To

THE SECRETARY TO THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA,
MILITARY DEPARTMENT, SIMLA.

SIR,

I am desired by the Commander-in-Chief to submit, for the information of the Government of India in the Military Department, and communication to the Railway Branch of the Public Works Department, the accompanying copy* of a letter from the General Officer Commanding Saugor District, bringing to notice the assistance that has been uniformly given by the respective Traffic Managers and Station Masters, &c., of the East Indian and Great Indian Peninsula Railways, in facilitating the passage of a very large body of troops of different arms during the past trooping season, and to express His Excellency's appreciation of the manner in which the officials of the several Railway Companies generally carry out the troop transport service over their respective lines.

*No. 818 Q. G. D., dated 12th May 1879.

I am, &c.,

(Signed) W. S. A. LOCKHART, Lieut.-Colonel,
For Officiating Quarter Master General in India.

Copy of a letter from MAJOR-GENERAL H. BROWN, Commanding Saugor District, No. 818 Q. G. D., dated 12th May 1879, to the QUARTER MASTER GENERAL IN INDIA.

The movements of troops on the portions of the East Indian and Great Indian Peninsula Railways within this District having closed with the breaking up of the rest camps at Sohagpore and Jabalpur, I have great pleasure in bringing to the notice of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India the assistance that has been uniformly given by the respective Traffic Managers, Station Masters, and Subordinate Officers of these Companies, in facilitating the passage of a very large body of troops of different arms.

2. During the past few months—

528	Officers,
25,153	Soldiers of different arms,
1,595	Women,
3,233	Children,
1,055	Horses,

have been passed on to their destination. In many instances Troop-trains have been provided on short telegraphic notices; and there has been no instance in which the authorities on these lines have not exerted themselves to overcome difficulties in providing for military requirements.

3. I am particularly obliged to the Station Master at Jabalpur, which is the point at which an interchange of traffic between the two lines takes place, and upon whom much additional labour has been entailed.

RESOLUTION.—To be communicated to the Agent, Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company, and to be published in the Government Gazette."

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Bombay Castle, 30th July 1879.

No. 3956.—The following papers are published:—

EFFECT OF NEW CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE ON INDEBTED RYOTS OF THE DECCAN.

Minute by the Governor of Bombay, dated 15th October 1877.

The report by the Deccan Riots Commission of 1875 will be fresh in the recollection of my Honourable Colleagues. The Commission found in certain districts (Ahmednagar, Poona, Sholápur, and part of Sátára) certain grievances on the part of the cultivating and land-holding classes to exist in respect of their indebtedness, and proposed various remedial measures. Regarding these proposals, however, it was not deemed practicable at the time to adopt any special action. And although the relations between these classes and their creditors may have somewhat improved, while the thoughts of all have been absorbed by the famine which has supervened—the law, the rules, the system respecting the indebtedness of the peasants under the ryotwári system in the districts specified have remained without change. A hope was, however, expressed at the time by the Government of Bombay in paragraph 14 of their letter No. 2202 of 6th April last, to the Government of India, that the new Code of Civil Procedure might do something towards the mitigation or removal of these grievances.

On examining the Commission's Report with the attention its importance merits, and comparing it with the new Code of Civil Procedure, Act X. of 1877, which has come into force from the commencement of the current month, October, after consulting also many authorities, European and Native, I find that considerable improvement has been made in the position of the ryot of the Deccan. And I propose to draw the attention of the Revenue Commissioners, the Collectors, and their subordinates of these particular districts to this subject, in order that they may be prepared for acting up to the several provisions of the law enabling them to protect the ryot, and to explain to the ryots generally those portions of the law which affect them especially. The ryots are comparatively ignorant, and may be slow to understand the significance of the changes introduced into the law, which changes may affect them materially, and, as we trust, beneficially. And as the public weal so largely depends on the prosperity of this most deserving class, it is proper that the revenue officers should take fair and legitimate opportunities of explaining the law to the ryots.

I will touch in the order of sections on those provisions which concern the very important subject.

First of all, a very important change has been made by section 266 of the Code in the law as to the exemption of certain property from attachment or sale in execution of decrees. Tools, implements of husbandry, cattle in sufficient number, to enable a judgment-debtor to earn his livelihood as an agriculturist, and the materials of houses and other buildings belonging to and occupied by agriculturists, are now no longer liable to be seized in satisfaction of a decree. The revenne officers should be instructed to make this widely known among the ryots.

In the next place, section 326 empowers a Collector in any part of the Presidency to represent to the Court that the public sale of any land which has been attached in execution of a decree is objectionable, and that satisfaction of the decree may be made by a temporary alienation or management of the land, and thereupon the Court may authorize the Collector to provide for the satisfaction of the decree in the manner which he recommends. The Collectors should have their attention called to this provision, and be told that Government expect them to avail themselves of it, on every proper occasion when the judgment-debtor is a bonâ fide ryot, and they should be desired to issue orders, through the Mámlatdárs, to the village officers throughout their charges, requiring them to inform ryots, whose lands are at any time attached by a Civil Court, that if it is possible for the decree to be satisfied by any means short of the actual sale of their land, they should at once apply to the Collector to intervene on their behalf.

Then, section 320 enables this Government, with the sanction of the Governor General in Council, to declare that in any local area, the execution of decrees of any particular kind in which the sale of land is involved, shall be transferred to the Collector. Sections 321—325 then invest the Collector with powers to manage or to deal with the land, as if it were his own, and to adopt one or more of several modes of satisfying the decree without selling the land except in the last resort. Rules under this section will require to be carefully considered; but steps may be taken at once to prepare such rules with a view to their being made applicable to the districts of Ahmednagar, Poona, Sholápur, and Sátára. The class of decrees to which they should refer would be those in which, or in execution of which, the sale of the interest of any occupant or his tenant is ordered to be sold.

I propose that we immediately request the sanction of the Government of India to our applying this section 320 to these four districts, forwarding simultaneously a draft of the rules which we propose, as we believe that the provision will prove very beneficial to the ryots.

Then by section 336, the Local Government may direct that every judgment-debtor brought before a court in arrest in execution of a decree for money, shall be informed by the Court that he may apply to be declared an insolvent. Then Chapter XX., sections 344 to 360, prescribe the manner in which the insolvent shall be treated. And by section 358 special consideration is shown to the debtor, if the debt be less than two hundred rupees. As these sections do afford some protection to the ryot against harassment, I would propose that an order under section 336 as applicable to these four districts be issued.

Though far from admitting that the sections alluded to in this Minute, all taken together, effect all that could be desired, I think that they will conduce to what may be termed the just interest of the ryot in these affairs. Even though we may desire more and may eventually have to propose more, still we may meanwhile make the most of these sections. For by them, a ryot's necessaries will be protected from sale for debt, his land instead of being inconsiderately sold in execution of decree will be brought under judicious management by the revenue officers, and he will be protected from arrest, if he declares himself to the Court as an insolvent.

SPECIAL LEGISLATION FOR INDEBTEDNESS OF RYOTS OF THE BOMBAY DECCAN.

Minute by the Governor of Bombay, dated 12th November 1877.

On various occasions since assuming the Government of Bombay, I have been obliged to examine the matter of the indebtedness of the ryots of the Bombay Deccan, and to confer with the best informed persons to be met with, both European and Native. This matter seems to me to demand our further consideration, and I will now offer, for the consideration of my Honourable Colleagues, a brief outline of the conclusions arrived at by me provisionally.

2. The report of the Commission which sat on this subject in 1875 will be in the recollection of my Honourable Colleagues. The only authoritative deliverance which has been made on this report (so far as I know) is the letter of the Bombay Government of April last, which said in effect that no particular measures could be recommended and that the evils shown to exist were mostly beyond the power of Government to cure.

3. From my own enquiries I see no reason to doubt the accuracy of the conclusions formed by the Commission as to the existing evils. But I think we may devise some means of mitigating, if not of curing, these evils.

4. The evils described by the Commission probably are existing in a somewhat milder form now than, say, two years ago, when the Commission sat. The famine has turned the thoughts both of creditors and debtors into other channels. The disturbances of 1874-75 opened the eyes of the creditors as to the danger of pushing things too far. It is thought that the money-lenders are under the impression that the authorities are adverse to extreme pressure being applied to the ryots. It appears that from one cause and another the money-lenders are, in some degree, refraining from worrying the ryots.

5. Still these evils, though not exacerbated just now, exist, and will sooner or later break out again.

6. Meanwhile the new Code of Civil Procedure, which came into effect from the beginning of last month, October, has in several respects inproved the condition of the indebted ryot.

7. While the emendation of this Code was pending I was in Bengal, and, together with my advisers, took much trouble in pressing various amendments in the interests of the people of Bengal. These very improvements will now, I find, stand us in good stead respecting the ryots of the Deccan.

8. I append for facility of reference a copy of a Minute recently prepared on the above points.

9. My Colleagues will perceive that by the new Code a ryot's necessaries will be protected from sale for debt, his land, instead of being inconsiderately sold in execution of decree, will be brought under judicious management by the revenue officers, and he will be protected from arrest on a decree if he declares himself to the Court as an insolvent. And if his total debt does not exceed Rs. 200 (two hundred), he may be absolved by the Court from all future liability. But these improvements, which are considerable, leave several of the roots of mischief untouched.

10. There is, as shewn by the Commission, much in the condition of the ryots which exposes them to temptation to run into debt. They are liable always to more than ordinary vicissitudes of season, suffering from drought and losses for a year or two years consecutively, and then having a bumper season to make up for all. They have sometimes had abundant employment and high prices together with abundant produce, and then they have suffered from a cessation, indeed from a reversal of these good conditions.

11. They have at present a fatal facility for obtaining cash from money-lenders, while the money-lenders have an equally fatal facility for making the principal of the debt mount up by compound interest and the like to something fabulous, and then for recovering the whole principal and interest by processes, which drive the debtor from house and home till in despair he resorts to violence. If, indeed, two parties, debtor and creditor, are resolved to embark on such courses as these we cannot prevent them. But we ought, I think, to see that our laws do not tend to bring about this state of things. At present they do actually so tend. Indeed, it is probable that unless this were the case people would not be treading such dangerous paths.

12. After much consultation with well informed persons, it seems to me that three things are wanted in the districts to which the report of the Commission refers.

13. Firstly, I think that the Civil Courts should be obliged to examine the merits of the debt for which they are asked to pass a decree. At present, if a bond duly executed and attested is presented, the Court must pass a decree, and the ryots, seeing the hopelessness of contention, seldom appear in order to put in any defence, and allow the decrees to be passed against them ex parte. But the bond may be utterly unjust—indeed, generally is more or less unjust. A fraction of it only consists of principal, the rest is all made up of interest. The bond itself is by no means the original one, but has been renewed three or four times, the sum total having been largely augmented at each renewal. Thus, for example, ten rupees borrowed mount up after a few years to an ostensible debt of a hundred rupees, and so on. Again, the debt may not have been incurred by the ryot himself, but by his father or grandfather. The man may know something of his own debts and of the interest thereon accruing. But he may be rendered liable for an ancestral debt of which he has but a vague idea, while he knows almost nothing of the manner in which the interest has been made up. With an ignorant, though industrious peasantry dealing with an acute and practised class of money-lenders these circumstances constitute real grievances. Therefore the Courts should be, not only empowered but directed to go into all these points to separate the real debt from the factitiously accrued debt. There should be a limit imposed to the accumulation of interest; it should be declared that the interest should not more than equal the amount of the principal (according to a local custom well known by the name of "dâm dupat"). There should be a distinction between a ryot's liability for his own debts and his liability for the debts of his ancestors. The present law, which renders him liable only to the extent of assets inherited, is found to afford him no protection whatever. He should not be liable for his father's or ancestor's debts until he has been asked whether he accepts them. As a matter of custom binding on Hindus, he will accept the principal with perhaps a moderate interest, but he will naturally ask that the interest be reasonably scrutinized and taxed. And that is the very thing which we ought to desire to see done. If he declines to accept, the Court should ascertain the principal of the debt. If it was contracted by his grandfather, he should not be liable for any interest at all. If it was contracted by his father, he should be liable for simple interest during his father's lifetime only, provided always that the interest should not more than equal the amount of the principal. All these precautions will prevent the money-lender (who does not wish ever to be repaid in full) from turning the interest on an old debt into a permanent annuity payable by the debtor from generation to generation.

14. Secondly, I think that a ryot should have the right of coming forward at any time and claiming the benefit of the Insolvency Court, just like the citizens of capital cities, Bombay, Calcutta, and others. At present (as already shewn in this Minute) he can do so only when, after the passing of a decree he is arrested in execution—then and not till then. I think he should be enabled to do so at any previous moment of his embarrassments which he may choose—even before a suit is brought at all.

15. Thirdly, a ryot's "ryotwári" land (revenue paying land) ought not, I think, to be sold for debt unless it has been specifically pledged by him in a bond registered before a rural registrar or notary. In numerous cases land is sold for debt incurred many years ago before the ryot had been, by the Survey and Settlement, declared the virtual proprietor, or (if the Survey and Settlement had been introduced) before either debtor or creditor had realized in their own minds the effect of the measure—when the creditor did not know that he would ever have such a security as the land for the loan, and when the debtor never knew that he would incur such a contingency as being sold out of house and home. Many a man will incur debt without reflecting that he runs the risk of losing his land—to him one of the greatest of penalties. But he will hesitate if he is called upon to execute and register a bond pledging the land, and this will exercise a moral check upon his borrowing. It will render the money-lenders less facile than they now are in lending. It will also afford a just protection to many cases which are now quite unprotected.

16. These three proposals I make in regard to those districts only which are treated of in the Commission's Report. I have carefully consulted the late President of the Commission (Mr. Richey) regarding them. The districts are, as my Colleagues will recollect, Poona, Ahmednagar, Sholápur, and a small part of Sátára. I would propose a special law for the relief of indebted ryots in these particular districts, just as special laws were passed for insolvent debtors, or for special classes of them, in Oudh, in Western Bengal (Chotá Nagpur), in Sind, and in Gujarát. The case of the Deccan ryots needs special legislation quite as much as any of these cases, or more. The strict limitation of area to which such special legislation would be applicable smooths difficulties from the way of such legislation. And the case of these ryots is harder than that of the ryots in other portions of the Bombay Presidency. For instance, indebtedness is notoriously less in the Southern Deccan and the Southern Maratha Country, less also in Gujarát, in all which territories the seasons are more propitious, the productiveness more abundant, and the conditions of rural life easier.

These three remedies are strong ones—they are not indeed perfect, because no legislation can prevent two parties from colliding and so running into danger if they are infatuated or resolutely minded, nor render people prudent who are bent upon imprudence. But they will remove some of the inducements which now allure people into trouble, and will supply counter-inducements to keep out of such trouble. They will have considerable effect. They will make the ryots more careful in borrowing and the money-lenders more chary in lending. They will diminish the ryot's credit without altogether destroying it, and they will certainly stop many cases of hard injustice which now continually occur under the very shadow of our Courts, and which naturally exasperate the people.

17. I bear in mind that the shortness of the term of limitation, recently prescribed by law, is assigned as one of the weapons put into the hand of the creditor for compelling the debtor to renew bonds at usurious rates. But if the remedies proposed in this Minute be adopted, I do not recommend that the term of limitation be lengthened, because it has the unquestionable advantage of ensuring short accounts and of preventing those long unsettled accounts so destructive to the debtors.

18. I have tried to propose moderate remedies, bearing in mind that the ryots cannot in these districts get on without some credit, without the means of obtaining a little accommodation in emergency, because the seasons are so uncertain. In proof of this there is the fact that in the Southern Maratha Country and in Gujarát, where the seasons are more propitious and regular, this calamitous indebtedness hardly exists at all, or else is found in a less dangerous form. But besides this it is admitted on all hands that the Deccan ryots have of late years become extravagant in their habits, which habits were fostered by the advent of railways, the sudden rise of the cotton trade from 1862 to 1865, and the extraordinary development of public works. Judicious legislation may indirectly rescue them from this dangerous tendency.

19. It would, I would add, be impossible to lay down that in no case shall land be saleable for debt—not even if it be pledged—for that would be breaking the land revenue settlement, which says that land shall be transferable as well as heritable property. I only say that it ought not to be sold except it be so pledged.

20. Nor do I wish to depress the money-lenders or to banish them from the Deccan. They have been specially useful during the famine of 1877 in advancing money and grain to the distressed peasantry. Even in ordinary times they have their uses and their legitimate functions in tracts so often afflicted by uncertainty of season. But the law has indirectly given them undue preponderance till they have multiplied and overshadowed the rural localities.

21. So far then the law should, I think, be modified, and it is to such modification that I have addressed myself in this Minute. If my Honourable Colleagues concur, I would cause our Legal Remembrancer to prepare a Draft Bill for submission to the Legislature for the relief of indebted ryots in certain districts of the Bombay Deccan.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Bombay Castle, 19*th January* 1878.

From

THE HONOURABLE E. W. RAVENSCROFT, C.S.I.,
Chief Secretary to the Government of Bombay,

To

G. H. M. BATTEN, ESQ.,
Officiating Secretary to the Government of India,
Department of Revenue, Agriculture, and Commerce.

SIR,

I am directed to forward herewith, for submission to the Government of India, a draft Bill for the relief of indebted agriculturists in certain parts of the Presidency of Bombay, which it is the intention of His Excellency the Governor in Council to introduce into the local Legislature, and to make the following remarks with reference thereto :—

2. The views of this Government as to the causes which led to the Deccan Riots of 1875 and the remedial measures to be adopted, were expressed in my letter of the 6th April last, No. 2202. His Excellency the Governor in Council adheres to these views generally, and believes that many of the evils suffered by the people are beyond the power of Government to cure—being curable only by the people themselves. Still, further experience, combined with the lessons of recent events, have convinced him that some effort should be made by legislation to mitigate those evils even though they cannot altogether be prevented by Government.

3. The evils described by the Deccan Riots Commission are probably existing in a somewhat milder form now than, say, two years ago, when the Commission sat. The famine has turned the thoughts of both creditors and debtors into other channels. The disturbances of 1875 opened the eyes of the creditors as to the danger of pushing things too far. It is thought that the money-lenders are under the impression that the authorities are adverse to extreme pressure being applied to the ryots. It appears that from one cause and another the money-lenders are, in some degree, refraining from worrying the ryots. Still these evils, though not exacerbated just now, exist, and will sooner or later break out again.

4. Meanwhile the new Code of Civil Procedure, which came into effect from the beginning of October 1877, has in several respects improved the condition of the ryot. By it, a ryot's necessaries will be protected from sale for debt; his land, instead of being inconsiderately sold in execution of a decree, will be brought under judicious management by the revenue officers; and he will be protected from arrest on a decree if he declares himself to the Court as an insolvent. And if his total debt does not exceed Rs. 200, he may be absolved by the Court from all further liability. But these improvements, which are considerable, leave several of the roots of mischief untouched.

5. There is, as shown by the Commission, much in the condition of the Deccan ryots which exposes them to temptation to run into debt. They are liable always to more than ordinary vicissitudes of season, suffering from drought and losses for a year or two years consecutively, and then having a bumper season to make up for all. They have sometimes had abundant employment and high prices together with abundant produce, and then they have suffered from a cessation or rather a reversal of these good conditions. They are thus tempted in bad seasons to incur debt which they hope to pay off as soon as more favourable circumstances recur, and to urge them in their inclination they have at present a fatal facility for obtaining cash from money-lenders. Once, however, the money has been taken, the ryot is on the way to ruin, for the money-lenders have great facility for making the principal of the debt mount up by compound interest, and the like to something fabulous, and then for recovering the whole principal and interest by processes which drive the debtor from house and home.

6. It is, in the opinion of His Excellency the Governor in Council, the duty of Government to see that the laws do not tend to bring about the state of things just described. At present, they do actually so tend. To remedy this, His Excellency the Governor in Council considers, after much consultation with well informed persons, that three things are wanted in the districts* to which the report of the Commission refers, and in others similarly situated :—

* Namely, Poona, Ahmednagar, Sholapur, and Sátára.

(a). Firstly,—His Excellency the Governor in Council is of opinion that the Civil Courts should be obliged to examine the merits of the claim for which they are asked to pass a decree. At present, if a bond duly executed and attested is presented the Court must pass a decree; and the ryots, seeing the hopelessness of contention, seldom appear in order to put in any defence, but allow the decrees to be passed against them ex parte. But the bond may be utterly unjust—indeed, generally is more or less unjust. A fraction of it only consists of principal, the rest is all made up of interest. The bond itself is by no means the original one, but has been renewed three or four times, the sum total having been largely augmented at each renewal. Thus, for example, ten rupees borrowed mount up after a few years to an ostensible debt of a hundred rupees. Again, the debt may not have been incurred by the ryot himself, but by his father or grandfather. The man may know something of his own debts and of the interest thereon accruing: but he may be rendered liable for an ancestral debt of which he has but a vague idea, while he knows almost nothing of the manner in which the interest has been made up. Therefore, the Courts should be not only empowered but directed to go into all [illegible] points to separate the real debt from the factitiously accrued debt. Compound interest should in no case be allowed, and it should be declared that in no case should the aggregate amount of interest exceed the principal. There should be a distinction between a ryot's liability for his own debts and his liability for those of his ancestors. He should not be made liable for his father's or other ancestor's debts until he has been asked whether he accepts them. If he accepts, he should be rendered responsible, after reasonably scrutinizing and taxing his debt, for the full amount payable. If declines to accept, the Court should ascertain the principal of the debt, and, in case it was incurred by his father, award the principal with simple interest during his father's lifetime only—provided always that the interest does not more than equal the amount of the principal. In all other cases, he should not be liable for any interest at all.

(b). Secondly.—It appears to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a ryot should be given the right of coming forward at any time and claiming the benefit of the Insolvency Court, just like the citizens of capital cities, such as Bombay and Calcutta. At present, as already stated in paragraph 4 of this letter, the man can do so only when, after the passing of a decree, he is arrested in execution—then and not till then.

(c.) Thirdly.—A ryot's 'Ryotwári' land (revenue paying land) ought not, His Excellency the Governor in Council considers, to be sold for debt, unless it has been specifically pledged by him in a bond registered before a rural registrar or notary: for it so happens that in numerous cases land is sold for debt incurred many years ago before the ryot had been, by the Survey and Settlement, declared the virtual proprietor, or (if the Survey and Settlement had been introduced) before either debtor or creditor had realized in their own minds the effect of the measure,—in short, when the creditor did not know that he would ever have such a security on the land for a loan and when the debtor never knew that he would incur such a contingency as being sold out of house and home. The present law does indeed require that all bonds for land over Rs. 100 in value should be registered, but this is not sufficient in the interests of the ryot, and registration ought to be extended to all bonds for land. If registration is required to give validity to bonds of Rs. 100, much more is it required for small bonds which are usually passed by a more ignorant and helpless class than that having larger transactions. Registration of all bonds for land is provided in the Code Napoleon, and similar provisions are to be found in nearly all the civilized Codes of Europe and America. In India alone is the ignorant man left unprotected from fraud, except in Oudh, where public notaries have been appointed and are said to be popular. If registration is extended to all bonds for land, it will not indeed debar the ryot from executing any bond however improvident, but merely provide that he understands the conditions of the bond and that a copy of the document is kept as a precaution against fraud and forgery. Many a man will incur debt without reflecting that he runs the risk of losing his land—to him one of the greatest of penalties. But he will hesitate if he is called upon to execute and register a bond pledging the land, and this will exercise a moral check upon his borrowing, while it will render the money-lenders less facile than they are now in lending.

7. The three remedies spoken of in the last paragraph have been put into legal shape in the Bill now submitted. Special laws like this have been passed for insolvent debtors, or for special classes of them, in Oudh, in Western Bengal (Chotá Nágpur), in Sind, and in Gujarát. The case of the ryots of the Poona, Ahmednagar, Sholápur, and Sátára Collectorates needs special legislation quite as much as any of these cases, or more; and the strict limitation of area to which it would be applicable smooths difficulties from the way of such legislation. The area will probably be extended hereafter, should the experiment now about to be made prove successful.

8. The remedies are not indeed perfect, because no legislation can prevent two parties from colliding and so running into danger if they are infatuated or resolutely minded, nor render people prudent who are bent upon imprudence. But they will remove some of the inducements which now allure people into trouble, and will supply counter inducements to keep out of such trouble. They will make the ryots more careful in borrowing and the money-lenders more chary in lending. They will diminish the ryot's credit without altogether destroying it, and they will stop many cases of hard injustice which now continually occur under the very shadow of the Courts, and which naturally exasperate the people.

9. In conclusion I am to request that you will be good enough to move His Excellency the Viceroy in Council to favour this Government with an early expression of his views on the subject of this letter. His sanction to the introduction of the Bill into the Bombay Legislative Council, is also solicited.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,
Your most obedient Servant,
E. W. RAVENSCROFT,
Chief Secretary to Government.

FURTHER PROPOSALS FOR LEGISLATION REGARDING THE INDEBTED RYOTS OF THE DECCAN.

Minute by the Governor of Bombay, dated 14th April 1879.

I have given my best attention to the Despatch of the Secretary of State of the 26th December last, regarding legislation in respect to the indebted ryots of the Deccan (including the districts of Poona, Sátára, Ahmednagar, and Sholápur); and to the letter from the Government of India, of the 26th February last, upon the same subject. I have, as directed by the Government of India, carefully consulted Mr. T. C. Hope, who, as member of the Legislative Council of the Governor-General, will presumably have charge of any Bill which may now be introduced into that Council. I have now to record the following observations for the consideration of my Honourable Colleagues.

The previous proposals by the Government of Bombay on this subject are stated in my previous Minutes of the 12th November 1877 and the 30th August 1878. These proposals are thus summarised in para. 6 of the Secretary of State's Despatch above mentioned, as quoted below :—

"A Despatch was received from Your Excellency in Council, in February of the "present year, enclosing the draft of a Bill for the relief of the indebted agriculturists "in the Presidency of Bombay, and which you desired to have introduced into the "Council of the Supreme Government.

"That Bill contained three main principles—

"(1). That the Courts should be obliged to enter into the merits of every "money claim, whether secured by bond or not, and should only award such sums, "whether for principal or interest, as they deemed just, and should in no case give "compound interest or a larger amount of interest than the principal sum;

"(2.) That the principle of the Insolvent Act as prevailing in the Presidency-"town, should be applied to the Deccan agriculturists;

"(3.) That land should not be sold in execution for debt, unless specially "pledged in a bond duly registered.

"Lord Salisbury, although not fully satisfied with all the principles contained "in this measure, thought the occasion for attempting remedial legislation to be so "urgent, that he sanctioned by telegram the introduction of the Bill, being quite "willing that the experimental legislation contemplated in the Council of the Governor-"General should be attempted. I also am of the same opinion."

After adverting to the insufficiency of our Civil Courts for the satisfactory disposal of the litigation between the indebted ryots and the money-lenders, the Secretary of State proceeds thus in paras. 28 to 31 :—

"28. I am extremely unwilling at any time, but especially now, to suggest any "increase to the cost of administration, but if it be made manifest that our courts "of justice are inefficient in these special cases, and that our Judges admit that "they have not time to enquire into the real facts by a thorough investigation, I "would suggest that although an addition to the cost of administration is very much "to be deprecated, it is imperative to remedy the defects here pointed out. A re-"distribution of expenditure might be made, and I observe that it is stated in the "Commissioner's Report that 88 subordinate courts bring in a revenue of Rs. 16,89,744, "and that the expenditure, including salaries of Judges, is only Rs. 6,90,717.

"29. Evils such as have been depicted above, arising out of the costliness and "inaccessibility of Courts of Justice, though of a much slighter character, existed "in England also; and the remedy suggested was the establishment of Small Cause "Courts. This innovation, after having been opposed sturdily for many years, was "finally adopted, and has proved so eminently successful that nearly every year wit-"nesses some extension of their powers. In India also the institution has been partially "adopted. But it is from France that the most important evidence can be obtained "of the value of local courts."

"30. * * * * * * * * *
"It will be observed that the early meeting of the parties before the Judge in order "to produce an amicable settlement of the suit, which is so strongly insisted upon by "Mr. Bentham, is spoken of by the French authorities in the highest terms."

The Secretary of State then seems to sum up his wishes on this matter thus, paras. 31 to 33 :—

"I cannot doubt that the existence of Courts with summary jurisdiction and "without appeal up to a limited amount and possibly with the exclusion of professional "pleaders placed in localities within reach of the suitor's home would tend to remove "many of the evils which have been brought to notice." * * * *
"It is obvious that the summary jurisdiction to be attributed to Subordinate Judges "should only extend to a very limited amount. * * * * The principle of "summary jurisdiction without appeal might be conferred experimentally on all Civil "Judges of the Deccan with great benefit."

Lastly, the Secretary of State directs, para. 34, that "a comprehensive measure should at once be proceeded with, founded on the principles which I have indicated, and on those which Lord Salisbury had previouly sanctioned."

From the foregoing quotations I gather that in this proposed legislation, the main principles for which the Government of Bombay have contended are virtually conceded on the condition that the judicial machinery be strengthened, the number of Civil Courts augmented, and the procedure in some respect improved. It is to this condition, then, that I have to apply myself.

There is no doubt that the number of the Civil Courts ought to be augmented in the Deccan, and that the existing Courts are often too far from the homes of the people, as will be seen from the table given below :—

Table showing the distances at which villages in the territorial jurisdiction of the Subordinate Judges of the Deccan are situated from the Courts to which they respectively appertain.

I would submit however, at the outset, that improvements in the substantive law relating to the indebtedness of ryots is quite as essential as the multiplication of Courts. If that law be improved, as we propose, then its administration will be all the better for more Courts. But if it were not so improved, then the multiplication of Courts might not prove an advantage—indeed, might even prove a disadvantage; for in that case the money-lender, who is generally the party to invoke the action of the Courts against the ryot, would enjoy increased facilities. If the Courts are, in the present unimproved state of the law, in any degree engines of oppression against the ryot, then their augmentation would only have the effect of bringing the oppressor nearer to the oppressed.

But anticipating improvement of the law respecting indebtedness, I would recommend the early augmentation of the Civil Courts in these four districts by fifty per cent. There are now 24 Subordinate Civil Judges (Natives) employed in these four districts. I would increase them by 12, bringing their number up to 36. The additional cost is shown in a table of which an abstract is given in the margin:* it amounts approximately to Rs. 48,000 per annum; which charge will have to be borne by the provincial finances of the Bombay Presidency. Although, as the Government of India are aware, it is hard for our provincial finances—reduced as they are by the recent famine, and with continued demands upon them by reason of the still existing distress—to bear additional burdens; still this much of extra cost must apparently be borne. I am far from saying that the proposed augmentation is sufficient for the needs of the people; but it seems to be as much as we can afford at present; and it is susceptible of further expansion hereafter according as our means may permit.

*Twelve 2nd Class Sub-Judges at Rs. 150 per month each.	Rs.	1,800
Ditto Establishments for do. ,, 180 do.	,,	2,160
Cost per month	Rs.	3,960
Cost per year	Rs.	47,520

I think that two Assistant Judges or Subordinate Judges ought to be appointed to aid the District Judges in these four districts (Poona, Sátára, Ahmednagar, and Sholápur) in supervising and inspecting the Courts of the Subordinate Judges thus augmented in number. Such officers might be called Supervising Assistant Judges or Sub-Judges, and would be chosen from among the Assistant Judges or Subordinate Judges, and would be added to these establishments. The cost of that measure is noted in the margin,* it also would have to be borne by our provincial finances.

*Two officers, one at Rs. 600 and one at Rs. 500 per month...	Rs.	1,100
Cost per year	,,	13,200
Travelling allowance for ditto at Rs. 100 per month each for eight months in the year	,,	1,600
Total Cost per year.....	,,	14,800

The total proposed cost would be annually, Rs. 47,520
14,800

Rs. 62,320

This is the least which we can propose. Hereafter, if circumstances shall be favourable, we may be able to propose more.

I have considered the possibility of appointing Native Civil Judges, of a lesser status than the present Subordinate Judges, for the disposal of cases between money-lender and ryot. But I am clearly and strongly of opinion that this is not advantageously possible. After long experience and much labour we have succeeded in securing Native Civil Judges of good general education, sound legal training, trustworthy character, fair social position, and promising prospects. These several circumstances, as factors acting in combination, have brought about a considerable degree of judicial efficiency, which efficiency would be sacrificed exactly as any or all of the abovenamed factors should be lost. Now these factors would be all either impaired or relinquished if inferior natives of lesser status were to be appointed Judges. Whatever may be the opinion regarding our civil law and procedure, there is general acknowledgment of the comparative purity and trustworthiness of the administration of the law by the present civil courts; and this is, per se, a vast gain in comparison with the results of former times. This gain we should lose if we appointed inferior judges on scales of salary materially less than those now allowed. It were easy to enlarge on this subject; but probably the foregoing mere abstract of considerations will indicate the reasons why I should most earnestly deprecate any attempt to supplement our existing judicial agency by inferior native judges.

I then come to the important point of Conciliation Courts, somewhat on the model of those in France. I would take power to appoint selected native gentlemen to be conciliation judges. Such persons would have to be very carefully chosen. Some would certainly be found, perhaps even many might be found; the possible number of them could not be exactly stated beforehand without actual trial of the system. We should have to proceed tentatively and judiciously. But if the plan at all succeeded, then many suitable persons would be soon forthcoming. The reasons for carefulness are manifest. If good and faithful men are chosen, then there will be no abuses, and the conciliation will answer. But if, as might easily happen, men thus appointed were to prove unfaithful to their trust, then conciliation would be worse than a failure; abuses would spring up, new evils would be added to any evils which might have previously existed; and some scandals would occur to bring discredit on the scheme. While some of the Natives in the Deccan, whose names might suggest themselves for selection, would be good men, many might be otherwise. Without any disparagement of the Native gentry of the Deccan, I only adduce what is known to every one when I remark that there are many Maratha Brahmins, who, though intelligent and influential, would not ordinarily be selected for an honorary office like that of Conciliation Judge, which affords great scope for intrigue to those who might be minded to exercise it. Moreover, in the present social state of the Deccan, much temptation would unavoidably surround the position of a Conciliation Judge, mediating between money-lenders and ryots. The money-lenders form a powerful class; many individuals among them are wealthy and influential. They often have on their books, not only the peasantry, but also many of the Native gentry. They are better acquainted than any other unprofessional class with the mode of bringing the law and its agencies to bear on debtors. Unless therefore the Conciliation Judges were well chosen, suspicion would soon become rife regarding collusion on their part with the money-lenders. At the best, the fidelity of Conciliation Judges can be ensured only by the moral effect of local opinion on the spot, and the vigilance of supervising authority.

The question then arises as to what functions should be entrusted to the Conciliation Judges? In the first place it appears to me that every money-lender who has a claim against a ryot should be obliged to bring that claim to the notice of a Conciliation Judge before instituting a suit in a Civil Court. Such suit should not be entertained by the Court, except on production of a certificate signed by the Conciliation Judge to the effect that both the parties had appeared before him and had been unable to agree: or that the claimant having preferred his claim, the ryot had either declined to attend, or after having been warned to attend had neglected to do so. By these means the money-lender would not only have an opportunity of settling his claim out of Court, if so disposed, but will be actually obliged to try to do so, if it be possible. The ryot will also have the opportunity of so settling, if he chooses to do so. But if he prefers that the case should be tried by a regular Court, he should not be compelled to attend before the Conciliation Court. He should be warned to attend, and every possible precaution should be taken to make sure that the warning shall reach him. If then he does not attend, it must be that he has reasons for deliberately preferring the formal tribunal of the Civil Court. It would be better in that case that he should be heard by the Civil Court; and having declined the offices of the Conciliation Court, he cannot complain of the procedure of the Civil Court by whom he has elected that his case should be tried.

Having carefully considered whether the ryot should be compelled to attend before the Conciliation Court against his will, I think that he should not be so compelled. If the Conciliation Judge had the power of compelling the attendance of the ryot to answer the money-lender's claim, he, the Judge, would have a power which would be liable to abuse. Though he would not have the power of deciding or enforcing his decision, if he formed one, still he would, by compelling attendance, be able, if so disposed, to put great pressure on the ryot to admit or to compromise the claim. Such power of applying pressure—by an educated man of position upon an uneducated and humble man, on a claim preferred by a man generally of some education and wealth—is a power that ought not to be conferred upon honorary Conciliation Judges in the present state of society in the Deccan. I state this with confidence, appealing to the knowledge of those who are acquainted with the Native gentry of the Deccan, from among whom the Conciliation Judges would have to be selected.

For the same reasons I would not give the Conciliation Judge the power of summoning witnesses of his own motion. He should, however, not only be empowered, but bound, to hear any witnesses whom either party might bring forward.

Similarly he would be bound to inspect any papers or documents which either party might adduce.

He would record any decision at which he might induce the parties to arrive. And he would keep such registers and records as might be prescribed; the records would however be of brief and simple character.

Thus he would be a Conciliation Judge in reality as well as in name, without reaching the authority or status of a Judge. If persons of this description were to be made virtual Judges; were to be vested with portions of judicial authority, such as summoning the ryot and the like, they would be exposed to temptations to them sometimes irresistible; they would then become unpopular with the peasantry; and the Government would find that in trying to do good, it had in result done harm. But if they be retained as Conciliation Judges, and nothing more; if the extent to which the peasantry shall elect to come before them shall depend on their commanding public confidence; if their power to settle cases shall rest on their moral influence with the parties;—then they may prove very useful, may dispose of many cases which would otherwise have remained standing disputes between the parties, may often save the ryot from the process of the law, or may relieve him from the anxiety caused by claims hanging over his head.

I have given particular attention, as requested by the Government of India, to the system which has long existed in the Madras Presidency, whereby village headmen are empowered to decide summarily without appeal small civil claims. From my own experience in that Presidency I am not sure whether local opinion is unanimous as to the value of the work thus performed, a value which cannot be well tested, as no detailed record is kept. Nevertheless, nominally a great amount of work is thus done, measured by the number of suits returned as decided, as well as by the proportion which such return bears to the aggregate returns of civil litigation in the Presidency. And after making every reasonable abatement, I do not doubt that much real work is thus done, to the great convenience of the people, and that the status and character of the village headmen are hereby raised, generation after generation. I am willing, indeed anxious, to attempt the gradual introduction of this plan into the Bombay Presidency.

The introduction, however, would be very gradual, for many of the village headmen in the Deccan are not deemed trustworthy by our District Collectors; many also are illiterate. Still out of a large body of men some will be good, even though the general standard of the body be low. And as education shall spread from one generation to another, more and more good men will be forthcoming. Moreover, the vesting of them with this limited degree of judicial responsibility will have an elevating effect on these men, and will tend to make them trustworthy.

Mostly, the persons selected would be the village headmen, who represent an ancient and established institution. The selection need not be limited, as in the Madras Presidency, to the village headmen; but might fall upon any fit person in or near the village.

The safeguard, in constituting these petty honorary courts, is really this, that the value of the cases thus entrusted to such village tribunals would be small—ten rupees in each case. Such cases would be between ryots and farm-labourers, or shopkeepers, or artisans and the like. The disputed transactions between money-lenders and ryots would not be included in this category—most of these cases would be for amounts exceeding ten rupees. Thus these village tribunals would have nothing to do with affairs between ryots and money-lenders—a class of cases with which they would be utterly unfitted to deal, inasmuch as the money-lenders would have undue influence with them. But they would dispose of much petty business which now goes to the Civil Courts, occupying some of the time of those Courts, which time might be given to more important cases. About one-sixth of the civil suits in the Deccan are understood to be for values under ten rupees; though the statistics do not enable us to discriminate the exact proportion. From this may be estimated the relief which would be afforded to the Civil Courts by the establishment of these village tribunals, if they could be established everywhere.

Their procedure would be summary, and there would be no appeal. But the District Civil Judge would have power, ex proprio motu, to revise any of their decisions which he might have reason to think unjust.

As the value of these cases is so small, I think a power might be entrusted to these unpaid tribunals, which in larger civil causes could not be entrusted to any honorary tribunal.

Professional pleaders should be excluded from appearing before conciliation judges and village tribunals. After some consideration, I think they should be excluded from the regular Civil Courts in cases below one hundred rupees in value; power being reserved to the Judge to admit a pleader in any case, recording his reasons for the admission.

Thus I hope that the augmentation of the number of Subordinate Judges; the establishment of Conciliation Courts for the voluntary settlement of claims out of Court; the empowering of village headmen or other selected persons on the spot to decide summarily all the pettiest sorts of suits; the strengthening of the agency for inspection of Civil Courts in the interior of the country by appointing two supervising Assistant or Subordinate Judges—will improve and enlarge the means of disposing of civil causes, and will enable the Subordinate Judges to give more time to those questions between money-lenders and ryots which cannot be settled out of Court. And I think that all this may be done, if not to the full extent desirable, still to a considerable extent, without imposing on our provincial finances a burden greater than they can bear.

The increase of the establishment of Subordinate Judges is a matter of executive arrangement and does not require legislation. But for all the other arrangements abovementioned, legislation is required.

Then as regards summary jurisdiction, on which so much stress is justly laid by the Secretary of State, it is to be remarked that already we can by law invest the Subordinate Judges with powers of Small Cause Courts: some Subordinate Judges are thus invested, and the remainder can be so invested. It is therefore better at once to declare by law that all these Judges shall have these powers. The Small Cause Court jurisdiction covers generally those cases between money-lenders and ryots which do not involve mortgage or other transfers of land. It can, by legislation, be made to cover these transfers also. And for the lower grades of Native Judges the limit of value of suits may be raised from 50 to 100 rupees.

In some respects the procedure of the Small Cause Courts may be improved in order to suit the cases between money-lenders and ryots; and for this also legislative provision can be made.

As the operation of Small Cause Courts, with summary powers and without appeal will be extended, I think that there ought to be with the District Civil Judge a power to revise of his own accord the decision in any case where he might think that injustice had been done. For this we shall make provision.

The provisions already proposed regarding insolvency for the relief of indebted ryots and other improvements in law, will render imprisonment for debt extremely rare, except in case of fraud. If it be thought desirable to abolish imprisonment altogether as regards indebted ryots, I see no objection.

The amount of debt which should entitle a ryot to the benefit of the insolvency-law should, I think, be at least Rs. 50. For that amount and upwards the insolvency principle may be well applied; but not for petty amounts below Rs. 50.

I would insist that every instrument to which a ryot puts his hand should be written by a village registrar, who would register the same under the supervision of the Registration Department.

I have considered whether it would be practicable to declare the ryots in a particular district, or part of a district, as generally insolvent, and to treat them and their landed tenures in a manner similar to that adopted by several existing laws regarding encumbered estates and indebted zamindars in certain parts of India. My opinion is decidedly adverse to any such declaration being made respecting ryots. They are a large general class very different from the limited and special classes to whom the several Encumbered Estates Acts have been applied. Such a declaration and the proceedings consequent thereon would lead to grave complications and serious embarrassments, affecting probably the collection of the land revenue, and encouraging claims being made on Government to advance money for paying off the debts of ryots. The indebted ryots are not confined to any one locality, but are scattered all over the Deccan. It would be impracticable in the first place, and it would be in the second place impolitic, even if it were practicable, for any Government to undertake to deal with the debts of a whole peasantry.

I have thus endeavoured to touch upon all the points mentioned in the Despatch of the Secretary of State, namely, the augmentation of the Civil Courts of the interior, the formation of Courts of Conciliation, the establishment of village tribunals, the extension of summary jurisdiction without appeal, the exclusion of professional pleaders in some classes of cases. I trust that our draft Bill herewith to be submitted will be found to duly embody all these points.

In these and all other points relating to this subject, both I and my Colleagues in the Government have had the advantage of conferring with Mr. T. C. Hope, whose assistance and advice were commended to us by the Government of India by their Despatch of the 26th February. The opinions of Mr. Hope as an eminent member of the Civil Service of this Presidency and as an officer of much experience will always receive our best consideration. We have formed our own opinions after conferring with him. The Bill has been prepared in consultation with him on the basis of the principles set forth in the foregoing paragraphs of this Minute. It embodies all that I and my Colleagues are able to propose. We trust that it has the concurrence of Mr. Hope. And we beg to submit it for the favourable consideration of the Government of India with a view to their introducing it into the Legislature if they see fit.

The executive proposals regarding increase of establishment, as apart from the legislative proposals, have been considered by myself and my Colleagues in Council, and we are prepared to make the necessary financial provision.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Bombay Castle, 18*th April* 1879.

From

J. B. PEILE, ESQ.,
Acting Chief Secretary to the Government of Bombay,

To

C. BERNARD, ESQ., C.S.I.,
Officiating Secretary to the Government of India,
Home Department,
Simla.

SIR,

I am directed to acknowledge receipt of your letter No. 222, of 26th February 1879, reviewing past proceedings in connection with the subject of the proposed legislation for the relief of the indebted ryots of the Deccan, and communicating the intention of His Excellency the Governor General in Council to depute the Honourable Mr. T. C. Hope, C.S.I., to confer with the Government of Bombay for the preparation of a fresh Bill of the nature contemplated in the Despatch of the Right Honourable the Secretary of State to this Government, Legislative, No. 4, of 26th December 1878.

2. In accordance with the instructions of the Government of India a new draft Bill for the relief of indebted agriculturists in certain parts of the Presidency of Bombay has now been prepared, which I am desired to forward herewith for submission to the Government of India. In the preparation of this draft the Governor in Council has had the valuable co-operation of the Honourable Mr. Hope, who has recently visited Bombay and discussed with the members of this Government the various important points relating to the contemplated legislation, and it is believed that the Bill now submitted has his general concurrence.

3. The questions involved in the consideration of this matter have been very fully dealt with in a Minute, dated the 14th instant, by His Excellency the Governor, which is entirely concurred in by the other members of this Government, and of which I am therefore desired to append a copy to this letter.

4. The point to which attention is most especially directed by the abovementioned Despatch from the Right Honourable the Secretary of State is the evil arising from the action of the Civil Courts and from the great distances at which those Courts are held from the ryots' homes.

The methods by which the Governor in Council proposes to remedy this grievance are:

(1) by increasing the number of Subordinate Judges' Courts, so as to place every village within as reasonable a distance as possible from the seat of the Court in whose jurisdiction it lies;

(2) by appointing, whenever convenient, two or perhaps more places for each Subordinate Judge to hold his court at on different days in the week or month;

(3) by extending the summary and final powers of the Subordinate Judges;

(4) by entertaining two or more Assistant Judges or Subordinate Judges for the special duty of inspecting and supervising all subordinate courts, and giving to them, as well as to the District Judges, certain express powers to stay any subordinate court's proceedings and arrange for cases being transferred or tried by a Bench;

(5) by simplifying the procedure of the Subordinate Judges in cases which they are empowered to try summarily;

(6) by appointing Village Munsifs, wherever possible, to try summarily and without appeal, suits for money up to Rs. 10;

(7) by appointing Conciliation Judges for the amicable settlement of disputes between agriculturists and other persons.

5. It will be observed that the first six of these proposals do not affect the ryots exclusively. Their object is to improve the system of civil judicature generally and thereby to enable the ryots, who form the bulk of the population of the four districts in question, to obtain cheaper and speedier justice, and with less trouble to themselves than they are now able. The seventh remedy, the appointment of Conciliation Judges, it is proposed in the first instance to limit to ryots' cases, because the experiment will be a novel one in India, and it is thought prudent to watch the result of it in a special class of cases before extending its scope.

6. Legislation is unnecessary for the purposes of the first and second of the above proposals, as sections 21 and 23 of the Bombay Courts Act, 1869, already enable Government to take the requisite steps. But both of these proposals, as well as the fourth proposal, will necessitate a very considerable additional outlay on the civil administration of the Deccan, which the Governor in Council is compelled to admit is absolutely necessary, however much he could wish, for financial reasons, that it were not so. As at present advised, he is of opinion that it will suffice to increase the number of subordinate judges in the four districts in question by 50 per cent., i.e., from 24 to 36. The probable cost of this addition is shown in the table appended to this letter. In the establishments therein estimated for, there are two kárkúns (one on Rs. 25 and one on Rs. 12) less than in the smallest of the existing establishments, but it is thought that when 36 Courts are employed to do the work at present performed by 24, some such reduction of establishments will be feasible.

7. With regard to the extension of the summary powers of Subordinate Judges, I am to explain that this Government already possesses the power, under section 28 of the Bombay Courts Act, of investing any Subordinate Judge of the 1st or 2nd class with the jurisdiction of a Court of Small Causes in suits up to the amount of Rs. 500 and Rs. 50, respectively. This jurisdiction has indeed already been conferred upon several Subordinate Judges in the Deccan, but the system of conferring it from time to time by special notifications in the official Gazette is productive of considerable inconvenience and uncertainty, and it is thought better that every Subordinate Judge should, as such, possess the jurisdiction. After full consideration, the Governor in Council has also come to the conclusion that Subordinate Judges of the 2nd class may safely be entrusted with summary powers in suits up to the amount of Rs. 100, and that it will be advisable thus to extend their powers in order both to increase the number of cases which will be decided summarily and to give the Subordinate Judges more time for the disposal of other work. And for the benefit of the ryots, it is proposed (section 4. of the Bill) that suits relating to a mortgage transaction in which the mortgagor is an agriculturist and any suit for an account brought by an agriculturist shall be added to the class of suits which under section 6, Act XI. of 1865, are already cognizable by Courts invested with Small Cause Court powers.

8. But, whilst wishing thus to extend the number and the importance of the cases which may be disposed of summarily, and without appeal, by Subordinate Judges, the Governor in Council thinks it necessary to make special provision in the Bill for a constant supervision and control of their proceedings, either by an Assistant Judge, or by a good Subordinate Judge, specially selected for the purpose. This forms the fourth of the above proposals, and it is anticipated that it is one which will effect much good. At present the subordinate courts are, it is thought, too little subjected to examination and scrutiny. District Judges, being also Sessions Judges, are only able to visit them at rare intervals, and owing to various reasons, no inspection of them takes place sometimes for two or three years together. It is proposed therefore (section 7 of the Bill) to appoint two officers (either Assistant Judges or Subordinate Judges), each of whom shall, during the fair season, be employed in visiting and examining into the work of the subordinate courts of two districts, and during the rains, when travelling is impossible, shall perform the usual duties of an Assistant, or Joint Subordinate Judge in one of such two districts, as may be required. To carry out this proposal, it will be necessary to add either two Assistant Judges or two Subordinate Judges of the 1st Class to the existing establishments. The pay of a Third Grade Assistant Judge is Rs. 600 and of a Third Grade 1st Class Subordinate Judge Rs. 500 per month. Assuming that Government find it expedient to appoint one Assistant Judge and one Subordinate Judge, the additional cost will be Rs. 1,100 per month for twelve months in the year, and Rs. 200 per month for travelling allowances (Rs. 100 each) for eight months in the year, in all Rs. 14,800 per annum. But although the two additional officers, whom it will be necessary to retain will be entertained on the lowest salaries of their class, Government will not of necessity appoint them to the duty in question. The best Assistant Judge or First Class Subordinate Judge available in any grade will be selected for the purpose, and the vacancies thus created will be filled by the two additional appointments.

9. In order further to augment the usefulness of the officers who will be selected for this duty, it is proposed (section 7 of the Bill) to invest them, if the District Judge so directs, with the power at present possessed only by the District Judge himself under section 25 of the Civil Procedure Code, of transferring suits to their own file, or to other subordinate courts and also to confer upon them and upon the District Judges a new power of forming Benches of two or more Judges—in whom they may, if they think fit, include themselves—for the disposal of important cases (sections 6 and 7 of the Bill). As a further safeguard against hasty or illegal decisions, a section has been inserted (section 32) rendering Subordinate Judges' unappealable decisions liable to revision and correction by the superior courts, in the same way that the decisions of Criminal Courts are revised, and it will be a standing instruction to the supervising Assistant or Subordinate Judges to go carefully through the records of the subordinate courts and bring to the notice of the District Judge every case in which his interference appears to them to be called for.

