No. 378.

With reference to Notification issued from the Financial Department, dated 22nd May 1882 (published in the Calcutta Gazette of 26th idem), of which the following is the text—

"Notice is hereby given that the Accountant General has been empowered to comply at his discretion with applications from the holders of Promissory Notes of the Supreme Government residing in the interior who may desire to receive the interest accruing upon their Notes from any Mofussil Treasury. When the interest of any Note may be so made payable at a Mofussil Treasury, an order to the effect will be written across the face of the Note, and parties desiring to alter the place of payment will be required to renew the Notes in the usual manner at the Office of the Accountant General at the Presidency."

it is hereby notified that the payment at Mofussil Treasuries of interest upon Promissory Notes of the Government of India is made subject to the following conditions; that is to say—

First.—That the person to whose, or to whose agent's, receipt payment is made, is either the person in whose name the Note was originally issued, or one who derives his title from the said person by a regular chain of endorsements of the form described in para. 2 below.

Second.—That all the endorsements upon the Note, whether of transfer or of payment of interest, are clear and distinct, that there are no cross-endorsements, and that there remains room for a clear and distinct endorsement for renewal.

Third.—That the Note itself is not mutilated or torn. (Division into an upper and a lower half does not reckon as mutilation if the two halves are firmly rejoined.)

2. The form of endorsement referred to in the first condition must be one of the three following:—

in which A. B. the endorser is either a personal name, without addition of official capacity or of legal status (such as administrator, &c.), or is the name or usual signature of a well-known Bank; A. B. being the holder according to the tenor of the Note and endorsements, preceding that signed by himself.

3. If the person who presents the Note for payment of interest claims in any other way or under an endorsement of any other form than that above specified, or if the endorsements are not clear and distinct, or the Note mutilated or torn, the Treasury Officer is to refuse payment of interest and to require the claimant, if he desires such payment to be continued, to take the measures prescribed in the rules for obtaining a renewed Note in his own favour.

4. It should be noted that if A. B. is, according to the tenor of Note or endorsements, holder in any other than his personal capacity, an endorsement is not legally valid if it is made in his personal capacity only, whereas, if it is made in any other capacity, the Treasury Officer must, in conformity with the present orders, require renewal to be applied for. One effect of this order therefore is to cause reference to be made to the Public Debt Office in every case of endorsement by such a holder.

No. 389.—Surgeon J. Scully, having been appointed to officiate as Deputy Assay Master, Bombay Mint, received charge of the office from Surgeon C. M. Thompson, before noon, on the 10th January 1884.

20. In the absence of hollow iron masts and other means of ventilating the hold, there shall be fitted at least four cowl-headed tubes leading from the lower hold to the open air on the upper deck.

21. Besides hatches, stern ports, and side scuttles, and exclusive of openings into the engine room, stoke holes, coal-bunkers, collision compartments, and screw tunnel, there shall be ventilating openings in the upper deck which must be capable of being kept open in all weathers, and of which the total area shall not be less than about 14 square feet to every 100 persons, and such openings shall be as equally distributed as possible, both sky-lighted air shafts and cowl-headed tubes being fitted according to the circumstances and requirements of the case.

22. Every cowl-headed tube shall be provided with a strong plug for use, if necessary, in bad weather.

23. Every ship having an iron upper deck shall have a wooden deck laid over it.

24. Each hatchway shall be provided with a large tarpaulin tent that can be spread well over it, securely fastened, so as to keep out rain and let in fresh air, and be rolled up out of the way in fine weather; and shall also be fitted with a strong iron or wooden A-shaped frame for the support of the tent.

25. Every ship shall have poop, quarter and main deck awnings complete and in good order, at least six life buoys, and four windsails.

26. (e) Sanitary and miscellaneous regulations.—Every ship shall be fitted with not less than two latrines sufficiently screened from public view and readily accessible, and with one additional such latrine for every hundred passengers, or part of that number, carried in excess of 100. The latrines shall be provided with not less than two seats for each 100 passengers. Each latrine shall be firmly secured in a convenient and accessible place on the upper deck, and close against the bulwarks, so that the soil-shoot of the latrine floor may lead directly out of a port or other opening and well clear of the ship's side. No latrines shall be allowed in the between-decks. Each latrine shall be divided into separate and private compartments. Each compartment not more than 2 feet square shall have a separate entrance with door, and shall be fitted with a seat, or a pair of foot-boards having a free opening or hole in the centre. Each such opening shall communicate directly with the floor beneath, common to all the openings.

The floor continued into the shoot, and having a good fall towards it, shall be made either of a continuous sheet of metal, or of wood continuously lined with sheet lead or zinc. The floors and shoots of the latrines shall be painted with coal tar, liberally laid on. There should be a troughed opening at each of the ends or sides of the latrines a little above the level of the floor, but below that of the seats or foot-boards, to enable the floors to be freely flushed with water from the outside. Every compartment shall be well ventilated by means of openings that do not interfere with privacy; and shall be sufficiently lighted at night by means of a lantern to each latrine that should be so fitted as to throw light into all the compartments of the latrine.

A proportion of such compartments, in any case not less than one, if there be any females among the passengers, shall be set apart for the exclusive use of females, such proportion corresponding, as nearly as may be, to the proportion of female to male passengers.

27. Every ship shall be provided with not less than two places for washing sufficiently screened from public view, whereof a full proportion, as prescribed in the case of latrine compartment, shall be set apart, exclusively for females. A sufficient number of hand-pumps shall also be provided for supplying sea water for purposes of ablution.

28. Every ship shall be provided with not less than two cabooses or cooking ranges on deck, properly housed and covered, to which passengers can have ready access. The ranges shall be made of substantial plate iron, lined inside with bricks and raised at least 4 inches from the deck, with an outlet or chimney at top for the escape of smoke. Each range shall contain five or six cooking places, and an additional range shall be provided for every two hundred passengers carried in excess of one hundred. Cooking on board in the passengers' own stoves is prohibited.

Every ship shall provide caboose and boiler accommodation sufficient to cook for the total number of passengers to be fed by the ship; a corresponding reduction will then be admissible in the number of cabooses required under the rules for those who cook for themselves.

29. The crew of the ship shall not be allowed to use the cooking ranges or latrines set apart for passengers during the period passengers are on board, but shall be provided with a separate cooking range and latrine.

30. Strong ladders shall be provided for every hatchway used as such and not only as a ventilator, and as additional means for women and children to hold on by, besides hand-rails, knotted hand ropes should be fastened conveniently near the ladders.

31. Hooks for hanging the required number of lanterns shall be fixed at convenient distances apart.

32. The space to be occupied by the passengers must be clear, thoroughly clean, and dry; and nothing must be slung up or stowed away between the beams.

33. Bamboos, ropes, or strong rails shall be securely fastened fore and aft to the midship stanchions, so that the passengers may have something on which to hang their clothes or bundles, and to depend on for support when the ship rolls.

34. No timber of any kind shall be allowed on the upper deck but only necessary fittings properly secured.

35. The passengers should be required to air their clothing, blankets, &c., as often as possible.

36. Drinking water shall be served out by means of pumps or from taps with lock and key fitted to the water tanks.

37. The water of any tank pronounced bad by the medical officer shall be immediately rejected and pumped out.

38. A set of water vessels, such as buckets and tin mugs, required by topases or others for use in the latrines shall be exclusively set apart for such purposes; and they shall be marked or painted so as to be clearly distinguishable from those used for cooking or drinking purposes.

Preliminary.

The circumstances under which the Budget for 1884-85 has been framed, have necessarily required exceptional caution. During the year 1883-84 the management of the Indian finances changed hands; a change which, occurring, as it did, in the latter half of the financial year, renders it obviously advisable that, so far as possible, and unless under extraordinary circumstances, the existing order of things should not be materially disturbed, and postpones to a later time the consideration of projects which otherwise might have received present attention. But, apart from this, there is an essential reason why at the present moment the policy of those entrusted with the Indian finances should be still rather a policy of observation than of action. I allude to the effect on those finances of the changes introduced in 1882-83 in the great departments of Customs and Salt. In the course of his Financial Statement for 1883-84, Sir Evelyn Baring observed (para. 220), "The consideration of any further measure "of fiscal reform must be postponed. Last year a favourable opportunity pre-"sented itself for the execution of some very large and beneficial improvements "in the fiscal system; this year the state of the case is different, the financial "position is perfectly sound, but the situation is one in which great caution is "required. We have to look, not only to the circumstances of the immediate "moment, but also to the contingencies which may arise in future years." Further on, he added that "the Estimates for 1883-84 have been very cautiously "framed," and there was "every reason to believe that the country was well "able to cope with whatever financial difficulties the future might have in "store," (para. 224); and again—"On every ground, therefore, the present moment is a time when great caution should be exercised. Under these circumstances the Government, after full consideration, is of opinion that the wisest course to adopt will be to make no changes in the existing fiscal system, but to allow more time to elapse with a view to watching the effect of those reforms which have already been effected" (para. 228).

Preliminary.

Changes in administration of finances during 1883-84, and decrease in Opium Estimates for 1884-85, render necessary a continuance of the caution enjoined by Sir Evelyn Baring in the Financial Statement, 1883-84.

2. Sir Evelyn Baring, at the time he wrote, had in his mind, among other subjects, the prospects of the opium revenue during the year 1884-85. It was already known that the crop of 1883-84 was very deficient, and that the receipts from opium during 1884-85 were certain to be short. The estimated net decrease under this head, in 1884-85, as compared with the Revised Estimate of 1883-84, is not less than £1,378,400. In spite of this decrease, however, the general receipts have so expanded as to enable us to meet expenditure and provide a small surplus without having recourse to further taxation. While, therefore, the abnormal condition of that important source of revenue requires this year a continuance of the "great caution" emphatically recommended in 1883-84 by Sir Evelyn Baring, the general forecast of my predecessor has so far been eminently justified. Results have shown that, notwithstanding the large remissions of salt and customs and other revenue in 1882-83, amounting in round figures to three millions (conventional sterling), and in the face of a falling off in the net opium revenue of the ensuing year of £1,378,400 as compared with the Revised Estimate, the revenue and expenditure balance themselves without the necessity of recourse to any starving or material reduction of any of the public services. The immediate cause of these satisfactory results, (which must be sought for, ultimately, in the great reforms in Indian finance introduced and developed by Sir John Strachey, and vigorously carried on by my predecessor), will be fully explained elsewhere in the course of these observations; but it follows from the above remarks that it is not my intention in this my first Statement, and at a time when one of our chief sources of revenue has so largely failed us, to enter into a discussion of any of the problems with reference to the Indian finances which are awaiting early treatment. Questions have arisen, for example, regarding the License Tax and the Stamp Duties, which during the ensuing year will require full consideration. But, for the reasons I have given, it would in my judgment be premature and injudicious to attempt at this moment a solution of any of them. I shall limit myself, therefore, to the customary review of the Accounts of 1882-83, to an analysis of the Revised Estimates of 1883-84 (with such remarks as are necessary to enable the public fully to understand the progress of the finances during the year now closing, and the position at the present moment), and, finally, to the Estimates of 1884-85, with a notice of the considerations on which have been based any considerable modifications under the several heads.

The figures in this Statement are as usual given "in conventional sterling," that is to say, £=₹10, unless where the contrary is expressly stated.

Changes in form of Statements appended to Budget.

3. A few words of warning are necessary here with regard to certain changes of classification which have been introduced into the accounts.

4. It has hitherto been the practice, in the case of State Railways, to show in the Estimates and Accounts gross earnings on the receipt side and expenses of working and maintenance on the expenditure side; while, in the case of the Guaranteed Railways, only net traffic receipts were shown on the receipt side, and interest and profits, &c., on the expenditure side. When a Guaranteed Railway is purchased by the State it enters into the class of State Railways, and there are obvious difficulties in dealing with it any longer as if it were a Guaranteed Railway.

Changes in Accounts of 1882-83 and Estimates of 1883-84 and 1884-85, in mode of showing expenditure and earnings of Guaranteed Railways purchased by the State.

5. After the East Indian Railway was purchased, it continued, however, to be treated in the Estimates and Accounts in the manner in which Guaranteed Railways are treated, and this plan was followed in the Estimates for 1883-84 published with the Budget Statement of March last. It has since been decided by the Secretary of State that Guaranteed lines purchased by the Secretary of State shall be treated in this respect in future as if they were State Railways, and the Accounts of 1882-83 have been made up in accordance with this order, which is also followed in the Revised Estimates of 1883-84 and the Budget Estimates of 1884-85. The effect of this change is to augment the total revenue and the total expenditure when a Guaranteed Railway becomes the property of Government, without in any way, of course, influencing the final result.

Changes in headings of Productive Public Works (Revenue Account) Expenditure side.

6. It has also been found desirable to alter the headings on the expenditure side in the group of Productive Public Works (Revenue Account). In future the headings will be as follows:—

Expenditure on Productive P. W. (Revenue Account)—

36.—State Railways (Working Expenses).
East Indian Railway (Working Expenses and Surplus Profits).
37.—Guaranteed Railways (Surplus Profits, Land, and Supervision).
38.—Irrigation and Navigation (Working expenses).
39.—Charges in respect of Capital.
(a) Interest on Debt—
State Railways.
East Indian Railway.
Irrigation and Navigation..
(b) Annuities in purchase of Guaranteed Railways (including Sinking Funds).
(c) Guaranteed Railways Interest.

Budget Estimate of 1883-84 recast according to revised classification.

7. To facilitate comparison, the Budget Estimates of 1883-84 have been recast according to the classification adopted in the Revised Estimates of the year, and are published as Appendix II to this Statement.

Comparative Statement of Revenue and Expenditure from 1871-72 to 1883-84 re-published with certain modifications and brought down to 1884-85.

8. It may also be noted here that with the Financial Statement of 1883-84, a general Comparative Statement of Revenue and Expenditure for the years 1871-72 to 1883-84 was published as Appendix III. Examination of the figures in the Public Works Department which, at the time of the publication of the Statement, was not yet complete, has since rendered it possible to determine how much of the interest on the whole debt of India which was shown in one figure as Interest on Ordinary Debt in the Accounts of 1871-72 to 1875-76, (both years inclusive), belongs properly to the head of Productive Public Works. It also became possible to settle differences between the Civil and Public Works Accounts in the matter of classification, and to eliminate the debits and their corresponding credits arising out of cross transactions that occurred between Imperial, Provincial, and Local. In view of the above and other alterations, it is deemed necessary to republish the Comparative Statement, classified and arranged according to the plan now adopted in the Accounts, and brought forward to the year 1884-85. The statement is accordingly reproduced as Appendix III.

Accounts for 1882-83.

9. The Accounts of the year 1882-83 give the following results:—

Revenue	70,125,231
Expenditure chargeable thereon	69,418,598
Surplus	706,633

Resumé of chief points in Accounts, 1882-83.

10. The result cannot be considered as other than most satisfactory, when it is recollected that the surplus on the Budget Estimates of the year was only £285,000, that the Government of India was suddenly called on during the year to bear a heavy expenditure on account of the war in Egypt, and that the item of exchange considerably exceeded the Estimate.

A full explanation of the causes of increase and decrease will be found in the Appropriation Audit Report, to be published in the Gazette of India of 15th instant.

It will be sufficient to say in this place that there were large and satisfactory increases under Land Revenue £389,047, Salt £128,781, Excise £278,561, Customs 115,119, Forest £129,228 in the Civil Branch. Productive Public Works were better on the net account by £86,400; and this improvement was shown, although the amount of Land Revenue due to Productive Public Works was reduced in the actuals from that shown in the Estimates by transferring £215,900 from the Productive head to that of ordinary Land Revenue.

Excluding war expenditure the actual receipts and expenditure connected with the Army closely follow the Estimates.

The ordinary receipts proved to be £139,500 in excess of the Budget Estimate, and the ordinary expenditure to be £10,400 in excess of it.

The expenditure on account of the expedition to Egypt proved to be £1,284,000, and the receipts in connection with it (chiefly the English contribution of £500,000 (true sterling)), £584,700; the net charge in the accounts of the year was therefore £699,300.

Exchange was worse net by £306,400, of which £165,300 occurs under Secretary of State's bills and is due to the average rate of exchange falling below 1*s.* 8*d.*, the rate adopted in the Budget, and £114,000 is due to transactions connected with the Southern Mahratta Railway.

Revised and Budget Estimates, 1883-84.

General Remarks on the Revised Estimates for 1883-84.

11. The Budget and Revised Estimates for 1883-84 compare as follows:—

Budget* Estimates—
Total Revenue	69,022,000
Total Expenditure chargeable thereon	68,565,000
Surplus	457,000
Revised Estimates—
Total Revenue	70,569,900
Total Expenditure chargeable thereon	70,298,500
Surplus	271,400

Surplus of the year reduced by special and temporary causes.

12. It will be seen that the surplus on the Revised Estimates is actually less than the surplus on the Budget Estimates, but the deterioration is only apparent. The Revised Estimates provide for the remittance to the Secretary of State of £1,500,000 (true sterling) in addition to the drawings of the year as originally estimated, and this adds about £346,000 to the expenditure of the year under the head of Exchange; the Revised Estimates also provide for the payment of £1,000,000 (true sterling) to the War Office on account of arrears of non-effective charges connected with the portion of the British Army serving in India; another sum of £1,000,000 added to the expenditure. The expenditure of the year has thus been increased from temporary and special causes by no less than £1,346,000. Apart from these causes the surplus would have been £1,617,400, a very remarkable increase over the surplus of the Budget Estimate, namely, £457,000. It is unnecessary at present to enter at any length into an explanation of the causes which have led to the claim on account of arrears of non-effective Army charges. Correspondence on the subject is still continuing between the Government of India and Her Majesty's Government, and doubtless in due course will be published. It will be sufficient to explain here that prior to 1822 the East India Company was not called on to pay anything for non-effective charges on account of the portion of the British Army serving in India, but that from 1822 to 1861 the rule which governed the division of these charges between England and India was one of a fixed payment by India to England of £60,000 a year; that from 1861 to 1870 this latter rule was abandoned in favour of a capitation payment; and finally, that in 1870 the principle of a capitation payment was abandoned in favour of a system under which the capitalised value of the share of the pensions chargeable against Indian Revenues is paid by the Indian to the English Treasury. Thus if a soldier is discharged on pension after serving a portion of his time in India, the latter country is held to be liable for a share of his pension, bearing the same ratio to his whole pension that the period of his service in India bears to his whole service, and the capital value of the share of the pension chargeable to India is paid over to the English Treasury, which then becomes liable for the whole pension. The system introduced in 1870 is the system in force at present, and owing to delay at home in preparing the intricate calculations necessary before presenting the final accounts, arrears have accumulated, to the payment of which the million sterling above referred to will be devoted. The calculation of the amount payable by India is necessarily very complicated; as it depends largely on the death rate of special classes, for whom special life tables had not been constructed, and because the Indian Government is entitled to set-offs and credits of various kinds. It was known, therefore, that the calculations were in arrears, and that payments had not been made of the full sums that would ultimately be claimed, but the Government of India was wholly unprepared for the magnitude of the claims, (nearly 2¾ millions true sterling), suddenly made against it.

Proposals have been made to Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India for the payment of the large amount of arrears still outstanding, as well as of current charges, under a system which will not lead to any increase of expenditure over the sum originally provided in the Estimates of 1883-84 on this account. It has been possible to propose an arrangement of this nature, because it is expected that, owing to the short service system, the sums due on account of these non-effective charges will be reduced in future years. No answer to this proposal has yet been received from the Home Government.

Increase of Revenue over Estimate, 1883-84.

13. The increase under almost all the principal heads of revenue during 1883-84 is most satisfactory. Before proceeding to analyse the figures which make up these totals, a general review of the causes of increase will assist in enabling us to understand what the broad results of the year have been. Thus, under the principal heads of revenue, that is to say, under Land Revenue, Opium, Salt, Stamps, Excise, Provincial Rates, and Forest, there is an increase over the Budget Estimates of little more than £800,000, indicating a continuance of material prosperity throughout the country; while under Productive Public Works—(Revenue Account), including State Railways, the East Indian Railway, and Guaranteed Railways, the net increase amounts to £390,900.

14. Nothing shows more strikingly than the last figures, what an important part the Railway receipts are now taking in the Indian finances, and how largely those finances are indebted to the export trade for the elasticity which has enabled them in 1883-84 to meet an increased expenditure due to special causes of £1,346,000, and, at the same time, to present a surplus of £271,400.

15. The increase in the consumption of salt may be judged from these comparative figures:—

Comparative consumption of salt, 1881-82, 1883-84.

Consumption of Salt during the eleven months from March 1st, 1883, to January 31st, 1884, compared with the corresponding period of the year 1881-82.

16. The following shows the increase or decrease in consumption of salt for the eleven corresponding months of each year from 1874-75, as compared with the previous year:—

General increase and decrease of consumption of Salt from 1874-75 to 1884-85.

„ 1883 „ 1884	+ 973,000

Increased consumption of 11 months represents 51 lakhs increased revenue.

This increase of consumption in 11 months of 1883-84 over the corresponding months of 1881-82 represents, at ₹ 2 per maund, an increased revenue of rather more than 51 lakhs of rupees.

17. In his Financial Statement for 1883-84 (para. 111) Sir E. Baring calculated the increased consumption at that date as equivalent to an additional revenue of £320,600, adding that "to the extent of this sum, therefore, it may be said that the loss of revenue consequent on the reduction of duty (£1,400,000) has been recouped by the increased consumption of eleven months." He went on to say (para. 116), "Should the same rate of increase continue, the revenue, at the reduced rate of duty, will, in less than three years from the present time, stand at the same figure as it did prior to the reduction of the duty." The increase, though very considerable, has not been at the rate of 1882-83, but it is still steadily progressive. From the following figures will be seen the net increase taken in the Estimates and the figures of Actuals or Revised Estimates for each year from 1882-83:—

	Estimates. Net revenue.	Actuals.
1882-83	5,410,000	5,728,751
1883-84	5,620,700	5,788,300 (Revised Estimates).

Increase taken on the Estimates since 1882-83.

Increase in Estimates of 1884-85 over Estimates 1882-83, £397,200.
Increase in Actuals, 1882-83, over Estimates 1882-83, £318,751.
Increase in Revised Estimate, 1883-84, over Actuals, 1882-83, £59,549.

It will be observed that the increase in the Estimates of 1884-85 over the Estimates of 1882-83, namely, £397,200, is considerably less than the increase (£510,000) worked out in para. 16 from the figures showing the increase in consumption; the difference is due to the fact that the effects of a considerable increase of consumption were discounted in framing the Estimates of 1882-83, and also to the causes explained hereafter in para. 36.

18. It will have been seen that the percentage of increase between the two periods is 10·52; the lowest figure, under Inland Customs, 4·55, and the highest, in Madras, where the percentage of increase rises to 21, or within 3 of the figure necessary to place the revenue at the present rate, on an equality with the revenue leviable under the former duty. The Inland Customs in 1882-83 showed a decrease of 1·07 due to the competition of Bombay and Cheshire salt. In spite of this competition, however, it now shares in the general increase. A glance at the second of the above tables shows that the increase during 1883, though less than that in the preceding year, amounted nevertheless to 973,000 maunds, being equivalent to a revenue of £194,600. It may fairly be assumed, in presence of so constant and large an increase, that the consumption of salt will yield a progressively increasing revenue for some time to come, and holds out the hope that should a further reduction of duty be hereafter made, it may be met as promptly and satisfactorily by a corresponding expansion in the demand.

Ratio of increase in salt consumption in the several Provinces.

19. A comparative statement is subjoined, showing the fall in prices of salt per maund in January 1884, June 1882, and January 1883, as compared with February 1882. With the exception of Bombay and Rajputana, the fall in prices in January 1884 as compared with February 1882 is on the whole sensibly greater than was the fall in January 1883, compared with the same date. It will be recollected that the salt duty was reduced in March 1882.

Comparative increase in receipts under Railways from 1880-81 to 1884-85.

20. Turning to the other source of revenue which has mainly helped to make good any loss that might have been anticipated from the remission of the customs and salt duties, we find a still more satisfactory result in the receipts alluded to in para. 14, viz., the receipts from Railways. There may very well be two opinions as to the extent to which receipts from Railways should be regarded as a source of permanent revenue in India, especially in view of the need of removing all obstacles in the shape of transit charges on the export of our produce; but there can be only one conclusion as to the assistance afforded during the last three years to the resources of the exchequer by the increased activity of that period.

21. To make any attempt to show the progress of the revenue derived from Railways, we must go back to the year 1880-81, as the year 1881-82 was altogether exceptional; and, although slightly anticipating, we must include in our comparison the estimates of the coming year. The transactions of Railways in the Budget Estimate of 1884-85 (as explained in paras. 4 and 5) are shown for the first time in a new form recently prescribed by the Secretary of State, and, in order to make a fair comparison with previous years, the figures of those years have been revised in the new form.

22. The revenue receipts from the East Indian Railway are now shown in the gross under Revenue, and the payments to the deferred annuity-holders on account of surplus profits earned on this Railway, as well as the contribution to the Provident Fund are shown under Expenditure along with the working expenses. In the Budget Estimate of 1884-85, the Revenue transactions of the Eastern Bengal Railway up to the 1st of July, the date of the intended purchase of that Railway, have been shown under Guaranteed Railways, and for the remainder of the year under State Railways.

23. The growth of the Railway Revenue will be best seen from the following figures:—

State Railways.

24. In the year 1880-81 the net Revenue yielded by the State Railways classed as Productive Public Works fell short of the interest charges on the capital outlay by £543,283. In 1882-83 the deficit was reduced to £114,551. In the Budget Estimate of 1883-84 the charge was placed at £150,300, but owing to the increased prosperity of the year it is now estimated that these Railways will yield a profit in excess of all charges of £75,300. In 1884-85, including the estimated returns from the Eastern Bengal Railway for 9 months of £128,200, it is anticipated that the State Railways will yield a surplus of £156,900.

East Indian Railway.

25. The East Indian Railway in 1880-81 added £1,256,937 to the revenues of the State after meeting all charges. The returns this year were exceptionally favourable, as the payments of only nine months' annuity fell in this year. In the year 1882-83 the returns from this Railway were £828,492. In the Budget Estimate of 1883-84 the returns were placed at £1,008,700, and these have been increased in the Revised Estimate to £1,278,600. The amount of £1,079,600 entered in the Budget Estimate of 1884-85 should be realised.

Guaranteed Railways.

26. In the year 1880-81 the net receipts from Guaranteed Railways fell short of the charges for interest, surplus profits, &c., by £764,266. In 1882-83 the deficit was reduced to £294,598. The net charge on this account provided for in the Budget Estimate of 1883-84 amounted to £345,500, and this has been increased in the Revised Estimate to £566,370; the increase is chiefly due to the falling off in the traffic of the Eastern Bengal Railway, and to a sum of £325,000, the estimated loss on the Indus Flotilla, having been written off to Revenue; but for this special item, the loss would have been reduced to £241,370. It is estimated that the loss in 1884-85 will not exceed £157,260.

Net gain by Railway receipts in five years.

27. Including the estimates of the years 1883-84 and 1884-85, the net results to the State from its connection with Railways, commencing from the year 1880-81, is as under:—

1880-81 Loss	50,612
1881-82 Gain	1,035,342
1882-83	419,343
1883-84 Revised Estimates	787,530
1884-85 Estimates	1,079,240
Net Gain in 5 years	3,270,843

Scheme for railway extension submitted by Government of India to Secretary of State in January 1883.

Appointment of a Parliamentary Committee to enquire into Indian Railways.

28. The Government of India submitted to the Secretary of State in January 1883 its views on the extension of the railway system in India, and proposed for adoption a scheme of works and expenditure calculated to give a great impulse, whether by State or private enterprise, to the construction of railways during the next five years. The appointment of a Parliamentary Committee to examine into the subject has led temporarily to the scheme being put aside; but the Government has lost no opportunity of urging its views on the Secretary of State, and insisting on the great importance which it attaches to a comprehensive and vigorous treatment of the question. It has deputed two carefully selected officers to represent those views before the Committee, and it has every confidence that their representations will receive the attention which the importance of the subject and their own experience deserve. The Government of India is fully alive to the necessity and the advantages, in the interests no less of the State than of the public, of a vigorous policy in regard to its public works. But there are indications that the mercantile public, whose interest in the matter is little less than that of the State, while actively pressing for a policy such as that above indicated, and confident of prospective profits, is disposed to throw the burden and risk of such works as must be undertaken too entirely on the resources of the Government. These resources are necessarily limited; and if, as is urged, as experience is daily showing, and as from the figures given in the last paragraph is proved to demonstration, the remunerative character of railway enterprise in India, when prudently carried out, is unquestionable, it may be fairly demanded that those whose interests in that enterprise are so considerable should not be backward in acting on the confidence of which they give to the Government reiterated assurances. This view of the question has been forcibly stated in a leading article of the "Economist" in its issue of 2nd February last, in words which may be aptly quoted here at this moment;

Remarks of the "Economist" on the attitude of the mercantile classes.

"But if the new undertakings promise so well, where is the necessity for a Govern"ment guarantee? One can understand the Government coming forward in the infancy
"of a railway system, where every thing as regards the future is in a state of complete
"uncertainty, and offering special inducements to investors. In the case of India, how"ever, the experimental stage is past. Experience has demonstrated the paying character
"of the Indian railways, and at the present time especially, when the great difficulty is "not to find capital for sound and profitable undertakings, but to find proper outlets for "capital, private enterprise ought surely to be sufficient to supply India with the railways
"she needs. It is true that investors have not yet shown a disposition to put their money
"in such undertakings. That, however, is largely because their remunerative character "has not been sufficiently realised, and in part, also, because the system of granting "guarantees has created the wrong impression that without a guarantee the venture was "too risky to be undertaken. Now, however, that Chambers of Commerce, both here and "in India, are urging the fact that the railways are paying concerns as a reason for the "State committing itself further to their construction, the idea that they are investments
"involving so much more than the ordinary risk that a Government guarantee is essential,
"should be exploded. And the merchants constituting these Chambers ought really to "show the courage of their opinions. They can influence the flow of capital to a very "great extent, and there is the greater reason why they should direct it to Indian railways,
"because from these they, on their own showing, will reap a double gain. The new lines,
"as they rightly point out, will greatly increase the trade of the country, and thus tend to
"the profit of those by whom the trade is conducted, in addition to returning a fair profit
"upon the capital invested in them. Private enterprise, therefore, we think, might do
"and ought now to do, without the State crutch upon which it has hitherto been leaning."

Expenditure on State and Guaranteed Railways during 1883-84, 1884-85.

29. In connection with this subject the subjoined table shows at a glance the capital expenditure of Government and the Guaranteed Railways on the Revised Estimates of 1883-84 and the Budget Estimate of 1884-85. It will be seen that during the ensuing year the State expenditure is estimated at £4,137,500 against £3,497,100 in 1883-84, the expenditure of the Guaranteed and Southern Mahratta Railways being £2,454,000 against £1,860,500; the total estimated expenditure of 1884-85 being £6,591,900 against £5,357,600, in the Revised Estimates of 1883-84. The expenditure of private Companies is given so far as it is known; but the figures for the Companies marginally noted cannot be given, though it would certainly be but a fraction of the totals quoted above.

It may not be generally known that there was expended in 1883-84 on Railways no less than £5,357,600, for the interest on which Government is liable, and that the amount to be similarly expended in 1884-85 is £6,591,900. A further sum of £680,000 might be allotted for expenditure on Productive Public Works this year, without exceeding the limits placed on such expenditure by the Home Government, if funds were available. But funds, so far as can be judged at present, cannot be made available without borrowing more than the usual Productive Public Works loan of £2,500,000,—a course which, for sufficient reasons, and in the present state of the money market, is not considered expedient. The grant of this additional sum of £680,000 must therefore await a more favourable moment.

Increase in imports and exports.

30. Closely connected with the expansion of the Railways has been the increase of imports and exports. In Appendix IV will be found tables showing the imports and exports of merchandise during the last ten years, as well as those of gold and silver, and a statement of the coinage of silver at the Mints of Calcutta and Bombay from 1873-74 to 1882-83 and for ten months of 1883-84. These tables show that exports have risen from £60,937,513 in 1878-79 to £83,485,122 in 1882-83; imports having risen from £37,800,594 in 1878-79 to £52,095,711. A remarkable feature in these statements is the large net import of gold from the 1st April 1879 up to the 31st January 1884, amounting to no less than £19,996,987, the imports of the 10 months of 1883-84 alone being little less than the total imports of the 5 years from 1873-74 to 1877-78.

Wheat and oil seeds.

In Tables II and III, published in the Gazette of India of the 15th March, is shown the steady development in the shipments of wheat and oil-seeds. Of wheat, during the 10 months of the current year, 19,500,000 cwts. have been exported, and though, owing to large stocks and low prices in the English market, the trade is less active at present, the year will close with an export of no less than 1,000,000 tons. A table, similar to that given in para. 160 of the Financial Statement of 1883-84, is subjoined, presenting the comparative results of the import of wheat into Great Britain from India and other countries, during the years 1882 and 1883, showing again the increasing extent to which the English market is supplied by wheat imported from this country.

31. The success of the Post Office Savings Banks has been most satisfactory.

Post Office Savings Banks.

On 31st December 1882 there were 2,928 Savings Banks Accounts opened with the various Post Offices by Europeans and Eurasians. On 31st January 1884, 13 months later, there were 7,407 such accounts open. On the same dates the number of accounts opened by Natives of India were 28,770 and 71,651 respectively; on the former date the balance at credit of depositors was £207,876. On the latter date it was no less than £687,122. On 1st instant the balance was approximately £704,272. About $\frac{4}{5}$ths of the whole balance appertain to the Accounts opened by Natives of India. The system of Post Office Savings Banks was extended to the Presidency Towns on Extended to Presidency Towns.

1st May last, (to Madras on 1st April), but this extension has not been attended with the increase of deposits which was anticipated. This result is probably due to the fact that greater facilities for the investment of small sums in a profitable manner exist in Calcutta than in the interior of the country. The total number of accounts opened in Presidency Towns is only 3,858, and the total deposits on 29th February only came to £29,257.

The proportion of European and Eurasian investors to Native investors in Presidency Towns is double the proportion which prevails for the whole country.

Scheme of Life Insurance and purchase of Deferred Annuities for postal employés.

A scheme for Life Insurance and for the purchase of Deferred Annuities was introduced during 1883-84 for the benefit of postal employés only. It is too soon yet to form any opinion as to its prospects of success.

District and Presidency Savings Banks.

32. The number of depositors in District and Presidency Savings Banks on 31st March 1883 was 88,836, of whom 68,604 were Natives of India, and 20,232 were Europeans and Eurasians. The total balances of deposits on the same date came to £3,113,700, and as the aggregate balance was reduced between 31st March and 31st December 1883 by £44,700, it would seem that these Savings Banks are being affected by the opening of the Post Office Savings Banks.

