No. 10*I*.—Whereas it is expedient to consolidate and amend the rules relating to the offices of patel and patwari in the Hyderabad Assigned Districts:—His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General in Council is pleased to issue the following orders:—

1. (1) These orders may be called the Berar Patels and Patwaris Law, and are hereinafter referred to as "this law."

(2) This law extends to the territories known as the Hyderabad Assigned Districts; and

(3) It shall come into force on the first day of January, 1886, but not so as to affect anything done, or any proceedings commenced, before that day.

2. In this law, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context, the expression "village" means an area for which the office of patel or patwari has been constituted, and includes a group of villages and the sub-division of a village known as a khel where at the time of this law coming into force there is a separate patel for the sub-division.

3. (1) There shall not be more than one patel in a village if the duties of the office can be efficiently performed by one patel.

(2) If there are two or more patels in a village the Deputy Commissioner shall, subject to the rules made under this law, distribute the duties of the office among them in such manner as he deems fit.

4. The area comprised in the circle of a patwari at the time of this law coming into force may, with the sanction of the Resident, be varied for the purpose of securing compactness, but for no other purpose.

5. (1) When the office of patel or patwari becomes vacant in any village, except a village held on jagir or palampat tenure, the Deputy Commissioner shall, subject to the provisions of this law, and of the rules made under this law, appoint a person to fill the vacancy,

(2) The Deputy Commissioner shall cause notice of the day on which he will take the appointment into consideration to be given to persons known to be interested therein, and on that day, or on any subsequent day to which an adjournment may be made, shall hear and record any statements those persons may desire to make.

(3) The Deputy Commissioner shall in making the appointment have regard to the following matters, namely,—

(a) the law of inheritance applicable to the family by which the office is held,

(b) the custom which has regulated previous tenure of the office, and

(c) the physical, moral, mental, and educational fitness of the persons having any claim to the office, and shall not appoint a woman if a male relative of the late incumbent of the office exists.

(4) If there are two or more patels in a village, and there are two or more families or subdivisions of a family which have enjoyed the right of service, the patels will ordinarily be selected from different families or sub-divisions.

(5) The Deputy Commissioner shall, where the appointment he may make has been opposed, record at length his reasons for deciding in favour of the person whom he has appointed.

6 (1) In a village held on jagir or palampat tenure the jagirdar or palampatdar shall, on the occurrence of a vacancy, nominate the patel or patwari, and the Deputy Commissioner may appoint the nominee.

(2) If the jagirdar or palampatdar nominates a person not qualified to perform the duties of the office, or in the nomination disregards without sufficient reason the law of inheritance applicable to the family by which the office is held, or the custom which has regulated previous tenure of the office, the Deputy Commissioner shall refuse to appoint the nominee, and, if a proper person is not nominated within fifteen days from the date of the notice of the refusal being given to the jagirdar or palampatdar, shall himself appoint a person to the office as though the village were not held on jagir or palampat tenure.

7. (1) Patels and patwaris shall be appointed, subject to the condition of personal fitness, to hold office either for life, or for a term of not less than five or more than ten years.

(2) An appointment for a term of years shall not be made without the sanction of the Commissioner.

(3) Such an appointment may be sanctioned by the Commissioner in either of the following but in no other cases:—

(a) Where it has been the custom, from the commencement of British administration in the Hyderabad Assigned Districts, for two or more families, or two or more sub-divisions of the same family, to hold office in rotation for successive periods; or

(b) where conflicting claims of two or more families, or of two or more sub-divisions of a family, are so evenly balanced as to be irreconcilable with the exclusive choice of any one family or sub-division.

(4) An appointment for a term of years may be made in recognition of the claims either of the particular person appointed, or of the family or sub-division of a family to which the person appointed belongs. In the latter case, if, before the expiration of his term of office, the person appointed dies, or becomes physically or mentally unfit to discharge his duties, his successor shall, subject to the condition of personal fitness, be selected from the same family or sub-division of a family, and shall hold office until the person whom he has succeeded would regularly have gone out of office, and shall then go out of office.

8. (1) An adult patel or patwari who is temporarily unable to perform his duties personally may, with the sanction of the Deputy Commissioner, appoint an agent to perform them for a period not exceeding one year.

(2) The mother of a minor patel or patwari, or, if he has no mother, the person who stands in the relation of guardian to him, may, with the sanction of the Deputy Commissioner, appoint an agent to act for him till such time as he attains his majority.

(3) A woman who holds the office of patel or patwari may, with the sanction of the Deputy Commissioner, appoint an agent to perform the duties of her office.

(4) The agent shall be a member of the same family or sub-division of a family as his principal, unless the Commissioner sanctions the appointment of some other person.

(5) The agent shall have the same powers, and be subject to the same liabilities, as his principal would have and be subject to if he were personally performing the duties of his office.

9. (1) The emoluments appertaining to the office of patel or patwari shall be enjoyed solely by the person for the time being holding the office.

(2) If an agent is performing the duties of the office, his remuneration shall be regulated by arrangement between him and his principal or, as the case may be, between him and the mother of, or the person standing in the relation of guardian to, his principal.

(3) If there are two or more patels in a village, the Deputy Commissioner shall, subject to the rules made under this law, determine the proportions in which they shall share in the emoluments of the office.

10. The emoluments appertaining to the office of patel or patwari shall not be liable to attachment or sale in satisfaction of a decree or order of any Civil or Revenue Court.

11. Every assignment of, and every charge on, and every agreement to assign or charge, any emoluments appertaining to the office of patel or patwari shall be void.

12. (1) The Deputy Commissioner may suspend a patel or patwari from office during enquiry into alleged misconduct, and may punish him for misconduct or neglect in the performance of his duties by suspension from office for a period not exceeding six months, or by fine not exceeding one-fourth of the annual emoluments of his office.

(2) A fine inflicted under this section may be recovered by distraint and sale of the moveable property of the offender.

13. The Deputy Commissioner may suspend or dismiss an agent for any misconduct or neglect, and may, with the sanction of the Resident, dismiss from office a patel or patwari, in case of fraud, the wilful framing of incorrect records, habitual neglect of duty, or other grave misconduct.

14. When a patel or patwari, or an agent of a patel or patwari, is convicted by the Court of Session, or by the District Magistrate, of any offence in the discharge of his official duties, the Resident may direct that any title which the family of the patel or patwari who has been convicted, or whose agent has been convicted, may have to the office of patel or patwari, as the case may be, shall be forfeited, either temporarily or permanently, as the Resident deems fit.

15. Before passing an order for the suspension or dismissal of a patel, patwari or agent under section 12 or section 13, the Deputy Commissioner shall give him an opportunity of explaining the matters alleged against him and shall record any statement he may desire to make.

16. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, a vacancy caused by the suspension or dismissal of a patel or patwari may, by order of the Deputy Commissioner, be filled for a period not exceeding six months in the case of suspension, or five years in the case of dismissal, without regard to the law of inheritance applicable to the family by which the office is held or to the custom which has regulated previous tenure of the office.

17. (1) An appeal shall lie to the Commissioner from any order passed under this law by a Deputy Commissioner.

(2) An appeal shall lie to the Resident from an appellate order of the Commissioner which reverses or modifies an order of the Deputy Commissioner.

(3) An appeal shall not be received by the Commissioner after the expiration of sixty days, or by the Resident after the expiration of ninety days, from the date of the order complained of.

(4) The periods mentioned in sub-section (3) shall be computed in the manner prescribed in the Indian Limitation Act, 1877.

18. The Resident may from time to time call for and examine the record of any proceedings held under this law, and pass thereon any order consistent with this law which he thinks fit.

19. Orders passed by the Resident under this law shall be final.

20. A Civil Court shall not exercise jurisdiction with respect to any claim by any person to the office of patel or patwari, or to any emolument appertaining to the office, or on account of any injury caused by exclusion from the office:

Provided that nothing in this section shall be held to prohibit a Civil Court from entertaining a suit for a decree declaratory of social rights appertaining to any person by reason of his connection with a family by which the office of pate; or patwari is held.

21. The Resident may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this law—

(a) prescribing the educational qualifications of persons to be appointed patels or patwaris;

(b) defining and distributing the duties of patels, and prescribing the duties of patwaris;

(c) regulating the division of emoluments between patels, where there are two patels in a village, and the distribution of emoluments among patels, where there are more than two patels in a village;

(d) prescribing the mode of service of notices under this law;

(e) regulating the procedure of the Commissioner and of Deputy Commissioners under this law; and

(f) generally, for the guidance of the Commissioner and of Deputy Commissioners in all matters connected with the carrying out of this law.

The officer will not be entitled by reason of such deductions to resume, on the termination of his re-employment, any portion of the amount of pension commuted.

(2) If the re-employment of the officer commenced on, or before, the 31st of July 1883, his salary will be subject to deductions as above; but—

(4) An officer under Rule 2 will be allowed on the termination of his re-employment to resume the amount of pension commuted, provided that the full capital value, as described in Rule 3, has been repaid by the deductions from his salary. If such capital value has not been repaid in full when the re-employment ceases, the amount of pension commuted may be resumed on the officer paying up the balance, and with effect from the date on which he pays such balance.

(5) An Indian Navy pensioner re-employed on or before the 31st of July 1883, from whose salary the deductions prescribed in Rule 1 have not been regularly made during the whole period of his re-employment, is not entitled to the concessions specified in the subsequent rules, and is subject to deductions under Rule 1 from the date on which it is known that such deductions are not being made, or such earlier date as may be determined by the Government of India.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

It having been found necessary to have recourse to legislation for the purpose of increasing the public revenues, it has been decided to extend the existing License Tax to offices, employments and professions, and, generally, to make liable to assessment all incomes derived from sources other than agriculture.

The existing License Tax Acts are repealed and a single Act for all India is substituted.

The rate of the tax has been slightly raised, and the area of its incidence has been, as above stated, extended; but the principles of the License Tax are closely followed in the case of annual incomes below Rs. 2,000, and the procedure and machinery for assessment and collection are maintained in the case of all incomes so far as is consistent with the altered conditions of the tax.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

It having been found necessary to have recourse to legislation for the purpose of increasing the public revenues, it has been decided to extend the existing License Tax to offices, employments and professions, and, generally, to make liable to assessment all incomes derived from sources other than agriculture.

The existing License Tax Acts are repealed and a single Act for all India is substituted.

The rate of the tax has been slightly raised, and the area of its incidence has been, as above stated, extended; but the principles of the License Tax are closely followed in the case of annual incomes below Rs. 2,000, and the procedure and machinery for assessment and collection are maintained in the case of all incomes so far as is consistent with the altered conditions of the tax.

SAVINGS BANKS.

Calcutta, the 4th January 1886.

No. 33.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Department of Finance and Commerce.

The Governor-General in Council has had for some time under consideration the expediency of continuing, in the same place and for the same purpose, the dual system of the District and the Post Office Savings Banks. His Excellency in Council has now decided that the District and the Post Office Savings Banks should be amalgamated, and that the Post Office organisation being more widely spread and more convenient for the public than the Treasury system, the District Savings Banks should be closed and their accounts transferred to the Post Office Savings Banks. The Government District Savings Banks will accordingly be closed, with effect from the 1st April 1886. Any balances in the District Savings Banks on the date of closing will be transferred to the Post Office Savings Banks. From the date of the receipt of the present orders no new accounts should be opened in any District Savings Bank. Any person wishing to open an account in a District Savings Bank should be directed to apply to a Post Office Savings Bank. Depositors having accounts in District Savings Banks can, in the interval which will elapse before those Banks are closed, apply for the transfer of their accounts to some Post Office Savings Bank under the rules which are now in force for such transfers. The Comptroller and Auditor General and the Director General of the Post Office are authorised to take measures calculated to encourage voluntary transfers of the above nature.

ORDERED, that the Resolution be communicated to the Comptroller and Auditor General and the Director General of the Post Office of India for information and for the issue of further necessary orders.

Ordered also, that the Resolution be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

SAVINGS BANKS.

Calcutta, the 8th January 1886.

No. 110.

ORDER—By the Government of India, Department of Finance and Commerce.

Ordered that the Report and Statements be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

No. 205, dated the 29th December, 1885.

From—The Officiating Comptroller and Auditor General,
To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Finance and Commerce.

I have the honour to submit my report on District and Railway Savings Banks for the year 1884-85, and I have included in it some particulars respecting the Savings Banks in the Madras and Bombay Presidencies, the Presidency Savings Bank, Calcutta, and the Military and Post-Office Banks. Opportunity has been taken to amplify the statement of deposits, withdrawals and balances so as to include the transactions of all these Banks as far as available, and to substitute the figures of the finance accounts for those given in previous reports, which being prepared before the finance accounts were complete, did not occasionally contain the latest corrections; the differences, however, were never of any importance.

2. No changes were made during the year in the rules or the management of these Savings Banks, except as regards the purchase and sale of Government Securities. Such operations were formerly undertaken for persons, whether depositors or not, of moderate income, and who belonged to a class that does not ordinarily have transactions with bankers. These restrictions have for the present been removed, and any person may now employ the Savings Bank for the purposes of such investment, but it is intended to hereafter confine this business to bonâ fide Savings Bank depositors so as to avoid any possible competition with private Agencies.

3. I enclose the usual Statements marked I to VI, and the principal facts contained in them may be summarised as follows:—On the 31st March last, there were 5,859 Government Savings Banks in India, including Berar, and they contained 243,037 deposit accounts, which received ₹15,80,372 as interest, and possessed balances aggregating ₹4,70,06,192. In addition to these balances the depositors in the District, Railway, Calcutta Presidency and Post Office Banks held in my custody Government promissory notes amounting to ₹2,09,700. These figures were distributed as follows among the various classes of Banks:—

Description of Banks.	Number of Banks.	Number of depositors.	Interest earned.	Bank Balances.	Nominal amount of Government Promissory Notes.
District Banks	180	23,695	2,71,584	77,38,962	60,100
Railway Banks	12	8,972	41,258	13,18,620	4,700
Madras Banks	1	11,120	92,565	27,54,460	Not reported.
Bombay Banks	1	48,538	6,31,869	1,74,28,470
Presidency Bank, Calcutta	1	12,016	1,01,435	28,75,730	13,600
Military Banks	165	16,100	66,454	14,65,790	...
Post Office Banks	5,499	1,22,599	3,75,207	1,34,24,160	1,31,300

4. The net result of the year's operations may be stated as follows:—

	Number of Banks.		Number of Accounts.		Bank Balances.		Government Promissory Notes Balances.		Average Depositor's Balance.
	Increase.	Decrease.	Increase.	Decrease.	Increase.	Decrease.	Increase.	Decrease.	Increase.	Decrease.
					₹	₹	₹	₹	₹	₹
District Banks	...	...	1,034	...	2,54,132	...	...	7,500	...	20
Railway Banks	1	...	2,347	...	3,06,770	...	700	...	...	6
Madras Banks	...	...	...	168	...	67,380	Not reported.		...	1
Bombay Banks	...	...	2,415		3,48,980				...	11
Presidency Bank, Calcutta	...	...	104	...	...	68,190	100	...	...	8
Military Banks	5	...	...	4,347	35,650	...	...	...	77	...
TOTAL	306	...	43,651	4,515	68,09,592	1,35,570	93,000	7,500	...	...

The chief increase is, as might be expected, in the Post Office Savings Banks; and it is rather surprising that with their competition the District Banks and those in the Bombay Presidency should show an increase, while in Calcutta and in the Madras Presidency the decrease is but small. The increase in the District Banks is, however, less than the amount credited as interest, the actual withdrawals (₹33,50,150) having exceeded the deposits (₹33,29,125). The Railway Banks received a large addition when the State took over the Eastern Bengal Railway. No explanations have been given respecting the Madras, Bombay, and Military Banks; but with reference to the Presidency Bank, Calcutta, the Secretary and Teasurer, Bank of Bengal, writes, that since the limit of deposit and the rate of interest were altered in 1881, the balances in the Bank have gradually diminished, while the number of accounts has risen from 10,360 in that year to 12,016 in March last. This is satisfactory as showing that the accounts are more in the small deposits for which the system is intended, and confirming the view taken that the liberal terms given before attracted mere investors.

5. It may be interesting to the various Local Governments and Administrations to see the nature and extent of the Savings Bank deposits in their respective Provinces, and I have accordingly compiled an additional statement, No. VII, this year, which gives these particulars. I have combined in it the figures of the Post Office and District Banks, and have also included the Calcutta Savings Bank in the column for Bengal.

6. I have checked my Savings Bank accounts with those of Provincial Accountants General, and have settled the differences with the exceptions of trifling miscalculations of interest, altogether less than two rupees, which are in course of adjustment.

SEPARATE REVENUE.

ASSESSED TAXES.

No. 593.

The 5th February 1886.

In exercise of the powers conferred upon him by Act II of 1886, and of all other powers enabling him in this behalf, the Honourable the President in Council is pleased to make the following rules under the said Act:—

1. The time within which amounts deducted from salary, annuity, pension, or gratuity paid by a local authority under section 8, sub-section (1), of the Act must be paid to the credit of the Government of India is fixed at one week from the date of payment of the salary, pension, annuity, or gratuity. The payment to the credit of the Government shall be made by remitting the amount to the Collector with a statement giving the following particulars for each person from whom the tax has been realised:—

(1) Name.
(2) Period for which the salary has been paid.
(3) Amount of salary paid.
(4) Amount of tax.

2. The return required by section 10 of the Act shall be in Form A hereto appended.

3. Any sums, such as payments to regimental mess or band funds or the like, compulsorily stopped from salary by the orders, or with the approval, of Government, shall be deducted from the salary previous to assessment.

A portion of salary withheld in pursuance of an order of a Court is not a sum compulsorily stopped from salary within the meaning of this rule.

4. A deduction made from the amount of salary, pension, or annuity liable to assessment on account of a payment made to a life insurance company must be supported by the receipt of the insurance company for the payment and a copy thereof. When the deduction is claimed by a servant of the Government, or of a local authority, the officer paying the salary, pension, or annuity will compare the original receipt with the copy, return the original, and attach the copy to the salary, pension or annuity bill if the payee is a Government servant, and to the statement forwarded with the amount of the tax realised under Rule 1, if the payee is a servant of a local authority.

Where the Collector is satisfied that the original receipt of the insurance company cannot be produced without an amount of delay, expense, or inconvenience which, under the circumstances of the case, would be unreasonable, he may accept such other proof of payment of the premium as he may deem sufficient.

5. The amounts exempted from assessment by section 5, sub-section (1), clause (g) of the Act and by rule 4 above shall not be deducted from income for the purpeso of determining whether the income is liable to the tax, or of determining therate at which the tax shall be levied.

6. The amount to be assessed under section 24, sub-section (1), of the Act on account of a building occupied by the owner thereof shall not in any case exceed 10 per cent. of the aggregate income of the owner derived from all sources. It will not, however, be understood from this that a maximum of 10 per cent. of the aggregate income of the owner is to be considered equivalent to the letting-value of his house. The letting-value will, in all cases, be ascertained on the best data available, in view of the circumstances of the locality in which the house is situated.

7. Salaries, annuities, and pensions paid in April 1886, though on account of March 1886, are liable to the tax.

8. After the close of the year of assessment each Accountant General or other auditing officer shall submit Return No. I in the form hereto appended to such officer as the Local Government may direct.

9. The certificates referred to in the second column of Part III of Schedule II of the Act shall be in Form B or in Form C, hereto appended.

10. Any claim under section 5, sub-section (1), clause (e) of the Act to exemption from the levy of the tax on the interest of securities employed solely for religious or public charitable purposes within the meaning of that clause must be supported by a certificate from the Collector, which shall be in Form D hereto appended.

11. In the case of securities, the interest on which is payable by the Government of India, the amount deducted on account of the tax under section 13, sub-section (1) of the Act shall be paid to the credit of the Government on the same day as the payment of the interest is made.

12. In the case of securities, the interest on which is not payable by the Government of India, the amount so deducted shall be paid to the credit of the Government within one week from the date on which interest is paid. The person deducting the amount should pay it to the credit of the Government by remitting the amount to the Collector with a statement showing the following particulars:—

(1) Name of owner.
(2) Description of security.
(3) Number of ,,
(4) Date of ,,
(5) Amount of ,,
(6) Period for which interest is drawn.
(7) Amount of interest.
(8) Amount of tax.

13. Interest on securities belonging to Service Funds shall not be assessed.

14. After the close of the year of assessment each Accountant General and Comptroller shall submit Return No. II in the form hereto appended to such officer as the Local Government may direct.

15. In calculating the amount of tax payable the amount due on a fraction of a rupee shall ben eglected. Thus the tax to be realised on a monthly salary of ₹166-10-8 is ₹4-5-2 only.

16. All public servants are forbidden to make public or disclose, except for the purpose of the working of Act II of 1886, any information contained in documents delivered or produced with respect to assessments under Part IV of the said Act, and any public servant committing a breach of this rule shall be deemed to have committed an offence under section 166 of the Indian Penal Code.

17. Power to make further rules is hereby delegated to the several Local Governments.

18. Each Local Government will prescribe forms of registers to be maintained by Collectors and others for the purpose of showing the demand and collections of the tax, the various classes of incomes assessed, and the working of the several provisions of the Act.

19. After the close of the year of assessment each Local Government will submit to the Government of India in the Financial Department a report on the working of the Act.

20. The following returns in the forms hereto appended will be submitted with that report:—

prescribed. This power to make rules was reserved in order to prevent any abuse of the exemption by changing the designation of a portion of salary or otherwise. The power need not be exercised unless it appears that attempts to abuse the exemption are being made.

8. The only condition or restriction prescribed under the power conveyed by section 5 (1) (g) of the Act is that contained in rule 5, providing that the exemptions from assessment of fund subscriptions and life insurance payments shall not be taken into account in deciding whether the income is liable to the tax or in determining the rate at which the tax is leviable.

9. It will be observed that salaries, annuities, and pensions paid in April 1886 are liable to the tax even if they are due in respect of preceding months. Payment in advance does not extinguish this liability.

10. The Rules prescribe no conditions under section 9 (2) of the Act regarding arrangements for the collection of the tax from their employés by non-official employers. This proviso was inserted in the Act in order that employers may be induced by the remission or return of a small portion of the tax, and in order to save their employés from avoidable trouble, to undertake the collection of the tax and thus relieve Collectors of the difficulty of dealing directly with a large number of assessees. The intention should be explained to Collectors with instructions that they should endeavour to make such arrangements whenever it may appear feasible; but it will, of course, be understood that no pressure is to be put upon employers to fall into an arrangement under this section.

11. It will be observed that the Rules contain no provision for payment by instalments of the tax leviable under Part IV. of the second Schedule. I am to explain that this is left by the President in Council to the discretion of the Government of / your discretion; and that it is the desire of the Government of India that every reasonable facility should be given in the matter, the maximum number of instalments, however, in no case exceeding four.

12. No rules have been prescribed regarding composition for the tax under section 31 of the Act. The Government of India trusts that the principle of composition may be extensively adopted, as it is evidently calculated to obviate friction and trouble in assessment, and the President in Council will be glad to have as early an expression as may be convenient of the opinion of the Government of / your opinion whether any such rules need be made by the Government of India, or whether they should be left to the Local Government concerned, and in the former case what rules the Government of / you propose proposes.

13. The number of companies being few, and it being desirable to have fuller information regarding the assessment of companies than is contained in the general published return, the President in Council requests that the Government of / you will forward, each year, separately from the Returns prescribed in the Rules, a return showing the designation and assessment of every company in the territories subject to the control of the Government of / your control. This return should not be published.

14. I am also to invite suggestions for the improvement of the classification adopted in Return No. V. These suggestions should if possible reach the Government of India not later than the end of December next, in order that, if any change in the form of the Return is decided on, it may be prescribed in time for adoption in the Reports of 1886-87. The experience gained in making the assessments under the Act may enable Local Governments to propose a preferable classification.

15. The reports on the working of the Act in 1886-87 should be specially full and complete.

ORDERED, that a copy of the above letter be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

NOTIFICATIONS.

ACCOUNTS AND FINANCE
MISCELLANEOUS.

Calcutta, the 10th February 1886.

No. 649.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Department of Finance and Commerce.

It has been determined to appoint a Committee for the purpose of examining expenditure, whether Imperial or Provincial, and reporting to the Government, within as brief a period as may be possible, what economies are therein practicable. It is desirable that the Committee should commence its labours so soon as its members can be conveniently brought together, and it is expected that early in the ensuing cold weather they will be able to submit their recommendations to the Government.