10. A considerable share of the dissatisfaction caused by the Civil Courts as at present constituted is believed by many to be attributable to the intricate rules of procedure by which they are bound. The Governor in Council thinks therefore that the experiment may be tried of introducing a more simple form of procedure, based, to a great extent, on the local Mámlatdárs' Court Act (Bombay Act III. of 1877). In carrying out this idea, it became necessary to consider whether it would be advisable to limit the applicability of the new procedure to agriculturists' cases, and to create special Courts, or to invest the existing Courts with special jurisdiction, for the trial of such cases. To the creation of a new class of courts the Governor in Council thinks there are weighty objections. The salary which could be offered to the Judges would not be attractive enough to command the services of men of the same class as the present Subordinate Judges, and it seems to the Governor in Council to be most undesirable to lower the standard of qualification for admission to the subordinate grades of the judicial office. The establishment of a special Civil Court for the benefit of one particular class of the community would also form a precedent of very questionable expediency. On the other hand, it would be obviously inconvenient for the Subordinate Judges to have to follow one law of procedure in cases to which the Code of Civil Procedure applies, another in small-cause-courts' cases, and a third in agriculturists' cases; and it would be unreasonable to require the Judges to apply one law of procedure in a suit if an agriculturist is a party to it, and quite another law if the parties are not agriculturists. If, therefore, it be admitted that a simplification of the existing procedure in summary cases is necessary, the only course seems to be to make the amended law apply to all such cases which a Subordinate Judge may have to try, whether an agriculturist be a party thereto or not. This is therefore the reason why by the provision of sections 8—20, 30, and 31 of the Bill it is purposed to supersede the present small-cause-court procedure law entirely.

11. With regard to the sixth of the above-mentioned proposals, I am desired to say that the Madras Reg. IV. of 1816, under which Village Munsifs are appointed in that Presidency, contains many provisions which are unsuited to this Presidency and to this time. The village headmen in this Presidency could not now, as a general rule, be entrusted with judicial powers. But the knowledge that such of them as show themselves by superior education and good character fitted for the office will be invested with such powers, may in time induce them to qualify themselves, and there are some on whom a very limited jurisdiction might even now be conferred with advantage. Here and there, too, a good district hereditary officer or an Inámdár or a retired Government servant may be found to whom similar honorary powers might be given. Wherever any such jurisdiction existed, it would pro tanto exclude that of the Subordinate Judge, and so relieve the latter of a number of petty suits. But to ensure success, the procedure required of such honorary Village Munsifs ought to be of the simplest possible character, and the sections in the Bill which deal with this matter (Nos. 21—28) have been framed with an express view to this end. And as the appointment of such Munsifs would be at first purely experimental, the Governor in Council is not prepared to recommend that they should have jurisdiction in suits exceeding Rs. 10 in amount.

12. His Lordship the Secretary of State having signified his approval of some attempt being made to introduce Courts of Conciliation, on the French model, into the Deccan districts, the Governor in Council has given this matter his most careful consideration, and the provisions which he is, in consequence, prepared to support have been embodied in Part VI. of the Bill. The success of Courts of this class in this country will depend mainly upon the character and local position of the persons appointed to be conciliators tion judges. It does not seem desirable that the office of conciliation-judge should be associated with that of an ordinary civil judge. Such an office might be greatly abused by a judge anxious to diminish the amount of his judicial work, and there would be great danger of his contracting a bias during the informal proceedings before him in his capacity of conciliation-judge which he would be unable to shake off when he came to try the matter in dispute judicially. It seems, therefore, necessary that courts of conciliation should, with perhaps rare exceptions, be entirely dissociated from the ordinary courts; and that the persons to be appointed conciliation-judges should be specially selected with reference to their local standing and personal influence with the people. The Governor in Council proposes, therefore, merely to take power to appoint such judges wherever it may be found practicable, and is of opinion that the appointment should be an honorary one.

13. The above comprise all the new proposals which the Governor in Council deems it necessary to submit for the purpose of ameliorating the civil judicial administration of the four districts in question. But the Bill contains substantially the same provisions regarding (1) insolvency and (2) inquiries into money-claims against agriculturists and the limitation of their liability for interest and for ancestral debts, and (3) the sale of land in execution of decrees as were contained in the draft Bill forwarded with my predecessor's letter No. 308 of 19th January, 1878. Those principles have, it appears, been virtually approved by their Lordships the present and the late Secretaries of State, and Lord Cranbrook, in his despatch already adverted to, has desired that the measure now to be introduced shall be founded upon them.

14. It will be observed, however, that the procedure in insolvency-cases has been somewhat simplified in the present Bill (Part V.) and that the Government of Bombay now proposed that the minimum amount of debt which shall qualify an agriculturist to be declared an insolvent shall be reduced from Rs. 100 to Rs. 50. Simultaneously with the introduction of a complete insolvency-law it appears to the Governor in Council that the agriculturists to whom it will apply may be exempted from liability to arrest or imprisonment for debt. This has accordingly been provided for in section 40; and in sections 57—60 certain new provisions have been introduced, which it is believed will be found to be peculiarly suitable to the circumstances of the agricultural class.

15. The sections relating to inquiries into money-claims against agriculturists have been carefully reconsidered with reference to the correspondence ending with your letter No. 696, dated 27th November last, and the Governor in Council trusts that in the shape in which they now appear (vide sections 33 and 34, and also section 3 of the Bill) they will be found less open to the objections which were entertained to them by the Government of India in their original form.

16. The Government of Bombay are of opinion that it is essential to the success of their proposals with regard to courts of conciliation and village munsifs that the court-fees chargeable upon their proceedings or processes should be either remitted entirely, or fixed at very low rates, sufficient only to cover the actual cost of maintaining these courts. This Government would also gladly see some reduction allowed in the court-fees leviable in suits of the nature which it is proposed to empower Subordinate Judges to try summarily. But it has not been thought necessary to insert anything in the Bill on this subject, as the Government of India have power under the existing law to remit Court-fees whenever they deem fit, and a new Bill relating to court-fees generally is already, it is believed, under their consideration.

17. With regard to the question of the exclusion of pleaders, the Governor in Council is clearly of opinion that legal practitioners should be barred from appearing on behalf of any party before a Conciliation-Judge or a Village Munsif. But with respect to proceedings in the ordinary Civil Courts the question is one of some difficulty, and upon the whole, whilst not prepared to advocate their absolute exclusion in any case in those Courts, the Governor in Council has arrived at the conclusion that the experiment may be tried of disallowing their appearance in cases under Rs. 100 in amount except with the special permission of the Court. In order, however, to prevent these provisions with respect to legal practitioners (Part VII. of the Bill) from operating detrimentally in the case of illiterate parties who have no knowledge of law or of the ways of the Courts, it is proposed to allow any relative, servant or dependent of a party to be employed either conjointly with, or in lieu of such party; and a suggestion, to which reference is made by the Deccan Riots Commissioners in para. 130 of their Report, has been acted upon so far as to empower the Subordinate Judges to require the Government Pleader to undertake the defence of the debtor in any case in which the creditor is allowed to appear by counsel and the debtor is too poor to pay for a similar advantage.

18. The Governor in Council has deemed it desirable to introduce into the present Bill (Part VIII.) the sections relating to Public Notaries, which were suggested in para. 17, clause (3) of Mr. Ravenscroft's letter to your address, No. 4579, dated 5th September 1878. In your reply to that letter, No. 696, dated 27th November 1878, para. 12, you pointed out certain objections to the sections in question, but these have, it is hoped, been obviated by denominating the officers whom it is proposed to appoint "Village Registrars" instead of "Public Notaries," and by placing those officers under the orders of the Inspector-General of Registration, and empowering the latter section (77) to supervise and regulate their proceedings and to provide for the custody of their records. I am to add, in further explanation of the necessity for these sections, that although section 34, clauses (a) and (b) and section 58, clause (c) of Act III. of 1877, do already provide for inquiry being made by Registering Officers into the fact of the execution of such instruments as come before them and into the identity of the parties, and to record any payment of consideration made in their presence in respect of any such instruments, the class of instruments to which that law applies is a limited one, whereas the object of this Government's proposal is that every instrument to which an agriculturist is a party shall fall within its purview (vide section 72 of the Bill), and that such instruments shall not be merely registered by the Village Registrars, but shall also be written by them,

19. The VIIIth Part of the present Bill is based upon sections 8 to 11 of the Draft Bill for the prevention of frauds submitted along with the Deccan Riots Commissioners' Report (pp. 119—121). It is thought that the necessity which it is thus intended to throw upon creditors of giving their debtors receipts, or pass-books or statements of account whenever demanded, on pain of penalty in case of default, will strengthen the hands of the ryots and enable them to obtain written evidence of their transactions with their money-lenders.

20. With reference to the concluding para. of your letter, I am desired to say that the Governor in Council has given his best consideration to the question of the possibility of superseding the fixed rates of land-revenue assessment at present in force in the four districts in question by a scale of rates varying, as suggested by the Government of India, with the favourableness of the seasons. The proposal is one which it is anticipated there would be very great difficulty in adopting, but the Government have the matter still under their consideration, and should it be found feasible to recommend any alterations in the existing system of settlement of the nature suggested, a separate communication will be addressed to the Government of India on the subject.

I have the honour to be, Sir,
Your obedient Servant,
J. B. PEILE,
Acting Chief Secretary to Government.

8. Every suit instituted in the Court of a Subordinate Judge under section 4 of this Act shall be commenced by presenting a plaint to the Court, or to the Clerk of the Court, if any have been appointed. The plaint shall contain the following particulars:—

Suits to be commenced by a plaint.

(c) the amount or other relief claimed, or the nature and situation of the property of which, or of the profits of which possession is sought, as the case may be;

9. If the plaint do not contain the several particulars hereinbefore required to be specified therein, or if it contains particulars other than those specified, or if the statement of particulars be unnecessarily prolix, or if the amount or value of the claim be undervalued, or the stamp insufficient, the Court shall, at its discretion, order the necessary amendment to be made then and there, or within three days from the date of such order.

10. When the plaint is in due form, the Subordinate Judge shall require the plaintiff to subscribe and verify it in his presence in open court in the manner following, or to the like effect:—

Plaint to be subscribed, verified and endorsed.

"I, A.B., the plaintiff, do declare that what is stated in this plaint is true to the best of my information and belief."

The Subordinate Judge shall endorse the plaint to the effect that it was duly subscribed and verified in his presence.

If the plaintiff cannot write, the verification may be written for him in open court, and the Subordinate Judge shall in such case record that the verification was made in his presence, at the request of the plaintiff who affixed his mark to his name in token of the authenticity of the verification.

11. The Subordinate Judge shall reject the plaint if it appear upon the face of it, or after questioning the plaintiff, or on summary enquiry, as the case may be, that—

Rejection of the plaint.

(a) no cause of action is disclosed;

(b) the subject of the plaint is not within the jurisdiction of the Court;

(c) the suit is barred by any positive rule of law.

The reason of rejection shall be written on the plaint by the Subordinate Judge with his own hand.

12. If the Subordinate Judge admit the plaint, he shall receive and register it, and shall appoint a convenient day and place for the trial and final disposal of the case. The day so fixed shall not be earlier, except by consent of both parties, than ten days, nor except for unavoidable reasons later than fifteen days from the day when notice of such appointment issues.

Procedure on admission of plaint.

Notice shall be given verbally to the plaintiff to appear with his documents and witnesses on the day and at the place appointed.

13. If either party require his witnesses to be summoned to appear on the day and at the place appointed, the Subordinate Judge shall issue summonses for that purpose.

Attendance of witness.

14. If the plaintiff fails to attend with his documents, or omits to adopt measures to procure the attendance of his witnesses on the day and at the place appointed, and fails to satisfy the Court either on such day or within fifteen days afterwards, that he was prevented from so doing by some unavoidable circumstance, the Court shall reject the plaint, and may award to the defendant such compensation as it thinks fit for any expense and loss of time he may have suffered. Such rejection shall bar a fresh suit.

Effect of default of plaintiff.

15. No suit shall be heard or determined ex parte.

No suit to be decided ex parte.

If the defendant fails to attend, the Court shall adjourn the hearing and take steps to secure his attendance by the issue (a) of a fresh summons, or (b) of an order that he be arrested and brought before the Court.

Upon the defendant's appearance, the case shall proceed.

16. Upon the day originally appointed, or any day to which the case may be adjourned as aforesaid, the Court shall proceed to fix such issues as it may deem proper, to hear the evidence, and to pass judgment and issue its decree.

Hearing of the case.

The proceedings may be, from time to time, adjourned for sufficient reason.

17. In cases in which the matter at issue is of smaller amount or value than ten rupees, it shall be discretionary with the Court to take the depositions of the witnesses in writing or not.

Record of evidence.

In cases in which the matter at issue is of the amount or value of ten rupees or upwards, it shall not be necessary to take down the evidence of the witnesses in writing at length; but where the evidence is not so taken, the Subordinate Judge, as the examination of each witness proceeds, shall make a memorandum of the substance of what he deposes, and such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Subordinate Judge with his own hand, and shall form part of the record.

18. No written statement other than the plaint shall be received unless required by the Court, or with its permission.

Written statements.

Judgment.

In any case in which the evidence of the witnesses has been recorded in writing at length, or in substance by a memorandum made by the Subordinate Judge, the judgment need not contain more than the points for determination and the decision thereupon.

In other cases, the judgment shall also contain the substance of the evidence, with a concise statement of the case and of the reasons for the decision.

Village Munsifs.

21. Every suit before a Village Munsif shall be instituted by presenting a plaint to such Munsif signed or attested by the mark of the plaintiff, and containing the particulars prescribed in section 8 of this Act.

Suits before Village Munsifs to be commenced by a plaint.

22. Upon receipt of any such plaint, the Village Munsif shall, by verbal summons through the village officers, or in such other manner as he deems fit, require the defendant to appear before him in person within two days or such longer period as he shall deem reasonable.

Procedure on receipt of plaint.

The Village Munsif may from time to time extend the period for the defendant's appearance if the defendant is absent from the local limits of his jurisdiction, or for any other sufficient reason.

If the defendant fails without reasonable cause to attend, the Village Munsif may adjourn the hearing and secure his attendance either by the issue of a written summons, or by an order that he be arrested and brought before him.

Notice shall be given verbally, or, if in any rule made under section 85, the Local Government shall so direct, in writing, to the plaintiff to appear on the day appointed for the defendant's appearance.

23. Upon the day originally fixed, or any day to which the case may be adjourned as aforesaid, the Village Munsif shall explain the nature of the plaint to the defendant in the presence of the plaintiff.

Plaint to be explained to the defendant.

24. If the defendant shall object to the claim the Village Munsif shall proceed, either immediately or on some other day as soon after as the business before him will permit, to inquire into the truth of the claim and of the defendant's objection thereto respectively.

If defendant objects to the claim inquiry to be held.

If the parties are willing to dispense with the examination of witnesses, the Village Munsif shall give his decision on consideration of the statements of the parties and of any documents which they may produce for his perusal; or if either party shall demand in writing to let the case be settled by the evidence of the other on oath or solemn affirmation in any form common amongst, or held binding by, persons of the race or persuasion to which such other party belongs, and not repugnant to justice or decency, and not purporting to affect any third person, the Village Munsif may, if he thinks fit, tender such oath or affirmation to such other party, and if he agrees in writing to make the same shall give his decision in accordance with the evidence which the said party shall give on such oath or affirmation.

Decision may in certain cases be given without examination of witnesses.

25. The Village Munsif shall receive such evidence as may be tendered by the parties, and for this purpose shall have power to summon any person residing within the local limits of his jurisdiction or within a distance of ten miles from the place where he holds his court, to give evidence or to produce any document in his possession or power. The depositions of the witnesses may be taken in writing or not, as the Village Munsif shall in each case think fit.

Examination of witnesses.

Any witness duly summoned by the Village Munsif who shall refuse to attend, or attending shall refuse to answer, and any witness or party refusing to produce any document required, may be fined by the Village Munsif a sum not exceeding one rupee, or may, at the instance of such Village Munsif, be proceeded against by a Subordinate Judge under section 174 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

26. When the parties have been heard, and the evidence, if any, on both sides taken and considered, the Village Munsif shall pass his decree, which shall be written and signed by, himself, and shall bear date the day on which it is passed, and shall contain the number of the suit and the names of the parties, and shall specify clearly the amount awarded, or other determination of the suit.

Contents of decree.

27. In every such decree the Village Munsif shall also specify such period, not exceeding six months, as he shall deem fit to allow for the satisfaction of the same by the parties amongst themselves.

Execution of Village Munsif's decrees.

If at any time within one month after the expiry of the period so fixed, the judgment-creditor shall prove to the satisfaction of the Village Munsif that the decree has not been satisfied, or has not been fully satisfied, the Village Munsif shall forward a certified copy of the said decree to the Court of the Subordinate Judge having jurisdiction in the place where the judgment-debtor resides, together with a certificate setting forth the extent, if any, to which satisfaction of the said decree has been obtained.

The Court to which a decree is so sent shall deal with it as it would deal with a decree sent to it for execution under section 224 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

28. Every Village Munsif shall keep a register in which he shall from time to time enter with his own hand the names of the parties in every case which comes before him, the dates of all their appearances, the names of the witnesses examined for either party and, when their depositions are not taken in writing, the substance of their evidence, and a concise statement of the points at issue, and of the reasons for the decision.

Record.

General Provisions.

29. Whenever under any provision of this Act, the jurisdiction or procedure of a court, or the nature of its decision depends upon any party to a suit or application being an agriculturist, it shall be the duty of the court in which such suit or application is brought to ascertain and determine whether such party is an agriculturist.

Court of first instance to determine, when necessary, whether party is an agriculturist.

The decision of any court of first instance that a party is or is not an agriculturist shall be final.

30. No appeal shall lie from any decision or order of a Village Munsif or Subordinate Judge or of a District Judge, or Assistant Judge in exercise of any jurisdiction conferred by this Act.

No appeal in cases tried under this Act.

31. If before or on the hearing of any suit or other matter by any such Munsif or Judge any question of law or usage having the force of law or the construction of a document, which construction may affect the merits, arises on which the Court entertains reasonable doubt, the Court may draw up a statement of the facts of the case and the point on which doubt is entertained, and refer such statement, with its own opinion on the point, for the decision of the District Judge, or, if the District Judge be dealing with the case, of the High Court. Pending the receipt of a decision upon such reference, the proceedings shall be stayed.

Reference of questions.

32. The District Judge may call for and examine the record of any suit or other matter tried under this Act for the purpose of satisfying himself of the legality or propriety of any decree or order passed, and as to the regularity of the proceedings, and may pass such order thereon as he thinks fit.

Of revision.

The Assistant or Subordinate Judge appointed under section 7 may similarly call for and examine the record of any such case, and if he see cause therefor, may refer the same, with his remarks, for the orders of the District Judge:

Provided that no decision or order shall be reversed or altered for any error or defect, or otherwise unless a failure of justice shall be deemed to have taken place:

Provided also that nothing herein contained shall authorize the reversal of the decision of any Court of first instance that any person is, or is not, an agriculturist.

PART IV.

Of Suits and other Proceedings to which Agriculturists are Parties.

33. If in any suit brought for the recovery of money alleged to be payable on account of money lent or advanced to, or paid for the defendant, or on an account stated, or on a written or unwritten engagement, or for the redemption or foreclosure of a mortgage, or for the possession or profits of mortgaged land, the defendant, or any one of the defendants, not being a surety merely of the actual debtor, or the mortgagor, or any one of the mortgagors, as the case may be, is an agriculturist, the Court shall ascertain the actual amount of money lent, advanced, paid or due. For this purpose the Court shall, irrespectively of the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act,—

Actual amount of money lent, &c., to be ascertained when the debtor is an agriculturist.

(a) inquire into the origin of the debt, and the nature of each subsequent transaction, if any, in respect thereof;

(b) if any written acknowledgment of debt is relied on by the plaintiff, ascertain whether the whole of the amount therein named was advanced to the debtor.

The Court shall further enquire into the history and merits of the case, with the view of ascertaining whether there is any defence to the suit on the ground of fraud, mistake, accident, undue influence or otherwise.

34. If in any such suit a doubt arises as to the actual nature and extent of the transactions between the parties, the following shall be relevant facts, that is to say—

If not ascertainable, may be fixed equitably.

(a) the means and position of the lender at the time the debt was incurred;

(b) the means and position of the borrower at such time;

(c) the state of the borrower's credit at such time, and the prospect at such time of his repaying a loan of the alleged amount;

(d) the circumstances under which the money was borrowed; and

(e) the requirements of a person in the borrower's station of life under such circumstances.

35. The Court may of its own motion, and if both parties so desire shall, refer the question of the sum to be allowed on account of the principal of the debt to arbitration.

Reference to arbitration in certain cases.

When any such reference is made by desire of the parties, nomination of the arbitrators shall be made in accordance with section 507 of the Code of Civil Procedure. When the reference is made of its own motion by the Court, it shall appoint three arbitrators, who shall be residents of the same village, town or city in which the debtor and creditor reside, if they both reside in the same village, town or city, and if, in the opinion of the Court, fit and proper persons can be thus obtained.

The provisions of sections 508 to 521 (both inclusive) of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply to every reference to arbitration under this section.

36. The interest, if any, to be awarded upon any sum ascertained to have been actually lent or awarded as aforesaid, shall be—

Reasonable interest to be allowed.

(a) the rate, if any, agreed upon between the parties, unless such rate be deemed by the Court to be unreasonable; or

(b) if such rate be deemed by the Court unreasonable, or if no rate was agreed upon, such rate as the Court deems reasonable:

Provided always that—

(a) all payments already made by or on behalf of the debtor to the creditor, and all profits of any kind whatever enjoyed or realized by the creditor in satisfaction of the debt shall be brought to account, and credited, as far as they go, in cancelment first of the interest, if any, due at the rate allowed by the Court at the time or times at which such payments were made or such profits enjoyed or realized, and next in reduction of the principal amount of the debt;

but payments, &c., already made to be deducted;

(b) if the agreement between the parties expressly so provides, no interest shall be allowed;

and interest not to be allowed if agreement so provides;

(c) compound interest shall not, in any case, be allowed.

and compound interest not to be allowed;

(d) the amount of interest received or to be received by the creditor shall not in any case exceed, in the aggregate, the amount of the principal debt;

and aggregate amount of interest not to exceed the principal;

(e) if the debt, or any portion thereof, was not contracted by the person from whom the creditor seeks to obtain recovery, but by such person's father or other ancestor, the said person shall be called upon to state whether he is willing to accept the full responsibility for such debt, or for such portion thereof; and if he accepts such responsibility, shall be held liable for the full amount payable on account of such debt or of such portion thereof, subject to the other provisions of this Act, or of any law for the time being in force relating to liability for ancestral debts; but if he declines to accept such responsibility, shall be held liable only for the principal amount of such debt, or of such portion thereof, with interest up to the date of the death of the person who incurred such debt or such portion thereof, if such person was related to him in the first degree, and otherwise only for the principal amount of such debt or of such portion thereof.

and in the case of ancestral debts interest to be disallowed or limited.

37. It shall be competent to any agriculturist at any time to sue for an account of monies respectively lent or advanced to or paid for him by a creditor and paid by him to such creditor, and for a decree determinative of the amount, if any, still payable by him to such creditor.

Agriculturist debtors may sue for accounts and settlement of amount of their debts.

When any such suit is brought, the amount payable by the plaintiff shall be determined under the same rules as would be applicable, if the creditor had himself sued for recovery of the debt; and the provisions of Chapter XXIII. of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to payment into Court shall be applicable as if the plaintiff were a defendant in a suit to recover the debt, and the defendant the plaintiff in such suit.

Amount of debts in such cases to be determined according to foregoing provisions.

In any decree passed under this section, the Court may order that the amount due shall be paid by instalments, with or without interest.

Decree may provide for payment by instalments.

The plaintiff may pay the amount of the decree, or the amount of each instalment fixed by the decree as it falls due into Court, in default whereof execution of the decree may be enforced by the defendant in the same manner as if he had obtained the decree in a suit to recover the debt.

Execution of decrees under this section.

38. At any time after a decree has been passed under which any money is recoverable from an agriculturist, the Court may, whether in the course of execution of the said decree or otherwise—

Part payment and discharge.

(a) direct the payment of a portion of the amount decreed, and after satisfying itself as to the means of the debtor and other claims upon him, if any, and of his inability to pay the balance, grant him a discharge from such balance; or

(b) if the debtor's liabilities amount to Rs. 50 direct proceedings to be taken with respect to him as if he had applied to be declared an insolvent under Part V. of this Act.

39. The Court may, at any time, direct that the amount of any such decree or such portion of the same as aforesaid, shall be paid by instalments with or without interest.

Payments by instalments.

The Court may, when such instalments do not extend over a period longer than seven years, direct that they, or any of them, shall be recovered by the Collector as a revenue demand and paid to the decree-holder.

40. Except as provided in section 60 of this Act, no agriculturist shall be arrested or imprisoned on account of debt.

Arrest and imprisonment for debt abolished.

41. No agriculturist's land shall be attached or sold in execution of any decree or order unless it has been specifically pledged as security for the repayment of the debt to which such decree or order relates, and the mortgage lien still subsists.

Land exempted from attachment and sale unless specifically pledged.

42. If, upon application being made for the execution of a decree for the payment of money against an agriculturist, it appears that the person against whom execution is sought is not the person made liable by the decree for the amount thereof, but the heir of such person, the amount recoverable under the decree shall be determined by the Court in accordance with the provisions of clause (e) of section 36 of this Act.

PART V.

Of Insolvency.

43. Nothing in Chapter XX. of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply to any judgment-debtor who is an agriculturist.

Chapter XX. of the Civil Procedure Code not to apply to agriculturists.

44. Any agriculturist who is in debt and whose debts amount to fifty rupees or upwards, and any creditor who claims a sum of not less than fifty rupees from any agriculturist, and any two or more creditors who claim an aggregate sum of not less than the said amount from any agriculturist, may apply in writing to the Court of the Subordinate Judge of lowest grade having jurisdiction in the place in which such agriculturist resides, to declare such agriculturist an insolvent.

Every such application shall be subscribed in the manner prescribed in section 10.

Creditor's application how to be dealt with.

48. If upon perusal of an application made by a creditor or creditors, and after such examination of the applicant, or of any of the applicants, as the Court thinks fit, the Court deems that there is not sufficient primâ facie reason to believe that the alleged debtor is in insolvent circumstances, it may reject the application.

If the Court deems that there is such reason, it shall fix a day for the alleged debtor to produce a statement, verified in the manner prescribed in section 10 of this Act, setting forth the particulars specified in clauses (a), (b), (c), and (d) of section 45, and to show cause why he should not be declared an insolvent, and shall cause a copy of the application, with a notice in writing of the time and place at which such cause is to be shown, to be served on the said debtor.

General invitation to other claimants.

49. In the case contemplated by section 45 or by section 46, the Court may, by proclamation or otherwise, as it thinks fit, publicly invite the appearance on the day fixed of all persons having claims against the debtor.

Attachment in certain cases.

50. If, at any time after an application has been made, the Court is satisfied that the debtor has already removed, concealed, or destroyed, or is about to remove, conceal, or destroy any books, papers or property, with the intent to avoid examination in respect of his affairs or otherwise to delay or embarrass the insolvency proceedings, the Court may, by warrant, cause any books, papers, or property in the possession of such debtor to be attached and to be safely kept so long as the Court directs.

Procedure at first hearing.

51. On the day fixed for hearing the application, the Court shall examine the alleged debtor, in the presence of such of the creditors as appear, as to his circumstances and present or future means of payment, and shall hear any creditors opposing the application.

Declaration of insolvency.

52. If the Court is satisfied that the debtor's liabilities amount to Rs. 50 or upwards, and that he is in insolvent circumstances, it shall declare him to be an insolvent.

Inquiry into debts and assets.

53. Upon such declaration of insolvency, the Court shall proceed, upon such day as it may fix, to hear such evidence as the alleged creditors may produce regarding the amount and particulars of their respective claims, and any reply and evidence which the insolvent may offer in opposition thereto, and to ascertain the available assets of the insolvent.

The Court shall determine, in accordance with sections 33 to 36 (both inclusive), the amount of the insolvent's several debts, and shall frame a schedule specifying such debts, the names of the persons to whom they are due, and the order in which they are payable and also the available assets of the insolvent.

A copy of such schedule shall be stuck up in the court-house.

Amendment of schedule.

54. Any person claiming to be a creditor of the insolvent who has not appeared during the previous proceedings may, within one month from the publication of the schedule, apply to the Court for the amendment of the schedule by the insertion of his name and claim therein. If the Court is satisfied that he was prevented by unavoidable causes from previously appearing, it shall hear any evidence the applicant may produce and the defence of the insolvent, and then comply with or reject the application.

Any creditor mentioned in the schedule may, within one month from the publication thereof, apply to the Court for an order altering the schedule so far as regards the amount, nature, particulars or precedence of his own debt or that of another creditor, or striking out the name of another creditor. The Court after hearing the insolvent and any other creditors concerned shall comply with or reject the application.

Any creditor mentioned in the schedule may, within one month from the publication thereof, apply to the Court for the addition to the schedule of any available assets mentioned therein, and the Court, after hearing the applicant and the insolvent and any other parties concerned, shall comply with or reject the application. The Court may, at any time, of its own motion or on the application of the insolvent, so amend the schedule.

Fraudulent transfers.

55. The Court may, at any time, annul any transfer of the insolvent's property, or of any part thereof, which shall be shown to have been made by the insolvent with intent to defraud his creditors or to give an unfair preference to any of them, and may direct that the property so transferred shall be entered in the schedule as available assets and dealt with accordingly.

57. In order to make the payments specified in section 56, the Court may convert into money such portion of the available moveable property other than money as it thinks fit.

Specific properties may be assigned to particular creditors;

58. In order to make the distribution required by clause (c) of the said section, the Court may, in its discretion, assign specific properties at such respective valuations as it deems equitable, to individual creditors, in lieu of converting the same into money.

The Court may likewise direct payment to be made by the insolvent by instalments out of the annual proceeds of specific properties, in lieu of so assigning or converting the same.

59. If the debts cannot be fully liquidated in manner hereinbefore provided, the Court may—

(a) direct that the balance be paid by the insolvent by instalments out of the annual proceeds of his immoveable property; or

(b) direct that a portion of such balance be so paid and grant the insolvent an absolute discharge as to the remainder; or

(c) grant the insolvent an absolute discharge as to the whole of such balance.

Recovery of instalments.

60. When the instalments fixed under section 58 or 59 do not extend over a period longer than seven years, the Court may direct that they, or any of them, shall be recovered by the Collector as a revenue demand be levied and paid to the creditor.

Until such instalments have been paid—

(a) the property shall not be transferable by the insolvent or his heirs; and

(b) the insolvent or his heirs shall not receive a final discharge with respect to any balance of such instalments;

(c) the insolvent or his heirs shall be liable to be arrested and imprisoned in the civil jail for a term which may extend to one year, in the event of their fraudulently neglecting or refusing to cultivate or let for hire or cultivation, as the case may be, any or all of the said property:

Provided that the insolvent or his heirs may at any time pay up the full amount of any instalments due, and shall thereupon receive a final discharge.

Procedure in cases of fraud.

61. If at any time previous to the grant of a final discharge, it is shown to the satisfaction of the Court that in the course of the insolvency proceedings—

(a) the debtor has wilfully made any false statement as to the debts due by him, or as to the property belonging to him, whether in possession or expectancy or held for him in trust, or has fraudulently concealed or removed any property; or

(b) a creditor has wilfully made any false statement as to the amount, particulars or precedence of his claim, whether such statement affect the debtor or other creditors; or

(c) either debtor or creditor has concealed any fact material to the issue, or committed any other act of bad faith regarding the matter in issue;

the Court may send the offender to a Magistrate to be dealt with according to law.

Procedure thereupon.

64. If the application be made by one of the parties only, the Conciliation-Judge shall take down, or cause to be taken down in writing a general statement of the applicant's contention, and shall thereupon by summons, or by such other means as he deems fit, invite the person against whom such application is made to attend before him upon a day to be fixed for this purpose, on which day he shall direct the applicant to be also present.

66. The Conciliation-Judge shall hear the statement of any witness and peruse any book of account or other document produced by the parties; and if any party or witness shall consent in writing to affirm any statement upon oath or solemn affirmation in any form not repugnant to justice or decency and not purporting to affect any third person, shall arrange for such oath or solemn affirmation being duly taken in the presence of all the parties.

Decision duly signed or attested to be forwarded to Civil Court, and

The Court which receives the decision shall order it to be filed, and it shall then take effect as if it were a decree of the said court passed on the day on which it is ordered to be filed and from which no appeal lies.

Certificate to be given to applicant if conciliation fails.

69. If the person against whom any application is made before a Conciliation-Judge cannot be found, or if he refuses or neglects, after such period as the Conciliation-Judge thinks reasonable shall have been allowed for his appearance, to appear before the Conciliation-Judge, or if he appears, but the attempt to reconcile the parties or to induce them to resort to arbitration fails, the Conciliation-Judge shall on demand give to the applicant, or, in the case of a joint application, to either applicant, a certificate under his signature to that effect.

Suit, &c., not to be entertained by Civil Court unless such certificate is produced.

No suit and no application for execution shall be entertained in any Civil Court in respect of any matter or decree which ought under the foregoing provisions to have been brought before a Conciliation-Judge, unless the plaintiff or applicant first produces a certificate as aforesaid.

PART VII.

Of Pleaders.

Pleaders to be excluded.

70. No pleader shall be permitted to appear on behalf of any party to a case before a Village Munsif or a Conciliation-Judge, or in any case cognizable by a Subordinate Judge under section 4 of this Act, in which the value or amount of the claim does not exceed one hundred rupees:

Provided that—

(a) any party to any such case may be permitted on reasonable cause being shown to the satisfaction of the Conciliation-Judge, Munsif or Subordinate Judge to employ any relative, servant or dependant, who is not, and has not previously been a pleader, or a mukhtyár or law-agent, to appear either conjointly with or in lieu of such party;

(b) a Subordinate Judge may admit a pleader to appear before himself for any party in any such case as aforesaid in which for special reasons, which he shall record at the time in writing, he deems it desirable that the party should have such assistance;

Appointment of counsel for debtor in certain cases.

(c) in any case in which a creditor is so permitted to appoint a pleader to appear on his behalf, and the Subordinate Judge is of opinion that the debtor is not, in such pecuniary circumstances as to admit of his obtaining similar counsel, the Subordinate Judge may, with the consent of the debtor, direct the Government Pleader, or some other competent person, to undertake his defence.

If in the case provided for in clause (a) of this section a relative, servant or dependant appears in lieu of a party, he shall be furnished by him with a mukhtyárnáma defining the extent to which he is empowered to act.

PART VIII.

Registration by Village Registrars.

Appointment of Village Registrars.

71. The Local Government may appoint such persons as it thinks proper, whether public officers or not, to be Village Registrars.

Each such person shall be Village Registrar for such local area as the Local Government shall prescribe.

The Local Government may appoint any person by name or in virtue of his office to exercise all or any of the powers conferred on it by this section.

Instruments to which agriculturist is a party not to be deemed valid unless executed before a Village Registrar.

72. No instrument executed after the passing of this Act, to which an agriculturist residing in any place in which this Act is in force is a party, shall be received in any Court of Justice, or by any person having by law or consent of parties authority to receive evidence, as creating, modifying, transferring, or extinguishing, or purporting to create, modify, transfer, or extinguish any right or obligation; or as evidence in any civil proceeding; or shall be acted upon in any such Court, or by any such person as aforesaid, or by any public officer, unless such instrument is written by, or under the superintendence of, and is attested by, a Village Registrar.

73. When any persons, one or more of whom is an agriculturist, desire to execute any instrument, they shall present themselves before the Village Registrar appointed by the Local Government for the area in which the said agriculturist or any one of the said agriculturists resides, who after satisfying himself in such manner as he deems fit as to the identity of the parties, and receiving from them the prescribed fee, and the stamp, if any, which may be necessary, shall write the instrument, or cause the same to be written under his superintendence, and require the parties to execute it in his presence.

Such instruments to be written by or under the superintendence of a Village Registrar and executed in his presence.

Every instrument so written and executed shall be attested by the Village Registrar, and also, if any of the parties thereto is unable to read and write, by two respectable witnesses.

Attestation of such instruments.

74. Every Village Registrar shall keep a register of instruments executed before him in such form as shall from time to time be prescribed by the Inspector-General of Registration under section 77 of this Act.

Registration of instruments by Village Registrars.

As soon as any instrument has been completely executed before a Village Registrar, he shall make, or cause a copy of it to be made, in his register. He shall deliver the original instrument to the party entitled to the custody of the same, and a certified copy thereof to the other party, or to each of the other parties, if there be more than one.

Previous to delivery the original instrument and each such copy shall be endorsed under the Village Registrar's signature with the date of registration, the name and residence of the Village Registrar and the volume and page of the Register in which the instrument has been registered.

75. In every instrument written by or under the superintendence of the Village Registrar, the amount and nature of the consideration shall be fully stated.

Consideration to be fully stated in every instrument executed before a Village Registrar.

The Village Registrar shall also endorse the instrument with a note, under his signature, recording whether or not the transfer of the consideration stated therein, or of any part thereof, took place in his presence.

If the instrument is to be executed in supersession, or partly in supersession of a previous instrument, such instrument shall be produced before the Village Registrar and shall be fully described in the instrument to be executed, and shall be marked by the Village Registrar under his signature for identification.

76. Every instrument executed and registered in accordance with the foregoing provisions shall be deemed to have been duly registered under the provisions of the Indian Registration Act, 1877; and no instrument which ought to have been executed before a Village Registrar but has been otherwise executed, shall be registered by any officer acting under the said Act, or in any public office, or shall be authenticated by any public officer.

Registration under this Act to be deemed equivalent to registration under the Indian Registration Act, 1877.

77. The Inspector-General appointed under the said Act shall exercise, by himself and through his subordinates, a general superintendence over all Village Registrars and shall have power from time to time to make rules consistent with this Act for regulating their proceedings and for providing for the custody of their records.

Village Registrars to be subordinate to the Inspector-General of Registration.

78. Any person who, not being a Village Registrar, writes otherwise than by direction and under the superintendence of a Village Registrar, any instrument which this Act requires to be executed before a Village Registrar, shall be punished for each such offence, on conviction before a Magistrate, with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

Penalty if person not being a Village Registrar writes any instrument.

79. No mortgage, lien or charge of or upon any land belonging to an agriculturist shall be valid unless it is created by an instrument in writing signed by the person creating such mortgage, lien or charge.

Mortgages, etc., to be valid only when written and registered.

80. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to require any instrument to which the Government or any officer of Government in his official capacity is a party to be executed before a Village Registrar.

Exemption of instruments to which Government or any officer of Government is a party.

PART VIII.

Of Receipts and Statements of Account.

81. Every agriculturist who makes any payment of money in liquidation of debt shall be entitled to receive at the time of such payment a written receipt from the person to whom such payment is made.

Agriculturists to be entitled to written receipts,

If such payment is made under any instrument written, under section 73 of this Act, by a Village Registrar, the said receipt shall, if the agriculturist so require, be endorsed on the copy of the said instrument furnished to him under section 74 of this Act.

82. Any agriculturist by whom any money is due under any instrument shall be entitled to receive from the person claiming under such instrument, within one month after the date on which by local custom annual accounts are balanced, a statement of his account up to that date.

and to own annual statement of account.

The Local Government may, by notification in the Bombay Government Gazette, declare what date shall in any district or portion of a district be taken to be the date on which annual accounts are balanced for the purpose of this section.

83. Any agriculturist in whose name an account is kept by any trader or money-lender shall be entitled to receive from such trader or money-lender, on demand, a pass-book, and to require from time to time that his account up to date be written therein and attested by the signature or mark of the said trader or money-lender.

And to have his account made up from time to time in a pass-book.

An entry so made in any such pass-book of any payment made to the trader or money-lender shall be deemed to be equivalent to the grant of a receipt for the amount so entered.

84. Any person who, in contravention of sections 81, 82 or 83 of this Act, refuses or neglects to give a receipt, or a statement of account, or a pass-book, or to write, or cause to be written any account or any part of an account in a pass-book, or to attest the same when so written, shall be punished for each such offence, on conviction before a Magistrate, with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

Penalty for contravention of sections 81—83.

PART IX.

Miscellaneous.

85. The Local Government may from time to time make rules consistent with this Act—

From—W. T. THISELTON DYER, Esq., Assistant Director, Royal Gardens, Kew,

To—The Under Secretary of State for India.

REFERRING to your letter of August 23rd of last year, I am desired by Sir Joseph Hooker to state that the collection of forest produce presented to the Museum of Economic Botany of the Royal Gardens by the Government of India, was safely delivered at this establishment at the close of last October.

During the past winter the officers in charge of the Museum have been occupied under my supervision in unpacking, examining and incorporating the specimens with our permanent collections. This work is now finished, and Sir Joseph Hooker is able to speak with the highest satisfaction of the efficient manner in which the energy and knowledge of the Indian Forest Department, supported in this matter by the liberality of the Indian Government, has enabled the woody vegetation of India to be illustrated in our Museums in a way which is not paralleled in the case of any other British Possession.

Not the least merit of the collection was the care with which the specimens had been selected and prepared for museum purposes. A large number remained over when the work of incorporation had been completed, and these duplicates have been distributed to Botanical Museums in Berlin, Florence, Lisbon, and Paris, where they have been gratefully accepted.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Bombay Castle, 4th August 1879.

No. 4073.—The following Annual Report for the Hill Station of Matheran, for the year 1878-79, together with Government Resolution No. 3957, dated 30th July 1879, passed thereon, is published for general information:—

"No. 104 OF 1879.

FROM THE SUPERINTENDENT OF MATHERAN, TO THE ACTING COLLECTOR OF THA'NA.

Matheran, 14th June 1879.

SIR,—I have the honour to forward the Annual Report for Matheran for the year 1878-79.

2. I have been in charge from October to the end of the official year. From Statements A. and B. it will be seen that the receipts have been Rs. 10,419-10-10; expenditure Rs. 8,312-10-9.

3. There have been two heavy items of expenditure under the head of Public Works, viz., re-roofing the servants' quarters of the Superintendent's house at a cost of Rs. 474-14-1, and fitting hydrants to the old and Simpson's tank at a cost of Rs. 493-0-1. Last year it was determined that something should be done to facilitate drawing water from the tanks. I am happy to say that the Executive Engineer has fitted hydrants by means of which bhistees are saved a great amount of labour, and visitors to the place have had, for the first time in the annals of this station, clean water to bathe in, and the great bulk of the people have also had much purer water to drink. At the bottom of the old bund I had two small earthen dams made, which enabled a good deal of water to be saved, which had leaked out of the old tank.

4. Water has been very abundant this year, as the rainfall last season was heavy, viz., 274 inches. But the labour connected with obtaining water is a question to which I wish to draw attention, for I think it is one which might well be considered by the Public Works Department, with a view to the application of some scheme by which mechanical means might be applied, in mitigation of the very heavy labour and expense entailed. What this labour is I will endeavour roughly to show.

5. Many people in some years have to fetch water from Simpson's tank, which may be taken to be two miles distant with a rise of 400 feet.

Now, supposing a man carried 56 lbs. of water in a journey, 7 gallons being the lowest estimate in England allowed per head for domestic use, 101·18 foot tons would represent the labour.

On the other hand the great bulk of the people do not get their water at Simpson's tank, but at the old bund, so that in their cases the distance to be taken would be about a mile with a rise of about 300 feet, but it must be remembered that 56 lbs. in one trip is an outside load. I have weighed some of their loads, and find that 30 to 40 lbs. is about an average, so that when estimating the work in foot tons, double journeys would have to be taken into consideration.

To compare this heavy labour with other kinds I quote Dr. Parkes :—

Pile driving=312 tons lifted 1 foot in a day.
Posters carrying goods=325 " " "
Prisoners at work=352 " " "

6. But now to come to the question of cost. On the 15th April, 240 puckals and 640 hundas of water were taken from the tanks. As far as I can make out, the expenditure for the puckal bhistees on that day would be about 15 rupees, and taking 160 hundas at ½ an anna each, the cost would be about 5 rupees. The remaining hundas are not calculated for, as they represent the drudgery of the wives and daughters of the bazaar people, so that I think it may be fair to state that on that day in April, 20 rupees in hard cash was paid for water. But when the place is full of visitors and water much scarcer, it is no doubt much greater.

7. I have been favored with a calculation sent me by Mr. Cruddas, by which he shows that at a capital cost of Rs. 10,700 and by the use of sixteen bullocks, 2,000 gallons of water per hour could be pumped into the bazaar. But probably at a small increased cost it could be pumped up to the Church plateau, it could then easily be made available at three points for distribution :—

16 bullocks for three months at Rs. 10 a month each	Rs. 480
6 men to look after bullocks for three months	„ 144
2 men to look after pumps at Rs. 25	„ 150
Interest on Rs. 10,000 for one year at 5 per cent.	„ 500
	Rupees 1,274

8. Cost of water carriage at present Rs. 20 a day, for three months of 30 days, Rs. 1,800. To the Rs. 1,274 would have to be added the cost of distribution by bhistees and by hundas from the three points contemplated, an unknown quantity, also repairs to machinery, and there would have to be considered as a set-off the immense saving of domestic labour, which no doubt would be a great assistance to the poor people on the hill. A walk down to the old bund any morning will show how very severe this labour is, when women in all conditions of bodily health will be seen staggering under their heavy loads. The question of conducting water in pipes to houses being left for consideration afterwards. The carriage of water for the eight months I am here cost me Rs. 204. I think therefore I have shown that the question of pumping water might receive with advantage some attention.

9. But before any apparatus was fitted, the question would arise if there is water enough at the old bund at present to make it worth while. I think there may be. But if not, then a bund would have to be built lower down the ravine. This I believe has often been considered a highly desirable acquisition to prevent water famine on the hill. As pertinent to this question, I may perhaps quote a few words from the guide book of Dr. Smith—" The whole of the water that flows down from Matheran and the neighbouring hills runs waste to the sea, although even to the most unpractised eye there are many places to be noticed most favourable for storing it. A famine of it indeed prevails for 3 months in the year; not a drop is available for cultivation on the hill sides, and for domestic use it is carried from long distances." It is true that since Dr. Smith's time the Simpson Tank has been made, but before the bund was built it was, I think I am right in saying, never anticipated that it would finally settle the question of water-supply to the hill. It is too far off and deep down from the chief part of the station.

10. If a new bund should be built, it is obvious that as a much larger body would be impounded; that its purity would be greater, and an ample supply for pumping be obtained.

11. The improvements sanctioned or proposed are—

Improvements at Malet Spring to prevent contamination of the water at a cost of Rs. 214.

Alteration of the road to Simpson Tank, which will reduce the gradient from 1 in 4 to 1 in 10.

The road from Artist Point to the Church to be covered with moorum, and in fact to be a made road at a cost of Rs. 197.

Widening of the lower part of the road up from Neral at a cost of Rs. 3,929.

All these are highly desirable improvements.

12. I think that the question of selling the special tolls for this place to the Toll Contractor should be considered. At present a Kárkun is employed at a cost of Rs. 90 to collect bullock and cooly tolls, Rs. 504-4-3. This man at present collects the Tattoo's license fees, but these could be collected otherwise. Not only is the expense, viz., of Rs. 90, for collection, heavy, but it is difficult to see how an efficient check can be kept on the Kárkun.

13. The advisability of keeping up the Sanitarium should be considered. Up to the present time since I have been here there has been only one person in it. I am of opinion that it is of little use either as a Sanitarium or Dák Bungalow, and the expense is by no means small. The hotel accommodation on the hill appears sufficient, and to make use of the Sanitarium, a visitor would have to bring up servants, and if he wishes to be comfortable, a large amount of kit. If the place could be sold it is possible that somebody might be found to purchase it to start a hotel.

14. The great want of this place is a public hall of some kind, like the Frere Hall at Mahableshwar, for a Library, Reading Room, &c. Now if a fair price could be obtained for the Sanitarium, the money could be applied to the purpose of building a hall in some central position, or if a proper price could not be realized, perhaps the Sanitarium buildings could be pulled down and the materials used in the construction of a large public room. I am inclined to think that amusement is of no small value as a sanitary agent, when persons come to a hill station to shake off the cares of business and office. The price then of this next to useless building, the Sanitarium, might properly be applied in commencing a fund to provide the room in question; if it should not produce enough money, it might be added to subsequently by private subscriptions.

15. I have not found any inconvenience arising from the present system of conservancy so long as large deposits of night-soil are kept out of the ground. The annual thorough washing the place gets during the monsoon will suffice to keep it clean.

16. High prices caused some amount of want, but no cases of absolute distress have come to my knowledge. I was obliged to advance Rs. 140 to the Tonjon hamals to keep them on the hill to be in readiness for the hot weather, but this is a usual custom on the part of former Superintendents I am told.

17. There has been little or no crime to note during the year now reported upon.

18. The station has been very healthy.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,
Your most obedient Servant,
(Signed) HORACE DAY, M.D., Surgeon-Major,
Superintendent of Matheran.

Sanitaria—Annual Reports.

No. 3957. REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Bombay Castle, 30th July 1879.

Letter from the Acting Collector of Thána, No. 2238, dated 30th June 1879—Forwarding, with his remarks, the Annual Administration Report of the Hill Station of Mátherán for the year 1878-79.

Memorandum from the Commissioner, N. D., No. 1920, dated 14th July 1879—Forwarding the above with his remarks.

RESOLUTION.—Dr. Day's report is a practical and satisfactory one, inasmuch as he shows that the water supply has been somewhat improved, the balance to the credit of the Station Fund is Rs. 17,410, and the health of the public during the past year was excellent.

2. The tolls on the Hill may be as proposed sold to a contractor and the salary of the kárkun who collects it saved.

3. The Superintendent should submit for the consideration of Government in the Public Works Department a separate report regarding the improvement of the water supply. If funds can be made available it appears desirable that they should be expended for the improvement of the station, and one of the greatest necessities is the supply of good water.

4. The suggestions as to the disposal of the Sanitarium building should be transferred to the Public Works Department for consideration."

Bombay Castle, 6th August 1879.

No. 4109.—The following Despatch from Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India, to His Excellency the Honourable the Governor in Council, No. 4 (Separate Revenue), dated 10th July, 1879, is published :—

" Para. 1.—I have considered in Council the proceedings of your Government in the Miscellaneous Branch of this Department for the second half of 1878, and have now to make the following observations.

" 2. The report by Mr. Ránade on the recently discovered stamp frauds in the Násik Courts has evidently been carefully prepared, and brings to light a very unsatisfactory state of affairs in the administration of the Stamp Department in that district. The facility with which frauds can now be perpetrated seems to be, in a great measure, due to the general employment of adhesive stamps, but, even under present circumstances, there can be no doubt that the exercise of a more vigilant supervision would be the means of protecting the State against much of the loss due to these causes, and the attention of the Heads of Departments where stamps are used has very properly been directed to this subject.

3. The general question of a more extensive application of impressed stamps for use in India is now under consideration, and the use of these will, no doubt, if found practicable, greatly aid in the prevention of fraud, and so protect the revenues of the Stamp Department.

