

OBSERVATIONS.—By existing practice, when the applicant for a duplicate note has given evidence of the loss of the original, and has established, by strong primâ facie evidence, his title to the note, and has taken the prescribed measures preliminary to the application, a duplicate is issued after the lapse of ten years from the date of the last correct advertisement of the loss on a bond being executed by the claimant and two sureties, indemnifying Government against loss. Meanwhile, interest is allowed to be drawn also under a bond of indemnity.

2. It is found that, as the law at present stands, these measures do not give the Government sufficient protection from loss, as the period of limitation against the possible holder of the original note runs only from the date on which the note becomes payable; and the date may be many years after the bond of indemnity under which the duplicates have been issued has ceased to be of any practical value.

RESOLUTION.—To protect the State from such double liability, the Governor General in Council has resolved to modify the procedure as follows:—

(1) Every claim to the issue of a duplicate note, in lieu of one alleged to be lost, will be submitted by the Public Debt Office to be provisionally decided by the Comptroller General after at least two years have elapsed from the date of the last correct advertisement.

(2) If there appears to be no objection to the issue of a duplicate note to the claimant, the Comptroller General will record his opinion to that effect, and will direct that interest upon the note be paid to the claimant after execution of a bond of indemnity with two sufficient sureties.

(3) If the note is payable after notice given in the Gazette, the Comptroller General will give that notice, and will (unless any reason to the contrary appears) issue a duplicate note, on indemnity bond as above, six years after the date of payment fixed in such notice.

(4) But if the note is of a loan of which such notice of payment cannot immediately be given, then no further steps can be taken, until notice of payment can be given in accordance with the terms of the loan.

(5) The Comptroller General will publish these notices twice a year, about January and again about July, and will to each such notice append a list showing the numbers of notes already, within the last six years, advertised for payment under this Resolution.

(6) These orders will apply to all notes on which, under existing rules, interest has been ordered to be paid, but of which duplicates have not yet been issued.

(7) No lost note of a loan, which has been ordered for discharge, may be paid until a duplicate note has been issued under the above procedure.

These orders do not apply to stock certificates payable to bearer, of which duplicates may not be issued without special orders of Government in each case.

ORDERED, that this Resolution be communicated to the Comptroller General for information and guidance, and published in the Gazette of India.

RESOLUTION.—His Excellency the Governor General in Council observes with satisfaction that the Local Governments and Administrations, without exception, cordially accept the scheme for the extension of the system of Provincial finance and local self-Government put forth in the Resolution of the 30th September last.

2. With reference to paragraph 9 of that Resolution, His Excellency in Council is glad now to be able to announce definitively that the contributions made to the Imperial by the Provincial Governments in the years 1879-80 and 1880-81 will be restored to them. The Comptroller General will place the amounts specified in the margin to the credit of the several Provincial Governments before the 31st March next. These amounts will, it is understood, be applied to Productive Public Works in all cases where the whole, or a portion, may not be indispensable in order to raise the Provincial working balance to a proper level.

3. In the course of the correspondence which has taken place, various questions have been asked by one Government or another, to which it may be convenient to give replies for the information of all.

4. With reference to paragraph 12 of the Resolution of 30th September, it may be explained that the figures contained in the statement were merely illustrative of the scheme as contained in the schedule, and intended to facilitate a comprehension of it by showing, as stated in the paragraph, what would be its actual operation if applied to the estimates of 1881-82. Final calculations of this nature, however, should always be based on the latest and most accurate estimate obtainable at the time of settlement; otherwise the Imperial or the Local Government, as the case might be, would be deprived of any advantage which the recent information might afford. It is intended to take the Regular Estimate of the current year as the basis for final settlement, which will be effected after careful consideration of the circumstances of each Province.

5. The allusion in the latter portion of the same paragraph to the possibility of modification being required in the schedule and statement had reference merely to the indication of transfers and exchanges made between Provincial and Local heads and of the amounts or items retained in the former, which alone constitute the resources of the Provincial Government available for general purposes. The administrative and financial arrangements thus made in pursuance of the policy of "de-provincialisation" will not, however, affect the assignment to be made from Imperial revenue.

6. The settlements now about to be effected will in all cases be for a term of five years commencing from the 1st April next. It is to be distinctly understood that the Imperial Government reserves to itself on the expiration of the term the power to revise the settlements, and to withdraw from any Local Government such portion of its grant as cannot then be continued without injustice to other Provinces whose means are straitened, or limitation of Imperial undertakings which need early development. To the Local Governments such revision will afford no cause of complaint, because the inducements now offered for entering into an agreement are the freedom to administer their own resources, and to apply at will (subject to the general standing orders) any increase reaped during the term of settlement alone. On the other hand, while the Local Governments will undertake, for the term of the settlement, all ordinary fluctuations in their revenues and expenditure, and to make such increases in the latter as may be necessary on the existing basis of administration, due allowance will be made, by modification of the fixed percentage of land revenue or otherwise, for any material alterations in the nature of their income, resulting from legislation or organic change of financial system effected for Imperial reasons.

7. In explanation of paragraph 20 of the Resolution, it may be added that the intention is to allow the Local Governments the same rights over divided revenues, and the same power to sanction new expenditure under divided heads, as they now possess in the case of the heads exclusively Provincial. It is not, however, in contemplation to disturb the existing powers of the Provincial Governments in respect of the Land Revenue, or their relations with special Departments having a distinct organisation such, for instance, as the Forest Department in Provinces other than Madras and Bombay.

8. The new terms on the subject of famine relief, contained in the Resolution, supersede any obligations which may have been imposed upon the Governments of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the Punjab, and the Central Provinces of setting aside such amount as the Governor General in Council may direct for the purpose of increasing the revenues available for defraying expenditure incurred or to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine in their respective territories. Any amounts hitherto so set aside will hereafter be at the disposal of the Local Governments for ordinary Provincial expenditure. Moreover, as a consequence of the new principles laid down in the Resolution of 30th September last, and of the separate provision in the Imperial Budget of a permanent annual allotment of one crore and a half of rupees for "Famine Relief and Insurance," the Local Governments, while always needing a moderate reserve, over and above the mere "working balance," of sufficient amount to meet scarcity and distress not indisputably amounting to severe famine, or other temporary exigencies, will no longer find it necessary to accumulate a great Provincial reserve fund, out of which the demands of severe famine could in future be largely met. His Excellency in Council is of opinion that, subject to the moderate reserve just referred to, the Provincial Resources can be best utilised by being invested to the full, from year to year, in works of a Productive or Protective character.

9. The arrangements with the several Local Governments have now so far advanced that there will be no difficulty in applying the new scheme in all cases from the commencement of 1882-83. The separate communications, now in course of issue to each Local Government, will, it is believed, enable it promptly to communicate to the Local Accountant General or Controller any modifications which, in consequence of the settlement arrived at, it may desire to make in its Budget proposals for Provincial expenditure. On receipt of these by the Comptroller General, the Budget, which will have been already sent in on the 20th instant, will be recast to meet the altered circumstances, the exact percentage of Land Revenue assignment will be calculated, and a copy will be sent to the Local Government in time, when possible, to allow of special corrections being made by telegraph.

10. Regarding the measures to be adopted for extending local self-Government, detailed proposals have as yet been received from one Government only. His Excellency in Council trusts that the matter may receive as early disposal as its comprehensive nature will allow, and that, in any case, transfers and exchanges of revenues or charges will be arranged in time to come into effect with the new financial year.

ORDERED, that this Resolution be communicated to the Home, Foreign, Military, and Public Works Departments, as also to the Comptroller General and Accountants General, and the several Local Governments, and that it be published in the Gazette of India.

RESOLUTION.—His Excellency the Governor General in Council has had under careful consideration the reports upon the subject of the price of salt sold at Government Works, and the practical operation of the various systems in force, which have been submitted by the Local Governments and the Commissioner of Inland Customs.

2. His Excellency in Council is satisfied that, owing to the differences of system which of necessity prevail in different parts of India, the proposal to fix a uniform price, at which salt should be sold at all Government Works throughout India, is impracticable. In order, however, to ensure that the price, in such instances as it lies in the power of Government to fix it, is calculated upon sound principles and not in such a manner as to compete at an unfair advantage with salt supplied to the market by private enterprise, the issue of definite instructions appears to be required.

3. The systems under which the Government connection with the salt trade is carried into effect are three—

(1) Charging a customs duty on all salt imported into British India.

(2) Charging an excise duty on all salt manufactured in British India by private persons on their own account.

(3) Manufacturing salt by Government on its own account, either by hired or contract labour, and selling it at a price sufficient to cover the cost of so doing, together with a fixed duty equal to the customs or excise duty.

Under the first two systems Government confines itself to taxation; under the third it undertakes the functions of a private manufacturer in addition. In former days the Government was not only a manufacturer but an absolute monopolist; but in 1836 it so far abandoned this position, on the recommendation of a Committee of the House of Commons, as to throw open the salt import trade to private enterprise, retaining a monopoly of local manufacture only. From that date onwards, it has been gradually relinquishing direct manufacture in all cases where the necessary supply of salt to the public could be ensured under either the customs duty or the excise duty systems.

4. The three systems at present prevail in the localities described below:—

(1) Customs duty.—Bengal (including Behar), Assam, and British Burma.

(2) Excise duty.—Western India, from the Tapti river south to Cape Comorin, Berar, and the south-west portion of the Central Provinces; also a few spots in Bengal and Orissa, and to a limited extent in Burma.

(3) Manufacture and monopoly.—The east coast of the Madras Presidency, the rest of the Central Provinces, Bombay north of the Tapti, Sind, the Punjab, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Rajputana and Central India.

This classification is, of course, in very general terms; the different salts compete with each other on the boundaries, and interlace in their areas, according to local taste and preference and not price alone; but it may be considered substantially correct.

5. The charges of all kinds which fall on Government from its connection with salt may be described and classified as follows:—

1. Cost of administration ...	Charges common to all systems, and arising out of the Government taxation of salt.
2. „ collection ...
3. „ preventive establishments
4. „ production[1] ...	These charges appertain to all systems under which Government either produces salt by hired labour, or buys the salt from the actual producer for resale to the public.
5. „ conveyance to store-house
6. „ storage ...
7. „ wastage ...
8. „ interest on capital, fixed or floating.
9. Treaty payments	These appertain to the same systems as the preceding. Treaty payments are not always of the same nature; in some instances they correspond with rent which might be paid by a private manufacturer for mines or salt works; in others they are payments to secure the suppression of manufacture in Foreign States, or the right to charge duty on salt consumed in such States.
10. Rent of salt sources... ...
11. Cost of supervision of production	Found only when Government produces the salt by hired labour.
12. Commission to agents and contractors on sales.	An exceptional charge, sometimes indispensable.

It will be observed that cost of conveyance from store-house to market is not mentioned, because it is outside the purposes of our calculations, and necessarily falls on the consumer in proportion to his distance from the salt source from which he draws his supplies. In some cases, moreover, where the depôts are at a distance from the market, the cost of conveyance to them may be advanced by Government, and recovered in ordinary course.

6. On a scrutiny of the charges enumerated in the preceding paragraph, it will be seen that the first three only, viz., administration, collection, and prevention, are incidental to the interference of Government, for taxation purposes, in the matter of salt. The remainder are all borne alike by Government and private individuals whenever either of them undertakes the trade of producing and selling salt. From this, and economic principles which are so evident that it seems superfluous to set them forth, it follows that whenever Government and the private trader meet, they do not do so on fair terms, and the latter is unjustly weighted, unless the former scrupulously includes in its selling price (exclusive of duty) whatever items the latter has ordinarily to bear. To be more specific, the first three items of charge just mentioned should be paid out of the receipts for duty, the rate being fixed accordingly, if necessary; the remainder should all come into the calculation of the selling price with the exception of such Treaty payments as are made for the prevention of smuggling, or in order to secure for the British Government the right of charging duty on salt consumed in Foreign States. If the selling price is less than it should be, in order to cover all the proper items, a particular locality benefits at the expense of the general tax-payer; if the reverse, the Government is really levying more than the tax allowed by law, excepting of course in the case of salts which, from superior quality and limitation of supply, have an adventitious market value not dependent upon the cost of production. The price may also, in special cases, be affected by the place in which the salt is sold, the quantity included in any transaction, the sum paid by the Government for its purchase, or other peculiar circumstances affecting the sale.

7. To apply the test of these principles to every salt work or group of works with which Government is more or less connected, would in this place be a tedious and unnecessary task. It is sufficient to state that a very careful review of the Indian salt system which has been made shows that in Bengal, Bombay, Sind, and the Punjab mines, Government makes no attempt to impose any charge on salt other than the fixed duty, and, in any case where Government holds a monopoly of salt, a selling price which is calculated to cover the cost of manufacture. The price of salt in Madras is found to be fixed in conformity with the provisions of sections 8, 9, and 10 of Act XVIII of 1877.

8. At the Rajputana salt sources likewise, the price just amounts to what it ought to be under the principles already enumerated, but, as the question is in this instance complicated by large payments made under treaty with various Native States, some further explanation appears desirable. The payments by Government to Native States in Upper India fall under one or other of three heads, being in consideration of their—

(1) leasing certain salt sources to Government;
(2) taking certain measures which rendered it possible to abolish the Inland Customs line; or
(3) transferring to the British Government the right to levy duty on salt consumed by the subjects of their States.

As to the first-named payments, there can be no doubt that they should be covered by the selling price of salt. Rent of a salt source, and any payment, whether by way of royalty or otherwise, for permission to work it are as much a portion of the legitimate trade costs of manufacture as storage, wastage, or any other of the unquestioned items. If there were no Government monopoly, or even no duty, a private individual embarking in the salt business of these localities would have to pay them; just as a trader may have to purchase a predecessor's good-will, or the right to a patent, or to rent a petroleum spring or a gold-washing before he can work them. On the other hand, payments under the second and third heads are obviously incidental to the levy of a duty upon salt under any system; if the monopoly system were abolished they must be paid by Government, and they should, therefore, be met out of the proceeds of the duty and not included in the selling prices. As to the second, it may be explained that when the abolition of the Inland Customs line was contemplated, it became necessary to arrange with the bordering Native States that they should adopt such measures as would render its continuance unnecessary. The Customs line levied duty on sugar exported from British territory, and on salt imported into British territory, and it prevented the smuggling into British territory of articles, such as spirits, on which the British Government levied an excise duty. The Native States were induced, in consideration of certain payments,—(a) to close their salt works; (b) to prevent the export to British territory of salt, spirits, bhang, &c., &c.; (c) to undertake not to render the abolition of the duty on sugar nugatory by levying a transit duty on it.

As the expenditure on the Customs line, so far as regards salt, was an expenditure coming under the head of "Prevention and collection," the payments to Native States for exactly the same purposes which replaced it should also be classed under "Prevention and collection." A careful scrutiny of the treaties with the Rajputana States, under which about 28½ lakhs of rupees are paid to the latter, shows that the amount to be included on all accounts in the selling price of salt under the foregoing principles is Rs. 12,78,740. The balance is chargeable to the duty. Treating the Rajputana sources as one commercial group or concern, which is indispensable in order to prevent unreasonable differences of price within adjacent areas, it has also been ascertained that the average selling price should be 5·2 annas per maund. It actually amounted to 4·95 annas during the past year, and as the difference is inconsiderable and will almost immediately disappear owing to the increasing consumption of Sambhar salt, no change is at present called for.

9. His Excellency the Governor General in Council has considered it to be necessary, in view of the discussions which have arisen, and the uncertainty which has prevailed, to lay down the principles upon which the selling price of salt should be regulated in all parts of British India in which it is fixed by the Government. Though no change is, as far as His Excellency in Council is aware, called for immediately, it will rest with the Local Governments, and the Commissioner of Inland Customs, within their respective jurisdictions to scrutinise periodically the price from time to time in force, and to take into consideration such adjustments as an increase of sales, or of expenditure, or otherwise, may be found to demand.

ORDERED, that this Resolution be communicated to the several Local Governments, and to the Commissioner of Inland Customs, and that it be published in the Gazette of India.

Despatch to Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India, No. 249, dated 1st October 1881, paragraph 19.

RESOLUTION.—His Excellency the Governor General in Council has had under consideration the question of the administration of district treasuries throughout India, and the system for their management and periodical inspection which is at present in force under the orders quoted above.

2. The information which has already been received shows that fraudulent transactions, considerable in number and in some cases of no mean importance, have taken place within the last few years in almost every province in India. It is also difficult to resist the inference that, if so many frauds are discovered, there must be others which escape detection. It may be that the number and amount of these frauds are not greater than might be expected, considering the large number of district and subordinate treasuries (some 1,300), and the other peculiar conditions of financial administration in India. But whether frauds are more or less prevalent than might be expected, it is abundantly proved that a system of rigorous financial control over the treasuries is necessary.

3. The principal causes which lead to inefficient treasury administration appear to be the following:—

(a) Frequent changes of the officers in charge of treasuries.
(b) The placing of young and inexperienced officers in charge of treasuries.
(c) Insufficient acquaintance with the system of treasury accounts on the part of Revenue Officers.
(d) Absence of professional inspection of treasuries.
(e) Inadequate treasury establishments.

Some of these causes are specially observable in one province, others in another; but, with the view of their removal wherever they may prevail, some special regulations appear now to be indispensable.

4. It is impossible for treasury administration to be satisfactory unless it is permanently conducted by officers who have some considerable experience of and familiarity with the subject. At the same time it is not a function which requires officers of a very high grade for its efficient performance. The frequent changes of officers in charge, which occur in some provinces, appear to be attributable to (1) undue prevalence of the system by which work is distributed, as it turns up, by the Collector or Deputy Commissioner amongst his Assistant or Deputy Collectors, instead of a definite, territorial, or other specific charge being assigned to each; (2) tendency of superior officers to remain at head-quarters in preference to going into camp, and consequent delegation to them of duties comparatively trivial, or which could be equally well performed by officers of a lower grade; (3) special allowances for registration or other duties, which, being, in some provinces, coupled with the charge of a treasury, render the latter an object of desire and an incident of promotion; (4) the disposition to pass on to every new-comer the irksome, yet responsible, duty of charge of a treasury in districts where it carries no pecuniary advantage. With reference to these causes of change, it is sufficient to remark that the employment of superior officers on treasury or other comparatively routine duty is contrary to the policy which has been laid down by the highest authorities; that the system of definite, territorial, or other charges, and frequent residence in camp, as recommended by the Famine Commission (Report, pages 104-5), has received the entire approval of the Government of India; and that the inducement of special emoluments in order to secure the performance of ordinary duties is objectionable in the case of members of the covenanted and superior uncovenanted services, and has been for the most part abandoned throughout India.

5. His Excellency the Governor General in Council upon the foregoing considerations is pleased to direct—

1st.—That no covenanted civil servant (including military and uncovenanted officers in the Commissions of Non-Regulation Provinces) shall be placed in charge of a district treasury, except for the purpose of training as provided in paragraph 7 of this Resolution, or as a strictly temporary measure, pending the arrival of a Deputy Collector (or Extra Assistant Commissioner) appointed to the post.

2nd.—That all special emoluments accompanying in any locality the charge of a treasury shall cease from April 1st 1882. If the amount of these should, in any province, be considerable, it may be specially reported by the local Government when replying on the subject of revision of salaries to the letters from the Department of Finance and Commerce, dated 28th December 1881.

3rd.—That the charge of district treasuries shall be entrusted to Deputy Collectors, but may be combined with such definite charge of magisterial, revenue, municipal, or other work as may not be incompatible with the efficient performance of the primary duty of treasury administration.

4th.—That the Deputy Collectors entrusted with the charge of treasuries shall be, as far as possible, officers selected from among the whole body of Deputy Collectors for acquaintance with, or aptitude for, accounts which they may have evinced, and that, though rising in the general graded list of Deputy Collectors, they shall ordinarily be employed on treasury duty at one station or another, and thus gradually become the trained and experienced agency which is desired. Sub-divisional treasuries,[1] which are peculiar to the Lower Provinces, may, under the same general principles, be placed in charge of Deputy Collectors or of officers of the Sub-Deputy class, as to the local authorities may in each case seem expedient. It will be distinctly understood that officers in charge of treasuries should not be in any inferior position, as regards prospects of promotion, to others in the graded list who may be differently employed, and that efficiency in treasury management shall not be overlooked.

