OVERLAND PARCELS FOR AND FROM THE UNITED KINGDOM.

1. From and after the 1st July 1885, parcels, not exceeding 7lb. in weight, which may be posted at any Post Office in India for transmission to the United Kingdom, will be forwarded under special arrangements with the British Post Office, as mails, and delivered free of charge (except Customs dues, if any) at the addressee's residence, through the medium of the British Post Office.

Light parcels, not exceeding 7lb. in weight, posted in India.

NOTE.—Parcels containing tobacco, sent from India to the United Kingdom, will be charged on delivery with a fine of 6*d.* per lb. in addition to duty.

Heavy parcels, exceeding 7lb. but not exceeding 50 lbs., posted in India.

2. Parcels exceeding this weight will be forwarded under the same conditions as at present, through the P. & O. Company.

Dimensions of parcels.

3. Hitherto the dimensions of all foreign parcels have been 2 feet × 1 foot × 1 foot. In future the dimensions of parcels sent to the United Kingdom only, whether sent through the British Post Office or through the P. & O. Company, will be the same as in England, viz., not exceeding 6 feet in girth and length combined, or 3½ feet in length. The minimum size of a parcel will continue to be 3 × 2 × 2 inches.

NOTE.—The previous dimension of 2 feet × 1 foot × 1 foot, gives a total of girth and length combined, of 6 feet.

Route.

4. For the present, both classes of parcels will still be forwarded by sea to London.

Rates of postage.

5. The rates on all classes of foreign parcels remain unchanged, viz. 8 annas per lb. or fraction of a lb. in India, and 1 shilling per lb. in England. Parcels posted in India must be prepaid in cash. Light parcels posted in England must be prepaid, but heavy parcels from that country can be sent unpaid.

Light parcels posted in the United Kingdom for India.

6. Similarly, from the 1st July, 1885, parcels not exceeding 7lb. in weight will be received at any Post Office in the United Kingdom for transmission to India, if presented with a declaration in the prescribed form, copies of which can be obtained at any Post Office.

Heavy parcels posted in the United Kingdom for India.

7. Parcels exceeding 7lb. must, as before, be sent to the Indian Parcel Post Office, 122, Leadenhall Street, or 25, Cockspur Street, London, with a letter of advice giving name and address of the parcels and value and contents.

Form of Custom House declaration prescribed for use in India.

8. All parcels posted in India for the United Kingdom, whether light or heavy, must, in future, be presented at the window, accompanied by a Custom House declaration, filled in upon one of the prescribed forms which will be supplied gratis at every Post Office. The special attention of the public is invited to this provision.

BENGAL CIVIL FUND.

At the half-yearly General Meeting of the Subscribers to the Bengal Civil Fund, held at the Town Hall on Monday, the 26th January 1885, at 10 A.M.

PRESENT:—The Hon'ble Mr. Justice McDonell, V.C.; H. A. Cockerell, Esq., C.S.I.; the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Tottenham; the Hon'ble J. W. Quinton; A. Smith, Esq.; H. L. Harrison, Esq.; the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Beverley; J. Westland, Esq.; E. F. T. Atkinson, Esq.; J. Scobell Armstrong, Esq.; H. J. S. Cotton, Esq.; C. A. Wilkins, Esq.; R. Logan, Esq.; J. Posford, Esq.; T. W. Holderness, Esq.; H. M. Kisch, Esq.; J. F. Finlay, Esq.; C. S. Bayley, Esq.; O. T. Barrow, Esq.; H. Bell, Esq. (annuitant).

A. Smith, Esq., in the chair.

REPORT.

THE Managers submit the proceedings for the past Half-year for the consideration and sanction of the Meeting

2. Subject to the approval of the subscribers, they have admitted to the benefits of the Fund the following families :—

Mrs. Dumergue	£ 300	The widow of the late Mr. J. S. Dumergue, Annuitant of 1862, who died on the 27th June 1884.
Mrs. Shakespear	£ 300	The widow and two daughters of the late Mr. A. Shakespear, Annuitant of 1873, who died on the 5th July 1884.
Miss Harvey	£ 150	The daughter of the late Sir G. F. Harvey, K.C.S.I., Annuitant of 1863, who died on the 4th November 1884.
Mrs. Pawsey	£ 300	The widow and two daughters of the late Mr. R. H. Pawsey, who died at Faridpur on the 10th November 1884.
Mrs. Ridsdale	£ 300	The widow of the late Mr. S. O. B. Ridsdale, who died at Fatehpur on the 15th November 1884.

3. The votes of the subscribers have affirmed the resolution passed at the General Meeting of the 28th July 1884 respecting the refund, with interest, to Mrs. Lane of the subscriptions paid by her to keep alive her late husband's interest in the Fund. One hundred and fifty-eight subscribers voted for, and three against, the proposal.

In the report presented to that Meeting it was said that the case of Mrs. Bruce Lane had been laid before Counsel, and a statement of the case as well as an opinion of Mr. Evans that Mrs. Bruce Lane can never participate in the benefits of the Fund were annexed to the report. The facts have again been represented to the Managers by Mr. C. S. Belli, Mrs. Lane's brother, and have again been under careful consideration and discussion. Although there is some difference of opinion among the Managers as to the action they should now take, there is none in regard to the sympathy felt for Mrs Lane and in the desire, if possible, to enable her to participate in the advantages of the Fund in the event of Mr. Lane's death. The Managers feel also that they are under a special obligation to consider this case in consequence of the language used in their Secretary's letter of the 29th December 1873, which undoubtedly had the effect of misleading Mrs. Lane to suppose that her interest in the Fund would not be affected by the fact of her obtaining a divorce from her husband. It may be added that this misunderstanding was apparently also shared by the Divorce Court itself, for Sir James Hannen's decision directed that Mr. Lane should continue his subscriptions to the Fund for the purpose of securing to Mrs. Lane her pension in case she should survive him. This decree has not been obeyed by Mr. Lane, but in order to keep his interest alive, the subscriptions have been regularly paid by Mrs. Lane's brother. The resolution passed at the last General Meeting and confirmed by the Service authorised the Managers to refund these subscriptions, but Mr Belli has refused to receive them. He still hopes that the case may be reconsidered. and that, notwithstanding Counsel's opinion, the claim of Mrs. Lane may eventually be admitted.

The Managers, as they have already reported to the Subscribers, are not in a position to draft a rule to meet the circumstances of this particular case, and it is obvious that the eventuality which such a rule would contemplate may never occur. They are however of opinion that if Mrs. Bruce Lane should survive Mr. Lane, and should up to the time of his death have kept alive his interest in the Fund by payment of subscriptions on his behalf. her case will be one particularly deserving of compassionate consideration at the hands of the authority which may then be administering the affairs of the Fund. The Managers cannot pledge their successors in a matter for which no provision is made by the rules. Should. however, the negotiations now in progress result in the transfer of the management of the Fund to the Secretary of State, it would seem that the considerations which in their position as Trustees render it difficult for them to take action would no longer apply. They desire therefore to do all that lies in their power on Mrs. Lane's behalf by now placing on record their hope and wish that if at any time the contingency should occur which will make it necessary for her to apply for a pension from the Fund, a special exception may be made in her favour, and her case be favourably and liberally considered.

The Managers' proceedings in this matter are now laid before the subscribers for their approval.

4. The Managers desire to report for the information of the subscribers that in accordance with the resolution of the last Half-yearly General Meeting held on the 28th July 1884, they have addressed a letter to the Secretary of State through the Government of India on the subject of the proposed transfer of the Fund. A copy of the letter is appended to this report.

5. Mr. J. W. Muir has incurred the penalty specified under Article XXXVII of the Rules by his omission, for more than one year, to pay the subscriptions on his furlough allowances, necessary to keep up his interest in the contingent benefits of the Fund. Mr. Muir has explained that he was under the impression that all subscriptions due to the Fund were adjusted on the return of the subscriber to India.

The Managers submit the question of his re-admission on payment of all arrears of subscription, with interest at 8 per cent., for the decision of the Meeting.

The accounts for 1883-84 are submitted.

BENGAL CIVIL FUND OFFICE,
The 26th January 1885.

Proposed by Mr. Posford and seconded by Mr. Wilkins, that the Managers' proceedings in admitting to the benefits of the Fund the families of the late Sir G. F. Harvey, K.C.S.I., and Messrs. J. S. Dumergue, A. Shakespear, R. H. Pawsey, and S. O. B. Ridsdale, be confirmed.

Carried nem con.

Proposed by Mr. Logan and seconded by Mr. Finlay, that the Managers' action in regard to the case of Mrs. T. Bruce Lane be approved.

Mr. Kisch asked if there was not some inconsistency in the manner in which the case had been treated. A tender of a refund of subscriptions had been made to Mr. Belli on behalf of Mrs. Bruce Lane on the ground that she could never participate in the benefits of the Fund. This tender had been refused, and now the Managers had suggested to her that she might continue to subscribe, and perhaps ultimately be admitted to the benefits of the Fund.

Mr. Westland observed that the explanation of the apparent inconsistency was to be found in the position held by the Managers, who in view of the possible transfer of the Fund to the Secretary of State had not felt themselves at liberty to take any action which might have the effect of burdening the Fund with liabilities not contemplated by the rules, but who desired to place on record their opinion as to the hardship of the case and to suggest a means by which that hardship would possibly be obviated were the future management to remain in the hands of the Service. The course taken by them was in accordance with the advice of Counsel, whose opinion Mr. Westland desired the Secretary to read to the Meeting.

The following passage from Mr. Evans' opinion was then read by the Secretary :—

"I think the only safe course is for the Managers to inform Mrs. Bruce Lane and Mr. Belli that with every desire to meet so hard a case, they have no power to do so, and to decline to receive any future payments unless they are expressly stated to be made on behalf of Mr. Bruce Lane, after notice that they can be of no benefit to Mrs. Lane."

The resolution was then put to the vote and carried nem con.

Proposed by Mr. Wilkins and seconded by Mr. Armstrong—

"That Mr. J. W. Muir be restored to the rights of a subscriber on payment of all arrears of subscription with interest at the rate of eight per centum."

Carried nem con.

Proposed by the Hon'ble J. Quinton and seconded by Mr. Kisch—

"That the accounts for the year 1883-84 be approved."

Proposed by the Hon'ble Mr. Justice McDonell and seconded by Mr. Westland—

That the following gentlemen be elected Managers for the ensuing year :—Mr. H. A. Cockerell, C.S.I., the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Tottenham, Mr. H. L. Harrison, the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Beverley, and Mr. H. J. S. Cotton.

CHAPTER II.

CLASSES OF TENANTS.

Classes of tenants.

4. There shall be, for the purposes of this Act, the following classes of tenants, (namely) :—

(1) tenure-holders, including under-tenure-holders,

(2) raiyats, and

(3) under-raiyats, that is to say, tenants holding whether immediately or mediately under raiyats;

and the following classes of raiyats, (namely) :—

(a) raiyats holding at fixed rates, which expression means raiyats holding either at a rent fixed in perpetuity or at a rate of rent fixed in perpetuity,

(b) occupancy-raiyats, that is to say, raiyats having a right of occupancy in the land held by them, and

(c) non-occupancy-raiyats, that is to say, raiyats not having such a right of occupancy.

Meaning of "tenure-holder" and "raiyat".

5. (1) "Tenure-holder" means primarily a person who has acquired from a proprietor or from another tenure-holder a right to hold land for the purpose of collecting rents or bringing it under cultivation by establishing tenants on it, and includes also the successors in interest of persons who have acquired such a right.

(2) "Raiyat" means primarily a person who has acquired a right to hold land for the purpose of cultivating it by himself, or by members of his family, or by hired servants, or with the aid of partners, and includes also the successors in interest of persons who have acquired such a right.

Explanation.—Where a tenant of land has the right to bring it under cultivation, he shall be deemed to have acquired a right to hold it for the purpose of cultivation notwithstanding that he uses it for the purpose of gathering the produce of it or of grazing cattle on it.

(3) A person shall not be deemed to be a raiyat unless he holds land either immediately under a proprietor or immediately under a tenure-holder.

(4) In determining whether a tenant is a tenure-holder or a raiyat, the Court shall have regard to—

(a) local custom; and

(b) the purpose for which the right of tenancy was originally acquired.

(5) Where the area held by a tenant exceeds one hundred standard bighás, the tenant shall be presumed to be a tenure-holder until the contrary is shewn.

CHAPTER III.

TENURE-HOLDERS.

Enhancement of rent.

Tenure held since Permanent Settlement liable to enhancement only in certain cases.

6. Where a tenure has been held from the time of the Permanent Settlement, its rent shall not be liable to enhancement except on proof— Enhancement of rent.

(a) that the landlord under whom it is held is entitled to enhance the rent thereof either by local custom or by the conditions under which the tenure is held, or

(b) that the tenure-holder, by receiving reductions of his rent, otherwise than on account of a diminution of the area of the tenure, has subjected himself to the payment of the increase demanded, and that the lands are capable of affording it.

Limits of enhancement of rent of tenures.

7. (1) Where the rent of a tenure-holder is liable to enhancement, it may, subject to any contract between the parties, be enhanced up to the limit of the customary rate payable by persons holding similar tenures in the vicinity.

(2) Where no such customary rate exists, it may, subject as aforesaid, be enhanced up to such limit as the Court thinks fair and equitable.

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter III.—Tenure-holders.—Secs. 8-15.)

Enhancement of rent.

(3) In determining what is fair and equitable, the Court shall not leave to the tenure-holder as profit less than ten per centum of the balance which remains after deducting from the gross rents payable to him the expenses of collecting them, and shall have regard to—

(a) the circumstances under which the tenure was created, for instance, whether the land comprised in the tenure, or a great portion of it, was first brought under cultivation by the agency or at the expense of the tenure-holder or his predecessors in interest, whether any fine or premium was paid on the creation of the tenure, and whether the tenure was originally created at a specially low rent for the purpose of reclamation; and

(b) the improvements, if any, made by the tenure-holder or his predecessors in interest.

(4) If the tenure-holder himself occupies any portion of the land included in the area of his tenure, or has made a grant of any portion of the land either rent-free or at a beneficial rent, a fair and equitable rent shall be calculated for that portion and included in the gross rents aforesaid.

Power to order gradual enhancement.

8. The Court may, if it thinks that an immediate increase of rent would produce hardship, direct that the enhancement shall be gradual; that is to say, that the rent shall increase yearly by degrees, for any number of years not exceeding five, until the limit of the enhancement allowed has been reached.

Rent once enhanced may not be altered for fifteen years.

9. When the rent of a tenure-holder has been enhanced by the Court or by contract, it shall not be again enhanced by the Court during the fifteen years next following the date on which it has been so enhanced.

Other incidents of tenures.

Other incidents of tenures.

Permanent tenure-holder not liable to ejectment.

10. A holder of a permanent tenure shall not be ejected by his landlord except on the ground that he has broken a condition on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between him and his landlord, liable to be ejected:

Provided that where the contract is made after the commencement of this Act, the condition is consistent with the provisions of this Act.

Transfer and transmission of permanent tenure.

11. Every permanent tenure shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be capable of being transferred and bequeathed in the same manner and to the same extent as other immoveable property.

Other incidents of tenures.

Voluntary transfer of permanent tenure.

12. (1) A transfer of a permanent tenure by sale, gift or mortgage (other than a transfer by sale in execution of a decree or by summary sale under any law relating to patní or other tenures) can be made only by a registered instrument.

(2) A registering officer shall not register any instrument purporting or operating to transfer by sale, gift or mortgage a permanent tenure unless there is paid to him, in addition to any fees payable under the Act for the time being in force for the registration of documents, a process-fee of the prescribed amount and a fee (hereinafter called "the landlord's fee") of the following amount, namely :—

(a) when rent is payable in respect of the tenure, a fee of two per centum on the annual rent of the tenure: provided that no such fee shall be less than one rupee or more than one hundred rupees; and

(b) when rent is not payable in respect of the tenure, a fee of two rupees.

(3) When the registration of any such instrument is complete, the registering officer shall send to the Collector the landlord's fee and a notice of the transfer and registration in the prescribed form, and the Collector shall cause the fee to be paid to, and the notice to be served on, the landlord in the prescribed manner.

Transfer of permanent tenure by sale in execution of decree other than decree for rent.

13. (1) When a permanent tenure is sold in execution of a decree other than a decree for arrears of rent due in respect thereof, the Court shall, before confirming the sale under section 312 of the Code of Civil Procedure, require the purchaser to pay into Court the landlord's fee prescribed by the last foregoing section and such further fee for service of notice of the sale on the landlord as may be prescribed. XIV of 1882.

(2) When the sale has been confirmed, the Court shall send to the Collector the landlord's fee and a notice of the sale in the prescribed form, and the Collector shall cause the fee to be paid to, and the notice to be served on, the landlord in the prescribed manner.

Transfer of permanent tenure by sale in execution of decree for rent.

14. When a permanent tenure is transferred by sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent due in respect thereof, the Court shall send to the Collector a notice of the sale in the prescribed form.

Bar to recovery of rent pending notice of succession.

16. A person becoming entitled to a permanent tenure by succession shall not be entitled to recover by suit, distraint or other proceeding any rent payable to him as the holder of the tenure, until the Collector has received the notice and fees referred to in the last foregoing section.

Transfer of, and succession to, share in permanent tenure.

17. Subject to the provisions of section 88, the foregoing sections shall apply to the transfer of, or succession to, a share in a permanent tenure.

CHAPTER IV.

RAIYATS HOLDING AT FIXED RATES.

Incidents of holding at fixed rates.

18. A raiyat holding at a rent, or rate of rent, fixed in perpetuity—

(a) shall be subject to the same provisions with respect to the transfer of, and succession to, his holding as the holder of a permanent tenure, and

(b) shall not be ejected by his landlord except on the ground that he has broken a condition consistent with this Act, and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between him and his landlord, liable to be ejected.

CHAPTER V.

OCCUPANCY-RAIYATS.

General.

General.

Continuance of existing occupancy-rights.

19. Every raiyat who immediately before the commencement of this Act has, by the operation of any enactment, by custom or otherwise, a right of occupancy in any land shall, when this Act comes into force, have a right of occupancy in that land.

Definition of "settled raiyat".

20. (1) Every person who for a period of twelve years, whether wholly or partly before or after the commencement of this Act, has continuously held as a raiyat land situate in any village, whether under a lease or otherwise, shall be deemed to have become, on the expiration of that period, a settled raiyat of that village.

(2) A person shall be deemed for the purposes of this section to have continuously held land in a village notwithstanding that the particular land held by him has been different at different times. General.

(3) A person shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to have held as a raiyat any land held as a raiyat by a person whose heir he is.

(4) Land held by two or more co-sharers as a raiyatí holding shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to have been held as a raiyat by each such co-sharer.

(5) A person shall continue to be a settled raiyat of a village as long as he holds any land as a raiyat in that village and for one year thereafter.

(6) If a raiyat recovers possession of land under section 87, he shall be deemed to have continued to be a settled raiyat notwithstanding his having been out of possession more than a year.

(7) If, in any proceeding under this Act, it is proved or admitted that a person holds any land as a raiyat, it shall, as between him and the landlord under whom he holds the land, be presumed for the purposes of this section, until the contrary is proved or admitted, that he has for twelve years continuously held that land or some part of it as a raiyat.

Settled raiyats to have occupancy-rights.

21. (1) Every person who is a settled raiyat of a village within the meaning of the last foregoing section shall have a right of occupancy in all land for the time being held by him as a raiyat in that village.

(2) Every person who, being a settled raiyat of a village within the meaning of the last foregoing section, held land as a raiyat in that village at any time between the second day of March, 1883, and the commencement of this Act, shall be deemed to have acquired a right of occupancy in that land under the law then in force; but nothing in this sub-section shall affect any decree or order passed by a Court before the commencement of this Act.

Effect of acquisition of occupancy-right by landlord.

22. (1) When the immediate landlord of an occupancy-holding is a proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, and the entire interests of the landlord and the raiyat in the holding become united in the same person by transfer, succession or otherwise, the occupancy-right shall cease to exist; but nothing in this sub-section shall prejudicially affect the rights of any third person.

(2) If the occupancy-right in land is transferred to a person jointly interested in the land as proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, it shall cease to exist; but nothing in this sub-section shall prejudicially affect the rights of any third person.

(3) A person holding land as an ijárádár or farmer of rents shall not, while so holding, acquire a right of occupancy in any land comprised in his ijárá or farm.

Bengal Tenancy Act.

General.

Explanation.—A person having a right of occupancy in land does not lose it by subsequently becoming jointly interested in the land as proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, or by subsequently holding the land in ijárá or farm.

Incidents of occupancy-right.

Incidents of occupancy-right.

Rights of raiyat in respect of use of land.

23. When a raiyat has a right of occupancy in respect of any land, he may use the land in any manner which does not materially impair the value of the land or render it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy; but shall not be entitled to cut down trees in contravention of any local custom.

Obligation of raiyat to pay rent.

24. An occupancy-raiyat shall pay rent for his holding at fair and equitable rates.

Protection from eviction except on specified grounds.

25. An occupancy-raiyat shall not be ejected by his landlord from his holding, except in execution of a decree for ejectment passed on the ground—

(a) that he has used the land comprised in his holding in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or

(b) that he has broken a condition consistent with the provisions of this Act, and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between himself and his landlord, liable to be ejected.

Devolution of occupancy-right on death.

26. If a raiyat dies intestate in respect of a right of occupancy, it shall, subject to any custom to the contrary, descend in the same manner as other immoveable property: provided that, in any case in which under the law of inheritance to which the raiyat is subject his other property goes to the Crown, his right of occupancy shall be extinguished.

Enhancement of rent.

Enhancement of rent.

Presumption as to fair and equitable rent.

27. The rent for the time being payable by an occupancy-raiyat shall be presumed to be fair and equitable until the contrary is proved.

Restriction on enhancement of money-rents.

28. Where an occupancy-raiyat pays his rent in money, his rent shall not be enhanced except as provided by this Act.

Enhancement of rent by contract.

29. The money-rent of an occupancy-raiyat may be enhanced by contract, subject to the following conditions:—

(a) the contract must be in writing and registered;

(b) the rent must not be enhanced so as to exceed by more than two annas in the rupee the rent previously payable by the raiyat;

Provided as follows—

(i) Nothing in clause (a) shall prevent a landlord from recovering rent at the rate at which it has been actually paid for a continuous period of not less than three years immediately preceding the period for which the rent is claimed.

(ii) Nothing in clause (b) shall apply to a contract by which a raiyat binds himself to pay an enhanced rent in consideration of an improvement which has been or is to be effected in respect of the holding by, or at the expense of, his landlord, and to the benefit of which the raiyat is not otherwise entitled; but an enhanced rent fixed by such a contract shall be payable only when the improvement has been effected, and, except when the raiyat is chargeable with default in respect of the improvement, only so long as the improvement exists and substantially produces its estimated effect in respect of the holding.

(iii) When a raiyat has held his land at a specially low rate of rent in consideration of cultivating a particular crop for the convenience of the landlord, nothing in clause (b) shall prevent the raiyat from agreeing, in consideration of his being released from the obligation of cultivating that crop, to pay such rent as he may deem fair and equitable.

Enhancement of rent by suit.

30. The landlord of a holding held at a money-rent by an occupancy-raiyat may, subject to the provisions of this Act, institute a suit to enhance the rent on one or more of the following grounds, (namely):—

(a) that the rate of rent paid by the raiyat is below the prevailing rate paid by occupancy-raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the same village, and that there is no sufficient reason for his holding at so low a rate;

(b) that there has been a rise in the average local prices of staple food-crops during the currency of the present rent;

(c) that the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by an improvement effected by, or at the expense of, the landlord during the currency of the present rent;

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter V.—Occupancy-raiyats.—Secs. 31-36.)

Enhancement of rent.

(d) that the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by fluvial action.

Explanation.—"Fluvial action" includes a change in the course of a river rendering irrigation from the river practicable when it was not previously practicable.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of prevailing rate.

31. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground that the rate of rent paid is below the prevailing rate—

(a) in determining what is the prevailing rate the Court shall have regard to the rates generally paid during a period of not less than three years before the institution of the suit, and shall not decree an enhancement unless there is a substantial difference between the rate paid by the raiyat and the prevailing rate found by the Court;

(b) if in the opinion of the Court the prevailing rate of rent cannot be satisfactorily ascertained without a local inquiry, the Court may direct that a local inquiry be held under Chapter XXV of the Code of Civil Procedure by such Revenue-officer as the Local Government may authorize in that behalf by rules made under section 392 of the said Code;

(c) in determining under this section the rate of rent payable by a raiyat his caste shall not be taken into consideration, unless it is proved that by local custom caste is taken into account in determining the rate; and whenever it is found that by local custom any description of raiyats hold land at favourable rates of rent, the rate shall be determined in accordance with that custom;

(d) in ascertaining the prevailing rate of rent the amount of any enhancement authorized on account of a landlord's improvement shall not be taken into consideration.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of rise in prices.

32. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground of a rise in prices—

(a) the Court shall compare the average prices during the decennial period immediately preceding the institution of the suit with the average prices during such other decennial period as it may appear equitable and practicable to take for comparison;

Enhancement of rent.

(c) if in the opinion of the Court it is not practicable to take the decennial periods prescribed in clause (a), the Court may, in its discretion, substitute any shorter periods therefor.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of landlord's improvement.

33. (1) Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground of a landlord's improvement—

(a) the Court shall not grant an enhancement unless the improvement has been registered in accordance with this Act;

(b) in determining the amount of enhancement the Court shall have regard to—

(i) the increase in the productive powers of the land caused or likely to be caused by the improvement,

(ii) the cost of the improvement,

(iii) the cost of the cultivation required for utilizing the improvement, and

(iv) the existing rent and the ability of the land to bear a higher rent.

(2) A decree under this section shall, on the application of the tenant or his successor in interest, be subject to re-consideration in the event of the improvement not producing or ceasing to produce the estimated effect.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of increase in productive powers due to fluvial action.

34. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground of an increase in productive powers due to fluvial action—

(a) the Court shall not take into account any increase which is merely temporary or casual;

(b) the Court may enhance the rent to such an amount as it may deem fair and equitable, but not so as to give the landlord more than one-half of the value of the net increase in the produce of the land.

Enhancement by suit to be fair and equitable.

35. Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections, the Court shall not in any case decree any enhancement which is under the circumstances of the case unfair or inequitable.

Power to order progressive enhancement.

36. If the Court passing a decree for enhancement considers that the immediate enforcement of the decree in its full extent will be attended with hardship to the raiyat, it may direct that the enhancement shall be gradual; that is to say, that the rent shall increase yearly by degrees for any number of years not exceeding five until the limit of the enhancement decreed has been reached.

Limitation of right to bring successive enhancement suits.

37. (1) A suit instituted for the enhancement of the rent of a holding on the ground that the rate of rent paid is below the prevailing rate, or on the ground of a rise in prices, shall not be entertained if within the fifteen years next preceding its institution the rent of the holding has been enhanced by a contract made after the second day of March, 1883, or if within the said period of fifteen years the rent has been commuted under section 40, or a decree has been passed under this Act or any enactment repealed by this Act enhancing the rent on either of the grounds aforesaid or on any ground corresponding thereto or dismissing the suit on the merits.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the provisions of section 373 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Reduction of rent.

Reduction of rent.

Reduction of rent.

38. (1) An occupancy-raiyat holding at a money-rent may institute a suit for the reduction of his rent on the following grounds, and, except as hereinafter provided in the case of a diminution of the area of the holding, not otherwise, (namely):—

(a) on the ground that the soil of the holding has without the fault of the raiyat become permanently deteriorated by a deposit of sand or other specific cause, sudden or gradual, or

(b) on the ground that there has been a fall, not due to a temporary cause, in the average local prices of staple food-crops during the currency of the present rent.

(2) In any suit instituted under this section, the Court may direct such reduction of the rent as it thinks fair and equitable.

Price-lists.

Price lists.

Price-lists of staple food-crops.

39. (1) The Collector of every district shall prepare, monthly, or at shorter intervals, periodical lists of the market-prices of staple food-crops grown in such local areas as the Local Government may from time to time direct, and shall submit them to the Board of Revenue for approval or revision.

(2) The Collector may, if so directed by the Local Government, prepare for any local area like price-lists relating to such past times as the Local Government thinks fit, and shall submit the lists so prepared to the Board of Revenue for approval or revision.

Price-lists.

(3) The Collector shall, one month before submitting a price-list to the Board of Revenue under this section, publish it in the prescribed manner within the local area to which it relates, and if any landlord or tenant of land within the local area, within the said period of one month, presents to him in writing any objection to the list, he shall submit the same to the Board of Revenue with the list.

(4) The price-lists shall, when approved or revised by the Board of Revenue, be published in the official Gazette; and any manifest error in any such list discovered after its publication may be corrected by the Collector with the sanction of the Board of Revenue.

(5) The Local Government shall cause to be compiled from the periodical lists prepared under this section lists of the average prices prevailing throughout each year, and shall cause them to be published annually in the official Gazette.

(6) In any proceedings under this chapter for an enhancement or reduction of rent on the ground of a rise or fall in prices, the Court shall refer to the lists published under this section, and shall presume that the prices shown in the lists prepared for any year subsequent to the passing of this Act are correct, unless and until it is proved that they are incorrect.

(7) The Local Government, subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, shall make rules for determining what are to be deemed staple food-crops in any local area and for the guidance of officers preparing price-lists under this section.

Commutation.

Commutation

Commutation of rent payable in kind.

40. (1) Where an occupancy-raiyat pays for a holding rent in kind, or on the estimated value of a portion of the crop, or at rates varying with the crop, or partly in one of those ways and partly in another, either the raiyat or his landlord may apply to have the rent commuted to a money-rent.

(2) The application may be made to the Collector or Sub-divisional Officer, or to an officer making a settlement of rents under Chapter X, or to any other officer specially authorized in this behalf by the Local Government.

(3) On the receipt of the application the officer may determine the sum to be paid as money-rent, and may order that the raiyat shall, in lieu of paying his rent in kind, or otherwise as aforesaid, pay the sum so determined.

(4) In making the determination the officer shall have regard to—

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter VI.—Non-occupancy-raiyats.—Secs. 41—46.)

Commutation.

(b) the average value of the rent actually received by the landlord during the preceding ten years or during any shorter period for which evidence may be available; and

(c) the charges incurred by the landlord in respect of irrigation under the system of rent in kind, and the arrangements made on commutation for continuing those charges.

(5) The order shall be in writing, shall state the grounds on which it is made, and the time from which it is to take effect, and shall be subject to appeal in like manner as if it were an order made in an ordinary revenue proceeding.

(6) If the application is opposed, the officer shall consider whether under all the circumstances of the case it is reasonable to grant it, and shall grant or refuse it accordingly. If he refuses it, he shall record in writing the reasons for the refusal.

CHAPTER VI.

NON-OCCUPANCY-RAIYATS.

41. This chapter shall apply to raiyats not having a right of occupancy, who are in this Act referred to as non-occupancy-raiyats.

Application of chapter.

42. When a non-occupancy-raiyat is admitted to the occupation of land, he shall become liable to pay such rent as may be agreed on between himself and his landlord at the time of his admission.

43. The rent of a non-occupancy-raiyat shall not be enhanced except by registered agreement or by agreement under section 46:

Conditions of enhancement of rent.

Provided that nothing in this section shall prevent a landlord from recovering rent at the rate at which it has been actually paid for a continuous period of not less than three years immediately preceding the period for which the rent is claimed.

44. A non-occupancy-raiyat shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be liable to ejectment on one or more of the following grounds, and not otherwise (namely):—

Grounds on which non-occupancy-raiyat may be ejected.

(a) on the ground that he has failed to pay an arrear of rent;

(b) on the ground that he has used the land in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or that he has broken a condition consistent with this Act and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between himself and his landlord, liable to be ejected;

(c) where he has been admitted to occupation of the land under a registered lease, on the ground that the term of the lease has expired;

(d) on the ground that he has refused to agree to pay a fair and equitable rent determined under section 46, or that the term for which he is entitled to hold at such a rent has expired.

45. A suit for ejectment on the ground of the expiration of the term of a lease shall not be instituted against a non-occupancy-raiyat unless notice to quit has been served on the raiyat not less than six months before the expiration of the term, and shall not be instituted after six months from the expiration of the term.

Conditions of ejectment on ground of expiration of lease.

46. (1) A suit for ejectment on the ground of refusal to agree to an enhancement of rent shall not be instituted against a non-occupancy-raiyat unless the landlord has tendered to the raiyat an agreement to pay the enhanced rent, and the raiyat has within three months before the institution of the suit refused to execute the agreement.

Conditions of ejectment on ground of refusal to agree to enhancement.

(2) A landlord desiring to tender an agreement to a raiyat under this section may file it in the office of such Court or officer as the Local Government appoints in this behalf for service on the raiyat. The Court or officer shall forthwith cause it to be served on the raiyat in the prescribed manner, and when it has been so served it shall for the purposes of this section be deemed to have been tendered.

(3) If a raiyat on whom an agreement has been served under sub-section (2) executes it, and within one month from the date of service files it in the office from which it issued, it shall take effect from the commencement of the agricultural year next following.

(4) When an agreement has been executed and filed by a raiyat under sub-section (3), the Court or officer in whose office it is so filed shall forthwith cause a notice of its being so executed and filed to be served on the landlord in the prescribed manner.

(5) If the raiyat does not execute the agreement and file it under sub-section (3), he shall be deemed for the purposes of this section to have refused to execute it.

(6) If a raiyat refuses to execute an agreement tendered to him under this section, and the landlord thereupon institutes a suit to eject him, the Court shall determine what rent is fair and equitable for the holding.

(7) If the raiyat agrees to pay the rent so determined, he shall be entitled to remain in occupation of his holding at that rent for a term of five years from the date of the agreement, but on the expiration of that term shall be liable to ejectment under the conditions mentioned in the last foregoing section, unless he has acquired a right of occupancy.

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter VII.—Under-raiyats.—Chapter VIII.—General Provisions as to Rent.—Secs. 47—52.)

(8) If the raiyat does not agree to pay the rent so determined, the Court shall pass a decree for ejectment.

(9) In determining what rent is fair and equitable, the Court shall have regard to the rents generally paid by raiyats for land of a similar description and with like advantages in the same village.

(10) A decree for ejectment passed under this section shall take effect from the end of the agricultural year in which it is passed.

47. Where a raiyat has been in occupation of land and a lease is executed with a view to a continuance of his occupation, he is not to be deemed to be admitted to occupation by that lease for the purposes of this chapter, notwithstanding that the lease may purport to admit him to occupation.

Explanation of "admitted to occupation."

Provided that if it is required by or under any enactment that in any local area tenancies, or any classes of tenancies, at fixed rents or rates of rent shall be registered as such on, or before, a date specified by or under the enactment, the foregoing presumption shall not after that date apply to any tenancy or, as the case may be, to any tenancy of that class in that local area unless the tenancy has been so registered.

(3) The operation of this section, so far as it relates to land held by a raiyat, shall not be affected by the fact of the land having been separated from other land which formed with it a single holding, or amalgamated with other land into one holding.

(4) Nothing in this section shall apply to a tenure held for a term of years or determinable at the will of the landlord.

51. If a question arises as to the amount of a tenant's rent or the conditions under which he holds in any agricultural year, he shall be presumed, until the contrary is shown, to hold at the same rent and under the same conditions as in the last preceding agricultural year.

(b) be entitled to a reduction of rent in respect of any deficiency proved by measurement to exist in the area of his tenure or holding as compared with the area for which rent has been previously paid by him, unless it is proved that the deficiency is due to the loss of land which was added to the area of the tenure or holding by alluvion or otherwise, and that an addition has not been made to the rent in respect of the addition to the area.

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter VIII.—General Provisions as to Rent.—Secs. 53—57.)

Alteration of rent on alteration of area.

(2) In determining the area for which rent has been previously paid, the Court shall, if so required by any party to the suit, have regard to—

(b) whether the tenant has been allowed to hold additional land in consideration of an addition to his total rent or otherwise with the knowledge and consent of the landlord;

(c) the length of time during which the tenancy has lasted without dispute as to rent or area; and

(d) the length of the measure used or in local use at the time of the origin of the tenancy as compared with that used or in local use at the time of the institution of the suit.

(3) In determining the amount to be added to the rent, the Court shall have regard to the rates payable by tenants of the same class for lands of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity, and, in the case of a tenure-holder, to the profits to which he is entitled in respect of the rent of his tenure, and shall not in any case fix any rent which under the circumstances of the case is unfair or inequitable.

(4) The amount abated from the rent shall bear the same proportion to the rent previously payable as the diminution of the total yearly value of the tenure or holding bears to the previous total yearly value thereof, or, in default of satisfactory proof of the yearly value of the land lost, shall bear to the rent previously payable the same proportion as the diminution of area bears to the previous area of the tenure or holding.

Payment of rent.

(2) The payment shall, except in cases where a tenant is allowed under this Act to deposit his rent, be made at the landlord's village-office, or at such other convenient place as may be appointed in that behalf by the landlord:

Provided that the Local Government may from time to time make rules, either generally or for any specified local area, authorizing a tenant to pay his rent by postal money-order.

(3) Any instalment or part of an instalment of rent not duly paid at or before the time when it falls due shall be deemed an arrear.

Payment of rent.

Provided that the Local Government may, from time to time, prescribe or sanction a modified form either generally or for any particular local area or class of cases.

(4) If a receipt does not contain substantially the particulars required by this section, it shall be presumed, until the contrary is shown, to be an acquittance in full of all demands for rent up to the date on which the receipt was given.

57. (1) Where a landlord admits that all rent payable by a tenant to the end of the agricultural year has been paid, the tenant shall be entitled to receive from the landlord, free of charge, within three months after the end of the year, a receipt in full discharge of all rent falling due to the end of the year, signed by the landlord.

Receipt granted by Court for rent deposited to be a valid acquittance.

(2) A receipt given under this section shall operate as an acquittance for the amount of the rent payable by the tenant and deposited as aforesaid, in the same manner and to the same extent as if that amount of rent had been received—

(4) No suit or other proceeding shall be instituted against the Secretary of State for India in Council, or against any officer of the Government, in respect of anything done by a Court receiving a deposit under the foregoing sections; but nothing in this section shall prevent any person entitled to receive the amount of any such deposit from recovering the same from a person to whom it has been paid under this section.

(2) In a suit for ejectment for an arrear of rent a decree passed in favour of the plaintiff shall specify the amount of the arrear and of the interest (if any) due thereon, and the decree shall not be executed if that amount and the costs of the suit are paid into Court within fifteen days from the date of the decree, or, when the Court is closed on the fifteenth day, on the day upon which the Court re-opens.

(3) The Court may for special reasons extend the period of fifteen days mentioned in this section.

the Collector may, on the application of either party, and on his depositing such sum on account of expenses as the Collector may require, make an order appointing such officer as he thinks fit to appraise or divide the produce.

(2) The Collector may, without such an application, make the like order in any case where in the opinion of the District or Sub-divisional Magistrate the making of the order would be likely to prevent a breach of the peace.

(3) Where a Collector makes an order under this section, he may, by order, prohibit the removal of the produce until the appraisement or division has been effected.

70. (1) When a Collector appoints an officer under the last foregoing section, the Collector may, in his discretion, direct the officer to associate with himself any other persons as assessors, and may give him instructions regarding the number, qualifications and mode of selection of those assessors (if any), and the procedure to be followed in making the appraisement or division; and the officer shall conform to the instructions so given.

(2) The officer shall, before making an appraisement or division, give notice to the landlord and tenant of the time and place at which the appraisement or division will be made; but if either the landlord or the tenant fails to attend either personally or by agent, he may proceed ex parte.

(3) When the officer has made the appraisement or division, he shall submit a report of his proceedings to the Collector.

(4) The Collector shall consider the report, and, after giving the parties an opportunity of being heard and making such enquiry (if any) as he may think necessary, shall pass such order thereon as he thinks just.

(5) The Collector may, if he thinks fit, refer any question in dispute between the parties for the decision of a Civil Court, but, subject as aforesaid, his order shall be final and shall, on application to a Civil Court by the landlord or the tenant, be enforceable as a decree.

(3) In either case the tenant shall be entitled to cut and harvest the produce in due course of husbandry without any interference on the part of the landlord.

(4) If the tenant removes any portion of the produce at such a time or in such a manner as to prevent the due appraisement or division thereof at the proper time, the produce shall be deemed to have been as full as the fullest crop of the same description appraised in the neighbourhood on similar land for that harvest.

Tenant not liable to transferee of landlord's interest for rent paid to former landlord, without notice of the transfer.

72. (1) A tenant shall not, when his landlord's interest is transferred, be liable to the transferee for rent which became due after the transfer and was paid to the landlord whose interest was so transferred, unless the transferee has before the payment given notice of the transfer to the tenant. Liability for rent on change of landlord or after transfer of tenure or holding.

Liability for rent after transfer of occupancy-holding.

73. When an occupancy-raiyat transfers his holding without the consent of the landlord, the transferor and transferee shall be jointly and severally liable to the landlord for arrears of rent accruing due after the transfer, unless and until notice of the transfer is given to the landlord in the prescribed manner.

Definition of "improvement."

(2) Until the contrary is shown, the following shall be presumed to be improvements within the meaning of this section:—

77. (1) Where a raiyat holds at fixed rates or has an occupancy-right in his holding, neither the raiyat nor his landlord shall, as such, be entitled to prevent the other from making an improvement in respect of the holding, except on the ground that he is willing to make it himself.

Right to make improvements in case of holding at fixed rates and occupancy-holding.

(2) If both the raiyat and his landlord wish to make the same improvement, the raiyat shall have the prior right to make it, unless it affects another holding or other holdings under the same landlord.

Improvements.

78. If a question arises between the raiyat and his landlord—

Collector to decide question as to right to make improvement, &c.

(a) as to the right to make an improvement, or the Collector may, on the application of either party, decide the question, and his decision shall be final.

79. (1) A non-occupancy-raiyat shall be entitled to construct, maintain and repair a well for the irrigation of his holding, with all works incidental thereto, and to erect a suitable dwelling-house for himself and his family, with all necessary out-offices; but shall not, except as aforesaid and as next hereinafter provided, be entitled to make any other improvement in respect of his holding without his landlord's permission.

Right to make improvements in case of non-occupancy-holding.

(2) A non-occupancy-raiyat who would, but for the want of his landlord's permission, be entitled to make an improvement in respect of his holding, may, if he desires that the improvement be made, deliver, or cause to be delivered, to his landlord a request in writing calling upon him to make the improvement within a reasonable time; and, if the landlord is unable or neglects to comply with that request, may make the improvement himself.

80. (1) A landlord may, by application to such Revenue-officer as the Local Government may appoint, register any improvement which he has lawfully made or which has been lawfully made at his expense or which he has assisted a tenant in making.

81. (1) If any landlord or tenant of a holding desires that evidence relating to any improvement made in respect thereof be recorded, he may apply to a Revenue-officer, who shall thereupon, at a time and place of which notice shall be given to the parties, record the evidence, unless he considers that there are no reasonable grounds for making the application, or it is made to appear that the subject-matter thereof is under inquiry in a Civil Court.

Compensation for raiyats' improvements.

(2) Whenever a Court makes a decree or order for the ejectment of a raiyat, it shall determine the amount of compensation (if any) due under this section to the raiyat for improvements, and shall make the decree or order of ejectment conditional on the payment of that amount to the raiyat.

(3) No compensation under this section for an improvement shall be claimable where the raiyat has made the improvement in pursuance of a contract or under a lease binding him, in consideration of some substantial advantage to be obtained by him, to make the improvement without compensation, and he has obtained that advantage.

(4) Improvements made by a raiyat between the 2nd day of March, 1883, and the commencement of this Act shall be deemed to have been made in accordance with this Act.

(5) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, make rules requiring the Court to associate with itself, for the purpose of estimating the compensation to be awarded under this section for an improvement, such number of assessors as the Local Government thinks fit, and determining the qualifications of those assessors and the mode of selecting them.

83. (1) In estimating the compensation to be awarded under the last foregoing section for an improvement, regard shall be had—

Principle on which compensation is to be estimated.

(e) in the case of a reclamation or of the conversion of unirrigated into irrigated land, to the length of time during which the raiyat has had the benefit of the improvement at an unenhanced rent.

(2) When the amount of the compensation has been assessed, the Court may, if the landlord and raiyat agree, direct that, instead of being paid wholly in money, it shall be made wholly or partly in some other way.

Acquisition of land for building and other purposes.

84. A Civil Court may, on the application of the landlord of a holding, and on being satisfied that he is desirous of acquiring the holding or part thereof for some reasonable and sufficient purpose having relation to the good of the holding or of the estate in which it is comprised, including the use of the ground as building ground, or for any religious, educational or charitable purpose,

(3) When a raiyat has surrendered his holding, the Court shall in the following cases for the purposes of sub-section (2) presume, until the contrary is shown, that such notice was so given, namely: —

(a) if the raiyat takes a new holding in the same village from the same landlord during the agricultural year next following the surrender;

(b) if the raiyat ceases, at least three months before the end of the agricultural year at the end of which the surrender is made, to reside in the village in which the surrendered holding is situate.

(4) The raiyat may, if he thinks fit, cause the notice to be served through the Civil Court within the jurisdiction of which the holding or any portion of it is situate.

(5) When a raiyat has surrendered his holding, the landlord may enter on the holding and either let it to another tenant or take it into cultivation himself.

(6) When a holding is subject to an incumbrance secured by a registered instrument, the surrender of the holding shall not be valid unless it is made with the consent of the landlord and the incumbrancer.

(7) Save as provided in the last foregoing sub-section, nothing in this section shall affect any arrangement by which a raiyat and his landlord may arrange for a surrender of the whole or a part of the holding.

Abandonment.

87. (1) If a raiyat voluntarily abandons his residence without notice to his landlord and without arranging for payment of his rent as it falls due, and ceases to cultivate his holding either by himself or by some other person, the landlord may, at any time after the expiration of the agricultural year in which the raiyat so abandons and ceases to cultivate, enter on the holding and let it to another tenant or take it into cultivation himself.

(2) Before a landlord enters under this section, he shall file a notice in the prescribed form in the Collector's office stating that he has treated the holding as abandoned and is about to enter on it accordingly; and the Collector shall cause the notice to be published in such manner as the Local Government, by rule, directs.

(3) When a landlord enters under this section, the raiyat shall be entitled to institute a suit for recovery of possession of the land at any time not later than the expiration of two years, or, in the case of a non-occupancy-raiyat, six months, from the date of the publication of the notice; and thereupon the Court may, on being satisfied that the raiyat did not voluntarily abandon his holding, order recovery of possession on such terms, if any, with respect to compensation to persons injured and payment of arrears of rent as to the Court may seem just.

Surrender and abandonment.

(4) Where the whole or part of a holding has been sub-let by a registered instrument, the landlord shall, before entering under this section on the holding, offer the whole holding to the sub-lessee for the remainder of the term of the sub-lease at the rent paid by the raiyat who has ceased to cultivate the holding, and on condition of the sub-lessee paying up all arrears due from that raiyat. If the sub-lessee refuses or neglects within a reasonable time to accept the offer, the landlord may avoid the sub-lease and may enter on the holding and let it to another tenant or cultivate it himself as provided in sub-sections (1) and (2).

(2) A landlord shall not, without the consent of the tenant, or the written permission of the Collector, be entitled to measure land more than once in ten years, except in the following cases (namely):—

(a) where the area of the tenure or holding is liable, by reason of alluvion or diluvion, to vary from year to year, and the rent payable depends on the area;

(b) where the area under cultivation is liable to vary from year to year and the rent payable depends on the area under cultivation;

(c) where the landlord is a purchaser otherwise than by voluntary transfer and not more than two years have elapsed since the date of his entry under the purchase.

91. (1) Where a landlord desires to measure any land which he is entitled to measure under the last foregoing section, the Civil Court may, on the application of the landlord, make an order requiring the tenant to attend and point out the boundaries of the land.

(2) If the tenant refuses or neglects to comply with the order, a map or other record of the boundaries and measurements of the land, prepared under the direction of the landlord at the time when the tenant was directed to attend, shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is shown.

Standard of measurement.

92. (1) Every measurement of land made by order of a Civil Court, or of a Revenue-officer, in any suit or proceeding between a landlord and tenant, shall be made by the acre, unless the Court or Revenue-officer directs that it be made by any other specified standard.

Provided that a co-owner of an estate or tenure shall not be entitled to apply under this section unless he is actually in possession of the interest he claims, and, if he is a co-owner of an estate, unless his name and the extent of his interest are registered under the Land Registration Act, 1876.

(2) The cases in which an order may be made under this section without the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council are the following (namely):—

(a) where the landlord or a large proportion of the landlords or of the tenants applies for such an order and deposits, or gives security for, such amount, for the payment of expenses, as the Local Government directs;

(b) where the preparation of such a record is calculated to settle or avert a serious dispute existing or likely to arise between the tenants and their landlords generally;

(c) where the local area is comprised in an estate or tenure which belongs to or is managed by the Government or the Court of Wards; and

(d) where a settlement of revenue is being made in respect of the local area.

Publication of record.

105. (1) When the Revenue-officer has completed a record made under this chapter, he shall cause a draft thereof to be locally published in the prescribed manner and for the prescribed period, and shall receive and consider any objection which may be made to any entry therein during the period of publication.

(2) After the expiration of this period the Revenue-officer shall finally frame the record, and shall cause it to be locally published in the prescribed manner, and the publication shall be conclusive evidence that the record has been duly made under this chapter.

XIV of 1882.

Provided that, if in a second appeal the High Court alters the decision of the Special Judge in respect of any of the particulars with reference to which the rent of any tenure or holding has been settled, the Court may settle a new rent for the tenure or holding, but in so doing shall be guided by the rents of the other tenures or holdings of the same class comprised in the same record as ascertained or settled under section 104.

Undisputed entries in record to be presumptive evidence.

109. (1) Every record made under this chapter shall distinguish between the disputed and the undisputed entries therein.

(a) power to settle all rents;

(b) power, when settling rents, to reduce rents if in the opinion of the officer the maintenance of existing rents would on any ground, whether specified in this Act or not, be unfair or inequitable.

(2) The powers given under this section may be made exerciseable within a specified area either generally or with reference to specified cases or classes of cases.

(3) When the Local Government takes any action under this section, the settlement-record prepared by the Revenue-officer shall not take effect until it has been finally confirmed by the Governor General in Council.

(Chapter XII.—Distraint.—Sec. 121.)

113. When the rent of a tenure or holding is settled under this chapter, it shall not, except on the ground of a landlord's improvement or of a subsequent alteration in the area of the tenure or holding, be enhanced, in the case of a tenure or an occupancy-holding for fifteen years, and, in the case of a non-occupancy-holding, if the rent is settled in any case under section 112 or on the application of the landlord under section 104, for five years. CHAPTER XI.

116. Nothing in Chapter V shall confer a right of occupancy in, and nothing in Chapter VI shall apply to, a proprietor's private lands known in Bengal as khámár, nij or nij-jot, and in Behar as zirát, nij, sír or kamat, where any such land is held under a lease for a term of years or under a lease from year to year.

Saving as to khámár land.

118. In the case of any land alleged to be a proprietor's private land, on the application of the proprietor or of any tenant of the land, and on his depositing the required amount for expenses, a Revenue-officer may, subject to and in accordance with rules made in this behalf by the Local Government, ascertain and record whether the land is or is not a proprietor's private land.

(2) In determining whether any other land ought to be recorded as a proprietor's private land, the officer shall have regard to local custom, and to the question whether the land was before the second day of March, 1883, specifically let as proprietor's private land, and to any other evidence that may be produced; but shall presume that land is not a proprietor's private land until the contrary is shown.

(3) If any question arises in a Civil Court as to whether land is or is not a proprietor's private land, the Court shall have regard to the rules laid down in this section for the guidance of Revenue-officers.

CHAPTER XII.

DISTRAINT.

121. Where an arrear of rent is due to the landlord of a raiyat or under-raiyat, and has not been due for more than a year, and no security has been accepted therefor by the landlord, the landlord may, in addition to any other remedy to which he is entitled by law, present an application to the Civil Court requesting the Court to recover the arrear by distraining, while in the possession of the cultivator,—

(Chapter XII.—Distraint.—Secs. 122-126.)

Provided that an application shall not be made under this section—

VII (B.C.) of 1876.

(1) by a proprietor or manager as defined under the Land Registration Act, 1876, or a mortgagee of such a proprietor or manager, unless his name and the extent of his interest in the land in respect of which the arrear is due have been registered under the provisions of that Act; or

(2) for the recovery of any sum in excess of the rent payable for the holding in the preceding agricultural year, unless that sum is payable under a written contract or in consequence of a proceeding under this Act or an enactment hereby repealed; or

(3) in respect of the produce of any part of the holding which the tenant has sub-let with the written consent of the landlord.

122. (1) Every application under the last foregoing section shall specify—

(e) the nature and approximate value of the produce to be distrained;

(f) the place where it is to be found, or such other particulars as may suffice for its identification; and

(g) if it is standing or ungathered, the time at which it is likely to be cut or gathered.

(2) The application shall be signed and verified in the manner prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure for the signing and verification of plaints.

XIV of 1882.

123. (1) The applicant shall, at the time of filing an application under the foregoing sections, file in Court such documentary evidence (if any) as he may consider necessary for the purposes of the application.

Procedure on receipt of application.

(2) The Court may, if it thinks fit, examine the applicant, and shall, with as little delay as possible, admit the application or reject it, or permit the applicant to furnish additional evidence in support of it.

(3) Where a Court cannot forthwith admit or reject an application under sub-section (2), it may, if it thinks fit, make an order prohibiting the removal of the produce specified in the application pending the execution of an order for distraining the same or the rejection of the application.

(4) When an order for distraining any produce is made under this section at a considerable time before the produce is likely to be cut or gathered, the Court may suspend the execution of the order for such time as it thinks fit, and may, if it thinks fit, make a further order prohibiting the removal of the produce pending the execution of the order for distraint.

124. If an application is admitted under the last foregoing section, the Court shall depute an officer to distrain the produce specified therein, or such portion of that produce as it thinks fit; and the officer shall proceed to the place where the produce is, and distrain the produce by taking charge of it himself or placing some other person in charge of it in his behalf, and publishing a notification of the distraint in accordance with rules to that effect to be made by the High Court:

Execution of order for distraint.

Provided that produce which from its nature does not admit of being stored shall not be distrained under this section at any time less than twenty days before the time when it would be fit for reaping or gathering.

125. (1) The distraining officer shall, at the time of making the distraint, serve on the defaulter a written demand for the arrear due, and the costs incurred in making the distraint, with an account exhibiting the grounds on which the distraint is made.

Service of demand and account.

(2) Where the distraining officer has reason to believe that a person other than the defaulter is the owner of the property distrained, he shall serve copies of the demand and account on that person likewise.

(3) The demand and account shall, if practicable, be served personally; but if a person on whom they are to be served absconds or conceals himself, or cannot otherwise be found, the officer shall affix copies of the demand and account on a conspicuous part of the outside of the house in which he usually resides.

126. (1) A distraint under this chapter shall not prevent any person from reaping, gathering or storing any produce, or doing any other act necessary for its due preservation.

Right to reap, &c., produce.

(2) If the person entitled to do so fails to do so at the proper time, the distraining officer shall cause any standing crops or ungathered products

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter XII.—Distraint.—Secs. 127—136.)

distrained to be reaped or gathered when ripe, and stored in such granaries or other places as are commonly used for the purpose, or in some other convenient place in the neighbourhood, or shall do whatever else may be necessary for the due preservation of the same.

(3) In either case the distrained property shall remain in the charge of the distraining officer, or of some other person appointed by him in this behalf.

Sale proclamation to be issued unless demand is satisfied.

127. (1) Unless the demand, with all costs of the distraint, be immediately satisfied, the distraining officer shall issue a proclamation specifying the particulars of the property distrained and the demand for which it is distrained, and notifying that he will, at a place and on a day specified, not being less than three or more than seven days after the time of making the distraint, sell the distrained property by public auction:

Provided that when the crops or products distrained from their nature admit of being stored but have not yet been stored, the day of the sale shall be so fixed as to admit of their being made ready for storing before its arrival.

(2) The proclamation shall be stuck up on a conspicuous place in the village in which the land is situate for which the arrears of rent are claimed.

Place of sale.

128. The sale shall be held at the place where the distrained property is, or at the nearest place of public resort if the distraining officer is of opinion that it is likely to sell there to better advantage.

When produce may be sold standing.

129. (1) Crops or products which from their nature admit of being stored shall not be sold before they are reaped or gathered and are ready for storing.

(2) Crops or products which from their nature do not admit of being stored may be sold before they are reaped or gathered, and the purchaser shall be entitled to enter on the land by himself, or by any person appointed by him in this behalf, and do all that is necessary for the purpose of tending and reaping or gathering them.

Manner of sale.

130. The property shall be sold by public auction, in one or more lots as the officer holding the sale may think advisable; and if the demand, with the costs of distraint and sale, is satisfied by the sale of a portion of the property, the distraint shall be immediately withdrawn with respect to the remainder.

Postponement of sale.

131. If, on the property being put up for sale, a fair price (in the estimation of the officer holding the sale) is not offered for it, and if the owner of the property, or a person authorised to act in his behalf, applies to have the sale postponed till the next day, or (if a market is held at the place of sale) the next market-day, the sale shall be postponed until that day, and shall be then completed, whatever price may be offered for the property.

Payment of purchase-money.

132. The price of every lot shall be paid at the time of sale, or as soon thereafter as the officer holding the sale directs, and in default of such payment the property shall be put up again and sold.

Certificate to be given to purchaser.

133. When the purchase-money has been paid in full, the officer holding the sale shall give the purchaser a certificate describing the property purchased by him and the price paid.

Proceeds of sale how to be applied.

134. (1) From the proceeds of every sale of distrained property under this chapter, the officer holding the sale shall pay the costs of the distraint and sale, calculated on a scale of charges prescribed by rules to be made, from time to time, by the Local Government in this behalf.

(2) The remainder shall be applied to the discharge of the arrear for which the distress was made, with interest thereon up to the day of sale; and the surplus (if any) shall be paid to the person whose property has been sold.

Certain persons may not purchase.

135. Officers holding sales of property under this Act, and all persons employed by, or subordinate to, such officers, are prohibited from purchasing, either directly or indirectly, any property sold by such officers.

Procedure where demand is paid before the sale.

136. (1) If at any time after a distraint has been made under this chapter, and before the sale of the distrained property, the defaulter, or the owner of the distrained property where he is not the defaulter, deposits in the Court issuing the order of distraint, or in the hands of the distraining officer, the amount specified in the demand served under section 125, with all costs which may have been incurred after the service of the demand, the Court or officer, as the case may be, shall grant a receipt for the same and the distraint shall forthwith be withdrawn.

(2) When the distraining officer receives the deposit, he shall forthwith pay it into the Court.

(3) A receipt granted under this section to an owner of distrained property not being the defaulter shall afford a full protection to him against any subsequent claim for the arrears of rent on account of which the distraint was made.

(4) After the expiration of one month from the date of a deposit being made under this section,

(Chapter XII.—Distraint.—Secs. 137-142.)

the Court shall pay therefrom to the applicant for distraint the amount due to him, unless in the meanwhile the owner of the property distrained has instituted a suit against the applicant contesting the legality of the distraint and claiming compensation in respect of the same.

(5) A landlord shall not be deemed to have consented to his tenant's sub-letting the holding or any part thereof merely by reason of his having received an amount deposited under this section by an inferior tenant.

Amount paid by under-tenant for his lessor may be deducted from rent.

137. (1) When an inferior tenant, on his property being lawfully distrained under this chapter for the default of a superior tenant, makes any payment under the last foregoing section, he shall be entitled to deduct the amount of that payment from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord, and that landlord, if he is not the defaulter, shall in like manner be entitled to deduct the amount so deducted from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord, and so on until the defaulter is reached.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of an inferior tenant making a payment under the last foregoing section to institute a suit for the recovery from the defaulter of any portion of the amount paid which he has not deducted under this section.

Conflict between rights of superior and inferior landlords.

138. When land is sub-let, and any conflict arises under this chapter between the rights of a superior and of an inferior landlord who distrain the same property, the right of the superior landlord shall prevail.

Distraint of property which is under attachment.

139. When any conflict arises between an order for distraint issued under this chapter and an order issued by a Civil Court for the attachment or sale of the property which is the subject of the distraint, the order for distraint shall prevail; but, if the property is sold under that order, the surplus proceeds of the sale shall not be paid under section 134 to the owner of the property without the sanction of the Court by which the order of attachment or sale was issued.