4. The proceedings for the 27th August contain the orders of your Government upon the report on the Stamp Revenue Administration of the Bombay Presidency and Sind for the official year 1877-78.

5. This report shows a decrease, both in the receipts and expenditure, as compared with the preceding year. The decrease in expenditure is satisfactory. The diminished receipts are, no doubt, correctly attributed, in a great measure, to circumstances arising out of the late famine, but, after the exposure made of the prevalence of stamp frauds in the Násik Division, I am not at all satisfied that the revenues from this source are as profitable to the State as they should be. Much may unquestionably be done towards preventing the fraudulent use of stamps by the Registration Department, but, as your Excellency has remarked in the Resolution quoted above, the income from general stamps is directly affected by the amount of vigilance and strictness on the part of all Revenue Officers concerned.

Bombay Castle, 5th August 1879.

There has been a decrease, during the month, in the importation of grain, salt, and other commodities as compared with the preceding period, due to the fall in prices in Malwá.

The increase in the receipts from opium is owing to the increased quantity exported during the month.

The increase in firewood is due to the supply of firewood to the Railway, and the increase in "Railway Materials" is owing to the materials carried for the Neemuch extension.

The month's operations show a net increase, in weight, of 6,658 tons, and in earnings of Rs. 34,119.

ENCLOSURE.

MEMORANDUM of the Army Sanitary Commission on the Report of the Sanitary Commissioner for Bombay for 1877.

The present Report has been mostly prepared by Mr. Hewlett, who acted as Sanitary Commissioner for Bombay until the return of Mr. Lumsdaine from sick leave. It is divided into the usual 10 sections, two of which, relating to the sanitary history of British and Native troops, will require only a brief notice, as the matter of these sections has been already dealt with on separate references.

1. Section I. is devoted to the meteorology of the year 1877, certain peculiarities of which will be noticed afterwards. In the meantime it may be suggested that of late years the whole question of district meteorology in India has been making progress to such an extent that there may be elements which could now be safely made use of in discussing the relations of climate to Indian diseases. The subject is worthy of consideration, not solely on account of the direct bearing of climatic peculiarities on the health of individuals, but also on account of the connection of such elements as heat, moisture, rainfall, and variability with the sanitary condition of the localities. It may be further suggested that the daily climatic elements contrasted with daily admissions from diseases would afford more reliable comparasion than monthly or annual averages.

2. British Troops.—The total strength of British troops serving in Bombay Presidency was 10,425 on 1st January 1877. At the same date in 1878 the total strength was 11,252, and the average strength for the year 1877 was 10,061 (exclusive, it is supposed, of the unattached list). The following abstract shows the chief health statistics for the last six years :—

Years.	Average Strength.	Admissions.	Admissions per 1,000 Strength.	Daily Sick.	Sick per 1,000 Strength.	Number of Deaths.	Deaths per 1,000 Strength.
1872 to 1876 mean...	10,463	14,478	1,382·5	544	52·1	156	14·90
1877 „ ...	10,061	13,696	1,361·3	583	57·9	117	11·63

In all the elements, except in the ratio of the daily sick, the year 1877 contrasts favourably with the previous five years' average.

The chief admission cause in 1877 was malarial fever, on account of which 4,550 men passed through the hospital; next in importance came venereal diseases, which yielded 1,972 admissions; and then wounds and accidents, with 1,081 admissions. Malarial admissions were under the average of the preceding five years, namely, as 452 to 507 per 1,000; but venereal admissions were considerably above the average (196 to 172 per 1,000). There were 15 cases of cholera and 22 of enteric fever. Cholera yielded 10 deaths; but of death causes the chief was enteric fever, which yielded 15 deaths, against an average of 17 deaths for the preceding five years. Next followed suicide, with 10 deaths. Phthisis yielded 7 deaths, malarial fevers 6 deaths, respiratory diseases 5 deaths. All other death causes yielded fewer casualties in completing the total number of deaths, 117, as already shown.

3. The total loss of efficiency during 1877 was as follows :—

	Per 1000.
Deaths	11·63
Invalids for change	36·67
Discharged invalids	11·63

The invaliding for discharge alone equalled the death-rate, and the total invaliding was 48·30 per 1,000. It may be suggested whether it would not be possible to show the numbers invalided at or close to the end of their service, for at present all such appear to be counted as loss.

4. Among the most important data in the Sanitary Commissioner's Report are those connected with intemperance among British troops.

It is satisfactory to know that 11 per cent. of the men are total abstainers, but the average number drawing malt liquor from the canteen daily was 7,832 men. The average consumption of spirits appears to be between three and four ounces per man per day, and between a pint and a quart of malt liquor.

There were 5,122 cases of drunkenness reported in the year, or about 47 per cent. of the force. There were 11,247 cases of crime punished by Commanding Officers, or more than the entire strength, and 605 cases were tried by court-martial. There were 572 men invalided to the hills. This account is dark enough, but it is satisfactory to know that the question of abolishing the spirit ration is under consideration by the Government of India.

5. Native Troops.—The average mean strength of the Native Army of Bombay was 22,561, and the following abstract gives the health statistics of the Army in comparison with those of preceding years :—

Years.	Average Strength.	Admissions per 1,000.	Average Daily Sick per 1,000.	Deaths per 1,000.
1872 to 1876 ...	22,920	1,265·9	38·4	9·6
1877 „ ...	22,561	1,113·9	34·9	13·7

The death-rate in 1877 was higher than the average of the preceding years of the series, but the other inefficiency causes were less extensive in their operation.

The most prevalent admission causes in the Native Army were malarial fevers, from which 10,956 men, or 485·6 per 1,000 of the force entered hospital. The preceding five years' average gave 575·4 fever admissions per 1,000. The next most frequent causes were wounds and accidents, 2,583 admissions. There were 1,265 admissions for rheumatism, and 1,128 for respiratory diseases. Dysentery and diarrhœa yielded, the former 788, and the latter 782 admissions, both slightly in excess of the previous five years. Cholera occasioned 67 admissions and 39 deaths during the year. There were 170 cases of scurvy, chiefly at Aden, Bombay, and Jacobabad. There were four deaths from this disease.

These are the leading statistical facts which appear to require notice in the present remarks, and they have an important relation to the sanitary history of the people generally, which we next proceed to discuss.

6. General Population.—The Sanitary Commissioner opens this section of his Report with the following words :—

"The year 1877 will stand out prominently in the history of India as one in which Madras, Mysore, 'and the extensive districts comprising the Deccan and Southern Marátha Country in the Bombay 'Presidency were attacked and desolated by famine . . . . . The following section 'will bear ample testimony to the misery that the population of the distressed districts of this Presidency 'encounte red, and although not more than an approximate accuracy can be claimed for the figures 'given in this Report, yet there can be no doubt that there was never a time since the commencement 'of the registration of births and deaths when the deaths, at all events in the famine districts, have 'been from improved organization so accurately reported as in the year 1877.'

It appears that an approximation to the actual famine mortality may thus be arrived at; only the figures cannot be closely contrasted with those of former years or of other districts where the registration was not so well carried out. In the famine districts the registration of deaths was part of the duty of a large staff of villages inspectors. "The patels were fearful lest they should be blamed for not report-"ing deaths," and the Sanitary Commissioner states that, "with the exception of the comparatively few "cases of persons dying in the jungles, far away from any village," the great majority of deaths were reported. Another element, however, requires to be taken into account, namely, the immigration of famine-stricken people from the Native States on account of the more efficient relief measures in Bombay districts, because deaths among these people would necessarily add to the Bombay district mortality.

7. Bearing these points in mind, the following is the first fact bearing on the famine mortality:—

	Bombay Presidency.
Deaths, 1877	627,708
„ 1876	367,660
Excess of deaths in 1877	260,048

The death-rate per 1,000 in 1877 was thus 38·79, against 22·7 per 1,000 in 1876, and 21·01 per 1,000 on the preceding five years' average. Famine diseases may have destroyed many who would have died of other causes, but the figures appear to show that the absolute loss of life, in other words, and apart from all discussion, the maximum possible loss from the intervention of the famine, was somewhere about a quarter of a million, taken over the whole Presidency, and from all causes registered.

But as the famine was confined to certain districts only, it follows, of course, that a very inadequate conception may be obtained of its absolute consequences by spreading the mortality over large districts not affected by it.

8. The next abstract gives the deaths per 1,000 in all the districts of Bombay Presidency during 1877:—

	Deaths per 1,000.		Deaths per 1,000.
Kaládgi	101·77	Khándesh	25·16

Poona	33·96	Thar and Párkar	13·88
Thána	27·86	Shikarpur	9·55
Surat	25·24	Upper Sind Frontier	8·10

It is quite evident that many of the districts in this abstract are still under partial registration only, and that their death-rates cannot be used for any purpose of comparison.

We may, however, compare the death-rates among the following classes, which show, that, with the exception of the European Army, the death-rates were raised during the year as follows:—

	Deaths per 1,000.
	1872 to 1876.	1877.
British Troops ...	14·90	11·63
Native „ ...	9·60	13·70
Jails	25·60	57·70
Civil Population ...	21·01	38·76

9. The following abstract gives the death-rates in the famine districts in comparison with those of 1876:—

Famine Districts.	Census Population, 1872.	Total Deaths Registered.		Ratio per 1,000 of Population.		Excess of Deaths, 1877.
		1876.	1877.	1876.	1877.	Number.	Ratio per 1,000.

Poona	907,235	19,841	30,819	21·87	33·96	10,978	12·09
Khándesh	1,028,642	20,511	25,885	19·94	25·16	5,374	5·22
Násik	687,353	16,086	24,466	24·95	35·59	8,380	10·64
Total ..	7,919,028	203,567	436,302	25·71	55·09	232,735	29·39

On comparing this table with the preceding one, it will be observed that two of the districts with the highest death-rates in the first table, namely, Kánara, 54·12 per 1,000, and Bombay city, 51·55 per 1,000, do not appear among the famine districts; but the population of the city of Bombay was increased during the famine by a large influx of starving people from the country, and its mortality was raised in this way.

In the famine districts themselves the general results were as follows:—

Population	7,919,028
Deaths, 1876	203,567
Deaths, 1877	436,302
Excess of deaths in 1877	232,735
Death-rate, 1876	25·71
Death-rate, 1877	55·09
Excess of death-rate in 1877 per 1,000	29·39

It thus appears that the maximum registered loss of life from the famine in the affected districts was 232,735 = 29·39 per 1,000 of the census population. Perhaps some of the increase of deaths might be due to normal increase during the year, and, again, some deaths may have escaped registration. It is not unlikely that the loss of a quarter of a million may be nearly correct, as already stated, whatever may have been the cause.

10. Mr. Hewlett's report enables us to trace the whole course of the famine mortality month by month in each affected district; but it will be perhaps sufficient to select the facts in the Kaládgi district, because it suffered more than any other, as illustrating this part of the subject.

The rainfall in this district was as follows:—

Years.	Inches.	Years.	Inches.
1873 ...	15·73	1876 ...	4·76
1874 ...	38·30	1877 ...	27·22
1875 ...	24·51

The probable effect of the small rainfall of 1876 on the famine mortality can be estimated from this table; but Mr. Hewlett calls attention to another fact, namely, the probable influence of diminished rainfall in 1876 on the sanitary condition of the water-supply of 1877, and the effect of increased impurity on the public health, as shown by the diseases from which the people suffered.

Bearing these facts in mind, the next abstract shows the deaths per 1,000 in Kaládgi District, month by month, from the time preceding the famine until it was passing away:—

1876.	Deaths per 1,000.	1877.	Deaths per 1,000.
January	1·41	January	2·57
February	1·36	February	3·01
March	2·00	March	4·36
April	2·40	April	6·21
May	3·35	May	7·48
June	2·62	June	7·94
July	2·59	July	10·21
August	2·12	August	11·94
September	1·90	September	14·17
October	1·89	October	13·33
November	1·85	November	12·79
December	1·86	December	7·79
Rainfall, 1876 ...	4·76 in.	Rainfall, 1877 ...	27·22 in.

The diminished rainfall of 1876 shows its effect on the mortality during the whole of 1877, and it still continued its influence up to the end of the year, although the rainfall of 1877 exceeded the average of that of the three years preceding 1876 by about an inch.

11. As Kaládgi District affords a good illustration of the connection of rainfall and scarcity with monthly epidemic death-rates, it may be here introduced; the usual price of jowári is 56 lbs. per rupee:—

Months.	Rain.	Total Deaths.				Jowári lbs. per Rupee.
		Cholera.	Fever.	Bowel Complaints.	Small-pox.
1877.	Inches.
January	...	542	948	112	55	16
February	0·01	797	992	137	83	16
March	0·07	1,356	1,258	187	140	15
April...	1·05	1,986	1,850	252	173	12
May	0·63	1,529	2,853	313	109	11
June...	2·98	594	3,111	484	89	9
July	0·87	126	3,776	545	56	8
August	3·01	158	3,529	869	44	8
September	10·07	78	4,546	1,212	16	11
October	5·69	3	5,482	1,242	6	12
November	0·17	...	7,743	505	28	21
December	2·72	...	5,160	244	2	23

1. It will be seen that, as prices rose, cholera mortality declined.
2. That, as rain increased, cholera disappeared.
3. That fevers increased enormously with scarcity, but also with augmented rainfall.
4. That bowel complaints increased with scarcity, before the rainfall increased.
5. That small-pox was apparently unaffected.

Facts such as these, which have also been observed during the Madras famine, throw a flood of light on the causes of death during famine periods.

The districts which suffered most after Kaládgi were Sholapur, Sátára, Belgaum, Dhárwár; and the monthly mortality during 1876 and 1877 presented similar features to those in the preceding abstract.

12. The next point to be considered is the cause of mortality. Was it the result of sudden hunger and starvation, or of their consequences only? There is no evidence in the report of any death having arisen from starvation; but there is a probability that deaths from this cause may have directly occurred among certain people who preferred to die in their villages rather than to leave them for the purpose of obtaining relief, and also among infants from neglect and demoralization of their parents, but such cases were exceptional. Death from sheer hunger is nowhere a common event, and is mostly accidental, as, for instance, when people are shut up in mines. The mortality from famine is a far more serious matter than this, because famine saps slowly the powers of life, and, as Dr. Douglas Cunningham has shown in his very important inquiry into the pathological results of the Madras famine, it leads to profound and irreparable changes in the intestinal tissues, after which improved dietary itself becomes a cause of death. What is commonly understood as "famine" is in itself merely the consummation of a series of events already past. The mortality may continue or even increase after the food supplies have resumed their normal amount. This fact is shown statistically by the tables. In all the districts the prices were very high in 1877, and the death-rate was apparently highest when the food was dearest, but the mortality did not fall in the ratio of the fall of prices. Even in the relief houses and camps, where scarcity no longer existed, about 50,000 people died of famine incidents. The probability, therefore, is that the constitutional injury arising from deficient food had then done its work.

13. Considered simply as a public health question, scarcity of food and unwholesome food must apparently take rank with other local disease causes, and be dealt with as one of these, just as was the case under the ædileship in ancient times. The importance of this principle will become obvious enough when we have followed Mr. Hewlett in his exposition of the actual diseases from which the famine-struck people died. The following table gives the facts for all the districts and towns in Bombay Presidency in comparison with those for 1876:—

Years.	Cholera.	Small-pox.	Fevers.	Bowel Complaints.	Injuries.	Other Causes.	Total.
1876	32,117	11,817	220,833	33,683	5,928	63,882	368,260
1877	57,252	27,369	336,865	60,257	7,539	138,426	627,708
Increase in 1877... ...	25,135	15,552	116,032	26,574	1,611	74,544	259,448
Increase per cent. ...	78·26	131·61	52·54	78·89	27·18	116·69	70·45

This abstract shows an enormous increase in the total mortality of the Presidency from epidemic diseases during the famine year, but in order to arrive at the local facts we must separate the epidemic deaths of the famine districts from those of the Presidency generally.

The following are the data:—

Districts.	Census Population.	Deaths from Cholera.	Small-pox Deaths.	Fever Deaths.	Deaths from Bowel Complaints.	Total Deaths, 1877.
Famine	7,919,028	42,406	19,080	223,388	46,731	436,302
All others unaffected	8,262,713	14,846	8,289	113,477	13,526	291,406

The proportionate death-rate from these death causes in the two groups of districts may be represented in round numbers as follows:—

Ratios per 10,000 of the Population.

	Famine Districts.	Unaffected Districts.
Cholera	58	18
Small-pox	24	10
Fevers	280	137
Bowel complaints	59	16
All causes	550	352
Percentage of epidemic deaths to total deaths...	77	51½

These reductions show clearly the operation of the famine on the public health, and similar facts were reproduced in the jails, as will be seen by the following comparisons of death-rates in these institutes:—

	Death per 1,000.
	5 years, 1872-76.	1877.
Bowel diseases ...	6·1	25·27
Fevers	4·7	6·98
Cholera	0·4	3·27
Total...	11·2	35·52

The jail population was augmented by starving people, and in some of them the death-rates were enormous. Thus in Kaládgi jail the rate was 12 per cent., in Dhárwár 17¼ per cent., and in a gang in Belgaum it was 22½ per cent. Assuming that the registration was conducted with the same disease nomenclature in the famine and non-famine districts, the people were cut off by increase of epidemic mortality in the famine districts over the proportion registered in the unaffected districts under all the denominations of epidemics to the extent of 26½ per 1,000 epidemic deaths to the total deaths in the year in these unaffected districts. And for every 18 epidemic deaths in unaffected districts there were 42 epidemic deaths in famine districts out of the same population.

But the total deaths in unaffected districts to the total deaths in famine districts were as 35 to 55, and deducting in each case the epidemic mortality, there is left for the non-famine districts a death-rate of 17 per 1,000, and for the famine districts of only 12·7 per 1,000. It hence appears that many deaths which would have taken place in ordinary years in these latter districts from non-epidemic causes were registered during the famine year as due to epidemics, and if the figures can be relied on, the facts go to prove that the death causes in famine times are epidemics.

14. There has been some difference of opinion as to disease or diseases from which the famine-stricken population died. It will be better to discuss this point in reference to the account of the famine given in the Madras Report, and to data contained in the Report of the Sanitary Commissioner with the Government of India for 1877, and simply to state the facts for Bombay from Mr. Hewlett's Report, premising, however, that in all great epidemics the amount and quality of the food have always been observed factors in the questions of prevalence and fatality of epidemic diseases.

In the nine famine districts, with a population of 7,919,028, the total deaths of the famine year from fevers, bowel complaints, and other causes, excluding cholera, small-pox, and injuries, exceeded the average of the preceding five years by 216,498. The excesses reduced under specific heads during the famine year, as given by Mr. Hewlett, were—

Fever deaths	122,026
Bowel complaints...	26,012
Other causes	68,460

To the excesses entered under 'other causes' in this abstract nearly 30,000 must be added as cholera deaths, and hence it is probable that among the numbers registered under the head of 'other causes' there may have been famine deaths not recognized at the time as due to famine or its results.

It appears necessary to state that none of the figures give the absolute mortality due simply and solely to famine. The year 1877 was a great epidemic year in India, and had there been no famine it is possible that there might have been a very high death-rate in Bombay Presidency as a whole, but in the present sanitary condition of the country no cause could be assigned why in such a case certain districts should have suffered so much more than others, as the preceding abstract tables have shown to be the case. The presumption, therefore, is of the strongest kind that the presence of food scarcity, and what led up to it in these districts, acted fatally on all the chief death causes, especially on those registered as 'cholera,' 'fevers,' and 'bowel complaints,' although in the present state of the registration it may not be possible to assign the exact mortality due to 'famine,' or the additions made to the death-rates by it under any of the registration headings in use. In a preceding table it has been shown that the total deaths registered in 1877 in the famine districts exceeded those registered in 1876 by 232,735, and, so far as can be ascertained from the tables in the present Report, the total deaths in these districts in 1877 exceeded the average registered in the same districts during the preceding five years by about 258,000, so that the estimate already given of a loss of population of a quarter of a million during the famine year is brought home in this way to the famine districts apart from all discussion as to the death causes.

The fact is there, however it may be accounted for.

15. The relation of these deaths to food scarcity may be further elucidated by showing the numbers who died from the various causes specified month by month, in relation to the price of food in the same districts. For this purpose the five most severely affected districts are selected, viz. :—

and the number of pounds of jowári obtainable for a rupee is assumed as a test of scarcity. At ordinary times the average price of jowári in these districts is about 51 lbs. per rupee :—

These facts, which are of the same nature as those given for Kaládgi separately, would apparently justify the elimination of cholera from the deaths specially due to privation.

The law of the increase and decline of the disease did not follow the law of decline in the available food supply of the people. This is evident. It was otherwise, however, with fever and bowel complaints, which increased in mortality as food became dearer, while the effect of scarcity on these diseases continued after the price of food had fallen. This is what might have been expected with fevers, and especially with bowel complaints, in which the fatal constitutional evil had been done before the price of food began to fall.

The facts, so far as bowel diseases are concerned, are besides in entire accordance with the important pathological results produced by scarcity of food on the mucous membranes described by Dr. Douglas Cunningham in his interesting researches into this subject in Madras.

It is highly probable, as shown by the preceding abstract, that cholera had a direct relation to paucity of rain and consequent pollution of water sources. During 1876 only 4·76 inches of rain had fallen, and during the months of maximum cholera mortality in 1877 there had been no rain sufficient to make any impression on the water sources. As soon, however, as rain fell in quantities the cholera mortality fell rapidly, but the additional rainfall, which told favourably on the cholera death-rate, was followed by a large increase of deaths from fever. It would, therefore, be in accordance with other experience to charge part of the high fever-rate to heavy rain after long drought. But the bowel complaint mortality does not appear to have been so much under the influence of climatic causes. Both fever and bowel complaints were, as already stated, directly connected with scarcity,—not so cholera. Scarcity and rain augmented fever. Scarcity augmented fatal bowel disease, but rain was unfavorable to the advance of cholera, and appears to have put an arrest on it.

16. On the other hand, we have already seen that cholera was much more fatal in the districts affected by famine than in the others, and Mr. Hewlett's data show that this circumstance was due to a much larger number of villages having been attacked in the famine districts. These districts contain 12,276 villages, of which 2,463, or 20 per cent., were attacked with cholera, while in the other districts of Bombay Presidency furnishing village returns 699 villages out of 6,913, or 10 per cent., yielded cholera deaths. This fact might have been due either to greater local intensity of the epidemic, or to augmented predisposition from progressive scarcity of food. But the analogy of facts would justify the view that the former cause was the true one.

17. If we knew the precise nature of the fever which caused so great a mortality in the famine year, a further step could be made in assigning its causes.

But there is difference of opinion on the subject. In Bombay itself fever cases were diagnosed as belonging to relapsing fever, and the peculiar organisms considered as proving the fact were found in the blood, but they were also discovered by Dr. Lewis in the blood in other diseases, and moreover, the fever in the famine districts has been described as remittent fever, which is not a famine fever.

18. For practical purposes, the evidence as it stands may be summed up under the following heads.

The registered death-rate in Bombay Presidency for five years preceding 1877 was 21·01 per 1,000, while in the famine year it amounted to 38·79 per 1,000, showing an increase for the whole Presidency of 17·78 per 1,000, which, if the registration were trustworthy, would represent an increased mortality in 1877 over the previous five years' average of 287,700 deaths in round numbers.

The deaths registered for the whole Presidency in 1877 exceeded those registered in 1876 by 260,048.

In the nine famine districts the deaths registered in 1877 exceeded those registered in 1876 by 232,735, and the excess in 1877 was made up of augmentations under all the registration headings in use.

The additional death-rates in the famine year in the famine districts over the rates in the districts not affected by famine were as follows, for every 10,000 of the population :—

Cholera	40
Small-pox	14
Fevers	143
Bowel complaints	43

There are no facts to show that any number of people died of hunger, although it is possible that some such deaths may have been included under the head 'all other causes.'

Presuming that the general sanitary condition of the people remained very much the same as in preceding years, the following unfavourable conditions were superadded during 1877 :—

(1.) The year was a great epidemic year all over the south of India.

(2.) The rainfall of 1876 was only one-half the average of the preceding five years. In the most severely affected district no more than 4·76 inches fell. Deficient rainfall leads not only to failure of crops, but to failure of water-supply and impurity of all domestic water sources. The two results must be considered together in estimating the causes of mortality during the famine year.

(3.) So far as concerns the food supply of the people, the abstract already given shows that the price of food during the months of greatest scarcity rose nearly five-fold, and this among a people having few or no resources to fall back on.

(4.) The disease group which showed the most direct relation to the price of food was 'bowel complaints,' and to this fact must be added the result of Dr. Douglas Cunningham's discovery of the relation of deficient food to permanent pathological changes in the digestive organs, leading to death.

(5.) The 'fever group' increased in fatality with the rise of prices in 1877, but together with increasing scarcity there came rainfall in augmented proportions month by month, with great increase monthly of fever mortality, a usual consequence of rain after drought.

(6.) The mortality from cholera did not increase with the rise in the price of food. It was lowest at the time of highest price, but it fell rapidly when the amount of rain was greatest.

With these facts before us, it is impossible to deduce from them the absolute mortality due to food scarcity by itself, which after all was only one of the elements in the question. The primary cause of the entire calamity was want of water for cultivation and for domestic use. To this added cause in 1876 it was due that the crops failed and scarcity prevailed in the following year. To the same cause was due, as already shown, the aggravation of cholera, which ceased when rain fell, and also the augmentation of fever with heavy rainfall after drought.

19. The final result, so far as concerns the public health, is that sufficient and equalized water-supply, however this may be ensured, such as by tree planting, on high ground especially, by irrigation, by tanks, or by wells, is the only method of preventing such calamities. If every one had been sufficiently fed in 1877 most of the mortality and its causes would have been left untouched. And so far as concerns the food-supply, the facts in southern India all point in the same direction, and this is that there is a stage of privation which, if once passed, renders any relief measures in the way of increase of food not only useless but a cause of death, and hence, whenever deficient rainfall in one or several years bodes scarcity during the years following, the fact of the diminished rainfall must be taken as the index of famine, and not the scarcity, and provision made accordingly. How this can be best done is a matter for the Local Government to decide.

20. As the sanitary condition of the country generally was so closely associated with the famine of 1877, it is not necessary to discuss the death causes further, except in the case of violent deaths, on which a few remarks appear to be called for.

No fewer than 7,539 deaths are reported from causes other than natural. Of these, 1,181 deaths were due to snake-bite, and 80 persons were killed by wild beasts. There were 2,588 drownings, of which 1,203 took place in wells, 435 in tanks, and 950 otherwise.

Besides these, 107 bodies were found in wells, 49 in tanks, and 122 in other places.

There were hence 1,794 dead bodies taken out of sources of water-supply during the year. We long ago called attention to facts of this class, but they are still reproduced. Little appears to have been done in the way of reducing the mortality from snake-bite.

21. Small-pox and Vaccination.—The deaths from small-pox in Bombay Presidency amounted in 1877 to 27,369, the largest number ever registered from this cause; but, as already stated, 19,080 of these small-pox deaths took place in the famine districts, which contain less than half the population of the Presidency.

The first five months were the months of greatest prevalence of the disease. The mortality fell rapidly in June, and became comparatively small during the months of greatest scarcity. In its relation to the famine, small-pox followed the course of cholera rather than of fever; but like all the other death causes, it was under the influence of the same climatic conditions already referred to.

The vaccination service in 1877 gave the following results:—

	Population.	Successful Primary Vaccination.	Per 1,000 of Population.
British Territory ...	16,246,671	391,796	24·12
Native States	8,819,084	238,794	27·08

This gives a total of 630,590 persons protected by vaccination during the year, or a little over 2½ per cent. The work done is very large, but it will take many years to protect the entire population.

Animal vaccination is resorted to in Bombay, where, in 1877, there were 324 heifers inoculated with only four failures. Lymph obtained in this way was reported as being of "excellent quality."

The vaccination service during the year was carried out by 409 vaccinators, acting under 16 Deputy Sanitary Commissioners and Superintendents. The administrative details of the year's work are full of interest, and show that the Bombay vaccination service maintains all its former efficiency. We hope before long to receive accounts of the work done by this extensive organization in improving the general sanitary condition of the villages, of which no fewer than 14,126 were inspected for vaccination purposes during the year. The supervising staff collectively travelled 92,352 miles; they halted at 5,809 encampments, and inspected 266,781 children.

These facts show how large a power of doing real sanitary advising work in the villages is now in the hands of the Bombay Government.

Besides this work carried out by the Vaccination Department, the medical officers of 132 dispensaries performed 23,557 primary vaccinations and re-vaccinations in the course of the year. The vaccinations performed among British troops, men, women, children, and natives, amounted to 1,813, and in Native regiments, including camp followers, there were 4,393 primary and 1,104 successful re-vaccinations performed.

22. Military Sanitary Works.—During 1877 the sum of 53,831*l.* was spent on sanitary improvements at 25 stations.

The works carried out were mostly improvements in ventilation and lighting, water-supply, latrines, urinals, surface drainage, and re-construction of parts of buildings. They are chiefly matters of ordinary detail, but a few points are mentioned in the returns which merit notice.

It is satisfactory, for instance, to learn that 'pipes are now laid down to each of the buildings 'throughout the Wanowri lines (Poona) for water-supply.' This important work cost only 109*l.* At the same station 18 cross drains have been excavated in the compounds of the Officers' lines "for the 'purpose of keeping them from getting water-logged.' May not the very recent execution of work of such obvious necessity account for the fever cases there before it was done? But we have always objected to these cuts except on steep inclines, because if the earth surface is exposed to the water it may be washed down, and the cuts, unless provided with an impervious surface, only tend at last to saturate the subsoil with water.

At Sholápur the Moti Bagh tank has been deepened and the embankment widened. Three acres of marsh have been raised five feet and drained. It would be very important to observe and record the effect of this work on the health of the station.

One of the Baroda improvements is described as follows:—'Five wells have been covered with 'teakwood planks fixed to joists laid across the frames at the mouths of the wells. Trap doors have 'been provided to open the wells to draw water.' We have discussed the improvements required in wells so frequently that we must again refer to the principles we have laid down for ensuring water purity, with a suggestion that they may be compared with this method of dealing with the subject.

Asirgarh.—We have frequently described the water-supply of this fort and its defects. The present data are very instructive, and bring the history of the supply down to a recent date. It may be remembered that the favourable catch-water area of igneous rock supplying the tank had been so fouled by occupation that the water was quite unfit for use. The tank was emptied and cleansed, but the next washings were as foul. The Sanitary Commissioner then suggested cutting off the drainage of the occupied area from the tank. This was done, and the tank was again emptied and filled with rain-water, but the result has been the same; it has been found that the water is not improved by filtration, and it is not to be used in future for drinking.

The lesson afforded by this case is very important, and shows that any tank water may be injurious to health in India, unless care be bestowed on the gathering surface.

Hyderabad.—This station will have received the benefit of a water-supply by this time. It is pumped from the river into a settling tank, and is then pumped up into a 100,000 gallon tank, whence the water is laid on for use.

Jacobabad.—New hospital buildings at this station were being raised on plinths, 3 feet high, instead of on piles. We have already advised that all new buildings at this station should be constructed free of the ground, with several feet of clear space between the surface and the floor. Any material admitting of this improvement would possess greater advantages than brick with a solid plinth. In a paper recently received from the India Office an entirely untenable objection against raised floors is stated by a Medical Officer, namely, that the space below would harbour dirt. Just as if an acknowledged improvement should be rejected because it might be abused. Of course, such abuse could be easily prevented. The objector appears not to have known that the system of building on posts is in use in Burma, and on arches partly in Assam. It is needless to say that the Jacobabad hospital wards will be much less healthy than if they had been raised 6 feet above the ground level over an air space. It would almost be better to construct the ward itself over the brick walling intended for it.

At Aden improved arrangements for distributing distilled water have been introduced.

23. Under the head of Civil Sanitary Works there are brief returns of sanitary measures in 174 municipalities. They all consist of simple matters of detail, such as street and road improvements, surface drainage, improved wells and fountains, &c., planting trees, additional latrine accommodation, and similar works. There is nothing in the returns calling for remark.

In conclusion, the chief interest of this valuable Report centres in the history of the Bombay Famine of 1877. The facts detailed by Mr. Hewlett, together with those in Mr. Cornish's Report for Madras Presidency, have thrown much light upon the whole subject of Indian famines, by showing that food scarcity is only one of the death causes which decimate the population in famine times, and that in future famines their causes, concomitants, and management may be dealt with on a scientific foundation.

FOREST.

Read a letter from the Government of the Punjab, No. 458C., dated the 17th July 1879.

Read also the following extract from a letter from the Conservator of Forests to the Government of the Punjab, No. 1241, dated the 30th June 1879, regarding the experimental cultivation of the Carob tree (Ceratonia Siliqua) :—

* * * * * * * *

5. Speaking generally of the growth of the Carob tree, it may be safely said that there is no difficulty whatever in raising the Carob tree in the Punjab. There are trees in almost every station garden in the province. But the tree being diœcious, it is necessary to have several trees in order that there may be fruit. The seed germinates well; and though the tree likes plenty of water, there is no difficulty in raising it with but little water. It dreads severe frost and saline soil—that is all. It has, I believe, been most largely planted in the Sháhápur district. At Lahore there are numerous trees; and I have in my own garden one about ten or twelve years old, laden with fruit.

6. The only question is, will it ever be popular with the Natives, and become useful? will they plant it about their wells and on hedgerows between the fields?—My own fear is, that they do not care for it.

7. The pods are altogether inferior to the European. I have been watching mine, and I find that, while they are green, they are intensely astringent, and that now (end of May) they seem to be ripening rather by a sort of fitful drying up process than of a gradual mellowing and ripening all over. The green pods begin to exhibit brown patches where the seeds lie, then to turn brown at the tip; finally to curl up and dry. Whether it is that our heat of May and June is too great, I cannot tell. Although my tree is in excellent soil and constantly watered, the pods are thin and the seeds not half the size of the pods one sees in Europe. They are slightly sweet when ripe, and have lost in that state most of the astringent flavour.

8. It is my intention, besides persevering with the Carob plot and gradually introducing more and more plants into the small area available, to sow a few acres in the Kot Lakhpat rakh. This rakh is in the vicinity of Lahore, and is constantly supervised, as it is being sown with jand and kikar for the purposes of general improvement of its growth (as a fuel reserve).

9. Thus it will be seen that the growth of the tree itself offers no difficulty whatever. The principal object now to be borne in mind is to ascertain whether grafting is necessary, or whether the fruit can be improved by manure and free watering.

If either of these is the case, though it will, I fear, prove a serious bar to the tree becoming popular or generally grown, still it is a difficulty that can be overcome.

If, on the other hand, it is not the case, and it is the climate that is in fault, then the experiment must be considered a failure, unless by acclimatising we can gradually change the character of the tree.

10. Meanwhile a quantity of good European seed has been written for to continue the cultivation; and I will also make enquiries about grafting. If possible, I will get some good trees out from which to graft. We shall then have all the following conditions under trial: (1) trees grown from acclimatised seed; (2) ditto grafted, (3) trees grown from fresh imported seed; (4) ditto grafted. The results of all these will have to be compared, and ought to settle the question in due time.

* * * * * * * *

12. In conclusion, I beg to say that I have sent to Mr. Duthie at Saharanpur a bag containing some of the ripe fruit pods that I have gathered. They are small both as to the pod and seed—much smaller and thinner than those seen for sale in England in shops.

13. I may add that I have never tried manuring and pruning the trees; but even should we thus succeed in improving the crop, it would be a heavy drawback to the popularity of the tree as a kind to be commonly grown by the peasantry.

P.S.—Since writing the above, I have learnt from Europe (through Mr. Vincent) that the tree is never grafted. It, however, takes ten to twelve months to mature its large sweet pods. In the Punjab the tree flowers in December, and the pods are in this rapid climate hurriedly ripened (see paragraph 7) in six months, by the first week in June. We may be able to accustom the plant to the climate, so that it is worth while persevering.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Bombay Castle, 27th August 1879.

No. 4496.—The following Resolution of the Government of India is republished :—

"No. $\frac{3\,8\,2}{3\,9\,2}$

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India in the Home, Revenue and Agricultural Department (Agriculture and Horticulture),—under date Simla, the 15th August 1879.

READ—

Resolution in the Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce, Nos. 514-24C., dated the 2nd November 1877, relative to the cultivation of the ground-nut in India.

RESOLUTION.

OBSERVATIONS.—The ground-nut (Arachis hypogæa—N. O. Leguminosae) is otherwise known as Manilla-nut, earth-nut, pea-nut, and pig-nut. Its vernacular synonyms are China-badám and Vilaiti Moong, Hindustani; Moong phalli, Bengali; Myé-bye, Burmese; Ver kadale and Vella kadale, Tamil; Katjang, Malay.

2. From the seed of the nut a considerable proportion of excellent oil is expressed, varying in quantity, according to circumstances, from 33 to 50 per cent. of the weight of the husked seed: the oil is of a light-greenish colour, very clear and bright, and is largely used in Europe and in India for illumination. It is also used both for the table when mixed with olive-oil, and for the lubrication of machinery. The oil is good for every purpose for which olive and almond oil are used; it makes good soap, and has the advantage of not quickly becoming rancid and of burning without smoke. The nut is eaten, roasted, by natives, and occasionally by Europeans in India. It is of universal consumption in the United States and by Spaniards, both in Spain and in America: it is eaten roasted, and is also used in confectionery. The following extract from Mr. P. L. Simmonds' Tropical Agriculture shows the value of the ground-nut as a food :—

'Dr. Muter, after giving the following analysis of ground-nut meal, urges its more general use as an important article of food :—

Moisture	9·6
Fatty matter	11·8
Nitrogenous compounds (flesh-formers)	31·9
Sugar, Starch, &c.	37·8
Fibre	4·3

'From this analysis it is evident,' he observes, 'that the residue from them, after the expression of the oil, far exceeds that of peas, and is even richer than lentils in flesh-forming constituents, while it contains more fat and more phosphoric acid than either of them. On these grounds, we are justified in urging the adoption of the ground-nut meal as a source of food, it being superior in richness of all important constituents to any other vegetable products of a similar nature. Although in the raw state it possesses a somewhat harsh odour, similar to that of lentils, this flavour entirely passes off in cooking, and, when properly prepared, it has a very agreeable flavour.'

The green plant forms excellent fodder for cattle, and the cake left after expression of the oil is a valuable cattle food and manure.

3. In the Resolution read in the preamble the following remarks were made in regard to the developement of the cultivation and trade in the nut :—

In connection with this subject, the Governor General in Council thinks it opportune to record his opinion that it is of more importance to stimulate and develope the production of articles already known in the country, than to initiate costly experiments in articles not commercially known, and of which the ultimate success is problematical. One of these articles is the ground-nut (Arachis hypogæa). The kernel of the pod of this plant produces a very large proportion of excellent oil, extensively used in Europe as well as in this country. The plant grows abundantly in the Madras Presidency and elsewhere, but it does not seem to be fully utilized.

The exports of the nut to foreign countries in 1875-76 were, from Madras, 6,994 cwt., value Rs. 29,774, and from Bombay, 3,721 cwt., value Rs. 13,845. From Bengal the exports have been so trifling that they have not been separately distinguished. The plant is grown to some extent in Burma, but not sufficiently, for local consumption, and quantities are imported from Madras.

Although the exports to foreign countries from British India are trifling, considerable quantities are sent from Pondicherry to France, as will be seen from the following figures, which have been extracted from the French trade returns of 1875 :—

	Kilogrammes.	Value. Francs.
Imports from British India...	1,231,803	406,494
,, ,, French India...	6,404,899	2,113,616

The total imports into France in the year from all countries were 101,524,468 kilogrammes, or nearly 100,000 tons, worth 33,503,000 francs.

Thus, out of this total value of 33½ millions francs, only 2⅓ millions stand against India, of which French India has by far the largest share. Nearly all the rest is imported from the western coast of Africa.

The French trade in ground-nuts is a large and increasing one, the extraction of the oil, which is in considerable demand for the manufacture of soap, for consumption as food, and for other purposes, being conducted on a large scale at Marseilles. If the cultivation can be developed in this country, it seems probable that British India should be able to compete with Africa and supply France with a very considerable part of her requirements of this article, adding the ground-nut to other oil seeds, such as gingelly and rape, which are now exported to France in great quantities.

The Governor General in Council requests that the Local Governments will be good enough to obtain particulars of the extent of its cultivation in their provinces, and to report them with any particulars they can ascertain as to the consumption of the seed and oil in the country. His Excellency in Council will also be glad to be favoured with any suggestions they may wish to make as to possible development of the cultivation and trade. In the maritime provinces it is desirable that the export trade should be recorded in the monthly and annual returns, and this should be done with effect from the 1st of April next, in both the foreign and coasting trade returns.

4. The results of the enquiries instituted by Local Governments and Administrations are summarized below :—

5. MADRAS.—The Board of Revenue, reviewing the replies of the Collectors of the districts, state that the cultivation of the ground-nut is on the whole very limited, the total area cultivated with this crop in Fasli 1286 (i.e., 1876-77) being only about 34,632 acres, out of an area of 19 millions of acres under crop in that year in the Madras Presidency. Loose sandy soil in the vicinity of the sea, or alluvial soils on the side of rivers, are stated to be best suited for the growth of the plant.

The nut is not generally consumed as an article of food, but the kernel is fried and eaten by the poor, especially by children, more as a luxury than as an article of ordinary diet. The oil is used for lamps, giving a bright light, free from smell and smoke, and sometimes for cooking purposes. In France it passes as olive-oil. The cake is given to cattle, and also used as a manure.

The following figures are available as illustrating the exports of the seed and oil, both foreign and coastwise, in the districts of the Presidency :—

In 1876-77, the exports by land from South Arcot to Pondicherry were, seed 29,700 cwt. and oil 20,502 cwt. The areas under cultivation in Tanjore and South Arcot, where there are French Settlements, average 5,413 and 25,000 acres respectively, yielding a produce of 41,802 cwt. and 258,750 cwt. respectively. The cultivation of the nut is well known in the Presidency, and increase of production will follow any increased demands.

6. BOMBAY.—The nut is not cultivated anywhere in Sind, but imported for sale and is to be found in all bazars; it is roasted and eaten by the natives, and is very generally used. Several officers have evinced a desire to try its cultivation.

It is not cultivated, except to a very trifling extent, in the Northern Division of the Bombay Presidency. In 1877 it was experimentally cultivated in one field in Ahmedabad, and on a small area in the Surat district, where it produced about 1,238 Bengal maunds, which were locally consumed for food purposes. Importation into this division is on a very small scale, the nut being merely used for food and not for manufacturing oil; and any development of the export trade must be looked for elsewhere than in the Northern Division, a very great part of which is not well suited for the cultivation of the nut.

The Collector of Násik states that the ground-nut is grown in almost all the tálukas of that district in land irrigated by páts as a rotation crop; that not more than from 1,000 to 2,000 acres are cultivated with it in any one táluka; that the nut is used as food; that oil is also extracted from it, generally for the purpose of adulterating other oils; that the crop requires a good deal of water; and that about half the produce is consumed within the district, the remainder being exported to Bombay.

The Collector of Khándesh reports that, in 1876-77, ground to the extent of 2,151 acres and 37 gunthás was cultivated with the ground-nut in his district, and subjoins remarks by Messrs. Blathwayt, Woodward, and Stormont to the effect that—what is grown is used almost entirely for food, and consumed within the district; that a small portion is used for the production of oil, which is employed chiefly for adultering other oils; and that the crop is grown on irrigated land, and is not profitable in comparison with other garden produce.

The main objection to the ground-nut as a regular oil-crop is that, in Khándesh, where the soil is mostly tenacious and cloddy, it is difficult to recover all the nuts from the ground, so that some always remain in the ground, and by germinating become a troublesome weed.

The Collector of Ahmednagar reports that a small area (between 1,100 and 1,200 acres) of land is cultivated with ground-nut; that good soil is necessary for its cultivation; that it is invariably an irrigated crop; and that the expenses of cultivation are great, but that the profits are in proportion and generally exceed those from other crops usually grown on soil of similar description to that on which the ground-nut is sown.

The Collector of Poona roughly estimates that about 21,000 acres are cultivated with ground-nut chiefly in Khed táluka. He says that it requires irrigation and can be grown on almost any soil, but flourishes best on red and stony ground; that it is a more profitable crop than any other; and that about three-fourths is converted into oil and the rest used as food on fast days. He is of opinion that, if an export trade could be started from Bombay and agents established in the mofussil towns to purchase the nut, the cultivators would learn its value, and the crop could be grown to almost any extent required.

The Acting Collector of Sholápur reports that land to the extent of about 15,000 acres, chiefly in Bársi táluka, is cultivated with the nut, which is grown in soft, black and reddish soil, and used as food by the poor to a small extent, and by Hindus generally on fast days. He states that oil is extracted from it to a great extent for lighting and other purposes, and that it is said to be a very profitable crop where it can be grown without irrigation, and moderately so elsewhere.

The Collector of Sátára reports that about 29,000 acres are annually cultivated with the nut in that district; that it is generally grown on good soil, but irrigation is absolutely necessary for its proper growth; and that the profits from its cultivation exceed those from other crops usually grown on similar soils.

In submitting these reports from the Collectors of his division, the Commissioner, Central Division, says that—

The nut is chiefly grown in the Sátára, Sholápur, and Násik Collectorates, and he has no doubt that, should a demand for the nut spring up in mercantile circles, its growth would be largely and rapidly extended, as it is said to be a very paying crop.

The Commissioner, Southern Division, states that the ground-nut is cultivated to a limited extent in two tálukas of the Belgaum district only, and 75 per cent. of the produce is consumed locally, and that in the remaining districts of that division it is imported in small quantities for local consumption, and is mixed with kardi kusumbá or safflower, the oil thus extracted being used for culinary and lighting purposes.

The Government of Bombay adds generally that the nut is grown in that Presidency almost entirely for local consumption, but that, should any great demand for the crop arise, an immediate and large extension of the cultivation would undoubtedly result.

7. BENGAL.—The ground-nut is not grown as an article of trade in the Lower Provinces of Bengal. The following paragraphs contain such particulars as have been furnished of its cultivation:—

In the Presidency Division it is grown to a very small extent, and the seed and oil are not largely consumed.

In the Patna Division it is not grown, except to a very limited extent in the gardens of some of the rich natives of the Hajeepore sub-division of the Mozufferpore district, and in the Chumparun district.

In the Rajshahye and Cooch Behar Divisions it is not grown. From a private experiment made by him, Mr. French, Manager of the Court of Wards' Estates, Dinagepore, thinks that the nuts might grow in Dinagepore.

In the Chota Nágpur Division it is unknown, except in Hazáribágh, where it is cultivated in the town on a very small scale as a dessert fruit by a few gentlemen.

In the Bhágalpur Division the nut is not grown, except occasionally in the gardens of a few planters in the Muddehpoora sub-division of the Bhágalpur district, and to a small extent as an article of luxury in the Purneah district.

In the Burdwan Division it is not grown, except to a very small extent in the Beerbhoom district, where it is used as an article of food, but not of commerce, and in the gardens of a few well-to-do natives in Hooghly.

In the Chittagong, Dacca, and Orissa Divisions it is not grown.

8. NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES AND OUDH.—Mr. Buck, Director of Agriculture and Commerce, states that his attention was drawn to this product from his having noticed the enormous extent to which it is cultivated in America under the name of pea-nut. The nut is little grown in the North-Western Provinces, but it is found in market-gardens near towns under the name of Moong-phalli. It requires a sandy soil, and perhaps wants a moister climate than the North-Western Provinces can give it, but may succeed with canal irrigation. In the North-Western Provinces it appears to be used as a luxury, and no oil is extracted from it, nor is it exported. It is cultivated as a garden, and not a field crop. The only districts in which it is known to have been grown are Bánda, Hamírpur, Jaunpur, and Mirzapur; it is sown in the months of June and July, and the crop is cut from December to February, the outturn being from 4½ to 15 maunds per acre. It is chiefly used for food, though in Bánda and Mirzapur oil is said to be extracted from the seed. The green leaves are readily eaten by cattle, and, when rotted, make excellent manure. It is occasionally imported into the North-Western Provinces from Gwalior and Jubbulpore. Experiments with the plant have been undertaken in the Government Farms at Cawnpore and Allahabad, and in the Lucknow and Saháranpur gardens with the results reported below:

The experiments at Saháranpur were made partly with seed raised in the gardens during the previous year, and with seed obtained from Bengal; 1 lb. 3 ozs. of the former seed gave an outturn of 61 lbs., being almost 49-fold; and 8 lbs. of the latter seed yielded 192 lbs., or 24-fold. There was no apparent difference in the size of the nut or quantity of the crops.

In the Lucknow horticultural gardens 6 lbs. of Bengal seed sown gave an outturn or 192 lbs., or 32-fold. The land was ploughed three times and manured at the rate of 400 maunds per acre; the crop was irrigated four times and weeded twice. The area on which the seed was sown was 1,164 yards, which gives a rate of yield per acre of about 9¾ maunds. The value of the produce at 4 seers per rupee would be Rs. 97-8 per acre. This compares favourably with the value of the produce of an acre of sugarcane, which, under the same amount of cultivation, is estimated at Rs. 70.

Bengal seed was sown at the Allahabad and Cawnpore Government Farms, but the result in both places proved a failure owing to want of proper management, the outturn per acre at Allahabad being only 90 lbs. and at Cawnpore somewhat less.

Mr. Buck believes that the nut can be cultivated with profit only in the damper Sub-Himalayan regions where the climate most closely approximates to that of Bengal. It is well known at Cawnpore and other places.

9. PUNJAB.—The ground-nut is known in most districts as an article of local cultivation. It is imported into Delhi from Bombay and Gwalior, and into the neighbouring districts from Delhi, and is generally sold by the vendors of dried fruits at the rate of 8 annas a seer. It is eaten in small quantities like pistachio nuts, but its use as an oilseed is unknown. The value of the nut cannot be judged from the few experiments made with it in all three districts of the Delhi Division; but seeing that the zamindars are averse to the introduction of any new products, it seems doubtful whether the cultivation of the nut would there be successful. The Punjab Government suggest that a few experiments might be tried in the Government garden in each district.

In Hissar it is not cultivated. Some years ago the Deputy Commissioner (Colonel Forster) tried its cultivation experimentally in the public garden, where it throve very well and produced a good crop. It requires a fair share of irrigation, and there is no doubt it would grow well enough and be sufficiently productive on canal-irrgated land, but it will not otherwise flourish.

It is unkown in the Jullundur Division, except to Mr. J. W. Wright, C.E., Executive Engineer, Military Works, Jullundur Division, who in 1865 tried the following experiment:—Half a seer of nuts was sown on a plot of 400 square feet about the end of April, and germinated freely. The crop was dug up in January 1866, and the outturn was five seers of fine nuts; half a seer of nuts was kept for seed and sown again in the spring of 1866, and the result was about the same; but the nuts were not quite so full and large. Half a seer was kept and sown in the spring of 1867, but the nuts failed to germinate. The nut requires a light sandy soil, and, so far as Mr. Wright's experience goes, much irrigation is not necessary. The surface of the soil should not be allowed to become a hard crust, as it prevents the plants from sending down the nut-bearing shoots from the runners which are thrown out during the rains. Just before the rains a small quantity of manure was sprinkled over the plot after it had been broken up. The nut will thrive best in a moist climate, and Mr. Wright doubts much whether the Punjab is well suited for it. It would be easy to try it on some of the sandy patches in Jullundur, trusting to the natural moisture of the ground, and also a second lot near wells where water can be had when required, and then note results. When the crop is dug up, the old plants should be destroyed and a fresh piece of ground selected for the next year's crop.

