactory proof to make a guess at the amount of the loan, and in making such guess to have a special regard to circumstances which would, as a rule, tell in favour of the debtor.

17. In the Bill submitted in April last, this section appeared in a new shape, namely, as a provision simply to the effect that the circumstances above referred to, namely, the means of the parties, &c., should, upon any question arising as to the extent of a transaction, be relevant facts; and it is apparently in this shape that the Government of Bombay now advocate its reintroduction. In pressing us to reintroduce it, however, they are apparently influenced by what appears to us to be a misapprehension as to the existing state of the law. They speak of it as "a relaxation of the rigour of the existing practice as to the admission of evidence." This, as it appears to us, it would not be. We are clearly of opinion that the facts referred to, though their weight in evidence would as a rule be small, would be relevant facts within the meaning of the Evidence Act, and that accordingly the proposed section would be simply nugatory, that is to say, without any legal operation.

We are by no means sure, however, that if it became law it would not indirectly work mischief. We are inclined to think that an enactment expressly requiring the facts referred to to be treated as relevant facts would lead the Courts to attach an artificial weight to them over and above the weight which naturally belongs to them; and we are strengthened in this opinion when we see the extraordinary importance which the Government of Bombay and some of the local authorities appear to attach to the proposed section,—an importance which could scarcely be attributed to it if the facts to which it refers were to be estimated at their natural value.

The great anxiety shown by the Government of Bombay for the reintroduction of this section must be our excuse for stating at such length our reasons for rejecting it.

18. Sections 16 and 24, which go to relieve an heir from a portion of his ancestor's debt, though he may have inherited from that ancestor property sufficient to pay that debt, have been struck out.

The Government of Bombay do not appear to attach much importance to them, the Judges of the High Court have objected to them, and it is hard to see why, when the ancestor's debt has under the ample powers contained in sections 12 to 15 of the Bill been fully inquired into and reduced to its just limits, the heir should not be bound to pay it to the extent of the property he has inherited. The obligation binding him to do so is, as observed by the Hon'ble Sayyad Ahmad in his speech when the Bill was introduced, a matter of natural equity common to the English, Hindú and Muhammadan legal systems. Moreover, it is an obligation with the force of which the people of this country are perhaps more strongly impressed than those of any other country, and the sense of which, as observed in a letter from the Government of Bombay of the 6th April, 1877, is one of the best traits in their character.

19. Section 30 of the Bill, which empowers the Insolvency Court, instead of selling the moveable property of an insolvent, to insist on one of his creditors accepting it at a valuation in payment or part payment of his claim, has given rise to much discussion. On the one hand, the danger of property being sold at a great loss when put up to public auction has been much dwelt upon; on the other, the hardship of forcing upon a creditor an article for which he may have no use for himself, and which ex hypothesi it is not easy to sell, has been urged especially by Mr. Justice West. On the whole, it appears to us that the arguments against this section preponderate over those in its favour, and we have accordingly struck it out.

20. We have, in accordance with the views of the Government of Bombay, removed the restriction in section 36 of the Bill under which no one but a patel could be appointed to the office of Village-munsif. Under the section as now amended any person possessing local influence may be appointed.

21. Section 35, limiting the power of the Subordinate Judges to commit fraudulent insolvents to jail under section 359 of the Code of Civil Procedure, has been omitted, and a section providing for an appeal from the orders of Subordinate Judges in such cases substituted for it, at the instance of the Government of Bombay.

22. We have deemed it necessary to guard against the dangers adverted to by the Hon'ble Sayyad Ahmad in his speech, by the introduction of words in section 40 excluding revenue and police officers from the office of Conciliator.

We have further, in order to furnish a simple and inoffensive means of getting rid of a conciliator who proves unfit for the position, added a clause in the same section providing that conciliators shall vacate their office at the end of three years but shall be re-eligible.

23. In section 49 we have, adopting the view of the High Court and the Legal Remembrancer, struck out the words which made the conciliation system applicable to proceedings in execution of decrees passed before the new law comes into force as well as to suits.

We find it difficult to understand why this system should be applied to decrees passed before this Bill becomes law and not to those passed after, unless upon the assumption that the decrees already passed were unfair to the judgment-debtors and that some pressure should be brought to bear to induce the holders of such decrees to forego some portion of what they are entitled to claim under them. We can give no countenance to any such assumption. The Courts will no doubt, if this Bill becomes law, proceed in future on principles more favourable to the debtor than those on which they have been hitherto proceeding; but when a man has obtained a decree from our Courts in accordance with the law for the time being in force, we cannot think it right to enact that his decree should be placed on the same footing as an unproved claim. If the judgment-debtor requires time to pay, the Bill gives the fullest power to the Courts to allow time. If he is altogether unable to pay, the Insolvency Courts are open to him; but we cannot admit that under any circumstances the rights of the decree-holder under his decree should be brought in question.

24. The question whether appeals should be allowed in any cases tried under chapter II of the Bill or whether we should trust entirely to the powers of superintendence and revision conferred by chapter VII has given rise to much discussion. It is not so important as might at first sight appear, inasmuch as there can be little doubt that, if the right of appeal were withheld, petitions for revision would take the place of petitions of appeal, and then the chief difference would be that an application for revision not being, like the presentation of an appeal, a matter of right, might be more summarily dealt with by the superior Court. Having considered all that has been said on both sides, we have come to the conclusion that in mortgage cases, in which questions of difficulty and importance are likely to arise, an appeal should be allowed, and we have amended the Bill accordingly.

25. If an appeal is to be allowed in these cases, which form a very large class, and the most important class, of cases to be heard under the Bill, we think that the special judge who was to have been appointed to strengthen and superintend the staff of officers employed in the work of revision will no longer be required, and we have accordingly omitted all reference to him and transferred his duties to the District Judges.

26. We have omitted section 69, which empowered the Subordinate Judge to refuse in petty cases to allow any costs between parties on account of pleader's fees, as it has been argued, and we think with great force, that, owing to the smallness of the fees in such cases, it would rarely effect the object desired, namely, that of deterring parties from employing pleaders; and further that, in so far as it had any effect, it would tend to render the pleaders subservient to the judges.

27. We have been urged to introduce in the place of this section the provision of the draft Bill submitted by the Government of Bombay, which would have as a rule excluded pleaders in these cases altogether; but we deem it undesirable to do so.

We believe that well-qualified pleaders are a material aid to the Judge in dealing with a case of any complication or difficulty, and there is nothing in the letters from the Government of Bombay to lead us to suppose that the pleaders practising in the Dekkhan Courts are not well qualified. If the view of those who urge us to adopt this novel provision is that in suits under Rs. 100 in value the aid of pleaders cannot be required, we think it is a mistaken view, inasmuch as the difficulty of a case does not depend on the amount at issue, and as for any notion that the raiyats would be placed on something more like a footing of equal advantage with the saukárs by the exclusion of pleaders, we are of opinion that it would be directly the reverse, inasmuch as the saukár, having ordinarily a good deal of business in Court, would be able to employ as his servant, and send to Court on his behalf, some man who, though not a professional legal practitioner, would have a considerable knowledge of law and of the ways of the Court, whereas the raiyat would have to appear in person and depend upon himself.

On the whole, we are convinced that it will be best not to interfere with the existing law on this particular point.

28. The only other amendment made by us which calls for special notice in this report is the insertion of section 71 of the Bill as now amended, requiring all mortgages below Rs. 100 in value executed before the Bill becomes law to be registered within one year. This section has been inserted at the instance of the Government of Bombay and of some of the other authorities consulted, and it appears to us to be necessary in order to guard against documents being forged with dates prior to the passing of the Bill with a view to evading the provisions of the chapter on village registration.

29. The Bill has been published in English in the Bombay Government Gazette of the 24th and 31st July and 7th August last, and in Maráthí in the same Gazette of the 9th instant. Some of the amendments we have made are doubtless of importance; but, looking to the urgency of the measure and the very full discussion it has already undergone, we think no further publication is necessary, and we recommend that the Bill as now amended be passed.

* I CANNOT accept the conclusions arrived at by the majority of the Committee on several paragraphs of this report. In exceptional legislation of this kind applicable to a limited tract of country which has for years been subject to great distress from [illegible] I am of opinion that the fullest freedom should be given to the Local Government [illegible] it should employ for carrying out the purposes of the Bill, and I would not impose any restrictions upon that freedom as advocated in the first clause of paragraph 22 of the report. I think, too, under the special circumstances of the case, and when the primary object in view is to bring about, not so much by the technical procedure of Civil Courts as by conciliation between the parties, the adjustment of long-standing disputes, the rejection of the proposal to have a Special Judge to supervise all the proceedings under the Act is a mistake. As the Bombay Government were prepared to meet the expenses of such an arrangement, I would retain it, and would prefer that such officer should be vested with general powers of revision, and that the provision for appeals and the intervention of pleaders in any class of suits up to Rs. 100 should be given up.

There are some minor points (section 30, sale of moveables, and section 49, conciliation on old decrees) in which I differed from the majority of the Committee; but as I shall have an opportunity of stating the reasons of my dissent when the report comes up for consideration in Council, I need say nothing further on those points at present.

RIVERS THOMPSON.

The 13th October, 1879.

I REGRET that I am unable to sign this report, even pro formâ. It contains some inaccuracies; the Bill it supports overrules, even in many matters of secondary importance, the opinions of the Local Governments and other authorities in the best position to judge rightly; and its fourth, sixteenth, seventeenth, nineteenth and twenty-second to twenty-seventh paragraphs in particular seem to me to support by insufficient arguments conclusions fatal in the aggregate to the success of the measure.

A Bill to regulate labour in Factories.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to regulate labour in [illegible] factories; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title. Commencement.

1. This Act may be called "The Factories Act, 1880": and it shall come into force at once.

Local extent.

This section applies to the whole of British India; the other sections of this Act apply only to those parts of British India to which they may, from time to time, be extended by the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by a notification in the official Gazette.

Interpretation-clause.

2. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,—

"Factory": "Factory" means any premises in the same occupation, situate in the same town or place, and constituting one trade establishment in, on or within the precincts of which fifty or more persons are employed in any manual labour exercised by way of trade or for purposes of gain in or incidental to the making any article or part thereof, or the altering, repairing, ornamenting, finishing or otherwise adapting the same for sale;

and every part of a factory shall be deemed to be a factory, except any part used exclusively as a dwelling:

"child": "child" means a child under the age of twelve years:

"young person": "young person" means a person between the ages of twelve and sixteen years;

"mill-gearing": "mill-gearing" includes every shaft, whether upright, oblique or horizontal, and every wheel, drum or pulley, by which the motion of the first moving power is communicated to any machine.

Inspectors.

3. The Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint such persons as it thinks fit to be Inspectors of Factories for any place or district.

Such persons shall be deemed public servants within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

Such Inspectors may enter any factory whenever any person is employed therein.

Age of employment.

4. No person shall be employed in any factory—

(a) during the first year in which this section applies to the part of British India in which such factory is situate, if he is under the age of seven years;

(b) after that year, if he is under the age of eight years.

Hours of employment.

5. No child shall be employed more than six and no young person more than eight hours in any factory in any one day.

No child or young person to be engaged in certain dangerous work.