6. The appointment of young civilians, and of supernumerary and probationary Deputy Collectors, who have not passed all or any of their examinations, appears to have been a fruitful source of laxity and irregularities on the part of subordinate officials. His Excellency the Governor General in Council directs that this practice may be discontinued, and that (except as provided in paragraph 7) no Deputy or Sub-Deputy Collector remain hereafter in charge of a district or sub-divisional treasury unless he has passed the departmental examination according to the higher standard, and has also been not less than three years in the service of Government.

[1] This term is used in the local sense, and does not mean the Treasury of a Tehsildar or similar office, to which it is applied in other provinces.

7. In order to ensure a better acquaintance with the system of treasury accounts, and of the revenue accounts which in some provinces are an important contributory to the accuracy of the latter, His Excellency the Governor General in Council is pleased to direct—

1st.—That examination in treasury and local fund accounts, and in departmental revenue accounts, shall form a part of the test obligatory on all Assistant and Deputy Collectors or other officers at the departmental examinations according to both the lower and higher standards. The scope of the questions at the former will necessarily be somewhat elementary, but at the latter the candidate should be required to exhibit a satisfactory general acquaintance with the whole system of accounts as prevailing in the province in which he is employed. A paper of questions on treasury and local fund accounts, set by the local Accountant General or Comptroller, should form a part of the examination under each standard.

2nd.—That every "covenanted" officer, or Deputy Collector, shall, until he has passed the higher departmental examination, be placed, for purposes of training, in charge of a district treasury, under the general supervision of the Deputy Collector ordinarily in charge, or some other competent officer on the spot, for a period not less than six weeks or more than two months in each year. A certificate from the Collector of the District, that the officer in training has, under these provisions, duly attended to, and satisfactorily discharged, the duties of treasury officer shall be indispensable to the examinee being declared to have passed any departmental examination.

8. With reference to the inspection of treasuries, His Excellency the Governor General in Council trusts that, under the provisions of the last preceding paragraph, executive officers of all grades will gradually become more competent to perform the duty of inspecting treasuries. This duty is of the utmost importance, and is clearly defined in the Resolution No. 1796, dated 24th July 1880, which is to be considered as still in full force. Collectors of Districts are not to consider that by the improvement of the arrangements for the immediate charge of treasuries their own responsibility is in any sense diminished. If any Local Government, in pursuance of paragraph 5 of that Resolution, should desire to make special provision for inspection of a more professional nature, in addition to that which the local executive officers perform, His Excellency in Council will be ready to view favourably any proposals, involving increased provincial expenditure, which may be submitted, with this object. The question of whether any higher supervision and audit, by the Comptroller General or other officer of the Financial Department of the Government of India, should be superadded to the local precautions above referred to, is under separate consideration.

9. Another point worthy of attention is the large expansion of treasury transactions, which has in some provinces followed the establishment of local funds and municipalities, and the necessity of providing treasury establishments adequate, in both strength and emoluments, to the increased labour and responsibility which have thus arisen. It rests with the Local Governments and Administrations to keep a careful watch in this respect, so that a colourable excuse for laxity and irregularities may not be afforded, or a door opened to actual fraud.

10. In conclusion, His Excellency in Council would invite the special consideration of the Local Governments and Administrations to the necessity, which has been made plain by the nature of some of the frauds which have occurred, that the Revenue Department, in its various branches, should systematically ascertain that the whole of its demands are satisfactorily accounted for by collection or otherwise, and that amounts realised invariably reach the regular treasuries, where alone the responsibility of the account department begins. The Revenue and other Departmental authorities should distinctly understand that it is their duty to see that the statements which they receive, or the accounts which they keep, are in absolute accordance with the figures which appear in the financial accounts.

ORDERED, that this Resolution be communicated to the several Local Governments and Administrations for guidance, and to the Home and Revenue Departments, as also to the Comptroller General and the Accountants General and Comptrollers, for information, and that it be published in the Gazette of India.

RETIREMENTS.

No. 34.—With reference to G. G. Orders Nos. 279 and 489 of 1881, the following despatch from the Secretary of State for India, No. 432, dated the 22nd December, 1881, is published for general information :—

Para. 1. In your Military Letter No. 210, of the 23rd June 1879, on the subject of the amelioration of the scale of pensions of the Indian Army, you make certain proposals with regard to the rates of half pay.

2. In my Military Despatch, No. 258, of the 4th August last, in which I sanctioned a revision of the then existing scale, I did not deal with the question of half pay.

3. As regards the rates, it appears to me to be sufficient to declare that combatant Officers placed on half pay shall receive the same rates as Officers of the same rank in the British Service. Medical Officers, you were informed in my Despatch, No. 112, of the 14th April last, are to receive the British rate of half pay of their relative ranks.

4. I have decided that Officers placed on temporary half pay at the recommendation of the Medical Board of the India Office shall be examined by the same Board as to their fitness to return to duty every two years, and if still reported unfit at the third examination, that is, after being six years on the temporary half pay list, that they shall be transferred to the retired list on permanent half pay. An Officer reported to be unfit at the commencement of the second period, i.e., after two years on half pay, may, however, be permitted voluntarily to retire on permanent half pay.

5. Officers unable to appear before the Medical Board at the stated times will be required to furnish a certificate, signed by two medical men, as to their inability. An Officer who is continuously unable to appear will be retired permanently after six years without further report.

6. Officers who, in view to being restored to the active list, may wish to appear before the Board at other times than those specified, may be permitted to do so. Officers ordered periodically to appear before the Board will receive their travelling expenses and lodging allowance on the Home scale, but those appearing at other times, at their own wish, must do so at their own expense.

7. Officers who have now been more than six years on the half pay list of the Staff Corps will, unless prior to the 1st July 1882 they voluntarily appear before the Board, and are then reported fit for duty, and permitted by the Secretary of State to return to India, be permanently placed on the retired list on half pay.

8. It will be understood that these provisions do not in any way abrogate the existing power vested in the Secretary of State for India to recommend to Her Majesty the removal of an Officer from the effective list of the Staff Corps to permanent retired half pay for inefficiency or misconduct, or on the report of the Medical Board at this Office that he is permanently unfit for further service.

No. 35.—With reference to para. 11 of G. G. O. No. 489 of 1881, the following despatch from the Secretary of State for India, No. 431, dated the 22nd December, 1881, and enclosure, is published for general information :—

Para. 1. In paragraph 22 of my Military Despatch, No. 258, of 4th August 1881, your Government were informed that I had directed the preparation of rules under which Officers retiring on and after 1st July 1881 will be allowed to commute a portion, not exceeding one-third, of their pensions at any time, either on retirement or subsequently.

2. I now forward the rules, and request that the necessary instructions may be given for carrying the system into effect throughout India.

3. Under no circumstances will an Officer serving in India be permitted to commute his pension without the report of a Medical Board at the Presidency towns, which, in conformity with the principle followed at home, should be either presided over or have as a member a Civil Medical Administrative Officer.

Regulations for the commutation of Pensions of Officers of the Indian Service.

1. These Regulations shall be applicable only to Officers retired on or after the 1st July 1881.

2. An Officer may be allowed to commute a portion, not exceeding one-third, of his pension, which commutation may take place on retirement, or at any time subsequent thereto.

3. An Officer in Europe desirous of commuting, must make application, in writing, to the Under Secretary of State for India, stating his desire so to commute, and furnishing information as to his age, rank, and the amount of his pension.

4. If the Secretary of State for India in Council shall approve the commutation, the Officer will be so informed, and his application will be forwarded to the Standing Medical Board at the India Office.

5. The Board will require the Officer to give such information as to his health and habits as is usual in the case of persons proposing to assure their lives in assurance companies, and he will be required to submit himself for personal examination by the Board at the India Office.

6. An Officer in India desirous of commuting, must address the authorities of his Presidency. He will be required to go through similar forms, Boards, which will, when practicable, be presided over by the chief Civil Medical Administrative Officer of the Government, being formed in the Presidency towns of Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay, under orders of the respective Governments.

7. The basis of commutation, subject to an addition of years of age in the case of impaired lives, shall be the following table, the age of the Officer being reckoned at the age he will attain on the birthday next succeeding the date of the receipt of his application for commutation :—

RESOLUTION.—In the Financial Statement of the current year, it was announced that the sum of £1,500,000, to be provided annually as an insurance against famine, instead of being considered, as heretofore, to be a surplus receipt for subsequent appropriation, would be treated as a fixed portion of the normal expenditure of each year. At the same time, the Government of India reaffirmed its applicability to the extinction of debt, the relief of famine, or the construction of protective works, not necessarily remunerative, but obviously protective in the sense of guarding against a probable future outlay in the relief of the population, and declared their intention to nominate a "Commission for the reduction of debt," with a view to the more effectual execution of the famine insurance policy. It was also pointed out that the amount to be provided as an insurance against famine was only so far dependent upon the receipts from the License Tax and the Public Works cesses that those receipts go to swell the general revenue and by so much facilitate the execution of the policy under discussion, that the policy of the Government was to apply annually a specified sum from the general revenue in order to provide an insurance against famine, that there was no special connection between the amount so provided and the amount received from the License Tax or the Public Works cesses, and that those taxes had never yielded so large a sum as £1,500,000 in any one year.

2. In pursuance of the policy thus briefly explained, it has been decided, that the heading in the Budget and the Public Accounts shall be amended and divided into three sub-heads, as shown in the margin. The first sub-head will comprise all actual relief; the other two will represent Famine Insurance under the two forms in which it is provided. The relief of actual famine will be a first charge upon the whole million and a half annually provided as expenditure; protective works will be the next charge, but only to the extent of three-quarters of a million, or such portion of that sum (if any) as may remain after all necessary relief of actual famine has been afforded; to reduction of debt the remaining three-quarters of a million will be assigned, except so far as all or any portion of it may be needed for relief of actual famine. In the event of any portion of the allotment for Protective Public Works not being actually expended in the course of the year, it will be carried forward for expenditure in the year following, in addition to any fresh allotment appertaining to the latter.

31. Famine Relief and Insurance.

1. Relief.
2. Protective Works.
3. Reduction of Debt.

3. With reference to the disposal of the amount thus appropriated to the reduction of debt, His Excellency the Governor General in Council has little to add to the information which has already been afforded to the public in paragraphs 59 to 66 of the Financial Statement for the current year, and on previous occasions. Whether the sum available shall be appropriated to the actual discharge of existing rupee debt or sterling debt, or whether it shall be temporarily invested in Government securities, or whether it shall be re-transferred from the Commissioners to the Government treasury with a view to the avoidance pro tanto of new debt which might otherwise be incurred for the construction of Productive Public Works, is a question which must be considered and determined from year to year, in view of the condition of the money market in India and England, and other circumstances. It may, however, be explained that Her Majesty's Government is precluded by the provision of the 41st clause of the Act 21 and 22 Vic., cap. 106, that "the expenditure of the revenues of India, both in India and elsewhere, shall be subject to the control of the Secretary of State in Council," from entrusting the final decision of this important question to any independent authority.

4. The "Commission for the reduction of debt" will consist of three members, namely, one high Government official, holding the post ex-officio, together with one European and one Native member of the non-official community. They will be appointed from time to time by His Excellency the Governor General in Council, and the non-official members will ordinarily hold office for a term of two years. Although His Excellency in Council is unable, [illegible] above stated, to invest the Commission with independent authority, [illegible] it will be able to perform consultative and auditing functions [illegible] and the public.

5. His Excellency the Governor General in Council is pleased to prescribe the following [illegible] to the Famine Insurance appropriation for the reduction of [illegible]

1st.—On a certain date in every official year, not earlier than the 15th February, or later than the 31st of March or any subsequent date previous to which it may not have been possible, owing to expenditure on actual famine, to ascertain the actual state of the account, the Government of India shall, by a Resolution to be published in the Gazette of India, make known to the public the manner in which the famine allotment of one million and a half has been, or is being, appropriated during the year, under the general policy above explained.

2nd.—On the receipt of such Resolution, the Comptroller General shall forthwith transfer to a separate deposit head in the public accounts, called the "Account of the Commission for the reduction of debt," the amount, if any, set forth in the Resolution as available for the reduction of debt.

3rd.—The Commissioners for the reduction of debt shall, on the receipt of the said Resolution, or as soon after as may be, submit to the Government of India their recommendations for the disposal of any amount so available.

4th.—The Government of India shall, after full consultation with the Commission, issue to the Comptroller General such instructions for the disposal of the amount in the reduction of debt as it may deem fit.

5th.—The Comptroller General shall thereupon, without any avoidable delay, carry such instructions into effect, and lay before the Commission whatever evidence, in the form of cancelled obligations of the Government of India or otherwise, they may require for the purpose of satisfying themselves that the amount has been disposed of in the manner prescribed. On being so satisfied, the Commission shall give to the Comptroller General an authority in writing for charging the amount disposed of to their account, constituted under Rule 2nd.

6th.—The Commission shall, as soon after the close of each official year as it may be in a position to do so, certify to the public, by a notification to be published in the Gazette of India, the manner in which the whole Famine allotment of one million and a half for that year has been disposed of.

7th.—The Commission shall be entitled to free access to the recorded correspondence, and the accounts of the Government of India, so far as the same may be necessary, for the purpose of enabling it duly to perform the functions hereby assigned to it.

8th.—The Commission may submit for the consideration of the Government of India any remarks or suggestions on matters within the scope of its duties, which it may deem expedient, and the Government of India may similarly consult the Commission on such matters, at any time other than that specified in Rule 3rd. All recommendations of the Commission shall be fully considered by the Government of India, and the reasons for not in any instance carrying any such recommendations into effect shall be communicated to the Commission.

9th.—All business in connection with the Commission will be conducted by the Government of India in the Department of Finance and Commerce.

6. His Excellency the Governor General in Council is pleased to nominate the following gentlemen to be members of the Commission for the reduction of debt:—

The Head Commissioner of Paper Currency (ex-officio).
Mr. J. J. J. Keswick.
The Hon'ble Durga Churn Law.

The action of the Commission under the 3rd and 4th Rules has for the current year been [illegible] anticipated by the Notification in the Department of Finance quoted in the margin, under which about [illegible] Indian 5 and [illegible] will be disappropriation of the Famine [illegible], but in other respects the Rules will be fully brought into effect from this date.

TRANSFER OF PROPERTY BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES presented the final Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to define and amend the law relating to the Transfer of Property.

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES also moved that the further and final Reports of the Select Committee on the Bill to define and amend the law relating to the Transfer of Property be taken into consideration. He said that only six of the amendments described in those Reports were of sufficient importance to require mention in this Council. The Committee had declared that nothing in Chapter II should be deemed to affect any rule of Hindú, Muhammadan or Buddhist law. It did not, in his opinion, affect any such rule, otherwise than by putting Natives, as regards their power to make settlements on unborn persons, on the same footing as Europeans. But it laid down, in accordance with the decisions of the Courts, a rule against perpetuities, and two of the Native members who much disliked this rule, and who thought that judge-made law was more likely to be altered than statutory law, pressed the Committee to exempt their personal law from this chapter. They had also saved the rules of Hindú and Buddhist law from the provisions of the chapter on gifts, save only that which required, in the case of a gift of land, writing, registration and attestation. The rule that a Hindú father might, in case of necessity, resume gifts made to his son (Dháyabhága, II, 57), would thus remain unaffected.

Section 70 of the Bill as referred to the Committee recognized the validity of a power of sale conferred by a mortgage-deed where the principal-money originally secured was five hundred rupees or upwards. They were of opinion that there were parts of the country in which such a power was liable to be abused by Native mortgagees, and they considered it safer to provide that such powers should be valid only, first, where the mortgage was an English mortgage (as defined by the Bill) and neither mortgagor nor mortgagee was a Hindú, Muhammadan or Buddhist; secondly, where the mortgagee was the Secretary of State in Council, or thirdly, where the mortgaged property, or any part thereof, was situate in the Presidency-towns, Karáchí or Rangoon. They had amended the section accordingly, and they had taken the opportunity to declare that the provisions of the Trustees and Mortgagees Act, 1866, should be deemed to apply to English mortgages wherever in British India the mortgaged property might be situate, when neither of the parties was a Native. Next to this, it appeared there was some doubt, owing to the ambiguity of the expression "cases to which English law is applicable," which was found in Act XXVIII of 1866, section 45.

They thought that the provisions of section 38 (as to the apportionment of obligations relating to property on its conveyance) might possibly sometimes cause hardship in the case of agricultural leases. They had, therefore, provided that nothing in that section should apply to such leases unless and until the Local Government so directed.

After section 56, they had inserted a section, taken from the Property Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vic., c. 41, s. 5), giving the Court power, in the case of sale of immoveable property subject to any incumbrance, to provide for the incumbrance and to direct that the property should be sold freed therefrom. In case of an annual or monthly sum charged on the property, this would be done by paying into court such amount as, when invested in Government securities, the Court considered would be sufficient, by means of the interest, to keep down the charge. In case of a capital sum charged, the amount to be paid into court would be such as would be sufficient to meet the incumbrance and any interest due thereon. Thereupon the Court might declare the property free from the incumbrance and make proper orders for giving effect to the sale and for applying the capital or income of the fund in court. This section had been hailed in England as likely to effect one of the greatest reforms ever made in the law of real property; and there was reason to believe that it would be equally beneficial in India. But to prevent any chance of error in the exercise of a novel jurisdiction, the Committee had taken two precautions: first, it had confined the jurisdiction to the High Courts, the District Courts and any other Courts specially empowered by the Local Governments. And, secondly, they had declared that an appeal should lie from all directions and orders given under this section.

They had re-drafted the last paragraph of section 71 of the same Bill (now 73), and added a provision limiting the amount for which a mortgagee might, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, insure the mortgaged property against loss or damage by fire. This also was in accordance with the same Statute, section 23.

They had not extended the Act in the first instance to Bombay, the Panjáb or British Burma, as the present Local Governments of those provinces did not wish it to apply to the territories under their administration. But they had empowered them to extend the Act to the whole or any part of those territories; and they had authorised every Local Government to exempt, throughout the whole or any part of the territories administered by it, the members of any specified race, sect, tribe or class from all or any of the provisions relating to transfer by an ostensible owner (section 41), and the mode of effecting a transfer by sale (section 54, paragraphs 2 and 3), by mortgage (section 59), by lease (section 108), and by gift (section 124). This exemption might be retrospective from the day on which the Act came into force. They thought that the proposed Act should not come into force till the 1st April, so that time might be given to the Courts and the public to become familiar with its provisions, especially those requiring written instruments in case of sales, mortgages, leases, gifts and exchanges.

And now, having mentioned the changes recently made by the Select Committee, it would be convenient to say a few words as to this important Bill and its history.

The primary object of the Bill was, as MR. STOKES had explained to the Council nearly five years ago, when no one who now heard him was present, to complete the Code of Contract Law (Act IX of 1872), so far as related to immoveable property, and thus to carry out to some extent the policy of codification which the Government of India had happily resumed. Its secondary object was to bring the rules which regulated the transmission of property between living persons into harmony with certain rules affecting its devolution upon death, and thus to furnish the necessary complement of the work which this Council com[illegible] the law of succession (Act X of 1865), [illegible] Act (XXI of 1870) for the Lower Provinces [illegible] would seem, be hoped, end by extending the latter [illegible] in the rest of India. Another object of the Bill was to [illegible] law of mortgages and conditional sales, which had, at least in Madras and Bombay, got into a somewhat unsatisfactory condition.