Stock Notes.

33. Up to 31st March 1883 the value of Stock Notes issued was £169,200. In 9 months from that date, namely, to end of December 1883, notes to the value of only £21,200 were issued, so that the total amount that had been issued up to the beginning of the present calendar year was £190,400.

Analysis of Figures of Revised Estimate of Revenue and Expenditure for 1883-84.

Receipts

34. Passing from the above general considerations to particulars, it will be seen that the chief items of increase in revenue, as shown in the Revised Estimate, over the figures entered in the Budget, are the following, against each of which a brief explanation is given :—

Opium.

35. Opium.—£283,200. The increase is chiefly due to sales of Bengal opium having realised a higher price than the figure taken in the Estimates, namely, ₹1,250 as against ₹1,200 per chest; on the other hand, there may be a slight falling off in the revenue from Malwa opium, owing to exports being below the estimate.

Important financial results of Mr. H. Rivett-Carnac's experiments in the manufacture and preparation of Malwa Opium.

The Government is indebted to Mr. H. Rivett-Carnac, Opium Agent at Benares, for strengthening its opium revenue during the year 1883, and, in a lesser degree, in the previous year, by the manufacture and preparation of Malwa opium into a form suited for local consumption. Mr. Carnac, by his successful experiments in this direction—experiments which deserve the cordial recognition of the Government of India—set free in 1882 1,372, and in 1883, 3 000 chests of provision opium, (or opium that is available for export), at a profit to Government in the former year of ₹1,94,845, and in the latter, of ₹7,56,347. Arrangements of a similar nature have been made during the ensuing year, which may be expected to yield a corresponding profit. It is calculated that so long as the cost of the Malwa drug at 90° consistence, does not exceed ₹413 per maund, and the selling price of provision opium is not less than ₹1,202 for Patna, and ₹1,142 for Benares opium, the scheme for substituting Malwa for Bengal opium for manufacture into excise opium is, financially speaking, likely to prove successful. The Malwa opium was first tried in the North-Western Provinces and in the Central Provinces, in both of which it met with some opposition, but later reports are favourable, the North-Western Provinces Excise Commissioner reporting that "the taste of the people is "no doubt becoming reconciled to the new drug." The Excise Commissioner, Central Provinces, writes—

"I reported that complaints had been received from some districts in regard to the "quality of the new opium, and also in regard to the weight of the cakes. I then stated "that the complaints as to its quality appeared to be exaggerated, and it would seem "from further information since received from district officers, that this was the case. The "new Malwa opium contains more oil than the Bengal opium formerly supplied. It also "differs from it in flavour, and when the former was recently substituted for the latter "in the North-Western Provinces, complaints (I am informed by the Commissioner of "Excise) were loud, but the people there are becoming accustomed to the taste of the "new drug, and complaints have apparently ceased. Here, too, the probability is that "the people will soon become used to the flavour of the Malwa opium and be satisfied "with it."

The experiment has been since extended to Assam and Burma, but the results have not yet been reported to the Government of India.

Salt. 36. Salt.—£100,200. The figures already given showing the increase in the consumption of salt will explain this item. Briefly, the consumption of salt continues in excess of the figure assumed in the Estimates, and there seems every probability that it will continue to do so. The increase of revenue, however, lags somewhat behind the increase of issues of salt from the depôts, as in some places, notably in Madras, a system is in force under which by giving security the payment of the duty can be postponed for six months after date of issue to the wholesale purchaser.

Excise. 37. Excise.—£151,500. The increase is due to a prosperous year, and is distributed throughout the various provinces; but the chief items of increase will be found under Bengal, the North-Western Provinces, and Bombay. The Excise administration in the latter province has been singularly successful.

Forest. 38. Forest.—£74,100. The increase occurs almost entirely in Burma and Bombay, and is the result of extended operations.

Law and Justice. 39. Law and Justice.—£56,000. The marked decrease which occurs under this head is due mainly to the introduction of the recent policy of the Government in discouraging the more remunerative kinds of jail manufacture, which were held to compete injuriously with private local enterprise. The loss is balanced, however, by a similar decrease in expenditure on account of purchase of raw material for manufacture.

Police. 40. Police.—£84,600. This increase is a mere matter of account. It occurs in the Punjab and Bombay, and is due to a change of system by which contributions towards municipal police, as well as the cost of that body, are shown under the receipt and charge head of Police.

Scientific and other Minor Departments 41. Scientific and other Minor Departments.—£ 14,700. Unexpected sales of Cinchona Bark in Madras and in England account for nearly the whole of this increase.

Interest. 42. Interest.—£ 139,800. Arrears of interest on the loans to the Bombay Port Trust, previously taken in reduction of capital debt, but now transferred to interest, and interest on investments of cash balances of Famine Insurance money in England.

State Railways. 43. State Railways.—Gross earnings, £356,800. This increase is due to the improvement in goods traffic, and is found chiefly in the two Imperial Railways, the Rajputana-Malwa, £160,000, and the Indus Valley, £182,500. The opening of the Rewari-Ferozepore line, and the recent reductions of rates on the Rajputana-Malwa line, have swelled the receipts of that line, while the great development of the export wheat trade from Kurrachee has led to the receipts as shown under the Indus Valley. The East Indian Railway gross receipts increase £375,000. This is mainly due to the export trade, and, partly to some increase in 3rd class passenger traffic.

Guaranteed Railways. 44. Guaranteed Railways, net traffic receipts decrease £174,000. The following is an analysis of the increases and decreases which make up the above total:—

Eastern Bengal Railway	...	110,000
Madras Railway	15,000	...
Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway	130,000	...
Great Indian Peninsular Railway	...	25,000
Oudh and Rohilkhund Railway	71,000	...
Sind, Punjab, and Delhi Railway	...	255,000
TOTAL	216,000	390,000
Decrease	174,000

Eastern Bengal and Sind, Punjab, and Delhi Railways. 45. The decrease in Eastern Bengal Railway is owing to a deficient jute crop. The reduction under Sind, Punjab, and Delhi Railway is a matter of account, the receipts of the Railway itself having been favourable. The deficit is due to the adjustment of the loss on the Company's flotilla, involving a debit of £325,000 against the Revenue Account of the line. But for this, the Revised Estimates would have shown an increase in the Budget of £70,000.

Expenditure. 46. Under Expenditure the main heads, with brief explanatory remarks, are these—

Refunds and Drawbacks. Refunds and Drawbacks.—Increase, £178,500, due mainly to Madras and Bombay, being, in the former, refunds of water-tax erroneously collected, and payments on account of losses sustained by contractors, amounting to £33,000; in the latter, Land Revenue refunds, due to remissions of collections made at enhanced rates, amounting to £120,000; these collections were made in 1880-81 and 1881-82, and are those referred to in paragraph 147 of the Budget Statement for 1883-84. It was expected that they would have been cleared off in 1882-83, but they have fallen to the present year.

Opium. 47. Opium.—Decrease, £301,800, owing to the reduced expenditure connected with the short crop of last year.

Marine. 48. Marine.—Increase, £131,300. The increase is due partly to the settlement of an outstanding account with Her Majesty's Government, amounting to £36,500; partly to various smaller claims amounting to £83,000, and partly to the purchase by the Indian Marine Department, at a cost of £50,000 (true sterling) of a new steam vessel, the "Golconda," for transport and other services in Indian waters.

Railways. Reduction of Debt. 49. Famine Relief and Insurance.—Protective Works—Railways.—Decrease £386,600; Protective Works, Irrigation, decrease £52,300; Reduction of Debt, increase £441,400. The short outlay under the former head is due to the late date on which sanction was received to commence the construction of the Jhansi-Manakpore, Cuddapah-Nellore, and Bellary-Kistna Railways; the money will accordingly be transferred to Reduction of Debt in the Accounts of 1883-84, the lapse being re-allotted in 1884-85 by a corresponding decrease under the head Reduction of Debt.

State Railways. 50. State Railways, working and maintenance.—Increase, £118,200, due to renewals of vehicles, machinery, and permanent way.

East Indian Railway. 51. East Indian Railway, interest and profits.—Increase, £109,100, due to similar causes. The increase under Guaranteed Railways, £58,200, is due to the increased amount of surplus profits payable to the shareholders.

Interest on Productive Public Works debt. 52. Interest on debt for Productive Public Works, Miscellaneous public improvements.—Decrease, £21,600; this reduction is the result of the interest charge on the Madras Harbour works having been expunged because the past capital outlay on this Harbour has been transferred to Civil Buildings, Roads, and Services, as explained hereafter in paras. 58 and 102; the increase under Civil Buildings, &c., is mainly caused by the outlay on the Harbour works being debited to that head. The transfer of the Madras Harbour to a Port Trust is in course of negotiation.

Army. Causes of Increase.

53. Army.—Increase, £1,012,400. The increase is due almost entirely to payment of £1,000,000 (true sterling) on account of arrear charges referred to in para. 12. There is also an increase on account of the new scale of pay for British troops serving in India, as explained in the remarks on the Estimates for 1884-85 (para. 103).

Military operations in Egypt.

54. Military Operations in Egypt.—Increase, £50,200. Some final debits to this account have fallen into 1883-84.

Exchange.

55. Exchange on transactions with London.—Increase, £312,000. The whole increase is practically due to the remittance of £1,500,000 in excess of the amount taken in the Budget. It was expected that the bills of the Secretary of State would be drawn at an average rate of 1*s.* 7½*d.* per rupee. The average rate actually obtained has exceeded the rate taken in the Estimates by a mere fraction.

State Railways Capital Account.

56. State Railways Capital Account non-productive.—Decrease, £885,000. The diminution is due to the transfer to Productive Public Works of the outlay on certain Provincial Railways as explained in next paragraph.

Adjustments of Account between Capital and Revenue Expenditure during 1883-84, and the financial result.

57. Several important adjustments of a complicated nature connected with the transactions of past years have been carried out in the Revised Estimates of 1883-84. These adjustments have, as far as practicable, been so regulated as to reduce to a minimum the effect on the net financial results of the year; and practically their influence on the surplus of the year has been limited to reducing it by £5,796. The amount of disturbance in the accounts is insignificant in comparison with the magnitude of the adjustments.

58. In the first place the Secretary of State decided that the capital expenditure on the Parbutti-Dinajpore, Diamond Harbour, Cawnpur-Farukhabad, and Kashgunge-Soron Railways, as well as that on the Jumna Bridge, which had been and was being incurred from Provincial balances and charged to the ordinary account, should be transferred to the Capital Account of Productive Public Works. The effect of the adjustments rendered necessary by this order, if taken by themselves, would have been to increase the imperial surplus in 1883-84 by a sum of £852,274, although the increase properly belonged to past years. In the second place, it was decided to write off as ordinary expenditure the outlay on the Madras Harbour Works to the end of 1882-83 (£533,070), which had been charged to the Capital Account of Productive Public Works; and also to write off against Revenue, by a credit to capital, the sum of £325,000, being the loss in past years on the Flotilla of the Sind Punjab and Delhi Railway. The total to be written off in the ordinary expenditure account, therefore, came to £858,070. By carrying out these adjustments in one year, the net financial result of the year (1883-84) will be disturbed only to the amount of £5,796, by the inclusion in it of transactions which, properly speaking, belong to previous years.

The alterations in the Revised Estimates of 1883-84 due to these adjustments will be found under the following heads in Abstracts A and B:—

Estimated Revenue and Expenditure.

59. The Budget Estimates for 1884-85 are as follows:—

Receipt.

Revenue	70,560,400
Expenditure chargeable thereon	70,241,100
Surplus	319,300

Opium.

60. Under the head Opium the estimate of receipts for the ensuing year is as low as £8,594,200, being a decrease of no less than £889,000 on the revised estimates of 1883-84. The net receipts of Opium, after deducting the cost of production, are estimated at £6,241,300 against £7,619,700 in the Revised Estimates of the preceding year. It has already been explained in the previous part of this Statement, (para. 2), that the failure of the opium crop in 1883 has made it necessary to reduce the number of chests of Bengal opium to be sold during the calendar year 1884. When the Budget Statement of 1883-84 was issued, it was estimated that the crop then being gathered would not give more than 47,000 chests of provision opium; it actually gave 38,214 chests only. At same time the reserve was estimated to stand at 13,859 chests on 31st December 1883, but the actual reserve on that date was only 11,632 chests. Notwithstanding the very large reduction in sales during the calendar year 1884, the reserve on 31st December 1884 is estimated to stand at 2,296 chests only. The present crop promises to be a good one, the latest estimates placing the probable number of chests of provision opium at about 52,000. The number of chests of provision opium sold during 1883-84, namely, 54,400, was 2,000 less than in the previous year. It has already been announced that 3,800 chests of Bengal opium will be sold every month from April to December inclusive, during the present calendar year. The number of chests to be sold in the calendar year 1885 will be announced hereafter, in accordance with the procedure laid down in Notification No. 1418, dated 16th March 1883, published at page 159 of the Gazette of India of 17th March 1883, Part I. The number to be sold in the year 1885 will not in any case exceed 50,000, and will probably be somewhat less; any excess of production over sales will be used to strengthen the reserve.

Number of chests to be sold from April to December 1884.

Estimated price during 1884-85.

61. The average price of Bengal opium has been taken in the Budget Estimate at ₹1,250 per chest, which, in view of the price obtained at sales during the past year, and the reduced quantity which is to be put on the market during the year 1884-85, may be looked on as moderate. The expenditure under the head of opium is considerably in excess of the previous year, owing to the promise of a better crop. The figure taken is £2,352,900 as against £1,863,500 in the Revised Estimate of 1883-84, and is not only considerably larger than the 1883-84 figure of the Revised Estimates, but in excess of the actuals of many previous years. The intended purchase by Government of 4,000 maunds of Malwa opium, in continuation of the experiment spoken of in para. 35, adds about £120,000 to the Estimates; but this expenditure will be largely covered by the increased export of Bengal opium, set free by Mr. Carnac's Malwa operations.

Disturbance of opium estimates by passing events in China.

62. The opium estimate, though carefully framed, may possibly be to some extent disturbed by aggravation of the disputes at present existing between the French and Chinese Governments; but affairs have not reached a point which would justify us in moulding our estimates with immediate reference to the probabilities of graver complications.

Salt, Stamps, and Forest.

63. Under Salt, Stamps, and Forest, credit has been taken for a small progressive revenue.

Post Office.

64. The increase under Post Office (£47,300) occurs under postage stamps, postage collected in cash, and Money Order fees.

Telegraphs.

65. Under Telegraphs there is an increase of £48,400, being the net result of improvement under Indian Telegraphs of £69,100, and of falling-off under Indo-European Telegraphs of £20,700. The increase under Indian Telegraphs is due, first, to the estimated development in message revenue; secondly, to the anticipated recovery of arrears due by the South Indian Railway; thirdly, to receipts from other Railways and guarantors for extension. Under Indo-European Telegraphs the decrease is chiefly due to the following causes:—firstly, the liquidation of the Persian debt in 1883-84; secondly, payments towards instead of receipts from the common purse, because of the Indo-European route carrying much more than its standard share of the aggregate traffic; thirdly, to the Revised Estimate for 1883-84 containing an unusually high balance of arrears for 1882-83.

Mint.

66. The estimate taken under Mint represents a normal revenue. The Revised Estimates of 1883-84 were reduced because the silver imports during that year, owing to large drawings by the Secretary of State, fell below the expectations, but receipts under this head depend upon so many causes which it is impossible accurately to forecast at the commencement of the year, that a comparative estimate between any two years supplies a test of but little value.

Interest.

67. Under Interest there is a decrease of £137,700, as compared with the Revised Estimates of 1883-84; this is due to the special receipts on this account in 1883-84, noticed in para. 42.

State Railways.

68. Under State Railways (Productive) there is an increase of £629,600 on the Revised Estimates of the preceding year. Of this sum, £430,000 is taken on the Eastern Bengal Railway, which will become a State line by purchase in the course of the year. The balance, £199,600, is the net result of improvements under the several Railways, with the following exceptions: Wurda Coal State Railway, difference nil; Nalhati Railway, decrease £400; the Indus Valley Railway, decrease £40,000; total £40,400. The figures under the Wurda and Nulhati lines call for no special notice. As regards the Indus Valley Railway, it is considered unsafe to base estimates on the large increase in 1883-84, which was due to a sudden and unexpected export trade in wheat having sprung up from Kurrachee. It is difficult to say at present how far a continuance of this trade may be counted on, and therefore it has been considered safer to take a reduced figure for the ensuing year. The increase under the main lines may be ascribed generally to the extension of lines and the expansion of traffic. Under East Indian Railway it has been thought prudent to budget for a decrease, as compared with the Revised Estimates of 1883-84, of £180,000; the reason being the indifferent prospects of the year's harvests in parts of India, and the slackening in the export trade owing to low prices in Europe, and large stocks there and elsewhere. Under Guaranteed Railways net traffic receipts there is an increase of £248,000. This is chiefly due to the heavy debit of £325,000 in 1883-84 on account of the loss on the Indus flotilla.

State Railways not classed as productive.

69. There is an increase under State Railways not classed as productive of £21,200. This increase is the net result of transferring the Sonarpore-Diamond Harbour Railway and the Cawnpore-Furrakhabad Extension to the Productive section, combined with an estimated increase of £24,000 on the Rewari-Ferozepore Railway, and a few other changes of minor importance.

70. There is an increase under Civil Buildings, Roads, and Services of £73,900, chiefly due to an expected payment of £40,000 for the East Indian Railway Office; £10,000 from the outturn of the Barrakar Iron Works; £5,000 from the Akra Brick Manufactory; £10,000 from the outturn of the Madras Workshop; and sundry minor items.

Expenditure.

71. Turning from Revenue to Expenditure, the following items demand some explanation:—

Interest on ordinary debt.

Interest on ordinary debt, excluding the charge on account of Productive Public Works Debt, (£3,686,800,) being a decrease on the Revised Estimates of £120,800.

The reduction may be said, speaking generally, to be due to the fact that the sums spent on Productive Public Works exceed the net amount borrowed, and that consequently the interest added yearly to the charge under this head on account of money borrowed is less than the total amount transferred on account of interest, to the Productive Public Works head.

Interest on other obligations.

72. Interest on other obligations.—Increase, £33,300. The increase is chiefly on account of increased balance of Post Office Savings Banks.

Refunds and Drawbacks.

73. Refunds and Drawbacks;—(£220,400,) being a decrease of £154,000 as compared with the Revised Estimates of 1883-84. The decrease is chiefly due to the refunds of 1883-84 being in excess of the normal amount, as explained in para. 46.

Land Revenue.

74. Land Revenue;—(£3,340,700,) increase (£98,200,) due to the strengthening of Tahsili and Patwari Establishments, management charges of new estates, extended settlement and survey operations (chiefly in Burma), and transfer from the head "Registration" of Revenue record room charges.

Important effect on survey and settlement estimate of present policy regarding revision of settlements.

75. With regard to the cost of settlement and survey operations, it may be as well to state briefly here the results of important correspondence which has taken place during the last year between the Government of India and Her Majesty's Secretary of State. It is known that for some time the attention of the Government of India has been seriously drawn to the economic effect of excessive enhancements of land revenue in various parts of India, and recently the Revenue and Agricultural Department have been considering the best method of placing some efficient check on this great evil. At the same time, some of the earlier settlements effected in Northern India have fallen in, others will shortly be lapsing, and the principle on which re-settlement in these and other cases is now to be made has come under the consideration of the Government of India and the Local Governments. As for some years it must be expected that settlements in the various provinces will continue to fall in, and as the operations connected with the revision of settlement, if the system hitherto observed were maintained in its integrity, would lead to the expenditure of a more considerable sum than is now to be expected, and as the prospects of any very considerable increase from the land revenue must always be a matter of interest to those who watch the Indian finances, I give briefly the outline of the arrangements that have been arrived at, of which the effect will be to limit within narrower bounds than has hitherto been the case, the increased assets accruing to Government at periods of re-settlement; and, on the other hand, very considerably to decrease the expenses attendant on survey and settlement. Experience, I hope, may show that we can at a later time go still further in the direction in which the Revenue and Agricultural Department have so far advanced, and that the moderate measures proposed by the Government of India and sanctioned by the Secretary of State, will lead gradually to further developments in the same direction, and thus guarantee to the people immunity on the one hand from the vexations and cost of recurring surveys and settlements, and, on the other hand, from the anxieties, uncertainty, and loss attendant on periodical enhancements of the amount which, under the head of Land Revenue, they are called upon to pay to the Government.

Principles adopted for future application.

The substance of the arrangement decided on is briefly, that when once, (as in a very large number of districts is already the case), the land revenue of a district has been equitably assessed on the basis of a careful survey, finality, in some sort, should be given to the assessment. The manner in which this may best be effected in each Province, without undue sacrifice of public interests, is still under consideration, but the principles which at present have been accepted by the Indian and Home Governments may be summarily mentioned. They are: First, that all improvements made by landlords or tenants shall be exempted from assessment; Secondly, that no reclassification or revaluation of the soil shall be allowed in any case in which the soil has once been properly classed and valued; Thirdly, that the existing assessment shall be taken as the basis of revision, and shall be liable to alteration only on two or three carefully defined grounds. These grounds the Government of India is disposed to restrict to increase of cultivation, increase of produce due to improvements executed by the State, and rise of prices. Whether, in view of the varying conditions of the several Provinces, these grounds are in each case the best that can be devised, is a question still under examination here, and on which no opinion need at present be expressed. But whatever may be the outcome of discussion on this point, there can be little doubt that a degree of permanency will be given to the current land assessment in the more populous and advanced parts of the country which it has hitherto lacked. The policy, subject to reserve at present upon one point, has been already accepted by the Government of Bombay; it has been fully accepted by Madras; and other Governments will doubtless fall into the arrangement, so soon as its details, at present under examination with them, have been agreed upon and arranged. Resettlement, finally, will be made on the basis of existing records where, as will be very generally the case under present practice, these have been accurately and carefully kept up; and it will be only in the case of the village survey of the last settlement being so inaccurate as to be useless, or of the records having fallen into great disorder, that resurvey, partial or entire, will be resorted to.

Opium.

76. Opium.—The reason of the increase (£489,400) over the Revised Estimates of 1883-84 has already been explained in para. 61.

Salt.

77. Salt.—Increase, £42,800. The increase is due to increased provision for preventive establishments in Madras and Bombay, and to arrangements in connection with the Goa Treaty.

Forest.

78. Forest.—Increase, £42,200; due to increased operations, and covered by corresponding increase of revenue.

Post Office.

79. Post Office.—Increase, £21,600. This is less than the normal increase of this rapidly growing Department, and is less than half the estimated increase in revenue. The increase would have been much larger but for a reduction of the subsidy paid to the British Indian Steam Navigation Company.

Telegraphs.

80. Telegraphs.—Increase, £110,400. This net result is brought about as follows:—

Imperial—
In India (a)	+92,400
In England (b)	+14,500
	+106,900
Provincial—
In India	.....	−5,100
Indo-European Telegraph—
In India	+2,200
In England	+6,400
	Nil
Net . .	+110,400

The increase (a) is due to additional provision for lines and establishment, chiefly required in connection with Railway extensions, and the payment of £10,000 to the Postal Department for taking up telegraph duties under recent arrangements.

The increase (b) is due to short outlay in England for stores in 1883-84. The remaining items do not call for remark.

Law and Justice.

81. Law and Justice.—Increase, £117,400. The apparent increase under this head is, for the most part, the result of the falling off in the Revised Estimates, and is distributed over all Provinces.

Marine.

82. Marine.—Decrease, £129,100. The Revised Estimates show an increase from special causes of £131,300. See para. 48.

Education.

83. Education.—Increase, £54,700. Increased expenditure under this head is to be expected, and is not unsatisfactory in itself.

Political.

84. Political.—Increase, £39,800. Nearly the whole of this increase occurs under the head of "Subsidy to the Ameer of Cabul," the Revised Estimates for 1883-84 containing provision for only a portion of the year, whereas the Budget of 1884-85 provides for a whole year's expenditure.

Scientific and other Minor Departments.

85. Under Scientific and other Minor Departments there is a decrease of £11,900. The decrease is due to reduction of expenditure, amounting to £12,300, in Burma.

Stationery and Printing.

86. Stationery and Printing.—The increase under this head, £35,200, occurs mainly in England, and arises from the increasing business connected with Railways, Post Office Savings Banks, and Money Orders, and general administrative needs.

Protective Works, Railways.

87. Protective Works, Railways.—Increase, £512,700. The increase is due partly to a special addition of £250,000 made to the usual Famine grant by the Lieutenant Governor of the North-Western Provinces for 1884-85 for expenditure on the Jhansi-Manikpur line, which is being constructed from Protective Funds, and partly to short expenditure in 1883-84.

Protective Works, Irrigation.

88. Protective Works, Irrigation.—Increase, £19,100. The increase is due to the fact that the estimate must be so framed as to make the average yearly expenditure from 1881-82 exactly £250,000.

State Railways; working expenses.

89. State Railways (Productive); working expenses.—Increase £341,700. Of this increase, £200,000 is due to the Eastern Bengal Railway becoming a State Railway by purchase in 1884-85. The rest of the increase represents augmented provision called for (1) to cope with the expected expansion of traffic; (2) to meet additional outlay that will result from railway extensions during the year; (3) to cover expenditure in renewing lines, machinery, and rolling-stock. In the case of the Sindia and Ghazipur-Dildarnugger Railways, some of the increase is due to the new working agreement with the East Indian Railway bringing on 12 months' adjustments in 1884-85 against 9 months in 1883-84.

Guaranteed Railways.

90. Guaranteed Railways.—Decrease £111,500. This is due to reduced payments on account of surplus profits to the Eastern Bengal Railway Company and Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company, coupled with an increased payment to the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Company, and to increased charges for land and supervision.

Irrigation and Navigation

91. Irrigation and Navigation (Productive).—Increase £43,100. The increase is chiefly due to provision made for the first time for the cost of working the Sirhind Canal, and to general extension of operations in North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

Interest on Debt.

92. Interest on Debt (Productive).—The total increase, £200,600, is made up as follows:—

State Railways.

State Railways, £138,200, due to interest being charged on the full amounts of capital laid out in 1883-84 and on half the amount to be laid out in 1884-85, i.e., on increased capital outlay; also to the purchase by the State of the Eastern Bengal Railway.

East Indian Railway.

East Indian Railway, £28,300, due to further capital outlay, and to the purchase of a portion of the annuity during 1883-84 by the issue of India 3½ per cent. stock, the full interest of which is paid during 1884-85.

Irrigation and Navigation.

93. Irrigation and Navigation.—Increase £34,100, due to additional capital expenditure.

Annuities, Guaranteed Railways: Purchase.

94. Annuities in Purchase of Guaranteed Railways (including Sinking Funds).—Increase, £51,800; chiefly due to provision being made in the Home estimates for a half-year's annuity payable to the shareholders of the Eastern Bengal Railway, which line Government acquires by purchase, in 1884-85.

Guaranteed Railways.

95. Guaranteed Railways.—Decrease, £49,600; due to the purchase of the Eastern Bengal Railway by Government.

State Railways (Capital Account).

96. State Railways (Capital Account).—Increase, £541,300; due to the adjustment under this head in Revised Estimate of 1883-84 referred to in para.

Subsidized Railways.

97. Subsidized Railways.—Decrease, £11,900.

The decrease occurs under (1) Bengal Central Railway, due to the expected completion of the line in June next, and the consequent stoppage of payment of advance interest under the contract with the Company; (2) Nilgiri Railway, the Company not having been floated; and (3) Bengal and North-Western Railway, a smaller sum being necessary this year for purchase of land.

Southern Mahratta Railway.

98. Southern Mahratta Railway.—Increase, £3,500.

Increase in paid up capital necessitates increased provision on account of interest.

Frontier Railways.

99. Frontier Railways.—Decrease, £50,500.

Orders have recently been issued directing the transfer of all the Frontier Railway store balances on 1st April 1884 to Productive Public Works, under 50, State Railways. The diminution in the provision for 1884-85 is due to the above adjustment having been carried out.

Irrigation and Navigation.

100. Irrigation and Navigation.—Decrease, £44,600.

The decrease is thus distributed:—

Imperial Increase	22,100
Provincial decrease	66,000
Local do.	700
Net	44,600

The increase under Imperial is chiefly due to an arrangement having been made with the Madras Government for a yearly increasing grant for that Province.

The decrease under Provincial is made up of an increase of £100 in the Punjab and the following decreases:—

Bengal	33,300
North-Western Provinces and Oudh	1,500
Madras	1,100
	66,100

The decrease in Burma is due to the reduction of the Provincial balances, in consequence of which expenditure bas been restricted. The decrease in Bengal is due to less provision having been made for expenditure on Irrigation and Navigation works for which neither Capital nor Revenue Accounts are kept. The decrease in Madras is due to less provision having been made for expenditure on the Madras Water Supply and Irrigation extension system.

Military Works.

101. Military Works.—Decrease, £113,500.

The Revised Estimate for 1883-84 is set down at £1,036,500, as follows:—

Fixed Grant for Military works	1,000,000
Add lapse of 1882-83	36,500

The Budget Estimate for 1884-85 has been arrived at as follows:—

Fixed grant for Military Works	1,000,000
Deduct amount recovered for expenditure under Civil Buildings, Roads, and Services	77,000
Budget provision for 1884-85	923,000

The decrease in 1884-85 is principally due to the adjustment of the cost of the Army Head Quarter Offices at Simla, which was originally paid for from the grant for Civil Buildings, Roads, and Services; this grant has now been recouped by deduction from the fixed grant for Military Works.

Civil Buildings, Roads, and Services.

102. Civil Buildings, Roads, and Services.—The decrease, £1,082,500, occurs under the following heads:—

(a) Imperial	679,400
(b) Provincial	351,800
(c) Local	51,300

The decrease (a) under "Imperial" arises from the fact that the Capital expenditure on the Madras Harbour to the end of 1882-83 was transferred in the Revised Estimate of 1883-84 from Productive Public Works (Capital Account) to Civil Buildings, Roads, and Services, thus increasing temporarily the expenditure under the latter head in 1883-84. The net decrease would have been larger, but for provision, in excess of the normal grant, for Civil Buildings, having been made for outlay on the Government Offices at Simla (£56,400), and the Harnai Road (£85,000), by transfer from the grant for Frontier Railways.

The chief decreases (b) under "Provincial" are in Bengal and Burma, where grants have been allotted on a reduced scale, as excess Provincial balances are being exhausted, and it is necessary to work up to the minimum balances fixed by the Secretary of State.

The net decrease (c) under "Local" is consequent on Burma, the North-Western Provinces, and Bombay having provided for large reductions of expenditure during 1884-85, while Bengal, the Punjab, and Madras have provided for an increased expenditure.

Army.

103. Army.—(£16,098,600.) Decrease, £1,028,000. The apparent large decrease in the cost of the Army is due to the fact that £1,000,000 (true sterling) will be paid in 1883-84 on account of arrears of non-effective charges of British Troops. In communication with the Secretary of State it has been decided that the pay and allowances of the English soldiers serving in India shall in future and from the 1st January 1884, when expressed in sterling, be converted at the rate of exchange fixed annually by Her Majesty's Government for the payment of the troops in the Colonies, the same rate being adopted for home remittances of pay, Savings Bank balances, and other items. All items of pay fixed in sterling will be paid in India at the above exchange; all local allowances will be fixed and paid in rupees. Any money remitted to or from India by or for the soldiers, will be dealt with in the same way, but with effect from the 1st April 1884 only. The result of this arrangement is to increase the Military charges of 1884-85 by about £184,300. The increase caused by this change will depend on the variation in the rate of exchange, but at the exchange of 1*s.* 8*d.*, the present rate, the soldier's pay is increased 12½ per cent. There are no changes of importance in the organization of the Army which materially affect the Estimates of the year 1884-85.

Exchange.

104. Exchange.—Decrease, £321,900. The Revised Estimates provide for £17,800,000 (true sterling) being drawn by the Secretary of State in 1883-84 and the Budget Estimates for £16,500,000 (true sterling) being drawn in 1884-85.

There are also the following minor items of gain and loss:—

TOTAL .		78,000	26,800

Rate of exchange fixed for 1884-85.

The average rate of exchange for the home remittances has been taken for 1884-85 at 1*s.* 7½*d.* per rupee.

State Railways.

105. State Railways (Capital Account, Productive).—Increase, £205,800; made up of an increase under the Eastern Bengal of £1,123,700 and a decrease under other State Railways of £917,900. The grant for the year 1883-84 for State Railways was augmented considerably by the inclusion in it of the unexpended portion of the grant for the previous year, amounting to £622,148. This made the amount available for outlay in 1883-84 £2,422,148.

The Revised Estimate for 1883-84 has been further augmented by the transfer to this head of the outlay to end of 1883-84 on the Railways, &c., noted on the margin, in accordance with the orders of the Secretary of State. The sum thus transferred amounts to £852,274. The diminution in 1884-85 is therefore due to the absence of the special items noted above from the grant for that year. The normal grant under this head is £1,800,000. The grant of £2,151,900 for 1884-85 is composed of the following items:—

Muttra-Achneyra—Farukhabad-Hatras Section Jumna Bridge.
Northern Bengal State Railway—Branch from Parbutipore to Dinagepore.
Calcutta South-Eastern Railway—Branch from Sonarpore to Diamond Harbour.

Railway portion of the annual fixed grant of 2½ millions .	1,800,000
Estimated saving on the grant for 1883-84 . . .	204,600
Contribution by the Government of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, from surplus Provincial balances, to cover the probable outlay on Railways in those Provinces, classed as Productive Public Works .	132,300
Transfer from Irrigation portion of grant . .	15,000

Eastern Bengal Railway.

106. Eastern Bengal Railway.—Increase, £1,123,700. This line will be handed over to Government on 1st July next, and thenceforward it will be a State property. The provision is thus distributed:—

India	100,000
England	1,023,700
TOTAL . .	1,123,700

The provision in India is intended to cover the actual charges of the line during the year, including the expenditure on certain works that need to be completed by the date of the opening of the Hooghly Bridge. In England provision has been made for the payment of £150,000 in discharge of debentures of the Eastern Bengal Railway, which fall due on the 19th May 1884, and also for the payment of £873,700 for debentures and debenture-stock which must be taken over as a State liability.

Miscellaneous Public Improvements.

107. Miscellaneous Public Improvements.—Increase, £533,100. This represents the amount to the end of 1882-83 which has been transferred to the grant under Civil Buildings, Roads, and Services, in the Revised Estimate for 1883-84, on account of the Capital outlay on Madras Harbour Works, and for which no provision exists in 1884-85. In 1883-84 the whole expenditure on Madras Harbour Works to date under this head was transferred from Productive Public Works to "Civil Buildings, Roads, and Services;" the revised expenditure figure was therefore minus £533,100, and no expenditure is shown in the Budget for 1884-85. Comparison between 1883-84 and 1884-85 is therefore set down at plus £533,100.