6. No occupier of a factory shall allow any child or young person to clean any part of the mill-gearing or machinery of such factory while the same is in motion, or to work between the fixed and traversing parts of any self-acting machine while such machine is in motion by the action of the steam-engine, water-wheel or other mechanical power, as the case may be.

Fencing.

7. Every fly-wheel directly connected with a steam-engine or water-wheel or other mechanical power in any part of a factory, and every part of a steam-engine or water-wheel, and every hoist or teagle or other part of the machinery or mill-gearing of a factory which may, in the opinion of the local Inspector of Factories, be dangerous if left unfenced, and near which any child or young person is liable to pass or be employed, shall, while the same is in motion, if such Inspector so requires, be kept by the occupier of such factory securely fenced.

Notice to be given of injuries to persons in factories.

8. Every occupier of a factory, or, in his absence, his principal agent in the management of such factory, shall send such notice of injuries occurring to persons therein to such authorities and within such time as the Local Government may, from time to time, by rule direct.

Penalties.

9. Any person who, in breach of this Act,—

(a) employs any child or young person in any factory;

(b) allows any child or young person to perform the work forbidden by, or to work [illegible] section [illegible];

(c) neglects to securely fence any machinery or mill-gearing in any factory, or

(d) neglects to give notice of any injury,

shall be [illegible] not exceeding two hundred [illegible]

Provided that no such person shall be liable to more than one penalty for any one description of offence committed on the same day:

Only one penalty for same kind of offence on one day

Provided also that nothing in this Act shall affect the right of any person injured by any breach of the provisions of this Act to obtain compensation therefor according to law.

Right to compensation saved.

10. Every occupier of a factory shall be deemed primarily liable for any breach therein of the provisions of this Act; but he may discharge himself from liability by proof to the satisfaction of the local Inspector of Factories, before prosecution therefor, that such breach was committed by some other person without his knowledge or consent; and the person committing such breach shall be liable therefor.

Occupier primarily liable for breaches of provisions of Act.

11. The Local Government may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Act to provide, with respect to factories under this Act, for—

Local Government may make rules.

(a) the fencing of machinery;

(b) inspection;

(c) the notices to be given by occupiers or agents of factories of injuries occurring therein;

(d) otherwise carrying out the provisions of this Act.

Such rules shall be published in the official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The subject of the regulation of labour in factories has been for a long time under discussion, and there has been much difference of opinion regarding it. The Governor General in Council, having now considered the different views that have been put forward and the various suggestions that have been made, has come to the conclusion that the legislation to be undertaken at present should be restricted to the following points, namely:—

1*st*—The determination of the age at which children may be employed;

2*nd*—The limitation of the hours of labour for children and young persons;

3*rd*—The prohibition of the employment of children and young persons on certain dangerous work;

4*th*—The fencing of dangerous machinery;

5*th*—The reporting of accidents, and,

6*th*—The appointment of Government inspectors.

The present Bill has been prepared on these lines, and will apply only to those parts of British India to which it may be extended by the Local Governments, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council.

1. This Act may be called "The Trades and Professions Tax Act, 1880."

Short title.

It extends to the whole of British India and to all servants of the Government of India within the dominions of Princes and States in alliance with Her Majesty;

Local extent.

and shall come into force on the first day of January 1880.

Commencement.

But nothing herein contained shall affect any law imposing a tax on any arts, trades, professions, callings or employments, and not hereby expressly repealed.

Saving of certain laws.

2. On and from the said date the Acts mentioned in the first schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed.

Repeal.

3. In this Act—

Interpretation-clause.

"Collector" means the Chief Officer in charge of the revenue administration of a district and in the Presidency-towns such officer as the Local Government may from time to time appoint in this behalf:

"Collector."

"Business," used with reference [illegible] means any [illegible] industry or profession, or any number of trades, dealings, arts, industries or professions, carried on by him in British India, except agriculture or the sale by a cultivator of land of the produce of such land or by a receiver of rent in kind of produce received by him as rent;

"Business."

Explanation (1). When any business is carried on by any member of a firm on behalf of such firm, such business is the business of the firm and not of such person.

Explanation (2). "Agriculture" includes any process ordinarily employed by a cultivator or a receiver of rent in kind, in order to render the produce raised or received by him fit to be taken to market.

For the purposes of this Act, each of the Presidency-towns shall be deemed to be a district.

CHAPTER II.

TAX ON BUSINESS.

Persons carrying on business to pay according to class.

4. Every person carrying on, whether on behalf of himself or any other person, any business during any portion of a year commencing on the first day of April 1880, or any subsequent month of April, shall, if he falls under any class mentioned in the second schedule hereto annexed, pay in respect of that year to the Collector of the district in which the principal place of such business is situate the amount shown in that schedule as proper to be paid by persons of such class:

Provided that when any person not previously carrying on any business begins to carry on a business on or after the first day of July in any such year, no more than the following shall be payable by him in respect of that year, that is to say—when he begins to carry on such business before the first day of October in such year, three-fourths of the said amount;

when he begins to carry on such business on or after the first day of October but before the first day of January in such year, one-half of the said amount; and when he begins to carry on such business on or after the first day of January in such year, one-fourth of the said amount.

Provided also that in any other case in which a person carries on his business for a portion only of such year, the Collector may, by an order in writing, remit a proportionate part of the said amount.

When any question arises as to what shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be the principal place of any business, the Governor General in Council, or such authority as the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, appoint in this behalf, shall decide such question, and his or its decision thereof shall be final.

Collector to determine class and prepare list.

5. The Collector shall, from time to time, determine the class to which every person liable to make any payment to him under this chapter belongs, and shall, not later than the first day of April in each year, prepare, in the language of the district, and file in his office, a list of such persons showing the business carried on by each of them, the places at which such business is carried on, the class to which such person belongs, and the amount payable by him in respect of the year beginning on such day.

Publication of list.

The list so filed shall be open to public inspection, at all reasonable times, without any payment; and such part or parts thereof as the Collector thinks fit, shall, not later than the first day of April, be published in such public place or places of all towns and villages concerned, and shall be made known to the persons affected in such other manner (if any) as the Local Government may from time to time direct.

When any question arises as to what, for the purposes of this section, shall be deemed to be the language of a district, the Local Government shall decide the same, and its decision thereof shall be final.

Persons omitted from list.

6. Any person who is, on the first day of April in any year, carrying on a business in respect of which he is liable to make any payment to the Collector under this chapter, but whose name is omitted from the list prepared under section five, shall, before the first day of May in such year,

Persons beginning business after it is prepared.

and any person not previously carrying on any business who, after the first day of April in any year, begins to carry on any business in respect of which he is liable to make any such payment, shall, within one month from his so beginning, apply to the Collector to determine the class under which he is chargeable and the amount payable by him, and the Collector shall thereupon by an order in writing determine the same.

Tax when payable.

7. Every person whose name is included in any list prepared under section five shall, before the first day of May next following the preparation of such list, and any person whose class has been determined under section six shall, within one month from such determination, pay to the Collector the amount shown in such list or determined by the Collector (as the case may be) to be payable by him, or when such amount exceeds forty rupees, half of such amount.

When only one-half of such amount is payable under the first clause of this section, the remaining half thereof shall be payable on the expiration of six months from the date on which the first half is payable, or when the first day of March next following falls within such period of six months on that day.

Receipt to be granted.

8. The Collector shall grant to every person paying any sum under section seven a receipt specifying—

(a) the date of the grant thereof:

(b) the name and business of the person to whom it is granted:

(c) the class to which he belongs:

(d) the nature of the business carried on by him:

(e) the place or places where he carries on such business:

(f) the amount so paid by him:

(g) the year or part of a year in respect of which it has been paid: and

(h) such other particulars as the Local Government may, from time to time, prescribe.

Every fact stated in such receipt shall, for the purposes of this Act, be regarded as proved, unless and until it is disproved.

Penalty for non-compliance with sections 6 and 7.

9. When any person neglects to apply to the Collector as required by section six, the Collector may, of his own motion, determine, by an order in writing, the class to which, for the purposes of this chapter, such person belongs, and such person shall be liable, by order of the Collector, to pay a penalty not exceeding thrice the amount payable by persons of such class in addition to such amount.

Any person omitting to make any payment as required by section seven shall be liable, by order of the Collector, to pay a penalty not exceeding thrice the amount of such payment in addition to the same.

Petition of objector.

10. Any person objecting to the class in which he is placed in a list prepared under section five or by an order of the Collector subsequent to the preparation of that list, and who has paid the amount shown in such list or order to be payable by him, or when such amount exceeds forty rupees half the same, may, within thirty days after the publication of the list or the date of such order (as the case may be), or within such further time as the Collector may, in each case, think fit, apply by petition to the Collector, in order to establish his right to have his name transferred to another class, or to be exempt from taxation under this chapter.

Hearing of petition.

The Collector shall fix a day for the hearing of the petition, and, on the day so fixed, or on such subsequent day as he may, from time to time, direct, shall hear the same and pass such order thereon as he thinks fit.

Assessment and collection by Municipal authorities.

11. The Local Government may, by an order in writing, direct—

(a) that any local area under the control of a Municipal authority shall be deemed to be a district for the purposes of this chapter;

(b) that such Municipal authority or an officer of such authority shall, subject to the control of the Collector, and subject to such restrictions and conditions as may be specified in such order, exercise any of the powers of a Collector under this [illegible] collecting, the whole or any portion of the tax leviable under this chapter in such local area;

(c) that for the purpose of realizing any sums due on account of such tax, such authority or officer may, in lieu of, or in addition to, any powers conferred by this Act, exercise any powers conferred by law for the realization of any Municipal tax in such local area;

(d) that all money collected by such authority on account of such tax shall be credited to the funds under the control of such authority; and

(e) that from such funds such authority shall pay in each year to the credit of the Secretary of State in Council such amount as the Local Government may estimate to be a fair composition for such sums as such authority could with due diligence realize on account of the tax during such year.

CHAPTER III.

TAX ON OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

Interpretation-clause.

12. In this chapter, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,—

"Private employer."

"Private employer" includes a company and a municipal or other public body or association:

"Pay."

"Pay" includes allowances, fees, commissions, perquisites or profits received from an employer in lieu of, or in addition to, a fixed salary; but does not include travelling, tentage, horse or sumptuary allowance, or any other allowances granted to meet specific expenditure.

Deduction in case of Government officials.

13. In the case of every person holding any paid office, employment or commission under Her Majesty, the sum of one-and-a-half per cent. of the amount of any pay due in respect of a period subsequent to the thirty-first day of March, 1880, shall, when such pay amounts to one hundred rupees per month, be deducted from such pay at the time of payment by the examiner of claims or other officer whose duty it is to make such payments, and shall be deemed to be a tax paid under this Act.

Exemption.

Nothing in this chapter applies to the pay of officers, warrant-officers, non-commissioned officers and privates of Her Majesty's army who are not in any employment which, according to the ordinary practice, is held indifferently by military persons and civilians, and whose pay does not exceed five hundred rupees per mensem.

Deduction in case of other persons holding paid employments.