Suit for compensation for wrongful distraint.

140. No appeal shall lie from any order passed by a Civil Court under this chapter; but any person whose property is distrained on an application made under section 121 in any case in which such an application is not permitted by that section may institute a suit against the applicant for the recovery of compensation.

Power for Local Government to authorize distraint in certain cases.

141. (1) When the Local Government is of opinion that in any local area or in any class of cases it would, by reason of the character of the cultivation or the habits of the cultivators, be impracticable for a landlord to realize his rent by an application under this chapter, to the Civil Court, it may, from time to time, by order, authorize the landlord to distrain, by himself or his agent, any produce for the distraint of which he would be entitled to apply under this chapter to the Civil Court:

Provided that every person distraining any produce under such authorization shall proceed in the manner prescribed by section 124, and shall forthwith give notice, in such form as the High Court may, by rule, prescribe, to the Civil Court having jurisdiction to entertain an application for distraining the produce, and that Court shall, with no avoidable delay, depute an officer to take charge of the produce distrained.

(2) When an officer of the Court has taken charge of any distrained produce under this section, the proceedings shall thereafter be conducted in all respects as if he had distrained it under section 124.

(3) The Local Government may at any time rescind any order made by it under this section.

Power for High Court to make rules.

142. The High Court may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Act for regulating the procedure in all cases under this chapter.

CHAPTER XIII.

(f) the rules for recording the evidence of witnesses prescribed by section 189 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply, whether an appeal is allowed or not :

XIV of 1882.

(g) the Court may, when passing the decree, order on the oral application of the decree-holder the execution thereof, unless it is a decree for ejectment for arrears :

(h) notwithstanding anything contained in section 232 of the Code of Civil Procedure, an application for the execution of a decree for arrears obtained by a landlord shall not be made by an assignee of the decree unless the landlord's interest in the land has become and is vested in him.

149. (1) When a defendant admits that money is due from him on account of rent, but pleads that it is due not to the plaintiff but to a third person, the Court shall, except for special reasons to be recorded in writing, refuse to take cognizance of the plea unless the defendant pays into Court the amount so admitted to be due.

Payment into Court of money admitted to be due to third person.

(2) Where such a payment is made, the Court shall forthwith cause notice of the payment to be served on the third person.

(3) Unless the third person within three months from the receipt of the notice institutes a suit against the plaintiff and therein obtains an order restraining payment out of the money, it shall be paid out to the plaintiff on his application.

(4) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of any person to recover from the plaintiff money paid to him under sub-section (3).

150. When a defendant admits that money is due from him to the plaintiff on account of rent, but pleads that the amount claimed is in excess of the amount due, the Court shall, except for special reasons to be recorded in writing, refuse to take cognizance of the plea unless the defendant pays into Court the amount so admitted to be due.

Payment into Court of money admitted to be due to landlord.

151. When a defendant is liable to pay money into Court under either of the two last foregoing sections, if the Court thinks that there are sufficient reasons for so ordering, it may take cognizance of the defendant's plea on his paying into Court such reasonable portion of the money as the Court directs.

Provision as to payment of portion of money.

(Chapter XIII.—Judicial Procedure.—Secs. 152-156.)

152. When a defendant pays money into Court under either of the said sections, the Court shall give the defendant a receipt, and the receipt so given shall operate as an acquittance in the same manner and to the same extent as if it had been given by the plaintiff or the third person as the case may be.

Court to grant receipt.

153. An appeal shall not lie from any decree or order passed, whether in the first instance or on appeal, in any suit instituted by a landlord for the recovery of rent where—

Appeals in rent-suits.

(a) the decree or order is passed by a District Judge, Additional Judge or Subordinate Judge, and the amount claimed in the suit does not exceed one hundred rupees, or unless in either case the decree or order has decided a question relating to title to land or to some interest in land as between parties having conflicting claims thereto, or a question of a right to enhance or vary the rent of a tenant, or a question of the amount of rent annually payable by a tenant :

(b) the decree or order is passed by any other judicial officer specially empowered by the Local Government to exercise final jurisdiction under this section, and the amount claimed in the suit does not exceed fifty rupees ;

Provided that the District Judge may call for the record of any case in which a judicial officer as aforesaid has passed a decree or order to which this section applies, if it appears that the judicial officer has exercised a jurisdiction not vested in him by law, or has failed to exercise a jurisdiction so vested, or has acted in the exercise of his jurisdiction illegally or with material irregularity ; and may pass such order as the District Judge thinks fit.

154. A decree for enhancement of rent under this Act, if passed in a suit instituted in the first eight months of an agricultural year, shall ordinarily take effect on the commencement of the agricultural year next following ; and, if passed in a suit instituted in the last four months of the agricultural year, shall ordinarily take effect on the commencement of the agricultural year next but one following ; but nothing in this section shall prevent the Court from fixing, for special reasons, a later date from which any such decree shall take effect.

Date from which decree for enhancement takes effect.

155. (1) A suit for the ejectment of a tenant, on the ground—

Relief against forfeitures.

(a) that he has used the land in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or shall not be entertained unless the landlord has served, in the prescribed manner, a notice on the tenant specifying the particular misuse or breach complained of, and, where the misuse or breach is capable of remedy, requiring the tenant to remedy the same, and, in any case, to pay reasonable compensation for the misuse or breach, and the tenant has failed to comply within a reasonable time with that request.

(2) A decree passed in favour of a landlord in any such suit shall declare the amount of compensation which would reasonably be payable to the plaintiff for the misuse or breach, and whether, in the opinion of the Court, the misuse or breach is capable of remedy, and shall fix a period during which it shall be open to the defendant to pay that amount to the plaintiff, and, where the misuse or breach is declared to be capable of remedy, to remedy the same.

(3) The Court may, from time to time, for special reasons, extend a period fixed by it under sub-section (2).

(4) If the defendant, within the period or extended period (as the case may be) fixed by the Court under this section, pays the compensation mentioned in the decree, and, where the misuse or breach is declared by the Court to be capable of remedy, remedies the misuse or breach to the satisfaction of the Court, the decree shall not be executed.

156. The following rules shall apply in the case of every raiyat ejected from a holding :—

Rights of ejected raiyats in respect of crops and land prepared for sowing.

(a) when the raiyat has, before the date of his ejectment, sown or planted crops in any land comprised in the holding, he shall be entitled, at the option of the landlord, either to retain possession of that land and to use it for the purpose of tending and gathering in the crops, or to receive from the landlord the value of the crops as estimated by the Court executing the decree for ejectment ;

(b) when the raiyat has, before the date of his ejectment, prepared for sowing any land comprised in his holding, but has not sown or planted crops in that land, he shall be entitled to receive from the landlord the value of the labour and capital expended by him in so preparing the land, as estimated by the Court executing the decree for ejectment, together with reasonable interest on that value ;

(c) but a raiyat shall not be entitled to retain possession of any land or receive any sum in respect thereof under this section where, after the commencement of proceedings by the landlord for his ejectment, he has cultivated or prepared the land contrary to local usage;

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter XIV.—Sale for Arrears under Decree.—Secs. 157—162.)

(d) if the landlord elects under this section to allow a raiyat to retain possession of the land, the raiyat shall pay to the landlord, for the use and occupation of the land during the period for which he is allowed to retain possession of the same, such rent as the Court executing the decree for ejectment may deem reasonable.

Power for Court to fix fair rent as alternative to ejectment.

157. When a plaintiff institutes a suit for the ejectment of a trespasser he may, if he thinks fit, claim as alternative relief that the defendant be declared liable to pay for the land in his possession a fair and equitable rent to be determined by the Court, and the Court may grant such relief accordingly.

Application to determine incidents of tenancy.

158. (1) The Court having jurisdiction to determine a suit for the possession of land may, on the application of either the landlord or the tenant of the land, determine all or any of the following matters, (namely):—

(a) the situation, quantity and boundaries of the land;

(b) the name and description of the tenant thereof (if any);

(c) the class to which he belongs, that is to say, whether he is a tenure-holder, raiyat holding at fixed rates, occupancy-raiyat, non-occupancy-raiyat, or under-raiyat, and, if he is a tenure-holder, whether he is a permanent tenure-holder or not and whether his rent is liable to enhancement during the continuance of his tenure; and

(d) the rent payable by him at the time of the application.

(2) If, in the opinion of the Court, any of these matters cannot be satisfactorily determined without a local inquiry, the Court may direct that a local inquiry be held under Chapter XXV of the Code of Civil Procedure by such Revenue-officer as the Local Government may authorize in that behalf by rule made under section 392 of the said Code. XIV of 1882.

(3) The order on any application under this section shall have the effect of, and be subject to the like appeal as, a decree.

CHAPTER XIV.

SALE FOR ARREARS UNDER DECREE.

General powers of purchaser as to avoidance of incumbrances.

159. Where a tenure or holding is sold in execution of a decree for arrears due in respect thereof, the purchaser shall take subject to the interests defined in this chapter as "protected interests", but with power to annul the interests defined in this chapter as "incumbrances":

(b) any under-tenure recognized by the settlement-proceedings of any current temporary settlement as a tenure at a rent fixed for the period of that settlement;

(g) any right or interest which the landlord at whose instance the tenure or holding is sold, or his predecessor in title, has expressly and in writing given the tenant for the time being permission to create.

Meaning of "incumbrance" and "registered and notified incumbrance."

161. For the purposes of this chapter—

(a) the term "incumbrance", used with reference to a tenancy, means any lien, sub-tenancy, easement or other right or interest created by the tenant on his tenure or holding or in limitation of his own interest therein, and not being a protected interest as defined in the last foregoing section;

(b) the term "registered and notified incumbrance", used with reference to a tenure or holding sold or liable to sale in execution of a decree for an arrear of rent due in respect thereof, means an incumbrance created by a registered instrument of which a copy has, not less than three months before the accrual of the arrear, been served on the landlord in manner hereinafter provided.

Application for sale of tenure or holding.

162. When a decree has been passed for an arrear of rent due for a tenure or holding, and the decree-holder applies under section 235 of the Code of Civil Procedure for the attachment and sale of the tenure or holding in execution of the decree, he shall produce a statement showing the parganá, estate and village in which the land comprised in the tenure or holding is situate, the yearly rent payable for the same and the total amount recoverable under the decree. (Chapter XIV.—Sale for Arrears under Decree.—Secs. 163-167.)

163. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Civil Procedure, when the decree-holder makes the application mentioned in the last foregoing section, the Court shall, if under section 245 of the said Code it admits the application and orders execution of the decree as applied for, issue simultaneously the order of attachment and the proclamation required by section 287 of the said Code. XIV of 1882.

(2) The proclamation shall, in addition to stating and specifying the particulars mentioned in section 287 of the said Code, announce—

(a) in the case of a tenure or a holding of a raiyat holding at fixed rates, that the tenure or holding will first be put up to auction subject to the registered and notified incumbrances, and will be sold subject to those incumbrances if the sum bid is sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs, and that otherwise it will, if the decree-holder so desires, be sold on a subsequent day, of which due notice will be given, with power to annul all incumbrances; and

(b) in the case of an occupancy-holding, that the holding will be sold with power to annul all incumbrances.

(3) The proclamation shall, besides being made in the manner prescribed by section 289 of the said Code, be published by fixing up a copy thereof in a conspicuous place on the land comprised in the tenure or holding ordered to be sold, and shall also be published in such manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct in this behalf.

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 290 of the said Code, the sale shall not, without the consent in writing of the judgment-debtor, take place until after the expiration of at least thirty days, calculated from the date on which the copy of the proclamation has been fixed up on the land comprised in the tenure or holding ordered to be sold.

Sale of tenure or holding subject to registered and notified incumbrances, and effect thereof.

164. (1) When a tenure or a holding at fixed rates has been advertised for sale under the last foregoing section, it shall be put up to auction, subject to registered and notified incumbrances; and, if the bidding reaches a sum sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs, including the costs of sale, the tenure or holding shall be sold subject to such incumbrances.

(2) The purchaser at a sale under this section may, in manner provided by section 167, and not otherwise, annul any incumbrance upon the tenure or holding not being a registered and notified incumbrance.

Sale of tenure or holding with power to avoid all incumbrances, and effect thereof.

165. (1) If the bidding for a tenure or a holding at fixed rates put up to auction under the last foregoing section does not reach a sum sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs as aforesaid, and if the decree-holder thereupon desires that the tenure or holding be sold with power to avoid all incumbrances, the officer holding the sale shall adjourn the sale and make a fresh proclamation under section 289 of the Code of Civil Procedure, announcing that the tenure or holding will be put up to auction and sold with power to avoid all incumbrances upon a future day specified therein, not less than fifteen or more than thirty days from the date of the postponement; and upon that day the tenure or holding shall be put up to auction and sold with power to avoid all incumbrances. (2) The purchaser at a sale under this section may, in manner provided by the next following section, and not otherwise, annul any incumbrance on the holding.

167. (1) A purchaser having power to annul an incumbrance under any of the foregoing sections and desiring to annul the same, may, within one year from the date of the sale or the date on which he first has notice of the incumbrance, whichever is later, present to the Collector an application in writing, requesting him to serve on the incumbrancer a notice declaring that the incumbrance is annulled.

(2) Every such application must be accompanied by such fee for the service of the notice as the Board of Revenue may fix in this behalf.

(3) When an application for service of a notice is made to the Collector in manner prescribed by this section, he shall cause the notice to be served in compliance therewith, and the incumbrance shall be deemed to be annulled from the date on which it is so served.

(4) When a tenure or holding is sold in execution of a decree for arrears due in respect thereof, and there is on the tenure or holding a protected interest of the kind specified in section 160, clause (c), the purchaser may, if he has power under this chapter to avoid all incumbrances, sue to enhance the rent of the land which is the subject of the protected interest. On proof that the land is held at a rent which was not at the time the lease was granted a fair rent, the Court may enhance the rent to such amount as appears to be fair and equitable.

This sub-section shall not apply to land which has been held for a term exceeding twelve years at a fixed rent equal to the rent of good arable land.

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter XIV.—Sale for Arrears under Decree.—Secs. 168-171.)

168. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, direct that occupancy-holdings or any specified class of occupancy-holdings in any local area put up for sale in execution of decrees for rent due on them shall, before being put up with power to avoid all incumbrances, be put up subject to registered and notified incumbrances, and may by like notification rescind any such direction.

(2) While any such direction remains in force in respect of any local area, all occupancy-holdings, or, as the case may be, occupancy-holdings of the specified class in that local area, shall, for the purposes of sale under the foregoing sections of this chapter, be treated in all respects as if they were tenures.

169. (1) In disposing of the proceeds of a sale under this chapter, the following rules, instead of those prescribed by section 295 of the Code of Civil Procedure, shall be observed, that is to say :—

Rules for disposal of the sale-proceeds.

(a) there shall first be paid to the decree-holder the costs incurred by him in bringing the tenure or holding to sale;

(b) there shall, in the next place, be paid to the decree-holder the amount due to him under the decree in execution of which the sale was made;

(c) if there remains a balance after these sums have been paid, there shall be paid to the decree-holder therefrom any rent which may have fallen due to him in respect of the tenure or holding between the institution of the suit and the date of the sale;

(d) the balance (if any) remaining after the payment of the rent mentioned in clause (c) shall, upon the expiration of two months from the confirmation of the sale, be paid to the judgment-debtor upon his application.

(2) If the judgment-debtor disputes the decree-holder's right to receive any sum on account of rent under clause (c), the Court shall determine the dispute, and the determination shall have the force of a decree.

170. (1) Sections 278 to 283 (both inclusive) of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to a tenure or holding attached in execution of a decree for arrears due thereon.

Tenure or holding to be released from attachment only on payment into Court of amount of decree with costs, or on confession of satisfaction by decree-holder.

XIV of 1882.

(2) When an order for the sale of a tenure or holding in execution of such a decree has been made, the tenure or holding shall not be released from attachment unless, before it is knocked down to the auction-purchaser, the amount of the decree, including the costs decreed, together with the costs incurred in order to the sale, is paid into Court, or the decree-holder makes an application for the release of the tenure or holding on the ground that the decree has been satisfied out of Court.

(3) The judgment-debtor or any person having in the tenure or holding any interest voidable on the sale may pay money into Court under this section.

171. (1) When any person having, in a tenure or holding advertised for sale under this chapter, an interest which would be avoidable upon the sale, pays into Court the amount requisite to prevent the sale,—

Amount paid into Court to prevent sale to be in certain cases a mortgage-debt on the tenure or holding.

(a) the amount so paid by him shall be deemed to be a debt bearing interest at twelve per centum per annum and secured by a mortgage of the tenure or holding to him;

(b) his mortgage shall take priority of every other charge on the tenure or holding other than a charge for arrear of rent; and

(c) he shall be entitled to possession of the tenure or holding as mortgagee of the tenant, and to retain possession of it as such until the debt, with the interest due thereon, has been discharged.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect any other remedy to which any such person would be entitled.

172. When a tenure or holding is advertised for sale under this chapter in execution of a decree against a superior tenant defaulting, and an inferior tenant, whose interest would be voidable upon the sale, pays money into Court in order to prevent the sale, he may, in addition to any other remedy provided for him by law, deduct the whole or any portion of the amount so paid from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord; and that landlord, if he is not the defaulter, may in like manner deduct the amount so deducted from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord, and so on until the defaulter is reached.

Inferior tenant paying into Court may deduct from rent.

173. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 294 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the holder of a decree in execution of which a tenure or holding is sold under this chapter may, without the permission of the Court, bid for or purchase the tenure or holding.

Decree-holder may bid at sale; judgment-debtor may not.

(2) The judgment-debtor shall not bid for or purchase a tenure or holding so sold.

(3) When a judgment-debtor purchases by himself or through another person a tenure or holding so sold, the Court may, if it thinks fit, on the application of the decree-holder or any other person interested in the sale, by order set aside the sale, and the costs of the application and order, and any deficiency of price which may happen on the re-sale, and all expenses attending it, shall be paid by the judgment-debtor.

174. (1) Where a tenure or holding is sold for an arrear of rent due thereon, then, at any time within thirty days from the date of sale, the judgment-debtor may apply to have the sale set aside, on his depositing in Court, for payment to the decree-holder, the amount recoverable under the decree with costs, and, for payment to the purchaser, a sum equal to five per centum of the purchase-money.

(2) If such deposit is made within the thirty days, the Court shall pass an order setting aside the sale, and the provisions of section 315 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply in the case of a sale so set aside:

XIV of 1882.

Provided that, if a judgment-debtor applies under section 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure to set aside the sale of his tenure or holding, he shall not be entitled to make an application under this section.

XIV of 1882.

XIV of 1882.

(3) Section 313 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to any sale under this chapter.

175. Notwithstanding anything contained in Part IV of the Indian Registration Act, 1877, an instrument creating an incumbrance upon any tenure or holding which has been executed before the commencement of this Act, and is not required by section 17 of the said Registration Act to be registered, shall be accepted for registration under that Act if it is presented for that purpose to the proper officer within one year from the commencement of this Act.

Registration of certain instruments creating incumbrances.

176. Every officer who has, whether before or after the passing of this Act, registered an instrument executed by a tenant of a tenure or holding and creating an incumbrance on the tenure or holding, shall, at the request of the tenant or of the person in whose favour the incumbrance is created, and on payment by him of such fee as the Local Government may fix in this behalf, notify the incumbrance to the landlord by causing a copy of the instrument to be served on him in the prescribed manner.

177. Nothing contained in this chapter shall be deemed to enable a person to create an incumbrance which he could not otherwise lawfully create.

Power to create incumbrances not extended.

CHAPTER XV.

178. (1) Nothing in any contract between a landlord and a tenant made before or after the passing of this Act—

(ii) when a landlord has reclaimed waste land by his own servants or hired labourers, and subsequently lets the same or a part thereof to a raiyat, nothing in this Act shall affect the terms of any contract whereby a raiyat is prevented from acquiring an occupancy-right in the land or part during a period of thirty years from the date on which the land or part is first let to a raiyat;

8. The Court may, if it thinks that an immediate increase of rent would produce hardship, direct that the enhancement shall be gradual; that is to say, that the rent shall increase yearly by degrees, for any number of years not exceeding five, until the limit of the enhancement allowed has been reached.

(1) Every person who for a period of twelve years, whether wholly or partly before or after the commencement of this Act, has continuously held as a raiyat land situate in any village, whether under a lease or otherwise, shall be deemed to have become, on the expiration of that period, a settled raiyat of that village.

(6) If a raiyat recovers possession of land under section 87, he shall be deemed to have continued to be a settled raiyat notwithstanding his having been out of possession more than a year.

(7) If, in any proceeding under this Act, it is proved or admitted that a person holds any land as a raiyat, it shall, as between him and the landlord under whom he holds the land, be presumed for the purposes of this section, until the contrary is proved or admitted, that he has for twelve years continuously held that land or some part of it as a raiyat.

(Chapter V.—Occupancy-raiyats.—Secs. 23-30.)

Incidents of occupancy-right.

Incidents of occupancy-right.

23. When a raiyat has a right of occupancy in respect of any land, he may use the land in any manner which does not materially impair the value of the land or render it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy; but shall not be entitled to cut down trees in contravention of any local custom.

Rights of raiyat in respect of use of land.

24. An occupancy-raiyat shall pay rent for his holding at fair and equitable rates.

26. If a raiyat dies intestate in respect of a right of occupancy, it shall, subject to any custom to the contrary, descend in the same manner as other immoveable property: provided that, in any case in which under the law of inheritance to which the raiyat is subject his other property goes to the Crown, his right of occupancy shall be extinguished.

Enhancement of rent by contract.

(a) the contract must be in writing and registered;

(b) the rent must not be enhanced so as to exceed by more than two annas in the rupee the rent previously payable by the raiyat;

(c) the rent fixed by the contract shall not be liable to enhancement during a term of fifteen years from the date of the contract;

Enhancement of rent.

Provided as follows—

(i) Nothing in clause (a) shall prevent a landlord from recovering rent at the rate at which it has been actually paid for a continuous period of not less than three years immediately preceding the period for which the rent is claimed.

(ii) Nothing in clause (b) shall apply to a contract by which a raiyat binds himself to pay an enhanced rent in consideration of an improvement which has been or is to be effected in respect of the holding by, or at the expense of, his landlord, and to the benefit of which the raiyat is not otherwise entitled; but an enhanced rent fixed by such a contract shall be payable only when the improvement has been effected, and, except when the raiyat is chargeable with default in respect of the improvement, only so long as the improvement exists and substantially produces its estimated effect in respect of the holding.

(iii) When a raiyat has held his land at a specially low rate of rent in consideration of cultivating a particular crop for the convenience of the landlord, nothing in clause (b) shall prevent the raiyat from agreeing, in consideration of his being released from the obligation of cultivating that crop, to pay such rent as he may deem fair and equitable.

30. The landlord of a holding held at a money-rent by an occupancy-raiyat may, subject to the provisions of this Act, institute a suit to enhance the rent on one or more of the following grounds, (namely):—

Enhancement of rent by suit.

(a) that the rate of rent paid by the raiyat is below the prevailing rate paid by occupancy-raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the same village, and that there is no sufficient reason for his holding at so low a rate;

(b) that there has been a rise in the average local prices of staple food-crops during the currency of the present rent;

(c) that the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by an improvement effected by, or at the expense of, the landlord during the currency of the present rent;

(d) that the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by fluvial action.

Explanation.—"Fluvial action" includes a change in the course of a river rendering irrigation from the river practicable when it was not previously practicable.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of prevailing rate.

31. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground that the rate of rent paid is below the prevailing rate—

(a) in determining what is the prevailing rate the Court shall have regard to the rates generally paid during a period of not less than three years before the institution of the suit, and shall not decree an enhancement unless there is a substantial difference between the rate paid by the raiyat and the prevailing rate found by the Court;

(b) if in the opinion of the Court the prevailing rate of rent cannot be satisfactorily ascertained without a local inquiry, the Court may direct that a local inquiry be held under Chapter XXV of the Code of Civil Procedure by such Revenue-officer as the Local Government may authorize in that behalf by rules made under section 392 of the said Code;

(c) in determining under this section the rate of rent payable by a raiyat his caste shall not be taken into consideration, unless it is proved that by local custom caste is taken into account in determining the rate; and whenever it is found that by local custom any description of raiyats hold land at favourable rates of rent, the rate shall be determined in accordance with that custom;

(d) in ascertaining the prevailing rate of rent the amount of any enhancement authorized on account of a landlord's improvement shall not be taken into consideration.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of rise in prices.

32. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground of a rise in prices—

(a) the Court shall compare the average prices during the decennial period immediately preceding the institution of the suit with the average prices during such other decennial period as it may appear equitable and practicable to take for comparison;

Enhancement of rent.

(c) if in the opinion of the Court it is not practicable to take the decennial periods prescribed in clause (a), the Court may, in its discretion, substitute any shorter periods therefor.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of landlord's improvement.

33. (1) Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground of a landlord's improvement—

(a) the Court shall not grant an enhancement unless the improvement has been registered in accordance with this Act;

(b) in determining the amount of enhancement the Court shall have regard to—

(i) the increase in the productive powers of the land caused or likely to be caused by the improvement,

(ii) the cost of the improvement,

(iii) the cost of the cultivation required for utilizing the improvement, and

(iv) the existing rent and the ability of the land to bear a higher rent.

(2) A decree under this section shall, on the application of the tenant or his successor in interest, be subject to re-consideration in the event of the improvement not producing or ceasing to produce the estimated effect.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of increase in productive powers due to fluvial action.

34. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground of an increase in productive powers due to fluvial action—

(a) the Court shall not take into account any increase which is merely temporary or casual;

(b) the Court may enhance the rent to such an amount as it may deem fair and equitable, but not so as to give the landlord more than one-half of the value of the net increase in the produce of the land.

Enhancement by suit to be fair and equitable.

35. Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections, the Court shall not in any case decree any enhancement which is under the circumstances of the case unfair or inequitable.

Power to order progressive enhancement.

36. If the Court passing a decree for enhancement considers that the immediate enforcement of the decree in its full extent will be attended with hardship to the raiyat, it may direct that the enhancement shall be gradual; that is to say, that the rent shall increase

Limitation of right to bring successive enhancement-suits.

37. (1) A suit instituted for the enhancement of the rent of a holding on the ground that the rate of rent paid is below the prevailing rate, or on the ground of a rise in prices, shall not be entertained if within the fifteen years next preceding its institution the rent of the holding has been enhanced by a contract made after the second day of March, 1883, or if within the said period of fifteen years the rent has been commuted under section 40, or a decree has been passed under this Act or any enactment repealed by this Act enhancing the rent on either of the grounds aforesaid or on any ground corresponding thereto or dismissing the suit on the merits.

(a) on the ground that the soil of the holding has without the fault of the raiyat become permanently deteriorated by a deposit of sand or other specific cause, sudden or gradual, or

(b) on the ground that there has been a fall, not due to a temporary cause, in the average local prices of staple food-crops during the currency of the present rent.

(2) In any suit instituted under this section, the Court may direct such reduction of the rent as it thinks fair and equitable.

Price-lists.

(2) The Collector may, if so directed by the Local Government, prepare for any local area like price-lists relating to such past times as the Local Government thinks fit, and shall submit the lists so prepared to the Board of Revenue for approval or revision.

Price-lists.

(3) The Collector shall, one month before submitting a price-list to the Board of Revenue under this section, publish it in the prescribed manner within the local area to which it relates, and if any landlord or tenant of land within the local area, within the said period of one month, presents to him in writing any objection to the list, he shall submit the same to the Board of Revenue with the list.

(4) The price-lists shall, when approved or revised by the Board of Revenue, be published in the official Gazette; and any manifest error in any such list discovered after its publication may be corrected by the Collector with the sanction of the Board of Revenue.

(5) The Local Government shall cause to be compiled from the periodical lists prepared under this section lists of the average prices prevailing throughout each year, and shall cause them to be published annually in the official Gazette.

(6) In any proceedings under this chapter for an enhancement or reduction of rent on the ground of a rise or fall in prices, the Court shall refer to the lists published under this section, and shall presume that the prices shown in the lists prepared for any year subsequent to the passing of this Act are correct, unless and until it is proved that they are incorrect.

(7) The Local Government, subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, shall make rules for determining what are to be deemed staple food-crops in any local area and for the guidance of officers preparing price-lists under this section.

(2) The application may be made to the Collector or Sub-divisional Officer, or to an officer making a settlement of rents under Chapter X, or to any other officer specially authorized in this behalf by the Local Government.

(3) On the receipt of the application the officer may determine the sum to be paid as money-rent, and may order that the raiyat shall, in lieu of paying his rent in kind, or otherwise as aforesaid, pay the sum so determined.

(4) In making the determination the officer shall have regard to—

(5) The order shall be in writing, shall state the grounds on which it is made, and the time from which it is to take effect, and shall be subject to appeal in like manner as if it were an order made in an ordinary revenue proceeding.

(6) If the application is opposed, the officer shall consider whether under all the circumstances of the case it is reasonable to grant it, and shall grant or refuse it accordingly. If he refuses it, he shall record in writing the reasons for the refusal.

Provided that nothing in this section shall prevent a landlord from recovering rent at the rate at which it has been actually paid for a continuous period of not less than three years immediately preceding the period for which the rent is claimed.

Grounds on which non-occupancy-raiyat may be ejected.

44. A non-occupancy-raiyat shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be liable to ejectment on one or more of the following grounds, and not otherwise (namely):—

(a) on the ground that he has failed to pay an arrear of rent;

(b) on the ground that he has used the land in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or that he has broken a condition consistent with this Act and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between himself and his landlord, liable to be ejected;

(c) where he has been admitted to occupation of the land under a registered lease, on the ground that the term of the lease has expired;

(d) on the ground that he has refused to agree to pay a fair and equitable rent determined under section 46, or that the term for which he is entitled to hold at such a rent has expired.

Conditions of ejectment on ground of expiration of lease.

45. A suit for ejectment on the ground of the expiration of the term of a lease shall not be instituted against a non-occupancy-raiyat unless notice to quit has been served on the raiyat not less than six months before the expiration of the term, and shall not be instituted after six months from the expiration of the term.

Conditions of ejectment on ground of refusal to agree to enhancement.

46. (1) A suit for ejectment on the ground of refusal to agree to an enhancement of rent shall not be instituted against a non-occupancy-raiyat unless the landlord has tendered to the raiyat an agreement to pay the enhanced rent, and the raiyat has within three months before the institution of the suit refused to execute the agreement.

(2) A landlord desiring to tender an agreement to a raiyat under this section may file it in the office of such Court or officer as the Local Government appoints in this behalf for service on the raiyat. (4) When an agreement has been executed and filed by a raiyat under sub-section (3), the Court or officer in whose office it is so filed shall forthwith cause a notice of its being so executed and filed to be served on the landlord in the prescribed manner.

(5) If the raiyat does not execute the agreement and file it under sub-section (3), he shall be deemed for the purposes of this section to have refused to execute it.

(6) If a raiyat refuses to execute an agreement tendered to him under this section, and the landlord thereupon institutes a suit to eject him, the Court shall determine what rent is fair and equitable for the holding.

(7) If the raiyat agrees to pay the rent so determined, he shall be entitled to remain in occupation of his holding at that rent for a term of five years from the date of the agreement, but on the expiration of that term shall be liable to ejectment under the conditions mentioned in the last foregoing section, unless he has acquired a right of occupancy.

(8) If the raiyat does not agree to pay the rent so determined, the Court shall pass a decree for ejectment.

(9) In determining what rent is fair and equitable, the Court shall have regard to the rents generally paid by raiyats for land of a similar description and with like advantages in the same village.

(10) A decree for ejectment passed under this section shall take effect from the end of the agricultural year in which it is passed.

Explanation of "admitted to occupation."

47. Where a raiyat has been in occupation of land and a lease is executed with a view to a continuance of his occupation, he is not to be deemed to be admitted to occupation by that lease for the purposes of this chapter, notwithstanding that the lease may purport to admit him to occupation.

50. (1) Where a tenure-holder or raiyat and his predecessors in interest have held at a rent or rate of rent which has not been changed from the time of the Permanent Settlement, the rent or rate of rent shall not be liable to be increased except on the ground of an alteration in the area of the tenure or holding.

Rules and presumptions as to amount of rent.

(2) If it is proved in any suit or other proceeding under this Act that either a tenure-holder or raiyat and his predecessors in interest have held at a rent or rate of rent which has not been changed during the twenty years immediately before the institution of the suit or proceeding, it shall be presumed, until the contrary is shown, that they have held at that rent or rate of rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement:

Provided that if it is required by or under any enactment that in any local area tenancies, or any classes of tenancies, at fixed rents or rates of rent shall be registered as such on, or before, a date specified by or under the enactment, the foregoing presumption shall not after that date apply to any tenancy or, as the case may be, to any tenancy of that class in that local area unless the tenancy has been so registered.

(3) The operation of this section, so far as it relates to land held by a raiyat, shall not be affected by the fact of the land having been separated from other land which formed with it a single holding, or amalgamated with other land into one holding.

(4) Nothing in this section shall apply to a tenure held for a term of years or determinable at the will of the landlord.

Presumption as to amount of rent and conditions of holding.

52. (1) Every tenant shall—

(a) be liable to pay additional rent for all land proved by measurement to be in excess of the area for which rent has been previously paid by him, unless it is proved that the excess is due to the addition to the tenure or holding of land which having previously belonged to the tenure or holding was lost by diluvion or otherwise without any reduction of the rent being made, and

(b) be entitled to a reduction of rent in respect of any deficiency proved by measurement to exist in the area of his tenure or holding as compared with the area for which rent has been previously paid by him, unless it is proved that the deficiency is due to the loss of land which was added to the area of the tenure or holding by alluvion or otherwise, and that an addition has not been made to the rent in respect of the addition to the area.

(Chapter VIII.—General Provisions as to Rent.—Secs. 53—57.)

(b) whether the tenant has been allowed to hold additional land in consideration of an addition to his total rent or otherwise with the knowledge and consent of the landlord;

(c) the length of time during which the tenancy has lasted without dispute as to rent or area; and

(d) the length of the measure used or in local use at the time of the origin of the tenancy as compared with that used or in local use at the time of the institution of the suit.

(3) In determining the amount to be added to the rent, the Court shall have regard to the rates payable by tenants of the same class for lands of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity, and, in the case of a tenure-holder, to the profits to which he is entitled in respect of the rent of his tenure, and shall not in any case fix any rent which under the circumstances of the case is unfair or inequitable.

(4) The amount abated from the rent shall bear the same proportion to the rent previously payable as the diminution of the total yearly value of the tenure or holding bears to the previous total yearly value thereof, or, in default of satisfactory proof of the yearly value of the land lost, shall bear to the rent previously payable the same proportion as the diminution of area bears to the previous area of the tenure or holding.

(4) If a receipt does not contain substantially the particulars required by this section, it shall be presumed, until the contrary is shown, to be an acquittance in full of all demands for rent up to the date on which the receipt was given.

57. (1) Where a landlord admits that all rent payable by a tenant to the end of the agricultural year has been paid, the tenant shall be entitled to receive from the landlord, free of charge, within three months after the end of the year, a receipt in full discharge of all rent falling due to the end of the year, signed by the landlord.

(2) A receipt given under this section shall operate as an acquittance for the amount of the rent payable by the tenant and deposited as aforesaid, in the same manner and to the same extent as if that amount of rent had been received—in cases (a) and (b) of the last foregoing section, by the person specified in the application as the person to whose credit the deposit was to be entered;

(4) No suit or other proceeding shall be instituted against the Secretary of State for India in Council, or against any officer of the Government, in respect of anything done by a Court receiving a deposit under the foregoing sections; but nothing in this section shall prevent any person entitled to receive the amount of any such deposit from recovering the same from a person to whom it has been paid under this section.

(2) In a suit for ejectment for an arrear of rent a decree passed in favour of the plaintiff shall specify the amount of the arrear and of the interest (if any) due thereon, and the decree shall not be executed if that amount and the costs of the suit are paid into Court within fifteen days from the date of the decree, or, when the Court is closed on the fifteenth day, on the day upon which the Court re-opens.

(3) The Court may for special reasons extend the period of fifteen days mentioned in this section.

(3) When the officer has made the appraisement or division, he shall submit a report of his proceedings to the Collector.

(4) The Collector shall consider the report, and, after giving the parties an opportunity of being heard and making such enquiry (if any) as he may think necessary, shall pass such order thereon as he thinks just.

(3) In either case the tenant shall be entitled to cut and harvest the produce in due course of husbandry without any interference on the part of the landlord.

(4) If the tenant removes any portion of the produce at such a time or in such a manner as to prevent the due appraisement or division thereof at the proper time, the produce shall be deemed to have been as full as the fullest crop of the same description appraised in the neighbourhood on similar land for that harvest.

(2) Until the contrary is shown, the following shall be presumed to be improvements within the meaning of this section:—

Right to make improvements in case of holding at fixed rates and occupancy-holding.

77. (1) Where a raiyat holds at fixed rates or has an occupancy-right in his holding, neither the raiyat nor his landlord shall, as such, be entitled to prevent the other from making an improvement in respect of the holding, except on the ground that he is willing to make it himself.

(2) If both the raiyat and his landlord wish to make the same improvement, the raiyat shall have the prior right to make it, unless it affects another holding or other holdings under the same landlord. Improvements.

79. (1) A non-occupancy-raiyat shall be entitled to construct, maintain and repair a well for the irrigation of his holding, with all works incidental thereto, and to erect a suitable dwelling-house for himself and his family, with all necessary out-offices; but shall not, except as aforesaid and as next hereinafter provided, be entitled to make any other improvement in respect of his holding without his landlord's permission.

(2) A non-occupancy-raiyat who would, but for the want of his landlord's permission, be entitled to make an improvement in respect of his holding, may, if he desires that the improvement be made, deliver, or cause to be delivered, to his landlord a request in writing calling upon him to make the improvement within a reasonable time; and, if the landlord is unable or neglects to comply with that request, may make the improvement himself.

(2) Whenever a Court makes a decree or order for the ejectment of a raiyat, it shall determine the amount of compensation (if any) due under this section to the raiyat for improvements, and shall make the decree or order of ejectment conditional on the payment of that amount to the raiyat.

(3) No compensation under this section for an improvement shall be claimable where the raiyat has made the improvement in pursuance of a contract or under a lease binding him, in consideration of some substantial advantage to be obtained by him, to make the improvement without compensation, and he has obtained that advantage.

(4) Improvements made by a raiyat between the 2nd day of March, 1883, and the commencement of this Act shall be deemed to have been made in accordance with this Act.

(5) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, make rules requiring the Court to associate with itself, for the purpose of estimating the compensation to be awarded under this section for an improvement, such number of assessors as the Local Government thinks fit, and determining the qualifications of those assessors and the mode of selecting them.

Principle on which compensation is to be estimated.

83. (1) In estimating the compensation to be awarded under the last foregoing section for an improvement, regard shall be had—

(a) to the amount by which the value, or the produce, of the holding, or the value of that produce, is increased by the improvement;

(b) to the condition of the improvement, and the probable duration of its effects

(c) to the labour and capital required for the making of such an improvement; Improvements.

(d) to any reduction or remission of rent or any other advantage given by the landlord to the raiyat in consideration of the improvement; and

(e) in the case of a reclamation or of the conversion of unirrigated into irrigated land, to the length of time during which the raiyat has had the benefit of the improvement at an unenhanced rent.

(2) When the amount of the compensation has been assessed, the Court may, if the landlord and raiyat agree, direct that, instead of being paid wholly in money, it shall be made wholly or partly in some other way.

Acquisition of land for building and other purposes.

Acquisition of land for building and other purposes.

84. A Civil Court may, on the application of the landlord of a holding, and on being satisfied that he is desirous of acquiring the holding or part thereof for some reasonable and sufficient purpose having relation to the good of the holding or of the estate in which it is comprised, including the use of the ground as building ground, or for any religious, educational or charitable purpose, Acquisition of land for building and other purposes.

and on being satisfied on the certificate of the Collector that the purpose is reasonable and sufficient, authorise the acquisition thereof by the landlord upon such conditions as the Court may think fit, and require the tenant to sell his interest in the whole or such part of the holding to the landlord upon such terms as may be approved by the Court, including full compensation to the tenant.

Sub-letting.

Restrictions on sub-letting.

85. (1) If a raiyat sub-lets otherwise than by a registered instrument, the sub-lease shall not be valid against his landlord unless made with the landlord's consent. Sub-letting.

(2) A sub-lease by a raiyat shall not be admitted to registration if it purports to create a term exceeding nine years.

(3) Where a raiyat has, without the consent of his landlord, granted a sub-lease by an instrument registered before the commencement of this Act, the sub-lease shall not be valid for more than nine years from the commencement of this Act.

Surrender and abandonment.

Surrender.

86. (1) A raiyat not bound by a lease or other agreement for a fixed period may, at the end of any agricultural year, surrender his holding. Surrender and abandonment.

Surrender and abandonment.

(2) But, notwithstanding the surrender, the raiyat shall be liable to indemnify the landlord against any loss of the rent of the holding for the agricultural year next following the date of the surrender, unless he gives to his landlord, at least three months before he surrenders, notice of his intention to surrender.

(3) When a raiyat has surrendered his holding, the Court shall in the following cases for the purposes of sub-section (2) presume, until the contrary is shown, that such notice was so given, namely: —

(a) if the raiyat takes a new holding in the same village from the same landlord during the agricultural year next following the surrender;

(b) if the raiyat ceases, at least three months before the end of the agricultural year at the end of which the surrender is made, to reside in the village in which the surrendered holding is situate.

(4) The raiyat may, if he thinks fit, cause the notice to be served through the Civil Court within the jurisdiction of which the holding or any portion of it is situate.

(5) When a raiyat has surrendered his holding, the landlord may enter on the holding and either let it to another tenant or take it into cultivation himself.

(6) When a holding is subject to an incumbrance secured by a registered instrument, the surrender of the holding shall not be valid unless it is made with the consent of the landlord and the incumbrancer.

(7) Save as provided in the last foregoing sub-section, nothing in this section shall affect any arrangement by which a raiyat and his landlord may arrange for a surrender of the whole or a part of the holding.

Abandonment.

87. (1) If a raiyat voluntarily abandons his residence without notice to his landlord and without arranging for payment of his rent as it falls due, and ceases to cultivate his holding either by himself or by some other person, the landlord may, at any time after the expiration of the agricultural year in which the raiyat so abandons and ceases to cultivate, enter on the holding and let it to another tenant or take it into cultivation himself.

(2) Before a landlord enters under this section, he shall file a notice in the prescribed form in the Collector's office stating that he has treated the holding as abandoned and is about to enter on it accordingly; and the Collector shall cause the notice to be published in such manner as the Local Government, by rule, directs.

(3) When a landlord enters under this section, the raiyat shall be entitled to institute a suit for recovery of possession of the land at any time not later than the expiration of two years, or, in the case of a non-occupancy-raiyat, six months, from the date of the publication of the notice; and thereupon the Court may, on being satisfied that the raiyat did not voluntarily abandon his holding, order recovery of possession on such terms, if any, with respect to compensation to persons injured and payment of arrears of rent as to the Court may seem just. Surrender and abandonment.

(4) Where the whole or part of a holding has been sub-let by a registered instrument, the landlord shall, before entering under this section on the holding, offer the whole holding to the sub-lessee for the remainder of the term of the sub-lease at the rent paid by the raiyat who has ceased to cultivate the holding, and on condition of the sub-lessee paying up all arrears due from that raiyat. If the sub-lessee refuses or neglects within a reasonable time to accept the offer, the landlord may avoid the sub-lease and may enter on the holding and let it to another tenant or cultivate it himself as provided in sub-sections (1) and (2).

Sub-division of tenancy.

Sub-division of tenancy.

Division of tenancy not binding on landlord without his consent.

88. A division of a tenure or holding, or distribution of the rent payable in respect thereof, shall not be binding on the landlord unless it is made with his consent in writing.

Ejectment.

No ejectment except in execution of decree.

89. No tenant shall be ejected from his tenure or holding except in execution of a decree.

Measurements.

Measurements.

Landlord's right to measure land.

90. (1) Subject to the provisions of this section and any contract, a landlord may, by himself, or by any person authorized by him in this behalf, enter on and measure all land comprised in his estate or tenure, other than land exempt from the payment of revenue.

(2) A landlord shall not, without the consent of the tenant, or the written permission of the Collector, be entitled to measure land more than once in ten years, except in the following cases (namely):—

(a) where the area of the tenure or holding is liable, by reason of alluvion or diluvion, to vary from year to year, and the rent payable depends on the area;

(b) where the area under cultivation is liable to vary from year to year and the rent payable depends on the area under cultivation;

(c) where the landlord is a purchaser otherwise than by voluntary transfer and not more than two years have elapsed since the date of his entry under the purchase.

Measurements.

(3) The ten years shall be computed from the date of the last measurement, whether made before or after the commencement of this Act.

Power for Court to order tenant to attend and point out boundaries.

91. (1) Where a landlord desires to measure any land which he is entitled to measure under the last foregoing section, the Civil Court may, on the application of the landlord, make an order requiring the tenant to attend and point out the boundaries of the land.

(2) If the tenant refuses or neglects to comply with the order, a map or other record of the boundaries and measurements of the land, prepared under the direction of the landlord at the time when the tenant was directed to attend, shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is shown.

Standard of measurement.

92. (1) Every measurement of land made by order of a Civil Court, or of a Revenue-officer, in any suit or proceeding between a landlord and tenant, shall be made by the acre, unless the Court or Revenue-officer directs that it be made by any other specified standard.

(2) If the rights of the parties are regulated by any local measure other than the acre, the acre shall be converted into the local measure for the purposes of the suit or proceeding.

(3) The Local Government may, after local enquiry, make rules declaring for any local area the standard or standards of measurement locally in use in that area, and every declaration so made shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is shown.

Managers.

Managers.

Power to call upon co-owners to show cause why they should not appoint a common manager.

93. When any dispute exists between co-owners of an estate or tenure as to the management thereof, and in consequence there has ensued, or is likely to ensue,

(a) inconvenience to the public, or

(b) injury to private rights,

the District Judge may, on the application in case (a) of the Collector, and in case (b) of any one having an interest in the estate or tenure, direct a notice to be served on all the co-owners, calling on them to show cause why they should not appoint a common manager:

Provided that a co-owner of an estate or tenure shall not be entitled to apply under this section unless he is actually in possession of the interest he claims, and, if he is a co-owner of an estate, unless his name and the extent of his interest are registered under the Land Registration Act, 1876.

VII (B.C.) of 1876.

Power to order them to appoint a manager if cause is not shown.

94. If the co-owners fail to show cause as aforesaid within one month after service of a notice under the last foregoing section, the District Judge may make an order directing them to appoint a common manager, and a copy of the order shall be served on any co-owner who did not appear before it was made. Managers.

Power to appoint manager if order is not obeyed.

95. If the co-owners do not, within such period, not being less than one month after the making of an order under the last foregoing section, as the District Judge may fix in this behalf, or, where the order has been served as directed by that section, within a like period after such service, appoint a common manager and report the appointment for the information of the District Judge, the District Judge may, unless it is shown to his satisfaction that there is a prospect of a satisfactory arrangement being made within a reasonable time,—

(a) direct that the estate or tenure be managed by the Court of Wards in any case in which the Court of Wards consents to undertake the management thereof; or

(b) in any case appoint a manager.

Power to nominate person to act in all cases under clause (b) of last section.

96. The Local Government may nominate a person for any local area to manage all estates and tenures within that local area for which it may be necessary to appoint a manager under clause (b) of the last foregoing section; and, when any person has been so nominated, no other person shall be appointed manager under that clause by the District Judge, unless in the case of any estate the Judge thinks fit to appoint one of the co-owners themselves as manager.

The Court of Wards Act, 1879, applicable to management by Court of Wards.

97. In any case in which the Court of Wards undertakes under section 95 the management of an estate or tenure, so much of the provisions of the Court of Wards Act, 1879, as relates to the management of immoveable property shall apply to the management. IX (B.C.) of 1879.

Provisions applicable to manager.

98. (1) A manager appointed under section 95 may, if the District Judge thinks fit, be remunerated by a fixed salary or percentage of the money collected by him as manager, or partly in one way and partly in the other, as the District Judge from time to time directs.

(2) He shall give such security for the proper discharge of his duties as the District Judge directs.

(3) He shall, subject to the control of the District Judge, have, for the purposes of management, the same powers as the co-owners jointly might but for his appointment have exercised, and the co-owners shall not exercise any such power.

Managers.

(4) He shall deal with and distribute the profits in accordance with the orders of the District Judge.

(5) He shall keep regular accounts, and allow the co-owners or any of them to inspect and take copies of those accounts.

(7) He may make any application which the proprietors could make under section 103.

99. When an estate or tenure has been placed under the management of the Court of Wards, or a manager has been appointed for the same under section 95, the District Judge may at any time direct that the management of it be restored to the co-owners, if he is satisfied that the management will be conducted by them without inconvenience to the public or injury to private rights.

Power to make rules.

100. The High Court may, from time to time, make rules defining the powers and duties of managers under the foregoing sections.

CHAPTER X.

RECORD-OF-RIGHTS AND SETTLEMENT OF RENTS.

Power to order survey and preparation of record-of-rights.

101. (1) The Local Government may, in any case with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, and may, if it thinks fit, without such sanction in any of the cases next hereinafter mentioned, make an order directing that a survey be made, and a record-of-rights be prepared, in respect of the lands in a local area by a Revenue-officer.

(2) The cases in which an order may be made under this section without the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council are the following (namely):—

(a) where the landlord or a large proportion of the landlords or of the tenants applies for such an order and deposits, or gives security for, such amount, for the payment of expenses, as the Local Government directs;

(b) where the preparation of such a record is calculated to settle or avert a serious dispute existing or likely to arise between the tenants and their landlords generally;

(c) where the local area is comprised in an estate or tenure which belongs to or is managed by the Government or the Court of Wards; and

(d) where a settlement of revenue is being made in respect of the local area.

(3) A notification in the official Gazette of an order under this section shall be conclusive evidence that the order has been duly made.

103. On the application of a proprietor or tenure-holder, and on his depositing or giving security for the required amount for expenses, a Revenue-officer may, subject to and in accordance with rules made in this behalf by the Local Government, ascertain and record the particulars specified in the last foregoing section with respect to the estate or tenure or any part thereof.

Procedure as to recording or settling rents.

104. (1) When, in any proceeding under this chapter, it does not appear that the tenant is holding land in excess of or less than that for which he is paying rent, and neither the landlord nor the tenant applies for a settlement of rent, the officer shall record the rent payable by the tenant, and the land in respect of which the rent is payable.

(2) When it appears that a tenant is holding land in excess of, or less than, that for which he is paying rent, or either the landlord or the tenant applies for a settlement of rent, or in any case under section 101, sub-section (2), clause (d), the officer shall settle a fair and equitable rent in respect of the land held by the tenant.

(3) In settling rents under this section, the officer shall presume, until the contrary is proved, that the existing rent is fair and equitable, and shall have regard to the rules laid down in this Act for the guidance of the Civil Court in increasing or reducing rents, as the case may be.

Publication of record.

105. (1) When the Revenue-officer has completed a record made under this chapter, he shall cause a draft thereof to be locally published in the prescribed manner and for the prescribed period, and shall receive and consider any objection which may be made to any entry therein during the period of publication.

(2) After the expiration of this period the Revenue-officer shall finally frame the record, and shall cause it to be locally published in the prescribed manner, and the publication shall be conclusive evidence that the record has been duly made under this chapter.

Procedure in case of dispute as to entries in record.

106. If at any time before the final publication of the record under the last foregoing section a dispute arises as to the correctness of any entry (not being an entry of a rent settled under this chapter), or as to the propriety of any omission, which the Revenue-officer proposes to make or has made therein or therefrom, the Revenue-officer shall hear and decide the dispute.

Procedure to be adopted by Revenue-officer.

107. In all proceedings for the settlement of rents under this chapter, and in all proceedings under the last foregoing section, the Revenue-officer shall, subject to rules made by the Local Government under this Act, adopt the procedure laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure for the trial of suits, and his decision in every such proceeding shall have the force of a decree.

XIV of 1882.

(3) Subject to the provisions of Chapter XLII of the Code of Civil Procedure, an appeal shall lie to the High Court from the decision of a Special Judge in any case under section 106 as if he were a Court subordinate to the High Court within the meaning of the first section of that chapter:

XIV of 1882.

Provided that, if in a second appeal the High Court alters the decision of the Special Judge in respect of any of the particulars with reference to which the rent of any tenure or holding has been settled, the Court may settle a new rent for the tenure or holding, but in so doing shall be guided by the rents of the other tenures or holdings of the same class comprised in the same record as ascertained or settled under section 104.

Undisputed entries in record to be presumptive evidence.

109. (1) Every record made under this chapter shall distinguish between the disputed and the undisputed entries therein.

(2) Every undisputed entry in the record shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is proved.

Time at which settlement of rent is to take effect.

110. When any rent is settled under this chapter, the settlement shall take effect from the beginning of the agricultural year next after the final publication of the record.

Stay of proceedings in Civil Court during preparation of record.

111. When an order has been made under section 101,—

(a) a Civil Court shall not, until the final publication of the record, entertain a suit or application for the alteration of the rent or the determination of the status of any tenant in the area to which the order applies; and

(b) the High Court may, if it thinks fit, transfer to the Revenue-officer any proceedings pending in a Civil Court for the alteration of any such rent or for the determination of any of the matters specified or referred to in section 102.

Power to authorise a special settlement in special cases.

112. (1) The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, on being satisfied that the exercise of the powers hereinafter mentioned is necessary in the interests of public order or of the local welfare, invest a Revenue-officer acting under this chapter with the following powers or either of them, namely:—

(a) power to settle all rents;

(b) power, when settling rents, to reduce rents if in the opinion of the officer the maintenance of existing rents would on any ground, whether specified in this Act or not, be unfair or inequitable.

(2) The powers given under this section may be made exerciseable within a specified area either generally or with reference to specified cases or classes of cases.

(3) When the Local Government takes any action under this section, the settlement-record prepared by the Revenue-officer shall not take effect until it has been finally confirmed by the Governor General in Council.

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chaper XI.—Record of Proprietors' Private Lands.—Secs. 113—120.)
(Chapter XII.—Distraint.—Sec. 121.)

113. When the rent of a tenure or holding is settled under this chapter, it shall not, except on the ground of a landlord's improvement or of a subsequent alteration in the area of the tenure or holding, be enhanced, in the case of a tenure or an occupancy-holding for fifteen years, and, in the case of a non-occupancy-holding, if the rent is settled in any case under section 112 or on the application of the landlord under section 104, for five years. The periods of fifteen and five years shall be counted from the date of the final publication of the record.

Period for which rents as settled are to remain unaltered.

114. Where an order is made under this chapter in any case except under section 101, sub-section (2), clause (d), the expenses incurred by the Government in carrying out the provisions of this chapter in any local area, or such part of those expenses as the Local Government may direct, shall be defrayed by the landlords and tenants of land in that local area, in such proportions as the Local Government, having regard to all the circumstances of each case, may determine; and the proportion of those expenses so to be defrayed by any person shall be recoverable by the Government from him as if it were an arrear of revenue due by him.

Expenses of proceedings under chapter.

115. When the particulars mentioned in section 102, clause (b), have been recorded under this chapter in respect of any tenancy, the presumption under section 50 shall not thereafter apply to that tenancy.

Presumption as to fixity of rent not to apply where record has been prepared.

CHAPTER XI.

RECORD OF PROPRIETORS' PRIVATE LANDS.

116. Nothing in Chapter V shall confer a right of occupancy in, and nothing in Chapter VI shall apply to, a proprietor's private lands known in Bengal as khámár, nij or nij-jot, and in Behar as zirát, nij, sír or kamat, where any such land is held under a lease for a term of years or under a lease from year to year.

Saving as to khámár land.

Power for Government to order survey and record of proprietor's private lands.

118. In the case of any land alleged to be a proprietor's private land, on the application of the proprietor or of any tenant of the land, and on his depositing the required amount for expenses, a Revenue-officer may, subject to and in accordance with rules made in this behalf by the Local Government, ascertain and record whether the land is or is not a proprietor's private land.

Power for Revenue-officer to record private land on application of proprietor or tenant.

119. When a Revenue-officer proceeds under either of the two last foregoing sections, the provisions of sections 105 to 109, both inclusive, shall apply.

Procedure for recording private land.

120. (1) The Revenue-officer shall record as a proprietor's private land—

Rules for determination of proprietor's private land.

(a) land which is proved to have been cultivated as khámár, zirát, sír, nij, nij-jot or kamat by the proprietor himself with his own stock or by his own servants or by hired labour for twelve continuous years immediately before the passing of this Act, and

(b) cultivated land which is recognized by village usage as proprietor's khámár, zirát, sír, nij, nij-jot or kamat.

(2) In determining whether any other land ought to be recorded as a proprietor's private land, the officer shall have regard to local custom, and to the question whether the land was before the second day of March, 1883, specifically let as proprietor's private land, and to any other evidence that may be produced; but shall presume that land is not a proprietor's private land until the contrary is shown.

(3) If any question arises in a Civil Court as to whether land is or is not a proprietor's private land, the Court shall have regard to the rules laid down in this section for the guidance of Revenue-officers.

CHAPTER XII.

DISTRAINT.

121. Where an arrear of rent is due to the landlord of a raiyat or under-raiyat, and has not been due for more than a year, and no security has been accepted therefor by the landlord, the landlord may, in addition to any other remedy to which he is entitled by law, present an application to the Civil Court requesting the Court to recover the arrear by distraining, while in the possession of the cultivator,—

Cases in which an application for distraint may be made.

(a) any crops or other products of the earth standing or ungathered on the holding;

(b) any crops or other products of the earth which have been grown on the holding and have been reaped or gathered and are deposited on the holding, or on a threshing-floor or place for treading out grain, or the like, whether in the fields or within a homestead:

(Chapter XII.—Distraint.—Secs. 122-126.)

VII (B.C.) of 1876.

(1) by a proprietor or manager as defined under the Land Registration Act, 1876, or a mortgagee of such a proprietor or manager, unless his name and the extent of his interest in the land in respect of which the arrear is due have been registered under the provisions of that Act; or

(2) for the recovery of any sum in excess of the rent payable for the holding in the preceding agricultural year, unless that sum is payable under a written contract or in consequence of a proceeding under this Act or an enactment hereby repealed; or

(e) the nature and approximate value of the produce to be distrained;

(f) the place where it is to be found, or such other particulars as may suffice for its identification; and

(g) if it is standing or ungathered, the time at which it is likely to be cut or gathered.

(3) Where a Court cannot forthwith admit or reject an application under sub-section (2), it may, if it thinks fit, make an order prohibiting the removal of the produce specified in the application pending the execution of an order for distraining the same or the rejection of the application.

(4) When an order for distraining any produce is made under this section at a considerable time before the produce is likely to be cut or gathered, the Court may suspend the execution of the order for such time as it thinks fit, and may, if it thinks fit, make a further order prohibiting the removal of the produce pending the execution of the order for distraint.

124. If an application is admitted under the last foregoing section, the Court shall depute an officer to distrain the produce specified therein, or such portion of that produce as it thinks fit; and the officer shall proceed to the place where the produce is, and distrain the produce by taking charge of it himself or placing some other person in charge of it in his behalf, and publishing a notification of the distraint in accordance with rules to that effect to be made by the High Court:

Execution of order for distraint.

Provided that produce which from its nature does not admit of being stored shall not be distrained under this section at any time less than twenty days before the time when it would be fit for reaping or gathering.

125. (1) The distraining officer shall, at the time of making the distraint, serve on the defaulter a written demand for the arrear due, and the costs incurred in making the distraint, with an account exhibiting the grounds on which the distraint is made.

Service of demand and account.

(2) Where the distraining officer has reason to believe that a person other than the defaulter is the owner of the property distrained, he shall serve copies of the demand and account on that person likewise.

(3) The demand and account shall, if practicable, be served personally; but if a person on whom they are to be served absconds or conceals himself, or cannot otherwise be found, the officer shall affix copies of the demand and account on a conspicuous part of the outside of the house in which he usually resides.

126. (1) A distraint under this chapter shall not prevent any person from reaping, gathering or storing any produce, or doing any other act necessary for its due preservation.

Right to reap, &c., produce.

(2) If the person entitled to do so fails to do so at the proper time, the distraining officer shall cause any standing crops or ungathered products

distrained to be reaped or gathered when ripe, and stored in such granaries or other places as are commonly used for the purpose, or in some other convenient place in the neighbourhood, or shall do whatever else may be necessary for the due preservation of the same.