In Siálkot an experiment was tried in the public gardens some three years ago, and 'the produce of a small plot of ground was sufficient to indicate that the cultivation would be remunerative.' The Deputy Commissioner of the district suggests that the sandy and fertile soil of the 'Bajwat' tract in that district would probably be a suitable place for experiment.

It is unknown in Sirsa, and, according to the Deputy Commissioner, unlikely to succeed there; but Mr. Wakefield, a former Deputy Commissioner of the district, now at Ludhiána, states that he grew it at Sirsa in his own garden, and he proposes to try it in Ludhiána.

Dr. Henderson, Civil Surgeon of Ráwalpindi, says that in Lahore the plant succeeded well on sandy soil, but failed on clayey soil.

The Financial Commissioner says that the manufacture of oil from this nut does not seem to be known in any part of the Punjab. The nut, where it is known at all, is eaten in small quantities as food, and probably only as a luxury; and it cannot be determined whether the cultivation of the plant for the sake of the oil or for export to Europe would be remunerative, until experiments on a larger scale have been undertaken. With this view the Financial Commissioner thinks it would be useful to ascertain whether nuts produced in the dry climate of the Punjab will yield the same proportion of oil as in the moister parts of India where the cultivation is better known. He suggests that seed be procured for further experiment. The Lieutenant-Governor seems to think experiment unnecessary, because the plant apparently requires a higher temperature than that of the Punjab.

10. CENTRAL PROVINCES.—In these Provinces, as in the Punjab, the plant is grown to but a small extent for food, and not for the extraction of oil. The divisional officers report as follows:—

Nágpur Division.—It is not cultivated at all in the Chánda, Bálághát, and Upper Godávári districts, and scarcely at all in Bhandára; it is cultivated to a limited extent in the Wardha and Nágpur districts; but the necessity for irrigation on the one hand, and the limited demand on the other, prevent its cultivation from being more general.

Jubbulpore Division.—The people understand its cultivation better than in Nágpur, and it is therefore more general; but there is no exportation, and it is only used as an edible luxury.

Nerbudda Division.—It is not cultivated at all in Narsinghpur, and but little in Hoshangabad, Betúl, and Chindwára. Nimar is the only district in which there is really any regular, though very limited, cultivation of the plant. Consumption is chiefly local, and but little is exported to the neighbouring district of Hoshangabad.

Chhattisgarh Division.—The plant is quite unknown, except in the Biláspur district, where it was introduced by a Mahratta gardener, who uses the seed only in the preparation of sweetmeats.

It seems to be generally believed that soil suitable for its production would be easily obtainable in the Central Provinces, but the demand must rise considerably before it will be possible to extend cultivation to any appreciable degree.

11. BRITISH BURMA.—The plant is grown to a very limited extent in this Province; the seed is used as food, and no oil is extracted; it is cultivated almost exclusively by Shans, who seem to have introduced it into the Province.

12. ASSAM.—There is no cultivation of the plant, nor any appreciable trade in, or consumption of the nut or its oil in Assam; it is doubtful whether any artificial encouragement of its introduction would be successful.

13. MYSORE.—The cultivation of the nut is almost wholly limited to the Bangalore and Kolar districts of the Nundydroog division.

In the Bangalore district the statistics for 1873-74 to 1877-78 show that the average area annually under cultivation with the nut was 3,540 acres, with an outturn of about 3,131 tons, of which about 1,149 tons were exported. Of the remainder, 1,085 tons were retained for consumption, and about 897 tons used for extraction of the oil.

In the Kolar district the area under cultivation annually is stated to be 1,054 acres, yielding about 1,640 tons; the greater portion of this quantity, viz., 1,190 tons, was consumed locally as food, and the remainder 450 tons used for the extraction of oil. It does not appear that any portion of the product is exported, but the Chief Commissioner apprehends that the information supplied on this point is deficient.

The nut is cultivated to a small extent in the Túmkúr district of the Nundydroog division and in the Chitaldroog district of the Nagar division.

The Chief Commissioner states that from the fact that the nut is chiefly cultivated in the Nundydroog division, it may be inferred that its value as an article of export has been to some extent recognised in the districts adjacent to Bangalore, and its cultivation and use otherwise than as an article of consumption may be expected in course of time to develope and extend further into the interior. The progress already made may be estimated by the fact that, prior to the assumption of the British rule in the province, the extraction of oil from the ground-nut had been prohibited, and in 1860 Sir Mark Cubbon, the then Chief Commissioner, deemed it necessary to issue a notification formally cancelling that interdict, and pointing out to the people the advantages of employing the oil as an article of trade.

The plant is ordinarily cultivated as an alternative crop on land watered by wells; it is put down during the first rains in April to June, and harvested in January or February following. The leaves are used to enrich the soil for the cultivation of sugar-cane and other crops, which are considered more productive.

14. BERAR.—In Amráoti, 1,300 acres were cultivated with the plant during the year 1877-78. A small quantity was exported to the Bombay Presidency. The nut is eaten by the people, but oil is not extracted from it. The soil of the district is said to be quite unsuitable for its growth, and the ravages caused by pigs, combined with the scanty yield, is against the extension of its cultivation.

In Ellichpur it is practically unknown. A few mális are said to have raised a small quantity, but the cultivation is so limited, that it has not been separately recorded in the returns.

In Wún about 259 acres in one táluka were sown with the nut last year, the yield from which is said to have been at the rate of 800 lbs. per acre. It was sold at 13 seers per Rupee, the receipts per acre being thus Rs. 30-12; the cost of cultivation is not mentioned. The nut is eaten, but is not used for the extraction of oil.

In Akola it is cultivated in only two tálukas; the area cultivated last year was 190 acres. The nut is generally eaten by Hindus on fast-days, but nowhere used for making oil. The Deputy Commissioner does not think its cultivation could be increased, as other crops are more profitable.

In Buldána 1,111 acres were cultivated with the nut; it is eaten by Hindus on fast days, but no oil is extracted.

In Básim cultivation is so limited that the area under it has not been separately shown.

The Resident thinks the cultivation of the plant not capable of much extension in Berar. It is culturable only as a garden crop, and, garden cultivation being comparatively limited, this alone acts as a check upon the extended cultivation of the nut. He feels confident, from his own experience, that where the ground-nut thrives, as in Mysore and other places, it may be turned to most useful and profitable account. The oil extracted from it is good, and realises a price which repays production, while the refuse forms an excellent cake for feeding cows and fattening cattle and sheep for market.

15. AJMERE.—The nut is not grown in this district; it was once grown in two or three biswas of well land in the village of Rámsar, and the outturn was about 13 seers.

16. From the above summary it appears that the total recorded area under cultivation with the ground-nut in all India is about 112,000 acres, exclusively in the Madras and Bombay Presidencies, Berar and Mysore. In the Bombay Presidency, the area (70,350 acres) is more than double that of Madras (34,630 acres), although such exportation as there is from British India to foreign countries is confined to the latter Presidency. The yield per acre is stated to range from ten cwts. in Tanjore and South Arcot to over one ton per acre in Kolar. In Central and Northern India the nut is cultivated for food or for conversion into oil, in both cases to a very small extent and only for local consumption. The plant likes a light sandy soil and a considerable amount of water, with a tolerably equable, subtropical temperature, and these requirements may be supplied in many parts of the littoral of the Bombay and Madras Presidencies, the eastern districts of Bengal, and the Burman coast. The cultivation is very profitable, and the demand, which is mostly for France, is large. In 1878, the imports into France of 'Arachides et noix de touloucouna' amounted to 111,443,366 kilogrammes valued at 30,239,602 francs. Of this quantity, upwards of 103,000,000 kilogrammes were imported from the western coasts of Africa, where the negroes have found the cultivation a very profitable investment. The exports of the nut from British India of the official year 1878-79 amounted to only 25,472 cwt. (1,294,402 kilogrammes), or little more than 1 per cent. of the imports into France.

17. The question now is whether India should be content to leave France to draw all her supplies of this valuable food-stuff and commercial product from Africa, or whether she should not enter actively into competition for, at any rate, a substantial portion of the trade. The cultivation is no novelty requiring the removal of prejudices and other obstacles, for its introduction. The plant is well known and appreciated by the people, and in some places the cultivation is already not insignificant and there is abundant room for development. Cultivators would probably respond without delay or difficulty to any call made upon them for an increased production, but they can hardly be expected to undertake any considerable risk by largely increasing the area under the plant without first having an assured demand for the produce. The increase of the effective demand must depend upon the action of produce merchants at the chief ports of export. The Governor General in Council has thought it expedient to give publicity to the foregoing details, in case the merchants of Bombay, Madras and Calcutta should find it to their advantage to enter into relation with the Marseilles houses, who import this staple, or with dealers in the districts where the nut is already a recognised agricultural staple.

ORDER.—Ordered, that the above Resolution be communicated to the Local Governments and Administrations for information; and with a request that it may be published in the Local Government Gazettes.

Ordered, also, that the Resolution be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India.

Anant Fandi was a popular poet who flourished in the reign of Bájiráw Raghunáth, the last Peshwá. He was a Brahmin by caste, and lived as a Tamásha-maker, or ballad singer, in his younger days, but subsequently became a Haridás or popular preacher. He was a poet of considerable natural power, and recited songs composed impromptu. He appears to have received little or no education; yet he seems to possess much information about the legends and stories current among the people. He is said to have composed many popular songs, called Láwnis, Powádás, Katáws, Padas, &c. The compilation contains, in addition to a few Láwnis, Shri Mádhaw Granth, or a work on Mádhaw and a few Powádá songs of the poet. The poem Shri Mádhaw, though so called after the young Peshwá Mádhawráw Náráyan, only describes the intrigues, plots and counter-plots which prevailed in the Poona darbár after the suicide of Mádhawráw, between the two rival political parties, one headed by the clever but then powerless Náná Farnawis, and the other by Daulatráw Sindia, then the most powerful chief in the Maráthá confederacy. The compiler gives a short sketch of the life of the bard, containing a few facts of his life and a few anecdotes about him.

He is enjoined to perform it thrice a day, namely, at sunrise, noon and sunset. The formulas to be repeated are the same with a little change suitable to each occasion. The Sandhyá given in this work is a "short" formula alleged to have been collected from Sánkhyáyan sutra and Pravoga dipa. The work also contains a hymn to Saraswati, the goddess of learning. The commentary in Gujaráti gives explanations as to the acts to be performed at the different stages of the prayer.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Bombay Castle, 2nd September 1879.

No. 4658.—The following Circular from the Government of India is published :—

"CIRCULAR No. 33F.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India in the Home, Revenue and Agricultural Department,—dated Simla, the 18th August 1879.

FORESTS.

Read the following extracts from the Annual Report of Forest Administration in the Southern Division of the Bombay Presidency for the year 1877-78 :—

* * * * * * * * *

57. Fire-suppression was particularly successful along the Supa, Bidi, and Belgaum ghâts from Unshi, looking down on Kudra and the Kalinadi River, to near the head of the Parpuli ghât, a distance, in a straight line along the ghâts, of about 70 miles, and again back from them to an average of certainly not less than 15, giving the area, at a rough calculation, 1,050 square miles.

58. Some fires did certainly break out, and in different parts; but they were extinguished before they could make much way or do harm, in a most creditable manner by the people. Some Inámdárs' tracts were burnt clean as usual, but the Government forests over the area described were kept singularly free from this acknowledged evil.

59. This, in fact, was almost the most pleasing and successful part of the year's administration; but for the reasons and means we have not far to look.

60. The suppression of fires along and in the immediate neighbourhood of the ghâts was due most unquestionably to the Departmental collection of hirdas (myrabolams, or the dried fruit of the Terminalia Chebula) alone, which gave greater interest than ever to (1) the Forest Department, and (2) the people themselves to suppress them, so as to save the fallen fruit below the trees from destruction, and gather the largest possible crop.

61. The former, strongly supplemented by a fair temporary establishment, especially engaged for the purpose, that traversed the villages and their tracts almost daily and kept up heartiness, felt there was something more than ordinary at stake, and that, if the experiment resulted well, reward in better-paid and more permanent employ would be gained; and the latter were moved by self-interest, now that they are being for the first time properly paid for collecting.

62. But, apart from this also, the Conservator and his Assistant, Mr. J. L. Laird, had the good-will of the hill people with them, which was everything.

* * * * * * * * *

83. The following is a brief sketch of the departmental collection of myrabolams carried on during the past season, compared with the farming system or auction-sale of the right to collect them since 1869-70.

84. As in the farming system the sales give right during the Fasli year, that is to say, between the 1st August in one year and the 31st July in the next, which embraces the whole of a single fruiting season; so also, for comparison sake, is given the full period covering the departmental collection.

85. The following exhibits the receipts and expenditure on account of the departmental collection of myrabolams during the season beginning with October 1877 and ending with 31st May 1878 : estimate compared with actuals; fractions of rupees excluded :—

No.	Collectorate.	Receipts.				Expenditure.				Net Profit.
		Special Estimate	Actuals.	Increase.	Decrease.	Special Estimate	Actuals.	Increase.	Decrease.
		Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
1	Kánara	42,438	51,062	8,624	...	19,488	21,469	1,981	...	29,593
2	Belgaum	74,600	61,437	...	13,163	25,240	14,064	...	11,176	47,373
	Total ...	1,17,038	1,12,499	8,624	13,163	44,728	35,533	1,981	11,176	76,966

N.B.—1. Quantity of fruit it was estimated would be collected : 8,380 candies of 560 lbs. each in weight.
Do. do. actually collected 7,823 do. do. or 557 candies less.

2. The net profit was estimated at ... Rs. 72,310
That actually obtained was ... „ 76,966 or
Rs. 4,656 more.

86. The increase over estimate in Kánara by the large sum of Rs. 8,624 is very satisfactory, and the increase in expenditure by Rs. 1,981 is due mostly to 261 candies more fruit than estimated having been collected, and, therefore, its carriage and collection to be paid for.

87. In the Bidi Táluka of Belgaum there is a decrease in receipts, compared with estimate, of 211 candies of fruit and of Rs. 1,580. This would not have been so, but for the severe fever that prevailed in most of the forest villages of this táluka in November and December, when much fruit rotted in the wet grass from want of hands to collect it.

In the expenditure compared with the estimate in this (the Bidi) táluka there is a saving of Rs. 6,924, due to certain carting charges, amounting to Re. 1 for every candy of fruit collected at some general depôt, and the purchase of bags and carts, &c., having been avoided; also to a smaller quantity of fruit than estimated having been obtained.

88. The hill-people of this táluka, like as in Kánara, showed the greatest good-will, and expressed themselves very gratefully for the introduction of a system that they had ever since 1874 been asking the Conservator of Forests for.

89. The result of the collection or receipts compared with estimate in the Belgaum Táluka of Belgaum was very unsatisfactory; but as the reasons were fully gone into in the special report submitted last month by the Conservator, it is needless to go over the whole again; it would, therefore, appear sufficient to say that, even under the very unfavorable circumstances and drawbacks carefully detailed in the special report referred to, the net profit or result even in this táluka during 1877-78 more than doubled the average net profit of the previous seven years. The receipts were Rs. 15,017, or Rs. 10,983 less than estimated, and the expenditure Rs. 4,278. There was a saving here also of Rs. 4,252 on the same account as in the Bidi Táluka.

90. But, to proceed with the comparison, the following are the amounts realized from 1869-70 to 1876-77 at the auction-sales of the farms or right to collect myrobalams in the Southern Division :—

Years.	Kánara.	Belgaum.	Total.	Remarks.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
1869-70	.....	19,934	19,934	One year in Belgaum only.
1870-71	6,014	17,917	23,931	For seven years in Kánara and Belgaum.
1871-72	6,601	15,570	22,171
1872-73	6,192	13,227	19,419
1873-74	6,207	20,231	26,438
1874-75	5,125	13,016	18,141
1875-76	5,690	18,507	24,197
1876-77	10,075	29,815	39,890
Total ...	45,904	1,28,283	1,74,187
Average of seven years ..	6,557	18,326	24,883

91. It will be observed that the amount realized in 1876-77 exceeded that of the previous year 1875-76 by the large sum of Rs. 15,693; in Kánara the excess was Rs. 4,385, caused a good deal by some departmental collection in the less important hirda-bearing tálukas having been thrown in with the general farm revenue, and by the greatest interest taken regarding the subject during the two previous years, which made the bids for the farms rise above the average; but in Belgaum the sudden rise, it is well known, was due to a split in a family of Kúlkarnis who in former years conjointly bought up the right to collect in the Belgaum táluka, and where the bid jumped from an average of Rs. 3,745 to Rs. 14,510. It is not, however, likely that the 1876-77 rates would have been maintained, had the farming out of this right been continued, as one of the contending parties would certainly have given way, or both come to an understanding as of old; for the rest the yield will be seen to have fluctuated considerably, and been more in 1869-70 than in 1875-76, which shows it was combination amongst the Kúlkarnis (Government village accountants) that prevented any reasonable advance in sales until the split amongst them took place.

92. To continue, however, the comparison between the first year's general departmental collection and that of the farming system, the average of which for seven years is shown at paragraph 90 to be Rs. 24,883, and compare this with the actuals of 1877-78, shown in the statement at paragraph 85, we have a net increase by departmental collection of Rs. 52,083, that is to say—

From 1870-71 to 1876-77 the right to collect sold on an average for... ... Rs. 24,883
In 1877-78 the departmental collection gave a net income of ... ... „ 76,966
Showing a balance in favor of 1877-78 of ... ... „ 52,083

93. The net revenue has, therefore, trebled during the first year of anything like a general departmental collection, and, as will be seen from the footnote at paragraph 85, exceeds the estimate of net profit by Rs. 4,656.

94. Moreover, it is but right to observe that, in the general departmental collection under notice, two very important hirda-bearing tálukas (Sirsi and Siddápur in Kánara) that would probably have added Rs. 18,000 more to the net profit of the collection, were left out.

95. It is but right also to observe that a more fair or legitimate means of deriving a forest revenue does not exist; inasmuch as the Government have ever maintained their right to this produce by selling the farms, or right to collect it, every year by auction-sale, and, therefore, as much right to collect and sell it departmentally at depôts in the same manner as it does its timber in this division.

96. The following are a few of the many advantages claimed for the departmental system :—

1. That the very liberal scale of payments providing for the collection of myrabolams enables men and women to earn an average wage of from 4 to 6 annas, and children from 2 to 4 annas, daily about their own and neighbouring village lands from November to May every year, and, therefore, draws the hill people and the other classes, that formerly preyed on the forest by chopping and collecting firewood, towards the department in a manner so touching their interests as to make them readily reconcile with our own.
2. That in securing this, and with the fine additional establishments engaged in the superintendence that the system can so well afford to pay for the suppression of fires over the area the tree (Terminalia Chebula) prevails—say about 2,000 square miles—is secured, and, therefore, a preventive, over so far, of an acknowledged scourge found.
3. That it secures beyond all manner of doubt an immediate fine revenue, which the experience of the past years of farming system does not justify expectations of, or even anything like a near approach to ; besides it gives an acquaintance of the hitherto but little thought of ghâts, and secures us against any undue encroachments or growth of privileges in that direction.
4. That with the suppression of the usual fires that yearly run through the whole area, often entirely destroying many fine old bearing trees and injuring thousands of others at the time of flowering, an immediate increase of quarter more revenue may be expected. Further, final suppression cannot fail to enhance revenue prospects enormously in this respect by the encouragement that will be given to the reproduction of this tree over the tracts it favours and loves to inhabit.

97. Already the greater repressing of the usual fires during the last season has produced the most marked effect in the hirda crop, which is reported to be unusually fine this year in the Supa, Bidi, and Belgaum Tálukas; and with the improved prospects, and the remaining area of his charge taken up, so that the whole is now embraced in the departmental system, the Conservator has felt himself justified in sending in a revised estimate, of which the following is an abstract :—

Actuals of Receipts and Expenditure ending with the 31st May 1878.		Estimated Receipts and Expenditure ending with the 31st May 1879.	Remarks.
	Rs.	Rs.
Receipts	1,12,499	1,68,300	The estimated balance in favour of the season ending with the 31st May 1879 is Rs. 25,718.
Expenditure	35,533	65,616
Balance or Net Profit ...	76,966	1,02,684

98. The departmental system also, with the fine establishment it can afford to pay for, and which must not be grudged, is sure to promote the enquiry into, and collection of, other forest products, and, indeed, so it has already ; reference, however, to this is reserved until information is more complete.

99. The Conservator has already reported separately and at great length on this subject to Government, and considers he is not only justified but bound to give the prominence to it that he has in a report like this, which is sure to be read more generally by others outside his division. He feels that this alone justifies the length he has gone into the subject here ; he would, therefore, draw his remarks to a conclusion, but in doing so add that he first took up the measure at the urgent entreaties of many hill villages in the Supa and Bidi Tálukas, where the people over and over complained bitterly of the manner they were treated by the farmers of this revenue, and that in seeing his way to benefit them, which he believes he has done most substantially, he has further seen his way towards a revenue that, for reasons before given, must expand enormously, and from the product not being, like timber, dependent upon local markets, but demanding great enquiry at home and elsewhere, become par excellence the mainstay of the forest revenues of the Southern Division.

* * * * * *

125. This chapter began last year by referring to the satisfactory departmental collection of myrobalams in a few of the minor tálukas, and predicting for the system very important results. What has been done in this respect, and what is further expected of the system, will be found from paragraph 57 to paragraph 63 of Chapter V, and paragraph 85 to paragraph 99 of Chapter VI : so there would appear no need for further remark, beyond that in a few years hence, when the revenue under minor produce assumes the proportion that is predicted for it here, wonder will be excited that such a mine of forest wealth was not worked before.

126. Doubtless, there are all over India similar mines from which an enormous and like legitimate forest revenue might be expected; but, if they are to be worked successfully, forest officers must not shrink from the closest personal examination of them, and, in assuming control or replacing whatever contract-system may exist, secure to the collectors or pickers of the produce good and liberal rates far exceeding those of contractors.

127. Curiously enough the Inspector General of Forests to the Government of India, Dr. Brandis, at paragraph 61 of his review of the forest administration in the several provinces under the Government of India for the year 1875-76, and dated the 15th December 1877, draws particular attention to the produce of the Terminalia Chebula (hirda), and how desirable it is to encourage the spread of this tree in the reserves. In this division the matter was first made a beginning of in 1874-75 by the Conservator at the urgent request of the hill people.

RESOLUTION.—The Governor General in Council is of opinion that the account given by Lieutenant-Colonel Peyton of the excellent arrangements made by him in the ghât forests of the Belgaum and Kánara Districts for the departmental collection of myrabolams may with advantage be circulated for the information of Forest officers in the provinces under the Government of India ; and His Excellency in Council desires that the several Local Governments and Administrations be invited to consider whether in their provinces articles of minor forest produce may not be found which might be made to yield a revenue similar to that derived from myrabolams in the Southern Districts of the Bombay Presidency.

2. The tree producing this kind of myrabolams (locally known as Harra) is plentiful on the highlands of the Satpura range in the Central Provinces, where it is understood that the right of collecting the fruit is farmed out. The Chief Commissioner should consider whether a system of departmental collection might not with advantage be introduced.

ORDER—Ordered, that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Local Governments and Administrations noted in the margin, and to the Superintendent of Forest Surveys, for information and guidance ; also to the Government of Madras and the Comptroller General, for information.

The increase in the receipts from opium is owing to the increased quantity exported during the month.

The increase in firewood is due to the supply of firewood to the Railway, and the increase in "Railway Materials" is owing to the materials carried for the Neemuch extension.

The month's operations show a net increase, in weight, of 6,658 tons, and in earnings of Rs. 34,119.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT.

Bombay Castle, 13th September 1879.

No. 2522.—The following suggestions for general guidance in matters relating to village conservancy and the public health are published for general information :—

SUGGESTIONS FOR GENERAL GUIDANCE IN MATTERS RELATING TO VILLAGE CONSERVANCY AND THE PUBLIC HEALTH.

1. When a site has been carefully selected, and a new village is about to be laid out, its main streets should all run with the prevailing wind, and both main and cross streets should be as wide as possible. No lane even should be less than 10 feet broad.

Village sites and direction of streets.

2. Each street should have its road-way proper, and on either side a foot-path, 10 feet broad, with channels for rainfall. The road-way should always be wide enough to let two carts pass each other without touching the foot-paths.

Width of streets.

3. The breadth from the house plinth on one side to that on the other will be the breadth of the public street, and on this space no encroachments should be permitted. It is the common property of the village, and from end to end one unbroken line should be maintained.

No encroachments on public streets.

4. Tree-planting at measured intervals should be encouraged along the outer line of the foot-paths and on public reserved sites, and here the advice of the Forest Department should be obtained. In planting along lines of road, or in very wide streets or squares, an excellent plan is that sometimes adopted. Instead of having as a single row on either side, a double row is planted down the centre, and the meeting branches form a shaded avenue for pedestrians. Breaks at convenient lengths serve for crossing from one side to the other.

Tree-planting along streets and roads.

5. In addition to the public streets public sites will be required for markets, for wells and tanks, for schools and places of worship, for recreation, for cattle to be picketted, for cart-stands, and for all such objects as are common to the community generally.

Public reserved sites.

Covered foot-paths in front of houses.

6. Should any householder wish to project a covering over the foot-path in front of his house it should be 7 feet clear above the foot-path.

Avoid the errors so prominent in the older villages.

7. It is very seldom that a new village is laid out, but when the occasion does happen, it will be as well to avoid that want of alignment, and those errors of construction, which, in the older villages, are such impediments to street and other improvements (see sketch A).

Houses.

8. As regards houses, the simplest and commonest form is that which has but one room, but whatever the description (whether large or small) and whatever the materials, there are certain general principles which hold good in all cases.

Plinths.

9. There should always be a plinth, and it should be at least 1 foot above the ground level. It may be of any breadth, and covered in or enclosed.

Doors and windows.

10. For a detached single-room house, standing in its own enclosure, there should be a front and a back door, and a window in each side-wall, as well for convenience as to ensure the passage of air not only into the house but through it.

Height of walls, doors, and windows.

11. As houses and rooms will be much what the owners' means can make them, it would be useless to exact that they be gauged by a fixed standard. In a general way it can be said what ought not to be allowed, but in the matter of measurements it is perhaps better to give a minimum, and let it be exceeded according to individual means. For rooms of the better class the walls should be 9 feet high, never less than 7. In the former case the doors should be 7 feet by 3½, and in the latter 6 feet by 3. The walls of common wattle and daub huts should be 6 feet high, and the doors 5 feet by 3. No door should be under 5 feet.

At least one window should open to external air.

12. For every inhabited room there should be at least one window opening to the external air, and in size this window should never be less than one-sixteenth of the floor space. A convenient size is 18 inches square, and there should be one or more of these according to the size of the room.

Permanent ventilation for rooms.

13. In some part of every wall there should be openings of some sort, either common earthen cylinders, or brick open work (see sketch B). It matters little how these openings are made so long as they exist, and there is no wall so slight, or so rough, in which they may not be made. They should be independent of doors and windows and high up, more especially so in gable ends (see sketch C).

Ventilation of roofs, flat.

14. For the roof there must be special ventilation to provide for the escape of foul air and smoke. With a flat roof, as in Sind, there may perhaps be a door to give access to it, but whether or not there can easily be made a small ventilating shaft about 1 foot square, and barred at the top. If this be impracticable, some of the common earthen cylinders should be built into the wall as high up as possible (see sketch D).

Ridge.

15. Ridge-roofs should have in them, in proportion to their size, one or more overlapping flap openings at least 3 feet square, with a rise of 6 inches (see sketch E). They can be made alike in tiled and thatched roofs, and where there is only one, it should be on the side from which the wind seldom blows.

Square or pyramid.

16. In a square or pyramid roof, where the rafters meet at a common centre, there may still be the flap-opening, or a square ventilating shaft 1 foot square at the apex. The construction of this shaft is shown in the sketch (F), and it is so simple as to be within the capacity of any ordinary village carpenter.

Verandah.

17. An enclosed verandah should have a door, or a window, or brick open work, and no verandah should be less than 5 feet high.

Inter-spaces.

18. When houses are detached, the inter-spaces should be at least 10 feet. It is assumed that in villages space is not the object it is in towns.

Line of shop-fronts.

19. No shop-front should project beyond the line of house-plinth.

Bathing places, waste-water from.

20. Bathing places should, if possible, be detached from ordinary village houses. They should always be raised above the ground level, and the waste-water should be led away from them by a straight cut. If this cut be puddled with clay, or lined with tiles, and mud-plastered, it will form a fairly serviceable surface drain. In most cases the waste-water may be utilized in a small bit of garden, or for a few plants, or for a single tree.

Cooking places, waste-water from.

21. In the same way the waste-water from cooking places may also be utilized, and the people should remember that, for the greater part of the year, they may with their waste-water, and without much trouble or expense, grow a welcome addition to their ordinary food-supply. Whenever and wherever waste-water is poured out over ground the earth should always be turned up or raked over it, and if thus treated, there is neither risk nor nuisance. If the earth be turned up over it every time it is poured out the same piece of ground may be used over and over again for an indefinite period.

What should be done with waste-water.

22. All refuse of every sort should be removed from the house and its premises at least once in every 24 hours. It may be taken to some place or receptacle near at hand where the collective refuse of many houses is deposited for subsequent removal to some other place duly assigned outside the village and to leeward or, failing this, it may at once be taken outside. The object is to remove it from the house and its premises at least once every day, and if this be done, the time and manner of removal may be left to suit the convenience of the householder.

House refuse.

What should be done with it.

23. For every village there must be certain assigned places, at which all refuse shall be deposited. These places must be outside the village, and to leeward, as regards the prevailing wind, and on no account must they be near any source of water-supply. It might perhaps be arranged that here each house-owner may have his own small plot where his own refuse-heap might remain until it was wanted for his fields. Mixed with earth it would be a valuable manure, and the cultivator would very soon learn to appreciate its value. If the refuse increases in bulk too rapidly it may always be reduced by burning.

Village refuse.

What should be done with it.

Valuable as manure.

24. Villagers should remember that the refuse and the filth, which now lie uncollected, would have a money value, if collected and if carried to the village lands, and there utilized, would restore to them that richness which they have lost by constant cropping. There is no description of ordinary refuse, or filth, which may not be turned to account on land, and the prudent ryots will be those who collect it from the village generally. This they can do by offering their fields as places of deposit, and by letting their carts stand at certain hours in certain places, so that all may bring to them such daily refuse as they cannot otherwise dispose of.

House privies.

25. As regards house privies, there are two rules which should everywhere be rigidly enforced. None should be allowed unless there are those in or near the village to attend to them, and where they are allowed, there should always be some sort of receptacle under the seat.

Arthur Crawford pattern.

26. An excellent form of privy is that shown in the sketch G. It was introduced by Mr. Arthur Crawford when Collector of Kolába, and it is a very good one, provided there are sweepers in attendance, and provided, also, that the deposit be removed at least once in every 24 hours. There is neither brick nor mortar to become excrement, sodden and offensive. Being constructed of wooden uprights, and bamboo or other battens, the wind blows freely through it, and there can be no fouling of the ground under the seat, for a metal shoot delivers the deposit and the ablution water into a metal bucket. If it be more convenient a sort of eaves gutter might run along the back of all the seats, and deliver into a receptacle at one end. This would do away with separate buckets, but then the one receptacle would be heavier. If it be urged that metal shoots and metal buckets are not within the reach of ordinary villagers, it may be said, in reply, that, unless a man can afford to build a properly constructed privy and to undertake that it shall be attended to, he should not be allowed to have one.

Disadvantages.

Privacy secured.

Excreta should be covered at once.

27. But with all its advantages this privy is complained of. The people say, and not unreasonably, that there is a want of privacy. A man arrives and has to pass three or four compartments before he comes to a vacant one, and in those occupied the men are fully exposed. Although this is a minor matter, it is one that demands attention, and fortunately the want can be supplied. A fixed screen would secure the desired privacy, and in addition there would be the general trellis work screen running along the entire front. The deposit in the buckets should be covered with a light coating of earth just to kill the smell until such time as the buckets are themselves emptied.

Should be removed at least once every day to a common manure-yard.

28. Another simple and serviceable form of privy is that shown in the sketch H. It was constructed by Colonel Goodfellow, R.E., V.C., for the High School at Kárwár, and is highly spoken of. It can be made of rough wood, earth, stone foot rests, and iron pans—so it is within the reach of all—and in place of stone or brick screen walls, common trellis work will serve the purpose. The walls and partitions can also be made of bamboo battens, and screens can be placed in front of the several compartments. The iron pans may be half filled with earth. One advantage of this privy is that if it gets foul the whole of the earth in which the pans slide can be removed, and the ramp can then be re-formed with fresh earth.

29. Where there are privies, and sweepers to attend to them, the deposit should be removed at least once a day to an assigned place, and there it may be treated in different ways. It may be buried in a trench about 3 feet deep, and covered with earth, but if this be done the probability is that it will remain in the trench, and be lost to the land. A preferable plan is to make a bed of earth and ashes on to which the deposit may be emptied, and covered in its turn with more earth and ashes. The several layers could then be thoroughly mixed together, as is done in some places, and the result would be an innocuous inoffensive mass of the richest manure. In Gujarát, where there are sweepers, this plan offers no difficulties beyond those of supervision. In the Deccan and the Konkan although the Mahárs object to touch ordure they will remove refuse of which ordure forms a larger or smaller portion, so here again the difficulties are not insuperable. In Sind such is the dryness of the atmosphere, and so great is the desiccating power of the sun, that there ought to be no difficulty. The sites should always be enclosed so as to exclude animals.

Should there be mixed with earth or sifted ashes, or both.

30. When from any cause trenches cannot be provided, the villagers must then, having due regard to decency, resort to the most convenient place outside the village, to leeward, and away from any source of water-supply.

Where no latrines of any sort can be provided.

31. Plots of untrenched ground might be enclosed for general resort, and the village Mahárs, or sweepers, where there are sweepers, might cover the excreta with earth, and sweep everything up into one common heap. Urine, too, might also be utilized. Instead of being wasted here, there, and everywhere, let it be passed into any sort of earthen vessels half full of earth or ashes, and, after micturition, let a handful of earth or ashes be thrown in. When the vessel is full let it be taken to the common manure-yard, and there emptied. In this way every household might make a valuable addition to its manure-heap, and those without fields could sell their compost to those who have them. In China and Japan no refuse is wasted. The sweepings and excreta are all collected and used on the village lands, and the cost of collection is more than repaid by richer and heavier crops.

Enclosed plots may be used.

Urine should also be mixed with earth and stored for use on fields.

32. Every possible means must be taken to prevent the fouling of any place within the village, and no places outside should be used other than those specially assigned.

Fouling of streets, lanes, &c., to be prevented by every possible means.

33. For the sick and infirm, and for children too young to be trusted out of sight, there should be provided any sort of common earthen vessel, half full of earth or ashes, with which the deposit should at once be covered. At least once every day the vessel should be emptied at the common manure-yard, and refilled with earth or ashes.

Arrangements for sick and infirm, and for infants.

34. When the water-supply of a village is obtained from running water it should be drawn at a point up stream and above the village. All fords and ferries, all bathing and clothes-washing, all cattle watering and washing, and all trade and other operations for which water is wanted, should be at a point down stream and below that at which the supply is drawn for drinking and ordinary house use. The purity of running water must be strictly preserved, for it runs to other villages, and is their source of supply.

Water-supply.

35. When a tank is about to be made, there should be made in or alongside of it one filtering well for the higher castes, and one for the lower. As long as caste prejudices obtain, so long will it be necessary to have more than one of these wells. Their construction is very generally understood, and one of the best is that in the Gowala Tank at Bombay. There are few existing tanks in which during the dry season these wells might not be made, but where it is impracticable, or impossible, the supply for drinking and ordinary house use should be drawn at one particular spot, and every operation which tends to foul the water should be conducted as far from this spot as possible. No cattle should be watered or washed in a tank, if it can possibly be avoided.

Tanks.

36. For every tank there should be a boat, or raft of some sort, no matter how rude, as well to guard against accidents as to remove floating impurities and dead and decaying vegetation. There should also be 2 or 3 bamboo or other floats which could be thrown to persons falling in accidentally or otherwise.

Boat or raft necessary.

37. As regards wells, neither trouble nor expense should be spared to preserve them from all possible sources of impurity, and to this end nothing should be permitted at or near them which might contaminate them. The parapet wall should be high enough to exclude surface impurities and to guard against accidents. The supply should be raised by iron-chains and buckets. No soakage of any sort for trade or other purposes should be allowed, and bathing and clothes-washing should be so conducted that the water used shall not re-enter the well. Floating impurities and dead and decaying vegetation should be taken out as soon as possible, and sedimentary deposits should be removed periodically.

Wells.

38. When cattle are watered from wells they should not be watered at them. The trough should be at least 50 feet distant, and, if possible, at a lower level. The rudest aqueduct will suffice. The object is to avoid that mixture of mud, urine, droppings, and dirty water which may be seen round most wells.

Cattle troughs.

39. For every well there should be a pavement sloping to a catch-water channel. This channel should be straight where it leaves the well, and if extended some 40 or 50 feet there might soon be formed a grove of trees. The distance should always be such that falling leaves could not enter the well, and roots would not dislodge the masonry. Where space is no object, and with a view to preserve the purity of the water, no operation whatever should be permitted within 100 feet of the parapet wall, and, if possible, wells should be covered in.

Pavements and catch-water channel to carry waste to a grove of trees.

40. To guard against accidents, there should be laid across every open well a piece of timber, a cocoanut tree or other trunk, and from this a knotted rope should drop into the water, and it should be so fastened round the trunk that it may traverse it freely from one side of the well to the other. For large wells there should be in addition one or two floats.

Precautions at wells.

41. In making wells from public monies the wants of the lower castes should not be overlooked.

Wells for lower castes.

42. Trees in and near villages should have their lower branches cut to a height of from 6 to 12 feet, and hedges should be cut and trimmed annually, and so trimmed that the wind may blow through them at the ground level. They should never be made receptacles for refuse. No rank grass, weeds, or undergrowth, should be allowed to grow near houses.

Trees and hedges in and near villages.

43. No cattle or sheep should be slaughtered for food except at an assigned place outside the village and to leeward, and all refuse from the slaughtering should be carefully buried. Neither hides nor skins should be prepared except at a place similarly assigned.

Slaughtering places.

44. No cattle should be kept under inhabited rooms, and the practice of keeping them in any part of the house should be discouraged. They can be kept on the ground attached to the house, and in this case there should be some sort of open shed under which the animals should be tied up. The floor of the shed should be above the ground level, and should have just sufficient slope to carry off water. In rear of the animals there should be a channel to carry off the urine, and if this urine be mixed with earth it will form a valuable manure. The cow-dung will probably be used as fuel, but the dirty litter should be swept out daily, and the floor should be kept even and clean.

Cattle-sheds.

Urine of the cattle should be mixed with earth, and used as manure.

45. Neither brick-making nor burning should be allowed except at a place specially assigned, nor should clay for brick-making be excavated within the village. Should there be any old excavations they should be filled in with clean earth.

Brick-making.

46. Cremation should be conducted to leeward of the village, and away from all sources of water-supply. It should be carried out very thoroughly.

Cremation.

47. Burial-grounds should also be to leeward, and away from any source of water-supply, and the graves should be at least 4 feet deep.

Burial.

48. When in any village there is an unusual amount of sickness a report of it should at once be sent to the Mámlatdár who should take such action as may be necessary, and the Patel or headman of every village should be furnished with such simple medicines as are entrusted to the police and others to be administered. At such times extra care should be taken with regard to food and water, and personal and general cleanliness, and clothing.

Unusual amount of sickness should be reported.

49. Should cholera prevail application for relief should be made upon the first appearance of diarrhœa, no matter how slight. It cannot be too often and too carefully impressed upon the people, that during cholera the danger is not so much from direct contagion as in the emanations from decomposing cholera excreta, so before decomposition can set in all discharges from persons attacked by cholera should at once be covered with earth, carried to a specially assigned place, and there carefully buried. If each fresh discharge be not removed as soon as passed it should always be covered with earth, and at once too. Bedding and clothes soiled by cholera discharges should be burnt.

Cholera.

Special danger to be avoided.

50. Huts in which cholera has appeared should at once be emptied of their inmates and of everything removable. The roofs should be stripped off and the doors removed. The windows should be opened and kept open, and the floors should be dug up and plentifully sprinkled with lime. If the walls are simply mud-plastered the coating should be removed and renewed. Every part of the house and its furniture, such as it is, should be freely exposed to sunlight and air. In houses of the better class these measures would be inadmissible, except as regards the removal of everything that can be removed, and its free exposure. The doors and windows should be opened and kept open, and the particular room should be thoroughly cleaned, and its walls washed with hot lime and water.

Purification of places in which cholera has occurred.

51. It is the duty of parents to secure their children against small-pox by having them vaccinated, and on no account should this duty be neglected. Every year there are thousands of deaths from small-pox, and in almost every instance it carries off those who have not been vaccinated. When the Government Vaccinator comes to a village all children of 3 months old and upwards should be taken to him to be examined and vaccinated, and his instructions should be implicitly followed.

Small-pox.—Protection by vaccination.

52. Bodies of persons dying of epidemics, as of cholera, small-pox, &c., should be disposed of as soon as the signs of death are unmistakable.

Bodies of persons dying from cholera, small-pox, &c.

53. As the opportunity offers these rules, or suggestions, may be applied to existing conditions, for instance, when a house is to be rebuilt let it be rebuilt as here recommended. Never lose the opportunity of improving a street, or public reserved site, or building. Let the Mahár quarter of the village be as well cared for as any other, for disease originating there through neglect may bring death to doors where cleanliness is observed.

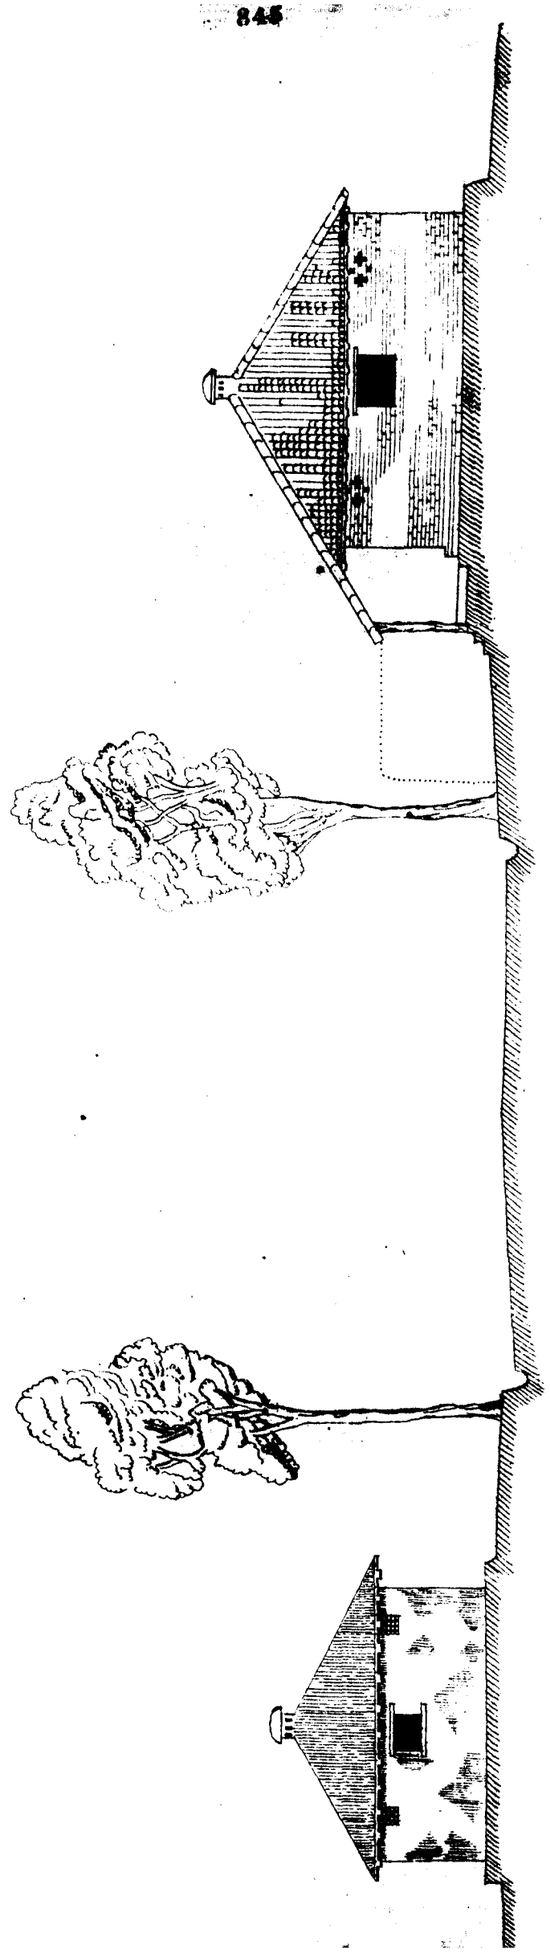

Application of rules.

54. Overcrowding, bad ventilation, neglected drainage, impure air and water, unripe fruit and vegetables, unwholesome and badly cooked food, neglect in removing refuse, and cholera excreta, low-lying and badly built houses, these are some of the chief causes of disease, and with ordinary precaution they are one and all of them preventible.

Preventible causes of disease.

55. As the occasion calls for it these rules will be supplemented, and all concerned should understand that at all times advice may be had from the officers of the Public Works, Medical, and Sanitary Departments, as well as from Collectors and their Assistants.

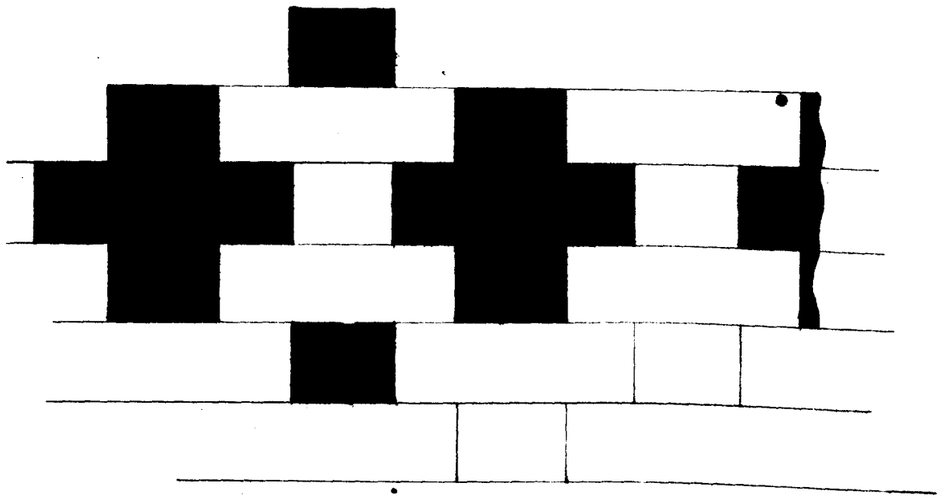

Supplementary rules.

There has been an increase in the receipts from grain during the month, owing to the large amount imported on account of the high prices still ruling at Rutlam.

The increase in opium is due to the quantity sent to the China markets.

There has also been an increase in the receipts from piece goods, sugar, oil, salt, timber, metals and general goods, during the period under notice.

The month's operations show a net increase of 47 tons in weight, and in earnings of Rs. 13,910.

RESOLUTION.

OBSERVATIONS.—In March 1877 Her Majesty's Secretary of State forwarded papers regarding the inspection and grading of wheat and other grains in the United States, and a summary of the rules in force at New York, Milwaukee, Chicago and in the Illinois State generally was circulated to the Local Governments and Administrations and the Chambers of Commerce in the following August. These authorities were asked to consider whether any system, similar to that embodied in the rules, could be adopted in this country, and, if so, to suggest the manner in which Government could aid in its introduction, whether by legislation or otherwise. Their replies have now been received and perused by the Governor General in Council.

2. Of the four sets of American rules the most detailed are those of New York and of the Illinois State. Between these there is a marked difference, the former being based on agreements between the New York Produce Exchange and various Railway Companies, and the latter deriving their force from Acts of the Legislature. But the general object of all the rules, as correctly asserted by the Bombay Chamber of Commerce, is not to improve the quality of grain, but to facilitate transactions in enormous masses of produce. The Railway Company or the warehouseman, as the case may be, gives the owner of a consignment a receipt for grain of a known standard, and, confidence in the classification being complete, this receipt is as negotiable as a bank-note, and the trouble and inconvenience of dealing with individual lots of grain are prevented; the result being that whoever becomes the holder of the receipt has merely to apply to the Railway Company or the warehouse for the delivery of a parcel of wheat of the quantity and quality stated. Such a system could obviously only arise in large commercial centres on which the grain supplies of vast areas were concentrated, where produce was always bought and sold in bulk, and where trade, both in point of mutual trust amongst merchants and of magnitude, was very highly developed.

3. The Indian export trade in grain, to which alone any such system as is above described would apply, is insignificant compared with that of America, as will appear from the figures given in the margin. And looking to the origin and nature of the rules, it is not perhaps surprising to find a general consensus of opinion that they are at present far in advance of the requirements of this country.

4. The Government of Madras, concurring with the Board of Revenue, consider that the American system is not likely to prove feasible in that Presidency. The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal reports that all the officers under his Government who have been consulted on the subject are agreed that the system is unsuited to the present state of the trade and the character of the people of this country. The opinion of the Government of the North-Western Provinces is to the like effect. In Burma the export trade is in rice, to which the rules are admitted to be inapplicable. In Assam no wheat is grown. In Mysore and Ajmere the rules could not, it appears, be introduced with any practical advantage. The Punjab Government have expressed no opinion, but have transmitted a report of the Financial Commissioner, in which, whilst admitting the utility of the system in a highly-civilized commercial community, he doubts its usefulness in the interior of India. The Government of Bombay remark that the grain trade may there be said to be as yet in its infancy, and that it has few facilities for expansion. They think it would be oppressed, if not ruined, by the burden of inspection; and they add that there is reason to believe that this work would be unpopular and provocative of suspicion and opposition. The Resident at Hyderabad, concurring with the Commissioner of the Assigned Districts, regards the trade of Berar as too undeveloped for the adoption of such a scheme as that under consideration; but he further remarks that, were it initiated by an association of grain merchants at the chief seaport towns, the result might perhaps be found to be beneficial both to the merchants themselves and to the country generally. Till the want is felt by those directly interested, he doubts the advantage of State aid or interference. The Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, accepting the views unanimously held by those whose advice he has asked, looks on the American system as too advanced for the present circumstances of the country, and believes that an attempt on the part of Government to introduce it would be misunderstood and viewed with suspicion. At the same time he asks for a copy of the Illinois rules and acts, not as being now useful for adoption, but because the plan in operation in that State seems, more nearly than any other, to approach to what might hereafter prove acceptable in the provinces he administers.

5. The different Chambers of Commerce express views of the same tenor as those of the Local Governments. The Madras Chamber observe that its members are not engaged in the grain trade in the interior, and could exercise no influence over dealers in the matter. The opinion of the Bombay Chamber is that the time for arrangements, like those in America, has not yet come, that they could only be introduced gradually, and that attempts to force them on would fail. At Kurrachee the storing and grading of wheat, as in the United States, is regarded as altogether impracticable. The Rangoon Chamber think the rules would not apply. The Bengal Chamber of Commerce, having regard to the essential differences between the circumstances and course of the grain in India and America, give the same opinion as the Kurrachee Chamber, namely, that it would be impracticable to assimilate the system of this country to that of the United States.