14. In the case of every person holding a paid employment under any private employer, the sum of one-and-a-half per cent. of the amount of any pay due in respect of a period subsequent to the thirty-first day of March, 1880, shall, when such pay amounts to one hundred rupees per month, be deducted therefrom at the time of payment by such employer, and shall be deemed to be a tax payable under this Act.

Receipt to be given for deduction.

15. Every private employer shall, at the time of deduction, give a receipt for the same to the person from whose pay the said sum of one-and-a-half per cent. is deducted;

and any employer refusing so to give such receipt shall be liable, by order of the Collector, to a penalty of ten rupees.

Private employer primarily liable to Government for tax.

16. Every private employer shall be primarily liable to Government for the said sum in respect of every person employed by him, whether the said sum has been deducted from the pay of such person or not;

Payment to be by instalments.

and shall, on the first day of January, the first day of April, the first day of July, and the first day of October, in each year, pay to the Collector of the district in which the pay of such person is disbursed or to such other Collector as the Local Government may, from time to time, appoint in this behalf all sums then due by such employer under this section.

Liability of employer for tax due where employer becomes insolvent, &c.

17. When any private employer is declared an insolvent, or being a company or firm is wound up or dissolved, without having paid the amount required by section sixteen, the person employed shall be bound, on the demand of the Collector, to pay the same.

Subsequent deduction of tax omitted to be levied.

18. Whenever a sum to be deducted under this chapter is not deducted at the time of payment from the pay chargeable therewith, it shall be deducted from some pay subsequently payable by the same employer to the same person.

19. The Collector shall grant to every person paying any sum under this chapter a receipt specifying—

Collector to grant receipt.

(a) the date of the grant thereof;

(b) the names of the employer and the person employed;

(c) the amount paid;

(d) the period in respect of which it has been paid; and

(e) the person by whom it has been paid.

20. Any person objecting to the amount deducted from his pay under the provisions of section fourteen, or denying his liability to have any amount deducted therefrom, may, within fifteen days from the date of such deduction, or within such further time as the Collector may, in each case, think fit, apply by petition to the Collector, in order to establish his right to receive the amount deducted, or any portion thereof.

Persons objecting to amount deducted may apply by petition to the Collector.

21. The Collector shall fix a day for the hearing of the petition, which shall not be less than ten days from the date of such petition: notice shall be given to the employer of such person;

Notice to employer of petitioner.

and the Collector shall on the day so fixed, or on such subsequent day as he may, from time to time, direct, hear the petitioner and the employer if he appears, and pass such order thereon as he thinks fit.

Hearing of petition.

22. Every private employer failing to make any payment as required by section sixteen shall be liable, by order of the Collector, to pay a penalty not exceeding thrice the amount of such payment in addition to the amount thereof.

Penalty for failing to make payment under section 16.

CHAPTER IV.

SUPPLEMENTARY.

23. The Commissioner of Revenue of the Division, or such other officer as the Local Government may, from time to time, empower in this behalf, may, in his discretion, on the application of any person deeming himself aggrieved by an order passed by the Collector under section ten, twenty-one or twenty-two, or by the refusal of the Collector to grant a remission under the second proviso to section four, call for the record of the case, and pass such order thereon as he thinks fit, and such order shall be final.

Revision of order passed under section 10, 21 or 22.

24. All sums due and all penalties payable under this Act shall be recoverable as if they were arrears of land-revenue:

Recovery of sum due under Act.

But no proceedings for the recovery of any such sum or penalty shall be commenced after the expiration of three months from the last day of the year ending on the thirty-first day of March in which such sum or penalty became due or payable.

25. All or any of the powers and duties conferred and imposed by this Act on a Collector may, subject to the control and orders of the Collector of the District, be exercised and performed by an Assistant Collector or such other officer as the Local Government, from time to time, appoints in this behalf.

Powers of Collector under Act may be exercised by other officers.

The Collector may, in respect of any order passed under section ten, twenty-one or twenty-two by an officer appointed under this section, exercise the power of revision conferred on the Commissioner of a Division by section twenty-three, and the order passed in the exercise of such power shall be final.

26. Every person holding a receipt given under this Act shall produce and show the same when required so to do by an officer generally or specially empowered in writing by the Collector to make such requisition.

Receipt to be produced on demand.

But no person shall be proceeded against for neglect or refusal to produce a receipt except at the instance of the Collector.

Prosecution to be at instance of Collector.

27. Courts of Wards and Receivers and Managers appointed by any Court in British India shall be chargeable under this Act in respect of any business of which the income is officially in their possession or under their control, and in respect of any persons employed by them.

Receivers and managers chargeable.

28. When any trustee, guardian, curator, committee or agent is charged, under this Act, in such capacity, or when any Court of Wards, or Receiver or Manager appointed by any Court, is charged under this Act, every person and court so charged may, from time to time, out of the money coming to his or its possession as such trustee, guardian, curator, committee or agent, or as such Court of Wards, Receiver or Manager, retain so much as is sufficient to pay the amount charged.

Power to retain assessment paid by trustee, &c.

Every such person or court is hereby indemnified for every retention and payment made in pursuance of this Act.

29. The Collector may, for the purposes of any proceeding under section ten or section twenty-one, exercise any of the powers conferred by the Code of Civil Procedure on a Civil Court for the trial of suits:

Collector to exercise powers of a Civil Court.

Provided that the Collector shall not, in the course of any such proceeding, call for any evidence, except at the instance of the petitioner, or in order to ascertain the correctness of facts alleged by him.

30. Every person shall be legally bound to furnish to any officer exercising any of the powers of a Collector under this Act such information in writing or otherwise as such officer may require.

Obligation to furnish information to the Collector.

31. The Local Government may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council,—

Power to exempt and make rules.

(a) exempt any portion of the territories administered by such Government, or any persons or class of persons in such territories, from the operation of this Act or any provision thereof, and cancel such exemption:

(b) reduce the amount payable by any person or class of persons under this Act: and

(c) make rules consistent with this Act, (1) for regulating the manner of collecting the sums payable under this Act; (2) for providing in any case or class of cases for serving notices on persons under this Act; and (3) generally for the guidance of officers in matters connected with this Act.

32. No person who pays any tax under this Act shall, so long as he continues to pay the same, be liable to pay any instalment of road-cess or public works cess on his house under Part IV of Bengal Act X of 1871 or section seven of Bengal Act II of 1877 when such instalment falls due after the first day of April 1880.

Exemption from house-cess under Road-Cess and Public Works Acts.

and so on, the figures in columns 2 and 3 being increased by 1,00,000 and those in column 4 by 2,000 for each new class.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

1. The existing License Tax Acts are four in number. Act II of 1878, passed by the Council of the Governor General, applies to the Panjáb, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh; and Acts, more or less similar, passed by the Local Legislatures, apply to the Presidencies of Madras and Bombay, and to Bengal. These Acts it is now thought desirable to consolidate and amend, and the present Bill has been prepared for this purpose.

2. It is considered necessary to exempt from liability to this form of taxation all persons whose presumed incomes are less than Rs. 250 per annum. The effect of this change of system will be to exempt more than a million persons from taxation, and it will involve a sacrifice of an annual revenue of about £240,000.

3. With a view to making good the loss of revenue caused by this exemption of the smaller incomes now liable to the License tax, and to obtaining at the same time greater equality in the incidence of taxation, it is proposed to extend to the professional classes, and also to the wealthier officials and other persons receiving salaries, taxation at a similar rate to that imposed on the trading classes.

It is proposed to treat the trading and professional classes alike. In regard to traders, the Bill makes no important change in the system followed under the existing License Tax Acts, except that it is obviously necessary to increase the fees payable by persons with the larger incomes, as the richer traders would otherwise be taxed at a lower rate than that applied to the salaried classes. The system of classification now in force is generally retained. Some small variation in the rate at which the tax falls on different incomes is under any such system unavoidable; but the new schedule has been so framed that the difference between the highest and the lowest rates does not exceed one-half per cent., the average incidence of the tax being a little over 1½ per cent. on estimated annual earnings.

4. Separate provisions are made for the taxation of the salaried classes, whether official or non-official; as, in their case, the exact incomes being known, the rough process of classification which is desirable for traders and professional persons would obviously be neither necessary nor expedient. It is proposed, following pretty closely the precedents of Act XXI of 1867 and Act IX of 1868, to assess the salaried classes on their actual salaries; the lower limit of taxable salary being Rs. 100 per mensem or Rs. 1,200 per annum.

The rate of the tax on these classes will be 1½ per cent., and, in practice, the tax will on the average fall on all classes at the same rate.

5. Following the precedents above quoted, it is proposed to exempt from liability to the tax the military servants of the Government whose pay and allowances do not exceed Rs. 500 per mensem, or Rs. 6,000 per annum.

6. It is estimated that the extension of taxation to the professional and salaried classes in the manner proposed by the Bill will yield very nearly the same amount as that sacrificed by giving up the tax on the lower classes of traders, or about £240,000. The measure will therefore have no appreciable effect on the public resources.

7. The present opportunity has been taken to amend the law in other particulars, but they are not of sufficient importance to call for notice here.

8. As the existing Acts require the assessment lists to be made out in the beginning of January, it is desirable that the present Bill, if it is to become law, should be passed before the 31st December; but no payments will be due until after the 1st April, when the next financial year begins.

A Bill to regulate labour in Factories.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to regulate labour in Factories; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Factories Act, 1880";

Commencement.

and it shall come into force at once.

Local extent.

This section applies to the whole of British India; the other sections of this Act apply only to those parts of British India to which they may, from time to time, be extended by the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by a notification in the official Gazette.

Interpretation-clause.

2. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,—

"Factory":

"Factory" means any premises in the same occupation, situate in the same town or place, and constituting one trade-establishment in, on or within the precincts of which fifty or more persons are employed in any manual labour exercised by way of trade or for purposes of gain in or incidental to the making any article or part thereof, or the altering, repairing, ornamenting, finishing or otherwise adapting the same for sale;

and every part of a factory shall be deemed to be a factory, except any part used exclusively as a dwelling:

"child":

"child" means a child under the age of twelve years;

"young person":

"young person" means a person between the ages of twelve and sixteen years:

"mill-gearing" includes every shaft, whether upright, oblique or horizontal, and every wheel, drum or pulley, by which the motion of the first moving power is communicated to any machine.

"mill-gearing."

3. The Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint such persons as it thinks fit to be Inspectors of Factories for any place or district.

Inspectors.

Such persons shall be deemed public servants within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

Such Inspectors may enter any factory whenever any person is employed therein.

4. No person shall be employed in any factory—

Age of employment.

(a) during the first year in which this section applies to the part of British India in which such factory is situate, if he is under the age of seven years;

(b) after that year, if he is under the age of eight years.

5. No child shall be employed more than six and no young person more than eight hours in any factory in any one day.

Hours of employment.

6. No occupier of a factory shall allow any child or young person to clean any part of the mill-gearing or machinery of such factory while the same is in motion, or to work between the fixed and traversing parts of any self-acting machine while such machine is in motion by the action of the steam-engine, water-wheel or other mechanical power, as the case may be.

No child or young person to be engaged in certain dangerous work.