(3) In either case the distrained property shall remain in the charge of the distraining officer, or of some other person appointed by him in this behalf.

Sale proclamation to issued unless demand is satisfied.

127. (1) Unless the demand, with all costs of the distraint, be immediately satisfied, the distraining officer shall issue a proclamation specifying the particulars of the property distrained and the demand for which it is distrained, and notifying that he will, at a place and on a day specified, not being less than three or more than seven days after the time of making the distraint, sell the distrained property by public auction:

Provided that when the crops or products distrained from their nature admit of being stored but have not yet been stored, the day of the sale shall be so fixed as to admit of their being made ready for storing before its arrival.

(2) The proclamation shall be stuck up on a conspicuous place in the village in which the land is situate for which the arrears of rent are claimed.

Place of sale.

128. The sale shall be held at the place where the distrained property is, or at the nearest place of public resort if the distraining officer is of opinion that it is likely to sell there to better advantage.

When produce may be sold standing.

129. (1) Crops or products which from their nature admit of being stored shall not be sold before they are reaped or gathered and are ready for storing.

(2) Crops or products which from their nature do not admit of being stored may be sold before they are reaped or gathered, and the purchaser shall be entitled to enter on the land by himself, or by any person appointed by him in this behalf, and do all that is necessary for the purpose of tending and reaping or gathering them.

Manner of sale.

130. The property shall be sold by public auction, in one or more lots as the officer holding the sale may think advisable; and if the demand, with the costs of distraint and sale, is satisfied by the sale of a portion of the property, the distraint shall be immediately withdrawn with respect to the remainder.

Postponement of sale.

131. If, on the property being put up for sale, a fair price (in the estimation of the officer holding the sale) is not offered for it, and if the owner of the property, or a person authorised to act in his behalf, applies to have the sale postponed till the next day, or (if a market is held at the place of sale) the next market-day, the sale shall be postponed until that day, and shall be then completed, whatever price may be offered for the property.

Payment of purchase-money.

132. The price of every lot shall be paid at the time of sale, or as soon thereafter as the officer holding the sale directs, and in default of such payment the property shall be put up again and sold.

Certificate to be given to purchaser.

133. When the purchase-money has been paid in full, the officer holding the sale shall give the purchaser a certificate describing the property purchased by him and the price paid.

Proceeds of sale how to be applied.

134. (1) From the proceeds of every sale of distrained property under this chapter, the officer holding the sale shall pay the costs of the distraint and sale, calculated on a scale of charges prescribed by rules to be made, from time to time, by the Local Government in this behalf.

(2) The remainder shall be applied to the discharge of the arrear for which the distress was made, with interest thereon up to the day of sale; and the surplus (if any) shall be paid to the person whose property has been sold.

Certain persons may not purchase.

135. Officers holding sales of property under this Act, and all persons employed by, or subordinate to, such officers, are prohibited from purchasing, either directly or indirectly, any property sold by such officers.

Procedure where demand is paid before the sale.

136. (1) If at any time after a distraint has been made under this chapter, and before the sale of the distrained property, the defaulter, or the owner of the distrained property where he is not the defaulter, deposits in the Court issuing the order of distraint, or in the hands of the distraining officer, the amount specified in the demand served under section 125, with all costs which may have been incurred after the service of the demand, the Court or officer, as the case may be, shall grant a receipt for the same and the distraint shall forthwith be withdrawn.

(2) When the distraining officer receives the deposit, he shall forthwith pay it into the Court.

(3) A receipt granted under this section to an owner of distrained property not being the defaulter shall afford a full protection to him against any subsequent claim for the arrears of rent on account of which the distraint was made.

(4) After the expiration of one month from the date of a deposit being made under this section,

(Chapter XII.—Distraint.—Secs. 137-142.)

the Court shall pay therefrom to the applicant for distraint the amount due to him, unless in the meanwhile the owner of the property distrained has instituted a suit against the applicant contesting the legality of the distraint and claiming compensation in respect of the same.

(5) A landlord shall not be deemed to have consented to his tenant's sub-letting the holding or any part thereof merely by reason of his having received an amount deposited under this section by an inferior tenant.

Amount paid by under-tenant for his lessor may be deducted from rent.

137. (1) When an inferior tenant, on his property being lawfully distrained under this chapter for the default of a superior tenant, makes any payment under the last foregoing section, he shall be entitled to deduct the amount of that payment from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord, and that landlord, if he is not the defaulter, shall in like manner be entitled to deduct the amount so deducted from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord, and so on until the defaulter is reached.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of an inferior tenant making a payment under the last foregoing section to institute a suit for the recovery from the defaulter of any portion of the amount paid which he has not deducted under this section.

Conflict between rights of superior and inferior landlords.

138. When land is sub-let, and any conflict arises under this chapter between the rights of a superior and of an inferior landlord who distrain the same property, the right of the superior landlord shall prevail.

Distraint of property which is under attachment.

139. When any conflict arises between an order for distraint issued under this chapter and an order issued by a Civil Court for the attachment or sale of the property which is the subject of the distraint, the order for distraint shall prevail; but, if the property is sold under that order, the surplus proceeds of the sale shall not be paid under section 134 to the owner of the property without the sanction of the Court by which the order of attachment or sale was issued.

Suit for compensation for wrongful distraint.

140. No appeal shall lie from any order passed by a Civil Court under this chapter; but any person whose property is distrained on an application made under section 121 in any case in which such an application is not permitted by that section may institute a suit against the applicant for the recovery of compensation.

Power for Local Government to authorize distraint in certain cases.

141. (1) When the Local Government is of opinion that in any local area or in any class of cases it would, by reason of the character of the cultivation or the habits of the cultivators, be impracticable for a landlord to realize his rent by an application under this chapter, to the Civil Court, it may, from time to time, by order, authorize the landlord to distrain, by himself or his agent, any produce for the distraint of which he would be entitled to apply under this chapter to the Civil Court:

Provided that every person distraining any produce under such authorization shall proceed in the manner prescribed by section 124, and shall forthwith give notice, in such form as the High Court may, by rule, prescribe, to the Civil Court having jurisdiction to entertain an application for distraining the produce, and that Court shall, with no avoidable delay, depute an officer to take charge of the produce distrained.

(2) When an officer of the Court has taken charge of any distrained produce under this section, the proceedings shall thereafter be conducted in all respects as if he had distrained it under section 124.

(3) The Local Government may at any time rescind any order made by it under this section.

Power for High Court to make rules.

142. The High Court may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Act for regulating the procedure in all cases under this chapter.

CHAPTER XIII.

JUDICIAL PROCEDURE.

Power to modify Civil Procedure Code in its application to landlord and tenant suits.

143. (1) The High Court may, from time to time, with the approval of the Governor General in Council, make rules consistent with this Act declaring that any portions of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to suits between landlord and tenant as such or to any specified classes of such suits, or shall apply to them subject to modifications specified in the rules.

(2) Subject to any rules so made, and subject also to the other provisions of this Act, the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply to all such suits. XIV of 1882

Jurisdiction in proceedings under Act.

144. (1) The cause of action in all suits between landlord and tenant as such shall, for the purposes of the Code of Civil Procedure, be deemed to have arisen within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Civil Court which would have jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the possession of the tenure or holding in connection with which the suit is brought.

(2) When under this Act a Civil Court is authorized to make an order on the application of a landlord or a tenant, the application shall be made to the Court which would have jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the possession of the tenure or holding in connection with which the application is brought.

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter XIII.—Judicial Procedure.—Secs. 145-151.)

145. Every náib or gumáshta of a landlord empowered in this behalf by a written authority under the hand of the landlord shall, for the purposes of every such suit or application, be deemed to be the recognized agent of the landlord within the meaning of the Code of Civil Procedure, notwithstanding that the landlord may reside within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court in which the suit is to be instituted or is pending, or in which the application is made.

Náibs or gumáshtas to be recognized agents.

XIV of 1882.

146. The particulars referred to in section 58 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall, in the case of such suits, instead of being entered in the register of civil suits prescribed by that section, be entered in a special register to be kept by each Civil Court, in such form as the Local Government may, from time to time, prescribe in this behalf.

XIV of 1882.

Special register of suits.

147. Subject to the provisions of section 373 of the Code of Civil Procedure, where a landlord has instituted a suit against a raiyat for the recovery of any rent of his holding, the landlord shall not institute another suit against him for the recovery of any rent of that holding until after three months from the date of the institution of the previous suit.

XIV of 1882.

Successive rent-suits.

Procedure in rent-suits.

148. The following rules shall apply to suits for the recovery of rent:—

(a) sections 121 to 127 (both inclusive), 129, 305, and 320 to 326 (both inclusive) of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to any such suit:

XIV of 1882.

(b) the plaint shall contain, in addition to the particulars specified in section 50 of the Code of Civil Procedure, a statement of the situation, designation, extent and boundaries of the land held by the tenant; or, where the plaintiff is unable to give the extent or boundaries, in lieu thereof a description sufficient for identification:

XIV of 1882.

(c) the summons shall be for the final disposal of the suit, unless the Court is of opinion that the summons should be for the settlement of issues only:

(d) the service of the summons may, if the High Court by rule, either generally, or specially for any local area, so directs, be effected, either in addition to, or in substitution for, any other mode of service, by forwarding the summons by post in a letter addressed to the defendant and registered under Part III of the Indian Post Office Act, 1866;

when a summons is so forwarded in a letter, and it is proved that the letter was duly posted and registered, the Court may presume that the summons has been duly served:

(e) a written statement shall not be filed without the leave of the Court:

(f) the rules for recording the evidence of witnesses prescribed by section 189 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply, whether an appeal is allowed or not: XIV of 1882.

(g) the Court may, when passing the decree, order on the oral application of the decree-holder the execution thereof, unless it is a decree for ejectment for arrears:

(h) notwithstanding anything contained in section 232 of the Code of Civil Procedure, an application for the execution of a decree for arrears obtained by a landlord shall not be made by an assignee of the decree unless the landlord's interest in the land has become and is vested in him.

149. (1) When a defendant admits that money is due from him on account of rent, but pleads that it is due not to the plaintiff but to a third person, the Court shall, except for special reasons to be recorded in writing, refuse to take cognizance of the plea unless the defendant pays into Court the amount so admitted to be due.

Payment into Court of money admitted to be due to third person.

(2) Where such a payment is made, the Court shall forthwith cause notice of the payment to be served on the third person.

(3) Unless the third person within three months from the receipt of the notice institutes a suit against the plaintiff and therein obtains an order restraining payment out of the money, it shall be paid out to the plaintiff on his application.

(4) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of any person to recover from the plaintiff money paid to him under sub-section (3).

150. When a defendant admits that money is due from him to the plaintiff on account of rent, but pleads that the amount claimed is in excess of the amount due, the Court shall, except for special reasons to be recorded in writing, refuse to take cognizance of the plea unless the defendant pays into Court the amount so admitted to be due.

Payment into Court of money admitted to be due to landlord.

151. When a defendant is liable to pay money into Court under either of the two last foregoing sections, if the Court thinks that there are sufficient reasons for so ordering, it may take cognizance of the defendant's plea on his paying into Court such reasonable portion of the money as the Court directs.

Provision as to payment of portion of money.

(Chapter XIII.—Judicial Procedure.—Secs. 152-156.)

152. When a defendant pays money into Court under either of the said sections, the Court shall give the defendant a receipt, and the receipt so given shall operate as an acquittance in the same manner and to the same extent as if it had been given by the plaintiff or the third person as the case may be.

Court to grant receipt.

153. An appeal shall not lie from any decree or order passed, whether in the first instance or on appeal, in any suit instituted by a landlord for the recovery of rent where—

Appeals in rent-suits.

(a) the decree or order is passed by a District Judge, Additional Judge or Subordinate Judge, and the amount claimed in the suit does not exceed one hundred rupees, or unless in either case the decree or order has decided a question relating to title to land or to some interest in land as between parties having conflicting claims thereto, or a question of a right to enhance or vary the rent of a tenant, or a question of the amount of rent annually payable by a tenant:

Provided that the District Judge may call for the record of any case in which a judicial officer as aforesaid has passed a decree or order to which this section applies, if it appears that the judicial officer has exercised a jurisdiction not vested in him by law, or has failed to exercise a jurisdiction so vested, or has acted in the exercise of his jurisdiction illegally or with material irregularity; and may pass such order as the District Judge thinks fit.

154. A decree for enhancement of rent under this Act, if passed in a suit instituted in the first eight months of an agricultural year, shall ordinarily take effect on the commencement of the agricultural year next following; and, if passed in a suit instituted in the last four months of the agricultural year, shall ordinarily take effect on the commencement of the agricultural year next but one following; but nothing in this section shall prevent the Court from fixing, for special reasons, a later date from which any such decree shall take effect.

Date from which decree for enhancement takes effect.

155. (1) A suit for the ejectment of a tenant, on the ground—

Relief against forfeitures.

(a) that he has used the land in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or shall not be entertained unless the landlord has served, in the prescribed manner, a notice on the tenant specifying the particular misuse or breach complained of, and, where the misuse or breach is capable of remedy, requiring the tenant to remedy the same, and, in any case, to pay reasonable compensation for the misuse or breach, and the tenant has failed to comply within a reasonable time with that request.

(2) A decree passed in favour of a landlord in any such suit shall declare the amount of compensation which would reasonably be payable to the plaintiff for the misuse or breach, and whether, in the opinion of the Court, the misuse or breach is capable of remedy, and shall fix a period during which it shall be open to the defendant to pay that amount to the plaintiff, and, where the misuse or breach is declared to be capable of remedy, to remedy the same.

(3) The Court may, from time to time, for special reasons, extend a period fixed by it under sub-section (2).

(4) If the defendant, within the period or extended period (as the case may be) fixed by the Court under this section, pays the compensation mentioned in the decree, and, where the misuse or breach is declared by the Court to be capable of remedy, remedies the misuse or breach to the satisfaction of the Court, the decree shall not be executed.

156. The following rules shall apply in the case of every raiyat ejected from a holding:—

Rights of ejected raiyats in respect of crops and land prepared for sowing.

(a) when the raiyat has, before the date of his ejectment, sown or planted crops in any land comprised in the holding, he shall be entitled, at the option of the landlord, either to retain possession of that land and to use it for the purpose of tending and gathering in the crops, or to receive from the landlord the value of the crops as estimated by the Court executing the decree for ejectment;

(b) when the raiyat has, before the date of his ejectment, prepared for sowing any land comprised in his holding, but has not sown or planted crops in that land, he shall be entitled to receive from the landlord the value of the labour and capital expended by him in so preparing the land, as estimated by the Court executing the decree for ejectment, together with reasonable interest on that value;

(c) but a raiyat shall not be entitled to retain possession of any land or receive any sum in respect thereof under this section where, after the commencement of proceedings by the landlord for his ejectment, he has cultivated or prepared the land contrary to local usage;

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(d) if the landlord elects under this section to allow a raiyat to retain possession of the land, the raiyat shall pay to the landlord, for the use and occupation of the land during the period for which he is allowed to retain possession of the same, such rent as the Court executing the decree for ejectment may deem reasonable.

Power for Court to fix fair rent as alternative to ejectment.

157. When a plaintiff institutes a suit for the ejectment of a trespasser he may, if he thinks fit, claim as alternative relief that the defendant be declared liable to pay for the land in his possession a fair and equitable rent to be determined by the Court, and the Court may grant such relief accordingly.

Application to determine incidents of tenancy.

158. (1) The Court having jurisdiction to determine a suit for the possession of land may, on the application of either the landlord or the tenant of the land, determine all or any of the following matters, (namely) :—

(a) the situation, quantity and boundaries of the land;

(b) the name and description of the tenant thereof (if any);

(c) the class to which he belongs, that is to say, whether he is a tenure-holder, raiyat holding at fixed rates, occupancy-raiyat, non-occupancy-raiyat, or under-raiyat, and, if he is a tenure-holder, whether he is a permanent tenure-holder or not and whether his rent is liable to enhancement during the continuance of his tenure; and

(2) If, in the opinion of the Court, any of these matters cannot be satisfactorily determined without a local inquiry, the Court may direct that a local inquiry be held under Chapter XXV of the Code of Civil Procedure by such Revenue-officer as the Local Government may authorize in that behalf by rule made under section 392 of the said Code.

XIV of 1882.

(3) The order on any application under this section shall have the effect of, and be subject to the like appeal as, a decree.

CHAPTER XIV.

SALE FOR ARREARS UNDER DECREE.

General powers of purchaser as to avoidance of incumbrances.

159. Where a tenure or holding is sold in execution of a decree for arrears due in respect thereof, the purchaser shall take subject to the interests defined in this chapter as "protected interests", but with power to annul the interests defined in this chapter as "incumbrances":

(a) a registered and notified incumbrance within the meaning of this chapter shall not be so annulled except in the case hereinafter mentioned in that behalf;

(b) the power to annul shall be exercisable only in manner by this chapter directed.

Protected interests.

160. The following shall be deemed to be protected interests within the meaning of this chapter :—

(a) any under-tenure existing from the time of the Permanent Settlement;

(b) any under-tenure recognized by the settlement-proceedings of any current temporary settlement as a tenure at a rent fixed for the period of that settlement;

(c) any lease of land whereon dwelling-houses, manufactories or other permanent buildings have been erected, or permanent gardens, plantations, tanks, canals, places of worship or burning or burying grounds have been made;

(d) any right of occupancy;

(e) the right of a non-occupancy-raiyat to hold for five years at a rent fixed under Chapter VI by a Court, or under Chapter X by a Revenue-officer;

(f) any right conferred on an occupancy-raiyat to hold at a rent which was a fair and reasonable rent at the time the right was conferred; and

(g) any right or interest which the landlord at whose instance the tenure or holding is sold, or his predecessor in title, has expressly and in writing given the tenant for the time being permission to create.

Meaning of "incumbrance" and "registered and notified incumbrance."

161. For the purposes of this chapter—

(a) the term "incumbrance", used with reference to a tenancy, means any lien, sub-tenancy, easement or other right or interest created by the tenant on his tenure or holding or in limitation of his own interest therein, and not being a protected interest as defined in the last foregoing section;

(b) the term "registered and notified incumbrance", used with reference to a tenure or holding sold or liable to sale in execution of a decree for an arrear of rent due in respect thereof, means an incumbrance created by a registered instrument of which a copy has, not less than three months before the accrual of the arrear, been served on the landlord in manner hereinafter provided.

Application for sale of tenure or holding.

162. When a decree has been passed for an arrear of rent due for a tenure or holding, and the decree-holder applies under section 235 of the Code of Civil Procedure for the attachment and sale of the tenure or holding in execution of the decree, he shall produce a statement showing the parganá, estate and village in which the land comprised in the tenure or holding is situate, the yearly rent payable for the same and the total amount recoverable under the decree.

XIV of 1882.

163. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Civil Procedure, when the decree-holder makes the application mentioned in the last foregoing section, the Court shall, if under section 245 of the said Code it admits the application and orders execution of the decree as applied for, issue simultaneously the order of attachment and the proclamation required by section 287 of the said Code.

(2) The proclamation shall, in addition to stating and specifying the particulars mentioned in section 287 of the said Code, announce—

(a) in the case of a tenure or a holding of a raiyat holding at fixed rates, that the tenure or holding will first be put up to auction subject to the registered and notified incumbrances, and will be sold subject to those incumbrances if the sum bid is sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs, and that otherwise it will, if the decree-holder so desires, be sold on a subsequent day, of which due notice will be given, with power to annul all incumbrances; and

(b) in the case of an occupancy-holding, that the holding will be sold with power to annul all incumbrances.

(3) The proclamation shall, besides being made in the manner prescribed by section 289 of the said Code, be published by fixing up a copy thereof in a conspicuous place on the land comprised in the tenure or holding ordered to be sold, and shall also be published in such manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct in this behalf.

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 290 of the said Code, the sale shall not, without the consent in writing of the judgment-debtor, take place until after the expiration of at least thirty days, calculated from the date on which the copy of the proclamation has been fixed up on the land comprised in the tenure or holding ordered to be sold.

Sale of tenure or holding subject to registered and notified incumbrances, and effect thereof.

164. (1) When a tenure or a holding at fixed rates has been advertised for sale under the last foregoing section, it shall be put up to auction, subject to registered and notified incumbrances; and, if the bidding reaches a sum sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs, including the costs of sale, the tenure or holding shall be sold subject to such incumbrances.

(2) The purchaser at a sale under this section may, in manner provided by section 167, and not otherwise, annul any incumbrance upon the tenure or holding not being a registered and notified incumbrance.

Sale of tenure or holding with power to avoid all incumbrances, and effect thereof.

165. (1) If the bidding for a tenure or a holding at fixed rates put up to auction under the last foregoing section does not reach a sum sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs as aforesaid, and if the decree-holder thereupon desires that the tenure or holding be sold with power to avoid all incumbrances, the officer holding the sale shall adjourn the sale and make a fresh proclamation under section 289 of the Code of Civil Procedure, announcing that the tenure or holding will be put up to auction and sold with power to avoid all incumbrances upon a future day specified therein, not less than fifteen or more than thirty days from the date of the postponement; and upon that day the tenure or holding shall be put up to auction and sold with power to avoid all incumbrances.

(2) The purchaser at a sale under this section may, in manner provided by section 167, and not otherwise, annul any incumbrance on the tenure or holding.

Sale of occupancy-holding with power to avoid all incumbrances, and effect thereof.

166. (1) When an occupancy-holding has been advertised for sale under section 163, it shall be put up to auction and sold with power to avoid all incumbrances.

(2) The purchaser at a sale under this section may, in manner provided by the next following section, and not otherwise, annul any incumbrance on the holding.

Procedure for annulling incumbrances under the foregoing sections.

167. (1) A purchaser having power to annul an incumbrance under any of the foregoing sections and desiring to annul the same, may, within one year from the date of the sale or the date on which he first has notice of the incumbrance, whichever is later, present to the Collector an application in writing, requesting him to serve on the incumbrancer a notice declaring that the incumbrance is annulled.

(2) Every such application must be accompanied by such fee for the service of the notice as the Board of Revenue may fix in this behalf.

(3) When an application for service of a notice is made to the Collector in manner prescribed by this section, he shall cause the notice to be served in compliance therewith, and the incumbrance shall be deemed to be annulled from the date on which it is so served.

(4) When a tenure or holding is sold in execution of a decree for arrears due in respect thereof, and there is on the tenure or holding a protected interest of the kind specified in section 160, clause (c), the purchaser may, if he has power under this chapter to avoid all incumbrances, sue to enhance the rent of the land which is the subject of the protected interest. On proof that the land is held at a rent which was not at the time the lease was granted a fair rent, the Court may enhance the rent to such amount as appears to be fair and equitable.

This sub-section shall not apply to land which has been held for a term exceeding twelve years at a fixed rent equal to the rent of good arable land.

Bengal Tenancy Act.

(Chapter XIV.—Sale for Arrears under Decree.—Secs. 168-171.)

Power to direct that occupancy-holdings be dealt with under foregoing sections as tenures.

168. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, direct that occupancy-holdings or any specified class of occupancy-holdings in any local area put up for sale in execution of decrees for rent due on them shall, before being put up with power to avoid all incumbrances, be put up subject to registered and notified incumbrances, and may by like notification rescind any such direction.

(2) While any such direction remains in force in respect of any local area, all occupancy-holdings, or, as the case may be, occupancy-holdings of the specified class in that local area, shall, for the purposes of sale under the foregoing sections of this chapter, be treated in all respects as if they were tenures.

Rules for disposal of the sale-proceeds.

169. (1) In disposing of the proceeds of a sale under this chapter, the following rules, instead of those prescribed by section 295 of
XIV of 1882. the Code of Civil Procedure, shall be observed, that is to say:—

(a) there shall first be paid to the decree-holder the costs incurred by him in bringing the tenure or holding to sale;

(b) there shall, in the next place, be paid to the decree-holder the amount due to him under the decree in execution of which the sale was made;

(c) if there remains a balance after these sums have been paid, there shall be paid to the decree-holder therefrom any rent which may have fallen due to him in respect of the tenure or holding between the institution of the suit and the date of the sale;

(d) the balance (if any) remaining after the payment of the rent mentioned in clause (c) shall, upon the expiration of two months from the confirmation of the sale, be paid to the judgment-debtor upon his application.

(2) If the judgment-debtor disputes the decree-holder's right to receive any sum on account of rent under clause (c), the Court shall determine the dispute, and the determination shall have the force of a decree.

Tenure or holding to be released from attachment only on payment into Court of amount of decree with costs, or on confession of satisfaction by decree-holder.

170. (1) Sections 278 to
XIV of 1882. 283 (both inclusive) of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to a tenure or holding attached in execution of a decree for arrears due thereon.

(2) When an order for the sale of a tenure or holding in execution of such a decree has been made, the tenure or holding shall not be released from attachment unless, before it is knocked down to the auction-purchaser, the amount of the decree, including the costs decreed, together with the costs incurred in order to the sale, is paid into Court, or the decree-holder makes an application for the release of the tenure or holding on the ground that the decree has been satisfied out of Court.

(3) The judgment-debtor or any person having in the tenure or holding any interest voidable on the sale may pay money into Court under this section.

Amount paid into Court to prevent sale to be in certain cases a mortgage-debt on the tenure or holding.

171. (1) When any person having, in a tenure or holding advertised for sale under this chapter, an interest which would be avoidable upon the sale, pays into Court the amount requisite to prevent the sale,—

(a) the amount so paid by him shall be deemed to be a debt bearing interest at twelve per centum per annum and secured by a mortgage of the tenure or holding to him;

(b) his mortgage shall take priority of every other charge on the tenure or holding other than a charge for arrear of rent; and

(c) he shall be entitled to possession of the tenure or holding as mortgagee of the tenant, and to retain possession of it as such until the debt, with the interest due thereon, has been discharged.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect any other remedy to which any such person would be entitled.

Inferior tenant paying into Court may deduct from rent.

172. When a tenure or holding is advertised for sale under this chapter in execution of a decree against a superior tenant defaulting, and an inferior tenant, whose interest would be voidable upon the sale, pays money into Court in order to prevent the sale, he may, in addition to any other remedy provided for him by law, deduct the whole or any portion of the amount so paid from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord; and that landlord, if he is not the defaulter, may in like manner deduct the amount so deducted from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord, and so on until the defaulter is reached.

Amendment of section 18 of Bengal Act VII of 1878.

4. The duty now fixed by the Local Government under section 6 of the Indian Tariff Act, 1882, as leviable on spirit manufactured in all or any of the distilleries situate in the territories under its administration, or in any part of such territories, shall, in places in which the Excise Act, 1881, or the Bengal Excise Act, 1878, is in force, be deemed to be the duty fixed by the Local Government under sections 7 and 18 of those Acts, as amended by this Act, respectively. XI of 1882. XXII of 1881. Beng. Act VII of 1878.

Saving of duties already fixed under section 6 of Act XI of 1882.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE Government of Madras recently submitted a draft Bill to consolidate and amend the Abkari law of the Presidency of Madras, for sanction to its introduction in the local Legislative Council, and, on examination of its provisions, it was found that two clauses of one of its sections, imposing a duty on liquor, were, as applied to spirit, ultra vires of the local legislature, as the mode of fixing the excise duty on spirit is determined by section 6 of the Indian Tariff Act, 1882. It was also feared that the penultimate clause of the latter section, by keeping in force, under the authority of the Governor General's Legislative Council, an unexplored mass of law existing on the 10th March, 1882, might render other provisions of that Bill ultra vires.

This in itself would make it necessary that legislation should be resorted to in the Council of the Governor General in order to prevent the Madras Bill from being declared invalid; and as, moreover, section 6 of the Tariff Act must seriously hamper any local legislature contemplating legislation like that proposed by the Madras Government, it is proposed to repeal that section, leaving it to the Local Governments to deal with the mode of fixing the duties of excise on spirit, under the other enactments locally in force, subject, so far as any discretion is allowed to them by those enactments, to the general executive control of the Government of India.

The present Bill has accordingly been prepared. It first repeals section 6 of the Tariff Act except the last clause amending section 1 of Act XVI of 1863, which Act is still in force. It then amends section 7 of the Excise Act, 1881, and section 18 of the Bengal Excise Act, 1878, which at present contain references to the provisions of section 6 of the Tariff Act, by omitting these references and conferring on the Local Governments concerned power to fix the duty payable in respect of country spirit. Lastly, in order to prevent any question being raised as to the effect of the repeal of section 6 of the Tariff Act, the Bill declares that duties already fixed by the Local Government under section 6 of the Tariff Act shall be deemed to be duties fixed by the Local Government under sections 7 and 18 of the Excise Act, 1881, and the Bengal Excise Act, 1878, as amended by this Act, respectively.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Act II of 1860 declares certain parts (namely, sections 52, 53 and 54) of the English Passengers Act, 1855 (18 & 19 Vic., cap. 119) to be applicable to the carriage of passengers upon voyages from the ports of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay to the colonies of Mauritius, Jamaica, British Guiana, Trinidad, St. Lucia and Grenada, and from ports in British India to ports in the Red Sea or Persian Gulf. The colonies mentioned were the places to which emigration was then lawful. Since 1860, emigration to the colonies of Fiji, Natal, Réunion, St. Croix, Guadeloupe, Martinique, Dutch Guiana, St. Vincent, Nevis and St. Kitts has been sanctioned. With respect, however, to voyages to places not specified in Act II of 1860, that Act gives no power to any authority to recover expenses incurred in forwarding shipwrecked passengers to their destination and in maintaining them until they are so forwarded. At present, therefore, the voyages to which the Act does not apply are more numerous than those to which it does.

2. Again, the Act, as it stands at present, is, if strictly construed, inapplicable to the conditions under which emigration from India is usually conducted. Section 3 of the Act, following section 53 of the English Passengers Act, 1855, runs as follows:—"If any passenger * * * find himself within any colonial or foreign port or place other than that at which he may have contracted to land," &c. But as a rule, emigrants from India do not themselves contract with the owners or charterers of the vessels in which they emigrate. In all cases falling under the Indian Emigration Act VII of 1871 (or which may fall under the Indian Emigration Act XXI of 1883, when that Act is brought into force) the contract is made by a recruiter for the colony importing labour, under the supervision of the Protector of Emigrants. Emigrants despatched in this way are therefore technically excluded from the provisions of Act II of 1860. A similar difficulty appears to have arisen in England, and to have been met by an amendment of the law. Section 12 of the English Passengers Act Amendment Act, 1863 (26 & 27 Vic., cap. 51), repeals section 53 of the English Passengers Act, 1855, and section 15 of the former Act substitutes for the words "other than that at which he may have contracted to land" the words "other than that for which the ship was originally bound, or at which he or the Emigration Commissioners, or any public officer, or other person on his behalf, may have contracted that he should land".

3. These two defects in the Act came to notice in connection with the following occurrence. In the end of April last, the steamer Laleham, carrying emigrants from Calcutta to Dutch Guiana, grounded off Ceylon, and was compelled to land her passengers at Trincomalee. The Laleham returned to Calcutta, where she was examined by the Engineer-Surveyor to the port, and reported "unseaworthy and unfit to proceed to sea without serious danger to human life". The Agents of the Laleham at first proposed to substitute another vessel, but subsequently declined to do so, offering merely to have the Laleham repaired at Calcutta, and to fulfil her charter-party by re-embarking the coolies at Trincomalee and taking them on to Surinam.

The Advocate General of Bengal, on being consulted, was of opinion that no action could be taken under Act II of 1860, and that the matter would be governed by the charter-party. Surinam, he said, being in Dutch Guiana, is not a place to which Act II of 1860 applies. He thought further that the English Passengers Act Amendment Act, 1863, would be construed strictly, and according to such construction he did not think that the words of section 3 of Act II of 1860 would cover the break-down in a voyage to which that Act applied, in any case other than that in which the passenger had himself contracted.

Under these circumstances legislation seems desirable in order to bring Act II of 1860 into conformity with the amended provisions of the English Passengers Act Amendment Act, 1863.

The present Bill has accordingly been prepared. It repeals and re-enacts Act II of 1860 with the necessary amendments. Section 3 of the present Bill declares the subsequent provisions of the Bill (being parts of the English Passenger Act, 1855, as amended by the Passengers Act Amendment Act, 1863) to be applicable to all voyages to certain specified colonies and places, which are, in fact, the colonies and places to which under the existing law emigration is now lawful or is likely to be legalized; and in sections 5 and 6 the amendments made by the English Passengers Act Amendment Act, 1863, in sections 53 and 54 of the English Passengers Act, 1855 (which formed sections 3 and 4 of Act II of 1860) are incorporated with some slight modifications so as to adapt them to this country.

(4) Every rule made under this section shall be published in the Gazette of India, and the publication in the Gazette of India of a rule purporting to be made under the last foregoing section shall be conclusive evidence that it has been duly made.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

IT is proposed by this Bill (1) to establish a system of voluntary registration of births and deaths for the benefit of such classes of the community as would be likely to avail themselves of such registration, (2) to establish general registry offices for keeping registers of the births and deaths so registered, and of marriages registered under Act III of 1872 or the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872 (XV of 1872), and (3) to provide machinery for giving evidential value to certain existing registers of births, baptisms, deaths, burials and marriages, which have been kept under no law.

2. The subject of the registration of births and deaths among Europeans in India has been long under the consideration of the Government, whose attention has, moreover, been frequently directed to it by memorials from various Christian religious bodies urging very strongly the need for legislation.

3. The Indian Statute-book contains at present no general law for the registration of births and deaths. There are, indeed, enactments which provide for the registration of births and deaths within certain specified areas, principally municipalities and cantonments, but, in the first place, these enactments are strictly local in their nature, leaving the greater portion of the country unprovided for, and, in the next place, their provisions, being directed primarily to statistical purposes, are not of such a nature as to make the registers of births and deaths kept under them of value for purposes of evidence.

4. As to the numerous registers of baptisms and burials which are kept by ministers of religion in all parts of the country, it is doubtful how far they can be relied on for giving accurately the requisite particulars as to births and deaths, and most of them would, moreover, be inadmissible in evidence.

5. This being the state of the law, and considering the importance of the subject generally, and the memorials above referred to, and having regard to the fact that references are frequently made to the Secretary of State for India and to the Government of India for proof of age or of deaths in connection with questions involving large individual interests, such as rights to property, the Government of India is of opinion that it is expedient to enact a permissive law under which full facilities for registering births and deaths should be given to persons valuing unimpeachable evidence of these events.

6. As to the second object of the Bill, it is obvious that no system of registration of births and deaths can be complete or of practical value unless it provides for the establishment, at certain centres, of general offices where the information registered at the various local offices shall be collected and so arranged as to be readily available for public reference.

7. In this connection, the attention of the Government of India has been directed to the unsatisfactory nature of the system of registration of marriages under the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, and Act III of 1872.

Documentary evidence of all marriages under the former Act is, by the provisions of the Act or the orders thereunder, sent to the Secretary to the Local Government, who is also empowered to grant certified copies which are receivable in evidence. It would seem, therefore, at first sight, that nothing further was required. But, as a matter of fact, not only are no arrangements made for maintaining an index to the marriages the records of which are retained in the local Secretariat, but the greater portion of the marriage records which are received in the local Secretariat have, under section 81 of the Act and the orders in force, to be sent on in original to the Government of India in the Home Department for transmission to the Secretary of State; so that the greater number of the marriage records which reach the local Secretariat do not remain there for purposes of reference, and such as do remain are, owing to the absence of an index, practically valueless.

As to Act III of 1872, this Act makes no provision for the marriages solemnized under it being reported to any central authority. The marriage-certificate books for which it provides are retained by the Registrar, who is not even required to index them. Their value as records of the marriages to which they refer is accordingly much diminished.

8. The Government of India have, therefore, availed themselves of the opportunity of the proposed legislation for the registration of births and deaths to remove these defects in the marriage-registration law, by providing for general registry offices for keeping registers, not only of the births and deaths which may be registered under the proposed law, but also of marriages which may be registered under Act III of 1872 or the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872.

9. The present Bill extends (section 2) to the whole of British India, and, so far as regards subjects of Her Majesty, to the dominions of Princes and States in India in alliance with Her Majesty.

10. As there seems to be no way of utilizing for the special purposes in view the compulsory system of registration of births and deaths which is prescribed by the local laws referred to in paragraph 3 above, or of separating the registration of the limited classes affected by the Bill from that of the general population which is required under those laws, it has been found necessary to save the laws providing for the registration of births and deaths within particular local areas at present in force or which may hereafter be passed; and this is done by section 4. The result of this section will, therefore, be that the persons to whom the provisions of the Bill relating to the registration of births and deaths are applicable will be bound, as heretofore, to satisfy the statistical requirements of such local Acts, and will be at liberty to re-register births and deaths under the Bill for evidential purposes.

11. Chapter II provides (section 5) for the establishment by the Local Governments of general registry offices of births, deaths and marriages, and the appointment of Registrars General of Births, Deaths and Marriages. By section 6 indexes are to be kept at the general registry offices of all the certified copies of registers which may be sent to them under the Bill or under Act III of 1872 or the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872. These indexes (section 7) are to be open to public inspection, and copies of the entries in the certified copies of the registers to which they relate are to be given to all persons applying for them; and such copies are (section 8) to be admissible in evidence. By section 9 the Registrar General is given the superintendence of the Registrars of Births and Deaths.

12. Chapter III deals with the subject of registration of births and deaths. Section 10 defines the persons whose births and deaths are registrable as, in British India, the members of every race, sect or tribe to which the Indian Succession Act, 1865, applies and in respect of which an order under section 332 of that Act is not for the time being in force, and all persons professing the Christian religion, and in Native States all like persons who are British subjects. These provisions of the Bill will therefore, generally speaking, apply to East Indians, Jews, Armenians and Pársis as well as to Europeans and Native Christians. These are believed to be the only classes of persons in the country who are likely to avail themselves of the benefits of a law of this nature.

13. The chapter then provides for a registration establishment, empowering (sections 11 and 12) the Local Government in British India and the Governor General in Council in Native States to appoint either by name or by virtue of their office fit persons to be Registrars of Births and Deaths for definite local areas. It is proposed to appoint under the general powers given by these sections persons authorized or licensed to perform marriages under either Act III of 1872 or the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, and, in order to provide for the receipt of notices from persons who may prefer not to resort to the Marriage Registrars, other suitable persons, one of whom it is intended should be appointed for each local area for which a person who is also a Marriage Registrar is appointed. It is to the latter class of Registrars that sections 13 and 14, which lay down certain provisions as to the office of such

Registrars, and for the filling up temporary vacancies in the office of such Registrars, are intended to apply. Section 15 provides for the supply of register books and the preservation of records.

14. The chapter next treats of the mode of registration. It imposes (section 16) a duty on every Registrar of Births and Deaths to make an entry in his register book of all births and deaths of which notice may be given to him within the prescribed time and in the prescribed mode by a person authorized to give him such notice. It then (sections 17 and 18) specifies the persons who shall be authorized to give notice of births and deaths respectively.

Section 19 provides that the entry of the birth or death is to be signed by the person giving notice, and declares that until it is so signed the birth or death shall not be deemed to be registered. By section 20 every Registrar of Births and Deaths is required to give on application made at the time of registering any birth or death by the person giving notice of the same, and on payment by him of the prescribed fee, a certificate of having registered the birth or death.

Section 21 provides for the sending by every Registrar of Births and Deaths at prescribed intervals to the Registrar General of Births, Deaths and Marriages of certified copies of all entries in his register books. In the case of Registrars in British India, the copies are to be sent to the Registrar General within whose jurisdiction the local areas for which the Registrar is appointed is situate, an exception being made in the case of Registrars who are clergymen of the Churches of England, Rome and Scotland, who may send them to their ecclesiastical superiors to be forwarded by them to the Registrar General. In the case of Registrars in Native States, the copies are to be sent to such one of the Registrars General as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct in this behalf. Section 22 provides for searches, and grant of copies of entries in register books which shall be admissible in evidence.

15. Sections 23 and 24 prescribe penalties of imprisonment which may extend to three years and fine for wilfully giving false information to a Registrar of Births and Deaths, and of fine, which may extend to five hundred rupees, for Registrars of Births and Deaths omitting to enter births or deaths in the register or losing or injuring register books.

16. Lastly, section 25 prescribes the procedure by which errors in the form or substance of any entry in a register book of births and deaths may be corrected.

17. Chapter IV (sections 26 and 27) makes the amendments in Act III of 1872 and the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, which are necessary in order to make the provisions of these Acts fit in with the scheme of the Bill, under which certified copies of entries in the registers kept under these Acts are in future to be sent to the Registrar General of Births, Deaths and Marriages.

18. Chapter V deals with the last of the three subjects referred to in the first paragraph of this Statement. As noted above, registers of births or baptisms and deaths or burials are at present kept in all parts of the country by ministers of religion. Registers of marriages were also similarly kept before the marriage-registration law came into force. Most of these registers are, as the law now stands, inadmissible in evidence, and possibly many of them should never be admitted in evidence owing to the irregular manner in which they have been compiled. At the same time, others are probably fit for admission as public registers. Under these circumstances, it seems advisable to follow the analogy of what was done in England (see 3 & 4 Vic., c. 92) and provide a procedure under which such of these registers as are worthy of recognition may be validated and certified copies of entries made in them declared admissible in evidence. This is accordingly done by Chapter V.

19. That chapter first (section 28) declares that any person having custody of any such records may, within one year from the date on which the Bill comes into force, send them to the Registrar General of Births, Deaths and Marriages for the territories within which the person resides, or, if he resides in a Native State, to such one of those Registrars General as the Governor General in Council, by notification, directs. It then (section 29) provides for the appointment by the Governor General in Council of Commissioners to examine the registers so sent to the various Registrars General, and prescribes (section 30) the duties of the Commissioners, which are to inquire into the state, custody and authenticity of every register submitted to them, and to prepare lists of all such registers or portions of registers as they find to be accurate and faithful, and to certify upon some part of every book or volume containing any such register or portion of a register as is referred to in any such list that it is one of the registers referred to in the list. Section 31 permits, on payment of a fee, searches to be made of the lists so prepared, and provides for the grant of certified copies of the entries in the registers which shall be admissible in evidence.

20. Finally, Chapter VI (sections 32 and 33) empowers the Governor General in Council to make rules with regard to certain matters connected with the purposes of the Act, and prescribes the usual procedure for the making and publication of such rules.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 16th January 1885:—

No. 2 OF 1885.

A Bill to provide for the temporary appointment from time to time of an Additional Judicial Commissioner for Oudh.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the temporary appointment from time to time of an Additional Judicial Commissioner to assist the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. (1) This Act may be called the Oudh Additional Judicial Commissioner's Act, 1885; and

Short title and commencement.

(2) It shall come into force at once.

2. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by notification in the local official Gazette, appoint such person as it thinks fit to be an Additional Judicial Commissioner, and to sit as such in the Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh.

Appointment of Additional Judicial Commissioner of Oudh.

(2) Every person so appointed shall hold his office during the pleasure of the Local Government.

3. Every Additional Judicial Commissioner shall exercise such jurisdiction and powers of the Judicial Commissioner under the Oudh Civil Courts Act, 1879, as the Local Government may, from time to time, prescribe, but only in such cases as the Judicial Commissioner may direct.

Jurisdiction and powers of Additional Judicial Commissioner.

XIII of 1879.

4. Every enactment for the time being applicable to the Judicial Commissioner shall apply to the Additional Judicial Commissioner when exercising any jurisdiction or powers under the last foregoing section as if he were the Judicial Commissioner.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to provide for the temporary appointment, from time to time, as it may be deemed necessary, of an Additional Judicial Commissioner of Oudh.

The steady increase in the work that falls upon the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh, and the accumulation of arrears, have made it necessary to adopt some plan for assisting him in the discharge of his functions; and the simplest arrangement would seem to be the appointment, as occasion requires, of an Additional Judicial Commissioner.

The Bill (section 2) empowers the Local Government, with the sanction of the Governor General in Council, from time to time, to appoint an Additional Judicial Commissioner, who is to hold office during the pleasure of the Local Government. The Additional Judicial Commissioner so appointed is (section 3) to exercise such jurisdiction and powers of the Judicial Commissioner under the Oudh Civil Courts Act as the Local Government may prescribe, but only in such cases as the Judicial Commissioner directs. The Local Government will thus be able to regulate the jurisdiction and powers of the Additional Judicial Commissioner in such a way as to prevent any conflict between them and those of the Judicial Commissioner, while the latter officer will be able to arrange for the distribution of business as may appear to him to be most convenient. Lastly (section 4), all enactments applicable to the Judicial Commissioner are declared to be applicable to the Additional Judicial Commissioner, so that his legal status generally will be identical with that of the Judicial Commissioner.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

IT is proposed by this Bill (1) to establish a system of voluntary registration of births and deaths for the benefit of such classes of the community as would be likely to avail themselves of such registration, (2) to establish general registry offices for keeping registers of the births and deaths so registered, and of marriages registered under Act III of 1872 or the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872 (XV of 1872), and (3) to provide machinery for giving evidential value to certain existing registers of births, baptisms, deaths, burials and marriages, which have been kept under no law.

2. The subject of the registration of births and deaths among Europeans in India has been long under the consideration of the Government, whose attention has, moreover, been frequently directed to it by memorials from various Christian religious bodies urging very strongly the need for legislation.

3. The Indian Statute-book contains at present no general law for the registration of births and deaths. There are, indeed, enactments which provide for the registration of births and deaths within certain specified areas, principally municipalities and cantonments, but, in the first place, these enactments are strictly local in their nature, leaving the greater portion of the country unprovided for, and, in the next place, their provisions, being directed primarily to statistical purposes, are not of such a nature as to make the registers of births and deaths kept under them of value for purposes of evidence.

4. As to the numerous registers of baptisms and burials which are kept by ministers of religion in all parts of the country, it is doubtful how far they can be relied on for giving accurately the requisite particulars as to births and deaths, and most of them would, moreover, be inadmissible in evidence.

5. This being the state of the law, and considering the importance of the subject generally, and the memorials above referred to, and having regard to the fact that references are frequently made to the Secretary of State for India and to the Government of India for proof of age or of deaths in connection with questions involving large individual interests, such as rights to property, the Government of India is of opinion that it is expedient to enact a permissive law under which full facilities for registering births and deaths should be given to persons valuing unimpeachable evidence of these events.

6. As to the second object of the Bill, it is obvious that no system of registration of births and deaths can be complete or of practical value unless it provides for the establishment, at certain centres, of general offices where the information registered at the various local offices shall be collected and so arranged as to be readily available for public reference.

7. In this connection, the attention of the Government of India has been directed to the unsatisfactory nature of the system of registration of marriages under the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, and Act III of 1872.

Documentary evidence of all marriages under the former Act is, by the provisions of the Act or the orders thereunder, sent to the Secretary to the Local Government, who is also empowered to grant certified copies which are receivable in evidence. It would seem, therefore, at first sight, that nothing further was required. But, as a matter of fact, not only are no arrangements made for maintaining an index to the marriages the records of which are retained in the local Secretariat, but the greater portion of the marriage records which are received in the local Secretariat have, under section 81 of the Act and the orders in force, to be sent on in original to the Government of India in the Home Department for transmission to the Secretary of State; so that the greater number of the marriage records which reach the local Secretariat do not remain there for purposes of reference, and such as do remain are, owing to the absence of an index, practically valueless.

As to Act III of 1872, this Act makes no provision for the marriages solemnized under it being reported to any central authority. The marriage-certificate books for which it provides are retained by the Registrar, who is not even required to index them. Their value as records of the marriages to which they refer is accordingly much diminished.

8. The Government of India have, therefore, availed themselves of the opportunity of the proposed legislation for the registration of births and deaths to remove these defects in the marriage-registration law, by providing for general registry offices for keeping registers, not only of the births and deaths which may be registered under the proposed law, but also of marriages which may be registered under Act III of 1872 or the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872.

9. The present Bill extends (section 2) to the whole of British India, and, so far as regards subjects of Her Majesty, to the dominions of Princes and States in India in alliance with Her Majesty.

10. As there seems to be no way of utilizing for the special purposes in view the compulsory system of registration of births and deaths which is prescribed by the local laws referred to in paragraph 3 above, or of separating the registration of the limited classes affected by the Bill from that of the general population which is required under those laws, it has been found necessary to save the laws providing for the registration of births and deaths within particular local areas at present in force or which may hereafter be passed; and this is done by section 4. The result of this section will, therefore, be that the persons to whom the provisions of the Bill relating to the registration of births and deaths are applicable will be bound, as heretofore, to satisfy the statistical requirements of such local Acts, and will be at liberty to re-register births and deaths under the Bill for evidential purposes.

11. Chapter II provides (section 5) for the establishment by the Local Governments of general registry offices of births, deaths and marriages, and the appointment of Registrars General of Births, Deaths and Marriages. By section 6 indexes are to be kept at the general registry offices of all the certified copies of registers which may be sent to them under the Bill or under Act III of 1872 or the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872. These indexes (section 7) are to be open to public inspection, and copies of the entries in the certified copies of the registers to which they relate are to be given to all persons applying for them; and such copies are (section 8) to be admissible in evidence. By section 9 the Registrar General is given the superintendence of the Registrars of Births and Deaths.

12. Chapter III deals with the subject of registration of births and deaths. Section 10 defines the persons whose births and deaths are registrable as, in British India, the members of every race, sect or tribe to which the Indian Succession Act, 1865, applies and in respect of which an order under section 332 of that Act is not for the time being in force, and all persons professing the Christian religion, and in Native States all like persons who are British subjects. These provisions of the Bill will therefore, generally speaking, apply to East Indians, Jews, Armenians and Pársís as well as to Europeans and Native Christians. These are believed to be the only classes of persons in the country who are likely to avail themselves of the benefits of a law of this nature.

13. The chapter then provides for a registration establishment, empowering (sections 11 and 12) the Local Government in British India and the Governor General in Council in Native States to appoint either by name or by virtue of their office fit persons to be Registrars of Births and Deaths for definite local areas. It is proposed to appoint under the general powers given by these sections persons authorized or licensed to perform marriages under either Act III of 1872 or the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, and, in order to provide for the receipt of notices from persons who may prefer not to resort to the Marriage Registrars, other suitable persons, one of whom it is intended should be appointed for each local area for which a person who is also a Marriage Registrar is appointed. It is to the latter class of Registrars that sections 13 and 14, which lay down certain provisions as to the office of such

Registrars, and for the filling up temporary vacancies in the office of such Registrars, are intended to apply. Section 15 provides for the supply of register books and the preservation of records.

14. The chapter next treats of the mode of registration. It imposes (section 16) a duty on every Registrar of Births and Deaths to make an entry in his register book of all births and deaths of which notice may be given to him within the prescribed time and in the prescribed mode by a person authorized to give him such notice. It then (sections 17 and 18) specifies the persons who shall be authorized to give notice of births and deaths respectively.

Section 19 provides that the entry of the birth or death is to be signed by the person giving notice, and declares that until it is so signed the birth or death shall not be deemed to be registered. By section 20 every Registrar of Births and Deaths is required to give on application made at the time of registering any birth or death by the person giving notice of the same, and on payment by him of the prescribed fee, a certificate of having registered the birth or death.

Section 21 provides for the sending by every Registrar of Births and Deaths at prescribed intervals to the Registrar General of Births, Deaths and Marriages of certified copies of all entries in his register books. In the case of Registrars in British India, the copies are to be sent to the Registrar General within whose jurisdiction the local areas for which the Registrar is appointed is situate, an exception being made in the case of Registrars who are clergymen of the Churches of England, Rome and Scotland, who may send them to their ecclesiastical superiors to be forwarded by them to the Registrar General. In the case of Registrars in Native States, the copies are to be sent to such one of the Registrars General as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct in this behalf. Section 22 provides for searches, and grant of copies of entries in register books which shall be admissible in evidence.

15. Sections 23 and 24 prescribe penalties of imprisonment which may extend to three years and fine for wilfully giving false information to a Registrar of Births and Deaths, and of fine, which may extend to five hundred rupees, for Registrars of Births and Deaths omitting to enter births or deaths in the register or losing or injuring register books.

16. Lastly, section 25 prescribes the procedure by which errors in the form or substance of any entry in a register book of births and deaths may be corrected.

17. Chapter IV (sections 26 and 27) makes the amendments in Act III of 1872 and the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, which are necessary in order to make the provisions of these Acts fit in with the scheme of the Bill, under which certified copies of entries in the registers kept under these Acts are in future to be sent to the Registrar General of Births, Deaths and Marriages.

18. Chapter V deals with the last of the three subjects referred to in the first paragraph of this Statement. As noted above, registers of births or baptisms and deaths or burials are at present kept in all parts of the country by ministers of religion. Registers of marriages were also similarly kept before the marriage-registration law came into force. Most of these registers are, as the law now stands, inadmissible in evidence, and possibly many of them should never be admitted in evidence owing to the irregular manner in which they have been compiled. At the same time, others are probably fit for admission as public registers. Under these circumstances, it seems advisable to follow the analogy of what was done in England (see 3 & 4 Vic., c. 92) and provide a procedure under which such of these registers as are worthy of recognition may be validated and certified copies of entries made in them declared admissible in evidence. This is accordingly done by Chapter V.

19. That chapter first (section 28) declares that any person having custody of any such records may, within one year from the date on which the Bill comes into force, send them to the Registrar General of Births, Deaths and Marriages for the territories within which the person resides, or, if he resides in a Native State, to such one of those Registrars General as the Governor General in Council, by notification, directs. It then (section 29) provides for the appointment by the Governor General in Council of Commissioners to examine the registers so sent to the various Registrars General, and prescribes (section 30) the duties of the Commissioners, which are to inquire into the state, custody and authenticity of every register submitted to them, and to prepare lists of all such registers or portions of registers as they find to be accurate and faithful, and to certify upon some part of every book or volume containing any such register or portion of a register as is referred to in any such list that it is one of the registers referred to in the list. Section 31 permits, on payment of a fee, searches to be made of the lists so prepared, and provides for the grant of certified copies of the entries in the registers which shall be admissible in evidence.

20. Finally, Chapter VI (sections 32 and 33) empowers the Governor General in Council to make rules with regard to certain matters connected with the purposes of the Act, and prescribes the usual procedure for the making and publication of such rules.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 16th January 1885:—

No. 2 OF 1885.

A Bill to provide for the temporary appointment from time to time of an Additional Judicial Commissioner for Oudh.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the temporary appointment from time to time of an Additional Judicial Commissioner to assist the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. (1) This Act may be called the Oudh Additional Judicial Commissioner's Act, 1885; and

Short title and commencement.

(2) It shall come into force at once.

2. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by notification in the local official Gazette, appoint such person as it thinks fit to be an Additional Judicial Commissioner, and to sit as such in the Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh.

Appointment of Additional Judicial Commissioner of Oudh.

(2) Every person so appointed shall hold his office during the pleasure of the Local Government.

3. Every Additional Judicial Commissioner shall exercise such jurisdiction and powers of the Judicial Commissioner under the Oudh Civil Courts Act, 1879, as the Local Government may, from time to time, prescribe, but only in such cases as the Judicial Commissioner may direct.

Jurisdiction and powers of Additional Judicial Commissioner.

Additional Judicial Commissioner, when exercising any jurisdiction or powers under the last foregoing section, to be the Judicial Commissioner.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to provide for the temporary appointment, from time to time, as it may be deemed necessary, of an Additional Judicial Commissioner of Oudh.

The steady increase in the work that falls upon the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh, and the accumulation of arrears, have made it necessary to adopt some plan for assisting him in the discharge of his functions; and the simplest arrangement would seem to be the appointment, as occasion requires, of an Additional Judicial Commissioner.

The Bill (section 2) empowers the Local Government, with the sanction of the Governor General in Council, from time to time, to appoint an Additional Judicial Commissioner, who is to hold office during the pleasure of the Local Government. The Additional Judicial Commissioner will exercise under the Oudh Civil Courts Act, 1879, as the Local Government may prescribe, but only in such cases as the Judicial Commissioner directs. The Local Government will thus be able to regulate the jurisdiction and powers of the Additional Judicial Commissioner in such a way as to prevent any conflict between them and those of the Judicial Commissioner, while the latter officer will be able to arrange for the distribution of business as may appear to him to be most convenient. Lastly (section 4), all enactments applicable to the Judicial Commissioner are declared to be applicable to the Additional Judicial Commissioner, so that his legal status generally will be identical with that of the Judicial Commissioner.

(4) Every rule made under this section shall be published in the Gazette of India, and the publication in the Gazette of India of a rule purporting to be made under the last foregoing section shall be conclusive evidence that it has been duly made.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

IT is proposed by this Bill (1) to establish a system of voluntary registration of births and deaths for the benefit of such classes of the community as would be likely to avail themselves of such registration, (2) to establish general registry offices for keeping registers of the births and deaths so registered, and of marriages registered under Act III of 1872 or the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872 (XV of 1872), and (3) to provide machinery for giving evidential value to certain existing registers of births, baptisms, deaths, burials and marriages, which have been kept under no law.

2. The subject of the registration of births and deaths among Europeans in India has been long under the consideration of the Government, whose attention has, moreover, been frequently directed to it by memorials from various Christian religious bodies urging very strongly the need for legislation.

3. The Indian Statute-book contains at present no general law for the registration of births and deaths. There are, indeed, enactments which provide for the registration of births and deaths within certain specified areas, principally municipalities and cantonments, but, in the first place, these enactments are strictly local in their nature, leaving the greater portion of the country unprovided for, and, in the next place, their provisions, being directed primarily to statistical purposes, are not of such a nature as to make the registers of births and deaths kept under them of value for purposes of evidence.

4. As to the numerous registers of baptisms and burials which are kept by ministers of religion in all parts of the country, it is doubtful how far they can be relied on for giving accurately the requisite particulars as to births and deaths, and most of them would, moreover, be inadmissible in evidence.

5. This being the state of the law, and considering the importance of the subject generally, and the memorials above referred to, and having regard to the fact that references are frequently made to the Secretary of State for India and to the Government of India for proof of age or of deaths in connection with questions involving large individual interests, such as rights to property, the Government of India is of opinion that it is expedient to enact a permissive law under which full facilities for registering births and deaths should be given to persons valuing unimpeachable evidence of these events.

6. As to the second object of the Bill, it is obvious that no system of registration of births and deaths can be complete or of practical value unless it provides for the establishment, at certain centres, of general offices where the information registered at the various local offices shall be collected and so arranged as to be readily available for public reference.

7. In this connection, the attention of the Government of India has been directed to the unsatisfactory nature of the system of registration of marriages under the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, and Act III of 1872.

Documentary evidence of all marriages under the former Act is, by the provisions of the Act or the orders thereunder, sent to the Secretary to the Local Government, who is also empowered to grant certified copies which are receivable in evidence. It would seem, therefore, at first sight, that nothing further was required. But, as a matter of fact, not only are no arrangements made for maintaining an index to the marriages the records of which are retained in the local Secretariat, but the greater portion of the marriage records which are received in the local Secretariat have, under section 81 of the Act and the orders in force, to be sent on in original to the Government of India in the Home Department for transmission to the Secretary of State; so that the greater number of the marriage records which reach the local Secretariat do not remain there for purposes of reference, and such as do remain are, owing to the absence of an index, practically valueless.

As to Act III of 1872, this Act makes no provision for the marriages solemnized under it being reported to any central authority. The marriage-certificate books for which it provides are retained by the Registrar, who is not even required to index them. Their value as records of the marriages to which they refer is accordingly much diminished.

8. The Government of India have, therefore, availed themselves of the opportunity of the proposed legislation for the registration of births and deaths to remove these defects in the marriage-registration law, by providing for general registry offices for keeping registers, not only of the births and deaths which may be registered under the proposed law, but also of marriages which may be registered under Act III of 1872 or the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872.

9. The present Bill extends (section 2) to the whole of British India, and, so far as regards subjects of Her Majesty, to the dominions of Princes and States in India in alliance with Her Majesty.

10. As there seems to be no way of utilizing for the special purposes in view the compulsory system of registration of births and deaths which is prescribed by the local laws referred to in paragraph 3 above, or of separating the registration of the limited classes affected by the Bill from that of the general population which is required under those laws, it has been found necessary to save the laws providing for the registration of births and deaths within particular local areas at present in force or which may hereafter be passed; and this is done by section 4. The result of this section will, therefore, be that the persons to whom the provisions of the Bill relating to the registration of births and deaths are applicable will be bound, as heretofore, to satisfy the statistical requirements of such local Acts, and will be at liberty to re-register births and deaths under the Bill for evidential purposes.