6. On consideration of the reports above summarized, it is evident to the Governor General in Council that arrangements and rules, such as obtain at the centres of the American wheat trade, are not suited to the present condition of Indian trade. No further action on the part of Government is at present either necessary or desirable. The case is not now one for any intervention by the State; and, although the diffusion of information on the subject may have had its use in view of the possibilities of future commercial development, it is, in His Excellency's opinion, obvious that measures in the direction of establishing such a system as that which prevails in America should be initiated, if at all, by the trading public when they feel the need of it. For the present, the course of trade will best be left to those channels in which it normally flows, in the belief that Indian merchants and dealers will spontaneously resort to those expedients for facilitating the interchange of commodities which are best adapted to the circumstances of the country. The question of inspecting wheat for the purpose of ensuring the good quality of Indian exports in that staple is, of course, distinct from what is now under discussion.

From—C. G. MASTER, Esq., Secretary to the Government of Madras, Revenue Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of the Proceedings of the Government of India, dated 24th August 1877, No. 3-189, forwarding a summary of the rules in force in the United States relating to the inspection and grading of wheat and other grains, and requesting Local Governments and Chambers of Commerce to consider whether any similar system could be adopted in this country.

2. In reply, I am directed to forward the accompanying Proceedings of Government of this day's date, No. 234, embodying Proceedings of the Board of Revenue and letter from the Madras Chamber of Commerce on the subject, and to state that this Government consider, with the Board, that the proposed system is not likely to prove feasible in this Presidency.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of Madras, in the Revenue Department,—No. 234, dated the 14th February 1878.

Proceedings of the Board of Revenue, dated the 5th November 1877, No. 4924:—

Read Proceedings of the Madras Government, Revenue Department, dated the 22nd September 1877, No. 2828.

ABSTRACT.—Communicating to the Board of Revenue and Chamber of Commerce papers from the Government of India regarding the adoption of measures for improving the quality of Indian wheat and requesting their views on certain points referred to.

The Board do not consider that arrangements similar to those indicated in the papers communicated with the foregoing order are likely to prove feasible or suited to the customs of the mass of grain-dealers in this country, and they cannot suggest any measures for furthering the introduction of a system of inspection and grading of grain. As regards wheat, to which the proposal principally relates, the trade in that grain as shown in Board's Proceedings, dated 1st May 1877, No. 2015, is too insignificant to render any measure of the sort necessary or desirable so far as this Presidency is concerned.

Dated Madras, the 1st February 1878.

From—A. MACKENZIE, Esq., Chairman, Madras Chamber of Commerce,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Madras, Revenue Department.

In reply to your memorandum of the 29th ultimo, I have the honour to inform you that Native dealers in grain are not represented in the Chamber; and that as the members of the Chamber are not engaged in the grain trade in the interior, they can exercise no influence over dealers that could be brought to bear in favour of an alteration of the system of grading this class of produce.

ORDER THEREON by the Government of Madras.

With their Proceedings, dated 24th August 1877, No. 3-189, the Government of India forwarded a summary of the rules in force in the United States relating to the inspection and grading of wheat and other grains, and requested Local Governments and Chambers of Commerce to consider whether any similar system could be adopted in this country.

2. The papers above recorded, which contain the views of the Board of Revenue and of the Madras Chamber of Commerce on the subject, will be forwarded to the Government of India in reply.

3. The Government consider, with the Board, that the proposed system is not likely to prove feasible in this Presidency.

No. 1729, dated Bombay Castle, the 31st March 1879.

From—The HONOURABLE E. W. RAVENSCROFT, C.S.I., Chief Secretary to the Government of Bombay,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce.

With their Resolution of the 24th August 1877, No. 3—190, the Government of India forwarded a summary of the rules in force in the chief grain centres of the United States for the inspection and grading of wheat and other grains. At the same time they requested the Government "to consider whether any similar system could be adopted in this country, and, if so, to suggest in what way the Government could assist, by legislation or otherwise, in introducing and carrying into effect an efficient system."

2. The Resolution and the summary have been given a wide circulation in this Presidency among officers best qualified to give an opinion on the subject. The reports they have submitted show that any attempt at official interference with the grain trade of the territories subject to this Government would be productive of more harm than good.

3. As the Government of India are aware, the land in these parts is occupied, as a rule, by numerous petty cultivators. These men, according to their means and opportunities, sow their fields with seed of different qualities; and not unfrequently they find it to their advantage to sow seeds of several qualities, mixed together, in the same field. The crops thus raised are of great variety; and to test and grade them would, therefore, be a task of no small difficulty, even if the cultivators were to deal direct with the large merchants who carry on the export trade of the Presidency. But the conditions obtaining here are such that, as a matter of fact, the surplus produce of the fields, which, after satisfying the wants of the local market, is available for export, has generally to be collected by a class of middlemen of small means, whose way of storing the grain only serves to mingle together the numerous varieties. Under these circumstances, the work of grain inspection would be so difficult that it would require an establishment exending to almost every village in the Presidency to perform it satisfactorily.

4. The cost of such a large establishment, especially considering that liberal salaries would have to be paid in order to secure honesty, would be enormous. The grain trade of this Presidency, which may as yet be said to be in its infancy, and which has few facilities for its expansion, would be oppressed, if not ruined, by such a burden being imposed on it. Besides, there is every reason to believe that the work of inspection would be extremely unpopular, the interference with trade would be considered unnecessary and vexatious, and the measure undertaken by Government for the benefit of its subjects would only serve to excite in them feelings of suspicion and opposition. For all these reasons His Excellency the Governor in Council is much averse from any interference on the part of the State with the grain trade of this Presidency, and he would decidedly prefer that the trade should be left to take its own course.

5. Copies of the reports on this subject submitted by the Commissioner in Sind and the Commissioners of the Northern, Southern and Central Divisions are herewith forwarded for submission to the Government of India. They will be found to contain much useful and interesting matter.

No. 913, dated Kurrachee, 8th March 1878.

From—F. D. Melvill, Esq., Acting Commissioner in Sind,

To—His Excellency the Hon'ble Sir Richard Temple, Bart., K.C.S.I., Governor of Bombay.

I have the honour to report on Government Resolution No. 6207 of the 17th October last.

2. The Kurrachee Chamber of Commerce has reported direct to the Government of India that in their opinion the American system of storing and grading wheat is altogether impracticable for Kurrachee, and they are not prepared at present to recommend any special legislation for the purpose. The Collectors of Kurrachee, Hyderabad and Shikárpur, and the Superintendent, Upper Sind Frontier, have also reported against the proposal. Of these, the Collector of Kurrachee reports (with reference to the report of the Chamber of Commerce) that he does not see how the American system can be organized except by the members by the trade itself. The Collector of Hyderabad states that the proposed measures would be premature until the cultivators can be induced to improve upon the present system of wheat cultivation. The Collector of Shikárpur states that it would be a question whether Kurrachee could support the requisite establishment; that this is a question which can only be answered at Kurrachee itself, but that the traders at Sukkur (the port of Upper Sind) are conservative to a degree, and that it would not do to try any such experiment there until it had been tried and succeeded at Kurrachee. The Superintendent, Upper Sind Frontier, states that the amount of wheat exported is so small that no such rules could be carried out in his district, and that the question is one that must be decided in regard to Sukkur.

3. The Political Superintendent, Thar and Párkar, is not so opposed to the proposed rules, although he admits the fact that they are generally very much in advance of the present state of the province. He proposes that, as a commencement, a public warehouse of the description of class (a) of the Illinois laws should be established at Kurrachee, and a suitable importing agency appointed by the Chamber of Commerce.

4. Although agreeing with this latter officer as to the great advantage that would be gained by any successful attempt to promote the growth and export of first-class wheat, I still cannot recommend the adoption of the rules forwarded with the Government Resolution under reply or the advisability of legislative action in the matter. It would, I believe, be impossible in the present state of the province (even when the Indus Valley State Railway is opened) to carry out any such rules in regard to grain before it reaches Kurrachee. Whether it would be possible to carry them out at Kurrachee is a question on which we must, I consider, be guided by the opinion of the local Chamber of Commerce, and that opinion is decidedly against it. But even if it were possible to carry them out, I should still be averse to the attempt being made and enforced by the legislative authority. I cannot but think that it is a mistake to fetter trade in this way under any circumstances; still more so when the merchants connected with the trade have expressed a decided opinion against any such action being taken. They may be left to look after their own interests. So far as the trade is concerned (after the grain has left the hands of the actual producers), the matter is in their own hands; and so far as the actual production is concerned, the only influence that can be brought to bear is indirect, whether it proceeds merely from the merchants or from the force of a Legislative Act.

No. 215, dated Camp Sánand, the 22nd January 1878.

From—H. N. B. Erskine, Esq., Acting Commissioner, Northern Division,

To—The Chief Secretary to the Government of Bombay.

I have the honour to submit the information called for in Government Resolution No. 6207 of 17th October last, on the subject of the inspection of grain for export to Europe.

2. Under the system in force in the United States, grain is divided into grades, the standard of each of which is declared by commercial bodies, by inspectors who grant certificates showing the grade and quantity of each consignment brought to port and warehoused by the Railway Companies. These certificates are transferable, and the holders of them are entitled to delivery from the Railway Company of the quantity and quality of grain specified in them. The inspectors are remunerated by fees.

3. A system of this kind could hardly be worked in this Presidency, except perhaps at Bombay and Kurrachee, and could only be worked at these places if the Railway Companies were prepared to warehouse large quantities of grain, and if efficient inspectors, who could secure the confidence of the trading community, could be secured.

4. Doubtless, were the system introduced, standards for wheat and other food-grains would before long be determined; but as the papers forwarded show good inspection is not easy to obtain—good inspection "involves having a man as inspector-in-chief who is able to discriminate by eye, touch and smell the several qualities of grain that pass before him, and whose moral character is such as to withstand the efforts that are made by receivers to secure for their grain a higher grade than that to which it should properly be assigned." To secure the services of such men in this country would not be easy.

5. But putting aside for the present these consideratons, is inspection of the kind suggested needed to develop a trade in food-grains? The general opinion, I find, is that it is not wanted.

6. The Collector of Ahmedabad is of opinion that that district is not likely to export much grain, and gives the following figures to illustrate the course of trade from the only two ports in the district, viz., Gogha and Dholera:—

Year.	Imports.		Exports.
	Gogha.	Dholera.	Gogha.	Dholera.
	Cwt.	Cwt.	Cwt.	Cwt.
1874-75	6,447	51	161	5,035
1875-76	2,539	100	519	2,922
1876-77	10,533	100	2,357	2,476
Total ...	19,519	251	3,037	10,433
Grand Total ...	19,770		13,470

which shows that by sea imports exceeded the exports by 6,300 cwts.

7. What the exports by train were, the Collector has not been able to ascertain.

8. Mr. Lely, also writing from the Ahmedabad District, remarks—"At present the question here is of purely theoretical interest, no wheat having been sent forward for export from Ahmedabad for several years past. On the contrary, it is a fact strikingly illustrative of the extent to which our people have become consumers of this grain, that large quantities of Jubbulpur wheat are now being brought into the district by rail in order to supply the vacuum caused by exports to the famine districts in the beginning of the season. And this notwithstanding that all the bajri and most of the jowar harvest has just been reaped."

"I do not doubt, however, that when the circulation of grain in India resumes its normal course, any great demand for Europe will draw away a more or less large amount of Ahmedabad wheat; but even in that case there will scarcely be any necessity for legislative interference. There is only one variety likely to find its way to the exporter, viz., the Daudkhani or white wheat of the Dholka black-soil district; and I am informed on good authority that there has never been any cause of complaint against it on account of admixture of inferior grains or other foreign substances. The Native merchants here aver that there is only an average of 2 seers (kutcha) of dirt per maund in Ahmedabad wheats against 4 or 5 in the 'Jubbulpur' now arriving; and in this the Agents of Messrs. Ralli (the only European firm, I believe, who have dealt much in Ahmedabad wheat) bear them out so far as to say that they have found Ahmedabad wheat a little cleaner, generally speaking, than ordinary Jubbulpuri, and that it contains no inferior grains."

"On the general question of the wheat trade I may remark that so long as the present unprofitable method of agriculture continues, this district will never be able to supply more than its own wants, and consequently will never send away much while the European rates are at their ordinary level. And increase in those rates sufficient to stimulate export would, I humbly think, be probably a curse to the district in the guise of a blessing. I have already pointed out in my No. 27, of 29th April last, how from perfectly intelligible causes the price of jowar and bajri gradually rose in comparison with wheat during the cotton mania, until in 1863 in our western districts the superior grain was actually the cheaper. This led the lower classes to acquire a taste for it, which is the best legacy inherited by the district from those times of frenzy for good wages; and the comparatively moderate price of wheat since have enabled them to keep it up. It appears to me—if I may be allowed to use a quaint expression of their own—that any export trade springing up under these circumstances will be taking food from the stomachs of the people to put into their pockets. That the average outturn does not much, if at all, exceed the annual demands of the district, or, at any rate, of the province, may be inferred from the fact, that, notwithstanding the very limited exports of previous years, the comparatively trifling withdrawal for the famine districts has left us dependent on imports from Jubbulpur. Unless consignments to Europe can be replaced from the same quarter (which is very doubtful), they will be taken from the mouths of the local consumers, who will be forced back upon their former inferior diet, and so lose the distinctest gain they have yet made under British rule. Farther extension in the area cultivated with this grain is almost impracticable from natural causes; and any attempt to do so is to be deprecated in a zilla which has already suffered so much from over-production. I humbly think the best mode of assisting to create a really healthy and beneficial export trade in the agricultural produce of a long-settled district like this is a judicious inquiry into and reform of its methods of agriculture. Into that subject it would be out of place for me here to enter."

Mr. Borradaile, the Collector, expresses concurrence in the above views.

9. From Kaira the Collector Mr. Sheppard writes—"The trade in cereals, and especially in wheat, is not so extensive in this district as to admit of the introduction, with advantage, of so complicated and expensive a machinery as that contemplated by the rules accompanying the Resolution above quoted.

"I believe that any attempt to burden the existing trade with taxation for the payment of salaries to inspectors, &c., would tend to paralyze instead of to encourage it."

10. The Acting Collector of Broach, Mr. W. Loch, remarks as follows on the proposal to appoint inspectors:—

"The wheat trade is at present carried on in the following way. Small dealers in the villages purchase the grains from the raiyats, and keep it in their houses till a considerable stock has accumulated, and they then sell it to the large dealers in Broach and Jambusar, who export it. Some of the wealthier raiyats may deal with the large merchants direct. If a ship happens to be ready to sail for Bombay or elsewhere, the grain merchant will send off his wheat at once, but he keeps it in his warehouse for some time. There the wheat is heaped on the earthen floor, or, if it is to be kept for a long time, on a layer of wheat-straw. The wheat which is sent by rail is put in gunny bags, while that which is sent by boats is shipped in bulk, and no precautions are taken to protect it, except that in the opening of the rainy season a chupper is made over it. From Jambusar all the wheat goes by boat; from the rest of the district a considerable amount goes by rail as well.

"I do not see how with a trade conducted in this manner we could have a system of inspection at all like that in force in America. There the inspector (in New York for instance) is a very responsible officer, and he examines and classes the wheat on its arrival, and his certificate is supposed to ensure that the wheat is of such and such a class, and it is purchased on the strength of that certificate. This is doing much more than we have ever done for cotton, and I do not think we could get the men to do the inspector's work in places like Broach and Tankaria. The trade is not one which will bear the payment of heavy inspection, and unless we have well-paid European officers, the inspection would become worse than useless.

"Again, it seems to me that wheat shipped in bulk in open boats stands a good chance of deteriorating on the way to Bombay, and that it would not be of the same class on arrival there that it is here.

"I think a system of inspection which might be very successful in America would fail here, because here it would be carried out by Government officers, who would receive no help but perhaps opposition rather from the grain merchants; there it is carried out by the grain-dealers themselves, who have every reason for wishing the system of inspection to be thoroughly carried out.

"The utmost that Government could do, would be to have a system of inspection to prevent frauds similar to the present system of cotton inspection. I do not think myself that this would be advisable, as I believe the trade will look for itself."

11. The Collector of Surat, Mr. Pratt, is also of opinion that Government interference with the wheat trade would not lead to beneficial results. He writes—"In my opinion, no interference with the wheat trade on the part of Government is called for, or would be attended with beneficial results.

"The people of the country are quite able to take care of themselves and their interests, and as a matter it is to their interest to sell a certain article of a certain quality, the article will be provided equal to the demand for it.

"Until the trade express a desire to have Government assistance, I do not see that it is the province of Government to press upon them what they do not want, and am certain that as regards Native traders the less the interference the better is the chance of developing a new trade.

"I am quite of opinion with the Bombay Chamber of Commerce that the time has not yet come for introducing the system in force in America, and that no Government interference is at present necessary in respect of the wheat trade."

12. Mr. Jervoise, the Collector of Thána, remarks on the Government Resolution as follows:—"The prime object arrived at appears to be that stated in the preamble to the printed rules in force in the United States, namely, 'to ensure the delivery of wheat and other food-grains of defined qualities to purchasers at shipping ports,' by which I understand that the measures sought to be introduced are such as shall ensure every merchant at a shipping port obtaining for export the description and quality of grain that he wants (if obtainable) instead of being obliged to take something different, or go without.

"The first question that occurs to me is this—have the merchants at shipping ports in India ever asked for any protective measures of this kind? If they have not, why introduce them? In introducing such measures will not Government become subject to very much the same description of remonstrance as has been put forward against the protection of cotton.

"The introduction of similar rules to those in force in the United States must be attended with considerable expense, and I presume that this will entail the levy of fees from the merchants who are to be benefited. Unless they have asked for the adoption of protective measures, the Chamber of Commerce will, I think, at once enter a protest against any action, and, as with cotton so with grain, will say the merchants can protect themselves.

"With all due deference it appears to me that the clearest course to be followed, if such measures are considered necessary, would be first to consult the Chamber of Commerce. The merchants at the shipping ports must know better than any one else where an evil lies in their trade interfering with it, and their knowledge and experience in dealing with the suppliers would enable them to state what remedy, if any, is required or is feasible. The Collectors might then be able to state what could be done up-country for the inspection, grading and warehousing of grain at large railway centres, or at any port whence grain may be exported direct to other countries.

"The printed rules, if I understand them rightly, only show what arrangements are made at large central marts from which grain is transmitted by rail or canal to the port of foreign export and at such ports. It does not appear that any such measures are adopted at other places or railway or canal stations where limited quantities of grain may be loaded and sent for sale to the port—in fact, the expense of keeping up establishments at small stations would be too great. I think, then, the Chamber of Commerce might be asked to name the central grain railway or other stations from which grain is despatched to the ports for export, and at which an inspection and grading establishment and warehouses might be located."

13. In the Kolába district wheat is neither grown nor consumed.

14. Mr. Ramsay, Collector of Násik, expresses his opinion in the following terms:—

"I doubt if India would ever, certainly not for very many years to come, be ripe for such a system as that existing in America. The nature of the country, the character of the dealers and the scope of the grain trade are so vastly dissimilar in the two countries that no comparison can be drawn. America is an enlightened and enterprizing country with an export grain trade of enormous proportions, and by a happy combination of growers, carriers and exporters a system has been adopted which has been found beneficial to all parties concerned and to the State also in natural consequence. In India all these conditions are reversed—as yet at least the export grain trade is on a very small scale. Producers, middlemen and exporters all have, or think they have, separate interests; at least in practice it would, I think, be found impossible to invite them in one common aim and action as in America. Traders in this country are always jealous and suspicious of any Government interference, and any system of grain inspection enforced by law might have a most calamitous effect upon the grain trade and the supply of food. The American system is based upon a voluntary co-operation of all parties through whose hands the grain passes, and such a combination would be impossible in India. Again, it would almost be impossible to grade wheat here as in America, for the simple reason that the raiyats, as a rule, sow many varieties of seed in one field, and, unless the law were to step in here and dictate to the farmer what seed he should sow, perfect grading would be impracticable. The financial difficulty is also a serious one, as I do not see how the trade could bear the inspection expenses. In conclusion, it seems to me only necessary to point to the agitation raised against the Cotton Frauds Act to judge of how far Government interference would be tolerated in the grain trade.

"The remedy lies, I think, in the hands of the Bombay and other exporting merchants, who by refusing to accept any but really good qualities of grain (and they can make their own arrangements for testing and sampling) will ultimately compel the up-country dealer to improve the quality of his consignments."

15. The Collector of Khándesh, Mr. Propert, reports—"I have read through the summary of the rules for the inspection of grain in the United States, and can find nothing at all in any way applicable to the present condition of the grain trade of this district. The elaborate system of inspection and classification obtaining in the States appears to be many years in advance of the requirements of our conservative banya grain-dealers, and if introduced here, even in a modified form, could have no other effect than that of harassing the people and hurrying on the traders faster than they desire or are prepared to travel. Any legislation on the subject would certainly be many years in advance of the requirements of the country."

16. The foregoing remarks show very clearly, I think, that any idea of having inspectors [illegible] from Bombay must, if it was ever held, be abandoned. There is no place in the Northern Districts where the trade is such, or is soon likely to be such, that it could pay for the supervision necessary to ensure the effective working of a scheme such as exists in America. Could, then, the system, if it could not be advantageously introduced in districts beyond Bombay, be introduced into Bombay itself?

hardly a point on which I can offer an opinion, as I have had no opportunities of discussing the subject with any of the mercantile community; but, so far as I am able to judge, the American system is not suited to Western India.

17. Where, as in America, enormous areas are grown with food-grains of very much the same kind and quality, the work of testing and grading would be comparatively simple and easy, and all that would be needed to ensure effective working would be good supervision. In this part of the country, however, and everywhere throughout Western and, I may add, Southern India the land instead of being cultivated by farmers owning large areas and growing for export, is occupied by petty peasant proprietors who grow mainly to supply their own wants and the local market. The consequence is, that what is available for export is generally collected by a class of middlemen from a number of cultivators, and that this middleman's stock represents a great variety of grain both as to description and quality. To grade this accurately would be almost impossible—the different cultivators have used different seed—some of this seed may have been all of one quality, but some much mixed—and, again, when the different kinds of grain have been purchased, the middleman stores them in a way to mingle them still more. But, it may be argued, if this is so then there is all the greater need of supervision. This in one sense is true; but as you cannot have supervision that will extend to every village, supervision will be practically useless, and I doubt if any amount of supervision at the port of export would really affect the growers except where wheat or other grain is grown in large quantities for export, and where it is so grown self-interest will act more effectively than Government interference.

18. If, on the other hand, the trading community at Bombay are anxious to have some system, of the kind referred to, introduced, and are prepared to superintend the working of it, then I should say by all means let the experiment be tried, but let this be under mercantile, not Government, supervision; by this I mean that the direct control and management should, as in America, be left to the mercantile community: if they cannot undertake this, it is not for Government to step in and do it for them, and it may then safely be affirmed that the time for interference has not arrived.

No. 5600, dated Poona the 31st December 1877.

From—E. P. Robertson, Esq., Revenue Commissioner, Southern Division,

To—The Chief Secretary to Government, Bombay, Revenue Department.

Having now received the reports of the Collectors, Southern Division, on the subject of Government Resolution No. 6207, dated 17th October 1877, I have the honour to submit for the information of Government the following substance of them.

2. The Collector of Ratnágiri briefly intimates that wheat is not grown in this district, and therefore, he has no remarks to offer.

3. Mr. Norman, Collector of Poona, is of opinion that no system of grading wheat, similar to that prevailing in the United States of America, is either practicable or required in this country. He observes that the system in force there is the result of private arrangement; but if introduced into India it would have to be carried out by an army of Government officials, and must necessarily interfere with trade. The outcry against the arrangements in force for preventing the adulteration of cotton shows very clearly what the opinion of the mercantile community is likely to be with respect to any measure of the nature suggested. Under these circumstances he considers that the wheat trade should be left to take care of itself, every information at the same time being afforded as to the qualities best suited for the European market.

4. The Collector of Sátára, Mr. Moore, while stating that the matter is one on which a merchant can express a more valuable opinion than he can, observes that the arrangement sketched appears to him to be far too elaborate for this country, and that he is not aware of any necessity for such strict inspection, in so far at least as the Sátára District is concerned. To obtain the services of an inspector-in-chief with the necessary qualifications would, he thinks, be most difficult in Bombay and impossible in the interior. We might find men who know grain, but the moral character would be the stumbling block, unless the salaries were high; and even then he fears we shall be merely adding in many instances to the many doors for fraud which already exist without any compensating advantages.

5. Mr. Percival, Collector of Sholápur, is of opinion that this part of the country would not benefit by a system of inspection. He observes—

"The object is to make a consignment of wheat as exchangeable as a bank-note; it therefore requires very perfect inspection and great uniformity in grading." And he adds that there is not enough trade, and the consignments are too small to pay for such men as would be needed for this work; while it is doubtful if there are men to be found in this country combining the necessary knowledge and high moral qualities. Mr. Percival considers that if the wheat trade should grow to very large dimensions, some such system of inspection may be gradually started at great centres of trade, but that, at present, any attempt to help the merchants is more likely to do harm than good. When the want is felt, they will very likely come to Government for assistance.

6. Mr. Candy, First Assistant Collector in charge Ahmednagar, states that he does not think the introduction of the system in India would be acceptable to the traders of this country; while any interference on the part of Government in enforcing such a measure would, at all events until the grain trade is more developed, be viewed with suspicion by the Natives. He remarks that it will be observed that the system in force in the United States is chiefly an arrangement between the grain merchants and Railway Companies, and that should such a system be found necessary in this country, the Chamber of Commerce will, no doubt, in due time urge its adoption.

7. I concur in the opinions expressed by the Collectors of this Division as to the inadvisability of introducing the system of inspection of wheat proposed by the Government of India.

8. The Government of Bombay and even the Government of India must be fully aware of the very strong opposition there has always been to the Cotton Department. With regard to inspection of wheat, the opposition of the mercantile community would, it appears to me, be stronger far than it has been as regards cotton inspection, and with far greater reason.

9. Government will perhaps recollect that during the discussions on the Cotton Frauds Act it was argued by the opponents to that Act that, if that Act were passed, Government might desire inspection of all produce, and this might go so far as to extend even to the inspection of wheat, intending thereby to show that any interference was unnecessary.

10. The inspection of cotton I consider a necessity, as that staple can be and is so readily adulterated with different varieties and mixed with refuse. Such adulteration cannot be remedied, and the detection of refuse is next to impossible when cotton has been baled. Admixture of wheat is, on the contrary, at once discernible, and can easily be remedied.

11. The rules adopted in the United States emanate from the mercantile community, and the States Government has not the trouble, difficulty and opprobrium of working them. If any such rules are at any time required in this country, it will be quite sufficient for the Government to leave such measures to the different Chambers of Commerce. At present all that is necessary is that the Chambers be made acquainted with the procedure in America.

12. At any rate, no steps whatever for introducing Government inspectors should be taken till the Chambers have been consulted, and till they say they deem inspection necessary, and that they themselves are helpless.

No. 3223, dated Belgaum, the 9th November 1877.

From—A. Grey, Esq., Revenue Commissioner, Kánara Division,

To—The Chief Secretary to Government, Bombay.

With reference to Government Resolution No. 6207, dated 17th ultimo, I have the honour to state that the Collectors of Belgaum, Dhárwár and Kaládgi, the districts in this Division in which wheat is produced, are unable to offer any practical suggestions for giving effect to the rules in force in the chief grain centres of the United States relating to the inspection and grading of wheat and other grains.

2. It has, I believe, already been pointed out to Government by the Bombay Chamber of Commerce that the system in force in the United States of America was introduced for the sole purpose of securing rapidity in dealing with the enormous masses of grain produce in that country, where grain is always dealt with in bulk, and of preventing the trouble and inconvenience of dealing with and identifying individual lots. The system of inspections appears to be organized by arrangement between the various bodies of grain merchants and the Railway Companies, and does not imply the necessity for any Government interference. I am of the same opinion as that already expressed by the mercantile community who are most interested in such a measure, that the Indian grain trade is not yet sufficiently developed to render the introduction of the system in force in the United States convenient or desirable.

Dated Bombay, the 24th October 1877.

From—J. Gordon, Esq., Secretary to the Chamber of Commerce, Bombay,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of the Resolution of the Government of India, No. [illegible], dated the 24th August last, forwarding certain papers regarding the grading and delivery of wheat in the United States, and requesting the Chamber to consider whether any similar system could be adopted in this country, and, if so, to suggest in what way Government could assist, by legislation or otherwise, in introducing and carrying into effect an efficient system.

In reply, I am directed to state that the system of inspection referred to in these papers seems to be one organized by arrangement between the various bodies of grain merchants and the Railway Companies, and does not imply any Government interference of any kind. The system has nothing whatever to do with the improvement of the quality of grain, but has evidently been introduced for the sole purpose of securing rapidity in dealing with the enormous masses of grain produce in the United States, where, the Committee believe, grain is always dealt with in bulk, and of preventing the trouble and inconvenience of dealing with and identifying individual lots. It has obviously many advantages—the railway certificates, with quantity and grade assured, become negotiable commodities, and this alone must greatly facilitate trade.

Perhaps some years hence, when the Indian grain trade has been more developed, a system of the same kind might be found convenient and desirable in India; but, in the opinion of the Chamber, the time for it has not yet come. It is a system that can only be brought about gradually, and any attempts to force it must fail. The Railway Companies, moreover, would have to undertake storage and to be ready to deliver, not necessarily any particular grain, but a particular "grade" of grain, on production of certificates.

Dated Kurrachee, the 26th October 1877.

From—G. J. PORTLOCK, Esq., Secretary to the Kurrachee Chamber of Commerce,

To—The Under Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce.

I have the honour to acknowledge due receipt of your No. $\frac{3}{2054}$, forwarding a summary of the rules for the inspection of grain in the United States, and inviting the opinion of the Chamber as to the desirability of a similar system in India.

In reply, I am desired by the Managing Committee to inform you that, although the members would be glad to see an improvement in the quality of Indian-grown wheat, they are mainly of opinion that, owing to vast and numerous differences between the grain trade as conducted here and in the United States, the American system of storing and grading wheat is altogether impracticable for Kurrachee, and they are not prepared at present to recommend any special legislation for the purpose.

No. 1672, dated Calcutta, the 2nd May 1878.

From—D. BARBOUR, Esq., Officiating Secretary to the Government of Bengal,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of the Resolution by the Government of India, in the Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce, No. 3-191, dated the 24th August last, forwarding a summary of the rules in force in the chief grain centres of the United States relating to the inspection and grading of wheat and other grains, and calling for a report as to whether any similar system could be adopted in this country.

2. In reply, I am to say that there is a consensus of opinion among all officers in Bengal who have been consulted on the subject, that the system in question is unsuited to the present state of the trade, and to the character of the people of this country. The Lieutenant-Governor, therefore, would not recommend any interference, by legislation or otherwise, on the part of Government, with a view to introducing any such system for the inspection and grading of wheat and other grains as prevails in the United States.

Dated the 23rd January 1878.

From—H. W. I. WOOD, Esq., Secretary to the Bengal Chamber of Commerce,

To—The Assistant Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Revenue Agriculture and Commerce.

The Committee of the Chamber of Commerce desire me to state, in acknowledgment of Mr. Lyall's letter No. 3-202 of 24th August last, that the system of inspection of grain adopted in the United States of America is not suitable to the trade of this country.

The circumstances and course of the grain trade of India, which is exclusively in the hands of Native merchants, differ so essentially from those of the United States, that any assimilation of system of grading, warehousing and inspecting would, the Committee believe, be utterly impracticable.

No. 1571 A., dated Naini Tal, the 8th of June 1878.

From—C. ROBERTSON, Esq., Secretary to Government of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce.

From the Director of Agriculture and Commerce of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, No. 633 T.A. and 336 T.A., dated respectively the 12th of December 1877 and 31st of May 1878.

With reference to correspondence ending with your reminder No. 114 C., dated the 29th of April last, I am directed to submit, for the information of His Excellency the Governor General in Council, a copy of the papers marginally noted, being a report on the proposal to introduce into India the American system of inspecting and grading wheat and other grains, and to state that the system seems to the Lieutenant-Governor and Chief Commissioner unsuited to this country, or at least to these provinces.

No. 633 T. A., dated Camp Saharanpur, the 12th December 1877.

From—E. BUCK, Esq., Director of Agriculture and Commerce of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh,

To—The Secretary to the Government of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

With reference to your No. 2216A., dated the 27th September 1877, I have the honour to submit the following remarks on the rules for inspection of grain in the United States.

2. In paragraph 2 of the "Summary" of the rules appended to the Government of India Resolution No. 3—192, the object (not "one of the objects") of the rules is stated to be that of "ensuring the delivery of wheat, &c., of defined qualities to purchasers at shipping ports," and if that is the only object, the introduction of any similar rules in the North-Western Provinces would not tend in any way to secure it.

3. The inspection of grain arriving at New York is not made until it arrives at New York, where inspectors enter upon railway cars on their reaching the New York terminus. Grain is then classed and put into a warehouse attached to the railway until it is shipped or bought.

4. Consignments for shipment from Cawnpore and other marts in the North-Western Provinces to Howrah would not, therefore, be inspected and classed in the North-Western Provinces, but at Howrah. The necessity of classing at the place of destination and not at the place of departure is evident. The classification at any one given market must be uniform, and all grain collected there must be valued by the same set of inspectors under the same schedule.

5. But it appears not to be the case that the only object of the rules is to "ensure the delivery of defined classes of grain to purchasers at shipping ports" (although no other is stated in the summary). There are, for instance, "Illinois" Rules, "Chicago" Rules, "Milwaukee" Rules. All of which places are inland or on lakes.

6. The rules quoted seem to be very incomplete, and are apparently only extracts or summaries. No "objects" and "reasons" are given with them, and it is not clear what is the entire scope of the ends intended to be gained by them. The only advantage which comes out with any clearness is their convenience to merchants engaged in the grain trade.

7. The fullest information given is contained in the summary of the "Illinois" rules, under which public warehouses for the storage of grain may be established in any large town, in which warehouses the deposit of grain is optional, not compulsory, i.e., there is no compulsion to deposit grain for classification under Government inspectors (see first ten lines of page 12.)

8. The real question seems to be, therefore, whether it would be in any way convenient to the traders of Cawnpore, Agra and other marts of these provinces to be able to avail themselves of public warehouses in which grain might be stored and classed under Government inspection. I have put this question, through the Collectors of Cawnpore and Agra, to the traders of those places, and will communicate a definite reply to Government on receiving their reports.

9. The public object of securing true descriptions of grain for export is not (as I expected to find the case) anywhere expressly stated to be an object of the rules which are apparently framed entirely for the convenience of local traders at each mart. A warehouse system at Cawnpore and other inland marts would not, however, tend to secure a true description for exported grain of which the classification must take place at Howrah or Bombay, the collecting ports. The only question which applies to the North-Western Provinces is that, therefore, to which I have given expression in paragraph 8.

No. 336 T.A., dated Allahabad, the 31st May 1878.

From—F. N. WRIGHT, Esq., Officiating Director of Agriculture and Commerce of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh,

To—The Secretary to the Government of the North-Western Provices and Oudh.

With reference to G. O. No. 1187 A. of 8th May 1878, I have the honour to report that, as desired by Mr. Buck, I have personally consulted the leading grain merchants, European and Native, in Cawnpore, and the Collector of Agra has similarly consulted the merchants in that city.

2. The result of these inquiries is adverse to the proposal of introducing rules identical with or similar to those adopted in America, respecting the inspection, classification and storage of grains. The general tenor of the replies of merchants is to deprecate Government interference in this direction; and whilst admitting the great advantage that might be derived from any system that would ensure the shipment of high-class grains only, the merchants are of opinion that rules which require such strictness of detail and such thorough probity in those who would have to work them, are not adapted to the existing conditions of trade in these great marts.

3. Grain, like other staples of Indian trade, is collected from innumerable small producers by middlemen ("Arthya") who supply the large European exporters, but themselves also act as exporters. It is at this point that so much dishonesty prevails, and yet, whilst merchants recognize the great blot in the system, they do not see the practicability of any immediate reform. They themselves retain the collected grain for as short a time as possible, they have no wish to store, indeed the liability of wheat to the ravages of the weevil is directly opposed to any safety in storing. They consider themselves competent to arrange for the classification of grain, and they are promised the support of a Committee "consisting of members of some of the principal firms in Calcutta, English millers and contractors appointed by the Mark Lane Exchange" (such as already exists in the oil-seed trade) which will afford all the protection to exporters and shipppers that appears called for.

4. The appointment of a necessarily large body of inspectors would, in their opinion, open the door to a wide system of peculation and bribery. "Government interference," writes one merchant, "ruined the saltpetre trade, and was a questionable benefit to cotton in Bombay; in both cases Government subordinates were found to have a price, and dealers found it to their interest to offer bribes."

5. As noted by Mr. Buck in his letter dated the 7th of December 1877, merchants suggest that the necessity for grading, classification and storage in India arises at the seaports; it is there, if anywhere, the experiment should be first made.

6. Though not strictly part of the present subject, yet, as persistently urged in connection with it by merchants in their conversation and correspondence with me, I venture to bring forward the great injury done to a growing trade by the insufficient and irregular supply of carriage provided by the East Indian Railway. Though facilities for immediate or, at least, early despatch would obviate any necessity for storage in what is in reality only a collecting market, I am informed that it has become necessary for the merchants in this city to urgently address the Railway Authorities on this subject, as the possibility of their fulfilling their sale contracts is, even under the ordinary circumstances of trade, this year becoming seriously imperilled. I venture to hope this may not altogether escape the attention of Government.

In continuation of my letter No. 1571A., dated the 8th of June 1878, I am directed to submit copy of a letter* from the Commissioner of Meerut, regarding the proposal to introduce into India the American system of inspecting and storing wheat and other grain.

* No. 44 dated the 13th June 1878.

No. 44, dated Mussooree, the 13th June 1878.

From—The Commissioner of the 1st or Meerut Division,

To—The Director of Agriculture and Commerce of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

Referring to your office No. T.—203A., dated the 8th of May, and subsequent correspondence closing with your No. 787 A—c VII., dated the 3rd of June, I have the honour to state that, in my opinion, the adoption of the rules summarized in the proceedings of the Government of India, No. 3—192, is not feasible in this country.

2. The object of the rules regulating the system of inspection of grain adopted in the United States is to ensure the delivery of wheat and other food-grains of defined qualities to purchasers at shipping ports.

3. To do this satisfactorily the first requisites are a standard for each grade of wheat and other food-grain. These standards have to be made up early in each season, as the new crops come in.

4. Next inspection of such a character as to certify that the grain passed is of the quality it represents itself to be.

5. At present, and for some time to come till rapid communication is more universal, it will be impossible to secure either of these requisites, and I am of opinion that it would not be practicable to carry out the rules in this country.

6. Your enclosures are returned.

No. 460, dated Lahore, the 8th April 1879.

From—LEPEL GRIFFIN, Esq., Secretary to the Government of the Punjab,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce.

In continuation of my letter No. 666 of the 24th May 1878, I am desired to forward, for the information of the Government of India, the promised report on the wheat cultivation and trade of the Punjab which has just been received from the Financial Commissioner, No. 147 of the 8th February.

2. The report is full, and scarcely calls for remark in passing it on; but I am to express the Honourable the Lieutenant Governor's entire concurrence in what is stated in paragraph 22 in regard to the difficulty of improving the quality of grain exported by careful sorting and cleaning before it leaves the interior of the country. This difficulty is also felt with reference to the adulteration of wheat mentioned in paragraph 24, for the rough way in which grain is carried and kept in India must prevent any careful separation of the grains of various kinds, and the more so as the seed-grain is seldom or never pure.

Extract (para. 22) from a letter from Secretary to Financial Commissioner, to Secretary to Government, Punjab,—No. 147, dated 8th February 1879.

Improvement of quality of the grain exported by sorting and cleaning.

Para. 22. In connection with this part of the subject, it is necessary to allude to the "rules for inspection of grain in the United States," of which copies were received from Government for information in September 1877. The object of these rules is stated to be "to ensure the delivery of wheat and other food-grains of defined qualities to purchasers at shipping ports." This is effected by a system of inspection and the issue of certificates declaring the quantity and quality of the grain. Such a system is doubtless very useful in a highly-civilized commercial community, but it is difficult to see in what way it could be worked in the interior of India. It is a matter for the consideration rather of the Chambers of Commerce at Bombay, Kurrachee and Calcutta, than for the Revenue authorities in the interior, because grain can only be conveniently inspected after it has been gathered together and sent down to the shipping ports: something might be done by the merchants at those ports to establish standards of grain and to disseminate information as to the qualities on which difference in price chiefly depends. In course of time exporters in the interior would come to know that certain kinds of grain or certain modes of treatment would ensure higher prices at the shipping ports. But as long as the local producers can obtain what they consider a remunerative price without taking any trouble in the way of separating wheat from other grain, of "hard wheat" from "soft wheat," it is not likely that any great improvement will be effected in their habits in this respect.

When the trade in grain has reached a steady limit, and a profit is only to be made by effecting an improvement in quality by careful treatment, these artistic systems may be useful. But the fact is, that the greatest activity in the grain trade shows itself in times of famine and panic, when the great demand is for edible grain, no matter of what kind or quality; and at such a time any little defects of sorting and cleaning are readily overlooked. The past year or two, therefore, have been an unfavourable period for forming any judgment as to the real requirements of the wheat cultivation and trade. The conditions of the subject have been rendered quite abnormal by the occurrence of the famines in various parts of India, and latterly also by the uncertain state of affairs in Europe. When these exceptional conditions cease to exercise a disturbing influence, the prospects of the grain trade between India and Europe vid the Suez Canal will be more clearly discernible. There can, however, be no doubt that in the absence of disturbing causes, and to some extent in spite of such causes, there is a tendency towards a rapid development of the trade between Indian and Mediterranean ports. This is specially evinced by the increase of the trade between India and Italy, which is shown in the Statistical Abstract of British India, 1877, No. 11, pp. 48-49, and in the Annual Statements of Trade of British India up to 31st March 1877, Part II (pp. 4-5 of the Abstract Tables), to have been as follows for the years ending 31st March:—

	£	£	£	£	£	£
Imports from Italy to India ...	114,488	146,924	338,995	279,865	526,825	1,365,779
Exports from India to Italy ...	134,183	954,074	1,319,579	1,112,191	1,223,814	1,410,405

This trade may be said to be a new creation, due to the opening of the Suez Canal. Much of this export trade must consist of food-grains. The falling-off in 1875 corresponds to a falling-off in the export of food-grain generally from India to other countries, and is probably due to the Bengal famine.

No. 249-169, dated Nagpur, the 21st January 1878.

From LINDSAY NEILL, Esq., Officiating Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce.

I am directed to acknowledge your Resolution No. 3-194, dated 24th August 1877, circulating papers regarding rules in force in the chief grain centres of the United States relating to the inspection and grading of wheat and other grains, and asking the Chief Commissioner to consider whether any similar system could be adopted in this country: and if so, to suggest in what way the Government could assist, by legislation or otherwise, in introducing and carrying into effect an efficient system.

2. The Chief Commissioner has consulted the Commissioners of Divisions, to each of whom a copy of the papers accompanying your Resolution was sent, and their views may be briefly epitomized. The Commissioner of the Chhattisgarh Division considers that this part of India is not yet ready for any such system, however well it might succeed at large centres of trade on lines of railway, or steamers on navigable rivers. The Commissioner of Jubbulpur does not think that the system could at present be carried into effect, because—(1) the Native merchants are not sufficiently educated to appreciate it, nor are they under control of anybody, such as the New York produce exchange, which could compel them to follow the necessary rules; (2) there would be great difficulty in procuring inspectors of requisite honesty and skill without very great expense; (3) the railway companies have neither the mechanical means nor the administrative staff necessary for carrying out the system. The Commissioner proceeds to say: "I am of opinion that it would be premature to introduce a system of compulsory inspection at present. But I think that the Railway Companies might take measures to procure the necessary carts and weighing machines; and that inspectors might be appointed experimentally at Bombay and some of the larger marts, whose duty it should be to examine and certify the quality of all grain which is submitted to them. The effect of this would be to create a presumption against the quality of uncertified grain which would tend towards making inspection general. After some time the actual system of the United States might be introduced." The Jubbulpur Municipal Committee, believe papers were laid, not only considers that in the present state of matters the introduction of the American system would be premature, but that it would be obstructive to trade.

3. The Commissioner, Narbada Division, considers that the American system, if introduced at all—and he readily admits that the trade would be greatly benefited by an authoritative grading and by the facilities which this would afford for transfer of stock and for shipment—must first be started at the large seaports where alone produce in large quantities is warehoused.

The views of the Commissioner, Nagpur, are very similar to those which have already been given. He thinks the American system an admirable one, but only capable of realization in an advanced country where capital has accumulated, where the standard of morality is high, and where mutual trust and confidence between business men have been considerably developed. He shares the opinion of the Commissioner, Jubbulpur, that there would be great difficulty in procuring the proper inspectors, and that Native merchants would be suspicious of, and might even question, the classification of an inspector-in-chief. He says: "As regards certain cereals, I believe that Native and European notions of excellence are at variance; and although no doubt the inspector-in-chief might make his classification in accordance with prices ruling for grain to be exported, yet there would be difficulty if some of the grain intended for export were to be diverted, or if other grain were diverted from home consumption to export." As an indication of the habits of the people, the Commissioner reports that, during the late famine traffic, sheds for warehousing and storing grain were erected at Nagpur, and that though the merchants had all bought their grain from the same parts, and the quality was probably exactly the same, they all desired partition of the sheds, so that each might have his grain separate.

4. The Chief Commissioner quite accepts the opinions which are so unanimously held by those whom he has consulted, that the American system is too advanced for the present circumstances of this country, and that an attempt at its introduction on the part of Government would be misunderstood and viewed with suspicion. An export trade in grain with Europe is only now growing up, and any action which might check this trade would be in a high degree impolitic. He is, therefore, not prepared to recommend that any steps, legislative or other, should at present be taken by Government with a view to introducing the American system of grading. As, however, he has long thought the development of the export trade of the Central Provinces a matter of great moment, and one to be furthered in every legitimate way, he has perused the papers sent by your Department with much interest, and now desires me to make the following remarks.

5. In the papers sent, information is conveyed regarding the rules in force in four places in the United States, viz., (a) New York, (b) Chicago, (c) Illinois, (d) Milwaukee. The rules seem only to deal with one branch of the trade, that is to say, with the grain trade, including wheat, corn, oats, rye, barley, and peas; and the Chief Commissioner presumes that similar rules have either been found unworkable, or not to be needed in respect to the trade in cotton, oil-seed, &c. This is a matter on which he would like to have some definite information.

6. Then, again, it is difficult to ascertain the precise amount and nature of Government or State interference exercised. In New York all the arrangements seem of a voluntary nature, and it is not apparent that Government, or officers appointed by Government, take any part in them. For instance, appeals from the inspectors-in-chief, grading of grain, and complaints regarding neglect on his part and on the part of other inspectors, are investigated by the Committee on Grain (pages 2 and 3), and the decisions of the Committee are again subject to inquiry by the Board of Managers of the Produce Exchange (page 6, rule 25, and page 7, rule 9). In Chicago, however, the rules seem to have to some extent the sanction of law, for a duly-authorized inspector of grain, guilty of neglect of duty, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanour (page 11). In contrast to the voluntary character of the New York rules and to the slight State interference noticed in the Chicago rules, are the rules in force in Illinois. In the first place, a public granary of the (a) class is only contemplated in towns containing 100,000 inhabitants (and it may be noticed that there are no such towns in the Central Provinces). Licenses are then issued for such granaries and warehouses; and security bonds are entered into by those who desire to act as public warehousemen. In these public warehouses "separate bins" are provided for those who wish to keep their grain separately. In India, as has been already pointed out by the Commissioner, Nagpur, separate bins would for long be the rule and not the exception, and they are provided in Illinois, though to what extent they are used is not shown. But it must be borne in mind that this system of "separate bins" strikes at the very root of the New York arrangement, where the object of that system is to destroy the identity of particular lots. Some explanation of this material difference between the two sets of rule is wanted, though the Chief Commissioner presumes that it may in measure be due to the greater advancement of New York compared to Illinois—a view which is supported by the fact that at the former place all is done voluntarily, while in the latter the State takes the place of the produce exchange. In Illinois, a chief inspector of grain is appointed by the Governor of the State, and this is certainly a measure which would have to be represented in India; for no private inspectors, much less a private inspector-in-chief, would command confidence. Finally, in Milwaukee it would seem that the whole system is voluntary and under the management of a Chamber of Commerce.

7. If the Government of India can furnish Mr. Morris with a copy of the Illinois rules, and of the Acts of the Legislature bearing on them, he would be glad to have them, not so much because at the present time the system prevailing there could be adopted here, but because that system seems a nearer approach to what hereafter might be acceptable here, and would afford a good basis for Government action. It seems desirable, therefore, that information regarding that system should be before Government, and should be considered by Chambers of Commerce, Municipal Corporations, &c.

No. 756-35, dated Rangoon, the 20th April 1878.

From—G. C. KYNOCH, Esq., Assistant to the Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, British Burma,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce.

With reference to your Department Resolution No. 3-195, dated the 24th August last, inquiring whether a system similar to that in force in the United States, for the inspection and grading of wheat, could be adopted in this country, I am directed to say that the universal opinion of the mercantile firms in Rangoon, Moulmein and Akyab is that the introduction of a system of grading paddy is not considered suitable to the circumstances of this province or to the conditions under which the rice trade is at present carried on.

Dated Rangoon, the 30th January 1878.

From—JOHN CONNELL, Esq., Secretary to the Rangoon Chamber of Commerce,

To—The Under Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce.

With reference to Resolution of the Government of India, No. 3-203, dated 24th August, I have the honour, by direction of the Committee of this Chamber, to inform you that rules such as those in force in the United States for the inspection and grading of wheat and other grain are inapplicable to the grain trade of this province in its present state.

No. 3108, dated Shillong, the 28th September 1877.

From T. J. MURRAY, Esq., Officiating Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of Assam,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of Government Resolution No. 3—197, dated 24th August 1877, giving cover to a summary prepared in your office from the papers received from Her Majesty's Secretary of State of the rules for the inspection of grain in the United States, and in reply to say that no wheat is grown in this province.

2. There is a considerable export of mustard-seed, but it is a new industry that has sprung up in this province within the last few years. The mustard-seed trade is in the hands of the Marwaris, who are foreigners to the province, and many of whom are mere adventurers with no real capital. There are no corporate bodies, such as Chambers of Commerce, in this province.

3. Under the circumstances, the necessary inspection could not be procured at any reasonable cost.

The scheme is, the Chief Commissioner fears, far in advance of the existing commercial wants of this province.

No. $\frac{1247}{\text{R. 16}}$, dated Bangalore, the 17th May 1878.

From—Major T. G. CLARKE, Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of Mysore,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce.

With reference to the resolution of the Government of India, No. 3—196, dated 24th August 1877, forwarding a summary of the rules for the inspection and grading of wheat and other grains in the United States, and requesting that it may be considered whether any similar system could be adopted in this country, I have the honour, by desire of the Chief Commissioner, to state that, in the opinion of those best competent to judge, a system, such as that referred to, cannot, with any practical advantage, be adopted in this province.

No. 34E., dated Hyderabad Residency, the 6th February 1878.

From—A. J. DUNLOP, Esq., Officiating Second Assistant Resident, Hyderabad,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce Department.