7. Every fly-wheel directly connected with a steam-engine or water-wheel or other mechanical power in any part of a factory, and every part of a steam-engine or water-wheel, and every hoist or teagle or other part of the machinery or mill-gearing of a factory which may, in the opinion of the local Inspector of Factories, be dangerous if left unfenced, and near which any child or young person is liable to pass or be employed, shall, while the same is in motion, if such Inspector so requires, be kept by the occupier of such factory securely fenced.

Fencing.

8. Every occupier of a factory, or, in his absence, his principal agent in the management of such factory, shall send such notice of injuries occurring to persons therein to such authorities and within such time as the Local Government may, from time to time, by rule direct.

Notice to be given of injuries to persons in factories.

9. Any person who, in breach of this Act,—

Penalties.

(a) employs any child or young person in any factory;

(b) allows any child or young person to perform the work forbidden by, or to work in contravention of, section six;

(c) neglects to securely fence any machinery or mill-gearing in any factory; or

(d) neglects to give notice of any injury,

shall be liable to a fine not exceeding two hundred rupees:

Provided that no such person shall be liable to more than one penalty for any one description of offence committed on the same day:

Only one penalty for same kind of offence on one day.

Provided also that nothing in this Act shall affect the right of any person injured by any breach of the provisions of this Act to obtain compensation therefor according to law.

Right to compensation saved.

10. Every occupier of a factory shall be deemed primarily liable for any breach therein of the provisions of this Act; but he may discharge himself from liability by proof to the satisfaction of the local Inspector of Factories, before prosecution therefor, that such breach was committed by some other person without his knowledge or consent; and the person committing such breach shall be liable therefor.

Occupier primarily liable for breaches of provisions of Act.

11. The Local Government may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Act to provide, with respect to factories under this Act, for—

Local Government may make rules.

(a) the fencing of machinery;

(b) inspection;

(c) the notices to be given by occupiers or agents of factories of injuries occurring therein;

(d) otherwise carrying out the provisions of this Act.

Such rules shall be published in the official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The subject of the regulation of labour in factories has been for a long time under discussion, and there has been much difference of opinion regarding it. The Governor General in Council, having now considered the different views that have been put forward and the various suggestions that have been made, has come to the conclusion that the legislation to be undertaken at present should be restricted to the following points, namely:—

1*st*—The determination of the age at which children may be employed;

2*nd*—The limitation of the hours of labour for children and young persons;

3*rd*—The prohibition of the employment of children and young persons on certain dangerous work;

4*th*—The fencing of dangerous machinery;

5*th*—The reporting of accidents, and,

6*th*—The appointment of Government inspectors.

The present Bill has been prepared on these lines, and will apply only to those parts of British India to which it may be extended by the Local Governments, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council.

THE SECOND SCHEDULE.—Tax on Business.

A Bill to impose a Tax on Trades and Professions.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the Acts at present in force for the licensing of trades, dealings and industries in certain parts of British India, and to extend the operation of the said Acts in manner hereinafter appearing: It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

1. This Act may be called "The Trades and Professions Tax Act, 1880."

Short title.

It extends to the whole of British India and to all servants of the Government of India within the dominions of Princes and States in alliance with Her Majesty;

Local extent.

and shall come into force on the first day of January 1880.

Commencement.

But nothing herein contained shall affect any law imposing a tax on any arts, trades, professions, callings or employments, and not hereby expressly repealed.

Saving of certain laws.

2. On and from the said date the Acts mentioned in the first schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed.

Repeal.

3. In this Act—

Interpretation-clause.

"Collector" means the Chief Officer in charge of the revenue administration of a district and in the Presidency-towns such officer as the Local Government may from time to time appoint in this behalf:

"Collector."

"Business," used with reference to any person, means any trade, dealing, art, industry or profession, or any number of trades, dealings, arts, industries or professions, carried on by him in British India, except agriculture or the sale by a cultivator of land of the produce of such land or by a receiver of rent in kind of produce received by him as rent;

"Business."

Explanation (1). When any business is carried on by any member of a firm on behalf of such firm, such business is the business of the firm and not of such person.

Explanation (2). "Agriculture" includes any process ordinarily employed by a cultivator or a receiver of rent in kind, in order to render the produce raised or received by him fit to be taken to market.

For the purposes of this Act, each of the Presidency-towns shall be deemed to be a district.

CHAPTER II.

TAX ON BUSINESS.

Persons carrying on business to pay according to class.

4. Every person carrying on, whether on behalf of himself or any other person, any business during any portion of a year commencing on the first day of April 1880, or any subsequent month of April, shall, if he falls under any class mentioned in the second schedule hereto annexed, pay in respect of that year to the Collector of the district in which the principal place of such business is situate the amount shown in that schedule as proper to be paid by persons of such class:

Provided that when any person not previously carrying on any business begins to carry on a business on or after the first day of July in any such year, no more than the following shall be payable by him in respect of that year, that is to say—when he begins to carry on such business before the first day of October in such year, three-fourths of the said amount;

when he begins to carry on such business on or after the first day of October but before the first day of January in such year, one-half of the said amount; and when he begins to carry on such business on or after the first day of January in such year, one-fourth of the said amount.

Provided also that in any other case in which a person carries on his business for a portion only of such year, the Collector may, by an order in writing, remit a proportionate part of the said amount.

When any question arises as to what shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be the principal place of any business, the Governor General in Council, or such authority as the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, appoint in this behalf, shall decide such question, and his or its decision thereof shall be final.

Collector to determine class and prepare list.

5. The Collector shall, from time to time, determine the class to which every person liable to make any payment to him under this chapter belongs, and shall, not later than the first day of April in each year, prepare, in the language of the district, and file in his office, a list of such persons showing the business carried on by each of them, the places at which such business is carried on, the class to which such person belongs, and the amount payable by him in respect of the year beginning on such day.

Publication of list.

The list so filed shall be open to public inspection, at all reasonable times, without any payment; and such part or parts thereof as the Collector thinks fit shall, not later than the first day of April, be published in such public place or places of all towns and villages concerned, and shall be made known to the persons affected in such other manner (if any) as the Local Government may from time to time direct.

When any question arises as to what, for the purposes of this section, shall be deemed to be the language of a district, the Local Government shall decide the same, and its decision thereof shall be final.

Persons omitted from list.

6. Any person who is, on the first day of April in any year, carrying on a business in respect of which he is liable to make any payment to the Collector under this chapter, but whose name is omitted from the list prepared under section five, shall, before the first day of May in such year,

Persons beginning business after it is prepared.

and any person not previously carrying on any business who, after the first day of April in any year, begins to carry on any business in respect of which he is liable to make any such payment, shall, within one month from his so beginning, apply to the Collector to determine the class under which he is chargeable and the amount payable by him, and the Collector shall thereupon by an order in writing determine the same.

Tax when payable.

7. Every person whose name is included in any list prepared under section five shall, before the first day of May next following the preparation of such list, and any person whose class has been determined under section six shall, within one month from such determination, pay to the Collector the amount shown in such list or determined by the Collector (as the case may be) to be payable by him, or when such amount exceeds forty rupees, half of such amount.

When only one-half of such amount is payable under the first clause of this section, the remaining half thereof shall be payable on the expiration of six months from the date on which the first half is payable, or when the first day of March next following falls within such period of six months on that day.

Receipt to be granted.

8. The Collector shall grant to every person paying any sum under section seven a receipt specifying—

(a) the date of the grant thereof:

(b) the name and business of the person to whom it is granted:

(c) the class to which he belongs:

(d) the nature of the business carried on by him:

(e) the place or places where he carries on such business:

(f) the amount so paid by him:

(g) the year or part of a year in respect of which it has been paid: and

(h) such other particulars as the Local Government may, from time to time, prescribe.

Every fact stated in such receipt shall, for the purposes of this Act, be regarded as proved, unless and until it is disproved.

Penalty for non-compliance with sections 6 and 7.

9. When any person neglects to apply to the Collector as required by section six, the Collector may, of his own motion, determine, by an order in writing, the class to which, for the purposes of this chapter, such person shall belong; and such person shall be liable, by order of the Collector, to pay a penalty not exceeding thrice the amount payable by persons of such class in addition to such amount.

Any person omitting to make any payment as required by section seven shall be liable, by order of the Collector, to pay a penalty not exceeding thrice the amount of such payment in addition to the same.

Petition of objector.

10. Any person objecting to the class in which he is placed in a list prepared under section five or by an order of the Collector subsequent to the preparation of that list, and who has paid the amount shown in such list or order to be payable by him, or when such amount exceeds forty rupees half the same, may, within thirty days after the publication of the list or the date of such order (as the case may be), or within such further time as the Collector may, in each case, think fit, apply by petition to the Collector, in order to establish his right to have his name transferred to another class, or to be exempt from taxation under this chapter.

Hearing of petition.

The Collector shall fix a day for the hearing of the petition, and, on the day so fixed, or on such subsequent day as he may, from time to time, direct, shall hear the same and pass such order thereon as he thinks fit.

Assessment and collection by Municipal authorities.

11. The Local Government may, by an order in writing, direct—

(a) that any local area under the control of a Municipal authority shall be deemed to be a district for the purposes of this chapter;

and that the Municipal authority or an officer of such authority shall, subject to the control of the Collector, and subject to such restrictions and conditions as may be specified in such order, exercise any of the powers of a Collector under this Act for the purpose of assessing or collecting, or both assessing and collecting, the whole or any portion of the tax leviable under this chapter in such local area;

(c) that for the purpose of realizing any sums due on account of such tax, such authority or officer may, in lieu of, or in addition to, any powers conferred by this Act, exercise any powers conferred by law for the realization of any Municipal tax in such local area;

(d) that all money collected by such authority on account of such tax shall be credited to the funds under the control of such authority; and

(e) that from such funds such authority shall [illegible] to the credit of the Secretary of [illegible] such amount as the Local Government may estimate to be a fair composition for the same as such authority could with due diligence realize on account of the tax during such year.

CHAPTER III.

TAX ON OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

12. In this chapter, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,—

"Private employer" includes a company and a municipal or other public body or association:

"Pay."

"Pay" includes allowances, fees, commissions, perquisites or profits received from an employer in lieu of, or in addition to, a fixed salary; but does not include travelling, tentage, horse or sumptuary allowance, or any other allowances granted to meet specific expenditure.

Deduction in case of Government officials.

13. In the case of every person holding any paid office, employment or commission under Her Majesty, the sum of one-and-a-half per cent. of the amount of any pay due in respect of a period subsequent to the thirty-first day of March, 1880, shall, when such pay amounts to one hundred rupees per month, be deducted from such pay at the time of payment by the examiner of claims or other officer whose duty it is to make such payments, and shall be deemed to be a tax paid under this Act.

Exemption.

Nothing in this chapter applies to the pay of officers, warrant-officers, non-commissioned officers and privates of Her Majesty's army who are not in any employment which, according to the ordinary practice, is held indifferently by military persons and civilians, and whose pay does not exceed five hundred rupees per mensem.

Deduction in case of other persons holding paid employments.