2. The question of expenditure has, within recent years, been on more than one occasion pressed upon the attention of the Government of India. On the one hand, it has been urged that since the commencement of the present decade, civil expenditure has very largely increased; on the other hand, the causes which have led to increase of expenditure have been fully explained by the Government of India in its communications with Her Majesty's Secretary of State. The documents relating to this matter will, in the course of their enquiry, be laid before the Committee; but the Committee will not fail to observe that, apart from the discussions which have hitherto arisen on the subject, the circumstances in which the Government now finds itself placed compel it to examine with renewed and anxious attention the possibilities of such an effective decrease in its expenditure as shall, in a sensible degree, contribute to relieve it of the financial embarrassments with which it is threatened. The time is opportune for such an enquiry. The Provincial contracts expire at the close of the ensuing financial year. The Government is engaged in the prosecution of a large scheme of public works, having for their object the protection of the country against famine or possible dangers upon its frontiers, for the rapid prosecution of which the utmost economy is required in other branches of the administration. The uncertainty which prevails regarding the future relative value of gold and silver compels the Government to contract, so far as is possible, expenditure which, in other circumstances, may have been desirable or necessary, but which at present it can no longer maintain.

3. The Committee, while turning their immediate attention to the revision of the arrangements now in force between the Imperial and the Provincial Governments, will extend their enquiries to all departments of the Government, whether Imperial or Provincial. They will find that the labours of the Military Commission have led to a series of recommendations, some of which have been put into execution, while others await decision. Although it is not contemplated that they should travel over the ground which the Military Commission examined, they will not, on that account, decline to consider whether greater economy cannot be attained in connection with the working of the several branches of the military administration. They will review so much of the proposals for military economy as have been already approved by the Government of India, but have not hitherto been carried out, and will report their views as to the most suitable steps to be taken in order that effect should be given to such proposals. Similarly, the Committee will study the enquiries which have been made and the measures which have been adopted in recent years with a view to reform or to the introduction of greater economy into the several departments of the Government. It is not desired that the Committee should propose any material modification in arrangements which have in recent years been carried out after mature deliberation under the sanction of the Secretary of State, but they will be expected to pursue a similar line of enquiry so far as regards departments or branches of the administration with which the changes effected in late years have not definitely dealt, or in which the reforms hitherto effected may prove to have failed to secure the economy aimed at. Bearing in mind the heavy cost to which the Government of India is committed in regard to Imperial railways and military works, the expenditure, whether Provincial or Imperial, under other heads of the Public Works, must be scrutinised with especial care.

4. Finally, the Committee should examine thoroughly the subject of the home charges, and specially the report presented to the Government of India in 1884 by Colonel Conway-Gordon, R.E., and should work out and submit such recommendations in regard to economies as their examination may suggest to them. They will, at the same time, turn their attention to the division of the military charges between Her Majesty's Government and the Government of India, and will advise the Government of India whether the present distribution of these charges seems to call for revision, and if so, what are their practical recommendations on the subject.

5. The Government of India in the Financial Department will issue to the Committee the further instructions necessary for their guidance, the method to be pursued by them, and the procedure of enquiry, and will cause them to be furnished with all necessary information. The Committee will keep the Government of India in the Financial Department regularly informed of the progress of its enquiries, and will carry out its labours in close communication with that Department.

6. His Excellency the Governor General in Council is pleased to nominate the following gentlemen to be Members of the Committee:—

MR. C. A. ELLIOTT, C.S.I., LL.B., C.S., Chief Commissioner of Assam. } President.

HON'BLE MR. JUSTICE CUNNINGHAM.

MR. H. W. BLISS, C.S., Commissioner of Salt and Abkari Revenue, Madras Presidency.

MR. ROBERT HARDIE, Secretary and Treasurer, Bank of Bengal.

With the above-named General Members of the Committee His Excellency will be prepared to associate, on the recommendation of each Local Government or Administration, one or at most two Local Members, who will sit with the General Members when they visit the locality, and correspond with them at other times.

ORDER.—Ordered, that a copy of the above Resolution be communicated to all Departments of the Government of India; to all Local Governments and Administrations; to the Heads of Departments subordinate to the Department of Finance and Commerce; to the Comptroller and Auditor General, to all

INLAND RULES.

Cancel the present rule 37, viz.:—

*Prepayment of Reply.

RULE 37.—The sender of a message can prepay a reply, depositing for this purpose a sum not less than eight annas and not more than two rupees, and not including any fraction of an anna, but the message to which a reply is prepaid must not be addressed to more than one person. On depositing the corresponding sum, the sender can add (free) the words "Reply paid" or "Answer paid" and the amount to which he wishes the reply to be limited. The terminal station pays to the receiver in telegraph or postage stamps, or in money, the amount prepaid, leaving it to him to send his answers how and when and to what address he pleases, or not to send one at all. The reply, if sent, is considered in every respect as a fresh message.

When a message to which a reply is prepaid is addressed to a station where there is no Telegraph Office, the amount is forwarded to destination from the nearest Government Telegraph Office in postage stamps in an insured cover, the sender must accordingly prepay the postal insurance fee (two annas).

Should it be impossible to effect delivery of a "Reply paid" message, the terminal station sends a service telegram to that effect to the sender, and the amount deposited will be refunded on application being made to the Telegraph Check Office, Calcutta.

It should be distinctly understood that it is not compulsory on the addressee to send a reply. The duty of the terminal station consists simply in paying to him in stamps or in money the amount prepaid, leaving him at liberty to do what he pleases with it.

The reply, if sent, must be accompanied by the pass.

When a message to which a reply is prepaid is addressed to a station where there is no Telegraph Office, the message and "pass" are forwarded to destination from the nearest Government Telegraph Office by ordinary Post, free of charge.

FOREIGN RULES.

Cancel the present rule 21, viz.:—

RULE 21.—The sender of a message can prepay the reply which he requests his correspondent to send. The amount deposited for the reply must not exceed the cost of an ordinary telegram of thirty words by the same route.

* The sender of a State message addressed to a Government official may not prepay a reply. And in the case of a State message addressed to other than a Government official, any sum deposited by the sender under this rule must be intended for no other purpose than to cover the cost of a return telegram.

†Telegraphic money orders up to a maximum value of R150 can be obtained at all Postal Money Order Offices (see Postal Guide).

In this case he must write before the address of the message and pay for the instruction "Reponse payée or R. P." Should the number of words for which a reply is prepaid be greater or less than ten, the sender must add to the instruction the number of words thus—"R. P. 15" (two words) or "Reponse payée 15" (three words).

When a reply is prepaid the station of delivery furnishes the addressee with an order current for six weeks only, authorizing the free despatch of a message to any destination up to the amount prepaid. In India the amount is always paid to the addressee in cash or telegraph stamps, and the reply, when tendered, is considered and treated as any other message.

If the original message cannot be delivered within eight days, or if the receiver formally refuses the money, stamps or order for the reply, the station of delivery informs the sender of it by a telegram, which indicates the cause of non-delivery and takes the place of the reply.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Department of Finance and Commerce.

Read the following—

No. 1250, dated 6th April 1885.

From—C. MACAULAY, Esq., Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal, Financial Department,
To—The Secy. to the Govt. of India, DEPT. OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

Letter from Board of Revenue, No. 83 B., dated 8th February 1884, and enclosures.
Government letter to Board, No. 1289, dated 2nd April 1884.
Letter from Board, No. 638½ B, dated 20th September 1884, and enclosures.

I am directed to submit, for the information of the Government of India, and for such action as may be necessary, the papers noted in the margin, which relate to the duties leviable under the Indian Stamp Act I. of 1879 upon policies of insurance.

2. In the latter part of 1883, a memorial was presented to the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces, by a number of Calcutta firms engaged in insurance business, in which it was represented that the provisions of the Stamp Act relating to policies of insurance had operated in practice in a manner not anticipated by the Legislature, and it was prayed that the law might be amended accordingly. The points regarding which exception was taken were two. In the first place, it was represented that the existing law takes no account of the duration of policies of insurance, the duty leviable being calculated with regard to the amount of the policy only, and being the same whether the policy runs for a year or for a few days only. Thus, in the case of an insurance for one year for a lakh of rupees on (say) piece-goods, the premium payable would be ₹250, and the stamp duty ₹37-8. If the insurance were for one month only, the premium would be only ₹62-8, but the stamp duty would still be ₹37-8. Since, therefore, a policy which runs for a short period is manifestly less valuable than one which runs for a longer term, it was inequitable (the memorialists urged) to tax them both at the same rate. In the second place, it was pointed out that the law makes no distinction between original insurances and re-insurances. It is the custom of the business to distribute all large risks among two or more offices. "The office by whom the insurance has been secured issues a policy to the assured covering the entire risk, and obtains one or more re-insurance policies from the office or offices with whom it divides the insurance. On the original risk of, say, one lakh against fire, the stamp duty of ₹37-8 would of necessity be paid. On re-insuring, a proportionate duty would again be paid on the amount of re-insurance. To the extent of the re-insurance double duty would thus be paid." This result, it was thought, was not foreseen or intended by the Legislature. The memorializing firms therefore prayed that the Government of India might be moved to assimilate the Indian Stamp law with the existing English law, "by fixing one uniform duty on all insurances and re-insurances (other than life and marine insurances)."

3. In forwarding the memorial to Government, the Board of Revenue observed that the subject was one which should receive full and careful consideration when any revision of the Indian Stamp Act took place. "The memorialists have, the Board are of opinion, shown that sufficient grounds exist for a reconsideration of the provisions of the existing law. The Board, whilst maintaining the principle of an ad valorem stamp duty, would alter the law so as to allow the duration of risk in policies other than life assurances to be taken into consideration. They are also of opinion that some modification should be made in respect of the stamp duty on sub-insurances."

4. It appeared to the Lieutenant-Governor that more detailed information than that supplied by the Board was required on the points raised in the memorial before the case could properly be laid before the Government of India, and he accordingly caused the Board to be addressed in my letter No. 1229, dated the 2nd April 1884. It was suggested that, as Insurance Companies in fixing the amount of the premium payable on a policy take the duration of the insurance into account, one element of inequality, of which the memorialists had complained, might be removed if the stamp duty were made proportionate, not to the amount of the policy, but to the amount of the premium. With regard to re-insurances, it was stated that in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, there was same show of reason in the contention of the memorialists that it was inequitable, when duty had once been paid on an original insurance, to impose it afresh whenever a re-insurance was effected, but that Sir Rivers Thompson desired to be more fully informed of the existing practice in this respect. The attention of the Board was at the same time directed to the point whether some duty should not properly be levied on the renewal of a policy of insurance, the original term of which had expired. It has not hitherto been the practice to levy any duty on renewals, but it seemed open to question whether this exemption was justifiable and should be maintained.

5. The Board of Revenue have now submitted their report upon all the questions alluded to above, and it forms, with its annexures, one of the enclosures of this letter. They have caused the whole question to be very carefully investigated by the Collector of Calcutta, who has placed himself in communication with the principal Insurance Companies in Calcutta, and whose report contains a mass of interesting and reliable information on the subject. It will be seen that the Board are of opinion that no modification is required in those provisions of the law which relate to the stamp duty on life and marine insurances. There are, it is true, some passages in the memorial (such for instance as paragraph 9) which appear to indicate dissatisfaction with the duty leviable on marine insurances; but the specific request with which the memorial culminates, and which it is stated will meet the justice of the case, expressly excludes life and marine insurances; and in view of the facts now stated by the Board, the Lieutenant-Governor is of opinion that no occasion has arisen to consider the question of the stamp duty on other than policies of insurance against fire. With regard to this class of insurances, the questions for consideration are two. The first of these relates to the duty on re-insurances; the second deals with the advisability of making the duty proportionate to the duration of the insurance, together with the allied question of the levy of duty on renewals.

6. The nature of the transactions which are known as re-insurances has been fully described in the memorial and in the report of the Collector of Calcutta. They are the instruments by which one Insurance Company having accepted a large risk is enabled to distribute a portion of it among other Companies. It is manifest that transactions of this kind stand on quite a different footing from insurances proper, such as are effected between the general public and the Insurance Companies, and it is clear that the effect of the present practice is that all insurances for large sums pay double duty on the portions re-insured, i.e., on the greater part of their total amounts. This result, it seems to the Lieutenant-Governor, was not contemplated by the legislature, which was probably not fully informed of the custom prevailing in the business, and it seems to Sir Rivers Thompson to constitute a legitimate grievance which the memorialists may reasonably claim to have removed. Mr. Sterndale has suggested that "the first insurance and the re-insurance are in their characters analogous to the class of instruments referred to in section 6 of the Indian Stamp Act, where it is laid down that where more than one instrument is required to complete a transaction (in the case of any sale, lease, mortgage, or settlement), the principal instrument only shall be chargeable with the duty prescribed for the conveyance, lease, mortgage, or settlement, and each of the other instruments shall be chargeable with a duty of ₹1, instead of the duty (if any) prescribed for it in that schedule." Mr. Sterndale accordingly proposes that each re-insurance should be held to be part of the original transaction, and as such be liable to a duty of ₹1 only, irrespective of the amount. The Board of Revenue apparently concur in this view, and they recommend the adoption of a uniform duty of ₹1 on all re-insurances, whatever the amount involved. It appears to the Lieutenant-Governor, however, that policies of re-insurance are not the class of instrument contemplated by section 6. It cannot fairly be said that they are "required to complete a transaction," for the original transaction, viz., the insurance effected by the assured with the primary company, is complete in itself, so far as the contracting parties are concerned; and any re-insurances which may subsequently be effected by the primary company for its own protection are strictly independent of, although arising out of, the original transaction. Sir Rivers Thompson has, therefore, no doubt that, as the law now stands, policies of re-insurances cannot claim to be chargeable with a duty of ₹1 only under section 6 of the Act. At the same time, however, as already stated, the effect of the custom is to enhance the stamp duty chargeable upon all insurances of large amount by from 25 per cent. to 80 per cent, and the Lieutenant-Governor has no doubt that the duty directly imposed by the Act being already sufficiently heavy, this is felt to be oppressive, and that the result is not in accordance with the real intention of the legislature. On these grounds Sir Rivers Thompson desires to support the proposal made by the Board, and he would recommend that the duty on policies of re-insurances should be declared to be subject to a maximum of R1. It appears to be within the competence of the Governor General in Council to effect this change without legislation by an order published in the Calcutta Gazette under section 8 of the Act.

7. Turning now to the second of the two questions indicated above, viz, whether it is advisable to take the operation of an insurance into account in calculating the amount of stamp duty, I am to observe that there appear to be insuperable practical objections to the suggestion that the duty should be made proportionate to the amount of the premium, instead of to the sum insured. For, although the duration of the insurance is a factor in the determination of the premium, it is only one out of several factors. Were the stamp duty made proportionate to the premium, it would vary not only according to the amount of the sum insured and to the duration of the insurance which is reasonable, but also according to the degree of risk. Degrees of risk vary to such an extent that, other things being equal, the premium payable on the highest degrees is 10 or 12 times that payable on the lowest degrees. If, therefore, the stamp duty were made proportionate to the premium, it would fluctuate in the same manner, and would press with greater severity on the highly rated risks, which already pay heavier premia and are least able to bear it. No uniform percentage could fail, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, to be either too high for high risks, or too low for low risks. This plan therefore falls to the ground.

8. In lieu of it the Board have made the following recommendations, viz., (1) that the duty should be fixed according to a graduated scale dependent on the amount of the policy; (2) that the duty on insurances running for periods of less than one year should be reduced in certain specified proportions corresponding to the custom of the insurance business in respect of premia; and (3) that duty on a reduced scale should be charged on all renewals. Now, it is evident that the object desired by the memorialists would be attained by the adoption of the second of these suggestions. If it be assumed that the stamp duties prescribed by the Act are intended to be leviable on policies which run for one year, the Board recommend that the duty on a policy for one month should be one-fourth of this rate, the duty on a policy for three months should be half, and that on a policy for six months three-fourths of the full rate. These proportions correspond, with the omission of some intermediate rates, with the proportionate premia charged by Insurance Companies on policies for periods of less than one year, and the Lieutenant-Governor considers that if this scheme were adopted (together with a suitable arrangement for the stamp duty on renewals, to which reference is made hereafter), the particular ground of complaint put forward in the first part of the memorial would be completely removed. It is true that they have proposed the discontinuance of the ad valorem principle, and the substitution of a uniform rate of duty on all fire insurances, whatever their amounts. This proposal, however, is not one which can, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, be entertained. It is manifest that a uniform duty would be impracticable, unless it were fixed at so low a figure as virtually to exempt this class of instrument altogether. Reasons no doubt exist for this course in the United Kingdom, where the duty on fire insurances has been fixed at one penny; but the Lieutenant-Governor does not consider that sufficient grounds have been shown for so radical a change in this country. The course recommended above would remove the anomaly complained of by the Insurance Companies, and it does not seem necessary either to have recourse to a uniform rate of duty, or to the graduated scale suggested by the Board. The object indeed with which the Board have proposed this scale appears to be altogether apart from the questions raised in the memorial. It has been drawn up with the intention of relieving large insurances at the expense of smaller ones, the balance of advantage turning at R35,000. There are, no doubt, some reasons which should lead the Government to view favourably a reduction in the duty payable by large insurances, and it is in particular desirable to arrest the tendency which has begun to be apparent, on the part of large insurers, to place their insurances abroad. This question, however, has not been directly raised by the parties interested, and the Lieutenant-Governor, as at present advised, is not disposed to recommend the adoption of a graduated scale of duty in lieu of the present ad valorem system. In any case the rates of duty proposed by the Board for the smaller insurances seem decidedly too heavy, and would probably tend to discourage insurance by native traders.

9. The question of levying a stamp duty on renewals of insurances arises immediately out of the proposal to reduce the rates for policies which run for less than one year. If an insurer can take out a policy for one month on payment of one-fourth the duty for a year, he clearly cannot be allowed to renew his policy at the expiry of the month without payment of some additional duty. The proposals made by the Board of Revenue do not seem to consider this aspect of the case sufficiently. They have suggested the introduction of a graduated scale of fees for renewals, calculated at rates considerably below those proposed for original insurances, and it is apparently intended that the renewal fee should be the same, whatever might be the period for which the renewal was effected. Under this arrangement, it would be possible for an insurer to take out a policy on (say) R1,00,000 for one month, paying R5 as stamp duty. At the end of that period, he would be able to renew his policy for one year more on payment of R1. He would thus pay only R6 in all for a policy to run for 13 months, while if he had taken out a twelve-months' policy in the first instance he would have had to pay R20.

10. It seems to the Lieutenant-Governor that any attempt to impose an appreciable stamp duty on renewals would have a serious tendency to drive insurance business out of the country. It is true that fire insurances are strictly terminable contracts, and that theoretically each renewal is virtually a fresh transaction. But it is, in Sir Rivers Thompson's opinion, inexpedient to ignore the long established custom of the business, and impose a heavy duty which cannot fail to be regarded as new. The correct principle to adopt seems to be the converse of that which has been followed in the proposals made for the proportionate reduction of the duty on policies for fractional periods. In the latter connection it has been assumed that the rates of duty fixed by the Act are the amounts to be paid on policies which run for an entire year or any longer period, and certain reductions have been recommended on these rates in respect of policies for shorter periods. Similarly, in the present case, the Lieutenant-Governor considers it equitable that an insurer, who takes out a policy for any period of less than one year should be able to renew it for any further period up to one year in all, on payment of the prescribed fractional duty, and that, after his policy shall have run for one entire year, any further renewal should be exempt from duty. Thus, if he took out a policy for six months in the first instance, he would pay three-fourths of the full duty. If he then renewed his policy for six months more, he would again pay three-fourths of the full duty, and if he wished to effect any further renewal he could do so without payment of duty. It appears to the Lieutenant-Governor that this arrangement, while causing the minimum of modification in the existing law, would involve no hardship or inconvenience to the insuring public, and would be the natural complément of the previous proposal to reduce the duty on short-term policies.

11. The proposals which the Lieutenant-Governor desires to recommend for the consideration of the Government of India may be summed up thus:—

(1) The stamp duty on re-insurances should be subject to a maximum of R1, whatever the amount of the policy.

(2) The stamp duty upon a policy for—

One month or less	should be ¼
Not more than three months, but more than one month .	„ ½
Not more than six months, but more than three months .	„ ¾

of the duty for a year.

(3) The stamp duty on renewals should be the same as that on original insurances, provided that when the period of an original insurance, together with any subsequent renewals, shall exceed one year, no stamp duty shall be payable in respect of the excess.

The first of these, the Lieutenant-Governor thinks, can, if approved, be carried into effect by an order of the Governor General in Council published in the Calcutta Gazette. The other two would seem to require legislation, and might receive consideration when the amendment of the Indian Stamp Act is projected. The suggestion of the Board of Revenue that, in view of the special nature of the subject, the proposals should be ventilated by publication before any final action is taken, will, no doubt, commend itself to the Government of India.

No. 83B., dated 8th February 1884.

From—C. E. BUCKLAND, Esq., Offg. Secretary to the Board of Revenue, L.P.,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Financial Department.

I am directed by the Board of Revenue to submit, for the consideration of Government the accompanying memorial presented by the Agents of certain Insurance Offices in Calcutta, praying for an amendment of the Indian Stamp Act I. of 1879, by fixing a uniform duty on all insurances and re-insurances other than life and marine insurances.

2. Upon receipt of the memorial, the Board forwarded it to the Commissioner of the Presidency Division for a report by the Collector of Calcutta. A copy of the Commissioner's reply* and of the Collector's report, with its enclosures in original, are herewith submitted for the information of Government. It appears to the Board that the subject is one which should receive full and careful consideration when any revision of the Indian Stamp Act takes place. The memorialists have, the Board are of opinion, shown that sufficient grounds exist for a re-consideration of the provisions of the existing law. The Board, whilst maintaining the principle of an ad valorem stamp duty, would alter the law so as to allow the duration of risk in policies, other than life assurances, to be taken into consideration. They are also of opinion that some modification should be made in respect of the stamp duty on sub-insurances.

* Letter No. 199R.S., dated 12th December 1883, from the Commissioner of the Presidency Division, and enclosures (Insurance Companies' letters received with Commissioner's No. 234R.S., dated 28th January 1884, in original.)

To the Hon'ble the Board of Revenue, Calcutta.

The memorial of the undersigned Insurance Offices carrying on business in Calcutta, SHEWETH,—That your memorialists consider the Indian Stamp Act I. of 1879 affects them in a manner not really contemplated by the Legislature, and they believe that a representation through your Honourable Board to the Supreme Government will lead to a fair modification of the provisions in that enactment of which they complain.

2. The principle of the Act in imposing ad valorem duties on insurances calculated upon the amounts insured is opposed to the principle of the law in England on the subject.

3. Under the Act of Parliament 33 and 34 Victoria, C. 97 (the English Stamp Act of 1870), the only policies on which stamp duty is levied by a sum proportionate to the amount assured are in the case of Life Insurances (other than what are known as Accident Policies) and Marine Policies.

4. To those practically acquainted with the business of insurance many reasons exist for the distinction which is thus drawn. The contract in the case of Life Assurance is expected to extend over long periods of time; it is effected generally but once in a lifetime by each assured. In the case of other policies, the period over which the risk extends, as a rule, is very limited; but where Fire and Marine Insurances on goods are concerned, the subject of insurance is often changing hands, and the inducement to insurance is constantly ceasing or varying.

5. Illustrations derived from the operation of the duties on insurance transactions, according to the ordinary course of business, will serve to exhibit the unequal incidence of the duty :—

Take as an instance the working of the Indian Act. On an insurance against fire for one year for a lakh of rupees, a premium of ₹250 would be received, the stamp duty being ₹37-8.

On an insurance for the same sum for a month, the premium would be ₹62-8, and the same duty would be payable.

On an insurance for life for the same sum at the age of 30 (usually accepted as the average of Life Assurance risks), the annual premium would be about ₹3,500, the duty still being ₹37-8.

6. It will be seen that the duty, if assumed to be fair in respect of the Life Assurance premium, is out of all proportion to the Fire Insurance premium, and that, in the case of monthly insurances, the Government tax absorbs 37-62nds of the premium which is designed to cover the risk and expenses of the insuring offices and to provide a source of profit to the shareholders.

7. The vast majority of fire risks relate to merchandise whilst in transit or in warehouses, preparatory to sale or to manufacture for purposes of sale.

8. To impose duties on such shifting and terminable contracts equal to those on permanent contracts, and thereby, in some instances, to absorb more than 50 per cent. of the actual premium received, was an injustice that must have struck the well-informed Houses of Parliament (comprising, as they do, many Insurance Directors and experienced business men), and accordingly they resorted to the plan of subjecting all insurances covering Accidents and Fire risks to an uniform duty of one penny on each policy, and restricted the ad valorem duty to policies on Life and Marine risks.

9. On Marine policies under the 30 Victoria, C. 23, is imposed a stamp duty of three pence or six pence per cent., according to the duration of the risks, and if this principle of duration of the risk was applied in India, and a duty fixed with reference to the period of time covered, instead of its being simply calculated on the amount assured, the relief would be an important one, though less acceptable than the wider amendment hereinafter pressed for.

10. Not only is the incidence of the stamp duty open to the foregoing and similar objections, but the duty itself is positively oppressive when considered in connection with re-insurances.