With reference to Resolution by the Government of India, No. 3-199, dated 24th August last, forwarding a summary of the Rules in force in America for the inspection and classification of grain, I am directed to forward the accompanying copy of letter No. C.-A., dated 17th ultimo, from the Commissioner, Hyderabad Assigned Districts, from which it will be observed that that officer, and others whom he has consulted on the subject, consider the grain export trade of Berar is still too much in its infancy to permit of the adoption of any such scheme as is indicated in the papers under reference.

2. In this opinion the Resident fully concurs. Were such a system initiated by an association of the grain merchants at the chief seaport towns, the result might perhaps be found beneficial to the merchants themselves and to the country generally. But, until a demand for a scheme of the nature is felt by those directly concerned in the trade, the Resident doubts if State interference or assistance would lead to any good results.

3. The past history of the cotton trade of Berar shows that much may be done towards developing trade by improving communications and opening markets, so as to bring producers in direct contact with exporters, and Sir R. Meade believes that it is in this direction rather than by any system of inspection that the grain trade of the province can be developed and gradually placed on a firm basis.

No. C.-A., dated Camp Rail, the 17th January 1878.

From—W. B. JONES, Esq., Commissioner, Hyderabad Assigned Districts,

To—The Second Assistant Resident, Hyderabad.

I have the honour, with reference to your endorsement No. 2943 of 26th September 1877, to submit, in original, opinions received from the Deputy Commissioners, Amraoti, Akola and Buldana regarding the American system of grading wheat, and to state briefly that, in my opinion, the system is one which, if introduced at all, must be introduced in the first instance by arrangements between the Railway Company and the larger grain merchants of Bombay. The system is evidently a very convenient one; but there is nothing in the correspondence to show that the Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company are prepared to undertake so vast a charge, and I would also remark that until the Company can inspire traders with the belief that they can and will work the system well, there is no prospect of its successful introduction.

The wheat trade in Berar is still small, and local traders would certainly not at present consent to allow their consignments to be mixed up with other consignments of the same sort, and then to take delivery from a general stock.

No. 524, dated Amraoti, 24th November 1877.

From—C. HORDERN, Esq., Deputy Commissioner, Amraoti District,

To—The Commissioner, Hyderabad Assigned Districts.

I have the honour to return the papers received under your No. 2943 of 1877.

2. I do not think the American system described therein could be introduced here; in the first place it would be necessary, if I have understood the system properly, for the Railway Company to agree to it, and to become purchasers and warehouse-men.

3. Even if it did agree, I doubt whether the grain-dealers would; for, in the second place, the business would depend upon the inspectors. Whether these men are to be appointed by the Railway Company or by commercial bodies is not clear, but there would have to be a large number of them, and there would be considerable difficulty in obtaining a supply of properly-qualified men of such high moral character as to withstand the temptations in their way,—at any rate, if they were to be appointed by the ordinary commercial bodies at all places of export.

4. I have endeavoured to ascertain Native ideas of the American scheme, and, so far as it goes, the opinion is that it could not be worked here.

No. 1262 C. D., dated Akola, the 27th November 1877.

From—Lieutenant-Colonel C. T. O. MAYNE, Officiating Deputy Commissioner, Akola District,

To—The Commissioner, Hyderabad Assigned Districts.

With reference to your endorsement as per margin,* regarding the adoption of measures in Berar for improving the quality of Indian wheat, I forward two reports† from the Khamgaon and Akola merchants, through Major Laughton and Mr. Bymanji, in which they clearly express their opinion that the Berar wheat trade is too small and insignificant either to bear the expense of the establishment proposed, or that it is necessary to grade or classify the wheat exported. I myself have also made inquiries, and the result tallies with the above.

* No. 2942, dated 26th September 1877.

† Copies.

In these opinions I perfectly concur.

No. 236, dated Khamgaon, the 5th October 1877.

From—Major D. W. LAUGHTON, Assistant Commissioner, Akola District,

To—The Deputy Commissioner, Akola District.

In reply to your endorsement No. 1055 C.D., dated 28th ultimo, to correspondence asking for an opinion on the subject of adoption of measures for improving the quality of Indian wheat, I have the honour to state that I have consulted the European and Native merchants here on the subject, and they are unable to give any opinion on the subject, as the wheat trade here is too insignificant for such expensive machinery.

2. I do not think the wheat trade of Berar can be sufficiently extensive to warrant the entertainment of inspectors for this province, and the bulk of wheat forwarded at any one time would hardly be found large enough to introduce the system of grading, testing, trying and amalgamating of lots, so that the identity of particular lots be lost and the consignee be entitled to merely a certain quality of a certain grade.

3. Doubtless the cars in the United States are so built that the grain is stored in them in bulk without any bags or other receptacles.

This could not be done in the wagons of the Railway Companies here.

No. 143.

Mr. Bymanji Jamasji, Assistant Commissioner, reports that he has consulted the Native merchants here on the subject, and is of opinion that the wheat trade in Berar is too insignificant to make it advisable to entertain the services of an inspector, &c. Its growth in the Pyan Ghat is very small; it is generally imported from Balaghát, and hence the system of trying, grading, testing, and amalgamating of various sorts of wheat is impossible; besides this, the expenses of the system will be too heavy to be borne by the peasant class.

If inspectors be at all appointed, they may be appointed at places from which wheat is exported out to Berar, and this may perhaps prove of some use.

No. 747, dated Buldana, the 11th December 1877.

From—MAJOR J. T. BUSHBY, Deputy Commissioner, Buldana District,

To—The Commissioner, Hyderabad Assigned Districts.

Adverting to your No. 2944 of 26th September 1877, I have the honour to state that the trade in the commodity, alluded to in the correspondence accompanying your above quoted letter, not having as yet arrived to such importance as to render the introduction of the system therein contemplated absolutely necessary, I do not advocate it.

2. Adulteration in food-grain in this district is known to a very little extent, and is confined to petty dealers in daily markets. The more intelligent of the traders on a larger scale are sensible of the effects it produces in deteriorating the value of the commodity.

3. The correspondence, moreover, particularly, I imagine, refers to places on the line of railway and on the seaboard. Those portions of the two southern tálukas of this district where wheat is produced to some considerable extent, lie upwards of 50 miles from the nearest railway station, and some 400 miles from the nearest seaport, and what comparatively small surplus (in a commercial point of view) remains after local consumption, finds a ready sale in the rural markets of this as well as of the adjoining districts of these provinces and His Highness the Nizam's Dominions. Outside traders generally make their purchases in small quantities and on the spot, so as to allow very little margin for introduction of a system suitable in places where mercantile transactions in the commodity take place on a grand scale.

4. The food-grain exports of this district are not so extensive as those of cotton. If the Cotton Frauds Act could not find a footing here, much less would the introduction of the system now under consideration; and any step towards it, would simply be taken in the light of an official interference with the free trade of the country, which is in its infancy.

No. 83, dated Camp Mogra, 5th February 1878.

From—A. C. LYALL, Esq., Officiating Chief Commissioner, Ajmere, Mhairwarra.

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce.

With reference to paragraph 2 of Government Resolution No. 3—198, dated 24th August 1877, inquiring whether a system similar to that in force in the United States regarding the inspection and grading of wheat could be adopted in this country, I have the honour to transmit copy of a letter No. 88, dated 25th ultimo, from the Commissioner of Ajmere, reporting that there is not sufficient wheat grown for export to adopt these measures.

No. 88, dated 25th January 1878.

From—L. S. SAUNDERS, Esq., Commissioner of Ajmere,

To—The Chief Commissioner of Ajmere.

With reference to your No. 603, dated 4th October 1877, and subsequent reminder, No. 48, dated 17th instant, on the subject of adoption of measures for improving the quality of Indian wheat, I have the honour to inform you that it does not appear that there is sufficient wheat grown for export in this district to make it worth while to adopt any measures for inspection and grading of wheat."

J. B. PEILE,

Acting Chief Secretary to Government.

Honáji was a popular poet who flourished in the reign of Bájiráw Raghunáth, the last Peshwá. He was a Gowli or milkman by caste, and lived as a Tamáshá maker, or Ballad singer. He seems to be a poet of some natural power, and recited his own songs. He appears to have received little or no education; yet he possesses much information about the legends and stories current among the people. The compilation contains some láwnis on the acts and achievements of the gods Krishna, Shiwa and some other popular gods, and on legends and on amorous subjects. The Compiler gives a short sketch of the life of the bard containing a few facts of his life and a few anecdotes about him. The profession of a poet is said to have descended to the bard from one or two of his immediate predecessors.

Nirmaya Ságar Press; Publisher, Rámchandra Bhikáji Gunjikar.	Aug. 1879.	96 pages	Royal 8vo.	First ...	1,000	Printed ...	1 0 0	.....	Registered.	The work consists of the Sanskrit texts of the sutras or aphorisms of Pánini and of its commentary Kaumudi by Bhattoji Dikshit, and of a Maráthi translation and explanation of the latter work. The work is prepared with much care and labour and is a very useful attempt. The Sanskrit commentary is called Kaumudi, or Moonlight, because it throws light on the meaning of the obscure text of Pánini; and the translator has also given to his book the equally poetical title of the Great Moonlight Festival because he supposes it will afford great joy to enthusiastic students of Sanskrit Grammar.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Bombay Castle, 23rd December 1879.

No. 6839.—The following Resolution of Government in the Revenue Department is published for general information :—

"Registration—Annual Reports.

No. 6790.

Bombay Castle, 19th December 1879.

Letter from the Inspector General of Registration and Stamps, No. 1784, dated 2nd December 1879—Submitting a printed copy of the Annual Administration Report of the Registration Department for the year 1878-79, together with an explanation of the causes which led to the delay in its preparation.

RESOLUTION.—The first remark which Government have to make in entering upon their review of the report of the Inspector General of Registration for the past year is to express their regret at the delay which has occurred in submitting it. The cause of this delay is referred by Mr. Filgate partly to the Press of the Commissioner in Sind which did not comply with an indent for printed Sindhi forms made in March last until the 2nd July following. But notwithstanding this the report might have been submitted many weeks ago but for the dilatoriness of the Sub-Registrar of Sakrand in the Hyderabad District. This officer did not submit his report to the Registrar until 29th September, and "for this" as Mr. Filgate says "there could be no reasonable excuse, as throughout the whole year only 36 deeds were registered in his office." The Sub-Registrar has been suspended from his revenue duties as a punishment, but if it be the fact that he can furnish no reasonable excuse for his conduct, conduct which has delayed the general report for a considerable period and caused the issue of more than one expeditor from the Government of India, Government consider that mere temporary suspension is not a sufficient punishment, and that he ought to be reduced. His Excellency in Council is of opinion that the Registrar of Hyderabad should have exercised a stricter control over his subordinates.

2. The total number of transactions registered during 1878-79 amounted to 97,559, being the largest number recorded since the Department was formed, and an increase of 7,262, or 8·04 per cent., over the transactions for the preceding year. The increase was almost entirely in compulsory registrations, the excess of optional registrations amounting only to 118. The proportion of optional to compulsory registrations was 28·34 to 100, while it was 31·11 to 100 in the preceding year. These figures do not seem to support the theory propounded at the conclusion of the Inspector General's 7th paragraph that the provision contained in Section 50 of the Registration Act to the effect that all registered documents, whether optional or compulsory, shall take precedence over unregistered deeds, has exercised much influence in increasing the number of optional registrations. It is not easy, however, to form an opinion from the results of a single year, and further experience may prove the correctness of Mr. Filgate's theory, which certainly seems, on the face of it, to be just and reasonable.

3. The increase in the number of registrations is, in the opinion of the Inspector General, to be in the main attributed to "continued high prices or to the revival of credit, or to both causes." The incongruity of the results from different districts lying adjacent to one another, and resembling each other in their internal condition, shows, however, the difficulty of attributing them to any cause in general operation. For instance of the six districts specially affected by the late famine, Poona, Sholápur and Ahmednagar exhibit an increase in registrations, while Belgaum, Dhárwár and Kaládgi display a decrease. The deduction might be that the districts of the Southern Marátha Country possess a higher recuperative power than the three first-named; but, however true this remark may be of Dhárwár and Belgaum, it can hardly be applied to Kaládgi. Again, the year under review was one of exceptionally high prices throughout Gujarát, and it might be expected that all the districts of Gujarát would show similar results. But it is not so. In Kaira, the Panch Maháls, and Ahmedabad, registrations increased, while in Surat and Broach they decreased. The Registrar of Broach does indeed assign two causes, one general and one special, for the decrease in his district. The first is that Section 266 of the new Civil Procedure Code has "operated to limit the ryot's credit, so that the sowkár is less willing to assist him with loans." But this remark applies equally to all the rest of the Presidency. The second and special cause assigned is "that the transfer of a recognised share of a bhágdári village has been lately declared by the High Court to be illegal, and a land-holder is thereby disabled from pledging his land unless he can get the assent of his co-parceners." No doubt the Collector is right in his estimate of the operation of this decision. A special cause is assigned by the Inspector General for the increase in Ratnágiri. He says that "as foretold by Mr. Crawford the settlement of the disputes arising out of the khoti tenures is aleady beginning to operate as a powerful factor in increasing the number of transfers of land, and, as a necessary consequence of registered transactions." A special report should be submitted by Mr. Filgate, explaining the anomalies alluded to in this paragraph which may possibly be due to abuses in administration.

4. The increase in the number of transactions is in some districts so remarkable as to call for special mention. Thus Kaira has risen from 6,466 in 1877-78 to 8,236 in 1878-79, Khándesh from 6,873 to 7,884, Poona from 5,821 to 6,991, Sholápur from 3,624 to 4,987, and Thána from 3,642 to 4,470. Of the Sind districts there has been an increase from 3,658 to 4,108 in Shikárpur, from 2,259 to 2,624 in Hyderabad, and from 156 to 196 in the Upper Sind Frontier, while Kurrachee and Thar and Párkar show a slight decrease.

5. The aggregate stated value of property affected by instruments registered in 1878-79 amounted to Rs. 4,57,02,252-4-2, being an increase of Rs. 5,66,201-10-3 over the amount of the preceding year. The increase has been in real property, in which it amounted to more than 13 lakhs, while in moveable property there has been a decrease in value amounting to 7½ lakhs. The average value of each transaction, putting aside wills and authorities to adopt, as well as 1,190 documents in which no consideration was shown, amounted to Rs. 477-12-3, while in the year preceding it was Rs. 509-0-2. It is thus seen that the increase in the value of property is by no means commensurate with the increase in the number of registrations that have taken place. The average registration fee has been almost the same during the year under review as it was in the year preceding, exceeding it only by 9 pies, the actual figures being Rs. 1-11-9 against Rs. 1-11-0. There were 290 refusals to register, as against 174 in 1877-78. In 52 cases appeals were lodged against the refusal, and in 5 only out of the 44 cases that had been heard before the end of the year, was the refusal to register upheld by the Appellate authority. 288 deeds were impounded by Registering Officers for insufficiency of stamp, and in 179 cases their action was upheld.

6. The financial condition of the Department shows some improvement. There is an increase in receipts of Rs. 24,501-6-11 as compared with 1877-78, while expenditure has been diminished by Rs. 1,953-6-2. The latter result is not, however, due to economy of administration, as the entire salary of the Branch Inspector General for Sind is now debited to Imperial Funds, and no part of it forms a charge on registration as formerly was the case, and moreover for the month of March a certain amount (Rs. 389-15-5) of the salary of the Inspector General was undrawn. The increased expenditure under "Postage," "Printing," "Stationery" and "Miscellaneous" (Statement VI.) is explained by the Inspector General as being the natural consequence of the increase of business in his Department. Putting aside the offices of supervision and inspection, which are of course not self-supporting, it appears from the tabular statement contained in Mr. Filgate's 36th paragraph that only four districts have failed to pay their way, viz., the Panch Maháls, Kaládgi, Aden, and Thar and Párkar. The aggregate deficit in these four districts is only Rs. 858-2-5. A small reduction in expenditure has been effected in Kaládgi, and it is hoped that in the future that district will show a surplus. The surplus in the rest of the districts of the Presidency amounts to Rs. 93,234-12-10, to which the four Gujarát districts of Kaira (Rs. 11,286-15-9), Ahmedabad (Rs. 10,953-4-10), Broach (Rs. 4,618-9-2), and Surat (Rs. 5,824-15-1) contribute Rs. 32,683-12-10 or rather more than one-third. The net financial result of the year's transactions is a surplus of Rs. 50,615-15-2, which is more than double the surplus of the year preceding, and has only been exceeded on two former occasions.

7. Though there were causes in operation during the past year calculated to restrict the sphere of action of supervising officers, the chief being the demands which the Afghan war made on the Branch Inspector General in Sind and his subordinates, it is satisfactory to find that out of 251 Registry and Sub-Registry Offices only 33 remained unvisited. Mr. Filgate himself showed his usual activity and energy, visiting 15 Registry and 27 Sub-Registry Offices during the 11 months that he was in charge of the Department. He has also completed the codification of the departmental circular orders, a work which will be very valuable to Registering Officers. Three Sub-Registrars were dismissed during the year. Seventeen persons were prosecuted for offences against the Registration Law, 15 of whom were convicted and 2 acquitted. The Haveli Sub-Registry Office was broken into on the night of 30th September 1878, and some deeds awaiting registration carried off. A central district record-room is in course of construction at Belgaum and a record room at Dhulia. The Inspector General's own office has been removed from hired premises in Elphinstone Circle into the High Court building.

8. Mr. Filgate has submitted a clear and interesting report, for which and for the work done by him and his Department during the year the thanks of Government are due. Government trust that the improvement now reported in the state of the finances of the Registration Department will be lasting and will become from year to year more marked."

By order of His Excellency the Honourable the Governor in Council,

J. NUGENT,
Acting Secretary to Government.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Bombay Castle, 23rd December 1879.

No. 6840.—The following Resolution of Government in the Revenue Department is published for general information :—

"Cotton—Annual Reports.

No. 6814.

Bombay Castle, 20th December 1879.

Letter from the Acting Commissioner of Customs, Opium and Abkári. No 430, dated 29th November 1879—Forwarding two printed copies of the Annual Administration Report of the Cotton Department for the year 1878-79.

RESOLUTION.—Taking British Districts and Native States together there was a net increase during 1878-79 in the area under cotton of 116,890 acres as compared with the preceding year. But British Districts taken alone show a net decrease of 52,803 acres, while Native States show a net increase of 169,697 acres. The increase was principally in Káthiáwár where it amounted to no less than 239,115 acres, the total area under cotton in that province being still, however, half a million of acres less than it was in 1876-77. In all the British Districts of Gujarát there was a serious decrease, and this was also the case in Cutch and the Mahi Kántha. In Khándesh and Násik, however, the two remaining districts of the Northern Division, there was a marked recovery, amounting to more than 125,000 acres, principally in exotic cotton. In the Southern Division, Kaládgi shows a decrease of 56,063 acres, and Dhárwár one of 65,320 acres, in the area under indigenous cotton. To balance this, however, there was in Dhárwár an increase of 95,240 acres under exotic, and in Belgaum of 30,673 acres under indigenous cotton. There was a slight decrease in Sind. Comparing the figures for 1878-79 with those for previous years, it appears that the area under cotton was less than it has been at any time during the past ten years, except in 1877-78. In 1876-77, the first year of the famine, 1¼ millions of acres were thrown out of cotton cultivation, and yet the area under cotton in that year exceeded by nearly a quarter of a million acres the area in the year under review. The season of 1878-79 was exceedingly unfavourable, owing to excessive rainfall; it is indeed described by the Commissioner of Customs as 'one of the worst upon record,' and under these circumstances, it furnishes little cause for surprise that the recovery should be so slight.

2. The character of the season affected not only the area sown with cotton, but, still more directly, the outturn of cleaned cotton per acre. The figures given in paragraph 11 of the Commissioner's report are indeed at the best only approximately correct. But they leave no room for doubt that the diminution in the outturn was great. In the Northern Division the causes are said to be excessive moisture and the ravages of locusts, while in the Southern Division the destruction caused by the rats, which amounted in the Dhárwár District to more than half the crop, was the principal cause of the decrease. It is unnecessary to refer in detail to the figures contained in paragraph 10, as they are not sufficiently accurate to admit of minute deductions being made from them.

3. In paragraphs 17 to 27 the Commissioner discusses the various means which suggest themselves to him and to others of obtaining trustworthy statistics as to the annual outturn of cotton. The question is one of particular importance and has more than once been pressed upon the attention of Government by the Secretary of State. It is, however, one of peculiar difficulty, and all efforts to solve it have hitherto proved more or less unsuccessful. Mr. Pedder, in his cotton report for last year, made two propositions; the first was to 'take the sum of the exports of the staple from each district for a period of ten or fifteen years, adding a percentage on account of local consumption, and to divide this aggregate quantity by the number of acres under cultivation during the same period, by this means finding the average yield per acre in each district, from which a calculation might be made of the total outturn in the Presidency.' The second method, which was intended to check the first, was "to ascertain the actual outturn of the season in each of five or six selected villages in each district, and therefrom the yield per acre in each village, the average of rates so found being applied to the acreage of the whole district. The outturn in the selected villages was to be ascertained by a register, kept by the patel, of all cotton in seed daily leaving his village.' The first of these two methods has been tried during the year under review and has failed, partly because the required returns were not available, but partly also because the exports from any given district cannot be taken as a measure of the amount of cotton produced in it, e. g., from the Broach District is exported cotton grown in the Gáikwár's territory, in Rájpipla, and in the British Districts north of Pálej; and in the same way a portion of the staple exported from Sind consists of cotton grown in the Panjáb. The Commissioner does indeed point out that this mode of calculation though fallacious when applied to a single district in Gujarát, will furnish true results for the whole province taken together, as none but cotton grown in Gujarát is exported from it. But as it cannot be applied to any other part of the Presidency, whether district, division, or province, he recommends recourse being had to the second of the two methods indicated above. The defect in this latter arrangement seems to His Excellency in Council to be that too much dependence will be placed upon the patel of the village, whose care and accuracy may perhaps not deserve it. There is no objection, however, to the experiment being made, and it will be a matter of great satisfaction to Government if it should succeed. Great care must be taken in the selection of villages, which should, if the circumstances permit, be near to a Mámlatdár's head-quarters so as to admit of a constant supervision being exercised over the village officers by the Mámlatdár and general duty kárkun. Government have, however, perfect confidence in the judgment of the district officers. The results of the experiments being made under the Collector's orders in the Khándesh Collectorate, referred to by the Commissioner in his 24th paragraph, will be awaited with interest. Mr. Propert deserves the thanks of Government for his attention to this important matter. With regard to Native States it is to be feared that thoroughly trustworthy statistics will never be forthcoming from them. The efforts of Political Agents should be directed principally to obtaining correct returns of the acreage under cotton. These once obtained, an approximately accurate estimate of the outturn could be formed if the average outturn of cleaned cotton to the acre in adjacent British Districts were known with anything like certainty.

4. A little over 3 million cwts. of cotton were imported into Bombay by rail and sea during the year, and of this about two-thirds came by rail. Nearly 1¾ million cwts. were carried by the G. I. P. and rather more than 300,000 cwts. by the B. B. & C. I. Railways. Of the sea-borne cotton, 425,887 cwts., came from Gujarát, which also supplied all the cotton borne by the B. B. & C. I. Railway, while the Konkan, North Kánara, Malabar and the Coromandel Coast sent 464,132 cwts., Sind 49,712 cwts., and the Persian Gulf 62,256 cwts.

5. The exports during the year from Bombay and Kurrachee amounted to 668,642 bales, of the declared value of Rs. 65,768,332. Of this amount, 311,250 bales, were exported to the United Kingdom, and 344,499 bales to the ports of the European Continent, including 122.263½ bales to France, 88,413 to Austria (Trieste) and 94,640 to Italy. Of French ports, Havre did by far the largest import business, amounting to 101,730½ bales, while of Italian ports Genoa and Venice imported respectively 36,449 and 42,153 bales. The Commissioner refers in his 31st paragraph and his Statement E. to the steady reduction that has been going on since 1874-75 in the number and declared value of bales of cotton exported from this Presidency to Foreign ports. This falling off has been specially noticeable during the past two years, and is no doubt chiefly attributable to scanty crops, though the increase of spindles in this Presidency, which have risen in number from 886,098 in 1874-75 to 1,147,310 in 1878-79, may partially account for the decrease. Government have reason, however, to believe that a considerable quantity of the raw material has been held over during the past monsoon for higher prices, and is now being shipped. In 1876-77, though the export of cotton fell below what it had been during the three previous years, it was higher than in 1872-73.

6. With the exception of saw-ginned Dhárwár and Sind there was, during the past year, an improvement in the Bombay market in the prices of all the principal descriptions of cotton over the quotations for the three previous years; while in the Liverpool market the improvement included all the descriptions mentioned in Statement H. appended to the Commissioner's report, without any exception whatever. In the Bombay market machine-ginned Broach resumed the superiority over Hinganghát cotton, which it had lost in the preceding year, but in Liverpool Hinganghát commanded the highest price, viz. $6\frac{3}{16}$d. per pound, while machine-ginned came next at $\frac{1}{16}$d. cheaper. The special excellence of the Broach crop is referred to by the Acting Collector in his memorandum forwarding the report of the Cotton Inspector for Gujarát. Sind cotton, as usual, fetched the lowest price in both markets.

7. There was a considerable increase last year both in the number of looms and of spindles, the number of mills remaining the same; but it is believed that a large number of the spindles were standing idle. There was a decrease of 245 in the number of cotton gins worked by steam-power; while there was a decrease also in the number of Presses of both descriptions, i.e., those worked by manual and those worked by steam power.

8. The Commissioner reports that Act VII. of 1878, though milder in its provisions than the Cotton Frauds Act of 1863, was "found very effective in repressing adulteration.' 62 prosecutions were instituted during the year, one under the old, the rest under the new Act, and in 58 of them convictions were obtained, though in 2 cases the conviction and sentence were reversed by the High Court on appeal. Of the total number, 43 prosecutions took place in the Ahmedabad Collectorate, 12 in Khándesh, and 7 in the whole of the rest of the Presidency. The District Cotton Inspector for Gujarát erroneously states that 48 cases were tried in Ahmedabad, and that there were only 2 acquittals. The numbers should be 43 and 3. Paragraph 53 of the Commissioner's report, together with paragraph 9 of the report of the Cotton Inspector for the Southern Marátha Country, should be sent to the Political Department for disposal. From paragraph 54 of the Commissioner's report it appears that systematic efforts continue to be made to introduce the Warádi seed into the Khándesh Collectorate, no less than 11 out of the 12 prosecutions that took place there during the year having related to the admixture of this inferior variety with Hinganghát or Dhárwár cotton. Government rely on the vigilance and energy of the local officers being exercised to counteract these attempts. The experiments made during the year on the Khándesh and Saláru Model Farms with Nankin and Bamieh cotton did not prove successful.

9. The Cotton Inspectors for the Southern Marátha Country and Sind have submitted very interesting reports. The reports of some of the other officers are rather meagre, more particularly that submitted by Mr. Manley, Cotton Inspector for Sholápur. Mr. Manley explains that he was absent during a part of the season on sick leave, but considering the length of his service in Sholápur, this explanation cannot be regarded as satisfactory, unless he was ill at the time he wrote his report, and this was not apparently the case. The memoranda submitted by Messrs. Stormont and Strachan, giving an account of their cotton experiments on the Model Farms of Khándesh and Saláru respectively, are valuable and interesting."

Superior holder may recover commuted assessment from inferior holder

50. Whenever any such cess, fine, or tax hitherto payable by an inferior holder shall be made leviable from the superior holder, it shall be lawful for such superior holder to recover from such inferior holder the amount of the commuted assessment fixed in lieu of such cess, fine or tax.

Settlement of assessment to be made with the holder directly from Government.

54. The settlement of the assessment of each portion of land, or survey number, to the land revenue, shall be made with the person who, under section 136, is primarily responsible to Government for the same.

55. The Governor in Council may authorize the Collector or the officer in charge of a survey or such other officer as he deems fit to fix such rates as he may from time to time deem fit to sanction, for the use, by landholders and other persons, of water, the right to which vests in Government, or which has been madeavailable in consequence of the construction, improvement, or repair of any irrigational, or other work by or at the instance of Government. Such rates shall be liable to revision at such periods as Government shall from time to time determine and shall be recoverable as land revenue.

Forfeited holdings may be taken possession of and otherwise disposed.

57. It shall be lawful for the Collector, in the event of the forfeiture of a holding through any default in payment or other failure occasioning such forfeiture under the last section or any law for the time being in force, to take immediate possession of the land embraced within such holding and to dispose of the same by placing it in the possession of the purchaser or other person entitled to hold it according to the provisions of this Act or any other law for the time being in force.

60. Any person desirous of taking up unoccupied land which has not been alienated must, previously to entering upon occupation, obtain the permission in writing of the Mámlatdár or Mahálkari.

Penalties for unauthorized occupation of land.

61. Any person who shall unauthorizedly occupy any land set apart for any special purpose, or any unoccupied land which has not been alienated, shall,

if the land which he unauthorizedly occupies forms part of an assessed survey number, pay the assessment of the entire number for the whole period of his occupation, and if the land so occupied by him has not been assessed, such amount of assessment as would be leviable for the said period in the same village on the same extent of similar land appropriated to the same purpose;

and shall also be liable, at the discretion of the Collector, to a fine not exceeding five rupees, or a sum equal to ten times the amount of assessment payable by him for one year, if such sum be in excess of five rupees, if he have taken up the land for purposes of cultivation, and not exceeding such limit as may be fixed in rules or orders made in this behalf under section 214, if he have appropriated it to any non-agricultural purpose.

The Collector's decision as to the amount of assessment payable for the land unauthorizedly occupied shall be conclusive, and in determining its amount occupation for an incomplete portion of a year shall be counted as for a whole year.

The person unauthorizedly occupying any such land may be summarily evicted by the Collector, and any crop he may have raised on the land shall be liable to forfeiture, and any building or other construction he may have erected thereon shall also, if not removed by him after such written notice as the Collector may deem reasonable, be liable to forfeiture.

62. It shall be competent to the Collector, subject to such orders as may from time to time be made by the Governor in Council, to require the payment of a certain price for the occupancy, or to sell that right by auction, and to annex such conditions to the occupancy as may seem fit, before permission to occupy is granted under section 60.

Price to include price of trees.

The price of an occupancy shall include the price of the Government right to all trees not specially reserved under the provisions of section 40, and shall be recoverable as an arrear of land revenue.

Occupancy of alluvial land which vests in Government.

63. When it appears to the Collector that the occupancy of any alluvial land which vests, under any law for the time being in force, in Government, may, with due regard to the interests of the public revenue, be disposed of in perpetuity, he shall offer the prior right of occupancy thereof to the occupant, if any, of the bank or shore on which such alluvial land has formed.

The price of an occupancy so offered shall not exceed three times the annual assessment of the land of which the occupancy is offered.

If the said occupant shall refuse such occupancy, the Collector may dispose of the same under the last preceding section without any restrictions as to the price thereof.

Temporary right to alluvial lands of small extent.

64. When alluvial land forms on any bank or shore, the occupant, if any, of such bank or shore shall be entitled to the temporary use and occupation thereof, unless or until the area of the same exceeds half an acre, and also exceeds one-tenth of the area of his holding. When the area of the alluvial land exceeds the said extent, it shall be at the disposal of the Collector, subject to the provisions of the last preceding section.

The word "holding" in this section shall be deemed to mean a survey number, or any division of land on which a distinct or aggregate assessment has been fixed.

But if any occupant wishes to appropriate his holding or any part thereof to any other purpose, the Collector's permission shall in the first place be applied for by the registered occupant. The Collector on receipt of such application shall at once furnish the applicant with a written acknowledgment of its receipt, and after inquiry may either grant or refuse the same; but if the applicant receive no answer within three months from the date of the said acknowledgment, the Collector's permission may be deemed to have been granted. Unless the Collector shall in particular instances otherwise direct, no such application shall be recognized except it be made by the registered occupant.

Fine to be levied for such appropriation in addition to special assessment.

When any such land is thus appropriated to any purpose unconnected with agriculture, it shall be lawful for the Collector, subject to the general orders of Government, to require the payment of a fine in addition to any new assessment which may be leviable under the provisions of section 48.

Penalty for so appropriating land without permission.

66. If any such land be so appropriated without the permission of the Collector being first obtained, or before the expiry of three months from the date of the aforesaid acknowledgment, the occupant and any tenant, or other person holding under or through him, shall be liable to be summarily evicted by the Collector from the land so appropriated, and from the entire field or survey number of which it may form a part, and the registered occupant shall also be liable to pay, in addition to the new assessment which may be leviable under the provisions of section 48 for the period during which the said land has been so appropriated, such fine as the Collector may, subject to the general orders of Government, direct.

Co-occupant or tenant responsible to registered occupant in damages.

Any co-occupant or any tenant of any occupant or any other person holding under or through an occupant, who shall without the registered occupant's consent appropriate any such land to any such purpose, and thereby render the said registered occupant liable to the penalties aforesaid, shall be responsible to the said registered occupant in damages.

Permission may be granted on terms.

67. Nothing in the last two preceding sections shall prevent the granting of the permission aforesaid in special cases on such terms as may be agreed on between Government and the registered occupant.

Occupant's rights are conditional.

68. An occupant is entitled to the use and occupation of his land for the period, if any, to which his occupancy is limited, or if the period is unlimited, or a survey settlement has been extended to the land, in perpetuity conditionally on the payment of the amounts due on account of the land revenue for the same, according to the provisions of this Act, or of any rules made under this Act, or of any other law for the time being in force, and on the fulfilment of any other terms lawfully annexed to his occupancy.

69. The right of Government to mines and mineral products in all unalienated land is and is hereby declared to be expressly reserved:

Decrees or order of competent Courts to be given effect to.

70. If by a decree or order of a competent Court it shall be adjudged that the occupant is an inferior holder under another person, or that the occupancy is vested in another person, or if in the execution of such a decree or order the interest of the occupant in the land have been transferred by sale or otherwise to another person, such other person shall, on producing a certified copy of the decree or order, or the Court's certificate of the sale, or other transfer, be deemed to be the occupant and be dealt with accordingly, and on written application being made to the Collector for the purpose, such change shall be made in the entry of the registered occupant's name as the circumstances require.

Name of heir to be registered when registered occupant dies.

71. On the death of a registered occupant, the Collector shall cause the name of his eldest son, or other person appearing to be his heir, or the principal of his heirs, to be registered in his stead, and the said heir shall thereafter be deemed the registered occupant, and, subject to the provisions of the last preceding section, shall be dealt with accordingly.

When entry to be amended.

But if at any time any person shall, by production of a certificate of heirship, or of a decree or order of a competent Court, satisfy the Collector that he is entitled to be the registered occupant in preference to the person whose name the Collector has ordered to be registered, the Collector shall cause the entry in the Government records to be amended accordingly.

Intestate occupancy or holding to be sold.

72. If an occupant who is either a Hindu, a Muhamadan or a Budhist, dies intestate and without known heirs, the Collector shall dispose of his occupancy by sale, subject to the provisions of this Act or of any other law at the time in force for the sale of forfeited occupancies in realization of the land-revenue, and the law at the time in force concerning property left by Hindus, Muhamadans or Budhists, dying intestate and without known heirs shall not be deemed to apply to the said occupancy, but only to the proceeds of such sale after deducting all arrears of land revenue due by the deceased to Government and all expenses of the said sale.

Right of occupancy to be transferable and heritable.

73. The right of occupancy shall be deemed an heritable and transferable property subject to the provisions contained in section 56 or otherwise prescribed by law, and shall immediately pass to the person whose agreement to become occupant shall have been accepted by the Collector.

Relinquishment of Occupancy.

Occupant may relinquish his occupancy.

74. An occupant may, by giving written notice to the Mámlatdár or Mahálkari, relinquish his occupancy, either absolutely or in favour of a specified person, provided that such relinquishment apply to the entire occupancy or to whole survey numbers, or recognized shares of survey numbers. An absolute relinquishment shall be deemed to have effect from the close of the current year, and notice thereof must be given before the 31st March in such year, or before such other date as may be from time to time prescribed in this behalf for each district by the Governor in Council. A relinquishment in favour of a specified person may be made at any time.

When there are more occupants than one, the notice of relinquishment must be given by the registered occupant; and the person, if any, in whose favour an occupancy is relinquished, or if such occupancy is relinquished in favour of more persons than one, the principal of such persons must enter into a written agreement to become the registered occupant, and his name shall thereupon be substituted in the records for that of the previous registered occupant.

Relinquishment of lands paying a lump assessment.

75. When a lump assessment is fixed upon several fields or survey numbers in the aggregate it shall not be lawful for the occupant to relinquish as aforesaid any one or more of such fields or survey numbers except with the previous consent of the Collector. It shall be competent to the Collector to grant or refuse his consent; if he grants it, the occupancy shall be divided, and the Collector shall determine the proportional amount of land revenue to be paid by each portion of it, and the original occupant, and the person, if any, in whose favour he relinquishes a portion of his occupancy, shall be held liable for the revenue severally assessed on their portions.

Relinquishment of land described in para. 1 of section 49.

76. The provisions of the two last sections shall apply, as far as may be, to the holders of alienated land: provided that,

(a) it shall not be lawful to relinquish, as aforesaid, any portion of any land held wholly or partially exempt under the circumstances described in the first paragraph of section 49 until the commuted assessment, payable in respect of such portion of land, has been determined under the provisions of the said section; and that

Relinquishment of land described in section 51.

(b) if any person relinquish land on which, under the circumstances described in section 51, a larger revenue is levied than would ordinarily be leviable on such land, he shall be deemed to have relinquished also the land held with it which is wholly or partially exempt from payment of revenue.

Right of way to relinquished land.

77. If any person relinquishes land, the way to which lies through other land which he retains, the right of way through the land so retained shall continue to the future holder of the land relinquished.

Saving of operation of sections 75 and 76 in certain cases.

78. Nothing in sections 75 and 76 shall affect:

(a) the responsibility of any share in a village for the land revenue of which the sharers are all, according to law or the custom of the village, jointly responsible, or

(b) the validity of the terms or conditions of any lease or other express instrument under which land is, or may hereafter be, held from Government.

Occupant or holder to continue liable for all demands until the occupancy or holding is duly relinquished or transferred.

79. The registered occupant or the holder of alienated land shall continue liable for the land revenue due on the occupancy or alienated holding and for all other lawful demands of Government in respect of the same, until such time as the occupancy or alienated holding is relinquished, or transferred, under any of the provisions of this Act, to the name of any other person; and the Collector shall not be bound in any case to recognize any person to whom any interest in any portion of an occupancy or alienated holding has been assigned, unless the transfer has been recorded in the revenue records in accordance with the foregoing provisions.

Remedies against Forfeiture of Occupancies.

To prevent forfeiture of occupancy, certain persons other than the registered occupant may pay the land revenue.

80. In order to prevent the forfeiture of an occupancy under the provisions of section 56, or of any other law for the time being in force, through non-payment by the registered occupant of the land revenue due on account thereof, it shall be lawful for any co-occupant, tenant, mortagagee, or other person interested in the continuance of the occupancy to pay on behalf of such registered occupant all sums due on account of land revenue, and for the Collector to receive the same. And in any such case the Collector may give to the person who has paid the land revenue as aforesaid such aid for the recovery of the proportional amounts which he may consider to be properly payable by other persons in occupation of parts of a field or survey number as he might legally have given had the persons so paying been the registered occupants:

Collector may assist such persons in recovering the revenue from other parties liable therefor.

Proviso.

Provided that nothing authorized or done under the provisions of this section shall affect the rights of the parties interested as the same may be established in any suit between such parties in a Court of competent jurisdiction.

81. If it shall appear to the Collector that a registered occupant has failed to pay land revenue, and has thus incurred forfeiture with a view to injure or defraud his co-occupants, or other persons interested in the continuance of the occupancy, or that a sale of the occupancy will operate unfairly to the prejudice of such co-occupants, or other persons, it shall be lawful for him, instead of selling the occupancy, to forfeit only the said registered occupant's interest in the same and to substitute the name of any such co-occupant or other person as registered occupant thereof in the revenue records, on his payment of all sums due on account of land revenue for the occupancy; and such person so becoming the registered occupant shall have the rights and remedies with respect to all other persons in occupation provided for by section 86.

Collector may in certain cases make co-occupant or other person the registered occupant instead of selling occupancy for realization of land revenue.

Suspension of certain Provisions of this Chapter.

82. It shall be lawful for the Governor in Council by notification in the Bombay Government Gazette from time to time:

Governor in Council empowered to suspend operation of section 60 or 74.

(a) to suspend the operation of section 60 or 74, or of both, within any prescribed local area, either generally, or in respect of cultivators or occupants of a particular class or classes, and

(b) to cancel any such notification.

During the period for which any notification under the above clause (a) is in force within any local area, such rules shall be substituted for the provisions of which the operation is suspended as the Commissioner shall from time to time direct.

CHAPTER VII.

83. A person placed, as tenant, in possession of land by another, or, in that capacity, holding, taking, or retaining possession of land permissively from or by sufferance of another, shall be regarded as holding the same at the rent, or for the services agreed upon between them; or in the absence of satisfactory evidence of such agreement, at the rent payable or services renderable by the usage of the locality, or if there be no such agreement or usage, shall be presumed to hold at such rent as, having regard to all of the circumstances of the case, shall be just and reasonable.

Amount of rent payable by tenant.

And where by reason of the antiquity of a tenancy, no satisfactory evidence of its commencement is forthcoming, and there is not any such evidence of the period of its intended duration, if any, agreed upon between the landlord and tenant, or those under whom they respectively claim title, or any usage of the locality as to duration of such tenancy, it shall, as against the immediate landlord of the tenant, be presumed to be co-extensive with the duration of the tenure of such landlord and of those who derive title under him.

Duration of tenancy.

And where there is no satisfactory evidence of the capacity in which a person in possession of land in respect of which he renders service or pays rent to the landlord, received, holds or retains possession of the same, it shall be presumed that he is in possession as tenant.

Presumption as to tenure.

Nothing contained in this section shall affect the right of the landlord, (if he have the same either by virtue of agreement, usage, or otherwise), to enhance the rent payable, or services renderable by the tenant, or to evict the tenant for non-payment of the rent or non-rendition of the services, either respectively originally fixed or duly enhanced as aforesaid.

Saving clause.

84. An annual tenancy shall, in the absence of proof to the contrary, be presumed to run from the end of one cultivating season to the end of the next. The cultivating season may be presumed to end on the 31st March.

Annual tenancy terminates on the 31st March.

An annual tenancy shall require for its termination a notice given in writing by the landlord to the tenant, or by the tenant to the landlord at least three months before the end of the year of tenancy at the end of which it is intimated that the tenancy is to cease. Such notice may be in the form of Schedule E, or to the like effect.

Three months' notice of termination of tenancy to be given by landlord to tenant, or vice versâ.

85. It shall be incumbent on every superior holder of an alienated village and on every superior holder of an alienated share of a village in which there exists an hereditary patel and village accountant, to receive his dues on account of rent or land revenue from the inferior holders through the said village officers.

Superior holders' dues to be collected by hereditary Village Officer and not direct.

Any such superior holder demanding or receiving payment from any inferior holder of any rent or land revenue otherwise than through the said village officers shall, on conviction in a summary inquiry before the Collector, forfeit to Government three times the amount of the sum so demanded or received.

Every such hereditary patel or accountant shall be bound to receive and account to the said superior holder for all sums paid to or recovered by him on account of the said superior holder; and on his or their failure to do the same, the superior holder shall, with the previous consent of the Collector, be entitled to recover his dues direct from the inferior holders.

Recovery of Superior Holders' dues.

86. Superior holders shall, upon written application to the Collector, be entitled to assistance, by the use of precautionary and other measures, for the recovery of rent or land revenue payable to them by inferior holders, or by co-sharers in their holdings under the same rules, except that contained in section 137, and in the same manner as prescribed in Chapter XI. of this Act for the realization of land revenue by Government:

Superior holders entitled to assistance in recovery of dues from inferior holders, &c.

Provided that such application be made within the revenue year or within the year of tenancy in which the said rent or land revenue became payable.

But application must be made within the revenue year or within the year of tenancy.

87. On application being made under section 86 to the Collector, he shall cause a written notice thereof to be served on the inferior holder or co-sharer fixing a day for inquiry into the case. On the day so fixed he shall hold a summary inquiry, and shall pass an order for rendering assistance to the superior holder for the recovery of such amount, if any, of rent or land revenue as appears to him upon the evidence before him to be lawfully due.

The Collector how to proceed on such application being made.

But, if it appears to the Collector that the question at issue between the parties is of a complicated or difficult nature, he may in his discretion either refuse the assistance asked for, or, if the land to which the dispute relates, has been assessed under the provisions of Chapter VIII. of this Act or at any survey settlement confirmed by section 112, grant assistance to the extent only of the assessment so fixed upon the said land.

Assistance may be refused or granted to a limited extent only.

Nothing in this section shall prevent either party from having recourse to the Civil Courts to recover from the other such amount as he may deem to be still due to him, or to have been levied from him in excess of what was due, as the case may be.

Civil suit not to be barred.

Grant of Special Powers to Holders of Alienated Lands.

88. It shall be lawful for the Governor in Council at any time to issue a commission to any holder of alienated lands, conferring upon him all or any of the following powers in respect of the lands specified in such commission (namely):

The Governor in Council may, by commissions, confer certain powers on holders of alienated lands.

(a) to demand security for the payment of the land revenue or rent due to him, and if the same be not furnished, to take such precautions as the Collector is authorized to take, under sections 141 to 143;

Provided that the powers contemplated in clauses (c) to (f) shall be conferred only on holders of lands to which a survey settlement has been extended under the provisions of section 216.

89. Every such commission shall be in the form of Schedule F, and shall be liable to be withdrawn at the pleasure of Government; and a commission may, if the Governor in Council see fit, be issued to one or more agents of a holder of alienated lands as well as to the holder in person.

Form of such commission.

90. If the holder of any such commission attach a defaulter's property, he shall make an immediate report to the Collector of his having done so. Should the demand on account of which the attachment has been made, appear to the Collector, after such inquiry as he may deem fit to make, to be just, he shall give orders for the sale of the property, and the sale shall be conducted agreeably to the provisions of sections 165 to 186. But if the holder of the commission is invested, under Regulation XIII. of 1830, with civil jurisdiction and with power to execute his own or his agent's decrees, the sale shall be conducted by him and not by the Collector and his subordinates.

93. The holder of any such commission shall not enforce a demand for revenue or rent in excess of what any inferior holder has paid, previously to the date of such demand, or of what he may have contracted in writing to pay. In the event of a dispute the Collector shall hold a summary inquiry and decide what is just, and the holder of a commission shall not enforce a demand for more than what is so decided to be just.

But holder of commission may establish his right to enhanced rent in Civil Court.

94. Nothing in the last section shall be deemed to prevent a holder of alienated land from instituting a suit in any Court of competent jurisdiction for the purpose of establishing his claim to re-assess the lands or resettle the revenue of any inferior holder paying less than the full sum to payment of which he deems him to be justly liable, or from levying the sum ascertained to be due in accordance with the decree in any such suit in the manner hereinbefore mentioned.

CHAPTER VIII.

Of Survey Settlements and the Partition of Estates.

Revenue survey may be introduced by Governor in Council into any part of Presidency.

95. It shall be lawful for the Governor in Council, whenever it may seem expedient, to direct the survey of any land in any part of the Presidency, with a view to the settlement of the land revenue, and to the record and preservation of rights connected therewith, or for any other similar purpose, and such survey shall be called a revenue survey. Such survey may extend to the lands of any village, town, or city generally, or to such land only as the Governor in Council may direct; and subject to the orders of the Governor in Council it shall be lawful for the officers conducting any such survey to except from the survey settlement any land to which it may not seem expedient that such settlement should be applied.

97. It shall be lawful for the survey officer to call upon all holders of land and other persons interested therein to assist in the measurement or classification of the lands to which the survey extends by furnishing flag-holders; and in the event of a necessity for employing hired labour for this, or other similar object, incidental to survey operations, it shall be lawful to assess the cost thereof, with all contingent expenses on the lands surveyed, for collection as a revenue demand.

98. Except as hereinafter provided, no survey number comprising land used for purposes of agriculture only shall be made of less extent than a minimum to be fixed from time to time for the several classes of land in each district by the Commissioner of Survey, with the sanction of Government. But nothing in this section shall be deemed to prevent the survey officer aforesaid from determining and registering the proper full assessment on lands wholly exempt from payment of land revenue or on lands especially excepted under section 95 from the survey settlement, or from dividing all such lands to which the survey extends into survey numbers.

The assessment so made may be on land, or on means of irrigation, &c.

Assessments so made not leviable without the sanction of Government.

102. The assessment fixed by the officer in charge of a survey shall not be levied without the sanction of Government. But improvements made from private capital and resources not to be assessed.

Certain improvements may be considered in fixing revised assessment.

107. Nothing in the last preceding section shall be held to prevent a revised assessment being fixed:—

(b) with reference to the value of any natural advantage, when the improvement effected from private capital and resources consists only in having created the means of utilizing such advantage, or

(c) with reference to any improvement which is the result only of the ordinary operations of husbandry.

Explanation.—In this section "high-water-mark" means the highest point reached by ordinary spring-tides at any season of the year.

Lands may be assigned for special purposes, and when so assigned shall not be otherwise appropriated without sanction of the Commissioner.

38. Subject to the general orders of Government, it shall be lawful for survey officers whilst survey operations are proceeding under Chapter VIII. of this Act, and at any other time for the Commissioner, to set apart lands the property of Government and not in the lawful occupation of any person or aggregate of persons in unalienated villages or unalienated portions of villages for free pasturage for the village cattle, for forest reserves, or for any other public or municipal purpose; and lands assigned specially for any such purpose shall not be otherwise appropriated or assigned without the sanction of the Commissioner; and in the disposal of land under section 37 due regard shall be had to all such special assignments.

Regulation of use of pasturage.

39. The right of grazing on free pasturage lands shall extend only to the cattle of the village or villages to which such lands belong or have been assigned, and shall be regulated by rules to be from time to time, either generally or in any particular instance prescribed by the Collector with the sanction of the Commissioner. The Collector's decision in any case of dispute as to the said right of grazing shall be conclusive.

Trees.

Concession of Government rights to trees in case of settlements completed before the passing of this Act.

40. In villages, or portions of villages of which the original survey settlement has been completed before the passing of this Act, the right of Government to all trees in unalienated land, except trees reserved by Government, or by any survey officer, whether by express order made at, or about the time of such settlement, or under any rule, or general order in force at the time of such settlement, or by notification made and published at, or at any time after such settlement, shall be deemed to have been conceded to the occupant. But in the case of settlements completed before the passing of Bombay Act I. of 1865, this provision shall not apply to teak, blackwood or sandalwood trees. The right of Government to such trees shall not be deemed to have been conceded, except by clear and express words to that effect.

Ditto in the case of settlements completed after the passing of this Act.

In the case of villages or portions of villages of which the original survey settlement shall be completed after the passing of this Act, the right of Government to all trees in unalienated land shall be deemed to be conceded to the occupant of such land except in so far as any such rights may be reserved by Government, or by any survey officer on behalf of Government, either expressly at or about the time of such settlement, or generally by notification made and published at any time previous to the completion of the survey settlement of the district in which such village or portion of a village is situate.

Ditto in case of land taken up after completion of settlement.

When permission to occupy land has been, or shall hereafter be granted after the completion of the survey settlement of the village or portion of a village in which such land is situate, the said permission shall be deemed to include the concession of the right of Government to all trees growing on that land which may not have been or which shall not hereafter be expressly reserved at the time of granting such permission, or which may not have been reserved, under any of the foregoing provisions of this section, at or about the time of the original survey settlement of the said village or portion of a village.