14. In the case of every person holding a paid employment under any private employer, the sum of one-and-a-half per cent. of the amount of any pay due in respect of a period subsequent to the thirty-first day of March, 1880, shall, when such pay amounts to one hundred rupees per month, be deducted therefrom at the time of payment by [illegible] and shall be deemed to be a tax paid under this Act.

Receipt to be given for deduction.

15. Every private employer shall, at the time of deduction, give a receipt for the same to the person from whose pay the said sum of one-and-a-half per cent. is deducted;

and any employer refusing so to give such receipt shall be liable, by order of the Collector, to a penalty of ten rupees.

Private employer primarily liable to Government for tax.

16. Every private employer shall be primarily liable to Government for the said sum in respect of every person employed by him, whether the said sum has been deducted from the pay of such person or not;

Payment to be by instalments.

and shall, on the first day of January, the first day of April, the first day of July, and the first day of October, in each year, pay to the Collector of the district in which the pay of such person is disbursed or to such other Collector as the Local Government may, from time to time, appoint in this behalf all sums then due by such employer under this section.

Liability of employer for tax due when employer becomes insolvent, &c.

17. When any private employer is [illegible] an insolvent, or being a company or firm is wound up or dissolved, without having paid the amount required by section sixteen, the person employed shall be bound, on the demand of the Collector, to pay the same.

5 O

18. Whenever a sum to be deducted under this chapter is not deducted at the time of payment from the pay chargeable therewith, it shall be deducted from some pay subsequently payable by the same employer to the same person.

Subsequent deduction of tax omitted to be levied.

19. The Collector shall grant to every person paying any sum under this chapter a receipt specifying—

Collector to grant receipt.

(a) the date of the grant thereof;

(b) the names of the employer and the person employed;

(c) the amount paid;

(d) the period in respect of which it has been paid; and

(e) the person by whom it has been paid.

20. Any person objecting to the amount deducted from his pay under the provisions of section fourteen, or denying his liability to have any amount deducted therefrom, may, within fifteen days from the date of such deduction, or within such further time as the Collector may, in each case, think fit, apply by petition to the Collector, in order to establish his right to receive the amount deducted, or any portion thereof.

Persons objecting to amount deducted may apply by petition to the Collector.

21. The Collector shall fix a day for the hearing of the petition, which shall not be less than ten days from the date of such petition; notice shall be given to the employer of such person;

Notice to employer of petitioner.

and the Collector shall on the day so fixed, or on such subsequent day as he may, from time to time, direct, hear the petitioner and the employer if he appears, and pass such order thereon as he thinks fit.

Hearing of petition.

22. Every private employer failing to make any payment as required by section sixteen shall be liable, by order of the Collector, to pay a penalty not exceeding three times the amount of such payment in addition to the amount thereof.

Penalty for failing to make payment under section 16.

CHAPTER IV.

SUPPLEMENTARY.

23. The Commissioner of Revenue of the Division, or such other officer as the Local Government may, from time to time, empower in this behalf, may, in his discretion, on the application of any person deeming himself aggrieved by an order passed by the Collector under section ten, twenty-one or twenty-two, or by the refusal of the Collector to grant a remission under the second proviso to section four, call for the record of the case, and pass such order thereon as he thinks fit, and such order shall be final.

Revision of order passed under section 10, 21 or 22.

24. All sums due and all penalties payable under this Act shall be recoverable as if they were arrears of land-revenue:

Recovery of sum due under Act.

but no proceedings for the recovery of any such sum or penalty shall be commenced after the expiration of three months from the last day of the year ending on the thirty-first day of March in which such sum or penalty became due or payable.

25. All or any of the powers and duties conferred and imposed by this Act on a Collector may, subject to the control and orders of the Collector of the District, be exercised and performed by an Assistant Collector or such other officer as the Local Government, from time to time, appoints in this behalf.

Powers of Collector under Act may be exercised by other officers.

The Collector may, in respect of any order passed under section ten, twenty-one or twenty-two by an officer appointed under this section, exercise the power of revision conferred on the Commissioner of a Division by section twenty-three, and the order passed in the exercise of such power shall be final.

26. Every person holding a receipt given under this Act shall produce and show the same when required so to do by an officer generally or specially empowered in writing by the Collector to make such requisition.

Receipt to be produced on demand.

But no person shall be proceeded against for neglect or refusal to produce a receipt except at the instance of the Collector.

Prosecution to be at instance of Collector.

27. Courts of Wards and Receivers and Managers appointed by any Court in British India shall be chargeable under this Act in respect of any business of which the income is officially in their possession or under their control, and in respect of any persons employed by them.

Receivers and managers chargeable.

28. When any trustee, guardian, curator, committee or agent is charged, under this Act, in such capacity, or when any Court of Wards, or Receiver or Manager appointed by any Court, is charged under this Act, every person and court so charged may, from time to time, out of the money coming to his or its possession as such trustee, guardian, curator, committee or agent, or as such Court of Wards, Receiver or Manager, retain so much as is sufficient to pay the amount charged.

Power to retain assessment paid by trustee, &c.

Every such person or court is hereby indemnified for every retention and payment made in pursuance of this Act.

29. The Collector may, for the purposes of any proceeding under section ten or section twenty-one, exercise any of the powers conferred by the Code of Civil Procedure on a Civil Court for the trial of suits:

Collector to exercise powers of a Civil Court.

Provided that the Collector shall not, in the course of any such proceeding, call for any evidence, except at the instance of the petitioner, or in order to ascertain the correctness of facts alleged by him.

30. Every person shall be legally bound to furnish to any officer exercising any of the powers of a Collector under this Act such information in writing or otherwise as such officer may require.

Obligation to furnish information to the Collector.

31. The Local Government may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council,—

Power to exempt and make rules.

(a) exempt any portion of the territories administered by such Government, or any persons or class of persons in such territories, from the operation of this Act or any provision thereof, and cancel such exemption:

(b) reduce the amount payable by any person or class of persons under this Act: and

(c) make rules consistent with this Act, (1) for regulating the manner of collecting the sums payable under this Act; (2) for providing in any case or class of cases for serving notices on persons under this Act; and (3) generally for the guidance of officers in matters connected with this Act.

32. No person who pays any tax under this Act shall, so long as he continues to pay the same, be liable to pay any instalment of road-cess or public works cess on his house under Part IV of Bengal Act X of 1871 or section seven of Bengal Act II of 1877 when such instalment falls due after the first day of April 1880.

Exemption from house-cess under Road-Cess and Public Works Acts.

and so on, the figures in columns 2 and 3 being increased by 1,00,000 and those in column 4 by 2,000 for each new class.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

1. The existing License Tax Acts are four in number. Act II of 1878, passed by the Council of the Governor General, applies to the Panjáb, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh; and Acts, more or less similar, passed by the Local Legisfatures, apply to the Presidencies of Madras and Bombay, and to Bengal. These Acts it is now thought desirable to consolidate and amend, and the present Bill has been prepared for this purpose.

2. It is proposed to exempt from liability to this form of taxation all persons whose presumed incomes are less than Rs. 250 per annum. The effect of this change of system will be to exempt more than a million persons from taxation, and it will involve a sacrifice of an annual revenue of about £240,000.

3. With a view to making good the loss of revenue caused by this exemption of the smaller incomes now liable to the License tax, and to obtaining at the same time greater equality in the incidence of taxation, it is proposed to extend to the professional classes, and also to the wealthier officials and other persons receiving salaries, taxation at a similar rate to that imposed on the trading classes.

It is proposed to treat the trading and professional classes alike. In regard to traders, the Bill makes no important change in the system followed under the existing License Tax Acts, except that it is obviously necessary to increase the fees payable by persons with the larger incomes, as the richer traders would otherwise be taxed at a lower rate than that applied to the salaried classes. The system of classification now in force is generally retained. Some small variation in the rate at which the tax falls on different incomes is under any such system unavoidable; but the new schedule has been so framed that the difference between the highest and the lowest rates does not exceed one-half per cent., the average incidence of the tax being a little over 1½ per cent. on estimated annual earnings.

4. Separate provisions are made for the taxation of the salaried classes, whether official or non-official; as, in their case, the exact incomes being known, the rough process of classification which is desirable for traders and professional persons would obviously be neither necessary nor expedient. It is proposed, following pretty closely the precedents of Act XXI of 1867 and Act IX of 1868, to assess the salaried classes on their actual salaries; the lower limit of taxable salary being Rs. 100 per mensem or Rs. 1,200 per annum.

The rate of the tax on these classes will be 1½ per cent., and, in practice, the tax will on the average fall on all classes at the same rate.

5. Following the precedents above quoted, it is proposed to exempt from liability to the tax the military servants of the Government whose pay and allowances do not exceed Rs. 500 per mensem, or Rs. 6,000 per annum.

6. It is estimated that the extension of taxation to the professional and salaried classes in the manner proposed by the Bill will yield very nearly the same amount as that sacrificed by giving up the tax on the lower classes of traders, or about £240,000. The measure will, therefore, have no appreciable effect on the public revenues.

7. The present opportunity has been taken to amend the law in other particulars, but they are not of sufficient importance to call for notice here.

8. As the existing Acts require the assessment lists to be made out in the beginning of January, it is desirable that the present Bill, if it is to become law, should be passed before the 31st December; but no payments will be due until after the 1st April, when the next financial year begins.

THE FIRST SCHEDULE.—Acts repealed.

THE SECOND SCHEDULE.—Tax on Business.

A Bill to impose a Tax on Trades and Professions.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the Acts at present in force for the licensing of trades, dealings and industries in certain parts of British India, and to extend the operation of the said Acts in manner hereinafter appearing: It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

1. This Act may be called "The Trades and Professions Tax Act, 1880."

Short title.

It extends to the whole of British India and to all servants of the Government of India within the dominions of Princes and States in alliance with Her Majesty;

Local extent.

and shall come into force on the first day of January 1880.

Commencement.

But nothing herein contained shall affect any law imposing a tax on any arts, trades, professions, callings or employments, and not hereby expressly repealed.

Saving of certain laws.

2. On and from the said date the Acts mentioned in the first schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed.

Repeal.

Interpretation-clause.

3. In this Act—

"Collector" means the Chief Officer in charge of the revenue administration of a district and in the Presidency-towns such officer as the Local Government may from time to time appoint in this behalf:

"Collector."

"Business," used with reference to any person, means any trade, dealing, art, industry or profession, or any number of trades, dealings, arts, industries or professions, carried on by him in British India, except agriculture or the sale by a cultivator of land of the produce of such land or by a receiver of rent in kind of produce received by him as rent:

"Business."

Explanation (1). When any business is carried on by any member of a firm on behalf of such firm, such business is the business of the firm and not of such person.

Explanation (2). "Agriculture" includes any process ordinarily employed by a cultivator or a receiver of rent in kind, in order to render the produce raised or received by him fit to be taken to market.

For the purposes of this Act, each of the Presidency-towns shall be deemed to be a district.

CHAPTER II.

TAX ON BUSINESS.

4. Every person carrying on, whether on behalf of himself or any other person, any business during any portion of a year commencing on the first day of April 1880, or any subsequent month of April, shall, if he falls under any class mentioned in the second schedule hereto annexed, pay in respect of that year to the Collector of the district in which the principal place of such business is situate the amount shown in that schedule as proper to be paid by persons of such class:

Persons carrying on business to pay according to class.