According to the practice of business, a large risk is divided between two or more offices. The office by whom the insurance has been secured issues a policy to the assured covering the entire risk, and obtains one or more re-insurance policies from the office or offices with whom it divides the insurance. On the original risk, say, of one lakh against fire, the stamp duty of ₹37-8 would, of necessity, be paid. On re-insuring, a proportionate duty would again be paid on the amount of re-insurance. To the extent of the re-insurance double duty would thus be paid, and the consequence is that duties fixed at an exceptional and oppressive rate become doubly oppressive through a course of business which is universally adopted from motives of prudence, and which tends to add to the commercial value of insurance policies.

11. Your memorialists conceive that the Indian Legislature, not possessed of practical knowledge of the business of insurance, did not foresee any such consequences as have been pointed out. They are confirmed in this view from the circumstance that, in the case of purchase and sale (all the incidents of which would be familiar to Honourable Members) the Legislature dealt with a perfectly analogous case on a totally different basis.

12. By section 28, clauses (c), (d), and (e) of the Indian Stamp Act (following section 74, clauses 3, 4, and 5 of the English Stamp Act of 1870), a sub-purchaser can obtain a conveyance from the original seller on payment of a single stamp duty, though the subject of sale may wholly or partially have passed from the original purchaser to a sub-purchaser, and through several different hands. The principle thus recognised is that the duty shall run on the amount involved in the transaction in the form assumed on completion of the documents upon which it rests, that is, when the seller actually conveys to the purchaser or sub-purchaser, one duty is calculated on the ultimate price agreed on, and if the original purchaser retains part of his purchase, he pays duty only on the part which he retains.

13. It seems to your memorialists that identically the same principle is involved in every re-insurance.

The first office stands as purchaser: the re-insuring offices as sub-purchasers. If their transaction was treated as a real sale, or sub-sale, one duty would cover all subsidiary transactions; but because, instead of being a sale, the transaction is an insurance and re-insurance, the Legislature, as the law stands, exacts double duty. It compels full duty on the first insurance and full duty on the re-insurance, whereas upon the Government principle in the case of sale and sub-sale only one duty would be payable; and there is no sufficient reason apparent to your memorialists for this difference in dealing with exactly analogous cases.

Your memorialists respectfully submit that an assimilation of the Indian Stamp law with the existing English law, by fixing one uniform duty on all insurances and re-insurances (other than Life and Marine Insurances in the ordinary sense) would meet the justice of the case, and they pray for an amendment of the law accordingly.

From—A. SMITH, Esq., Offg. Commissioner of the Presidency Division.
To—The Secretary to the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces.

With reference to your No. 457B. of the 18th August last, I have the honour to enclose a copy of a report, No. 408—D.8 of the 30th November, from the Collector of Calcutta.

2. I think that the principle of charging the stamp duty according to the amount of the insurance should be retained, but I think that it would be equitable to take also into consideration the duration of the risk.

3. The parallel which the petitioners draw between sub-insurance and the case of sub-purchase they refer to is not complete. In the cases of sub-purchase there has been no conveyance to the original purchaser, and the transaction has so far not been complete. The original vendor getting his purchase-money can take no exception to the sub-sale. It appears to me, however, that persons insuring their property would hardly be content to pass on the risk past the Insurance Company to the sub-insurer, and that, if the Insurance Company under-insures to protect itself, the deed should be separately stamped. It would perhaps, however, be equitable to allow some consideration in respect of the stamp on such under-insurances.

No. 408—D.8, dated the 30th November 1883.

From—G. M. GOODRICKE, Esq., Collector of Calcutta,
To—The Commissioner of the Presidency Division.

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your office memorandum No. 59 R.S., dated the 21st August last, annexing a memorial of certain Insurance offices in Calcutta to the Board of Revenue, praying for an amendment of Act I. of 1879 by fixing a uniform duty on all insurances and re-insurances other than Life and Marine Insurances.

2. To make this report complete in itself, I would, before entering into the merits of the representation, review the Indian stamp laws relating to policies of insurance from the year 1860, when the general stamp law first came into operation, to the present date.

(a) Act XXXVI. of 1860, Article 43, Schedule A, provided for a stamp duty of eight annas for every sum of ₹1,0 0 or part thereof on Life Policies, and article 44 imposed a similar duty on Marine Policies.

(b) Act X. of 1862 (which repealed Act XXXVI. of 1860) made the following provisions in regard to Policies. Article 55 of Schedule A. imposed a duty of eight annas for every thousand rupees or fractional part thereof for Life and Fire Policies, while the next article provided for a like duty on Marine Policies.

(c) Act XVIII. of 1869, which was an amendment of Act X. of 1862, made some substantial alterations. Under clause 23, section 3, Life Policies were excluded altogether from the operations of the Act, while all other Policies (Fire, Marine, Accident, &c.,) were brought within its scope. The stamp duty (vide Article 3 of Schedule I) was reduced from eight annas to four annas for an insurance of thousand rupees or part thereof.

(d) Act I. of 1879 brings within its scope all kinds of Policies, including Life Policies (vide clause 15, section 3), and makes the following provisions as to the rate of duty. For Sea Insurance four annas for ₹1,000 or part thereof, and for every other Policy six annas for ₹1,000 or part thereof, and the reasons for the change have been clearly stated in paragraph 42 of the report of a Select Committee (published in the Gazette of India of the 7th September 1878), which for facility of reference is transcribed below :—

"Policies of Insurance have been divided into two classes—(1) Marine Policies, and (2) all other Policies, including Life Policies. For the first it is proposed to maintain the rates prescribed by the existing law. In the present days of quick communications, Marine Policies have a very short currency, in most cases not exceeding three months, and the number of Policies of this class issued is much greater than formerly. There is consequently, in the opinion of the Committee, no good ground for reverting, as the original Bill would have done, to higher rates of duty which were charged previous to 1869. As regards Life and other kinds of Insurances, the case is different, and some increase seems perfectible. The rates we propose for them are medium rates, 25 per cent. below the rates laid down in the former Bills, and 50 per cent. in excess of the rates charged on Policies of Insurances generally under the existing law."

3. It will be seen from the foregoing that eight annas was the stamp duty on Marine Policies from 1860 to 1869, while now it is only half the amount. As regards Life Policies, the rate of stamp duty was eight annas per ₹1,000 from 1860 to 1869, when it was exempted altogether. From 1879 the rate has been fixed at six annas per thousand, and to this the memorialists do not take exception.

4. What the memorialists specially object to is the ad valorem duty at six annas per thousand or part thereof on Fire and other Policies as well as on their re-insurances. The duty on Fire Insurance was first imposed by Act X. of 1862 at eight annas per thousand. Act XVIII. of 1869, while reducing to four annas the duty on Fire Policies, brought within its operation insurances against liabilities, &c., arising from unknown or contingent events (Life excluded). Under the present Act a uniform ad valorem duty is charged on all these Policies, being 50 per cent. in excess of the former rate, so far as insurances on Fire and other Accidents are concerned. As, however, the duty on Policies of Insurance is under clause 6, section 29 of Act I. of 1879, payable not by the insurer, but by the insured, the increase in duty on original Policies does not in any way affect the memorialists.

5. As regards re-insurances, the memorialists consider that the principle involved in re-insurance of Policies is identically the same as that laid down in clauses (c), (d), and (e) of section 28 of the Indian Stamp Act, and clauses (3), (4), and (5), section 74, Vic. 33 and 34, C. 97 (English Stamp law). The provisions of the above clauses are only applicable in case of a conveyance where the property is transferred to a sub-purchaser. The English Stamp law is silent as to the chargeability or otherwise of re-insurances to stamp duty, and so is the Indian Stamp law; consequently, for purposes of stamp duty, the re-insurances are treated as original Policies.

6. With a view to ascertain as to how the present rate of stamp duty operates on the different kinds of insurances, I issued on the 20th September last a circular letter to one and all of the memorialists, requesting to be furnished with certain information in connection with their representation, but only fourteen firms have up to date responded to the circular Of these, six offices had no re-insurances at all in 1882. In the absence of sufficient statistics, I am not in a position to say to what extent the law, as it now stands, is felt with peculiar hardship. The fourteen letters of the Insurance Company above alluded to are submitted in original, and the memorial is returned herewith.

To—The Collector of Calcutta.

In reply to your letter No. 272, dated 20th September last, we note at foot particulars as to insurances, &c., asked for therein.

We may mention that we do not accept any greater amount on any risk than is allowed by the Head Office, and consequently do not require to re-insure with other offices. This we do chiefly because re-insurance of any amount over limits would entail in almost every instance the payment of stamp duty to the re-insuring company, which would be a loss to the Guardian. We may also add that of the amount insured nearly two-thirds were on account of re-insurances granted to other offices.

No. 1289, dated 2nd April 1884.

From—C. MACAULAY, Esq., Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal, Financial Dept.,

To—The Secretary to the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 83B., dated the 8th February last, with which is forwarded a memorial from the Agents of certain Insurance Offices in Calcutta praying for an amendment of the Indian Stamp Act I. of 1879, by fixing a uniform duty on all insurances and re-insurances other than Life and Marine insurances.

2. The memorialists contend that the law recognises no distinction between policies that run for a few days only and those that run for a considerable term of years. It is pointed out by way of illustration that on an insurance against fire for one year for a lakh of rupees a premium of R250 would be received, the stamp duty being R37-8, while on an insurance for the same sum for one month, the premium for which would be R62-8, the same duty would be payable. Again, on an insurance for life for a lakh of rupees at the age of 30, the annual premium would be R3,5 0, the duty still being R37-8. It is manifest that a policy which will only run for a month is much less valuable than one which runs for several years, and it seems to the Lieutenant-Governor to be questionable whether they should be taxed equally. It will be seen from the returns submitted by the various Companies that, as a rule, the maximum term for which fire policies are given is one year, while the minimum is generally ten days. It has been ascertained that the practice is to treat fire insurance as strictly terminable contracts, running for one year only, and ceasing at the end of that period unless renewed by the payment of a fresh premium. There is this distinction between fire and life insurances, that, whereas the latter usually run on during the life of the assured, the only condition being the payment of the premium, the former may be terminated by the Insurance Company at pleasure on the termination of the yearly (or other) period for which each premium is paid. In other words, the Insurance Companies are not bound to renew fire policies beyond the period for which the original or any subsequent premium has been paid. The Lieutenant-Governor is therefore inclined to think that, as there is a radical difference between fire and life policies in this respect, they should not be mixed up together for the purposes of the Stamp law. There does not seem to be any objection to the existing provisions of the Stamp law so far as relates to life insurances, but in the case of fire insurances it would appear to be more equitable to take the duration of the policy into account. This might perhaps be done most simply by making the duty proportionate, not to the amount of the policy, but to the amount of the premium. In fixing the amount of the premium, the Insurance Companies of course take the duration of the insurance into account. The Lieutenant-Governor desires to be favoured with the opinion of the Board on this suggestion.

3. The memorialists also complain that re-insurances are under the law treated as if they were entirely new insurances, and are made to pay the full duty. What is meant by the term "re-insurance," or more properly speaking "sub-insurance," is, as explained by the memorialists, the practice by which a single Insurance Company is enabled to divide a large risk with a number of other Companies. If Company A. issues a policy for 10 lakhs of rupees, it seems to be the invariable custom to take from other Companies B., C., D., &c., sub-insurances on portions of the amount to cover and minimize the risk. In England and on the Continent, and in America, where the duty on an original insurance is nominal, there is no hardship in requiring the full duty to be paid on each such sub-insurance. In India, however, the duty is substantial, and the memorialists urge, with some show of reason, that it is inequitable to impose it afresh whenever a re-insurance is effected. Before, however, forming any definite conclusion on this point, the Lieutenant-Governor desires to be furnished with fuller information regarding the system of transfers and sub-division of risks by Insurance Companies.

4. There is another point which has been brought to the notice of Government. Since fire policies are virtually contracts for one year only, with the option of renewal, it would seem to follow that each renewal is tantamount to a new transaction, and may fairly be taxed accordingly. There should be no hardship in levying on each renewal of a fire policy the same stamp duty as on the original policy. The advantage of this course would be that it would prevent what seems to be a fraud on the revenue, which appears to be very prevalent now. In consequence of the severity of the duty, every effort is, it is understood, made by Insurance Companies to prevent a policy from lapsing. Hence the custom has arisen of transferring policies not only from one firm to another, but also, there is reason to believe, from one set of goods or buildings to another. Thus if A. insures a jute press at Naraingunge with a certain Company, it is possible for him (of course with the consent of the latter) to transfer the same policy to a rice mill at Rangoon which may belong to some one else altogether. The two transactions are really quite distinct, and should be taxed separately with stamp duty. Did the law require each renewal of a policy to pay the same stamp duty as the original policy, the temptation to defraud the revenue in this manner would be removed.

5. The Board, in submitting the memorial, remark that, "whilst maintaining the principle of an ad valorem stamp duty," they "would alter the law so as to allow the duration of risk in policies other than life assurances to be taken into consideration," and "that some modification should be made in respect of the stamp duty on sub-insurances." In view of the importance of the question, the Lieutenant-Governor would wish to be favoured with express proposals embodying explicitly the views of the Board on the subject of the stamp duties to be levied on policies of insurance.

6. The memorial and connected papers received with your letter are herewith returned for reference.

No. 638½B., dated 20th September 1884.

From—C. E. BUCKLAND, Esq., Offg. Secy. to the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Financial Department.

I am directed to acknowledge receipt of your letter No. 1289, dated 2nd April last, returning for further report a memorial from the Agents of certain Insurance Offices in Calcutta, praying for an amendment of the Indian Stamp Act I. of 1879 by fixing one uniform duty on all insurances and re-insurances other than Life or Marine Insurances.

2. The Board have made enquiries and have consulted the Commissioner of the Presidency Division and the Collector of Calcutta on the subject. A copy of their reports is enclosed, and I am now to submit, for the consideration of Government, the following proposals in respect of the stamp duties to be levied on policies of insurance.

The subject of insurance is one of which the Board have no special experience, so that they would suggest further ventilation of these proposals by publication or otherwise before they are finally adopted.

3. Taking, first, Life and Marine Insurances, the Board see no reason for recommending any change in the stamp duties on these policies as now levied in accordance with Article 49 (b) of Schedule I. of the Indian Stamp Act. They understand that no real objection exists against the present charges. A life policy is not a contract terminable at the end of each year, though it depends upon a yearly premium for its existence; but it is one which in the large majority of cases lasts for many years, and on the present scale of Indian life-rates the Companies can well afford to pay the existing duty: moreover, the charge is one contemplated and paid by the Companies, and does not fall upon the general insuring public. Against the duties on Marine Insurances also the Board are informed that no objections are raised. The stamp, they believe, is willingly paid by the assured according to universal custom, both in India and in England. Again, so far as Time Marine policies are concerned, there is no need for any alteration, because the amount of Time Marine business is infinitesimal, and consists of a few native-owned vessels trading from Calcutta, and steam-launches plying on the river Hooghly. With a very few exceptions, every Marine Company in Calcutta is, they believe, forbidden to insure hulls (i.e., Time risks) at any price whatever; and it is impossible to insure more than about £5,000 on a vessel for this reason.

3. In respect of fire policies, there are several points for determination, which will be dealt with successively. The maximum period for which fire policies are given is usually one year, so that yearly policies may first be considered. It has been suggested that, if the principle of an ad valorem duty is to be maintained, the latter should be calculated on the amount of the premium payable, and not, as at present, on the amount of the policy; and Mr. Sterndale suggests that a rate of one per cent. on the amount of the premium would be a fair charge, it being understood that each renewal of policy requires the same duty as the original, whether the renewal is effected by endorsement on the old policy or by the issue of a new policy. The question of stamp-duties on renewals will be dealt with further on. With respect to the proposed ad valorem duty of one per cent. on the premium, it has been brought to the Board's notice that whereas at first sight the change seems to be a great concession, it will in application be found to be inequitable and to press most heavily on the highly-rated risks which can least afford to pay. At present the stamp-duty is regulated according to the amount insured, regardless of the nature of the risk: the proposed change entails a consideration of the nature of the risk, that is, as to whether it is low or high rated. The largest insured interest in Calcutta is represented by piece-goods and other non-hazardous goods and produce, the rate for which is a half per cent. This may fairly be taken as the lowest rate, as house property and furniture are hardly ever ensured. The rate of insurance actually charged in practice for jute presses is five per cent., the highest rate in force. According to the proposed principle of stamp-duty ad valorem of one per cent. on the premium, a policy for—

R1,00,000 on piece-goods at a half per cent. would pay R500 premium and R5 stamp duty,

R1,00,000 on a jute press at five per cent. would pay R5,000 premium and R50 stamp duty, a result which is thought unreasonable, the amount insured being the same in both cases. It is pointed out that the shareholders in a jute press, an industrial concern, already feel the very heavy rate of fire premium, viz, R37-8, and can ill-afford to pay the higher stamp duty of R50 for a lakh of rupees insured. It must, moreover, be borne in mind that if the principle of an ad valorem duty on the premium is adopted, the proceeds of this form of stamp duty will depend upon the rates charged by the offices which are more likely to be lowered than to be raised. It has also been represented to the Board that the charge would be inequitable: there are certain insurance offices bound by what are called the tariff rates fixed by the Fire Association in London, and the offices which are not so bound would pay less for their stamps than those which are, for instance—

At Tarif charges at a half per cent. on piece-goods on R1,00,000, the premium would be R500 and the stamp duty R5.

At Non-tariff charges at 6 annas per cent. on piece-goods on R1,00,000, the premium would be R375 and stamp duty R3-12.

The Board are informed that most fire risks are subject to a cash discount of 15 per cent., so that if the proposed change is introduced, it would have to be decided whether the stamp duty should be levied on the gross or the nett premium.

5. It has been stated to the Board that up to the 1st June last, the Insurance Companies paid the stamp on yearly policies themselves, charging the assured only for the stamps on insurances for short periods, but since that date all stamps whatever have been charged to the assured,—see section 29 of the Indian Stamp Act. Therefore it would appear that the interests of the public and not of the Companies should be considered.

6. Under these circumstances the Board are disposed to recommend reconsideration of the principle of an ad valorem stamp duty on insurance policies. They think it very desirable that the rates on large amounts should not be so prohibitive as to induce owners of large properties to insure elsewhere than in India. A reduction of the rate on large amounts would induce further business as well as prevent its leaving the country. It has been suggested to the Board that a fair way of settling the stamp duty is to charge at fixed rates for a certain minimum amount insured. They would therefore suggest for consideration the following graduated scale:—

On a policy of—	Stamp duty of—
1,000 to 5,000	5 0 0
5,000 „ 10,000	7 8 0
10,000 „ 25,000	10 0 0

A comparison of the two scales will show that on insurances up to ₹25,000 the change would be a gain to Government, and the addition of a duty on renewals as proposed in paragraph 9 would give compensation for the reduction of the rate on large amounts.

7. Mr. Sterndale's report shows the proportionate premia charged by the insurance offices on policies for short period insurances, and it has been suggested to the Board that the stamp duty on short period risks should be levied in the same ratio as the premium. Thus the stamp duty for a policy for—

One month	should be ¼
Three months	ditto ½
Six ditto	ditto ¾

of the duty for a year, and so on. The Board support this suggestion.

8. The question of re-insurance or sub-insurance has been fully treated by Mr. Sterndale in reporting on the system of transfers and sub-division of risks which obtains among the Insurance Companies. The Board entirely concur in his view that the principal instrument between the insurer and the insured should be the only one chargeable with the full rate of duty on the scales already suggested, and that on each of the subsidiary transactions between the several insurance offices, in order to carry out the main transaction, it will be sufficient to require a payment of one rupee on any amount sub-insured. This concession, the Board have reason to believe, would be exceedingly popular.

9. The question of the stamp duty to be levied on renewals of policies is one of great importance. It has been represented that, if Government insist on levying the full stamp duty on each renewal, insurance business will be driven out of the country to England, where, it is asserted, already a very considerable amount has been placed. It may be admitted that each renewal of a policy is in theory tantamount to a new transaction, and may fairly be taxed accordingly, so that there should be no hardship in levying on each renewal of a fire policy the same stamp duty as on the original policy. But the fact is that no stamp duty on renewals has hitherto been paid; the currency of the policy has simply been prolonged by payment of a further premium by mutual agreement for a further period. It can therefore be easily understood that the Insurance Companies, as Mr. Sterndale reports, would be very averse to the payment of the same stamp duty on each renewal of a policy as on the original policy. His proposal to charge stamp duty of one per cent. ad valorem on the premium, and again the full rate on each renewal, would compare with the present stamp duty as follows:—

Present.—The stamp duty on piece-goods insured for ₹1,00,000 at ½ per cent. for a premium of ₹500 is ₹37-8.

Proposed.—The stamp duty on the same goods for the same amount would be ₹5 a year, and it would take 7½ years for the stamp duty on renewals to reach the amount now levied.

But if a stamp duty of ₹5 be charged for each yearly renewal according to the graduated scale of stamp duties suggested in paragraph 6, Government would in 7½ years receive on a policy for ₹1,00,000—

For the first year	20 0 0
Renewal fee for 6½ years	32 8 0

instead of ₹37-8 in 7½ years.

It would be desirable also to draw up a graduated scale of stamp duties on renewals following the charges on original insurances with reference to the amounts insured, thus (see paragraph 6):—

Original stamp duty.	Stamp duty on renewal.
₹ a. p.	₹
5 0 0 } 7 8 0 }	1
10 0 0	2
12 8 0	3
15 0 0	4
20 0 0	5
and so on.

These renewal stamp duties not having been previously charged will be so much clear profit and will go a long way to make up for the reduction of the original charge on larger amounts insured. The principle will be that of levying a comparatively small duty on a large number of constantly repeated transactions. It will be necessary to provide that no policy is valid on which the stamp duty for renewal has not been paid.

10. With respect to transfers of policies, the Board see no objection to such transfers as are ordinarily effected, as Mr. Sterndale describes, by endorsement inscribed on the policy, and they would invite attention to the passage in which he states that such a transfer as the hypothetical case put in your letter, though no doubt possible, is in practice unknown and improbable, and under certain circumstances impossible. The Board are informed that interests stand distinct for fire insurances, i.e., non-hazardous goods, jute mills, jute presses, jute in godowns, cotton mills, &c., &c., all stand separately, and the transfer of a policy from one to any other is never made. A policy on piece-goods is sometimes endorsed to cover a like interest in another godown, but policies on mills or presses cannot be transferred to cover piece-goods or vice versâ, for the ownership and interest are absolutely and entirely distinct. There is therefore no need for such a duty, and the imposition of it would probably be regarded as being nearly vexatious, and would confer no material benefit upon Government. It is said that it would encourage what are termed 'blanket' policies, i.e., one policy for one premium covering more than one godown; it would tend to increase rates, to promote difficulty and discontent in the settlement of losses, and to encourage fraudulent claims.

11. The memorial and the connected papers received with the orders of Government under acknowledgment are herewith resubmitted.

No. 110 R.S., dated 25th August 1884.

From—A. SMITH, Esq., Officiating Commissioner, Presidency Division,

To—The Secretary to the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces.

With reference to your No. 223B. of the 23rd April last, I have the honour to enclose copy of a report, No. 47 R.S. of the 19th July, from the Collector of Calcutta.

2. I regret the delay that has occurred in dealing with this matter. Mr. Sterndale has explained the delay that occurred with him, and the further delay in my own office has been caused by the conference on the Tenancy Bill: the heavy work there always is at this season in connection with the various annual reports and returns and my visit to Jessore, Khulna, and Ranaghat with the Lieutenant-Governor.

3. Mr. Sterndale's report is very full. He shows how a system of taxing on the premium would work. It is obvious that the results will be very different from those given by the present system: the stamp for an insurance of a lakh of rupees for one year for a private dwelling-house in Calcutta is ₹37-8 or at the rate of 15 per cent. If, however, that be applied to the high premium on an insurance of a jute press for the same amount, the stamp duty may be as much as ₹900. Mr. Sterndale considers, and I think very justly, that a charge so high as this would tend to drive insurance transactions out of India. It seems to me on insurances for short terms the correct principle is to assess the stamp on the premium which is fixed with reference to the amount to be paid if the amount of the insurance should have and the chance of its having to be paid. Mr. Sterndale proposes the adoption of a rate of one per cent. This would give a stamp of ₹2-8 on the insurance of the private dwelling-house and a maximum stamp of ₹60 on that of the jute press referred to. Where insurances are renewed, the stamp would be required, or at all events a stamp at the same rate on the premium.

4. Where insurances are effected for a longer period than a year, it would perhaps be practicable to make some difference in the charge, as is done in the case of leases at article 39, schedule I. of the Stamp Act.

5. Mr. Sterndale's letter gives a very clear account of the system of re-insurance or sub-insurance. Mr. Sterndale thinks that the instruments effecting such re-insurances are analogous to the instruments dealt with in section 6 of the Stamp Act. This is not strictly the case, for the deeds refer to entirely new agreements between different parties. I think, however, that it would be reasonable to allow a very reduced and indeed almost a nominal rate of duty on such sub-insurances.