Government trees and forests.

Road-side trees.

42. All road-side trees which have been planted and reared by, or under the orders of, or at the expense of Government, or at the expense of Local Funds, vest in Government. But in the event of such trees dying, or being blown down, or being cut down by order of the Collector, the timber shall become the property of the holder of the land in which they were growing; and the usufruct, including the loppings of such trees, shall also vest in the said holder; provided that the trees shall not be lopped except under the orders of the Collector.

If the holder of any land in which such trees are growing shall so desire and shall make an application to the Collector for the purpose at any time within two years from the date on which this Act shall come into operation, the Collector shall deduct the strip of land covered by the said trees from his holding and remit thenceforward the proportionate amount of land revenue due upon the strip so deducted. Any strip of land so deducted shall, with the trees upon it, vest thereafter in Government.

Recovery of value of trees, &c., unauthorizedly appropriated.

43. Any person who shall unauthorizedly fell and appropriate any tree or any portion thereof or remove any other natural product which is the property of Government, shall be liable to Government for the value thereof, which shall be recoverable from him as an arrear of land revenue, in addition to any penalty to which he may be liable under the provisions of this Act for the occupation of the land, or otherwise; and notwithstanding any criminal proceedings which may be instituted against him in respect of his said appropriation of Government property.

The decision of the Collector as to the value of any such tree, or portion thereof, or other natural product, shall be conclusive.

Regulation of supply of firewood and timber for domestic or other purposes.

44. In villages or lands in which the rights of Government to the trees have been reserved under section 40 subject to certain privileges of the villagers or of certain classes or persons to cut firewood or timber for domestic or other purposes, and in lands which have been set apart under section 38 for forest reserves subject to such privileges, and in all other cases in which such privileges exist in respect of any alienated land, the exercise of the said privileges shall be regulated by rules to be from time to time, either generally or in any particular instance, prescribed by the Collector or by such other officer as Government may direct. In any case of dispute as to the mode or time of exercising any such privileges the decision of the Collector or of such other officer shall be conclusive.

All land liable to pay revenue unless specially exempted.

45. All land, whether applied to agricultural or other purposes, and wherever situate, is liable to the payment of land revenue to Government according to the rules hereinafter enacted, except such as may be wholly exempted under the provisions of any special contract with Government or any law for the time being in force.

And special exemption may in case of necessity be overruled for a time.

But nothing in this Act shall be deemed to affect the power of the Legislature to direct the levy of revenue on all lands under whatever title they may be held whenever and so long as the exigencies of the State may render such levy necessary.

Liability of alluvial lands to land revenue.

46. All alluvial lands, newly-formed islands, or abandoned river beds which vest, under any law for the time being in force, in any holder of alienated land shall be subject in respect of liability to the payment of land revenue to the same privileges, conditions, or restrictions as are applicable to the original holding in virtue of which such lands, islands, or river beds so vest in the said holder, but no revenue shall be leviable in respect of any such lands, islands, or river beds until or unless the area of the same exceeds half an acre and also exceeds one-tenth of the area of the said original holding.

Assessment of land revenue in cases of diluvion.

47. Every holder of land paying revenue in respect thereof shall be entitled, subject to such rules as may be from time to time made in this behalf by the Governor in Council, to a decrease of assessment if any portion thereof, not being less than half an acre in extent, nor less than one-tenth of the holding, is lost by diluvion.

The word "holding" in this section shall be deemed to mean a survey number or any division of land on which a distinct or aggregate assessment has been fixed.

Land revenue upon what description of lands chargeable.

48. The land revenue leviable under the provisions of this Act shall be chargeable:

(a.) upon land appropriated for purpose of agriculture;

(b.) upon land from which any other profit or advantage than that ordinarily acquired by agriculture is derived.

(c.) upon land appropriated for building sites.

Assessment subject to variation if purpose for which land is held is changed.

And the assessment fixed under the provisions of this Act upon any land appropriated for any one of the above purposes shall be liable to be altered and fixed at a different rate when such land is appropriated for any other purpose, notwithstanding that the term, if any, for which such assessment was fixed may not have expired. And any land allowed by Government to be held free of assessment on condition of its being appropriated to one purpose shall become liable to assessment if at any time it is devoted to any other purpose.

Land held rent-free for one purpose liable to assessment if used for another purpose.

Appropriation of land to certain purposes may be prohibited.

It shall also be lawful for the Collector or for a survey officer, subject to rules or orders made in this behalf under section 214 to prohibit the appropriation of any unalienated land liable to the payment of land revenue for certain purposes, and to summarily evict any holder who may appropriate, or attempt to appropriate, the same to such prohibited purposes.

Commuted assessment of land indirectly taxed to the State.

49. When it has been customary to levy any special or extra cess, fine, or tax, however designated, from any holder of land, which though nominally wholly or partially exempt from the payment of land revenue, has by the exaction of such cess, fine, or tax been indirectly taxed to the State,

And of land liable to occasional assessment.

or when any land ordinarily, or under certain circumstances, wholly or partially exempt from assessment, is subject occasionally, or under particular circumstances, to the payment of assessment, or of any cess or tax however designated,

the said assessment, cess, fine, or tax may be commuted into an annual assessment on the land to be paid under all circumstances, but such commuted assessment shall not exceed such amount as the Commissioner shall deem to be a fair equivalent of the assessment, cess, fine, or tax for which it is substituted, and shall not be in excess of the assessment to which the land would be ordinarily subject, if no right to exemption existed in respect thereof.

Superior holder may recover commuted assessment from inferior holder.

50. Whenever any such cess, fine, or tax hitherto payable by an inferior holder shall be made leviable from the superior holder, it shall be lawful for such superior holder to recover from such inferior holder the amount of the commuted assessment fixed in lieu of such cess, fine or tax.

Excess of assessment may be laid on land inadequately assessed held with it.

51. When it has been customary to levy a larger revenue under the name of "veta" or any other designation, upon any portion of land than such portion would ordinarily be liable to in consideration of other land being held with it which is wholly or partially exempt from payment of revenue, the excess of revenue payable on the said portion of land may be charged upon the land hitherto held wholly or partially exempt.

Assessment by whom to be fixed.

52. On all lands not wholly exempt from payment of land revenue, and not within the local operation of an order made under section 95, the assessment of the amount to be paid as land revenue shall be fixed at the discretion of the Collector, subject to rules or orders made in this behalf under section 214, and the amounts due according to such assessment shall be levied on all such lands:

Proviso.

Provided that in the case of lands partially exempt from land revenue, or the liability of which to payment of land revenue is subject to special conditions or restrictions, respect shall be had in the fixing of the assessment and the levy of the revenue to all rights legally subsisting, according to the nature of the said rights.

53. A Register shall be kept by the Collector in such form as may from time to time be prescribed by the Governor in Council of all lands, the alienation of which has been established or recognized under the provisions of any law for the time being in force; and when it shall be shown to the satisfaction of the Collector that any sanad granted in relation to any such alienated lands has been permanently lost or destroyed, he may, subject to the rules and the payment of the fees prescribed by the Governor in Council under section 213, grant to any person whom he may deem entitled to the same a certified extract from the said Registrar, which shall be endorsed by the Collector, to the effect that it has been issued in lieu of the sanad said to have been lost or destroyed, and shall be deemed to be as valid a proof of title as the said sanad.

Settlement of assessment to be made with the holder directly from Government.

54. The settlement of the assesment of each portion of land, or survey number, to the land revenue, shall be made with the person who, under section 136, is primarily responsible to Government for the same.

Or if he is absent and have left no agent with the next holder.

If the said person be absent, and have left no known authorized agent in the district, so that the settlement of the assessment cannot be concluded with him, such settlement may be made with the person holding under him, or in occupation of the land.

Rates for the use of water.

55. The Governor in Council may authorize the Collector or the officer in charge of a survey or such other officer as he deems fit to fix such rates as he may from time to time deem fit to sanction, for the use, by landholders and other persons, of water, the right to which vests in Government, or which has been made available in consequence of the construction, improvement, or repair of any irrigational or other work by or at the instance of Government. Such rates shall be liable to revision at such periods as Government shall from time to time determine, and shall be recoverable as land revenue.

Land revenue to be a paramount charge on the land.

56. Arrears of land revenue due on account of land by any landholder shall be a paramount charge on the holding and every part thereof, failure in payment of which shall make the occupancy or alienated holding, together with all rights of the occupant or holder over all trees, crops, buildings and things attached to the land, or permanently fastened to anything attached to the land, liable to forfeiture, whereupon the Collector may levy all sums in arrear by sale of the occupancy or alienated holding, freed from all tenures, incumbrances and rights created by the occupant or holder or any of his predecessors in title, or in anywise subsisting as against such occupant, or holder, or may otherwise dispose of such occupancy or alienated holding under rules or orders made in this behalf under section 214.

Forfeited holdings may be taken possession of and otherwise disposed.

57. It shall be lawful for the Collector, in the event of the forfeiture of a holding through any default in payment or other failure occasioning such forfeiture under the last section or any law for the time being in force, to take immediate possession of the land embraced within such holding and to dispose of the same by placing it in the possession of the purchaser or other person entitled to hold it according to the provisions of this Act or any other law for the time being in force.

Receipts to be granted by revenue officers for payments of land revenue.

58. Every revenue officer receiving a payment of land revenue shall give a written receipt for the same.

And by certain superior holders for payments of rent or revenue.

and every such receipt shall be countersigned by the village accountant, if there be any.

Penalty for failure to grant receipts.

59. Any person convicted of a breach of the provisions of the last preceding section after summary inquiry before the Collector shall be liable to a fine not exceeding three times the amount received for which a receipt was not duly granted, and one-half of the fine may, at the discretion of the Collector, be paid to the informer, if any. Such inquiry may at any time be instituted by the Collector of his own motion without any complaint being preferred to him.

CHAPTER VI.

Occupation.

Written permission of Mámlatdár or Mahálkari required previous to taking up unoccupied land.

60. Any person desirous of taking up unoccupied land which has not been alienated must, previously to entering upon occupation, obtain the permission in writing of the Mámlatdár or Mahálkari.

Penalties for unauthorized occupation of land.

61. Any person who shall unauthorizedly occupy any land set apart for any special purpose, or any unoccupied land which has not been alienated, shall,

if the land which he unauthorizedly occupies forms part of an assessed survey number, pay the assessment of the entire number for the whole period of his occupation, and if the land so occupied by him has not been assessed, such amount of assessment as would be leviable for the said period in the same village on the same extent of similar land appropriated to the same purpose;

and shall also be liable, at the discretion of the Collector, to a fine not exceeding five rupees, or a sum equal to ten times the amount of assessment payable by him for one year, if such sum be in excess of five rupees, if he have taken up the land for purposes of cultivation, and not exceeding such limit as may be fixed in rules or orders made in this behalf under section 214, if he have appropriated it to any non-agricultural purpose.

The Collector's decision as to the amount of assessment payable for the land unauthorizedly occupied shall be conclusive, and in determining its amount occupation for an incomplete portion of a year shall be counted as for a whole year.

The person unauthorizedly occupying any such land may be summarily evicted by the Collector, and any crop he may have raised on the land shall be liable to forfeiture, and any building or other construction he may have erected thereon shall also, if not removed by him after such written notice as the Collector may deem reasonable, be liable to forfeiture.

Forfeitures under this section shall be adjudged by the Collector, and any property so forfeited shall be disposed of as the Collector may direct.

Occupancy right to be paid for and to be liable to certain conditions.

62. It shall be competent to the Collector, subject to such orders as may from time to time be made by the Governor in Council, to require the payment of a certain price for the occupancy, or to sell that right by auction, and to annex such conditions to the occupancy as may seem fit, before permission to occupy is granted under section 60.

Price to include price of trees.

The price of an occupancy shall include the price of the Government right to all trees not specially reserved under the provisions of section 40, and shall be recoverable as an arrear of land revenue.

Occupancy of alluvial land which vests in Government.

63. When it appears to the Collector that the occupancy of any alluvial land which vests, under any law for the time being in force, in Government, may, with due regard to the interests of the public revenue, be disposed of in perpetuity, he shall offer the prior right of occupancy thereof to the occupant, if any, of the bank or shore on which such alluvial land has formed.

The price of an occupancy so offered shall not exceed three times the annual assessment of the land of which the occupancy is offered.

If the said occupant shall refuse such occupancy, the Collector may dispose of the same under the last preceding section without any restrictions as to the price thereof.

Temporary right to alluvial lands of small extent.

64. When alluvial land forms on any bank or shore, the occupant, if any, of such bank or shore shall be entitled to the temporary use and occupation thereof, unless or until the area of the same exceeds half an acre, and also exceeds one-tenth of the area of his holding. When the area of the alluvial land exceeds the said extent, it shall be at the disposal of the Collector, subject to the provisions of the last preceding section.

The word "holding" in this section shall be deemed to mean a survey number, or any division of land on which a distinct or aggregate assessment has been fixed.

Procedure if the occupant wishes to apply his land to any other purpose.

But if any occupant wishes to appropriate his holding or any part thereof to any other purpose, the Collector's permission shall in the first place be applied for by the registered occupant. The Collector on receipt of such application shall at once furnish the applicant with a written acknowledgment of its receipt, and after inquiry may either grant or refuse the same; but if the applicant receive no answer within three months from the date of the said acknowledgment, the Collector's permission may be deemed to have been granted. Unless the Collector shall in particular instances otherwise direct, no such application shall be recognized except it be made by the registered occupant.

Fine to be levied for such appropriation in addition to special assessment.

When any such land is thus appropriated to any purpose unconnected with agriculture, it shall be lawful for the Collector, subject to the general orders of Government, to require the payment of a fine in addition to any new assessment which may be leviable under the provisions of section 48.

Penalty for so appropriating land without permission.

66. If any such land be so appropriated without the permission of the Collector being first obtained, or before the expiry of three months from the date of the aforesaid acknowledgment, the occupant and any tenant, or other person holding under or through him, shall be liable to be summarily evicted by the Collector from the land so appropriated, and from the entire field or survey number of which it may form a part, and the registered occupant shall also be liable to pay, in addition to the new assessment which may be leviable under the provisions of section 48 for the period during which the said land has been so appropriated, such fine as the Collector may, subject to the general orders of Government, direct.

Co-occupant or tenant responsible to registered occupant in damages.

Any co-occupant or any tenant of any occupant or any other person holding under or through an occupant, who shall without the registered occupant's consent appropriate any such land to any such purpose, and thereby render the said registered occupant liable to the penalties aforesaid, shall be responsible to the said registered occupant in damages.

Permission may be granted on terms.

67. Nothing in the last two preceding sections shall prevent the granting of the permission aforesaid in special cases on such terms as may be agreed on between Government and the registered occupant.

Occupant's rights are conditional.

68. An occupant is entitled to the use and occupation of his land for the period, if any, to which his occupancy is limited, or if the period is unlimited, or a survey settlement has been extended to the land, in perpetuity conditionally on the payment of the amounts due on account of the land revenue for the same, according to the provisions of this Act, or of any rules made under this Act, or of any other law for the time being in force, and on the fulfilment of any other terms lawfully annexed to his occupancy.

70. If by a decree or order of a competent Court it shall be adjudged that the occupant is an inferior holder under another person, or that the occupancy is vested in another person, or if in the execution of such a decree or order the interest of the occupant in the land have been transferred by sale or otherwise to another person, such other person shall, on producing a certified copy of the decree or order, or the Court's certificate of the sale, or other transfer, be deemed to be the occupant and be dealt with accordingly, and on written application being made to the Collector for the purpose, such change shall be made in the entry of the registered occupant's name as the circumstances require.

Name of heir to be registered when registered occupant dies.

71. On the death of a registered occupant, the Collector shall cause the name of his eldest son, or other person appearing to be his heir, or the principal of his heirs, to be registered in his stead, and the said heir shall thereafter be deemed the registered occupant, and, subject to the provisions of the last preceding section, shall be dealt with accordingly.

When entry to be amended.

But if at any time any person shall, by production of a certificate of heirship, or of a decree or order of a competent Court, satisfy the Collector that he is entitled to be the registered occupant in preference to the person whose name the Collector has ordered to be registered, the Collector shall cause the entry in the Government records to be amended accordingly.

Intestate occupancy or holding to be sold.

72. If an occupant who is either a Hindu, a Muhamadan or a Budhist, dies intestate and without known heirs, the Collector shall dispose of his occupancy by sale, subject to the provisions of this Act or of any other law at the time in force for the sale of forfeited occupancies in realization of the land-revenue, and the law at the time in force concerning property left by Hindus, Muhamadans or Budhists, dying intestate and without known heirs shall not be deemed to apply to the said occupancy, but only to the proceeds of such sale after deducting all arrears of land revenue due by the deceased to Government and all expenses of the said sale.

Right of occupancy to be transferable and heritable.

73. The right of occupancy shall be deemed an heritable and transferable property subject to the provisions contained in section 56 or otherwise prescribed by law, and shall immediately pass to the person whose agreement to become occupant shall have been accepted by the Collector.

Relinquishment of Occupancy.

Occupant may relinquish his occupancy.

74. An occupant may, by giving written notice to the Mámlatdár or Mahálkari, relinquish his occupancy, either absolutely or in favour of a specified person, provided that such relinquishment apply to the entire occupancy or to whole survey numbers, or recognized shares of survey numbers. An absolute relinquishment shall be deemed to have effect from the close of the current year, and notice thereof must be given before the 31st March in such year, or before such other date as may be from time to time prescribed in this behalf for each district by the Governor in Council. A relinquishment in favour of a specified person may be made at any time.

When there are more occupants than one, the notice of relinquishment must be given by the registered occupant; and the person, if any, in whose favour an occupancy is relinquished, or if such occupancy is relinquished in favour of more persons than one, the principal of such persons must enter into a written agreement to become the registered occupant, and his name shall thereupon be substituted in the records for that of the previous registered occupant.

Relinquishment of lands paying a lump assessment.

75. When a lump assessment is fixed upon several fields or survey numbers in the aggregate it shall not be lawful for the occupant to relinquish as aforesaid any one or more of such fields or survey numbers except with the previous consent of the Collector. It shall be competent to the Collector to grant or refuse his consent; if he grants it, the occupancy shall be divided, and the Collector shall determine the proportional amount of land revenue to be paid by each portion of it, and the original occupant, and the person, if any, in whose favour he relinquishes a portion of his occupancy, shall be held liable for the revenue severally assessed on their portions.

Relinquishment of land described in para. 1 of section 49.

76. The provisions of the two last sections shall apply, as far as may be, to the holders of alienated land: provided that,

(a) it shall not be lawful to relinquish, as aforesaid, any portion of any land held wholly or partially exempt under the circumstances described in the first paragraph of section 49 until the commuted assessment, payable in respect of such portion of land, has been determined under the provisions of the said section; and that

Relinquishment of land described in section 51.

(b) if any person relinquish land on which, under the circumstances described in section 51, a larger revenue is levied than would ordinarily be leviable on such land, he shall be deemed to have relinquished also the land held with it which is wholly or partially exempt from payment of revenue.

Right of way to relinquished land.

77. If any person relinquishes land, the way to which lies through other land which he retains, the right of way through the land so retained shall continue to the future holder of the land relinquished.

Saving of operation of sections 75 and 76 in certain cases.

78. Nothing in sections 75 and 76 shall affect:

(a) the responsibility of any share in a village for the land revenue of which the sharers are all, according to law or the custom of the village, jointly responsible, or

(b) the validity of the terms or conditions of any lease or other express instrument under which land is, or may hereafter be, held from Government.

Occupant or holder to continue liable for all demands until the occupancy or holding is duly relinquished or transferred.

79. The registered occupant or the holder of alienated land shall continue liable for the land revenue due on the occupancy or alienated holding and for all other lawful demands of Government in respect of the same, until such time as the occupancy or alienated holding is relinquished, or transferred, under any of the provisions of this Act, to the name of any other person; and the Collector shall not be bound in any case to recognize any person to whom any interest in any portion of an occupancy or alienated holding has been assigned, unless the transfer has been recorded in the revenue records in accordance with the foregoing provisions.

Remedies against Forfeiture of Occupancies.

To prevent forfeiture of occupancy, certain persons other than the registered occupant may pay the land revenue.

80. In order to prevent the forfeiture of an occupancy under the provisions of section 56, or of any other law for the time being in force, through non-payment by the registered occupant of the land revenue due on account thereof, it shall be lawful for any co-occupant, tenant, mortagagee, or other person interested in the continuance of the occupancy to pay on behalf of such registered occupant all sums due on account of land revenue, and for the Collector to receive the same. And in any such case the Collector may give to the person who has paid the land revenue as aforesaid such aid for the recovery of the proportional amounts which he may consider to be properly payable by other persons in occupation of parts of a field or survey number as he might legally have given had the persons so paying been the registered occupants:

Collector may assist such persons in recovering the revenue from other parties liable therefor.

Proviso.

Provided that nothing authorized or done under the provisions of this section shall affect the rights of the parties interested as the same may be established in any suit between such parties in a Court of competent jurisdiction.

81. If it shall appear to the Collector that a registered occupant has failed to pay land revenue, and has thus incurred forfeiture with a view to injure or defraud his co-occupants, or other persons interested in the continuance of the occupancy, or that a sale of the occupancy will operate unfairly to the prejudice of such co-occupants, or other persons, it shall be lawful for him, instead of selling the occupancy, to forfeit only the said registered occupant's interest in the same and to substitute the name of any such co-occupant or other person as registered occupant thereof in the revenue records, on his payment of all sums due on account of land revenue for the occupancy; and such person so becoming the registered occupant shall have the rights and remedies with respect to all other persons in occupation provided for by section 86.

Collector may in certain cases make co-occupant or other person the registered occupant instead of selling occupancy for realization of land revenue.

Suspension of certain Provisions of this Chapter.

82. It shall be lawful for the Governor in Council by notification in the Bombay Government Gazette from time to time:

Governor in Council empowered to suspend operation of section 60 or 74.

(a) to suspend the operation of section 60 or 74, or of both, within any prescribed local area, either generally, or in respect of cultivators or occupants of a particular class or classes, and

(b) to cancel any such notification.

During the period for which any notification under the above clause (a) is in force within any local area, such rules shall be substituted for the provisions of which the operation is suspended as the Commissioner shall from time to time direct.

83. A person placed, as tenant, in possession of land by another, or, in that capacity, holding, taking, or retaining possession of land permissively from or by sufferance of another, shall be regarded as holding the same at the rent, or for the services agreed upon between them; or in the absence of satisfactory evidence of such agreement, at the rent payable or services renderable by the usage of the locality, or if there be no such agreement or usage, shall be presumed to hold at such rent as, having regard to all of the circumstances of the case, shall be just and reasonable.

Amount of rent payable by tenant.

And where by reason of the antiquity of a tenancy, no satisfactory evidence of its commencement is forthcoming, and there is not any such evidence of the period of its intended duration, if any, agreed upon between the landlord and tenant, or those under whom they respectively claim title, or any usage of the locality as to duration of such tenancy, it shall, as against the immediate landlord of the tenant, be presumed to be co-extensive with the duration of the tenure of such landlord and of those who derive title under him.

Duration of tenancy.

And where there is no satisfactory evidence of the capacity in which a person in possession of land in respect of which he renders service or pays rent to the landlord, received, holds or retains possession of the same, it shall be presumed that he is in possession as tenant.

Presumption as to tenure.

Nothing contained in this section shall affect the right of the landlord, (if he have the same either by virtue of agreement, usage, or otherwise), to enhance the rent payable, or services renderable by the tenant, or to evict the tenant for non-payment of the rent or non-rendition of the services, either respectively originally fixed or duly enhanced as aforesaid.

Saving clause.

84. An annual tenancy shall, in the absence of proof to the contrary, be presumed to run from the end of one cultivating season to the end of the next. The cultivating season may be presumed to end on the 31st March.

Annual tenancy terminates on the 31st March.

An annual tenancy shall require for its termination a notice given in writing by the landlord to the tenant, or by the tenant to the landlord at least three months before the end of the year of tenancy at the end of which it is intimated that the tenancy is to cease. Such notice may be in the form of Schedule E, or to the like effect.

Three months' notice of termination of tenancy to be given by landlord to tenant, or vice versâ.

85. It shall be incumbent on every superior holder of an alienated village and on every superior holder of an alienated share of a village in which there exists an hereditary patel and village accountant, to receive his dues on account of rent or land revenue from the inferior holders through the said village officers.

Superior holders' dues to be collected by hereditary Village Officer and not direct.

Any such superior holder demanding or receiving payment from any inferior holder of any rent or land revenue otherwise than through the said village officers shall, on conviction in a summary inquiry before the Collector, forfeit to Government three times the amount of the sum so demanded or received.

Every such hereditary patel or accountant shall be bound to receive and account to the said superior holder for all sums paid to or recovered by him on account of the said superior holder; and on his or their failure to do the same, the superior holder shall, with the previous consent of the Collector, be entitled to recover his dues direct from the inferior holders.

Recovery of Superior Holders' dues.

86. Superior holders shall, upon written application to the Collector, be entitled to assistance, by the use of precautionary and other measures, for the recovery of rent or land revenue payable to them by inferior holders, or by co-sharers in their holdings under the same rules, except that contained in section 137, and in the same manner as prescribed in Chapter XI. of this Act for the realization of land revenue by Government;

Superior holders entitled to assistance in recovery of dues from inferior holders, &c.

Provided that such application be made within the revenue year or within the year of tenancy in which the said rent or land revenue became payable.

But application must be made within the revenue year or within the year of tenancy.

87. On application being made under section 86 to the Collector, he shall cause a written notice thereof to be served on the inferior holder or co-sharer fixing a day for inquiry into the case. On the day so fixed he shall hold a summary inquiry, and shall pass an order for rendering assistance to the superior holder for the recovery of such amount, if any, of rent or land revenue as appears to him upon the evidence before him to be lawfully due.

The Collector how to proceed on such application being made.

But, if it appears to the Collector that the question at issue between the parties is of a complicated or difficult nature, he may in his discretion either refuse the assistance asked for, or, if the land to which the dispute relates, has been assessed under the provisions of Chapter VIII. of this Act or at any survey settlement confirmed by section 112, grant assistance to the extent only of the assessment so fixed upon the said land.

Assistance may be refused or granted to a limited extent only.

Nothing in this section shall prevent either party from having recourse to the Civil Courts to recover from the other such amount as he may deem to be still due to him, or to have been levied from him in excess of what was due, as the case may be.

Civil suit not to be barred.

Grant of Special Powers to Holders of Alienated Lands.

88. It shall be lawful for the Governor in Council at any time to issue a commission to any holder of alienated lands, conferring upon him all or any of the following powers in respect of the lands specified in such commission (namely):

The Governor in Council may, by commissions, confer certain powers on holders of alienated lands.

(a) to demand security for the payment of the land revenue or rent due to him, and if the same be not furnished, to take such precautions as the Collector is authorized to take, under sections 141 to 143;

Provided that the powers contemplated in clauses (c) to (f) shall be conferred only on holders of lands to which a survey settlement has been extended under the provisions of section 216.

89. Every such commission shall be in the form of Schedule F, and shall be liable to be withdrawn at the pleasure of Government; and a commission may, if the Governor in Council see fit, be issued to one or more agents of a holder of alienated lands as well as to the holder in person.

Form of such commission.

90. If the holder of any such commission attach a defaulter's property, he shall make an immediate report to the Collector of his having done so. Should the demand on account of which the attachment has been made, appear to the Collector, after such inquiry as he may deem fit to make, to be just, he shall give orders for the sale of the property, and the sale shall be conducted agreeably to the provisions of sections 165 to 186. But if the holder of the commission is invested, under Regulation XIII. of 1830, with civil jurisdiction and with power to execute his own or his agent's decrees, the sale shall be conducted by him and not by the Collector and his subordinates.

Penalty for continuing compulsory process.

92. The power conferred by any such commission shall extend to the enforcement of the payment of the revenue or rent of the current year and of the year next immediately preceding, but not to that of former years.

Power under commission to extend to current and previous years arrears.

93. The holder of any such commission shall not enforce a demand for revenue or rent in excess of what any inferior holder has paid, previously to the date of such demand, or of what he may have contracted in writing to pay. In the event of a dispute the Collector shall hold a summary inquiry and decide what is just, and the holder of a commission shall not enforce a demand for more than what is so decided to be just.

which payment is lawfully enforceable shall be entitled to recover, on conviction of the holder of the commission in a summary inquiry before the Collector, three times the amount of any such excessive demand by way of damages, and the sum so due by the holder of the commission shall be leviable from him as an arrear of land-revenue.

But holder of commission may establish his right to enhanced rent in Civil Court.

94. Nothing in the last section shall be deemed to prevent a holder of alienated land from instituting a suit in any Court of competent jurisdiction for the purpose of establishing his claim to re-assess the lands or resettle the revenue of any inferior holder paying less than the full sum to payment of which he deems him to be justly liable, or from levying the sum ascertained to be due in accordance with the decree in any such suit in the manner hereinbefore mentioned.

CHAPTER VIII.

Of Survey Settlements and the Partition of Estates.

Revenue survey may be introduced by Governor in Council into any part of Presidency.

95. It shall be lawful for the Governor in Council, whenever it may seem expedient, to direct the survey of any land in any part of the Presidency, with a view to the settlement of the land revenue, and to the record and preservation of rights connected therewith, or for any other similar purpose, and such survey shall be called a revenue survey. Such survey may extend to the lands of any village, town, or city generally, or to such land only as the Governor in Council may direct; and subject to the orders of the Governor in Council it shall be lawful for the officers conducting any such survey to except from the survey settlement any land to which it may not seem expedient that such settlement should be applied.

Control of revenue survey.

The control of every such revenue survey shall vest in and be exercised by the Governor in Council.

Survey Officer may require by general notice or by summons, suitable service from holders of land, &c.

96. It shall be lawful for the survey officer deputed to conduct or take part in any such survey, to require by general notice, or by summons, the attendance of holders of lands and of all persons interested therein, in person, or by legally constituted agent duly instructed and able to answer all material questions, and the presence of táluka and village officers, who in their several stations and capacities are legally, or by usage, bound to perform service in virtue of their respective offices and to require from them such assistance in the operations of the survey and such service in connection therewith, as may not be inconsistent with the position of the individual so called on.

Assistance to be given by holders and others in the measurement or classification of lands.

97. It shall be lawful for the survey officer to call upon all holders of land and other persons interested therein to assist in the measurement or classification of the lands to which the survey extends by furnishing flag-holders; and in the event of a necessity for employing hired labour for this, or other similar object, incidental to survey operations, it shall be lawful to assess the cost thereof, with all contingent expenses on the lands surveyed, for collection as a revenue demand.

Survey numbers not to be of less than a certain extent.

98. Except as hereinafter provided, no survey number comprising land used for purposes of agriculture only shall be made of less extent than a minimum to be fixed from time to time for the several classes of land in each district by the Commissioner of Survey, with the sanction of Government. A record of the minima so fixed shall be kept in the Mámlatdár's office in each táluka, and shall be open to the inspection of the public at reasonable times.

Exception.

These provisions shall not apply to survey numbers which have already been made of less extent than the minima so fixed, or which may be so made under the authority of the Commissioner of Survey given either generally or in any particular instance, in this behalf; and any survey number separately recognized in the survey records shall be deemed to have been authorizedly made, whatever be its extent.

Recognized shares of survey numbers.

99. Recognized shares of survey numbers shall be subject to the same provisions of this Act as are applicable to entire survey numbers, except:

(a) that it shall not be obligatory to demarcate such shares separately, and

(b) that if any such share is relinquished by the occupant absolutely under the provisions of section 74, the occupancy thereof shall be offered to the occupants of the other shares of the same survey number in order of their relative largeness of the amounts payable by them respectively on account of the assessment of their said shares, and that in the event of their all refusing the occupancy of the said share, the assessment thereon shall, until such time as the entire number is relinquished by them, be levied from them in proportion to the amounts of assessment payable by them as aforesaid.

Officer in charge of a survey to fix assessments.

100. Subject to rules or orders made in this behalf, under section 214, the officer in charge of a survey shall have authority to fix the assessment for land revenue at his discretion on all lands within the local operation of an order made under section 95 not wholly exempt from land revenue, and the amounts due according to such assessment shall, subject to the provisions of section 102, be levied on all such lands.

Regard to be had to Proviso to section 52.

In fixing such assessment, regard shall be had to the requirements of the Proviso to section 52:

Proviso.

But nothing in this section shall be deemed to prevent the survey officer aforesaid from determining and registering the proper full assessment on lands wholly exempt from payment of land revenue or on lands especially excepted under section 95 from the survey settlement, or from dividing all such lands to which the survey extends into survey numbers.

The assessment so made may be on land, or on means of irrigation, &c.

101. The power to assess under the preceding section shall, in the case of lands used for purposes of agriculture alone, include power to assess, whether directly on the land, or in the form of a rate or cess upon the means of irrigation in respect of which no rate is leviable under section 55 or in any other manner whatsoever that may be sanctioned by Government.

Assessments so made not leviable without the sanction of Government.

102. The assessment fixed by the officer in charge of a survey shall not be levied without the sanction of Government. It shall be lawful for the Governor in Council to declare such assessments, with any modifications which he may deem necessary, fixed for a term of years not exceeding thirty in the case of lands used for the purposes of agriculture alone, and not exceeding ninety-nine in the case of all other lands.

But may be fixed, with or without modification, by the Governor in Council for a term of years.

Introduction of Survey Settlement how to be made.

103. When in the case of lands used for the purposes of agriculture alone, Government shall have sanctioned the assessments fixed by the officer in charge of the survey, it shall be the duty of the said officer or of the Collector, or Assistant or Deputy Collector publicly to announce, or to cause to be announced, the assessment fixed on each survey number.

The said officer, or the Collector, or Assistant or Deputy Collector shall, at a reasonable time beforehand, cause public notice to be given, in such manner as he shall deem fit, of the time at or about which the assessments will be announced as aforesaid.

If the holder or other person interested in any holding do not appear in person or by agent, he shall be subject, nevertheless, to the same liabilities as if he had attended.

When the assessments have been announced in the manner provided in the first clause of this section, the survey settlement shall be held to have been introduced.

Excess assessment not to be levied in the year in which a Survey Settlement is introduced.

104. In the year in the course of which a survey settlement, whether original or revised, may be introduced under the last preceding section, the difference between the old and new assessment of all lands on which the latter may be in excess of the former shall be remitted, and the revised assessment shall be levied only from the next following year.

Nor in the following year if the number is resigned that year.

In the year next following that in which any revised survey settlement has been introduced, any occupant who may be dissatisfied with the increased rate imposed by such new assessment on any of the survey numbers held by him, shall, on resigning such number in the manner prescribed by sections 74 and 76 on or before the 31st March, receive a remission of the increase so imposed.

The fixing of assessment under section 102 limited to ordinary land-revenue.

105. The fixing of the assessment under the provisions of section 102 shall be strictly limited to the assessment of the ordinary land revenue, and shall not operate as a bar to the levy of any cess which it shall be lawful for the Governor in Council to impose under the provisions of any law for the time being in force for purposes of local improvement, such as schools, village and district roads, bridges, tanks, wells, accommodation for travellers, and the like, or of any rate for the use of water which may be imposed under the provisions of section 55.

Government may direct a fresh survey and revision of assessment.

106. It shall be lawful for the Governor in Council to direct, at any time, a fresh revenue survey or any operation subsidiary thereto, but no enhancement of assessment shall take effect till the expiration of the period previously fixed under the provisions of section 102. A revised assessment shall be fixed, not with reference to improvements made from private capital and resources during the currency of any settlement made under this Act or under Bombay Act I. of 1865, but with reference to general considerations of the value of land, whether as to soil or situation, prices of produce, or facilities of communication.

But improvements made from private capital and resources not to be assessed.

Certain improvements may be considered in fixing revised assessment.

107. Nothing in the last preceding section shall be held to prevent a revised assessment being fixed:—

(a) with reference to any improvement effected at the cost of Government, or

(b) with reference to the value of any natural advantage, when the improvement effected from private capital and resources consists only in having created the means of utilizing such advantage, or

(c) with reference to any improvement which is the result only of the ordinary operations of husbandry.

Preparation of statistical and fiscal records.

108. It shall be the duty of the survey officer, on the occasion of making or revising a settlement of land revenue to prepare a register, to be called "the Settlement Register," showing the area and assessment of each survey number, together with the name of the registered occupant of such survey number and other records, in accordance with such orders as may from time to time be made on this behalf by Government.

109. The survey officer, or if the survey settlement have been introduced, under the provisions of section 103, by the Collector or Assistant or Deputy Collector, the Collector or Assistant or Deputy Collector shall at any time correct or cause to be corrected any clerical errors, and any errors which the parties interested admit to have been made in the Settlement Register;

110. The Collector shall keep the Settlement Register, and such other records prepared by the survey officer as Government shall direct, and shall cause the village records and accounts to be prepared in accordance therewith;

Collector to keep the survey records and frame village records and accounts in accordance therewith.

he shall not make any alterations or corrections in the Settlement Register, but shall cause to be registered in the village records and accounts all changes that may take place, and anything that may affect any of the rights or interests therein recorded.

and to register changes, &c.

In the event of any alienated village or estate, coming under the temporary management of Government officers, it shall be lawful for the Collector to let out the lands thereof, at rates determined by means of a survey settlement or at such other fixed rates as he may deem to be reasonable, and to sell the occupancy of unoccupied lands by auction, and otherwise to conduct the revenue management thereof under the rules for the management of unalienated lands, so far as such rules may be applicable, and for so long as the said village or estate shall be under the management of Government officers: provided, however, that any written agreements relating to the land, made by the superior holder of such village or estate, shall not be affected by any proceedings under this section in so far as they shall not operate to the detriment of the lawful claims of Government on the land.

113. The following rules shall be enforced at the partition of any estate paying land revenue to Government (namely):

(1) the estate shall be divided as far as possible according to survey numbers without sub-dividing any number; but if the partition cannot be completely effected without sub-dividing a number, such sub-division may be made by the Collector, subject to the provisions of section 98;

(2) any number, or subdivision of a number, which may remain over after the partition has been carried out, as far as possible, according to the last rule, and which is incapable of sub-division or of further subdivision owing to the provisions of section 98, shall be made over to one of the sharers in consideration of his paying to the other sharers the value in money of their shares in the same, or shall be sold and the proceeds divided amongst all the sharers, or otherwise disposed of, as the Collector thinks fit;

(3) the expenses necessarily and properly incurred in making such partition shall be recoverable as a revenue demand in such proportions as the Collector thinks fit from the sharers at whose request it is made, or from the persons interested in such partition.

114. Whenever any one or more co-sharers in a khoti estate, into which a revenue survey has been introduced, or in a tálukdári estate, consent to a partition of the said estate, it shall be lawful for the Collector, or for any other officer duly empowered by him in this behalf, subject to the rules contained in the last preceding section, to divide the said estate into shares according to the respective rights of the co-sharers, and to allot such shares to the co-sharers:

Provided that no such partition shall be made, unless:

(a) All the co-sharers are agreed as to the extent of their respective rights in estate, and

(b) the assessment of the share or shares of the sharer or sharers consenting to such partition exceeds one-half of the assessment of the entire estate.

In such cases the expenses of partition shall be recovered under Rule (3) of the last preceding section from all the co-sharers in the estate divided.

CHAPTER IX.

THE SETTLEMENT OF BOUNDARIES AND THE CONSTRUCTION AND MAINTENANCE OF BOUNDARY-MARKS.

118. The boundaries of villages situated in British territory shall be fixed, and all disputes relating thereto shall be determined by survey officers, or by such other officers as may be nominated by Government for the purpose, who shall be guided by the following rules:—

Determination of village boundaries.

Rule 1.—When the patels and other village officers of any two or more adjoining villages, and in the case of an alienated village, the holder thereof or his duly constituted agent, shall voluntarily agee to any given line of boundary as the boundary common to their respective villages, the officer determining the boundary shall require the said parties to execute an agreement to that effect, and shall then mark off the boundary in the manner agreed upon. And any village boundary fixed in this manner shall be held to be finally settled, unless it shall appear to the said officer that the agreement has been obtained by fraud, intimidation, or any other illegal means.

Village boundaries may be settled by agreement.

Rule 2.—If the patels and other village officers, and, in the case of an alienated village, the holder thereof or his duly constituted agent, do not agree to fix the boundaries of their respective villages, in the manner prescribed in the preceding rule, or if it shall appear to the said officer that the agreement has been obtained by fraud, intimidation, or any other illegal means, or if there be any pending dispute, the said officer shall make a survey and plan of the ground in dispute, exhibiting the land claimed by the contending parties, and all particulars relating thereto, and shall hold a formal inquiry into the claims of the said parties, and thereafter make an award in the case. If either of the villages concerned be alienated, an award made by a survey officer shall, unless the officer making it be the Superintendent of Survey, be subject to his confirmation, and an award made by any other officer shall be subject to confirmation by such other officer as Government may nominate for the purpose.

Procedure in case of disagreement or dispute.

119. If, at the time of a survey, the boundary of a field or holding be undisputed, and its correctness be affirmed by the village officers then present, it may be laid down as pointed out by the holder or person in occupation, and if disputed, or if the said holder or person in occupation be not present, it shall be fixed by the survey officer according to the village records, and according to occupation as ascertained from the village officers and the holders of adjoining lands, or on such other evidence or information as the survey officer may be able to procure.

Assessment of land revenue in cases of diluvion.

47. Every holder of land paying revenue in respect thereof shall be entitled, subject to such rules as may be from time to time made in this behalf by the Governor in Council, to a decrease of assessment if any portion thereof, not being less than half an acre in extent, nor less than one-tenth of the holding, is lost by diluvion.

The word "holding" in this section shall be deemed to mean a survey number or any division of land on which a distinct or aggregate assessment has been fixed.

Land revenue upon what description of lands chargeable.

48. The land revenue leviable under the provisions of this Act shall be chargeable:

(a.) upon land appropriated for purpose of agriculture;

(b.) upon land from which any other profit or advantage than that ordinarily acquired by agriculture is derived;

(c.) upon land appropriated for building sites.

And the assessment fixed under the provisions of this Act upon any land appropriated for any one of the above purposes shall be liable to be altered and fixed at a different rate when such land is appropriated for any other purpose, notwithstanding that the term, if any, for which such assessment was fixed may not have expired. And any land allowed by Government to be held free of assessment on condition of its being appropriated to one purpose shall become liable to assessment if at any time it is devoted to any other purpose.

Assessment subject to variation if purpose for which land is held is changed.

Land held rent-free for one purpose liable to assessment if used for another purpose.

It shall also be lawful for the Collector or for a survey officer, subject to rules or orders made in this behalf under section 214 to prohibit the appropriation of any unalienated land liable to the payment of land revenue for certain purposes, and to summarily evict any holder who may appropriate, or attempt to appropriate, the same to such prohibited purposes.

Appropriation of land to certain purposes may be prohibited.

49. When it has been customary to levy any special or extra cess, fine, or tax, however designated, from any holder of land, which though nominally wholly or partially exempt from the payment of land revenue, has by the exaction of such cess, fine, or tax been indirectly taxed to the State, or when any land ordinarily, or under certain circumstances, wholly or partially exempt from assessment, is subject occasionally, or under particular circumstances, to the payment of assessment, or of any cess or tax however designated,

Commuted assessment of land indirectly taxed to the State.

And of land liable to occasional assessment.

the said assessment, cess, fine, or tax may be commuted into an annual assessment on the land to be paid under all circumstances, but such commuted assessment shall not exceed such amount as the Commissioner shall deem to be a fair equivalent of the assessment, cess, fine, or tax for which it is substituted, and shall not be in excess of the assessment to which the land would be ordinarily subject, if no right to exemption existed in respect thereof.

Superior holder may recover commuted assessment from inferior holder.

50. Whenever any such cess, fine, or tax hitherto payable by an inferior holder shall be made leviable from the superior holder, it shall be lawful for such superior holder to recover from such inferior holder the amount of the commuted assessment fixed in lieu of such cess, fine or tax.

Excess of assessment may be laid on land inadequately assessed held with it.

51. When it has been customary to levy a larger revenue under the name of "veta" or any other designation, upon any portion of land than such portion would ordinarily be liable to in consideration of other land being held with it which is wholly or partially exempt from payment of revenue, the excess of revenue payable on the said portion of land may be charged upon the land hitherto held wholly or partially exempt.

Assessment by whom to be fixed.

52. On all lands not wholly exempt from payment of land revenue, and not within the local operation of an order made under section 95, the assessment of the amount to be paid as land revenue shall be fixed at the discretion of the Collector, subject to rules or orders made in this behalf under section 214, and the amounts due according to such assessment shall be levied on all such lands:

Proviso.

Provided that in the case of lands partially exempt from land revenue, or the liability of which to payment of land revenue is subject to special conditions or restrictions, respect shall be had in the fixing of the assessment and the levy of the revenue to all rights legally subsisting, according to the nature of the said rights.

Register of alienated lands.

53. A Register shall be kept by the Collector in such form as may from time to time be prescribed by the Governor in Council of all lands, the alienation of which has been established or recognized under the provisions of any law for the time being in force; and when it shall be shown to the satisfaction of the Collector that any sanad granted in relation to any such alienated lands has been permanently lost or destroyed, he may, subject to the rules and the payment of the fees prescribed by the Governor in Council under section 213, grant to any person whom he may deem entitled to the same a certified extract from the said Registrar, which shall be endorsed by the Collector, to the effect that it has been issued in lieu of the sanad said to have been lost or destroyed, and shall be deemed to be as valid a proof of title as the said sanad.

Settlement of assessment to be made with the holder directly from Government.

54. The settlement of the assessment of each portion of land, or survey number, to the land revenue, shall be made with the person who, under section 136, is primarily responsible to Government for the same.

Or if he is absent and have left no agent with the next holder.

If the said person be absent, and have left no known authorized agent in the district, so that the settlement of the assessment cannot be concluded with him, such settlement may be made with the person holding under him, or in occupation of the land.

Rates for the use of water.

55. The Governor in Council may authorize the Collector or the officer in charge of a survey or such other officer as he deems fit to fix such rates as he may from time to time deem fit to sanction, for the use, by landholders and other persons, of water, the right to which vests in Government, or which has been made available in consequence of the construction, improvement, or repair of any irrigational or other work by or at the instance of Government. Such rates shall be liable to revision at such periods as Government shall from time to time determine, and shall be recoverable as land revenue.

Land revenue to be a paramount charge on the land.

56. Arrears of land revenue due on account of land by any landholder shall be a paramount charge on the holding and every part thereof, failure in payment of which shall make the occupancy or alienated holding, together with all rights of the occupant or holder over all trees, crops, buildings and things attached to the land, or permanently fastened to anything attached to the land, liable to forfeiture, whereupon the Collector may levy all sums in arrear by sale of the occupancy or alienated holding, freed from all tenures, incumbrances and rights created by the occupant or holder or any of his predecessors in title, or in anywise subsisting as against such occupant, or holder, or may otherwise dispose of such occupancy or alienated holding under rules or orders made in this behalf under section 214.

Forfeited holdings may be taken possession of and otherwise disposed.

57. It shall be lawful for the Collector, in the event of the forfeiture of a holding through any default in payment or other failure occasioning such forfeiture under the last section or any law for the time being in force, to take immediate possession of the land embraced within such holding and to dispose of the same by placing it in the possession of the purchaser or other person entitled to hold it according to the provisions of this Act or any other law for the time being in force.

Receipts to be granted by revenue officers for payments of land revenue.

58. Every revenue officer receiving a payment of land revenue shall give a written receipt for the same.

And by certain superior holders for payments of rent or revenue.

And every superior holder of an alienated village, or of an alienated share of a village, shall give a written receipt for every payment of rent or land revenue made to him by an inferior holder, and every such receipt shall be countersigned by the village accountant, if there be any.

Penalty for failure to grant receipts.

59. Any person convicted of a breach of the provisions of the last preceding section after summary inquiry before the Collector shall be liable to a fine not exceeding three times the amount received for which a receipt was not duly granted, and one-half of the fine may, at the discretion of the Collector, be paid to the informer, if any. Such inquiry may at any time be instituted by the Collector of his own motion without any complaint being preferred to him.

CHAPTER VI.

Of the Occupation of Unalienated Land and the Rights of Occupants.

Occupation.

Written permission of Mámlatdár or Mahálkari required previous to taking up unoccupied land.

60. Any person desirous of taking up unoccupied land which has not been alienated must, previously to entering upon occupation, obtain the permission in writing of the Mámlatdár or Mahálkari.

Penalties for unauthorized occupation of land.

61. Any person who shall unauthorizedly occupy any land set apart for any special purpose, or any unoccupied land which has not been alienated, shall,

if the land which he unauthorizedly occupies forms part of an assessed survey number, pay the assessment of the entire number for the whole period of his occupation, and if the land so occupied by him has not been assessed, such amount of assessment as would be leviable for the said period in the same village on the same extent of similar land appropriated to the same purpose;

and shall also be liable, at the discretion of the Collector, to a fine not exceeding five rupees, or a sum equal to ten times the amount of assessment payable by him for one year, if such sum be in excess of five rupees, if he have taken up the land for purposes of cultivation, and not exceeding such limit as may be fixed in rules or orders made in this behalf under section 214, if he have appropriated it to any non-agricultural purpose.

The Collector's decision as to the amount of assessment payable for the land unauthorizedly occupied shall be conclusive, and in determining its amount occupation for an incomplete portion of a year shall be counted as for a whole year.

The person unauthorizedly occupying any such land may be summarily evicted by the Collector, and any crop he may have raised on the land shall be liable to forfeiture, and any building or other construction he may have erected thereon shall also, if not removed by him after such written notice as the Collector may deem reasonable, be liable to forfeiture.

Forfeitures under this section shall be adjudged by the Collector, and any property so forfeited shall be disposed of as the Collector may direct.

Occupancy right to be paid for and to be liable to certain conditions.

62. It shall be competent to the Collector, subject to such orders as may from time to time be made by the Governor in Council, to require the payment of a certain price for the occupancy, or to sell that right by auction, and to annex such conditions to the occupancy as may seem fit, before permission to occupy is granted under section 60.

Price to include price of trees.

The price of an occupancy shall include the price of the Government right to all trees not specially reserved under the provisions of section 40, and shall be recoverable as an arrear of land revenue.

Occupancy of alluvial land which vests in Government.

63. When it appears to the Collector that the occupancy of any alluvial land which vests, under any law for the time being in force, in Government, may, with due regard to the interests of the public revenue, be disposed of in perpetuity, he shall offer the prior right of occupancy thereof to the occupant, if any, of the bank or shore on which such alluvial land has formed.

The price of an occupancy so offered shall not exceed three times the annual assessment of the land of which the occupancy is offered.

If the said occupant shall refuse such occupancy, the Collector may dispose of the same under the last preceding section without any restrictions as to the price thereof.

Temporary right to alluvial lands of small extent.

64. When alluvial land forms on any bank or shore, the occupant, if any, of such bank or shore shall be entitled to the temporary use and occupation thereof, unless or until the area of the same exceeds half an acre, and also exceeds one-tenth of the area of his holding. When the area of the alluvial land exceeds the said extent, it shall be at the disposal of the Collector, subject to the provisions of the last preceding section.

The word "holding" in this section shall be deemed to mean a survey number, or any division of land on which a distinct or aggregate assessment has been fixed.

Occupants' Rights.

Uses to which occupant of land for purposes of agriculture may put his land.

65. An occupant of land appropriated for purposes of agriculture is entitled by himself, his servants, tenants, agents, or other legal representatives, to erect farm-buildings, construct wells or tanks, or make any other improvements thereon for the better cultivation of the land, or its more convenient occupation for the purposes aforesaid.