Provincial Deficit. Caution in comparison of receipts and expenditure.

108. It will be seen on examination of the figures in "Abstract B, Details of Expenditure," that what is known as "Provincial Deficit," in other words, the amount by which the Provincial Governments expect to draw upon their balances to meet their expenditure of the year 1884-85, is considerably less than in the Revised Estimates of 1883-84. In connection with this point it may be desirable to add a few words in regard to comments which were made during the course of last year, on the increasing expenditure of the Indian Government. The Provincial system has been, comparatively speaking, for so short a time at work, that even yet it is little understood that State expenditure in India is of three kinds, Imperial, Provincial, and Local, and that while the former may be stationary or otherwise, the latter advance or decrease quite irrespectively of Imperial Expenditure. It is well known that in 1878-79, during the Afghan War, the Government of India, owing to pressure of ways and means, was compelled not only to impose a check on Provincial and Local expenditure, but to appropriate for the time a considerable amount of the Provincial balances lying at the credit of the several Local Governments. With a return of peace and prosperity the Government of India found itself in a position to refund the amount (£670,000) thus temporarily withdrawn; and the Provincial Governments have, during the last three years, spent on various objects connected with their administrations, the large balances which accumulated during the period of enforced saving, as well as the amount (£670,000) refunded to them. This expenditure would have been spread over a longer period had the necessary funds been at their disposal in previous years, so that the Provincial expenditure of 1882-83 and 1883-84 was in its nature altogether abnormal.

Indian expenditure of three kinds, Imperial, Provincial, and Local.

Special reasons for large Provincial expenditure.

Expenditure during the last three years.

109. In future it may be expected that Provincial and Local expenditure will present fluctuations of much less magnitude. In order, however, to guard against results of possible neglect, or of too sanguine expectations, it has been decided to fix a minimum balance for each Provincial Government or Administration. It will not be possible that in each case, (as, notably, in the case of Burma), the Government or Administration should at once be able to attain the minimum figure so fixed; but where, without undue sacrifice, it cannot at once be attained, care will be taken that it shall be reached within the briefest possible period. The following table shows the minimum balance fixed for each Government and Administration, and opposite to each the estimated opening and closing balances of the year 1884-85:—

Minimum Provincial balance fixed for future years.

Local Government or Administration.	Minimum balance.	Opening balance, 1884-85.	Closing balance, 1884-85.
Madras	200,000	204,000	191,200
Bombay	200,000	300,000	334,100
Bengal	200,000	155,300	104,800
North-Western Provinces and Oudh	200,000	555,000	150,600
Punjab	100,000	103,700	110,500
Central Provinces	80,000	250,400	251,600
British Burma	60,000	25,300	3,200
Assam	50,000	78,100	109,300
Total	1,090,000	1,597,800	1,314,300

The aggregate Provincial balance at end of 1884-85 is estimated to be in excess of the total of the minimum balances as lately fixed, but in some Provinces the balances will be below the minimum. The orders regarding minimum balances were not anticipated by Local Governments, and, as above explained, it has been considered better to allow their balances to fall temporarily below the minimum than to force them to alter arrangements already made.

110. But apart from the more limited question of Provincial expenditure, it is necessary once more to point out that nothing is more misleading than to judge of increased expenditure without taking into consideration the corresponding increase in revenue. Broadly speaking, a glance at Abstracts A and B will show that the receipts and expenditure of the Government, apart from Public Works, fall under three heads. The first of these are the heads which figure in Abstract A under Principal heads of revenue, and in Abstract B under Direct demands on the revenue. Expenditure and Revenue under these heads go together; in other words, although there may be increased expenditure, it will be found, after all disturbing elements are eliminated, that it is more than met by increased revenue. The second head is that of Post Office, Telegraph, and Mint. Here, while there will always be considerable receipts of revenue, from the nature of the Departments concerned, the expenditure may be necessarily in excess of the receipts. The Post Office, for public convenience, is called upon to administer various branches but indirectly connected with its proper business, which are not directly remunerative, and some of its receipts are credited to heads other than Post Office. Under Telegraph, all capital charges are debited to current revenue, and the growth of the Railway system compels an increase of expenditure on the extension of telegraphs which, for some time, cannot be recouped. It is under the groups Salaries and Expenses of Civil Departments, Miscellaneous Civil Charges, and Army Services, as well as under the heads of Military Works and Civil Buildings, Roads, and Services, that will be found those branches of the administration which yield either no direct revenue at all, or a revenue incommensurate with the charges connected with them. Increased expenditure, therefore, under these heads, is, to speak in general terms, dead-weight; and, so far as it is shown that the expenditure under this section is progressive, the attention of the Government may fairly be called to the unproductive nature of these increasing charges.

Remarks on the caution necessary in comparison of expenditure in successive years.

111. Before entering upon any comparisons of Indian expenditure, two other points which are usually lost sight of should be carefully borne in mind. First, that the expenditure of prosperous years should not be compared, as a test case, with that of famine years, or other periods of depression, when the general administration has necessarily to suffer and be starved. The other is, that estimates of one year should be compared with estimates of another, and not, as is frequently done, estimates of revenue with actuals of revenue, and estimates of expenditure with actual expenditure. In point of fact, the actuals of receipts will generally be found to be higher than the estimates of receipts, so that under this head, to compare the actuals of a preceding year with the estimates of the current year will inevitably bring apparent discredit on the progress of the revenue. Similarly, estimates of expenditure are liberally framed so as to meet all possible charges. The actual expenditure, on the other hand, not unfrequently falls below the estimates. Here, again, therefore, to compare the estimated expenditure of the current year with the actual expenditure of the preceding year, is to compare things that are not in all respects the same.

112. It will be found on examination that the chief heads under which the expenditure of India is increasing are:—

(b) District Administration (Land Revenue).
General Administration.
Stationery and Printing.

Police.
Scientific and other Minor Departments.
(c) Education.
Medical.
Public Works.

113. Group (a) is absolutely beyond the control of Government. Under group (b) the growth of the charges is in part accompanied by increase of revenue and in part due to transfers of account, e.g., in Police, where the expenditure on Municipal Police, formerly excluded from the accounts, is now charged under Police. Under group (c) the objects on which the money is spent are of the highest importance, and any judicious increase of expenditure found possible under them may primâ facie be pronounced to be a reason for congratulation, and not a foundation for a charge of extravagance.

Illustration of the fallacy of adopting totals as results.

114. An examination of the total estimated expenditure of 1884-85 as compared with that of 1883-84 will show how cautiously the figures of expenditure require to be examined before any opinion can be formed on the question of prudent or wasteful financial management. The Budget Estimate of 1883-84 showed a total expenditure of £70,064,300, and the Budget Estimate of 1884-85 shows a total expenditure of £70,755,600. The apparent inference is obvious, namely, that the Government of India, in a time of peace and with no special calls on them, have actually increased the public expenditure in one year by no less than £706,300. An examination of the figures will disclose another aspect of the matter.

Position of Government as Railway proprietor.

115. In the first place, the Government of India is largely interested in Railways, both as a proprietor and as having guaranteed the interest on capital outlay. The Government of India, having borrowed money for expenditure on Railways and Canals, is bound to pay the interest when it falls due, and is justified in incurring any necessary increase of working expenses due to increased traffic, or a greater demand for water for purposes of irrigation.

Results of Productive Public Works (Revenue Account) in 1884-85 as compared with 1883-84.

116. The expenditure on Productive Public Works (Revenue Account) in the Estimates of 1883-84 is £11,836,400; in the Estimates of 1884-85 it is £12,542,800 showing an increase of £706,400 which, for the above reasons, was wholly unavoidable, and which in fact brought in a greatly increased revenue. The revenue under this head was taken in the Estimates of 1883-84 at £12,355,600, in those of 1884-85 it is taken at £13,631,100, showing an increase of revenue of no less than £1,275,500. The increased expenditure of £706,400, therefore, on superficial examination of which a charge of extravagance might have been brought against the Government of India, is merely one item of a transaction which has on the whole resulted in a profit of £569,100 (£1,275,500—£706,400). Then, again, the Government of India is a large purchaser of opium. In 1883-84 the crop was a bad one, and the expenditure of the Department was estimated at £2,165,300; the coming crop promises to be a good one, and the expenditure of the Department is estimated at £2,352,900, an increase of £187,600.

Results in other departments analogous.

117. Similar arguments may be applied to the expenditure under Salt, Stamps, Forest, and Post Office, where it would be seen that an increased expenditure of £77,500 is accompanied by an increased revenue of £433,400. Under Telegraph it will be found that there is an increased expenditure of £80,600. This, which seems very extravagant, is simply the cost of constructing Telegraph lines for the Railways that are being made, and the expenditure could not be avoided unless the country was prepared to do without the Railways, and follows on the functions discharged by the State in its capacity of Railway constructor, and proprietor.

118. Again, a special addition of £250,000 has been made by a Local Government to the grant for Famine Relief and Insurance during 1884-85. The meaning of this transaction is that in past years the Local Government saved £250,000, and that it is now ready to invest this sum in protection against famine in future years. This swells the expenditure by £250,000, but is in no way connected with the expenditure of administration, properly so called.

119. Adding together the different items above referred to, we get the following result :—

Net result of above considerations.

Excess expenditure on Productive Public Works (Revenue Account) bringing in additional revenue to amount of £1,275,500	706,400
Excess expenditure on opium on account of a good crop	187,600
Excess expenditure under Salt, Stamps, Forests, and Post Office accompanied by additional revenue of £433,400	77,500
Special increase to Famine Grant	250,000
Increased Capital Expenditure on Telegraphs indispensable for working of new Railways	80,600
Amount to be set off, under heads above referred to, against increase of expenditure shown in the Estimates	1,302,100
Deduct increase on totals of Estimates	706,300
Excess of total set-off over increase shown in Estimates	595,800

Summary of remarks.

120. The above remarks obviously do not exhaust the subject; but they are sufficient to show once more that the Government of India, in its character of Railway constructor, and in its control of various industrial or commercial operations, undertakes large, varied, and expensive enterprises, which, although for the most part highly remunerative, necessarily add to the sum total of its expenditure. It constructs railways and telegraphs; conserves or creates forests; makes and excavates salt; provides savings banks; digs canals and tanks; organises and controls mechanical workshops and foundries; prospects for coal; furnishes funds for agricultural or industrial experiments; subscribes to economical exhibitions. It is also the holder of a large opium monopoly, the cost of which varies with the seasons. It is not even completely master of its own expenses, which so far as they are incurred in England may, to a great extent, be said to be beyond its control; the joint partnership of the English and Indian Governments in army charges, for example, being liable, as this Statement has shown, to sudden and unforeseen fluctuations. Apparent increases or decreases of expenditure, again, are often due to adjustments of accounts; and these, owing to the relations of the Imperial and Provincial Governments, are further complicated, and are certain to mislead superficial examination. Finally, much of the misconception constantly met with in criticisms on the expenditure of the Government of India is due to the faultiness or carelessness of method employed by the enquirer, estimates being compared with actuals, prosperous cycles with famine cycles, and disturbing elements being unquestioningly admitted into calculation.

121. There could not be a better illustration of these remarks than that shown by the preceding figures, where in lieu of an apparent increase of £1,302,100 we arrive, on analysis, at what may be termed a true decrease of £595,800. The estimated Revenue on the other hand is £70,560,400 against £69,022,000 in the Estimates of 1883-84. The Budget Estimates of 1884-85, it may be added, show a reduction as compared with those of 1883-84 under the head of Public Works not classed as Productive of nearly £1,000,000.

Ways and Means.

122. After providing for the Secretary of State drawing during the current year 1883-84 to the full extent he has announced, namely, £17,800,000 (true sterling), and allowing for the bulk of these drawings being telegraphic, so that we shall have to pay the amounts without the interposition of any interval, the balance in Indian Treasuries on March 31st, 1884, is estimated to stand at £12,440,000. This should give a cash balance of about £12,000,000 during the months of April to July; but after that ensue two or three months during which but little revenue comes in, while the rate of expenditure is not greatly altered. Putting the minimum working balance at £8,500,000, we find it necessary to obtain assistance to the extent of £2,500,000 not later than the end of September; and this must be done either by raising a loan in India or by reducing the amount of drawings, which the Secretary of State estimates to be required in the first half of the year to meet the demands on the Home Treasury. I greatly regret that I am at present unable to announce definitely which of these two measures will be adopted, and I am well aware that much inconvenience will be caused by the continuance of uncertainty on this important subject. I can only add that the announcement will be made at the earliest opportunity after the decision of the Secretary of State has been received. The Estimates, meanwhile, have been prepared on the basis of the procedure recently adopted, that is to say, of a loan in India. The cash balance on March 31st, 1885, is estimated at £11,010,850. The amount available in 1883-84 from the grant under Famine Relief and Insurance for the Reduction of Debt is £573,100, but it is not intended to devote this sum to the reduction of the actually existing debt; it will be utilised in increasing the cash balances and so diminishing pro tanto the need for further borrowing. In the present state of the money market this money could not profitably be employed in reducing actually existing debt, and the course proposed is in accordance with the procedure for dealing with the Famine grant laid down in Resolution No. 683, dated 3rd February 1882, and published in Gazette of India of 4th February 1882.

123. It will be convenient to give here a summary of the main features of the present Financial Statement:—

Summary.

(1.) The Accounts of 1882-83 show a surplus of £706,633.

(2.) Provision has been made in 1883-84 for the payment of £1,000,000 (true sterling) on account of arrear non-effective army charges.

(3.) Provision has also been made for drawings by the Secretary of State in 1883-84 to the amount of £17,800,000 (true sterling), being £1,500,000 (true sterling) in excess of the original Estimate of the year.

(4.) The consumption of salt continues to show a satisfactory increase.

(5.) The year 1883-84 has been one of great financial prosperity, and the Revised Estimates show a surplus of £271,400, notwithstanding the additional charges above referred to.

(6.) Railway receipts continue to show progressive increase; and there has been a large development of the trade in wheat.

(7.) No increase, or reduction, of taxation, or change as regards the License Tax, is proposed for next year.

(8.) The surplus of 1884-85 is estimated to be £319,300.

(9.) The net opium revenue for 1884-85 has been taken at £6,241,300, being lower than the Budget Estimate of 1883-84 by £793,400 and lower than the Revised Estimate of 1883-84 by £1,378,400.

(10.) The opium crop of 1883 was unusually short, only 38,214 chests of provision opium having been made as against an estimate of 47,000 chests made in March 1883.

(11.) The opium crop of 1884 promises well, and, it is hoped, may give 52,000 chests of provision opium.

(12.) In any case, not more than 50,000 chests of Bengal opium will be sold in the calendar year 1885, the balance being used to strengthen the reserve, which is estimated to stand at only 2,296 chests on 31st December 1884.

(13.) In the Estimates of 1884-85 the rate of Exchange has been taken at 1s. 7⅛*d.*, and provision made for drawings by Secretary of State to the amount of £16,500,000 (true sterling).

(14.) No decision can yet be announced regarding the customary loan for Productive Public Works. The portion of the grant for Famine Relief and Insurance available in 1883-84 for the reduction of debt will be taken to strengthen the cash balances, and reduce the need for further borrowing.

(15.) The Indian Cash Balance on 31st March 1884 is estimated at £12,440,000 and the cash balance on 31st March 1885 at £11,010,850.

Summary of Financial Statement.

THE Financial Statement for the year 1884-85 is published in the Gazette in the form of a Minute by Sir A. Colvin.

It is explained in the Minute that, owing to the change in the direction of the finances during the year, and in view of the short estimates for opium consequent on the failure of the crop of 1883-84, it has been thought necessary to leave such questions as that of the License Tax and Court Fees untouched for the present; hence during the ensuing year no changes are contemplated.

The Accounts for 1882-83 show a surplus of £706,633. The surplus on the Budget Estimates for that year was £285,000 only, and as the Government of India was called on during the year to bear a heavy expenditure on account of the war in Egypt, and as the item of Exchange exceeded the estimate by £306,400, this result is very satisfactory.

The Revised Estimates for 1883-84 are—

Revenue	70,569,900
Expenditure	70,298,500
Surplus	271,400

Sir Auckland Colvin explains that though the surplus in the Revised Estimates is less than the surplus on the Budget Estimates (£457,000), the deterioration is only apparent, being due to exchange on remittances to the Secretary of State of £1,500,000 in addition to the drawings as originally estimated; and to a payment of £1,000,000 to the War Office on account of arrears of non-effective charges connected with Her Majesty's forces in India. But for these causes, the surplus would have been £1,617,400. The cause of the arrears of non-effective charges is explained to be due to the intricacy of certain actuarial calculations necessary to give effect to the system adopted in 1870 of capitalising the value of the share of pensions chargeable against Indian revenues, and payable by the Indian to the English Treasury. Passing from this abnormal expenditure, the Minute draws attention to the general increase over the Budget Estimates in 1883-84 under the principal heads of revenue other than Productive Public Works, amounting to about £800,000, the net increase on the Public Works being £390,900. The consumption of salt has increased 10 per cent. during the eleven months from the 1st March 1883 to the 31st January 1884 as compared with the corresponding period of the year 1881-82, and represents, at ₹ 2 per maund, an increased revenue of rather more than 51 lakhs of rupees; the increase is steady and progressive. The financial results of Railways since the year 1880-81 are dwelt on at some length; the net gain on the 5 years being shown to be £3,270,843. Sir Auckland Colvin states that two carefully selected officers will be sent to England to give evidence before the Parliamentary Committee recently appointed, and adds that in January 1883 the Government of India submitted to the Secretary of State a scheme of works and expenditure calculated to give a great impulse during the next 5 years to the construction of Railways, but owing to the appointment of a Parliamentary Committee its consideration has been postponed. He adds—

"The Government of India is fully alive to the necessity and the advantages, in the interests no less of the State than of the public, of a vigorous policy in regard to its public works. But there are indications that the mercantile public, whose interest in the matter is little less than that of the State, while actively pressing for a policy such as that above indicated, and confident of prospective profits, is disposed to throw the burden and risk of such works as must be undertaken too entirely on the resources of the Government.

These resources are necessarily limited; and if, as is urged, as experience is daily shewing, and as from the figures given in the last paragraph is proved to demonstration, the remunerative character of railway enterprise in India, when prudently carried out, is unquestionable, it may be fairly demanded that those whose interests in that enterprise are so considerable should not be backward in acting on the confidence of which they give to the Government reiterated assurances."

The expenditure in 1883-84 on State Subsidized and Guaranteed Railways is estimated to be £5,357,600, in 1884-85 £6,591,900. Figures are given illustrating the increase in the exports to England of Indian wheat, which have risen from 8,477,479 cwts. in 1882, to 11,243,497 cwts. in 1883, and 19,500,000 cwts. in 10 months of 1884-85. Exports, in general, have increased from £60,937,513 in 1878-79 to £83,485,122 in 1882-83; imports, from £37,800,594 in 1878-79 to £52,095,711 in 1882-83.

Post Office Savings Banks are said to be most successful, but the demand for Stock Notes is small.

The Estimates for 1884-85 are as follows:—

Revenue	70,560,400
Expenditure	70,241,100
Surplus	319,300

The number of chests of opium to be sold in 1885 will be announced hereafter, but will in any case not exceed 50,000; the estimated outturn of present crop being 52,000. The prospects of the crop now on the ground are very good. The average price of Bengal has been taken at ₹1,250 per chest, as against ₹1,200 in the Estimates of 1883-84. The Minute analyses the various figures under the Estimates of 1884-85, and with regard to the Land Revenue Estimates, states that important correspondence has recently been exchanged between the Government of India and the Secretary of State having for its object to give temporary settlements of the Land Revenue a degree of permanency in the more populous and advanced parts of the country, which they have hitherto lacked.

The rate of exchange for 1884-85 has been taken at 1*s.* 7½*d.* Provision is made for remittance of £16,500,000 to the Secretary of State in 1884-85. The military charges of 1884-85 have been burdened with an additional sum of £184,300, owing to the decision that the pay and allowances of English soldiers in India shall, in future and from the 1st January 1884, when expressed in sterling, be converted at the rate of exchange fixed annually for the payment of troops in the Colonies. Money remitted to and from India by or for the soldiers will be dealt with in the same way, but with effect from the 1st April. The increased cost of this change will depend on the variations in the rate of exchange, but at the exchange of 1*s.* 8*d.*, the present rate, the soldier's pay is increased 12½ per cent. The cash balance on March 31st, 1884, is estimated to stand at £12,440,000, and that on March 31st, 1885, is estimated at £11,010,850. Sir Auckland Colvin adds that it will be necessary to issue the usual loan for Productive Public Works, £2,500,000, but that he is not empowered at present to say whether the loan will be issued in India or at home.

Finally, the Minute enters at some length into an examination of the accuracy of statements made last year regarding the increase of expenditure in India, and points out that the causes which have led to such increase were not of a nature as to lead to charges of extravagance, being either largely covered by increased receipts in the Departments in which the expenditure took place, or being due to the expenditure by Provincial Governments of large balances which had accumulated during the Afghan war, and of which at that time Provincial Governments could not avail themselves, or, finally, to misapprehension on the part of those by whom complaints of extravagance have been brought.

THE following abstract exhibits in a condensed form the results which are the subject of this report, the figures being pounds (£1=R10) with the last two figures cut off for shortness' sake, thus 706,7 reads seven hundred and six thousand, seven hundred pounds:—

2. The details of all these figures will be found in the four statements attached to this Report, namely:—

1.—General Statement of Estimates and Accounts.
2.—Abstract A, showing details of Revenue.
3.—Abstract B, showing details of Expenditure.
4.—Abstract C, showing details of other Transactions.

3. I have first a few general remarks to make under the two heads "Comparison with the year 1881-82" and "Comparison of Accounts with Budget Estimates," and I shall then take up the figures according to the sections lettered A, B, C, &c., in the above abstract.

Comparison with the year 1881-82.

4. A comparison of the accounts of 1882-83 with those of 1881-82 shows the following figures in the Revenue side:—

	1881-82.	1882-83.	Difference. + or —
Principal Heads of Revenue	53,654,4	50,953,6	—2,700,8
Post Office, Telegraph, and Mint	1,489,7	1,709,0	+219,3
Civil Administration	1,513,1	1,437,2	—75,9
Miscellaneous	1,707,2	1,378,5	—328,7
Productive Public Works	12,260,4*(a)*	12,224,1	—36,3
Public Works not classed as Productive.	727,8	830,6	+102,8
Army Services—
Ordinary Account	814,0*(b)*	1,007,5	+193,5
War Account	3,007,5	584,7	—2,422,8
	75,174,1	70,125,2	—5,048,9

(a) The figure shown here in last year's report was 10,782,1, but the Secretary of State has directed that the figures of East Indian Railway should be shown gross on both sides of the account, instead of net earnings being taken on the receipt side. This adds 1,478,3 to both sides of the account.

(b) Assuming as explained last year that all in excess of Budget Estimate be longs to War Accounts.

5. The Financial Statement for 1882-83 announced remissions of revenue, of which the amount may be estimated as follows:—

Abolition of customs duties except on liquors	1,108,0
Reduction of salt duty from R2-14 in Bengal and R2-8 elsewhere to R2 everywhere	1,400,0
Remission of Patwari cess in the North-West Provinces	241,0
TOTAL	2,749,0.

6. It will be seen that the revenue of 1882-83 fell short of that of 1881-82 by very nearly this amount. But in carrying the comparison into detail we have a falling-off of 362,8 in Opium Revenue (which had of recent years maintained very high figures), and of 71,9 on Land Revenue (a matter of distribution between successive years), made up for by advance of Revenue of about 225,0 in Salt (apart from the reduction of duty), of 182,3 under Excise, and smaller amounts under Customs and Forests.

7. Under the next head the expenditure side must be taken along with the receipt side, as in the telegraph department certain transactions brought an addition to both sides. The real difference, both sides taken together, is an improvement of 82,4, which for the most part represents the better receipts of seignorage upon the excessive silver importations of 1882-83.

8. The receipts of Civil Departments are a little worse, the difference being mostly composed of a special receipt in 1881-82 of 44,0 by sale of cinchona bark and a falling off in 1882-83 of about 20,0 in the receipts classed under Law and Justice.

9. The receipts under Miscellaneous have fallen off by 328,7, which may be regarded as the amount of four exceptional items that came into the accounts of 1881-82, of which the largest was 155,3 premium on Loans.

10. The revenue upon Productive Public Works has been very nearly maintained at the figure it reached by the high Railway receipts of 1881-82; the difference in fact is more than made up for by the consideration that certain receipts have been transferred to the non-productive head; but there has been no advance in receipts to make up for the necessary advance in charges.

11. The receipts from other Public Works have increased by the accession of 138,8 of State Railway receipts of which the greater part last year was reckoned under the productive category.

12. The receipts on ordinary military account are for the most part merely sets-off against expenditure, and are best considered along with it. On the war accounts of course there is no comparison between the figures of the two years.

13. The comparison of the expenditure side is as follows:—

	1881-82.	1882-83.	Difference. + or − .
Interest	4,558,1	4,468,1	−90,0
Principal Heads of Revenue	8,220,1	8,477,0	+256,9
Post Office, Telegraph, and Mint	1,771,7	1,908,6	+136,9
Civil Administration	11,038,5	10,948,0	−90,5
Miscellaneous	4,044,5	3,890,4	−154,1
Famine	1,500,0	1,500,0	0
Productive Public Works	11,127,3(a)	11,741,7	+614,4
Public Works not classed as Productive—
Ordinary Account	6,168,9	7,165,7	+996,8
War Account	224,7	...	−224,7
Army Services—
Ordinary Account	16,459,0(b)	16,138,4	−320,6
War Account	2,402,1	1,301,8	−1,100,3
Exchange	3,556,7	3,081,4	−475,3
	71,071,6	70,621,1	−450,5

(a) Last year shown as 9,649,0, as explained under the receipt figures.
(b) Taking all excess over Budget as due to war.

14. The interest charge diminishes in ordinary times, because the amount of debt raised is less than that on which the interest becomes an addition to the Productive account. The difference would have been shown at a higher figure than 90,0 but for an arrear payment of 53,4 made in August 1882.

15. Against Revenue there was somewhat heavier expenditure, the difference lying chiefly in 225,0 spent in opium payments.

16. The Post Office head has been discussed on the Revenue side.

17. Under Civil Administration we have saved the heavy census charges (158,6) of 1881-82, and part of the heavy political expenditure connected with the war in Afghanistan, but have had to meet the ordinary demands for growing expenditure.

18. Under Productive Works we have an increased expenditure of 614,4. Of this, 183,7 represents the additional interest chargeable against this head for capital outlay out of Government funds; 343,9 were caused by the necessity of heavy outlay on Revenue account on the East Indian Railway, and the East Indian Railway and Guaranteed Railway Companies' share of profits (chiefly those of the cold weather of 1881-82) has been 184,8 bigger than the amount paid in 1881-82.

19. The Military Expenditure has been reduced from 16,459,0 to 16,138,4, or to put it more correctly, the net expenditure has been reduced from 15,645,0 to 15,130,9.

20. The charge for exchange follows for the most part the remittances by Council Bills, which were 18,412,4 in 1881-82, but only 14,119,1 in 1882-83. But in regarding the effect on the account of exchange, we must add in 1882-83, 1,027,2 of payments in India remitted through the three new channels of the Southern Mahratta and Central Bengal Railway Companies, and the Hong-Kong Military Treasure Chest.

Comparison of Accounts with Budget Estimates, 1882-83.

21. Compared with the Budget Estimate, we find the following differences in the various sections of the account:—

	Better.	Worse.
A Interest	...	92,1
B Principal Heads of Revenue	1,608,7	...
C Post Office, Telegraph, and Mint	81,4	...

Combined Surplus	1,209,1	...

22. The greater part of the excess charge for interest is accounted for by two items, an unexpected arrear payment of 53,4 and a payment of 11,5 which came in in anticipation of 1883-84.

23. Of the improvement under Revenue, about 320,0 is nominal only and is caused by a difference of about 200,0 in the amount of Land Revenue transferred to the productive account, and by about 120,0 of Miscellaneous refunds being taken out of the Revenue account. But apart from this we get 173,1 better Land Revenue, 128,8 better Salt Revenue (or rather 228,8, as we must take into account the fact that the arrangements about carriage and freight excluded 100,0 from both sides of the account—compare the figure in para. 6), 278,6 better Excise Revenue; 115,1 better Customs Revenue; 129,2 better Forest Revenue; 85,0 saved by new arrangements regarding Patwaris in the North-West not being brought into operation within the year, and 67,6 saved by delay in reorganisation of salt arrangements in Madras and Bombay, and 160,2 by certain refunds in Bombay not being made within the year.

24. The improvement in Post Office, Telegraph, and Mint is partly better message revenue in the telegraph, but mainly underestimate of the gain arising from an exceptional absorption of copper coin, and sale of Mint stores.

25. Under Civil Administration 63,3 of improvement comes in by what may be considered cautious estimating of receipts which are not steady in character, and 120,9 in marine charges in England not met within the year. The estimates for the maintenance of prisoners were, owing to the cheapness of the season, found to be nearly 100,0 in excess of actual requirement, but a large part of this saving was swallowed up to meet the excessive charge for administration (59,9 over estimate) and under one or two other heads.

26. Productive Public Works gave 86,4 better on the net account, due mainly to improvement in Railway Receipts, the estimates not venturing to repeat the high figures realised in 1881-82, while as a matter of fact the railways continued in most cases to produce high receipts. It must be remembered that the improvement of 86,4 is produced after diminishing the credit of Land Revenue due to irrigation from 685,0 (Budget) to 469,1 (Accounts), and after bringing an additional charge for interest of about 9,9 to the account of irrigation works by the purchase of the Madras Irrigation Company.

27. The account of Public Works not classed as productive improved on the receipt side by 210,3, and on the expenditure side by 43,7; but as these improvements appeared after the addition of 121,3 to receipts and 136,2 to expenditure, by transfers from the productive account, the real improvement for explanation is 89,0 on the receipt side, and 179,9 on the expenditure side. Of the first of these figures 58,8 came in under the Miscellaneous head of Civil Buildings, Roads, and Services, and 16,1 by new Provincial Railways. Of the last figure 150,0 is accounted for by the transfer of works to the Southern Mahratta Railway Company, and though endeavours were made to divert the grants so as to push on more vigorously the construction of State Railways, the excess expenditure which came under the head of Railways was more than recouped by short expenditure under Irrigation, Buildings, and Roads.

28. The difference under Army Services is composed of an improvement in the account of ordinary army expenditure of 129,1 with an addition of unestimated war expenditure, chiefly the expedition to Egypt, of 717,1.

29. The exchange adjustment was increased in consequence of the larger amount of remittances obtained by the Secretary of State by Council Bills and through other channels.

31. The increase of expenditure over estimate in respect of ordinary debt was due to a heavy arrear payment of 53,4 in India, and in a smaller degree to unanticipated necessity for borrowing both in India and in England. The estimate on account of interest on other obligations was exceeded chiefly by reason of a charge of 11,5 falling due on Sunday, April 1st, having been admitted to payment the preceding day.

(a) This loan was paid off on June 1st, so that only half a year's interest fell within the year.

32. The estimates under this head are necessarily a matter of calculation upon facts already known; as on the assumption that the amount of arrears handed over from one year to another is about the same, the interest paid each year would be equal to the interest falling due. The only practical uncertainty in this assumption arises in connexion with the 4½ per cent. Loans. There is first the Coupon Loan of 3,130,0, which is mostly held in Europe, and of which the coupons are payable on 15th March; unless the holders send their coupons off in advance of the date of payment, they will not arrive in India till April, and will therefore pass over into the new year of account. As we paid 29,2 in March 1883 against 11,0 in March 1882, the charges of the year 1882-83 ought on this account alone to be 18,2 more than a year's interest. On the other hand, of ordinary 4½ per cent. paper 11,453,2 was held in London on 31st March 1883, against 10,947,7 in March 1882; and as the whole of the interest on this paper necessarily falls on the next year, the transfer of 505,5 during the year relieved March 1883 of interest payments to the extent of 11,4. These calculations would produce on the whole an excess interest payment of 7,8, but as they are really 9,3 less than a year's burden, we have an arrear of 17,1 to be made up in some future year.

33. The four per cent. Loans show an increase of 75,5 over Budget Estimate; this is partly caused by payment of about 20,0 in the form of anticipation interest on the new Loan raised in November and December (for which no provision was made in the Estimates); but mostly by an arrear payment of 53,4 made in August 1882 to the Maharaja of Patiâla upon warrants which he had received in June 1881, but held unpaid for over a year.

34. The charge of 10,2, under the Miscellaneous head, is the balance of the following transactions:—Discount upon new Loan 27,0, interest upon Stock Notes (see paragraph 258, &c., of Financial Statement for 1882-83) 3,3; total 30,3; less interest on 440,0 of securities held by Government and recredited, 20,1; Net amount 10,2.

As no new loan was provided for in the Estimates, or would have been raised, if the necessity had not arisen for expenditure on the expedition to Egypt, no entries were made on this account in the Budget.

All these differences from the Budget Estimate were known at the time of the Revised Estimates, which it will be seen provided very accurately for the actual expenditure (3,681,6 Revised, against 3,686,1 Actuals), a slight excess under Miscellaneous providing for a small deficiency under interest proper.

35. The transfer of part of the interest charge to productive public works is explained in Section G, paragraph 271 below. The amount is the interest on capital found by Government, plus the interest charge on the Rupee part of the East India Railway Commutation Stock.

36. In the English account, the payment of interest exceeded the Budget Estimate by 41,5; of this amount 21,7 was interest paid on temporary loans received from the Bank of England (see para. 379), and the remainder arose in connexion with the two millions of four per cent. debentures raised in October 1882, which was slightly more costly than the operation originally intended at the time of the Estimates.

37. The interest on Special Loans is almost entirely composed of a number of payments made under engagement with the third King of Oudh, which are more in the nature of stipends than of interest payments. These payments have latterly been diminishing in amount, the figures of the past four years being 82,6, 80,0, 78,5, 72,8, and now 69,0. The last of these figures known at the time of the Budget Estimate was 78,5, and the figure taken in the Estimate was 79,6, which in the Revised Estimate was reduced to 72,0. The expenditure has fallen short of this by 3,0. The remaining items under this head are interest in its proper sense, and their amount, 10,3, is more accurately estimated and paid.

38. The estimates under Treasury Notes and Miscellaneous appear to have been in both cases somewhat in excess; it is partly a question of precision of classification, and the excess went to meet some charges more properly shown under Savings Banks deposits.

39. The payments of interest on the Service Funds are:—

212,9	TOTAL .	223,9	224,6	238,9

40. The payments are necessarily slightly progressive as the funds are cumulative; the only difference which demands explanation is the excess against the Bengal Civil Fund, which was caused by certain interest on Treasury Notes, amounting to 11,5, being passed for payment on March 31st, 1883, instead of April 1st, 1883.