No. 47 R.S., dated 19th July 1884.

From—R. C. STERNDALE, Esq., Officiating Collector of Calcutta,

To—The Commissioner of the Presidency Division.

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your memorandum No. 15R.S., dated the 15th May 1884, covering Government letter No. 1289S., dated 2nd April 1884, regarding the memorial of the insurance companies, praying for a reduction of the stamp duties charged under Act I. of 1879 on fire insurance policies, and especially on re-insurances, asking for certain further information and for proposals in regard to the stamp duties to be levied in future on such policies.

2. I regret the delay that has occurred in submitting this reply, but as I only took over charge of this office on the date of your letter, the matter escaped my notice till recently, and the subject was one with which I was necessarily unfamiliar, and I had to make enquiries regarding the system of re-insurance, renewal, and transfer of policies, and the practice followed by the Calcutta insurance offices in regard to such transactions. I trust the information I now have to submit may assist in arriving at a satisfactory settlement of the questions at issue.

3. The first question on which I am desired to report is the one referred to in paragraph 2 of the Government letter, viz., the contention of the memorialists that the law recognises no distinction between policies that run for a few days only and those that run for a considerable term of years. The inequity of this has been admitted, and requires no further remarks, but after having fully weighed the reasons and arguments put forward in support of the memorialists' petition for an alteration in the present provision of the Stamp Act and the view expressed by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, I think that, it being admitted that these policies are strictly terminable contracts, running for one year only or even for shorter periods, and (as stated in the letter of Government) it is manifest that a policy which will only run for a month is much less valuable than one which runs for several years, the duration of the policy should be taken into account in determining the duty, and if the principle of ad valorem duty is adhered to, the latter should be calculated on the amount of the premium payable, and not, as at present, on the amount of the policy. It is, however, very difficult to arrive at what would be a fair and equitable rate to be charged on the premium. Taking the rate quoted by the memorialists and referred to by Government as a guide, it would appear that R37-8 is the amount of stamp duty payable at R0-6-0 per R1,000 on a policy for one lakh of rupees current for one year; the premium for that amount and that period being R250, or equal to a rate of 15 per centum on the amount of premium. This appears at first sight not an unreasonable amount, nor do the memorialists complain of it; but as will be seen from the following facts and figures, it is entirely delusive, and, if followed, would result in the imposition of a prohibitive rate of duty. The memorialists have omitted to point out that R250 on one lakh of rupees for one year represents the very lowest class of insurance on private dwelling-houses in Calcutta at ¼ per cent., a class of insurance which in fact is hardly ever effected. The principal classes of risks in Bengal and the rates per cent. per annum furnished by one of the principal offices are as follows :—

Memorandum of rates of fire insurance on principal classes of risks in Bengal in July 1884.

Risks.	Rate per cent. per annum.
Private dwelling-houses in Calcutta	¼
" " in mofussil
Hotels	½ to 1½
Godowns, non-hazardous	1 " 2
" for cotton	½
" for jute and jute presses	1 to 2½
Jute-mills	2½ " 6
Cotton-mills	¾ " 3¾
Gunning factories	¾ " 3½
Teak houses	2½
	3 to 4

It will be seen that a rate of 15 per cent. on a lakh of rupees yielding premium R250 at ¼ per cent. and stamp duty R37-8 would, on the same amount in the highest class, viz., 6 per cent., give premium R6,000 and stamp duty R900; while on an average rate 3 per cent. it would give premium R3,000, and stamp duty R450. I think I am justified, therefore, in saying that such a rate would be prohibitive, and would, I am convinced, put an end to fire insurance in this country.

4. The existing rates of stamp duty are, I am assured, already inducing owners of large properties to insure in England, where the stamp duty on fire policies is nominal, instead of in this country. This will be the better understood from the fact that the insurance companies here will not now pay the stamp duty, which has to be paid by the insured in addition to the premium. I offer a suggestion as to the rate to be levied with some diffidence, because the data at my command are hardly sufficient to base any calculation upon as to results, but taking the following figures obtained from one of the principal offices as a guide and taking into consideration the information I have been able to gather from careful enquiries, I am of opinion that a rate of one per cent. on the amount of the premium would be a fair charge, it being understood that each renewal of policies requires the same stamp duty as the original, whether effected by endorsement on the old policy or by issue of a new policy. This the insurance companies are very averse to, but I think they are fairly liable. This will of course obviate any risk of the revenue being defrauded in the manner referred to in the Government letter. There is not, however, so much temptation to do this as seems to be thought so far as renewal of short policies is concerned, that is to say, there is no temptation to insure for shorter periods than one year with a view to avoid stamp duty. The tariff by which the business of the companies is regulated discourages short period insurances; this will be apparent from the following scale :—

Annual premium.	Six months	Four months.	Three months.	Two months.	One month.
100 0 0	75 0 0	62 8 0	50 0 0	37 8 0	25 0 0

So that it is cheaper in the end to insure for the longer period unless the insured is certain of getting his goods out of hand within the term for which he takes out his initial policy. A policy for three months renewed for three months more bears the same premium as a policy for one year, and a six-months' policy renewed for three months costs 25 per cent. more.

5. If my suggestion be accepted, some slight modification of clause (b), article 49 of schedule I., Act I. of 1879, will be necessary. After the words "other insurance" the words "except fire insurance" would have to be added, and an additional clause (c) inserted, "fire insurance one per cent. on the premium payable, whether on issue or renewal of policy."

6. With reference to the question of re-insurance in regard to which further information is desired, it is, as has been stated by the memorialists, the practice for insurance companies to grant policies for large sums and to reduce their own risks by re-insuring or dividing the risk with other offices; most offices in fact are restricted to a certain fixed maximum in regard to certain classes of risks.

7. In fire insurance this re-insurance is effected either singly or by what is called "treaty." In the first case an office A. may accept a risk of R5,00,000 upon a mill, but its own limit, viz., the amount it is allowed to accept or retain, is R1,00,000; there is therefore a balance of R4,00,000 to provide for. A. sends round to other offices B., C., D., and E. with a description of the property, risks, &c., and offers them a proportion of the insurance. If approved by them a "take note," or as it is called in Calcutta, a "letter of cover," is issued, by which these offices undertake their proportionate parts of the original company's liability. This is followed by a properly executed guarantee, and a copy of the original or A. company's policy is issued to the several re-insuring offices. A. is therefore the office solely liable to the mill-owner for R5,00,000 in the event of loss, and A. adjusts and pays the claim, B., C., D, and E. paying their respective quotas to A. on production of the discharge and the papers relating to the claim and its adjustment. Re-insurance by "treaty" is somewhat different. A., an insurance company, being desirous of transacting business abroad, will make arrangements with companies B., C., D., and E. that they will accept a certain share of every risk undertaken by A.'s representatives, allowing so much per cent. for commission and expenses, and this system of re-insurance is not, I am informed, in operation in Calcutta, but the first system is in constant operation. This practice of re-insuring is a great convenience and advantage to the public, as an owner of valuable property can thus without difficulty effect a substantial insurance on his property, with but one premium to pay and one company to look to instead of a number.

8. The Secretary to the "Queen" Insurance Company has favoured me with a note on this subject, which so clearly illustrates the system of re-insurance that I beg to quote it—

"Of course the whole business of insurance is founded on the principle of distribution, heavy losses by fire in individual cases being thus borne by a larger number of persons.

"Re-insurance is merely a development of this principle. An insurance company determines how much it should be prepared to lose on a particular risk (or a particular class of risk), and makes its re-insurance arrangements accordingly.

"Take for instance the insurance of country mansions at home; their value with the contents often amount to £100,000. Of course it would be competent to the office to say—We will not take a larger sum than £10,000 on any one of these risks. If you want to insure your house for £100,000, you must effect the balance elsewhere. All we can grant you a policy for is £10,000; but the disadvantage and inconvenience of such a course is sufficiently obvious. In the first place, the would-be insurer would have to find out a sufficient number of offices to effect his insurance piecemeal: each office would have its own notion of a proper limit. Here he would be able to place £5,000, there £7,000, there £8,000, and so on, and in case of a loss he would have ten or twelve different offices to deal with. Indeed, if some of the cases of the large manufacturing concerns are considered, there is at once a reductio ad absurdum.

"Cotton-mill risks are at present in much disfavour among the offices, owing to frequent fires. The limits fixed for these risks therefore are low, averaging £5,000, so that where a risk of £300,000 was insured, sixty offices would have to be applied to, were it not for the practice of re-insurance.

"Under the present system, however, any insurance risk, however large, may be disposed of by two or three or even by one office; all the responsibility and all the trouble of sub-division and re-arrangement is borne by the office that receives the original insurance. If a loss occurs, of course that office is alone accountable to the policy-holder for the amount of the indemnity.

"It will naturally be asked, what consideration is received by the office effecting the re-insurance from the office to which the business is given? In the majority of cases, it is a matter of reciprocity, i.e., offices give business to offices that give business in return, and an equal balance is kept as nearly as possible. In cases where offices cannot make an adequate return for business received, a certain amount is paid by them, which varies according to the nature of the agreement entered into by the Boards of Directors on either side."

9. It is apparent therefore that in the transfer of portions of the risk from one office to another commonly called re-insurance, there is but one transaction between the insurer and the insured, although there are subsidiary transactions between the several insurance offices in order to the carrying out of the main transaction. The original insurance office receives the full premium payable on the total value of the insurance, and consequently takes the full risk and responsibility in case of loss, and the full stamp duty is paid on the principal instrument executed to secure this end. It appears to me that the first insurance and the re-insurance are in their characters analogous to the class of instruments referred to in section 6 of the Indian Stamp Act, where it is laid down that where more than one instrument is required to complete a transaction (in the case of any sale, lease, mortgage, or settlement), the principal instrument only shall be chargeable with the duty prescribed for the conveyance, lease, mortgage, or settlement, and each of the other instruments shall be chargeable with a duty of ₹1 instead of the duty (if any) prescribed for it in that schedule.

10. In the case of a policy of insurance executed in duplicate, the duty is divided between the original and the duplicate, thus indicating that the principle of the stamp law is to impose ad valorem duty only once in respect of a particular transaction; and in this view I think it is reasonable to hold that each re-insurance is but a part of one transaction, viz., the securing for the payment of one premium of one indemnity in case of accident to the property insured, and under these circumstances I would suggest that as in the case of the "other instruments" referred to in section 6, each policy of re-insurance be subjected to a payment of ₹1, the full ad valorem duty having been levied on the "principal instrument," viz., the original policy, on the scale suggested in paragraph 4.

11. With regard to paragraph 4 of the Government letter, there can, I think, be no doubt that each renewal of a terminable policy is tantamount to a new insurance, and if the proposal made in paragraph 4 be accepted, viz., that the duty shall be calculated on the amount of the premium payable instead of, as at present, on the amount of the sum insured, every renewal must be so treated. With reference to the remarks contained in the same paragraph, I would, however, point out that this could not prevent the transfer of policies. Such transfers are, I understand, ordinarily effected by endorsement inscribed on the policy; in this way the interest may be changed from one person to another, as in the case of goods insured changing hands on the removal of the insured goods from one building to another; fresh elements of risk may be admitted or warranties contained in the body of the policy expunged, the amounts insured may be redistributed over the different items covered; all these are matters of arrangement between the insurer and the insured, and are covered by simple endorsement on the document by an authorised representative of the ensuring company, and on such endorsements no stamp duty is leviable. I cannot find, however, that such transfers as represented by the hypothetical case put, viz., the transfer of a policy effected by A. on a jute press at Naraingunge to a rice mill, the property of B., at Rangoon, are ever effected. It is no doubt possible, but in practice it is unknown, and it is not probable, and as regards transfer of risk not only from one building insured under one class to another insured under another class, and where, as suggested, the persons insured are different, it is impossible.

RESOLUTION.—In the papers above read the expediency of altering the provisions of the Stamp Act of 1879 regarding the stamp-duty on policies of insurance against loss by fire is discussed.

2. Objection has been taken to the existing law on two grounds:—

(1) that policies of re-insurance, by which the office which has accepted a risk transfers a portion of the risk to another office, are liable to duty at the same rate as the original policy of insurance; and

(2) that the duty is independent of the period during which a policy continues in operation and of the amount of the premium paid.

3. The Honourable the President in Council is of opinion that it is inexpedient to levy stamp-duty on a policy of re-insurance against loss by fire at the same rate as on the original policy, and considers that a policy of re-insurance should be liable only to a low fixed duty. He has accordingly, by notification of this date, reduced the duty on such policies to one rupee.

4. With regard to the second question, the Honourable the President in Council, as at present advised, is prepared to accept the proposals of the Government of Bengal for the amendment of the law if the difficulties in levying the stamp duty on renewals can be obviated. Those proposals are that, while the duty on a policy of insurance against loss by fire for a year or any longer period should remain unaltered, and while no duty should be levied on the renewal of a policy which has paid the duty due on a policy running for a year,

(a) the duty on a policy for—

One month or less should be	¼
More than one month but not more than three	½
„ three but not more than six	¾

of the duty on a policy for a year; and

(b) the stamp-duty on renewals should be the same as on the original insurance, provided that where the period of an original insurance together with any subsequent renewals shall exceed one year, no stamp-duty shall be payable in respect of the excess.

5. The President in Council desires that these proposals should be placed before the public and opinions invited.

ORDERED, that the foregoing Resolution be published in the Gazette of India, and that copies be forwarded to all Local Governments for consideration and opinion.

D. BARBOUR,
Secretary to the Government of India.

(c) no appeal under the same section, clauses (a) and (b), shall lie after the expiration of two months from the date of the order appealed against.

(2) In computing the period prescribed for an appeal by this section, the day on which the order appealed against was passed, and the time requisite for obtaining a copy of such order, shall be excluded.

(3) An appeal may be admitted after the period of limitation prescribed therefor by this section when the appellant satisfies the officer to whom he appeals that he had sufficient cause for not presenting the appeal within that period.

Procedure of Appellate Court on appeal.

149. The officer to whom the appeal lies may reject the appeal without hearing the respondent (if any); if he admits the appeal, he may reverse, modify or confirm the order appealed against, or he may direct such further investigation to be made or such additional evidence to be taken as he may think necessary, or he may himself take such additional evidence.

Suspension of order appealed against.

150. In any case in which an appeal is admitted the Appellate Court may, if it thinks fit, pending the result of the appeal, direct the order appealed against to be suspended.

Power to call for proceedings of subordinate officers.

151. The Chief Commissioner, a Commissioner, a Deputy Commissioner, a Settlement-officer and a Survey-officer may call for the proceedings held by any officer subordinate to him, and pass such orders thereon as he thinks fit.

Power to make rules.

152. The Chief Commissioner may make rules consistent with this Regulation to regulate the procedure of officers in the discharge of any duty imposed on them by or under this Regulation, and may by such rules confer upon any officer any power exercised by a Civil Court in the trial of suits.

CHAPTER IX.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Proceedings under this Regulation unaffected by mistake, misdescription or irregularity.

153. (1) No proceedings under this Regulation shall be affected by reason of any mistake in the name of any person thereby rendered liable to pay any sum of money, or in the description of any estate in respect of which he is rendered liable to pay, or by reason of any other informality, provided that the provisions of this Regulation, and of the rules passed under this Regulation, have been substantially complied with.

(2) No proceedings under this Regulation shall be affected by reason of any irregularity or omission in the publication or service of any notice or proclamation thereunder, unless it is proved that some material injury was caused by such irregularity or omission.

Matters exempted from cognizance of Civil Court.

154. (1) Except when otherwise expressly provided in this Regulation, or in rules issued under this Regulation, no Civil Court shall exercise jurisdiction in any of the following matters:—

(a) questions as to the validity or effect of any settlement, or as to whether the conditions of any settlement are still in force;

(b) question as to the amount of revenue, tax, cess or rate to be assessed; and the mode of principle of assessment;

(c) the formation of the record-of-rights, or the preparation, signing or alteration of any document contained therein;

(d) claims of persons to perfect partition;

(e) claims of persons to imperfect partition, except in cases in which a perfect partition could not be claimed from, and has been refused by, the revenue-authorities on the ground that the result of such partition would be to form a separate estate liable for an annual amount of revenue less than five rupees;

(f) the distribution of the land or allotment of the revenue on partition;

The Assam Land and Revenue Regulation, 1886.

(Chapter IX.—Miscellaneous.—Sections 155-159.)

(g) claims connected with, or arising out of, the collection of land-revenue, or any process for the recovery of an arrear of land-revenue or of any sum which is by this Regulation, or by any other enactment for the time being in force, realisable as an arrear of land-revenue;

(h) claims to occupy or resort to lands under sections 13 and 14, and disputes as to the use and enjoyment of such lands between persons permitted to occupy or resort to the same;

(i) claims to have an allotment made under section 13 or section 14, and objections to the making of such allotment;

(j) claims to a remission or refund of any revenue, cess, tax, rate, fee or fine payable or paid under this Regulation or leviable under any enactment for the time being in force as an arrear of land-revenue;

(k) claims to set aside a decision passed in accordance with an award of arbitrators;

(l) claims to any office connected with the revenue-administration or to any emolument appertaining to such office, or in respect of any injury caused by exclusion, suspension or removal therefrom; and

(m) any matter respecting which an order expressly declared by this Regulation to be final, subject to the provisions of section 151, has been passed.

(2) In all the above cases jurisdiction shall rest with the revenue-authorities only.

XIV of 1882.

(3) Notwithstanding anything in section 265 or section 396 of the Code of Civil Procedure, a Civil Court may, in the case of a claim for an imperfect partition with respect to which its jurisdiction is not barred by this section, exercise the same powers in making the partition of a revenue-paying estate as it is competent to exercise in making the partition of a revenue-free estate.

(4) When a Civil Court has made an imperfect partition of a revenue-paying estate, the amount of revenue for which each portion of the divided estate is, as between that portion and the other portions, to be liable shall be determined by the Deputy Commissioner in the same manner as if the partition had been carried out by himself under Chapter VI of this Regulation.

Additional power to make rules.

155. The Chief Commissioner may, in addition to the other matters for which he is empowered by this Regulation to make rules, make rules, consistent with this Regulation, relating to the following matters:—

(a) the person by whom, and the time, place and manner at or in which, anything is to be done for the doing of which provision is made in this Regulation or the rules made thereunder;

(b) the mode in which notices, proclamations, summonses, warrants and other processes issued under this Regulation shall be issued, published and served, and the fees to be charged for the issue, publication and service of such processes;

(c) the costs of all proceedings under this Regulation;

(d) the manner in which representatives shall be appointed to act in matters relative to this Regulation on behalf of any body of settlement-holders or persons entitled to, or with whom it may be desirable to make, a settlement;

(e) the granting of licenses to prepare or collect, or the farming of the right of preparing or collecting, rubber, lac and other forest-produce upon land over which no person has the rights of a proprietor, landholder or settlement-holder;

(f) the granting of licenses, or the farming of the right, to work mines, stone and lime-quarries, salt-wells and oil-wells, to fish in fisheries proclaimed under section 16, and to carry on gold-washing operations;

(g) the payments in consideration of which, and the conditions on which, such licenses or farms may be granted; and

(h) generally to carry out the provisions of this Regulation.

Penalty for breach of rules.

156. The Chief Commissioner may, in making any rule under this Regulation, attach to the breach of it, in addition to any other consequence which would ensue from such breach, a penalty which may extend to two hundred rupees, or, when such breach is a continuing breach, to fifty rupees for each day during which such breach continues.

Making and publication of rules.

157. (1) The Chief Commissioner shall, before making any rules under this Regulation, publish in such manner as may, in his opinion, be sufficient for giving information to persons interested, a draft of the proposed rules, with a notice specifying a date at or after which the draft will be taken into consideration; and shall, before making the rules, receive and consider any objection or any suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to the draft before the date so specified.

(2) If, on such consideration of the draft, any modification is made, the Chief Commissioner shall determine whether it is necessary to re-publish the draft under this section.

(3) In making rules under this Regulation the Chief Commissioner shall act subject to the control of the Governor General in Council.

(4) All rules made by the Chief Commissioner under this Regulation shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

Consolidation and republication of rules.

158. (1) The Chief Commissioner shall at least once in every three years cause all rules in force under this Regulation to be arranged in some convenient order according to their subject-matter and consolidated, and, where necessary, shall, subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, amend the rules so arranged and consolidated.

(2) The rules so arranged, consolidated and amended shall be published in the local official Gazette, and upon such publication all previous rules under this Regulation shall cease to be in force.

Powers exercisable from time to time.

159. All powers conferred by this Regulation may be exercised from time to time as occasion requires,

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Department of Finance and Commerce.

READ again—

Resolution No. 4161, dated 11th November 1881, authorising the establishment of Government Savings Banks at certain Post Offices in India and prescribing rules for the guidance of depositors in these Banks.

The following Orders sanctioning certain changes in the rules published in November 1881:—

No. 1460, dated 2nd June 1882.
„ 3775, „ 16th September 1882.
„ 40, „ 31st March 1883.
„ 1562, „ 24th June 1884.
„ 1052, „ 28th May 1885.

RESOLUTION.—In supersession of all existing orders on the subject, the Governor General in Council is pleased to prescribe the following revised rules for the guidance of depositors in Post Office Savings Banks:—

DEFINITIONS.

1. For the purposes of these rules—

Deposit means money paid into a Post Office Savings Bank by, or on behalf of, a depositor.

Depositor means the person by whom, or on whose behalf, money is deposited.

Account means the account of a depositor in a Post Office Savings Bank.

Balance means the balance at credit of an account.

Minor means a person who has not completed the age of 18 years.

Legal guardian means not only any guardian constituted by law for the time being, but also includes a father, or, if the father be dead, a mother.

Postmaster General means the chief postal authority in any province or place to which the system of Post Office Savings Banks is extended.

OBJECT OF GOVERNMENT IN ESTABLISHING POST OFFICE SAVINGS BANKS.

2. The object of Government in establishing Post Office Savings Banks is to provide a ready means for the deposit of savings, and so to encourage thrift. Savings Banks are not to be used for the purpose of keeping a current account, and the Comptroller, Post Office, is empowered to close an account should he have reason to believe that the depositor has used the Savings Bank for a purpose for which it was not intended.

BUSINESS HOURS.

3. Post Office Savings Banks will be open for the transaction of business between the hours of noon and 4 P.M. every day, with the exception of Sundays, Christmas Day, New Year's Day, Good Friday, and the Queen's Birthday. These hours may, under the authority of the Postmaster General, be altered to suit local circumstances.

POSTAL OFFICIALS BOUND TO SECRECY.

4. The officers of the Postal Department engaged in the receipt or payment of deposits are not allowed to disclose the name of any depositor, or the amount deposited or withdrawn by him, except to the Postmaster General or other officers of the Department engaged in carrying out the provisions of these rules.

PERSONS WHO MAY DEPOSIT MONEY.

5. Any person may deposit money in a Post Office Savings Bank (a) on his own behalf, or (b) on behalf of any adult relative, or (c) on behalf of any minor relative, or (d) on behalf of any minor of whom he is the guardian.

Explanation.—Minors are allowed to deposit money in their own names, and women, whether married or single, are allowed to deposit money in their own names, but subject, in the case of married women, to the limitation laid down in Rule 6.

LIMITATIONS AS TO OPENING ACCOUNTS.

6. (i) A person may open an account on his own behalf or on behalf of an adult relative, but may not have more than one such account open. If he has an account open on his own behalf, he may not open another on behalf of an adult relative; and similarly, if he has an account open on behalf of an adult relative, he may not open another on his own behalf. If an account is opened on behalf of an adult relative, the account must be in the name of that relative, and should set forth the relationship that subsists between him and the person who opened the account on his behalf.

(ii) In addition to the account which a person may open on his own behalf or on behalf of an adult relative, he may open any number of separate accounts on behalf of any minor related to him or of whom he is the guardian, provided that he shall not open more than one account on behalf of each such minor.

(iii) The fact that an account has been opened on behalf of a minor shall not prevent such minor from opening an account in his own name; nor shall the fact that a married man has an account in his own name prevent his wife from opening a separate account in her own name, provided the money to be deposited by her is her own property or earning.

NOTE A.—This rule is not meant to prevent any one from opening more than one ex-officio or public account (vide Rule 9).

NOTE B.—Warrant and Non-Commissioned officers and men serving in British Regiments can open accounts in Post Office Savings Banks even though already depositors in Military Savings Banks.

7. Deposits in trust are not allowed, and cannot be recognised. Money cannot be deposited in the name of two or more persons jointly, provided that nothing in this rule shall prevent the deposit of money in the name of a known firm, or on behalf of a benevolent or quasi-public institution.

8. The smallest sum of money that can be deposited at any time is four annas; and no sum can be deposited that is not a multiple of four annas. A depositor cannot deposit a larger sum than five hundred rupees in all between the 31st March of any year and the 1st April of the following year.