The Bill was originally framed by the Law Commission, to which the Government were indebted for the Succession Act and for all that was good in the Contract Act (IX of 1872), and which then comprised the late Master of the Rolls, Lord Romilly, Sir Edward Ryan, formerly Chief Justice of Bengal, Mr. Lowe (now Lord Sherbrooke), Sir Robert Lush, Sir John MacLeod, the distinguished Madras Civilian who helped Macaulay in framing the Penal Code, and the late Lord Justice Sir W. M. James: all now gone except Lord Sherbrooke. It was sent out in 1870 by the Duke of Argyll, then Secretary of State for India, with instructions to take the necessary steps for passing it into law. In 1876, towards the close of Sir Arthur Hobhouse's tenure of office, when he had become convinced of the expediency and practicability of codifying the substantive law of this country, he took up this Bill and carefully revised it, and some of the points with which it dealt were discussed and settled in the Executive Council. The sections on Powers, which the Bill then contained, were re-drawn by him. The Bill, thus revised, was sent home early in 1877, and in the following April the Government received permission to proceed with it. Sir A. Hobhouse having left India, the Bill fell into MR. STOKES' hands, and was subjected to renewed examination by his learned friend Mr. Phillips, then Legislative Secretary, and himself. In June 1877, he introduced the Bill, and the Council referred it to a Select Committee, composed of Sir Edward Bayley, Sir Alexander Arbuthnot, Mr. Cockerell and Mahárájá [illegible]dra Mohan Tagore, to whom his learned friends Messrs. Paul and Evans [illegible] subsequently added. The Bill was then circulated to the Local Governments for publication and translation, and numerous valuable criticisms and suggestions came in from all parts of India.

In February, 1878, the Committee presented a preliminary report, stating that, in revising this important measure, they had been guided by the three principles by which the Government of India desired to regulate its policy of codification, namely, first, that as little change as possible should be made in the existing law, whether established by the legislature or declared by judicial decisions; secondly, that no additions should be made to the law which were not either necessary or clearly expedient; and, thirdly, that interference with contracts fairly made and usages long established was, primâ facie, undesirable. They had also borne in mind the great deference due to the late Indian Law Commission, by whom the bulk of the Bill was framed, and to Sir Arthur Hobhouse, by whom it had been settled.

In 1878 the Bill thus revised was republished, and again circulated to the Local Governments, and another mass of criticism was received.

The principal objections taken to this Bill in its second form were, first, that, as a whole, it was heterogeneous, and, secondly, that certain parts of it were neither necessary nor expedient. It was said, for instance, that, though the bulk of the Bill dealt with transfer of property inter vivos by act of parties, it also treated of conditions in wills, and of succession to a deceased person. It was said, again, that the chapters dealing respectively with the rights and liabilities of owners of limited interests and with property held by several persons belonged rather to the subject of the enjoyment, than to that of the transfer, of property. It was urged that settlements (in the conveyancer's sense of the word) were hardly ever made in India; that what are technically called "powers" were almost unknown; and that the chapters dealing with those subjects were certainly not necessary, and could hardly be said to be expedient. The Committee felt the force of these objections. In fact, they had always felt them. But they were not responsible for the first draft of the Bill, whatever were its excellences or defects. The matters thus objected to, together with others, such as registration and trusts, still more foreign to the proper subject of the Bill, were all dealt with by the draft prepared by the late Indian Law Commission and revised by Sir A. Hobhouse. The great deference due to the Law Commission and to Sir A. Hobhouse had hitherto prevented the Committee from dealing freely with the Bill. Until the opinions of the Local Governments and the results of local experience had been obtained, for them to have altered it would have been to set their individual views against those of the able and learned men who were answerable for the Bill as introduced. But now that these opinions and results had been obtained, the Committee saw that, if the Bill was to go on at all, it must be strictly confined to the subject of transfer of property by act of parties, that was to say, by contract or gift.

They had, therefore, omitted chapters VII to XII, both inclusive, which dealt with settlements, powers and the other matters just mentioned.

They added, on the margins, references to the reported decisions of the Indian Courts and the Judicial Committee, which justified the rules contained in the Bill. The Council would see that but few of these rules were devoid of this valuable support. The assertion that the Bill would introduce a mass of new law into India must, therefore, be due to ignorance of the extent to which English law (under the name of justice, equity and good conscience) was actually administered to the Natives by the Anglo-Indian Courts. The function of the Bill, like that of all Indian Codes, was to strip English law of all that was local and historical, and to mould the residue into a shape in which it would be suitable for an Indian population, and could be easily administered by non-professional judges. But the Bill would introduce hardly any new substantive law, and it would not (except in the case of the procedure relating to mortgages) displace any existing enactment. The rules, for instance, as to the relation of landlord and tenant, contained in the local Acts, X of 1859, XVIII of 1873, XIX of 1868, XXVIII of 1868, Bengal Act VIII of 1869 and Madras Act VIII of 1865, would all remain untouched.

To the body of local usages and contractual incidents which in India, as in other countries, existed as to the transfer of land, the tenderest care was shewn by the Bill. Not only was local usage expressly saved in the sections 98, 106 and 108, but the effect of section 2, clause (a), would be to maintain intact the statutory force which the legislature had given to local usage in those two pays de coutumes, the Panjáb and Oudh; and throughout India all the many incidents of a mortgage or a lease, which were not inconsistent with the provisions of the Bill, would remain wholly unaffected.

The Bill was then simultaneously circulated for the third time to the Local Governments, and referred to a Commission, composed of Sir Charles Turner, the present Chief Justice of Madras, Mr. Justice West of the High Court of Bombay and himself.

That Commission made several amendments, both in the wording and substance of the Bill, but the important additions were only three. First, they set out in full on the face of the Bill, several rules applying to transactions between living persons, which in the original draft were only expressed by way of reference, mutatis mutandis, to certain sections of the Succession Act dealing with matters such as election, contingent bequests, conditional bequests and bequests with directions as to application and enjoyment, and which, therefore, could never have been applied by unprofessional Judges without risk of serious error. Secondly, they required, at the suggestion of Sir Henry Maine, who was a strong advocate of the continental system of a public transfer of land, a written and registered instrument in certain cases of sales, mortgages, leases, exchanges and gifts of immoveable property. Thirdly, at the suggestion of one of the Hindú critics of the Bill, they inserted a chapter on gifts.

The Report of the Indian Law Commissioners, 1879, was duly communicated to the Select Committee, which then consisted of Mr. Pitt Kennedy (a very eminent master both of English and Hindú law), Mr. Colvin, Mahárájá Jotíndra Mohan Tagore and himself, and they carefully considered it, as well as the mass of comments on the Bill which had come from all parts of India. As to sales, they agreed with Sir Henry Maine as to the desirability of rendering the system of transfer of immoveable property a system of public transfer; and they were inclined to go a little further in this direction than seemed good to the Law Commissioners. Thus, they thought that, in the case of a reversion or other intangible thing, though its value might be less than Rs. 100, the transfer should be made only by registered assurance: they had altered section 54 accordingly, and the Government of India, in its [redacted] alteration.

[redacted] with the Law Commissioners that the [redacted] would not only discourage fraud and facilitate investigation of [redacted] but that it would also preclude some difficult questions of priority. A majority of them, however, thought that, when the principal money secured was less than Rs. 100, the mortgage-deed need not be registered, and they altered the Bill accordingly. A majority of them also thought that equitable mortgages by deposit of title-deeds should be valid when made in the Presidency-towns, Rangoon and Karáchí. To this the Government of India in its executive capacity had also agreed.

As to leases, they all thought that the chapter would be of practical use in the case of leases of buildings, gardens and mines, and they agreed with the Law Commissioners that it should not of itself apply to agricultural leases, in other words, to the relations between zamíndár and raiyat.

As to gifts, they agreed with the Law Commissioners that registration should be [redacted] the case of gifts of immoveable property of whatever value. Such [redacted] as a rule, made by a written instrument, and as, under the Registration Act, the registration of such instruments was compulsory, the change of the existing law here proposed was almost nominal.

The Council would see that both the Government of India and the Select Committee approved of the proposed requirements of writing and registration in the case of most transactions relating to immoveable property. It was right to say that this approval was to a large extent due to the arguments of the present Chief Justice of Bengal, and, as the matter would probably be much discussed to-day, MR. STOKES thought it right to read a few extracts from his Lordship's minute. Referring to a letter from the present Chief Commissioner of British Burma, Sir Richard Garth observed:—

"[redacted] is stated in paragraph 5 of that letter that 'as an abstract question there appears to be a [redacted] concurrence of opinion, that it is highly desirable that there should be a complete continuous record of all transactions relating to land, and that the system of transferring immoveable property should be made, as it is on the Continent of Europe, by a publicly-recorded transfer.'

"I rejoice to find that there is a general concurrence of opinion upon this most important question. But then Mr. Bernard goes on to say in the same paragraph:—

"'To what extent this could be carried out in practice is open to some doubt. It could not be done completely, without requiring a written record of every such transaction, and barring parol transactions relating to immoveable properties; in other words, without the introduction of some kind of a Statute of Frauds, for which the country is certainly not yet prepared.'

"Now, here is a proposition for which, as it comes from so high an authority, I presume there must be some good foundation, though at present I have been unable to discover it.

"If there is such a general concurrence of opinion that a contemporaneous record of all transactions relating to land is desirable, why is it that this country should not be prepared to accept that which would assuredly prove to it a very great blessing?

"I suppose it is almost undeniable that to compel such transactions to be reduced to writing, and to have them publicly registered, is about the most effectual means that any Government can provide of preventing fraud in such matters.

"I suppose it is also undeniable that there is as much fraud and forgery and perjury committed in this country, with reference to such transactions, as there is in any country in the world.

"It is really almost impossible for any one who is inexperienced in the proceedings of Courts of Justice in India to imagine the amount of wickedness of that particular kind which is habitually practised there.

"It is literally true that there is hardly any case of importance relating to land in which one or other of the parties does not himself attempt, or charge his opponent with attempting, some fraud or perjury; and it is almost a common form in most suits for each of the parties to allege that some at least of the documents which are filed by his adversary are forgeries.

"The utter disregard of truth and moral sense which this practice involves is most deplorable. There seems to be little or no feeling of shame or disgrace, even amongst men of good position and fortune, when they are charged with, or even found by the Courts to have committed, such offences. A wealthy zamíndár who is accused by his opponent of forging a deed or a rent-roll, or of having been privy to such forgery, never troubles himself, as a rule, to go into the witness-box to deny the charge; nor does he seem to think the worse of himself, nor do his family and friends seem to think the worse of him, when the Civil Court finds him guilty of it.

"So much has this system become habitual, that sometimes, when a suitor has a perfectly honest case and sufficient reliable evidence to support it, he will nevertheless resort, or allow his friends and advisers to resort, to some forgery or perjury in order to improve, as he imagines, his position; and many a man has run a great risk of losing a righteous case in that way.

"Now, this is nothing short of a monstrous national evil. It is frequently subversive of justice. It gives rise to the grossest immorality. The Courts may check it in some degree by prosecutions for perjury and the like, but the system is so deeply rooted, and [illegible] of all classes think so lightly of its iniquity, that it is often difficult to obtain convictio[illegible] and it is to the legislature, and the legislature only, that the nation must look [illegible] mischief in any material degree.

"And the legislature have the means, if they would only exercise it, of [illegible] the mischief. They have the same means which has been successfully resor[illegible] purpose in England and other European countries, where the evil is much le[illegible] the necessity for remedying much less pressing.

"That means consists simply in requiring all contracts and transactions relating to land to be in writing, and registered.

"So far as registration is concerned, this has already been enforced with regard to all written transactions exceeding Rs. 100 in value, and, if the recommendations of the Registration Committee are carried out, the obligation will extend to all written transactions.

"It would then only remain to require all contracts and transactions relating to land to be reduced into writing; but for this, we are told, 'the country is not prepared.'"

Sir R. Garth then enquired, first, what proportion of transactions relating to land were at the present time not reduced into writing; and, secondly, what proportion of those which were now effected by parol were honest, boná fide transactions. He proceeds:—

"Now", he says, "as regards the first of these questions, I have been at some pains to obtain a correct answer to it from gentlemen of experience in all the districts of Bengal. I have consulted judges, vakíls, zamíndárs and others whom I considered most likely to give and to procure for me the most reliable information, and the result is very much what I had expected.

"My question, be it remembered, has reference to contracts, arrangements and conveyances relating to land of all descriptions, sales, gifts (other than testamentary), mortgages, partitions, exchanges, transfers, trust-deeds, family and other arrangements and leases of all kinds, always excepting leases made to cultivating raiyats. And I learn from the best authority that a very small proportion indeed of such instruments are now effected by parol, and that this small proportion is yearly and rapidly becoming smaller. Men of all ranks and classes are realising more and more the wholesome and undoubted truth that oral arrangements, especially in a country like this, are utterly unsafe and unreliable; and that, if it is worth a man's while to acquire property and give money for it, it is also worth his while to secure it by an instrument in writing, properly authenticated and registered.

"Moreover, from the answers which I have received to the first of the above questions, I have gathered a great deal of valuable information from reliable sources, which virtually answers the second question, namely, what proportion of these transactions which are now effected by parol are honest and boná fide?

"The answer is,—comparatively few. The arrangements which, speaking generally, are now effected by parol are partitions of small family-properties, gifts and exchanges of small pieces of land between members of the same family, small grants of land to members of a family of the village-priest, and the like; but a very large proportion of these so-called parol arrangements are made for the purpose of defeating creditors, or with some other fraudulent object; they are generally brought forward in Courts of justice to defeat the title of some boná fide purchaser for value; and in the large majority of cases they are disbelieved by the Courts and found to be fraudulent.

"The fact is, that, so long as the law allows facilities to people to defeat boná fide purchasers, the dishonest and ignorant try to take advantage of them; and it is, of course, a much easier thing, and involves less risk, to set up fraudulent transactions by word of mouth than by a written instrument, more especially as, in all transactions above Rs. 100 in value, the written instrument is useless unless it is registered.

"And the present law, too, works injustice in this way. So many of these oral transactions which are set up in Courts of justice are found to be fraudulent, that judges are sometimes induced to mistrust, and often to reject as fraudulent, the few that are genuine."

The Chief Justice then concluded with the following weighty opinion:—

"On the whole, I would strongly advise the Government to consider the expediency of making that which now is undoubtedly the general rule the law of the land. I am satisfied that it would be the means of preventing a vast amount of fraud and litigation, that it would be a great blessing to the whole community, and especially so to those who want security and protection most, namely, the poorer and more ignorant classes."

The Bill was then republished in the Gazette of India, with the Committee's third report. It was also published in the local Gazettes in English and (except in Burma) also in the vernacular languages. It had been before the public, in what was substantially its present form, since the 12th March, 1881. Since then the Committee had received no criticisms of importance, and the Bill seemed [illegible] to be approved by all the Local Governments, except those of the Pa[illegible]ritish Burma and Bombay.

[illegible] settled, seemed to the Select Committee a systematic and [illegible] of the existing law. But they agreed with the Law Com[illegible] that the body of substantive civil law enacted for India was re[illegible] compact and convenient form than that of a series of fragmentary [illegible] time to time passed by the legislature, the chapters on Sale, [illegible] and Exchange, contained in the present Bill, would probably [illegible] connection with the rules contained in the Contract Act. Till [illegible] fitly be left in a law containing what the Contract Act did not [illegible]tain, namely, general rules regulating the transmission of property between living persons.

MR. STOKES trusted, then, that the Council would to-day permit the Bill to become law. No Bill in the course of his eighteen years' experience of this Council had ever been so carefully considered. It had been thrice circulated to the Local Governments for opinion and publication. It had been criticised by over a hundred of the ablest and most experienced officers in the country, of whom nineteen were, he was happy to say, Natives. It had been five times reported on by Select Committees. It had been carefully revised by the late Indian Law Commission. The Committee thought, therefore, of this Bill, as of the Bill dealing with negotiable instruments, that it was not now likely to be improved without the experience to be gained from its actual working.

The Hon'ble DURGÁ CHARAN LÁHÁ said he had only a few remarks to make in regard to the Bill. The alterations which had been recommended by the Select Committee in their last report, to the effect that nothing in the second chapter of the Bill should be deemed to affect any rule of Hindú, Muhammadan or Buddhist law in respect of the transfer of property, was, in his opinion, a decided improvement, and removed the objection which was justly taken by the Hindú community. It showed that the legislature had no intention to interfere with the personal law of the Natives regarding the transfer of property. He thanked the hon'ble and learned member and the Select Committee for the consideration they had shown in this matter, and it afforded him much pleasure to give his support to their recommendation.

The Hon'ble SAYYAD AHMAD said: "My Lord, I wish, with your Excellency's permission, to say a few words before the discussion on this Bill closes. The Bill is one of the most important ever introduced in this Council, and I congratulate my hon'ble colleague, Mr. Stokes, for having brought it to the stage which it has now reached. I have carefully read the Bill with the special object of discovering whether any rule contained in it is such as would disturb the customs and usages of the people of India, and especially the Mussulmán community. And I have no hesitation in saying that none of its provisions is calculated to affect any portion of the Muhammadan law. Nor, indeed, so far as my knowledge of Hindú law extends, can I see anything in the Bill which can interfere with the customs and usages of my Hindú fellow-countrymen. The wise rule, always kept in view by the Indian legislature, of saving the personal laws of the people of India, has been duly observed in this instance, and I believe not a voice can be raised against the Bill by the people of India on the ground of its interfering with their personal laws.

"But, my Lord, it is not only on this ground that I am anxious to give my humble support to the Bill. Independently of any considerations of expediency with reference to the sentiments of the people of India, I look upon this piece of legislation as a great step in the direction of that great object which, I trust, will, before many years pass away, be fully achieved. I refer to the formation of a code of substantive civil law as complete and precise as our Penal Code. The law which is to govern the transfer of property inter vivos must necessarily form an important chapter of the Civil Code in contemplation.

"My Lord, if anything I can say can be regarded as representing the feelings and opinions of my countrymen, I will take it upon myself to say that this Bill will be welcomed by the Native public when it becomes law. It will be welcomed by those who possess property, by those who are under the necessity of transferring it, by those who wish to acquire property or to advance money on landed security. It will be welcomed alike by the suitors who quarrel, and by the Judges who have to decide those disputes. And, in saying this, I am expressing the convictions that have grown in me during an experience of half a century, as a citizen of the British Empire in India, as one who has had the honour of serving Government as a judicial officer for no less than five years, as one who has frequently been consulted in private by his friends in regard to their personal transactions, such as will be governed by the provisions of this Bill when it becomes law. My Lord, I make these observations personal to myself, for I believe that the best way in which I can support this Bill is to base my conclusions in favour of its becoming law, not on theories, but on facts—not on speculation, but on my actual personal experience of the past. And, my Lord, since this Bill is the most important outcome of the policy which brought about the establishment of the Law Commission of 1879—since this Bill is a decided and significant step towards the codification of our substantive civil law, I trust your Lordship will permit me to say, in as few words as possible, what I consider the state of the real Native feeling to be in regard to the important question of codification. I am mournfully aware that codification has its opponents, some of them gentlemen holding high rank in the Administration, and entrusted with large responsibilities, and to whose opinion weight should, no doubt, be always attached. But I cannot be far wrong in saying that almost all the opposition comes from those who are least likely to become subject to the uncertainty and risk to rights and property which the absence of codified law involves. So far as I am aware, the Native public has never raised its voice against codification. To them, codified laws mean the introduction of certainty where there is uncertainty—precision, where there is vagueness. Nor can it be said that codification is unpopular even among the most conservative sections of my countrymen. I must have lived to declining old age amongst them in vain if I am not, even at this time of life, in a position to say confidently, that of all the innumerable blessings of the British rule, the one my countrymen esteem most is justice; that justice, in their eyes, means peace and order, which, in other words, mean security to life and property—the sole aim and end of Government. At present, whilst a splendid Penal Code and a Criminal Procedure regulate criminal matters, the civil law is administered on the somewhat vague, though noble, principle of 'justice, equity, and good conscience,'—a principle much of whose beauty is practically spoilt by the fact that individual judges in similar cases do not take the same view of that noble maxim. The result is an uncertainty as to rights which reduces litigation to a form of pecuniary speculation, from which springs that most deplorable class of suits in which the parties, agreeing as to facts, have no authoritative means of ascertaining the law. Codification, and codification alone, can remedy the evils which arise from uncertainty of the law; codification alone can enable the public to know their exact rights and obligations; codification alone can enable proprietors and litigants, advocates and judges, to know for certain the law which regulates the dealings of citizens in British India; codification alone will enable the deliberate will of the legislature to prevail over the opinions of individual judges; and litigants will then be more anxious, before going into Court, to consult the Statute-book of the land than the mental proclivities of the individual judges before whom their disputes may have to go for decision. To say that the Native mind is unfamiliar with the idea of living under systematically codified law, is to say what the truths of history do not justify. The Institutes of Manu furnish a noble example of ancient codification, and the law-abiding tendencies of the Hindú mind have made them adhere to its behests to this day. The history of the Muhammadans furnishes a long series of attempts to codify their laws. In the earliest days of the Caliphs of Bagdád, books were compiled under the authority of the Caliphs, to supply the requirements of a code. These books from their very names indicate that they were meant to be codes. The attempts at codification continued down to the time of the Mughal Emperor, Aurangzeb, and, in the Fatawa-i-Alamgiri, we find, perhaps, the most magnificent and most durable monument of that remarkable monarch's reign. The conditions of life in India have since undergone a great change, and, whilst the personal laws of Hindús and Muhammadans are secured to them, the British Government has asserted its right to regulate purely temporal matters so as to suit the more advanced requirements of the present age. The people of India have gladly and loyally accepted this fact, and there can be no justification for saying that the mind of the Native public is unprepared for codification, or that attempts on the part of the Government to supply them with a systematic code will be regarded with feelings other than those of satisfaction.