Section A.—INTEREST —concluded.

The Bombay Fund was surrendered to Government on December 1st, 1882, but the first interest payment affected by the transfer is that due on April 1st, 1883, so that the figures of 1882-83 remain unaffected by the transaction.

41. The Balances of Savings Banks Deposits compare as follows with those of the previous years:—

	March 1881.	March 1882.	March 1883.
Presidency	2,225,6	2,312,1	2,363,6

TOTAL	3,290,5	3,365,8	3,744,1
One year's interest at 3¾ per cent.	123,4	126,2	140,4

The previous year's figures under this head contained two years' payments in respect of Savings Banks. The Budget did not make sufficient provision for the increase of Balances held on Savings Bank terms. The amount charged during the year was 128,3, the increase over Budget being mostly in Bombay, where the Balance in deposit received great accessions.

42. The difference under England arises from the fact that no claims were made against 1,0 provided for interest on the accounts of soldiers returned to England.

Section B.—PRINCIPAL HEADS OF REVENUE.

1881-82. Accounts.		1882-83. Budget.	Revised.	Accounts.
53,654,5	RECEIPTS	49,871,0	50,794,9	50,953,6

43. From the comparison between the two years we must exclude the following actual receipts in 1881-82 on account of revenues, which were remitted after that year:—

Salt duty reduced	about	1,400,0
Customs abolished	,,	1,108,0
Patwari cess in N. W. P. remitted	,,	241,0 and the figures of 1881-82 being reduced by this amount, the four figures in the heading would run thus: 50,905,5, 49,871,0, 50,794,9, 50,953,6.

44. It would thus appear that the revenue of the two years allowing for this difference is very nearly the same. Against a falling off of 362,8 in opium, which represents a real loss of revenue, and of 71,9 in Land Revenue, which is more a question of distribution between successive years, we have a gain of 225,0 in Salt (apart from the reduction of duty), 182,3 under Excise, about 65,0 in Customs, and 63,8 in Forests, all of which may be regarded as establishing for the time a higher scale of annual revenue, accompanied, however, in the case of forests, by corresponding increase of expenditure. Stamps and Registration appear to be at present stationary.

45. The improvement in the Revised Estimate over the Budget figures is less than two per cent. on the whole, and occurs under nearly every one of the heads; it may be taken as representing merely the "safeness" of the Estimate.

The accounts showed figures only very slightly in excess of the Revised Estimates.

21,948,0	LAND REVENUE "ORDINARY"	21,487,0	21,700,4	21,876,1

46. India.—The variations in these figures chiefly arise in respect of the Quetta Revenues.

47. Central Provinces.—The variations here are in the item of advance collections. These were heavier than usual in 1881-82 and warranted a short estimate for 1882-83.

48. Burmah.—The shortness of the revenue was due to a combination amongst the landholders of the Hanthawadi and Pegu districts to refuse payment of revenue, with the object of forcing on Government a reduction of assessment. The combination failed, but the arrears did not come in till 1883-84 had begun.

49. Bengal.—The Budget Estimate was somewhat moderate, and better collections of arrears produced an excess revenue of 48,8 on the whole; the improvement in the Actuals of 1882-83 as compared with 1881-82 may be considered normal.

50. North-Western Provinces.—The figures of 1881-82 were increased by arrear realisations of remissions of previous years; the Revised Estimate was raised in view of the actual progress of collections; but about 70,0 of the Estimate failed to be realised till May and June 1883.

51. Madras.—The Estimate here was taken a little over the normal figure, as there was in the beginning of the year an unusual amount of arrear. The arrears increased during the year, and the Revised Estimate was taken still lower; but on the stringent orders of Government to push the collections, they came in very rapidly at the end of the year, and produced about 200,0 more than even the normal revenue.

52. Bombay.—The Land Revenue has somewhat varied owing to the orders of the Secretary of State that the new "Survey rates" should not exceed 20 per cent. in certain districts. This and remission of revenue on account of destruction by locusts caused a diminution of nearly 120,0 in the revenue as compared with 1881-82,—a diminution which was overestimated in the Budget and in the Revised Estimates. There was a further difference owing to some exceptional receipts coming into 1881-82.

53. The transfer of part of the Land Revenue to the head of Productive Public Works is noticed in that section of the accounts.

54. It remains to notice the distribution of the Land Revenue, between the Imperial and Provincial Governments. In 1882-83 for the first time the method was adopted of adjusting the total amount of assigned Provincial revenues to the total of assigned Provincial expenditure by including in the former a calculated proportion of Land Revenue

55. The Provincial contracts however are subject to continual petty variations which are made by consent between the Imperial and Provincial Governments concerned, to provide for services or allow for revenues which either arise in the transaction of business and lie outside the contracts themselves, or which, though they were foreseen at the time of the contract, were expressly excluded from it. The contracts themselves also contain one provision which brings in considerable variation, namely, that when the Provincial Government decides to employ its surplus in Productive Capital Expenditure, the amount which it thus sets apart comes back into the Imperial account. This amount has already, by the Provincial adjustment, been written off the Imperial surplus in the same way as if it had been spent on "ordinary" expenditure, and is therefore held in Provincial balance so that it may be utilized for such expenditure without coming in again as a charge against the Imperial Surplus; but when the Provincial Government gives up the intention to spend it on "ordinary" expenditure, this write-off from the Imperial Surplus has to be reversed, as otherwise we would charge off against ordinary revenue, an amount which never has been, and never will be, used for ordinary expenditure. The simplest way of doing this is to deduct the amount from the Provincial and add it to the Imperial share of Land Revenue.

56. The detail of the distribution of Land Revenue between Imperial and Provincial is shown in the following statement in which the transfers are shown + or — in accordance with their effect on the Imperial account:—

The "Water-works adjustment" is the first annual instalment of 10,0, in repayment to Imperial of 106,5 spent upon Madras Water-works.
(f) Of this amount 62,3 is refund of excess allowance made to provincial 251,3 for Land Revenue remissions ordered by the Secretary of State over the actual cost 189,0 of said remissions; and 25,0 is refund of an amount allowed to provincial in 1881-82 for expenditure upon Uru Salt Works, but now withdrawn as these works are to be undertaken from Imperial Funds.

57. The principal items shown in the above account under Miscellaneous arise from two reservations made in the provincial contracts of March 1882, namely, (1) the refund from Provincial to Imperial of the amount of reduction effected in Customs Establishments, Provincial Governments having been allowed for the full establishment existing before 1882-83. (2) Repayment to Provincial of Census charges, which were not included in the Provincial Contracts as the census operations were just about to end.

(a) The last two columns refer to stock for export only, and exclude three or four thousand chests produced annually for consumption in India.

59. At the end of 1881-82 the prices realised at the opium sales were falling, namely, January 1,336, February 1,288, March 1,257. During 1882-83 the prices realised at the twelve sales were as follows: 1,241, 1,210, 1,302, 1,260, 1,220, 1,228, 1,207, 1,188, 1,149, 1,186, 1,227, 1,240. It will be seen that there was a sudden depression of price from November till January, which was largely caused by the discovery that some of the opium sold in October was seriously damaged. The November sales were put off for a week to allow of examination of the opium intended for sale, but prices did not recover for the next two months. The average for the whole year was ₹1221-11, being ₹21-11 better than the Budget Estimate, which had been taken at Rs. 1200; this upon 56,400 chests gave an improvement of 122,5.

60. The produce of the year (for export) was 54,039 chests, but of this 2,342 chests were wasted and damaged, so that only 51,697 were really available. The sales therefore drew upon stock to the extent of 4,703 chests. The 2,342 chests returned as wasted and damaged were made up for excise opium after examination and removal of the damaged part of the contents.

61. Bombay.—For Bombay the following figures compare the exports:—

(a) Opium which passes the scales at Ajmere pays ₹25 more.

62. The rate on Bombay opium which had stood for some time at ₹700 (and 725 for Ajmere weighments) was reduced to ₹650 (and 675 for Ajmere) from 28th June 1882. This reduction necessarily followed the lower range of prices indicated by the sales in Bengal and the diminution in Malwa exports. Exports again became active, and although a little more than the whole number of chests estimated was actually brought forward, the reduction of the duty prevented the realisation of the estimated revenue. The months of January and February were rather favourable and caused the Revised Estimates to be placed at a high figure, but March showed a sudden falling off. To a large extent however the chests had actually passed the scales, but were represented by bills outstanding at the end of March and thus passed into the realizations of next year.

63. Excise.—The receipts in each of the provinces concerned exceeded the Budget Estimate. Burmah is the only province which shows a revenue less than last year, and here the reduction was very small, although the number of shops was reduced from 28 to 18. In Assam measures were taken at the end of the year to reduce consumption by raising the price from ₹26 to ₹32 per seer, but the traders in anticipation of the increase took out large stocks and thus caused an increase in the revenue.

64. Miscellaneous.—The falling off here is in the recoveries in the Bengal Agencies.

III.—Salt Revenue.

25,4	MISCELLANEOUS.	20,8	25,0	29,1
7,375,6	TOTAL .	6,049,0	6,128,7	6,177,8

65. At the beginning of the year, that is, from March 10, 1882, the Salt duty was reduced from ₹2-14 in Bengal and ₹2-8 elsewhere (except in Burmah) to ₹2, which accounts for the general diminution of revenue as compared with 1881-82. The immediate effect of the reduction would be a falling off to the extent of about 1,400,0, but as the comparison between the two years shows a diminution of about 1,200,0, which is composed of 25,0 on account of the depôt plan disappearing from both sides of the account, and 1,175,0 of Salt revenue proper, we must consider the revenue to have advanced, apart from the reduction of duty, by 1,400,0 — 1,175,0, or about 225,0.

66. Of the decrease of Actuals compared with Budget under the first head, 105,6 must be put down as nominal, being due to the abandonment of the depôt plan, by which salt was brought at Government expense to certain central depôts, the outlay being again realised along with the sale proceeds; the corresponding diminution appears in the expenditure. The remainder of the decrease, 54,1, is more than met by the increase under Sea Borne Salt, Bengal, and arises from the fact that Cheshire salt, being relieved of the burden of six annas differential duty, has to some extent taken the place in Northern India of salt supplied from other sources. Notwithstanding this decrease of the area of consumption of Northern India Salt, and a similar encroachment of Bombay salt on the western side, the duty realised by the Northern India Salt Department is a little more than the four-fifths of the realisation of 1881-82 (1,338,0 against 1,667,3) which would correspond to the reduction of duty from Rs. 2-8 to Rs. 2.

67. In Sea Borne Salt, Bengal, the reduction of the Budget compared with last year's Actuals compares pretty closely with the ratio of ₹2-14 to ₹2; but the realisations largely exceed. Part of this has already been explained to arise from the extension of the area of consumption, and the rest of it may be explained as the general increase of consumption which has followed the reduction of duty. Burmah showed a large falling off which was due to consumption being supplied out of accumulation of stocks. The stock of salt in that province has decreased in two years from 17,754 to 11,027 tons.

68. In Government Salt the principal figures are those of Madras, and the increase is due in a large degree to administrative measures which have greatly reduced the consumption of illicit salt.

69. In Excise duty the chief figures are those of Bombay, where a favourable outturn caused larger exports of salt to other provinces. This has been already alluded to under the first head.

IV.—Stamps.

1881-82. Accounts.		Budget.	1882-83. Revised.	Accounts.
2,301,5	Court-fees	2,258,7	2,332,3	2,300,6

15,0	Miscellaneous	12,5	16,8	16,5
3,381,4	TOTAL . .	3,342,0	3,411,6	3,379,7

70. The revenue under this head is very steady, with a general tendency to improvement, which however has not shown itself this last year. The realisations fell off slightly in the Punjab (attributed to decrease of litigation), and in Madras. The decrease in fact is somewhat larger than at first sight appears, for in Bengal and the North-West some small receipts, which used to be taken in cash, are now arranged for by stamps, and are therefore added to this head, and in Bombay they were redeemed only by a windfall of 7,2 probate duty in a single case. 1881-82 was an exceptional year, and the rate of increase which it showed, 130,8, could hardly be expected to be maintained. The Budget was taken at a moderate figure, and was slightly exceeded.

V.—Excise.

1881-82. Accounts.		Budget.	1882-83. Revised.	Accounts.

16,0	Other Receipts	15,6	17,2	19,4
3,427,3	TOTAL .	3,331,0	3,615,9	3,609,6

71. Here every province except Madras shows an increase both over the figures of last year and the figures of the Budget. The Budget Estimate is ordinarily taken at the amount expected to be realised during the year then expiring, so that any increase in the revenue brings in an increase over Budget. An increase may as experience shows be confidently calculated on if the season is one of ordinary agricultural prosperity, and it has been contributed to by administrative measures. The increase was greatest in the North-West (475,2 against 414,7 last year) and in Bombay (701,0 against 660,3).

72. Under the first head, General Rate, there is an improvement in Bengal due to revaluations. The largest difference occurs in Madras and was caused by the active measures taken by the Government, as mentioned under Land Revenue, to bring up collections at the end of the year.

73. Under Other Rates the Bengal and Madras figures are affected by the same considerations. In the North-West figures we have to note the reduction of revenue caused by the remission of the Patwari cess, which in the Financial Statement was estimated at 240,0, and almost exactly accounts for the difference between the realisations of the two years. The revenue by rates was somewhat over-estimated in the Revised Estimates of the North-Western Provinces; they fell off largely at the end of the year, just as Land Revenue did.

74. The Customs duties were abolished from March 10, 1882, with the exception of the import duties on liquors and on arms and ammunition, and the export duties upon rice.

The import duties therefore are now almost entirely liquors, and the exports almost entirely rice; so that the classification of last year may now be discontinued. The net figures after drawbacks and refunds are—

	1880-81.	1881-82.	1882-83.
Imports, Liquors	378,9	405,7	418,4
Exports, Rice	715,5	747,8	814,9

The figures under other heads (mostly refunds) being too small for separate mention.

75. The imports of liquors are increasing, just as the Excise duties on liquors are, and though there were variations in the several provinces, the estimates were on the whole fairly followed.

The increase in the duties on rice marks the expansion of the trade, which has been very marked in recent years.

76. Under Miscellaneous, the receipts were mostly overestimated in the Budget, that is to say, the effect of the abolition of much of the business connected with Customs was not sufficiently taken into account. The figure is not an important one.

1881-82. Accounts.		1882-83. Budget.	Revised.	Accounts.
536,8	TOTAL	538,0	525,9	517,8

77. No remarks are here called for; there is a tendency to decline in most of the provinces, which is probably due to the absence of systematic re-assessment.

2,2	England	2,1	2,8	2,7
874,4	TOTAL	809,0	921,6	938,2

78. Burmah and Bombay are the chief provinces in respect of forest administration. Both of these provinces show extending operations, and the high prices of timber have during the last year or two greatly increased the revenue. The state of the market has been such as to render it advisable, in each of the last two or three years, to push operations towards the end of the year, and thus to bring about a considerable increase over Budget both in revenue and in expenditure. Sales of teak are the chief factor in the increase in Burmah, but in Bombay we have increase not only in the larger timber, but also in sales of railway fuel and sandal-wood.

79. The North-West estimates were the only ones that failed; they estimated for the sale of a large quantity of sleepers that had been for some time in stock, but were not successful in finding a purchaser.

80. Assam and Madras chiefly contributed to the increase in "Other provinces," but sandal-wood sales added to the receipts in Coorg (India) as they did in Bombay.

706 9	TOTAL	701,0	707,9	689,9.

82. The variations under this head are caused by slight irregularities in the payments, many of which are due at the very end of the year. Last year's figures included an arrear payment of about 6,0; this year's appear to have fallen slightly behind.

Section B.—DIRECT DEMANDS ON THE REVENUE.

1881-82. Accounts.		1882-83. Budget.	Revised.	Accounts.
8,220,1	EXPENDITURE	9,003,1	8,735,5	8,477,0

83. The total saving on the Budget is 526,1. Of this, 124,2 is nominal, being merely the transfer to their particular heads of the refunds not coming under Revenue heads. A saving of 160,0 was made in the provision made in Bombay for certain special Land Revenue Refunds, but this also is no real saving, for the payments are only put off to another year. Against this 160,0, however, we had unexpected charges for other refunds, amounting in all to 85,0, so that the expenditure in Revenue refunds was really only 75,0 less than the Budget. Under Salt, the saving is 190,0, of which 100,0 is practically an exclusion from both sides of the account of freight charges recoverable from purchasers, about 200 is short charge for manufacture, and 67,6 may be described the provision made for administrative improvements in Madras and Bombay which were only in course of introduction when the year closed. The same may be said of the 85,0 provided under Land Revenue for the transfer to Government of the pay of Patwaris in Oudh,—see para. 60 of the Financial Statement.

84. The figures thus specifically mentioned amount to 474,2 out of the 526,1 saved in the estimates, and the remainder is made up of a number of items, some of the major heads slightly exceeding and others falling short of the Budget provision.

85. Compared with last year the chief difference lies in 225,4 additional expenditure upon opium, representing a better crop; and 38,7 under Land Revenue. Salt gave an apparent saving of 37,2 and Customs a real one of 40,1. The other differences were small, except that under refunds, the figures of which are rather irregular upon a comparison of years.

3.—Refunds and Drawbacks.

...	Law and Justice	42,5	...	...
....	Miscellaneous Refunds	81,7		...
272,4	TOTAL	511,0	384,2	316,6

86. The Land Revenue refunds are necessarily incapable of accurate estimate, as their amount depends upon claims which for the most part are not yet brought forward. The Estimates of 1882-83, however, provided for the execution of certain orders issued by the Secretary of State, directing a diminution in the rate of enhancement assessed in some of the districts of Bombay. The whole amount to be thus refunded was estimated at 193,3, but as the proceedings took longer than expected, the Revised Estimates showed only 107,5 falling within the year, and as a matter of fact only 33,1 came into the year's accounts, the rest coming into 1883-84. Excluding these figures, the amount of Land Revenue Refunds becomes—Budget 41,1, Revised 94,7, Actuals 91,5, the increase in the latter figures being caused by special payments in Burmah, Bengal, and Madras. Under Salt, the payments in Bengal and in Bombay were under-estimated; and under Customs, sufficient reckoning was not made of the refunds which the abolition of the duties would bring in as a matter of closing of accounts; the refunds on piece goods in Bombay were 6,0,—nearly half as much as they were in the whole year 1881-82.

87. The charges under "Other Revenue Refunds" were very high, the excess over Budget arising in two ways. First there were excise refunds in Bombay chiefly made under agreement with Native States. These were estimated at 15,9, but came to 36,6. The greater part of the charge should have fallen into 1881-82, but the accounts were not settled in time, and the excess over the Budget Estimate is due to the raising of the pass fees upon which they are calculated. In the North-Western Provinces a charge of 9,7 was brought upon the year by the necessity of refunding the Patwari cess that had been collected after the date—March 10th, 1882—of the orders abolishing it.

88. The refunds under Law and Justice and other Non-Revenue heads were removed to their special major heads under orders of the Secretary of State received in February 1883; they do not therefore appear in this part of the accounts, in the Revised Estimates and in the Actuals.

89. The figures under "India" are almost entirely salt compensations. The Budget figure shows pretty accurately the annual amount of these compensations, and the Revised added to it about 44,0, the amount stipulated for in some new treaties, and a small amount which had remained undrawn in 1881-82. Out of 152,2, the compensations estimated in the Revised on account of Jodhpoor, Jeypoor, Meywar, Sirohi, and Holkar's States, only 124,9 was paid during the year, and the accounts therefore fell short of the estimate.

90. Bengal shows its normal figure, the high figure of 1881-82 being due, as explained last year, to two annual payments of 5,0 coming within the year's accounts.

91. Madras and Bombay.—The differences here accounted for in the same way as explained in detail under "India," that is, they are due to irregularities in payment, which are not always under the control of Government officers. In Bombay as much as 16,1 remained undrawn at the end of the year.

3,003,8	TOTAL	3,168,0	3,055,9	3,042,5

92. India.—The estimate under this head should for purposes of explanation be divided into two parts, namely—

50,4	Survey of India, Revenue Survey	8,3	11,7	11,7
23,1	Other Charges	23,1	25,0	25,2

For the explanations of the figures in the first of these two lines, it is best to refer to those given against "Survey of India," under "Scientific and other Minor Departments," with which they are closely linked. The estimate should have stood at 11,0, but was reduced by 2,7, on account of savings which were not meant to be made in this particular part of the estimate.

93. The figures shown against the following provinces do not call for remark:—Central Provinces, Burmah, Assam, Punjab. The payments are mostly for salaries and have varied only in a small degree from the particulars provided in the Budget.

94. In Bengal the estimates appear to have been a little too low, as the expenditure exceeded under most of the heads; the charges being mainly for establishments ought to have been more accurately forecast; the increase was from 323,8 estimated to 328,2 spent. The same remark was made last year, and the mistake arises in part from excessive allowance for "Probable savings," and also apparently from insufficient estimates of expenditure under such heads as "Revenue Survey" and "Government Estates."

95. In the North-Western Provinces the difference lies chiefly in the provision made for the payment of Putwaris in Oudh, to which allusion is made in paragraph 60 of the Financial Statement for 1882-83. The pay of these men, about 75,0; hitherto paid by zemindars, was to be undertaken by the Government, and allowing for an increase in their number, 85,0 was provided in the estimates. The new law was not brought into operation during the year, and the money therefore remained unspent. Omitting this the figures of 1882-83 run thus:—Budget 695,9, Revised 678,9, and Actuals 667,2, the difference in which comes for the most part under the single head of Revenue Survey, which is explained under "Scientific and other Minor Departments." These Revenue Survey charges came into the Provincial Estimates for the first time in 1882-83, and it is almost entirely in their amount, 26,3, that the difference between the figures of 1881-82 and 1882-83 lies. In Madras there is a slight excess caused by the creation of a new district, Anantapur, and by a slight extension of survey operations.

96. In Bombay the charges were increased by operations for the destruction of locusts, and by writing off 4,1 out of a claim against the city of Ahmedabad for City Survey, and by expenditure in setting up boundary-marks in Sind; on the other hand, a large reduction was made by the Government directing a new rate of distribution of the charges for village service between this head and that of "Police," the charges of the two years being thus compared:—

	1880-81.	1881-82.	1882-83.
Land Revenue	292,1	300,2	271,0
Police	59,6	57,6	78,7

3,0	INDIA, BOMBAY, AND ENGLAND	2,0	3,6	2,2
2,057,4	TOTAL	2,250,0	2,344,9	2,282,8

97. The expenditure on opium in Bengal depends entirely upon the amount of the crop, as it consists chiefly of the payment to cultivators for the crude opium. The estimate was taken sufficiently high to provide for an average crop, and did very nearly meet the charges, the crop being, as shown under the revenue side, rather better than the recent averages. The expenditure promised to run somewhat higher at the time of the Revised Estimate, but fell again in February and March.

98. The provision made in the estimates for establishment and miscellaneous charges appears to have been higher than required. The saving was chiefly under the head of "Commission to employés," expenditure 16,6 against estimate 21,5. This "commission" is practically a part of the employé's salary which depends upon the outturn of the season.

7.—Salt.

	England	...	4,0	...
486,2	TOTAL	639,0	499,4	449,0

99. In the Northern India Salt Department a reduction was shown in both the above divisions of expenditure.

100. In the first division, this reduction is mainly in manufacture charges, which naturally depend greatly on the character of the season. They were taken in the Budget Estimate at 34,0 for Sambhar and 6,2 for Pachbudra; against the actual figures of 1881-82, 19,4 and 4; but the actuals were only 17,6 and 8,1, being 14,5 less than Budget. The saving as compared with last year was in the expenditure on petty construction, and other costs, incurred in 1881-82 in the introduction of the depôt system. The difference under carriage and freight has already been alluded to upon the revenue side, and is due to the abandonment of the depôt plan, which did not, as it was expected to do, tend to the diminishing of the price of salt, and was entirely a source of expense.

101. The diminution of the Bengal figures was due to reduction in the preventive establishment in Orissa.

102. In Madras a systematic reorganisation of the department was intended, and the following new expenditure was included in the estimates, 30,2 for establishments, 6,9 additional for petty construction (that is, 18,4 against past year's actuals, 11,5), and 8,0 additional for purchase of salt from manufactories, giving a total excess in estimated expenditure of 45,1 on this account. The reorganisation was not nearly complete by the end of the year, and thus the expenditure originally estimated at 182,2 was taken in the Revised Estimates at 157,0 and was really only 152,3.

103. In Bombay similarly large provision was made in the Budget for new administrative arrangements. Establishments were proposed for the administration of salt in Portuguese India, and for a preventive line on the Kathiawar frontier, but none of these measures were fully carried out within the year. In fact hardly any new expenditure on the preventive line was actually incurred, and of 12,5 provided for petty construction in connection with it only 1,0 were spent. Thus the expenditure was as a matter of fact reduced to very nearly its old limits, and would indeed have fallen within them, had not the season been unusually favourable for the manufacture of Kharagora Salt.

104. The English expenditure is the only part that calls for remark, and the increase in it was caused by the demands for stores being somewhat larger than usual.

9.—Excise.

1881-82. Accounts.		Budget.	1882-83. Revised.	Accounts.
96,9	TOTAL	99,0	95,7	94,4

105. The expenditure, except in one respect, was nearly the same as last year. The difference alluded to is in the expenditure introduced in the North-Western Provinces in 1881-82 by an experimental direct management of the excise farms in two districts,—an experiment which was abandoned in 1882-83. It is in this point also that the principal difference lies between the Budget Estimate and the final outturn.

10.—Provincial Rates.

106. The figures of the current year are nearly the same, province by province, as those of 1881-82. The Government of Bengal made a short estimate of 17,8, but its expenditure in both years has been over 23,0.

Section B.—DIRECT DEMANDS ON THE REVENUE—concluded.

107. The abolition of most of the Customs duties was followed by considerable reductions in the Customs establishments, the precise amount of which it was not possible to forecast with exactitude in the Budget Estimates. The reduction of expenditure is necessarily far from proportionate to the reduction of revenue, both because the retention of the duties on liquors, on salt, and on rice render it necessary to maintain nearly the same organisation of Customs establishments, and because the statistical work of the Customs Department had still to be maintained. The reduction was, however, a little more than had been at first estimated, or rather, the knowledge that the reductions would cause considerable new expenditure for pensions and gratuities prevented the Budget figure being too far reduced. In future the figures should be still smaller, as the figures of 1882-83 are necessarily still affected by the unreduced establishments.

13,1	TOTAL .	15,0	13,8	12,9

108. On these figures no remark is required. Three-quarters of the expenditure, both this year and last year, was in Bengal, which estimated 10,5 and spent 9,6 and 9,5.

13.—Forest.

557,6	TOTAL .	581,0	586,7	567,3

109. The Central Provinces estimated for expenditure in the preparation of railway sleepers, for which, however, the expected demand was not made. The provision made for salaries was also more than was required. In Burmah, as noticed upon the receipt side, a sudden demand for timber set in at the end of the year, and extra expenditure was sanctioned in order to bring timber to market; this brought the Revised Estimate up to 128,5, and the expenditure would have been nearly the same, but that about 5,0 remained undisbursed when the year closed. The addition made to revenue was 75,4 over Budget, whereas that of expenditure, taking the higher figures of the Revised Estimate, was 18,5.

110. The estimates of the North-Western Provinces would have been worked up to but that 3,8 remained due and unpaid on account of current year's operations when the year closed.

111. For Bombay the explanation is almost the same as in the case of Burmah, and has been noticed upon the revenue side. The surplus in both of these provinces was the largest that has ever been realised.

112. The savings on the Budget in the "Other provinces" accrued in a number of small sums, none of which requires separate mention.

113. Under this head Burmah and Assam showed expenditure 1,0 and 2,1 against estimates 2,0 and 2,5. In the first case the saving was due to abolition of registration allowances made to Treasury officers, and in the second to savings in district charges. The charges are mostly commission on fees, but partly also salaries, and it is in Madras that the principal increase of expenditure occurs. The estimates show the following number of offices open in that Presidency—February 1881, 211; February 1882, 252; February 1883, 282. In other provinces the expenditure is stationary.

114. The working of the Post Office was a little worse than the Estimate. The Telegraph appears a little worse than last year; but as the Capital Expenditure in India was 150,0 against 106,1 last year, there is really an improvement in current expenditure. The Mint was much better than Estimate, owing to the large importations of silver.

115. The Estimates under the two first heads must be taken together, as small variations in the system of the department sometimes have the effect of transferring sums from one to the other. The totals of the two heads shew the following figures,—834,2 for 1881-82, and 846,2, 867,1 and 865,4 for 1882-83, shewing a considerable increase in the year's revenue. The Money Order fees increase with the Money Order work; the Budget figure should really stand at 70,0 as the remaining part, 19,6 was the Estimate of yearly exchange on the issue of Orders payable in England wrongly taken to this head. Thus explained, it will be seen that the Estimate was largely exceeded. The remittances of the last three years compared with the fees are as follows:—

	1880-81.	1881-82.	1882-83.
Inland Orders	4,570,9	5,733,5	6,468,4

Under Other Receipts the realizations closely corresponded with the Estimates, which were framed for a reduction of 10,3 in Bullock Train receipts, due to restriction of operations, and of 8,0 in other items.

116. The message revenue on the Indian lines, trusting to the effect of the revised rates of January 1, 1882, was taken in the Estimates at too great an advance over the former year, and besides this a sum of 18,3 due from the South Indian Railway was not paid till 1883-84. The increase in the Indo-European receipts was due to the interruptions of the Eastern Telegraph Company's line viâ Suez, causing a great accession of traffic to the former line. The common-purse arrangement, however, causes a large share of this increase of revenue to pass out again in the form of payments to the Eastern Telegraph Company. A large amount was received also in the form of recoveries from the Persian Government.

117. The seignorage on Silver is of course not capable of estimate, as it depends upon the course of trade. This during the year under review was altogether irregular, as the practical suspension of drawings by the Secretary of State during the last half of 1882 caused large imports of Silver, which found their way to the mints, and produced a large revenue by seignorage.

118. The importations of Silver have been in recent years—

	Net Importation.	Silver Coinage.	Seignorage.

1882-83	7,480,0	6,427,4	108,9

119. The Gain on Copper Coinage is brought to account upon an examination of the amount actually passed into circulation, the balance of gain on manufacture being held back till the coin so passes out. The statistics of Copper circulation are only now being brought together, and the absorption appears to go on at a rate which was not anticipated in the Estimates. An unusual quantity had passed out in 1881-82, and it was thought that it would be followed by a falling off in 1882-83, but the rate was still kept up, and the net gain brought to account was 35,0.

120. The Miscellaneous receipts in the Calcutta Mint came in through the Mint undertaking certain work in connection with the supply of Cartridge metal to the Dum-Dum Factory; in Madras, through the sale of some old Mint materials; Bombay, through the sale of a large quantity of Copper, which when purchased had been charged to the Service head.

121. The introduction of Post Office Savings Banks, and the rapid extension of money order work throw upon the Chief Post Office and the Presidency and District Offices necessity for increase of expenditure. The estimates were framed to allow of this, and they covered the expenditure fully.

The expenditure for Conveyance of Mails seems to have been short-estimated, as it stood at 308,6 last year, 303,1 this year, against 283,1 estimated.

Under Other Charges, the increase over estimate was mainly in printing charges.

122. The figures of the department, taken net, and allowing for the mis-classification to the exchange alluded to under Receipts, are—

124. In the Capital Account of the Indian Telegraph in India, the savings of 10,4, as compared with Budget, and 9,2 as compared with Revised, is due mainly to the expenditure of Stores being more largely met from stock than was at first anticipated. The demands for Telegraph construction are increasing with the extension of Railway lines.

125. The figures of England, though within Estimate, largely exceeded those of 1881-82, as heavy demands were made for stores.

tional Railway offices; but the Expenditure fell short mainly by reason of these extensions not being fully carried out. In England there was a slight excess of leave allowances, provided for practically by consequent savings in India.

128. The figures under Calcutta Mint are explained by the provision made for the recoinage of old and shroff-marked rupees, which it was intended to collect at the treasuries and to send in to the Mints. A provision of about 2,50 was made for the loss of weight to be made good in this operation, as it was ascertained that the rupees were seriously deficient in weight; but of the amount only 5,8 was used during the year.

129. In Bombay there were savings in establishment for which apparently unnecessarily high provision had been made; the charges, however, were higher than those of last year, as the outturn of work was greater.

130. This section of the Revenue Account received last year a special credit of nearly 44,0 by sale in England of cinchona supplied from the Government plantations. This special receipt of 1881-82 and a falling off to the extent of about 20,0 under "Law and Justice" account for the main difference between the two years. "Police" and "Marine" also show a falling off, but in both cases the change involves reduced expenditure. Education shows increasing receipts, and it was under this head and under Marine that the Budget chiefly was exceeded.

131. The figures of the first of these heads partake largely of the character of casual receipts, the regularity of which from year to year is as it were the balance of many chances. The receipts in the three preceding years were 268,5, 268,2, and 271,6, so that the Budget Estimate of 265,3 seemed a pretty sure one. There has been a falling off, however, in several of the provinces, caused to a small extent in Bengal and in the North-Western Provinces by transfer of certain receipts to "Stamps," and the realisations come to only 250,9.

132. Under Jail Manufactures the receipts in Burmah were 7,7 below estimate, and those in the North-West were 11,5. Burmah was largely affected by the issue of orders stopping jail manufactures which competed with private industry, and the same cause may have been operative also in the North-West Provinces. In other provinces the receipts more than covered the estimates.

133. Under Other Receipts we had unusually large receipts from lapsed estates under the Administrator-General of Bengal (21,9 against Estimate based on the Actuals of

134. The decrease under Fees, &c., compared with last year, is the effect of an arrangement introduced in Bengal for farming out the Cattle Pounds, which principally contribute to the receipts under this head, as the revenue from the farmers represents the net and not the gross income. The receipts in Bengal were therefore 36,6 against 40,7 last year.

135. The decrease under Other Receipts is mainly in connexion with the arrangements for Municipal and Cantonment Police; the recoveries from Municipalities during the last three years being as follow:—

136. Administrative arrangements are in progress for transferring the cost of such Police from the Municipalities to the Government, and were alluded to in paragraph 65 of the Financial Statement. The effect of these arrangements, so far as regards the head of "Police," is either a reduction of the receipts of Government from Municipalities, or an increase of the Police charges by transfer of them from the Municipalities to the Government. But as the Municipalities were to take over from Government some new charges in lieu of these, the receipts on account of "Police" were retained in the Estimates pending completion of the arrangement.

137. The principal item of increase over estimate in the Marine Department is the recovery from local funds of the value (10,7) of the Madras Harbour Steamer Undaunted, and in other cases also the receipts for services rendered to other departments exceeded the estimate. In the Civil Department, the Hooghly Pilotage receipts, estimated at 77,9, produced, owing to the activity of trade in the port of Calcutta, 88,6. In the comparison with 1881-82, we have to omit from the receipts of 1881-82 about 16,0 of receipts in connexion with the port approaches of Calcutta, which during the course of that year (November 1881) were transferred to the administration of the Port Commissioners.