NOTE A.—The limit of R500 is to be reckoned irrespective of withdrawals, that is, withdrawals are not to be deducted in applying it.

NOTE B.—The limit of R500 may be exceeded—
(1) in the case of Public Accounts;
(2) in the case of Regimental and Police Accounts.

NOTE C.—When an account is transferred from one Savings Bank (whether Post Office or Presidency) to another, the amount so transferred shall not be included in calculating the limit of R500, save that portion of it deposited in the current year.

NOTE D.—Deposits made for the purpose of immediate investment in Government Securities are not reckoned in calculating the limit of R500.

PUBLIC ACCOUNTS.

9. The following conditions govern the opening of "Public Accounts":—

(a) Accounts may be opened by officers of Government who have charge of money as Secretaries or Managers of Dispensary, Church, or other religious Institution, School, Orphanage, Asylum, or Library Funds, or any funds contributed for purposes other than the private advantage or amusement of the contributors. Race, Racquet, Billiard, Mess, and similar funds, whose objects are of a private or personal nature, are not within this definition, and such accounts may not be admitted. Band Funds may be admitted if there is no private bank in the place.

(b) Secretaries and Managers of Dispensary and similar funds (as above mentioned), if they are not officers of Government and the institution is not subject to Government control, can be allowed Savings Bank accounts only if there is no respectable private bank of deposit in the place.

(c) Secretaries and Managers of Benevolent Funds (that is funds formed by mutual subscription as an insurance against domestic misfortune) may be allowed accounts.

(d) Officers of Government or of public institutions, such as Railway and Steamer Companies, and the like, who collect subscriptions, voluntary or departmental, from their subordinates for departmental purposes, may be allowed accounts.

(e) Government officials and others who are required to deposit security may be allowed a separate account for the security deposit only. Such officials will be required to give notice pledging their deposit.

(f) Public accounts of the kind specified above must be designated by a name indicating the object to which the money is devoted, as A—pore Dispensary Fund, Workman's Sick Fund, &c. They are exempted from the rules limiting the amount of deposit within one year to R500 (provided the deposit is the bonâ fide income of the fund), and interest will be paid upon their full balance, notwithstanding that it exceeds R9-6 a month. But a reduction of balance by more than R3,000 within twelve consecutive months will not be permitted, unless the Secretary or Manager gives six months' notice of his intention to make additional withdrawals, such notice to specify the precise amount to be withdrawn.

10. No account may be allwoed for money—
(1) which is the property of Government, or
(2) which has been received for credit of Government, or
(3) which has been drawn from the Treasury for expenditure on account of Government, or
(4) which is collected or received or held in trust by any public officer or Court in accordance with any law, or
(5) which is raised by taxation, either local or municipal.

REGIMENTAL AND POLICE ACCOUNTS.

11. The Commanding Officer of a Native regiment may open a single account with the Post Office Savings Bank on account of the men of his regiment, making his own arrangements about the separate accounts of the individuals, and about the distribution to them of the interest credited upon the conjoint account. This account shall be subject to the usual rules, save that the limits of R500 for deposits and of R9-6 for monthly interest shall not apply. The Commanding Officer must, however, in presenting any deposits, sign a certificate that, to the best of his belief, the money is the property of the men of the regiment. District Superintendents of Police may have accounts under this rule on account of men in the police force.

N.B.—This rule shall not be held to prevent any Native soldier, or any member of the police force, opening an account of his own in his individual capacity.

POWERS TO WITHDRAW MONEY, AND LIMITATIONS AS TO WITHDRAWAL.

12. A depositor can withdraw money from his account once a week. By the term "week" is meant the period from Monday to Saturday, both days inclusive. A depositor can, therefore, withdraw money from his account on Saturday and again on the following Monday.

13. Money deposited on behalf of an adult relative can be withdrawn, not by the person who deposits the money, but only by the adult relative himself. A minor can withdraw money deposited by him in his own name; but money deposited on behalf of a minor can only be withdrawn during his minority by his legal guardian.

14. Women, whether married or single, can withdraw money deposited by them in their own names; and married women can also withdraw money deposited by them as single women in their own names, their marriage notwithstanding. The fact that a female minor, on whose behalf money has been deposited, is married or becomes married after the account has been opened on her behalf, shall not prevent her from withdrawing the money so deposited on attaining majority.

15. A depositor cannot withdraw a smaller sum than four annas, and he cannot withdraw any sum which is not a multiple of four annas, unless it be to close his account, in which case he can withdraw the balance at his credit..

HOW TO OPEN AN ACCOUNT.

16. Any person wishing to open an account should apply to the nearest Post Office that is a Savings Bank. Application need not necessarily be made in person; but the applicant must state his name, his occupation or profession, and his place of residence. If he be a Native, he must also state his father's name and caste.

17. The intending depositor must sign a declaration, in the following form, that he has read and accepted the Post Office Savings Bank rules. If he be unable to write, he must attend personally, and, in the presence of a witness, affix his mark or seal to the declaration to be attested by the signature of the witness. If he should apply in person, a copy of the Rules will be given to him to read, or they will be read and explained to him should he be unable to read. If he should not apply in person, a copy of the Rules, with the form of declaration, will be sent to him, and he must present the declaration duly signed with the first deposit.

Form of Declaration to be signed by Depositor on making first deposit.

I hereby declare that the Post Office Savings Banks Rules have been read { by me / to me }, and that I accept them as binding upon me.

I further declare that I have no account either in my own name or in the name of an adult relative at any Post Office Savings Bank.

The _____ 188 . Depositor.

18. Women who, by the custom of the country, are not allowed to appear in public, may open accounts in their own names through their agents, or, if they are married women, through their husbands or agents. The agent or husband will be required to sign the declaration that the depositor understands and accepts the rules.

19. When the declaration is presented, duly signed, with the amount of the first deposit, or when it has been signed by a depositor attending in person to make a deposit, the amount of the deposit will be entered in a Pass-book, which will be supplied to the depositor, and the entry will be initialled by the Postmaster and stamped with the office stamp. The depositor will be required to sign a receipt for the Pass-book.

20. If the account be opened at a Sub-Post Office, the Pass-book for the depositor will have to be obtained from the Head Office. A preliminary receipt for the amount of the first deposit will, therefore, be given to the depositor, who will be informed of the date on which he should call to receive the Pass-book. When the Pass-book is handed over to the depositor he will be required to return this preliminary receipt, and to sign an acknowledgment for the Pass-book. The amount of the original deposit will be entered in the Pass-book at the Head Office, and the depositor will therefore have a guarantee that the sum has been received in that office. He should be careful to see that the entry in the Pass-book corresponds with the amount entered in the preliminary receipt before giving up the latter.

PASS-BOOK AND ITS IMPORTANCE.

21. The Pass-book will show, in the vernacular of the district or in English, as the depositor may wish, the number of his account, with the name of the office from which the book is issued, his own name, occupation or profession, and address. No deposit can be made, and no money can be withdrawn, from an account without its production, and the Post Office will not be responsible for any sum not acknowledged in the Pass-book. Depositors should carefully examine their books before leaving the offices, and ascertain that the entries are correct. They should also be careful to keep their Pass-books in their own possession, as the Post Office will not be responsible for any loss caused to a depositor, if any person shall obtain possession of the book and fraudulently obtain the payment of any sum belonging to the depositor.

LOSS OF PASS-BOOK.

22. No charge will be made for the book at first supplied to a depositor, or for any book issued to him in continuation of the original book. But if a book be lost or spoiled, or if any account be re-opened after it has been closed, the depositor will have to pay one rupee for a fresh book.

MODE OF DEPOSITING MONEY AFTER AN ACCOUNT HAS BEEN OPENED.

23. A depositor may deposit money at the Post Office at which his account stands as often as he wishes, so long as the prescribed yearly limit is not exceeded. All that he is required to do is to take or send the amount to be deposited with his Pass-book to the Post Office. The amount of his deposit will be entered in the Pass-book, and the balance struck as shown below.

The entry will then be initialled by the Postmaster and stamped with the dated stamp of the office, and the Pass-book returned :—

DATE.	Dated stamp of the Post Office.	Amount of each deposit or withdrawal (to be entered in words).	Amount deposited.	Amount withdrawn.	Balance at credit of the Depositor.	Initials of the Post-master.
			₹ a. p.	₹ a. p.	₹ a. p.
3rd April 1883	...	Deposited ten rupees.	10 0 0	...	10 0 0	A.B.C.
15th „ „	...	Deposited twenty-five rupees.	25 0 0	...	35 0 0	A.B.C.
12th May „	...	Withdrawn three rupees.	...	3 0 0	32 0 0	A.B.C.

24. If the amount be deposited at a Sub-Post Office, the depositor will receive, in addition to the receipt in his Pass-book, an acknowledgment from the Head Office, which will generally be the office at the head-quarters station of the district. This acknowledgment will be delivered to him in ordinary course through the Post Office. If it should not reach the depositor in proper time, or if, when it reaches him, it should show any signs of erasure, or should not agree with the entry in the Pass-book, the depositor shouldimmediately apply to the Postmaster of the Head Office, the name of which is in the Pass-book, and renew his application again and again until he receives a satisfactory reply.

MODE OF WITHDRAWING MONEY.

25. When a depositor wishes to withdraw money, he must present his Pass-book personally or by agent (whose name must be entered in the application for withdrawal) at the Post Office at which his account stands, with a printed form of application for withdrawal, which can be obtained at the Post Office, signed by himself and showing the balance at his credit and the amount which he wishes to withdraw. If he is unable to write, he must attend personally and affix his mark or seal to the application, to be attested by the signature of a witness. Should he be absolutely unable to attend personally, he must have his mark or seal affixed to the application and attested by some respectable witness, and the Postmaster will make payment to the person presenting this application with the Pass-book, after satisfying himself, by such enquiry as he may think proper, of the inability of the depositor to attend and of the genuine character of the application.

26. The amount to be withdrawn will be entered in the Pass-book and a fresh balance struck, as in the case of a deposit, under the initials of the Postmaster and the dated stamp of the office. The amount will then be paid to the depositor or to the person presenting the Pass-book and application, and his receipt taken, in all cases without a receipt stamp, on the Warrant of Payment.

27. If the amount be withdrawn at a Sub-Post Office, payment cannot be made until a Warrant of Payment is received from the Head Office * The depositor, therefore, or other person presenting the Pass-book and application, will be informed of the date on which he should come to the Post Office to receive payment, and will have the Pass-book returned to him. On presentation of the Pass-book on that date, or any subsequent date after the arrival of the Warrant of Payment, the amount will be paid to the depositor, or other person presenting the Pass-book, and his receipt taken, in all cases without a receipt stamp, upon the Warrant. The necessary entries will then be made in the Pass-book, under the initials of the Sub-Postmaster and attested by the stamp of the office.

INTEREST.

28. Interest will be allowed at the rate of 3½ per cent. per annum, until further orders, on all deposits, subject to the conditions of this rule. This interest will be allowed for each calendar month on the lowest balance at credit of an account between the close of the fourth day and the end of the month : provided that interest shall only be calculated at the rate of three pies a month on every complete sum of five rupees : provided also that no higher monthly interest than ₹9-6 shall be allowed on the balance of any account, except as provided for under Rules 8, 9 and 11.

29. The interest calculated as above for each month will be added to the balance of each account after the 31st of March of each year. Depositors will be called upon to present their Pass-books in order that the necessary entries may be made in them. If the Pass-book be not presented for this purpose, in response to the notice sent by the Post Office to the depositor, the entry will be made on the next occasion when a deposit is made or when money is withdrawn.

NOTE.—Pass-books of depositors in Sub-Post Offices will be sent to the Head office for the purpose of adding interest under this rule.

TRANSFER OF ACCOUNTS.

30 A depositor may have his account transferred free of charge to any Post Office that is a Savings Bank, provided that the account shall have been in existence for three months previous to the transfer. If he should wish to transfer his account, he must present his Pass-book at the Post Office personally, or send it with a written application for transfer. The Pass-book will be retained by the Postmaster, and a certificate given to him showing the amount at his credit. On presenting this at the Post Office to which his account has been transferred, he will receive back his Pass-book. A depositor in a Presidency Savings Bank may, by application to the Presidency Savings Bank, have his account transferred, free of charge, to any Post Office Savings Bank.

* NOTE.—Except in the case of certain selected Sub-Offices which are authorised to grant Warrant of Payment.

CLOSING AN ACCOUNT.

31. When a depositor wishes to close his account, he must present his Pass-book with a form of Application for Withdrawal of the net amount at his credit. The amount of interest due on his account up to the end of the calendar month preceding the date of presentation will be entered in the Pass-book, and a final balance struck. The amount will then be paid to the depositor, and his receipt taken on the Warrant of Payment. The Pass-book will be retained in the Post Office. If the application for closing an account be presented at a Sub-Office, the same procedure will be followed as in the case of an ordinary withdrawal, except that the Pass-book will be retained.

32. If an account be closed under the orders of the Comptroller, Post Office, notice in writing will be sent to the depositor, requiring him to present his Pass-book and receive payment of his balance at his credit as soon as convenient. After the date of such notice, no deposit will be accepted on the account so closed, and no interest will be allowed upon the balance after the end of the calendar month preceding such date.

RE-OPENING AN ACCOUNT.

33. A depositor who has once closed an account cannot open another account until after the expiration of three months from the date of closure, without the permission of the Comptroller, Post Office; and a depositor whose account has been closed by order cannot open a fresh account in any case without the permission of the Comptroller, Post Office.

POWERS OF POSTMASTER GENERAL IN CERTAIN SPECIAL CASES.

34. If a depositor should die, leaving in a Post Office Savings Bank a sum of money not exceeding one thousand rupees, and if probate of his will or letter of administration of his estate, or a certificate granted under Act No. XXVII of 1860 be not produced to the Postmaster General within three months of the death of the said depositor, the Postmaster General may pay the said sum of money to any person appearing to him to be entitled to receive it, or to administer the estate of the deceased.

Balances in excess of ₹1,000 may be paid on production of probate, letters of administration or a certificate under Act XXVII of 1860 unless otherwise ordered by the Director General of the Post Office who has discretionary power to dispense with such evidence in cases where he is of opinion that to require it would cause hardship and that to dispense with it would involve no appreciable risk.

35. If any depositor become insane, or otherwise incapable of managing his affairs, and if such insanity or incapacity be proved to the satisfaction of the Postmaster General, then the Postmaster General may, from time to time, make payment out of the deposits to any proper person.

PURCHASE, SALE, AND CUSTODY OF GOVERNMENT SECURITIES.

Purchase of Government Securities.

36. Any bond fide depositor may invest the amount of his balance or a portion of it in Government Securities through the Post Office. Any such depositor may also purchase through the Post Office Government Securities not exceeding in nominal value ₹1,000 in one year and ₹3,000 in all by tendering in cash the amount necessary to complete the purchase. A written application should be presented together with his Pass-book by a depositor desiring to make an investment under this rule. The application will be forwarded to the Comptroller, Post Office, who will take the necessary steps for making the purchase through the Comptroller General.

(a) The paper purchased will be of the 4 per cent. loans, unless 4½ per cent. paper is specially applied for.

(b) The investor may also specially apply that the paper remain in the custody of the Comptroller General. In this case the Comptroller General will, if necessary, transfer the paper to the 4 per cent. loan of 1865. The investor may at any time apply through the local Post Office for the delivery to him of paper thus held by the Comptroller General. If application is not made under this clause, the paper purchased by the Comptroller General will be enfaced for payment of interest at the local Treasury and forwarded to the Post Office for delivery to the investor.

SALE OF GOVERNMENT SECURITIES.

37. Any depositor may apply for the sale through the Post Office of Government Securities which have been purchased for him through the Post Office whether held by himself or held for him by the Comptroller General. If the securities are presented with the application, they must be endorsed in favour of the Comptroller General.

SAFE CUSTODY OF GOVERNMENT SECURITIES.

38. A depositor may tender at a Post Office Savings Bank Government Securities for safe custody by the Comptroller General. The amount so tendered must not exceed in nominal value ₹1,000 in any year or ₹3,000 in all. The securities so tendered must be endorsed to the Comptroller General.

INTEREST ON GOVERNMENT SECURITIES.

39. So long as the Government Securities remain in the custody of the Comptroller General, interest, when due, will be drawn and advised to the local Post Office Savings Bank through the Comptroller, Post Office, for credit to the depositor's account.

1. The schedules and forms attached to these rules are prescribed for the several purposes specified in the heading of each, and shall be taken as part of the rules.

Provision for dependents.

2. The same provision in every respect shall be made for the welfare of dependents of emigrants as for that of the emigrants themselves: and all rules regulating the treatment and transport of emigrants shall be applicable to their dependents also.

Correspondence with Government.

3. Correspondence with a local Government, in connection with emigration matters, shall ordinarily be conducted through the Protector of Emigrants appointed by that Government, or through such other channel as that Government may prescribe in that behalf.

Submission of monthly returns.

4. A return, showing the number and description of emigrants and their dependents embarked for the colonies during each month at each port, shall be submitted by the Protector of Emigrants to the local Government concerned within the month following that for which the return is due.

The report shall treat of the following points, namely—the condition of the depôts; the state of health of the emigrants accommodated therein; the sufficiency of hospital and other medical arrangements; the cause of any epidemic disease; and the precautionary measures adopted against its spread.

(b)—Every Protector of Emigrants shall, not later than six months after the close of each calendar year, submit to the local Government his report for that year. The report shall review the history of emigration during the year, noticing all points of importance; and shall furnish such particulars as may from time to time be required by the local Government.

COLONIAL EMIGRATION FORM No. 22.

FORM OF CERTIFICATE OF FINAL MEDICAL EXAMINATION OF EMIGRANTS.

Statement of results of Medical Examination of Emigrants to be embarked in ship.

ON this the day of 188 I identified in depôt the emigrants intended to be embarked for ; and found them to answer to their descriptive particulars in the embarkation nominal roll (list). I examined each individual emigrant in respect of his or her fitness in point of health to undertake the voyage; and I am satisfied that they are, with the exceptions noted below, fully capable of making the sea voyage safely, and without endangering the health of others.

MEDICAL INSPECTOR'S ENDORSEMENT.

THE emigrants referred to in the above statement were examined by me at the embarkation wharf, and I am of opinion that they are fit to proceed, excepting those bearing the numbers noted below who have been exchanged for other emigrants brought from the depôt. As regards the exceptions taken by the Surgeon Superintendent, I have carefully examined the persons to whom they refer and consider them "fit" or "unfit" as entered against the numbers. Those unfit have been exchanged for others: and I am of opinion that every emigrant who has been substituted and entered in the nominal roll (list) accordingly can safely be allowed to proceed to the colony.

Cooked meal prior to embarkation.

83. Emigrants shall not leave the depôt for embarkation before they have had a cooked meal, except with the special sanction of the Protector, which shall only be given under very exceptional circumstances.

Supply of water at embarkation wharf.

84. Before the arrival of the emigrants, a supply of good drinking water shall be provided at the wharf for their use while undergoing final identification and medical examination.

CHAPTER IV.

TRANSPORT ARRANGEMENTS.

SECTION I.—General Rules.

Joint responsibility of Protector and Medical Inspector.

85. The Medical Inspector of Emigrants shall be jointly responsible with the Protector of Emigrants for the suitability of the general fittings and hospital arrangements of emigrant ships; for the quality and sufficiency of the provisions and medical stores shipped for the voyage; and for the fitness for duty, in point of health, of the ship's officers and crew. He shall also be present with the Protector at the surveys of emigrant ships, and at the embarkation of emigrants; and he shall see that everything is done to secure the comfort of the emigrant passengers, and to render the occurrence of disease among them improbable.

Appointment of diplomaed Surgeon.

86. Unless the Surgeon Superintendent shall have been nominated by the Crown Agents, or by the Colonial Government, the Emigration Agent shall appoint a Medical Officer, in all respects fully qualified, to be Surgeon Superintendent. Every such appointment shall be made subject to the approval of the Protector and Medical Inspector, which shall not be given unless the officer appointed (a) holds a medical diploma of some recognised college or (b) has previously to the publication of these rules sailed in medical charge of Emigrants to the Colonies under Act VII of 1871.

Registration of Surgeon's qualifications.

87. Every Medical Officer, on receiving from the Agent his appointment as Surgeon Superintendent, shall call at the Protector's office for the purpose of having his papers examined; and, if his nomination be approved, registered for future reference.

Attendance of Surgeon for embarkation duties.

88. Every Surgeon Superintendent appointed to an emigrant vessel shall be present throughout her preparation for the voyage. If residing on shore, he shall send all his heavy baggage on board not later than the evening of the day preceding that fixed for embarkation with a view to being free on the day of embarkation to attend at the depôt and wharf for the uninterrupted discharge of the several duties devolving on him in connection with the embarkation of emigrants. On the day of embarkation he shall attend at the wharf at least one hour before the time fixed for the embarkation.

Appointment of compounders.

89. A properly qualified compounder, or a properly qualified native doctor engaging to perform the duties of a compounder, shall, subject to the approval of the Protector and Medical Inspector of Emigrants be appointed by the Agent to every vessel chartered for the conveyance of emigrants: and shall call at the Protector's Office for registration of his name and necessary particulars. Should the number of emigrants to be carried exceed 500, or should other exceptional circumstances render it absolutely necessary in the opinion of the Medical Inspector to appoint a second compounder, such compounder shall be appointed accordingly. Every compounder shall be qualified to act as interpreter. For the purposes of this rule two children under ten years of age shall be reckoned as one emigrant.

Attendance of compounders for embarkation duties.

90. Every compounder appointed to an emigrant vessel shall take his effects on board on the evening of the day previous to that fixed for embarkation; shall attend at the depôt and wharf throughout the day of embarkation, and shall render to the Emigration Agent and Surgeon Superintendent such assistance as they may need in arranging for the embarkation.

Appointment of store-keeper.

91. A store-keeper, who shall be fully qualified to keep a correct account in English of the issue of stores, shall be appointed by the Master, with the approval of the Protector of Emigrants, and shall be placed on the ship's articles. Such store-keeper may be the third officer of the ship.

Appointment of attendants.

92. The Agent shall appoint to every vessel chartered for the conveyance of emigrants the staff of attendants prescribed in scale No. 5 of schedule G. Such attendants shall, whenever practicable, be selected from among those accustomed to a sea life, and previously trained, either in depôt or elsewhere, to the kind of work to be performed on board.

Appointment of emigrants as attendants.

93. Emigrants, who volunteer for the work, may be appointed by the Emigration Agent as cooks, nurses, and topazes. One of the nurses, best fitted for the work of supervising and directing the other nurses, shall be appointed head nurse.

Agreements of native attendants.

94. Separate agreements in duplicate shall be entered into with the compounders, nurses, and other attendants; and shall, in the cases of natives of India, provide for a free return passage to that country; and, in those of West Indians or Africans, for a free passage to their homes.

Disposal of duplicate agreements.

95. The duplicate copy of such agreements executed as above shall, after the departure of the vessel, be forwarded by the Emigration Agent to the office of the Protector for submission to Government.

Control of attendants.

96. The attendants on emigrants shall during the voyage be under the immediate control of the Surgeon Superintendent, who shall be at liberty to disrate or dismiss any of them for misconduct or neglect of duty, and to appoint others in their stead, or add to their number in case of emergency or necessity.

Services of compounder and store-keeper.

97. The services of the compounder and store-keeper shall be entirely at the disposal of the Surgeon Superintendent. It shall be their duty to assist that officer in maintaining discipline among the emigrants; to see that all instructions are fully carried out; to report to him any irregularities and cases of sudden sickness; to help in issuing rations and water, and in distributing the meals; and to supervise generally, under the orders of the Surgeon Superintendent, all matters affecting the welfare of the emigrant passengers.

Prohibition of objectionable cargo and animals.

98. No pigs, dogs or ferocious or dangerous animals shall be allowed on board, nor shall any of the articles specified in schedule E be carried as cargo on board an emigrant vessel.

Section II.—Emigrant vessels.

Chartering of vessels.

99. When a vessel is to be chartered in India for the conveyance of emigrants, the Agent concerned shall avoid engaging (a) any vessel that is not classed as provided in schedule A appended to the rules; and (b), if practicable, any vessel that has carried a salt cargo on her previous voyage.

Inshore mooring of emigrant vessel.

100. With a view to facilitate visits of emigration officers to an emigrant vessel, lying off Calcutta, for the purposes of survey and inspection, the master of such vessel shall, as early as possible, arrange with the Port authorities to have her moored in an inshore berth, if such a berth is available.

Application for license.

101. As soon as a vessel is chartered, the Emigration Agent shall forward to the Protector a certified copy of the charter-party, with a request for her survey, and shall direct the master to apply to the local Government, through the office of the Protector, for the requisite license to carry emigrants.

Information from Master with application.