11. Chapter II provides (section 5) for the establishment by the Local Governments of general registry offices of births, deaths and marriages, and the appointment of Registrars General of Births, Deaths and Marriages. By section 6 indexes are to be kept at the general registry offices of all the certified copies of registers which may be sent to them under the Bill or under Act III of 1872 or the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872. These indexes (section 7) are to be open to public inspection, and copies of the entries in the certified copies of the registers to which they relate are to be given to all persons applying for them; and such copies are (section 8) to be admissible in evidence. By section 9 the Registrar General is given the superintendence of the Registrars of Births and Deaths.

12. Chapter III deals with the subject of registration of births and deaths. Section 10 defines the persons whose births and deaths are registrable as, in British India, the members of every race, sect or tribe to which the Indian Succession Act, 1865, applies and in respect of which an order under section 332 of that Act is not for the time being in force, and all persons professing the Christian religion, and in Native States all like persons who are British subjects. These provisions of the Bill will therefore, generally speaking, apply to East Indians, Jews, Armenians and Pársis as well as to Europeans and Native Christians. These are believed to be the only classes of persons in the country who are likely to avail themselves of the benefits of a law of this nature.

13. The chapter then provides for a registration establishment, empowering (sections 11 and 12) the Local Government in British India and the Governor General in Council in Native States to appoint either by name or by virtue of their office fit persons to be Registrars of Births and Deaths for definite local areas. It is proposed to appoint under the general powers given by these sections persons authorized or licensed to perform marriages under either Act III of 1872 or the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, and, in order to provide for the receipt of notices from persons who may prefer not to resort to the Marriage Registrars, other suitable persons, one of whom it is intended should be appointed for each local area for which a person who is also a Marriage Registrar is appointed. It is to the latter class of Registrars that sections 13 and 14, which lay down certain provisions as to the office of such

Registrars, and for the filling up temporary vacancies in the office of such Registrars, are intended to apply. Section 15 provides for the supply of register books and the preservation of records.

14. The chapter next treats of the mode of registration. It imposes (section 16) a duty on every Registrar of Births and Deaths to make an entry in his register book of all births and deaths of which notice may be given to him within the prescribed time and in the prescribed mode by a person authorized to give him such notice. It then (sections 17 and 18) specifies the persons who shall be authorized to give notice of births and deaths respectively.

Section 19 provides that the entry of the birth or death is to be signed by the person giving notice, and declares that until it is so signed the birth or death shall not be deemed to be registered. By section 20 every Registrar of Births and Deaths is required to give on application made at the time of registering any birth or death by the person giving notice of the same, and on payment by him of the prescribed fee, a certificate of having registered the birth or death.

Section 21 provides for the sending by every Registrar of Births and Deaths at prescribed intervals to the Registrar General of Births, Deaths and Marriages of certified copies of all entries in his register books. In the case of Registrars in British India, the copies are to be sent to the Registrar General within whose jurisdiction the local areas for which the Registrar is appointed is situate, an exception being made in the case of Registrars who are clergymen of the Churches of England, Rome and Scotland, who may send them to their ecclesiastical superiors to be forwarded by them to the Registrar General. In the case of Registrars in Native States, the copies are to be sent to such one of the Registrars General as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct in this behalf. Section 22 provides for searches, and grant of copies of entries in register books which shall be admissible in evidence.

15. Sections 23 and 24 prescribe penalties of imprisonment which may extend to three years and fine for wilfully giving false information to a Registrar of Births and Deaths, and of fine, which may extend to five hundred rupees, for Registrars of Births and Deaths omitting to enter births or deaths in the register or losing or injuring register books.

16. Lastly, section 25 prescribes the procedure by which errors in the form or substance of any entry in a register book of births and deaths may be corrected.

17. Chapter IV (sections 26 and 27) makes the amendments in Act III of 1872 and the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, which are necessary in order to make the provisions of these Acts fit in with the scheme of the Bill, under which certified copies of entries in the registers kept under these Acts are in future to be sent to the Registrar General of Births, Deaths and Marriages.

18. Chapter V deals with the last of the three subjects referred to in the first paragraph of this Statement. As noted above, registers of births or baptisms and deaths or burials are at present kept in all parts of the country by ministers of religion. Registers of marriages were also similarly kept before the marriage-registration law came into force. Most of these registers are, as the law now stands, inadmissible in evidence, and possibly many of them should never be admitted in evidence owing to the irregular manner in which they have been compiled. At the same time, others are probably fit for admission as public registers. Under these circumstances, it seems advisable to follow the analogy of what was done in England (see 3 & 4 Vic., c. 92) and provide a procedure under which such of these registers as are worthy of recognition may be validated and certified copies of entries made in them declared admissible in evidence. This is accordingly done by Chapter V.

19. That chapter first (section 28) declares that any person having custody of any such records may, within one year from the date on which the Bill comes into force, send them to the Registrar General of Births, Deaths and Marriages for the territories within which the person resides, or, if he resides in a Native State, to such one of those Registrars General as the Governor General in Council, by notification, directs. It then (section 29) provides for the appointment by the Governor General in Council of Commissioners to examine the registers so sent to the various Registrars General, and prescribes (section 30) the duties of the Commissioners, which are to inquire into the state, custody and authenticity of every register submitted to them, and to prepare lists of all such registers or portions of registers as they find to be accurate and faithful, and to certify upon some part of every book or volume containing any such register or portion of a register as is referred to in any such list that it is one of the registers referred to in the list. Section 31 permits, on payment of a fee, searches to be made of the lists so prepared, and provides for the grant of certified copies of the entries in the registers which shall be admissible in evidence.

20. Finally, Chapter VI (sections 32 and 33) empowers the Governor General in Council to make rules with regard to certain matters connected with the purposes of the Act, and prescribes the usual procedure for the making and publication of such rules.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third Publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 16th January 1885:—

No. 2 OF 1885.

A Bill to provide for the temporary appointment from time to time of an Additional Judicial Commissioner for Oudh.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the temporary appointment from time to time of an Additional Judicial Commissioner to assist the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Oudh Additional Judicial Commissioner's Act, 1885; and

Appointment of Additional Judicial Commissioner of Oudh.

2. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by notification in the local official Gazette, appoint such person as it thinks fit to be an Additional Judicial Commissioner, and to sit as such in the Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh.

(2) Every person so appointed shall hold his office during the pleasure of the Local Government.

Jurisdiction and powers of Additional Judicial Commissioner.

3. Every Additional Judicial Commissioner shall exercise such jurisdiction and powers of the Judicial Commissioner under the Oudh Civil Courts Act, 1879, as the Local Government may, from time to time, prescribe, but only in such cases as the Judicial Commissioner may direct. XIII of 1879.

Law applicable to Additional Judicial Commissioner.

4. Every enactment for the time being applicable to the Judicial Commissioner shall apply to the Additional Judicial Commissioner when exercising any jurisdiction or powers under the last foregoing section as if he were the Judicial Commissioner.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to provide for the temporary appointment, from time to time, as it may be deemed necessary, of an Additional Judicial Commissioner of Oudh.

The steady increase in the work that falls upon the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh, and the accumulation of arrears, have made it necessary to adopt some plan for assisting him in the discharge of his functions; and the simplest arrangement would seem to be the appointment, as occasion requires, of an Additional Judicial Commissioner.

The Bill (section 2) empowers the Local Government, with the sanction of the Governor General in Council, from time to time, to appoint an Additional Judicial Commissioner, who is to hold office during the pleasure of the Local Government. The Additional Judicial Commissioner so appointed is (section 3) to exercise such jurisdiction and powers of the Judicial Commissioner under the Oudh Civil Courts Act as the Local Government may prescribe, but only in such cases as the Judicial Commissioner directs. The Local Government will thus be able to regulate the jurisdiction and powers of the Additional Judicial Commissioner in such a way as to prevent any conflict between them and those of the Judicial Commissioner, while the latter officer will be able to arrange for the distribution of business as may appear to him to be most convenient. Lastly (section 4), all enactments applicable to the Judicial Commissioner are declared to be applicable to the Additional Judicial Commissioner, so that his legal status generally will be identical with that of the Judicial Commissioner.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 23rd January, 1885:—

WE, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report.

From Bábú Charu Chandra Mookerjee, dated 2nd November, 1884 [Paper No. 12].
Extract, paragraph III, from Proceedings of the Meerút Association, No. 13, dated 16th November, 1884 [Paper No. 13].
From Under-Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, No. 1326—VII-277-23, dated 13th December, 1884, and enclosure [Papers No. 14].

From Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, No. 1375—VII-277-26, dated 23rd December, 1884, and enclosures [Papers No. 16].
From the Hon'ble Mr. Justice S. Mahmúd, Allahabad, dated 13th January, 1885 [Paper No. 18].

2. It is generally admitted that the provisions of section 1 (a) of the Bill will amend the Act satisfactorily, but there are differences of opinion as to clause (b) of that section. The Government of Bombay, Mr. Justice West and others are strongly in favour of making the exemption from the provisions of section 41 of the Act local and not personal. It has also been urged, especially by Mr. Justice Mahmúd, that power should not be given to exempt from the provisions of section 41. Mr. Mahmúd says, "As I understand the law, the provisions of section 41 of the Transfer of Property Act are nothing more or less than the repetition of the rule of natural equity which belongs to almost every department of law connected with the dealings of one human being with another. The rule of equitable estoppel is so important that, irrespective of section 41 of the Transfer of Property Act, I, speaking for my own part, would, regardless of the nationality of parties, apply it to all transactions which came before me and which furnished circumstances for its application."

3. After considering the matter we are of opinion that, if section 41 of the Act contains, as we believe it does, a rule of equity which our Courts should follow, the section should be in force wherever the Act is in force. If that section were excluded from the Act, the Courts would probably, on general principles of equity, follow the rule which it contains. We think, therefore, that it is unnecessary to give any power to exempt from the provisions of section 41, and have struck out clause (b), section 1 of the Bill.

4. With regard to some questions raised as to the effect of section 3 of the Bill, we may mention that the Transfer of Property Act in requiring that certain transfers shall be made by a registered instrument does not conflict with the Indian Registration Act. That Act requires that certain documents shall be registered in order to render them capable of affecting certain property and admissible in evidence of any transaction affecting such property. The Transfer of Property Act, on the other hand, provides that certain transfers can only be effected by a registered instrument.

5. With reference to section 4 of the Bill, it has been suggested that section 69 of the Act should be restored to the form proposed by the Indian Law Commission. The question whether a power of sale should be valid in all cases where the property secured by the mortgage was of a certain value was fully discussed at the time the Act was passed. It was then decided that the valuation test should not be adopted, and we consider that it is inexpedient to re-open the question now.

6. Objections have been raised relating to the chapter on leases of immoveable property. These are sufficiently met by section 117 of the Act, which exempts leases for agricultural purposes from the provisions of the chapter.

7. We have taken the opportunity of adding to section 6 of the Act a clause (i) containing a proviso like that of sub-section (j), section 108. If the chapter on leases does not apply to leases for agricultural purposes, then the proviso to sub-section (j) will not be in force. It might therefore happen that an untransferable right of occupancy, the farm of an estate in respect of which default had been made in paying revenue or the lease of an estate under the Court of Wards might be held to be transferable by virtue of the general power of transfer conferred by section 6.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 23rd January, 1885 :—

WE, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our report.

Office memorandum by Home Department, No. 829, dated 18th June, 1884, and enclosures [Papers No. 5].
From Chief Commissioner, Ajmer-Merwára, No. 486, dated 23rd June, 1884, and enclosures [Papers No. 6].
From Under-Secretary to Government, Bombay, No. 4659, dated 30th June, 1884, and enclosures [Papers No. 7].
From Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, No. 537—VII-27-10, dated 2nd July, 1884, and enclosure [Papers No. 8].
From Chief Secretary to Government, Madras, No. 1573, dated 28th June, 1884, and enclosure [Papers No. 9].
From Officiating Secretary to Chief Commissioner, British Burma, No. 106—7L., dated 4th July, 1884, and enclosure [Papers No. 10].
From Officiating Secretary to Government, Punjab, No. 661, dated 23rd July, 1884, and enclosures [Papers No. 11].
From Officiating Secretary to Government, Bengal, No. 1339T.—R., dated 31st July, 1884 [Paper No. 13].

2. With regard to lost bills it has been pointed out that the Act provides no machinery whereby the owner of a lost bill or note can get a duplicate from the drawer or maker. We think that this omission should be supplied, and have accordingly inserted in the Bill a section (2) taken from section 69 of the English Statute. Actions on lost bills are sufficiently provided for by section 61 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

3. With reference to the remarks forwarded by the Government of Madras, we think that clause (c), section 101 of the Act, does seem to imply that to render a protest valid the demand must be made by the notary public in person. If the law be so understood, it will cause inconvenience, and to remove all doubts we consider that the section should be amended so that it may be clear that a demand may be made by a notary public's clerk in person. The Act might also, we think, be still further amended so as to afford greater facilities for presenting bills and demanding acceptance or payment. The English Act [section 41 (1) (c) and section 45 (8)] provides that a bill is duly presented for acceptance or payment when presented through the post office in cases where such presentment is authorised by agreement or usage. We think that it is desirable to extend to this country similar facilities for presenting bills, but we consider that when presentment through the post office is allowed it should be made by means of a registered letter. We have accordingly, in section 3 of the Bill, made additions to the Act which will validate a presentment through the post office by means of a registered letter when such a presentment is authorised by agreement or usage. We have also, in section 4 of the Bill, added to section 101 a clause to the effect that the demand mentioned in clause (c) may be made by the notary public in person or by his clerk in person or, where authorised by agreement or usage, by a registered letter.

4. It has been pointed out that while section 108 implies that acceptance for honour may take place when a bill has been noted or protested, the definition of "acceptor for honour" (section 7) shows that an acceptance for honour is made after a bill is protested. It might be held therefore that there could be no acceptance for honour until a bill had been protested as well as noted. To meet this difficulty we have inserted in the Bill a section (6) taken from section 93 of the English Statute, and have slightly amended the definition in section 7 of the Act so as to make it agree with section 108.

5. The Chambers of Commerce of Bombay and Rangoon have suggested an amendment of section 113 of the Act which would have the effect of rendering a declaration before a notary public unnecessary in the case of a payment for honour. We have considered this suggestion and we think that some formality is desirable. We are of opinion that it would not be safe to relax these formalities regarding payments for honour further than they are relaxed by English law.

6. It has also been suggested that power should be taken to make rules for the control of those notaries public who have not been appointed under the Act. We think that it is not desirable to make rules for the control of notaries not appointed by the Government of India.

7. We have been asked to make a provision for cases in which the services of a notary public are not available, by adopting section 94 of the English Act which provides that in such cases a protest may be made by means of a certificate signed by a householder or substantial resident. Having regard to the power given to Government of appointing notaries public, the number of appointments that have been made and the possible abuses that might arise if a householder or substantial resident were substituted for a notary, we think that it would be unwise to adopt this provision of the Statute.

8. It is said that the proposed amendment of section 113 will raise doubts whether the words "acceptor," "acceptor for honour," "payee" and "drawee" are intended to include an agent of an acceptor, payee or drawee. We think that section 27 of the Act, which provides that a person may bind himself by a duly authorized agent, will answer all questions of this nature that may arise.

9. The Chief Commissioner, British Burma, suggests that the Local Government should be authorized to appoint notaries public. This question has already been considered, and we would not re-open it.

10. With regard to the question whether section 45 of the Contract Act unduly limits the negotiation of bills, we are not disposed to think that it does. We are not aware that that section has given rise to any difficulties in this respect, and the saving in the Contract Act of all usages or customs of trade will probably meet such difficulties if they do arise. If any amendment in this respect is necessary, it should take the form of an amendment of section 45 in the Contract Act, as such an amendment would perhaps be required for other cases besides those under the Negotiable Instruments Act.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend Act XXII of 1881, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 30th January, 1885:—

WE, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend Act XXII of 1881 was referred, have considered the Bill and papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report.

From Chief Commissioner, Coorg, No. 53, dated 17th November, 1884 [Paper No. 1].
From Chief Commissioner, Ajmer-Merwára, No. 969, dated 4th December, 1884 [Paper No. 2].
Extract, paragraph VI, from Proceedings of the Meerut Association, No. 15, dated 29th November, 1884 [Paper No. 3].
From Officiating Junior Secretary to Government, Punjab, No. 3148, dated 12th December, 1884, and enclosures [Papers No. 4].
From Officiating Secretary to Chief Commissioner, British Burma, No. 279-41 E., dated 12th December, 1884, and enclosures [Papers No. 5].
From Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, No. 74—VII-305-13, dated 17th January, 1885, and enclosures [Papers No. 6].
From Assistant Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, No. 148-284, dated 16th January, 1885, and enclosures [Papers No. 7].

2. At the suggestion of the Chief Commissioner of British Burma, we have added to the Bill sections (1 and 2) which will enable a Thugyi, when appointed an Excise-officer, to exercise the powers of arrest, seizure and search conferred by sections 28 and 29 of the Act. The Thugyi, who is a collector of revenue and also assists generally in the administration, does not receive a monthly salary. He cannot, therefore, on a strict construction of those sections, be held to be an officer in receipt of a monthly salary of not less than ten rupees.

3. We have also in section 2 of the Bill made a further slight amendment of section 29 of the Act, by providing that, where the Excise-officer making a search is himself an officer of Police in the receipt of a monthly salary of not less than ten rupees, the presence of another Police-officer is not required.

4. We have at the suggestion of several of the Local Governments amended the original section of the Bill (now section 3). We have given the Local Government power to invest any Police-officer with powers under section 27 of the Act, as we consider that these powers may be safely entrusted to any Police-officer. The more extensive powers conferred on certain Excise-officers by sections 28 and 29 of the Act should not, we think, be exercised by Police-officers unless they are in charge of a station or of or above the grade of head constable or sergeant. We have provided accordingly.

5. The use of the word "complaint" in section 47 of the Act, a section providing certain restrictions on prosecutions, has given rise to doubts, and we have, therefore, at the suggestion of the Government of the North-Western Provinces, altered the wording of that section.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Indian Ports Act, 1875, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 30th January, 1885 :—

WE, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend the Indian Ports Act, 1875, was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report.

From Officiating Secretary to Chief Commissioner, British Burma, No. 243-49 P. D., dated 15th November, 1883 [Paper No. 1].
From Chief Secretary to Government, Madras, No. 549, dated 16th November, 1883, and enclosure [Papers No. 2].
From Officiating Secretary to Government, Bengal, No. 2479, dated 26th November, 1883, and enclosures [Papers No. 3].

Endorsement by Officiating Under-Secretary to Government, Bengal, No. 111, dated 14th January, 1885, and enclosures [Papers No. 8].

2. At the suggestion of the Government of Madras we have inserted in the Bill a section (1) amending section 42 of the Act. That section directs that the orders of a Local Government made in pursuance of the Act shall be, in addition to other modes of publication, fixed up in the custom-house, if any, of every port subject to this Act. A difficulty is experienced in carrying out this direction, and we consider that it will be sufficient to provide that the order shall be fixed up in some conspicuous place in the office of the Conservator, and at the custom-house, if any, of every port to which the order relates.

3. We have amended section 1 of the Bill (now section 2) so as to provide for cases where the service of a person entitled to pension has been partly at the port and partly elsewhere.

4. At the request of the Bombay Government we have provided in section 3 of the Bill that money may be spent from the Port Fund Account for the support of hospitals for seamen or for providing sanitary superintendence and medical aid for the shipping and seamen belonging to ships in the ports.

5. We have altered the rate of port-dues prescribed in the first schedule of the Act for the Cuttack ports, as the Government of Bengal finds that the present rate does not yield an income sufficient to meet the necessary expenses of the ports.

2. It is generally admitted that the provisions of section 1 (a) of the Bill will amend the Act satisfactorily, but there are differences of opinion as to clause (b) of that section. The Government of Bombay, Mr. Justice West and others are strongly in favour of making the exemption from the provisions of section 41 of the Act local and not personal. It has also been urged, especially by Mr. Justice Mahmúd, that power should not be given to exempt from the provisions of section 41. Mr. Mahmúd says, "As I understand the law, the provisions of section 41 of the Transfer of Property Act are nothing more or less than the repetition of the rule of natural equity which belongs to almost every department of law connected with the dealings of one human being with another. The rule of equitable estoppel is so important that, irrespective of section 41 of the Transfer of Property Act, I, speaking for my own part, would, regardless of the nationality of parties, apply it to all transactions which came before me and which furnished circumstances for its application."

3. After considering the matter we are of opinion that, if section 41 of the Act contains, as we believe it does, a rule of equity which our Courts should follow, the section should be in force wherever the Act is in force. If that section were excluded from the Act, the Courts would probably, on general principles of equity, follow the rule which it contains. We think, therefore, that it is unnecessary to give any power to exempt from the provisions of section 41, and have struck out clause (b), section 1 of the Bill.

4. With regard to some questions raised as to the effect of section 3 of the Bill, we may mention that the Transfer of Property Act in requiring that certain transfers shall be made by a registered instrument does not conflict with the Indian Registration Act. That Act requires that certain documents shall be registered in order to render them capable of affecting certain property and admissible in evidence of any transaction affecting such property. The Transfer of Property Act, on the other hand, provides that certain transfers can only be effected by a registered instrument.

5. With reference to section 4 of the Bill, it has been suggested that section 69 of the Act should be restored to the form proposed by the Indian Law Commission. The question whether a power of sale should be valid in all cases where the property secured by the mortgage was of a certain value was fully discussed at the time the Act was passed. It was then decided that the valuation test should not be adopted, and we consider that it is inexpedient to re-open the question now.

6. Objections have been raised relating to the chapter on leases of immoveable property. These are sufficiently met by section 117 of the Act, which exempts leases for agricultural purposes from the provisions of the chapter.

7. We have taken the opportunity of adding to section 6 of the Act a clause (i) containing a proviso like that of sub-section (j), section 108. If the chapter on leases does not apply to leases for agricultural purposes, then the proviso to sub-section (j) will not be in force. It might therefore happen that an untransferable right of occupancy, the farm of an estate in respect of which default had been made in paying revenue or the lease of an estate under the Court of Wards might be held to be transferable by virtue of the general power of transfer conferred by section 6.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 23rd January, 1885 :—

From Under-Secretary to Government, Bombay, No. 4659, dated 30th June, 1884, and enclosures [Papers No. 7].
From Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, No. 627—VII.37-10, dated 3rd July, 1884, and enclosure [Papers No. 8].
From Chief Secretary to Government, Madras, No. 1473, dated 30th June, 1884, and enclosure [Papers No. 9].
From Officiating Secretary to Chief Commissioner, British Burma, No. 106—7L., dated 4th July, 1884, and enclosure [Papers No. 10].
From Officiating Secretary to Government, Punjab, No. 661, dated 23rd July, 1884, and enclosures [Papers No. 11].
From Officiating Secretary to Government, Bengal, No. 1339T.—R., dated 31st July, 1884 [Paper No. 13].

2. With regard to lost bills it has been pointed out that the Act provides no machinery whereby the owner of a lost bill or note can get a duplicate from the drawer or maker. We think that this omission should be supplied, and have accordingly inserted in the Bill a section (2) taken from section 69 of the English Statute. Actions on lost bills are sufficiently provided for by section 61 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

3. With reference to the remarks forwarded by the Government of Madras, we think that clause (c), section 101 of the Act, does seem to imply that to render a protest valid the demand must be made by the notary public in person. If the law be so understood, it will cause inconvenience, and to remove all doubts we consider that the section should be amended so that it may be clear that a demand may be made by a notary public's clerk in person. The Act might also, we think, be still further amended so as to afford greater facilities for presenting bills and demanding acceptance or payment. The English Act [section 41 (1) (c) and section 45 (8)] provides that a bill is duly presented for acceptance or payment when presented through the post office in cases where such presentment is authorised by agreement or usage. We think that it is desirable to extend to this country similar facilities for presenting bills, but we consider that when presentment through the post office is allowed it should be made by means of a registered letter. We have accordingly, in section 3 of the Bill, made additions to the Act which will validate a presentment through the post office by means of a registered letter when such a presentment is authorised by agreement or usage. We have also, in section 4 of the Bill, added to section 101 a clause to the effect that the demand mentioned in clause (c) may be made by the notary public in person or by his clerk in person or, where authorised by agreement or usage, by a registered letter.

4. It has been pointed out that while section 108 implies that acceptance for honour may take place when a bill has been noted or protested, the definition of "acceptor for honour" (section 7) shows that an acceptance for honour is made after a bill is protested. It might be held therefore that there could be no acceptance for honour until a bill had been protested as well as noted. To meet this difficulty we have inserted in the Bill a section (6) taken from section 93 of the English Statute, and have slightly amended the definition in section 7 of the Act so as to make it agree with section 108.

5. The Chambers of Commerce of Bombay and Rangoon have suggested an amendment of section 113 of the Act which would have the effect of rendering a declaration before a notary public unnecessary in the case of a payment for honour. We have considered this suggestion and we think that some formality is desirable. We are of opinion that it would not be safe to relax these formalities regarding payments for honour further than they are relaxed by English law.

6. It has also been suggested that power should be taken to make rules for the control of those notaries public who have not been appointed under the Act. We think that it is not desirable to make rules for the control of notaries not appointed by the Government of India.

7. We have been asked to make a provision for cases in which the services of a notary public are not available, by adopting section 94 of the English Act which provides that in such cases a protest may be made by means of a certificate signed by a householder or substantial resident. Having regard to the power given to Government of appointing notaries public, the number of appointments that have been made and the possible abuses that might arise if a householder or substantial resident were substituted for a notary, we think that it would be unwise to adopt this provision of the Statute.

8. It is said that the proposed amendment of section 113 will raise doubts whether the words "acceptor," "acceptor for honour," "payee" and "drawee" are intended to include an agent of an acceptor, payee or drawee. We think that section 27 of the Act, which provides that a person may bind himself by a duly authorized agent, will answer all questions of this nature that may arise.

9. The Chief Commissioner, British Burma, suggests that the Local Government should be authorized to appoint notaries public. This question has already been considered, and we would not re-open it.

10. With regard to the question whether section 45 of the Contract Act unduly limits the negotiation of bills, we are not disposed to think that it does. We are not aware that that section has given rise to any difficulties in this respect, and the saving in the Contract Act of all usages or customs of trade will probably meet such difficulties if they do arise. If any amendment in this respect is necessary, it should take the form of an amendment of section 45 in the Contract Act, as such an amendment would perhaps be required for other cases besides those under the Negotiable Instruments Act.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend Act XXII of 1881, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 30th January, 1885:—

WE, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend Act XXII of 1881 was referred, have considered the Bill and papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report.

From Chief Commissioner, Coorg, No. 58, dated 17th November, 1884 [Paper No. 1].
From Chief Commissioner, Ajmer-Merwára, No. 969, dated 4th December, 1884 [Paper No. 2].
Extract, paragraph VI, from Proceedings of the Meerut Association, No. 15, dated 29th November, 1884 [Paper No. 3].
From Officiating Junior Secretary to Government, Punjab, No. 3148, dated 12th December, 1884, and enclosures [Papers No. 4].
From Officiating Secretary to Chief Commissioner, British Burma, No. 279-41 E., dated 12th December, 1884, and enclosures [Papers No. 5].
From Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, No. 74—VII-305-13, dated 17th January, 1885, and enclosures [Papers No. 6].
From Assistant Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, No. 143-284, dated 16th January, 1885, and enclosures [Papers No. 7].

2. At the suggestion of the Chief Commissioner of British Burma, we have added to the Bill sections (1 and 2) which will enable Thugyi, when appointed an Excise-officer, to exercise the powers of arrest, seizure and search conferred by sections 28 and 29 of the Act. The Thugyi, who is a collector of revenue and also assists generally in the administration, does not receive a monthly salary. He cannot, therefore, on a strict construction of those sections, be held to be an officer in receipt of a monthly salary of not less than ten rupees.

3. We have also in section 2 of the Bill made a further slight amendment of section 29 of the Act, by providing that, where the Excise-officer making a search is himself an officer of Police in the receipt of a monthly salary of not less than ten rupees, the presence of another Police-officer is not required.

4. We have at the suggestion of several of the Local Governments amended the original section of the Bill (now section 3). We have given the Local Government power to invest any Police-officer with powers under section 27 of the Act, as we consider that these powers may be safely entrusted to any Police-officer. The more extensive powers conferred on certain Excise-officers by sections 28 and 29 of the Act should not, we think, be exercised by Police-officers unless they are in charge of a station or of or above the grade of head constable or sergeant. We have provided accordingly.

5. The use of the word "complaint" in section 47 of the Act, a section providing certain restrictions on prosecutions, has given rise to doubts, and we have, therefore, at the suggestion of the Government of the North-Western Provinces, altered the wording of that section.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Indian Ports Act, 1875, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 30th January, 1885 :—

WE, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend the Indian Ports Act, 1875, was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report.

From Officiating Secretary to Chief Commissioner, British Burma, No. 243-49 P. D., dated 15th November, 1883 [Paper No. 1].

Endorsement by Officiating Under-Secretary to Government, Bengal, No. 111, dated 14th January, 1885, and enclosures [Papers No. 8].

2. At the suggestion of the Government of Madras we have inserted in the Bill a section (1) amending section 42 of the Act. That section directs that the orders of a Local Government made in pursuance of the Act shall be, in addition to other modes of publication, fixed up in the custom-house, if any, of every port subject to this Act. A difficulty is experienced in carrying out this direction, and we consider that it will be sufficient to provide that the order shall be fixed up in some conspicuous place in the office of the Conservator, and at the custom-house, if any, of every port to which the order relates.

3. We have amended section 1 of the Bill (now section 2) so as to provide for cases where the service of a person entitled to pension has been partly at the port and partly elsewhere.

4. At the request of the Bombay Government we have provided in section 3 of the Bill that money may be spent from the Port Fund Account for the support of hospitals for seamen or for providing sanitary superintendence and medical aid for the shipping and seamen belonging to ships in ports.

5. We have altered the rate of port-dues prescribed in the first schedule of the Act for the Cuttack ports, as the Government of Bengal finds that the present rate does not yield an income sufficient to meet the necessary expenses of the ports.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 23rd January, 1885:—

From the Hon'ble Mr. Justice S. Mahmúd, Allahabad, dated 13th January, 1885 [Paper No. 18].

2. It is generally admitted that the provisions of section 4 (c) of the Bill will amend the Act satisfactorily, but there are differences of opinion as to clause (b) of that section. The Government of Bombay, Mr. Justice West and others are strongly in favour of making the exemption from the provisions of section 41 of the Act local and not personal. It has also been urged, especially by Mr. Justice Mahmúd, that power should not be given to exempt from the provisions of section 41. Mr. Mahmúd says, "As I understand the law, the provisions of section 41 of the Transfer of Property Act are nothing more or less than the repetition of the rule of natural equity which belongs to almost every department of law connected with the dealings of one human being with another. The rule of equitable estoppel is so important that, irrespective of section 41 of the Transfer of Property Act, I, speaking for my own part, would, regardless of the nationality of parties, apply it to all transactions which came before me and which furnished circumstances for its application."

3. After considering the matter we are of opinion that, if section 41 of the Act contains, as we believe it does, a rule of equity which our Courts should follow, the section should be in force wherever the Act is in force. If that section were excluded from the Act, the Courts would probably, on general principles of equity, follow the rule which it contains. We think, therefore, that it is unnecessary to give any power to exempt from the provisions of section 41, and have struck out clause (b), section 1 of the Bill.

4. With regard to some questions raised as to the effect of section 3 of the Bill, we may mention that the Transfer of Property Act in requiring that certain transfers shall be made by a registered instrument does not conflict with the Indian Registration Act. That Act requires that certain documents shall be registered in order to render them capable of affecting certain property and admissible in evidence of any transaction affecting such property. The Transfer of Property Act, on the other hand, provides that certain transfers can only be effected by a registered instrument.

5. With reference to section 4 of the Bill, it has been suggested that section 69 of the Act should be restored to the form proposed by the Indian Law Commission. The question whether a power of sale should be valid in all cases where the property secured by the mortgage was of a certain value was fully discussed at the time the Act was passed. It was then decided that the valuation test should not be adopted, and we consider that it is inexpedient to re-open the question now.

6. Objections have been raised relating to the chapter on leases of immoveable property. These are sufficiently met by section 117 of the Act, which exempts leases for agricultural purposes from the provisions of the chapter.

7. We have taken the opportunity of adding to section 6 of the Act a clause (i) containing a proviso like that of sub-section (j), section 108. If the chapter on leases does not apply to leases for agricultural purposes, then the proviso to sub-section (j) will not be in force. It might therefore happen that an untransferable right of occupancy, the farm of an estate in respect of which default had been made in paying revenue or the lease of an estate under the Court of Wards might be held to be transferable by virtue of the general power of transfer conferred by section 6.

From Officiating Registrar, High Court, Calcutta, No. 1872, dated 30th July, 1884 [Paper No. 12].

2. With regard to lost bills it has been pointed out that the Act provides no machinery whereby the owner of a lost bill or note can get a duplicate from the drawer or maker. We think that this omission should be supplied, and have accordingly inserted in the Bill a section (2) taken from section 69 of the English Statute. Actions on lost bills are sufficiently provided for by section 61 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

3. With reference to the remarks forwarded by the Government of Madras, we think that clause (c), section 101 of the Act, does seem to imply that to render a protest valid the demand must be made by the notary public in person. If the law be so understood, it will cause inconvenience, and to remove all doubts we consider that the section should be amended so that it may be clear that a demand may be made by a notary public's clerk in person. The Act might also, we think, be still further amended so as to afford greater facilities for presenting bills and demanding acceptance or payment. The English Act [section 41 (1) (c) and section 45 (8)] provides that a bill is duly presented for acceptance or payment when presented through the post office in cases where such presentment is authorised by agreement or usage. We think that it is desirable to extend to this country similar facilities for presenting bills, but we consider that when presentment through the post office is allowed it should be made by means of a registered letter. We have accordingly, in section 3 of the Bill, made additions to the Act which will validate a presentment through the post office by means of a registered letter when such a presentment is authorised by agreement or usage. We have also, in section 4 of the Bill, added to section 101 a clause to the effect that the demand mentioned in clause (c) may be made by the notary public in person or by his clerk in person or, where authorised by agreement or usage, by a registered letter.

4. It has been pointed out that while section 108 implies that acceptance for honour may take place when a bill has been noted or protested, the definition of "acceptor for honour" (section 7) shows that an acceptance for honour is made after a bill is protested. It might be held therefore that there could be no acceptance for honour until a bill had been protested as well as noted. To meet this difficulty we have inserted in the Bill a section (6) taken from section 93 of the English Statute, and have slightly amended the definition in section 7 of the Act so as to make it agree with section 108.

5. The Chambers of Commerce of Bombay and Rangoon have suggested an amendment of section 113 of the Act which would have the effect of rendering a declaration before a notary public unnecessary in the case of a payment for honour. We have considered this suggestion and we think that some formality is desirable. We are of opinion that it would not be safe to relax these formalities regarding payments for honour further than they are relaxed by English law.

6. It has also been suggested that power should be taken to make rules for the control of those notaries public who have not been appointed under the Act. We think that it is not desirable to make rules for the control of notaries not appointed by the Government of India.

7. We have been asked to make a provision for cases in which the services of a notary public are not available, by adopting section 94 of the English Act which provides that in such cases a protest may be made by means of a certificate signed by a householder or substantial resident. Having regard to the power given to Government of appointing notaries public, the number of appointments that have been made and the possible abuses that might arise if a householder or substantial resident were substituted for a notary, we think that it would be unwise to adopt this provision of the Statute.

8. It is said that the proposed amendment of section 113 will raise doubts whether the words "acceptor," "acceptor for honour," "payee" and "drawee" are intended to include an agent of an acceptor, payee or drawee. We think that section 27 of the Act, which provides that a person may bind himself by a duly authorized agent, will answer all questions of this nature that may arise.

9. The Chief Commissioner, British Burma, suggests that the Local Government should be authorized to appoint notaries public. This question has already been considered, and we would not re-open it.

10. With regard to the question whether section 45 of the Contract Act unduly limits the negotiation of bills, we are not disposed to think that it does. We are not aware that that section has given rise to any difficulties in this respect, and the saving in the Contract Act of all usages or customs of trade will probably meet such difficulties if they do arise. If any amendment in this respect is necessary, it should take the form of an amendment of section 45 in the Contract Act, as such an amendment would perhaps be required for other cases besides those under the Negotiable Instruments Act.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend Act XXII of 1881, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 30th January, 1885:—

WE, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend Act XXII of 1881 was referred, have considered the Bill and papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report.

From Chief Commissioner, Coorg, No. 53, dated 17th November, 1884 [Paper No. 1].
From Chief Commissioner, Ajmer-Merwára, No. 969, dated 4th December, 1884 [Paper No. 2].
Extract, paragraph VI, from Proceedings of the Meerut Association, No. 15, dated 29th November, 1884 [Paper No. 3].
From Officiating Junior Secretary to Government, Punjab, No. 3148, dated 12th December, 1884, and enclosures [Papers No. 4].
From Officiating Secretary to Chief Commissioner, British Burma, No. 279-41 E., dated 12th December, 1884, and enclosures [Papers No. 5].
From Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, No. 74—VII-305-13, dated 17th January, 1885, and enclosures [Papers No. 6].
From Assistant Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, No. 143-284, dated 16th January, 1885, and enclosures [Papers No. 7].

2. At the suggestion of the Chief Commissioner of British Burma, we have added to the Bill sections (1 and 2) which will enable a Thugyi, when appointed an Excise-officer, to exercise the powers of arrest, seizure and search conferred by sections 28 and 29 of the Act. The Thugyi, who is a collector of revenue and also assists generally in the administration, does not receive a monthly salary. He cannot, therefore, on a strict construction of those sections, be held to be an officer in receipt of a monthly salary of not less than ten rupees.

3. We have also in section 2 of the Bill made a further slight amendment of section 29 of the Act, by providing that, where the Excise-officer making a search is himself an officer of Police in the receipt of a monthly salary of not less than ten rupees, the presence of another Police-officer is not required.

4. We have at the suggestion of several of the Local Governments amended the original section of the Bill (now section 3). We have given the Local Government power to invest any Police-officer with powers under section 27 of the Act, as we consider that these powers may be safely entrusted to any Police-officer. The more extensive powers conferred on certain Excise-officers by sections 28 and 29 of the Act should not, we think, be exercised by Police-officers unless they are in charge of a station or of or above the grade of head constable or sergeant. We have provided accordingly.

5. The use of the word "complaint" in section 47 of the Act, a section providing certain restrictions on prosecutions, has given rise to doubts, and we have, therefore, at the suggestion of the Government of the North-Western Provinces, altered the wording of that section.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Indian Ports Act, 1875, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 30th January, 1885 :—

WE, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend the Indian Ports Act, 1875, was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report.

From Officiating Secretary to Chief Commissioner, British Burma, No. 243-49 P. D., dated 15th November, 1883 [Paper No. 1].

Endorsement by Officiating Under-Secretary to Government, Bengal, No. 111, dated 14th January, 1885, and enclosures [Papers No. 8].

2. At the suggestion of the Government of Madras we have inserted in the Bill a section (1) amending section 42 of the Act. That section directs that the orders of a Local Government made in pursuance of the Act shall be, in addition to other modes of publication, fixed up in the custom-house, if any, of every port subject to this Act. A difficulty is experienced in carrying out this direction, and we consider that it will be sufficient to provide that the order shall be fixed up in some conspicuous place in the office of the Conservator, and at the custom-house, if any, of every port to which the order relates.

3. We have amended section 1 of the Bill (now section 2) so as to provide for cases where the service of a person entitled to pension has been partly at the port and partly elsewhere.

4. At the request of the Bombay Government we have provided in section 3 of the Bill that money may be spent from the Port Fund Account for the support of hospitals for seamen or for providing sanitary superintendence and medical aid for the shipping and seamen belonging to ships in ports.

5. We have altered the rate of port-dues prescribed in the first schedule of the Act for the Cuttack ports, as the Government of Bengal finds that the present rate does not yield an income sufficient to meet the necessary expenses of the ports.

BENGAL TENANCY BILL, 1885, No. III.

The following Further Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend and consolidate certain enactments relating to the Law of Landlord and Tenant within the territories [illegible] was presented to the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations on the 14th February, 1885:—

We, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend and consolidate certain enactments relating to the law of Landlord and Tenant within the territories under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the schedule annexed, and have now the honour to submit this our further Report.

It must be understood that in referring to the decisions of the Committee we state the view of the majority where there has been any difference of opinion.

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

2. We have made some slight amendments in, and additions to, this chapter, but few of them call for notice here.

The definition of "estate" and that of "proprietor", which is dependent on it, have given rise to the erroneous supposition that it was intended to exclude Government tenants from the operation of the Bill. We have now so amended the definitions as to remove any misapprehension on this point.

3. As it seems reasonable that the provisions of the Bill enactment in sections 68 to 86, both inclusive, sections 72 to 75, both inclusive, Chapter XII and Schedule [illegible] should apply to money recoverable under any enactment as if it was rent, we have added to the definition of "rent" a clause providing that "rent" shall in those portions of the Bill include such money.

CHAPTER II.

CLASSES OF TENANTS.

4. The only amendments calling for notice in this chapter are—

1st—that we have omitted all reference to the raiyat converted into a tenure-holder under section 37 of the Bill No. II, as it has been determined to omit section 37 (see infra, paragraph 17); and

2nd—that we have altered section 5 (6) so as to provide that a tenant holding more than 10 [illegible] shall be [illegible] until the contrary is shown, to be a tenure-holder, with [illegible] power to let any part of his

CHAPTER III.

TENURE-HOLDERS.

5. We have in section 7 of this chapter included, among the matters to which a Court must have regard in enhancing the rent of a tenure-holder, the questions "whether the tenure was originally granted at a specially low rent for the purpose of reclamation" and "whether any fine or premium was paid on the creation of the tenure."

6. We have omitted section 8 of the Bill No. II, which provided that a Court should not enhance the rent of a tenure to more than double the previous rent.

7. We have in section 9 made the interval which must elapse between successive enhancements of the rent of a tenure the same as in the case of an occupancy-holding, namely, fifteen years.

8. We have omitted the provisions of this chapter specially applicable to patní tenures, and Chapter XVI, relating to summary sale of patní and other tenures for arrears, as we are, on further consideration, reluctant to interfere at present with the existing law regarding patní tenures, and are of opinion that any extension of the patní sale law to other tenures should be reserved for consideration in connection with the Bengal Registration Bill, to which we shall presently have to refer.

9. We have in sections 12 to 16 of the Bill so far altered the system of the registration of transfers of, and successions to, permanent tenures as to provide merely for enabling the landlord to register such transfers instead of compelling him to do so.

The Bill in its previous stages provided for a compulsory system of registration by the landlord. This, it was objected, would not work satisfactorily, especially as the landlords of many tenure-holders are poor and ignorant persons, having no regular office and no means of establishing one or maintaining a suitable register. At the same time it was pointed out that the establishment of an official registry would confer a great benefit on all concerned, and especially on the landlords, who might, if such a registry were established, be allowed to realize their rents by the process of summary sale which is now available only in the case of a limited class of tenures.

A Bill for the establishment of an official registry is at this moment before the Bengal Legislative Council, and the object we have set before ourselves in re-casting the portion of our Bill now under consideration has been to frame its provisions in such a manner as to secure to the Collector, who will be the officer entrusted with the preparation and maintenance of the official register, early and accurate information of all transfers and successions which may from time to time take place.

We have not overlooked the fact that the substitution of official registration for registration in the landlord's sherista would deprive the landlords of the fees which it was proposed to allow them under the Bill as originally framed, and which, it is believed, they commonly realize at present, though in most cases without any warrant of law. We think that the fees prescribed by the Bill in its earlier stages may well be paid to the landlord, even though he is to be relieved of the duty of registration.

10. The provisions we have inserted in the Bill in order to give effect to these views are as follows:—

First, as regards voluntary transfers (section 12), the simplest plan has appeared to us to be to require that every such transfer shall be registered under the ordinary law relating to the registration of documents. It is understood that the Local Government will make all arrangements requisite for facilitating the registration of such transfers. The parties applying for registration will be required to pay to the registering officer "the landlord's fee" and a process-fee for the service of notice on the landlord. When the registration has been completed, the registering officer will forward to the Collector the landlord's fee and a notice of the transfer containing all necessary particulars, and the Collector will thereupon cause the landlord's fee to be paid to the landlord and the notice to be served upon him, at the same time taking any such steps as may be prescribed by the measure now pending before the Bengal Legislative Council for the entry of the transfer in his official register.

When a transfer takes place by sale in execution of a decree (sections 13 and 14), the procedure will be substantially similar, the notice and the fee being sent to the Collector by the Court, except that, following the lines of the Bill in its earlier stages, we have not provided for the payment of a fee to the landlord when the sale takes place in execution of a decree for arrears.

In the only remaining case of transfer, namely, that of transfer by summary sale, the Collector will have in his own office all the information requisite for the purpose of registration.

11. When a succession to a permanent tenure takes place, the party succeeding will be required (section 15) to give notice to the Collector and pay to him the landlord's fee and the process-fee above referred to, and the Collector will then proceed as above described.

12. In order to compel the person succeeding to comply with the provisions of this section, we have retained, for the case of successions, the provision of section 18 of the Bill No. II, whereby a person succeeding will be debarred from recovering his rent by suit, distraint or otherwise, until he has given the notice and paid the fees prescribed.

CHAPTER V.

OCCUPANCY-RAIYATS.

13. The first alteration in this chapter which appears to call for notice has reference to the area over which the status of settled raiyat is to hold good.

In the 11th paragraph of our first Report we referred to the inconvenience which might arise in certain exceptionally large estates from the status holding good over the whole estate, and this has given rise to considerable discussion. The Bengal Government, in the 22nd paragraph of its report of the 15th September, 1884, stated that "the majority of the officers consulted disapproved of the definition of 'settled raiyat' as given in the Bill," and that "the proposal which found favour was the elimination of the word 'estate' from the definition".

That Government, nevertheless, was of opinion that it was necessary to retain the word "estate" in order to meet the danger of the acquisition of the occupancy-right being prevented by shifting raiyats from one village to another within the estate.

It seemed to us that this danger was not so great as to justify the extension, over all portions of an estate of the status of "settled raiyat" acquired in one portion of it, since estates are frequently divided among numerous tenure-holders, who would have no opportunity of examining each other's books, or knowing anything about each other's raiyats. The danger in either direction is not serious, for in the vast majority of cases the raiyat is practically tied to his own village; and we felt, moreover, that by confining the status to the village we should be proceeding in closer conformity to the original conception of a khúdkásht raiyat, which, as explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Bill, it has been always intended to keep in view.

14. We have in section 22 re-cast sections 28 and 29 of the Bill No. II so as to carry out more precisely the intention with which they were framed, and we have inserted a sub-section (2) providing that if the occupancy-right in land is transferred to a person jointly interested in the land as proprietor or permanent tenure-holder it shall cease to exist.

15. Sections 23 to 26 of the amended Bill take the place of sections 31 to 36 of the Bill No. II; but, except a saving of custom as regards the descent of the occupancy-right in section 26, the only important change they involve is the omission of all provisions regarding the transfer of the occupancy-right, which, apart from the matter of sale in execution of a decree for rent (dealt with in Chapter XIV), we now propose to leave to custom as under the existing law.

16. The reasons for and against the proposal to make the occupancy-right everywhere transferable by an express legislative enactment have been so fully discussed within the last three years, and are so well known to all interested in such matters, that we shall not lengthen this Report by attempting to recapitulate them. It is enough to say that the Government of Bengal, in their letter of the 15th of September last, proposed to leave the law relating to the transferability of the occupancy-right as it now stands, and that on a further consideration of the question we are of opinion that the most prudent course will be to omit the provisions relating to voluntary transfer altogether from the present Bill. This decision has enabled us to omit all reference to the question of pre-emption.

17. The 37th section of the Bill No. II, which provided that raiyats sub-letting their lands should in certain cases be deemed to be converted into tenure-holders, has met with much adverse criticism, and we now propose to omit it.

The remaining provisions as to sub-letting we have relegated to Chapter IX, where they will be found with certain modifications and additions.

18. In regard to the enhancement of rent in the case of occupancy-rights the Government of Bengal made certain proposals in their letter of 15th September, 1884, which are summarised in the 84th paragraph of that letter as shown on the margin.*

In regard to VI and VII we said in paragraph 36 of our Report last year that in applying the proportion rule in the case of prices the question of making some deduction to cover the effect of increased prices on the cost of cultivation would receive further consideration. The Government of Bengal recommended a deduction of one-half on this account.

* VI.—To recognize the principle that, in the absence of reason to the contrary, the Courts shall regard a rise in the price of staple food-grain as entitling the landlord to an enhancement of rent.

VII.—To fix the percentage by which the enhanced rent shall exceed the former rent at a definite proportion (one-half is suggested for consideration) of the percentage by which the enhanced prices exceed the former prices, the other portion going as an allowance for increased cost of production.

VIII.—To assign to enhancements on the ground of landlords' improvements a maximum limit of double the former rent.

IX.—To abandon the provision for enhancement on the ground of a "prevailing rate," substituting therefor some test which would make such enhancement depend upon assigned to localities pursuant to law and, by the consideration of, comparative and fictitious rates for the purpose of forcing up rents.

X.—To abandon fluvial action as a ground of enhancement of rent, but to recognize freedom of contract between landlord and raiyat in regard to new alluvium.

XI.—To withdraw the arbitrary limitations on enhancements by suit on account of a rise in prices, and to allow contracts for enhancement of rent out of Court up to a maximum limit of two annas in the rupee (12½ per cent.) of the former rent, and for a minimum period of 15 years.

XII.—To withdraw all restrictions on freedom of contract in respect of the initial rent of all land which may lapse to the landlord from whatever cause.

XIII.—To re-introduce the provision that the rent of the occupancy or non-occupancy raiyat shall not exceed one-fifth of the value of the gross produce calculated in staple food-grains.

We recognised the difficulty of making the Courts ascertain the actual cost of production, and as it was necessary to fix an arbitrary limit we have fixed the deduction at one-third as a general rule.

19. With reference to VIII we did not think we could justify any arbitrary limit in terms of a fractional proportion of the old rent being placed on enhancement when made on the ground of landlords' improvements.

20. We were unable to accept the proposal (IX) to abolish the prevailing rate as a ground of enhancement, inasmuch as this has, in one shape or another, been a ground of enhancement ever since the Permanent Settlement, and as it is the only means by which a landlord can remedy the effects of fraud or favouritism on the part of his agent or predecessors. In view, however, of the dangers which are said by competent authorities to arise from the artificial manufacture of rates, and from the very wide interpretation given to the term "places adjacent," we have somewhat modified the terms of the section, have limited enhancement to the rate ascertained to be the prevailing rate in the village, and have required that this rate should be determined with reference to the rates actually paid during a period of not less than three years before the institution of the suit.

21. We were not able to accept the proposal (X) to abandon fluvial action as a ground of enhancement.

22. On the other hand, we have accepted the proposal (XI) to limit enhancements by registered contract (except on the ground of improvement made by the landlord) to two annas in the Rupee (12½ per cent.) carrying with it in all cases a right to hold at the enhanced rent for 15 years, and we have at the same time struck out all the fractional limits placed on enhancement in Court by sections 44 (a), 45 (b) and 47 (b) of the Bill No. II.

23. The restrictions which it was proposed by section 42 to impose in certain cases on the initial rents payable by settled raiyats have, we think, been shown to be impracticable, and we have therefore, as proposed by the Government of Bengal (XI), omitted the section.

24. We were not able to accept the recommendation numbered XIII.

25. The only other amendments in the chapter which appear to call for special notice are as follows:—

(a) we have required Courts, in dealing with claims to enhancement on the ground of a rise in prices, to take decennial periods instead of quinquennial periods for the purposes of comparison, except when owing to the absence of price-lists or any other cause they find it impracticable to take such periods, in which case they may take any shorter periods;

(b) we have amended section 39 so that the price-lists prepared under it shall be merely presumptive evidence instead of being conclusive, as provided in the corresponding provision of the Bill No. II. The Bengal Government are of opinion that their arrangements are not at present so perfect as to justify these lists being made conclusive evidence;

(c) we have in section 40 included among the matters to be taken into consideration by an officer commuting rent the charges incurred by the landlord in respect of irrigation under the system of rent in kind and the arrangements made on commutation for continuing those charges.

CHAPTER VIII.

GENERAL PROVISIONS AS TO RENT.

26. We have omitted from the section (50) which enacts the well-known presumption arising from holding at a rent unchanged for 20 years the sub-section which made the presumption applicable to produce-rents, as opinions generally were opposed to it.

27. We have, in section 52, providing for the alteration of rent on the ground of an alteration in the area of the holding, assimilated the provisions of the two clauses (a) and (b), which [illegible] alternatively for increase and reduction; and we have inserted the following new sub-section to guide the Courts in cases where there may be a dispute as to the area for which the [illegible] paying rent:—

"In determining the area for which rent has been previously paid, the Court shall, if so [illegible] in the suit, have regard to—

"(a) the conditions of the tenancy; for instance, whether the rent was a consolidated rent for the entire holding;

"(b) whether the tenant has been allowed to hold additional land in consideration of an addition to his total rent or otherwise with the knowledge and consent of the landlord;

"(c) the length of time during which the tenancy has lasted without dispute as to rent or area; and

"(d) the length of the measure used or in local use at the time of the origin of the tenancy as compared with that used or in local use at the time of the institution of the suit."

We have also brought the section under the general rule that the Court shall not fix a rent which would be unfair or inequitable.

28. We have substituted for the section of the Bill No. II regulating the instalments in which rent is to be payable the following simpler provision, namely:—

"53. Subject to agreement or established usage a money-rent payable by a tenure-holder or raiyat shall be paid in four equal instalments falling due on the last day of each quarter of the agricultural year"; and to prevent raiyats being harassed by successive suits for arrears, when by agreement or custom a larger number of instalments than four may be established, we have inserted in Chapter XIII a section (147) enacting in effect that such suits shall not be instituted against a raiyat oftener than once in three months.

29. We have made certain amendments in the division of the chapter relating to receipts and accounts, but the only one calling for special notice is the insertion of a new section (59) requiring the Local Government to provide and keep on sale forms of receipts and accounts. It will be for the landlords to choose whether they will use those forms, but we believe they will be found convenient.

30. In pursuance of the policy of the Bengal Act for the registration of proprietors, we have inserted the following section:—

"60. Where rent is due to the proprietor, manager or mortgagee of an estate, the receipt of the person registered under the Land Registration Act, 1876, as proprietor, manager or mortgagee of that estate or of his agent authorized in that behalf shall be a sufficient discharge for the rent; and the person liable for the rent shall not be entitled to plead in defence to a claim by the person so registered that the rent is due to any third person.

Effect of receipt by registered proprietor.

"But nothing in this section shall affect any remedy which any such third person may have against the registered proprietor, manager or mortgagee."

31. We have likewise modified in some particulars the provisions relating to the deposit of rent, but need only mention the provision that the deposit shall be made in the Court having jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the rent, and the limitation of the second ground on which an application to deposit rent may be made to cases where the tenant has reason to believe, owing to a tender having been refused or a receipt withheld on a previous occasion, that the landlord will not be willing to receive the rent or grant a receipt.

32. We have omitted the second sub-section of section 77 of the Bill No. II, which enacted that, when the right, title and interest of a tenant is brought to sale in execution of a decree obtained by a person other than the landlord, the landlord shall be entitled to have his rent paid first out of the sale-proceeds, and we have so re-cast the section as to make it clear that in the case of a tenure-holder, raiyat at fixed rates or occupancy-raiyat the landlord's remedy for arrears will be sale and not ejectment, and that the arrears will be a first charge on the tenure or holding.

33. We have substituted for section 79 of the Bill No. II a section (67) providing that an arrear of rent shall bear simple interest at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum from the expiration of that quarter of the agricultural year in which the instalment falls due.

34. To meet those cases in which transfer without the landlord's consent is a valid claim, we have provided in section 73 that, until notice of such a transfer is duly served on the landlord, the transferor and transferee shall be jointly and severally liable for arrears of rent accruing after the transfer.

CHAPTER IX.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS AS TO LANDLORDS AND TENANTS.

35. We have in section 79 provided that a non-occupancy raiyat shall be entitled to construct a well for the irrigation of his holding. A well constructed under this provision will be an improvement within the meaning of the Act, and the raiyat will on being ejected be entitled to receive compensation for it. The high importance of facilitating and encouraging the construction of all works of irrigation in this country with a view to the prevention of famine points to the necessity of this.

36. We have inserted a new section (84) giving power to landlords to acquire by compulsory sale, through the Civil Court and at a price to be fixed by the Court, any land in their estate required for building purposes or for religious, charitable or educational objects. The necessity of some such power, especially with a view to provide building-sites either for new tenants or in cases of diluvion, has been strongly urged upon us. We have guarded the section against abuse by requiring the certificate of a Collector as to the sufficiency of the reason before action can be taken under it.

37. We have inserted a section (85) providing that if a raiyat sub-lets otherwise than by a registered instrument the sub-lease shall not be valid against his landlord unless made with his landlord's consent, that a sub-lease by a raiyat shall not be admitted to registration if it purports to create a term exceeding nine years (seven years was the longest term for which an occupancy-raiyat could sub-let under section 38 of the Bill No. II) and that where a raiyat has without his landlord's consent granted a sub-lease by an instrument registered before the commencement of the Act the sub-lease shall not be valid for more than nine years from the commencement of the Act.

38. In dealing with surrender and abandonment the only changes made by us which need here be noticed are the provisions which we have inserted to check collusive surrender or abandonment in fraud of the rights of third parties. The necessity for this was brought to notice in paragraph 69 of the Bengal Government's letter of 15th September, where it is shown that raiyats not unfrequently sub-let the whole or a portion of their holdings in consideration of a large bonus for a term of years. To leave the interests of sub-lessees in such cases entirely at the mercy of the sub-lessor in collusion with his landlord would do serious practical harm. We have therefore provided (section 86 (b)) that the surrender of a holding which is subject to a registered incumbrance shall not be valid without the consent of the incumbrancer and the landlord, and in case of abandonment we have provided (section 87 (d)) that the sub-lease shall only be avoided after the sub-lessee has had the opportunity of taking over for the unexpired period of his sub-lease the full rights and liabilities of his lessor in regard to the rent of his entire holding. These provisions appear to us to present the only method by which protection can be given to the sub-lessee without injury to the landlord or without risking the conversion of these sub-leases into permanent transfers. In the case of sale in execution of a decree for rent, the sub-lessee has the same protection as other incumbrancers under Chapter XIV.

39. We have in section 88 provided that a division of rent shall not be valid as against the landlord without his consent in writing. This we understand to be the existing law.

40. We have amended section 90 so as to make it clear that a landlord is not entitled to enter on and measure land exempt from the payment of revenue.

41. We have in section 92 substituted the acre for the standard bíghá as the official standard of measurement, and have empowered a Court or Revenue-officer to direct, where such a course may seem more convenient, that a measurement shall be made by any other specified standard.

CHAPTER X.

RECORD-OF-RIGHTS AND SETTLEMENT OF RENTS.

42. In the Bill No. II the two processes known as the record-of-rights and the settlement of rents were dealt with separately, but it seemed to us more convenient that they should be amalgamated, and we have accordingly given to the Revenue-officer who is appointed to settle disputes during the operation of recording rights a similar power to settle disputes regarding rents.

We have, however, provided for two distinct kinds of settlement. Under the ordinary settlement, the officer will only have the power to settle rents when a settlement of land-revenue is being made or a question between the landlord and tenant arises, and such rents as he settles will generally be fixed for a term of years; in other cases his recorded entries will only have a presumptive value; he can, moreover, only reduce rents on the grounds under which reduction is demandable in the Civil Courts. Under the special settlement, which will only be undertaken with the previous sanction of the Government of India, and which is meant to be applied only in circumstances in which the operation of the ordinary law is likely to prove inadequate, the Settlement-officer will have power to settle all rents, and will, moreover, have power to reduce rents on other grounds than those ordinarily applicable. We think that in the exceptional cases in which it may be necessary to have recourse to this procedure the Government should have power to go to the root of the matter, and to put its settlement on a thoroughly stable footing.

TABLES OF RATES.

43. We have decided, in deference to the opinion of many experienced officers and with the consent of the Government of Bengal, to omit the chapter (XI of Bill No. II) providing for the preparation of tables of rates. It was evident that the procedure would only be made use of in rare and exceptional cases, and a more effectual method of treating these cases is provided in the Settlement chapter.

CHAPTER XI.

RECORD OF PROPRIETORS' PRIVATE LANDS.