Provided that when any person not previously carrying on any business begins to carry on a business on or after the first day of July in any such year, no more than the following shall be payable by him in respect of that year, that is to say—

when he begins to carry on such business before the first day of October in such year, three-fourths of the said amount;

when he begins to carry on such business on or after the first day of October but before the first day of January in such year, one-half of the said amount; and when he begins to carry on such business on or after the first day of January in such year, one-fourth of the said amount.

Provided also that in any other case in which a person carries on his business for a portion only of such year, the Collector may, by an order in writing, remit a proportionate part of the said amount.

When any question arises as to what shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be the principal place of any business, the Governor General in Council, or such authority as the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, appoint in this behalf, shall decide such question, and his or its decision thereof shall be final.

5. The Collector shall, from time to time, determine the class to which every person liable to make any payment to him under this chapter belongs, and shall, not later than the first day of April in each year, prepare, in the language of the district, and file in his office, a list of such persons showing the business carried on by each of them, the places at which such business is carried on, the class to which such person belongs, and the amount payable by him in respect of the year beginning on such day.

Collector to determine class and prepare list.

The list so filed shall be open to public inspection, at all reasonable times, without any payment; and such part or parts thereof as the Collector thinks fit shall, not later than the first day of April, be published in such public place or places of all towns and villages concerned, and shall be made known to the persons affected in such other manner (if any) as the Local Government may from time to time direct.

Publication of list.

When any question arises as to what, for the purposes of this section, shall be deemed to be the language of a district, the Local Government shall decide the same, and its decision thereof shall be final.

6. Any person who is, on the first day of April in any year, carrying on a business in respect of which he is liable to make any payment to the Collector under this chapter, but whose name is omitted from the list prepared under section five, shall, before the first day of May in such year,

Persons omitted from list.

and any person not previously carrying on any business who, after the first day of April in any year, begins to carry on any business in respect of which he is liable to make any such payment, shall, within one month from his so beginning,

Persons beginning business after it is prepared.

apply to the Collector to determine the class under which he is chargeable and the amount payable by him, and the Collector shall thereupon by an order in writing determine the same.

7. Every person whose name is included in any list prepared under section five shall, before the first day of May next following the preparation of such list, and any person whose class has been determined under section six shall, within one month from such determination, pay to the Collector the amount shown in such list or determined by the Collector (as the case may be) to be payable by him, or when such amount exceeds forty rupees, half of such amount.

Tax when payable.

When only one-half of such amount is payable under the first clause of this section, the remaining half thereof shall be payable on the expiration of six months from the date on which the first half is payable, or when the first day of March next following falls within such period of six months on that day.

8. The Collector shall grant to every person paying any sum under section seven a receipt specifying—

Receipt to be granted.

(a) the date of the grant thereof:

(b) the name and business of the person to whom it is granted:

(c) the class to which he belongs:

(d) the nature of the business carried on by him:

(e) the place or places where he carries on such business:

(f) the amount so paid by him:

(g) the year or part of a year in respect of which it has been paid: and

(h) such other particulars as the Local Government may, from time to time, prescribe.

Every fact stated in such receipt shall, for the purposes of this Act, be regarded as proved, unless and until it is disproved.

9. When any person neglects to apply to the Collector as required by section six, the Collector may, of his own motion, determine, by an order in writing, the class to which, for the purposes of this chapter, such person shall belong; and such person shall be liable, by order of the Collector, to pay a penalty not exceeding thrice the amount payable by persons of such class in addition to such amount.

Penalty for non-compliance with sections 6 and 7.

Any person omitting to make any payment as required by section seven shall be liable, by order of the Collector, to pay a penalty not exceeding thrice the amount of such payment in addition to the same.

10. Any person objecting to the class in which he is placed in a list prepared under section five or by an order of the Collector subsequent to the preparation of that list, and who has paid the amount shown in such list or order to be payable by him, or when such amount exceeds forty rupees half the same, may, within thirty days after the publication of the list or the date of such order (as the case may be), or within such further time as the Collector may, in each case, think fit, apply by petition to the Collector, in order to establish his right to have his name transferred to another class, or to be exempt from taxation under this chapter.

Petition of objector.

The Collector shall fix a day for the hearing of the petition, and, on the day so fixed, or on such subsequent day as he may, from time to time, direct, shall hear the same and pass such order thereon as he thinks fit.

Hearing of petition.

11. The Local Government may, by an order in writing, direct—

Assessment and collection by Municipal authorities.

(a) that any local area under the control of a Municipal authority shall be deemed to be a district for the purposes of this chapter;

(b) that such Municipal authority or an officer of such authority shall, subject to the control of the Collector, and subject to such restrictions and conditions as may be specified in such order, exercise any of the powers of a Collector under this Act for the purpose of assessing or collecting, or both assessing and collecting, the whole or any portion of the tax leviable under this chapter in such local area;

(c) that for the purpose of realizing any sums due on account of such tax, such authority or officer may, in lieu of, or in addition to, any powers conferred by this Act, exercise any powers conferred by law for the realization of any Municipal tax in such local area;

(d) that all money collected by such authority on account of such tax shall be credited to the funds under the control of such authority; and

(e) that from such funds such authority shall pay in each year to the credit of the Secretary of State in Council such amount as the Local Government may estimate to be a fair composition for such sums as such authority could with due diligence realize on account of the tax during such year.

CHAPTER III.

TAX ON OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

12. In this chapter, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,—

Interpretation-clause.

"Private employer" includes a company and a municipal or other public body or association:

"Private employer."

"Pay" includes allowances, fees, commissions, perquisites or profits received from an employer in lieu of, or in addition to, a fixed salary; but does not include travelling, tentage, horse or sumptuary allowance, or any other allowances granted to meet specific expenditure.

"Pay."

13. In the case of every person holding any paid office, employment or commission under Her Majesty, the sum of one-and-a-half per cent. of the amount of any pay due in respect of a period subsequent to the thirty-first day of March, 1880, shall, when such pay amounts to one hundred rupees per month, be deducted from such pay at the time of payment by the examiner of claims or other officer whose duty it is to make such payments, and shall be deemed to be a tax paid under this Act.

Deduction in case of Government officials.

Nothing in this chapter applies to the pay of officers, warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and privates of Her Majesty's army when employed in any employment which, according to ordinary practice, is held indifferently by military persons and civilians, and whose pay does not exceed five hundred rupees per mensem.

Exemption.

14. In the case of every person holding a paid employment under any private employer, the sum of one-and-a-half per cent. of the amount of any pay due in respect of a period subsequent to the thirty-first day of March, 1880, shall, when such pay amounts to one hundred rupees per month, be deducted therefrom at the time of payment by such employer, and shall be deemed to be a tax payable under this Act.

Deduction in case of other persons holding paid employments.

15. Every private employer shall, at the time of deduction, give a receipt for the same to the person from whose pay the said sum of one-and-a-half per cent. is deducted;

Receipt to be given for deduction.

and any employer refusing so to give such receipt shall be liable, by order of the Collector, to a penalty of ten rupees.

16. Every private employer shall be primarily liable to Government for the said sum in respect of every person employed by him, whether the said sum has been deducted from the pay of such person or not;

Private employer primarily liable to Government for tax.

and shall, on the first day of January, the first day of April, the first day of July, and the first day of October, in each year, pay to the Collector of the district in which the pay of such person is disbursed or to such other Collector as the Local Government may, from time to time, appoint in this behalf all sums then due by such employer under this section.

Payment to be by instalments.

17. When any private employer is declared an insolvent, or being a company or firm is wound up or dissolved, without having paid the amount required by section sixteen, the person employed shall be bound, on the demand of the Collector, to pay the same.

Liability of employee for tax due where employer becomes insolvent, &c.

18. Whenever a sum to be deducted under this chapter is not deducted at the time of payment from the pay chargeable therewith, it shall be deducted from some pay subsequently payable by the same employer to the same person.

Subsequent deduction of tax omitted to be levied.

19. The Collector shall grant to every person paying any sum under this chapter a receipt specifying—

Collector to grant receipt.

(a) the date of the grant thereof;

(b) the names of the employer and the person employed;

(c) the amount paid;

(d) the period in respect of which it has been paid; and

(e) the person by whom it has been paid.

20. Any person objecting to the amount deducted from his pay under the provisions of section fourteen, or denying his liability to have any amount deducted therefrom, may, within fifteen days from the date of such deduction, or within such further time as the Collector may, in each case, think fit, apply by petition to the Collector, in order to establish his right to receive the amount deducted, or any portion thereof.

Persons objecting to amount deducted may apply by petition to the Collector.

21. The Collector shall fix a day for the hearing of the petition, which shall not be less than ten days from the date of such petition: notice shall be given to the employer of such person;

Notice to employer of petitioner.

and the Collector shall on the day so fixed, or on such subsequent day as he may, from time to time, direct, hear the petitioner and the employer if he appears, and pass such order thereon as he thinks fit.

Hearing of petition.

22. Every private employer failing to make any payment as required by section sixteen shall be liable, by order of the Collector, to pay a penalty not exceeding thrice the amount of such payment in addition to the amount thereof.

Penalty for failing to make payment under section 16.

CHAPTER IV.

SUPPLEMENTARY.

23. The Commissioner of Revenue of the Division, or such other officer as the Local Government may, from time to time, empower in this behalf, may, in his discretion, on the application of any person deeming himself aggrieved by an order passed by the Collector under section ten, twenty-one or twenty-two, or by the refusal of the Collector to grant a remission under the second proviso to section four, call for the record of the case, and pass such order thereon as he thinks fit, and such order shall be final.

Revision of order passed under section 10, 21 or 22.

24. All sums due and all penalties payable under this Act shall be recoverable as if they were arrears of land-revenue:

Recovery of sum due under Act.

But no proceedings for the recovery of any such sum or penalty shall be commenced after the expiration of three months from the last day of the year ending on the thirty-first day of March in which such sum or penalty became due or payable.

25. All or any of the powers and duties conferred and imposed by this Act on a Collector may, subject to the control and orders of the Collector of the District, be exercised and performed by an Assistant Collector or such other officer as the Local Government, from time to time, appoints in this behalf.

Powers of Collector under Act may be exercised by other officers.

The Collector may, in respect of any order passed under section ten, twenty-one or twenty-two by an officer appointed under this section, exercise the power of revision conferred on the Commissioner of a Division by section twenty-three, and the order passed in the exercise of such power shall be final.

26. Every person holding a receipt given under this Act shall produce and show the same when required so to do by an officer generally or specially empowered in writing by the Collector to make such requisition.

Receipt to be produced on demand.

But no person shall be proceeded against for neglect or refusal to produce a receipt except at the instance of the Collector.

Prosecution to be at instance of Collector.

27. Courts of Wards and Receivers and Managers appointed by any Court in British India shall be chargeable under this Act

Receivers and managers chargeable.

in respect of any business of which the income is officially in their possession or under their control, and in respect of any persons employed by them.

Power to retain assessment paid by trustee, &c.