138. The receipts under Fees were taken in the estimate at a little better than the anticipated amount for 1881-82; but the steady increase of revenue produced, especially in Bombay, a considerable advance over last year's figures. Under other receipts the estimate was also exceeded. The principal increase was in Bombay and chiefly under "Sale Proceeds of Books" (Government Book Depôt) arising from the opening of new schools, and increase of pupils; but the receipts under other heads also show a progressive revenue.

139. The first two figures of the Revised Estimate would be more correctly shown as 16,4 and 30,1, as a receipt of 12,4 was wrongly classified by the North-West Provinces. Thus explained, the figures under Hospital Fees require no comment, and the increase under other receipts is due to the action of the Government of the North-West Provinces in bringing within their accounts the receipts and charges of certain aided dispensaries hitherto dealt with under Excluded Local Funds. This measure added about 22,0 to the anticipated receipts under this head, against which, however, came a decrease of 2,0 in Madras, an annual contribution not received, and 3,0 in Bombay, the receipts of a hospital which has been removed from the Government accounts.

The operations under Inland Labour Transport were affected by a new Act, I of 1882, regulating emigration in Bengal and Assam.

141. The Mathematical Instrument Department received large credits in 1881-82 for instruments supplied to the Public Works Department; the amount has fallen back more nearly to its normal figure, some special receipts taken in the Revised Estimate not having come in within the year.

Under other items the changes do not require separate specification.

142. The relation between these figures is most easily shown in a tabular form—

143. The final figures, the charges common to all three columns, brought out in this statement do not very greatly differ; the Budget Estimates showing a certain margin over the figures of the actual expenditure, a mass of small differences balancing each other but amounting on their whole result to only two or three thousandths of the whole.

144. Under Governments and Secretariats, the Budget Estimate for India appears to have been too low, following as it did the actual expenditure of an exceptionally low year. The increase over Estimate was first under Tour expenses; 77,3 against an Estimate of 73,6. The expenditure of 1881-82 had been only 71,7, but it would appear that this figure was attained only because some of the expenditure had passed into the earlier year 1880-81, which showed 90,8. A considerable part of the expenditure occurs towards the end of March, so that it may fall irregularly between two years. Next there was an excess of 4,4 by the appointment of an additional Member of the Executive Council; and in the Legislative Council also there were a larger number of paid Members than had been included in the accounts of the former year or in the Budget. The remainder of the details fairly followed the Budget Estimate. The Revised Estimate was pitched too high; it was based upon a review of current expenditure which showed a strong tendency to exceed Budget Estimate.

145. In other provinces also there is a tendency to exceed Estimate which is explained partly by the cost of acting officers, as acting arrangements increase the cost of departments where the seniors are employed and diminish those of the offices from which the substitutes are taken; but in more than one province there is quotation of special expenditure in the way of furniture, &c.; which had not been provided for in the Estimates. The figures of Bombay, it should be remembered, tend to increase, in another way, namely, by the payment of allowances to officers of other provinces passing through on leave,—an increase which is, as far as Estimates are concerned, merely a transfer from other provinces.

146. The charges under the second head, Revenue Control and Financial Offices, have followed Estimate a little more closely. The saving under India is more nominal than real, as it partly represents provision made in the head quarters. Estimates for casual charges, which when actually incurred fall into the figures of other provinces. The greatest increase is under Bengal, a province in which, both under this and under other heads, the expenditure appears to have been estimated a little too narrowly.

147. The charges under the head of General Administration, naturally perhaps, show a tendency to increase. I have caused the account in the Finance and Revenue Accounts to be drawn up in a classified form, so as more easily to admit of comparison from year to year, and the following may be given as the totals, for the past four years, of the sections into which the account is divided:—

	1879-80.	1880-81.	1881-82.	1882-83.
Governors and Chief Commissioners	168,6	172,2	165,2	173,2

148. The English charges also exceeded Estimate, 249,8 against 217,7, but of this increase 27,8 is due to transfer to this head of the charge for providing Currency notes provided under "Stationery," and the rest is mostly caused by payments for telegrams to India.

149. The charges for Law Courts somewhat exceeded the Estimates—(1) in Bengal, owing to the establishment of some new Courts; (2) in the Punjab, where for part of the year there were two additional Judges in the Chief Court; (3) in Madras, partly owing to a similar temporary employment of an additional Judge, and partly owing to special expenditure on account of the Salem riots and another big case; (4) in Bombay, owing to increase in the salaries of Subordinate Judicial officers, and to heavy payments for acting arrangements during the privilege leave of Judges of the High Court. In most of the provinces the charges for Civil and Sessions Judges somewhat exceeded Estimate, as too high an estimate was taken of the saving caused by furlough arrangements (see on the other hand para. 196). The estimates taken all together were exceeded by only 11,2.

150. The expenditure has increased chiefly in Burmah, Bengal, and Madras. The increase in Burmah arises from improvements in the pay of the subordinate judicial officers. This has been already noted in the case of Bombay and will affect other provinces also, as the arrangements foreshadowed in the Financial Statement, paras. 22, &c. In Bengal it arises from the establishment of new subordinate Civil Courts in the latter end of 1881-82.

151. For the Port Blair Settlement, and for Jail charges, the same explanation holds good, namely, that the prosperity of the season produced low prices, and a low cost of diet.

152. The charges for Jail Manufactures were reduced in the same way as the receipts, namely, by a restriction of operations. The figures under this head should in fact be rather taken net than gross, and so taken the comparison is as follows:—

1880-81.	1881-82.	Budget, 1882-83.	Revised, 1882-83.	Accounts, 1882-83.

The figures are the balances of rather large transactions, namely, from 200,0 to 250,0 on each side.

153. The refunds were estimated at 42,5, but the Estimate was taken, according to the practice in force before the accounts of 1881-82, against the general head of "Refunds."

154. In India the provision made for police at Quetta and on the Kandahar State Railway was insufficient.

155. In the Central Provinces and in Bengal the Government took over the charge of Municipal Police, hitherto paid by Municipalities, and the increase in those two provinces is almost entirely attributable to this measure (see Financial Statement, para. 65), the figures of the two years, under District and Municipal Police, being for the Central Provinces, 106,9 and 117,9 and for Bengal 335,1 and 377,8. The increase in Burmah was due both to increases of pay and to additions made to the Police Force. In Assam the figures show a considerable reduction of the force. In the North-West Provinces the actuals deferred only slightly from last year; whereas the Budget made a rather high provision for supplies and services.

156. In Madras the charges for accoutrements were smaller than usual, and a nominal saving of 10,0 was effected by relieving the Police Department of some of their duties connected with salt, against which head a corresponding increase will be found; this measure being connected with the reorganisation of the Salt Department in that province. The charges under Bombay are swollen by the new distribution of charges for Village Service, alluded to under "Land Revenue," and the charge under this head included also some arrear payments. There were also some arrears to be discharged of the Government contribution towards Railway Police, and in one or two cases (e.g., pay of probationers and repairs of a Police Hulk) the Government incurred considerable expenditure for which no provision was made in the estimates.

157. The decrease of expenditure in the Marine Department was due to (1) the reorganisation of the Marine Survey Department; (2) the stoppage of ordinary work in the Bombay Dockyard by the preparations for the Egyptian Expedition; and (3) the late arrival of the Clive Troopship, for which provision had been made for four months of the year. The decrease would have been more marked, but for excess charges for supply of coals.

158. In the Civil Department, the Revised Estimate in Burmah neglected account of certain debits for repairs and building of vessels that had to come in from the Marine Department, but the figures do not otherwise call for remarks. In Bengal the greater part of the charges relate to pilotage services, and they increased from 62,8 Budget to 68,2 Accounts for the same reason which made the revenue under the same head increase from 77,9 to 88,6. But the account had also to bear a charge of 9,2 for a new pilot vessel, which had not been included in the estimates. Last year's figures in Bengal included part of the time during which the charges on account of Calcutta Port approaches which are now under the Port Commissioners were still borne by Government. The reduction of charges in Madras is due to their transference to the Port fund.

159. The English estimates included the following items: Pensions and Absentee allowances 37,0, of which the charges are taken in the next section of the account. Contribution to the admiralty 70,0, of which, for various reasons, 25,8 has remained unpaid within the year, and 136,7 for stores for India, including a large part of the cost of the Troopship Clive, of which only 78,1 was spent.

160. In the Estimates for the Central Provinces a deduction of 3,0 was made for charges which it was intended to transfer to Municipal control under the arrangement referred to in paragraph 65 of the Financial Statement. The Chief Commissioner, however, afterwards accepted the charges himself. In Burmah the Estimates provided for nearly 10,0 of new expenditure, including 1,2 on inspection, 2,7 on Government schools, 1,8 on grants-in-aid, and other increases. But under the arrangement just quoted, expenditure equal to this increase was transferred to Municipal control, so that the Budget was again relieved to the same extent.

161. The expenditure in Bengal is increasing, the last three years showing 248,6, 256,9, 279,6, and now 301,6,—an increase which is confined to no one head, but implies extended operations of the Department. The Budget Estimates did not make full provision for the increase, which this last year was mostly in the form of grants-in-aid, which cost 107,6 against 94,9 last year. The receipts from fees, in Bengal, in the same four years have been 41,4, 43,9, 50,0, and 48,0. In the North-West Provinces the expenditure is also slightly increasing; the Budget Estimate provided a large increase under Government Schools and under Grants-in-aid, which was not actually utilised.

162. In Madras the expenditure has expanded chiefly under Grants-in-aid, and Payment by Results (Accounts, 1881-82, 46,9; Budget, 1882-83, 43,1; Accounts, 1882-83, 58,4). In Bombay the same heads show an increase from 16,6 in 1881-82 to 20,9 in 1882-83, the expenditure on Government schools under Local Funds has increased from 107,0 to 113,6, and Technical Schools, grants-in-aid and other expenditure in Bombay all show increased figures in 1882-83 compared with 1881-82. The Madras Estimates did not provid for these increases and were considerably over-spent, but those of Bombay did. The savings in the Bombay Estimates arise from a grant of 3,5 provided for education of Europeans and East Indians, of which only 8 was spent, and there were some other variations.

163. The expenditure under Education has been slightly swollen by the employment of several of the officers of the Department on the Education Commission.

165. The figures under Medical Establishment vary only slightly. In some provinces there is a slight decrease and in others an increase, owing to small changes in the personnel. Under Hospitals and Dispensaries, Burmah and Bengal show a decrease, compared with last year, of 5,1 and of 5,8, both of which represent the transfer of dispensaries to the responsibility of Municipal or other Committees. This is, however, counteracted by an increase of 6,7 in the North-West Provinces, which is less a question of administration than the effect of bringing into the figures a number of dispensaries, which though under Government control were not shown in their gross figures in the accounts. Madras shows increasing figures (58,2 against 55,7 last year), owing to the opening of new dispensaries charged mostly against Local Funds; and in Bombay a reduction of 6,0 occurs chiefly through the Gocul Das Tejpal Hospital being removed from the accounts of Government revenue and expenditure.

166. These various changes in the accounts, which necessarily follow changes in the administration, nearly balance each other, and the Estimates which in some cases included these changes, and in some did not, also on their whole result a little more than cover the expenditure. The net result is to exhibit the process of the removal of dispensaries from Government responsibility to the control of Local Fund Committees (in which case they only pass from the Provincial to the Local column of the accounts), and to that of Municipal or other financially independent bodies (in which case the figures pass altogether out of the account of public revenue and expenditure). To the latter category belong the reductions of 5,1 in Burmah, 5,8 in Bengal, and 6,0 in Bombay; and to the former belongs the increase in Madras.

167. The figures under "Other Charges" and "English Charges" call for no remark.

168. The principal figures under Political Agents are India 150,9 against Estimate 141,6, and Bombay 63,0 against Estimate 56,4. The increase in the first case arose for the most part at Quetta and at Kabul. The charges at the first of these two places had not been permanently fixed at the time of the Estimate, and the appointment of a Resident at Kabul was entirely unprovided for. The excess in Bombay was caused by casual expenditure sanctioned outside the Estimates. The charges under this head are nearly the same as last year.

169. Under Political Subsidies a provision of 100,0 was made pending consideration of the relations with the Amir of Kabul, and the usual payment of 12,1 to the Khan of Khelat made up the total of the Budget Estimate. On the first of these two accounts only 66;0 was paid and on the second only 2,1. Last year's figures under this head included some specially large payments.

170. These were unanticipatedly high charges for the entertainment of Envoys and Chiefs, under both this head and the general one of other charges. The Government are necessarily liable to sudden calls for expenditure which is often of such a nature that they cannot be regulated by Budget limits. Both last year's report and this year's report show that the estimates take too moderate a view of these casual political charges.

171. With the year 1882-83 a new plan was introduced for the Estimates and Accounts of the Survey of India, the Department being brought in the first place under "India" as a whole, and the portion of the charges belonging to Provincial Governments being transferred to the Estimates and Accounts of the province concerned after being first completely made up under India. This new arrangement was introduced both for accuracy of accounting and as a sequence of that part of the new "provincial contracts" which provided that the accounts of Revenue Survey in future should come within the accounts of the province concerned.

172. The following are the figures under this head:—

	Revenue Survey.			Scientific Departments.
	Budget.	Revised.	Actual.	Budget.	Revised.	Actual.
India	11,0	11,7	11,7	133,5	134,7	137,9
Burmah	59,6	59,2	60,8	...	...	...
Assam	5	2,3	2,7	...	...	...
Bengal	7,4	5,7	6,5	...	...	..
North-West Provinces .	31,5	27,2	26,3	...	...	...
Punjab	6,8	3,4	2,0	...	...	...
Bombay Forests . .	...	2,0	1,8	...	...	...

TOTAL .	114,1	111,5	111,8	128,7	134,7	137,9
TOTAL BOTH HEADS .				242,8	246,2	249,7

173. Taken as a whole, upon the figures 242,8, 246,3, and 249,7, it will be seen that the Estimates were slightly exceeded; but the excess is largely due to the reduction of Estimate which was made, not with a view of directing any particular reduction of expenditure, but as a difference arising between the local estimates and the gross estimate of the Department, which in the discussion of the arrangements was not settled in time. In fact the arrangements were not definitely laid down till some time after the Estimates were framed, and the first distribution of the Revenue Survey figures was, it will be seen, somewhat in fault in bringing an excessive amount against the North-West Provinces and the Punjab. The arrangements were completed long before the Revised Estimates, which were fairly accurate.

174. There was a saving in the Superintending charges of the Geological Survey.

175. The chief feature of difference under Other Scientific Departments is the Meteorological Department, which cost 14,9 in 1881-82, but which was taken in the Estimates of 1882-83 at 21,9 as it was intended to widen the scope of its operations. These arrangements, however, were only gradually introduced, and the cost of the whole year was only 18,7. Another department in which special arrangements affected the year was that of repairs to monuments of antiquity; the cost in 1881-82 was only 3,7, but a separate department being temporarily organised, an expenditure of 13,9 was provided for and very nearly all spent. These two charges taken together account for an increase of 17,2 in the Budget over the charges for 1881-82. Against the saving in the actual account of these two departments, there was an expenditure of 1,5 on special astronomical observations, which had not been provided for in the Estimates.

176. Nearly all the provinces show in the Budget Estimates an increased scale of expenditure on Agricultural Departments. In India a special provision of 8,1 was made for a scheme of agricultural experiments, which did not meet with the approval of the Secretary of State, and against which therefore no expenditure was incurred.

177. Very little provision was made in the Budget for the Census work, as it was expected that the compilation would be complete before the year closed, but considerable expenditure came in, especially in Madras.

178. The increase under the last head was in Burmah, where a system of aided immigration introduced by the Chief Commissioner, but not provided for in the Estimates, was taken in the Revised Estimates at 14,4 and actually cost 17,1.

179. The English charges were increased by unexpectedly high expenditure incurred in freight of cinchona from India, and in converting it into alkaloids.

179*a*. The accounts produced under most of the heads something better than the Estimates. Last year's figures included 155,3 premium on Loans, 54,3 by investment of English Cash Balances, 69,6 by Local Fund investments brought to account, and 41,7 a special recovery from Patiala,—all of which were noted in last year's report. Deducting these special items we have only 1,386,3 to compare with this year's 1,378,5, as near a coincidence as could be expected under so variable a head.

180. The Currency Investment was increased by 7,5 (interest 3) on 15th December 1881, and remained at 6,253,8 nominal (interest 250,2) throughout the year.

181. The balances under Loans to Municipalities, &c., have in the last three years stood as follows:—

	31st March 1881.	31st March 1882.	31st March 1883.
Native States	1,472,9	1,318,3	1,214,7
Presidency Corporations	5,640,8	5,595,8	5,408,7
Mofussil Municipalities	349,9	382,6	383,9
Landholders and others	655,8	659,9	654,1
Local Fund Committees	140,3	108,0	104,1
	8,259,7	8,064,6	7,765,5
Interest received	354,8	358,0	343,2
Percentage reckoned on balance at end of year	4·295	4·439	4·419

The details of these Loans are shown in Account No. 93 of the Finance and Revenue Accounts, and interest has in most cases been punctually realised. The Budget Estimates provide for the realisation of all the interest due, and the receipts fall slightly short, chiefly because in one or two instances repayments of principal made in advance of due date have reduced the amount of interest realisable.

182. The next head is blank, as the Loan of the year was issued at a discount and not at a premium.

183. Under Other Receipts, Bengal received an unexpected credit of 4,0 in the adjustment of an arrear account of drainage advances, and Madras realised 21,5 against estimate 10,6 on account of interest on arrears of revenue. Further excess receipts were brought in by Local Fund officers realising arrears which they had for a short time left outstanding.

184. Under English Receipts, the Cash Balance stood during the year at a comparatively low figure, and the interest obtained on its investment was much less than in 1881-82, though more than anticipated in the Estimates. The premium of 12,8 obtained on the issue of two millions of 4 per cent. debentures was not taken in the Estimates.

XXII.—Receipts in aid of Superannuation, &c.

1881-82. Accounts.		Budget.	1882-83. Revised.	Accounts.
136,1	Subscriptions to Military Funds, India .	135,9	125,8	128,6
28,2	Appropriation from old Military Funds .	30,4	29,8	31,1
86,0	Other Items	40,5	35,9	41,6
106,0	Subscriptions to Widows and Military Funds, England	100,2	101,8	104,0
356,3	TOTAL .	307,0	293,3	305,3

185. The Estimates made in Madras and Bombay for the Subscriptions to the old Military Funds do not appear to have taken account of the necessarily diminishing nature of the item. The figures of the last four years have been 173,5, 149,5, 136,1, and 128,6, and a similar decrease should be looked for each year.

186. The Appropriation from deposit in aid of charges is now made only in the case of the Bengal Military Orphan Fund, all the others being extinct; it necessarily increases as charges continue to come on the Fund. The Other Items stand at about their normal figure, the receipts of 1881-82 having been swollen by an exceptional item mentioned in last year's report. The subscriptions to the Bombay Civil Fund, which was taken over by Government on 1st December 1882, came as new items under this head in the last four months, but the amount added to the accounts in this way was again taken away by an opposite operation, the transfer of the Pension Fund of Local Fund employés to a separate account outside the Government accounts.

off of 6,0 in the Punjab, chiefly in Jail Press receipts, but this was made up for by an improvement in Bengal and sale proceeds of certain press machinery in "India."

XXIV.—Miscellaneous.

1881-82. Accounts.		Budget.	1882-83. Revised.	Accounts.
	INDIA—
67,1	Unclaimed Deposits and Bills	49,9	60,5	51,6
60,3	Rents	59,4	59,1	60,0

2,5	Other Items	6,0		14,7
396,2	TOTAL	268,0	326,1	321,5

188. Under Unclaimed Deposits and Bills, the figures are in the first place reduced by an order issued by me to take the net credit or debit only into the accounts of Bengal, where the deposit transactions reach very high figures, instead of bringing in a very large revenue by lapses, and showing against it a large charge for refunds. The figures of the last two years have been 48,2 and 42,3 on the receipt side, and 29,2 and 29,7 on the expenditure side; but this year we obtain only 27,5 on the receipt side. The same method will in future be adopted in other provinces. Against this, however, considerable receipts were obtained in Bombay by the application in the Presidency Savings Bank there of the rule elsewhere obtaining, that in certain cases deposits are to be removed from the Savings Bank Books and credited, pending claim, to the Government.

189. Under Premium on Bills, the Estimate was placed at a higher figure than last year, but the realisations did not come up to it.

190. Under Other Items, the figures are on the whole much the same as those of 1881-82 without the special credit of 69,6, referred to in last year's report as increasing the figures of that year. Burmah obtained a temporary credit of 17,1 outside the Estimates, which, however, it had to refund in 1883-84. In India and Bengal also the Miscellaneous Items exceeded the Estimates, and in the Punjab a new frontier arrangement added 5,6 on account of Khyber pass tolls.

191. The English Estimates include no specific receipts on account of fines and penalties; and these necessarily, so far as they are not remitted, come into the accounts as a difference from Estimate. The figures on the expenditure side show that more than half was remitted. The other receipts are mainly recoveries on account of Stores lost (11,3) in transit to India; the charge side also shows a considerable set-off against this, but the recoveries appear to have been unusually high in 1882-83. The system of partial insurance, out of which these receipts arise, was laid down in Financial Despatch of the Secretary of State, No. 316, dated 5th October 1882.

192. The reduction of Customs establishments following the abolition of the Import duties brought extra charges for Pensions and Gratuities, which may be estimated at 50,0, and which were, so far as Budget Estimates were concerned, partly provided for by savings under the head of 10, Customs. A further charge of 14,0 under the same head, "Superannuations," is an anticipation of next year's payments. The Estimates under Stationery and Printing were exceeded by 68,0; they had been framed at too low a figure. These three excesses amount to 132,0, the exact amount by which the accounts exceed the Estimates on the whole, that is, the excesses and the savings under other heads, of which the largest items are in the English accounts, nearly balance. Thus a charge of 44,0 under Territorial Pensions was postponed till 1883-84, and 19,0 was saved in Civil Furlough Allowances, but about 33,0 of new charges were transferred from other heads to Superannuation Allowances, and about 10,0 of charges were added to Miscellaneous, which were met by a similar addition on the receipt side.

193. Compared with last year's accounts, the figures in the first three heads are nearly the same, but last year's accounts showed specially high stationery charges, which are reduced this year by about 60,0; and under Miscellaneous Refunds we have this year only 23,6 against 99,1 in 1881-82.

194. India.—The figures of the Actuals were increased by the transfer of an item from the accounts of the North-West Provinces, but besides this there was an actual deficiency in the Estimates caused by taking at too low a figure the pensions connected with the ex-King of Oudh.

Central Provinces.—The figures were increased by an arrear payment in settlement of the pension mentioned in last year's report as having lapsed by death.

Bengal.—The figures here refer for the most part to the Nizamat stipendiary arrangements, and have varied latterly in accordance with arrangements made by the Secretary of State for the transactions of the Nizamat Stipend Fund.

N.-W. Provinces.—Of the amount included in the Estimate, 5,0 was transferred during the year to India; the remaining 5,4 either lapsed or remained in arrear unclaimed at the end of the year.

Punjab.—The falling off here is owing to lapses, mainly that of the pension 2,5 of the Nawab of Tonk.

Madras and Bombay.—The differences here are also accounted for by lapses.

195. England.—44,0 provided in the Estimates as an advance to Maharaja Dhulip Sing was not paid till 1883-84. On the other hand, 10,0 payable to the Nawab Nazim Said Mansur Ali was finally charged in England instead of being passed on, as at first intended, in debit to India.

than the above figures show, as the furlough allowances of Bengal pilots were taken in the Estimates under "Marine," but passed in the accounts to the present head.

2,182,3	TOTAL	2,101,0	2,167,0	2,203,8

197. Civil.—The India figure in the Budget Estimates contains only civil charges, but the Revised Estimates and the accounts include the charges of Marine pensions, which before the orders conveyed in the Secretary of State's Despatch No. 374, Financial, dated 23rd November 1882, were reckoned as charges of the Marine Department under 21, Marine. These amount to 14,2 and account for the difference between the two sets of figures. Considerable increases will be observed in Burmah, Bengal, Madras, and Bombay, all of which may be put down to the same cause, namely, the pensions and gratuities granted to the Customs establishments whose services were dispensed with in consequence of the abolition of Import duties. These charges were not provided for under this head, and may be reckoned against the savings effected under head 10, Customs. These charges were for the most part fully provided for in the Regular Estimates, the excess over which in Bombay is due to the writing back to a Savings Bank account of a pension fund for local fund employés, which had in past years been erroneously brought to account under the service head. In the Punjab also there was an excess over Budget Estimate caused chiefly by bringing to debit a capitalization charge that had been under dispute with a Native State.

198. Under Civil Funds, the excess in Bengal is, like the corresponding payment under 2, Interest on Service Funds (paragraph 40), an anticipation of a payment which properly falls due in 1883-84; the saving in Bombay is caused by the non-payment of a small charge, which would have been paid in January 1883 but for the transfer of the fund to the Government.

199. Under Military Funds, it must be borne in mind that the figures of 1881-82 included a special charge of 90,4 for composition with subscribers to the Medical Retiring Funds.

200. In the English figures the accounts differ from the Estimates chiefly by reason of certain changes of classification. The Budget Estimate was 1,360,0 for charges which actually came to 1,357,0. But 35,2 charges were added from Marine, under the despatch above quoted, and 19,2 half a year's charges of the Bombay Civil Fund were also by the transfer of that fund brought against the Government; against this 21,3 was transferred to Army, Non-effective, being Military pensions; so that the actual expenditure came to 1,390,1.

201. Little can be said regarding the first head of charge, Printing Establishments, beyond what was said last year, namely, that there is a tendency on the part of administrative officers to under-estimate their demands upon the presses, and their under-estimate of these demands leads to an under-statement by the presses of their expenditure. Last year the expenditure was 240,1 against Estimates of 224,9, and this year the accounts show 241,1 against an Estimate of 219,1. In both cases it is chiefly under India and Bengal that the excesses have occurred. The large reduction of expenditure estimated for in the first of these two cases was partly the result of a new contract arrangement for form-printing in Calcutta, which was not in the end so successful as at first hoped.

202. In Stationery, the Bengal and the English figures should be added together, so as to get a proper comparison, as there has been in recent years more than one alteration in the rules for purchase in India or in England. Thus added we get—

203. Reduced to terms of the issues from the Bengal Stationery Office we get the following figures—

Year.	Balance April 1st.	PURCHASES. Bengal.	PURCHASES. England.	TOTAL.	Deduct issues.	Balance March 31st.
1879-80	47,9	35,6	105,8	189,3	124,5	64,7
1880-81	64,7	134,6	13,1	212,4	114,5	97,9
1881-82	97,9	143,3	40,6	281,9	174,3	107,6
1882-83	107,6	51,6	111,4	270,6	158,3	112,3

The high issues of 1881-82 were no doubt the reaction after the short issues of the year before; but with the opening of new State Railways and general extension of business and of administration, the consumption of stationery cannot but advance rapidly.

Section E.—MISCELLANEOUS CIVIL CHARGES—concluded.

204. The Madras figure was swollen by the addition to it of 6,6 received in debit from England, which, had it not been for a mistake on the part of the Madras authorities, would have been borne upon the English accounts.

205. The excess payments on the first of these accounts were in Bengal and in Bombay, and appear to have been due to short estimating. In Bombay also the charges classified as Charitable payments were increased by expenditure in relieving distress caused by floods in Khandesh; but on the other hand there were savings on this account in the North-Western Provinces and in Madras. The enhancements of the rates of Reward for destruction of wild animals in Madras raised the charges there from 2,4, Estimate, to 5,0 in the Accounts. The charges for Petty establishments are mostly connected with Local funds, the principal portion being in Madras, which showed in its Accounts 51,0 against Estimates 54,8. The difference is to some extent a question of classification, as a small excess appears under the similar charge under "Administration" in Madras, but is mostly due to over-estimates by the Local officers.

206. Under Refunds, the Budget Estimate was made under the head 3, Refunds, and amounted to 81,7; the Revised reduced it a little to 78,0, of which the principal shares were Bengal 34,5, North-Western Provinces 15,9, and Bombay 17,2. The Bengal refunds are mostly those of lapsed deposits, which were excluded from the accounts by taking the figures net, as explained in paragraph 188 and a large reduction occurred also in the North-West and in Bombay because the items to which the Estimates referred were more correctly taken in the accounts, in the former case under "Revenue Refunds" and in the latter case under Superannuation Allowances (see paragraph 197).

207. The saving under Other charges arises chiefly from Punjab and Madras having provided a sort of Reserve of 11,7 and 17,6 on account of unforeseen charges, against which they had very little expenditure; against which, however, there are excesses in India of 4,3, and in Bengal of 6,5, arising from special commissions of enquiry, Education in the former case, and Village and Railway Police in the second

208. The English charges in their excess over the Estimates are to a large extent sets-off against similar excess in the receipt. The entries under Fines and Penalties remitted are explained on the receipt side; of the other charges, 5,2 is on account of Stores lost in transit to India, and, though not included in the Budget Estimate, may be taken as more than covered by the corresponding receipts.

209. The saving on the whole head as compared with last year was mainly in the head of Miscellaneous refunds, and is due to the change of practice with regard to refunds of lapsed deposits, and also to two special items which appeared in the Accounts of 1881-82, namely, 26,2 under India, arising out of investigation and settlement of some old accounts, and 6,7 in Bengal on account of a Nazarana payment.

210. The formation of the Southern Mahratta Railway Company to take over that line from the Government caused a repayment to Government of 270,0 of past expenditure to take the place of new outlay of 370,0; so that the accounts received in this way a benefit of 640,0 in all. As much as possible of this amount was utilized in pushing on other protective works, but the 750,0 appropriated in the estimates on this account was in the end reduced to net expenditure 134,3, and the balance added to the amount available for the reduction of debt. Famine expenditure came to only 22,1, so that 1,343,6 was available for reduction of debt.

211. It should be recorded here that the Commissioners for the Reduction of Debt received at their meeting of 12th July 1883 the final report of the expenditure of 1881-82, and their proceedings in respect of it were published in the Gazette of India, August 25th, 1883.

212. The expenditure is composed of 6,3 in Bengal, 1,1 in the North-West for some petty relief works, 13,5 in Madras, brought on the accounts by credit to Public Works Department, so as to write off from the Public Works Accounts the excess over ordinary rates of the expenditure on the Palar Anicut System, and 1,2 spent in Bombay in districts visited by locusts. The expenditure was provided, according to the usual rule in such cases, by appropriating part of the provision under "Reduction of Debt."

213. The aspect of the estimates was altogether altered by the formation of a Company, under contract with the Secretary of State, who took over the works in the Southern Mahratta Railway, so that the Government not only incurred no part of the anticipated expenditure of 369,8, but obtained from the Company a large refund of the expenditure incurred the previous year. The works were made over from October 1, 1882.

214. The works on the Rewari-Hissar Railway were pushed on with greater vigour, so as to utilize as much as possible of the current year's grant. The figures under the account of "Stores" are mainly connected with the Railway, and indicate the transfer of the charge from the general head of stores to the particular head of the railway to which they are appropriated. Difficulty of obtaining labour and delay in arrival of stores from England prevented operations being carried on at the end of the year as quickly as intended, and though the net charge is much the same as in the Revised Estimate (129,6 against 121,9) the work was in a somewhat less advanced condition. The works on this line (89 miles) are nearly complete with the exception of the Hansoti bridge, 13 miles from Rewari, 16 spans of 20 feet girders; it is expected to be opened along with the next section to Sirsa,—a total of 140 miles, about 1st April 1884.

215. The remaining charges are for surveys in anticipation of works.

217. The outlay on the Betwa Canal fell short of estimate owing to delay in acquiring land from the Native States through which the canal passes. Against this the expenditure upon the Swat River was pushed on. The outlay in Bombay was rather less than the estimate. The amount held in "Reserve" in the Budget Estimates was not utilized during the year, except that a small sum was sanctioned for the investigation of projects in Madras.

715,2	. . . . .	750,0	1,330,2	1,343,6

218. The reduction of the intended expenditure upon protective works set free, for the operations of the Commission for the Reduction of Debt, a much larger portion of the total grant of one and a half millions than was foreseen at the time of the estimates. This larger amount was duly paid over (so as to bring up the total expenditure to 1½ millions), and was applied, after consultation with the Commissioners, to the reduction of sterling debt, being remitted home to the Secretary of State for that purpose.

219. The account of the Commission in India was as follows :—

Of this Balance, part must be regarded as appropriated for the redemption of the balance of the above loans, amounting on March 31st, 1883, to 35,614

220. The Secretary of State applied the £1,001,393, which he had received during the earlier months of 1883-84, to the reduction of sterling debt as follows :—

222. State Railways have been more prosperous than last year, owing both to extensions and to development of traffic. The East Indian Railway is a good deal worse; both its traffic fell by 109,2 behind the high figures of 1881-82, and by special expenditure upon renewals of way and of locomotives there was 343,9 increase of expenditure. In Guaranteed Railways the increase of expenditure and heavy renewals ran away with more than the increased receipts, and there is also an arrear charge of 40,0 for interest. Under Irrigation, the revenue has increased somewhat more than the expenditure, but the credit for Land Revenue has been somewhat reduced, and the unprofitable works of the Madras Irrigation and Canal Company with their heavy interest charge are now included under the head instead of being shown in a separate one.

223. There is little difference apparent in these figures. But taken in detail, the receipts from State Railways showed a normal progress over last year's figures, taken in the Estimates at 219,3. This amount was nearly realised, but as 121,3 passed over to the non-productive category, only 89,8 was shown in this section of the account. On the East Indian Railway the figures fell off by 109,2 from the high traffic receipts of 1881-82, but the Guaranteed, notwithstanding a falling off in Great Indian Peninsula Railway, showed an advance on the whole. The return from Irrigation was also better than last year. The return under all heads was better than Estimate, and would have shown a much greater improvement than 12,224,1 against 12,189,4, had it not been for a faulty system of calculation of Land Revenue receipts due to Irrigation, which set down, in the Budget, to the account of Irrigation, at least 200,0 more than properly belongs to it.

(a) These figures are corrected from those of last year's report, where the exchange was wrongly stated. The exchange is now taken in both years at one-fifth of the sterling payments of interest and annuity.

224. It is most convenient to deal with the question of working expenses along with that of traffic receipts, as they are necessarily closely connected. The following statement therefore repeats the comparative information given in last year's report :—

225. In its general features we see that on the Imperial lines the gross traffic receipts are nearly the same, but as the figures of last year included the receipts of the Northern section of the Punjab Railway and of the Kandahar line, whereas this year's figures exclude them, there is really an improvement by the amount of these, or 121,3. Besides this, a steady increase in the Rajputana-Malwa traffic has made up for the loss of the war traffic on the Punjab Northern. The Provincial lines also show improved traffic—2,646,3 against last year 2,556,5.