44. The only amendment calling for notice in this chapter is the insertion of a provision in section 116, that nothing in the chapter (VI) relating to non-occupancy-raiyats shall apply to a proprietor's private lands. This merely expresses what was always intended, though by an oversight it was not previously provided for.

CHAPTER XII.

DISTRAINT.

45. We have inserted two sections of some importance at the end of this chapter.

The first (141) provides that when the Local Government is of opinion that in any local area or in any class of cases it would, by reason of the character of the cultivation or the habits of the cultivators, be impracticable for a landlord to realize his rent by an application to the Court under this chapter, it may by order authorize the landlord to distrain by himself or his agent; but that a landlord so distraining shall forthwith give notice to the Court, and that the Court shall thereupon depute an officer to take charge of the produce distrained, and [illegible] thereafter as if he had distrained under the ordinary procedure. The other section (142) [illegible]

CHAPTER XIII.

JUDICIAL PROCEDURE.

46. Section 147 has already been noticed (supra paragraph 28).

47. We have in section 148 added to the sections of the Civil Procedure Code, which are not to apply to rent-suits, section 326, empowering the Court to authorize the Collector to stay an execution sale of land in certain cases.

48. We have in section 153 excepted from the rules restricting appeals in rent-suits cases in which a question of the amount of rent annually payable by the tenant has been determined.

49. We have omitted section 172 of the Bill No. II, which required all mutual claims between the landlord and tenant as such to be inquired into and determined in every suit and proceeding for ejectment.

CHAPTER XIV.

SALE FOR ARREARS UNDER DECREE.

50. We have added to the "protected interests" in section 160—

"(e) the right of a non-occupancy-raiyat to hold for five years at a rent fixed under Chapter VI by a Court or under Chapter X by a Revenue-officer."

The section as it stood would probably have been construed to cover such cases, but we think it well to leave no room for doubt on the point.

51. We have, in order to shorten proceedings, inserted in section (163) a clause enacting that in cases under this chapter the order of attachment and the proclamation of sale required by section 287 of the Civil Procedure Code shall be issued simultaneously.

52. We have, at the suggestion of our honourable colleague Bábú Peári Mohan Mukerji, inserted a new section (174) allowing a judgment-debtor to apply to set aside a sale of his tenure or holding, on depositing in Court within thirty days from the date of sale for payment to the decree-holder the amount recoverable under the decree with costs, and for payment to the purchaser a sum equal to 5 per cent. of the purchase-money. Applications under section 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure to set aside sales cause expense and annoyance to the decree-holder and auction-purchaser. It is believed that they are often instituted merely with a view to recovering the tenure or holding which has been sold, and it is anticipated that, if a judgment-debtor is allowed to recover his property by depositing after the sale the amount decreed against him, the number of these applications will be considerably diminished.

CHAPTER XV.

CONTRACT AND CUSTOM.

Restrictions on exclusion of Act by agreement.

"178. (1) Nothing in any contract between a landlord and tenant made before or after the passing of this Act—

"(a) shall bar in perpetuity the acquisition of an occupancy-right in land, or

"(b) shall take away an occupancy-right in existence at the date of the contract, or

"(c) shall entitle a landlord to eject a tenant otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of this Act, or

"(d) shall take away or limit the right of a tenant, as provided by this Act, to make improvements and claim compensation for them.

"(2) Nothing in any contract made between a landlord and tenant since the 15th day of July, 1880,* and before the passing of this Act shall prevent a raiyat from acquiring, in accordance with this Act, an occupancy-right in land.

"(3) Nothing in any contract made between a landlord and tenant after the passing of this Act shall—

"(a) prevent a raiyat from acquiring in accordance with this Act an occupancy-right in land;

"(b) take away or limit the right of an occupancy-raiyat to use land as provided by section 23;

"(c) take away the right of a raiyat to surrender his holding in accordance with section 86;

"(d) take away the right of a raiyat to transfer or bequeath his holding in accordance with local usage;

"(e) take away the right of a raiyat to sub-let subject to, and in accordance with, the provisions of this Act;

"(f) take away the right of a raiyat to apply for a reduction of rent under section 38 or section 52;

"(g) take away the right of a landlord or tenant to apply for a commutation of rent under section 40; or

"(h) affect the provisions of section 67 relating to interest payable on arrears of rent."

54. To meet the important case of a lease for the reclamation of waste land to which these provisions are not suitable, we have added the following proviso:—

"Provided as follows:—

"(i) Nothing in this section shall affect the terms or conditions of a lease granted bonâ fide for the reclamation of waste land, except that, where, on the expiration of the term created by the lease, the lessee would, under the terms of the lease, be entitled to an occupancy-right in the land comprised in the lease, the lease shall prevent him from acquiring that right."

[illegible] application by the Government of Bengal of the Rent Commission

55. We have further provided that the section shall not affect those contracts which are occasionally entered into for the temporary cultivation of orchard land with agricultural crops.

56. We have in section 180 put úthandi lands on the footing on which chur lands were placed by section 213 of the Bill No. II, that is to say, no occupancy-right will be acquirable in them until they have been held for twelve years, and meantime the tenant will be bound to pay whatever rent may be agreed on between him and his landlord. We have further provided that Chapter VI of the Bill shall not apply to such lands.

57. We agree with the Government of Bengal in thinking that it is not desirable to make any special provision regarding the lands known as "hál-basili," and we have accordingly omitted all references to them in this chapter.

58. We have considered the proposals of the Government of Bengal regarding homestead lands, and find that they practically resolve themselves into this, that the tenure of such lands should, as provided by section 216 of the Bill No. II, be regulated by local custom, with this addition, however, that, subject to local custom, they should be regulated by the provisions of the Bill applicable to land held by a raiyat. We have amended the section (182) on these line.

CHAPTER XVII.

SUPPLEMENTAL.

59. We have in section 189 added to the powers which may be conferred on officers by the rules to be made by the Local Government—"any power exercisable by any officer under the Bengal Survey Act, 1875."

60. We have also inserted the following new section, which speaks for itself:—

Tenant not enabled by Act to violate conditions binding on landlord.

"194. Where a proprietor or permanent tenure-holder holds his estate or tenure subject to the observance of any specified rule or condition, nothing in this Act shall entitle any person occupying land within the estate or tenure to do any act which involves a violation of that rule or condition."

61. Lastly, we have added a section (196) providing that "this Act shall be read subject to every Act passed after its commencement by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council." In the absence of some such provision as this, the Bengal Legislative Council would, owing to the wide extent of ground covered by this measure of the Supreme legislature, find itself practically debarred for all time to come from dealing with almost every question affecting the relations of agricultural landlords and tenants.

62. In the 99th paragraph of our former Report we mentioned certain points on which we desired further information, and on which we solicited the opinions of the Local Government or High Court or both, and to these it is necessary briefly to allude in so far as they have not been disposed of by the foregoing remarks.

63. The first of these points, which was referred to the Local Government, was "whether, with reference especially to landlord's improvements, it is desirable to empower Revenue-officers to arrange for the cutting of irrigation-channels, the distribution of water and the payment of compensation, and, if so, what form such provisions should take."

We are fully sensible of the great importance of this question, but on full consideration we agree with the Government of Bengal in thinking that a discussion of it would be out of place in connection with the present Bill, and that it will be most appropriately treated in connection with the irrigation law, which will probably soon come under revision in Bengal.

64. The only other points specially referred to the Local Government, and to which we have not already adverted, were certain proposals to extend the patní sale procedure. Those proposals did not commend themselves to the Local Government, and now that the patní procedure is to be excluded from the present Bill, they would more properly be reserved for future consideration.

65. The remaining points to which we think it necessary to advert had reference to the question as to the possibility of devising some simplification of the procedure in rent-suits. In paragraph 83 of our former Report we said—"For ourselves we must confess that, after the most anxious consideration of the various schemes which have been propounded for shortening and simplifying the procedure in rent-suits, we are unable to suggest anything of importance in this direction, which would not involve a serious risk of failure of justice." We, however, proposed that certain suggestions which had been made should be referred for the opinion of the High Court. The reply of the Honourable Judges is among the papers before us, and we regret to find that, as we apprehended, they too are unable to strike out any royal road to the result desired. They disapprove of the specific suggestions made, and they state it as their opinion that the true remedy for the evils complained of is to be found in executive rather than in legislative action, that is to say, in an increase in the judicial staff and a reduction of the court-fees.

Since the reply of the Honourable Judges has been received, further proposals have been submitted to us, and in particular a scheme put forward by Bábú Mohiny Mohun Roy, on which the opinions of certain officers have been taken, but we regret to say we have not found among them anything which would materially abridge the procedure without entailing a risk of serious failure of justice. The executive measures referred to by the High Court will, doubtless, receive careful consideration at the hands of the Government.

Memorandum of dissent from the decisions of the Select Committee on the Bengal Tenancy Bill.

IN signing the Report of the Select Committee on this Bill I wish to place on record my opinion that, having regard to all that has been elicited by the commissions and enquiries of the last six or seven years, the Bill inadequately meets the necessities of the case which called for legislation. It is unsatisfactory, in so far as it gives insufficient protection to all raiyats against excessive enhancements of rent, and no real protection in other directions to the non-occupancy-raiyat.

I note, firstly, that the change under which the limit of the "village" has been substituted for the "village or estate" in section 20 of the Bill may seriously affect the fixity of the "settled raiyat's" tenure. As originally drawn, "estate" formed part of this section, and its adoption as part of the definition had the sanction of the Secretary of State. In that form the definition met with considerable opposition in Committee, but I was prepared to meet objections by accepting an arrangement whereby a permanent cultivator, when willing to pay a fair rent, should carry his status as a settled raiyat to any land in that portion of his landlord's estate which might be situated in the pargana or fiscal circle in which the raiyat resided.

Secondly, I have opposed the "prevailing rate" as a ground of enhancement. There is ample evidence in the recorded literature on the subject to shew that such a thing as a "prevailing rate" of rent does not exist in any part of the country. Under the law as it stands it is admitted that the zamíndárs have been unable to establish a "prevailing rate" in their suits for enhancement on this ground; and the consequence was that, failing proof, the endeavour was made to create it fictitiously. The result has been demoralizing and very injurious to the raiyats, and I am afraid that the Select Committee, though animated by the very best intentions, have not provided any positive safeguard against the mischievous tendencies to which I have referred. On the contrary, their proposals on the subject will probably facilitate enhancements up to the average of rates prevailing in the village, and will thus place a much stronger power in the hands of the zamíndárs than even the present law permitted or ever contemplated.

Thirdly, the Bill as it leaves the Committee almost entirely abandons the non-occupancy and the under raiyat. They are practically unprotected; and such a result appears to me to be contrary to the intention with which the legislation on the Rent question was undertaken, and contrary to the conclusions of authoritative opinion that, in the case of all tenants of this class, the growth of the right of occupancy, as tending to establish a substantial peasantry should be encouraged and advanced.

Lastly, the loss of the limitation of the maximum rent to one-fifth of the gross produce is a serious loss, specially as it affects the non-occupancy and under raiyats. The proposal to limit rents to a fraction of the gross produce in staple food-crops did not originate with me, though I accepted it and suggested the particular fraction of one-fifth. Indeed, had my views been supported in regard to the abolition of the "prevailing rate" as a general ground of enhancement, and in regard to the protection of the non-occupancy-raiyat, I should not have placed the stress I now do on the gross-produce limit. But as the majority of the Select Committee have rejected, one by one, every effectual check on rack-renting adopted in the original Bill,—as they have also rejected the equivalents for those checks advocated by me without themselves proposing any substitutes,—it seemed to me that the only hope of escape from the danger of a Bill for the unlimited enhancements of rent lay in a recurrence to the proposal made by the Government of India in their first Bill to limit rents to a share of the gross produce. I am, of course, conscious of the objections to which such a limitation is open as a matter of theory; but theory and practice do not always coincide, and practically a gross produce limit on rents is indigenous in the country, has been asked for by the landlords, and recommended by the ablest among my predecessors. My views on the subject are not shared by a majority of the Committee, and the proposal falls to the ground. I have always admitted that in some Bengal districts the tenantry can well afford to pay higher rents, and I have endeavoured to provide landlords with reasonable facilities for enhancement. But there are many parts of Bengal in which rents are already excessive; and, taking Bengal and Behar together, I cannot contemplate without anxiety a legislative measure whose tendency is to promote, without an ultimate check, a further increase of those rents.

I had hoped that the legislation now in hand, which has been the subject of discussion and consideration by no less than four Lieutenant-Governors of Bengal, would have carried with it some measure of finality. I gladly recognise in the Bill some advance on the present law as regards security of tenure in the case of raiyats with a right of occupancy. I recognise too potentialities for good in the chapter which provides for a survey and a record-of-rights. But fixity of tenure for one class of raiyats loses much of its value as against the power of unlimited enhancements of rent; and in its present outcome there is scarcely the assurance, which had been expected, of a final settlement of many important principles connected with a Tenancy Bill in the Lower Provinces of Bengal.

RIVERS THOMPSON.

The 13th February, 1885.

Memorandum of dissent from the decisions of the Select Committee on the Tenancy Bill.

ALTHOUGH I think the Bill as it now leaves the hands of the Select Committee an improvement on the Bill submitted to it for amendment, it still contains certain provisions with reference to which I differ with the majority in opinion, and on these points I would beg to record my dissent.

1. I object to the omission of the words "and the whole or part of it is sub-let" from section "5", sub-section "5". The word should be again inserted or the whole of the sub-section omitted.

Under the Bill a tenure-holder is a tenant "who has acquired a right to hold land for the purposes of collecting rents or bringing it under cultivation by establishing raiyats on it." A raiyat, is a person "who has acquired land for the purpose of cultivating it himself or by hired labour."

I cannot understand on what grounds the majority of the Committee deemed it necessary to over-ride the essential difference in the nature of the two tenancies, and to declare that all persons holding more than 33 standard acres of land shall be presumed to be tenure-holders until the contrary is proved.

To me it appears that the first and only enquiry to be made is whether the tenant cultivates it himself or sub-lets the whole or a portion of it. If he cultivates it himself it should be presumed that he is a raiyat until the contrary is proved. If he sub-lets a portion of it, it should be presumed that he is a tenure-holder, until he proves that he originally acquired the land for cultivating purposes, and that the tenants who hold under him are sub-tenants.

Our efforts in this instance should be confined to strengthening the position of the actual cultivators of the soil.

2. I dissent from the decision of the majority of the Select Committee to omit transferability from among the incidents attached to an occupancy-holding.

I have already exhausted every argument I can think of to induce the Government and the Committee to legalize and control transfer and failed to gain their support, it is unnecessary to recapitulate them here, I will therefore only record my dissent.

3. Section 18, Chapter 3.—The provisions of this chapter should be confined to mocurraree holdings, holdings admitted by the landlord to be held at fixed rents, and holdings the rents of which have been declared fixed in perpetuity under decrees of competent Courts. If this is not allowed, sections 15 to 22 of Bill No. 2 should be again inserted in the Bill in place of sections 12 (3) and 13.

All raiyati holdings acquired for the purposes of cultivation whether held at a fixed rent or at a rent subject to enhancement, should only be used for the purpose for which they were acquired, viz., for the purposes of cultivation, and for the growth of crops. There can be no sufficient reason for allowing an ordinary cultivator to be ejected from his holding if he uses it in a manner to render it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy and at the same time to allow raiyats at fixed rates of rent to do, as they think right with the land even to destroying it whatever the rate of rent may be, whether subject to periodical enhancement or not, the purpose for which the land was originally acquired was the same in both instances and should remain so.

If the provisions of the chapter were confined to admitted rights, the injury to the landlord would be lessened, as they stand in the Bill, in every instance that a landlord sues under section 25 (a), the provisions of this chapter will be pleaded to debar suit.

If the above suggestions were adopted, it would not inflict any hardship on the tenant; if the tenant claiming to hold at fixed rates, but whose rights had not been admitted wished to avail himself of the privileges allowed him under this chapter, all he need do is to apply under section 157, to have the nature of his tenancy declared previous to availing himself of them.

If the operation of this chapter is not confined to mocurraree holdings, and holdings the rents of which have been declared fixed by a competent Court, sections 15 to 22 of Bill No. 2 should be again inserted in the Bill, or the landlord will be compelled to bring a suit to set aside every conveyance in which the holding is incorrectly described as a holding at fixed rates, when he receives notice of transfer.

4. The restrictions placed on voluntary enhancement under section 29, will have the effect of compelling the landlord to exact every pice of rent the law will permit him to demand, it prohibits all enhancement out of court, or it will induce the parties concerned to resort to deception and fraud to evade the payment of the heavy costs entailed upon them in a heavy law suit for enhancement of rents, they will fight it out to the bitter end or lie.

5. Section 35 I consider superfluous we have throughout the Bill directed the Courts to decree' only fair and equitable rents, therefore to tell the Courts that they shall not decree unfair and inequitable rents is unnecessary. With an experienced judge it will have no weight but an inexperienced judge may attach undue importance to it and in doing so do substantial injustice to one of the parties concerned.

6. Under sections 48 and 49 we have effected too little for the protection of the sub-tenant, the actual cultivator of the soil.

The sub-tenant holding under a registered lease is, I think, amply protected short of allowing him to acquire occupancy-rights in the land, the Committee have gone as far as it is possible to go without encroaching on the rights of others, but the sub-tenant who holds under a verbal agreement or an agreement which cannot be accepted as evidence under the law is not sufficiently protected. I would wish to see the sub-tenant receive the same protection against hasty eviction, rack-renting, &c., as is afforded the non-occupancy-raiyat under the Bill.

7. Section 50 is an improvement on section 64 of Bill No. 2, but it does not go far enough. I am of opinion that the suggestions made in the Bengal Government letter of September, 1884, that the presumption should run from 20 years previous to the introduction of the suit, should be adopted, my reasons for wishing it so I stated in my dissent on the Bill No. 2, therefore need not repeat them here.

8. The penal clauses 59, 74 and 185 require modification as they stand, they will be harsh in their operation and may be used solely for the purpose of giving the landlord annoyance.

9. Section 89—2 prohibiting the landlords measuring lands oftener than once in ten years will have the effect of encouraging encroachments. As the landlords are prohibited from bringing suits for enhancement oftener than once in 15 years there is no necessity for this prohibition and the right to do so will, in all instances, be useful to them to test encroachments.

10. Section 138 limits the area of the landlords zeraut or home cultivation to all land held by him as such for 12 years continuously "previous" to the introduction of the Act, thereby preventing him from acquiring any more land as zeraut after the passing of the Bill.

It does not prevent his cultivating more land as home cultivation, but if he once lets it out of his possession, lets it to another person for one season, he will lose his rights in it for ever.

I think the period he is required to hold it for, in order so acquire zeraut rights in the land should run for a period of 12 years before or after the Act is introduced.

11. Section 173 contains a new provision in law, it permits a judgment-debtor to recover possession of his holding 30 days after it has been sold by decree of Court by paying in the amount of the decree.

I object to it as I think it will have an effect contrary to what is intended.

It will deter would-be purchasers from bidding, thereby allowing holdings to be sold for one quarter their value.

It will encourage hangers on about the Courts to make speculative purchases.

And last not least it will induce the judgment-debtors to be careless in the due payment of their debts.

Dissent.

I REGRET I cannot concur with many of the decisions arrived at by the majority of the Select Committee. It seems to me that we have failed to achieve some of the principal objects of the Bill, and that the modifications which the measure has undergone, whilst securing to the landlords substantial advantages, have left the raiyats as defenceless as before.

The Bill was introduced in Council with certain well-defined objects which were of a two-fold character, namely (1) to give reasonable security to the peasant in the occupation and enjoyment of his land; (2) to give reasonable facilities to the landlord for the settlement and recovery of his rent. In order to attain the first object, it was proposed to make the following changes in the existing system:—

(1) to extend to permanent cultivators, holding land in a particular village or estate, the right to hold that land on payment of a fair rent;

(2) to make occupancy-rights transferable;

(3) to introduce a fixed maximum limit for the enhancement of rents; and

(4) to provide some efficient guarantee to non-occupancy-raiyats against arbitrary eviction and arbitrary enhancement of rents. As regards the first object, the proposal, no doubt, has been maintained with some modification. But this has certainly not been the case with the others, and I must confess to a feeling of disappointment at the withdrawal of most of those provisions which were from time to time introduced to secure these objects.

The free transfer of occupancy-holdings was, if I may so call it, the keystone of the measure. The custom had grown up in various parts of Bengal and was gradually extending itself to the entire province. Excepting those places where the presence of a foreign element predominated and caused some degree of friction between landlords and raiyats, the tenants who enjoyed the right of free transfer were admittedly more prosperous and better able to withstand the periodical shocks of scarcities and famines. It was admitted that, during the years immediately preceding the introduction of the measure in Council, the evidence in favour of the extension of the right of transferability had accumulated considerably. It was accordingly proposed to give a statutory sanction to that right. With reference to Behar, however, a doubt was entertained by the Government of Bengal, and my own knowledge of the circumstances of that province induced me last session to bring forward a proposal to withdraw Behar from the operation of the provision. That proposal, however, was not approved of, and it was resolved to give the right to all occupancy-raiyats throughout Bengal and Behar. During the present session, the provision has been dropped entirely from the Bill. Whilst agreeing to the advisability of leaving to custom the right of free transfer in Behar, I consider that as regards Bengal it would have a mischievous tendency. In every place, even where the right has been freely exercised, such as the Presidency, Rajshahye, Dacca, and Chittagong Divisions, the custom will be disputed, with the result that a large portion of the consideration money will pass either into the hands of the landlords or their servants. It would have been far better to recognize transferability throughout Bengal Proper, subject, if necessary, to the payment by the raiyat of a graduated scale of fees upon the consideration money, than to have left it to custom, which I fear will henceforth be disputed in every instance, to the serious prejudice of the tenant in the exercise of his right. With the safeguards which the Bengal Government proposed to attach to the recognition of the right in Bengal Proper, no injury to the landholding interests need have been feared. I think the mode in which the question has been discussed and decided is likely to produce mischief. Had the question not been raised, this mischief might have been avoided.

2. From the very inception of the Bill, it was considered necessary to introduce a maximum limit on rents. In many parts of the province it was proved by the stern testimony of facts that the enhancement of rent beyond a certain limit implied starvation to the cultivators of the soil, and that any endeavour to exact rent beyond that limit ended in failure to the landlord or distress to the tenant. In the interests of the landholding classes themselves it was proposed to provide a check to the system of rack-renting which many of them were disposed to adopt. The East Landholders Association and the late Bábú Kristodás Pál both proposed a gross produce-limit—the former one-fifth as the highest limit of enhancement which the zamíndárs thought proper to demand, the latter one-fourth. The important question to determine was what proportion should the raiyat be left in enjoyment of after payment of his rent? If experience and the collective evidence of competent observers are of any account, it is clear that the raiyats in Bengal can hardly pay for rent more than one-fifth of the gross produce without trenching upon the bare means of subsistence. If in some places the jamábandis shew a higher rent, the question remains is the raiyat ever able to discharge his liability? Among other evidence, that recently supplied by the Board of Revenue as the result of its experience of wards' estates furnishes a negative answer to this question. It certainly cannot be the interest of anybody to leave the raiyat a bare subsistence. Whatever the proportion it may have been considered desirable to adopt, a gross produce-limit appeared to me the most satisfactory and most feasible of all the proposals brought forward to prevent rack-renting. The adoption of this limit would have also enabled the legislature to give some degree of protection to the large body of non-occupancy and under-raiyats who are now practically left without any protection. The withdrawal of the fractional limit upon enhancements in Court is in my opinion likely to prove injurious to the raiyats.

3. I consider the ground of enhancement on the basis of "prevailing rates" as open to serious objection. It introduces, in the form it has now assumed in this Bill, an entirely novel principle into the law of Bengal. The law has hitherto not recognized enhancements up to the average of rates payable, and it seems to me that the recognition of such a principle is not only dangerous, but, without any correlative ground of reduction, unjust. It will end in screwing up rents to the factitious average of a large number of rates, over the correctness or reality of which no individual raiyat has any control, and that average will furnish the basis for a fresh increase until the highest possible rate is reached.

4. Enhancement on the ground of increase in the price of staple food-crops is to my mind economically indefensible. When the price of food-crops increases, the price of other necessary articles also increases. Is it fair or reasonable to constitute a rise in the price of staple food-crops as a ground of enhancement when a hundred other circumstances, like the increasing cost of production, increasing cost of the bare necessities of life, &c., tend to show that the raiyat of to-day in the majority of instances is not a whit better off than the raiyat of twenty years ago? Let us take for example an instance (which is not uncommon in Bengal), of a raiyat whose holding is fit for growing, say cotton, and whose cultivation, owing to a fall in the cotton-market, has diminished in value. As the Bill stands such a raiyat would, notwithstanding his contracted ability to pay enhanced rent, be still liable to enhancement should the price of food-grains have risen. In other words, although he gets less for his crop, and has to pay more for his food, he is still liable to have his rents increased. I cannot help thinking that the Select Committee have failed to realize the full effects of this ground of enhancement, and I would strongly urge that the old ground of enhancement on the basis of net values should be reverted to.

5. The Bill provides no efficient safeguard against the ejectment of a non-occupancy raiyat to prevent the possibility of his acquiring an occupancy-right.

7. I demur, also, to the provision embodied in the Bill regarding sthándi tenures. This provision seems to me to be in direct contradiction to the views of the Secretary of State and the Government of India, that "shifting" should be put an end to. The sthándi provisions recognize and legalize the eviction of a raiyat at the mere caprice of the landlord. I had no objection to the proposals of the Bengal Government, to allow land held on the sthándi system to be a matter for contract; but I have strong objections to the sthándi raiyat being left, as this Bill leaves him, without any practical protection whatsoever.

AMÍR ALÍ.

MINUTE.

I signed the preliminary Report of the Select Committee last year, on the understanding that I postponed the expression of my opinion on certain questions until the submission of the final Report to Council. Some of the sections to which I then objected have, during the subsequent revision, been removed from the Bill, others have been modified, and I now confine my remarks to four principal points. I desire, however, at the same time to record in general terms my hesitation in regard to several other provisions in the Bill. For the Select Committee has been asked to deal with the entire relation of landlord and tenant in Bengal, without being furnished with any body of cross-examined evidence to guide its deliberations. Opinions and statements, often conflicting and sometimes contradictory, have been furnished to it in large numbers. But it has not had the means of ascertaining which of these opinions and statements would have borne the test of cross-examination, or how far their discrepancies might have been reconciled. Absence of such data is the more to be regretted in a measure affecting land-right in Bengal; for in Bengal almost alone among the Provinces of India, there is no central department of statistics, and until quite recently there was no agricultural bureau, which might in some measure have compensated for the evidence of witnesses heard in the Districts. But, while I regret the defective method of enquiry originally adopted, I acknowledge that, at the stage which the measure had reached when the Bill came before the Select Committee, the time for an effective local enquiry had gone past. The Committee heard the views of several gentlemen in Calcutta on two minor points, but no body of evidence has been collected in the Districts and subjected to cross-examination. The result has been to leave in my mind an extreme uncertainty in regard to several important classes of rights with which the Bill deals.

Coming to specific grounds I object, in the first place, to the application of one set of minute provisions for the regulation of rent, to two Provinces in which the relation of landlord and tenant is so widely dissimilar as in Bengal and Behar. [Section 1 (3).] The statements before the Committee show that in Behar, owing to over-population and to the consequent competition for land, the difficulty is to secure a sufficient share of the crop to the cultivator; while throughout large areas in Bengal the difficulty is for the landlord to realise his rent. Yet the fundamental differences between Bengal and Behar find no recognition in the Bill. The effect of this has been, in my opinion, to increase the difficulty of making effective provision for either Province. Thus in regard to perhaps the most important question dealt with in the Bill, namely, the restrictions to be placed on enhancement of rents, the Bengal Government declared that to limit rents to one-fifth of the gross produce was a necessity for Behar, while the imposition of that limit was found indefensible for Bengal. The one-fifth limit has accordingly been dropped, and minor restrictions have been introduced. It seems doubtful to me whether some of these minor restrictions do not go further than is warranted by the facts in Bengal; and it is more than doubtful, considering the statements made on behalf of the Bengal Government, whether these restrictions will meet the necessities of Behar.

I object, in the second place, to the discouragement which the Bill places on the reclamation of waste lands by proprietors at their own expense. Important provisions in this Bill rest on considerations arising out of the pressure of the population on the soil, and on the necessity of protecting the cultivator against the monopoly in land which is thus conferred on the landlord. The most direct remedy for this state of things is to increase the area available for cultivation. Yet the Bill not only gives no new inducement to landholders to reclaim waste, but places discouragements, which did not exist under the previous law, upon their doing so. As regards lands brought under cultivation by tenants of reclamation leases, the landlord will have to realise what is justly due before, for the occupancy-right will now commence to accrue in favour of the tenant during the currency of such leases, and it can be enforced immediately on the expiry of the lease. As regards lands brought under cultivation by the landlord himself, by means of direct labour, he also demands always position than before. Moreover to the landlord who cuts down heavy jungle, or digs tanks, or drains swamps at a large outlay, by means of his own servants, will, under the provisions of the Bill, begin to lose the occupancy-right in the reclaimed land as soon as he lets it out to tenants. If the landlord lets the reclaimed fields to a settled raiyat of the village, the tenant acquires the occupancy-right the moment he enters on the land: if the landlord lets the reclaimed fields to any other raiyat, the title to occupancy-rights immediately begins to mature. In no case will the landlord be permitted, by special contract in his lease, to bar the growth of occupancy-rights in land which he has reclaimed by his own servants at his own expense. Considering the pressure of the people on the cultivated area, and the existence of large unclaimed tracts within a few days' walk of centres of dense population, I think it impolitic to place any new discouragements on efforts to add to the cultivated land. Considering that the Bill, in order to deal with the evils of over-[illegible] restricts the former rights of the landholders, I think that such discouragements are not only politic but unjust. I purpose, therefore, to move amendments in Council, which will have the effect of protecting a landlord who reclaims at his own expense bonâ fide waste lands, against the growth of occupancy-rights in those lands during a reasonable period to recoup his outlay, say for thirty years.

In the third place, I object to certain of the provisions for the enhancement and reduction of rents on the ground of a rise in prices [section 39]. The Bill substitutes for an old and a scarcely workable ground of enhancement, namely, a rise in the value of the produce, a much more simple ground, namely, a rise in the prices of staple food-crops. The latter contention would in any case be more easily susceptible of proof. But the Bill further simplifies the burden of proof, by directing that the Courts shall be guided by certain lists of prices to be published in the official Gazette. These lists are to be of two kinds; one set of lists are to record current prices in the future, the other set refer to prices in the past. A new and sharp weapon of enhancement is thus placed in the hands of the landlord; but, subject to conditions on its application imposed by the Bill in favour of the tenants, I believe it to be a fair ground of enhancement. The weapon is two-edged; it cuts against the tenant as a means of enhancement if prices have gone up, and against the landlord as a ground for the reduction of rent if prices have gone down. It is obvious, however, that as the Bill entrusts the Local Government with the duty of supplying the evidence, it should take reasonable guarantees that the evidence thus supplied shall be good evidence. The draft Bill of last year provided that all the price lists officially published, should be conclusive evidence. The Bill as now finally settled directs that the Courts shall presume that the facts stated in the lists are correct unless and until it is proved that they are incorrect; thus giving the value of presumptive evidence to both the sets of lists.

I believe that the lists to be prepared for current prices in the future, under the safeguards provided by the Bill, will merit this degree of credibility; but that the lists, purporting to record prices in the past, do not. This latter class of lists will have to be compiled, ex post facto, for a period running back ten or fifteen years, from certain price-lists which were collected at a time when adequate safeguards were not taken to secure their accuracy, and when the effective safeguards now provided by the Bill for future price-lists were not thought of. At the period of their collection, moreover, it was never contemplated to give to them the value of conclusive or presumptive evidence in the Courts. I have examined some of the old lists. I do not think that they afford a safe basis for a recompilation which should be accepted by the Courts either as conclusive or presumptive evidence of prices in the past. They are valuable concurrent evidence, taken together with the evidence to be derived from the business books of grain-merchants, zamíndárs, and dealers in export produce. I do not think that lists to be mainly compiled from them should now have a greater weight than the original lists would have had under the Evidence Act. I propose, therefore, to move an amendment which will have the effect of leaving the value of presumptive evidence to the lists prepared for current [illegible]

[illegible] the exceptional circumstances contemplated are when the Government has to intervene between landlord and tenant "in the interests of public order or of the local welfare." On the one hand, the experience of the past, and the statements which have been made in regard to the future, seem to render it expedient that this power should, under due safeguards, be accorded to the Local Government. The Bill, in requiring that the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council must be obtained, provides due safeguards. On the other hand, I do not think that a general disruption of contracts between landlord and tenant, such as is involved by a reduction of rents on a large scale, should be effected by any authority of a less deliberative character than the Legislature itself. If, therefore, it ever becomes necessary to apply this clause to a considerable area, I hope that the process will be conducted under, or receive effect from, an express Act. It is in this hope that I have agreed to the provision in the present Bill.

I have thought it my duty to place on record objections to specific provisions of the Bill, and to mention in general terms my uncertainty in regard to several important classes of rights with which it deals. I ought, therefore, to state clearly that I believe the Bill, taken as a whole, makes substantial improvements on the existing law, and that, where it alters that law, its provisions are, with certain exceptions, equitable and [illegible]

Dissent.

I DISSENT from this Report, because I am not satisfied that the Bill, as amended by the Select Committee, affords that effectual protection to the raiyat which the measure, as introduced into the Council, was intended to give. What the nature of that protection was, and on what grounds it was thought necessary, can readily be learnt from the Statement of Objects and Reasons, and from the speech delivered in Council on the 2nd March, 1883, by the Hon'ble Member who introduced the Bill. It was the intention of the Bill to secure to the occupancy-raiyat fixity of tenure, fair rent and free sale. The Bill accordingly declared, first, that every settled raiyat should have a right of occupancy throughout the village or estate in which he held land at the date of the introduction of the Bill; secondly, that his rent should never exceed one-fifth of the value of the gross produce of the land in staple crops; thirdly, that he might transfer his holding at his pleasure, subject to a right of pre-emption on the part of the landlord, and that the landlord's purchase of the holding should not extinguish the occupancy-right, but that the right should revive as soon as the land was let to another tenant. The interests of the non-occupancy-raiyat were not less carefully guarded. "Tenants of this class", said the Hon'ble Member who introduced the Bill, "should not be exposed to arbitrary rack-renting and eviction at the hands of their landlords, and the acquisition by them of the status of settled raiyats should be facilitated in every possible way." The Hon'ble Member quoted with approval a remark made by Sir Ashley Eden, that "no raiyat should be evicted from his fields on any ground save persistent failure to pay a fair and reasonable rent". In accordance with these principles, the Bill prescribed a maximum limit of rent for the non-occupancy-raiyat; it did not allow him to be ejected on the ground that the term of his lease had expired; and it provided that, if he were ejected for refusing to agree to an enhancement demanded by the landlord, he should be entitled to receive compensation for disturbance.

Such was the Bill which was introduced into the Council, and which was referred to the Select Committee: It was drawn with a full recognition of the character and the gravity of the evils which it was designed to remedy. "What we hope for" (said the Hon'ble Member who introduced the Bill) "is, first, that a stop may be put to the vigorous efforts which are at present being made by landlords in some parts of the country to withdraw land from the operation of the occupancy-right by preventing the natural growth of a fresh occupancy-right in the place of an old right which has determined; and secondly, that where occupancy-rights do, as a matter of fact, exist, the proof of their existence may be a matter of less difficulty than it is at present to the ignorant and helpless raiyat". In speaking of the necessity for legislation, and of the kind of legislation required, the Hon'ble Member re-produced a striking passage from the Report of the Famine Commission. "We have received" (the Famine Commissioners wrote) "a large amount of evidence, remarkable in its weight and unanimity, to the effect that in the Bengal Province the relations of landlord and tenant are in a specially unsatisfactory condition. We feel no doubt that the condition of the rent-law and the way in which it is administered in Bengal are a very grave hindrance to its agricultural prosperity, and that large portions of the agricultural population remain, owing mainly to this cause, at all times dangerously near to actual destitution, and unable to resist the additional strain of famine. We can feel no doubt that in all the provinces of Northern India, and particularly in Bengal, it is the duty of the Government to make the provisions of the law more effectual for the protection of the cultivators' rights. * * * * It is only under such tenures as convey permanency of holding, protection from arbitrary enhancement of rent and security for improvements, that we can expect to see property accumulated, credit grow up, and improvements effected in the system of cultivation. There could be no greater misfortune to the country than that the numbers of the occupancy-class should decrease, and that such tenants should be merged in the crowd of rack-rented tenants-at-will, who, owning no permanent connection with the land, have no incentive to thrift or to improvement. It is desirable for all parties that measures should be framed to secure the consolidation of occupancy-rights, the enlargement of the numbers of those who hold under secure tenures, and the widening the limits of that security, together with the protection of the tenant-at-will in his just rights, and the strengthening of his position by any measure that may seem wise and equitable."

These, I repeat, were the principles upon which the Bill was based, and these objects would have been effectually secured by the Bill as originally introduced into Council. In the amended Bill, fixity of tenure is weakened by the limitation of the definition of a settled raiyat to the village alone; fair rent is deprived of the safeguard (the only ultimate safeguard) of a maximum limit beyond which rent can never be enhanced; and free sale has disappeared altogether from the Bill, or survives only in a section which saves customary rights. The non-occupancy-raiyat has fared even worse, at the hands of the Select Committee, than his [illegible] brother. The gross produce limit of his rent is struck out; he is declared liable to ejectment on the ground that the term of his lease has expired; if he refuses to agree to any enhancement demanded of him, he cannot claim a judicial rent for a longer period than five years; and he may be ejected at any time before he has acquired a right of occupancy without obtaining any compensation for disturbance.

It will possibly be said that these alterations, sweeping as they may seem to be, are counterbalanced by other changes which have been made in the Bill, and that, when the account on both sides is fairly summed up, it will be seen that the objects of the original measure have substantially been attained. Let us consider how far this is the case as regards each of the two great classes of raiyats, and, first, as regards the occupancy-raiyat.

It must be admitted that transferability, or the right of free sale, is not an essential provision of the Bill. I believe that (in Bengal at any rate) it might usefully and safely have been conceded; but there were arguments in favour of a different conclusion, and it was open to the Select Committee to decide that transferability would not have the effect of either strengthening or extending the occupancy-right. I do not therefore desire to lay any stress on the abandonment of this provision.

With regard to fixity of tenure, the elimination of "the estate" from the definition of the settled raiyat is, I think, much to be regretted. If no middle course could be found, the Committee had to decide between a definition which might, in a few exceptional cases, entail a slight hardship on the landlord, and a definition which could easily be worked so as to produce, in a multitude of cases, a grievous wrong to the tenant. On this point the decision of the Committee was, in my opinion, a lamentable mistake. At the same time I admit that, as regards fixity of tenure, the position of the occupancy-raiyat is somewhat stronger under the amended Bill than under the present law, and that this object of the Bill has been partially, though still imperfectly, attained.

Fixity of tenure, however, without fair rent is worse than useless, and in the matter of fair rent the Bill signally fails to afford the occupancy-raiyat reasonable protection. He is protected, under the existing law, by the fact that the enhancement provisions of the Act now in force have proved to be unworkable. Such a condition of things is a public scandal, and the Select Committee rightly resolved that just claims to enhancement should no longer be baffled by the uncertain wording or the complicated conditions of the law. But the Committee seem to have overlooked the danger of enlarging the facilities for the use of the enhancement sections without also taking precautions to guard against the abuse of them. The Bill puts enormous powers of enhancement into the hands of the landlords. The sections relating to enhancement on the ground of the prevailing rate have been re-cast in a form which will practically allow the landlord to raise the rent of every raiyat in the village to the highest rate which he can persuade or compel any one to pay. In suing for enhancement on the ground of a rise in prices, the landlord will find the evidence, which it has hitherto been impossible for him to adduce, provided by Government ready to his hands. He will have nothing to do but to lay before the Court the official price-lists, and a decree in his favour will follow as a matter of course.

The feeble palliatives which the Bill provides are impotent to restrain the evils which the working of the enhancement sections is calculated to produce. It is declared that no enhancement shall be decreed in excess of what is fair and equitable; that the rent of a raiyat shall not be enhanced at intervals of less than 15 years; and that, in extreme cases, the Government of India may interpose, and may depute an officer, not, as usual, to enhance rents, but to reduce them. The first of these provisions may occasionally be of use in tempering the rigour of the law, but it is of too vague and indeterminate a character to afford any adequate protection. The second will make the pauperizing process more gradual, but not less certain or complete. And what shall we say of the third? Where is the wisdom of enacting a law the natural operation of which may produce a state of things which will require the law to be not merely suspended, but reversed? But in truth what is most to be feared is not such outrageous oppression as would call for the interposition of Government under this special provision of the Bill. What is most to be feared is that the gradual and steady operation of the enhancement sections will be a permanent bar to all improvement in the condition of the occupancy-raiyats. They will have no inducement to raise larger crops or to cultivate more valuable products, for they would be toiling for the benefit, not of themselves, but of their landlords. The machinery of this Bill they can neither resist nor evade.

These evil consequences would have been avoided, if the Select Committee had accepted two of the recommendations of the Government of Bengal. That Government desired, first, to restrict enhancement on the ground of the prevailing rate to those individual cases which it was originally intended to meet, and secondly, to prescribe an absolute limit beyond which no claims to enhancement should be allowed. The Government of Bengal saw that, if the landlord's demand were restricted to one-fifth of the gross produce in staple crops, rack-renting would be effectually stopped, the cultivation of the more valuable crops would be encouraged, and the agricultural advance of the country would be ensured. Unhappily, these views were not accepted by the majority of the Select Committee, and the amended Bill leaves the occupancy-raiyat without any adequate security in the matter of fair rent.

With respect to the non-occupancy-raiyat, the original Bill was designed to protect him against unreasonable exactions, and to facilitate his acquisition of the right of occupancy. I have shown what stress was laid on these objects, and especially on the second of these objects, by the Famine Commissioners and by the Hon'ble Member who introduced the Bill. It is therefore somewhat remarkable that the amended Bill leaves the non-occupancy-raiyat entirely at the mercy of his landlord as regards his rent. When first admitted to occupation he must pay such rent as may be agreed upon between himself and his landlord. It is true that, if he is afterwards called upon to agree to an enhancement, he may demand a judicial rent for a term of five years. But this provision will be inoperative, for the raiyat will be aware that, unless he comes to terms with his landlord in the matter of rent, the landlord will not formally demand an enhancement, but will sue to have him ejected. Those who know the peasantry of Bengal know that a raiyat will agree to pay any rent rather than face the alternative of ejectment from his holding. The provisions of Chapter VI of the Bill will therefore enable the landlord to exact from the non-occupancy-raiyat the highest rent which the land can possibly bear, a rent which will leave the tenant nothing more than a bare subsistence: and the demand of enhancement may be repeated year after year.

It is remarkable, as I have observed, that the amended Bill affords the non-occupancy-raiyat no protection as regards his rent. But it is still more remarkable that it does nothing to facilitate his acquisition of the right of occupancy. It provides, it is true, that he shall not contract himself out of the power to acquire the right. But this stipulation is useless so long as the Bill affords a simple and effectual means of ensuring that the right shall never accrue. The right can be acquired only by 12 years' continuous occupation of village-land. The Bill leaves it in the power of the landlord to rack-rent the non-occupancy-raiyat during eleven years, to evict him in the twelfth, and then to re-admit him and begin the process again. In the populous parts of the country, the raiyat, who cannot live without the land, will have no resource but to submit.

Can it be alleged that such provisions as these redeem the pledges made when the Bill was introduced, or place the non-occupancy-raiyat in the position which he may equitably claim to hold? What was his status under the Regulations of 1793—the contract to which the landlords and their advocates so continually appeal? He was entitled (as Mr. Justice O'Kinealy has shown) to hold at the customary rate, and was not liable to eviction, except for non-payment of rent. What is his status under this Bill? He is a mere tenant-at-will, with absolutely no rights beyond those which his landlord may be pleased to allow him. It may not be possible to revert at the present day to the conditions of 1793, but at least it is reasonable to ask that the legislation of 1885 shall not place the non-occupancy-raiyat in a worse position than he held in 1859.

I cannot admit that there is any force in the plea that the landlords, as a body, are not likely to strain to the utmost the powers given them by the Bill. The legislature is not justified in putting one class of men at the mercy of another class, on the chance that the latter will use their irresponsible power with moderation. And I must add that I feel no assurance that, as regards the accrual of the occupancy-right, these powers will be moderately used. I have already quoted the words in which the Hon'ble Member who introduced the Bill referred to "the vigorous efforts now being made by landlords to prevent the natural growth of occupancy-rights". There is overwhelming evidence before the Council to show that this feeling among the landlord class is widely spread and deeply seated. I apprehend that landlords will not fail to use largely the opportunities which this Bill will give them. They will not merely prevent the growth of the right over lands now held by non-occupancy-raiyats, but, as occupancy-holdings from time to time fall into their hands by death, abandonment or surrender, they will treat the new tenants of these holdings in the same manner. "There could be no greater misfortune to the country", said the Famine Commissioners, in a passage which I have already quoted, "than that the numbers of the occupancy-class should decrease". The provisions of the amended Bill seem to me to threaten the country with this misfortune.

For these reasons I am unable to assent to the Report, or to regard the Bill, in the form which it has now assumed, as an adequate and final settlement of the questions raised in this great controversy. If the Bill is to be accepted, it must, I think, be accepted only as an instalment of the legislation necessary to place the relations of landlord and tenant in these Provinces on a secure and satisfactory basis.

H. J. REYNOLDS.

Minute of Dissent.

The present rent law has been in operation for the last 25 years. One would have thought that legislation which aimed at an amendment of that law would be directed to such defects and objectionable provisions in it as judicial administration during this long period had brought to prominent notice. But this is far from the actual state of things. Upon one point, indeed, there was a consensus of opinion. The Government and the zamíndárs alike were agreed that the present procedure for the recovery of rent was lamentably defective. So acutely did the Government feel the difficulty that they caused special enactments to be passed by the Local Council for securing for themselves a summary procedure for the recovery and settlement of rent in their own estates, while the zamíndárs were left to follow the procedure which Government in their own case were compelled to abandon. When, again, the obligation of collecting the road and public works cesses was imposed upon the landholders, distinct promises were made to them that they should obtain statutory facilities for the recovery of rent by suit in Court. And when two Bills were introduced for the purpose in the Local Council (and neither of them was carried through) it was observed by the President from his place in the Local Council that "only the procedure sections (those for the more effective realisation of rents) should be proceeded with." So far, therefore, the very facts, which point to legislative action clearly show that there was no necessity for a substantive amendment of the Rent Law. There was besides the unwarrantable Proclamation issued by Sir George Campbell in 1872, setting forth that "it is perfectly lawful to unite in a peaceable manner to resist any excessive demands of the zamíndárs; but it is not lawful to unite to use violence and intimidation." For, the Pubna disturbances which occurred about this time, and the significant declaration of the raiyats that they had become the direct tenants of Her Majesty showed not that they were rising in arms against a Government which they meant to condemn as unmindful of their requirements, but that they considered themselves powerful for the assistance they had secured and that they were possessed of the upper hand over their landlords to whom they were liable for arrears of rent. In fact, before the Report and draft Bill of the Rent Commission were published in July 1880, no complaint was made on behalf of the raiyats about the harsh operation of any of the sections of the law and no suggestion for a revision of its fundamental principles emanated from any judicial officer. On the contrary, Sir Barnes Peacock had expressed as his decided opinion that the occupancy section was operating unjustly against the legitimate interests of the landholders and that it should be abolished. And it would be extraordinary to treat Sir Barnes Peacock's recommendation or the Government promise of a summary procedure for the recovery of rent as evidence of necessity or justification of a Bill like the one before Council which, in our opinion, makes serious inroads upon the ancient rights and privileges of the landholders. The draft Bill of the Rent Commission was based almost wholly upon theory and speculation, and its many innovations have only been shown up but never proved justifiable in the different stages through which it has since passed. In the meetings of the Select Committee, on which we had the honor to sit, the authority of the Rent Commission was invoked in support of several of the provisions of the revised Bill; in some cases the opinions of the Bengal Government contained in their letter of the 15th of September last was appealed to; in some the opinions submitted by public officers on the requisition of the Bengal Government were pressed into service; and in others again, it was advanced that it would be unwise to disturb the resolutions passed by the Committee last year. Authority ranging under one or other of these heads was no doubt forthcoming in support of the different sections of the revised Bill, but we do not see how this could be convincing to the Legislature in the absence of evidence duly tested by cross-examination by the members of the Select Committee. The advantages of cross-examination are sufficiently well-known and it would certainly be no disrespect to the most talented person or the best qualified expert if a man of inferior ability sought from his place in the Supreme Legislative Council of the country to satisfy himself by such orderly enquiries as happened to suggest themselves to him. And until such opportunity is offered to the most junior member of the Council, its deliberations must remain very unsatisfactory to itself and to the outside public. The private opinions of even judicial officers, when not confined to experiences of the actual operation of particular sections of the law, do not possess much value, and it would be dangerous to introduce new provisions in a difficult branch of the law on the basis of untested opinions of subordinate officers. When a learned judge of the High Court reads the Regulations to mean that "no lease was valid till it had been submitted to, and approved by, the Revenue Authorities;" and when another learned Judge of the High Court adduces the passage in Regulation II of 1793, viz., "the property in the soil was never before formally declared to be vested in the landholders" as "conclusive on the point that the soil was not the property of the zamíndárs," we believe no apology is needed for our not placing implicit faith in the extra-judicial opinions of distinguished officers of Government. As regards the condition of the people and the necessity of radical changes in the law, in other words, the policy of the measure, if high officers of State, judicial and executive, may speak with any authority, it is no small accession of strength to those who are opposed to the main principles of the Bill to be able to say that a majority of Divisional Commissioners and not a few District Judges, share in their views.

Justice Cunningham's Minute, paragraph 16.

Justice O'Kinealy's Minute, paragraph 4.

But these opinions and the opinions of experienced Subordinate Judges on the operation of the different provisions of the present law have in many cases been undervalued by the majority of the Select Committee and consideration shown for the opinions of much less experienced officers upon a perfectly unsupportable estimate of personal weight. We shall have occasion further on to refer to some of these opinions. As regards the general features of the Bill it appears to us that vested rights of landholders have been interfered with without the sanction either of juridical principles or the formally declared authority of the Executive Council; that rights have been created in favor of one class of subjects and at the uncompensated cost of another class which, to say the least, are of dubious benefit to the country at large, and looking to the large question of growth of population and famine difficulties the changes are simply calculated to augment rather than relieve, the pressure on Government. The changes proposed to be introduced by the Bill will have the further effect of making, in opposition to well-established principles of Government the judicial administration subordinate to the Executive authorities in many respects. And lastly, the changes alluded to are sure to bring about such an extent of litigation and uncertainty in dealings out of Court, that we shudder to think of the subject barely as inhabitants of the country and apart from our interests as landholders and from our feelings as the representatives of the landholders of Bengal and Behar. By a consensus of opinion, official and non-official, the result of the operation of the present law has been to place the whole body of raiyats in a condition of prosperity superior to what they previously enjoyed, and to what is enjoyed by the corresponding classes of people in any the smallest corner of this immense continent of British India. There would be no objection to that condition being made still better if it could be done without interfering with the welfare of the other classes. But we strongly believe that far from benefiting the tenantry the measure, in its present shape, if put in operation, will effect their ruin as a class, or in any case of the honester and poorer portion of them, by endless and harassing litigation. The very discussion of the measure upon the lines disclosed in the Bill is fraught with dangerous consequences upon the rural economy of the country and the firm social relations between class and class of the subject community, and between all classes and the Government at the head. We shall now proceed to examine some of the objectionable provisions of the Bill in detail.

Section 5 (5)—The rule that whenever the area of a holding exceeds one hundred bíghás, the raiyat shall be presumed to be a tenure-holder, is arbitrary and opposed to fact. There are many districts in which holdings, each exceeding a hundred bíghás, are not uncommon, but the tenants thereof are raiyats all the same. As no written engagements are usually exchanged, landholders will find great difficulty in rebutting the presumption which this clause will create, while on the other hand the divisions and sub-divisions created by Hindu and Mahammadan rules of succession will ere long present the spectacle of tenures comprising of only 20 or 30 bíghás of land cultivated by the holders thereof.

Sections 8 and 36.—The power given to the Court to direct in the case both of tenure-holders and raiyats, that the enhancement of rent shall be gradual, is novel. As the enhanced rent represents what the landlord is entitled to get, and what the Court considers to be fair and equitable under the circumstances of the case, the provision in question is wholly indefensible. Lord Bramwell truly observed with reference to this provision.—"Now what consideration would influence the Court; I do not know whether if the tenant had got half a dozen children it would be a hardship upon him to have his rent suddenly enhanced I do not know. We do not see how that can be taken into account, indeed, what could be taken into account really under such a clause as that.

Sections 9 and 37.—The change of the minimum period from 10 to 15 years for which an enhanced rent should obtain currency, is equally arbitrary. Both in the draft Bill of the Rent Commission and the Bill introduced into the Council, the period was 10 years. Although landholders are lawfully entitled to claim enhancement whenever there is a rise in the value of produce and consequent depreciation of the exchange value of money, the limitation of 10 years would be an effectual check to oppressive repetitions of claims for enhancement, but considering the strides the country is daily making in material progress the extension of the period is wholly unwarrantable.

Section 18.—The provision to extend to a raiyat holding at a rent or rate of rent fixed in perpetuity the same rights of transfer and succession that belong to a tenure-holder is wrong in principle. The same considerations which have induced the committee to expunge the sections regarding free sale of occupancy-rights hold good in the case of these raiyats as forcibly as in the case of other occupancy-raiyats. The landholder's objections to a free sale no less than economic considerations in the interests of the raiyats do not lose a particle of their force, whether the raiyat is protected from enhancement or he is liable to pay a fair and equitable rent. The practical operation of the section would, moreover, be productive of the greatest confusion. Every raiyat will claim to hold at a rent or rate of rent fixed in perpetuity, as by so doing he would not only secure to himself a right of free sale, but also protect himself from the conclusion that his rent is liable to enhancement. It would be suicidal on his part to behave himself otherwise than as a raiyat contemplated by this section and thus without any struggle with his landlord to confess himself a raiyat whose rent is liable to enhancement. But what is the Registering Officer, the Court and the Collector to do when a raiyat applies under Chapter III for the registration of a transfer of his holding? Is the Registering Officer or the Collector to enquire and decide in every such case whether the holding is protected from enhancement, or is he to exercise an arbitrary discretion in the matter? Again, is the section to apply to a raiyat who holds at a rent or rate of rent fixed in perpetuity, but whose rent has nevertheless been enhanced by reason of improvements made by his landlord or by reason of his having been found in possession of more land than what he pays rent for? The difficulty would, to a certain extent, be remedied if it were provided, that the provisions of Chapter III should be made applicable only to those raiyats whose rents are protected from enhancement by a registered lease or judicially declared title.

Section 20 (5).—This sub-section provides that for one year after a man has ceased to hold any land as a raiyat in a village he shall continue to be a settled raiyat in that village. This is wholly anomalous. A man cannot have ceased to be a raiyat and still continue to be a raiyat at one and the same time. The provision contained in Section 87 in respect of apparent and not actual abandonment would be a sufficient protection to the raiyat in cases contemplated by this sub-section which involves a contradiction in terms.

Section 20, Sub-section 7.—The rule of presumption created by this sub-section is a downright perversion of the law of evidence. Nothing is more easy for a raiyat who has held land for 12 years than to prove his possession by the production of his rent-receipts. It is not altogether an easy matter for the landholder to prove the negative. Even supposing that there has been no change of hands in the proprietary title, a landholder would be unable to prove his papers if within 12 years there have been changes, as there frequently are, by deaths, dismissal and otherwise, in his collecting agency. The difficulty would be unsurmountable in the case of auction-purchasers who would have no means whatever at their disposal for rebutting the presumption.

Section 21.—The provision contained in sub-section 1, to the effect that a settled raiyat shall have a right of occupancy in all land for the time being held by him cannot be supported on any considerations which justify the accrual of a right of occupancy. It is no reason that because a man has a right of occupancy in a certain plot of land that the right should extend by possession for a single day to every plot of land that might be let to him. This is directly opposed to the Despatch of the Secretary of State. It is, moreover, a provision which will act injuriously on the settled raiyats themselves. They will hardly get new lands for cultivation which landholders will take care to let to non-occupancy raiyats and strangers with a view to prevent the accrual of a right of occupancy.

Section 21 (2).—The effect of the operation of sub-section (2) would be to give a raiyat a right of occupancy in land which he has held "at any time between the 2nd day of March, 1883, and the commencement of this Act," although such land might have passed to the possession of the landholder or another raiyat by abandonment, surrender or transfer at some time within that period. Nothing could be a more fruitful source of litigation.

Section 22, Sub-section 1.—This sub-section introduces the doctrine of merger in a matter relating to landlord and tenant not for the purpose of preventing in the spirit of the Ruling reported in 10 Indian Law Reports, Calcutta 45, the acquisition of a right within a superior right, but for the purpose of merging an existing right in the superior right. For reasons explained by Sir Barnes Peacock in a case reported in 10 W. R. 15, this is quite opposed to the system of land-tenures and the condition of the country. The provision is the more objectionable as it saves the right of third parties in the land. The landholder would, therefore, get the land which comes to his possession by purchase, ejectment, abandonment or surrender subject to all the encumbrances created by the out-going tenant. Provisions have been made, it is true, in subsequent sections for defining what would be deemed to be valid encumbrances in different cases, but the language of this sub-section is absolute.

Section 25.—As the provision for a free-sale of occupancy-holdings has been abandoned, this section should provide for ejectment for non-payment of rent. A sale of the holding at the instance of the landholder in execution of a decree for rent would, in every case, heap upon the raiyat additional costs which the sale proceeds might not cover and would thus entail loss both upon the landholder and the raiyat. Ejectment would be a simple and effective remedy to the landholder, while the raiyat would always be able to prevent it whenever his holding is worth more than the amount of the decree.

Section 29 (1).—It might well be taken as an established fact that the price of produce has quadrupled since 1793, and at least doubled within the last 30 years. The productiveness of land has also increased immensely. The restriction which this section imposes upon enhancement by contract to 2 annas in the rupee is therefore most arbitrary. The rule involves a serious infringement of the rights of landholders. The right which the Government of India, when introducing the Bill, assumed it possessed of determining the rates of rent payable by raiyats to their landlord has, I venture to think, been found to be non-existent. A close examination of it will show it to be wholly unfounded. The question, it is well known, engaged the attention of a Select Committee of the House of Commons in 1832, and the conclusion to which they came after a searching enquiry can hardly be ignored at the present moment. They observed—"unless the Government should either, by public or private purchase acquire the zamíndáry tenure, it would under the existing Regulations be deemed a breach of faith, without the consent of the zamíndárs to interfere directly between the zamíndár and the raiyat for the purpose of fixing the amount of land tax demandable from the latter under the settlemet of 1792-93." The proposed restriction is, however, altogether uncalled for by the circumstances of the country. No evidence whatever has been adduced to show that the raiyats in any parts of these Provinces are rackrented; all the evidence on the contrary goes to show that landholders have been extremely moderate and forbearing in the matter of settlement of rent with their raiyats. The ratio which rent bore to the value of annual produce at the time of the Permanent Settlement varied according to Sir Jhon Shore from $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{3}{5}$ths, and although the landholders were clearly entitled to get from time to time such enhanced rents as represented the changed value of money according to that ratio, it is an undisputed fact that the ratio which rent bears to the annual value of produce at the present day ranges in different parts of these Provinces from $\frac{1}{2\frac{1}{2}}$ to $\frac{2}{5}$ths. Apart therefore from the question of legal rights the restriction in question is a great injustice to the landholders. The effect of the rule on the economic condition of the country would be an unmixed evil. The experience of every country has confirmed Arthur Young's observation that low rents always act as a damper upon industry and ultimately tells seriously upon the condition of agriculture and the prosperity of the cultivating class. The restriction in question will no doubt be felt by the raiyats as a benefit for a few years but ere long the profits of the holdings will give rise to a large class of under-raiyats, increase sub-infeudation to an alarming extent, and thus make a definite area of land feed two, perhaps, three families of raiyats in the place of the one that it is now feeding. In these Provinces where, according to the figures given in Dr. Hunter's Statistical Accounts, more than one-fourth of the average cultivable area is still uncultivated, not one of the least deplorable consequences of such a state of things would be to check the extension of cultivation and the progress of emigration. The question presents another aspect. Would this legislative embargo effectively control the law of demand and supply? Can the legislature force the principles of political economy to bow to its dicta? If a raiyat and his landlord agree between themselves as to the extent to which the rent should be enhanced, ways and means would not be wanting to give their agreement the form of a binding contract. After the terms have been agreed upon the landholder may sue the raiyat for enhancement at a certain figure and the raiyat may confess judgment in Court, or the raiyat may give the zamíndár's as salami the capitalized value of the increase in excess of the enhancement allowed by law. The parties may have recourse to other shifts and devices to defeat the law. But perhaps the history of the provision is its strongest condemnation. The draft Bill (section 71) of the Rent Commission provided that there should be no limit to enhancement by contract. That provision was maintained in the draft Bill (section 63) of the Bengal Government, and also in the draft Bill (section 63) which was sent up to the Secretary of State in Council. It was the Bill which was sent up to the Secretary of State in Council. It was the Bill which was introduced in Council in March 1883, which for the first time provided (section 59 (2) that the increased rent should not exceed 6 annas in the rupee. The Select Committee in the course of deliberations last year reduced the limit to 4 annas in the rupee (section 41). At a meeting of the Select Committee, held on the 8th ultimo, a motion was made on the part of the Bengal Government to reduce the maximum limit to 2 annas in the rupee, but it was not supported by a single member, and it was therefore not carried. The motion was renewed on a subsequent date in connection with the question of a maximum limit to enhancement by suit in Court and carried by a majority. It should be further observed that the extension of the minimum time from 10 to 15 years during which the enhanced rent should obtain currency, was for the first time made by the Select Committee last year; the draft Bill of the Rent Commission, the draft Bill of the Bengal Government, the draft Bill of the Government of India, and also the Bill which was introduced in Council in 1883, all fixed the minimum period at 10 years. The objections to this limit which we have mentioned with reference to tenures apply with double force in the case of raiyati holdings.