"My Lord, I should not have digressed into these somewhat general observations had I not felt that much misapprehension prevails in regard to the attitude of my countrymen towards codification, and also that I could find no better opportunity for giving such support as lies in my power to the policy of codification,—a policy of which the Bill now before us is an illustration of considerable importance.

"My Lord, the Bill, as it now stands, is in my opinion fit to pass into law without any further amendment. Delay in passing it would only postpone those advantages which, I feel sure, will accrue from it to the public. Enough thought and consideration have been bestowed on it, and the outside public have had ample time to know its provisions.

"My Lord, I shall therefore vote in favour of the Motion that the Bill, as it now stands, be passed into law without any further delay."

The Hon'ble RÁJÁ SIVA PRASÁD said he had had some objections to the Bill, but as the Select Committee had been good enough to accept his amendments, he had now simply to explain the objections he had taken. He did not object because he thought that the Bill touched upon the Hindú law as interpreted by the Judicial Committee of Her Majesty's Privy Council and the English Judges of the Indian Courts, but because it affirmed those decisions on certain points regarding the right of a Hindú to dispose of his property by creating perpetuities or bequests in favour of unborn persons. The Hindú community did not acquiesce in those decisions, and they did not wish to see them affirmed by the legislature until they had had an opportunity of contesting the points fairly, and, if necessary, of proposing a legislative enactment on the subject. Of all the perpetuities, the worst was that of mistakes, and he hoped that these vexed points might be satisfactorily settled during His Excellency's brilliant rule.

The Hon'ble MR. CROSTHWAITE said that, in the position which he held as Judicial Commissioner of the Central Provinces, the presiding Judge of a non-chartered High Court, and in the face of the opposition undoubtedly existing in certain quarters, he felt bound, in spite of his reluctance to occupy the valuable time of the Council, to give reasons for the vote he was about to record.

The opposition was of two kinds. There was an opposition to the principle of codification, denying the possibility, and doubting the utility, of formulating the civil law. And there was a more definite opposition directed against this particular measure.

It might be enough to say that the principle of codification had been, as he believed it had been, definitely accepted by the Government, both here and in England, and that no choice was left to the Council in the matter.

He would, however, go beyond this argument, and would endeavour to answer some of the objections that had been made. The obstacles in the way of codifying the law in India were, no doubt, great, and were probably best appreciated by those who had had to frame and carry through this and similar measures. They arose, however, not so much from any inherent difficulty in making a law which should contain rules both for simple and for complicated cases, but from the numerous conflicting interests to be cared for, and the widely varying conditions of the different races for whom the Council had to legislate. The compromises necessary to reconcile such interests had naturally left their mark upon the Bill, which was thus laid open to the charge of being incomprehensive and incomplete.

As an example of the difficulties that had had to be met, he would give to the Council the history of section 69. It was the custom among English people, when money was lent on the mortgage of land, to insert in the mortgage-deed a power of sale, authorizing the mortgagee, subject to certain conditions, to sell, without the intervention of a Court, the mortgaged property if the money was not paid when it became due.

But it had always been held by the most experienced Indian authorities that a power of this kind would work mischievously in rural India. Hence, in the first drafts of the Bill, such powers were declared to be invalid.

The Indian Law Commissioners, however, for reasons given on page 35 of their report, altered the drafts and declared the power to be valid in all cases in which the mortgaged property should be five hundred rupees or upwards.

Representing, as MR. CROSTHWAITE thought he was bound to do, the interests of the ignorant landowners of Upper and Central India, who borrowed money without the aid of legal advice, and dealt with men far above them, as a rule, in intelligence and astuteness, he felt himself compelled to dissent from the opinion of the Law Commissioners, and the section was altered so as to enable the Local Governments to declare the areas within which this power of sale should be valid. It appeared, however, that this alteration was not in accordance with the views of the gentlemen whose interests his hon'ble friend Mr. Inglis so ably represented—interests which must be respected by all who had the true prosperity of the country at heart. A fresh consideration of the matter became necessary, and the result the Committee arrived at was embodied in the present section 69 of the Bill, and which, if it satisfied Mr. Inglis and his friends, as he believed it did, was also quite sufficient to guard the interests of those whom he had in view.

MR. CROSTHWAITE mentioned this to show what difficulties had had to be met, and how impossible it was that a code of this nature, which was not always understood by those who were affected, or thought they were affected, by it, could be otherwise at first than imperfect, incomprehensive and, to the stiff legal sense, disfigured by compromises and exemptions.

Much had been heard, in relation to the Bill, of the difficulty that would arise to the people if it was passed. The two hundred and fifty millions of India were cast in the teeth of the Council, and the unfortunate peasant was represented as driven to distraction by the complicated provisions of the law.

Now, as to any difficulty of this nature which arose or was likely to arise from this Bill, it was, he believed, very much exaggerated. Codes of the kind were like arithmetic books, with the exception that people were not obliged to learn them. A man whose whole transactions consisted of a few simple acts of barter had no occasion to trouble himself about the rule of three or compound fractions. And, in like manner, it was only those whose transfers were subject to conditions and interests, multifarious and complicated, who would be affected by the more complex and intricate provisions of the Bill.

The necessity of codification arose from the present state of the law, combined with the nature of the Courts. It was the fashion to speak as if the present Bill would supersede a code of clear case or statute-law. Whatever might be the case within the jurisdiction of the Calcutta High Court, there was certainly, in the parts of India with which he was acquainted, no clear body of law on the subjects dealt with in the Bill. To use the words of one of the officers, Mr. Quinton, who had recorded an opinion on the Bill—"Our Courts have to grope through the wilderness of precedents on the subject of sales and mortgages."

The progress of a difficult case was somewhat in this wise. The Court of original jurisdiction had not much legal training or learning, and, as the Government did not provide it with text-books or commentaries, or even Law Reports, its law-library was usually confined to copies of the Acts and Regulations. It was puzzled by the precedents produced by the contending parties, who, being at liberty to pick and choose among the decisions of four High Courts, had no difficulty in showing authorities for every view of the point in issue. If there was no ruling on the matter by the Court to which the Judge was subordinate, he eagerly grasped the precedent which seemed most to the purpose. On appeal, the Lower Appellate Court, which was more experienced and better informed, and received copies of the Indian Law Reports, was often compelled to differ from the Judge below. The result was a second appeal, in which the [illegible] having more information, a better library and more leisure to go [illegible] was often obliged to take a differ[illegible] from either of the [illegible].

And no one could say what [illegible] decision of the Judicial Commissioner would be, unless that Judge had [illegible] a similar case before him, or unless the matter had been decided by the Privy Council; for he also might pick and choose between the rulings of four chartered High Courts and was bound by none. He was often like a man standing at a place where four roads met, and where there was no sign-post. It might end by his following none of the made roads, but taking a straight line of his own across country. Whatever might be the result of the present state of things, it was not certainty.

How far this was a true description for Bengal and for the Courts under the Calcutta High Court, MR. CROSTHWAITE left his hon'ble friend Mr. Evans to say.

Now, he did not venture to hope that the present Bill would remove all uncertainty; and, for a time, until the meaning of each section had been thoroughly understood by the first Courts, it would probably increase litigation. But, speaking as a non-professional Judge, and even admitting, what he did not admit, that all the charges of imperfection brought against the measure were sound and true, still he said that the Bill was a step in the right direction, and he thought that he had with him the great body of the non-professional Judges, whose opinion was in this matter to his mind the best guide. For it was not to an athlete that a person would go for advice as to the best description of crutch. He could well understand the feelings of a thoroughly able and learned lawyer with regard to a Bill of this kind. It dealt with matters as familiar to him as his alphabet, and it dealt with them in a way that did not quite suit his sense of taste as a legal artist. He thought that he could have done it better himself, and he felt that the cut-and-dry sections of the law would tie his hands and prevent him from doing that perfect justice at which it was the pride of all the Judges to aim. MR. CROSTHWAITE could well understand this. But, at the same time, he was sure that for the non-professional Judge, who must, for obvious reasons, preside in the Courts for some time to come, anything was better than the present chaos, in which imperfect knowledge had to struggle with the conflict of authorities.

He would briefly notice some of the more definite objections taken to the present Bill.

It was questioned, he believed, by some whether it correctly represented existing law. This was a point on which his opinion would not be taken. But perhaps his hon'ble and learned friend Mr. Evans would state his opinion on the matter. He might quote from the notes of many of the officers who had criticised the Bill. He contented himself with citing the opinion of the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Field, because he believed no man was better acquainted than he was with the statute and case-law of India. He said:—

"I have again carefully examined the Bill as altered and revised, and, speaking generally, I think it has now been brought into harmony with the law of India, and will, in all probability, prove a useful measure."

It had been urged—urged indeed in a very forcible manner by the Panjáb authorities, who had exempted themselves from the operation of the law—that the Bill would interfere with and override many of the old customs so dear to the people. He had searched the papers in vain for any specific instance of a custom so overridden, and he ventured to say that such customs must be few indeed. He was speaking of the Bill apart from its saving clauses. There were many customs of inheritance, marriage, adoption and other social matters. But customs, properly so called, regarding sale or mortgage or gift, there were, he believed, none or very few.

MR. CROSTHWAITE could not help thinking that much of the outcry about custom arises from a lax and unscientific use of the word. A legal custom,—his hon'ble friend the Law Member would set him right if he was in error,—a custom, that was, which the law would recognise and the Courts act upon, must be immemorial, invariable, reasonable and established beyond doubt. Now, it could be hardly doubted that this was not the sort of custom which some of the opponents of the Bill contemplated. For example, he quoted from a letter by the Secretary of the Panjáb Government, which was printed on page 221, Vol. I, of Mr. Tupper's Panjáb Customary Law:—

"His Honour had always held that directly any attempt is made to legalise a custom its virtue as a custom is lost. The reason why the legislature provides for the observance of customs in judicial decisions is because such observance provides for the fluctuation of public sentiment and for the development of national ideas, and enables the Courts to take into consideration both the one and the other in adjudicating on questions of social interest. As soon as the impress of the legislature is stamped upon such customs, they become to all intents and purposes unalterable records of a state of things which may continue and may change, while a change in the body of substantive law thus formed is very difficult to effect without the pressure of an influence which a social revolution only could exercise."

Now, MR. CROSTHWAITE ventured to say, with all deference to the gentleman who wrote that letter, that the object of the legislature was not what he described. A custom fluctuating with public sentiment was a contradiction in terms. To administer civil law on the basis of the changing sentiments and imperfectly known usages of the people would lead to a confused labyrinth of decisions in which no right would be secure, and in which the unfortunate Judges, and more unfortunate suitors, must wander like the blind led by the blind.

It must be remembered that, when a Court had once decided that a custom existed, the custom was as binding and rigid in its operation as a legal enactment; nay, more so, for the legislature, especially in India, would always be more reluctant to repeal a custom than to amend one of its own laws. But, leaving this question aside, the Bill had been so framed as to save every custom or usage that could have any title to legal recognition. Mr. Tupper, than whom there could be no better authority, admitted this, although he opposed the extension of the Act to the Panjáb. On page 35, Vol. I, of Panjáb Customary Law, Mr. Tupper said:—

"The Transfer of Property Bill saves the provisions of any enactment not thereby expressly repealed. Sections 5 and 7 of the Panjáb Laws Act are therefore unaffected; also section 16 of the Panjáb Land-revenue Act. Accordingly, the whole of our customary law, and the existing system for enforcing it, so far as that measure is concerned, remain intact."

The same applied, mutatis mutandis, to the Central Provinces, where there was in force an enactment similar to the Panjáb Laws Act.

It was impossible, therefore, that any custom properly so-called should be overridden by the Bill.

Coming now to the personal law of the Hindús, Muhammadans and Buddhists, MR. CROSTHWAITE believed it also was perfectly safe under the Bill.

Scrupulous care had been taken not to touch the personal law of any race. MR. CROSTHWAITE, for one, would be reluctant in the extreme to do anything that would trench on the province of Hindú law—a law for which he entertained a great respect, and which was in many ways eminently suited to the genius of the people who lived under it. The only sections which were intentionally drawn otherwise than in accordance with that law were those sections which required certain descriptions of transfers to be made by written instruments. And, in order to prevent any possible hardship to the more backward tribes from this provision, power had been given to the Local Governments to exempt the members of any race, sect, tribe or class from all or any of those provisions—a power which would, he hoped, be exercised carefully.

So far as he could discover from the papers, none of the Hindú lawyers who had criticised the Bill accused it of touching their law. The only specific charges brought against the Bill in that respect were contained in a paper forwarded to the Select Committee on the 9th instant by the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Cunningham. Anything coming from a Judge of Mr. Cunningham's eminent learning and ability must have great weight. MR. CROSTHWAITE confessed, when he first read Mr. Cunningham's note, in which he represented the Bill as making piecemeal alterations in Hindú law, he was startled. But, after the best examination of the subject which he could give to it, he came to the conclusion that the matters referred to by Mr. Cunningham were unimportant. He objected to some words in section 6, which the Committee had already omitted for other reasons, but which he believed, in their intention at any rate, were not contrary to Hindú law, and came, if he was not mistaken, from the hand of a gentleman [illegible] well acquainted with Hindú law, Mr. Pitt Kennedy. Mr. [illegible] the wording of an illustration as inaccurate. That [illegible] another section to which he objected, and which [illegible] the rights of a bona fide purchaser of property subject to a charge for maintenance, was undoubtedly in accordance with existing law. The second clause of section [illegible], which dealt with the rights of a transferee of a share of a joint family dwelling-house, might be new, that was, there were no rulings to support it. But it was reasonable and in accordance with Hindú sentiment, and was, he believed, suggested by his hon'ble friend the Maháráját Jotíndra Mohun Tagore.

Mr. Crosthwaite confessed that the [illegible] of the Hon'ble Mr. Gunning[illegible] that the Bill was not [illegible] on the sacred ground of [illegible]

But [illegible] objectors arose at the last moment, represented by [illegible] Prasád, for whose opinion as a learned Hindú [illegible] This gentleman and his friends objected to the Bill, not [illegible] Hindú law, but because it did not infringe it. They wished the legislature to go behind the decisions of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council and of the Indian Courts, and to adopt the interpretation of Hindú law which some Pandits of Benaras thought to be right. The question which they would raise was a very large one—whether Hindús had the power of creating perpetuities or not. The Privy Council (Judicial Committee) had decided that they had no such power, and the Bill in section 14 was framed accordingly.

It was impossible, if the question was to be dealt with in the Bill at all, to do otherwise than follow the rulings of the highest Appellate Court. But there appeared to be so strong a desire on the part of the Hindús, so far as the Committee could judge, that these rulings should not be affirmed by the Legislature until the Hindús interested in them had been able to contest the point further, that they thought it best to save Hindú, Muhammadan and Buddhist law from the operation of Chapter II.

This, to a certain extent, weakened the Bill, and it was a kind of legislation which to him personally, and no doubt to others of those who had consented to it, seemed feeble and unsatisfactory. But it was clearly inexpedient to deal with a very large question of this kind, the decision of which could hardly be said to have been part of the direct object of the Bill, otherwise than with the greatest caution and deliberation. There was, therefore, no course open to the Committee but to delay the Bill and put it off sine die, or to exempt the personal laws of Hindús from the operation of Chapter II.

MR. CROSTHWAITE objected strongly to delay, as he thought that no advantage could possibly arise from it. The only chance of getting a more perfect law was by the experience gained in working this. A Bill of this kind lost its continuity by passing through a multitude of hands, and ran the danger of becoming a piece of patchwork. The second course had, therefore, been followed, and his hon'ble friend Rájá Siva Prasád was now free to use his efforts to procure for the Hindús a power little consonant with the present state of things,—a task in which, considering the rapid progress now being made by his countrymen, he could hardly succeed.

As to the technicality of the Bill, of which much had been said, a law of this kind must be technical. MR. CROSTHWAITE could not understand how a law on such a subject could be written within reasonable compass without using technical terms. It was perfectly intelligible to any one who understood English and had the requisite elementary knowledge of the subjects dealt with. The best proof of this was the mass of criticisms elicited from non-professional Judges—criticisms which showed beyond doubt that they understood the Bill. And, if the Judges could not understand a Bill like this, what hope would there be of their understanding cases that would come under the law? There was, however, one thing he would like to urge on the attention of the Legislative Department. The Local Governments should be asked to take more than ordinary care in the translation of these codes. No one but a lawyer who was also a scholar could translate them accurately. But there was no difficulty in finding competent men, whether Natives of India or Englishmen, to do the work. It might perhaps be necessary to pay them somewhat more than was given to the ordinary translator. But the cost would be comparatively a mere trifle, and, as the Bills had already been translated, and only needed revision, it was a work that could not require more than a week or two to complete.

The HON'BLE MR. EVANS said he felt bound to detain the Council for a short time with a few remarks which he had to make on the subject of this Bill. But he hoped His Excellency the President would pardon him if he asked for information on a point of procedure. He wished to know whether any vote was intended to be taken on the present discussion, or whether it would be taken on the amendment which appeared in the notice-paper.

His Excellency THE PRESIDENT observed that that must depend upon circumstances. The Council would be entitled to vote on the present question, and again, subsequently, on the motion of the Hon'ble Mr. Plowden. At the present moment, no opposition had been expressed to the motion before the Council, and, consequently, so far as the discussion had gone, HIS EXCELLENCY supposed that no vote would be taken upon it. But, if his hon'ble friend had any general observations to make, this appeared to be the proper stage for him to make them. Mr. Plowden's motion was a definite motion for postponement, and, strictly speaking, the discussion ought to be confined to that particular question.

The Hon'ble MR. EVANS continued.—He trusted the Council would not deem it a waste of time, if he briefly reviewed the circumstances which led to the introduction of this important measure. Even in England there was a steadily growing feeling in favour of codification. But there the law, though contained in that "wilderness of single instances"—the Reports—was the slow and gradual growth and development of centuries; and there the judges were all professional lawyers of eminence, familiar from long and daily practice with the principles of law and the method of applying them, and able, by lifelong study, to find their way unhesitatingly through the labyrinth of Law Reports, and they had the assistance of an able and highly trained Bar. Here matters were very different. The Hindú law relating to inheritance and some other matters remained in full vigour partly because it was intimately bound up with religion. But the greater portion of the ancient civil law of the Hindús relating to contracts—the traffic of man with man in the ordinary relations of life—had become obsolete and sunk into oblivion.

When the English began to rule this country, they found that, after securing to the people such laws as they found in living existence, there was a great void to be filled, and this they did by the simple injunction to the judges in the Mufassal to decide all cases not otherwise provided for according to equity and good conscience. Where were the judges to look for the rules of equity? They could find little or no guidance among the collection of archaic rules and customs which stood out amidst the debris of the ancient Indian systems, and naturally fell back on the rich store-house of English law. That law, elaborated by eminent jurists in the course of centuries, with the aid of the invaluable legacy left us by the Roman Empire, was naturally resorted to by all who were in search of principles.

The whole history of our judge-made law for the last century was an illustration of this process.

Sometimes broad and general principles of universal application were laid down; sometimes narrow and technical rules peculiar to England were introduced and subsequently exploded; and still the course of formation, destruction and alteration went on till the records of it reached the unwieldy proportions of the present mass of Law Reports.

Then it was felt that something ought to be done.