226. Imperial lines show a considerable reduction of expenditure even after allowing for 136,2 spent on the lines above mentioned, the total being 58·3 per cent. of traffic receipts against 67·7 per cent. in 1881-82. The percentage on Provincial lines is also better—57·1 against 59·7.

227. Rajputana-Malwa.—The opening of the through line on 1st December 1881 caused a considerable advance to be made in the anticipations of traffic and the Budget Estimate was taken at 1,150,0—650,0 against the figures of 1881-82 which were 1,012,3—581,5. The traffic was diminished by the occurrence of breaches on the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India line, and of the Egyptian war; so that the Revised Estimates of traffic were brought down to 1,100,0, which in the result was more than covered. The expenditure upon the complete line had been, as it turned out, over-estimated, and, partly for this reason, partly from economical working, was after all not very greatly in advance of the figures of 1881-82.

The net earnings increased from 430,8 to 524,6; the percentage of working charge being reduced from 57·4 to 52·9.

228. Sindia.—This line has somewhat disappointed expectations. The opening of the through line and the working agreement with the East Indian Railway were considered to warrant the framing of the estimates for 1881-82 at 45,0—30,0; but the experience of that year showed the necessity of reducing the estimate of traffic to 35,0, and working expenses were also brought down to 23,0. These figures have not been quite reached in either case.

229. Wardha Coal.—This line shows increasing traffic mainly owing to increased output of coal. The Revised Estimate taken on the improved working of 1881-82 was put at 62,5—48,5 against Budget 52,1—40,1. The result of the year is 67,3 revenue against the 62,5 estimated, and the charges were improved also by the adjustment of 2,4 to debit of Buildings and Roads Branch (Warora Colliery).

230. Punjab Northern.—At the time the Budget Estimates were constructed the whole of this line was shown as productive, and the estimate was framed for 375,0—290,0 against Actuals in 1881-82 of 327,0—286,8. In the Revised Estimates the section north of Rawalpindi was transferred to the non-productive class, and the estimates now stood productive 235,0—175,0; non-productive 65,0—85,0. Total 300,0—260,0. The goods traffic on the line was very low,—a fact attributed to the almost complete cessation of grain traffic after a good harvest. The explanation seems doubtful, but, as was remarked in last year's report, there has been as yet no experience as to what should be the ordinary traffic of this line. The outturn was a little worse, both in respect of revenue and in respect of expenditure, than the last estimate.

231. Indus Valley.—The Budget Estimates were taken at 520,0—370,0, which was considered to be as high as the falling traffic after the cessation of war traffic would warrant. These figures, however, included the Kandahar line, but the Secretary of State, as in the last case, ordered the separation of this as a non-productive line, the Revised Estimate showed: Indus Valley 478,5—312,5, and Kandahar 41,5—47,5, the same revenue and rather less expenditure. The growth of wheat traffic at the end of the year raised the receipts to 519,3 and also added something to the expenditure.

232. Dhond and Manmad.—The net receipts from the working Company were somewhat better than estimate.

233. Nagpur and Chattisgarh.—On this line there is both a development of traffic and an increased mileage has been opened. The Revised Estimates therefore raised the Budget from 55,0—40,0 to 82,5—52,5, and the results were better still.

234. Rangoon and Irrawaddy.—The Budget took a slight improvement in the traffic figures of 1881-82, and the Revised again slightly improved the Budget. There was a heavy falling off at the end of the year, so that only 158,7 were realised against estimate 165,0. The expenditure was also exceeded 98,8 against estimate 92,0 and Revised 94,0, but the increase is partly nominal as it is due to supply of permanent-way material for temporary use, which will be returned into store when no longer required.

235. Calcutta and South-Eastern.—There is here again a division in the Revised of figures joined in the Budget, namely—

	Budget.	Revised.	Actual.
Calcutta and South-Eastern . .	20,0—14,0	16,8—11,8	16,5—8,7
Sonarpur-Diamond-Harbour . .		5,2—3,7	5,5—2,9

so that the outturn was a little better than the estimate.

236. Nulhati shows improved working.

237. Tirhoot.—The Budget estimate anticipated the opening of certain extensions and was taken at 75,0—42,5 against last year's 57,9—34,9. The traffic was not as great as expected, and there were also delays in opening the extensions; the Revised was taken at 70,0—46,5, increased expenditure being found necessary; and the results were on both sides a little better.

238. Northern Bengal.—The traffic on this line continues to expand, and jute and tobacco especially helped forward the traffic receipts. The Budget Estimate 195,0—100,0, about equal to the results of 1881-82, was improved in the Revised Estimate to 220,0—106,0; the increase of expenditure being caused both by increased requirements of traffic and by outlay at the Sara ferry over the Ganges. The result was somewhat better.

239. Patna-Gya.—The working of this line was transferred to the East Indian Railway from January 1, 1883, and the Revised Estimate included three-quarters of the year only, as the East Indian Railway are to pay half-yearly and their first payment is not due within 1882-83. The return of the line was therefore 39,8 —27,1 against Budget 52,5 —32,5.

240. The four small lines in the North-Western Provinces give, Budget 62,5 —40,6, Revised 60,7 —41,5, Actuals 59,2 —40,8.

East Indian Railway.

241. The estimate was framed for a considerable reduction in the traffic, as it was not considered safe to estimate for the continuance of the very large grain traffic of 1881-82, in which year also a periodical fair at Allahabad had brought a considerable accession of receipts. The returns of the year were however favourable, and had the traffic not suddenly fallen off in the beginning of 1883, would have reached the figure of 1881-82. It fell behind by eleven lakhs only.

242. On the expenditure side, large additions were made to the ordinary annual expenditure of about 1,490,0; and 276,4 was added to provide for heavy renewals of permanent-way near Buxar, for replacement of condemned locomotives, and expenditure to meet the increase of third-class traffic. The estimate was therefore taken at 1,766,4. This estimate was considerably exceeded, mainly in the outlay in the Locomotive Department; and the credits given for returned stores were also smaller than expected.

243. These figures for 1881-82 will be found not to agree, except in their net column, with those in last year's report. The reason is that the figures hitherto shown have been—

On Receipt Side.	On Expenditure Side.
1. Traffic earnings of the Railway itself.	3. Maintenance.
2. Traffic earnings received on account of other Railways.	4. Traffic earnings paid over to other Companies.

244. The account thus made up may from one point of view be considered correct as regards each Railway taken by itself, but it is obvious (1) that in the totals of all the accounts taken together, the traffic earnings passed in transfer from one Railway to another are reckoned twice over, (2) that the percentage of working expenses to traffic earnings is overstated. The account accordingly has been corrected by taking item (4) as a deduction from the Receipt side, instead of as an addition to the Expenditure side, and gross traffic earnings must be understood to mean the earnings of each line taken by itself after settlement of the transfers with other Railways on account of through traffic, which are almost entirely transfers of traffic earnings.

245. The figures taken together show net earnings 3,582,1 in 1882-83 against 3,615,5 in 1881-82 and 3,473,0 estimated for 1882-83. The falling off was mainly in the figures of the Great Indian Peninsula line, which the grain traffic had raised to a very high figure in 1881-82. A continuance of that high traffic was not expected, but the figures were still very high in 1882-83, and the falling off was nearly compensated for by improvements in other lines.

246. Bombay, Baroda, & Central India.—The revenue was estimated 888,0 in 1880-81, but a considerable accession of traffic came in in 1881-82 by the through opening of the Rajputana line during that year, and the realizations were 976,5. As this increase would operate still more in the year 1882-83 the traffic was put down in the Estimates at 1,060,0, but the stagnation of trade caused by the Egyptian War and serious breaks in the line in September so much affected the traffic that in the Revised Estimate it was put down at 1,040,0 only. At the end of the year came a great increase of through traffic from the Rajputana Railway, and the receipts were raised to 1,075,4. The expenditure was put down at 420,0 against 419,1 in the last year. The break of September 1882 caused heavy outlay for restoration of communications, and there were also large renewals; the Revised Estimate was put at 550,0, which was very closely followed.

247. Eastern Bengal Railway.—The Estimate of traffic earnings was placed at 520,0, being considerably less than the earnings of 1881-82 (584,9), in which there had been an unusual jute traffic. This traffic, however, increased still more, and the Revised was taken at 625,0, even this being more than realized.

The Estimates provided on the Expenditure side for heavy repairs; and they were very slightly exceeded.

248. Great Indian Peninsula Railway.—The Receipts of 1881-82 were raised to an unusually high figure by the wheat traffic, but a continuance of this was not estimated for, and the figures were placed at 3,200,0 against 3,483,3 received in 1881-82. The grain traffic continued, and raised the earnings to 3,508,9.

Renewals and additional working expenses caused large additions to be made to the originally estimated expenditure, and 1,737,1 were spent against an Estimate of 1,550,0.

The net outturn was 1,771,8 against the Budget Estimate of 1,650,0.

249. Madras Railway.—The Estimates provided for nearly the same rate of Receipts as 1881-82 but added 23,7 to Expenditure to provide for renewals of Rolling Stock and other charges. By improved traffic and economy in working, the final outturn became 682,6—433,3=249,3 against Budget Estimate of 630,0—450,0=180,0.

250. Oudh and Rohilkund Railway.—The traffic on this line fell off, and the result was only 479,4 against 531,4 last year. The expenditure on the other hand was increased from 315,0 Budget to 324,2 Actuals, chiefly by heavy renewals. So that the result on the whole was a great falling off in the net return.

251. Sind, Punjab, and Delhi.—The traffic was taken in the Estimate at a little over the figures of 1881-82, and the amount was nearly realized. The Estimate of Expenditure was placed at 660,0 against 691,8 in 1881-82, in the hope that economical management would bring about a better result. This hope was only partially realized.

252. South Indian Railway.—Both traffic and expenditure continue at about the same figure.

253. The Imperial item under North-West Provinces in 1881-82 has been made provincial from the beginning of 1882-83.

254. The Punjab receipts of 1881-82 were swollen by arrear collections of 1880-81; and a smaller figure was therefore taken in the estimates for 1882-83; from the Revised Estimates, some receipts were by error under-estimated, but the Budget Estimate was ultimately realized.

255. The revenue in Madras includes about 5,5, which had been estimated under "Land Revenue."

256. The revenue in Bombay fell slightly below the expectation of the Revised Estimate, owing to non-realization, within the year, of certain receipts assessed on the Mittrau and Krishna Canals.

257. The Provincial Revenue in Bengal was slightly better than estimate, owing to an improvement in Miscellaneous receipts on the Sone Canal. In the North-West Provinces, the figures of 1882-83 include the revenue which was imperial in 1881-82. The favourable receipts of Kharif revenue raised the Revised Estimates from 466,0 to 507,5, and the actual receipts turned out even better.

258. The excess in England was a casual receipt not included in Budget.

XXVIII.—Portion of Land Revenue due to Irrigation.

87,2	North-West Provinces	87,0	87,2	87,3

36,2	Bombay	23,0	44,0	33,6
491,2	TOTAL	685,0	532,0	469,1

260. This revenue comes in by transfer from the ordinary head of Land Revenue. The North-West and Punjab figures require no explanation.

261. In Madras an investigation has been made by the Agricultural Department into the subject of Irrigation Revenue, and the amount of deduction to be made on this account has been worked out, at various times pending this investigation, upon different principles, so that the results in Budget, Revised, and Actuals considerably differ. One result of this readjustment has not been foreseen: the effect is obviously to transfer about 226,6 from Land Revenue due to irrigation (a wholly Imperial head of receipt) to ordinary Land Revenue (of which in Madras about $\frac{3}{10}$ is Provincial). By this transfer Provincial has gained, and Imperial has lost, Land Revenue to the extent of $\frac{3}{10}$ of 226,6 or about 68,0.

262. In Bombay an addition to the revenue transferred on this account has been made in consequence of the Desert Canal and the Eastern Nara works being transferred to the category of Productive during 1881-82. This transfer raised the receipts from 18,9 in 1880-81 to 36,2 in 1881-82, and in the same way raised the Budget of 1882-83, 23,0, to the Revised of 44,0. But only 33,6 were actually transferred.

263. The Budget Estimate provided for 54,6, increase on State Railways, mainly due to extension of traffic and mileage; and for 288,1, increase on East Indian Railway, due to special requirements; for 133,2 for payment of surplus profits to the Guaranteed lines, and for the usual increase of charges on account of interest on the increased capital account. There was a saving by the transfer of charges on the Punjab and Kandahar lines to Non-productive, but on the other hand the expenditure on the East Indian Railway was even more than estimated.

1,677,6	Total East Indian Railway	1,981,1	1,973,6	2,069,4

264. The first two figures in the statement have been fully explained in the remarks upon the receipt side.

The payments in respect of net earnings of the East Indian Railway were in the Budget Estimate calculated upon the Revised Estimate of earnings for 1881-82 (3,110,0), and the Budget Estimate of earnings for 1882-83 (2,660,0). The outturn, however, was 3,261,8 and 2,779,1, and the payments were proportionally increased.

74,7	LAND AND CONTROL	92,0	85,0	72,2

265. The estimates of payment of Surplus profits require no further explanation than that the difference in the Actuals as compared with Budget follows the differences in the Net Revenue explained on the Revenue side.

266. Under Land and Control, the largest items in the estimates were the acquisition of land for the Benares Bridge works and for the northern extension of the Oudh and Rohilkhund Railway. In the former case a saving was caused by delays in the settlement of compensation, and in the latter case the route was not settled in time to admit of the land being taken up.

267. Under Imperial, the Budget Estimate in the Punjab provided for the same scale of expenditure as was estimated for in 1881-82, although the Actuals of that year showed certain savings; but in the Revised Estimates new expenditure for building offices at Amritsar, and for emergent repairs at the head-works of the Bari Doab Canal, were added. The slight excess in the actual expenditure was caused by some refunds.

268. In Madras the Budget Estimate provided a considerable increase in the appointment of Revenue Establishments. The charges of the maintenance of the old Irrigation Works was, under orders of Government, transferred to the Non-productive category, and the Actuals by so much fell short of the Estimates.

269. The addition made in the Revised Estimates and in the Actuals in Bombay is caused by the transfer to "Productive" of the canals mentioned in paragraph 262 above.

270. Under Provincial, the Bengal charges were increased by works on the Orissa Canals for strengthening the distributory channels, and by unexpectedly heavy charges for establishment on the Sone Canals. The increase in the North-West is mostly a matter of account; that is, the short expenditure on capital caused a larger proportion of establishment to be charged against the Revenue account.

273. The East Indian Railway figure in this part of the account is the reckoning at the contract rate of 4½ per cent. on the advances on Capital and Stores Accounts. Part of the increase compared with 1881-82 is accounted for by the charge to Capital for the discharge of debentures which brings about a corresponding reduction under the next portion of the charges.

274. Under Interest on other Capital, which at present is all connected with East Indian Railway, we have a reduction on account of discharge of debentures (as just mentioned); and an increase under the head of 3½ per cent. annuity redemption stock. The debt account shows that during the year 480,3 of this stock was issued in redemption of annuity, under which it will be found that a decrease of charge occurs.

276. The charge on account of Railways interest includes an arrear of 40,3 coming down from the accounts of 1867 and not anticipated in the Estimates. Apart from this, there was a saving of 6,2 chiefly owing to debentures not being replaced by other debt as soon as expected. Under the last head the Budget provided for a whole year's interest, but as the Company was purchased on 30th June 1882, only one half-year's interest came under payment.

277. As the figures now included under State Railways were last year shown under other heads, they should be omitted in the comparison from the Revised Estimates and Accounts of 1882-83; which then stand at 648,4 and 691,8, against 727,8 in 1881-82 and 619,0 for Budget of 1882-83.

278. The differences are mainly in the receipts on account of Civil Buildings, &c. Under this head, there were first exceptional receipts of about 70,0 in 1881-82, which the Budget at least did not expect to recur, but which did in a great measure come into the account at the end of the year; and there were also about 20,0 of receipts in 1881-82, which were in 1882-83 more properly classified as Land Revenue.

279. Of the Railways whose receipts are now shown under this head, the Kandahar and the Punjab Railways were, in the Budget Estimate, included in the figures of the Indus Valley and Punjab Northern Railways respectively. The returns from both these lines are very poor, but they turned out slightly better than Estimate.

280. Of the Bhopal Railway, 12 miles south of the Nerbudda were opened and produced a small revenue.

281. For the Sonarpur-Diamond Harbour Railway, the Budget Estimate was included with the Calcutta and South-Eastern; and for the Kawnia-Dhurla, with the Estimate under Civil Buildings, &c. In both cases, the revenue was a little better than Estimate.

These figures are in two sets, Imperial and Provincial.

283. The decrease in Imperial is mainly in Bombay, and is due to the transfer to the Productive category of the Desert Canal and the Eastern Nara works. But the realizations on Non-productive works were also somewhat less than anticipated, a result owing in part to arrears being handed over to next year.

284. Ih the Provincial figures, nearly all the figures show a fair increase both over Budget and over last year's figures; the chief share coming in from navigation receipts on the Calcutta Canals.

286. On the Imperial Account, we have fallen back to ordinary figures, after the special receipts included in the accounts of 1881-82. The English receipts are fees from students at the Royal Engineering College, the number of whom was less than last year.

287. Under Provincial and Local, the figures are separately stated for receipts in charge of Public Works officers and receipts in charge of Civil officers. Under the first of these, the Estimates provided for less revenue than 1881-82, chiefly because of the special receipts (7,0 + 10,9 + 13,4 = 31,3) included in that year's figures. The Revised estimated an improvement in the North-West, mainly profits from Roorkee Work-shops, and a large addition in Bombay by sales of buildings, and by sale of land belonging to the Kurrachi Harbour Works. Some unusual transactions came into the Roorkee Work-shops after the Revised Estimates—first, in connexion with work done for sugar-mills for a firm in Bengal, and second, advance receipts on orders received at the end of the year. The receipts of these work-shops were 30,8 more than entered in the Revised Estimate. A decrease in Madras arose from restrictions imposed upon the Madras Work-shops; and in other provinces there were slight excesses which do not call for remark.

288. Under receipts in charge of Civil officers, a small increase in the Revised Estimates and in the Actuals in the Central Provinces arises from the receipts of the Saugor Work-shops being shown under this head instead of, as formerly, under Miscellaneous.

289. In the North-West Provinces, an amount of about 18,5, receipts of the Bhabar Improvement Fund, have been transferred from the head of Public Works to their proper head of Land Revenue, and this accounts for the diminution of figures there in 1882-83. The changes in the other provinces may be described as ordinary variations, the class o receipt mostly concerned being tolls.

290. Although on the whole the Budget Estimates have been nearly followed, there have been great differences in detail. The general scheme of the year was for more liberal expenditure than last year on construction of Railways (592,0 against 247,7), on Irrigation (974,0 against 789,9), and on Civil Buildings, &c. (4,371,0 against 4,043,2); but the formation of the Southern Mahratta Railway Company, and the transfer to it of much of the work included in the Estimates both of this section of the account and of the Famine Section, placed the Government in funds to push on the Railways under construction in Bengal, the North-West, and the Punjab, and 89,8 was added to the cost of Provincial Railway construction. To this amount of extra expenditure we must add 136,2 on working account of Railways transferred from Productive, giving a total excess expenditure of 226,0, about equal to the amount saved to Government by the Southern Mahratta Railway, 150,0, and the savings in Irrigation caused apparently by the grants not being worked up to.

291. Of the Bhopal Railway, the first 12 miles from the Great Indian Peninsula Railway to Hoshangabad were opened for traffic on 1st June 1882. Satisfactory progress was made with the bridge over the Nerbudda (which was finished in May 1883). The Gadaria Viaduct, another large work, was nearly completed. The earthwork on the ghats and on the rest of the line proceeded rather more slowly than expected, and the terminal buildings at Bhopal were commenced only in the cold weather. The line is expected to be opened in October 1884.

292. The Estimates provided 150,0 for the construction of part of the Southern Mahratta Railway from Hubli to the Portuguese frontier, but a concession was made to a private Company in respect of this line, and the Company were to take over the works already completed and repay an amount which in the Revised Estimate was taken at 50,0, on account of them. As mentioned under "Protective Works," these repayments were not settled before the end of the year, and the full amount expected was not received.

293. The other charges under Imperial are mostly surveys, and the savings in them are due to the fact, first, that a reserve of 30,0 for new demands arising during the year was not fully utilised; and secondly, that part of the charges budgetted for was transferred to other heads—7,6 for Punjab Northern Railway, Northern Section to Frontier Railways; 5,3 for Rewari-Ferozpur Survey to Protective Railways; and 7,2, Patna-Bahraich Survey to the Bengal and North-West Railway Company.

294. The Provincial Railways were all pushed on more rapidly than had been estimated for, as it was desirable, the money being available, to bring the works to an end as soon as possible. The expenditure here rose from Budget 300,4 to Actuals 390,2.

Of the Diamond Harbour Railway, the 15 miles to Mugrah Hát were opened on 18th December 1882; and the Diamond Harbour station was under construction at the end of the year.

Of the Dinagepur Railway, 9 miles (nearly a half) were opened on 1st July 1882. The earthwork on the rest was almost completed, and the bridge work also in a very advanced state.

295. On the Cawnpur-Farukhabad Extension, the works were not commenced till October 1882. By the end of the year one-third of the earthwork had been finished, more than half the material for bridges had been collected, and masonry work had been commenced, and 25 miles of ballast had been delivered. The line is to be 102 miles long, and to cost 450,0.

296. The Jumna Bridge at Muttra is meant to connect the North-West metre lines with the Rajputana system; it was sanctioned at a cost of 87,6, to which provision for road traffic costing 15,0 was added in England. The estimated expenditure for the year was raised from 30,0 to 68,0; and at the end of the year all the wells had been sunk from 15 to 30 feet below water level (an old town being discovered, in the operation, 15 feet beneath the bed of the river), and the work on the approaches more than half completed. The girders were not expected from England till December 1883.

298. The figures against the Bengal Central Railway are mostly provision for the acquisition of land; the increase in the Revised, as compared with the Original Estimate, was due to short outlay in 1881-82, which was noticed in last year's report. The amounts included in the Revised did not, however, come under actual payment in 1882-83. Of the original provision made for interest payment, 16,5, also included against this head, only 13,3 was required.

299. The provision made under Bengal and North-West Railway was also for acquisition of land. That against Rohilkund and Kumaon Railway is the charge on account of guarantee of interest, which, though a Provincial charge, has to be classed as Imperial in the first place, because it is paid in the English accounts, and it is afterwards adjusted in India between the two Governments. A certain provision for land for this line is shown as a Provincial charge.

300. The charge against the Southern Mahratta Railway is the payment of interest at 4 per cent. upon the Capital of the Company; the Company not being formed at the time of the Budget, it did not appear till the Revised Estimates.

301. The Budget Estimate as at first framed was afterwards increased by additional grants, in order that the works might be the sooner brought to completion. The short outlay occurs mainly in respect of stores, that is, the stores, purchased for and held under the account of Frontier Railways, were very largely disposed of by transfer to other heads of charge, and this brought in great deductions from expenditure.

302. On the Punjab Northern, the line from Khairabad on the Indus to Peshawur, 41 miles, was opened on May 1st, 1882, and at the end of the year the only part of the line from Lahore to Peshawur yet unopened was the section between Campbellpore and Khairabad on which are the Attock Bridge and its approaches. This section was so nearly complete that it was opened on 1st June 1883.

The two sets of figures distinguish the Imperial and the Provincial (including a small amount of local) works.

303. Taking first the Imperial, the India Estimate was reduced in the Revised by the omission of the amount held as a reserve for demands afterwards arising in all provinces. The Revised Estimate reduced the intended expenditure in Madras, owing to delay in the inception of works on the Palar Anicut System, but added an equal amount to Bombay, where demands were made for the clearance of silt, and repair of flood damages on the Sind canals.

304. The accounts fell short of the Estimates mainly in Bengal.

305. Under Provincial in Burmah, the Budget estimated provided for two items on which no outlay was required during the year, namely, the purchase of a steam dredger and a navigation project in the Henzada plain. These were omitted in the Revised Estimate, but heavy expenditure upon embankments made up for part of the decrease. The similar reduction in the Revised in Assam was due to the arrangements for a daily steamer service not being completed within the year. Bengal made a reduction in its Revised Estimates, and Madras made an increase, caused in both cases by alterations in the scheme of working mapped out for the year.

306. The grant for these is 1,000,0 a year, and both the Budget and the Revised Estimates worked up to this figure, but the expenditure fell a little short of the Estimate. The differences between Estimates and Actuals run over a variety of items and hardly require separate specification.

307. Under Imperial, the Estimate was for 510,7, rather less than the previous year's grant; but 92,9 were added to it by new grants made during the course of the year, chiefly for Public Offices at Simla and for the Uru Salt Works in Bombay. The final expenditure differed from the Revised Estimate chiefly in saving of grants for expenditure on the Mint in Calcutta, and in the slower progress of the salt works referred to which were under construction by the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway. Against this additional grants were sanctioned for the Simla buildings.

308. Under Provincial and Local, the two sets of figures show the expenditure in charge of the Public Works Department and of Civil Officers respectively. In the first of these two cases, there can be little comparison between the rates of expenditure in the two years, because it depends greatly upon the disposition of the Local Governments to utilize the balances at their credit upon Provincial account. Bengal estimated to open the year with 708,8, the North-Western Provinces with 1,062,6, Punjab with 301,7, and Bombay with 552,1, all being very high, and all higher than the previous year. All of these therefore increased their rate of expenditure, except Bengal, which had considerable railway construction in hand, and which made up for its moderation in Estimate by largely exceeding its Budget provision. In Assam some administrative arrangements caused a transfer of part of the works from the category of Departmental to that of Civil Officers.

309. The Budget Estimates were accordingly framed for 2,762,8 Departmental and 1,097,5 Local against last year's 2,562,2 and 918,4.

310. As regards the former the several Governments, in the course of the year, made considerable additions to their grants by sanctioning new works for which Budget provision had not been made. These excesses were, in Burmah and Assam, mostly for new roads, and in Bengal, Punjab, and Bombay, for new civil buildings. Thus the Revised Estimate added 5,7 in Central Provinces; 14,8 in Burmah; 6,8 in Assam; 27,4 in Bengal; 7,1 in North-West Provinces; 1,9 in Punjab, and 25,6 in Bombay. Bengal greatly overspent its increased Estimate, but in other provinces they were not worked up to. The excesses in Bengal were chiefly on original works, and although the probability of the excess was known at the time, it was considered unnecessary to make special provision for it in the Estimates, as it was also known that an equal amount of savings in the same head of Civil Buildings, &c., would come in to meet it.

Section H.—EXPENDITURE ON PUBLIC WORKS NOT CLASSED AS PRODUCTIVE—concluded.

The outlay in Madras was very far short of the grants.

Upon the whole Estimate the excesses and defects balanced each other, and the outturn was 2,792,3 against Estimate 2,762,8.

311. Of the expenditure under charge of Civil Officers, about 80,0 must be considered as a transfer in the Province of Assam from Departmental Public Works expenditure; and of the other provinces, where the expenditure is largely that of Local Funds under the management of Local Committees, Bengal and Madras both estimated more liberally than they had spent in the former year, their local balances being in both cases high. The Local Committees in Bengal utterly failed to work up to their Estimates; they estimated for 469,4 and spent 370,9, just as in 1881-82 they estimated for 477,4 and spent 397,0. The figures elsewhere do not call for remark.

312. The principal difference between the Budget Estimate and the final figures is the inclusion in the latter of the transactions arising in connexion with the Egyptian Expedition. Allowing for these the Budget figures were fairly followed. The figures of 1881-82 in the same way included special receipts and expenditure arising in connexion with the war in Afghanistan.

313. Excluding the special war expenditure, the net figures under "Army" are:—

314. The excess over Budget in Commissariat was due to a special recovery of 10,0 from Mysore, and to continued sales of transport cattle, alluded to in the last year's report; the greater part of the increase was anticipated in the Revised Estimate.

315. Under Clothing no remark is necessary; under Ordnance, the excess in the Revised Estimates arose out of supplies of tents, for the Egyptian Expedition, made to Her Majesty's Government; but a still greater excess comes into the accounts for large sales of condemned stores in Bengal, and issues to the Hyderabad Contingent and to Native States.

316. The excess under "Other Receipts" came in connexion with the closing of transactions on account of the war in Afghanistan. The accounts would have fairly agreed with the Revised Estimate, but that the latter included credits for issues to other departments, which in the accounts were properly taken by deduction from expenditure.

317. The increase of receipts in England was due to payments made by the Admiralty for services performed by Indian Troop-ships in connexion with the Egyptian Expedition.

318. The receipts of the year 1882-83 have on the whole fallen behind those of 1881-82, but nearly the whole explanation lies in the special revenues credited in 1881-82 under the head of Commissariat. See para. 187 of last year's report.

321. The fluctuations under the first head are mere questions of the rank of the officers on duty; the saving as compared with 1881-82 is partly a transfer of certain charges to "Medical."

322. In the Revised Estimate, there was a saving in Regimental pay, both as compared with the Budget Estimate and as compared with last year, which was owing to reductions in the Native Army carried into effect from 1st July 1882; a further part of the apparent saving is only nominal, being caused by the transfer of the pay of Medical Officers of British Regiments to the "Medical" Grant. The accounts closely followed the Revised Estimate.

323. The Estimates under Commissariat were very closely followed. The charges under this head for the five preceding years have been 2,273,9, 2,362,8, 2,689,6, 2,677,5, and 3,178,8. This last was entirely due as was explained in last year's report to the inclusion of heavy war charges; but these being eliminated we have now an immediate reduction to peace level.

324. The Medical Grant provided in 1882-83 for Medical Officers who formerly had been attached to regiments, but are now posted to stations as required. Apart from this transfer there is a real reduction in the amount of the charge, as there is a reduction in the number of officers.

325. Under Ordnance there was a considerable increase (35,9) in charges in Bengal mainly on account of stores purchased for the Egyptian Expedition but not sent; of a similar excess over Budget in Bombay 52,3 the explanation is nearly the same, namely, the stores were purchased for, and sent to, Egypt, but not being used there, were on their return charged off to the ordinary head.

326. The chief part of the increase over Budget under Other effective Services was due to gratuities of 83,3 paid to men of reduced Native Regiments, and there was also an increase under "Sea Transport" in consequence of the hire of a steamer to take to Burmah mules returned from Egypt.

327. Under Pensions the increase of charge is caused by the reductions last alluded to, and also by increase of family payments consequent on the Afghan war. Other Non-effective Charges" were increased by nearly 20,0 by certain retired officers commuting their pensions and drawing the capitalized value in India.

328. The English figures shew a decrease under Regimental pay, chiefly of regiments during the voyage to and from India; a considerable decrease under Transport charges, due to the late commencement of the troop season, and to the postponement till 1883-84 of certain repairs; and stores, chiefly Ordnance and Medical, cost nearly £ 100,0 less than estimated.

329. Of the increase under Retired Officers, &c., 30,5 was a short estimate of the effect of the measures taken to promote retirements, and 21,3 is a transfer to this head of charges shown in Budget against "Superannuation, Retired, and Compassionate Allowances."

330. The adjustment for unaudited expenditure was found to be blank, as the Military Accounts were found to show a slightly larger debit than was calculated upon the issues to them from the Civil and other Departments. The starting point for these adjustments was taken at April 1st 1878, and the figures show that the audit was, upon March 31st 1883, behind the actual expenditure by a smaller amount than it was behind it on April 1st 1878.

Section L.—EXCHANGE ON TRANSACTIONS WITH LONDON—concluded.

334. The Estimate on account of Secretary of State's drawings was taken at sterling 15,592,5 (including Hong-Kong Bills 250,5); exchange 3,118,5; Rs. 18,711,0, the exchange being taken at 20*d.* The actual outturn was sterling 14,119,1; exchange 3,238,9; Rs. 17,358,0, the rate being 19·522 pence. The Revised, made when the transactions of the year were nearly complete, differed only very slightly from this. These figures, it must be remembered, exclude the transactions on which the exchange was charged to the account of the Commission for the Reduction of Debt.

335. The exchange on transactions of the Southern Mahratta Railway arose out of the arrangements made during the course of the year for booking the transactions of that Company, capital receipts and capital expenditure in India having to be brought to account at the rate of $\frac{5}{8}$ under capital and $\frac{1}{6}$ under exchange; and a further small adjustment having to be made every half year for the difference between the result thus obtained, and the terms of the contract depending upon the rate of Council Bills for each half year. The Company's transactions accordingly brought 114,0 exchange to debit of the Revenue account, their expenditure in India being nearly 578,0.

336. The exchange on Hong-Kong Bills was not separately estimated in the Budget, but was taken along with Secretary of State's Bills, as the Bills drawn on India for the supply of the Hong-Kong Treasure chest were to come in in reduction of them. The drawings at the end of the year were less than estimated.

337. The difference under Guaranteed, &c., Companies' transactions arose chiefly in those of the Bengal Central Railway, which was taken in the Budget as likely to draw through the Government 250,0 sterling with a loss by exchange of 50,0, but which took only 185,0 with an account loss of 31,3.

The other Companies' transactions, as explained in the report of 1880-81, are nearly always net gain, and the outturn on account of them was not very different from the Estimate.

338. On transactions of the East Indian Railway the Budget Estimate was placed at 150,0, being 750,0, the estimated expenditure on stores in England, brought to debit of the Rupee capital account by a credit of 150,0 to exchange. The expenditure fell far short of this (see paragraph 366), and of course the exchange did the same also.

339. On Miscellaneous Transactions the credits are mostly of a casual nature. They come in by Family Remittances of Military officers, by payments received on account of stores supplied to Native States, and also Public Works stores supplied to Provincial Governments, by money-order remittances to the United Kingdom (those on the Continental Governments are not remitted through the remittance account, and therefore produce no exchange), and by many other transactions.

The Original Estimate would have been better followed had not a charge come in in Bengal by the remittance through the Government account of £28,767 out of the Bruce Legacy, to which Government had to add the exchange in paying it out in India.

340. The Provincial Governments had all of them high balances at the beginning of the year, partly the result of enforced economy during the Afghan war, and partly through the return to them, as part of the new provincial contract of 1882, of 670,0 levied from them during the period of financial pressure (paragraph 42 of the Financial Statement), and the further grants mentioned in paragraph 64 of the Financial Statement. Naturally, therefore, they estimated for high expenditure,—that is, to spend not only the income of the year, but, out of previous accumulations, the further sums above mentioned.

341. The chief improvement in the Central Provinces came in in Railway Receipts, which were estimated at 55,0, but produced 85,9.