Section 29 (2).—This sub-section contemplates an exercise of powers by the registering officer which is likely to do the raiyat more harm than good. Registering officers are not expected to exercise judicial powers, and yet in the face of his opinion under this sub-section, it would be difficult for a raiyat to prove in the Civil Court that he was not at the time in a sound state of mind, or that he was not competent by reason of his minority or other disability to enter into the contract.

Section 30 (b).—The alterations made by this section in the grounds on which a suit for enhancement of rent may be instituted would deprive landholders of enhancement which is justly due and at the same time introduce unnecessary complications in the law to the injury both of the landholder and of the raiyat. There will be no enhancement on the ground of a rise in price unless the rise is in respect of the price of the staple food-crops. By section 39 (7) the local Government has to determine what shall be deemed to be staple food-crops in these provinces, and it appears from a letter written by the Revenue Secretary to the Government of Bengal to the Secretary of the British Indian Association, dated the 23rd February 1884, that "the Lieutenant-Governor would probably declare to be staples the two food-grain crops (apparently rice and wheat) which appear * * to be most largely produced in each district." The effect of this alteration would be very harmful. The landholder would get no enhancement for a large rise in the price of jute, sugarcane, or potato, if there has been no rise in the price of rice; while on the other hand a raiyat cultivating simply jute, sugarcane, potatoes or pulses would have to pay not only enhanced rent to his landlord but also to spend more money for his living if the price of rice has risen although the price of these other crops has fallen or remained stationary. It is easy to see that in some cases the operation of this section would be disastrous to the raiyats.

Section 30 (c & d).—The alteration made in the ground of enhancement relating to increase of the productive powers of the land is equally objectionable. These clauses provide for enhancement when the increase is due either to improvements effected by the landlord, or by fluvial action; but there are other causes of improvement for which the landlord is undoubtedly entitled to get enhancement of rent. Where, for instance, a change in the course of a river, a new railway, a new public road or a new Government embankment frees land from periodical inundations or from frequent trespasses by cattle or wild animals, any rule which deprives the landlord of his share of the benefit of the improvement militates against the very principle on which enhancement on the ground of improvement of the land is based. The alteration in this ground of enhancement has necessitated the introduction of a number of sections about landlords' improvements, and enquiries into the same and registration thereof which might well have been omitted.

Section 31 (a).—There is no justification for the rule contained in this clause to the effect that a landholder, claiming enhancement on the ground that the rent paid by a raiyat is below the prevailing rate should prove the rates of rent paid during a period of not less than 3 years. If the majority of the raiyats of a village have agreed to pay a certain rate of rent and paid that rent by reason of a rise in the price of produce or improvement of the land, why should the landholder have to wait for 3 years before he could sue the remaining dozen or score of raiyats for enhancement of rent at that rate? If these raiyats have any grounds entitling them to continue to hold at a lower rate of rent they may prove such ground as well at the time as 3 years after.

Section 32 (a).—Enhancement of rent on the ground of a rise in price of produce would be more visionary than real if, in addition to the other limitations, the restrictions contained in this section are allowed to stand. The Court is required to ascertain the price by comparing the average prices during the 10 years' immediately preceding the date of suit. An average of such a long period will necessarily reduce the rate of enhanced rent and deprive the landholder of his proper dues. It would be enough, for the purpose of determining whether a rise in price is merely casual or steady if the average of 3 years is taken. In connection with this matter it is noticeable that section 38, which provides for reduction of rent on the ground of a fall in the price of produce does not contain the rule to which I object. In all fairness, the rule of procedure should be the same in both cases, but from the way in which section 38 is worded there is nothing to prevent the Court from decreeing reduction of rent on the basis of an average of 2 or 3 years

Section 32 (b).—The restriction to enhancement contained in this clause is based on a wrong assumption of facts and on false reasoning. The clause provides that, for the purpose of determining the enhanced rent according to the rule of proportion, the average price should be reduced by $\frac{1}{4}$rd of the excess, that fraction representing the increased cost of cultivation. The portion of the Report of the Bengal Government (segment 44), on the basis of which the rule has been introduced, proceeds on wholly erroneous data from beginning to end. Enhancement by the rule of proportion as contained in the first part of this clause involves three different contingencies as regards the costs of cultivation. The costs of cultivation (1) might have increased in the same ratio as the price of produce; (2) they might have increased in a less ratio; (3) they might have increased in a greater ratio. If these costs be taken into consideration the result, by the rule of proportion, would be wholly unaffected in the first case; the landholder would be entitled to get more in the second case in the shape of enhanced rent than he would otherwise get, and it is only in the third case that the raiyat would be entitled to a reduction in the enhanced rent. But where is the evidence to show that the costs of collection have increased in a greater ratio than the price of produce? The statement made by some of the officers to the effect that the costs have increased goes for nothing, as they may have increased in the same or in a less ratio than the price of produce. To illustrate our meaning we shall take a hypothetical case. Let the value of the annual produce of a bígáh of land be Rs. 8, of which Rs. 3 represents the costs of cultivation Rs. 3 the rent and Rs. 2 the profit of the raiyat, and let the rise, as assumed by the Bengal Government for purposes of illustration, be 25 per cent. in prices, so that the value of the annual produce has become Rs. 10. Then, under the simple rule of proportion, the enhanced rent would be Rs. 3-12, the profit of the raiyat under the rule of proportion would be Rs. 2-8, and the balance Rs. 3-12 would represent the costs of cultivation. The rule of proportion, therefore, assumes that the costs of cultivation have risen in the same proportion as the price of produce—an assumption which in a majority of cases is far more favorable to the raiyat than to the landholder. It is this which induced the learned Judges in Thakurany Dasi's case to hold that the cost of cultivation should not be taken into calculation in working the rule of proportion. The report of the Bengal Government states: "Thus if prices rise 25 per cent. they would increase the rent 12½ per cent., and allow the other 12½ per cent. to go as an allowance for increase in costs of production." It is easy to see that this is both arithmetically and logically erroneous. If 12½ per cent. be allowed for costs of cultivation out of the landholder's share, the actual allowance for such costs would be 37½ per cent.

Section 33 (a).—The necessity of registering landlord's improvements created by this section would involve an amount of expensive enquiry which few landholders will care to invite, and the result will, therefore, be to deprive them of enhanced rents to which they are fairly entitled.

Section 34 (b).—Where land is washed away or covered with sand, it is the landlord who suffers. A portion of the land on which lay the security for his revenue is gone. The raiyats who held the land would be welcome to cultivate other plots of lands, but the loss to the landholder is irretrievable. As some compensation for such cases, might not they reasonably ask that they should be allowed the whole benefit of improvements in land caused by natural causes?

Section 38 (b).—The same rule of procedure as regards the determination of average prices should hold good both in cases of enhancement and reduction of rent. If it be an average of 10 years in the one case let it be the same also in the other.

Section 40.—Few provisions in the Bill will do more harm to the Behar landholders than the provision contained in this section for the commutation of produce rent into money rent on the application of the raiyat. The institution of payment in kind is one eminently deserving of every encouragement at the hands of the legislature. A Government settlement-officer has rightly observed: "It gives the landlord a fair profit in any improvement he may make; the rents are self-adjusting; the tenant is not driven into debt to meet a fixed demand; if he borrows, he borrows from his landlord, a less exacting creditor than the village banker; a feeling of mutual interdependence and self-interest is created between landlord and tenant; the former is more than a mere rent collector, his own prosperity depends on that of the cultivator." If commutation is allowed at the instance of the raiyat it would entail all the trouble, expense and litigation inseparable from settlements of money rent, involve raiyats in debt, and seriously affect the cause of agriculture. Lands for which produce rents are paid usually require the co-operation of the landholder for their cultivation. In most places, as in the districts of Patna and Gya, such co-operation is indispensible. The utter uselessness of attempts on the part of individual raiyats to cultivate such lands without the help of the landholder is nowhere better explained than in the very valuable letter written on the subject by Bábú Bhupsen Sing, Government Pleader of Gya. He writes: "Because, in the first place, his holding being scattered in small plots and patches all over the village area, many at considerable distances from the ahars and pynes, he will not think it worth his while to spend any money upon the construction and repairs of the common reservoirs and water-courses; secondly, because he has not the means, nor has he any credit with money-lenders, to raise the required sum by loan; thirdly, because, in the present state of the country, the habits of the people, their ancient and inherited mode of thinking, and their want of confidence in each other, so natural in monetary transactions among the ignorant and illiterate mass to which the majority of the cultivators belong, would make combination and raising up of subscriptions among themselves, creation of a joint common fund and the appointment of trustees for the proper management of such a fund, anything but practicable within the bounds of possibility; fourthly, because, assuming, even for the sake of argument, the possibility of the creation of such a fund and the appointment of such trustees as aforesaid, the mob would be without a lead, and each raiyat having paid for the common reservoirs and water-channels would claim the priority of irrigating his fields, and try to assert his rights or supposed rights, by means, fair or foul, which would often lead to serious affrays, resulting in the "breaking of bones and shedding of blood, and sometimes terminating in murders and man-slaughters."

Chapter VI.—The rights given by the Bill to a non-occupancy-raiyat will, to all intents and purposes, convert him into an occupancy-raiyat. He may (section 85) sub-let his holding so as to make the sub-lease binding for 9 years, although his own tenure might be for a much shorter time. The landlord will have no power to eject him for refusal to pay enhanced rent. He must serve upon him a notice of enhancement, sue him in Court, and it is only when the raiyat refuses to pay rent at the rates paid by occupancy-raiyats that the landlord may get a decree for ejectment. A non-occupancy-raiyat may (section 79), as a matter of right, dig a well, and erect a dwelling-house and out-offices on his land and make any other improvement after having first served a notice on his landlord requiring him to do so. When a decree for ejectment is passed the Court may extend the time beyond 15 days, the raiyat will be entitled to get from his landlord the price of the crops, if any, on the land or the cost of the preparation of the land and also (section 82) compensation for improvements made by him. If the landlord applies for a record and settlement of rights, or if the process is forced upon him by the Local Government, the rent of the non-occupancy-raiyat, whether enhanced or reduced, will hold good for 5 years. All these provisions are violent inroads upon well-recognized rights of landholders. It appears to us, however, that the effect of their operation would be to place non-occupancy-raiyats in a much worse position than at present. Having an absolute right of ejecting such a raiyat on the expiry of the term of his lease, the landholder will in every case grant short term leases with a view to protect his interests and thus reduce non-occupancy-raiyats to mere tenants-at-will. For the purpose of providing for the comparatively small number of cases in which landholders have not or may not protect themselves by contract, a number of sections have been introduced in different parts of the Bill which might well be omitted. They simply add to the radical aspect of the measure without doing any corresponding good.

Chapter VII.—I shall discuss the provisions of this chapter along with section 85 which might well have formed a part of this chapter.

Section 50 (2).—The operation of the rule of 20 years' presumption has been most injurious to the landholders. Instead of merely giving the raiyat a facility for proving that he and his ancestors before him have been in possession by payment of rent at a uniform rate since 1793 in cases where he has been actually in such possession, it has, like a rule of prescription or of limitation, created rights where none existed before. By the very circumstances of their position the landholders have been unable in most cases to rebut the presumption. Those landholders whose families have been in possession of estates since 1793 form a very insignificant number, the vast majority having acquired their estates by purchase since that time, and as it is notorious that the records of landholders are badly kept, and the climate of the country is inimical to the preservation of old records, it is easy to see that excepting a very few cases landholders have been wholly unable to discharge the burden laid upon them by law. The injustice of this rule of presumption has been exposed by none so well as by the Hon'ble Mr. Reynolds in the report which accompanied his draft Bill. He is supported in this respect by a large number of experienced Revenue Officers, District and Subordinate Judges, who were consulted by the Bengal Government on the subject. Mr. H. L. Dampier, Mr. E. E. Lowis, Mr. G. N. Barlow, Mr. Kean, Mr. D. W. Doyly, Mr. R. Porch, Mr. A. Weekes, Mr. C. B. Garrett, Mr. J. Tweedie, Babu Srinath Rai, Babu Bhagaban Chandra Chakerbutty, Babu Naffar Chandra Bhutta, Syed Moazim Hossein and others have recommended either the abolition of this rule of presumption or a material modification of it. Considering that the rule is opposed to the recognised principles of evidence, that it is opposed to the fact that from ½ to ⅔rds of the area of these provinces was waste at the time of the Permanent Settlement, that it has been in operation for the last twenty-five years during which all who really required it and many more have had their titles judicially declared, that it places in the way of auction-purchasers, seeking to get their just dues, obstacles which are practically insurmountable, and that it would operate in future with double hardship upon the landholder, it is but fair to him that the rule should be expunged from the Bill. The justice and necessity of its abolition cannot be better supported than by referring to section 190 of the Bill. When Government with all the means and appliances which a well kept and organised system of accounts placed at their disposal, find it necessary to protect their own interests by freeing those khas mehals which have never been permanently settled (and these form the majority) from the operation of this rule of presumption, how much more imperative must be the necessity for an amendment of the law in the interests of private landholders?

Section 50 (3).—The question as to in what cases the rule of 20 years' presumption, notwithstanding that land has been added to or taken from a holding should apply should be left to the decision of the Courts, according to the merits of each case. A hard-and-fast rule, that the presumption shall appy to all cases of consolidation or reduction of holdings may be fraught with great mischief. The remarks of Sir R. Couch in this connection contained in a ruling reported in 21 W. R. 267 are well worth considering.

Section 56 (4).—Considering that section 58 gives the tenant full remedy for refusal or neglect on the part of his landlord to give him a receipt in proper form, this sub-section is wholly unnecessary. It is likely to prove a fruitful source of litigation by holding out to the tenant a prospect of discharge from all liability, if he can shew that his landlord has not put in some one particular in his receipt although it might have been from ignorance or oversight.

Section 58.—A demand of the receipt by a letter under a registered cover should precede the institution of a suit for recovery of penalty. The section, as it is, would offer a great temptation to the tenant to refuse to take the receipt and sue his landlord for recovery of double the amount paid by him.

Section 61.—Clauses (c) and (d) of this section are objectionable. A landholder's agent might have once refused to take rent from a raiyat on the ground of his not being a recorded tenant, or on the ground of some dispute as to the amount of rent, but that is no reason why it should be assumed that he would refuse to take rent at all future time, notwithstanding that the matters in dispute have been settled. There should be a tender of payment in every case before deposit is allowed. Nor should the raiyat be allowed to constitute himself a judge of his landlord's title, and to deposit his rent in Court on the plea that by reason of a suit instituted by a third party, against his landlord, he feels a bonâ fide doubt as to his title to receive it.

Section 64 (1).—If this sub-section were made applicable only to rents deposited under clause (d) of section 61, we should have nothing to say; but we strongly object to it as it clearly refers to all classes of deposit of rent. The Court should certainly have no power to pay money to B, when the raiyat has deposited to the credit of A.

Sections 74 and 75.—Exception should have been made in these sections in regard to such impositions "in addition to actual rent" which are allowed by law. Take for instance the case of zamíndárí dawk charge, which is by law (Act VIII of 1862, B.C.) payable by the zamíndár, but which he may (section 9) stipulate with his raiyats for payment by them. Take again, the case of the road cess. It is payable by law both by the raiyat and his landlord in certain proportions, but there is nothing to prevent the latter to bind the former by contract for the payment of the whole amount by him. Sec. 4, Indian Law Reports, Calcutta, 576. The Salamy which the landholder is clearly entitled to get for parting with a portion of his rights, e. g., allowing the tenant to take earth for brick-making, should also be expressly excepted. This is the more necessary, as the penalty provided in section 74 is very heavy.

Sections 76—85.—These sections, about improvements and compensation for improvements have been strongly objected to by landholders. If they are allowed to stand, landholders should be given the prior right to make an improvement, where both they and their raiyat wish to make it; the right of non-occupancy raiyats to make improvements should be taken away, and the difference in this connection between an occupancy-raiyat holding at a fixed rent or fixed rate of rent, and other occupancy-raiyats should be abolished. Section 77 furnishes another instance of the great confusion which will arise, if this distinction is maintained. It is provided in clause (3) that if there is a dispute between the raiyat and his landlord "as to the right to make an improvement," the Collector should "decide the question and his decision shall be final." The Collector must therefore determine finally and conclusively, although quite in an incidental way, whether a raiyat holds at a fixed or enhancible rent.

Section 85.—The effect of the various provisions of the Bill regarding sub-letting and under-raiyats would be to give a great impetus to the progress of the institution, although both the Secretary of State in Council and the Government of India have expressed a desire that the institution should be discouraged. A registered sub-lease will be ordinarily binding for nine years, the sub-lessee's rent may not be enhanced beyond a certain percentage over the lessors' rent, in certain cases of sale of the lessors' title the sub-lease cannot be avoided, and even in cases of abandonment by the lessor he will have the right to hold on if he agrees to pay the rent payable by his lessor. These provisions would be more harmful to landholders and their raiyats than a provision of free sale of occupancy holdings with the restrictions which the revised Bill imposed upon it.

Section 86 (2).—The Bill provides for a notice of six months to be given to the raiyat in a case of ejectment. It is fair to the landholder that he should receive a notice of an equal period in a case of surrender.

Section 86 (3).—This clause is objectionable. The notice may fairly be presumed if the landholder lets the surrendered land to another raiyat in the beginning of the year, but to presume it in any other case would be doing him wrong. To presume the service of the notice from the fact that the raiyat has taken a new holding in the name of a relative or friend would be contrary to all rules of evidence, and to raise the presumption from the fact that the raiyat has ceased for three months to live in the village, would be to expect the landholder to act in a way quite opposed to the provisions of section 87. When the question is one of continued liability of the raiyat to pay rent, he will be presumed to have surrendered his holding simply from the fact of his having ceased to live in the village for three months, but when the question is one of the landholder's right to re-let land which has been abandoned, no abandonment will be presumed till the expiry of the year, in which the raiyat so abandons, and not even then till the Collector on the application of the landlord has published a notice in the locality. It is provisions like these which have given the Bill such an one-sided character.

Section 87.—The attempt made in this section to formulate the nature of evidence required to prove an abandonment, has singularly failed. A raiyat must (1) abandon his residence; (2) omit to make any arrangement for the payment of rent, and (3) cease to cultivate the land, before he can be said under the section to have abandoned his holding. In the case therefore of a pykust or non-resident raiyat, there can be possibly no abandonment of a holding, unless the raiyat abandons his native village belonging to a different landholder. The landholder will have no right to let the lands abandoned by a pykust raiyat to another raiyat until the pykust raiyat "abandons his residence," a contingency which may never happen. Again, there is no reason why a landholder should have to wait for one year, and lose his year's rent, if he is satisfied that the raiyat has really abandoned his holding. The provision for the publication of notice contained in clause (2) and for the recovery of possession by the raiyat contained in clause (3) would be a sufficient check against any malâ fides of the landholder.

It should be also observed that clause (3) extends the time within which a raiyat may sue to recover possession from one year to two years. This extension of time is under the circumstances of the case, altogether unnecessary, and it will complicate matters, and give rise to litigation. If the land be let in the meantime to a settled raiyat of the village, and if he lets it to another under-raiyat under a registered sub-lease, what an amount of confusion would be caused?

Section 90.—This section takes away important rights of landholders as regards measurement. If the raiyat refuses to attend the measurement and point out his land, clause (2) will place him in no worse position than a raiyat who has attended and pointed out his land. In both cases, the measurement will be presumed to be correct unless the contrary is shewn. The most noticeable defect in the section is however, the absence of any provision for cases in which a landholder, usually an auction-purchaser, is unable to ascertain the raiyats who are in possession of the lands of his estate. A landholder may under such circumstances, it is true, make an application under the Record-of-Rights Chapter, but it would throw upon him not only a deal of expense and trouble but would place him at the mercy of the Revenue-officer.

Sections 93-100.—The strong support which the Bengal Government gave in their Report to the provision for the appointment of managers in joint estates was based on an erroneous assumption that it was the existing law. That law was, however, repealed in 1874 when other obsolete enactments were repealed. Since then no necessity has been made out for a provision like this which will place in the hands of a small fractional shareholder of an estate the power of seriously annoying and injuring his co sharers. Considering that the holders of small estates collect their own rents from the raiyats, the appointment of a manager by Court will eat up all their profits. The facilities which the law and the rulings of the Courts have given for the partition of joint estates have rendered such a provision as this wholly unnecessary.

Sections 101-114.—Both among landholders and raiyats this is one of the most unpopular portions of the Bill. These sections give to the Executive Government a power to convulse rural society to an extent far exceeding anything which any differences arising out of the ordinary relations of landlord and tenant can create. Even under circumstances of agrarian disturbances neither of the contending parties would avail themselves of these provisions. The Agrarian Disturbance Act of 1879 remained a dead letter so long as it was in the Statute Book. The Select Committee have made these provisions much more objectionable than before by introducing a section (section 111) which gives the Revenue-officers power to reduce existing rents either on the grounds allowed by law or on any other ground, and we think that in justice to the landholders and in the interests of the raiyats themselves, these sections should be omitted.

Section 116.—A record of proprietor's private lands should be made only on his application, as it would otherwise put the landholder and his raiyats to great expense and trouble at a time when there is perhaps perfect peace and harmony between the parties and when neither of them is prepared for the enquiry. The provision empowering the Local Government to order such an enquiry at any time they please, and without any application on the part of the raiyats or their landlord, is, therefore, highly objectionable. Section 120 involves an anomaly. If a landholder after having cultivated by his own servants a piece of land for 12 years before the passing of the Act, turns it into raiyatti land, he will still be enabled after a lapse of 15 or 20 years, when the record will be made, to claim it as his private land and to get it so recorded.

CHAPTER XII.—The provisions relating to distraint amount virtually to an abolition of the institution. They will give the landholders no greater powers than what the Code of Civil Procedure gives to every plaintiff who may wish to get an attachment before judgment. The landholder looks upon the crops as the security for the recovery of his rent. The sale of the houses and the goods and chattels of raiyats is often times quite inadequate to meet the landholder's claim. In the case of non-resident raiyats the crops raised by them are the landlord's only security for his rent. If they remove the crops before paying the rent the landholder generally loses his rent for the year. The procedure contained in this chapter would therefore result in this, that while the landlord is engaged in making application to the Court and satisfying it of the bona fides thereof, the raiyat will quietly remove his crops and the former will not only lose his rent but also the costs of the application. It is a misnomer to call that a distraint which is nothing more or less than a process of Court. The present law on the subject does not give the landholder any power which might be possibly abused. He can only attach the crops, but he cannot interfere with the raiyat's doing what he likes with the crops without the assistance of the Court. It is the fear of the consequences if the raiyat removes the distrained crops that constitute the landholder's whole security for the rent. There have been no complaints on the part of judicial officers of any abuse of the power which the present law allows with impunity. On no point, on the contrary, have public officers expressed themselves more forcibly than in condemnation of the procedure contained in the Bill and in support of the existing law. The Presidency Conference, the Patna Conference, the Rajshahi Conference, the Burdwan Conference, the Orissa Conference and a number of individual officers have recommended the retention of the existing law.

Section 153 (b).—The rule allowing an appeal in all cases should not be interfered with. Rent suits should not be judged by the amount of the claim. Very often they possess an importance to which the value of the suit is no index. All those whom we have consulted are of opinion that it is much better that they should have the constitutional right of an appeal than that their suits should be finally decided by special officers selected by the local Government.

Section 154.—The time within which a suit for enhancement may be instituted should be extended to the first 9 months in order to enable the landholder to judge from the condition of the crops whether he should institute the suit in a particular year. No one would like to institute a suit for enhancement when the prospect of the crops is gloomy or distress is impending over the country.

Section 155 (1).—Provision should be made for service by Court of the notice of ejectment. If it were left to the landholders, as this sub-section does, the service would be denied in most cases and the enquiry would entail unnecessary expense and delay.

Section 156.—A decree for ejectment severs the relation between landlord and tenant. If there be crops on the land they go with the land to the landholders, as ruled in a case reported in 5 Indian Law Report, Calcutta, 135. This section lays down a principle and provides for an elaborate enquiry quite in opposition to the judge-made law on the subject. A raiyat may be ejected only at the close of the year when the crops have been reaped. There is, therefore, no necessity for this section. Moreover, when a raiyat's interest may be sold outright four times in the year, a provision regarding crops in cases of ejectment only would give the raiyat an illusory protection.

Section 160.—This section introduces serious changes in the present law regarding what are called the protected interests. There could be no objection to a lease for building or manufacturing purposes granted at a fair rent being protected from avoidance on the sale of the superior tenure as provided in the present law, but this section goes much farther. A lease of land whereon manufactories have been erected, perhaps without the consent of the landholder, and reserving a nominal rent is declared a protected interest by this section; as also judicial leases granted to non-occupancy raiyats and permanent leases granted by the out-going tenure-holder. The effect of these provisions will be that it would be in the power of a tenure-holder to creates leases in the names of his servants and relations which would absorb the entire profits of the tenure and then put it up to sale by making default in the payment of rent. Most tenures would be rendered quite valueless in no time if these provisions are retained.

Sections 161—168.—These Sections introduce alterations in the existing law which will prove a fruitful source of litigation. No necessity whatever was felt for provisions like these. If the sale be made in the first instance subject to the registered encumbrances, and then, after the sale proceeds have been found to be inadequate, a second sale be made with power to avoid such encumbrances, it would saddle the judgment-debtor with unnecessary costs, reduce the market value of the tenure and delay the realisation of money due to the landholder. These evils would be greatly enhanced if the proceedure be extended by the Local Government to sales of occupancy holdings under Section 168.

Section 177.—The preamble of Regulation V of 1812 shows that although the Legislature of 1793 enjoined the exchange of written engagements between landholder and tenant, the raiyats of these Provinces in a body deliberately refused to enter into written engagements which would make it obligatory on them to pay as rent, cesses, and abwábs which they had been paying as benevolences, and that that Regulation was passed, among other objects to provide for such refusal. Since that time there has been vast progress in the material prosperity of the country, in the spread of education and in the condition of the raiyats. They might well therefore be left to the resources of their own judgment in matters relating to their own interests. They will be perfectly free to contract away their liberties and become emigrants in a strange country, to borrow money at usurious rates of interest involving their ultimate ruin, and to mortgage their holdings or sell them in some cases, and yet this section imposes restrictions upon freedom of contract in a variety of matters in which they are the best judges of their own interests. It is very doubtful how far these would be effective in practice and how far they would prevent parties from having recourse to shifts and devices for the purpose of evading the law. These provisions, it should be observed, offer a striking contrast to the provision contained in section 192. In the case of private landholders, free contract is restricted in the interest of raiyats; in the case of Government no contract entered into by a landholder with his raiyats before the property came into the hands of Government would be respected if it interfered with the right of Government to assess fair and equitable rent upon the land.

Section 182.—This Bill should have nothing to do with homestead lands in towns and trading places. Where homestead lands do not form part of a raiyatti holding its incidents should be left to custom and contract.

Section 184.—The schedule to which this section refers has extended from one year to two years the time within which a raiyat dispossessed by his landlord may sue to recover possession. We see no reason why this alteration in the existing law should be made.

Section 186.—A provision which converts into a criminal offence acts, otherwise not criminal, which relate to the daily transactions of life is most objectionable. The provisions of the section are, moreover, very one-sided. In the case of the landholder, for instance, an "attempt to distrain" would be a criminal offence, but in the case of the raiyat not only is an attempt to resist distraint or remove distrained crops not criminal, but he may remove crops stored for division or appraisement under the Danabundy system without subjecting himself to any penalty, civil or criminal.

Sections 191 & 192.—For reasons stated in different parts of this Dissent, these two sections should be omitted and Government should be placed in exactly the same position regarding landholding rights as private landholders.

Section 196.—We do not see either the necessity or the value of this section. If the Acts of the Local Legislature in any way conflict with the provisions of this Bill such Acts would be rendered inoperative by the Indian Councils Act, 1861. If those Acts provide for matters not embraced by this Bill they would have the force of law without any provision like this.

Schedule I.—We strongly object to the sections of Regulation VIII of 1793 mentioned in this schedule being omitted. They contain the most important provisions on which the Permanent Settlement was based, next in importance only to the provisions fixing the revenue in perpetuity.

We desire to say, in conclusion, that the Bill does not provide for any summary procedure for the recovery of rent. By making an express provision for decrees directing recovery of rent by instalments, by extending the time before a sale can take place from 20 to 30 days from the date of the proclamation, and by giving the Courts discretion to extend beyond 15 days the time within which a raiyat might protect himself from ejectment by payment of the decreed amount, the Bill has, on the contrary, thrown additional obstacles in the way of recovery of rent.

Considering the importance of the measure and the material changes in the Bill made by the Select Committee since their Preliminary Report was submitted last year we think that it should be republished before its provisions are taken into consideration by the Council.

12th February 1885.

I wish to add that I regret that my unavoidable absence from the Meetings of the Select Committee in the last stage of their labors and the very short time at my disposal between the receipt by me of the draft report of the majority of the Committee and the date fixed for the submission of the report to the Council, prevents me from recording my opinions at greater length. I adhere to the opinions expressed in my last year's dissent. The measure as a whole is even now opposed to the just rights of the proprietors of land and detrimental to the best interests of the entire community. If not withdrawn, it still requires further and serious consideration by the light of actual ascertained facts and circumstances of the country as opposed to mere opinions and ex-parte reports.

TENURE-HOLDERS.

Enhancement of rent.

6. Where a tenure has been held from the time of the Permanent Settlement, its rent shall not be liable to enhancement except on proof—

Tenure held since Permanent Settlement liable to enhancement only in certain cases.

Enhancement of rent. [D., § 19. C. B., s. 7. B. B., s. 7. Section 6.]

(a) that the landlord under whom it is held is entitled to enhance the rent thereof either by local custom or by the conditions under which the tenure is held, or

(a) the circumstances under which the tenure was created, for instance, whether the land comprised in the tenure, or a great portion of it, was first brought under cultivation by the agency or at the expense of the tenure-holder or his predecessors in interest, whether any fine or premium was paid on the creation of the tenure, and whether the tenure was originally created at a specially low rent for the purpose of reclamation; and

(b) the improvements, if any, made by the tenure-holder or his predecessors in interest.

(4) If the tenure-holder himself occupies any portion of the land included in the area of his tenure, or has made a grant of any portion of the land either rent-free or at a beneficial rent, a fair and equitable rent shall be calculated for that portion and included in the gross rents aforesaid.

[C.B., s. 10(a). B.B., s. 11(b). Section 9.]

8. The Court may, if it thinks that an immediate increase of rent would produce hardship, direct that the enhancement shall be gradual; that is to say, that the rent shall increase yearly by degrees, for any number of years not exceeding five, until the limit of the enhancement allowed has been reached.

Power to order gradual enhancement.

[C.B., s. 10(b). B.B., s. 11(c). Section 10.]

9. When the rent of a tenure-holder has been enhanced by the Court or by contract, it shall not be again enhanced by the Court during the fifteen years next following the date on which it has been so enhanced.

(b) the contract must fix the rent for a term of at least fifteen years.

(2) The registering officer shall, before registering a contract under this section, ascertain that the contract is not inconsistent with sections 74 and 178 of this Act, and that the raiyat is competent and willing to enter into it, and understands its nature.

(3) Nothing in sub-section (1), clause (a), shall apply to a contract by which a raiyat binds himself to pay an enhanced rent in consideration of an improvement which has been or is to be effected in respect of the holding by, or at the expense of, his landlord, and to the benefit of which the raiyat is not otherwise entitled; but an enhanced rent fixed by such a contract shall be payable only when the improvement has been effected, and, except when the raiyat is chargeable with default in respect of the improvement, only so long as the improvement exists and substantially produces its estimated effect in respect of the holding.

(4) The Local Government may, from time to time, subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, make rules for the guidance of officers registering contracts under this section.

[D., § 43 (1) and (2). C. B., s. 22 (1), (3) and (4). B. B., s. 23 (1), (3) and (4). Section 43.]

(b) that there has been a rise in the average local prices of staple food-crops during the currency of the present rent;

(c) that the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by an improvement effected by, or at the expense of, the landlord during the currency of the present rent;

(d) that the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by fluvial action.

Explanation.—"Fluvial action" includes a change in the course of a river rendering irrigation from the river practicable when it was not previously practicable.

[Section 44.]

31. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground that the rate of rent paid is below the prevailing rate—

Rules as to enhancement on ground of prevailing rate.

(a) in determining what is the prevailing rate the Court shall have regard to the rates generally paid during a period of not less than three years before the institution of the suit, and shall not decree an enhancement unless there is a substantial difference between the rate paid by the raiyat and the prevailing rate found by the Court;

(b) if in the opinion of the Court the prevailing rate of rent cannot be satisfactorily ascertained without a local inquiry, the Court may direct that a local inquiry be held under Chapter XXV of the Code of Civil Procedure by such Revenue-officer as the Local Government may authorize in that behalf by rules made under section 392 of the said Code;

Enhancement of rent.

(c) in determining under this section the rate of rent payable by a raiyat his caste shall not be taken into consideration, unless it is proved that by local custom caste is taken into account in determining the rate; and whenever it is found that by local custom any description of raiyats hold land at favourable rates of rent, the rate shall be determined in accordance with that custom;

(d) in ascertaining the prevailing rate of rent the amount of any enhancement authorized on account of a landlord's improvement shall not be taken into consideration.

[Section 45.]

Rules as to enhancement on ground of rise in prices.

32. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground of a rise in prices—

(a) the Court shall compare the average prices during the decennial period immediately preceding the institution of the suit with the average prices during such other decennial period as it may appear equitable and practicable to take for comparison;

(b) the enhanced rent shall bear to the previous rent the same proportion as the average prices during the last decennial period bear to the average prices during the previous decennial period taken for purposes of comparison: provided that, in calculating this proportion, the average prices during the later period shall be reduced by one-third of their excess over the average prices during the earlier period;

(c) if in the opinion of the Court it is not practicable to take the decennial periods prescribed in clause (a), the Court may, in its discretion, substitute any shorter periods therefor.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of landlord's improvement.

33. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground of a landlord's improvement—

(a) the Court shall not grant an enhancement unless the improvement has been registered in accordance with this Act;

(b) in determining the amount of enhancement the Court shall have regard to—

(i) the increase in the productive powers of the lands caused or likely to be caused by the improvement,

(ii) the cost of the improvement,

(iii) the cost of the cultivation required for utilizing the improvement, and

(iv) the existing rent and the ability of the land to bear a higher rent;

(c) a decree under this section shall, on the application of the tenant or his successor in interest, be subject to re-consideration in the event of the improvement not producing or ceasing to produce the estimated effect.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of increase of productive powers due to fluvial action.

34. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground of an increase in productive powers due to fluvial action— Enhancement of rent. [Section 47.]

(a) the Court shall not take into account any increase which is merely temporary or casual;

(b) the Court may enhance the rent to such an amount as it may deem fair and equitable, but not so as to give the landlord more than one-half of the value of the net increase in the produce of the land.

35. Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections the Court shall not in any case decree any enhancement which is under the circumstances of the case unfair or inequitable. [Section 48.]

Enhancement by suit to be fair and equitable.

36. If the Court passing a decree for enhancement considers that the immediate enforcement of the decree in its full extent will be attended with hardship to the raiyat, it may direct that the enhancement shall be gradual; that is to say, that the rent shall increase yearly by degrees for any number of years not exceeding five until the limit of the enhancement decreed has been reached. [C. B., s. 23 (d). B. B., s. 24, (d). Section 49.]

Power to order progressive enhancement.

37. (1) A suit instituted for the enhancement of the rent of a holding on the ground that the rate of rent paid is below the prevailing rate, or on the ground of a rise in prices, shall not be entertained if within the fifteen years next preceding its institution the rent of the holding has been enhanced by a contract made after the second day of March, 1883, or if within the said period of fifteen years the rent has been commuted under section 40 or a decree has been passed under this Act or any enactment repealed by this Act enhancing the rent on either of the grounds aforesaid or on any ground corresponding thereto or dismissing the suit on the merits. B., s. 38 (3). B. B., s. 25 (2) & (3). Section 51.]

(a) on the ground that the soil of the holding has without the fault of the raiyat become permanently deteriorated by a deposit of sand or other specific cause, sudden or gradual, or

(b) on the ground that there has been a fall, not due to a temporary cause, in the average local prices of staple food-crops during the currency of the present rent.

(2) In any suit instituted under this section the Court may direct such reduction of the rent as it thinks fair and equitable.

Price-lists.

Price lists. [C. B., 122. B. B., s. 145. Section 52.]

39. (4) The price-lists shall, when approved or revised by the Board of Revenue, be published in the official Gazette; and any manifest error in any such list discovered after its publication may be corrected by the Collector with the sanction of the Board of Revenue.

(5) The Local Government shall cause to be compiled from the periodical lists prepared under this section lists of the average prices prevailing throughout each year, and shall cause them to be published annually in the official Gazette.

(6) In any proceedings under this chapter for an enhancement or reduction of rent on the ground of a rise or fall in prices, the Court shall refer to the lists published under this section, and shall presume that the prices shown thereby are correct, unless and until it is proved that they are incorrect.

(7) The Local Government, subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, shall make rules for determining what are to be deemed staple food-crops in any local area and for the guidance of officers preparing price-lists under this section.

(5) The order shall be in writing, shall state the grounds on which it is made, and the time from which it is to take effect, and shall be subject to appeal in like manner as if it were an order made in an ordinary revenue proceeding.

(6) If the application is opposed, the officer shall consider whether under all the circumstances of the case it is reasonable to grant it, and shall grant or refuse it accordingly. If he refuses it, he shall record in writing the reasons for the refusal.

[Section 120.] 113. When the rent of a tenure or holding is settled under this chapter, it shall not, except on the ground of a landlord's improvement or of a subsequent alteration in the area of the tenure or holding, be enhanced, in the case of a tenure or an occupancy-holding for fifteen years, and in the case of a non-occupancy-holding, if the rent is settled in any case under section 112 or on the application of the landlord under section 104, for five years. 131. If, on the property being put up for sale, a fair price (in the estimation of the officer holding the sale) is not offered for it, and if the owner of the property, or a person authorised to act in his behalf, applies to have the sale postponed till the next day, or (if a market is held at the place of sale) the next market-day, the sale shall be postponed until that day, and shall be then completed, whatever price may be offered for the property. [B. B., s. 116. Section 149.] Postponement of sale.

132. The price of every lot shall be paid at the time of sale, or as soon thereafter as the officer holding the sale directs, and in default of such payment the property shall be put up again and sold. [B. B., s. 117. Section 150.] Payment of purchase-money.

133. When the purchase-money has been paid in full, the officer holding the sale shall give the purchaser a certificate describing the property purchased by him and the price paid. [B B., s. 118. Section 151.] Certificate to be given to purchaser.

134. (1) From the proceeds of every sale of distrained property under this chapter, the officer holding the sale shall pay the costs of the distraint and sale, calculated on a scale of charges prescribed by rules to be made by the Local Government in this behalf. [B. B., s. 119. Section 152.] Proceeds of sale how to be applied.

(2) The remainder shall be applied to the discharge of the arrear for which the distress was made, with interest thereon up to the day of sale; and the surplus (if any) shall be paid to the person whose property has been sold.

135. Officers holding sales of property under this Act, and all persons employed by, or subordinate to, such officers, are prohibited from purchasing, either directly or indirectly, any property sold by such officers. [B. B., s. 120. Section 153.] Certain officers may not purchase.

(2) When the distraining officer receives the deposit, he shall forthwith pay it into the Court.

(3) A receipt granted under this section to an owner of distrained property not being the defaulter shall afford a full protection to him against any subsequent claim for the arrears of rent on account of which the distraint was made.

(4) After the expiration of one month from the date of a deposit being made under this section, the Court shall pay therefrom to the applicant for distraint the amount due to him, unless in the meanwhile the owner of the property distrained has instituted a suit against the applicant contesting the legality of the distraint and claiming compensation in respect of the same.

(5) A landlord shall not be deemed to have consented to his tenant's sub-letting the holding or any part thereof merely by reason of his having received an amount deposited under this section by an inferior tenant.

137. (1) When an inferior tenant, on his property being lawfully distrained under this chapter for the default of a superior tenant, makes any payment under the last foregoing section, he shall be entitled to deduct the amount of that payment from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord, and that landlord, if he is not the defaulter, shall in like manner be entitled to deduct the amount so deducted from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord, and so on until the defaulter is reached.

Amount paid by under-tenant for his lessor may be deducted from rent.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of an inferior tenant making a payment under the last foregoing section to institute a suit for the recovery from the defaulter of any portion of the amount paid which he has not deducted under this section.

[B.B., s. 126. Section 156.]

138. When land is sub-let, and any conflict arises under this chapter between the rights of a superior and of an inferior landlord who distrain the same property, the right of the superior landlord shall prevail.

Conflict between rights of superior and inferior landlords.

[Section 157.]

139. When any conflict arises between an order for distraint issued under this chapter and an order issued by a Civil Court for the attachment or sale of the property which is the subject of the distraint, the order for distraint shall prevail; but, if the property is sold under that order, the surplus proceeds of the sale shall not be paid under section 134 to the owner of the property without the sanction of the Court by which the order of attachment or sale was issued.

Distraint of property which is under attachment.

[Section 158.]

140. No appeal shall lie from any order passed by a Civil Court under this chapter; but any person whose property is distrained on an application made under section 121 in any case in which such an application is not permitted by that section may institute a suit against the applicant for the recovery of compensation.

Suit for compensation for wrongful distraint.

141. (1) When the Local Government is of opinion that in any local area or in any class of cases it would, by reason of the character of the cultivation or the habits of the cultivators, be impracticable for a landlord to realize his rent by an application to the Civil Courts under this chapter, it may, from time to time, by order, authorize the landlord to distrain, by himself or his agent, any produce for the distraint of which he would be entitled to apply to the Civil Court under this chapter:

Provided that every person distraining any produce under such authorization shall proceed in the manner prescribed by section 124, and shall forthwith give notice, in such form as the High Court may, by rule prescribe, to the Civil Court having jurisdiction to entertain an application for distraining the produce, and that Court shall, with no avoidable delay, depute an officer to take charge of the produce distrained.

(2) When an officer of the Court has taken charge of any distrained produce under this section, the proceedings shall thereafter be conducted in all respects as if he had distrained it under section 124.

(3) The Local Government may at any time rescind any order made by it under this section.

142. The High Court may from time to time make rules consistent with this Act for regulating the procedure in all cases under this chapter.

[D., § 192. C. B., s. 174. B. B., s. 195.]

(c) the summons shall be for the final disposal of the suit, unless the Court is of opinion that the summons should be for the settlement of issues only;

Payment into Court of money admitted to be due to third person.

(2) Where such a payment is made the Court shall forthwith cause notice of the payment to be served on the third person.

(3) Unless the third person within three months from the receipt of the notice institutes a suit against the plaintiff and therein obtains an order restraining payment out of the money, it shall be paid out to the plaintiff on his application.

[Section 165.]

150. When a defendant admits that money is due from him to the plaintiff on account of rent, but pleads that the amount claimed is in excess of the amount due, the Court shall, except for special reasons to be recorded in writing, refuse to take cognizance of the plea unless the defendant pays into Court the amount so admitted to be due.

153. An appeal shall not lie from any decree or order passed, whether in the first instance or on appeal, in any suit instituted by a landlord for the recovery of rent where—

(a) the decree or order is passed by a District Judge, Additional Judge or Subordinate Judge, and the amount claimed in the suit does not exceed one hundred rupees, or

unless in either case the decree or order has decided a question relating to title to land or to some interest in land as between parties having conflicting claims thereto, or a question of a right to enhance or vary the rent of a tenant, or a question of the amount of rent annually payable by a tenant:

Provided that the District Judge may call for the record of any case in which a judicial officer as aforesaid has passed a decree or order to which this section applies, if it appears that the judicial officer has exercised a jurisdiction not vested in him by law, or has failed to exercise a jurisdiction so vested, or has acted in the exercise of his jurisdiction illegally or with material irregularity; and may pass such order as the District Judge thinks fit.

(a) that he has used the land in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or shall not be entertained unless the landlord has served, in the prescribed manner, a notice on the tenant specifying the particular misuse or breach complained of, and, where the misuse or breach is capable of remedy, requiring the tenant to remedy the same, and, in any case, to pay reasonable compensation for the misuse or breach, and the tenant has failed to comply within a reasonable time with that request.

(2) A decree passed in favour of a landlord in any such suit shall declare the amount of compensation which would reasonably be payable to the plaintiff for the misuse or breach, and whether, in the opinion of the Court, the misuse or breach is capable of remedy, and shall fix a period during which it shall be open to the defendant to pay that amount to the plaintiff, and, where the misuse or breach is declared to be capable of remedy, to remedy the same.

(3) The Court may, from time to time, for special reasons, extend a period fixed by it under sub-section (2).

(4) If the defendant, within the period or extended period (as the case may be) fixed by the Court under this section, pays the compensation mentioned in the decree, and, where the misuse or breach is declared by the Court to be capable of remedy, remedies the misuse or breach to the satisfaction of the Court, the decree shall not be executed.

156. The following rules shall apply in the case of every raiyat ejected from a holding:—

(a) when the raiyat has, before the date of his ejectment, sown or planted crops in any land comprised in the holding, he shall be entitled, at the option of the landlord, either to retain possession of that land and to use it for the purpose of tending and gathering in the crops, or to receive from the landlord the value of the crops as estimated by the Court executing the decree for ejectment;

(b) when the raiyat has, before the date of his ejectment, prepared for sowing any land comprised in his holding, but has not sown or planted crops in that land, he shall be entitled to receive from the landlord the value of the labour and capital expended by him in so preparing the land, as estimated by the Court executing the decree for ejectment, together with reasonable interest on that value;

(c) but a raiyat shall not be entitled to retain possession of any land or receive any sum in respect thereof under this section where, after the commencement of proceedings by the landlord for his ejectment, he has cultivated or prepared the land contrary to local usage;

(d) if the landlord elects under this section to allow a raiyat to retain possession of the land, the raiyat shall pay to the landlord, for the use and occupation of the land during the period for which he is allowed to retain possession of the same, such rent as the Court executing the decree for ejectment may deem reasonable.

157. When a plaintiff institutes a suit for the ejectment of a trespasser he may, if he thinks fit, claim as alternative relief that the defendant be declared liable to pay for the land in his possession a fair and equitable rent to be determined by the Court, and the Court may grant such relief accordingly.

[C. B., s. 151. B. B., s. 168. Section 174.]

Application to determine incidents of tenancy.

158. (1) The Court having jurisdiction to determine a suit for the possession of land held by a tenant may, on the application of either the landlord or the tenant, determine all or any of the following matters, namely:—

(a) the situation, quantity and boundaries of the land held by the tenant;

(b) the class to which he belongs, that is to say, whether he is a tenure-holder, raiyat holding at fixed rates, occupancy-raiyat, non-occupancy-raiyat, or under-raiyat, and, if he is a tenure-holder, whether he is a permanent tenure-holder or not and whether his rent is liable to enhancement during the continuance of his tenure; and

(c) the rent payable by him at the time of the application.

(2) If in the opinion of the Court any of these matters cannot be satisfactorily determined without a local inquiry, the Court may direct that a local inquiry be held under Chapter XXV of the Code of Civil Procedure by such Revenue-officer as the Local Government may authorize in that behalf by rule made under section 392 of the said Code.

XIV of 1882.

(3) The order on any application under this section shall have the effect of, and be subject to the like appeal as, a decree.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 20th February, 1885, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 3 OF 1885.

A Bill to amend section 265 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend section 265 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872; It is hereby enacted as follows:— IX of 1872.

New section substituted for section 265, Indian Contract Act.

1. For section 265 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely:—

"265. In the absence of any contract to the contrary, after the termination of a partnership, the Court may at the suit of any one of the partners or his representatives wind up the business of the firm, provide for the payment of its debts, and distribute the surplus among the partners or according to the shares of the partners respectively."

Suit of partners to sue for winding-up in Court after termination of partnership.

Repeal of part of section 213, Act XIV of 1882.

2. In section 213 of the Code of Civil Procedure the words and figures from and including the word "applications" to the end of the section are hereby repealed. XIV of 1882.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

SECTION 265 of the Indian Contract Act provides that, in the absence of any contract to the contrary, after the termination of a partnership, each partner or his representatives may apply to the Court to wind up the business of the firm, to provide for the payment of its debts and to distribute the surplus according to the shares of the partners respectively. It is explained that the Court mentioned in the section means a Court not inferior to the Court of a District Judge within the limits of whose jurisdiction the place or principal place of business of the firm is situated. This section has been the subject of various decisions by the Calcutta and other High Courts, first as to the meaning of the words "may apply", and secondly with regard to the jurisdiction of the Courts in the case of applications under the section.

2. The use of the words "may apply" has given rise to doubts as to whether the legislature intended that proceedings under the section should be by way of miscellaneous application or by way of regular suit. It is considered that where a partner wishes to have the business of the firm wound up, the debts paid and the surplus distributed, he should proceed by instituting a regular suit. The questions which the Court has to consider in such a case cannot well be decided in a summary manner on a miscellaneous application, and in disposing of an application under section 265 the Court must in effect deal with it as if it were a suit. In using the words "may apply" the legislature intended probably to indicate merely that a partner had a right to have the business wound up, the payment of the debts provided for, and the surplus distributed, by the Court. It is unlikely that there was any intention to declare that the procedure in such a case should be by way of a miscellaneous application.

3. With regard to the question of jurisdiction, the general result of the decided cases is to confine the jurisdiction to the Court of the District Judge and thus to bring on his files a number of suits many of which are unimportant and such as could be equally well decided by the subordinate tribunals. The time of all District Judges is fully occupied by their multifarious duties, and it is very undesirable that the performance of these duties should suffer in consequence of the compulsory institution in their Courts of cases the time and labour expended over which are often entirely disproportionate to the interests at stake.

4. The present Bill has accordingly been prepared. It amends section 265 so as to show plainly that proceedings thereunder are to be by way of a regular suit, and it omits the Explanation to the section, thus leaving the question of jurisdiction to be decided by the ordinary rules. The Bill also repeals the last paragraph of section 213 of the Code of Civil Procedure as the omission of the Explanation renders that paragraph unnecessary.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 20th February, 1885, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 3 OF 1885.

A Bill to amend section 265 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend section 265 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872; It is hereby enacted as follows:— IX of 1872.

New section substituted for section 265, Indian Contract Act.

1. For section 265 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely:—

Right of partners to sue for winding-up by Court after termination of partnership.

"265. In the absence of any contract to the contrary, after the termination of a partnership, the Court may at the suit of any one of the partners or his representatives wind up the business of the firm, provide for the payment of its debts, and distribute the surplus according to the shares of the partners respectively."

Repeal of part of section 213, Act XIV of 1882.

2. In section 213 of the Code of Civil Procedure the words and figures from and including the word "applications" to the end of the section are hereby repealed. XIV of 1882.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

SECTION 265 of the Indian Contract Act provides that, in the absence of any contract to the contrary, after the termination of a partnership, each partner or his representatives may apply to the Court to wind up the business of the firm, to provide for the payment of its debts and to distribute the surplus according to the shares of the partners respectively. It is explained that the Court mentioned in the section means a Court not inferior to the Court of a District Judge within the limits of whose jurisdiction the place or principal place of business of the firm is situated. This section has been the subject of various decisions by the Calcutta and other High Courts, first as to the meaning of the words "may apply", and secondly with regard to the jurisdiction of the Courts in the case of applications under the section.

2. The use of the words "may apply" has given rise to doubts as to whether the legislature intended that proceedings under the section should be by way of miscellaneous application or by way of regular suit. It is considered that where a partner wishes to have the business of the firm wound up, the debts paid and the surplus distributed, he should proceed by instituting a regular suit. The questions which the Court has to consider in such a case cannot well be decided in a summary manner on a miscellaneous application, and in disposing of an application under section 265 the Court must in effect deal with it as if it were a suit. In using the words "may apply" the legislature intended probably to indicate merely that a partner had a right to have the business wound up, the payment of the debts provided for, and the surplus distributed, by the Court. It is unlikely that there was any intention to declare that the procedure in such a case should be by way of a miscellaneous application.

3. With regard to the question of jurisdiction, the general result of the decided cases is to confine the jurisdiction to the Court of the District Judge and thus to bring on his files a number of suits many of which are unimportant and such as could be equally well decided by the subordinate tribunals. The time of all District Judges is fully occupied by their multifarious duties, and it is very undesirable that the performance of these duties should suffer in consequence of the compulsory institution in their Courts of cases the time and labour expended over which are often entirely disproportionate to the interests at stake.

4. The present Bill has accordingly been prepared. It amends section 265 so as to show plainly that proceedings thereunder are to be by way of a regular suit, and it omits the Explanation to the section, thus leaving the question of jurisdiction to be decided by the ordinary rules. The Bill also repeals the last paragraph of section 213 of the Code of Civil Procedure as the omission of the Explanation renders that paragraph unnecessary.

If Local Government does not offer to pay compensation, mines may be worked in a proper manner.

(2) If any damage or obstruction is caused to the surface of the land or any works thereon by improper working of the mines, the owner, lessee or occupier of the mines or minerals shall at once at his own expense repair the damage or remove the obstruction, as the case may require.

For better ascertaining whether any such mines are being worked or have been worked so as to damage the land acquired or the works thereon, an officer appointed for this purpose by the Local Government may, after giving twenty-four hours' notice in writing, enter on any land in or near which the land acquired is situate, and wherein any such mines are being worked or are supposed to be worked, and enter into and return from any such mines or the works connected therewith; and for that purpose the officer so appointed may make use of any apparatus or machinery belonging to the owner, lessee or occupier of the mines, and use all necessary means for discovering the distance from the land acquired to the parts of the mines which are being worked or about to be worked.

Penalty for refusal to allow inspection.

10. If it appears that any such mines have been worked contrary to the provisions of this Act, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, give notice to the owner, lessee or occupier thereof to construct such works and to adopt such means as may be necessary or proper for making safe the land acquired, and preventing injury thereto; and, if after such notice any such owner, lessee or occupier does not forthwith proceed to construct the works necessary for making safe the land acquired, the Local Government may itself construct the works and recover the expense thereof from the owner, lessee or occupier.

If mines improperly worked, Local Government may require means to be adopted for safety of land acquired.

11. When a statement under section 2 has been made regarding any land and the land has been acquired for a Company and has been transferred by the Local Government to the Company, then sections 3 to 10, both inclusive, shall be read as if for the words "the Local Government" wherever they occur in those sections the words "the Company which has acquired the land" were substituted.

VI of 1882

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to provide for cases in which mines or minerals are situate under land which it is desired to acquire under the Land Acquisition Act, 1870.

2. Act XXII of 1863, which was replaced by the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, contained specific provisions (sections 51 and 52) for cases in which mines and minerals lay under land taken up under that Act. These provisions were not, however, re-enacted in the Act of 1870, which, as the Government is advised, contemplates the acquisition of the underlying minerals as well as the surface of the land.

3. Hitherto this state of the law has caused no inconvenience. Now, however, owing to its being proposed to extend railways across districts where there is a certain amount of coal to be found, notice has been drawn to the inconvenience of the existing law which practically compels the Government either to purchase all the mines and minerals under the land over which it is proposed to construct a line or to abandon the undertaking altogether.

4. Under these circumstances, the present Bill has been prepared. It does not, however, simply re-enact the provisions which Act XXII of 1863 formerly contained, inasmuch as they do not appear to be adapted to the circumstances of the case. It follows rather the rules contained in the English Railway Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, (8 Vic., c. 20, ss. 77 et seq.) which it extends to the acquisition of land for all purposes and not merely for the construction of Railways.

5. It provides, first, (section 2) that when a declaration is made by the Local Government under section 6 of the Land Acquisition Act, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, insert in the declaration a statement that any mines or minerals lying under the land to be acquired are not needed, and that if any such statement is inserted in the declaration, the mines or menerals lying under the land shall not, when the Collector takes possession of the land under section 16 or section 17 of the Act, vest in the Government.

6. It then (section 3) declares that if the owner, lessee or occupier of any mines or minerals lying under any land so acquired is desirous of working the same, he shall give the local Government notice in writing of his intention so to do thirty days before the commencement of working.

7. Next (section 4), the Bill empowers the local Government to cause the mines or minerals to be inspected by a person appointed by it for the purpose.

8. If it appears (section 5) to the local Government that the working of the mines or minerals is likely to cause damage to the surface of the land or any works thereon, the Local Government may at any time before the expiration of thirty days from the receipt of the notice, offer either—

(a) to pay compensation for the mines or minerals to the owner, lessee or occupier;

(b) to pay compensation to the owner, lessee or occupier of the mines or minerals in consideration of his working or getting them in such manner and subject to such restrictions, as the Local Government may in its offer specify.

If the offer mentioned in case (a) is made, then the owner, lessee or occupier is prohibited from working the mines or minerals, whilst if the offer mentioned in case (b) is made, then he may not work or get the mines or minerals, save in the manner and subject to the restrictions specified by the local Government.

9. The Bill next provides (section 6) for the manner in which the amount of compensation to be paid under section 5 is to be determined.

10. Should, however, the local Government not offer to pay any compensation, section 7 permits the owner, lessee or occupier of the mines or minerals to work the mines in a manner proper and necessary for the beneficial working thereof, and according to the usual manner of working such mines in the local area where the same are situate. Should any damage or obstruction be caused by improper working of the mines, the section provides for the repairing of the damage or the removal of the obstruction by or at the cost of the owner, lessee or occupier.

11. Sections 8 and 9 provide for the inspection of mines for the purpose of ascertaining whether they are being worked or have been worked so as to damage the land which has been acquired and section 10 declares that if any mines have been improperly worked, the Local Government may require the owner, lessee or occupier thereof to construct such works and to adopt such means as may be necessary for making safe the land acquired and preventing injury thereto.

12. Lastly, section 11 makes the provisions of sections 3 to 10 applicable to cases where the land acquired has been transferred to a company, and section 12 defines what the term "Company" as used in the Bill means.

Construction of Act when land acquired has been transferred to a Company.

11. When a statement under section 2 has been made regarding any land and the land has been acquired for a Company and has been transferred by the Local Government to the Company, then sections 3 to 10, both inclusive, shall be read as if for the words "the Local Government" wherever they occur in those sections the words "the Company which has acquired the land" were substituted.

Definition of Company.

12. In this Act "Company" means a Company registered under the Indian Companies Act, 1882, or VI of 1882. formed in pursuance of an Act of Parliament or by Royal Charter or Letters Patent.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to provide for cases in which mines or minerals are situate under land which it is desired to acquire under the Land Acquisition Act, 1870.