Very few of the judicial officers in India were trained professional lawyers. Most of the Courts of first instance had no libraries of any sort, no text-books, no means of reference, and yet their judgments were all liable to come before higher and better-instructed tribunals, and ultimately before the High Court, where those judgments were set aside because they ran counter to rules contained in cases which the authors of those judgments had no knowledge of and no means of knowledge.

The [illegible] judicial officers in this state of things had been well [illegible] Mr. Crosthwaite and the sentiments of the [illegible] of the law could not be better represented than [illegible] been [illegible] Hon'ble Sayyad Ahmad Khán with his long and varied experience.

The law relating to the transfer of property was the subject now before the Council.

It was long ago decided by the Home and Indian Governments that the codification of this branch of law was desirable. The importance of it was manifest. Nothing could be more important than the security of titles and the avoidance of uncertainty and confusion in dealing with property. That uncertainty and confusion in matters connected with property depreciated the value of property [illegible] undeniable and self-evident.

No [illegible] the necessity of taking some steps to remedy the existing state [illegible] as to titles and mortgages in India could be given than the well-known fact that the wealthy and powerful Land Mortgage Bank (Crédit Foncier Indien) had, after some years' experience, to give up lending money on land in India, because the titles and the law and procedure as to mortgages were in so unsatisfactory a state that the high interest obtained did not cover the risk.

Taking up the present Bill, the Council would find it divided into chapters.

Chapter I called for no special remark on this occasion, except that Bombay had been exempted for the present from the operation of the Bill. This exemption was made in consequence of the Bombay Government applying at a very late period to be exempted. It had been granted by the Executive in accordance with instructions from the Secretary of State not to introduce the Bill [illegible] into the territory of any Local Government which objected to it. But Mr. Evans saw no materials before the Council which would lead him to doubt the suitability of the Bill to the civilised portions of the Bombay Presidency.

In Chapter II, several rules were introduced from the Succession Act, 1865, defining the limits within which property could be tied up by settlement inter vivos, and laying down the rule restricting perpetuities. He had always been apprehensive that these rules would unduly extend the powers now possessed by Hindús (under the rule in the Tagore case) of tying up the properties after their deaths. The rule in the Tagore case, which prohibited gifts or bequests to unborn persons, was now the Hindú law as declared by the highest tribunal, except so far as the rules now proposed to be embodied in the Act had been made applicable to the wills of Hindús in Bengal by the Hindú Wills Act, 1870.

The Hindú Wills Act was passed before the Privy Council had finally laid down the doctrine that no interest could by Hindú law be created in favour of an unborn person, which doctrine, as they pointed out, obviated the necessity for any rule against perpetuities under Hindú law, and also explained why no such rule could be found in the Hindú law. How far the Hindú Wills Act did in fact abrogate, in the case of wills in Bengal, the rule in the Tagore case was a disputed point now in course of settlement by the Courts. It appeared to him that the question, whether extended powers of tying up property should be granted by legislation to Hindús, was one of grave public policy not to be lightly settled.

MR. EVANS' difficulties on this point had been removed in a singular manner. The Hon'ble Máhárájá Jotíndra Mohan Tagore and the Hon'ble Rájá Siva Prasád, conceiving, in common with many of their fellow-countrymen, that the rule in the Tagore case did not correctly represent the Hindú law, and that Hindús were by their own law empowered to tie up their property for ever without any restriction, had rejected the extensive powers conferred upon them by the Bill as too limited, and had asked that a clause should be added to Chapter II, providing that nothing contained in that chapter should affect any rule of Hindú law. As the effect of this was to leave this important question as it stood for the present, and to give an opportunity for its full consideration in future, he had gladly acceded to the proposed amendment, though regarding it from a different point of view from that taken by its proposers. For his part, he would sooner repeal the corresponding sections in the Hindú Wills Act, and stick to the rule in the Tagore case, with an exception in favour of bequests to, or settlements on, unborn children of a Hindú daughter to take effect on the death of the daughter.

The difficulties arising from settlements of land in England should make the Council chary of extending the existing powers of settlement in India.

The chapter on sales of immoveable property provided for written instruments and registration, and laid down rules as to the rights and obligations of buyer and seller.

He had not heard much objection to these latter, but there had been a cry raised against the supposed hardship of requiring writing in the sale of land. Speaking of the civilised parts of Bengal, and excluding any wild tribes who might be ignorant of the art of writing (and who would, as a matter of course, be exempted by the Local Government), he could safely say that his experience, and all the enquiry he had been able to make, led him to believe that this objection was purely visionary, as, in practice, all sales of land of the value of Rs. 100 or upwards were always evidenced by a written document.

On the policy of insisting on writing and registration in order to avoid confusion and uncertainty in titles, MR. EVANS need not dwell.

The chapter on mortgages was the most important in the Act. The law relating to mortgages urgently called for definition and practical amendment.

Mortgages were legislated for in Bengal as early as 1798, but, as the old Regulations gave a somewhat cumbrous and unsatisfactory procedure, and did not cover every class of mortgage, money-lenders had resorted to a simple mortgage-bond, consisting of a covenant to pay and a pledge of the property. This form of mortgage never having been legislated for, there was no protection to the debtor. The practice was for the creditor to get a money-decree, and sell up the mortgaged property without allowing any time for redemption. The sale being an ordinary execution-sale of the right, title and interest of the debtor, whatever it might be, it was usual, when the same property was pledged to different creditors in different mortgage-bonds, for each creditor to hold a separate sale and leave the purchasers to fight out in court the question of what they had bought under their respective sales. There being no machinery for bringing together into one suit the various incumbrancers on the property, endless confusion had been the result, and the decisions of the Courts upon the almost insoluble problems arising from this state of things had been numerous and contradictory. The result was that the mortgaged property could not fetch anything like its value. The debtor was ruined, the honest and respectable money-lender discouraged, and a vast amount of gambling and speculative litigation fostered.

It had been one of the objects of this chapter to remedy these and other similar evils.

MR. EVANS hoped some day, when our registration-system was improved, to see a much greater change, and to see incumbered land sold under a statutory title, leaving all disputed questions to be fought out over the proceeds in court. But, pending this, it was very necessary to do something, and what was done by this chapter would, he expected, remedy, or at least ameliorate, many of the existing evils.

It had been proposed to legalise powers to the mortgagee in the Mufassal to sell without the intervention of the Court. He was strongly of opinion that these powers, which were practically unknown in the Mufassal of Bengal, could not be safely granted except where the property was situated in the Presidency-towns or the parties were Europeans. There had been some doubt as to the validity of such powers. This chapter dealt with this vexed question, as he thought, satisfactorily. He should have preferred to see equitable mortgages abolished altogether, or at least confined to land situated within a Presidency-town. They produced great confusion in the case of land in the Mufassal, and frustrated the effects of registration.

There was little to be said of the remaining chapters, except that they made very little change in the existing law, and that the small changes made seemed desirable.

It could not be expected that a work of this kind should be free from errors, imperfections and omissions; but it had now been very long before the public, and [illegible] criticism had been received, which had led to many alterations from [illegible].

Very probably this Act, like many other Acts, would in time be altered, amended and improved as necessity arose and flaws were discovered in its working. But, after undergoing consideration and criticism for five years, it was not likely to be further materially improved unless it was subjected to the test of being worked.

The Hon'ble MAHÁRÁJÁ JOTÍNDRA MOHAN TAGORE said that, having signed the Report of the Select Committee without dissent, he deemed it necessary to say a few words before the Bill was passed into law. In his opinion, a measure of this kind, to be complete, should, as far as practicable, embrace, within the scope of its operation, all sections of the community, and this, he thought, was the original intention when the Bill was first framed; but, unfortunately, as far as some of its provisions affected the Hindús, the Bill simply gave the sanction of law to certain principles which were laid down by the Courts of justice in later days; but these decisions, the Hindús contend, were not only based upon erroneous constructions of their law, but were also opposed to the rulings of equally high authorities of an anterior period. Some of these modern decisions imposed upon the Hindús disabilities which, he thought, no other nation in the civilised world laboured under: others, again, were so much in accordance with the theories of English law, that they might be said not to interpret Hindú law as it was, but what, according to the advanced notions of modern jurists, it ought to be, and, naturally enough, they ran counter to the thoughts, feelings and ideas of the Native community. He represented this to the members of the Select Committee, and though they were most anxious to preserve Hindú law in its integrity, they were disposed to accept the later decisions of the Courts as containing the true exposition of that law. On the other hand, the Hindú community held as strongly that these decisions, as he had stated, were based upon a misconception of the true spirit of the law, and in this opinion they were supported, not only by the learned Pandits of all parts of the country, but also by no less an authority than that eminent Sanskrit scholar, Goldstücker, who, as was well known, had declared that many of the translations of the texts of Hindú law were inaccurate; and therefore, he submitted, many of the decisions founded on these incorrect translations were necessarily inaccurate. He and his hon'ble friend Rájá Siva Prasád had brought these circumstances to the notice of the Select Committee, and took the liberty to point out the extreme hardship and injustice to which that community would be subjected should the legislature seal with its sanction those principles to which such strong objection was taken.

To institute, however, proper enquiries and to arrive at correct conclusions must necessarily be the work of a long time. It had, therefore, been agreed, as an alternative course, to exclude the Hindús, Buddhists, &c., from the operation of many of the provisions of the Bill. The effect of this would be that, when the Bill would be passed into law, it would not interfere with many of those disputed points of Hindú law as it was at present administered, though it must be observed that it would leave those points in a very unsettled and unsatisfactory state, to be dealt with from time to time by particular Judges according to the light that might be in them, with the chance of those recent decisions, which had overridden the rulings of a former period, being upset in their turn by other decisions at a future time, until the legislature stepped in and, after the fullest and most careful enquiry, determined and laid down principles in accordance with the true spirit of Hindú law, and in consonance with the wants, wishes and feelings of the Hindú community whom they most concerned, and adapted as well to the condition of Indian society.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. PLOWDEN said that he did not intend to occupy much of the time of the Council, but he was afraid he should have to trespass upon their patience at some length. He would, however, be as brief as he could possibly be, and, for this and other reasons, he was not going to enter into any elaborate criticism of the Bill in its legal aspect. First of all, he had not the legal knowledge which would enable him to give an opinion deserving of the attention of the Council on the subject; in the next place, even if he had the ability, he had not had the time to go thoroughly into an exhaustive criticism from this point of view; and, lastly, the Council had now before them the opinions of certain experts in the law, by which Members of the Council could determine what the value and merits of the Bill might be. He must confess that he was somewhat surprised to find that, in the voluminous papers which had been circulated in connection with the several Bills which embodied this measure, and the history of which had been given to them by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, amongst the opinions of these experts there was an extremely valuable opinion, all reference to which had been omitted; and that was the opinion of Sir FitzJames Stephen. His opinion was that of a competent expert, and he gave his opinion in reply to a special call of the Government of India on this Bill and five other codifying Bills of the Indian Law Commission. MR. PLOWDEN supposed that nobody could deny that great weight and great value should be attached to any opinion given by such an eminent authority, and he should like to know what would be thought of the opinion which he found recorded before him. He would read the opinion of that very eminent jurist, which was given in 1879, in respect of the present Bill. He said:—"I am still, however, by no means satisfied that any part of this Bill is really wanted in India, except, perhaps, the chapter on Mortgages and, possibly, the chapter on Leases." He would now request the Council to turn to the Bill No. VII, now before them, and if they looked at it they would find that, in addition to those two chapters which Sir James Stephen did not disapprove of, there were no less than five other chapters, and of these, four were absolutely identical with four of the chapters contained in the Bill which was submitted to him for consideration, and of which he did not approve. MR. PLOWDEN also saw a note the other day, which he supposed was the same which had been just referred to by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, and which contained the opinion of the Hon'ble the Chief Justice of the Calcutta High Court; and what did the Chief Justice say? The Council had heard that Sir Richard Garth was in favour of the Bill, and MR. PLOWDEN concluded he was, as the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill said so. But he did not gather, from what he saw of that opinion, that the Chief Justice was absolutely in favour of that Bill. Sir Richard Garth said in effect that he could not say he quite approved of the principle of the Bill as it had been framed. It went far too much into details, and would perplex Mufassal Judges in the consideration of many difficult questions. MR. PLOWDEN referred to these opinions simply because he had heard it stated lately that there was no opposition to the passing of this Bill on the evidence of experts, except the single-handed opposition of Mr. Justice Cunningham. He thought, from the extract which he had just read from Sir James Stephen's opinion, that he was justified in saying that this was not the case; for here was a very competent man, able to give a valuable opinion, and he was not of opinion that the Bill was absolutely required. MR. PLOWDEN would not enter at any length into the remarks of Mr. Justice Cunningham. He thought that, to some extent, there was great misapprehension in parts of what Mr. Justice Cunningham said. At the same time, he thought that there were other portions of his remarks which required serious consideration before passing this measure, more especially his remarks on section 54 of the Bill. Mr. Cunningham said, in reference to that section,—

"The rule making registration in the case of every transfer of an intangible interest, though below Rs. 100, compulsory, is a serious change in the law, and, however expedient, should not be introduced without the fullest notice to the classes concerned. Every such change is an opportunity of fraud upon the ignorant and careless."

MR. PLOWDEN had listened with great interest to the observations which had fallen from Mr. Crosthwaite, to the effect that this Bill was needed. As he (Mr. Crosthwaite) was thoroughly acquainted with the state of affairs amongst the agricultural population of the North-Western Provinces and the Central Provinces, he must be aware that these opportunities of fraud had arisen in other cases, and had been attended by singularly unfortunate results. There was a time when agricultural leases were not necessarily registered; then there came an alteration of the law, and from that time leases from year to year, or a term of years, were obliged to be registered. Notice of this change in the law was not given so much as it should have been to the large agricultural community in the North-Western Provinces and other places, and, sitting as a member of the Revenue Board for the North-Western Provinces, and as a Commissioner, he had found cases in which a landlord and tenant had been quite happy under an unregistered lease, and for some time that lease had been acted upon by both parties. But, all of a sudden, the landlord wanted to enhance his rent; the tenant would not agree, and then the landlord turned round and said "Your lease ought to have been registered." He brought a suit into Court, and he gained it because the lease was not registered, and the tenant could not contest his claim. Then there was another section in Mr. Justice Cunningham's remarks to which he would refer.

HIS HONOUR THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR here observed that he understood from His Excellency just now that Mr. Plowden's motion was to be confined to the postponement of the passing of the Bill: he submitted that he was not in order in commenting upon its general provisions.

His Excellency THE PRESIDENT said that he was of the same opinion, but, at the same time, he thought it fair to Mr. Plowden to allow him to establish the grounds on which he rested his motion.

MR. PLOWDEN said that, if that was the case, he was perfectly willing to drop further discussion on this part of the question; it was not to the legal aspect of the Bill that he took exception; that was altogether another question. But he was bound to allude to another point, which had an important bearing upon the question which would shortly come before the Council, namely, that this Bill do pass. To make his remarks clear he must digress. The motion now against his name on the notice-paper was not that he had intended to move. As originally drafted, it stated his wish that the Bill should be considered again when the Council re-assembled in Calcutta. That would give a clear period of eight months, in which certain events, which he would call attention to, might occur. Though the motion was placed on the list of business circulated on Monday in that shape, he had subsequently ascertained from the Secretary in the Legislative Department that, in his opinion, he (MR. PLOWDEN) was out of order in bringing forward such a motion; and, accordingly, he changed the form of the motion to that in which it stood at present, and he hoped it would answer his purpose. His object, briefly stated, was to secure a further reasonable period of time within which endeavours might be made to elicit from the representatives of the Native community a larger expression of their views on the merits of the Bill, particularly in connection with their several local customs and laws. It was not his wish to obtain further criticisms on the legal aspects of the Bill, though that might be desirable. His motion, as it stood, did not go so far as he wished; but, if it was assented to, and if, as he hoped, the facts which he had now put forward would justify the Council in accepting it, he could safely leave it to the Executive Government to determine the time which would be necessary to secure to the Bill more extended publicity, and to endeavour to elicit a larger volume of Native opinion than the Council now possessed. The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill had dwelt on the publicity which the Bill had obtained. He would turn to that point shortly. The Bill dealt with the every-day transactions of life of a very large community, and would affect, more or less, the affairs of a very large section of their Native fellow-subjects. Every man who had property which he wished to transfer, however small it might be, would be touched by the provisions of the Bill. In these circumstances, when he learnt that the Bill was coming on for final discussion, he made it his business to see to what extent the Bill would affect those interests, to what extent Native opinion had been obtained on it, and how far the Bill had attained practical publicity. With that object he communicated with the Secretary in the Legislative Department, and he pointed out to MR. PLOWDEN the sources from which he could obtain the information he desired, and subsequently informed him that the number of Native gentlemen who had submitted opinions on this very important measure was 19. It struck him that, considering the very large population that the Bill affected, that was a very scant expression of Native opinion. If the Panjáb and British Burma, to which the Bill was not ordinarily applicable, were left out of consideration, the Council had received one opinion to about 10 millions of people of the country. He did not call that a very large expression of opinion. He never thought for a moment that these 19 gentlemen were the only Native gentlemen who had given the Council the benefit of their opinions on the Bill, and he thought it was very natural to come to the conclusion that it was only in reference to the last Bill, which was marked No. V, which was circulated at the end of 1879, that these 19 opinions had been collected. So he turned to the sources of information to which he had been referred, and, reflecting upon the whole matter, the result of his inquiry astonished him. There were not 19 but 21 opinions, and that was all. Ever since the Bill had been before the Council in different shapes, the Government had only succeeded in eliciting from 21 Native gentlemen their opinion upon the matter. It was true the Council had opinions from a great number of officials who, from their point of view, were able to give them, but that was not what the Council wanted. They were legislating for a large Native population, and he should like to see what their opinion was on the subject.

There were one or two other points to which he should like to draw the attention of the Council. He found that, of these 21 Native gentlemen, 18 were Government officers; there were, therefore, only three independent views expressed. Then he found that, of these 21 Native gentlemen, five belonged to Bengal, four to Mysore, three to the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, three to Madras, three to the Panjáb, which was out of the scope of the Bill, one to Ajmer and two to Sindh. There was not a single expression of opinion as to Bombay, and he therefore congratulated the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill that he had been able to exempt Bombay from the operation of the Bill. Well, he had no doubt that he would be met with the argument that it was not a fair measure of publicity to point to the number of Native opinions that had been obtained. In fact, he had been told so. But he did not think that the gentlemen in the Council thoroughly understood what the extent of this publicity was. He would endeavour to make it clear how far the Bill had been published. He was aware that the practice was, in consonance with the standing orders of the Council, that Bills should be translated and published in the vernacular Gazettes, and he supposed it was assumed, by gentlemen who considered that sufficient publicity had been given to the Bill, that, in consequence of these translations being published, the people got a very fair view of what was going on, and that, if they wished to address the Council with reference to any objections which they might wish to offer, they would have the opportunity of doing so. But he did not think that was at all the case. It was not possible to obtain much publicity by printing Bills in the vernacular Gazettes. He was only able to ascertain, from the printers of the Bengal and North-Western Provinces Gazettes, to what extent the vernacular copies of the Gazettes were circulated to private individuals. He thought Members of Council here would be somewhat surprised to hear the result of the enquiry he had made so far as Bengal and the North-Western Provinces and Oudh were concerned. He found that the number of private subscribers to the vernacular Gazettes in Bengal was 174. He also found that in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh the number of vernacular Gazettes issued to private individuals was 205. They were reckoned in this way. There were 173 private subscribers for the Bengalí Gazette, and there was one gentleman who took in the Hindí Gazette. He could obtain no information regarding the Uriya Gazette, but he did not think it circulated more widely than the Hindí Gazette. Then, in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, where the Gazette was published in Urdú, 205 gentlemen—some of these might be officials—took in that Gazette. Now, it was a matter of arithmetic. There was one vernacular Gazette issued to every 300,000 persons amongst those which were circulated to private individuals; and, if the English copies of the Gazette which were also privately circulated were added, there would be about one to every 170,000. It seemed to be utterly misleading and an abuse of terms to talk of that as publicity. There was only this small number of private persons who took in these Gazettes, and how could it be thought that publicity was obtained for these measures by appearing translations of them in the vernacular Gazettes? Then, there was another point. Hon'ble Members were not aware at what time these translations were issued. In one case, the vernacular Gazette—he thought it was the Hindí Gazette for Bihár—was not issued till December; so that it was impossible for a man, however anxious he might be to pay attention to a Bill of this kind, to give a competent opinion upon it by the 10th of January, which was the time when the Bill was brought forward for final consideration in the Council.