102. The master shall personally submit his application for a license in form No. 23: and shall therein furnish information as to—

(a) The number of emigrants which he believes his vessel to be capable of carrying under Sections 57 and 58 of the Act:
(b) The ship's classification:
(c) The ship's tonnage:
(d) Whether the ship is fitted with any apparatus for securing artificial ventilation; and of what description:
(e) Whether the ship's receptacles for drinking water are separately constructed tanks, or mere compartments of the hull; and what was last stored in them:
(f) The cargo last carried; and
(g) Whether cholera, small-pox, measles, scarlet fever, yellow fever or other dangerous communicable disease has occurred on board during either of the ship's last two voyages.

Instructions to Surgeon Superintendent.

The Surgeon Superintendent should keep a daily journal of his proceedings during the voyage, noting therein every event of moment at the time of its occurrence. In addition, he should enter the dates when the decks are scrubbed or otherwise cleaned; the ship fumigated, if necessary; the bottom-boards of the hospital bunks taken out on to the upper deck and scrubbed; the blankets shaken and aired; the bathing days and washing days; and the days on which he does not inspect the emigrants with the reason for the omission. He should state every day the nature of the weather and the latitude and longitude, and should notice the crossing of the tropics and of the line. He should enter any noteworthy instances of the good or bad conduct of those on board, or of the working of the regulations for their discipline, and copies of any letters he may write or receive on service. At the end of the journal he should place together all his general observations on the voyage, mentioning every objection he may see reason to form to the regulations, or to the victualling, or any other part of the arrangements, and stating the remedy which he would propose.

The Surgeon Superintendent should bear in mind that this journal is a very important document, not only as concerns his charge, but himself, and should be a faithful record of the occurrences of the voyage. It should therefore be carefully kept, and all matters, which have any bearing upon his functions should be noted therein. A careful entry should be made of all complaints made to him by the emigrants, and the measures taken to remedy them; and in case any investigation be necessary, the Surgeon Superintendent should request the master of the vessel to assist him. The evidence taken and the decision arrived at should be carefully entered and signed by the witnesses, by himself and by the master of the vessel and should be read to the complainant, who should be also required to sign it as a correct record of the proceedings. The occurrences of each day should be entered before its close, while fresh in the Surgeon Superintendent's memory, and loose memoranda should never be used.

152. Medical stores and comforts, shipped for the exclusive use of the emigrants, shall be issued entirely at the discretion of the Surgeon Superintendent, with the exception of spirits and wine, which shall be issued only upon the written requisition of the Surgeon Superintendent addressed to the master, specifying the patient or patients for whom the issue is required, and the quantity in each case. In no case shall the master issue more of these articles than is required for a single day's consumption. Form No. 46 shall be daily filled in and initialed by the Master and Surgeon.

Protection from annoyance during meals.

153. The Master shall see that members of the crew, whether on duty or not, do not interfere with or in any way annoy or disgust the emigrants while taking their meals.

Issue of scale allowance of water.

154. While the vessel is at sea, the prescribed quantity of drinking water shall be issued daily, and while the vessel is in the tropics, drinking water shall, if circumstances permit, be issued in excess of the scale. In the case of a vessel sailing from Calcutta emigrants shall not be restricted to the prescribed scale so long as the vessel is in the river Hooghly. Water issued for drinking shall always, if possible, be condensed water.

Water-supply for closets.

155. The supply of water for use in the water-closets shall be kept up continuously, night and day, in the tubs, or iron tanks, set apart for the purpose.

Spread of awnings and tarpaulins.

156. Awnings shall be spread over the quarter and main decks when the weather permits, so as to admit of the emigrants remaining on the upper deck as much as possible; and tarpaulins, with a view to being spread tent-fashion over the hatchways when necessary, shall always be kept at hand ready for use.

Precautions against accidents.

157. Life-buoys and life-boats shall be kept at all times in readiness for immediate use; the crew shall be exercised in fire drill once a week, and in lowering boats whenever opportunities permit, the life-boats having picked men assigned to them. The regulations of the Board of Trade respecting lights and fog signals shall be strictly observed throughout the voyage; and the times of hoisting and hauling down the lights shall be noted daily in the ship's log.

Lighting and securing of lanterns.

158. Lanterns shall be lighted at dusk and padlocked; and, besides the number of lights that may be required by the Surgeon Superintendent to be placed in the between decks, one lantern at least shall be kept burning in each water-closet, and one at each gangway, throughout the night up to day-light.

Disposal of deceased emigrants' effects.

159 The goods or effects of deceased emigrants shall be taken charge of by the master after the Surgeon Superintendent has entered in the register of deceased emigrants' property (Form No. 52) a copy of an inventory thereof prepared under rule 88; and they shall be delivered on the vessel's arrival at her destination to the Immigration Officer at the port of debarkation.

160. On arrival at the port of debarkation, the master shall deliver to the Immigration Officer, for transmission to India, the nominal roll received from the Protector of Emigants at the port of embarkation together with an attested copy of the ships log.

Delivery of documents.

Section III.—Rules for the guidance of the Surgeon Superintendent.

161. The Surgeon Superintendent shall exercise general control and superintendence over the emigrant passengers. He shall, throughout the voyage, maintain a constant watchfulness over everything that may influence the health of those under his care; and shall pay strict attention to all sanitary precautions and to the early detection and treatment of disease.

Special charge of emigrants.

162. The emigrants after embarkation shall be divided into groups, each consisting of 25 or thereabouts, and the Surgeon Superintendent shall appoint, to the charge of each group, a sardar who shall be held responsible for the good conduct and well-being of the persons under him, and for the cleanliness of the portions of the between decks occupied by them.

Appointment of sardars.

163. In the case of a vessel sailing from Calcutta, the Surgeon Superintendent shall adopt measures to prevent the emigrants from drinking water from the river.

Precautions against drinking river water.

164. The Surgeon Superintendent shall frequently caution the staff of attendants to see that the rules against smoking or carrying fire into the between decks are not infringed; and to report to him any breach of them immediately after detection of the offender.

Precautions against fire.

165. Discipline among the emigrants shall be secured by all legitimate means; and harsh treatment shall, so far as possible, be avoided. No emigrant shall, for any offence, be subjected on board to corporal punishment, or to any reduction of the prescribed quantity of daily food. If any other form of punishment become necessary, it shall be inflicted only with the consent of the Surgeon Superintendent; and particulars of each case shall be immediately entered in the ship's log.

Maintenance of discipline.

166. The Surgeon Superintendent shall appoint night watchmen from among the married emigrants, who shall see that no women visit the single men's compartment, or the crew, during the night under pretence of going to the latrines.

Prevention of immorality.

167. Any unnecessary interference on the part of the officers or crew with the emigrants, or with the space allowed to them on the upper and lower decks, and any infringement of the rules, shall at once be brought officially in writing to the notice of the Master, who shall, as soon as possible, enquire into the matter and adopt such measures as may be required.

Interference by officers and crew.

168. Ventilation, and the means of promoting or modifying it, shall receive the constant personal attention of the Surgeon Superintendent.

Attention to ventilation.

169. The compounder, interpreter, nurses, sardars, cooks, and topazes shall be under the Surgeon Superintendent's immediate control; and shall discharge their duties strictly in accordance with his instructions. In the event of any misconduct, it shall be in the power of the Surgeon Superintendent to disrate any of them, and to appoint another person instead.

Control over attendants.

170. Emigrants shall be inspected daily; and every effort shall be made to detect for immediate treatment the earliest symptoms of ill-health, and to isolate at once every case of serious communicable disease.

Inspection of emigrants.

171. All emigrants, not prevented by sickness, or other cause determined by the Surgeon Superintendent to be sufficient, shall rise not later than 7 o'clock A.M., and shall retire for the night not later than 10 o'clock P.M.

Hours for rising and retiring.

172. The emigrants on rising shall, weather permitting, be sent to the upper deck, and shall not be permitted to return to the between decks while the latter are being cleaned.

Vacating of between decks.

173. While the emigrants are on the upper deck, the between decks, including the spaces under the platforms, shall be swept and cleaned by scrubbing. This duty shall be performed by male emigrants. The planks of the sleeping platforms shall also be dry-scrubbed and, if removeable, aired on the upper deck, at least twice a week, weather permitting.

Cleaning of between decks.

174. The emigrants' clothing and blankets in use shall be aired thoroughly every day; and, whenever possible, in the open air on lines provided for the purpose. Each emigrant shall be responsible for the care of his or her own clothing, and the Surgeon Superintendent shall hold a general muster of all clothing and blankets once a week.

Airing of clothing.

175. The emigrants shall bathe daily when possible, a screen being put up for the women. Those desiring to anoint themselves with mustard or cocoanut oil shall be provided therewith at the Surgeon Superintendent's discretion. Emigrants' clothes shall be washed by them at least twice a week.

Bathing and washing.

176. The forenoon meal shall be served out to the emigrants by 9 o'clock, and the afternoon meal by 4 o'clock; and both meals shall be served on the upper deck whenever practicable.

Hours for meals.

177. The Surgeon Superintendent shall, in connection with the daily feeding of emigrants on the voyage, adhere strictly to the articles and their quantities as prescribed in the weekly diet scale. Ordinarily, he may exercise his discretion in regard to alterations in the proportions, and to the mode of preparation of the articles intended for daily consumption; the daily issues, in whatever way varied, being so regulated as to fulfil, by the close of each week, the requirements of the weekly diet scale. Extraordinarily, under special or unlooked-for circumstances, a departure may be made from the requirements of the weekly scale. If for any sufficient reason, it becomes impossible to cook the meals, dry provisions shall be issued as provided in the scale of provisions. Whenever dry provisions are substituted for cooked food, an entry of the fact and of the circumstances necessitating it shall be made in the Surgeon Superintendent's journal. In the dieting of the sick the Surgeon Superintendent shall have absolute discretion.

Observance of dietary scale.

178. The meals shall be served out to the emigrants in the presence of the Surgeon Superintendent, who shall see that the food is well cooked, and fairly distributed.

Inspection of food.

179. Special attention shall be paid by the Surgeon Superintendent to the feeding of children and of the sick. Besides their usual meals, the children of seven years of age and under shall be provided, in the early morning, with a light meal of farinaceous food mixed with milk. Arrangement shall be made for feeding the sick at stated intervals, and the Surgeon Superintendent shall take effective measures to prevent any neglect on the part of those told off for the duties of night nursing.

Care of children and the sick.

180. After every meal, the decks shall be carefully swept; all the cooking utensils shall be thoroughly cleaned; and no stale food shall be allowed to be secreted or consumed by either cooks or emigrants.

Non-consumption of stale food.

181. Emigrants shall be encouraged to spend most of their time in taking exercise, and amusing themselves in the fresh air of the upper deck, noisy amusements, such as singing and playing on drums, ceasing at 8 bells.

Open air exercise.

182. Emigrants suffering from slight illness may be attended in their berths; but all serious cases shall be treated in hospital. Patients attacked by cholera, or small-pox, or other dangerous communicable disease, shall, together with all their property, be instantly and thoroughly isolated from the other emigrants; and the family or batch in which such disease shall have occurred shall be kept on another deck, if such a deck is available, or as far apart as possible from the rest of the emigrants.

Treatment of sick emigrants.

183. Besides the immediate isolation and treatment of the first case or cases of dangerous communicable disease, every precaution shall be taken to prevent an epidemic, strict attention being paid to premonitory symptoms, general and personal cleanliness, careful disinfection and disposal of excreta, disinfection and destruction of infected articles, free ventilation, and care of the healthy. On the occurrence of cholera, a register of the cases shall be kept in the prescribed Form No. 51.

Measures for prevention of an epidemic.

184. For the purpose of isolating the sick or segregating infected persons, the Master shall give up, if required to do so by the Surgeon Superintendent, any suitable places that may be available in any part of the ship, and shall put up tarpaulins or other shelter for those so isolated or segregated.

Utilization of available places in cases of epidemic.

185. Places originally occupied by emigrants removed on account of communicable disease shall be instantly cleaned, and the deck shall be thoroughly scrubbed and disinfected.

Measures of disinfection.

186. All clothes, blankets, mats, &c., that have been in any way in contact with those suffering from serious communicable disease, or which have been soiled, or are suspected of infection or impurity, shall be thrown overboard in the presence of the Surgeon Superintendent.

Destruction of infected articles.

187. Unless contagious or infectious disease be the cause of death, the corpse of an emigrant shall not be committed to the sea until six hours after death, and under no circumstances shall any burial take place until the death has been verified by the Surgeon Superintendent, Master, and Chief Officer.

Burial of deceased emigrants.

188. A correct inventory of the goods or effects of every emigrant dying on the voyage, when not claimed by some person lawfully entitled thereto, shall be made by the Master and Surgeon Superintendent conjointly; and the Surgeon Superintendent shall enter a copy thereof in the register of deceased emigrants' property in Form No. 52, with such particulars as he may be able to collect as to the names and addresses of the nearest relatives of the deceased, the Master in every case attesting the correctness of such entry by affixing his signature in the appropriate column.

Effects of deceased emigrants.

189. The Surgeon Superintendent shall keep the following records during the voyage, and shall make them over, with his list of emigrants to the proper Colonial Government officer at the port of debarkation for transmission to the Protector of Emigrants concerned in India.

Life-boats.—Of the total number of boats, at least two shall be carried at the quarters, and fitted as life-boats, with Clifford's or other approved lowering apparatus. The hatchet or tomahawk, which is to be kept in each end of each life-boat, shall be in good order and attached with a lanyard: a life-jacket or belt for each oarsman, and one for the cockswain, shall also be provided: and a life line in loops shall run round the outside of the boat, and be securely made fast.

No life-jacket or belt shall be approved that is not capable of floating in the water for 24 hours with 23lb of iron suspended from it. To ensure this buoyancy, a life-jacket, in which the cork must be exposed and have a canvas back and straps only, shall weigh 5lb when dry.

Life-jackets.

Number.—At least six life-buoys shall be provided, two of which shall be fitted with float signals. Six small and two large Holme's distress signals shall besides be provided for night use.

Life-buoys.

All cork life-buoys shall be constructed of solid cork, and fitted with life lines and loops securely seized to them. No life-buoy shall be approved that will not float for 24 hours in water with 32lbs of iron suspended from it.

Substitute—In lieu of life-buoys made of solid cork, any other strong life-buoys of an approved pattern, capable of floating in the water for 24 hours with 40lbs. of iron suspended from them, may be accepted. No contrivance shall be approved as a life-buoy that requires inflation before use.

Fastening.—Life-buoys with lines attached shall be secured by toggle and becket, or by any other similar method allowing of their rapid release. They shall not be lashed or seized to the rail or any other part of the vessel, but shall be kept so as to be ready for use at a moment's notice in case of emergency.

Examination.—In all cases, the Marine Surveyor shall carefully examine the life-buoys, satisfy himself of their buoyancy, and shall see that the materials of which they are composed have not become sodden, and that the lines attached to them are sufficient.

Penalties.—The Marine Surveyor shall call the attention of owners and masters to the penalties imposed under section 293 of the Merchant Shipping Act for not keeping the boat and efficient life-buoys in constant readiness.

Crew of emigrant vessel.

Scale according to tonnage of the number of hands to be carried in sailing and steam-vessels.

Sailing vessels.—(a) For the first 500 tons and under, Europeans four hands, and natives six hands to every 100 tons.

(b) From 600 to 1,500 tons, Europeans two additional hands, and natives three additional hands to every additional 100 tons.

(c) From 1,500 tons upwards, Europeans and natives one additional hand to every additional 100 tons.

Steam vessels.—(a). For the first 500 tons and under, Europeans three hands, and natives five hands to every 100 tons.

(b) From 600 to 1,500 tons, Europeans one and a half additional hands, and natives two additional hands to every additional 100 tons.

(c) From 1,500 tons upwards, Europeans half an additional hand, and natives one additional hand to every additional 100 tons.

The total number of hands shall include the master and the four officers: and two-thirds of the ship's company, exclusive of the master and the four officers, shall be made up of (A. Bs.) able seamen. In case of mixed crews the number shall be in proportion.

The master and the four officers shall possess certificates of competency corresponding to their rank; or in the case of the officers, certificates of higher grade and not only of service; and shall not be natives. They shall, if a native crew be carried, be capable of issuing their orders intelligibly. In the case of steam-vessels, no steamer shall carry less than three engineers: and every steamer of one hundred nominal horse-power and upwards as per ship's register shall carry, as First Engineer, an engineer holding a first class certificate; and as Second Engineer, an engineer holding a second class certificate or a certificate of a higher grade, being in every case certificates of either competency or service, but not of inland service. In steamers of under one hundred nominal horse-power, the First Engineer shall hold a second class certificate or a certificate of a higher grade, of either competency or service, but not of inland service. The engine-room crew, exclusive of the three engineers, shall be in number not less than in the ratio of six men for every hundred nominal horse-power, if Europeans; and nine men, if natives.

Decks and deck openings.

Between-decks.—Thickness.—The between-decks shall be at least one and a half inch thick, properly laid, and thoroughly caulked and paid throughout.

Height.—The between-decks shall in no case be less in height from deck to deck than six feet, and emigrants shall not be accommodated in any lower passenger deck than the between-decks.

Iron decks.—Every vessel bound to any place west of the Cape of Good Hope, or to Fiji viâ South Australia, having iron between-decks, shall have a water-tight wooden deck properly laid over it.

Hatches.—The hatches of the between-decks shall not have gratings, but shall be solid, strong, in good condition, and well fitted. Any hatch that is not to be caulked for the voyage shall be closed, and covered with sound tarpaulins properly fastened down to the combings by means of iron bars securely locked.

Air holes.—All air holes and other apertures, likely to allow the escape of effluvia from the cargo or bilge into the between-decks, shall be effectually closed.

Pipes.—All pipes leading from the ship's water-closets, baths, or cisterns shall be ascertained by the Marine Surveyor to be perfectly sound and in good order. The pipes intended for the conveyance anywhere of sea, soiled, or waste water shall not pass through drinking water tanks; nor shall they be allowed to continue in any position in which they are likely by leaking to contaminate the purity of the drinking water, or of the air in the between-decks or other places intended for the accommodation of emigrants.

Upper deck thickness.—The upper deck of every emigrant vessel shall be properly laid, thoroughly caulked and paid throughout: and its thickness shall not be less than that given in Lloyd's rules for scantling according to the tonnage of the vessel.

Iron deck.—Every vessel with an iron upper deck shall have such deck covered with a properly laid water-tight wooden deck.

Structures.—All structures and fittings on the upper deck, such as the poop or round-house, deck-houses, galleys, water-closets, and booby-hatches, shall be strongly constructed; and if they are to be utilized for emigrants, the Marine Surveyor shall satisfy himself that they are properly built and secured, and that they conform to the regulations governing space and ventilation.

Lumber.—No lumber of any kind shall be placed on the upper deck, and all the necessary fittings, water-tanks, tubs, and spare spars shall be properly secured to the Marine Surveyor's satisfaction.

Water tanks.—The soundness, purity, and capacity of main tanks, or other fixed receptacles for water shall be examined and certified by the Marine Surveyor. Excepting after-compartments, if approved, no receptacles for water that form part of the hull of the vessel shall contain drinking water for either emigrants or crew.

Hold.

Bilges.—The purity of the bilges shall be ascertained, and they shall be disinfected, if necessary, to the satisfaction of the Marine Surveyor.

SCHEDULE B.

VENTILATION AND LIGHTING OF EMIGRANT VESSELS.

General Rules.

The requirements of this schedule shall apply to all steam and sailing vessels chartered for the conveyance of emigrants.

2. The ventilation of the between-decks shall be distinct from that of the hold.

3. All air-holes in the between-decks communicating with the hold shall be effectually closed, to prevent the escape into the between-decks of foul air from the bilge, or of steam from the cargo; and all ventilating shafts, tubes, or other openings intended to promote the ventilation of the hold, shall be fitted to act independently of those adapted to the requirements of the between-decks ventilation.

The size and situation of all ventilators for the between-decks and hold respectively shall be determined with due regard to their efficiency and the safety of the vessel by the Marine Surveyor, who shall satisfy himself that all the appliances for both natural and artificial ventilation meet the requirements of the rules, and are in good working order.

The Marine Surveyor, on determining the size and situation of the requisite ventilators, shall cause the dimensions and positions of the between-deck ventilators to be marked with chalk or paint on the under surface of the upper deck so as to afford the Medical Inspector, when holding his primary inspection, an opportunity of judging of the intended means of ventilation, and of indicating any alterations which he may deem necessary in respect thereof.

Natural ventilation of between-decks.—Besides hatchways, cowls, or air-shafts, every vessel shall be provided with properly fitted double scuttles on each side, one of glass and one of metal, fitted independently of each other to the side of the ship. These shall be placed about 14 feet apart, and as close under the upper deck as possible; and with a view to prevent emigrants tampering with them, they shall fasten, when closed, by means of square-headed screw bolts without handles, capable of being opened only with a carpenter's spanner.

Exclusive of side and sternports, and, in steamers, of openings into the engine-room, stoke-holes, coal-bunkers, collision compartments, and screw tunnel, the effective size, or sectional area of the hatch openings and of other apertures for the ventilation of emigrants' compartments taken collectively, shall be calculated at the rate of not less than 50 square inches per emigrant, and at least one-fifth of such ventilating area shall be available even in excessively bad weather, necessitating the closing of hatches.

In view of the varying conditions to be dealt with, of the importance of fresh air, and of the facilities for reducing or modifying ventilation, any existing openings in excess of the prescribed approximate requirement shall not be closed, even on other grounds, without the written authority of the Marine Surveyor.

The relative positions of ventilating tubes or shafts in emigrant vessels shall be governed by the following rules:—

(a). A pair of cowl-headed tubes, or one large central tube or air-shaft, shall be fitted as far aft as possible, and similar ventilators shall be fitted as far forward as possible; and in no case shall they be more than six feet from the extreme end or bulk-head, aft or forward respectively, so that the between-decks may be thoroughly ventilated. All other tubes or air-shafts needed for the between-decks shall, as far as practicable, be so distributed in the intervening spaces between the several hatchways as to ensure throughout an equable supply of fresh air.

(b). Inlets for fresh air shall be so placed as to avoid, as much as possible, the risk of receiving the foul air from outlets.

(c). With a view to secure for ventilators the support and protection of the solid structures of the ship, and thus render them capable of being kept open in bad weather when the hatches have to be closed, as large a proportion as possible of the required ventilation shall be secured through cowl-headed tubes and air-shafts carried up directly from the between-decks to the open air above through the poop, deck-houses, and forecastle.

Such portions of the upper deck hatchways as are not fitted with storm hatches, and can safely be utilized for ventilation, shall be kept open, but shall be protected against accidents by iron gratings admitting of the hatches being closed and their covers readily put on when necessary. The appropriate hatches and their tarpaulins shall be securely and conveniently placed near the hatchways to which they belong for immediate use when needed.

Cowl-headed tubes shall, when practicable, be preferred to air-shafts. But when cowls are largely or exclusively employed, and the decks are consequently dark, a sufficient number of deck-lights shall be fixed into the upper deck.

Every cowl-headed tube shall be fitted with an air diffuser at its lower end, and with a suitable plug for closing the deck opening in bad weather; and every air-shaft shall be provided with a sky-light cover, and a tarpaulin to be spread tent-fashion over it in wet weather, obviating the necessity for closing the sky-light cover for every passing shower.

No less than five wind-sails, each measuring fully 21 feet long, shall be provided for the exclusive use of the emigrants.

Of the cargo hold.—Exclusive of ventilation through hollow iron masts, the hold of every steam or sailing vessel shall be fitted, to the satisfaction of the Marine Surveyor, with cowl-headed ventilators, having an aggregate sectional area of not less than 4 square feet to every 1,000 tons of the vessel's register: and the mouth of every such cowl shall be protected by a convex wire netting protector, one-fourth inch mesh, against the possibility of live embers from pipes or chillams being thrown down into the hold.

The stoppage of ventilation through the masts or other ventilating openings shall be guarded against by arranging the dunnage and cargo about the outlets in such manner as to secure the continuous escape of foul air.

Ventilation.—Every sailing and steam vessel carrying emigrants to colonies west of the Cape shall be fitted with some efficient contrivance to be approved by the Protector and Medical Inspector of Emigrants for artificially ventilating the between-decks and hold. Provided that vessels which are at the time of the publication of these rules fitted with ventilating apparatus, approved under the rules under Act VII of 1871, shall be permitted to continue running with such apparatus. In the case of a vessel that is again chartered for the conveyance of coolies, the means of natural ventilation fitted for the last voyage need not be interfered with, provided that the Protector and Medical Inspector of Emigrants are satisfied that they continue the same and were found to be sufficient on that voyage.

SCHEDULE C.

At the time of survey the condenser shall be worked, the condensed water being delivered into a tub large enough to contain at least the quantity delivered by the condenser during the space of half an hour. This quantity shall be accurately measured by a stamped imperial gallon measure, to be furnished by the ship, and no allowance shall be made for any waste occurring from defective arrangements, that is to say, once the time has been taken as commencing the experiment, the quantity of water produced in the next half hour shall determine the efficiency of the machine.