Procedure if the occupant wishes to apply his land to any other purpose.

But if any occupant wishes to appropriate his holding or any part thereof to any other purpose, the Collector's permission shall in the first place be applied for by the registered occupant. The Collector on receipt of such application shall at once furnish the applicant with a written acknowledgment of its receipt, and after inquiry may either grant or refuse the same; but if the applicant receive no answer within three months from the date of the said acknowledgment, the Collector's permission may be deemed to have been granted. Unless the Collector shall in particular instances otherwise direct, no such application shall be recognized except it be made by the registered occupant.

Fine to be levied for such appropriation in addition to special assessment.

When any such land is thus appropriated to any purpose unconnected with agriculture, it shall be lawful for the Collector, subject to the general orders of Government, to require the payment of a fine in addition to any new assessment which may be leviable under the provisions of section 48.

Penalty for so appropriating land without permission.

66. If any such land be so appropriated without the permission of the Collector being first obtained, or before the expiry of three months from the date of the aforesaid acknowledgment, the occupant and any tenant, or other person holding under or through him, shall be liable to be summarily evicted by the Collector from the land so appropriated, and from the entire field or survey number of which it may form a part, and the registered occupant shall also be liable to pay, in addition to the new assessment which may be leviable under the provisions of section 48 for the period during which the said land has been so appropriated, such fine as the Collector may, subject to the general orders of Government, direct.

Co-occupant or tenant responsible to registered occupant in damages.

Any co-occupant or any tenant of any occupant or any other person holding under or through an occupant, who shall without the registered occupant's consent appropriate any such land to any such purpose, and thereby render the said registered occupant liable to the penalties aforesaid, shall be responsible to the said registered occupant in damages.

Permission may be granted on terms.

67. Nothing in the last two preceding sections shall prevent the granting of the permission aforesaid in special cases on such terms as may be agreed on between Government and the registered occupant.

Occupant's rights are conditional.

68. An occupant is entitled to the use and occupation of his land for the period, if any, to which his occupancy is limited, or if the period is unlimited, or a survey settlement has been extended to the land, in perpetuity conditionally on the payment of the amounts due on account of the land revenue for the same, according to the provisions of this Act, or of any rules made under this Act, or of any other law for the time being in force, and on the fulfilment of any other terms lawfully annexed to his occupancy.

Reservation of right of Government to mines.

69. The right of Government to mines and mineral products in all unalienated land is and is hereby declared to be expressly reserved:

Proviso.

Provided that nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect any subsisting rights of any occupant of such land in respect of such mines or mineral products.

Decrees or order of competent Courts to be given effect to.

70. If by a decree or order of a competent Court it shall be adjudged that the occupant is an inferior holder under another person, or that the occupancy is vested in another person, or if in the execution of such a decree or order the interest of the occupant in the land have been transferred by sale or otherwise to another person, such other person shall, on producing a certified copy of the decree or order, or the Court's certificate of the sale, or other transfer, be deemed to be the occupant and be dealt with accordingly, and on written application being made to the Collector for the purpose, such change shall be made in the entry of the registered occupant's name as the circumstances require.

Name of heir to be registered when registered occupant dies.

71. On the death of a registered occupant, the Collector shall cause the name of his eldest son, or other person appearing to be his heir, or the principal of his heirs, to be registered in his stead, and the said heir shall thereafter be deemed the registered occupant, and, subject to the provisions of the last preceding section, shall be dealt with accordingly.

When entry to be amended.

But if at any time any person shall, by production of a certificate of heirship, or of a decree or order of a competent Court, satisfy the Collector that he is entitled to be the registered occupant in preference to the person whose name the Collector has ordered to be registered, the Collector shall cause the entry in the Government records to be amended accordingly.

Intestate occupancy or holding to be sold.

72. If an occupant who is either a Hindu, a Muhamadan or a Budhist, dies intestate and without known heirs, the Collector shall dispose of his occupancy by sale, subject to the provisions of this Act or of any other law at the time in force for the sale of forfeited occupancies in realization of the land-revenue, and the law at the time in force concerning property left by Hindus, Muhamadans or Budhists, dying intestate and without known heirs shall not be deemed to apply to the said occupancy, but only to the proceeds of such sale after deducting all arrears of land revenue due by the deceased to Government and all expenses of the said sale.

Right of occupancy to be transferable and heritable.

73. The right of occupancy shall be deemed an heritable and transferable property subject to the provisions contained in section 56 or otherwise prescribed by law, and shall immediately pass to the person whose agreement to become occupant shall have been accepted by the Collector.

Relinquishment of Occupancy.

Occupant may relinquish his occupancy.

74. An occupant may, by giving written notice to the Mámlatdár or Mahálkari, relinquish his occupancy, either absolutely or in favour of a specified person, provided that such relinquishment apply to the entire occupancy or to whole survey numbers, or recognized shares of survey numbers. An absolute relinquishment shall be deemed to have effect from the close of the current year, and notice thereof must be given before the 31st March in such year, or before such other date as may be from time to time prescribed in this behalf for each district by the Governor in Council. A relinquishment in favour of a specified person may be made at any time.

When there are more occupants than one, the notice of relinquishment must be given by the registered occupant; and the person, if any, in whose favour an occupancy is relinquished, or if such occupancy is relinquished in favour of more persons than one, the principal of such persons must enter into a written agreement to become the registered occupant, and his name shall thereupon be substituted in the records for that of the previous registered occupant.

Relinquishment of lands paying a lump assessment.

75. When a lump assessment is fixed upon several fields or survey numbers in the aggregate it shall not be lawful for the occupant to relinquish as aforesaid any one or more of such fields or survey numbers except with the previous consent of the Collector. It shall be competent to the Collector to grant or refuse his consent; if he grants it, the occupancy shall be divided, and the Collector shall determine the proportional amount of land revenue to be paid by each portion of it, and the original occupant, and the person, if any, in whose favour he relinquishes a portion of his occupancy, shall be held liable for the revenue severally assessed on their portions.

Relinquishment of land described in para. 1 of section 49.

76. The provisions of the two last sections shall apply, as far as may be, to the holders of alienated land: provided that,

(a) it shall not be lawful to relinquish, as aforesaid, any portion of any land held wholly or partially exempt under the circumstances described in the first paragraph of section 49 until the commuted assessment, payable in respect of such portion of land, has been determined under the provisions of the said section; and that

Relinquishment of land described in section 51.

(b) if any person relinquish land on which, under the circumstances described in section 51, a larger revenue is levied than would ordinarily be leviable on such land, he shall be deemed to have relinquished also the land held with it which is wholly or partially exempt from payment of revenue.

Right of way to relinquished land.

77. If any person relinquishes land, the way to which lies through other land which he retains, the right of way through the land so retained shall continue to the future holder of the land relinquished.

Saving of operation of sections 75 and 76 in certain cases.

78. Nothing in sections 75 and 76 shall affect:

(a) the responsibility of any share in a village for the land revenue of which the sharers are all, according to law or the custom of the village, jointly responsible, or

(b) the validity of the terms or conditions of any lease or other express instrument under which land is, or may hereafter be, held from Government.

Occupant or holder to continue liable for all demands until the occupancy or holding is duly relinquished or transferred.

79. The registered occupant or the holder of alienated land shall continue liable for the land revenue due on the occupancy or alienated holding and for all other lawful demands of Government in respect of the same, until such time as the occupancy or alienated holding is relinquished, or transferred, under any of the provisions of this Act, to the name of any other person; and the Collector shall not be bound in any case to recognize any person to whom any interest in any portion of an occupancy or alienated holding has been assigned, unless the transfer has been recorded in the revenue records in accordance with the foregoing provisions.

Remedies against Forfeiture of Occupancies.

To prevent forfeiture of occupancy, certain persons other than the registered occupant may pay the land revenue.

80. In order to prevent the forfeiture of an occupancy under the provisions of section 56, or of any other law for the time being in force, through non-payment by the registered occupant of the land revenue due on account thereof, it shall be lawful for any co-occupant, tenant, mortgagee, or other person interested in the continuance of the occupancy to pay on behalf of such registered occupant all sums due on account of land revenue, and for the Collector to receive the same. And in any such case the Collector may give to the person who has paid the land revenue as aforesaid such aid for the recovery of the proportional amounts which he may consider to be properly payable by other persons in occupation of parts of a field or survey number as he might legally have given had the persons so paying been the registered occupants:

Collector may assist such persons in recovering the revenue from other parties liable therefor.

Proviso.

Provided that nothing authorized or done under the provisions of this section shall affect the rights of the parties interested as the same may be established in any suit between such parties in a Court of competent jurisdiction.

81. If it shall appear to the Collector that a registered occupant has failed to pay land revenue, and has thus incurred forfeiture with a view to injure or defraud his co-occupants, or other persons interested in the continuance of the occupancy, or that a sale of the occupancy will operate unfairly to the prejudice of such co-occupants, or other persons, it shall be lawful for him, instead of selling the occupancy, to forfeit only the said registered occupant's interest in the same and to substitute the name of any such co-occupant or other person as registered occupant thereof in the revenue records, on his payment of all sums due on account of land revenue for the occupancy; and such person so becoming the registered occupant shall have the rights and remedies with respect to all other persons in occupation provided for by section 86.

Collector may in certain cases make co-occupant or other person the registered occupant instead of selling occupancy for realization of land revenue.

Suspension of certain Provisions of this Chapter.

82. It shall be lawful for the Governor in Council by notification in the Bombay Government Gazette from time to time:

Governor in Council empowered to suspend operation of section 60 or 74.

(a) to suspend the operation of section 60 or 74, or of both, within any prescribed local area, either generally, or in respect of cultivators or occupants of a particular class or classes, and

(b) to cancel any such notification.

During the period for which any notification under the above clause (a) is in force within any local area, such rules shall be substituted for the provisions of which the operation is suspended as the Commissioner shall from time to time direct.

CHAPTER VII.

Of Superior and Inferior Holders.

Tenants' Rights.

83. A person placed, as tenant, in possession of land by another, or, in that capacity, holding, taking, or retaining possession of land permissively from or by sufferance of another, shall be regarded as holding the same at the rent, or for the services agreed upon between them; or in the absence of satisfactory evidence of such agreement, at the rent payable or services renderable by the usage of the locality, or if there be no such agreement or usage, shall be presumed to hold at such rent as, having regard to all of the circumstances of the case, shall be just and reasonable.

Amount of rent payable by tenant.

And where by reason of the antiquity of a tenancy, no satisfactory evidence of its commencement is forthcoming, and there is not any such evidence of the period of its intended duration, if any, agreed upon between the landlord and tenant, or those under whom they respectively claim title, or any usage of the locality as to duration of such tenancy, it shall, as against the immediate landlord of the tenant, be presumed to be co-extensive with the duration of the tenure of such landlord and of those who derive title under him.

Duration of tenancy.

And where there is no satisfactory evidence of the capacity in which a person in possession of land in respect of which he renders service or pays rent to the landlord, received, holds or retains possession of the same, it shall be presumed that he is in possession as tenant.

Presumption as to tenure.

Nothing contained in this section shall affect the right of the landlord, (if he have the same either by virtue of agreement, usage, or otherwise), to enhance the rent payable, or services renderable by the tenant, or to evict the tenant for non-payment of the rent or non-rendition of the services, either respectively originally fixed or duly enhanced as aforesaid.

Saving clause.

84. An annual tenancy shall, in the absence of proof to the contrary, be presumed to run from the end of one cultivating season to the end of the next. The cultivating season may be presumed to end on the 31st March.

Annual tenancy terminates on the 31st March.

An annual tenancy shall require for its termination a notice given in writing by the landlord to the tenant, or by the tenant to the landlord at least three months before the end of the year of tenancy at the end of which it is intimated that the tenancy is to cease. Such notice may be in the form of Schedule E, or to the like effect.

Three months' notice of termination of tenancy to be given by landlord to tenant, or vice versâ.

85. It shall be incumbent on every superior holder of an alienated village and on every superior holder of an alienated share of a village in which there exists an hereditary patel and village accountant, to receive his dues on account of rent or land revenue from the inferior holders through the said village officers.

Superior holders' dues to be collected by hereditary Village Officer and not direct.

Any such superior holder demanding or receiving payment from any inferior holder of any rent or land revenue otherwise than through the said village officers shall, on conviction in a summary inquiry before the Collector, forfeit to Government three times the amount of the sum so demanded or received.

Every such hereditary patel or accountant shall be bound to receive and account to the said superior holder for all sums paid to or recovered by him on account of the said superior holder; and on his or their failure to do the same, the superior holder shall, with the previous consent of the Collector, be entitled to recover his dues direct from the inferior holders.

Recovery of Superior Holders' dues.

86. Superior holders shall, upon written application to the Collector, be entitled to assistance, by the use of precautionary and other measures, for the recovery of rent or land revenue payable to them by inferior holders, or by co-sharers in their holdings under the same rules, except that contained in section 137, and in the same manner as prescribed in Chapter XI. of this Act for the realization of land revenue by Government:

Superior holders entitled to assistance in recovery of dues from inferior holders, &c.

Provided that such application be made within the revenue year or within the year of tenancy in which the said rent or land revenue became payable.

But application must be made within the revenue year or within the year of tenancy.

87. On application being made under section 86 to the Collector, he shall cause a written notice thereof to be served on the inferior holder or co-sharer fixing a day for inquiry into the case. On the day so fixed he shall hold a summary inquiry, and shall pass an order for rendering assistance to the superior holder for the recovery of such amount, if any, of rent or land revenue as appears to him upon the evidence before him to be lawfully due.

The Collector how to proceed on such application being made.

But, if it appears to the Collector that the question at issue between the parties is of a complicated or difficult nature, he may in his discretion either refuse the assistance asked for, or, if the land to which the dispute relates, has been assessed under the provisions of Chapter VIII. of this Act or at any survey settlement confirmed by section 112, grant assistance to the extent only of the assessment so fixed upon the said land.

Assistance may be refused or granted to a limited extent only.

Nothing in this section shall prevent either party from having recourse to the Civil Courts to recover from the other such amount as he may deem to be still due to him, or to have been levied from him in excess of what was due, as the case may be.

Civil suit not to be barred.

Grant of Special Powers to Holders of Alienated Lands.

88. It shall be lawful for the Governor in Council at any time to issue a commission to any holder of alienated lands, conferring upon him all or any of the following powers in respect of the lands specified in such commission (namely):

The Governor in Council may, by commissions, confer certain powers on holders of alienated lands.

(a) to demand security for the payment of the land revenue or rent due to him, and if the same be not furnished, to take such precautions as the Collector is authorized to take, under sections 141 to 143;

(b) to attach the property of persons making default in the payment of such land revenue or rent, as aforesaid;

(c) to fix from time to time the times at which, and the instalments in which, the land revenue or rent due to him shall be payable;

(d) to exercise the powers of a Collector under sections 65 and 66;

(e) to receive notices of relinquishment under section 74, and to determine the date up to which such notices shall be received as in that section provided;

(f) to take measures for the maintenance and repair of boundary-marks in the manner provided for survey officers in section 122:

Provided that the powers contemplated in clauses (c) to (f) shall be conferred only on holders of lands to which a survey settlement has been extended under the provisions of section 216.

89. Every such commission shall be in the form of Schedule F, and shall be liable to be withdrawn at the pleasure of Government; and a commission may, if the Governor in Council see fit, be issued to one or more agents of a holder of alienated lands as well as to the holder in person.

Form of such commission.

90. If the holder of any such commission attach a defaulter's property, he shall make an immediate report to the Collector of his having done so. Should the demand on account of which the attachment has been made, appear to the Collector, after such inquiry as he may deem fit to make, to be just, he shall give orders for the sale of the property, and the sale shall be conducted agreeably to the provisions of sections 165 to 186. But if the holder of the commission is invested, under Regulation XIII. of 1830, with civil jurisdiction and with power to execute his own or his agent's decrees, the sale shall be conducted by him and not by the Collector and his subordinates.

Reference must be made by holder of commission to the Collector in certain cases.

91. All compulsory process shall cease:

When compulsory process shall cease.

on the defaulter's paying or tendering the amount demanded of him under protest, or on his furnishing either to the holder of the commission or his agent or agents, or to the Collector, satisfactory security in the form of Schedule D, or to similar effect.

And any holder of any such commission as aforesaid, by himself or his agents, proceeding with any compulsory process after payment made, or tendered as aforesaid, or after the furnishing of such security as aforesaid, or after tender thereof, shall be liable on conviction in a summary inquiry before the Collector, to a penalty not exceeding three times the amount of the revenue sought to be recovered by such compulsory process.

Penalty for continuing compulsory process.

92. The power conferred by any such commission shall extend to the enforcement of the payment of the revenue or rent of the current year and of the year next immediately preceding, but not to that of former years.

Power under commission to extend to current and previous years arrears.

93. The holder of any such commission shall not enforce a demand for revenue or rent in excess of what any inferior holder has paid, previously to the date of such demand, or of what he may have contracted in writing to pay. In the event of a dispute the Collector shall hold a summary inquiry and decide what is just, and the holder of a commission shall not enforce a demand for more than what is so decided to be just.

Holder of commission not to enforce any unusual or excessive demand.

The person against whom any demand shall have been enforced in excess of the amount of Penalty for so doing.

which payment is lawfully enforceable shall be entitled to recover, on conviction of the holder of the commission in a summary inquiry before the Collector, three times the amount of any such excessive demand by way of damages, and the sum so due by the holder of the commission shall be leviable from him as an arrear of land-revenue.

But holder of commission may establish his right to enhanced rent in Civil Court.

94. Nothing in the last section shall be deemed to prevent a holder of alienated land from instituting a suit in any Court of competent jurisdiction for the purpose of establishing his claim to re-assess the lands or re-settle the revenue of any inferior holder paying less than the full sum to payment of which he deems him to be justly liable, or from levying the sum ascertained to be due in accordance with the decree in any such suit in the manner hereinbefore mentioned.

CHAPTER VIII.

Of Survey Settlements and the Partition of Estates.

Revenue survey may be introduced by Governor in Council into any part of Presidency.

95. It shall be lawful for the Governor in Council, whenever it may seem expedient, to direct the survey of any land in any part of the Presidency, with a view to the settlement of the land revenue, and to the record and preservation of rights connected therewith, or for any other similar purpose, and such survey shall be called a revenue survey. Such survey may extend to the lands of any village, town, or city generally, or to such land only as the Governor in Council may direct; and subject to the orders of the Governor in Council it shall be lawful for the officers conducting any such survey to except from the survey settlement any land to which it may not seem expedient that such settlement should be applied.

Assistance to be given by holders and others in the measurement or classification of lands.

97. It shall be lawful for the survey officer to call upon all holders of land and other persons interested therein to assist in the measurement or classification of the lands to which the survey extends by furnishing flag-holders; and in the event of a necessity for employing hired labour for this, or other similar object, incidental to survey operations, it shall be lawful to assess the cost thereof, with all contingent expenses on the lands surveyed, for collection as a revenue demand.

Survey numbers not to be of less than a certain extent.

98. Except as hereinafter provided, no survey number comprising land used for purposes of agriculture only shall be made of less extent than a minimum to be fixed from time to time for the several classes of land in each district by the Commissioner of Survey, with the sanction of Government. A record of the minima so fixed shall be kept in the Mámlatdár's office in each táluka, and shall be open to the inspection of the public at reasonable times.

These provisions shall not apply to survey numbers which have already been made of less extent than the minima so fixed, or which may be so made under the authority of the Commissioner of Survey given either generally or in any particular instance, in this behalf; and any survey number separately recognized in the survey records shall be deemed to have been authorizedly made, whatever be its extent.

Recognized shares of survey numbers.

99. Recognized shares of survey numbers shall be subject to the same provisions of this Act as are applicable to entire survey numbers, except:

(a) that it shall not be obligatory to demarcate such shares separately, and

(b) that if any such share is relinquished by the occupant absolutely under the provisions of section 74, the occupancy thereof shall be offered to the occupants of the other shares of the same survey number in order of their relative largeness of the amounts payable by them respectively on account of the assessment of their said shares, and that in the event of their all refusing the occupancy of the said share, the assessment thereon shall, until such time as the entire number is relinquished by them, be levied from them in proportion to the amounts of assessment payable by them as aforesaid.

Regard to be had to Proviso to section 52.

In fixing such assessment, regard shall be had to the requirements of the Proviso to section 52:

But nothing in this section shall be deemed to prevent the survey officer aforesaid from determining and registering the proper full assessment on lands wholly exempt from payment of land revenue or on lands especially excepted under section 95 from the survey settlement, or from dividing all such lands to which the survey extends into survey numbers.

Proviso.

The assessment so made may be on land, or on means of irrigation, &c.

101. The power to assess under the preceding section shall, in the case of lands used for purposes of agriculture alone, include power to assess, whether directly on the land, or in the form of a rate or cess upon the means of irrigation in respect of which no rate is leviable under section 55 or in any other manner whatsoever that may be sanctioned by Government.

Assessments so made not leviable without the sanction of Government.

102. The assessment fixed by the officer in charge of a survey shall not be levied without the sanction of Government. It shall be lawful for the Governor in Council to declare such assessments, with any modifications which he may deem necessary, fixed for a term of years not exceeding thirty in the case of lands used for the purposes of agriculture alone, and not exceeding ninety-nine in the case of all other lands.

The fixing of assessment under section 102 limited to ordinary land-revenue.

105. The fixing of the assessment under the provisions of section 102 shall be strictly limited to the assessment of the ordinary land revenue, and shall not operate as a bar to the levy of any cess which it shall be lawful for the Governor in Council to impose under the provisions of any law for the time being in force for purposes of local improvement, such as schools, village and district roads, bridges, tanks, wells, accommodation for travellers, and the like, or of any rate for the use of water which may be imposed under the provisions of section 55.

But improvements made from private capital and resources not to be assessed.

Certain improvements may be considered in fixing revised assessment.

107. Nothing in the last preceding section shall be held to prevent a revised assessment being fixed:—

(c) with reference to any improvement which is the result only of the ordinary operations of husbandry.

59. It shall be incumbent on the Board to make ample provision year by year, either by retrenchment of expenditure

In default the Governor in Council may require the Board to increase the rates;

If within fifteen days after receipt of such order the Board do not comply with the same, the Governor in Council may, by notification in the Bombay Government Gazette, increase the said rates or any of them, and such notification shall have the same force as if a new scale of rates to the same effect had been duly framed, sanctioned and published under section 43.

The Governor in Council may also appoint a receiver to recover any portion of the Board's income.

And for the purpose of realizing any interest which has not been paid by the Board when due, in accordance with section 34, the Governor in Council may, by an order published in the Bombay Government Gazette, appoint some person to receive the rates, charges, and other income which the Board may be entitled to receive, or any portion thereof, and to apply the same in discharge of the amount due and of all expenses authorized by Government in respect of the appointment of such person and of the recovery by him of the said rates, charges and income; and the person so appointed shall have for the recovery of the said rates, charges, or other income, all and singular the powers and authorities conferred by this Act on the Board for the said purpose.

61. For the amount of all rates leviable under this Act in respect of any goods, the Board shall have a lien on such goods, and shall be entitled to seize and detain the same until such rates are fully paid. Rates in respect of goods to be landed shall become payable immediately on the landing of such goods. Rates in respect of goods to be removed from the premises of the Board, or to be shipped for export, shall be payable before such goods are removed or shipped. The lien for such rates shall have priority over all other liens and claims, except for general average, for the ship-owner's lien for freight upon the said goods, (where such lien exists and has been preserved in the manner hereinafter provided), for primage and for money payable to Her Majesty or to the Secretary of State for India in Council.

Lien for freight preserved after landing goods if notice of lien be given.

62. If the master or owner of any vessel, or his agent, at or before the time of landing from such vessel any goods at any wharf, dock or pier in the possession of the Board, shall give to the Board notice, in writing, that such goods are to remain subject to a lien for freight or other charges payable to the ship-owner, to an amount to be mentioned in such notice, such goods shall continue liable to the same lien, if any, for such charges as they were subject to before the landing thereof. Such goods shall be retained either in the warehouses and sheds of the Board, or, with the consent of the Chief Customs Authority of the Presidency in the public warehouses, at the risk and expense of the owners of the said goods until the lien is discharged as hereinafter mentioned.

Discharge of lien by payment or release.

63. Upon production to the proper officer of the Board of a document purporting to be a receipt for the amount claimed as due, or a release of freight from the person by or on whose behalf such notice shall have been given, it shall be lawful for the Board to permit such goods to be removed without regard to such lien, provided they shall have used reasonable care in respect to the authenticity of such document.

If rates are not paid, or the lien for freight is not discharged, goods may be sold after the expiration of two months.

64. If the rates payable to the Board in respect of any goods are not paid, or if the lien of the ship-owner for freight, when such notice as aforesaid has been given, is not discharged, the Board may, and in the latter event, if required by or on behalf of the person claiming such lien for freight, shall, at the expiration of two months from the time when the goods were placed in their custody, or if the goods are of a perishable nature, at such earlier period (being not less than twenty-four hours after the landing of the goods), as they shall think fit, sell by public auction the said goods, or so much as may be necessary to satisfy the amounts hereinafter directed to be paid out of the produce of such sale.

Before making such sale, ten days' notice of the same shall be given by publication thereof in the Bombay Government Gazette, unless the goods are of so perishable a nature as, in the opinion of the officer aforesaid, to render their immediate sale necessary or advisable, in which event such notice shall be given as the urgency of the case admits of.

If the address of the owner of the goods has been stated on the manifest of the cargo or in any of the documents which have come into the hands of the Board, or is otherwise known, notice shall also be given to the owner of the goods by letter delivered at such address, or sent by post; but the title of a bonâ fide purchaser of such goods shall not be invalidated by reason of the omission to send the notice hereinbefore mentioned, nor shall any such purchaser be bound to inquire whether such notice has been sent.

Application of proceeds of sale.

65. In every case of any such sale as aforesaid, the monies received from the sale shall be applied as follows:—

1*stly*.—In payment, according to their respective priorities, of the liens and claims excepted in section 61 from the priority of the lien of the Board for rates;

2*ndly*.—In payment of the expenses of the sale;

3*rdly*.—In payment of the rates and expenses due to the Board in respect thereof.

The surplus, if any, shall be paid to the owner of the goods or his agent on his applying for the same, provided such application be made within one year from the sale of the goods, or good reason be shown why such application was not so made to the satisfaction of the Board; and in case such application shall not be so made, nor reason shown, such surplus shall be applied by the Board to the purposes of this Act.

Power to distrain vessels for the non-payment of rates, &c.

66. If the master of any vessel in respect of which any rates, charges, or penalties shall be payable under this Act, or any bye-laws made in pursuance hereof, shall refuse or neglect to pay the same, or any part thereof, on demand, it shall be lawful for the Board to distrain or arrest, of their own authority, such vessel, and the tackle, apparel, or furniture belonging thereto, or any part thereof, and detain the same until the amount so due shall be paid; and, in case any part of the said rates or penalties, or of the costs of the distress or arrest, or of the keeping of the same, shall remain unpaid for the space of fifteen days next after any such distress or arrest shall have been so made, the Board may cause the vessel, or other thing so distrained or arrested, to be sold, and with the proceeds of such sale may satisfy such tolls, dues, rates, penalties, or charges and costs of sale remaining unpaid, rendering the surplus (if any) to the master of such vessel on demand.

Port Clearance not to be granted till rates, &c., are paid.

67. If the Board shall give to the officer of Government whose duty it is to grant the port clearance of any vessel, a notice stating that the amount therein specified is due in respect of rates, charges, or penalties chargeable under this Act, or any bye-laws, or orders made in pursuance hereof, against such vessel, or the owner or master of such vessel, in respect thereof, such officer shall not grant such port clearance until the amount so chargeable shall have been paid.

or by increase of rates for the due fulfilment of all their liabilities, and for the efficient administration of this Act; and in the event of any deficiency being at any time anticipated in the income of the Board, they shall forthwith take such measures as shall seem most expedient for preventing such deficiency.

In default the Governor in Council may require the Board to increase the rates;

60. If it shall at any time appear to the Governor in Council that sufficient provision is not being made by the Board to meet their liabilities, or if default shall at any time be made by the Board in any payment of interest which they are required to make under section 34, the Governor in Council may require the Board, by an order in writing signed by a Secretary to Government, to increase, subject to his sanction and to the provisions of section 43, to such extent and for such period as shall appear necessary, the rates or any of the rates for the time being in force under the said section.

and on the Board's failing to do so, may himself increase them.

If within fifteen days after receipt of such order the Board do not comply with the same, the Governor in Council may, by notification in the Bombay Government Gazette, increase the said rates or any of them, and such notification shall have the same force as if a new scale of rates to the same effect had been duly framed, sanctioned and published under section 43.

The Governor in Council may also appoint a receiver to recover any portion of the Board's income.

And for the purpose of realizing any interest which has not been paid by the Board when due, in accordance with section 34, the Governor in Council may, by an order published in the Bombay Government Gazette, appoint some person to receive the rates, charges, and other income which the Board may be entitled to receive, or any portion thereof, and to apply the same in discharge of the amount due and of all expenses authorized by Government in respect of the appointment of such person and of the recovery by him of the said rates, charges and income; and the person so appointed shall have for the recovery of the said rates, charges, or other income, all and singular the powers and authorities conferred by this Act on the Board for the said purpose.

VII.—Of the Powers and Functions of the Board.

Recovery of Rates.

Recovery of rates in arrears.

61. For the amount of all rates leviable under this Act in respect of any goods, the Board shall have a lien on such goods, and shall be entitled to seize and detain the same until such rates are fully paid. Rates in respect of goods to be landed shall become payable immediately on the landing of such goods. Rates in respect of goods to be removed from the premises of the Board, or to be shipped for export, shall be payable before such goods are removed or shipped. The lien for such rates shall have priority over all other liens and claims, except for general average, for the ship-owner's lien for freight upon the said goods, (where such lien exists and has been preserved in the manner hereinafter provided), for primage and for money payable to Her Majesty or to the Secretary of State for India in Council.

Lien for freight preserved after landing goods if notice of lien be given.

62. If the master or owner of any vessel, or his agent, at or before the time of landing from such vessel any goods at any wharf, dock or pier in the possession of the Board, shall give to the Board notice, in writing, that such goods are to remain subject to a lien for freight or other charges payable to the ship-owner, to an amount to be mentioned in such notice, such goods shall continue liable to the same lien, if any, for such charges as they were subject to before the landing thereof. Such goods shall be retained either in the warehouses and sheds of the Board, or, with the consent of the Chief Customs Authority of the Presidency in the public warehouses, at the risk and expense of the owners of the said goods until the lien is discharged as hereinafter mentioned.

Discharge of lien by payment or release.

63. Upon production to the proper officer of the Board of a document purporting to be a receipt for the amount claimed as due, or a release of freight from the person by or on whose behalf such notice shall have been given, it shall be lawful for the Board to permit such goods to be removed without regard to such lien, provided they shall have used reasonable care in respect to the authenticity of such document.

If rates are not paid, or the lien for freight is not discharged, goods may be sold after the expiration of two months.

64. If the rates payable to the Board in respect of any goods are not paid, or if the lien of the ship-owner for freight, when such notice as aforesaid has been given, is not discharged, the Board may, and in the latter event, if required by or on behalf of the person claiming such lien for freight, shall, at the expiration of two months from the time when the goods were placed in their custody, or if the goods are of a perishable nature, at such earlier period (being not less than twenty-four hours after the landing of the goods), as they shall think fit, sell by public auction the said goods, or so much as may be necessary to satisfy the amounts hereinafter directed to be paid out of the produce of such sale.

Before making such sale, ten days' notice of the same shall be given by publication thereof in the Bombay Government Gazette, unless the goods are of so perishable a nature as, in the opinion of the officer aforesaid, to render their immediate sale necessary or advisable, in which event such notice shall be given as the urgency of the case admits of.

If the address of the owner of the goods has been stated on the manifest of the cargo or in any of the documents which have come into the hands of the Board, or is otherwise known, notice shall also be given to the owner of the goods by letter delivered at such address, or sent by post; but the title of a bonâ fide purchaser of such goods shall not be invalidated by reason of the omission to send the notice hereinbefore mentioned, nor shall any such purchaser be bound to inquire whether such notice has been sent.

Application of proceeds of sale.

65. In every case of any such sale as aforesaid, the monies received from the sale shall be applied as follows:—

1*stly*.—In payment, according to their respective priorities, of the liens and claims excepted in section 61 from the priority of the lien of the Board for rates;

2*ndly*.—In payment of the expenses of the sale;

3*rdly*.—In payment of the rates and expenses due to the Board in respect thereof.

The surplus, if any, shall be paid to the owner of the goods or his agent on his applying for the same, provided such application be made within one year from the sale of the goods, or good reason be shown why such application was not so made to the satisfaction of the Board; and in case such application shall not be so made, nor reason shown, such surplus shall be applied by the Board to the purposes of this Act.

Power to distrain vessels for the non-payment of rates, &c.

66. If the master of any vessel in respect of which any rates, charges, or penalties shall be payable under this Act, or any bye-laws made in pursuance hereof, shall refuse or neglect to pay the same, or any part thereof, on demand, it shall be lawful for the Board to distrain or arrest, of their own authority, such vessel, and the tackle, apparel, or furniture belonging thereto, or any part thereof, and detain the same until the amount so due shall be paid; and, in case any part of the said rates or penalties or of the costs of the distress or arrest, or of the keeping of the same, shall remain unpaid for the space of fifteen days next after any such distress or arrest shall have been so made, the Board may cause the vessel, or other thing so distrained or arrested, to be sold, and with the proceeds of such sale may satisfy such tolls, dues, rates, penalties, or charges and costs of sale remaining unpaid, rendering the surplus (if any) to the master of such vessel on demand.

Port Clearance not to be granted till rates, &c., are paid.

67. If the Board shall give to the officer of Government, whose duty it is to grant the port clearance of any vessel, a notice stating that an amount therein specified is due in respect of rates, charges, or penalties chargeable under this Act, or any bye-laws, or orders made in pursuance hereof, against such vessel, or the owner or master of such vessel, in respect thereof, such officer shall not grant such port clearance until the amount so chargeable shall have been paid.

If, within the time so fixed, such person does not comply with the order, the canal officer may cause the obstruction to be removed or modified; and if the person to whom the order was issued does not, when called upon, pay the expenses of such removal or modification, such expenses shall be recoverable by the Collector as an arrear of land-revenue.

Construction of Drainage Works.

When drainage-works necessary Governor in Council may order a scheme to be drawn up and carried out.

15. Whenever it appears to the Governor in Council that any drainage work is necessary for the public health or for the improvement of the proper cultivation or irrigation of any land, or that protection from floods or accumulations of water, or from encroachment by a river, is required for any land, the Governor in Council may cause a scheme for such work to be drawn up and carried into execution, and the person authorized by the Governor in Council to draw up and execute such scheme may exercise in connection therewith the powers conferred on canal officers by sections seven, eight, and nine, and shall be liable to the obligations imposed upon canal officers by sections ten and thirty-four.

PART III.

16. Any person may, with the permission of a canal officer duly empowered to grant such permission, construct a new water-course if he has obtained the consent of the holder of the land required therefor.

Application may be made for construction by a canal officer of a new water-course.

17. Any person desiring to construct a new water-course, but being unable or unwilling to construct it under a private arrangement with the holder of the land required for the same, may apply, in writing, to any canal officer duly empowered to receive such applications, stating

(1)—that he is ready to defray all the expenses necessary for acquiring the land and constructing such water-course;

(2)—that he desires the said canal officer in his behalf and at his cost to do all things necessary for constructing such water-course.

Procedure when canal officer considers construction of such water-course expedient.

18. If the canal officer considers the construction of such water-course expedient, he may call upon the applicant to deposit any part of the expense such officer may consider necessary, and upon such deposit being made, shall cause enquiry to be made into the most suitable alignment for the said water-course, and shall mark out the land which, in his opinion, it will be necessary to occupy for the construction thereof, and shall forthwith publish a notification in every village through which the water-course is proposed to be taken, that so much of such land as is situated within such village has been so marked out,

Person wishing to be joint owner must make his application within thirty days.

The said notification shall also call upon any person who wishes to share in the ownership of such water-course to make his application in that respect to the canal officer within thirty days of the publication of such notification.

If his application is admitted, he will be liable for a share of the cost.

If any such applicant appears, and his application is admitted, he shall be liable to pay his share in the construction of such water-course, and in the cost of acquiring the land for the same, and shall be an owner of such water-course when constructed.

Collector to acquire land.

19. On receipt of copy of such notification, the Collector shall proceed to acquire such land under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, as if a declaration had been issued by the Government for the acquisition thereof under section six of that Act, and as if the Government had thereupon directed the Collector to take order for the acquisition of such land under section seven of the said Act, and (if necessary) as if the Government had issued orders for summary possession being taken under section seventeen of the said Act.

Procedure after construction of water-course.

20. On being put in possession of the land, the canal officer shall construct the required water-course; and on its completion shall give to the owner notice thereof, and of any sum payable by him on account of the cost of acquiring the land and constructing the water-course. (a) to construct and maintain all works necessary for the passage across such water-course, of canals, water-courses, drainage-channels, and public roads existing at the time of its construction, and of the drainage intercepted by it, and for affording proper communications across it for the convenience of the occupants of neighbouring lands;

(b) to maintain such water-course in a fit state of repair for the conveyance of water;

(c) to allow the use of it to others or to admit other persons as joint owners thereof on such terms as may be prescribed under the provisions of section twenty-three;

Provided always that any owner of a water-course and subject to the terms of any agreement between the parties, or to any condition imposed under section twenty-three, any such person as aforesaid may at any time by giving three months' previous notice in writing in this behalf to a canal officer duly empowered to receive such notices, resign his interest in such water-course.

Person other than owner may arrange with owner to have supply of water through water-course, or may apply to canal officer to authorize supply or declare him a joint owner.

22. Any person desiring to have a supply of water through a water-course, of which he is not an owner, may make a private arrangement with the owner for permitting the conveyance of water thereby, or may apply to a canal officer duly empowered to receive such applications for authority to use such water-course, or to be declared a joint owner thereof.

Canal officer after enquiry may authorize supply, or declare applicant to be a joint owner.

23. On receipt of any such application, the canal officer shall serve notice on the owner to show cause why such authority should not be granted, or such declaration should not be made, and, if no objection be raised, or if any objection be raised and be found insufficient or invalid, shall, subject to the approval of the Collector, either authorize the applicant to use the water-course, or declare him to be a joint owner thereof on such conditions as to the payment of compensation or rent or otherwise as may appear to him equitable.

Land acquired for a water-course may not be used for other purpose.

24. No land acquired under this Part for a water-course shall be used for any other purpose without the previous consent of a canal officer duly empowered to grant such permission.

Person who uses the water-course to pay a share of the expenses of repair.

Every person other than an owner who uses any water-course in respect of which any repair has been executed by a canal officer under this section shall, in the absence of any agreement between the parties or of any condition imposed under section twenty-three at the time such person was authorized to use such water-course to the contrary, be liable to pay to Government such proportion of the expenses incurred in the execution of such repairs as shall be determined by the said canal officer.

Settlement of Disputes concerning Water-courses.

Settlement of disputes as to mutual rights and liabilities of persons interested in a water-course.

26. Whenever a dispute arises between two or more persons in regard to their mutual rights or liabilities in respect of the use, construction, or maintenance of a water-course, or among joint owners of a water-course as to their respective shares of the expense of constructing or maintaining such water-course, or as to the amounts severally contributed by them towards such expense, or as to failure on the part of any owner to contribute his share, any person interested in the matter of such dispute may apply, in writing, to any canal officer duly empowered to receive such applications, stating the matter in dispute.

and within one month from the date of such entry compensation shall be tendered by a canal officer duly empowered in this behalf to the land-holder, or owner of the property damaged.

If such tender is not accepted, the canal officer shall forthwith refer the matter to the Collector for the purpose of making enquiry as to the amount of compensation and deciding the same.

Compensation on account of interruption of water-supply.

35. If the supply of water to any land irrigated from a canal be interrupted otherwise than in the manner described in clause (d) of section thirty-one, the holder of such land may present a petition for compensation to the Collector for any loss arising from such interruption, and the Collector, after consulting the canal officer, shall award to the petitioner reasonable compensation for such loss.

40. In determining the amount of compensation under the last preceding section, regard shall be had to the diminution in the market-value, at the time of awarding compensation, of the property in respect of which compensation is claimed; and where such market-value is not ascertainable, the amount shall be reckoned at twelve times the amount of the diminution of the annual net profits of such property, caused by the exercise of the powers conferred by this Act.

42. If compensation is awarded under section thirty-nine on account of a stoppage or diminution of supply of water to any land paying revenue to Government, and the amount of the revenue payable on account of such land has been fixed with reference to the water-advantages appertaining thereto, the holder of the said land shall be entitled to an abatement of the amount of revenue payable to such extent as shall be determined by the Collector.

Abatement of inferior holder's rent on interruption of water-supply.

43. Every inferior holder of any land in respect of which such compensation has been paid shall, if he receives no part of the said compensation, be entitled to an abatement of the rent previously payable by him to the superior holder thereof in proportion to the reduced value of the holding;

but if a water-supply which increases the value of the holding is afterwards restored to the said land otherwise than at the cost of the inferior holder, the superior holder shall be entitled to enhance the rent in proportion to such increased value: provided that the enhanced rent shall not in any case exceed the rent payable by the inferior holder before the abatement, unless the superior holder shall, independently of the provisions of this section, be entitled so to enhance the previous rent.

PART VI.

Of Water Rates.

Supply Rates.

Rates for supply of canal-water to be determined by Government.

44. Such rates shall be leviable for canal-water supplied for purposes of irrigation, or for any other purpose, as shall from time to time be determined by the Governor in Council.

Provision for cases in which existing water supply is improved.

If, owing to the construction of a new canal or to the improvement or extension of an existing canal, the amount or duration of any water-supply, in respect of which either no revenue, or a fixed amount of revenue has hitherto been paid to Government, is increased, rates shall be leviable under this section in respect of the increased water-supply only.

The said rates shall be payable by the person on whose application the supply was granted, or by any person who uses the water so supplied.

48. If it shall appear to a canal officer duly empowered to enforce the provisions of this section, that any cultivated land within two hundred yards of any canal receives, by percolation or leakage from such canal, an advantage equivalent to that which would be given by a direct supply of canal-water for irrigation, or that any cultivated land, wherever situate, derives by a surface-flow, or by means of a well sunk within two hundred yards of any canal after the admission of water into such canal, a supply of water which has percolated or leaked from such canal, he may charge on such land a water-rate not exceeding that which would ordinarily have been charged for a similar direct supply to land similarly cultivated.

Provisoes.

(1)—that the rate to be so levied in respect of any such land shall not in any case exceed one-fourth of the full dry-crop rate at which such land is at the time being assessed for the purposes of the land-revenue;

(2)—that when the area of the land under command of the canal exceeds the area for which water is available therefrom for the irrigation during the monsoon months of such dry-crops as are ordinarily grown in the tract of country through which such canal passes, the maximum rate leviable under the foregoing proviso shall be reduced in the proportion which the area for which water is so available bears to the area under command.

For the purposes of this section the amount of the total capital expended on the construction of a canal, or of any completed portion of a canal, shall be ascertained and determined in such manner as Government shall direct. The proportion in which the maximum rate shall be reduced in respect of the lands under command of any canal to which the second proviso of this section is applicable, shall also be determined under the orders of Government.

Conditions on which the said rate shall be leviable.

50. The said rate shall not be leviable in respect of any land—

(a) which has not been irrigable from the canal for a period exceeding three years;

(b) if during the year for which such rate might otherwise be levied, water sufficient for the irrigation of such land has not been supplied when duly applied for by the holder thereof;

(c) unless the net annual value of the produce of such land, or the productive powers thereof will be increased by the irrigation thereof by canal-water, after deducting all necessary expenses incurred in cultivating the same, conveying the water thereto, and paying all Government charges in respect of such irrigation;

(d) unless a canal officer duly empowered in this behalf shall have offered to permit the person who would otherwise be liable to pay the said rate, to construct the water-course necessary for conveying the water to the said land under section sixteen, or, if the said person shall so prefer, to apply the provisions of sections eighteen, nineteen, and twenty, or of sections twenty-two and twenty-three, as the case may be, for the construction of a water-course, or for authorizing such person to use or to become a joint owner of some other water-course, and shall have tendered an advance of money sufficient to provide for the construction of the said water-course or the acquisition of such authority or joint ownership, as the case may be; such advance to be repayable in conformity with the rules for recovering advances made under the Land Improvement Act, 1871.

Questions as to fulfilment of said conditions to be determined by the Collector.

If any question shall arise whether the aforesaid conditions have been complied with it shall be determined by the Collector.

Responsibility for rate on whom to rest.

51. If there are both superior and inferior holders of any land in respect of which the said rate is chargeable, the rate shall be payable by the superior holder, who shall be entitled to assistance in the recovery of the same from the inferior holder in accordance with the law at the time in force for assisting such superior holders in recovering land revenue demands from their inferior holders.

or, that, unless some clearance of a channel or other work which is necessary to maintain the established course of irrigation is immediately executed, serious public loss will occur, and that the labourers necessary for the proper execution of such repair, clearance, or work cannot be obtained in the ordinary manner within the time that can be allowed for the execution of the same so as to prevent such injury or loss, the said officer may, by order under his hand, direct that the provisions of this section shall be put into operation for the execution of such repair, clearance, or work; and thereupon every able-bodied person who resides or holds land in the vicinity of the locality where such repair, clearance, or work has to be executed, and whose name appears in the list hereinafter mentioned, shall, if required to do so by such officer or by any person authorised by him in this behalf, be bound to assist in the execution of such repair, clearance, or work by labouring thereat as such officer or any person authorized by him in this behalf may direct.

Notification to issue when water-supply is to be applied for purposes of any Canal. 5. Whenever it appears expedient to the Governor in Council that the water of any river or stream flowing in a natural channel, or of any lake, or any other natural collection of still water should be applied or used by the Government for the purpose of any existing or projected canal ; the Governor in Council may, by notification in the Bombay Government Gazette, declare that the said water will be so applied or used after a day to be named in the said notification, not being earlier than three months from the date thereof.

Powers of Entry on Land, &c.

Powers of canal officers for the purpose of so applying a water supply. 6. At any time after the day so named any canal officer duly empowered in this behalf may enter on any land, remove any obstruction, close any channel, and do any other thing necessary for such application or use of the said water, and for such purpose may take with him, or depute, or employ, such subordinates and other persons as he deems fit.

Entry for enquiry. 7. Whenever it shall be necessary to make any enquiry or examination in connection with a projected canal, or with the maintenance of an existing canal, any canal officer duly empowered in this behalf and any person acting under the general or special order of any such canal officer, may

(a) enter upon such land as he may think necessary for the purpose, and

(c) set up and maintain water-gauges and do all other things necessary for the prosecution of such enquiry and examination.

Any canal officer duly empowered in this behalf and any person acting under the general or special order of any such canal officer, may enter upon any land, building, or water-course, on account of which any water-rate is chargeable, for the purpose of inspecting or regulating the use of the water supplied, or of measuring the land irrigated thereby or chargeable with a water-rate, and of doing all things necessary for the proper regulation and management of the canal from which such water is supplied.

Canal officer may issue order to person causing obstruction. 13. Any canal officer duly empowered in this behalf may, after such publication, issue an order to any person causing or having control over any such obstruction to remove or modify the same within a time to be fixed in such order.

and shall mark out the land which, in his opinion, it will be necessary to occupy for the construction thereof, and shall forthwith publish a notification in every village through which the water-course is proposed to be taken, that so much of such land as is situated within such village has been so marked out, and shall send a copy of such notification to the Collector of every district in which such land is situated for publication on such land.

Person wishing to be joint owner must make his application within thirty days.

If his application is admitted, he will be liable for a share of the cost.

If any such applicant appears, and his application is admitted, he shall be liable to pay his share in the construction of such water-course, and in the cost of acquiring the land for the same, and shall be an owner of such water-course when constructed.

Collector to acquire land.

19. On receipt of copy of such notification, the Collector shall proceed to acquire such land under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, as if a declaration had been issued by the Government for the acquisition thereof under section six of that Act, and as if the Government had thereupon directed the Collector to take order for the acquisition of such land under section seven of the said Act, and (if necessary) as if the Government had issued orders for summary possession being taken under section seventeen of the said Act.

Person other than owner may arrange with owner to have supply of water through water-course, or may apply to canal officer to authorize supply or declare him a joint owner.

22. Any person desiring to have a supply of water through a water-course, of which he is not an owner, may make a private arrangement with the owner for permitting the conveyance of water thereby, or may apply to a canal officer duly empowered to receive such applications for authority to use such water-course, or to be declared a joint owner thereof.

Canal officer after enquiry may authorize supply, or declare applicant to be a joint owner.

26. Whenever a dispute arises between two or more persons in regard to their mutual rights or liabilities in respect of the use, construction, or maintenance of a water-course, or among joint owners of a water-course as to their respective shares of the expense of constructing or maintaining such water-course, or as to the amounts severally contributed by them towards such expense, or as to failure on the part of any owner to contribute his share, any person interested in the matter of such dispute may apply, in writing, to any canal officer duly empowered to receive such applications, stating the matter in dispute.

Such officer shall thereupon give notice to the other persons interested that, on a day to be named in such notice, he will proceed to enquire into the said matter;

48. If it shall appear to a canal officer duly empowered to enforce the provisions of this section, that any cultivated land within two hundred yards of any canal receives, by percolation or leakage from such canal, an advantage equivalent to that which would be given by a direct supply of canal-water for irrigation, or that any cultivated land, wherever situate, derives by a surface-flow, or by means of a well sunk within two hundred yards of any canal after the admission of water into such canal, a supply of water which has percolated or leaked from such canal,

If at the close of any financial year it shall appear to the Governor in Council that the gross revenue from water supplied from any canal, or from the completed portion of any canal, during the said year has not amounted to five per centum of the total capital expended in the construction of such canal, or of the completed portion thereof, he may direct the levy in the year then next ensuing of a rate not exceeding eight annas per acre on all cultivated land which is under command of such canal, but is not irrigated: Provided—

Proviso.

(1)—that the rate to be so levied in respect of any such land shall not in any case exceed one-fourth of the full dry-crop rate [illegible] such land is at the time being assessed for the purposes of the land-revenue;

For the purposes of this section the amount of the total capital expended on the construction of a canal, or of any completed portion of a canal, shall be ascertained and determined in such manner as Government shall direct. The proportion in which the maximum rate shall be reduced in respect of the lands under command of any canal to which the second proviso of this section is applicable, shall also be determined under the orders of Government.

Conditions on which the said rate shall be leviable.

50. The said rate shall not be leviable in respect of any land—

(a) which has not been irrigable from such canal for a period exceeding three years;

(b) if during the year for which such rate might otherwise be levied, water sufficient for the irrigation of such land has not been supplied when duly applied for by the holder thereof;

(c) unless the net annual value of the produce of such land, or the productive powers thereof will be increased by the irrigation thereof by canal-water, after deducting all necessary expenses incurred in cultivating the same, conveying the water thereto, and paying all Government charges in respect of such irrigation;

(d) unless a canal officer duly empowered in this behalf shall have consented to permit the person who would otherwise be liable to pay the said rate, to construct the water-course necessary for conveying the water to the said land under section sixteen, or, if the said person shall so prefer, to apply the provisions of sections eighteen, nineteen, and twenty, or of sections twenty-two and twenty-three, as the case may be, for the construction of a water-course, or for authorizing such person to use as a joint owner of some other water-course,