His Excellency THE PRESIDENT said that, in the papers before him, he found it recorded that the last issue of the Bill was published in the Hindí Gazette on the 24th September and on the 1st and 8th of October last year. He thought the Hon'ble Member was alluding to the Maráthí Gazette, which was the only one in which the Bill was published in December.

The Hon'ble MR. PLOWDEN resumed. It appeared from the paper before him, which he had received from the Legislative Department, that the Bill was published in the Hindí Gazette on the 6th of December. He thought, therefore, that he had sufficiently pointed out that there had not been real publicity, and on that ground he was anxious that the final consideration of the Bill should be postponed. There was one other point to which he would like to draw attention. He was told yesterday that the British Indian Association asked for time to consider this measure, to enable them to bring forward their objections to the Bill, and they were met with a flat refusal. He would, therefore, move that the Bill as amended by the Select Committee be republished.

His Honour THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR said that he had no desire to bring forward any motion which should have the effect of obstructing the passing of the Bill, but he should have been very glad if the Hon'ble Member had been his way to acceding to a request which he had made to him to postpone his motion for the passing of the Bill. Of course, there might be very strong reasons for pushing on the measure with such extraordinary haste; but these reasons were entirely unknown to any one not belonging to the Executive Council. No reason of any cogency had been assigned to the Council generally. Assuming that such reasons did exist, and that they were strong reasons, he should not make any formal motion in opposition to the passing of the Bill, or urge, in support of his view, rule 29 of the Standing Order of the Council, which provides that the Report of a Select Committee should be in the hands of the Council seven days before a motion is made to pass a Bill. What he desired to say was more in the way of general remonstrance. There was, no doubt, a very strong feeling springing up in the mind of the public, and it was a feeling which he entirely shared, that a number of measures were being hurried through the Council with unwarrantable haste. To prove how very necessary it was that due time should be given for the consideration of the Reports of Select Committees, and to show the inexpediency of hurrying Bills through Council, it was only necessary to refer to what had occurred since last week in respect to this very Bill. There was a motion on the notice-board at their last meeting that day week for passing the Bill. Fortunately, a strong difference of opinion occurred as to the working of section 69, and this difficulty—and this difficulty only—led to the postponement of the passing of the Bill into law last Thursday. The delay, however, of one week had brought forward such strong opposition to the Bill from Bombay, that, in the Bill as amended this week, Bombay was exempted from its provisions. He had not been favoured with a sight of the Bombay remonstrance, but it was evidently considered to be of such force as to compel the Government to omit Bombay.

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES explained that, under the general orders of the Secretary of State to exempt any Local Government which objected to the provisions of the Bill, the objections of the Bombay Government were accepted as a matter of course.

His Honour the LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR replied that that did not affect his position. The objection must have been held to have had some force in it, and to be a substantial objection, or it would not have come within the scope of the Secretary of State's orders. The result any way was, as it always has been of late, when opposition to legislation had been made by any body or Government, recourse was had to emasculation, and Bombay was left out of the Bill. Then, exactly the same thing happened in respect to the opposition of the Hindús in regard to certain provisions of the Bill. In consequence of the temporary postponement of the passing of the Bill last week, these objections of the Hindús had been discovered to be of importance, though they had been warned before; and a change had been introduced into section 129 which saved rules of Hindú, Muhammadan and Buddhist law. The objections were met, as usual, by the exemption of the protesting class or body, and in this way an attempt was made to disarm opposition. He thought that these facts were enough to show the danger of passing measures such as this in haste, and without giving all classes time to consider the Reports of Select Committees, and, indeed, without giving the Council itself time to consider them. If the Bill had been passed as proposed last week, very serious mischief might obviously have resulted. He again appealed to the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill to postpone his motion for a few weeks. He entirely sympathised in the very natural desire of the hon'ble gentleman to see measures over which he had spent so much time, and which had caused him much wearisome labour and anxiety, passed into law; but he could still do that before he left the country by the concession of a short delay. He hoped that always in future more time would be given for the consideration of measures after the presentation of the final Report of the Select Committee.

The Hon'ble MR. RIVERS THOMPSON said that he thought the request made by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor was a reasonable one, and the concession of further time for consideration would be in accordance with the injunction of the Secretary of State, that not only should these Bills be permissive in their application, but that they should be subjected to the closest examination before they were placed on the Statute-book. No formal suggestion of this kind had been made in Council at the last meeting, but, as regards the proposal now put forward, he was justified in saying that, in fulfilling the desire of the Secretary of State in the matter, the Government were fulfilling their own wish that important Bills of this kind should not be passed with any rapidity, and that they should yield to any reasonable request that further time should be given for the expression of Native opinion and other opinions on it.

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES said that he had no objection to postpone the motion for the passing of the Bill for three weeks.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE PRESIDENT said:—"There seems to be a very broad distinction between the suggestion thrown out by my hon'ble friend the Lieutenant-Governor and the motion of my hon'ble friend Mr. Plowden. That motion is one for delaying the passing of this Bill for a very lengthened period. Most of the observations made by him in support of that motion consisted of criticisms, which may be perfectly just in themselves—though I am not convinced that they are—against the whole mode of procedure of this Legislative Council in regard to the publication of Bills. He says that our methods of publication fail to secure effectual publicity, and that a very small number of persons in the country know what legislation is going on in this Council.

"That, I dare say, broadly speaking, is very true, and even with all the publicity of Parliament and the Press at home, I would venture to say that a very small numerical proportion of the people of England know what Bills are passed in Parliament. No doubt, that proportion is very much smaller in this country, and my wish is that the utmost publicity should be given to every measure brought into this Council. But when my hon'ble friend says that these Bills are only published in certain Vernacular Gazettes, and mentions the number of persons who take in those Gazettes, it appears to me that he omits from his calculation the rest of the Vernacular Press. Now, the Vernacular Press, at all events, should be acquainted with those Bills as published in the Gazettes, and if such Bills do not come into the hands of the writers in that Press, then I venture to say that those gentlemen do not give sufficient attention to an important part of their public duties. Be that as it may, however, of course the Government, and the legislature particularly, can only take certain recognised methods of affording to the public the opportunity of knowing what is going on in this Council, and it rests with the public to avail themselves of that opportunity, or not, as they think desirable. All we can do is to give to the Press and the public sufficient means of informing themselves in respect to such Bills as are before this Council, and I confess that I do not at present see how it would be possible to materially change a practice which has been in existence for a very long time in regard to the publication of such Bills.

"If, however, my hon'ble friend Mr. Plowden will make suggestions with a view to obtaining greater publicity for Bills brought into this Council, we shall be glad to consider them, provided they are such as the Government can adopt.

"As regards this particular Bill, the fact is that leave was given to introduce it on the 31st of May, 1877, and that we have now arrived at the 26th of January, 1882, which is very nearly five years since the Bill was introduced. I find that the Bill has been published four successive times in such newspapers or Gazettes as the Local Governments thought fit, and it seems to me that, according to the ordinary and general modes of publication, and to the course followed with regard to other legislative measures during that period, this Bill has had a large amount of publication and has been for an unusually lengthened period before the public. I therefore very much doubt whether any further publication would be likely to elicit any additional opinion regarding the measure. I quite understand the advantage of such a delay as my hon'ble friend the Lieutenant-Governor suggests, because public attention is now directed especially to this matter, and, no doubt, within a period of three weeks, a considerable expression of public opinion, favourable or unfavourable, may be brought forward; and I think it therefore perfectly reasonable to accede to that proposal. On the other hand, I consider that such a proposal as my hon'ble friend Mr. Plowden makes would fail to secure the object which he desires. If, as he proposes, the measure is postponed for another year, the result will probably be that in the interval people will not have attended to it any more than they have hitherto, and that, when it comes up again, at the last moment they will examine it as a perfectly fresh matter and start all the same objections to it over again.

"Now, I am very sensible of the necessity for affording every opportunity for the expression of public opinion on a measure of this kind, but of course no one can conceal from himself that it is perfectly possible, by postponing the consideration of such a measure till the very last moment and then asking for an indefinite delay, to bring about the same result as would be accomplished by moving for its rejection, or practically to shelve the Bill altogether. I do not for a moment say that this is the case here. Nevertheless, I quite admit that, if a case has arisen for postponement—and my hon'ble friend the Lieutenant-Governor says it has—we ought not unduly to press on the progress of the measure.

"In conclusion, I would only point out that, so far as the discussion upon the Bill has gone to-day,—and it has been discussed by men of great talent and large experience,—that discussion has been favourable to the Bill as it stands. This debate will be of great advantage to the public; it will guide their opinion in respect to the Bill; it will tend to remove certain impressions which appear to exist in the public mind; and, therefore, though I cannot agree to the motion of my hon'ble friend Mr. Plowden for a lengthened postponement, I am quite willing to agree that the Bill should be postponed for three weeks."

His Honour THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR asked the permission of His Excellency the President to say a few words on the question of publicity. Although it was quite possible that only a certain number of the vernacular Gazettes might be circulated amongst the Native community, the people who really gave publicity to Bills which were introduced into this Council were the members of the legal profession. Those who were most competent to give an opinion were the pleaders of the various Courts in the mufassal; they criticised the Bills and brought them to the notice of the zamíndárs and others who were their clients. So that, really, Bills were published to a much greater extent than appeared from the figures which had been given to the Council.

The Hon'ble MR. PLOWDEN said that, if the passing of the Bill was deferred for a period of three weeks, he was quite willing to withdraw his motion.

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES wished to explain the circumstances connected with the memorandum of Sir James Stephen which the Hon'ble Mr. Plowden seemed to think had been improperly withheld from hon'ble members. In December, 1878, the Government of India, having determined to appoint a Law Commission, requested the Secretary of State to invite Sir Henry Maine and Sir James Stephen to favour it with their opinion upon four matters, the selection of subjects for codifying, the order in which those subjects were to be taken up, the general arrangement of the Code and the applicability of its various parts,—matters on which the Government of India had, in May, 1877, fully expressed its views,—in order that that opinion might be laid before the Commission. Accordingly, in July, 1879, the Secretary of State sent the Government of India a despatch containing a minute by Sir Henry Maine and one by Sir James Stephen, the latter of which contained, not merely an opinion on the question submitted to him, but also criticisms on the Transfer of Property and the other five Bills submitted to the Law Commission. These minutes were laid before the Commission and carefully considered, and Sir James Stephen's criticisms were, MR. STOKES thought, sufficiently answered in the second part of its Report. It was not the custom of the Government of India to publish minutes made for such a purpose—certainly in the present case they should not be published without the authors' consent; for Sir Henry Maine's memorandum contained a long extract from an unprinted essay of his on the influence exerted upon law by the continental systems of land-registration; and Sir James Stephen's memorandum was hardly calculated to advance that learned judge's reputation. But, if any hon'ble member wished to see those minutes, he could do so at the Legislative Council House.

As to Sir Richard Garth's minute, which the Hon'ble Mr. Plowden seemed to think had also been kept back from the Council, all he could say was, that that minute was written last November, that the learned author, with his usual courtesy, sent him (MR. STOKES) a copy in his private capacity, that the criticisms which it contained had been most carefully considered, both by the Hon'ble Mr. Evans and himself, and that some of the changes which it suggested had been made in the Bill. But Sir Richard Garth never sent his minute to the Legislative Department, and must, therefore, be taken not to have wished its publication. He had apparently modified his views as quoted by Mr. Plowden, for MR. STOKES had the best authority for saying that the learned Chief Justice now considered the Bill on the whole a very good Bill, though, of course, it had its faults, that it was calculated to do much good, and that he hoped it would be passed at once.

As to Mr. Justice Cunningham's opinions, which had been referred to by the Hon'ble Mr. Plowden, MR. STOKES might add one or two remarks to those made by the Hon'ble Mr. Crosthwaite. Mr. Cunningham asserted that the definition (in section 5) of "transfer" was inaccurate, because "the following sections show that many transfers are to persons not in existence at the time of the transfer". This was not so. Interests might under the Bill be provided for unborn persons, but in such case the transfer was made to living trustees for their benefit. He said that illustration (b) to section 26 and illustration (b) to section 27 were doubtful law. The former was taken from illustration (e) to the Succession Act, section 115, which had been framed by the great judges and lawyers whom he (MR. STOKES) had mentioned in his former speech; the latter from the illustration to section 117 of the same Act, which again was drawn from the decision, in Underwood v. Wing, 4 D. M. G. 633, of Lord Cranworth assisted by Mr. Justice Wightman and Mr. Baron Martin.

Mr. Cunningham, again, said that "no question has been more fully discussed than the position of the mortgagee who has sued on his mortgage and recovered a money-decree.....The Bill simply ignores the point." He had not, MR. STOKES feared, read the Bill which he criticised. There was a section (99) solely devoted to this point and settling it, MR. STOKES ventured to think, in a satisfactory manner. Then, Mr. Cunningham said—"The question, again, as to the interest which passes at a sale in execution of an auction-decree is not free from obscurity"; and took the Bill to task for saying nothing about it. What he meant by a "sale in execution of an auction-decree" was not very apparent. He could hardly mean a sale made under a decree passed by a corrupt judge who had set his decision up to auction. He probably meant an auction-sale in execution of a decree; but to deal with this matter was outside the express scope of the Bill, and should be dealt with, if at all, by an amendment of the Code of Civil Procedure. He said that Chapter VIII was "very inadequate. It lays down no general rule or principle as to transferability of actionable claims." The reason was that the rule was already laid down in its proper place, namely, section 6. Subject to the provisions in that section, clause (h), and in sections 131, 132 and 136, all actionable claims would be transferable except mere rights to sue for a fraud or for harm illegally caused. But MR. STOKES would not waste the time of the Council by noticing any more of these criticisms.

The Hon'ble MR. PLOWDEN asked for leave to withdraw the Motion that the Bill to define and amend the law relating to the Transfer of Property as amended by the Select Committee be republished.

Leave was granted.

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES also asked for leave to postpone for three weeks the Motion that the Bill, as amended, be passed.

Leave was granted.

EASEMENTS BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES also presented the further Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to define and amend the law relating to Easements and Licenses.

MERCHANT SHIPPING BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES then presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill for the further amendment of the law relating to Merchant Shipping.

The Council adjourned to Thursday, the 2nd February, 1882.

The Secretary, having received from the GRAND MASTER and read the Sovereign's Grant in favor of the NAWAB OF BAHAWULPUR, conducted His Highness to the table, and the Junior Knight Commander, receiving the Riband and Badge from the Secretary, decorated the Nawab therewith, and the next Junior Knight, receiving the Star of the Order from the Secretary, attached it in its proper place.

The two Knights Commanders next robed His Highness with the Mantle of the Order.

Meanwhile the two Junior Knights withdrew to their places and remained standing.

The Under-Secretary in the Foreign Department took from the table the Collar of the Knight Grand Commander, and, with due reverence, delivered it to the GRAND MASTER.

The GRAND MASTER, remaining seated, then invested His Highness with the Collar, and addressed the following admonition :

The GRAND MASTER next invested SIRDAR DEWA SINGH with the Riband and Badge, addressing him as follows :—

"In the name of the Queen and Empress of India and by Her Majesty's Command, I hereby invest you with the Honorable Insignia of the Star of India, of which Most Exalted Order Her Majesty has been graciously pleased to appoint you to be a Knight Commander."

The newly-invested Knight then made his reverence to the GRAND MASTER, and was led by the Secretary to the seat appointed for him: those standing resumed their seats.

The Secretary then represented that there was no further business before the Chapter, and the GRAND MASTER, rising, commanded him to declare the Chapter dissolved.

A procession of Knights Grand Commanders of the Star of India, Knights Commanders of the Star of India, and Companions of the Star of India was thereupon formed and left the Marble Hall and returned to the Council Room in the reverse order to that in which it entered, a Grand March being performed and the Guard of Honor presenting arms.

Resolution No. 724, dated 6th February 1882, regarding the supply of black writing inks of local manufacture.

Read also—

The undermentioned correspondence regarding the black writing ink manufactured by Babu Amrita Lal Roy, of No. 54, Machooabazar Street, Calcutta :—

Letter to the Superintendent of Stationery, Calcutta, No. 2143, dated 23rd December 1881.
" from " " " No. 5895, dated 10th March 1882, in reply to the above.

ORDERED, that the letter from the Superintendent of Stationery read above be communicated to all Local Governments and Administrations for information in continuation of Resolution No. 724, dated 6th February 1882.

Ordered also, that it be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

No. 5895, dated 10th March 1882.

From—W. H. RYLAND, Esq., Officiating Superintendent of Stationery, Calcutta,

To—The Assistant Secretary to Govt. of India, Dept. of Finance and Commerce.

I beg to forward herewith copy of the Chemical Examiner's report on the sample of black writing ink submitted by Amrita Lal Roy, and to state, as requested in your letter No. 2143, dated 23rd December last, that the ink is, no doubt, manufactured in India, and is of good quality, having fairly withstood the tests of the Chemical Examiner. The price is Rs. 2 per dozen quarts, and is cheaper than Dr. Waldie's ink (the cheapest of the samples formerly reported on) by 4 annas per dozen. In deciding upon the contract to be entered into for the ensuing year, full consideration will be given to the merits of Amrita Lal Roy's ink as compared with other samples tendered, from every point of view, mere cheapness not being the only desideratum.

2. This report has been kept back by me in the hope of being able also to report on Mr. George Law's sample of ink, which was not received till last month, after I had applied to him. The Chemical Examiner has not yet furnished his report, but I may mention that Mr. Law proposes to charge Rs. 12 per dozen quarts delivered at any station in the upper Provinces. Supposing the ink to be not superior to either Dr. Waldie's or Amrita Lal Roy's samples, the relative prices of the several inks delivered at the principal stations in the North-Western Provinces and the Punjab would be as shown in the annexed statement. I am not yet in a position to state whether the ink is equal to Stephen's ink, and could be issued in the place of it to the officers who use the latter. The comparison, so far as it goes, including Stephen's ink, shows that Mr. Law's ink is much dearer as respects the other country-made inks, but cheaper as respects Stephen's ink.

No. 228A., dated 14th February 1882.

From—C. J. H. WARDEN, Esq., Chemical Examiner to Government,

To—The Officiating Superintendent of Stationery, Calcutta.

I have the honour to acknowledge receipt of your letter No. 5048, dated 30th January 1882, forwarding one bottle of ink with the following printed label :—

"Youngman's steel jet black, writing ink, &c."

The bottle contained 15 ounces of black ink of acid re-action, and with a tar-like odour. The ink was of a good colour and flowed well.

On analysis it yielded 12·76 per cent. of solid residue by weight dried at 100° C.

The ash was equal to 1·7 per cent. by weight calculated on the ink and consisted of oxide of iron.

The action of re-agents on the ink is shown in the accompanying table.

The ink appears to be essentially a gall-ink of good quality.

Statement showing the comparative price of liquid ink delivered at the following stations.

Names of stations.	Price of Dr. Waldie's ink per dozen quarts.	Price of Amrita Lal Roy's ink per dozen quarts.	Price of G. Law's ink per dozen quarts.	Stephen's English ink per dozen quarts.	Remarks.

(1) All officers who now hold substantive regimental commands will be granted an extension of command without any conditions (except promotion to the rank of General Officer, or the attainment of the Colonel's allowance) to the 1st April, 1883.

(2) Subject to the above conditions, present incumbents will be eligible to retain their commands until they attain the age of 55 years, or complete a tenure of 7 years' command, whichever may happen first.

(3) Any present incumbent, who on or after the 1st of April, 1883, may not have completed 5 years' tenure of command before reaching the age of 55 years, will be eligible to complete his 5 years' tenure of command.

(4) The immediate successors of present incumbents will be eligible to hold the command of a regiment until the attainment of 55 years of age, or the completion of 7 years' tenure of command, whichever may happen first.

MILITARY DEPARTMENT.

ORGANIZATION.

INDIAN ARMY.

Simla, the 22nd April, 1882.

No. 210.—The Most Hon'ble the Governor General in Council hereby announces certain of the measures which have been determined upon, with the approval of Her Majesty's Government, in regard to the regimental organisation of the Indian Army.