SCHEDULE D.

FITTINGS FOR EMIGRANT VESSELS.

General Rules.

1. Whenever suitable and consistent with requirements, iron or other metal shall be employed in the construction of an emigrant ship's fittings. The water-closet seats or foot-rests, floors or troughs and their shoots, shall invariably be of metal or lined with zinc or lead, properly fastened or soldered.

Metal fittings.

2. Where wood has to be employed as in the case of bottom boards for bunks and sleeping platforms, it shall be of sufficient thickness—at least one inch—and smoothly planed before being utilized for any purpose. The wood used in constructing the combings of booby hatches, stanchions, and other supporting frames or structures shall not be less than three inches square; and the thickness of the planking used for platforms, bunks, water-closets and other similar purposes shall not be less than one inch.

Wooden fittings.

3. All fittings shall be strongly put together, and all hinges, bolts, clamps, metal ventilating tubes, cowl-heads and their deck phlanges, and every other description of fittings shall be thoroughly well fastened against rough usage.

Fastenings of fittings.

4. The cast-off wooden fittings of any emigrant vessel shall on no account be employed in fitting any other emigrant vessel; nor shall the wooden fittings of a previous voyage be utilised for any succeeding voyage without the written permission of the Medical Inspector of Emigrants obtained by the master during the primary inspection of his vessel.

Old fittings.

Fittings of the Upper Deck.

1. The hospital shall, in every case, be on the upper deck, and shall be fitted in a deck house except in vessels proceeding to Fiji by the South Australian route, in which, if practicable, the forward poop cabins shall be fitted for hospital purposes. In the absence of a suitable deck-house, the hospital-house shall be built as strong, secure, and water-tight as a deck-house should be. The doors of the hospital-house shall, when practicable, be fitted aft, and accommodation shall be provided therein for two per cent. of the total number of emigrants to be carried in the vessel at the rate of 18 superficial feet per emigrant. The hospital space shall be divided by means of a bulk-head or screen, which shall be so constructed as not to interfere with ventilation, into two compartments for the separate accommodation of male and female patients, and shall be ventilated, lighted, and fitted to the satisfaction of the Medical Inspector. The bunks shall be constructed to fold out of the way when not needed, and shall be fitted with either bottom boards, or strong sacking bottoms, tightly stretched and securely fastened. In either case the bottoms shall be removeable and capable of being thoroughly cleaned, aired, and renewed if necessary during the voyage.

Hospital.

2. A well lighted and suitably fitted dispensary shall be provided either in a deck-house, or in one of the forward poop cabins subject to the approval of the Medical Inspector. The dispensary shall be a compartment separate from the hospital or compounder's cabin, and shall be capable of holding a fitted medicine chest, a folding table, a small dispensary stove for the warming of food, &c., for patients during the night, and racks for drugs and appliances in immediate use. It shall be provided with a lock and key.

Dispensary.

3. A store-room, sufficiently large to hold all the medical comforts (excepting wines and spirits), and a day's issue of ordinary provisions, shall be fitted in a deck-house or in one of the poop cabins, and shall be provided with lock and key.

Store-room.

4. A small compartment for the safe custody of all the spirits and wines stored for emigrant passengers and ship's use shall be provided in one of the cabins which shall be fitted with lock and key.

Spirit-room.

5. There shall be provided and fitted up in a covered space on the upper deck of every emigrant vessel an apparatus for distilling fresh from salt water (either Normandy's, Graveley's, Chaplin's, or such other, as may be approved by the Marine Surveyor) of a size calculated to yield as many gallons of distilled water in 24 hours as will be needed under scale allowance for the full number of emigrants and crew the vessel can legally carry. The apparatus shall be carefully examined and tested by the Engineer-Surveyor, who shall not give a certificate to the master until he is satisfied that all the requirements of the schedule have been complied with.

Distilling apparatus.

6. The emigrants' galley shall be provided in a deck-house and in a compartment separate from that of the ship's or crew's galley. It shall be fitted with a steam cooking apparatus approved by the Marine Surveyor; and also with an ordinary cooking range, capable of baking chuppatis for the total number of emigrants to be carried, as well as of accommodating, in the event of any accident to the steam cooking apparatus, the full number of large-size regulation boilers to be put on board. A suitable lever with chains and hooks for lifting the boilers off the fire shall also be provided.

Galley.

7. Structure.—Latrines shall be fitted in convenient positions close against the bulwarks, so that their soil shoots may lead immediately out of ports or other suitable openings, and be projected well beyond the vessel's side. They shall be well built, securely fastened to the deck and bulwarks, and made water-tight.

Latrines.

Blocks.—The latrines shall be in four separate blocks; two forward on the port and starboard side of the vessel respectively being reserved for men, and two aft on the port and starboard side respectively for women and children. Each block shall be provided with an inclined continuous metal floor or trough, as free as possible from obstructive angles, and terminating in the soil shoot with a good fall, favouring a free discharge of soil and fluids.

Compartments.—Every block shall be divided into separate private compartments, well ventilated, and lighted throughout the night by means of a safety lantern, so fitted as to distribute its light into all the compartments.

The total number of compartments shall be regulated according to the following scale:—

Number of emigrants to be carried.	Number of compartments. To be fitted on each side of deck. For men in forward block.	For women and children in after block.	Total number.	Total number on both sides.	Remarks.
For under 150	2	1	3	6	There should be three compartments on each side for any number under the first 150 emigrants, and in order to avoid crowding the decks with a larger number of closets than have been found by experience to be sufficient, such number should not be increased at a higher rate than one compartment to every additional 50 emigrants.
„ 150 and under 200	2	2	4	8
„ 200 do. 250	3	2	5	10
„ 250 do. 300	3	3	6	12
„ 300 do. 350	4	3	7	14

„ 600 do. 650	7	6	13	26
„ 650 do. 700	7	7	14	28

Each compartment shall measure 22 inches in breadth and 28 inches in length, and the seat in it shall be 22 inches square. A metal foot-rest and hand-rail shall be fitted on either side of each compartment. Each of the foot-rests shall be seven inches wide, and they shall be so placed as to leave between them a central opening eight inches wide, directly over the closet floor or trough below. Every compartment shall, moreover, be fitted with a strongly hinged door, capable of closing automatically, and of being bolted or buttoned outside as well as inside, and each door shall have a double knotted hand-rope or becket passed through it for a handle. The three sides of each compartment, if of wood, shall be lined with metal to the height of one foot from the foot-rests.

Cemented floor.—The portion of the upper deck occupied by the latrines shall be cemented and coal-tarred throughout.

Steps.—Should the seats of any latrine compartment be unavoidably high, a convenient step shall be provided at the entrance.

Flushing.—With a view to the latrines being freely and frequently flushed by means of a hose and force-pump from the outside, a metal funnel shall be inserted under the foot-rests at each end of every block to admit a free discharge of water over the floor or trough of the latrine below.

A strongly constructed platform shall be fitted between the skids or in some other convenient place aft, and shall be of sufficient size to admit of the stowage without crushing of the stock of onions on one side and of potatoes on the other, with a passage between; and of the slinging, if necessary, of the pumpkins under it. Two tarpaulins also shall be provided, each large enough to spread over the onions and potatoes respectively so as to effectually shelter them from rain. Such other tarpaulins as may be needed for the protection of pumpkins or other vegetables in exposed places shall also be provided.

Platforms for vegetables.

8. The following miscellaneous requirements for the upper deck shall also be provided.

Tanks.—At least one conveniently placed and properly secured iron tank, capable of holding a day's allowance of water for the total number of emigrants to be carried, and fitted with an efficient rapid filter; a locked cover for the manhole, a discharge pipe near the bottom for cleaning the tank, and at least two moderate sized taps, about one foot from the bottom and clear of sediment, with removable keys for each. Should a second tank be found necessary, it shall be similarly fitted, if not united, to the first by means of a connecting pipe about a foot from the bottom of each, admitting of its contents flowing into the first.

Miscellaneous requirements.

Sheep pens.—Sheep pens for emigrants' sheep separate from those required for the ship's sheep.

Dirt shoot.—A portable metal dirt shoot leading out of any port hole.

Bathing screen.—A canvas bathing screen for the women.

Booby hatches.—The hatchways of vessels bound to places east of the Cape, and to Fiji viâ Torres Strait, shall be fitted with strong iron frames for the support of closely fitting tarpaulins capable of being rolled up out of the way in fine weather; but those of vessels bound to places west of the Cape, and to Fiji viâ South Australia shall be fitted with strongly built water tight booby hatches, fastened securely outside the hatchway combings, leaving a few inches space all round between the combings and the inner sides of the booby hatches for the fastening, when necessary, of the ordinary hatches and their tarpaulins without interfering with the booby hatches. Whenever practicable, the booby hatches shall be so constructed as to admit of the ladders leading down into the between-decks being placed fore and aft, and of their lids opening, so that the gangway may be either at the forward or after end of the hatch, whichever proves most convenient; but in any case, to avoid accidents, the open spaces under the lids opposite the gangways shall be protected by means of iron rod gratings. The lids when open shall rest against, and be capable of being securely fastened to, strong gallows fitted to each hatch; and should they be large, each lid shall be divided into two parts capable of being folded back twice.

Hatchways.

Tent tarpaulins.—Every hatchway shall be provided with a large tarpaulin, which can be spread tent-fashion over it in wet weather. In the case of any hatchway that is fitted with a storm-hatch, and also with an adjoining grating for ventilation, the tarpaulins shall be sufficiently large to completely cover and protect from rain not merely the storm-hatch but also the grating covered ventilating portion of the open hatch.

Fittings of the between-decks.

There shall be a totally separate compartment in the fore part of the between-decks for the accommodation of the single men; and the division shall be effected by means of a shifting frame with wooden or iron bars vertically placed five inches apart, or of iron netting which can be adjusted to the height and width of the between-decks, so as to form a compartment of such size as will be legally capable of accommodating the number of single men intended to be embarked. A division shall also be made in the after part of the between-decks by means of two wooden or iron bars horizontally placed two feet apart, separating the space intended for the accommodation of the number of single women to be embarked from the central space to be occupied by the married persons.

Compartments of between-decks.

The sides and ceiling of the between-decks, the inner surface of the upper hatch combings, and the between decks themselves, to the extent of at least six feet from the sides all round, shall be properly painted with white zinc paint. The centre of the deck may be painted with coal-tar, or with a mixture of carbolic acid and oil, or any other suitable coating approved by the Medical Inspector.

Painting of woodwork.

Construction.—Strongly constructed sleeping platforms, 6 feet broad by 2 feet high, shall be fitted on each side, and from end to end of the between-decks, to admit of emigrants sleeping either fore-and-aft, or athwart ship, as circumstances of wind and weather may render most convenient. The sleeping platforms may be either fixed or capable of being folded back or raised up, entirely or partially, when not in use. In the latter case, they shall be so fitted as to admit of their being securely fastened, whether in use at night or put out of the way during the day.

Sleeping platforms.

9. Strong ladders, with hand rails on both sides about a foot high, and with a knotted hand rope conveniently near, shall be securely fixed at the hatchways that are not used solely for ventilation purposes, and there shall be at least one at each hatchway fore and aft, and two at the main hatchway.

In ships bound to the West Indies or Fiji viâ South Australia, each hatchway shall be provided with canvas curtains extending from the upper deck hatchway to the combings of the lower deck hatchway; and capable of being either fastened below in order to check drafts of cold air from above, or rolled up out of the way when not required.

Hatchway curtains.

Racks.—A rack shall be fitted aft or forward as most convenient for the storage of the total number of safety lanterns when not in use.

Lanterns.

Hooks.—Hooks for hanging the required number of lanterns at night shall be fixed wherever necessary and at convenient distances apart.
A strong double fore-and-aft rail of bamboo or wood shall be fastened to the central stanchions for the emigrants to hang their clothes, and support themselves by holding it when the ship rolls.

Supports.

Resolution in this Department, No. 33, dated the 4th January, 1886.

RESOLUTION.—The Governor-General in Council having decided that the District and the Post Office Savings Banks should be amalgamated, and that the Post Office organisation being more widely spread and more convenient for the public than the Treasury system, the District Savings Banks should be closed and their accounts transferred to the Post Office Savings Banks, it was announced in the Resolution of 4th January 1886 that the Government District Savings Banks would be closed with effect from the 1st April 1886 and their accounts transferred to the Post Office Savings Banks. It is now announced that the Savings Banks at District Treasuries which are managed by the Banks of Madras and Bombay, will be closed with effect from the 1st June 1886. Any balances in these Savings Banks on the date of closing will be transferred to the Post Office Savings Banks. From the date of receipt of the present orders no new accounts should be opened in any of the Savings Banks at District Treasuries in the Presidency of Madras or Bombay. Any person wishing to open an account in any of those Banks should be directed to apply to a Post Office Savings Bank. Depositors having accounts in those Banks can, in the interval which will elapse before those banks are closed, apply for the transfer of their accounts to some Post Office Savings Bank under the rules which are now in force for such transfers. The Accountants General, Madras and Bombay, and the Director General of the Post Office are authorised to take measures calculated to encourage voluntary transfers of the above nature.

ORDER.—Ordered that the Resolution be communicated to the Accountants General, Madras and Bombay, and the Director General of the Post Office for information and for the issue of further necessary orders, and to the Comptroller and Auditor General for information.

No. 877 G.—Mr. A. Wingate, C.I.E., C.S., Settlement Officer in Meywar, is appointed to officiate temporarily as a Resident of the 2nd Class, and as Resident in Meywar, with effect from the date of assuming charge.

The 29th April, 1886.

No. 900 G.—The following Regulations which have been recently revised by command of Her Majesty the Queen-Empress of India are published for general information:—

REGULATIONS RESPECTING FOREIGN ORDERS.

1. No subject of Her Majesty shall accept a Foreign Order from the Sovereign of any foreign country, or wear the Insignia thereof, without having previously obtained Her Majesty's permission to that effect, signified by a Warrant under Her Royal Sign-Manual.

2. Excepting in the case of Special compliments, Missions to Foreign Sovereigns, such permission shall not be granted to any Subject of Her Majesty unless the Foreign Order shall have been conferred in consequence of active and distinguished Service before the Enemy, either at Sea or in the Field; or unless he shall have been actually and entirely employed, beyond Her Majesty's dominions, in the service of the Foreign Sovereign by whom the Order is conferred.

3. The intention of a Foreign Sovereign to confer upon a British Subject the Insignia of an Order must be notified to Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, either through the British Minister accredited to the Court of such Foreign Sovereign, or through His Minister accredited at the Court of Her Majesty.

4. If the service for which it is proposed to confer the Order has been performed during War, the Notification required by the preceding clause must be made not later than two years after the exchange of the ratifications of a Treaty of Peace.

If the service has been performed in time of Peace, the Notification must be made within two years after the date of such service.

5. After such Notification shall have been received, Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs shall, if the case comes within the conditions prescribed by the present Regulations, and arises from Naval or Military Services before the Enemy, refer it to Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the War Department, previously to taking Her Majesty's pleasure thereupon, in order to ascertain whether there be any objection to Her Majesty's permission being granted.

A similar reference shall also be made to the Commander-in-Chief if the application relates to an Officer in the Army, or to the Lords of the Admiralty if it relates to an Officer in the Navy.

6. When Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs shall have taken the Queen's pleasure on any such application, and shall have obtained Her Majesty's permission for the person in whose favor it has been made to accept the Foreign Order, and wear the Insignia thereof, he shall signify the same to Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Home Department, in order that he may cause the Warrant required by Clause 1 to be prepared for the Royal Sign-Manual.

When such Warrant shall have been signed by the Queen, a Notification thereof shall be inserted in the "Gazette," stating the service for which the Foreign Order has been conferred.

7. The Warrant signifying Her Majesty's permission may, at the request and at the expense of the person who has obtained it, be registered in the College of Arms.

8. Every such Warrant as aforesaid shall contain a Clause providing that Her Majesty's license and permission does not authorise the assumption of any style, appellation, rank, precedence, or privilege appertaining to a Knight Bachelor of Her Majesty's Realms.

9. When a British subject has received the Royal permission to accept a Foreign Order, he will at any future time be allowed to accept the Decoration of a Higher Class of the same Order, to which he may have become eligible by increase of rank in the Foreign Service, or in the Service of his own country; or any other distinctive mark of honor strictly consequent upon the acceptance of the original Order, and common to every person upon whom such Order is conferred.

10. The preceding Clause shall not be taken to apply to Decorations of the Guelphic Order, which were bestowed on British subjects by Her Majesty's predecessors, King George IV. and King William IV., on whose heads the Crowns of Great Britain and of Hanover were united.

Decorations so bestowed cannot properly be considered as rewards granted by a Foreign Sovereign for services rendered according to the purport of Clause 2 of these Regulations. They must be rather considered as personal favors bestowed on British Subjects by British Sovereigns, and as having no reference to services rendered to the Foreign Crown of Hanover.

Foreign Office, February 3rd, 1886.

REGULATIONS RESPECTING FOREIGN MEDALS.

1. Applications for permission to accept and wear Medals which, not being the decoration of any Foreign Order, are conferred by a Foreign Sovereign on British Subjects in the Army or Navy, should be addressed to the Commander-in-Chief or the Lords of the Admiralty, as the case may be, who, if they see fit, may submit the same for Her Majesty's sanction, upon obtaining which they may grant such permission without other formality.

2. Any other British subject, having obtained Her Majesty's permission, is at liberty to accept and wear a Foreign Medal, not being the Decoration of a Foreign Order.

3. No permission is necessary for accepting a Foreign Medal, if such medal is not to be worn.

The following papers relating to the opening of the Colonial and Indian Exhibition, London, on the 4th instant, by Her Majesty the Queen-Empress, which have been received by telegraph from His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, Executive President of the Royal Commissioners, are published for general information :—

COLONIAL AND INDIAN EXHIBITION.

Address by His Royal Highness, the Executive President, to Her Majesty the Queen, on the occasion of the opening of the Exhibition.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR MAJESTY,—As Executive President of the Royal Commissioners appointed by Your Majesty's Royal Warrant of the 18th of November, 1884, for the promotion of an Exhibition of the British Colonial and Indian Empire, and subsequently incorporated by Your Majesty's Royal Charter of the 10th September, 1885, I humbly beg leave to lay before you a brief statement of our proceedings up to the present time. The general interest manifested in the display made by Your Majesty's Colonial and Indian Empire at the Paris Exhibition of 1878 led me, as President of the British Commission, to express a hope that an opportunity might soon occur by which Your Majesty's subjects in England would be enabled to witness the marvellous development which, under your beneficent rule, their brethren and fellow-subjects had attained throughout so many portions of the globe. It was, therefore, with the highest gratification that I accepted Your Majesty's gracious invitation to assume the Executive Presidency of this Commission, the appointment of which by Your Majesty has been the means of making this hope a reality. The invitations which we were empowered by Your Majesty to issue to the Colonial Governments and to the Government of India were forwarded towards the close of the year 1884, and from the answers received it at once became apparent that this undertaking had obtained warm and hearty sympathy throughout Your Majesty's dominions. In Your Majesty's dominion of Canada, throughout your Australasian, African, West Indian, and Eastern Colonies, in your Mediterranean Possessions and elsewhere, grants were voted, Commissions formed, and Executive Commissioners appointed. That the work of preparation was undertaken with enthusiasm and attended with success, is evident from the complete and varied collections which at present fill the buildings through which Your Majesty has just passed. The response received from the Government of India was also of the most cordial character. His Excellency the Viceroy caused, through the Revenue and Agricultural Department, instructions to be issued to every district of Your Majesty's Indian Empire for the collection of objects illustrative of the arts, manufactures, and resources of that great realm. These collections, which now adorn a large section of the Exhibition, have been supplemented by generous contributions from their Highnesses the Princes of India, by collections the formation of which we ourselves have authorised, and by the contributions of private Native exhibitors. We are desirous of bringing under Your Majesty's notice our deep appreciation of the hearty cooperation of the Colonial Governments in this Exhibition, and of taking this exceptional opportunity of stating how greatly we are indebted to the Commissions appointed by these Governments and to the Executive Commissioners on whom the superintendence of the entire work of installation has devolved. We further desire to record the valuable assistance which we have received from Your Majesty's Viceroy, from the Supreme Government of India, and from the various officials who have so ably and thoroughly carried out their instructions. Our grateful thanks are also due to the Colonial Governments, to the Government of India, to the Corporation of the City of London, to many City Companies, and to the firms and individuals who have contributed to the guarantee funds. The fact that the list of subscribers not only includes those whose interests are likely to be specially affected by the Exhibition, but also comprehends every class of the community, supplies a gratifying proof of the universal sympathy and interest which this undertaking has aroused. We venture to avail ourselves of this opportunity to convey to Your Majesty our dutiful and loyal acknowledgments of the interest which Your Majesty has been pleased to take in our labours, proved as it is by Your Majesty's presence here today; nor can I resist a reference to a similar ceremonial presided over by Your Majesty, but a few paces from this spot, thirty-five years ago. On that memorable occasion, the first of its kind, the Prince Consort, my beloved and revered father, filled the position which I, following in his footsteps at however great a distance, now have the honour and gratification of occupying. Your Majesty alone can fully realise with what deep interest my beloved father would, had he been spared, have watched, as their originator, the development of the Exhibitions both in this country and abroad, and with what especial pleasure he would have welcomed one having for its object the prosperity of Your Majesty's Empire, the interests of which he had so much at heart. In the great Exhibition of 1851 Your Majesty's Colonial and Indian Possessions were indeed represented, but their importance was then but little realised, and their present greatness was at that time unforeseen. During the years that have elapsed since 1851, few greater changes have been wrought than the marvellous development of the outlying portions of your Majesty's Empire. It is our heartfelt prayer that an undertaking intended to illustrate and to record this development may give a stimulus to the commercial interests and intercourse of all parts of Your Majesty's dominions: that it may be the means of augmenting that warm affection and brotherly sympathy which is reciprocated by all Your Majesty's subjects; and that it may still further deepen that steadfast loyalty which we, who dwell in the Mother-country, share with our kindred who have elsewhere so nobly done honour to her name.

Reply of Her Majesty the Queen-Empress.

I receive with the greatest satisfaction the Address which you have presented to me on the opening of this Exhibition. I have observed with a warm and increasing interest the progress of your proceedings in the execution of the duties entrusted to you by the Royal Commission, and it affords me sincere gratification to witness the successful result of your judicious and unremitting exertions in the magnificent Exhibition which has been gathered together here today. I am deeply moved by your reference to the circumstances in which the ceremony of 1851 took place, and I heartily concur in the belief you have expressed that the Prince Consort, my beloved husband, had he been spared, would have witnessed with intense interest the development of his ideas, and would, I may add, have seen with pleasure our Son taking the lead in the movement of which he was the originator. I cordially concur with you in the prayer, that this undertaking may be the means of imparting a stimulus to the commercial interests and intercourse of all parts of my dominions by encouraging the arts of peace and industry, and by strengthening the bond of union which now exists in every portion of my Empire.

ODE ON THE OPENING

OF THE

BY

LORD TENNYSON, POET LAUREATE.

Welcome! welcome! with one voice
In your welfare we rejoice,
Sons and brothers that have sent
From Isle and Cape and Continent
Produce of your field and flood,
Mount and mine, and primal wood,
Works of subtle brain and hand,
And splendours of the morning land,
Gifts from every British zone.
Britons hold your own!

May we find, as ages run,
The mother featured in the son!
And may yours for ever be
That old strength and constancy,
Which has made your fathers great
In our ancient Island State,
And where'er her flag may fly,
Glorying between sea and sky,
Makes the might of Britain known!
Britons hold your own!

Britain fought her sons of yore:
Britain failed; and never more,
Careless of our growing kin,
Shall we sin our fathers' sin—
Men, that in a narrower day,
Unprophetic rulers they,
Drove from out the mother's nest
That young eagle of the West
To forage for herself alone.
Britons hold your own!

Sharèrs of our glorious past,
Brothers, must we part at last?
Shall not we, through good and ill,
Cleave to one another still?
Britain's myriad voices call:
Sons, be welded each and all
Into one Imperial whole,
One with Britain heart and soul,
One life, one flag, one fleet, one throne!
Britons hold your own!

And God guard all!

Telegram from Her Majesty the Queen-Empress, to His Excellency the Viceroy, dated the 5th May, 1886.