28. When any trustee, guardian, curator, committee or agent is charged under this Act, in such capacity, or when any Court of Wards, or Receiver or Manager appointed by any Court, is charged under this Act, every person and court so charged may, from time to time, out of the money coming to his or its possession as such trustee, guardian, curator, committee or agent, or as such Court of Wards, Receiver or Manager, retain so much as is sufficient to pay the amount charged.

Every such person or court is hereby indemnified for every retention and payment made in pursuance of this Act.

Collector to exercise powers of a Civil Court.

29. The Collector may, for the purposes of any proceeding under section ten or section twenty-one, exercise any of the powers conferred by the Code of Civil Procedure on a Civil Court for the trial of suits:

Provided that the Collector shall not, in the course of any such proceeding, call for any evidence, except at the instance of the petitioner, or in order to ascertain the correctness of facts alleged by him.

Obligation to furnish information to the Collector.

30. Every person shall be legally bound to furnish to any officer exercising any of the powers of a Collector under this Act such information in writing or otherwise as such officer may require.

Power to exempt and make rules.

31. The Local Government may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council,—

(a) exempt any portion of the territories administered by such Government, or any persons or class of persons in such territories, from the operation of this Act or any provision thereof, and cancel such exemption:

(b) reduce the amount payable by any person or class of persons under this Act: and

(c) make rules consistent with this Act, (1) for regulating the manner of collecting the sums payable under this Act; (2) for providing in any case or class of cases for serving notices on persons under this Act; and (3) generally for the guidance of officers in matters connected with this Act.

Exemption from house-cess under Road-Cess and Public Works Acts.

32. No person who pays any tax under this Act shall, so long as he continues to pay the same, be liable to pay any instalment of road-cess or public works cess on his house under Part IV of Bengal Act X of 1871 or section seven of Bengal Act II of 1877 when such instalment falls due after the first day of April 1880.

and so on, the figures in columns 2 and 3 being increased by 1,00,000 and those in column 4 by 2,000 for each new class.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

1. The existing License Tax Acts are four in number. Act II of 1878, passed by the Council of the Governor General, applies to the Panjáb, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh; and Acts, more or less similar, passed by the Local Legislatures, apply to the Presidencies of Madras and Bombay, and to Bengal. These Acts it is now thought desirable to consolidate and amend, and the present Bill has been prepared for this purpose.

2. It is considered necessary to exempt from liability to this form of taxation all persons whose presumed incomes are less than Rs. 250 per annum. The effect of this change of system will be to exempt more than a million persons from taxation, and it will involve a sacrifice of an annual revenue of about £240,000.

3. With a view to making good the loss of revenue caused by this exemption of the smaller incomes now liable to the License tax, and to obtaining at the same time greater equality in the incidence of taxation, it is proposed to extend to the professional classes, and also to the wealthier officials and other persons receiving salaries, taxation at a similar rate to that imposed on the trading classes.

It is proposed to treat the trading and professional classes alike. In regard to traders, the Bill makes no important change in the system followed under the existing License Tax Acts, except that it is obviously necessary to increase the fees payable by persons with the larger incomes, as the richer traders would otherwise be taxed at a lower rate than that applied to the salaried classes. The system of classification now in force is generally retained. Some small variation in the rate at which the tax falls on different incomes is under any such system unavoidable; but the new schedule has been so framed that the difference between the highest and the lowest rates does not exceed one-half per cent., the average incidence of the tax being a little over 1½ per cent. on estimated annual earnings.

4. Separate provisions are made for the taxation of the salaried classes, whether official or non-official; as, in their case, the exact incomes being known, the rough process of classification which is desirable for traders and professional persons would obviously be neither necessary nor expedient. It is proposed, following pretty closely the precedents of Act XXI of 1867 and Act IX of 1868, to assess the salaried classes on their actual salaries; the lower limit of taxable salary being Rs. 100 per mensem or Rs. 1,200 per annum.

The rate of the tax on these classes will be 1½ per cent., and, in practice, the tax will on the average fall on all classes at the same rate.

5. Following the precedents above quoted, it is proposed to exempt from liability to the tax the military servants of the Government whose pay and allowances do not exceed Rs. 500 per mensem, or Rs. 6,000 per annum.

6. It is estimated that the extension of taxation to the professional and salaried classes in the manner proposed by the Bill will yield very nearly the same amount as that sacrificed by giving up the tax on the lower classes of traders, or about £240,000. The measure will, therefore, have no appreciable effect on the public revenues.

7. The present opportunity has been taken to amend the law in other particulars, but they are not of sufficient importance to call for notice here.

8. As the existing Acts require the assessment lists to be made out in the beginning of January, it is desirable that the present Bill, if it is to become law, should be passed before the 31st December; but no payments will be due until after the 1st April, when the next financial year begins.

PART V.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[First Publication.]

The following Bill and Statement of Objects and Reasons accompanying it are published, for general information, by order of His Excellency the Governor General, under the 22nd of the Rules for the Conduct of the Legislative Business of the Council of the Governor General:—

A Bill to regulate the levy of Town-duties and Tolls in Municipalities.

WHEREAS it is expedient to regulate the levy of town-duties and tolls in municipalities in manner hereinafter appearing, and in particular to provide against the levy in any municipality of town-duties upon articles not intended for consumption within the limits of such municipality; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

1. This Act may be called "The Town-duties and Tolls Act, 1879":

Short title.

It extends to the whole of British India;

Local extent.

and it shall come into force at once:

Commencement.

Provided that the Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, postpone the operation of this Act in any municipality in the territories administered by such Government to a date not later than the first day of January, 1881.

Power to postpone operation of the Act.

2. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—

Interpretation-clause.

"Committee" means a Municipal Committee, a Municipal Corporation, or a body of Municipal Commissioners constituted under the provisions of any enactment for the time being in force:

"Committee."

"import" means to bring within the limits of a municipality from any place without such limits:

"import":

"export" means to take out of the limits of a municipality from any place within such limits:

"export":

"town-duty" includes any duty or tax levied under any designation by a Committee upon any thing imported.

"town-duty."

3. Except in accordance with this Act and the rules made hereunder, no town-duty or toll shall be levied in any municipality.

Town-duty or toll not to be levied except in accordance with Act.

4. No town-duty shall be levied—

Prohibition of levy of town-duty—

(a) in any municipality the population of which, as estimated by the Local Government, is less than five thousand persons; or in municipality the population of which is less than five thousand;

(b) on any article imported by Government or for the use of Government.

on article imported for Government.

5. No town-duty shall be levied on any article other than articles falling under the heads specified in schedule A hereto annexed, without the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council,

Town-duty not to be levied on certain articles.

or on any article falling under any of the said heads if and so long as the Governor General in Council prohibits the levy of such duty thereon.

No town-duty shall under any circumstances be levied on any article falling under any head specified in schedule B hereto annexed.

Government to prohibit levy of duty in certain cases.

6. The Governor General in Council or the Local Government shall prohibit the levy of town-duty on any articles in a municipality whenever it appears to him or it that such duty is being levied otherwise than in accordance with this Act, or that the levy of such duty interferes with or obstructs the freedom of trade in such articles within any place beyond the limits of such municipality, or tends to diminish the amount of such trade, or the profits of persons engaged therein.

Refund on exportation.

7. When any article on which town-duty is leviable is exported, the full amount of the duty leviable thereon on its importation shall be refunded to the person exporting such article: Provided that no such refund need be made if the quantity or value of the article exported, or the sum claimable as a refund, is less than such quantity or sum as may from time to time be fixed by the Local Government, subject to the control of the Governor General in Council.

No proof shall ordinarily be required that duty was paid on the importation of such article; but if the Magistrate of the District, or such other officer as may from time to time be specially authorized by the Local Government in this behalf, has reason to believe that no town-duty has been paid thereon, he may order an enquiry to be made; and, if he is satisfied that no such duty has been paid, no refund shall be made.

The right to claim a refund under this section shall not be affected by reason of the article having changed owners since it was imported.

Warehouses to be provided by Committee.

8. The Committee of every municipality in which town-duties are levied shall, subject to the rules to be made by the Local Government under section thirteen, provide within the limits of such municipality warehouses in which all articles of a description chargeable with town-duty but not intended for use or consumption within the limits of the municipality may be stored without payment of duty.

Estimate of probable consumption of dutiable articles to be submitted each year by Committee.

9. The Committee of every municipality in which town-duties are levied shall, on or before the first day of February in every year, submit to the Local Government an estimate for the year commencing on the first day of April then next following, showing—

(a) the population of such municipality;

(b) the probable consumption per head of population during such year within the limits of the municipality of every class of articles chargeable with town-duty;

(c) the probable total consumption during such year, within such limits, of every such class of articles.

In making such estimate, no account shall be taken of the quantity of any article used in the manufacture within the limits of the municipality of any article intended for exportation.

Every estimate submitted under this section shall be published in such manner as the Local Government may direct.

Statements to be submitted each year by Committee.

10. The Committee of every municipality in which town-duties are levied shall, on or before the first day of June in each year, submit to the Local Government a statement for the year ending on the thirty-first day of March last preceding, showing—

(a) the quantity of each class of articles imported during such year, whether chargeable with town-duty or not, which may be required by the rules to be made under section thirteen to be shown in such statement;

(b) the quantity of each class of articles chargeable with town-duty imported and exported during such year;

(c) the amount of duty levied on each class of articles during such year;

(d) the amount paid under section seven as refund on each class of articles during such year; and

(e) the quantity of each class of articles in bond at the close of such year.

Every statement submitted under this section shall be published in such manner as the Local Government may direct.

Presumption that duty has been levied on articles not consumed in the municipality, when return of quantity on which duty paid exceeds by one-fourth quantity estimated.

11. If it appears from any such statement that the quantity of any class of articles on which town-duty has been paid (after deducting the quantity on which the amount of town-duty has been refunded as provided by section seven) exceeds by more than one-fourth part the quantity estimated by the Committee in accordance with the provisions of section nine as the probable total consumption during the year, it shall be presumed, with regard to such class of articles, that town-duty has been levied on it in cases when it is not actually used or consumed within the limits of the municipality, and a report, explaining the reason of such excess over such estimated quantity shall forthwith be made by the Committee for the information of the Local Government, and a copy of such report shall forthwith be sent by the Local Government for the information of the Governor General in Council.

Local Government to order that the levy of duty on such articles shall cease.

Unless the Local Government, on receipt of such report or after such further inquiry as it may think necessary, is satisfied that duty has not been so levied, or that such excess is due to some temporary fluctuation in the ordinary course of trade or some other temporary cause, it shall, by notification in the official Gazette, order that the levy of town-duty on such class of article shall cease.

On such order no duty to be levied on such articles for two years.

On the publication of an order under this section, no town-duty shall again be levied on such class of articles until after the expiration of two years from the date of such order.

Order to be reported to the Governor General in Council.

The Local Government shall forthwith report every such order and the reasons therefor to the Governor General in Council.

Town-duties to be collected by municipal officers.

12. All town-duties shall be collected by officers directly appointed by the Committee.

Power to Local Government to make rules.

13. Subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, the Local Government may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Act for—

(a) limiting the articles or classes of articles liable to town-duty;

(b) limiting the amount of town-duty leviable upon any article;

(c) prescribing the conditions under which the warehouses referred to in section eight shall be provided and under which articles may be stored therein, and the fees which may be levied for the use of the same; and

(d) prescribing the manner in which the estimate and statement referred to in sections nine and ten respectively shall be prepared.

All such rules shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

Tolls not to be levied except for purpose of defraying cost of construction of work or its maintenance.

14. No toll shall be levied by any Committee unless the same is levied under some enactment for the time being in force and is levied on a road, bridge, quay, wharf or other work solely for the purpose of defraying the cost of the construction of such work, or of its maintenance, or the interest on the capital expended thereon.

If any question arises as to whether any toll is levied solely for the purpose aforesaid, the decision of the Local Government thereon shall be final.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

In the Financial Statement for the present year, 1879-80, it was stated as follows:—

"In connection with the subject of customs-duties, it may be mentioned here that the Government of India has, for some time past, had under consideration the necessity of imposing more complete checks on the system by which, through a large part of India, octroi-duties are levied for municipal purposes. The Government of India has emphatically condemned the imposition of local taxes on articles which have been either subjected to or relieved from imperial taxation, and has insisted that the duties actually levied shall in all cases fall solely upon articles locally consumed, and shall not be allowed to become taxes on through traffic, or to affect injuriously the general trade of the country.

"Although much has been done in this respect towards the enforcement of appropriate rates, continued attention will be given to the subject, so that there may be no danger of finding that the principles by which the Government of India is guided in regard to its commercial legislation have been set aside by local authorities, and that the efforts taken to free the trade of the country from impolitic restrictions have not thus been frustrated."

It is in fulfilment of the pledge thus publicly given, that the present measure is brought forward.

2. The income of the municipalities throughout a large portion of British India is raised chiefly in the shape of town-duties. The proportion of the municipal income thus raised amounts, in the Bombay Presidency (including the town of Bombay), to about four-sevenths of the whole; in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, to about ten-elevenths of the whole, and in the Panjáb and Central Provinces, it is much higher; town-duties constituting almost the sole resource of the municipalities of these Provinces.

In many places the people have been familiar with this form of taxation from a time anterior to our rule; but it is obvious that the very popularity of the octroi-system is apt to lead to its being abused. Local authorities are not sorry to be able to provide for local wants at the expense of other people, and to transfer to others their own proper burdens. It is found that in many towns, and among others in some of the most important entrepôts of trade in British India, the incidence of the tax has been extended so far beyond its legitimate bounds, or the collection has been so mismanaged, as either to involve a collision with imperial taxation, or, still worse, to set up what is to all intents and purposes a heavy transit-duty. To quote the words of a Resolution issued by the Government of India in 1868, "a wide-spread system of taxation has been introduced, injurious to interests on which the burden in a great measure falls, and standing in the way of the proper development of the commerce of the country. It is to little purpose that the Imperial Government reduces or abolishes customs-duties in the interests of trade, if municipalities are permitted to levy duties on articles of commerce passing through their limits."

3. The Government of India, for some years past, has had its attention directed to these serious evils, and instructions have from time to time been issued with a view to their repression.

In 1868, the principles by which these duties should be regulated were laid down. It was stated that they should be restricted to articles actually consumed in the towns, and should not be imposed on articles of general commerce, or interfere with the natural course of transit-trade, and that they must fall entirely on the population of the town for the benefit of which they were imposed. The classes of articles on which octroi-duties might be, and might not be, imposed were enumerated. The necessity for establishing bonded warehouses on a proper footing and giving all due facilities for refunds, so as to prevent the tax degenerating into a transit-duty, was insisted on, and attention was drawn to the importance of collecting directly through the servants of the municipality, instead of farming the duties to a contractor.

4. Similar orders have been issued from time to time by the Government of India. Its efforts have not been without effect; but a review of the working of the octroi-system in many municipalities shows that they have fallen far short of attaining the objects in view, and on a full consideration of the whole question, the Governor General in Council is satisfied that the only effectual plan will be to lay down in a legislative enactment the restrictions which it is desired to impose.

It is with this object that the present Bill has been framed. Besides providing for the matters above referred to, it establishes what may be called a self-acting check on the most dangerous abuse of the octroi-system by providing in effect that, when the quantity of any commodity taxed in any town in a given year exceeds by one-fourth the estimated consumption of such commodity in such town during that year, the levy of the tax on such commodity shall, unless the excess is shown to be of a temporary or accidental nature, be suspended for two years.

It has been long the custom in some Provinces to make such estimates with the object of providing a check, such as that which it is now desired to establish, on abuse of octroi-taxation; and the plan has been so useful for that purpose, especially in the North-Western Provinces, that it is hoped it may be found generally applicable.

5. The Bill, besides dealing with the matter of octroi in this way, provides in its fourteenth section that no toll shall be levied in a municipality, except for defraying the cost of construction of the road or other work on which it is levied, together with interest on the same and maintenance-charges. This rule is one generally recognized as a matter of principle; but it has often been disregarded, and it is thought necessary to embody it in the Bill.

PART V.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Second Publication.]

The following Bill and Statement of Objects and [illegible] it was published, for general information, by order of His Excellency the Governor General, under the 22nd of the Rules for the Conduct of the Legislative Business of the Council of the Governor General:—

A Bill to regulate the levy of Town-duties and Tolls in Municipalities.

Preamble. WHEREAS it is expedient to regulate the levy of town-duties and tolls in municipalities in manner hereinafter appearing, and in particular to provide [illegible] the levy in any municipality of town-duties upon articles not intended for consumption within the limits of such municipality; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title. 1. This Act may be called "The Town-duties and Tolls Act, 1879":

Local extent. It extends to the whole of British India;

Commencement. and it shall come into force at once:

Power to postpone operation of the Act. Provided that the Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, postpone the operation of this Act in any municipality in the territories administered by such Government to a date not later than the first day of January, 1881.

Interpretation-clause. 2. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—

"Committee." "Committee" means a Municipal Committee, a Municipal Corporation, or a body of Municipal Commissioners constituted under the provisions of any enactment for the time being in force:

"import." "import" means to bring within the limits of a municipality from any place without such limits:

"export." "export" means to take out of the limits of a municipality from any place within such limits:

"town-duty." "town-duty" includes any duty or tax levied under any designation by a Committee upon any thing imported.

Town-duty or toll not to be levied except in accordance with Act. 3. Except in accordance with this Act and the rules made hereunder, no town-duty or toll shall be levied in any municipality.

Prohibition of levy of town-duty— 4. No town-duty shall be levied—in municipality the population of which is less than five thousand; (a) in any municipality the population of which, as estimated by the Local Government, is less than five thousand persons; or on article imported for Government. (b) on any article imported by Government or for the use of Government.

Town-duty not to be levied on certain articles. 5. No town-duty shall be levied on any article other than articles falling under the heads specified in schedule A hereto annexed, without the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, or on any article falling under any of the said heads if and so long as the Governor General in Council prohibits the levy of such duty thereon.

No town-duty shall under any circumstances be levied on any article falling under any head specified in schedule B hereto annexed.

Government to prohibit levy of duty in certain cases.

6. The Governor General in Council or the Local Government shall prohibit the levy of town-duty on any articles in a municipality whenever it appears to him or it that such duty is being levied otherwise than in accordance with this Act, or that the levy of such duty interferes with or obstructs the freedom of trade in such articles within any place beyond the limits of such municipality, or tends to diminish the amount of such trade, or the profits of persons engaged therein.

Refund on exportation.

7. When any article on which town-duty is leviable is exported, the full amount of the duty leviable thereon on its importation shall be refunded to the person exporting such article: Provided that no such refund need be made if the quantity or value of the article exported, or the sum claimable as a refund, is less than such quantity or sum as may from time to time be fixed by the Local Government, subject to the control of the Governor General in Council.

No proof shall ordinarily be required that duty was paid on the importation of such article; but if the Magistrate of the District, or such other officer as may from time to time be specially authorized by the Local Government in this behalf, has reason to believe that no town-duty has been paid thereon, he may order an enquiry to be made; and, if he is satisfied that no such duty has been paid, no refund shall be made.

The right to claim a refund under this section shall not be affected by reason of the article having changed owners since it was imported.

Warehouses to be provided by Committee.

8. The Committee of every municipality in which town-duties are levied shall, subject to the rules to be made by the Local Government under section thirteen, provide within the limits of such municipality warehouses in which all articles of a description chargeable with town-duty but not intended for use or consumption within the limits of the municipality may be stored without payment of duty.

Estimate of probable consumption of dutiable articles to be submitted each year by Committee.

9. The Committee of every municipality in which town-duties are levied shall, on or before the first day of February in every year, submit to the Local Government an estimate for the year commencing on the first day of April then next following, showing—

(a) the population of such municipality;

(b) the probable consumption per head of population during such year within the limits of the municipality of every class of articles chargeable with town-duty;

(c) the probable total consumption during such year, within such limits, of every such class of articles.

In making such estimate, no account shall be taken of the quantity of any article used in the manufacture within the limits of the municipality of any article intended for exportation.

Every estimate submitted under this section shall be published in such manner as the Local Government may direct.

Statements to be submitted each year by Committee.

10. The Committee of every municipality in which town-duties are levied shall, on or before the first day of June in each year submit to the Local Government a statement for the year ending on the thirty-first day of March last preceding, showing—

(a) the quantity of each class of articles imported during such year, whether chargeable with town-duty or not, which may be required by the rules to be made under section thirteen to be shown in such statement;

(b) the quantity of each class of articles chargeable with town-duty imported and exported during such year;

(c) the amount of duty levied on each class of articles during such year;

(d) the amount paid under section seven as refund on each class of articles during such year; and

(e) the quantity of each class of articles in bond at the close of such year.

Every statement submitted under this section shall be published in such manner as the Local Government may direct.

Presumption that duty has been levied on articles not consumed in the municipality, when return of quantity on which duty paid exceeds by one-fourth quantity estimated.

11. If it appears from any such statement that the quantity of any class of articles on which town-duty has been paid (after deducting the quantity on which the amount of town-duty has been refunded as provided by section seven) exceeds by more than one-fourth part the quantity estimated by the Committee in accordance with the provisions of section nine as the probable total consumption during the year, it shall be presumed, with regard to such class of articles, that town-duty has been levied on it in cases when it is not actually used or consumed within the limits of the municipality, and a report, explaining the reason of such excess over such estimated quantity, shall forthwith be made by the Committee for the information of the Local Government, and a copy of such report shall forthwith be sent by the Local Government for the information of the Governor General in Council.

Local Government to order that the levy of duty on such articles shall cease.

Unless the Local Government, on receipt of such report or after such further inquiry as it may think necessary, is satisfied that duty has not been so levied, or that such excess is due to some temporary fluctuation in the ordinary course of trade or some other temporary cause, it shall, by notification in the official Gazette, order that the levy of town-duty on such class of article shall cease.

On such order no duty to be levied on such articles for two years.

On the publication of an order under this section, no town-duty shall again be levied on such class of articles until after the expiration of two years from the date of such order.