2. Act XXII of 1863, which was replaced by the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, contained specific provisions (sections 51 and 52) for cases in which mines and minerals lay under land taken up under that Act. These provisions were not, however, re-enacted in the Act of 1870, which, as the Government is advised, contemplates the acquisition of the underlying minerals as well as the surface of the land.

3. Hitherto this state of the law has caused no inconvenience. Now, however, owing to its being proposed to extend railways across districts where there is a certain amount of coal to be found, notice has been drawn to the inconvenience of the existing law which practically compels the Government either to purchase all the mines and minerals under the land over which it is proposed to construct a line or to abandon the undertaking altogether.

4. Under these circumstances, the present Bill has been prepared. It does not, however, simply re-enact the provisions which Act XXII of 1863 formerly contained, inasmuch as they do not appear to be adapted to the circumstances of the case. It follows rather the rules contained in the English Railway Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, (8 Vic., c. 20, ss. 77 et seq.) which it extends to the acquisition of land for all purposes and not merely for the construction of Railways.

5. It provides, first, (section 2) that when a declaration is made by the Local Government under section 6 of the Land Acquisition Act, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, insert in the declaration a statement that any mines or minerals lying under the land to be acquired are not needed, and that if any such statement is inserted in the declaration, the mines or menerals lying under the land shall not, when the Collector takes possession of the land under section 16 or section 17 of the Act, vest in the Government.

6. It then (section 3) declares that if the owner, lessee or occupier of any mines or minerals lying under any land so acquired is desirous of working the same, he shall give the local Government notice in writing of his intention so to do thirty days before the commencement of working.

7. Next (section 4), the Bill empowers the local Government to cause the mines or minerals to be inspected by a person appointed by it for the purpose.

8. If it appears (section 5) to the local Government that the working of the mines or minerals is likely to cause damage to the surface of the land or any works thereon, the Local Government may at any time before the expiration of thirty days from the receipt of the notice, offer either—

(a) to pay compensation for the mines or minerals to the owner, lessee or occupier;
(b) to pay compensation to the owner, lessee or occupier of the mines or minerals in consideration of his working or getting them in such manner and subject to such restrictions, as the Local Government may in its offer specify.

If the offer mentioned in case (a) is made, then the owner, lessee or occupier is prohibited from working the mines or minerals, whilst if the offer mentioned in case (b) is made, then he may not work or get the mines or minerals, save in the manner and subject to the restrictions specified by the local Government.

9. The Bill next provides (section 6) for the manner in which the amount of compensation to be paid under section 5 is to be determined.

10. Should, however, the local Government not offer to pay any compensation, section 7 permits the owner, lessee or occupier of the mines or minerals to work the mines in a manner proper and necessary for the beneficial working thereof, and according to the usual manner of working such mines in the local area where the same are situate. Should any damage or obstruction be caused by improper working of the mines, the section provides for the repairing of the damage or the removal of the obstruction by or at the cost of the owner, lessee or occupier.

11. Sections 8 and 9 provide for the inspection of mines for the purpose of ascertaining whether they are being worked or have been worked so as to damage the land which has been acquired and section 10 declares that if any mines have been improperly worked, the Local Government may require the owner, lessee or occupier thereof to construct such works and to adopt such means as may be necessary for making safe the land acquired and preventing injury thereto.

12. Lastly, section 11 makes the provisions of sections 3 to 10 applicable to cases where the land acquired has been transferred to a company, and section 12 defines what the term "Company" as used in the Bill means.

(3) It shall come into force at once.

2. (1) When the Local Government makes a declaration under section 6 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, that land is needed for a public purpose or for a Company, it may, if it thinks fit, insert in the declaration a statement that any mines of coal, iron-stone, slate or other minerals lying under the land or any particular portion of the land, except only such parts of the mines or minerals as are necessary to be dug or carried away or used in the construction of the work for the purpose of which the land is being acquired, are not needed. (Sections 5-12.)

[cf. 8 Vic., c. 20, s. 78.]

5. (1) If it appears to the Local Government that the working or getting of the mines or minerals, or any part thereof, is likely to cause damage to the surface of the land or any works thereon, the Local Government may at any time before the expiration of thirty days from the receipt of the notice under section 3 offer either—

If Local Government offers to pay compensation, mines not to be worked.

(a) to pay compensation for the mines or minerals or part thereof to the owner, lessee or occupier thereof; or

(b) to pay compensation to the owner, lessee or occupier of the mines or minerals, or part thereof, in consideration of his working or getting them in such manner and subject to such restrictions as the Local Government may in its offer specify.

(2) If the offer mentioned in case (a) is made, then the owner, lessee or occupier shall not work or get the mines or minerals or part thereof;

[cf. 8 Vic., c. 20, s. 78.]

6. If the Local Government and the owner, lessee or occupier of any such mines or minerals, do not agree as to the amount of compensation to be paid under the last foregoing section, the same shall be settled in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, for determining the amount of compensation.

Amount of compensation to be determined under Act X of 1870.

7. (1) If before the expiration of the said thirty days the Local Government does not offer to pay any compensation to the owner, lessee or occupier of the mines or minerals for any loss he may sustain as provided in section 5, the owner, lessee or occupier may work the mines, or any part thereof, in a manner proper and necessary for the beneficial working thereof, and according to the usual manner of working such mines in the local area where the same are situate.

If Local Government does not offer to pay compensation, mines may be worked in a proper manner.

(2) If any damage or obstruction is caused to the surface of the land or any works thereon by improper working of the mines, the owner, lessee or occupier of the mines or minerals shall at once at his own expense repair the damage or remove the obstruction, as the case may require.

(3) If the repair or removal is not at once effected, or, if the Local Government so thinks fit, without waiting for the same to be effected by the owner, lessee or occupier, the Local Government may execute the same and recover from the owner, lessee or occupier the expense occasioned thereby.

8. For better ascertaining whether any such mines are being worked or have been worked so as to damage the land acquired or the works thereon, an officer appointed for this purpose by the Local Government may, after giving twenty-four hours' notice in writing, enter on any land in or near which the land acquired is situate, and wherein any such mines are being worked or are supposed to be worked, and enter into and return from any such mines or the works connected therewith; and for that purpose the officer so appointed may make use of any apparatus or machinery belonging to the owner, lessee or occupier of the mines, and use all necessary means for discovering the distance from the land acquired to the parts of the mines which are being worked or about to be worked.

Power to officer of Local Government to enter and inspect the working of mines.

9. If any owner, lessee or occupier of any such mines refuses to allow any officer appointed by the Local Government for that purpose to enter into and inspect any such mines or works in manner aforesaid, every person so offending shall for every such refusal forfeit to the Local Government a sum not exceeding two hundred rupees.

Penalty for refusal to allow inspection.

10. If it appears that any such mines have been worked contrary to the provisions of this Act, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, give notice to the owner, lessee or occupier thereof to construct such works and to adopt such means as may be necessary or proper for making safe the land acquired, and preventing injury thereto; and, if after such notice any such owner, lessee or occupier does not forthwith proceed to construct the works necessary for making safe the land acquired, the Local Government may itself construct the works and recover the expense thereof from the owner, lessee or occupier.

If mines improperly worked, Local Government may require means to be adopted for safety of land acquired.

11. When a statement under section 2 has been made regarding any land and the land has been acquired for a Company and has been transferred by the Local Government to the Company, then sections 3 to 10, both inclusive, shall be read as if for the words "the Local Government" wherever they occur in those sections the words "the Company which has acquired the land" were substituted.

Construction of Act when land acquired has been transferred to a Company.

12. In this Act "Company" means a Company registered under the Indian Companies Act, 1882, or formed in pursuance of an Act of Parliament or by Royal Charter or Letters Patent.

Definition of Company.

VI

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to provide for cases in which mines or minerals are situate under land which it is desired to acquire under the Land Acquisition Act, 1870.

2. Act XXII of 1863, which was replaced by the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, contained specific provisions (sections 51 and 52) for cases in which mines and minerals lay under land taken up under that Act. These provisions were not, however, re-enacted in the Act of 1870, which, as the Government is advised, contemplates the acquisition of the underlying minerals as well as the surface of the land.

3. Hitherto this state of the law has caused no inconvenience. Now, however, owing to its being proposed to extend railways across districts where there is a certain amount of coal to be found, notice has been drawn to the inconvenience of the existing law which practically compels the Government either to purchase all the mines and minerals under the land over which it is proposed to construct a line or to abandon the undertaking altogether.

4. Under these circumstances, the present Bill has been prepared. It does not, however, simply re-enact the provisions which Act XXII of 1863 formerly contained, inasmuch as they do not appear to be adapted to the circumstances of the case. It follows rather the rules contained in the English Railway Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, (8 Vic., c. 20, ss. 77 et seq.) which it extends to the acquisition of land for all purposes and not merely for the construction of Railways.

5. It provides, first, (section 2) that when a declaration is made by the Local Government under section 6 of the Land Acquisition Act, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, insert in the declaration a statement that any mines or minerals lying under the land to be acquired are not needed, and that if any such statement is inserted in the declaration, the mines or menerals lying under the land shall not, when the Collector takes possession of the land under section 16 or section 17 of the Act, vest in the Government.

6. It then (section 3) declares that if the owner, lessee or occupier of any mines or minerals lying under any land so acquired is desirous of working the same, he shall give the local Government notice in writing of his intention so to do thirty days before the commencement of working.

7. Next (section 4), the Bill empowers the local Government to cause the mines or minerals to be inspected by a person appointed by it for the purpose.

8. If it appears (section 5) to the local Government that the working of the mines or minerals is likely to cause damage to the surface of the land or any works thereon, the Local Government may at any time before the expiration of thirty days from the receipt of the notice, offer either—

(a) to pay compensation for the mines or minerals to the owner, lessee or occupier;

(b) to pay compensation to the owner, lessee or occupier of the mines or minerals in consideration of his working or getting them in such manner and subject to such restrictions, as the Local Government may in its offer specify.

If the offer mentioned in case (a) is made, then the owner, lessee or occupier is prohibited from working the mines or minerals, whilst if the offer mentioned in case (b) is made, then he may not work or get the mines or minerals, save in the manner and subject to the restrictions specified by the local Government.

9. The Bill next provides (section 6) for the manner in which the amount of compensation to be paid under section 5 is to be determined.

10. Should, however, the local Government not offer to pay any compensation, section 7 permits the owner, lessee or occupier of the mines or minerals to work the mines in a manner proper and necessary for the beneficial working thereof, and according to the usual manner of working such mines in the local area where the same are situate. Should any damage or obstruction be caused by improper working of the mines, the section provides for the repairing of the damage or the removal of the obstruction by or at the cost of the owner, lessee or occupier.

11. Sections 8 and 9 provide for the inspection of mines for the purpose of ascertaining whether they are being worked or have been worked so as to damage the land which has been acquired and section 10 declares that if any mines have been improperly worked, the Local Government may require the owner, lessee or occupier thereof to construct such works and to adopt such means as may be necessary for making safe the land acquired and preventing injury thereto.

12. Lastly, section 11 makes the provisions of sections 3 to 10 applicable to cases where the land acquired has been transferred to a company, and section 12 defines what the term "Company" as used in the Bill means.

(1) Petroleum landed and stored in accordance with rules made under the last foregoing section shall not be removed from the place at which it is stored until the samples selected therefrom in accordance with the said rules have been tested by an officer appointed by the Local Government in this behalf in the manner described in the schedule hereto annexed with an apparatus which has been stamped and certified as provided by section 17 A, and until such officer has given a certificate that the petroleum is not dangerous petroleum.

Procedure after petroleum has been landed and stored.

"(2) If the said officer after testing the said samples refuses to give the said certificate in respect of any petroleum, the Local Government may permit the consignee within a time to be fixed by the Local Government in this behalf—

"(a) to rectify the petroleum,

"(b) to apply for a license to import the petroleum as dangerous petroleum, or

"(c) to re-export the petroleum.

"(3) If the consignee does not within the time fixed under sub-section (2) avail himself of the permission granted under that sub-section, the Local Government may order the petroleum to be destroyed."

7. After section 17 of the said Act the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

New section to be inserted after section 17.

"17A. Whereas a model of the apparatus for testing petroleum under this Act constructed in accordance with the description contained in the schedule hereto annexed has been deposited in the office of the Chemical Examiner to Government, Calcutta, and has been marked with the words 'Model test-apparatus;' It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Model test-apparatus.

"(1) The Chemical Examiner with whom the said model test-apparatus is deposited may, on payment of such fee as the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, prescribe, compare with the said model and verify every apparatus for testing petroleum which is submitted to him for the purpose.

Verification of test-apparatus.

"(2) If any apparatus for testing petroleum, when compared and verified as provided by this section, is found correct, or correct subject to certain corrections to be applied to the results of the tests, the Chemical Examiner shall stamp the same with a special number, and shall further give a certificate in writing under his hand to the effect that the apparatus has been compared and verified by him and found to be correct, or correct subject to certain specified corrections to be applied to the results of the tests.

"(3) Every certificate granted under this section shall, until the contrary is proved, be deemed to be conclusive proof of the matters stated therein.

"(4) Subject to the payment of such fees as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, prescribe in this behalf, the said model test-apparatus shall be at all reasonable times open to inspection by any person desiring to inspect it."

New schedule substituted for the schedule to the same Act.

8. For the Schedule to the said Act the following schedule shall be substituted, namely:—

"THE SCHEDULE.

"I.—Nature of the Test-apparatus.

"The apparatus consists of the following parts:—

(1) the oil-cup;

(2) the cover, with slide, test-lamp, and clockwork arrangement for opening and closing the holes in the cover, and for dipping the test-flame;

(3) the water-bath or heating vessel;

(4) the tripod stand, with jacket, and spirit-lamp for heating the water-bath;

(5) the thermometer for indicating the temperature of the oil in the oil-cup;

(6) the thermometer for indicating the temperature of the water in the water-bath;

(7) the thermometer for indicating the temperature of the oil before it is poured into the oil-cup;

(8) the dropping bottle, for replenishing the test-lamp;

(9) the forceps, for adjusting the wick of the test-lamp.

"The oil-cup is a cylindrical flat-bottomed vessel, made of gun-metal or brass, and tinned or silvered inside. A gauge is fixed to the inside of the cup to regulate the height to which it is to be filled with the sample under examination.

"The cup is provided with a close fitting overlapping cover, which carries the thermometer, the test-lamp, and the adjuncts thereto. The test-lamp is suspended upon two supports by means of trunnions, which allow it to be easily inclined to a particular angle and restored to its original position. The socket in the cover, which is to hold a round bulb thermometer for indicating the temperature of the oil during the testing operation, is so adjusted that the bulb of the latter is always inserted in a definite position below the surface of the liquid.

"The cover is provided with three holes, one in the centre and two smaller ones close to the sides. These are closed and opened by means of a pivoted slide. When the slide is moved so as to uncover the holes, the suspended lamp is caught by a projection fixed on the slide, and tilted in such a way as to bring the end of the spout just below the surface of the lid. As the slide moves back so as to cover the holes, the lamp returns to its original position. Upon the cover, in front of and in a line with the nozzle of the lamp, is fixed a white bead, the diameter of which represents the size of the test-flame to be used.

"The water-bath or heating vessel is so constructed that, when the oil-cup is placed in position in it, an air-space or air-chamber intervenes between the two; consequently, in applying the test under ordinary circumstances, the heat is transmitted gradually to the oil from the hot water through the air-space. The water-bath is fitted with a socket for receiving a long bulb thermometer, to indicate the temperature of the water. It is also provided with a funnel, an overflow-pipe and two handles.

"The water-bath rests upon a tripod stand, which is fitted with a copper cylinder or jacket, so that the bath is surrounded by an enclosed air-space, which retains and regulates the heat. One of the legs of the stand serves as a support for a spirit-lamp, which is attached to it by a small swing bracket.

"The clockwork arrangement, by which during the operation of testing the slide is withdrawn, and the test-flame dipped into the cup and raised again as the slide is replaced, is provided with a ratchet key for setting it in action for each test, and with a trigger for starting it each time that the test-flame is applied.

"II.—Directions for drawing the Sample and preparing it for Testing.

"1. Drawing the sample.—In all cases the testing officer shall personally superintend the drawing of the sample from an original unopened tin.

"An opening sufficiently large to admit of the oil being rapidly poured or syphoned from the tin shall be made.

"Two bottles, each of the capacity of about 40 fluid ounces, are to be filled with the oil. One of these, the contents of which is intended to be preserved for reference in case of need, is to be carefully corked, the cork being well driven home, cut off level with the neck, and melted sealing-wax worked into it. The other bottle may be either stoppered or corked.

"2. Preparing the sample for testing.—About ten fluid ounces of the oil, sufficient for three tests, are transferred from the bottle into which the sample has been drawn to a pint flask or bottle, which is to be immersed in water in which ice is floating until a thermometer, introduced into the oil, indicates a temperature not exceeding 50° Fahrenheit.

"III.—Directions for preparing and using the Test-apparatus.

"1. Preparing the water-bath.—The water-bath is filled by pouring water into the funnel until it begins to flow out at the overflow-pipe. The temperature of the water at the commencement of each test, as indicated by the long bulb thermometer, is to be 130° Fahrenheit, and this is attained in the first instance by mixing hot and cold water, either in the bath or in a vessel from which the bath is filled, until the thermometer, which is provided for testing the temperature of the water, gives the proper indication; or the water is heated by means of the spirit-lamp (which is attached to the stand of the apparatus) until the required temperature is indicated.

"2. Preparing the test-lamp.—The test-lamp is fitted with a piece of cylindrical wick of such thickness that it fills the wick-holder, but may readily be moved to and fro for the purpose of adjusting the size of the flame. In the body of the lamp, upon the wick, which is coiled within it, is placed a small tuft of cotton wool, moistened with petroleum, any oil not absorbed by the wool being removed. When the lamp has been lighted, the wick is adjusted by means of a pair of forceps until the flame is of the size of the bead fixed on the cover of the oil-cup; should a particular test occupy so long a time that the flame begins to get smaller, through the supply of oil in the lamp becoming exhausted, three or four drops of petroleum are allowed to fall upon the tuft of wool in the lamp from the small open orifice of the bottle provided for that purpose. This can be safely done without interrupting the test.

"3. Filling the oil-cup.—The oil-cup having been previously cooled, by placing it bottom downwards in water at a temperature not exceeding 60° Fahrenheit, is to be rapidly wiped dry, placed on a level surface in a good light, and the oil to be tested is poured in very slowly, without splashing, until its surface is level with the point of the gauge which is fixed in the cup. The round bulb thermometer is inserted into the lid of the cup, care being taken that the projecting rim of the collar touches the edge of the socket; the test-lamp, prepared as already described, is placed in position, and the cover is then put on to the cup and pressed down so that its edge rests on the rim of the cup.

"4. Application of the test.—The water-bath, with its thermometer in position, is placed in some locality where it is not exposed to currents of air, and where the light is sufficiently subdued to admit of the size of the entire test-flame being compared with that of the bead on the cover. The cup is carefully lifted without shaking it, and placed in the bath, the test-lamp is lighted, and the clockwork wound up by turning the key. The thermometer in the oil-cup is now watched, and when the temperature has reached 56° Fahrenheit the clockwork is set in motion by pressing the trigger.

"If no flash takes place the clockwork is at once re-wound, and the trigger pressed at 57° Fahrenheit, and so on, at every degree rise of temperature, until the flash occurs, or until a temperature of 95° Fahrenheit has been reached.

"If the flash takes place at any temperature below 77° Fahrenheit the temperature at which it occurs is to be recorded. Two fresh portions of the sample are then to be successively tested in a similar manner and the results recorded. If no greater difference than 2° Fahrenheit exists between any two of the three recorded results, each result is to be corrected for atmospheric pressure, as hereafter described, and the average of the three corrected results is the flashing point of the sample. In the event of there being a greater difference than 2° Fahrenheit between any two of the results, the series of tests is to be rejected and a fresh series, of three, similarly obtained, and so on until a sufficiently concordant series is furnished, when the results are to be corrected and the average taken in the manner already described.

"If a temperature of 76° Fahrenheit has been reached without a flash occurring, the application of the test-flame is to be continued at every degree rise of temperature until a temperature of 95° Fahrenheit has been reached. If no flash has occurred up to this point, the oil-cup is to be removed from the water-bath, and the temperature of the water in the water-bath is to be reduced to 95° Fahrenheit by pouring cold water into the funnel (the hot water escaping by the overflow-pipe). The air-chamber is then to be filled to a depth of 1½ inches with water at a temperature of about 95° Fahrenheit, the oil-cup is to be replaced in the water-bath and the spirit-lamp attached to the water-bath is to be lighted and placed underneath. The test-flame is then to be again applied, from 96° Fahrenheit, at every degree rise of temperature as indicated by the thermometer in the oil-cup until a flash takes place or until a temperature of 200° Fahrenheit has been reached. If during this operation the test-flame appears to diminish in size, the lamp is to be replenished in the manner prescribed at (2) without interrupting the test.

"If a flash occurs at any temperature between 76° and 200° Fahrenheit the temperature at which it occurs, subject to correction for atmospheric pressure, is the flashing point of the sample.

"In repeating a test, a fresh sample of oil must always be used, the tested sample being thrown away, and the cup must be wiped dry from any adhering oil and cooled, as already described, before receiving the fresh sample.

"5. Correction for atmospheric pressure.—As the flashing point of an oil is influenced by changes in atmospheric pressure to an average extent of 1·6° Fahrenheit for every inch of the barometer, a correction of the observed flashing point may become necessary. For this purpose a table is appended to this schedule, giving the flashing points of oils ranging from 65° to 80° Fahrenheit, under pressure ranging from 27 to 31 inches of mercury.

"The table is used in the following manner :—

"Example.—An oil has given a flashing point of 71°, the barometer being at 28·6 inches; take the nearest number to 71° in the vertical column headed 28·6. This number is 70·8. Substitute for this the number in the same horizontal line in the column headed 30 (the normal height of the barometer). The substituted number, that is, the true flashing point of the oil, is 73°.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to amend the Petroleum Act, 1881, in certain points in which experience has shewn that its amendment would be desirable.

2. "Dangerous petroleum" is defined by the Act (section 3) as petroleum having its flashing point below seventy-three degrees of Fahrenheit's thermometer. The Government of India does not see any reason for changing the standard so fixed, but in view of the possibility of variations in the application of the test, which, according to the opinions of the experts, may, even with the utmost care, cause deviations of 2° or 3° in the results, it is of opinion that the nominal legal minimum standard for non-dangerous petroleum may be slightly raised. Accordingly, section 3 of the Bill fixes the standard for dangerous petroleum at 76° instead of 73°, but to this enhanced standard a proviso is added to the effect that a consignment represented to be of one uniform quality shall not be deemed to be dangerous when on an average of tests the oil does not fall below that standard by more than 3°, and no one sample has a flashing point below 70°.

3. Section 5 of the Act permits small quantities of dangerous petroleum to be kept in "glass," among other, vessels, if each vessel does not contain more than a pint and is securely stopped. Looking to the comparatively fragile nature of glass vessels and to the possibility of such vessels, when filled with the highly volatile liquids included under the head of "dangerous petroleum," bursting even if "securely stopped," when exposed to powerful sunlight for a brief period, the prudence of including glass vessels among those specified in the section is, as has been pointed out to the Government of India, doubtful. Section 4 of the Bill therefore amends the section by the omission of the word "glass."

4. The object of section 5 of the Bill is to bring the provisions of section 6 of the Act, which relate to the marking of the vessels containing dangerous petroleum, and which declare that all such vessels "shall bear an indelible mark on a label in conspicuous characters, stating the nature of the contents thereof" into accordance with the English law (34 & 35 Vic., cap. 105, section 6), which lays down that the label shall state in conspicuous characters the description of the petroleum with the addition of the words "highly inflammable" and with the addition of the name and address of the consignee or owner or of the sender or vendor.

5. As the Act now stands, not only is the importation of "dangerous" petroleum subjected to a strict system of licensing, but no petroleum may be landed from any ship until samples of the petroleum on board thereof have been delivered for the purpose of the petroleum being tested.

While considering that the importation of dangerous petroleum should continue to be thus regulated, the Government of India is of opinion that the restrictions at present placed on the importation of other petroleum may be somewhat relaxed. It seems to it that, instead of requiring the delivery of samples before any oil is landed, it would be sufficient to give the Local Government power to determine the places at which, and the conditions on and subject to which, petroleum may be landed and stored. The necessary power is conferred by section 6 of the Bill, which substitutes a new section for section 7 of the Act. There would thus be nothing to prevent petroleum, other than dangerous petroleum, being in future landed and stored at once. But, in order to protect the public, no petroleum should be allowed to be removed from the place where it is stored until it has been tested and declared to satisfy the legal standard. Section 7A therefore provides this, and further declares that, when petroleum which has been so landed and stored is found not to come up to the legal standard, the Local Government may direct the consignees either to rectify it or to import it as dangerous petroleum or to re-export within a fixed period, and that, on the consignees failing to do whichever of these things they may be directed to do, the Local Government may order the petroleum to be destroyed.

In addition to re-producing clauses (a) and (c) of the present section 7, the new section 7 further empowers the Local Government to make rules to fix the fees to be paid for the storage of petroleum at places appointed for the purpose, and to regulate the selection of samples and the averaging the results of testing selected samples.

6. Section 7 of the Bill introduces certain new provisions in the Act as to the test-apparatus to be used. As the Act at present stands, the schedule contains a specification explanatory of the test-apparatus. As it is, however, proposed by this Bill to substitute a new schedule for the present one, in which a new description of the test-apparatus is inserted, it seems desirable, for the convenience of the public, to provide for the deposit of a model test apparatus, which shall be open to inspection, and after which all the instruments to be used under the Act shall be constructed. This is what the new section 17 A, which section 7 of the Bill adds to the Act, does. This section also provides for the verification of each test-apparatus which it is proposed to use for the purposes of the Act. Each apparatus when verified is to be marked with a special number, and the officer making the verification is to give a certificate in which shall be noted any corrections which must be applied to the results of the tests made with the apparatus. This last provision is necessary, because it is practically impossible to construct instruments which will not need corrections of this sort. The certificate granted is declared to be conclusive proof of the matters stated therein.

7. Section 8 of the Bill substitutes a new schedule for the schedule at present appended to the Act, the instructions contained in which it is now generally admitted require modification.

This schedule has been prepared mainly by Sir F. Abel in conjunction with Mr. Redwood and Dr. Warden, the Professor of Chemistry in the Medical College, Calcutta, and Chemical Examiner to Government, and Dr. Lyon, the Chemical Analyser in Bombay, and it has also been examined and considered by Professor Pedler of the Presidency College, Calcutta. It embodies very definite directions regarding the sampling and testing of petroleum, and it lays down in a most detailed manner the procedure to be adopted. The Governor General in Council believes that the adoption of this schedule will meet all the difficulties which have been found to occur under the present law in regard to the sampling and testing of petroleum, and that, if the procedure therein described is carefully followed, there is every reason to hope that trustworthy and generally concordant results will be obtained.

9. Lastly, the new provisions as to the deposit of a model test-apparatus and the verification of all other test-apparatus therewith has necessitated the amendment of the explanation of the term "flashing point" which is appended to the definition of "petroleum" in section 3. It is necessary that, in order to ascertain the true flashing point, the petroleum should be tested with a verified and certificated apparatus, and after the corrections (if any) to be applied to the results of the testing have been made. Moreover, it would appear to be necessary that every apparatus used for the testing of petroleum should be verified at least once in every five years. All these points are provided for in the amendment made by section 2 of the Bill.

(3) The Governor General in Council shall receive and consider any objection or suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to the draft before the date so specified.

(4) Every rule made under the last foregoing section shall be published in the Gazette of India, and the publication in the Gazette of India of a rule purporting to be made under that section shall be conclusive evidence that it has been duly made.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to provide for certain matters connected with Government securities as to which legislation appears to be desirable.

2. Under the English law, on the death of one of several joint promisees or creditors, the right to sue on the contract vests in the survivors or survivor, and, on the death of the last of two or more survivors, in his personal representative. But a person receiving money under this right of survivorship may be accountable for it to the representatives of the deceased.

3. This rule has been altered in India by section 45 of the Contract Act, which provides that—

"When a person has made a promise to two or more persons jointly, then, unless a contrary intention appears from the contract, the right to claim performance rests, as between him and them, with them during their joint lives, and, after the death of any of them, with the representative of such deceased person jointly with the survivor or survivors, and, after the death of the last survivor, with the representatives of all jointly."

4. With reference to this section, the Law Commissioners, who prepared the draft of the Act, remarked :—"In regulating the devolution of rights and liabilities, we propose, in accordance with the rule of English Courts of Equity and of the Indian Code of Civil Procedure, that joint liabilities and rights shall, after the death of one of the persons liable or entitled, go to his representative jointly with the survivor, and after the death of the survivor to the representatives of both jointly." So far as can be ascertained, this proposal was accepted without criticism in India.

5. It appears that, both before and since the passing of the Contract Act, the practice of the Indian Public Debt Offices has been to treat the right of suing on, and giving receipts for money payable under, Government promissory notes as vesting in the survivor or survivors of two or more joint holders. But the law officers of the Government have recently given an opinion that, having regard to section 45 of the Contract Act, it is not safe to continue this practice.

6. Under these circumstances, the Government of India think that legislation is desirable both for the purpose of confirming what has been done in the past, and for the purpose of laying down a convenient rule for the future.

7. Accordingly, section 3 of the Bill declares that, notwithstanding anything contained in the Indian Contract Act, 1872, section 45, when a Government security is payable to two or more persons jointly and any of them dies, the security shall be payable to the survivor or survivors of those persons. But to this a clause is added making it clear that the section will not affect the liability of the survivor or survivors to the representative of the deceased holder of the security.

8. Lastly, sections 4 to 6 of the Bill deal with the issue of renewed and duplicate Government securities.

9. With regard to the renewal of Government securities, the holder of a security may, under existing rules, upon payment of the prescribed fee and delivering up his security properly receipted, obtain a clear title in the form of a renewed security in his own favour. This right is affirmed by section 4 of the Bill; but as Government by the renewal becomes liable in respect of the new note independently of any question as to legal completeness of discharge upon the original security, opportunity is taken to fix a term within which claims in respect of the original security must be made. Accordingly, section 6 of the Bill releases Government from liability in respect of the original security after the lapse of six years from the date of the issue of the renewed security.

10. With regard to duplicate securities, the practice has hitherto been, when a Government security has been lost or destroyed, to issue a notification, under the terms of the security, of the discharge of the security upon a given date, and to refuse to issue any duplicate until six years (the period fixed by the law of limitation) has elapsed from the date so fixed for discharge. If, however, the loan is not mature, no such notification of discharge can be issued, and the Government is obliged to refuse to issue any duplicate, in the face of the risk of claims being made in respect of the security alleged to be lost. The Bill adopts the existing practice in respect of the issue of duplicates, but, by applying in every case the period of limitation which under the existing law applies only in the case of securities of loans dischargeable upon notice given at any time, enables the Government to issue duplicates (under the usual safeguard of a bond of indemnity) in every case of a security proved to have been lost or destroyed.

(8) the dropping bottle, for replenishing the test-lamp;

(9) the forceps, for adjusting the wick of the test-lamp.

"The oil-cup is a cylindrical flat-bottomed vessel, made of gun-metal or brass, and tinned or silvered inside. A gauge is fixed to the inside of the cup to regulate the height to which it is to be filled with the sample under examination.

"The cup is provided with a close fitting overlapping cover, which carries the thermometer, the test-lamp, and the adjuncts thereto. The test-lamp is suspended upon two supports by means of trunnions, which allow it to be easily inclined to a particular angle and restored to its original position. The socket in the cover, which is to hold a round bulb thermometer for indicating the temperature of the oil during the testing operation, is so adjusted that the bulb of the latter is always inserted in a definite position below the surface of the liquid.

"The cover is provided with three holes, one in the centre and two smaller ones close to the sides. These are closed and opened by means of a pivoted slide. When the slide is moved so as to uncover the holes, the suspended lamp is caught by a projection fixed on the slide, and tilted in such a way as to bring the end of the spout just below the surface of the lid. As the slide moves back so as to cover the holes, the lamp returns to its original position. Upon the cover, in front of and in a line with the nozzle of the lamp, is fixed a white bead, the diameter of which represents the size of the test-flame to be used.

"The water-bath or heating vessel is so constructed that, when the oil-cup is placed in position in it, an air-space or air-chamber intervenes between the two; consequently, in applying the test under ordinary circumstances, the heat is transmitted gradually to the oil from the hot water through the air-space. The water-bath is fitted with a socket for receiving a long bulb thermometer, to indicate the temperature of the water. It is also provided with a funnel, an overflow-pipe and two handles.

"The water-bath rests upon a tripod stand, which is fitted with a copper cylinder or jacket, so that the bath is surrounded by an enclosed air-space, which retains and regulates the heat. One of the legs of the stand serves as a support for a spirit-lamp, which is attached to it by a small swing bracket.

"The clockwork arrangement, by which during the operation of testing the slide is withdrawn, and the test-flame dipped into the cup and raised again as the slide is replaced, is provided with a ratchet key for setting it in action for each test, and with a trigger for starting it each time that the test-flame is applied.

"1. Drawing the sample.—In all cases the testing officer shall personally superintend the drawing of the sample from an original unopened tin.

"An opening sufficiently large to admit of the oil being rapidly poured or syphoned from the tin shall be made.

"Two bottles, each of the capacity of about 40 fluid ounces, are to be filled with the oil. One of these, the contents of which is intended to be preserved for reference in case of need, is to be carefully corked, the cork being well driven home, cut off level with the neck, and melted sealing-wax worked into it. The other bottle may be either stoppered or corked.

"2. Preparing the sample for testing.—About ten fluid ounces of the oil, sufficient for three tests, are transferred from the bottle into which the sample has been drawn to a pint flask or bottle, which is to be immersed in water in which ice is floating until a thermometer, introduced into the oil, indicates a temperature not exceeding 50° Fahrenheit.

"III.—Directions for preparing and using the Test-apparatus.

"1. Preparing the water-bath.—The water-bath is filled by pouring water into the funnel until it begins to flow out at the overflow-pipe. The temperature of the water at the commencement of each test, as indicated by the long bulb thermometer, is to be 130° Fahrenheit, and this is attained in the first instance by mixing hot and cold water, either in the bath or in a vessel from which the bath is filled, until the thermometer, which is provided for testing the temperature of the water, gives the proper indication; or the water is heated by means of the spirit-lamp (which is attached to the stand of the apparatus) until the required temperature is indicated.

"2. Preparing the test-lamp.—The test-lamp is fitted with a piece of cylindrical wick of such thickness that it fills the wick-holder, but may readily be moved to and fro for the purpose of adjusting the size of the flame. In the body of the lamp, upon the wick, which is coiled within it, is placed a small tuft of cotton wool, moistened with petroleum, any oil not absorbed by the wool being removed. When the lamp has been lighted, the wick is adjusted by means of a pair of forceps until the flame is of the size of the bead fixed on the cover of the oil-cup; should a particular test occupy so long a time that the flame begins to get smaller, through the supply of oil in the lamp becoming exhausted, three or four drops of petroleum are allowed to fall upon the tuft of wool in the lamp from the small open orifice of the bottle provided for that purpose. This can be safely done without interrupting the test.

"3. Filling the oil-cup.—The oil-cup having been previously cooled, by placing it bottom downwards in water at a temperature not exceeding 50° Fahrenheit, is to be rapidly wiped dry, placed on a level surface in a good light, and the oil to be tested is poured in very slowly, without splashing, until its surface is level with the point of the gauge which is fixed in the cup. The round bulb thermometer is inserted into the lid of the cup, care being taken that the projecting rim of the collar touches the edge of the socket; the test-lamp, prepared as already described, is placed in position, and the cover is then put on to the cup and pressed down so that its edge rests on the rim of the cup.

"4. Application of the test.—The water-bath, with its thermometer in position, is placed in some locality where it is not exposed to currents of air, and where the light is sufficiently subdued to admit of the size of the entire test-flame being compared with that of the bead on the cover. The cup is carefully lifted without shaking it, and placed in the bath, the test-lamp is lighted, and the clockwork wound up by turning the key. The thermometer in the oil-cup is now watched, and when the temperature has reached 56° Fahrenheit the clockwork is set in motion by pressing the trigger.

"If no flash takes place the clockwork is at once re-wound, and the trigger pressed at 57° Fahrenheit, and so on, at every degree rise of temperature, until the flash occurs, or until a temperature of 95° Fahrenheit has been reached.

"If the flash takes place at any temperature below 77° Fahrenheit the temperature at which it occurs is to be recorded. Two fresh portions of the sample are then to be successively tested in a similar manner and the results recorded. If no greater difference than 2° Fahrenheit exists between any two of the three recorded results, each result is to be corrected for atmospheric pressure, as hereafter described, and the average of the three corrected results is the flashing point of the sample. In the event of there being a greater difference than 2° Fahrenheit between any two of the results, the series of tests is to be rejected and a fresh series, of three, similarly obtained, and so on until a sufficiently concordant series is furnished, when the results are to be corrected and the average taken in the manner already described.

"If a temperature of 76° Fahrenheit has been reached without a flash occurring, the application of the test-flame is to be continued at every degree rise of temperature until a temperature of 95° Fahrenheit has been reached. If no flash has occurred up to this point, the oil-cup is to be removed from the water-bath, and the temperature of the water in the water-bath is to be reduced to 95° Fahrenheit by pouring cold water into the funnel (the hot water escaping by the overflow-pipe). The air-chamber is then to be filled to a depth of 1½ inches with water at a temperature of about 95° Fahrenheit, the oil-cup is to be replaced in the water-bath and the spirit-lamp attached to the water-bath is to be lighted and placed underneath. The test-flame is then to be again applied, from 96° Fahrenheit, at every degree rise of temperature as indicated by the thermometer in the oil-cup until a flash takes place or until a temperature of 200° Fahrenheit has been reached. If during this operation the test-flame appears to diminish in size, the lamp is to be replenished in the manner prescribed at (2) without interrupting the test.

"If a flash occurs at any temperature between 76° and 200° Fahrenheit the temperature at which it occurs, subject to correction for atmospheric pressure, is the flashing point of the sample.

"In repeating a test, a fresh sample of oil must always be used, the tested sample being thrown away, and the cup must be wiped dry from any adhering oil and cooled, as already described, before receiving the fresh sample.

"5. Correction for atmospheric pressure.—As the flashing point of an oil is influenced by changes in atmospheric pressure to an average extent of 1·6° Fahrenheit for every inch of the barometer, a correction of the observed flashing point may become necessary. For this purpose a table is appended to this schedule, giving the flashing points of oils ranging from 65° to 80° Fahrenheit, under pressure ranging from 27 to 31 inches of mercury.

"The table is used in the following manner:—

"Example.—An oil has given a flashing point of 71°, the barometer being at 28·6 inches; take the nearest number to 71° in the vertical column headed 28·6. This number is 70·8. Substitute for this the number in the same horizontal line in the column headed 30 (the normal height of the barometer). The substituted number, that is, the true flashing point of the oil, is 73°.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to amend the Petroleum Act, 1881, in certain points in which experience has shewn that its amendment would be desirable.

2. "Dangerous petroleum" is defined by the Act (section 3) as petroleum having its flashing point below seventy-three degrees of Fahrenheit's thermometer. The Government of India does not see any reason for changing the standard so fixed, but in view of the possibility of variations in the application of the test, which, according to the opinions of the experts, may, even with the utmost care, cause deviations of 2° or 3° in the results, it is of opinion that the nominal legal minimum standard for non-dangerous petroleum may be slightly raised. Accordingly, section 3 of the Bill fixes the standard for dangerous petroleum at 76° instead of 73°, but to this enhanced standard a proviso is added to the effect that a consignment represented to be of one uniform quality shall not be deemed to be dangerous when on an average of tests the oil does not fall below that standard by more than 3°, and no one sample has a flashing point below 70°.

3. Section 5 of the Act permits small quantities of dangerous petroleum to be kept in "glass," among other, vessels, if each vessel does not contain more than a pint and is securely stopped. Looking to the comparatively fragile nature of glass vessels and to the possibility of such vessels, when filled with the highly volatile liquids included under the head of "dangerous petroleum," bursting even if "securely stopped," when exposed to powerful sunlight for a brief period, the prudence of including glass vessels among those specified in the section is, as has been pointed out to the Government of India, doubtful. Section 4 of the Bill therefore amends the section by the omission of the word "glass."

4. The object of section 5 of the Bill is to bring the provisions of section 6 of the Act, which relate to the marking of the vessels containing dangerous petroleum, and which declare that all such vessels "shall bear an indelible mark on a label in conspicuous characters, stating the nature of the contents thereof" into accordance with the English law (34 & 35 Vic., cap. 105, section 6), which lays down that the label shall state in conspicuous characters the description of the petroleum with the addition of the words "highly inflammable" and with the addition of the name and address of the consignee or owner or of the sender or vendor.

5. As the Act now stands, not only is the importation of "dangerous" petroleum subjected to a strict system of licensing, but no petroleum may be landed from any ship until samples of the petroleum on board thereof have been delivered for the purpose of the petroleum being tested.

While considering that the importation of dangerous petroleum should continue to be thus regulated, the Government of India is of opinion that the restrictions at present placed on the importation of other petroleum may be somewhat relaxed. It seems to it that, instead of requiring the delivery of samples before any oil is landed, it would be sufficient to give the Local Government power to determine the places at which, and the conditions on and subject to which, petroleum may be landed and stored. The necessary power is conferred by section 6 of the Bill, which substitutes a new section for section 7 of the Act. There would thus be nothing to prevent petroleum, other than dangerous petroleum, being in future landed and stored at once. But, in order to protect the public, no petroleum should be allowed to be removed from the place where it is stored until it has been tested and declared to satisfy the legal standard. Section 7A therefore provides this, and further declares that, when petroleum which has been so landed and stored is found not to come up to the legal standard, the Local Government may direct the consignees either to rectify it or to import it as dangerous petroleum or to re-export within a fixed period, and that, on the consignees failing to do whichever of these things they may be directed to do, the Local Government may order the petroleum to be destroyed.

In addition to re-producing clauses (a) and (c) of the present section 7, the new section 7 further empowers the Local Government to make rules to fix the fees to be paid for the storage of petroleum at places appointed for the purpose, and to regulate the selection of samples and the averaging the results of testing selected samples.

6. Section 7 of the Bill introduces certain new provisions in the Act as to the test-apparatus to be used. As the Act at present stands, the schedule contains a specification explanatory of the test-apparatus. As it is, however, proposed by this Bill to substitute a new schedule for the present one, in which a new description of the test-apparatus is inserted, it seems desirable, for the convenience of the public, to provide for the deposit of a model test-apparatus, which shall be open to inspection, and after which all the instruments to be used under the Act shall be constructed. This is what the new section 17 A, which section 7 of the Bill adds to the Act, does. This section also provides for the verification of each test-apparatus which it is proposed to use for the purposes of the Act. Each apparatus when verified is to be marked with a special number, and the officer making the verification is to give a certificate in which shall be noted any corrections which must be applied to the results of the tests made with the apparatus. This last provision is necessary, because it is practically impossible to construct instruments which will not need corrections of this sort. The certificate granted is declared to be conclusive proof of the matters stated therein.

7. Section 8 of the Bill substitutes a new schedule for the schedule at present appended to the Act, the instructions contained in which it is now generally admitted require modification.

This schedule has been prepared mainly by Sir F. Abel in conjunction with Mr. Redwood and Dr. Warden, the Professor of Chemistry in the Medical College, Calcutta, and Chemical Examiner to Government, and Dr. Lyon, the Chemical Analyser in Bombay, and it has also been examined and considered by Professor Pedler of the Presidency College, Calcutta. It embodies very definite directions regarding the sampling and testing of petroleum, and it lays down in a most detailed manner the procedure to be adopted. The Governor General in Council believes that the adoption of this schedule will meet all the difficulties which have been found to occur under the present law in regard to the sampling and testing of petroleum, and that, if the procedure therein described is carefully followed, there is every reason to hope that trustworthy and generally concordant results will be obtained.

9. Lastly, the new provisions as to the deposit of a model test-apparatus and the verification of all other test-apparatus therewith has necessitated the amendment of the explanation of the term "flashing point" which is appended to the definition of "petroleum" in section 3. It is necessary that, in order to ascertain the true flashing point, the petroleum should be tested with a verified and certificated apparatus, and after the corrections (if any) to be applied to the results of the testing have been made. Moreover, it would appear to be necessary that every apparatus used for the testing of petroleum should be verified at least once in every five years. All these points are provided for in the amendment made by section 2 of the Bill.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third Publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 13th March 1885, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 6 OF 1885.

A Bill to amend the law relating to Government Securities.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to Government securities in manner hereinafter appearing; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Indian Securities Act, 1885; and

(2) It shall come into force at once.

[Cf. Act III of 1881, s. 2.]

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,

The expression "Government securities" includes promissory notes, debentures, stock-certificates, and all other securities issued by the Government of India or by any Local Government, in respect of any loan issued under notification in the official Gazette, whether before or after the passing of this Act: and

"prescribed" means prescribed by rules made from time to time by the Governor General in Council in this behalf.

IX of 1872.

Right of survivors of joint payees of Government securities.

3. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Indian Contract Act, section 45, when a Government security is payable to two or more persons jointly and any of them dies, the security shall be payable to the survivor or survivors of those persons.

(2) Nothing herein contained shall affect any claim which the representative of the deceased person may have against the survivor or survivors in respect of the security jointly payable to them and the deceased.

(3) This section shall apply whether the death of the person to whom the security was jointly payable occurred or occurs before or after this Act comes into force.

Issue of renewed securities.

[Cf. sec. 49 of 33 & 34 Vic., cap. 71.]

4. Any person to whom a Government security is payable may, on payment of the prescribed fee and on delivering the security duly receipted to the prescribed officer, obtain from the officer a renewed security payable to himself.

Issue of duplicate securities.

5. (1) When a Government security has been wholly or partly lost or destroyed the person to whom it was payable at the time of the loss or destruction or his representative may, on application to the prescribed officer, and on producing proof to his satisfaction of the loss or destruction, obtain from him an order for:—

(a) the payment of interest in respect of the security said to be lost or destroyed pending the issue of a duplicate security; and

(2) An order shall not be passed under sub-section (1) until after the issue of the prescribed notification of the loss or destruction and after the expiration of the prescribed period, nor until the applicant has given the prescribed indemnity against the claims of all persons deriving title under the security lost or destroyed.

(3) A list of the securities in respect of which an order is passed under sub-section (1) shall be published in the Gazette of India at such times as the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, direct.

[Cf. 33 & 34 Vic., cap. 71, s. 51.]

6. When a renewed security has been issued under section 4, or a duplicate security has been issued under section 5, the Government shall be discharged of all liability in respect of the original security of which such renewed or duplicate security has been issued—

(a) in the case of a renewed security, after the lapse of six years from the date of the issue of the renewed security,

(b) in the case of a duplicate security, after the lapse of six years from the date of the publication under section 5, sub-section (3), of the list in which the security is first mentioned, or from the date of the last payment of interest on the original security, whichever date is latest.

Power for Governor General in Council to make rules.

7. The Governor General in Council may, from time to time, make rules to prescribe—

(a) the fees to be paid for applications under sections 4 and 5;

(c) the officer who is to exercise all or any of the powers and perform all or any of the duties prescribed by sections 4 and 5;

(d) the proof which is to be produced by persons applying for duplicate securities;

(e) the form and mode of publication of the notification mentioned in section 5 and the period after which interest may be paid or a duplicate security may be issued under that section;

(f) the nature and amount of the indemnity to be given by a person applying under section 5 for the payment of interest or the issue of a duplicate security; and

(g) generally all matters connected with the grant of renewed and duplicate securities.

Publication of drafts and rules.

8. (1) The Governor General in Council shall before making rules under the last foregoing section, publish a draft of the proposed rules in such manner as may, in his opinion, be sufficient for the information of the public.

(2) There shall be published with the draft a notice specifying a date at or after which the draft will be taken into consideration.

(3) The Governor General in Council shall receive and consider any objection or suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to the draft before the date so specified.

(4) Every rule made under the last foregoing section shall be published in the Gazette of India, and the publication in the Gazette of India of a rule purporting to be made under that section shall be conclusive evidence that it has been duly made.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to provide for certain matters connected with Government securities as to which legislation appears to be desirable.

2. Under the English law, on the death of one of several joint promisees or creditors, the right to sue on the contract vests in the survivors or survivor, and, on the death of the last of two or more survivors, in his personal representative. But a person receiving money under this right of survivorship may be accountable for it to the representatives of the deceased.

3. This rule has been altered in India by section 45 of the Contract Act, which provides that—

"When a person has made a promise to two or more persons jointly, then, unless a contrary intention appears from the contract, the right to claim performance rests, as between him and them, with them during their joint lives, and, after the death of any of them, with the representative of such deceased person jointly with the survivor or survivors, and, after the death of the last survivor, with the representatives of all jointly."

4. With reference to this section, the Law Commissioners, who prepared the draft of the Act, remarked :—"In regulating the devolution of rights and liabilities, we propose, in accordance with the rule of English Courts of Equity and of the Indian Code of Civil Procedure, that joint liabilities and rights shall, after the death of one of the persons liable or entitled, go to his representative jointly with the survivor, and after the death of the survivor to the representatives of both jointly." So far as can be ascertained, this proposal was accepted without criticism in India.

5. It appears that, both before and since the passing of the Contract Act, the practice of the Indian Public Debt Offices has been to treat the right of suing on, and giving receipts for money payable under, Government promissory notes as vesting in the survivor or survivors of two or more joint holders. But the law officers of the Government have recently given an opinion that, having regard to section 45 of the Contract Act, it is not safe to continue this practice.

6. Under these circumstances, the Government of India think that legislation is desirable both for the purpose of confirming what has been done in the past, and for the purpose of laying down a convenient rule for the future.

7. Accordingly, section 3 of the Bill declares that, notwithstanding anything contained in the Indian Contract Act, 1872, section 45, when a Government security is payable to two or more persons jointly and any of them dies, the security shall be payable to the survivor or survivors of those persons. But to this a clause is added making it clear that the section will not affect the liability of the survivor or survivors to the representative of the deceased holder of the security.

8. Lastly, sections 4 to 6 of the Bill deal with the issue of renewed and duplicate Government securities.

9. With regard to the renewal of Government securities, the holder of a security may, under existing rules, upon payment of the prescribed fee and delivering up his security properly receipted, obtain a clear title in the form of a renewed security in his own favour. This right is affirmed by section 4 of the Bill; but as Government by the renewal becomes liable in respect of the new note independently of any question as to legal completeness of discharge upon the original security, opportunity is taken to fix a term within which claims in respect of the original security must be made. Accordingly, section 6 of the Bill releases Government from liability in respect of the original security after the lapse of six years from the date of the issue of the renewed security.

10. With regard to duplicate securities, the practice has hitherto been, when a Government security has been lost or destroyed, to issue a notification, under the terms of the security, of the discharge of the security upon a given date, and to refuse to issue any duplicate until six years (the period fixed by the law of limitation) has elapsed from the date so fixed for discharge. If, however, the loan is not mature, no such notification of discharge can be issued, and the Government is obliged to refuse to issue any duplicate, in the face of the risk of claims being made in respect of the security alleged to be lost. The Bill adopts the existing practice in respect of the issue of duplicates, but, by applying in every case the period of limitation which under the existing law applies only in the case of securities of loans dischargeable upon notice given at any time, enables the Government to issue duplicates (under the usual safeguard of a bond of indemnity) in every case of a security proved to have been lost or destroyed.

PART V.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[First publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 14th May, 1885, and was referred to a Select Committee :—

No. 7 OF 1885.

A Bill to amend the Local Authorities Loan Act, 1879.

XI of 1879.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Local Authorities Loan Act, 1879; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Addition to section 8, Act XI of 1879.

1. After clause (b) of the proviso to section 8 of the said Act the following shall be added :—

"or

"(c) to affect the power conferred on any local authority by any such enactment to charge its funds by guaranteeing the payment of interest on money to be raised for any purpose to which the funds of the local authority may be applied."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

IT is proposed that a light railway be constructed in the Tanjore District of the Madras Presidency by a Company, and that the interest on the capital to be raised by the Company for the undertaking be guaranteed by the Local Fund Board of Tanjore.

But section 8 of the Local Authorities Loan Act, 1879, prohibits any local authority from charging its funds except as provided by that Act and the rules made thereunder ; and the Act provides, and the rules that may be made under it can provide, for no other means of charging funds than borrowing on their security.

It is considered desirable, therefore, that the Act should be so amended as to enable the local legislature to pass any enactment that may be necessary for authorising a local authority to guarantee the interest on money raised for any purpose to which the funds of the local authority may be applied.

THE SCHEDULE.

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT made this seventh day of February, 1885, between the MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE OF LAHORE, PUNJAB, hereinafter called the Lahore Municipality, of the one part, and D. P. MASSON, JOHN ROBSON and ARTHUR MILFORD KER of LAHORE, hereinafter called the grantees, of the other part.

NOW THESE PRESENTS witness that, in consideration of the covenants hereinafter contained, and on the part of the said Lahore Municipality to be performed, the said grantees for themselves, their heirs, executors and assigns do covenant with the said Lahore Municipality, so far as the covenants and agreements hereinafter contained are to be performed by the said grantees and their heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, and the said Municipality for and in consideration of the covenants and agreements hereinafter contained and on the part of the said grantees and their heirs, executors, administrators and assigns to be performed, do hereby covenant with the said grantees and their heirs, executors, administrators and assigns so far as the covenants and agreements hereinafter contained are to be performed by the said Lahore Municipality, their successors and assigns, in manner following, that is to say:—

The said Lahore Municipality grant to the said grantees and their heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, all which persons are hereinafter included in the words "the said grantees," the right to construct, maintain and use a tramway or tramways with all necessary sidings, turnouts, connections and lines of whatever nature which may be required to connect the said tramway with the depôts of the said grantees (but in the case of sidings and turnouts only in such places as the said corporation may sanction) on the following routes and between such other places and by such other routes as may be hereafter approved of by the said Municipality:—

Clause 1.—(1st). A line commencing at the junction of Nicholson and Mayo Roads near the Sindh, Punjab and Delhi Railway Workshops, and continued along the road in front of the Railway Station through the Landa Bazar to the Delhi Gate, thence by the circular road on the south side of the City to the end of the Anarkali Bazar near the Lohari Gate.

(4th). A line commencing at the junction of Mayo and Nicholson Roads continued along the Mayo Road through Shalu-ki-Garhi to Mecan Meer Bazar.

Lines 1 and 2 are delineated on the map or plan hereunto annexed and signed by the parties hereto. The lines shall be single except at crossing stations, where they shall be double.

Clause 2.—The said grantees shall further (subject to clauses 3 and 4) have the exclusive right of laying, constructing, maintaining and using a tramway or tramways within the limits of the Lahore Municipality on the terms contained in these presents: provided always that if the said grantees shall at any time or times, not being a period less than three months after the construction of the lines 1 and 2 enumerated in clause 1, refuse or neglect for three months to accept any proposal by the said Lahore Municipality for the construction, maintenance and use of any tramway or tramways other than those mentioned in clause 1, which the said Lahore Municipality may consider necessary or desirable, it shall be lawful for the said Lahore Municipality to employ any other person or company for the purposes aforesaid or any of them, and to make such arrangements as they may think proper independently of the said grantees.

Clause 3.—The said grantees shall construct in such manner as to be available for use at least tramways 1 and 2 within two years from the date of obtaining the sanction and approval of the Government of the Punjab, and they shall, before the expiration of the third year, give notice in writing to the said Lahore Municipality of the lines they intend to construct during the next succeeding two years; and failing the observance by the said grantees of the terms of this clause, it shall be lawful for the said Lahore Municipality to withdraw and cancel the concessions and rights granted by these presents to the said grantees as regards the lines remaining to be constructed.

Clause 4.—If the grantees shall, at the expiration of five years from the date of commencement of this contract, have left any one or more lines hereinbefore in clause 1 specified unconstructed, and if the said Lahore Municipality shall not have exercised the rights conferred on them by clause 3, the said Lahore Municipality may call upon the said grantees to construct the line or lines, and if the said grantees do not construct the line or lines within twelve calendar months after receiving such formal notice, then their power granted in this concession shall, so far as relates to that line or lines, cease, and the said Lahore Municipality may make arrangements with other persons for the construction of the same.

Clause 5.—Any tramway or tramways to be constructed under this agreement shall be constructed on the metre gauge of 3 feet 3⅜ inches, or on such other gauge not exceeding 4 feet 8½ inches as may be mutually agreed upon, and especially the rails shall be laid and maintained in such manner that the uppermost surface of the rails shall be on a level with the surface of the road; and before the work of construction is begun the drawings and specifications showing the proposed construction of each tramway shall be submitted to the said Municipality and be approved by them, and the cars and carriages intended to run on the said tramways shall also be such as shall have been approved of by the Municipality. The rail to be used is the ordinary grooved rail of steel weighing 34 pounds per yard.

Clause 6.—If the said Municipality shall hereafter alter the level of any street or road along or across which any tramway by this agreement authorized is laid or authorized to be laid, the grantees shall alter or (as the case may be) lay their rails so that the uppermost surface thereof shall be on a level with the surface of the road so altered: provided always that any such alteration as aforesaid shall be so made as to interfere as little as possible with the safe and convenient working of the said tramways, and in any case so as not to stop or prevent the free use and working thereof.

Clause 7.—The cars and carriages of the said grantees on the tracks of the said tramways shall be worked with such power, animal or mechanical, as the said grantees may think suitable, provided that no steam carriages may be used without the special consent of the Municipality (Commissioners in special general meeting) and the sanction of the Punjab Government, and provided also that the said Municipality (Commissioners in special general meeting) shall have power at all times to make such regulations as to the rate of speed, number of passengers and mode of use of the said tracks as the convenience and safety of the public using the street may require.

Clause 8.—The said grantees shall have power from time to time to fix the rate of fares for carrying persons and goods in the cars or carriages to be run on the said tramway or tramways: provided that the rates of fares shall for any distance not exceed the rate of one anna per mile for the lower class and two annas per mile for the higher or first class for each passenger.

Clause 9.—The said grantees may, for the purpose of constructing and maintaining such tramways under such superintendence as is hereinafter specified, open and break up the soil and metalled way of the several streets, roads and bridges, and thereon lay sleepers and rails, and from time to time repair, alter or remove the same, and may, for the purposes aforesaid, remove and use all earth and materials in such streets, roads and bridges, and the said grantees may, in and on such streets, roads and bridges, do all other acts which they shall from time to time deem necessary for constructing and maintaining street tramways, doing as little damage as may be in the execution of the powers hereby granted, and shall make good all damage done to drains, sewers, water and gas pipes, or to the wires or other materials or things used for any other system of lighting, and whether belonging to the said Municipality or to private individuals, and shall make compensation for any other damage done in the execution of such powers.

Clause 10.—Before the said grantees proceed to open or break up any street, road or bridge, they shall obtain the approval in writing of the said Committee to the tracks or lines of the said tramway being laid down on the said streets, roads or bridges, and the said grantees, before opening or breaking up any street, road or bridge, shall give to the said Committee or their Executive Engineer, or other municipal officer duly appointed for that purpose, notice in writing of their intention to open or break up the same not less than three clear days before beginning such work, except in such cases of emergency arising from defects in any of the rails or other works, and then so soon as is possible after the beginning of the work or the necessity for the same shall have arisen.

Clause 11.—No street, road or bridge shall, except in cases of emergency as aforesaid, be opened or broken up, except under the superintendence of the said Committee or of their Executive Engineer, or of some other municipal officer duly appointed for that purpose, and according to such plans as shall be approved of by him or them: provided always that, if the said Committee or their Engineer or other such officer as aforesaid fail to attend at the time fixed for the opening of any such street, road or bridge after having had such notice of the said grantees' intention as aforesaid, or shall not propose any plan for breaking up or opening the same, or shall refuse or neglect to superintend the operation, the said grantees may perform the work specified in such notice without such superintendence as aforesaid.

Clause 12.—When the said grantees open or break up the roadway or pavement of any street, road or bridge, they shall with all convenient speed complete the work for which the same shall be broken up, and fill in the ground and make good the roadway or pavement so opened or broken up as aforesaid, and carry away the rubbish occasioned thereby, and deposit the same for the use of the said Committee at such place as the Executive Engineer of the said Municipality shall direct, and shall at all times, whilst any such roadway or pavement shall be so opened or broken up, cause the same to be guarded, and shall cause a light sufficient for the warning of passengers to be set up and maintained against or near such roadway or pavement where the same shall be open or broken up every night during which the same shall continue open or broken up.