2. Under the organisation now to be adopted, every Native cavalry regiment (except the four regiments of Madras Native cavalry, whose establishment will remain unaltered) will consist, as at present, of six troops organised in three squadrons, each regiment having the following establishment:—

3 Ressaldars,
3 Ressaidars,
1 Woordie-Major,
6 Jemadars,
6 Kote-Duffadars,
48 Duffadars (including 1 Farrier-Major and 1 Salootrie),
6 Trumpeters,
477 Privates (including 1 Assistant Salootrie and 6 Farriers).

In the Bombay cavalry the present establishment of commissioned and non-commissioned ranks will remain unaltered at 80, the privates being raised to 470 in number instead of to 477, the total strength in Bengal and Bombay being thus 550 of all ranks.

The establishment of the Cavalry of the Corps of Guides (Queen's Own) will remain unaltered.

3. Every Native infantry regiment will consist, as at present, of eight companies, each company having the following establishment:—

1 Subadar,
1 Jemadar,
5 Havildars,
5 Naiks,
2 Drummers,
90 Privates,

making a total per regiment of 832 Natives of all ranks.

The Madras regiments will retain their extra Havildar-Major as at present.

4. The three regiments of Assam Light Infantry will retain their present strength of 912 of all ranks. The five Goorkha regiments will also retain that strength for the present.

5. The establishment of regiments being fixed as above stated, and as the total strength of the army is to remain substantially unchanged, this measure of reorganisation involves the reduction of four regiments of cavalry and eighteen of infantry.

6. The Governor General in Council has determined that of the four cavalry regiments to be reduced, three shall be reduced in the Bengal Army, including the Punjab Frontier Force, and one in the Bombay Army. Of the eighteen regiments of infantry to be reduced, six shall be reduced in the Bengal Army, including the Punjab Frontier Force, four in the Bombay Army, and eight in the Madras Army.

The present and future establishments of the Indian Army will therefore be as follows:—

	Present Estabt.	New Estabt.
Cavalry—
Bengal (excluding Cavalry of the Corps of Guides)	24	21
Madras	4	4
Bombay	7	6
	35	31
Infantry—
Bengal (including Infantry of the Corps of Guides)	61	55
Madras	40	32
Bombay	30	26
	131	113
Total ...	166	144

7. In the Bengal Presidency the following are the regiments selected for reduction:—

Cavalry.

16th Cavalry.
17th „
4th Punjab Cavalry.

Infantry.

34th Native Infantry.
35th „ „
36th „ „
37th „ „
41st „ „
3rd Punjab Infantry.

8. This reduction will be carried out under the orders of the Commander-in-Chief and the Punjab Government, in the following way:—

9. All Native officers, non-commissioned officers, and men who wish to remain in the service and are physically fit and otherwise well suited for it will be transferred to other regiments by troops and companies, as far as practicable, under subsidiary orders which will be issued by the Commander-in-Chief and the Punjab Government.

10. All Native officers, non-commissioned officers, and men who wish to take their discharge, or who from physical or other causes are not well suited for the service, will be discharged on the following rates of pensions and gratuities:—

I.—The superior rates of pensions specified in paragraph 611 of the Pay Code, volume II, to officers, non-commissioned officers, and men who have completed 25 years of service and upwards.

II.—The ordinary rates of pensions to all officers, non-commissioned officers, and men who have completed 14 years' service, and have less than 25 years' service, with a bonus of one month's pay (including good-conduct pay) for every two years' service.

III.—To officers, non-commissioned officers, and men of more than 10 and less than 14 years' service, two-thirds of the ordinary rate of pension and a bonus of three months' pay (including good-conduct pay).

IV.—To non-commissioned officers and men of 5 and less than 10 years' service, a gratuity of one month's pay for each year of service, together with an additional bonus of three months' pay as above.

V.—To non-commissioned officers and men of less than 5 years' service, a gratuity of six months' pay.

11. In the case of the cavalry, the gratuities will be calculated on the rates of ordinary and not net pay.

12. In those regiments in which, in consequence of the transfers made from the regiments reduced, the strength of Native officers or non-commissioned officers may become in excess of the regular authorised establishment, pensions and gratuities under the above scale may be offered to deserving Native officers and non-commissioned officers of such regiments to the extent of the numbers in excess in these ranks, so that the strength of Native officers and non-commissioned officers may thus be at once brought down to the fixed authorised establishment. Should this reduction however not be completely effected, and any supernumeraries be still left, they will be absorbed by making only two promotions for every three vacancies, every third vacancy being absorbed.

13. Native commissioned officers of cavalry regiments of 25 years' service and upwards, pensioned under the terms of paragraph 13, will receive a gratuity of 12 months' pay, in addition to the higher rate of pension.

14. Free passes by rail to their homes will be given to all officers, non-commissioned officers, and men who take their discharge on pension or gratuity under these orders.

15. In the cavalry regiments about to be reduced, where the chunda (remount) fund of a regiment after the disposal of all its horses (under subsidiary orders to be now issued) is unable to meet the entire cost of defraying the horse price of men discharged and transferred, the sums necessary for this purpose will be granted by the Government of India, under orders which will be issued hereafter.

16. In order to complete the horse price of men who are transferred to other corps, and who have not as yet paid up their full horse price in their present corps, loans will be granted, to Commanding Officers of regiments receiving men transferred, of the amount of such horse price still due, to be repaid without interest at Rs. 2 per man per mensem.

17. Such assistance will be granted to the equipment funds of cavalry regiments reduced as will permit of their paying up in the ordinary way, to men discharged, the proper value of their equipments, the sale proceeds of which will be carried to the credit of the State.

18. The certified actual cost involved in change of uniform and equipment will be allowed to soldiers transferred to other regiments. The necessary changes in the uniforms of the infantry troops transferred will be made at the public expense.

19. The following regiments of the Madras and Bombay armies have been selected by the Governments of those Presidencies respectively for reduction:—

Madras Army.

The 34th Native Infantry.
„ 35th „
„ 36th „
„ 37th „
„ 38th „
„ 39th „
„ 40th „
„ 41st „

Bombay Army.

The 3rd Sind Horse.
„ 6th Native Infantry.
„ 11th „
„ 15th „
„ 18th „

20. The reductions will be carried out under the foregoing rules, as far as possible, by the transfer of soldiers from regiments to be reduced to those which are to be retained; those, however, who wish to take their discharge from the regiments reduced being allowed to do so with pensions and gratuities as above laid down.

21. Consequent upon the increase in the strength of Native regiments, the establishment of European officers will now be fixed at eight officers per regiment, or one more than the present establishment; the additional officer to be appointed in the rank of wing or squadron officer. This augmentation will at once absorb a part of the junior officers of the reduced regiments, while the total establishment of European officers serving on regimental duty with the Indian Army will remain almost unaltered. With respect to the senior officers of these regiments, the following terms are offered, under the orders of the Secretary of State for India, to such of them as may retire from the service within three months from the date of their regiments being broken up:—

I.—To officers of over 32 years' service, the pension to which they may be entitled, not in excess of 456*l.* 5*s.* a year, with the value of their Colonel's allowances on the scale allowed by G. G. O. No. 1 of 1881, together with a bonus of 18 months' staff salary of their regimental appointments and free passages to England for themselves and their families.

II.—To officers of from 20 to 32 years' service, a bonus equal to 18 months' staff salary of their regimental appointments, in addition to any pension to which they may be entitled, with free passages as above.

22. The new organisation of Cavalry and Infantry will have effect from 1st July 1882.

23. The reduction of the regiments hereby ordered will be completed during the month of June 1882, and the transfers of men who elect to serve in other corps will be made on the 30th June 1882, under orders which will be issued by the Commander-in-Chief in India and the Governments respectively concerned.

24. Officers of the regiments to be reduced who desire to avail themselves of the offer contained in paragraph 21 should notify their intention to the Adjutant General on or before the 30th September 1882.

25. The Governor General in Council takes this opportunity to announce, with the sanction of the Secretary of State for India, the grant of good-conduct pay to non-commissioned officers as follows:—

To Duffadars and Havildars—

	Rs.
After 2 years' good service in that grade ...	1	per month.

„ 6 „ „ ...	3	„
„ 8 „ „ ...	4	„

To Naiks—

After 2 years' good service in that grade ...	1	„
„ 4 „ „ ...	2	„

26. Subsidiary orders regulating the above grant will be issued by the Commander-in-Chief in India and the Governments concerned respectively. It will take effect from the 1st of July 1882, when those non-commissioned officers who have already completed any of the above periods of service will at once receive the corresponding rate of good-conduct pay.

ORGANISATION.

No. 210.—INDIAN ARMY—

The Most Hon'ble the Governor General in Council hereby announces certain of the measures which have been determined upon, with the approval of Her Majesty's Government, in regard to the regimental organisation of the Indian Army.

2. Under the organisation now to be adopted, every Native cavalry regiment (except the four regiments of Madras Native cavalry, whose establishment will remain unaltered) will consist, as at present, of six troops organised in three squadrons, each regiment having the following establishment :—

3 Ressaldars,
3 Ressaidars,
1 Woordie-Major,
6 Jemadars,
6 Kote-Duffadars,
48 Duffadars (including 1 Farrier-Major and 1 Salootrie),
6 Trumpeters,
477 Privates (including 1 Assistant Salootrie and 6 Farriers).

In the Bombay cavalry the present establishment of commissioned and non-commissioned ranks will remain unaltered at 87, the privates being raised to 463 in number instead of to 477, the total strength in Bengal and Bombay being thus 550 of all ranks.

The establishment of the Cavalry of the Corps of Guides (Queen's Own) will remain unaltered.

3. Every Native infantry regiment will consist, as at present, of eight companies, each company having the following establishment :—

1 Subadar,
1 Jemadar,
5 Havildars,
5 Naiks,
2 Drummers,
90 Privates,

making a total per regiment of 832 Natives of all ranks.

The Madras regiments will retain their extra Havildar-Major as at present.

4. The three regiments of Assam Light Infantry will retain their present strength of 912 of all ranks. The five Goorkha regiments will also retain that strength for the present.

5. The establishment of regiments being fixed as above stated, and as the total strength of the army is to remain substantially unchanged, this measure of reorganisation involves the reduction of four regiments of cavalry and eighteen of infantry.

6. The Governor General in Council has determined that of the four cavalry regiments to be reduced, three shall be reduced in the Bengal Army, including the Punjab Frontier Force, and one in the Bombay Army. Of the eighteen regiments of infantry to be reduced, six shall be reduced in the Bengal Army, including the Punjab Frontier Force, four in the Bombay Army, and eight in the Madras Army. The present and future establishments of the Indian Army will therefore be as follows :—

	Present Estabt.	New Estabt.
Cavalry—
Bengal (excluding Cavalry of the Corps of Guides)	24	21
Madras	4	4
Bombay	7	6
	35	31
Infantry—
Bengal (including Infantry of the Corps of Guides)	61	55
Madras	40	32
Bombay	30	26
	131	113
Total ...	166	144

7. In the Bengal Presidency the following are the regiments selected for reduction :—

Cavalry.
16th Cavalry.
17th ,,
4th Punjab Cavalry.
Infantry.
34th Native Infantry.
35th ,, ,,
36th ,, ,,
37th ,, ,,
41st ,, ,,
3rd Punjab Infantry.

8. This reduction will be carried out under the orders of the Commander-in-Chief and the Punjab Government, in the following way :—

9. All Native officers, non-commissioned officers, and men who wish to remain in the service and are physically fit and otherwise well suited for it will be transferred to other regiments by troops and companies, as far as practicable, under subsidiary orders which will be issued by the Commander-in-Chief and the Punjab Government.

10. All Native officers, non-commissioned officers, and men who wish to take their discharge, or who from physical or other causes are not well suited for the service, will be discharged on the following rates of pensions and gratuities :—

I.—The superior rates of pensions specified in paragraph 611 of the Pay Code, volume II, to officers, non-commissioned officers, and men who have completed 25 years of service and upwards.

II.—The ordinary rates of pensions to all officers, non-commissioned officers, and men who have completed 14 years' service, and have less than 25 years' service, with a bonus of one month's pay (including good-conduct pay) for every two years' service.

III.—To officers, non-commissioned officers, and men of more than 10 and less than 14 years' service, two-thirds of the ordinary rate of pension and a bonus of three months' pay (including good-conduct pay).

IV.—To non-commissioned officers and men of 5 and less than 10 years' service, a gratuity of one month's pay for each year of service, together with an additional bonus of three months' pay as above.

V.—To non-commissioned officers and men of less than 5 years' service, a gratuity of six months' pay.

11. In the case of the cavalry, the gratuities will be calculated on the rates of ordinary and not net pay.

12. In those regiments in which, in consequence of the transfers made from the regiments reduced, the strength of Native officers or non-commissioned officers may become in excess of the regular authorised establishment, pensions and gratuities under the above scale may be offered to deserving Native officers and non-commissioned officers of such regiments to the extent of the numbers in excess in these ranks, so that the strength of Native officers and non-commissioned officers may thus be at once brought down to the fixed authorised establishment. Should this reduction however not be completely effected, and any supernumeraries be still left, they will be absorbed by making only two promotions for every three vacancies, every third vacancy being absorbed.

13. Native commissioned officers of cavalry regiments of 25 years' service and upwards, pensioned under the terms of paragraph 10, will receive a gratuity of 12 months' pay, in addition to the higher rate of pension.

14. Free passes by rail to their homes will be given to all officers, non-commissioned officers, and men who take their discharge on pension or gratuity under these orders.

15. In the cavalry regiments about to be reduced, where the chunda (remount) fund of a regiment after the disposal of all its horses (under subsidiary orders to be now issued) is unable to meet the entire cost of defraying the horse price of men discharged and transferred, the sums necessary for this purpose will be granted by the Government of India, under orders which will be issued hereafter.

16. In order to complete the horse price of men who are transferred to other corps, and who have not as yet paid up their full horse price in their present corps, loans will be granted, to Commanding Officers of regiments receiving men transferred, of the amount of such horse price still due, to be repaid without interest at Rs. 2 per man per mensem.

17. Such assistance will be granted to the equipment funds of cavalry regiments reduced as will permit of their paying up in the ordinary way, to men discharged, the proper value of their equipments, the sale proceeds of which will be carried to the credit of the State.

18. The certified actual cost involved in change of uniform and equipment will be allowed to soldiers transferred to other regiments. The necessary changes in the uniforms of the infantry troops transferred will be made at the public expense.

19. The following regiments of the Madras and Bombay armies have been selected by the Governments of those Presidencies respectively for reduction :—

Madras Army.

The 34th Native Infantry.
" 35th " "
" 36th " "
" 37th " "
" 38th " "
" 39th " "
" 40th " "
" 41st " "

Bombay Army.

The 3rd Sind Horse.
" 6th Native Infantry.
" 11th " "
" 15th " "
" 18th " "

20. The reductions will be carried out under the foregoing rules, as far as possible, by the transfer of soldiers from regiments to be reduced to those which are to be retained; those, however, who wish to take their discharge from the regiments reduced being allowed to do so with pensions and gratuities as above laid down.

21. Consequent upon the increase in the strength of Native regiments, the establishment of European officers will now be fixed at eight officers per regiment, or one more than the present establishment; the additional officer to be appointed in the rank of wing or squadron officer. This augmentation will at once absorb a part of the junior officers of the reduced regiments, while the total establishment of European officers serving on regimental duty with the Indian Army will remain almost unaltered. With respect to the senior officers of these regiments, the following terms are offered, under the orders of the Secretary of State for India, to such of them as may retire from the service within three months from the date of their regiments being broken up :—

I.—To officers of over 32 years' service, the pension to which they may be entitled, not in excess of 456*l.* 5*s.* a year, with the value of their Colonel's allowances on the scale allowed by G. G. O. No. 1 of 1881, together with a bonus of 18 months' staff salary of their regimental appointments and free passages to England for themselves and their families.

II.—To officers of from 20 to 32 years' service, a bonus equal to 18 months' staff salary of their regimental appointments, in addition to any pension to which they may be entitled, with free passages as above.

22. The new organisation of Cavalry and Infantry will have effect from 1st July 1882.

23. The reduction of the regiments hereby ordered will be completed during the month of June 1882, and the transfers of men who elect to serve in other corps will be made on the 30th June 1882, under orders which will be issued by the Commander-in-Chief in India and the Governments respectively concerned.

24. Officers of the regiments to be reduced who desire to avail themselves of the offer contained in paragraph 21 should notify their intention to the Adjutant General on or before the 30th September 1882.

25. The Governor General in Council takes this opportunity to announce, with the sanction of the Secretary of State for India, the grant of good-conduct pay to non-commissioned officers as follows :—

To Duffadars and Havildars—

" 6 " " ...	3 "
" 8 " " ...	4 "

To Naiks—

After 2 years' good service in that grade ...	1 "
" 4 " " ...	2 "

26. Subsidiary orders regulating the above grant will be issued by the Commander-in-Chief in India and the Governments concerned respectively. It will take effect from the 1st of July 1882, when those non-commissioned officers who have already completed any of the above periods of service will at once receive the corresponding rate of good-conduct pay.

4. Having caused an inquiry to be addressed to the Horse Guards on the subject, I have been informed that the practice in the British Army is to reckon service as qualifying for the rank of Colonel from the day after the date of the London Gazette notifying the appointment, or from the date specified in the Gazette.

5. I request that a similar practice may be adopted in calculating the service of officers of the Indian Army, the actual date borne by an appointment being taken as the commencement of the service qualifying an officer of the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel for the Brevet rank of Colonel.

6. I have also been informed that no change has been made in respect of the mode of reckoning leave as part of the period qualifying for the rank of Colonel.

Simla, the 16th June 1882.

No. 1765.—Ordered, that the following correspondence regarding the supply of black writing ink of Indian manufacture for use in Government offices in Madras be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

R. E. HAMILTON,
for Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of India.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of Madras, Financial Department, No. 374, dated 19th May 1882.

Read the following:—

No. 182, dated 10th May 1882.

From—J. G. FERRAND, Esq., Superintendent of Stationery, Madras,
To—The Chief Secretary to the Government of Madras.

In forwarding the enclosed report from the Committee for Examining Inks, I beg to add, first, that G. D. Iyah Pillai, whose tender for black ink is recommended for acceptance, is the well-known Madras Ink-maker referred to in the correspondence noted in the margin.

G. Os. 22nd February and 27th August 1881, Nos. 308 and 1578.

2. As regards price, his rate is 6 annas per dozen papers. The last invoice price of the ink-powders received from England is 1*s.* 1*d.* per dozen. Amrita Lall Roy of Calcutta, whose ink forms the subject of the Proceedings of the Government of India, communicated in Madras Government Proceedings, 28th ultimo, No. 344, just received, is one of the tenderers to supply Madras with black ink, and he offers to do so at 8 annas 3 pies per dozen papers. Iyah Pillai's ink is preferred by the Committee to his. The Calcutta price of his ink in bottle, as stated in the Proceedings of Government of India above referred to, is Rs. 2 per dozen quarts. A dozen powders produce six quarts, and the cost of a dozen quarts of Iyah Pillai's ink, exclusive of bottles, will be 12 annas.

Report from (Major E. A. BRUCE, Deputy Assistant Commissary General; C. D. MACLEANE, Esq., Acting Sub-Secretary to the Board of Revenue; Surgeon T. K. ROGERS, M.B., F.R.C.S., Chemical Examiner; E. M. PALMER, Esq., Assistant Accountant General; and J. G. FERRAND, Esq., Superintendent of Stationery) the Committee for Examining Inks, to the Chief Secretary to the Government of Madras,—dated 10th May 1882.