342. In Burmah the Provincial Revenue under Excise, Customs, and Forest gave an advance of 90,9 over Budget, against which the Provincial share of Land Revenue fell short by 30,6.

343. In Bengal the scale of transactions is so large that the difference under Provincial, which amounts to an improvement over Estimate of 150,9, is a little more than three per cent. of the whole, and perhaps requires no special explanation.

344. The North-Western Provinces, though they had to bear the new demand of 198,8, alluded to in paragraph 56, note d, saved 85,0 in Land Revenue charges (see paragraph 95), and very much short-spent the provision for Public Works. In the final outturn therefore they were better in their Provincial balance by 188,7.

345. In the Punjab the difference was not very great, and of that under Madras nearly 68,0 is accounted for by the different treatment of Land Revenue alluded to in para. 261

346. In Bombay the Land Revenue was worse than the Estimates by about 90,0, but that was almost made up by improvement in Excise of 55,0; and in Forests of over 20,0. The chief differences in Bombay lay in the special Land Revenue refunds referred to in paragraph 86, for which 193,3 was provided in the Estimates, but 33,1 only spent within the year.

EXTRAORDINARY RECEIPTS.

347. These are two in number, and they are classed as Extraordianary because, although as a matter of account-keeping they must come in on the receipt side, they form no proper part of the year's revenue.

348. The first is the cancellation, upon the Books of Government, of the balance hitherto held under "Unfunded Debt" at credit of the Bombay Civil Fund. The assets and liabilities of this fund were taken over by Government upon December 1st, 1882, in accordance with Act of Parliament, 45 and 46 Victoria, Cap. 45. The future receipts and expenditure on account of the fund will be classified as Government Revenue and Expenditure (taking the place of the past payments of interest and donation to the fund), but the accumulated balance had to be charged off under "Unfunded Debt, Deposits of Service Funds," and credited per contra as an Extraordinary receipt.

349. The second is the addition of expenditure already incurred and charged off in former years to the Capital Account of Productive Public Works. When it is decided that the work is to reckon as Productive, the Capital Account must necessarily be increased, and this can be done only by a per contra entry of receipt.

350. The capital expenditure on State Railways and on Irrigation both fell behind the expectation of the Budget Estimates, but the total charge was made up by expenditure not included in that Estimate, namely, 480,3 on redemption of East Indian Railway Annuity, 1,762,6 on purchase of the works of the Madras Irrigation Company, and 49,8 expenditure upon the Madras Harbour Works.

351. The Budget Estimate provided for the expenditure of the usual annual grant of 1,800,0 plus 67,7 expected to lapse from the previous year, which lapse, however, actually amounted to 369,4. This gives the following account of the fixed grant:—

	Revised, 1882-83.	Actuals. 1882-83.

Expended in 1882-83	1,674,4	1,647,3
Carried forward to 1883-84	595,0	622,1

352. The large saving in the original grants is accounted for by delay in receipt of stores from England, difficulty in obtaining labour, and transfers of stores and tools to works classed as unproductive. The expenditure as originally sketched out in the Budget Estimates is liable to many alterations as the year goes on, partly by new projects being sanctioned, and partly by transfer of grant from works on which money seems likely to be saved, to works where it is found possible to push on the expenditure more rapidly.

The following details of the principal works are given.

353. Rajputana Line.—The principal works on this line are extensions of the station works and buildings at Rewari, Bandikui, and Jeypore; a large number of official residences, office buildings, &c., at Ajmere; completion works to earthwork ballast, &c., on the Neemuch-Nasirabad section which was opened on 1st December 1881; and the extension to Ujjain begun in November 1882, and to be opened, it is hoped, by the monsoon of 1884. The saving in the original budget was entirely due to the postponement of expenditure which it was thought could be deferred, nearly 70,0 on the Ajmere buildings, another 10,0 on tools and machinery for the Ajmere shops, and also certain new Locomotives.

354. Sindia Railway.—The principal works were additional sleepers between Agra and Gwalior; and stone-pitching, &c., at the Chambal bridge. There was a slight saving on the estimates.

355. Holkar Railway.—There was considerable saving on this estimate, which was mainly for stations and buildings, and for extension of shops at Khandwa.

356. Nagpur-Chattisgarh.—On the Amgaon section, the bridge over the Wainganga river was still incomplete, and the traffic was carried by a temporary bridge. The permanent bridge was completed and opened on 7th June 1882. Construction was actively carried on from Amgaon, 95 miles, to Nandgaon, 145 miles; more money being made available for the work than at first intended. The Revised Estimate was stated at an unnecessarily high figure.

357. Rangoon-Irrawadi.—The expenditure on this line was mostly reconstruction with iron girders, of bridges built in the first place of timber. The large excess on the estimates occurs in the suspense account, and represents the charge for rolling-stock which when completed will be charged to the Sittang Line.

358. Rangoon-Sittang.—This line 166 miles long, of which the construction commenced in 1881-82, was in progress throughout the year. The first 92 miles are likely to be opened by January 1884. The saving in the estimate reckons in part against the excess on the last mentioned line.

359. Tirhoot Railway.—The expenditure against this head is mostly the construction of a new connection with the East Indian Railway by the extension of the line to the banks of the Ganges, opposite Mokameh. The work was for the most part provided for by additional grants made after the Budget Estimate, and the extension was ready in November 1882, but could not be opened till May 1883, as the East Indian Railway had not made their Ghât line from the Mokameh Station.

360. Tirhoot Extensions.—There were three extensions of this Railway under construction, viz., Mozaffarpore to Bettiah, 76½ miles; Durbhunga to Pipra Ghat, 24½ miles; Mozaffarpore to Hajipur, 44 miles.

The first, it was hoped, would be opened within the year, but the contractors were unable to fulfil their contracts and a part of it only, to Motihari, 49½ miles, was opened on February 1st, 1883. The Pipra Ghat Extension was opened the same day, the work having been carried on departmentally after the contractors' failure. The Hajipur Extension was only under survey and estimate.

The short expenditure on these extensions was due to the failure of the contractors above noticed, and also in part to debit not being received within the year for rolling-stock under construction at the Saidpur Workshops of the Northern Bengal Railway.

361. Dacca-Mymensing Railway.—The sanction for the construction of this line, 86 miles, was not received in time for its being entered in the Budget Estimates. The construction was put in hand on 1st December 1882, and better progress was made with the earthwork than anticipated in the Revised Estimates.

362. Indus Valley.—The work here done is raising of embankments, miles 160 to 202; additional bridging, especially three bridges at the part of the line, miles 483, 491, and 494, damaged by floods; fencing; large offices, workshops, and barracks at Sukkur.

These works (except the fencing) were for the most part carried out as intended, but a large provision had been made for the commencement of the bridge at Sukkur over the Indus, which was not begun within the year.

363. Punjab Northern Railway.—The works here include a new siding and dock for the Chenab Ferry Trains; additions to the Wazirabad and Lala Musa Stations; commodious Stations at Rawalpindi; new permanent-way between Kharian and Jhélum; staff quarters at Rawalpindi.

The addition in the expenditure over the Estimate was mainly a transfer of stores from the Northern Section of the line, which is not now on the Productive list.

364. Amritsar-Patankote.—66 miles from the Sind, Punjab and Delhi Railway to Patankote. The works began practically with 1882-83, and good progress had been made by the end of the year, the expenditure reaching a slightly higher figure than the Estimates. The line will be open by November 1884.

365. The transaction under Redemption of Annuity was not inserted in the Estimates as it enters on both sides; that is, it is charged to the Capital account of the Railway, but re-appears as a receipt for Permanent debt incurred.

366. The principal works included in the Capital outlay are (1) completed: additional goods sheds and sidings at Cawnpore, flood openings at Arrah; (2) in progress: additional accommodation of all kinds at Howrah, with goods sheds, sidings, pontoon stage, &c., doubling of the line from Buxar to Mogul Serai.

The Hooghly bridge and connexion with the Eastern Bengal Railway at Naihati was sanctioned on 7th December 1882.

The Revised Estimate fell largely behind Budget Estimate owing chiefly to delay in the supply from England of the materials for the Hooghly Bridge; and the Expenditure was shorter still owing to the same cause which produced an excess in the Revenue Account,—the non-transfer of stores from Revenue.

367. There was considerable short expenditure everywhere during the year, and as this became evident, transfers of the grant were made—100,0 to State Railways and 44,2 to the Madras Harbour Works.

368. In all the projects in Bengal there was a large lapse of the grant, and in all three cases it is explained to arise from delay in sanctioning the works for which the money was granted; in other words, too sanguine an estimate of the rate at which the works could be prepared and entered upon. The Bengal Government did not report the lapses in time for the reduction to be made in the Revised Estimates.

369. In the North-West Provinces the short expenditure is explained in the same way, namely, want of sanctioned estimates and inability of the establishments to work up to the larger grants now given for irrigation works. At the end of the year some moneys came in by large sales of the surplus plant belonging to the Lower Ganges Canal, and reduced the expenditure below the Revised Estimate.

370. In the Punjab the expenditure on the Sirhind Canal fell somewhat short of estimate owing to difficulty in finding labour, and delay in making payments for land. The difference would be greater, but for a falling off also in the contributions from the Native States, which however are in most cases very well up to date. On the Western Jumna Canal, the short expenditure was due to delay on sanctioned Estimates for distributories, and to retardation of the works by the heavy rains of January 1883.

371. The Estimates in Madras were heavy, compared with previous year's expenditure, and they were nearly worked up to.

372. The Original Estimates for Bombay were supplemented by grants of 41,9 for the Eastern Nara Works and the Desert Canal which were transferred to the Productive category and 10,0 emergent works on the Bewari Canals. The presence of water in the bed of the River Nara impeded the works, and this, together with the postponement of work on the Mutha Canal, reduced the total charges to 59,2.

373. The purchase of the Madras Irrigation Company's undertaking not having been carried out in 1881-82 it was not considered necessary to make any entry in the Budget on account of it. The terms however were settled and the purchase completed on 30th June 1882. The following are the details of the purchase:—

Redemption of Capital Stock	1,051,0
Redemption of Mortgage Debentures	338,4
Compensations and miscellaneous	14,8
Write-off of unrecovered portion of advance made to the Company	358,4

374. No provision was made in the Estimates for the Madras Harbour Works. The state of these works was under investigation at the time of the Estimates, and any expenditure which Government might determine upon making was left for after-consideration. It was eventually provided for by deduction from the grant of Irrigation works in which a large "Reserve" had been provided.

375. In India the question of raising new debt was left open in the Estimates, as it was doubtful if the necessity would arise. In July, when it became known that a military expedition would be made from India to Egypt, of which the immediate cost was calculated at 1,800,0, it was considered advisable to raise a loan of 2,500,0, which was accordingly notified on 26th September 1882, and was raised at an average rate of Rs. 98-14·7 annas. The balance is mainly Stock-notes, of which 169,2 were issued; the issues of these were experimental (see Financial Statement, paragraph 258), and the item was not shown in the Estimate.

376. The discharge of loans was that falling under the operations of the Commissioners for the Reduction of Debt, namely, two small Sicca loans, aggregating 37,9 and the 5 per cent. debentures amounting to 600,3 falling due on June 1st. The Sicca loans were dischargeable on 27th March, 1882, but as a matter of fact the payments nearly all came after 31st March. 590,0 was taken as the amount coming under payment on this account, and 631,2 were paid.

377. The first figure shown against England is the operation of redeeming the East Indian Railway Annuity by issue of 3½ per cent. stock; the entry on the payment side coming into the account of Capital Expenditure on that Railway.

The remaining part of the English operations, according to the Budget Estimate, were the raising of 1,950,0, 3½ per cent. stock to pay off East Indian Railway Debentures of that amount and some other small amounts falling due. Later in the year it was determined to raise instead a 4 per cent. Debenture Loan of 2,000,0; and the discharges against this were a little short of the Estimate by reason of small amounts remaining unclaimed at the end of the year.

378. The Indian figures are much affected by the exceptional operation of the transfer to Government, under Act of Parliament (45 & 46 Vic., Cap. 45) of the Bombay Civil Fund. The balance of the Fund on December 1st, 1882, 815,3, is charged to this head and credited as an extraordinary receipt. Omitting this charge the result in India would be net incurred, 647,1. This is better than the Budget Estimates, mainly by reason of the net receipts of the Post Office Saving Banks. These were a new institution in 1882-83, and were reckoned in the Estimates at only 80,0, but they received net deposits, 279,7.

379. The English Estimate provided for repaying 500,0 of temporary loan borrowed in 1881-82; but as the repayment was made before the beginning of the year, this provision was not required. The Secretary of State, however, borrowed 4,250,0 during the time for which he failed to place his Bills on India, but was able to repay it by his excessive drawings towards the end of the year.

380. The Provincial Governments were upon their whole accounts better than Budget by 787,4, as mentioned in paragraph 30, so that the deposit account of their balances was short drawn on to this extent.

381. The Commission for the Reduction of Debt estimated to receive their usual yearly sum of 750,0, against which there would be no operations, because the discharge of debt would be placed in the accounts against the head of permanent debt. In the Revised Estimate their transactions were known to be a receipt of about 1,330,2 (see paragraph 218) against which they would bear the charge of a million Sterling of Bills (or in Rs. 1,227,0). As these bills were issued only at the end of the year they did not all come in course of payment before March 31st, and the result appeared in short charge against this head. The intentions of the Secretary of State not being fully known, the full charge was taken in the Revised against this head, and the short charge against the head of Secretary of State's Bills paid, whereas in the accounts the opposite was done.

382. It is not possible to give a very satisfactory account of the whole of the difference under other deposits and advances. Of the estimated receipts 460,0 were to come in from a transaction which it became advisable to postpone as soon as it was decided to raise a loan of 2,500,0; and of the rest of the difference it may be said generally that the transactions on both sides are very large, and that they are affected by a variety of circumstances that are hardly capable of estimate.

383. In the English account the figures are, in the Budget Estimate the receipt of the annual payment on account of English contribution to the Afghan War, and in the Revised Estimates and the Accounts the further receipt of £1,001,393 by remittance from India of the amount at credit of the Commission for the Reduction of Debt.

385. Under the Guaranteed Companies the principal transactions in India are the credits given to capital by issue of stores for revenue purposes.

386. The better receipts on the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India line are due to heavy issues of stores in connection with the repairs of flood damages alluded to in paragraph 246, and to recoveries from Government at the end of the year of outlay on the Uru Salt Works (see paragraph 307). On the Eastern Bengal Railway there were unexpected recoveries on account of loss of a river flat and for iron issued for construction of wagons out of revenue. On the Great Indian Peninsula Railway besides better recovery of stores there has been short outlay in the Engineering Department. The main difference under Oudh and Rohilkund Railway was that out of 350,0 provided for expenditure upon the Northern Extension only 45,1 were spent. There was a saving on the main line aiso, as of 145,0 provided on account of Benares Bridge Works only 72,8 was spent.

387. The issues to the Subsidized Companies in India are mainly moneys advanced to them for their capital expenditure against receipts in England. The Bengal Central Railway did not take so much as it estimated for, and the Southern Mahratta Railway made its arrangements only after the year had commenced.

388. The net receipts in England from the other Companies did not greatly differ from the Estimates, but the Southern Mahratta Railway paid in net 1,593,6, of which of course there was no entry in the Estimates. The credit of 358,4 on account of advance to the Madras Irrigation Company, which is mentioned in paragraph 373 above, also came in in excess of the Budget Estimate.

389. These amounts are the balances of large transactions carried forward; the only large figures are those against Guaranteed Railways and Public Works in the Revised Estimates, and those against other local remittances in the actuals. In the first two cases the amounts practically represent the sum by which the detailed Estimates of the departments concerned (both service heads and debt heads) appeared, from their transactions with the Civil Department, to be short estimating their receipts, and were necessarily entered so as to bring out the real anticipated closing cash balance upon the Revised Estimate. The latter arises in a new account opened for the adjustment of outstanding arrears and represents for the most part credits, by debit to military service heads, for services in other departments, outstanding in account on 1st April 1882.

390. The Original Estimate of requirements, 15,342,0, was reduced by 1,300,0 by the Secretary of State when he found he was to receive large deposits from the Southern Mahratta Railway Company. For a long time during the year he failed to place his bills at the rates he had fixed, but he took advantage of the heavy demand at the end of the year to bring up the arrears, and as he was able to draw about a million sterling more than his estimated amount, it was arranged that advantage should be taken of this demand to remit home money on account of the Commission for the Reduction of Debt.

391. The Bills drawn during the year are thus arranged by month of allotment:—

	£	R	Rate in pence.
March 1882	73,1	8,72	20·12

Besides bills drawn in March on account of Commission for the Reduction of Debt	1,001,4	1,22,77	19·58

And the payment account is as follows:—

	£	Rs.
Bills outstanding, March 31st, 1882	1,471,5	1,76,17
Drawn in 1882-83	14,119,1	17,35,80
TOTAL FOR PAYMENT	15,590,6	19,11,97
Paid in 1882-83	15,018,0	18,41,53
Outstanding, March 31st, 1883	572,6	70,44

392. It will be seen that the payments advanced very largely as compared with the drawings. This was due in part to the fact, of which account was taken in the Revised Estimates, that the arrear on March 31st 1882 was unusually large, but also and chiefly to the circumstance that as all drawings after about 14th March were taken against the account of the Commission for the Reduction of Debt, there were only about one week's bills, instead of about three, en route from England to India when the year closed. The Secretary of State's intentions not being fully known, this excess payment was provided in the Revised Estimates, under the deposit account, instead of against the remittance account (see paragraph 381).

Section V.—CASH BALANCE.

NET DECREASE	4,256,0	266,7	INCREASE 1,107,6

393. Every item that has been under explanation in the report has its part in the explanation of difference of Balance, but the main items in the difference of 5,363,6 between estimate and actuals are—

(1) the surplus of revenue over expenditure which was 1,209,1 better than Estimate; and so far as its effect upon the cash balance was concerned was better by a further amount of 593,6 or by 1,802,7 in all. This 593,6 being the amount estimated for outlay on Protective Works, but afterwards diverted for Reduction of debt, and still held in the cash balances on March 31st.

(2) the loan raised in India of 2,500,0; and 500,0 taken in the Estimates for repayment of Temporary Debt in England, but coming into the account before the year began.

Section V.—CASH BALANCE—continued.

(3) a net receipt of 1,593,6 from the Southern Mahratta Railway Company, less 1,404,2 paid out in the purchase of the Madras Irrigation and Canal Company's undertaking. These two items may, as a matter of ways and means, though not as a matter of account, be reckoned against each other.

394. The closing balances compare as follows with the Estimates—

Section V.—CASH BALANCE—concluded.

INDIA.	Budget.	Accounts.	Accounts better.
The opening balance was here somewhat better than estimated, owing to better results in the transactions at the end of 1881-82	14,199,7	14,522,9	323,2
On Revenue Account we have better results, the surplus in India being	12,242,2	12,804,0	561,8
The expenditure on Productive Public Works was short of Estimate by	—2,700,0	—2,036,9	+663,1
Under Permanent Debt we raised a new loan, not entered in the Estimates of	.....	2,500,0	2,500,0
And the other transactions under permanent debt were nearly the same as Estimate	—590,0	—464.4	+125.6
The unfunded debt (excluding the cancellation of the Bombay Civil Fund) brought in somewhat better results, mainly through Savings Bank Deposits . . .	+510,5	+647,1	+136.6
Deposits and Advances, excluding Provincial Balances, gave worse results	+1,340,0	+413,7	—926,3
But under Loans, &c., we got some unexpected repayments	+85,0	+299,0	+214,0
Under Guaranteed Companies' Capital Accounts there were considerable variations though not very large in the net results	—227,0	—91,1	+135 9
Under Remittances in India, the net figures are necessarily small	+9,0	+162,6	+153,6
But under Remittance Account with England, we get .	+1,321,0	+1,082,7	—238,3
Under Council Bills we made up a great part of the short drawings by bringing the payments much more nearly up to the amount drawn	—15,342,0	—15,018,0	+324.0
TOTAL	...	...	3,973,2

Report by the Comptroller General on Savings Banks in India for the year 1882-83, and its appended Statements.

ORDER.—Ordered, that the Report (omitting paragraph 9) and its Appendices be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

No. 115, dated 28th December 1883.

From—E. T. ATKINSON, Esq., Officiating Comptroller General,

To—The Secretary to the Govt. of India, Dept. of Finance and Commerce.

I have the honour to submit my report on Savings Banks in India for the year 1882-83.

2. I have nothing special to report, except that Post Office Savings Banks were established during this year, and transfers to them of depositors from District Savings Banks were freely permitted under Financial Department Resolution No. 1460, dated 2nd June 1882. These, however, have not occurred to any great extent, as will be seen from the subjoined statement:—

Provinces.	Balance on 31st March 1882.	Balance on 31st March 1883.	Transfers from District Savings Banks to Post Office Savings Banks.	Transfers from Post Office Savings Banks to District Savings Banks.	Balance which would have existed on 31st March 1883 but for transfers to Post Office Savings Banks.

3. The number of banks open at the close of 1881-82 was 362, and at the end of 1882-83, 350, the decrease of 12 being on account of the amalgamation of two Railway Banks with others and the closure of another, and to the reduction of nine Regimental Banks owing probably to the presence of a smaller European force. The particulars given in the margin indicate the number of District Savings Banks open in each Province, and the total number of Presidency, Railway, and Regimental Savings Banks in India.

No. 167 S.—The services of Lieutenant-General J. T. Walker, C.B., R.E., are replaced at the disposal of the Military Department, with effect from the 12th January 1884, the date of his retirement on expiration of furlough.

No. 169 S.—Colonel G. C. DePree, B.S.C., Officiating Surveyor General of India, is confirmed in that appointment, vice Lieutenant-General J. T. Walker, C.B., R.E., retired.

In notifying Lieutenant-General Walker's retirement from the Department which he has for some time past administered as Surveyor General and in which he has served for upwards of thirty years, the Governor General in Council deems it right to place on record the sense which the Government of India entertains of Lieutenant-General Walker's long and distinguished services, especially in connection with the Great Trigonometrical Survey of India. That great work, planned in the first years of the century by Major Lambton, and prosecuted for many years with signal ability and enthusiasm by Sir George Everest and Sir Andrew Waugh, was in 1861 confided to General Walker's charge, and was in 1881 brought by him to a successful conclusion. This satisfactory result has been due in no small degree to the personal exertions and unflagging interest of General Walker. General Walker's geographical knowledge and scientific attainments have on many other occasions merited and obtained special recognition, and his administration of the Survey of India has been such as to maintain it in the high state of efficiency to which it had been brought by his distinguished predecessors. The Governor General in Council regrets the loss to the State of the services of so valuable a public servant.

No. 171 S.—Lieutenant W. H. Pollen, R.E., is appointed an Assistant Superintendent, 2nd Grade, of the Survey of India Department, with effect from the forenoon of the 26th April 1884.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Department of Finance and Commerce.

Read—

Financial Despatch from the Secretary of State, No. 46, dated 27th January 1881, directing that the Comptroller General be requested to prepare annually a report comparing the accounts of the last year with the Budget of that year and with the accounts of the preceding year, with explanations of any important variations, and requesting an expression of the views of the Government of India regarding the expediency of delegating the duty of making an appropriation audit to the Comptroller General or to another officer free from all administrative functions.

Resolution by the Government of India in the Financial Department, No. 1900, dated 22nd July 1881, declaring that the offices and accounts of the Controllers of Military Accounts, of the Examiners of Public Works Accounts, and of the Comptroller to the Post Office will be open to the inspection of the Comptroller General and his inspecting officers.

Despatch from the Government of India to the Secretary of State, No. 249 (Financial), dated 1st October 1881, replying to that portion of the Secretary of State's Despatch of 27th January 1881 which dealt with the question of establishing in India an independent appropriation audit to supplement the departmental audit.

Despatch from the Secretary of State, No. 103, dated 23rd March 1882, replying to the Despatch from the Government of India, dated 1st October 1881.

Despatch from the Government of India, No. 278, dated 8th September 1882, containing the final proposals of the Government of India on the subject of an annual appropriation audit.

Despatch from the Secretary of State, No. 401, dated 21st December 1882, conveying his approval of the recommendations made by the Government of India in the Despatch No. 278, dated 8th September 1882, above quoted.

RESOLUTION.—The question of the expediency of establishing in India an independent appropriation audit to supplement the existing departmental audit, was raised by the Committee appointed in 1880, by the Secretary of State for India, to inquire into the system of military account and estimate in India. This question was connected rather with the general system of accounts in India than with that of the military accounts; but as the matter had come to the notice of the Committee, they submitted recommendations on the subject to the Secretary of State. The Committee were not unanimous in opinion, but the recommendation made in the body of their report was to the effect that the appropriation audit should be made by the Comptroller General.

As a complete audit in detail of every charge against the vouchers was effected by the local and departmental account officers, and as abstract statements of the results of this departmental audit were submitted month by month to the Comptroller General, the Committee were of opinion that the Comptroller General should carry out the appropriation audit from the materials thus supplied to him, and that he should be required to submit an annual comparison and report to the Governor General in Council.

In reply to the objection that by reason of his being entrusted with certain executive and administrative functions the Comptroller General could not be regarded as an altogether independent auditor, it was observed that, owing to the circumstances of the country, the Comptroller General did not, like the Auditor General in England, audit the accounts with vouchers, but could only exercise the functions of appropriation auditor by reviewing the results after examination of the materials received from his Sub-Accountants, and for this purpose it was considered that the office of Comptroller General, as at that time established, was sufficiently independent.

2. In forwarding the report of the Committee to the Government of India, the Secretary of State requested that the Comptroller General should be instructed to prepare annually a report comparing the accounts of each year with the estimates for that year and with the accounts of the preceding year, with explanations of any important variations; the report to be considered by the Government of India and forwarded with such remarks as might seem necessary to the Secretary of State for India. At the same time the Secretary of State requested an expression of the opinion of the Government of India regarding the expediency of delegating the duty of conducting the appropriation Audit to the Comptroller General, or to another officer free from all administrative functions.

The recommendations which were made in the first instance by the Government of India involved the appointment of a separate and independent Auditor General with a staff of subordinate auditors at a total cost of rather more than one and a half lakhs of rupees per annum. On further consideration, however, doubts were felt regarding the applicability to India of the principle which regulates the appointment of an Auditor General in England. In the United Kingdom the supplies are annually voted by Parliament, which exercises a very jealous control over the Executive Government in the disposal of those supplies, and requires that an officer, independent of the Executive Government, shall report to it whether the law has been in all cases observed, and the moneys distributed according to the intention of the House of Commons. In India the case is different, as the allotment of supplies is made by the Governor General in Council, and it is, primarily, for his satisfaction that an appropriation audit is needed, in order that he may have brought before him in a clear and precise manner any deviations which have occurred in the expenditure of the year from the original intentions of the budget. It was evident that this object could be attained without the appointment of an officer independent of the Government of India, and without incurring the considerable expenditure involved in the appointment of a separate officer; as the report was to be made to, and for the information of, the Governor General in Council, there was no object to be gained by the appointment of an officer who would be wholly independent of the Government of India.

3. On reconsideration of the whole subject, and with reference to the wishes of Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India, the Government of India finally recommended, and the Secretary of State sanctioned, the following arrangements:—

I.—The appropriation audit should be made by the Comptroller General, who, in order to give due prominence to his special duties of audit, should be designated Comptroller and Auditor General.

II.—The Comptroller General should be relieved of the executive work which he performed in his capacity of Accountant General in repect of the treasuries classed under "India."

III.—The Comptroller General should be authorised to undertake a test audit in any of the offices of Account and Audit under the Government of India whenever he deemed it desirable to do so.

IV.—An addition should be made to the staff of the Comptroller General to enable him to carry out the above duties.

V.—The various Accountants General (including those of the Military and Public Works Departments) or heads of Departments of audit and account should be required to submit annually an appropriation audit report to the Auditor General, who would compile his report from the materials supplied to him and forward it to the Government of India.

4. In pursuance of these arrangements, the Governor General in Council is now pleased to formally appoint the Comptroller General to be Comptroller and Auditor General, and to direct that each Accountant General, including in the term the Military and Public Works Accountants General, and each head of a separate Audit Department, shall prepare and forward to the Comptroller and Auditor General each year an appropriation audit report of the Province or Department of which he compiles the accounts.

Two officers have already been appointed to class I of the enrolled list of the Financial Department, of whom one, under the title of Comptroller of Indian Treasuries, will have charge of the duties connected with the treasuries immediately under the Government of India, the examination and audit of the daily cash transactions of the Government with the Bank of Bengal at Calcutta, the accounts and expenditure by offices and establishments serving directly under the Government of India, and the accounts of interest of the public debt.

The second of these officers, under the title of Deputy Auditor General, and the former Inspector of Local Accounts who will now receive the same title of Deputy Auditor General, will be employed on the duties of test audit and inspection.

5. The offices and accounts of the Controllers of Military Accounts (including their Examiners), of the Examiners of Public Works Accounts (including Telegraph), and of the Comptroller to the Post Office, have already been declared to be open to the inspection of the Comptroller General and his inspecting officers, and similar authority is now delegated to the Auditor General and his staff. The Comptroller and Auditor General, in person or by his Deputies, is not merely entitled to inspect the offices and accounts in question, but also to make a test audit of so much of the accounts of any office as he may consider necessary; and the auditing or inspecting officer is entitled to enter any branch of the office, to call for any documents, and to ask for any information he may require for the purposes of his audit or inspection, and it will be the duty of the heads of all departments to supply such information, and to afford every reasonable facility for making a test audit.

The arrangements indicated in these last paragraphs have in fact already been brought into operation, and the offices of the Controller of Military Accounts, Bengal, and of the Accountant General, Madras, have already been audited.

6. The following duties will remain with the Comptroller and Auditor General, in addition to his general duty of supervising and directing the work of the Civil Accountants General and Comptrollers:—

(1) Compilation of the Central Accounts, both monthly and yearly.
(2) Compilation of estimates and comparison of current facts therewith.
(3) Appropriation audit.
(4) Audit and inspection of all offices of Account.
(5) Management of the Paper Currency Department.
(6) Control of personnel of Civil Department of Account.
(7) Resource—that is, the providing of money both by increasing the balances as a whole, and by transferring them to the points whence they are required.
(8) Management of the Public Debt, now including Stock Notes.
(9) Accounts of the District Savings Banks.
(10) Adjustment of accounts of Guaranteed Railways.
(11) Account with London and with the Colonies.
(12) Management of Reserve Treasuries and of the Bank balances.
(13) Central accounts and custody of securities held in trust by Government officers.

(14) General direction of coinage and mint operations.
(15) Verification of deposit, advance, and other debt balances.
(16) Collection of mutual accounts of accounting officers.
(17) Audit of such accounts as Administrator General's and other Law Officers', and Emigration Agencies of Colonies.
(18) The Accounts of the Forest Department.
(19) Examination of accounts of Service Funds.

ORDERED, that this Resolution be communicated to the several Local Governments and Administrations, the Comptroller General, the several Accountants General and Comptrollers, the Military Department and the Public Works Department.

Ordered also, that the Resolution be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

In accordance with the terms of G. G. O. No. 1315, dated 28th December 1872, as republished in G. G. O. No. 560, dated 23rd May 1873, the Governor General in Council directs the publication of the following documents regarding the condition of the Indian Military Service Family Pension Fund as on 31st March 1883:—

Financial (Funds).
No. 3.

INDIA OFFICE;
London, 28th February 1884.

To His Excellency the Most Hon'ble the Governor General of India in Council.

MY LORD MARQUIS,

Para. 1. I forward herewith a valuation of the assets and liabilities of the Indian Military Service Family Pensions as at 31st March 1883, by Mr. Willis Browne, with a report thereon by Mr. W. Sutton, B.A., the Actuary to the Registry of Friendly Societies.

2. The regulations for the provision of these pensions had, at the date of this valuation, been in force for a period of ten years, and the results shown in the valuation are very satisfactory.

3. Although a new item has been introduced into the valuation by Mr. Browne on account of loss by half subscriptions payable by married officers when on furlough, which causes a reduction of 15,087*l.* in the value of the subscriptions for wives, the surplus represents about 3½ per cent. of the liabilities.

4. But for the new item above referred to, the surplus would bear the same proportion to the liabilities as the surplus in General Hannyngton's valuation for 1878, viz., 7 per cent.

5. The average of the rates obtained for the Secretary of State's bills upon India for the five years, from 1st April 1878 to 31st March 1883, is 1*s.* 7·833*d.*, and if no surplus had existed the sterling contributions must have been converted into Indian currency at that rate of exchange for the next quinquennial period.

6. Mr. Sutton, however, is of opinion that the surplus of 17,333*l.*, brought out by Mr. Willis Browne, may be accepted, and may be applied to lessening the effect of the low rate of exchange on the subscribers' contributions in India.

7. I have therefore decided not to make any alteration in the existing Indian rates of contribution which represent the sterling rates of contribution at an exchange of a little over 1*s.* 9½*d.*

8. This decision, together with Mr. Willis Browne's valuation and Mr. Sutton's report, should be published in the Gazette of India for the information of the subscribers.

I have, &c.,

(Sd.) KIMBERLEY.

Indian Military Service Family Pensions.

Attached is a valuation of the assets and liabilities as at 31st March 1883.

The balance sheet shows an estimated surplus of 17,333*l.* and Rs. 955, the assets being rather over 3½ per cent. in excess of the liabilities.

The annuities have been calculated as payable quarterly, and, in the case of widows and daughters, to the date of decease or marriage.

For daughters, the tables as put forth in General Hannyngton's scheme have not been used, but a new table has been prepared with a reduced marriage rate. This alteration has met with General Hannyngton's approval, and is agreeable to an opinion expressed by the late Mr. Samuel Brown.

The Indian subscriptions have been calculated as payable monthly.

It will be observed that in the abstract of the valuation a new item has been introduced, that is to say, the estimated loss of half subscriptions of officers on furlough. It appears from replies to references to the Military and Public Departments that the number of officers on furlough, which varies from year to year, sometimes more, sometimes less, may be represented generally by about 18 per cent. of the total number of officers on the active list, and, since all officers on furlough pay half rates, the value of future active service subscriptions for wives should be reduced by 9 per cent. In the annuity tables the value of the subscriptions is inclusive of half rates after retirement. Taking an average difference of age between husband and wife, it appears that the value of subscriptions during active service only is about ·8 of the value, inclusive of retired half rates, so that ·09 × ·8 = ·072, or 7¼ per cent., by which the value should be reduced. The amount thus found (15,087*l.*) has, therefore, been debited in the abstract.

Lieutenant-Colonels who have served as such for five years may, if they so select, subscribe in Class I. For the purpose of the valuation, it has been assumed that this privilege will in all cases be accepted. This assumption does not materially affect the balance of the account, as the donations and additional subscriptions on promotion are so adjusted as to meet as nearly as possible the value of the additional benefits.