Clause 13.—If the said grantees open or break up any street, road or bridge without giving such notice as hereinbefore mentioned, or in a manner different from that which shall have been approved of or determined as aforesaid, except in the cases in which the said grantees are hereby authorized to perform such work without any superintendence or notice, or if the said grantees shall make any unnecessary delay in completing any such work or in filling in the ground or reinstating and making good, so far as is consistent with the existence of the said tramway, the roadway or pavement so opened or broken up, or in carrying away the rubbish occasioned thereby, or if they neglect to cause the place where such roadway or pavement has been broken up to be guarded and lighted, they shall forfeit to the said Committee a sum not exceeding fifty (50) rupees for every such offence, and they shall forfeit an additional sum not exceeding fifty (50) rupees for each day during which any such delay or neglect as aforesaid shall continue after they shall have received notice thereof.

Clause 14.—The said grantees shall maintain and keep in repair such portion of the streets, roads and bridges as shall be occupied by their tracks or lines, including therein, not only the space between their tracks or lines, but a space eighteen inches on either side thereof, and in consideration of the maintenance of such streets, roads and bridges as aforesaid, and of the yearly rent hereinafter mentioned to be paid by the grantees, the plant, rolling-stock and other vehicles, yards, workshops, engine-sheds and depôts of the said grantees shall be exempt from municipal taxation for a period of five years, except lighting and water-rates for such yards, workshops, engine-sheds and depôts.

Clause 15.—The said grantees shall be liable for any loss, damage or injuries that any person or persons may sustain by reason of any defect or want of repairs in any of the plant, rolling-stock or other properties of the said grantees, or by reason of any carelessness, neglect or misconduct of their agents or servants in the management, construction or use of the tramways or any portion thereof; the sam shall be made good by the said grantees, and in the event of any suit being instituted against the said Committee in respect of any of the matters hereinbefore mentioned, the said grantees shall, within fourteen days from the receipt of a notice thereof from the said Committee, settle the same; but if the said grantees choose to defend such suit, they shall be at liberty to do so upon their undertaking to indemnify the said Committee against all losses, damages and expenses in respect thereof: provided always that, if the said grantees fail to settle such suit or to indemnify the said Committee as is hereinbefore provided, it shall be lawful for the said Committee to settle the same without any consent or concurrence on the part of the said grantees, and the sums which they shall have to pay in making such settlement, together with interest thereon at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum from the date of payment, and with all expenses which they may be put to, shall be recoverable as a debt from the said grantees.

Clause 16.—Nothing in this agreement shall be construed to prevent the said Committee from taking up any of the public streets or roads traversed by the said tramway for the purposes for which the said Committee may lawfully take up the same, and the said grantees shall have no right to claim cost from the said Committee for obstructing the tramway or causing delay in the traffic so long as the delay shall not be unreasonable for the work to be performed.

Clause 17.—If at any time after the opening of any tramway for traffic the said grantees shall discontinue the working of such tramway or any part thereof for the space of six calendar months (such discontinuance not being occasioned by circumstances beyond the control of the said grantees), it shall be lawful for the said Committee, without any previous notice to the said grantees, to remove the tramway or part of the tramway so discontinued, and the said grantees shall pay to the said Committee the cost of such removal and of the making good of the street, road or bridge, and the certificate of the said Committee or of their engineer as to such costs shall be conclusive.

Clause 18.—The provisions of this agreement shall remain and be in force for a term not less than twenty-one (21) years from the date thereof. The said Committee shall have the right of purchasing the said tramways, with the plant, stores, rolling-stock, sheds, depôts and yards, and everything connected therewith, after the expiration of the said twenty-one (21) years, upon declaring its intention so to do within six months after the expiration of the said twenty-one (21) years; the amount to be paid in the event of such purchase shall be the actual bonâ fide value at the termination of this agreement, exclusive of any compensation for goodwill, premium on compulsory sale or other consideration whatever, of the tramways and of the work and materials connected therewith, and of the lands and buildings and all the other property of the grantees, such value to be decided by mutual agreement or by arbitration as hereinafter provided.

Clause 19.—The provisions hereinbefore contained shall, so far as applicable, apply to all tramways to be constructed by the said grantees by any route or routes to be hereafter sanctioned by the said Committee, and to the works connected with or incidental to such tramways, it being agreed that in the event of the Municipality failing to declare its intention as above provided to purchase the property of the said grantees, the terms of this contract shall continue in force during the period of six months from the date of the determination of these presents and for a further period of six months, and if the said Committee shall not within that time exercise the option of purchase hereby given, the said Committee and the said grantees shall enter into a fresh agreement.

Clause 20.—The said grantees will, if required by the Municipality, before opening and breaking up the soil and pavement of any street or bridge, deposit in an approved Bank in Lahore, in the name of the said Municipality, the sum of Rs. 1,000 or in their option Promissory Notes of the Government of India or Municipal Bonds of the nominal value of Rs. 1,000, and the same will remain so deposited until the completion by the said grantees of the lines of tramway herein sanctioned for immediate construction. But all interest accruing on the said sum or the said notes shall be credited to the said grantees, and subject as next hereinafter mentioned, be paid to them as the same shall accrue due: provided, nevertheless, that the said Municipality shall be entitled to deduct out of the sum so deposited or the interest accruing on the said sum or notes, or out of the proceeds of sale of the said notes, all moneys to which they may be entitled under any clause or clauses of these presents.

Clause 21.—In consideration of the concession hereby granted, the said grantees will pay to the said Lahore Municipality rents at the rates and under the conditions hereinafter specified; that is to say, for the first two years after the opening of the tramway or tramways no rent will be charged, after the expiration of the first two years, and during the next ensuing year, the rental shall be one-tenth of the annual average profits as shown by the company's books during the preceding two years, this rental to be subject to revision at the end of every two years, and the maximum charge or rental made by the said Municipality shall under no circumstance exceed one-tenth of the net profit divided by the company in every period of two years immediately preceding each adjustment of the charge. The books and accounts shall at all times be open to the inspection of the Municipal Committee, and should any dispute arise as to the exact charge to be made by the said Municipality, then such matter or matters in dispute shall be referred to arbitrators as detailed in clause 25 of this agreement. If the said rent or any part thereof shall not be paid on due date, the said grantees shall be liable to pay interest thereon at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum from the due date until payment.

Clause 22.—From and after the commencement of the 15th year of this contract to the end of the 21st, the said grantees shall not be at liberty to enter upon any fresh arrangements or expenditure which would increase their capital account in connection with this contract without first notifying their intention to the said Municipality and obtaining their approval thereof and sanction thereto in writing.

Clause 23.—The sleepers, rails, materials and implements and other erections placed and erected by the said grantees on the streets, bridges or roads under the powers hereby granted shall be and remain the property of the said grantees, and the said grantees shall have the exclusive use of their tramway or tramways for carriages with flanged wheels or other wheels suitable only to run on the prescribed rail.

Clause 24.—Unless the said grantees shall have commenced the work of laying down the said tramways within twelve months from the date of the execution of these articles of agreement, the said Committee shall be at liberty to cease and determine this contract and to enter into arrangements with any other person or persons for the construction of tramways; it being agreed, however, that these conditions of contract are subject to the sanction of Government, and that, in the event of their being executed prior to such sanction being given, the said 12 months shall date from the day on which notice of such sanction is given to the said grantees: provided also that any delay in commencing the work beyond 12 months shall not have been due to any cause beyond the control of the said grantees.

Clause 25.—If any doubt, difference or dispute shall arise between the said grantees and the said Committee touching the construction of these presents or anything herein contained, or touching or concerning any other matter or thing relating to these presents, then and in every such case such doubt, difference or dispute shall be referred to the arbitration of two persons, one to be chosen by the said grantees and the other by the said Committee within one calendar month after either of them shall have made to the other a requisition to that effect, and should the arbitrators fail to agree they shall refer the question or questions at issue to the decision of an umpire to be chosen by the said arbitrators, and the decision of such arbitrators if they agree, or of such umpire if they disagree, shall be final; and in case either party shall neglect or refuse to appoint an arbitrator within the specified time, the arbitrator appointed by the other party shall make a decision alone, and the decision of such arbitrators, umpire or arbitrator, as the case may be, shall be effectual and binding upon both parties.

Clause 26.—The said grantees are to be at liberty to form a Company or Limited Liability Company for the purpose of constructing, maintaining and working the tramways authorized by, or hereafter to be authorized under the terms of this agreement. The words "the said grantees" used in this agreement shall include such Company or Limited Liability Company so formed as aforesaid.

Clause 27.—The words "the said Committee" used in this agreement shall include the present Committee and their successors, and also persons empowered by the said Committee or their successors or by other duly constituted authority to do any act or thing or exercise any powers or authorities which the said Committee are hereinbefore authorized or empowered to do or exercise.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

ON the 7th of February, 1885, the Municipal Committee of Lahore entered into an agreement with Messrs. Masson, Robson and Ker, by which it conferred upon them the exclusive right to construct and work public tramways within the limits of the municipality, and arranged with them for the construction and working of certain specified tramways and of such others as might from time to time be determined on.

2. This agreement is very similar to that recently entered into by the Municipal Committee for the town of Rangoon for the construction and maintenance of tramways in that town, and like it requires to be supported and supplemented by legislation. Accordingly, the present Bill, which follows closely the lines of the Rangoon Tramways Act, 1883, has been prepared.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Second publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 14th May, 1885, and was referred to a Select Committee :—

No. 7 OF 1885.

A Bill to amend the Local Authorities Loan Act, 1879.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Local Authorities Loan Act, 1879; It is hereby enacted as follows :— XI of 1879.

Addition to section 8, Act XI of 1879.

1. After clause (b) of the proviso to section 8 of the said Act the following shall be added :—

"or

"(c) to affect the power conferred on any local authority by any such enactment to charge its funds by guaranteeing the payment of interest on money to be raised for any purpose to which the funds of the local authority may be applied."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

IT is proposed that a light railway be constructed in the Tanjore District of the Madras Presidency by a Company, and that the interest on the capital to be raised by the Company for the undertaking be guaranteed by the Local Fund Board of Tanjore.

But section 8 of the Local Authorities Loan Act, 1879, prohibits any local authority from charging its funds except as provided by that Act and the rules made thereunder ; and the Act provides, and the rules that may be made under it can provide, for no other means of charging funds than borrowing on their security.

It is considered desirable, therefore, that the Act should be so amended as to enable the local legislature to pass any enactment that may be necessary for authorising a local authority to guarantee the interest on money raised for any purpose to which the funds of the local authority may be applied.

2. NOW THESE PRESENTS witness that, in consideration of the covenants hereinafter contained, and on the part of the said Lahore Municipality to be performed, the said grantees for themselves, their heirs, executors and assigns do covenant with the said Lahore Municipality, so far as the covenants and agreements hereinafter contained are to be performed by the said grantees and their heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, and the said Municipality for and in consideration of the covenants and agreements hereinafter contained and on the part of the said grantees and their heirs, executors, administrators and assigns to be performed, do hereby covenant with the said grantees and their heirs, executors, administrators and assigns so far as the covenants and agreements hereinafter contained are to be performed by the said Lahore Municipality, their successors and assigns, in manner following, that is to say:—

The said Lahore Municipality grant to the said grantees and their heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, all which persons are hereinafter included in the words "the said grantees," the right to construct, maintain and use a tramway or tramways with all necessary sidings, turnouts, connections and lines of whatever nature which may be required to connect the said tramway with the depôts of the said grantees (but in the case of sidings and turnouts only in such places as the said corporation may sanction) on the following routes and between such other places and by such other routes as may be hereafter approved of by the said Municipality:—

of laying, constructing, maintaining and using a tramway or tramways within the limits of the Lahore Municipality on the terms contained in these presents: provided always that if the said grantees shall at any time or times, not being a period less than three months after the construction of the lines 1 and 2 enumerated in clause 1, refuse or neglect for three months to accept any proposal by the said Lahore Municipality for the construction, maintenance and use of any tramway or tramways other than those mentioned in clause 1, which the said Lahore Municipality may consider necessary or desirable, it shall be lawful for the said Lahore Municipality to employ any other person or company for the purposes aforesaid or any of them, and to make such arrangements as they may think proper independently of the said grantees.

Clause 3.—The said grantees shall construct in such manner as to be available for use at least tramways 1 and 2 within two years from the date of obtaining the sanction and approval of the Government of the Punjab, and they shall, before the expiration of the third year, give notice in writing to the said Lahore Municipality of the lines they intend to construct during the next succeeding two years; and failing the observance by the said grantees of the terms of this clause, it shall be lawful for the said Lahore Municipality to withdraw and cancel the concessions and rights granted by these presents to the said grantees as regards the lines remaining to be constructed.

Clause 4.—If the grantees shall, at the expiration of five years from the date of commencement of this contract, have left any one or more lines hereinbefore in clause 1 specified unconstructed, and if the said Lahore Municipality shall not have exercised the rights conferred on them by clause 3, the said Lahore Municipality may call upon the said grantees to construct the line or lines, and if the said grantees do not construct the line or lines within twelve calendar months after receiving such formal notice, then their power granted in this concession shall, so far as relates to that line or lines, cease, and the said Lahore Municipality may make arrangements with other persons for the construction of the same.

Clause 5.—Any tramway or tramways to be constructed under this agreement shall be constructed on the metre gauge of 3 feet 3⅜ inches, or on such other gauge not exceeding 4 feet 8½ inches as may be mutually agreed upon, and especially the rails shall be laid and maintained in such manner that the uppermost surface of the rails shall be on a level with the surface of the road; and before the work of construction is begun the drawings and specifications showing the proposed construction of each tramway shall be submitted to the said Municipality and be approved by them, and the cars and carriages intended to run on the said tramways shall also be such as shall have been approved of by the Municipality. Clause 7.—The cars and carriages of the said grantees on the tracks of the said tramways shall be worked with such power, animal or mechanical, as the said grantees may think suitable, provided that no steam carriages may be used without the special consent of the Municipality (Commissioners in special general meeting) and the sanction of the Punjab Government, and provided also that the said Municipality (Commissioners in special general meeting) shall have power at all times to make such regulations as to the rate of speed, number of passengers and mode of use of the said tracks as the convenience and safety of the public using the street may require.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

ON the 7th of February, 1885, the Municipal Committee of Lahore entered into an agreement with Messrs. Masson, Robson and Ker, by which it conferred upon them the exclusive right to construct and work public tramways within the limits of the municipality, and arranged with them for the construction and working of certain specified tramways and of such others as might from time to time be determined on.

2. This agreement is very similar to that recently entered into by the Municipal Committee for the town of Rangoon for the construction and maintenance of tramways in that town, and like it requires to be supported and supplemented by legislation. Accordingly, the present Bill, which follows closely the lines of the Rangoon Tramways Act, 1883, has been prepared.

Clause 7.—The cars and carriages of the said grantees on the tracks of the said tramways shall be worked with such power, animal or mechanical, as the said grantees may think suitable, provided that no steam carriages may be used without the special consent of the Municipality (Commissioners in special general meeting) and the sanction of the Punjab Government, and provided also that the said Municipality (Commissioners in special general meeting) shall have power at all times to make such regulations as to the rate of speed, number of passengers and mode of use of the said tracks as the convenience and safety of the public using the street may require.

Clause 12.—When the said grantees open or break up the roadway or pavement of any street, road or bridge, they shall with all convenient speed complete the work for which the same shall be broken up, and fill in the ground and make good the roadway or pavement so opened or broken up as aforesaid, and carry away the rubbish occasioned thereby, and deposit the same for the use of the said Committee at such place as the Executive Engineer of the said Municipality shall direct, and shall at all times, whilst any such roadway or pavement shall be so opened or broken up, cause the same to be guarded, and shall cause a light sufficient for the warning of passengers to be set up and maintained against or near such roadway or pavement where the same shall be open or broken up every night during which the same shall continue open or broken up.

Clause 14.—The said grantees shall maintain and keep in repair such portion of the streets, roads and bridges as shall be occupied by their tracks or lines, including therein, not only the space between their tracks or lines, but a space eighteen inches on either side thereof, and in consideration of the maintenance of such streets, roads and bridges as aforesaid, and of the yearly rent hereinafter mentioned to be paid by the grantees, the plant, rolling-stock and other vehicles, yards, workshops, engine-sheds and depôts of the said grantees shall be exempt from municipal taxation for a period of five years, except lighting and water-rates for such yards, workshops, engine-sheds and depôts.

Clause 15.—The said grantees shall be liable for any loss, damage or injuries that any person or persons may sustain by reason of any defect or want of repairs in any of the plant, rolling-stock or other properties of the said grantees, or by reason of any carelessness, neglect or misconduct of their agents or servants in the management, construction or use of the tramways or any portion thereof; the same shall be made good by the said grantees, and in the event of any suit being instituted against the said Committee in respect of any of the matters hereinbefore mentioned, the said grantees shall, within fourteen days from the receipt of a notice thereof from the said Committee, settle the same; but if the said grantees choose to defend such suit, they shall be at liberty to do so upon their undertaking to indemnify the said Committee against all losses, damages and expenses in respect thereof: provided always that, if the said grantees fail to settle such suit or to indemnify the said Committee as is hereinbefore provided, it shall be lawful for the said Committee to settle the same without any consent or concurrence on the part of the said grantees, and the sums which they shall have to pay in making such settlement, together with interest thereon at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum from the date of payment, and with all expenses which they may be put to, shall be recoverable as a debt from the said grantees.

Clause 16.—Nothing in this agreement shall be construed to prevent the said Committee from taking up any of the public streets or roads traversed by the said tramway for the purposes for which the said Committee may lawfully take up the same, and the said grantees shall have no right to claim cost from the said Committee for obstructing the tramway or causing delay in the traffic so long as the delay shall not be unreasonable for the work to be performed.

Clause 17.—If at any time after the opening of any tramway for traffic the said grantees shall discontinue the working of such tramway or any part thereof for the space of six calendar months (such discontinuance not being occasioned by circumstances beyond the control of the said grantees), it shall be lawful for the said Committee, without any previous notice to the said grantees, to remove the tramway or part of the tramway so discontinued, and the said grantees shall pay to the said Committee the cost of such removal and of the making good of the street, road or bridge, and the certificate of the said Committee or of their engineer as to such costs shall be conclusive.

Clause 18.—The provisions of this agreement shall remain and be in force for a term not less than twenty-one (21) years from the date thereof. The said Committee shall have the right of purchasing the said tramways, with the plant, stores, rolling-stock, sheds, depôts and yards, and everything connected therewith, after the expiration of the said twenty-one (21) years, upon declaring its intention so to do within six months after the expiration of the said twenty-one (21) years, the amount to be paid in the event of such purchase shall be the actual bonâ fide value at the termination of this agreement, exclusive of any compensation for goodwill, premium on compulsory sale or other consideration whatever, of the tramways and of the work and materials connected therewith, and of the lands and buildings and all the other property of the grantees such value to be decided by mutual agreement or by arbitration as hereinafter provided.

Clause 19.—The provisions hereinbefore contained shall, so far as applicable, apply to all tramways to be constructed by the said grantees by any route or routes to be hereafter sanctioned by the said Committee, and to the works connected with or incidental to such tramways, it being agreed that in the event of the Municipality failing to declare its intention as above provided to purchase the property of the said grantees, the terms of this contract shall continue in force during the period of six months from the date of the determination of these presents and for a further period of six months, and if the said Committee shall not within that time exercise the option of purchase hereby given, the said Committee and the said grantees shall enter into a fresh agreement.

Clause 20.—The said grantees will, if required by the Municipality, before opening and breaking up the soil and pavement of any street or bridge, deposit in an approved Bank in Lahore, in the name of the said Municipality, the sum of Rs. 1,000 or in their option Promissory Notes of the Government of India or Municipal Bonds of the nominal value of Rs. 1,000, and the same will remain so deposited until the completion by the said grantees of the lines of tramway herein sanctioned for immediate construction. But all interest accruing on the said sum or the said notes shall be credited to the said grantees, and subject as next hereinafter mentioned, be paid to them as the same shall accrue due: provided, nevertheless, that the said Municipality shall be entitled to deduct out of the sum so deposited or the interest accruing on the said sum or notes, or out of the proceeds of sale of the said notes, all moneys to which they may be entitled under any clause or clauses of these presents.

Clause 21.—In consideration of the concession hereby granted, the said grantees will pay to the said Lahore Municipality rents at the rates and under the conditions hereinafter specified; that is to say, for the first two years after the opening of the tramway or tramways no rent will be charged, after the expiration of the first two years, and during the next ensuing year, the rental shall be one-tenth of the annual average profits as shown by the company's books during the preceding two years, this rental to be subject to revision at the end of every two years, and the maximum charge or rental made by the said Municipality shall under no circumstance exceed one-tenth of the net profit divided by the company in every period of two years immediately preceding each adjustment of the charge. The books and accounts shall at all times be open to the inspection of the Municipal Committee, and should any dispute arise as to the exact charge to be made by the said Municipality, then such matter or matters in dispute shall be referred to arbitrators as detailed in clause 25 of this agreement. If the said rent or any part thereof shall not be paid on due date, the said grantees shall be liable to pay interest thereon at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum from the due date until payment.

Clause 22.—From and after the commencement of the 15th year of this contract to the end of the 21st, the said grantees shall not be at liberty to enter upon any fresh arrangements or expenditure which would increase their capital account in connection with this contract without first notifying their intention to the said Municipality and obtaining their approval thereof and sanction thereto in writing.

Clause 23.—The sleepers, rails, materials and implements and other erections placed and erected by the said grantees on the streets, bridges or roads under the powers hereby granted shall be and remain the property of the said grantees, and the said grantees shall have the exclusive use of their tramway or tramways for carriages with flanged wheels or other wheels suitable only to run on the prescribed rail.

Clause 24.—Unless the said grantees shall have commenced the work of laying down the said tramways within twelve months from the date of the execution of these articles of agreement, the said Committee shall be at liberty to cease and determine this contract and to enter into arrangements with any other person or persons for the construction of tramways; it being agreed, however, that these conditions of contract are subject to the sanction of Government, and that, in the event of their being executed prior to such sanction being given, the said 12 months shall date from the day on which notice of such sanction is given to the said grantees: provided also that any delay in commencing the work beyond 12 months shall not have been due to any cause beyond the control of the said grantees.

Clause 25.—If any doubt, difference or dispute shall arise between the said grantees and the said Committee touching the construction of these presents or anything herein contained, or touching or concerning any other matter or thing relating to these presents, then and in every such case such doubt, difference or dispute shall be referred to the arbitration of two persons, one to be chosen by the said grantees and the other by the said Committee within one calendar month after either of them shall have made to the other a requisition to that effect, and should the arbitrators fail to agree they shall refer the question or questions at issue to the decision of an umpire to be chosen by the said arbitrators, and the decision of such arbitrators if they agree, or of such umpire if they disagree, shall be final; and in case either party shall neglect or refuse to appoint an arbitrator within the specified time, the arbitrator appointed by the other party shall make a decision alone, and the decision of such arbitrators, umpire or arbitrator, as the case may be, shall be effectual and binding upon both parties.

Clause 26.—The said grantees are to be at liberty to form a Company or Limited Liability Company for the purpose of constructing, maintaining and working the tramways authorized by or hereafter to be authorized under the terms of this agreement. Clause 27.—The words "the said Committee" used in this agreement shall include the present Committee and their successors, and also persons empowered by the said Committee or their successors or by other duly constituted authority to do any act or thing or exercise any powers or authorities which the said Committee are hereinbefore authorized or empowered to do or exercise.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

ON the 7th of February, 1885, the Municipal Committee of Lahore entered into an agreement with Messrs. Masson, Robson and Ker, by which it conferred upon them the exclusive right to construct and work public tramways within the limits of the municipality, and arranged with them for the construction and working of certain specified tramways and of such others as might from time to time be determined on.

2. This agreement is very similar to that recently entered into by the Municipal Committee for the town of Rangoon for the construction and maintenance of tramways in that town, and like it requires to be supported and supplemented by legislation. Accordingly, the present Bill, which follows closely the lines of the Rangoon Tramways Act, 1883, has been prepared.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE Government of Madras, on the recommendation of the High Court, has proposed that the Madras Civil Courts Act, 1873, should be so amended as to (a) enable the Government to confer upon District Judges and District Munsifs the jurisdiction of a Judge of a Court of Small Causes for the trial of suits cognizable by such Courts up to the value of five hundred rupees, and (b) remove the doubt whether more than one Munsif can be appointed to exercise jurisdiction in the same local area.

(2) All rules made under this section shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to make better provision for the superintendence of Government wards in the Central Provinces. At present the law on this subject in the Central Provinces is in a very uncertain and unsatisfactory state. It has been ruled by the Judicial Commissioner that nothing calling itself a Court of Wards can be regarded as assuredly having legal existence in the Nágpur district. This ruling affects all the southern districts of the provinces. Again, it has lately been discovered that there is no satisfactory ground for holding that the Bengal Regulations regarding the Court of Wards have been extended to the Nimár district; and even in the districts forming the old Saugor and Nerbudda territories to the north of the provinces, where these Regulations are deemed to be in force, the law is not on a satisfactory basis. There are doubts as to the powers possessed by the Courts; and there are many points on which it would be well for the Chief Commissioner to issue clear and definite instructions if the power to do so were legally assured.

2. As the Chief Commissioner has now at his command, in the lately formed Agricultural Department, machinery for the better supervision of estates belonging to Government wards throughout the provinces, he has urged that legislation on this subject should not be further delayed. He has further suggested that it should take the form of a chapter on the subject which was contained in the Central Provinces Land-revenue Bill as originally drafted, but which was omitted from that Bill before it became law on the ground that it was not expedient to complicate the measure by the addition of provisions not clearly and closely connected with its subject-matter. The present Bill has, therefore, been prepared. It is based upon the draft chapter to which the Chief Commissioner refers. That chapter followed generally the lines of the Punjab Laws Act, 1872, sections 34 to 38, as amended by Act XII of 1878, the North-Western Provinces Land-revenue Act, 1873, sections 193 to 206, as amended by Act VIII of 1879, and the Oudh Land-revenue Act, 1876, sections 161 to 177, which deal with Courts of Wards; but the present Bill, while adopting these provisions so far as they go, contains also provisions taken from the Bengal Court of Wards Act (Bengal Act IX of 1879), which, though they appear to be required, were not embodied in the Chief Commissioner's draft.

3. The Bill repeals (section 2) the old Bengal Regulations LII of 1803 and VI of 1822 (relating to Courts of Wards), which are still deemed to be in force in the districts forming the old Saugor and Nerbudda territories. It also repeals section 14 of the Minors Act of 1858, that section having reference to the law as contained in section 4 of the Regulation, LII of 1803, which this Bill repeals. In the Central Provinces it will be, as in the North-Western Provinces it is, competent to the Court of Wards to administer, so far as the personal law to which he is subject permits, the interest of a disqualified person who is merely a co-owner in an estate with other persons who are not disqualified. In this respect the law in the Central Provinces will, like that in the North-Western Provinces, differ from that in force in the Punjab, Oudh and elsewhere.

4. Section 4 constitutes the Deputy Commissioner the Court of Wards. It seems necessary to do this, instead of simply conferring the powers which the Bill confers on the Court of Wards on the Deputy Commissioner in that capacity, because there are references to the Courts of Wards in certain enactments applying to the Central Provinces which would have no application were the term not retained.

5. Section 5 declares every landholder to be under the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards (see section 3, Act IX, 1875); and the term "landholder" is so defined in section 3 as to include all persons of the landed classes who are of sufficient importance to make it socially and politically desirable to take special measures for their protection.

6. Under section 6 the Court of Wards may assume the superintendence of the property of any disqualified landholder, and under section 8 may assume the superintendence of his person also if he be a minor or of unsound mind.

7. Section 7 defines the cases in which landholders are to be deemed disqualified. These are similar to those prescribed in other Acts of this nature.

8. Where a disqualified landholder owns land within the jurisdiction of two Courts of Wards, the Chief Commissioner is empowered by section 9 to determine which Court shall assume superintendence.

9. Section 10 declares that, when once the Court of Wards has assumed the superintendence of the property of any person, or of his person and property, its authority shall not be questioned on the ground that the person was or is not a landholder, or was or is not a minor. This provision is new, but, as there will be titles dependent on the power of the Court, it appears to be desirable to prevent its action in taking charge of an estate from being questioned on either of these grounds.

10. Sections 11 and 12, which are new, deal with the appointment, remuneration and responsibility of managers, to whom the Court of Wards may, subject to rules to be made by the Chief Commissioner, delegate its functions in relation to the property of wards under the Act.

11. Section 13 empowers the Court of Wards to appoint guardians for the care of the persons of Government wards who are minors or of unsound mind, and of whose persons the Court of Wards has assumed superintendence; but it excepts the cases of married wards whose husbands are not minors and wards for whom testamentary guardians have been appointed. In the opinion of the Government of India, testamentary guardians should not be interfered with except by the Civil Court.

12. Section 14, which is taken from the Bengal Court of Wards Act, 1879, defines the general powers of the Court of Wards with regard to the property of Government wards, and with regard to the persons of such of them as are minors or persons of unsound mind of whose persons the Court has assumed the superintendence.

13. Section 15 is copied from the Bengal Act, and empowers the Court to provide for the custody and residence of Government wards who are minors or of unsound mind and whose persons are under its superintendence, and for the education of such of them as are minors.

14. Section 16 follows section 200 of the North-Western Provinces Land-revenue Act, 1873, as amended by section 21, Act VIII, 1879.

15. By section 17, which is new and corresponds with provisions in force in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the duty of managing a ward's property diligently and faithfully and for the benefit of the Government ward is expressly laid down.

16. By section 18 the Court of Wards is empowered to let a ward's property, and, with the sanction of the Chief Commissioner, to mortgage, sell or exchange it.

17. Sections 19, 20, 21 and 22 are taken from the Bengal Court of Wards Act, 1879, and prescribe the procedure which must be followed in the case of suits by or against Government wards, providing, respectively, that the manager or Court of Wards shall be a Government ward's next friend or guardian in suits by or against him (section 19), for the payment of costs decreed against the next friend or guardian out of the Government ward's property (section 20), that processes against a Government ward shall be served on his next friend or guardian (section 21), and that the authority of the Court of Wards shall as a rule be required in the case of suits brought on behalf of a Government ward (section 22).

18. Section 23 declares that a Government ward shall be incompetent to transfer or create any charge on, or interest in, his property or any part thereof, or to enter into any contract which may involve him in pecuniary liability, except for the purpose of making, with the sanction of the Court of Wards, a suitable settlement on his marriage.

19. Sections 24 and 25, which are both taken from the Bengal Court of Wards Act, 1879, respectively declare that the consent of the Chief Commissioner is necessary to adoptions by Government wards, and prescribe the procedure to be followed by the Court of Wards when the succession to any Government ward's property is disputed.

20. Under section 26 the Court of Wards is empowered, with the sanction of the Chief Commissioner, to withdraw its superintendence at any time from the person or property, or both, of a Government ward: and the Court is required to withdraw its superintendence when a person who has been made a ward on account of his being a minor or of unsound mind, or labouring under some physical defect or infirmity, attains his majority, or ceases to be of unsound mind, or becomes free from the defect or infirmity, as the case may be.

21. Section 27 provides for appeals, section 28 for the control of the Chief Commissioner, and section 29 prohibits the exercise of any discretion conferred on a Court of Wards, a Commissioner of a division or the Chief Commissioner being called in question in any Civil Court, whilst section 30 gives the Chief Commissioner power to make rules for all matters connected with the working of the Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE Government of Madras, on the recommendation of the High Court, has proposed that the Madras Civil Courts Act, 1873, should be so amended as to (a) enable the Government to confer upon District Judges and District Munsifs the jurisdiction of a Judge of a Court of Small Causes for the trial of suits cognizable by such Courts up to the value of five hundred rupees, and (b) remove the doubt whether more than one Munsif can be appointed to exercise jurisdiction in the same local area.

The object of this Bill is to give effect to those proposals.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to make better provision for the superintendence of Government wards in the Central Provinces. At present the law on this subject in the Central Provinces is in a very uncertain and unsatisfactory state. It has been ruled by the Judicial Commissioner that nothing calling itself a Court of Wards can be regarded as assuredly having legal existence in the Nágpur district. This ruling affects all the southern districts of the provinces. Again, it has lately been discovered that there is no satisfactory ground for holding that the Bengal Regulations regarding the Court of Wards have been extended to the Nimár district; and even in the districts forming the old Saugor and Nerbudda territories to the north of the provinces, where these Regulations are deemed to be in force, the law is not on a satisfactory basis. There are doubts as to the powers possessed by the Courts; and there are many points on which it would be well for the Chief Commissioner to issue clear and definite instructions if the power to do so were legally assured.

2. As the Chief Commissioner has now at his command, in the lately formed Agricultural Department, machinery for the better supervision of estates belonging to Government wards throughout the provinces, he has urged that legislation on this subject should not be further delayed. He has further suggested that it should take the form of a chapter on the subject which was contained in the Central Provinces Land-revenue Bill as originally drafted, but which was omitted from that Bill before it became law on the ground that it was not expedient to complicate the measure by the addition of provisions not clearly and closely connected with its subject-matter. The present Bill has, therefore, been prepared. It is based upon the draft chapter to which the Chief Commissioner refers. That chapter followed generally the lines of the Punjab Laws Act, 1872, sections 34 to 38, as amended by Act XII of 1878, the North-Western Provinces Land-revenue Act, 1873, sections 193 to 206, as amended by Act VIII of 1879, and the Oudh Land-revenue Act, 1876, sections 161 to 177, which deal with Courts of Wards; but the present Bill, while adopting these provisions so far as they go, contains also provisions taken from the Bengal Court of Wards Act (Bengal Act IX of 1879), which, though they appear to be required, were not embodied in the Chief Commissioner's draft.

3. The Bill repeals (section 3) the old Bengal Regulations LII of 1803 and VI of 1822 (relating to Courts of Wards), which are still deemed to be in force in the districts forming the old Saugor and Nerbudda territories. It also repeals section 14 of the Minors Act of 1858, that section having reference to the law as contained in section 4 of the Regulation, LII of 1803, which this Bill repeals. In the Central Provinces it will be, as in the North-Western Provinces it is, competent to the Court of Wards to administer, so far as the personal law to which he is subject permits, the interest of a disqualified person who is merely a co-owner in an estate with other persons who are not disqualified. In this respect the law in the Central Provinces will, like that in the North-Western Provinces, differ from that in force in the Punjab, Oudh and elsewhere.

4. Section 4 constitutes the Deputy Commissioner the Court of Wards. It seems necessary to do this, instead of simply conferring the powers which the Bill confers on the Court of Wards on the Deputy Commissioner in that capacity, because there are references to the Court of Wards in certain enactments applying to the Central Provinces which would have no application were the term not retained.

5. Section 5 declares every landholder to be under the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards (see section 3, Act IX, 1875); and the term "landholder" is so defined in section 3 as to include all persons of the landed classes who are of sufficient importance to make it socially and politically desirable to take special measures for their protection.

6. Under section 6 the Court of Wards may assume the superintendence of the property of any disqualified landholder, and under section 8 may assume the superintendence of his person also if he be a minor or of unsound mind.

7. Section 7 defines the cases in which landholders are to be deemed disqualified. These are similar to those prescribed in other Acts of this nature.

8. Where a disqualified landholder owns land within the jurisdiction of two Courts of Wards, the Chief Commissioner is empowered by section 9 to determine which Court shall assume superintendence.

9. Section 10 declares that, when once the Court of Wards has assumed the superintendence of the property of any person, or of his person and property, its authority shall not be questioned on the ground that the person was or is not a landholder, or was or is not a minor. This provision is new, but, as there will be titles dependent on the power of the Court, it appears to be desirable to prevent its action in taking charge of an estate from being questioned on either of these grounds.

10. Sections 11 and 12, which are new, deal with the appointment, remuneration and responsibility of managers, to whom the Court of Wards may, subject to rules to be made by the Chief Commissioner, delegate its functions in relation to the property of wards under the Act.

11. Section 13 empowers the Court of Wards to appoint guardians for the care of the persons of Government wards who are minors or of unsound mind, and of whose persons the Court of Wards has assumed superintendence; but it excepts the case of married wards whose husbands are not minors and wards for whom testamentary guardians have been appointed. In the opinion of the Government of India, testamentary guardians should not be interfered with except by the Civil Court.

12. Section 14, which is taken from the Bengal Court of Wards Act, 1879, defines the general powers of the Court of Wards with regard to the property of Government wards, and with regard to the persons of such of them as are minors or persons of unsound mind of whose persons the Court has assumed the superintendence.

13. Section 15 is copied from the Bengal Act, and empowers the Court to provide for the custody and residence of Government wards who are minors or of unsound mind and whose persons are under its superintendence, and for the education of such of them as are minors.

14. Section 16 follows section 200 of the North-Western Provinces Land-revenue Act, 1873, as amended by section 21, Act VIII, 1879.

15. By section 17, which is new and corresponds with provisions in force in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the duty of managing a ward's property diligently and faithfully and for the benefit of the Government ward is expressly laid down.

16. By section 18 the Court of Wards is empowered to let a ward's property, and, with the sanction of the Chief Commissioner, to mortgage, sell or exchange it.

17. Sections 19, 20, 21 and 22 are taken from the Bengal Court of Wards Act, 1879, and prescribe the procedure which must be followed in the case of suits by or against Government wards, providing, respectively, that the manager or the Court of Wards shall be a Government ward's next friend or guardian in suits by or against him (section 19), for the payment of costs decreed against the next friend or guardian out of the Government ward's property (section 20), that processes against a Government ward shall be served on his next friend or guardian (section 21), and that the authority of the Court of Wards shall as a rule be required in the case of suits brought on behalf of a Government ward (section 22).

18. Section 23 declares that a Government ward shall be incompetent to transfer or create any charge on, or interest in, his property or any part thereof, or to enter into any contract which may involve him in pecuniary liability, except for the purpose of making, with the sanction of the Court of Wards, a suitable settlement on his marriage.

19. Sections 24 and 25, which are both taken from the Bengal Court of Wards Act, 1879, respectively declare that the consent of the Chief Commissioner is necessary to adoptions by Government wards, and prescribe the procedure to be followed by the Court of Wards when the succession to any Government ward's property is disputed.

20. Under section 26 the Court of Wards is empowered, with the sanction of the Chief Commissioner, to withdraw its superintendence at any time from the person or property, or both, of a Government ward: and the Court is required to withdraw its superintendence when a person who has been made a ward on account of his being a minor or of unsound mind, or labouring under some physical defect or infirmity, attains his majority, or ceases to be of unsound mind, or becomes free from the defect or infirmity, as the case may be.

21. Section 27 provides for appeals, section 28 for the control of the Chief Commissioner, and section 29 prohibits the exercise of any discretion conferred on a Court of Wards, a Commissioner of a division or the Chief Commissioner being called in question in any Civil Court, whilst section 30 gives the Chief Commissioner power to make rules for all matters connected with the working of the Act.

(i) prescribe the mode in which powers delegated to managers are to be notified for the information of persons concerned; and

(j) generally prescribe the manner in which the powers and duties of the Court of Wards under this Act shall be exercised and performed.

(2) All rules made under this section shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to make better provision for the superintendence of Government wards in the Central Provinces. At present the law on this subject in the Central Provinces is in a very uncertain and unsatisfactory state. It has been ruled by the Judicial Commissioner that nothing calling itself a Court of Wards can be regarded as assuredly having legal existence in the Nágpur district. This ruling affects all the southern districts of the provinces. Again, it has lately been discovered that there is no satisfactory ground for holding that the Bengal Regulations regarding the Court of Wards have been extended to the Nimár district; and even in the districts forming the old Saugor and Nerbudda territories to the north of the provinces, where these Regulations are deemed to be in force, the law is not on a satisfactory basis. There are doubts as to the powers possessed by the Courts; and there are many points on which it would be well for the Chief Commissioner to issue clear and definite instructions if the power to do so were legally assured.

2. As the Chief Commissioner has now at his command, in the lately formed Agricultural Department, machinery for the better supervision of estates belonging to Government wards throughout the provinces, he has urged that legislation on this subject should not be further delayed. He has further suggested that it should take the form of a chapter on the subject which was contained in the Central Provinces Land-revenue Bill as originally drafted, but which was omitted from that Bill before it became law on the ground that it was not expedient to complicate the measure by the addition of provisions not clearly and closely connected with its subject-matter. The present Bill has, therefore, been prepared. It is based upon the draft chapter to which the Chief Commissioner refers. That chapter followed generally the lines of the Punjab Laws Act, 1872, sections 34 to 38, as amended by Act XII of 1878, the North-Western Provinces Land-revenue Act, 1873, sections 193 to 206, as amended by Act VIII of 1879, and the Oudh Land-revenue Act, 1876, sections 161 to 177, which deal with Courts of Wards; but the present Bill, while adopting these provisions so far as they go, contains also provisions taken from the Bengal Court of Wards Act (Bengal Act IX of 1879), which, though they appear to be required, were not embodied in the Chief Commissioner's draft.

3. The Bill repeals (section 2) the old Bengal Regulations LII of 1803 and VI of 1822 (relating to Courts of Wards), which are still deemed to be in force in the districts forming the old Saugor and Nerbudda territories. It also repeals section 14 of the Minors Act of 1858, that section having reference to the law as contained in section 4 of the Regulation, LII of 1803, which this Bill repeals. In the Central Provinces it will be, as in the North-Western Provinces it is, competent to the Court of Wards to administer, so far as the personal law to which he is subject permits, the interest of a disqualified person who is merely a co-owner in an estate with other persons who are not disqualified. In this respect the law in the Central Provinces will, like that in the North-Western Provinces, differ from that in force in the Punjab, Oudh and elsewhere.

4. Section 4 constitutes the Deputy Commissioner the Court of Wards. It seems necessary to do this, instead of simply conferring the powers which the Bill confers on the Court of Wards on the Deputy Commissioner in that capacity, because there are references to Courts of Wards in certain enactments applying to the Central Provinces which would have no application were the term not retained.

5. Section 5 declares every landholder to be under the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards (see section 3, Act IX, 1875); and the term "landholder" is so defined in section 3 as to include all persons of the landed classes who are of sufficient importance to make it socially and politically desirable to take special measures for their protection.

6. Under section 6 the Court of Wards may assume the superintendence of the property of any disqualified landholder, and under section 8 may assume the superintendence of his person also if he be a minor or of unsound mind.

7. Section 7 defines the cases in which landholders are to be deemed disqualified. These are similar to those prescribed in other Acts of this nature.

8. Where a disqualified landholder owns land within the jurisdiction of two Courts of Wards, the Chief Commissioner is empowered by section 9 to determine which Court shall assume superintendence.

9. Section 10 declares that, when once the Court of Wards has assumed the superintendence of the property of any person, or of his person and property, its authority shall not be questioned on the ground that the person was or is not a landholder, or was or is not a minor. This provision is new, but, as there will be titles dependent on the power of the Court, it appears to be desirable to prevent its action in taking charge of an estate from being questioned on either of these grounds.

10. Sections 11 and 12, which are new, deal with the appointment, remuneration and responsibility of managers, to whom the Court of Wards may, subject to rules to be made by the Chief Commissioner, delegate its functions in relation to the property of wards under the Act.

11. Section 13 empowers the Court of Wards to appoint guardians for the care of the persons of Government wards who are minors or of unsound mind, and of whose persons the Court of Wards has assumed superintendence; but it excepts the cases of married wards whose husbands are not minors and wards for whom testamentary guardians have been appointed. In the opinion of the Government of India, testamentary guardians should not be interfered with except by the Civil Court.

12. Section 14, which is taken from the Bengal Court of Wards Act, 1879, defines the general powers of the Court of Wards with regard to the property of Government wards, and with regard to the persons of such of them as are minors or persons of unsound mind of whose persons the Court has assumed the superintendence.

13. Section 15 is copied from the Bengal Act, and empowers the Court to provide for the custody and residence of Government wards who are minors or of unsound mind and whose persons are under its superintendence, and for the education of such of them as are minors.

14. Section 16 follows section 200 of the North-Western Provinces Land-revenue Act, 1873, as amended by section 21, Act VIII, 1879.

15. By section 17, which is new and corresponds with provisions in force in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the duty of managing a ward's property diligently and faithfully and for the benefit of the Government ward is expressly laid down.

16. By section 18 the Court of Wards is empowered to let a ward's property, and, with the sanction of the Chief Commissioner, to mortgage, sell or exchange it.

17. Sections 19, 20, 21 and 22 are taken from the Bengal Court of Wards Act, 1879, and prescribe the procedure which must be followed in the case of suits by or against Government wards, providing, respectively, that the manager or Court of Wards shall be a Government ward's next friend or guardian in suits by or against him (section 19), for the payment of costs decreed against the next friend or guardian out of the Government ward's property (section 20), that processes against a Government ward shall be served on his next friend or guardian (section 21), and that the authority of the Court of Wards shall as a rule be required in the case of suits brought on behalf of a Government ward (section 22).

18. Section 23 declares that a Government ward shall be incompetent to transfer or create any charge on, or interest in, his property or any part thereof, or to enter into any contract which may involve him in pecuniary liability, except for the purpose of making, with the sanction of the Court of Wards, a suitable settlement on his marriage.

19. Sections 24 and 25, which are both taken from the Bengal Court of Wards Act, 1879, respectively declare that the consent of the Chief Commissioner is necessary to adoptions by Government wards, and prescribe the procedure to be followed by the Court of Wards when the succession to any Government ward's property is disputed.

20. Under section 26 the Court of Wards is empowered, with the sanction of the Chief Commissioner, to withdraw its superintendence at any time from the person or property, or both, of a Government ward: and the Court is required to withdraw its superintendence when a person who has been made a ward on account of his being a minor or of unsound mind, or labouring under some physical defect or infirmity, attains his majority, or ceases to be of unsound mind, or becomes free from the defect or infirmity, as the case may be.

21. Section 27 provides for appeals, section 28 for the control of the Chief Commissioner, and section 29 prohibits the exercise of any discretion conferred on a Court of Wards, a Commissioner of a division or the Chief Commissioner being called in question in any Civil Court, whilst section 30 gives the Chief Commissioner power to make rules for all matters connected with the working of the Act.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 10th June, 1885, and was referred to a Select Committee :—

No. 12 OF 1885.

A Bill to amend the Burma Courts Act, 1875, and section 360 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Burma Courts Act, 1875, and section 360 of the Code of Civil Procedure; It is hereby enacted as follows :— XVII of 1875. XIV of 1882.

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Burma Courts Act, 1885; and

(2) It shall come into force at once.

Power to vest in local officers insolvency jurisdiction vested in Recorder in Moulmein, Akyab and Bassein.

2. (1) The Chief Commissioner of British Burma may, from time to time, by order notified in the official Gazette, direct that from a date to be therein specified, the jurisdiction vested in the Recorder within the towns of Moulmein, Akyab and Bassein by section 66 of the Burma Courts Act, 1875, shall be vested, as regards each or any of those towns, as follows :— XVII of 1875.

(a) in the Civil Judge of Moulmein within the town of Moulmein;

(b) in the Deputy Commissioner of Akyab within the town of Akyab;

(c) in the Deputy Commissioner of Bassein within the town of Bassein.

(2) While any such order is in force, the said section 66 shall, with respect to any town to which the order applies, have effect as if it referred to the officer in whom the jurisdiction is so vested instead of to the Recorder, and all cases pending at the date of the order shall be disposed of accordingly.

(3) Provided that nothing in this section shall prevent the Recorder from entertaining and disposing of in his own Court any case, whether pending at the date of the order or subsequently instituted, which, by reason of its importance or otherwise, may, in his opinion, be more conveniently so disposed of.

(4) The Chief Commissioner may, by order notified as aforesaid, cancel any order made under sub-section (1) as to all or any of the towns to which the order applies, but not so as to affect any proceedings pending at the date of the cancelling order.

Partial repeal of section 360 of Code of Civil Procedure.

3. The last paragraph of section 360 of the Code of Civil Procedure is hereby repealed. XIV of 1882.

Power to transfer cases from Court of Recorder to Court of Judicial Commissioner.

4. (1) The Chief Commissioner may, from time to time, transfer to the Court of the Judicial Commissioner any particular cases or particular classes of cases that may be pending in the Court of the Recorder.

(2) In the disposal of such cases the Judicial Commissioner shall administer the same law, follow the same procedure, exercise the same powers and use the same seal as would be administered, followed, exercised and used by the Recorder in like cases.

(3) Section 84 of the Burma Courts Act, 1875, shall apply to the Court of the Judicial Commissioner when disposing of such cases. XVII of 1875.

(4) All decrees, orders and sentences made or passed in such cases by the Judicial Commissioner shall, for the purposes of the law relating to appeals, references and revision, be deemed to be made or passed by the Recorder.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

WITHIN the towns of Moulmein, Akyab and Bassein the Recorder of Rangoon has the same jurisdiction with respect to insolvent debtors and their creditors as is exercisable with respect to insolvent debtors and their creditors by the High Court in Calcutta. As visits to those towns for the disposal of insolvency cases arising there occupy time which, owing to the increasing business of his Court, the Recorder can ill afford to spare, and as the cases themselves are not of great importance or difficulty, the Chief Commissioner has proposed, at the instance of the Recorder, that such insolvency jurisdiction as the Recorder of Rangoon possesses in Moulmein, Akyab and Bassein should, temporarily at least, be transferred to the Chief Civil Judges of those towns. The main object of this Bill (section 2) is to give effect to that proposal.

2. It is also proposed (section 3) to repeal the last paragraph of section 360 of the Code of Civil Procedure, which provides that nothing in Chapter XX (relating to insolvent judgment-debtors) shall apply in certain cases to any Court having jurisdiction in the towns of Rangoon, Moulmein, Akyab and Bassein. The Recorder of Rangoon states that this provision sometimes causes great hardship in the excepted cases, because under section 13 of the Statute 11 & 12 Vic., cap. 21, which regulates procedure in those cases, an interim order cannot be made for the protection of an insolvent from arrest until he has filed his schedule, and the preparation of the schedule may occupy some time.

3. By section 4 it is proposed to enable the Chief Commissioner to transfer cases from the Court of the Recorder to that of the Judicial Commissioner at times when there is special pressure of business in the former Court.

[Second publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 10th June, 1885, and was referred to a Select Committee :—

No. 11 OF 1885.

A Bill to amend the Indian Registration Act, 1877.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Indian Registration Act, 1877, in manner hereinafter appearing; It is hereby enacted as follows :— III of 1877.

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Indian Registration Act, 1885; and

(2) It shall come into force at once.

Amendment of sections 17 and 50 of Act III of 1877.

2. (1) After clause (f) of section 17 of the Indian Registration Act, 1877, the following clause shall be inserted, that is to say :— III of 1877.

"(ff) any debenture issued by any such company and not creating, declaring, assigning, limiting or extinguishing any right, title or interest to or in immoveable property except in so far as it entitles the holder to the security afforded by a registered instrument whereby the Company has mortgaged, conveyed or otherwise transferred the whole or part of its immoveable property or any interest therein to trustees upon trust for the benefit of the holders of such debentures, or".

(2) In the second paragraph of section 50 of the same Act, "(ff)," shall be inserted between "(f)" and "(g)".

3. (1) After clause (l) of section 17 of the same Act the following clause shall be added, that is to say :—

"(m) orders granting loans under the Agriculturists' Loans Act, 1884, and instruments for securing the repayment of loans made under that Act." XII of 1884.

(2) In the second paragraph of section 50, for the word and letter "and (l)" the letters and word "(l) and (m)" shall be substituted.

(3) In section 58 of the same Act, for the words "or a copy of a certificate under the Land Improvement Act, 1871, sent by the Collector to be registered," or, where the Land Improvement Loans Act, 1883, is in force, for the words "or a copy of an order under the Land Improvement Loans Act, 1883, sent by the Collector to be registered," there shall be substituted the following words, namely :— XXVI of 1871. XIX of 1883. XIX of 1883.

"or a copy sent to a registering officer under section 89".

(4) After the second paragraph of section 89 of the same Act the following paragraph shall be inserted, that is to say :—

"Every officer granting a loan under the Agriculturists' Loans Act, 1884, shall send a copy of any instrument whereby immoveable property is mortgaged for the purpose of securing the repayment of the loan, and, if any such property is mortgaged for the same purpose in the order granting the loan, a copy also of that order, to the registering officer within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the whole or any part of the property so mortgaged is situate, and such registering officer shall file the copy or copies, as the case may be, in his Book No. 1." XII of 1884.

Amendment of sections 90 and 91 of same Act.

4. (1) After clause (d) of section 90 of the same Act the following clause shall be inserted, that is to say :—

"(e) notices given under section 74, or section 76, of the Bombay Land-revenue Code, 1879, of relinquishment of occupancy by occupants, or of alienated land by holders of such land". Bom. Act V of 1879.

(2) In section 91, for the word and letter "and (c)" the letters and word "(c) and (e)" shall be substituted.

(3) The said Act shall be construed as if the amendments made in it by this section had been made at the time the Act came into force.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE objects of this Bill are three:—

(1) to except mortgage-debentures secured by a registered trust-deed from those provisions of the Indian Registration Act, 1877, which either require that such debentures shall be registered, or, where their registration is optional and they are not registered, give precedence over them, as regards the property on which they are secured, to any registered instrument relating to the same property;

(2) to place instruments whereby immoveable property is mortgaged as security for the repayment of loans under the Agriculturists' Loans Act, 1884, on the same footing, in regard to registration, as certificates or orders granting loans, and instruments of collateral security, under the Land Improvement Act, 1871, or, where the Land Improvement Loans Act, 1883, is in force, under that Act;

(3) to exempt from registration notices given under sections 74 and 76 of the Bombay Land-revenue Code, 1879, of relinquishment of occupancy by occupants and of alienated land by holders of such land.

2. As regards the first matter, it was represented to the Government of India in 1884 that the heavy expense and trouble entailed on the issue of mortgage-debentures by the joint operation of the Stamp Act and Registration Act practically prevented their being issued. The stamp-duty payable on such debentures has since been remitted, and it seems to the Government of India that, if the trust-deed by which such debentures are secured is registered, the debentures, provided they do not implicate any property beyond that comprised in the trust-deed, and do no more than give effect to the arrangement made by the trust-deed, may well be exempted from registration.

3. The second amendment proposed calls for no explanation. The third seems to be justified on the ground that there is, apart from the Registration Act, a complete official record of the surrenders in question, and that to require in addition that they should be registered under that Act would entail unnecessary trouble and expense on all concerned.

Amendment of sections 90 and 91 of same Act.

4. (1) After clause (d) of section 90 of the same Act the following clause shall be inserted, that is to say :—

"(e) notices given under section 74, or section 76, of the Bombay Land-revenue Code, 1879, of relinquishment of occupancy by occupants, or of alienated land by holders of such land". Bom. Act V of 1879.

(2) In section 91, for the word and letter "and (c)" the letters and word "(c) and (e)" shall be substituted.

(3) The said Act shall be construed as if the amendments made in it by this section had been made at the time the Act came into force.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE objects of this Bill are three:—

(1) to except mortgage-debentures secured by a registered trust-deed from those provisions of the Indian Registration Act, 1877, which either require that such debentures shall be registered, or, where their registration is optional and they are not registered, give precedence over them, as regards the property on which they are secured, to any registered instrument relating to the same property;

(2) to place instruments whereby immoveable property is mortgaged as security for the repayment of loans under the Agriculturists' Loans Act, 1884, on the same footing, in regard to registration, as certificates or orders granting loans, and instruments of collateral security, under the Land Improvement Act, 1871, or, where the Land Improvement Loans Act, 1883, is in force, under that Act;

(3) to exempt from registration notices given under sections 74 and 76 of the Bombay Land-revenue Code, 1879, of relinquishment of occupancy by occupants and of alienated land by holders of such land.

2. As regards the first matter, it was represented to the Government of India in 1884 that the heavy expense and trouble entailed on the issue of mortgage-debentures by the joint operation of the Stamp Act and Registration Act practically prevented their being issued. The stamp-duty payable on such debentures has since been remitted, and it seems to the Government of India that, if the trust-deed by which such debentures are secured is registered, the debentures, provided they do not implicate any property beyond that comprised in the trust-deed, and do no more than give effect to the arrangement made by the trust-deed, may well be exempted from registration.

3. The second amendment proposed calls for no explanation. The third seems to be justified on the ground that there is, apart from the Registration Act, a complete official record of the surrenders in question, and that to require in addition that they should be registered under that Act would entail unnecessary trouble and expense on all concerned.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 10th June, 1885, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 12 OF 1885.

A Bill to amend the Burma Courts Act, 1875, and section 360 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Burma Courts Act, 1875, and section 360 of the Code of Civil Procedure; It is hereby enacted as follows:— XVII of 1875. XIV of 1882.

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Burma Courts Act, 1885; and

(2) It shall come into force at once.

Power to vest in local officers insolvency jurisdiction vested in Recorder in Moulmein, Akyab and Bassein.

2. (1) The Chief Commissioner of British Burma may, from time to time, by order notified in the official Gazette, direct that, from a date to be therein specified, the jurisdiction vested in the Recorder within the towns of Moulmein, Akyab and Bassein by section 66 of the Burma Courts Act, 1875, shall be vested, as regards each or any of those towns, as follows:— XVII of 1875.

(a) in the Civil Judge of Moulmein within the town of Moulmein;

(b) in the Deputy Commissioner of Akyab within the town of Akyab;

(c) in the Deputy Commissioner of Bassein within the town of Bassein.

(2) While any such order is in force, the said section 66 shall, with respect to any town to which the order applies, have effect as if it referred to the officer in whom the jurisdiction is so vested instead of to the Recorder, and all cases pending at the date of the order shall be disposed of accordingly.

(3) Provided that nothing in this section shall prevent the Recorder from entertaining and disposing of in his own Court any case, whether pending at the date of the order or subsequently instituted, which, by reason of its importance or otherwise, may, in his opinion, be more conveniently so disposed of.

(4) The Chief Commissioner may, by order notified as aforesaid, cancel any order made under sub-section (1) as to all or any of the towns to which the order applies, but not so as to affect any proceedings pending at the date of the cancelling order.

Partial repeal of section 360 of Code of Civil Procedure.

3. The last paragraph of section 360 of the Code of Civil Procedure is hereby repealed. XIV of 1882.

Power to transfer cases from Court of Recorder to Court of Judicial Commissioner.

4. (1) The Chief Commissioner may, from time to time, transfer to the Court of the Judicial Commissioner any particular cases or particular classes of cases that may be pending in the Court of the Recorder.

(2) In the disposal of such cases the Judicial Commissioner shall administer the same law, follow the same procedure, exercise the same powers and use the same seal as would be administered, followed, exercised and used by the Recorder in like cases.

(3) Section 84 of the Burma Courts Act, 1875, shall apply to the Court of the Judicial Commissioner when disposing of such cases. XVII of 1875.

(4) All decrees, orders and sentences made or passed in such cases by the Judicial Commissioner shall, for the purposes of the law relating to appeals, references and revision, be deemed to be made or passed by the Recorder.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

WITHIN the towns of Moulmein, Akyab and Bassein the Recorder of Rangoon has the same jurisdiction with respect to insolvent debtors and their creditors as is exercisable with respect to insolvent debtors and their creditors by the High Court in Calcutta. As visits to those towns for the disposal of insolvency cases arising there occupy time which, owing to the increasing business of his Court, the Recorder can ill afford to spare, and as the cases themselves are not of great importance or difficulty, the Chief Commissioner has proposed, at the instance of the Recorder, that such insolvency jurisdiction as the Recorder of Rangoon possesses in Moulmein, Akyab and Bassein should, temporarily at least, be transferred to the Chief Civil Judges of those towns. The main object of this Bill (section 2) is to give effect to that proposal.

2. It is also proposed (section 3) to repeal the last paragraph of section 360 of the Code of Civil Procedure, which provides that nothing in Chapter XX (relating to insolvent judgment-debtors) shall apply in certain cases to any Court having jurisdiction in the towns of Rangoon, Moulmein, Akyab and Bassein. The Recorder of Rangoon states that this provision sometimes causes great hardship in the excepted cases, because under section 13 of the Statute 11 & 12 Vic., cap. 21, which regulates procedure in those cases, an interim order cannot be made for the protection of an insolvent from arrest until he has filed his schedule, and the preparation of the schedule may occupy some time.

3. By section 4 it is proposed to enable the Chief Commissioner to transfer cases from the Court of the Recorder to that of the Judicial Commissioner at times when there is special pressure of business in the former Court.

The 27th May, 1885.