With reference to G. O., 31st October 1881, No. 2100, we beg to report that the following tenders were opened, at the Stationery Office on 15th February last, for the supply of black and red inks of Indian manufacture:—

Names of Tenderers.	For black ink-powder, 3,640 dozen of 1¾ ounces each paper.		For red ink-powder, 30 ounces in papers, 1 doz. = 1 oz.		Value of Tender.	Bank's receipt for deposit as security.
	Per doz. rate.	Rs. A. P. 0 10 5	Per oz. rate.	Rs. A. P. 0 13 7
					Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.
1. G. D. Iyah Pillai ...	Doz.	0 6 0	...	...	1,365 0 0	70 0 0
2. M. Narasimooloo Chetty ...	,,	0 5 0	Oz.	0 2 6	1,142 3 0	64 0 0
3. Gooerdondoss Birjubookoondoss & Co.	,,	0 6 6	,,	...	1,478 12 0	75 0 0
4. Theagaroya Moodelly ...	,,	0 6 0	Doz.	0 7 6	.....	100 0 0 Money order
5. Mr. Kelkar, Poona ...	,,	0 7 0	,,	...	.....	80 0 0 Calcutta Currency Notes
6. Amrita Lall Roy, Calcutta ...	,,	0 8 3	,,	...	.....	95 0 0

2. Narasimooloo Chetty and Theagaroya Moodelly, who alone tendered for red ink, made each a pint of his ink in our presence. The former acknowledged his powder to be fuchsine, and the latter his to be ponceau. There was thus really no tender for red ink of Indian manufacture.

3. The samples of black ink furnished with the above tenders were tried by us and tested by Dr. Rogers, Chemical Examiner, whose report on these and on the inks specified in the margin is herewith forwarded. Dr. Rogers also laid before the Committee specimens of writing executed with the various inks, which had been submitted to a considerable number of tests, showing how they had borne them. We beg to recommend the acceptance of the tender of G. D. Iyah Pillai, whose we consider to be on the whole the best of the inks tendered; and we do not think that an ink inferior to this should be supplied to public offices.

Morrell's registration black ink.
Dr. Waldie's black ink, tested under instructions domi-officially received from Government.

No. 77, dated 6th May 1882.

From—SURGEON T. K. ROGERS, M.B., F.R.C.S., F.C.S. (London), Chemical Examiner, Madras,
To—The Superintendent of Stationery, Madras.

As requested at the last meeting of the Committee, I have the honour to submit a brief abstract of the conclusions arrived at from the results of the various tests and trials which were for the most part shown to the Committee.

2. The two inks tendered in solution were both of excellent quality, but "Waldie's Black Writing Ink" was superior to "Morrell's Registration Ink."

3. The seven samples of inks tendered in powder are decidedly inferior in quality to "Morrell's" ink.

The results obtained with Iyah Pillai's ink were in every respect slightly superior to those obtained from the other six samples.

And Iyah Pillai's ink keeps much better than the other six samples, which grow mouldy after a very brief exposure.

Order thereon by the Government of Madras.

The Government sanction the acceptance of Iyah Pillai's tender for the supply of black ink. It is noted that there was no tender for red ink of Indian manufacture, the samples produced being merely fuchsine and ponceau powders.

No. 375.

Copy to the Government of India, Department of Finance and Commerce, for information.

No. 7.—The following Statute is published for general information :—

45 VIC., CAP 7.

An Act to provide, during twelve months, for the Discipline and Regulation of the Army. [28th April, 1882.]

WHEREAS the raising or keeping a standing army within the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland in time of peace, unless it be with the consent of Parliament, is against law :

And whereas it is adjudged necessary by Her Majesty, and this present Parliament, that a body of forces should be continued for the safety of the United Kingdom, and the defence of the possessions of Her Majesty's Crown, and that the whole number of such forces should consist of one hundred and thirty-two thousand nine hundred and five men, including those to be employed at the depôts in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland for the training of recruits for service at home and abroad, but exclusive of the numbers actually serving within Her Majesty's Indian possessions :

And whereas it is also judged necessary for the safety of the United Kingdom, and the defence of the possessions of this realm, that a body of Royal Marine forces should be employed in Her Majesty's fleet and naval service, under the direction of the Lord High Admiral of the United Kingdom, or the Commissioners for executing the office of Lord High Admiral aforesaid :

And whereas the said marine forces may frequently be quartered or be on shore, or sent to do duty or be on board transport ships or vessels, merchant ships or vessels, or other ships or vessels, or they may be under other circumstances in which they will not be subject to the laws relating to the government of Her Majesty's forces by sea :

And whereas no man can be forejudged of life or limb, or subjected in time of peace to any kind of punishment within this realm by martial law, or in any other manner than by the judgment of his peers, and according to the known and established laws of this realm, yet nevertheless it being requisite, for the retaining all the before-mentioned forces, and other persons subject to military law, in their duty, that an exact discipline be observed, and that persons belonging to the said forces who mutiny or stir up sedition, or desert Her Majesty's service, or are guilty of crimes and offences to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, be brought to a more exemplary and speedy punishment than the usual forms of the law will allow :

44 & 45 Vic., c. 58. And whereas the Army Act, 1881, will expire—

(a) in the United Kingdom, the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man, on the thirtieth day of April one thousand eight hundred and eighty-two; and

(b) elsewhere in Europe, inclusive of Malta, and in the West Indies and America, on the thirty-first day of July one thousand eight hundred and eighty-two; and

(c) elsewhere, whether within or without Her Majesty's dominions, on the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and eighty-two;

Be it therefore enacted by the Queen's Most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows :—

Short title.

1. This Act may be cited as the Army (Annual) Act, 1882.

Army Act (44 & 45 Vic., c. 58) to be in force for specified times.

2. The Army Act, 1881, shall be and remain in force during the periods hereinafter mentioned, and no longer, unless otherwise provided by Parliament; that is to say :—

and the day from which the Army Act, 1881, is continued in any place by this Act is in relation to that place referred to in this Act as the commencement of this Act.

44 & 45 Vic., c. 58.

The Army Act, 1881, while in force shall apply to persons subject to military law, whether within or without Her Majesty's dominions.

44 & 45 Vic., c. 58.

A person subject to military law shall not be exempted from the provisions of the Army Act, 1881, by reason only that the number of the forces for the time being in the service of Her Majesty, exclusive of the marine forces, is either greater or less than the number hereinbefore mentioned.

3. There shall be paid to the keeper of a victualling house for the accommodation provided by him in pursuance of the Army Act, 1881, the prices specified in the schedule to this Act.

Amendments of Army Act, 1881.

Correction of misprints in 44 & 45 Vic., c. 58.

4. Whereas the misprints hereinafter mentioned occur in the Army Act, 1881, and it is expedient to correct the same:

Be it therefore enacted as follows :—

(1) In section forty-six of the Army Act, 1881, the words "imprisonment exceeding seven days" shall be substituted for the words "punishment exceeding seven days," in the ninth sub-section.

(2) In section eighty-seven of the Army Act, 1881, the words "a proclamation in pursuance of the enactments relating to the calling out of the reserve on permanent service" shall be substituted for "a proclamation in pursuance of this Act" in the first sub-section.

Removal of doubts as to section 90 (5) of 44 & 45 Vic., c. 58, as to discharged soldiers.

5. Whereas doubts may arise as to whether sub-section five of section ninety of the Army Act, 1881, applies to all soldiers of the regular forces when discharged, or only to such of those soldiers as are specified in the foregoing provisions of that section, and it is expedient to remove such doubts: Be it therefore enacted as follows :—

In section ninety of the Army Act, 1881, the words "as mentioned in the second sub-section of this section" shall be added after the words "or his re-engagement" in the fifth sub-section.

Printing of amendments. See 33 & 34 Vic., c. 101.

6. In all copies of the Army Act, 1881, which may be printed after the commencement of this Act the words by this Act directed to be substituted for other words shall be printed therein in lieu of the latter words, and the words directed by this Act to be added shall be added thereto.

ORDER—By the Government of India, Public Works Department.

Read the following letter and enclosure :—

No. 132 R.S., dated 7th June 1882.

From—The Government of India, Public Works Department,

To—The Government of Madras, Public Works Department.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of the following Proceedings of the Government of Madras :—

Public Works Department Proceedings, March 1882, Nos. 31-33,
" " " April " " 9-11,
" " " " " " 12-14,

containing indents for stores required for the Madras and South Indian Railways.

2. It would appear, from a perusal of the items, that several articles are still being indented for from England that can be obtained, as cheaply and of as good quality, of indigenous manufacture. I am therefore directed to request that the Consulting Engineer for Railways may be instructed to arrange with the Agents of the Railway Companies to utilise, as far as possible, the products of this country rather than drawing their whole supplies of stores from England.

3. The accompanying list of articles, extracted from the items in the abovenoted indents, show such stores as are known to be manufactured, either wholly or in part, in India ; and doubtless were the present manufactures of the Madras Presidency accurately known, other items might have been added to the list. It is quite probable that the distance of some of these centres of supply from Madras renders the prices of such stores prohibitive ; but the list will indicate to the Consulting Engineer, when future indents are preferred for sanction, where articles of Indian manufacture can be obtained.

List of articles entered in the indent for Public Works Stores, Madras Railway, which, on the information before the Government of India, can be had of local manufacture.

the undersigned has received instructions from the Government of India to arrange for the discharge of such notes as are enfaced for payment of interest at any Mofussil Treasury in India, at the Treasury to which they are enfaced.

Accordingly, if any holder desires to receive payment in this way, in preference to presenting his note for discharge at the Calcutta Public Debt Office (where alone payment is legally claimable), he is to receipt his note for discharge in the following form:—

"Received, through the Treasury Officer of Rupees (in words), in payment of this note, together with overdue interest up till the date of discharge (quoting above date), Rupees (in words).

(Signed) "

The Treasury Officer will forward the note so received to the Public Debt Office, Calcutta—from which, if the payment is passed, he will receive a special form of order, on his own Treasury, in favor of the holder of the note. This order will be paid on the holder's receipt.

The above directions apply also to notes of which the interest is paid at the Public Debt Offices of Madras and Bombay.

This arrangement ceases to have force six months after the date fixed for the discharge of each loan. After that interval, notes will be payable only at the Public Debt Office, Calcutta.

With reference to the notification of the Government of India, No. 4031 of the 3rd November 1881, corrected by No. 4185, of the 12th November 1881, directing the discharge of the 5 per cent. debentures of 1867, payable on 1st June 1882, the undersigned has received instructions from the Government of India to arrange for the discharge of the debentures at any treasury at which the interest on them may, in each case, have been payable before 1882.

Notes so presented for discharge should be receipted in the following form:—

The interest being first drawn under the usual procedure.

The Treasury Officer will forward the debentures thus receipted to the Public Debt Office, Calcutta, Madras or Bombay (according to the place of discharge mentioned in the body of the debenture)—from which, if the payment is passed, he will receive a special form of order on his own Treasury in favor of the holder. This order will be paid on the holder's receipt.

This arrangement ceases to have force on 1st December 1882, but does not affect the stipulation under which debentures are receivable during March, April, and May, at any Treasury, in satisfaction of any public revenue, dues or taxes.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

No. 12 of 1882.

ENGLISH CHANNEL.

New Eddystone Lighthouse.

The Trinity House, London, has issued the following:—

"Notice is hereby given, that at the latter end of March, 1882, the character of this Light will be altered, as advertized on the 12th February, 1881, becoming thenceforward a White Double-flashing Half-minute Light, showing two successive flashes of about 2½ seconds duration, divided by an eclipse of about 4 seconds, the second flash being followed by an eclipse of about 21 seconds. The Light will be visible all round the horizon, [illegible] in clear weather at a distance of 17½ miles.

"A White Fixed Subsidiary Light will also be shown from a window in the Lighthouse below the flashing light, to mark the Hand Deeps. This will extend over a sector of 16° from N. 32° W. to N. 48° W. (Magnetic, from the Lighthouse).

Also,

"A large Bell will be sounded during foggy weather twice in quick succession every half minute; thus assimilating the character of the Sound Signal to that of the Light.

"Note.—Mariners will observe that the Light on the Casket Rocks, 78 miles S.S.E. from the Eddystone, is similar in character, but shows three flashes in quick succession, instead of two.

"Further notice will be published when the changes are effected."

NOTICE.

Waste Lands available for Planters in the Tavoy District.

Waste lands, covered at present with forest, bamboos or grass, are available for plantations of coffee, tea, cinchona, or spices at altitudes varying from 100 feet to 6,800 feet above the sea in the Tavoy district. This region is between the 13th and 14th parallels of north latitude, and the rainfall ranges from 190 to 220 inches a year. The lands are mostly within 30 to 50 miles of the steamer station of Thayetchoung on the Tavoy river. Mail steamers ply between Thayetchoung and Moulmein or Rangoon once a week inwards and outwards.

II.—Grants of land in lots ranging from 100 to 1,200 acres can be had for planting tea, coffee, cinchona, or spices on application to the Deputy Commissioner of Tavoy. Such grants will be made in accordance with the "Burma Land and Revenue Act, 1876," and with the rules sanctioned thereunder by the Governor General of India in Council. Copies of the Act and rules can be obtained by intending planters on application to the Deputy Commissioner of Tavoy, the Commissioner of Tenasserim at Moulmein, or the Secretariat, Rangoon.

III.—In addition to the concessions and conditions laid down in the Act and rules, the following special concessions will be made to persons taking up land for plantations of coffee, tea, cinchona, or spices in Tavoy, namely,—

(1) A grantee must bring under cultivation one-third of his grant within 12 years from the date of his obtaining the grant. If, after the expiration of 12 years, any surplus uncultivated land, in excess of two acres of waste for each acre of cultivated land, shall remain on the grant, such surplus waste shall then revert to Government; and the grantee shall have no further claim or right in the surplus which has so reverted.

(2) A grantee will not be liable to pay any land revenue or any price for the land of his grant until the end of the tenth year after he enters on possession, provided that he takes bonâ fide steps to cultivate a reasonable proportion of the grant with coffee, tea, cinchona, or spices. In the event of any grantee desiring a more precise definition of a "reasonable proportion," the Chief Commissioner may decide beforehand in each case what proportion of the grant ought to be thus cultivated in each year.

(3) After the end of the tenth year the grantee will be liable to pay land revenue at the rate of Rs. 1-4-0 per acre and cesses at the rate of two annas per acre on one-third of his grant up to the year 1900 A. D.; after the expiration of such year he will be liable to pay for one-third of his grant the same revenue rate as is paid for garden lands in the nearest revenue circle where a garden rate obtains.

(4) A grantee will not be called upon to pay anything for timber, bamboos, or grass which he may cut upon his grant, provided he takes bonâ fide steps as aforesaid to cultivate coffee, tea, cinchona, or spices.

IV.—The only payment which a grantee will have to make on receiving his grant will be eight annas an acre for the cost of survey and demarcation. In consideration of such payment the Deputy Commissioner will cause a survey to be made of the grant, will furnish the grantee with a copy of such survey, and will cause boundary marks to be erected at suitable points in the outer boundary of the grant.

V.—The wishes of applicants will be met as far as possible in regard to the situation and shape of their grants. But ordinarily—

(a) no grant will be given where the Forest Department intend to make a forest reserve;

(b) no grant will be given on such a place as will unduly circumscribe the extension of cultivation of the grazing grounds of any neighbouring village or hamlet;

(c) grants facing a road or navigable stream will have to be of a depth double the length facing such road or navigable stream;

(d) small strips will be reserved leading to landing places for the benefit of neighbouring villages and grantees.

VI.—The Government is now spending much larger sums than heretofore on roads in the Tavoy district. If planters settle in the district, further funds will be allotted for roads from their neighbourhood to the steamer station at either Tavoy or Thayetchoung.

VII.—In order to encourage pioneers in the coffee and cinchona enterprise in Tavoy, the Government will pay to the first four grantees who begin bonâ fide planting operations Rs. 15 per head for every Indian or Chinese coolie, male or female, over 16 years of age, who may be settled and housed on their plantations before the 1st March 1885.

VIII.—In any case of doubt regarding the bonâ fide character of operations for the purposes of concessions III and VII, the Deputy Commissioner will decide, and his decision will be subject to appeal to the Commissioner of Tenasserim, whose decision will be final.

IX.—All minerals and metals under and within the lands granted under these rules are reserved by Government, together with a right to enter upon and resume such portion of land as may be necessary for examining or working mines upon payment of just compensation to the grantee for loss of, or injury done to, the surface.

G. D. BURGESS,
Secy. to the Chief Commr., British Burma.

NOTICE.

Waste Lands available for Planters in the Tavoy District.

Waste lands, covered at present with forest, bamboos or grass, are available for plantations of coffee, tea, cinchona, or spices at altitudes varying from 100 feet to 6,800 feet above the sea in the Tavoy district. This region is between the 13th and 14th parallels of north latitude, and the rainfall ranges from 190 to 220 inches a year. The lands are mostly within 30 to 50 miles of the steamer station of Thayetchoung on the Tavoy river. Mail steamers ply between Thayetchoung and Moulmein or Rangoon once a week inwards and outwards.

II.—Grants of land in lots ranging from 100 to 1,200 acres can be had for planting tea, coffee, cinchona, or spices on application to the Deputy Commissioner of Tavoy. Such grants will be made in accordance with the "Burma Land and Revenue Act, 1876," and with the rules sanctioned thereunder by the Governor General of India in Council. Copies of the Act and rules can be obtained by intending planters on application to the Deputy Commissioner of Tavoy, the Commissioner of Tenasserim at Moulmein, or the Secretariat, Rangoon.

III.—In addition to the concessions and conditions laid down in the Act and rules, the following special concessions will be made to persons taking up land for plantations of coffee, tea, cinchona, or spices in Tavoy, namely,—

(1) A grantee must bring under cultivation one-third of his grant within 12 years from the date of his obtaining the grant. If, after the expiration of 12 years, any surplus uncultivated land, in excess of two acres of waste for each acre of cultivated land, shall remain on the grant, such surplus waste shall then revert to Government; and the grantee shall have no further claim or right in the surplus which has so reverted.

(2) A grantee will not be liable to pay any land revenue or any price for the land of his grant until the end of the tenth year after he enters on possession, provided that he takes bonâ fide steps to cultivate a reasonable proportion of the grant with coffee, tea, cinchona, or spices. In the event of any grantee desiring a more precise definition of a "reasonable proportion," the Chief Commissioner may decide beforehand in each case what proportion of the grant ought to be thus cultivated in each year.

(3) After the end of the tenth year the grantee will be liable to pay land revenue at the rate of Rs. 1-4-0 per acre and cesses at the rate of two annas per acre on one-third of his grant up to the year 1900 A. D.; after the expiration of such year he will be liable to pay for one-third of his grant the same revenue rate as is paid for garden lands in the nearest revenue circle where a garden rate obtains.

(4) A grantee will not be called upon to pay anything for timber, bamboos, or grass which he may cut upon his grant, provided he takes bonâ fide steps as aforesaid to cultivate coffee, tea, cinchona, or spices.

IV.—The only payment which a grantee will have to make on receiving his grant will be eight annas an acre for the cost of survey and demarcation. In consideration of such payment the Deputy Commissioner will cause a survey to be made of the grant, will furnish the grantee with a copy of such survey, and will cause boundary marks to be erected at suitable points in the outer boundary of the grant.

V.—The wishes of applicants will be met as far as possible in regard to the situation and shape of their grants. But ordinarily—

(a) no grant will be given where the Forest Department intend to make a forest reserve;

(b) no grant will be given on such a place as will unduly circumscribe the extension of cultivation of the grazing grounds of any neighbouring village or hamlet;

(c) grants facing a road or navigable stream will have to be of a depth double the length facing such road or navigable stream;

(d) small strips will be reserved leading to landing places for the benefit of neighbouring villages and grantees.

VI.—The Government is now spending much larger sums than heretofore on roads in the Tavoy district. If planters settle in the district, further funds will be allotted for roads from their neighbourhood to the steamer station at either Tavoy or Thayetchoung.

VII.—In order to encourage pioneers in the coffee and cinchona enterprise in Tavoy, the Government will pay to the first four grantees who begin bonâ fide planting operations Rs. 15 per head for every Indian or Chinese coolie, male or female, over 16 years of age, who may be settled and housed on their plantations before the 1st March 1885.

VIII.—In any case of doubt regarding the bonâ fide character of operations for the purposes of concessions III and VII, the Deputy Commissioner will decide, and his decision will be subject to appeal to the Commissioner of Tenasserim, whose decision will be final.

IX.—All minerals and metals under and within the lands granted under these rules are reserved by Government, together with a right to enter upon and resume such portion of land as may be necessary for examining or working mines upon payment of just compensation to the grantee for loss of, or injury done to, the surface.

G. D. BURGESS,
Secy. to the Chief Commr., British Burma.

The 6th April 1882.