With respect to the rate in aid of the family contributions, the actual sum received from bachelors during the year ended 31st March 1883, exchanged at the average rate obtained for bills on India, is 4,210*l.*, which distributed among 1,416 children (the number at present existing with fathers living) gives 2*l.* 19*s.* 6*d.* per annum for each child. It would not be wise, however, to look for this in the future, as the rate in aid will decrease in the same ratio as will the proportion of bachelors to married members. An estimate has therefore been made of the probable rate in aid at a period when the list of members shall be in a normal condition, the result showing a sum of 2*l.* 9*s.* 10*d.* for each child as the contribution from unmarried members. Hence, for two children, the contribution is 4*l.* 19*s.* 8*d.*, which is distributed in the following manner :—

For a boy	2	1	6
	4	19	8

and these rates have been used in the valuation.

In General Hannyngton's valuation for 1878, the surplus represented about 7 per cent. of the liabilities, whereas in this it represents about 3½ per cent. only. If, however, the sum of 15,087*l.*, above referred to, were not included, it would represent just 7 per cent. Hence it appears that the prosperity of the Fund has not declined. The favourable rate of exchange now allowed in the adjustment of the contributions might therefore be continued until the next valuation.

To the Secretary of State for India in Council.

MY LORD,—In accordance with the instructions conveyed in the letter dated 21st November 1883, from Mr. J. A. Godley, Permanent Under-Secretary of State for India, I beg leave to submit the following remarks upon the report and valuation of the India Service Family Pensions Fund as at 31st March 1883, by Mr. Willis Browne.

I.—As to the Life Tables and methods of calculation employed.

I have very carefully gone over Mr. Willis Browne's calculations, which have been made nearly entirely by the aid of the set of tables constructed by Major-General Hannyngton and printed in the Appendix to his report, dated 7th June 1870, on the scheme for establishment of the Fund.

Assuming the statistical data used by Major-General Hannyngton as to rates of mortality and marriage to be applicable in the case of this Fund, and assuming the accuracy of the assumptions made as to promotion from one class to another, I find that the results of Mr. Willis Browne's calculations correctly represent the present values of the benefits assured to the members and of the subscriptions payable by them.

The important question as to the applicability of the said statistical data is one, however, which I have at present no means of determining. As I presume the form of register which Major-General Hannyngton very properly recommended to be kept when the Fund was established has been strictly adhered to, a considerable body of facts connected with the experience of the Fund must by this time be available, and I would therefore earnestly recommend that when the next quinquennial investigation takes place, that is in 1888, by which time the Fund will have been some 15 years in existence, a strict comparison should be instituted between the statistical data used by Major-General Hannyngton and the actual experience of the Fund as deduced from the Register, with the view of readjusting the financial arrangements of the Fund, if found necessary, by the light of its past experience.

In connection with this point, I may observe that Mr. Willis Browne has in this valuation used a somewhat lower marriage rate in the case of daughters than that upon which the original tables were based. The principle of this alteration is certainly one which I approve, and the investigation I have recommended to be made in 1888 will, in all probability, serve to show the necessity of this and other similar alterations.

II.—As to the deduction from value of subscription for wives on account of furlough.

A deduction on this account should most certainly be made. Assuming the proportion of 18 per cent. to correctly represent the proportion of married members in active service always on furlough, the value of 15,087*l.* put upon this item does not appear unreasonable. I would recommend, however, that the furlough experience be accurately recorded, as far as possible, in order to be made use of hereafter for a more exact determination of the value of this item.

III.—As to the reserve for future expenses of management.

From the consolidated accounts of Receipts and Expenditure for the five years ending 31st March 1883, which I have drawn up and which are given below, the one for the Indian Accounts and the other for the entire Fund (Indian and European Accounts), it will be seen that whereas in the former the item "Office Establishment Charges" appears to be about 4·1 per cent. of the members' subscriptions and donations, in the latter it appears to be about 4·6 per cent., the difference arising from the fact that the costs of the former account only include the costs actually incurred in India, whereas the latter includes all the costs incurred to the Fund. The amount reserved by Mr. Willis Browne is Rs. 1,00,000 or 8,333*l.* when converted at 1*s.* 8*d.* per rupee, and is not quite 3 per cent. of the present value of subscriptions and donations on promotion. Whether this amount is sufficient for the purpose, is one as to which I am hardly in a position to judge; but it may be safely stated that, looking at the last five years' accounts, it is not an excessive amount.

IV.—As to the subscriptions for children.

The principles on which the financial arrangements of the Fund are based are,—

(1) That members who marry pay by subscription and donation for their wives' benefit.

(2) That married members pay donations on birth of children, which, together with corresponding subscriptions, are sufficient to provide the children's benefits, but unlike (1) the subscriptions are not entirely paid by the married members. The unmarried members are required to pay certain subscriptions to the Fund, and these are appropriated as a so-called "rate in aid" to make up the subscriptions necessary for children.

To effect this appropriation, Mr. Willis Browne has assumed that there will always be as many unmarried as married members; that the number of children per married member will be 2½, and that the subscriptions from unmarried members will bear the same proportion to their number as they did for the year ending 31st March 1883.

The difficulties in dealing with this part of the Fund's financial arrangements are considerable, and it may be found necessary at the next valuation in 1888 to give special attention to this matter. In the meantime it will be sufficient to state that Mr. Willis Browne's calculations appear to have been very carefully made, and in strict accordance with the original scheme of Major-General Hannyngton.

V.—As to the surplus brought out in the valuation.

If the reserve for cost of office establishment mentioned in (III) as contained in Mr. Willis Browne's valuation be considered sufficient, I am of opinion that, subject to the Fund's experience hereafter proving to be fairly represented by the data used by Major-General Hannyngton as previously pointed out by me, the surplus brought out by Mr. Willis Browne may be accepted.

If this surplus, amounting to 17,333*l.* be appropriated in a similar manner to that brought out as at the previous valuation, it would appear to permit of the subscriptions and donations payable in India being kept at the same amounts in rupees as those they now stand at.

The result is thus arrived at:—

According to Mr. Willis Browne's valuation the total present value of future subscriptions and donations of present members is 287,460*l.*, and the average rate of exchange at which the receipts in India have been converted into sterling during the five years ending 31st March 1883 was 19·8339*d.* per rupee. Now if the equivalent rupee contributions be taken to be calculated at 21·308*d.* per rupee, a little over 1*s.* 9¼*d.* as mentioned in my report dated 18th January 1881, this will be equivalent to a reduction of the sterling contributions by 6·918 per cent., and on the assumption that 85 per cent. only of the contributions are payable in India, this reduction would amount to which is nearly enough the amount of the surplus (17,333*l.*) brought out by Mr. Willis Browne.

Section 4.

Insert the following as a foot-note to this Section :—

In paragraph 4 of the Home Department Resolution No. 24—885-96, dated the 6th July 1883, the Government of India intimated to Local Governments and Administrations that the Secretary of State had approved of the principle to which attention was drawn in paragraph 7 of the Resolution* of the 7th September 1882, of imposing a check on the abuse of the Civil Furlough Rules by recurring grants of furlough on medical certificate, and that the best mode of effecting that object was still under consideration.

* No. 33 1343-1354

2. The Secretary of State has now decided that the Civil Furlough Rules, as they stand, appear to make sufficient provision against their frequent or general abuse, and that any present formal modification of those rules is therefore unnecessary. Officers at home on medical leave will not be permitted to return to duty without a medical certificate of fitness for duty in India. At the same time His Lordship expresses his readiness to reconsider the subject should further experience show that more stringent precautions against abuse of the rules are necessary, and is of opinion that the matter might be brought by circular to the notice of Local Governments and Heads of Departments. It is pointed out that to grant leave on urgent private affairs in consideration of the state of an officer's health is not in accordance with the spirit of the Rules. When an officer applies for repeated grants of medical leave within short intervals, the attention of the Medical Board should be drawn to his case with a view to their carefully considering the term of absence necessary for his complete recovery.

3. I am to request that in future these directions may be borne in mind. Section 4 of the Civil Leave Code gives the Local Government ample powers for regulating the grant of leave of every description.—[Circular in the Home Department, No. 22 (Public), dated 16th May 1884.]

Assam Railway Surveys.

Read again—

Public Works Department Resolution No. 59 R.C. of the 24th January 1884.

Read now the following Memorandum, dated the 27th March 1884, by the Consulting Engineer to the Government of India for State Railways.

Accompanied by Mr. J. W. Buyers, Engineer-in-Chief of the Assam State Railway Surveys, I left Gauhati on the 10th of February last, passing along the proposed route of the railway to the junction with the Gola Ghat line, in the valley of the Lumding river, and thence over the South Cachar hills to Silchar; and after examining the alternative crossings of the Barak river, I proceeded viâ Sylhet to Shillong, which I reached on the 9th of March.

The portion of the proposed railway line thus examined by me may be divided into two distinct sections:—

1st.—The Gauhati branch line from Lumding river to Gauhati.

2nd.—The main line from the Lumding river to the Barak river near Silchar.

The Gauhati branch passes through an essentially level country, and presents nothing very remarkable; there are a certain number of rivers to be crossed and Mr. Buyers' selection of the general route is judicious in adopting a line in which very much of the cross drainage has been intercepted and the water-ways thus reduced to the minimum.

The line which appears to be the most desirable, is marked in red on the accompanying map.

The only doubtful part on the branch line appears to be that which lies between Gauhati and the Digru river, where it is evident from my reconnaissance that the line taken by the road, and marked in blue on the map, is quite impracticable for a railway; but I think it probable that a good line may be obtained without very heavy work on the line which I have marked in red on the map. I had not, however, time to investigate the point in sufficient detail to pronounce a decided opinion; and should it prove to be more difficult than I anticipate, it may be necessary to take the rather more circuitous line which I have shown in dotted red lines and marked A. A. on the map.

Between the Digru river and the Lumding junction, there appear to be no engineering difficulties; and although there are a few large rivers to be crossed, the line will not be a costly one to construct.

2. Looking to the fact that the soil consists generally of stiff clay, that the rivers are sluggish, and that there is a great scarcity of labor and lime in the district, I am inclined to think that screw pile piers, supporting girders of 100 feet span, will be the most suitable for the bridges spanning the larger rivers on this branch line.

3. From a general examination of the country through which this branch is proposed, I am inclined to estimate the probable cost at a lower rate than that which has been adopted by Mr. Buyers, viz., Rs. 80,000 per mile.

Mr. Buyers has explained to me that this rate was adopted before he had examined the country, and was based on Colonel Lindsay's rate for a similar line from Gauhati to Dubri.

A line from Gauhati to Dubri would, however, undoubtedly cost much more per mile than a line from Gauhati to the Lumding valley.

I am of opinion, therefore, that the branch line from Gauhati to the Lumding valley should not cost more than Rs. 63,000 or Rs. 68,000 per mile on the average.

4. With regard to the main line through the hills, the character of the country is entirely different from that through which the route of the branch is proposed to be carried.

The country is not only very rugged and hilly, but it is also densely shrouded in jungle, rendering the selection of the line a most difficult problem.

I have gone over the line which Mr. Buyers has selected, and have checked many of his approximate levels by independent observations of my own barometer, and I find that my observations agree very closely with the results he has previously obtained.

These results establish the fact that a good locomotive line, with gradient of about 1 in 70, can be obtained through the hills from Cachar to Assam.

5. The general direction of the line which Mr. Buyers has selected, may be adopted, but the details will require very careful elaboration to determine absolutely the best line; and this will require both time and labor, as it will be impossible to carry on the survey operations during the rains; and even in the cold season the weather is so unsettled and the amount of jungle cutting so large, that but very slow progress can be anticipated.

I have marked in red lines on the map that line which I think will be ultimately adopted, but this of course must depend on the result of the trial surveys which must be made before the final location is adopted.

6. There are three points at which Mr. Buyers has suggested an examination of alternative lines.

(a) The first of these roughly sketched in dotted red lines and marked B. B. on the map may possibly be feasible; but I think it probable that (as a first trial line) that which lies to the east of the range of hill bounding the Dijako valley is preferable.

(b) The second alternative shown in dotted red lines and marked C. C. on the map would at first sight appear to give a more direct line and to entail less loss of level than that which runs round the Huflong spur; but after a careful examination of the country, I have arrived at the conclusion that unless the Huflong spur route should on examination turn out worse than I anticipate, it will be a waste of time to examine in detail the alternative line on the flanks of the Barail range.

These flanks are so rugged and broken that it is doubtful whether there would be any saving in length effected by its adoption; and such a line would be very expensive and difficult of maintenance, as it would intercept the drainage of the Barail range, which is not only much higher than the spur at the opposite side of the valley, but also takes the first burst of the moisture-laden clouds from the Bay of Bengal.

(c) The third alternative marked D. D. on the map is dependent to some extent on the selection of a site for a bridge over the river Barak; but as this alternative would involve an increase of 12 miles in the through mileage to Assam, and a heavy bridge across the Jatinga river, I do not recommend its adoption; at all events I would suggest the right bank of the Jatinga and the Budapur crossing as the first line for trial.

I am disposed to prefer an adherence to the right bank of the Jatinga valley throughout, and from my casual inspection of the two crossings suggested, I am also disposed to accord the preference to the Budapur crossing.

7. It is true that the rock at the Telyntela crossing extends further across the river than in the case of the Budapur crossing, and this would enable one of the piers and one abutment to be founded on rock, but the rock is sloping and unsound, and the existence of such rock below low-water level might give rise to considerable difficulty.

In the case of the Budapur crossing the rock is very sound, forming an excellent base for the abutment, and then descends abruptly, apparently leaving the bed of the river free for sinking ordinary well foundations, which may be done without difficulty. A detailed examination of the site is, however, necessary, to determine, by means of boring, the actual character of foundations.

8. I consider that Mr. Buyers' estimate of the cost of a railway through the hills should suffice for the construction of the railway; but it will be necessary to keep down the cost by providing for the efficient transport of labor and materials to either end of the hill section.

With this view I recommend that the sections in the plains from Chandpur to the Jatinga valley on the south, and from Gola Ghât on the north to the Lumding junction, should be pushed forward with despatch before the hill section is commenced.

9. The elaboration of the details of the hill section must necessarily occupy a very long time before it can be sufficiently advanced to commence construction, and meanwhile the low-country sections both to the north and south should be pushed on rapidly, so as to bring up labor, supplies, and materials to the foot of the hills, on either side, during construction; a temporary line should also be laid in from Gola Ghât to the Brahmaputra for the same purpose.

10. The whole line from Chandpur to Gola Ghât appears to me to be of great importance in developing Upper Assam, in which much rich forest land is at present lying dormant. It is difficult to overrate the importance of this line to Assam in a strategical, political, administrative point of view. The whole line between Silchar and Gola Ghât is, however, in virgin forest, and the population practically nil. But there are rich tracts of land suitable for tea along the line of railway, which would be eagerly taken up if a railway were constructed, especially in the Demapore valley, and such a line would doubtless revolutionize Upper Assam.

11. As a direct route to Calcutta, such a line would possess many advantages compared with the route viâ Dubri, and it would place Upper Assam in direct communication with the rich tea districts of Tipperah and Silchar, whilst the extension of the line to Chittagong would enable goods to reach the port without a break of bulk.

The branch from Lumding junction to Gauhati does not appear to me to be of equal importance with the main line from Chandpur to Gola Ghât; for although it would doubtless develop a considerable cultivation of lands suitable for tea, yet these lands are already partially served by the Kapili river, which would to some extent compete with the branch railway. I would therefore urge the prior importance of the through line from Chandpur to Assam.

12. In conclusion, I may say that the selection of the line through the hills has been most creditable, both to the energy, and to the engineering abilities of Mr. Buyers. The task of picking out a line through the Cachar Hills has been one of very great difficulty, and Mr. Buyers has shown very marked ability in the manner in which he has met this difficulty.

13. I recommend that the portion of the line from the crossing of the river Barak towards Silchar should remain in abeyance until it has been seen how far the construction of the main line will affect the district of Silchar and the centres of trade. I annex an approximate section of the line through the hills from Lumding junction to the mouth of the Jatinga valley.

GUILFORD L. MOLESWORTH.

OBSERVATIONS.—Public Works Department Resolution No. 59 R.C. of the 24th January 1884 summarised the results of the surveys and reconnaissances made for a line of railway from Chittagong to Cachar and Dibrugarh with a branch to Gauhati. The Consulting Engineer to the Government of India for State Railways has since been over the ground, from Gauhati to the Lumding river and thence to the Barak river near Silchar, and the foregoing memorandum which records the conclusions he has arrived at in regard to the accuracy of the examination of the country previously made by Mr. Buyers fully confirms the favourable view of the project taken in Public Works Department Resolution before quoted.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Department of Finance and Commerce.

Read again the following Resolution in the Department of Finance and Commerce:—

No. 1959, dated 31st July 1873.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Financial Department.

The Governor General in Council observes that, of late, sanction has been frequently asked for immediate expenditure for which no provision has been made in the estimates of the current year.

His Excellency in Council desires to remind Local Governments and Heads of Departments that, save for exceptional reasons, such expenditure should not be proposed, and cannot be sanctioned.

Whenever, therefore, a proposition of this kind is made, the fact that provision has not been made for the desired expenditure in the estimates should be prominently set forth, as well as the particular reasons why it is, nevertheless, considered indispensably necessary that the outlay should be immediately incurred, and should not be postponed to the next financial year. Explanations should also be invariably given why the need for the expenditure was not foreseen in time to obtain sanction for its inclusion in the estimates.

In the absence of such special arguments, the Governor General in Council will, in future, assume that it is intended that any expenditure proposed should have effect from the beginning of the following financial year and not earlier.

Ordered, that a copy of this Resolution be communicated to the several Departments of the Government of India, to the several Local Governments, to the Heads of Departments under the Financial Department, to the Comptroller General, and to the several Accountants General and Deputy Accountants General in independent charge.

RESOLUTION—The Governor General in Council observes that at present applications for sanction to fresh expenditure are not unfrequently submitted during the course of the year in which the provisions of the foregoing Resolution are neglected. His Excellency in Council accordingly directs that the attention of the several Local Governments and Heads of Departments be called to the provisions of the Resolution of 31st July 1876, and they be requested to state distinctly in all future applications for sanction to expenditure whether provision for the proposed charge has or has not been made in the Budget Estimate of the year, and if not, whether it can be met from savings in the existing grants.

ORDERED, that the foregoing Resolution be communicated to the several Departments of the Government of India, to the several Local Governments and Administrations, to the Heads of Departments under the Department of Finance and Commerce, to the Comptroller and Auditor General, and to the Accountants General and Comptrollers for information and guidance.

Ordered also, that a copy of the Resolution be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

And shall be subject to such further conditions as the Commissioner may from time to time prescribe for the protection of the Government revenue.

6. Licenses may be cancelled by the Salt Revenue Officer in charge of the division or circle giving one month's notice, or on the application of the licensee.

In the case of cancelment of license for infringement of its conditions no notice shall be necessary.

7. Salt in store at any salt-work, a license to manufacture salt at which has been cancelled or withholden, shall be removed within six months of the date of such cancelment or withholding. The Assistant Commissioner may cause any salt which may remain in store at such salt-work after the expiry of such period of six months to be put up to auction and sold if the price offered be equal to the excise duty leviable thereon. If the price bid be less than the excise duty leviable thereon, the Assistant Commissioner may cause the salt to be effectually destroyed.

8. Nothing in the foregoing rules shall apply to the manufacture of salt by or on behalf of Government.

Protected areas, and possession, storage and sale of salt within them.

9. The area defined for the purposes of section 6, clause (e), of the Act, round each salt mine or salt-bed in the Punjab Mines Division shall extend to a distance of 10 miles from the boundary of each mine or bed on all sides, except that it shall not include any territory lying on the left bank of the river Jhelum.

The area defined for the purposes of section 6, clause (e), round any other salt-work shall extend to a distance of two miles from the boundary of the salt-work on all sides.

The areas above defined are termed "protected areas."

10. No person shall possess any salt within a protected area unless accompanied by a pass, rawannah or certificate covering the same as provided in the following rules. This rule does not apply to the possession, on the right bank of the Indus, of gray salt, the produce of the Kohat and Bannu Districts.

11. No salt shall be removed from the place of manufacture, or, after storage, from the place of storage, to any place in the salt-works in which it has been manufactured except under a written pass from the Salt Revenue Officer in charge of the works and all salt removed under such pass shall be weighed or estimated by measurement previous to such removal by the Salt Revenue establishments.

12. No salt shall be removed from the salt works unless covered by a rawannah certifying that duty at the rate fixed from time to time by the Governor General in Council under section 7 of the Act has been paid on it or under the authority in writing of the Salt Revenue Officer in charge.

13. Except as in these rules otherwise provided, any person wishing to remove salt from the salt works shall first pay the charges due thereon into such Government treasury or sub-treasury as may from time to time be appointed, and shall receive in return a receipt.

Fractions of quarter maunds shall be paid for as quarter maunds.

14. He shall present the receipt with a written requisition to the officer appointed by the Commissioner to receive it, and shall receive in lieu a rawannah for the salt, signed by the said officer and sealed in his presence.

15. The rawannah shall be current and valid for such period as the Commissioner may from time to time prescribe.

The period of currency shall count from the day on which the rawannah is delivered to the applicant, that day being included and being noted on the face of the rawannah.

16. Provided that when a rawannah is presented and the salt it covers is weighed and clearance given to the holder of the rawannah by the Inspector or Assistant Inspector more than seven days previous to the expiry of the period of the currency of the rawannah, such rawannah shall cease to be valid on the expiry of seven days from the date on which the salt has been weighed, unless the officer of the store by an order endorsed on it allows it to run for its full period or any portion thereof.

17. After the period of currency of a rawannah has elapsed, the rawannah shall cease to be valid, or of any effect whatever, unless the period be extended in the manner hereinafter provided.

18. The Commissioner may from time to time fix the minimum quantity of salt to be covered by a single rawannah.

19. The Commissioner may sanction an abatement for dryage of the salt not exceeding one per cent.

20. On a rawannah being presented and salt being issued thereunder, the Salt Revenue Officer concerned, before allowing such salt to leave his charge, shall ascertain that such rawannah is still in force and valid, and shall satisfy himself that the rawannah covers the amount of salt being issued, and shall then endorse the rawannah and return it to the trader or his agent, or to the carrier of the salt. The salt shall then be allowed to proceed to its destination.

21. When salt has been weighed and delivered to the holder of a rawannah, he shall remove it within 24 hours to a distance of at least one mile from the store, unless the officer in charge of the store, by an order endorsed on the rawannah, permits him to keep it within a shorter distance.

22. If previous to utilisation of a rawannah any minor particulars in it require rectification, such as the description of carriage, owner's name, &c., application must be made for such rectification to the officer in charge of the depôt or store before delivery of the salt is applied for.

23. If the despatch differs in minor particulars which have not been rectified in the manner prescribed in the preceding rule, the whole despatch shall be again liable to the payment of a fee not exceeding one-twentieth of the original duty, and shall on such payment be cleared, an entry being made on the rawannah that the payment has been levied as a penalty for infraction of rule, which infraction should be specified by the officer in his own handwriting.

24. If the officer suspect fraud, he may refuse to deliver the salt except under security equivalent to its full value together with the duty leviable thereon, and shall refer the case for the orders of his superior officer.

25. If the owner of a rawannah desires to divide a despatch of salt covered by the rawannah, he shall apply to the officer who issued the rawannah, and the officer shall issue as many partition rawannahs as may be required, and cancel and resume the original rawannah.

26. If anything occurs to prevent the owner of a rawannah clearing the salt before the expiry of the period of currency of the rawannah, the officer who granted the rawannah may at his discretion, but subject to such restrictions as the Commissioner may from time to time impose, renew such rawannah at any time not more than six months from the date of originial issue. If application for renewal is made later than a week before the expiry of the original rawannah, it shall be complied with only on the applicant's paying a fee of one-twentieth of the duty originally paid.

The currency of the fresh rawannah shall not exceed that of the originial rawannah.

27. Applications for renewal, except as provided in the preceding rule, shall be forwarded for the orders of the Commissioner, who may authorise such further renewals as he may deem fit.

28. When a rawannah is lost or destroyed previous to utilisation, the person to whom it was granted may make application to the officer who issued it for a duplicate, and with the application shall deposit with the officer an amount equivalent to the duty paid for the original rawannah plus one-twentieth as a fee. The officer may thereupon grant a duplicate rawannah.

On the expiry of the currency of the original rawannah, if it has not been utilised, the duty so deposited shall be refunded.

29. The Commissioner may, if he sees fit, authorise the refund of the whole or any portion of a fee paid under Rules 23, 26 and 28.

30. The deposit of salt for retail sale to the people inhabiting a protected area may, subject to any conditions prescribed by the Commissioner, be permitted at any place within the limits of the area approved by the Assistant Commissioner. The rawannah designed to cover such deposit shall be endorsed by the Assistant Commissioner for that purpose, and shall remain in force for a period not exceeding four months.

31. Every person retailing such salt under such a rawannah shall keep a register of sales daily written up, and shall give to each purchaser a certificate stating the date of sale, the name of such purchaser, and the quantity of salt purchased.

32. A certificate given under the foregoing rule shall cover the salt sold under it while in the possession of the purchaser as if it were a rawannah.

33. When any salt is stopped for examination within a protected area by a salt Revenue Officer, the rawannah covering the despatch shall be presented by the trader or his agent, or by the carrier of the salt, to such officer, who shall satisfy himself that it is a genuine document, and that its currency has not expired, and may, if necessary, proceed to weigh the despatch.

34. If on weighment of the salt it is found to exceed the quantity entered in the rawannah, the following practice shall be observed by the officer :—

(a) If the excess is not more than one per cent., he shall allow the salt to pass unquestioned.

(b) If the excess is more than one per cent., he shall detain the despatch and report the matter without delay for the orders of his superior officer for such action as is necessary under the Act.

35. The transit of salt produced or manufactured in any Native State included in the Rajputana and Central India Agencies from any of the said States into any part of the British territory adjoining the same is prohibited, unless such salt is covered by a rawannah or pass granted by such officer as the Commissioner may appoint on this behalf, showing that it has paid duty to the British Government at the rate fixed from time to time by the Governor General in Council under section 7 of the Act.

39. No license shall be granted for the manufacture of crude saltpetre, or any of the other substances included under the term "saltpetre" in section 3 of the Act, unless the licensing officer is satisfied that the soil in the vicinity of the place of manufacture, and the soil from which the said crude saltpetre or other substance is to be produced, do not contain such a percentage of chloride of sodium as to render the manufacture a source of danger to the salt revenue, and unless the works are so situated that they can, without difficulty, be supervised by the Salt Revenue Department.

40. As a general rule no refinery shall be licensed until the parties applying for a license have satisfied the licensing officer that they are prepared to produce within the period of the license not less than two hundred maunds of refined saltpetre.

41. No refinery shall be licensed until the parties applying for a license have satisfied the licensing officer that the refinery buildings and premises are so constructed and surrounded by a wall as to afford full security for the levy of the duty on salt educed therein.

And shall be subject to such further conditions as the Commissioner may from time to time prescribe for the protection of the Government revenue.

45. All licenses granted under this chapter shall be for a period ending on or before the 31st July following the date of their issue, and shall on expiry be returned to the Salt Revenue Officer.

46. Duplicates of licenses lost or destroyed during the period of their currency may be obtained on payment of one-quarter of the original license fee.

47. Every licensee shall produce his license for inspection when called upon to do so by any officer of the Salt Revenue Department not below the rank of Sub-Inspector or by any subordinate deputed by him for the purpose.

48. All licensed works and all premises connected therewith shall be open at all times by day or night to the inspection of any such officer or subordinate deputed by him for the purpose.

49. All diaries, registers, books of account and the like connected with the business of licensed works shall at all times be open to the inspection of any such officer or of any subordinate deputed by him for the purpose.

50. All salt shall be daily weighed and placed in a bonded store-house under lock and key, which key shall remain in possession of the Salt Revenue Officer attached to the refinery.

Subject to such directions as the Commissioner may give from time to time, it shall be at the discretion of the Inspector or Sub-Inspector from time to time to cause such salt to be weighed in his presence and removed from the bonded store-house. The licensee shall within twenty-four hours subsequent to such weighment and before the removal of the salt pay the duty leviable thereon.

51. When salt has thus been weighed and the duty paid, it shall with all possible despatch be removed to a distance of more than one hundred yards from any part of the refinery premises under a pass signed by the said Inspector or Sub-Inspector.

The pass shall be current for such period, not exceeding twenty-four hours, as may be deemed necessary for the removal of the salt.

A pass shall not be granted for a less quantity than twenty maunds, except for the purpose of emptying the store-house.

52. Except as hereinbefore provided, or with the permission of the Assistant Commissioner of Salt Revenue, no person shall possess any salt at any place within the limits of, or within one hundred yards from the nearest point of, any saltpetre manufactory or refinery and its appurtenances.

53. If any licensee under the foregoing rules fails during the period of the license to carry on effective working at the place at which he is licensed to carry on the same, the licensing officer may suspend the license until the licensee is prepared to resume effective working there.

The remainder of the salt or saltpetre shall be sealed up with the seal of the officer who made the seizure and of the police station, and shall remain in the malkhana or other secure place in such station till such time as a written order shall be sent by the Inspector of the circle either for the destruction of the articles seized, which shall be carried into effect by the officer presenting such request in the presence of some officer of the police station, and the same certified on the reverse of the order, or for the delivery of the same, or part thereof as the case may be, to the bearer of the order for production in court.

55. When a seizure is made by an Inspector in person, he may either follow the foregoing procedure, deputing one of his subordinates present at the seizure to take the salt or saltpetre to the station and receive the samples, or he may himself on the spot take out and seal up the samples and the rest of the seized salt or saltpetre with his own official seal. He may then either take the salt or saltpetre seized with him to deposit where he considers it will be safest, or send it for deposit to the nearest or most accessible police station to be kept as in the previous case till further orders. If, however, the Inspector himself seals the salt or saltpetre, he must, in the event of the identity of the salt or saltpetre produced in court being denied by the accused, be prepared to attend and prove the same in person.

56. When anything is seized and detained under the Act or the rules made under the Act, it shall not be released until all duty, penalties, and charges due on account thereof have been paid by the owner to the Salt Revenue Officer who is in possession of such thing.

If the thing is reported for confiscation, it shall not be released unless orders for the release are received from competent authority.

57. If an animal is so seized and detained, the owner shall provide for its due care and keep, in default of which the animal may be sold to defray charges.

58. If orders are received from competent authority for the release of anything seized and detained, and no duty or penalty is payable in respect of such thing, it shall at once be given up to the owner or his agent on his paying all charges incurred.

59. Should no one be present to receive the thing released, the officer of Salt Revenue in charge shall do his best to give notice to the owner of the order of release, and shall cause a similar notice to be affixed on the office premises and at the Assistant Commissioner's office.

If within two calendar months from the date of the notice no person entitled to receive the thing claim it, and pay all charges incurred, it shall be sold, and the proceeds placed in deposit.

After a further period of three calender months, the money shall be forfeited to Her Majesty.

60. If any duty is leviable or penalty is imposed by competent authority in respect of the thing seized, unless such duty or penalty, together with all charges incurred, be paid within three days of the receipt of the orders of competent authority for release subject to such payment, the thing shall be sold, and from the proceeds the duty, penalty, and charges shall be deducted, and the balance made over to the owner or his agent.

Should no one be present to receive the money, notice, as under Rule 59, shall be given, the money being kept in deposit for three calendar months.

If not claimed within the period, it shall be forfeited to Her Majesty.

61. When orders are received from competent authority for the confiscation of anything seized and detained, it shall, with all convenient despatch, be sold or destroyed as the Assistant Commissioner of Salt Revenue may direct.

62. When a Magistrate orders the confiscation of works, materials, or implements under section 9 of the Act, they shall be sold or destroyed by dismantling or otherwise under the orders of the Assistant Commissioner of Salt Revenue.

POST OFFICE.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Calcutta, the 7th January 1884.

Reply post-cards, both inland and foreign, will be available for sale to the public from the 1st February 1884.

2. A reply post-card consists of a double card folded in the centre, one portion to be used by the original sender, and the other marked "Reply," to be detached by the original addressee and used for reply. Each portion will bear impressed upon it an Indian postage stamp of the same value as the present single post-card. Thus the reply post-card for inland use will bear two stamps of the value of ¼ anna each, and the reply post-card for foreign use will bear two stamps of the value of 1½ anna each. Such cards will be delivered free of charge at their first address, and the portion for reply, when detached and posted, will be entitled equally to free transmission to India.

3. Purchasers of reply post-cards are recommended to write the required address on both portions of the double card, as this will tend to prevent misuse of the reply portion.

4. The inland reply-card is intended of course for inland use alone; and the foreign reply card can be employed only for correspondence with the Union Countries named in the attached list.

5. The cost of each inland reply post-card will be ½ anna: the cost of each foreign reply post-card will be 3 annas.

POST OFFICE.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Calcutta, the 7th January 1884.

Reply post-cards, both inland and foreign, will be available for sale to the public from the 1st February 1884.

2. A reply post-card consists of a double card folded in the centre, one portion to be used by the original sender, and the other marked "Reply," to be detached by the original addressee and used for reply. Each portion will bear impressed upon it an Indian postage stamp of the same value as the present single post-card. Thus the reply post-card for inland use will bear twe stamps of the value of ½ anna each, and the reply post-card for foreign use will bear two stamps of the value of 1½ anna each. Such cards will be delivered free of charge at their first address, and the portion for reply, when detached and posted, will be entitled equally to free transmission to India.

3. Purchasers of reply post-cards are recommended to write the required address on both portions of the double card, as this will tend to prevent misuse of the reply portion.

4. The inland reply-card is intended of course for inland use alone; and the foreign reply card can be employed only for correspondence with the Union Countries named in the attached list.

5. The cost of each inland reply post-card will be ½ anna: the cost of each foreign reply post-card will be 3 annas.

POST OFFICE.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Calcutta, the 7th January 1884.

Reply post-cards, both inland and foreign, will be available for sale to the public from the 1st February 1884.

2. A reply post-card consists of a double card folded in the centre, one portion to be used by the original sender, and the other marked "Reply," to be detached by the original addressee and used for reply. Each portion will bear impressed upon it an Indian postage stamp of the same value as the present single post-card. Thus the reply post-card for inland use will bear twe stamps of the value of ¼ anna each, and the reply post-card for foreign use will bear two stamps of the value of 1½ anna each. Such cards will be delivered free of charge at their first address, and the portion for reply, when detached and posted, will be entitled equally to free transmission to India.

3. Purchasers of reply post-cards are recommended to write the required address on both portions of the double card, as this will tend to prevent misuse of the reply portion.

4. The inland reply-card is intended of course for inland use alone; and the foreign reply card can be employed only for correspondence with the Union Countries named in the attached list.

5. The cost of each inland reply post-card will be ½ anna: the cost of each foreign reply post-card will be 3 annas.