Opening of Indian and Colonial Exhibition went off splendidly. Great enthusiasm. Delighted to see so many of my Indian subjects.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR MAJESTY,—As Executive President of the Royal Commissioners appointed by Your Majesty's Royal Warrant of the 18th of November, 1884, for the promotion of an Exhibition of the British Colonial and Indian Empire, and subsequently incorporated by Your Majesty's Royal Charter of the 10th September, 1885, I humbly beg leave to lay before you a brief statement of our proceedings up to the present time. The general interest manifested in the display made by Your Majesty's Colonial and Indian Empire at the Paris Exhibition of 1878 led me, as President of the British Commission, to express a hope that an opportunity might soon occur by which Your Majesty's subjects in England would be enabled to witness the marvellous development which, under your beneficent rule, their brethren and fellow-subjects had attained throughout so many portions of the globe. It was, therefore, with the highest gratification that I accepted Your Majesty's gracious invitation to assume the Executive Presidency of this Commission, the appointment of which by Your Majesty has been the means of making this hope a reality. The invitations which we were empowered by Your Majesty to issue to the Colonial Governments and to the Government of India were forwarded towards the close of the year 1884, and from the answers received it at once became apparent that this undertaking had obtained warm and hearty sympathy throughout Your Majesty's dominions. In Your Majesty's dominion of Canada, throughout your Australasian, African, West Indian, and Eastern Colonies, in your Mediterranean Possessions and elsewhere, grants were voted, Commissions formed, and Executive Commissioners appointed. That the work of preparation was undertaken with enthusiasm and attended with success, is evident from the complete and varied collections which at present fill the buildings through which Your Majesty has just passed. The response received from the Government of India was also of the most cordial character. His Excellency the Viceroy caused, through the Revenue and Agricultural Department, instructions to be issued to every district of Your Majesty's Indian Empire for the collection of objects illustrative of the arts, manufactures, and resources of that great realm. These collections, which now adorn a large section of the Exhibition, have been supplemented by generous contributions from their Highnesses the Princes of India, by collections the formation of which we ourselves have authorised, and by the contributions of private Native exhibitors. We are desirous of bringing under Your Majesty's notice our deep appreciation of the hearty cooperation of the Colonial Governments in this Exhibition, and of taking this exceptional opportunity of stating how greatly we are indebted to the Commissions appointed by these Governments and to the Executive Commissioners on whom the superintendence of the entire work of installation has devolved. We further desire to record the valuable assistance which we have received from Your Majesty's Viceroy, from the Supreme Government of India, and from the various officials who have so ably and thoroughly carried out their instructions. Our grateful thanks are also due to the Colonial Governments, to the Government of India, to the Corporation of the City of London, to many City Companies, and to the firms and individuals who have contributed to the guarantee funds. The fact that the list of subscribers not only includes those whose interests are likely to be specially affected by the Exhibition, but also comprehends every class of the community, supplies a gratifying proof of the universal sympathy and interest which this undertaking has aroused. We venture to avail ourselves of this opportunity to convey to Your Majesty our dutiful and loyal acknowledgments of the interest which Your Majesty has been pleased to take in our labours, proved as it is by Your Majesty's presence here today; nor can I resist a reference to a similar ceremonial presided over by Your Majesty, but a few paces from this spot, thirty-five years ago. On that memorable occasion, the first of its kind, the Prince Consort, my beloved and revered father, filled the position which I, following in his footsteps at however great a distance, now have the honour and gratification of occupying. Your Majesty alone can fully realise with what deep interest my beloved father would, had he been spared, have watched, as their originator, the development of the Exhibitions both in this country and abroad, and with what especial pleasure he would have welcomed one having for its object the prosperity of Your Majesty's Empire, the interests of which he had so much at heart. In the great Exhibition of 1851 Your Majesty's Colonial and Indian Possessions were indeed represented, but their importance was then but little realised, and their present greatness was at that time unforeseen. During the years that have elapsed since 1851, few greater changes have been wrought than the marvellous development of the outlying portions of your Majesty's Empire. It is our heartfelt prayer that an undertaking intended to illustrate and to record this development may give a stimulus to the commercial interests and intercourse of all parts of Your Majesty's dominions: that it may be the means of augmenting that warm affection and brotherly sympathy which is reciprocated by all Your Majesty's subjects; and that it may still further deepen that steadfast loyalty which we, who dwell in the Mother-country, share with our kindred who have elsewhere so nobly done honour to her name.

Reply of Her Majesty the Queen-Empress.

I receive with the greatest satisfaction the Address which you have presented to me on the opening of this Exhibition. I have observed with a warm and increasing interest the progress of your proceedings in the execution of the duties entrusted to you by the Royal Commission, and it affords me sincere gratification to witness the successful result of your judicious and unremitting exertions in the magnificent Exhibition which has been gathered together here today. I am deeply moved by your reference to the circumstances in which the ceremony of 1851 took place, and I heartily concur in the belief you have expressed that the Prince Consort, my beloved husband, had he been spared, would have witnessed with intense interest the development of his ideas, and would, I may add, have seen with pleasure our Son taking the lead in the movement of which he was the originator. I cordially concur with you in the prayer, that this undertaking may be the means of imparting a stimulus to the commercial interests and intercourse of all parts of my dominions by encouraging the arts of peace and industry, and by strengthening the bond of union which now exists in every portion of my Empire.

ODE ON THE OPENING

OF THE

BY

LORD TENNYSON, POET LAUREATE.

Welcome! welcome! with one voice
In your welfare we rejoice,
Sons and brothers that have sent
From Isle and Cape and Continent
Produce of your field and flood,
Mount and mine, and primal wood,
Works of subtle brain and hand,
And splendours of the morning land,
Gifts from every British zone.
Britons hold your own!

May we find, as ages run,
The mother featured in the son!
And may yours for ever be
That old strength and constancy,
Which has made your fathers great
In our ancient Island State,
And where'er her flag may fly,
Glorying between sea and sky,
Makes the might of Britain known!
Britons hold your own!

Britain fought her sons of yore:
Britain failed; and never more,
Careless of our growing kin,
Shall we sin our fathers' sin—
Men, that in a narrower day,
Unprophetic rulers they,
Drove from out the mother's nest
That young eagle of the West
To forage for herself alone.
Britons hold your own!

Sharers of our glorious past,
Brothers, must we part at last?
Shall not we, through good and ill,
Cleave to one another still?
Britain's myriad voices call:
Sons, be welded each and all
Into one Imperial whole,
One with Britain heart and soul,
One life, one flag, one fleet, one throne!
Britons hold your own!

And God guard all!

(2) Every officer seizing property under this section shall place thereon, or on the receptacle (if any) in which it is contained, a mark indicating that the same has been so seized; and shall, as soon as may be, make a report of such seizure to the Magistrate having jurisdiction to try the offence on account of which the seizure has been made:

Provided that when the timber or other forest-produce with respect to which such offence is believed to have been committed is the property of Government and the offender is unknown, it shall be sufficient if the officer makes, as soon as may be, a report of the circumstances to his official superior.

Procedure thereupon.

21. Upon the receipt of any such report the Magistrate shall take such measures as may be necessary for the trial of the accused and the disposal of the property according to law.

Timber, forest-produce, tools, &c., when liable to confiscation.

22. When any person is convicted of a forest-offence, all timber or other forest-produce in respect of which such offence has been committed, and all tools, boats, carts, and cattle used in committing such offence, shall be liable, by order of the convicting Magistrate, to confiscation.

Such confiscation may be in addition to any other punishment prescribed for the offence.

Disposal, on conclusion of trial for forest-offence, of timber or produce in respect of which the offence was committed.

23. 26. Any person claiming to be interested in property seized under section 20 may, within one month from the date of any order passed by a Magistrate under section 22, section 23 or section 24, present an appeal therefrom to the Court to which orders made by such Magistrate are ordinarily appealable; and the order passed on such appeal shall be final.

Saving of power to release property seized.

(2) Any fine so imposed, or any portion thereof, shall, if the convicting Magistrate so direct and the fine or portion be recovered, be given, subject to the direction of the last paragraph of section 545 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, as compensation to the person aggrieved by such seizure or arrest.

32. Every Forest-officer and Police-officer shall prevent, and may interfere for the purpose of preventing, the commission of any forest-offence.

Operation of other laws not barred.

33. Nothing in this Law shall be deemed to prevent any person from being prosecuted under any other law for any act or omission which constitutes a forest-offence, or from being liable under such other law to any other or higher punishment or penalty than that provided by this Law:

Provided that no person shall be punished twice for the same offence.

Power to compound offences.

Presumption that timber or forest-produce belongs to Government.

35. MILITARY DEPARTMENT.

Simla, the 14th May, 1886.

FIELD OPERATIONS.

No. 295.—The Governor-General in Council, in directing the publication of the despatches regarding the recent operations in Upper Burma which resulted in the capture of Mandalay and the overthrow of King Theebaw, desires to place on record his cordial recognition of the admirable manner in which Lieutenant-General Sir H. N. D. Prendergast, K.C.B., V.C., and the troops under his orders carried out the task set before them.

By rapidity of movement, by skilful strategy, and by the exercise of humane forbearance, Sir Harry Prendergast has succeeded, with comparatively little loss to the force under his command, and without unnecessary bloodshed or undue severity towards the enemy, in occupying Mandalay, in capturing its King, and taking possession of the whole of Upper Burma.

For these services the warmest thanks of the Government of India are due to Sir Harry Prendergast, to the officers and men of the Naval Brigade, the British and Native Forces, the Volunteers, and the Indian Marine. They are specially due to Brigadiers-General F. B. Norman, C.B., G. S. White, C.B., V.C., and H. H. Foord, Commanding the Infantry Brigades, to Captain R. Woodward, R.N., Commanding the Naval Brigade, to Colonel W. Carey, Commanding Royal Artillery, Colonel G. E. L. S. Sanford, Commanding Royal Engineers, Commander A. Carpenter, R. N., Indian Marine Survey, and Captain A. Campbell, the senior officer of the Indian Marine.

The Governor-General in Council also desires to record his approbation of the manner in which the various departments of the force have carried out their duties during the campaign. The Medical Department under Deputy Surgeon-General J. McN. Donnelly, M.D., the Commissariat and Transport Departments under Lieutenant-Colonel A. F. Laughton and Major R. H. T. Hill, and the Ordnance Department under Major V. C. Fisher, have proved the complete efficiency of those departments under circumstances of considerable difficulty. Lieutenant-Colonel E. W. Begbie, the Superintendent of Army Signalling, also merits the acknowledgments of the Government of India.

The Governor-General in Council is much indebted to Rear-Admiral Sir F. W. Richards, K.C.B., for the very complete and prompt manner in which His Excellency placed the whole force under his command at the disposal of the Government of India, and for the admirable manner in which the Naval Brigade was organized and equipped.

The Governor-General in Council expresses his hearty thanks to Mr. C. E. Bernard, Chief Commissioner, British Burma, Colonel E. B. Sladen, Chief Political Officer of the Force, and the other civil officers who have assisted them during the recent operations. To Mr. Bernard His Excellency is much indebted for the valuable assistance and personal energy which so much lightened the labour of organizing the force and the flotilla which carried it to Mandalay; also to Colonel Sladen, to whose tact and knowledge of the Burmese people and their language the peaceful surrender of the King was in a great measure due.

The Governor-General in Council also records his appreciation of the assistance rendered by the management of the Irrawaddy Steam Flotilla Company, and the skill shown by the commanders of their vessels.

During the operations which were being conducted in Upper Burma troubles arose on the frontiers of British Burma consequent on raids committed by lawless soldiery and dacoits. These were very promptly suppressed by the troops of the British Burma Division who had not the good fortune to form part of the Expeditionary Force. The thanks of the Government are due for these services, and specially to Major-General L. W. Buck, Commanding the British Burma Division, and Mr. E. S. Symes, Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, for the very efficient measures taken by them to secure and maintain the tranquillity of the province.

The labours of the troops have not yet ended, and they may still be called on to undergo privations and to perform harassing duties; but the Governor-General in Council confidently hopes that, with the aid of the civil officers, the work of pacification and the suppression of dacoity will soon be effected.

It remains for the Governor-General in Council to place on record his gratitude to the Local Governments and Army Departments for the manner in which the Expeditionary Force was organized and despatched. On the 19th October, warning was given to the Commander-in-Chief in India, the Government of Madras, and the Director of Marine that an Expeditionary Force would probably be required for Burma; and on the 21st October orders were issued for the despatch of a division of 3 brigades of Infantry, 6 batteries of Artillery, 6 companies of Sappers, and a Naval Brigade, part of the force embarking at Calcutta, and part at Madras. Embarkation took place simultaneously from both ports on the 1st November, and by the 6th November the entire force had sailed from India completely equipped for service. On the 14th, the force which was in course of concentration on the British Burma frontier crossed the frontier, and hostilities commenced. On the 28th November Mandalay had fallen and the King surrendered. Few expeditions have been conducted to a successful issue with such rapidity and completeness.

The Governor-General in Council desires to express his cordial appreciation of the energy displayed by the Government of Madras, the Provincial Commander-in-Chief of the Madras Army, and the Departments working under their orders for the expeditious and efficient manner in which every detail of the organization and embarkation of the Madras force was carried out. The Government of Madras have very fully acknowledged the services of the following officers as deserving of notice, and the Governor-General in Council wishes now to add to these commendations an expression of his own appreciation of their services :—

Colonel H. P. Hawkes, Commissary-General.
Major-General S. H. E. Chamier, Inspector General of Ordnance.
Surgeon-General J. Irvine, M.D., Medical Staff.
Surgeon-General M. C. Furnell, Indian Medical Department.
Lieutenant J. H. Taylor, R.N.R., Master Attendant.

The Governor-General in Council also desires to thank the Government of Bombay for their cordial response to the requisitions made by the Government of India, and for the rapidity with which their troops were equipped and despatched.

The Governor-General in Council takes this opportunity to thank Sir Donald Stewart, who was Commander-in-Chief in India when the Expeditionary Force in India was organized, for his co-operation and advice; also His Excellency Sir Frederick Roberts for the assistance rendered since his arrival in India. The Governor-General in Council also acknowledges the services rendered by the Adjutant-General and Quartermaster-General in India, and the staff and departmental officers who, under their orders, have carried out the various details connected with the organization and despatch of the force.

The thanks of the Government of India are due to the following officers and their subordinates for the energetic part taken by them in the equipment of the force :—

Colonel J. V. Hunt, C.B., Commissary-General-in-Chief.
Colonel R. C. Low, C.B., Commissary-General for Transport.
Major-General T. E. Hughes, C.I.E., Director-General of Ordnance in India.
Surgeon-General C. D. Madden, Medical Staff.
Surgeon-General B. Simpson, M.D., Indian Medical Department.
Colonel B. Walton, C.I.E., Superintendent and Agent for Army Clothing.

Captain J. Hext, R.N., Director of Marine, for the promptitude and efficiency with which the transports were taken up and fitted; Captain G. O'B. Carew, C.I.E., Deputy Director, and Commander H. A. Street, R.N., Assistant Director.

No. 1465-Camp, dated Fort William, 3rd February, 1886.

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Military Department.

I am directed by the Commander-in-Chief to submit, for the information of Government, the accompanying despatch from the General Officer Commanding the Burma Field Force, detailing the operations carried on by the troops under his command from the date of embarkation at Rangoon to the capture of Mandalay and the surrender of King Theebaw.

No. 39-L, dated 14th January, 1886 (with enclosures).

2. His Excellency desires to record his appreciation of the able manner in which Lieutenant-General Sir Harry Prendergast, K.C.B., V.C., has carried out his orders; and considers that great credit is due to him and all concerned for the rapidity with which the operations have been brought to a successful issue with so small a sacrifice of life.

3. My thanks are due to many for their assistance during the expedition, and I am only awaiting the lists of those whom the Brigadier-Generals desire to bring specially to notice to submit them for the favorable consideration of the Government of India.

No. 39-L, dated Head-Quarters, Mandalay, 14th January, 1886.

From—LIEUTENANT-GENERAL SIR H. N. D. PRENDERGAST, K.C.B., V.C., Commanding the Burma Field Force,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Military Department.

On the 12th November, having arranged the embarkation of troops and departments, and seen a considerable force on board the river steamers and flats, I left Rangoon for Prome.

2. On my arrival at Thayetmyo, on the evening of the 13th November, 1885, I received a message from the Foreign Department, informing me that as the Burman reply to the ultimatum was unsatisfactory, I should advance upon Mandalay when my military preparations were complete.

3. Having heard from the Deputy Commissioner that the Burman outposts had been strengthened on the frontier, that the villagers within British territory were alarmed and deserting their houses, and that a King's steamer with two flats had brought down a great body of soldiers to within six or eight miles of the frontier, and that the intention was to sink the flats as an obstruction, I ordered the armed steamer Irrawaddy, of the Indian Government, and the launch Kathleen to move at daylight on the 14th to reconnoitre the river to a distance of not more than 30 miles, and to capture the King's steamer and flats.

4. On the 14th November I received His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief's orders to carry out operations with the utmost vigour and rapidity possible; and on that day the Irrawaddy, under command of Commander W.R. Clutterbuck, R. N., of H.M.S. Woodlark, and the Kathleen, under Lieutenant F. P. Trench, of H. M. S. Turquoise, found the King's steamer, with the attendant barges, near Nyoung-ben-Maw, on the right bank of the Irrawaddy, about 28 miles above Thayetmyo; and having accepted and returned the fire of the enemy's shore batteries at close quarters, the Irrawaddy cleared the decks of the steamer and flats with her machine guns, and the crews jumped overboard.

The Italians, Cammotto and Molinari, were among the fugitives. The batteries were repassed at very short range, and the prizes towed down by the capturing steamers. The operations were rendered difficult by the rapidity of the current opposite the batteries. Commander Clutterbuck, Lieutenant Trench, and the officers and crews of the Irrawaddy and Kathleen deserve great credit for their courage, and the Indian Marine officers and lascars serving on board the former did their duty with perfect coolness under fire.

5. The little Kathleen, with her crew of sixteen men, repeatedly engaged the shore battery of nine guns at fifty yards range. Her loss was one man severely wounded, viz., Robert Hutchison, gunner's mate of H.M.S. Turquoise.

6. The prizes were valuable, not only as an addition to the means of transport for the Expeditionary Force, but also because their loss delayed the retreat of the enemy somewhat, and prevented them from closing the channel near Nyoung-ben-Maw according to the plans of the Italians which were found in one of the flats.

On the afternoon of the 14th, the leading steamers, containing the Bengal Brigade, anchored at Thayetmyo.

7. On the 15th November, in order to give confidence to the villagers near the frontier, and to re-establish telegraphic communication between the frontier and Allanmyo, I posted two companies of the 2nd Bengal Infantry at Laingha on the frontier, and steamed 15 miles north of the frontier, with all troops that had come up, detail as per margin.

No. 9-1st Cinque Ports Division, Royal Artillery.

3rd Infantry Brigade, under Brigadier-General Norman, C. B., viz.,— Royal Welsh Fusiliers.
2nd Regiment Bengal Infantry.
11th Regiment Bengal Infantry.

2nd Battalion Liverpool Regiment.
1st Madras Pioneers.
12th Madras Infantry.

8. On the 16th the steamers weighed anchor at daybreak, and at 9-15 A.M. a landing was effected at Zoung-gyan-Doung village on the right bank, two miles below the batteries which had fired on the Irrawaddy and Kathleen on the 14th. The column commanded by Colonel W. Rowlandson of the 12th Madras Infantry consisted of the Liverpool Regiment, the 1st Madras Pioneers, and the 12th Madras Infantry.

9. The country on the right bank consists of a series of small steep hills, covered with trees and brushwood.

The landing place was selected so that the enemy could not see the debarkation.

10. Colonel Rowlandson was ordered to lead his force so as to attack the rear of the batteries, and prevent the escape of the enemy. During the advance of the infantry the Irrawaddy, lying 3,000 yards below the enemy's batteries, fired occasional shells into them, to which the enemy replied, but with no effect. Nothing could be more picturesque than the advance of the Liverpool Regiment from hillock to hillock, while the batteries were kept amused by the shells from the Irrawaddy. The turning movement was remarkably well executed, and would have been successful had not the enemy been warned of their danger by phoongyees, or priests, who, protected by their yellow garb, had been allowed to watch the operations of our regiments.

The Burmans fled from their batteries panic-stricken. I caused the eleven guns and carriages found in the batteries to be destroyed, as they could not easily be removed; and I saw the stockade and barracks burnt. While these operations were on hand, the Mule Battery, 9-1st Cinque Ports Division, Royal Artillery, and 1st Battalion Royal Welsh Fusiliers, under the command of Brigadier-General Norman, C.B., landed, and by a circuitous march reached the east face of the stockade of Shing-boung-Weh, where it had been reported that a large force had assembled. The stockade had, however, been deserted, and was burnt.

The force re-embarked late in the afternoon.

11. The leading steamers anchored that night above Toung-Gwen, about 34 miles above Thayetmyo, and at daybreak on the 17th were directed to advance to Maloon and Patanago, about six miles on the right and left banks of the river respectively, and about forty miles from Thayetmyo.

12. As the garrison of Gwe-gyoun-Kamyo were busily employed in strengthening the works there, which are on the left bank about 44 miles from Thayetmyo, it was deemed advisable to attack at once. The troops present were therefore told off as follows:—

1st Brigade.

Liverpool Regiment
1st Madras Pioneers
21st Regiment Madras Infantry
25th Regiment Madras Infantry
} Under Brigadier-General Foord, to march from Patanago, 8 miles, in order to attack the fort of Gwegyoun-Kamyo from the east.

The head-quarters were with the 1st Brigade. Brigadier-General White, C.B., V.C., who arrived somewhat later, to bring up the Cinque Ports Battery, Royal Artillery, and Hampshire Regiment in support of General Foord's brigade. The landing of the troops at Patanago could not be seen from the fort of Gwe-gyoun-Kamyo on account of intervening hills, and the landing of the brigade at Maloon could not, for a similar reason, be seen from Minhla.

13. The following troops—

12th Regiment Madras Infantry,
2nd Regiment Bengal Infantry,
11th Regiment Bengal Infantry,

under command of Colonel T. N. Baker, of the 2nd Bengal Infantry, were ordered to march from Maloon to endeavour to capture the woongye, or governor-general, in his palace west of Minhla, and were ordered to re-embark at Minhla, about 45 miles above Thayetmyo. Majors Macneill and Hill were attached as staff officers, and Commander J. Durnford, R.N., with three seamen of H.M.S. Mariner and three privates of the Royal Welsh Fusiliers, were attached to effect demolitions. Brigadier-General Norman, C.B., and the Royal Welsh Fusiliers had not arrived then, but he took command before evening of the brigade on the right bank.

14. The I.M.S. Irrawaddy and the launch Kathleen were directed to engage Gwe-gyoun-Kamyo at long ranges for two hours, after the landing of General Foord's brigade, or till the British flag should be hoisted at the White Pagoda of Gwe-Gyoun, half a mile east of the Kamyo.

15. The first brigade advanced from the landing place at Patanago at 10 o'clock, and marched for about two hours and forty minutes by a narrow path over the hills, and through the thick jungle, to the White Pagoda.

Two pickets of the enemy were driven in, but no resistance was made, the pickets retiring northwards; not to the fort. The Liverpool Regiment occupied the high ground east of the fort which commands the works, and the enemy being completely surprised by the fire of the soldiers from the east, when they were prepared for attack from the south, west, and north-west, but had not a gun bearing eastward, promptly fled by the north-west gate as the British soldiers advanced with a rush.

16. Of the 1,700 men who, under command of Moung Sanhla-Sin-Bo, garrisoned the fort in the morning, only Moung Sin-Hle-Sin Sya, the second-in-command, and a lieutenant, both dangerously wounded, and two wounded soldiers, remained in Gwe-gyoun-Kamyo; the other wounded men were carried off. Twenty-one guns and ordnance stores were found in the fort.

17. At 11 A.M. Colonel Baker's force left Maloon for the Woon's palace, and after an hour's march the skirmishers of the 12th Madras Infantry, which was the leading regiment, were suddenly checked by a heavy musketry fire from apparently thick and thorny jungle. While the 2nd Bengal Infantry turned the enemy's right flank, the 12th Regiment rallied, and, reinforced by the 11th Bengal Infantry, gallantly broke through the thorny screen, tore over the entrenchment and breastwork of carts and bamboos which concealed the enemy, and dislodged them from the village of Yinna.

18. Thence the brigade moved towards the position which contained the palace and Minhla Pagoda; the plinth of the latter was defended by field artillery and musketry; the country was difficult, and the enemy's fire was hot; but the brilliant leading of the officers, and the dashing onslaught of the men, prevailed against the undisciplined bravery of the Burmans, who broke and fled, leaving six guns as trophies to the victors. The 11th Bengal Infantry bore the brunt of the combat.

19. The brigade then advanced on Minhla redoubt as rapidly as possible by winding paths between gardens and enclosures,—the 12th Madras Infantry on the right, the 11th Bengal Infantry in the centre, and the 2nd Bengal Infantry on the left, under the fire of a 7-pounder, two wall pieces, and the musketry of the defenders.

Before the redoubt had been completely surrounded by the regiments which were trying to keep down the fire of the defenders, Lieutenant-Colonel R. J. B. Simpson, of the 12th Madras Infantry, getting together a few brave men of the 12th Madras Infantry and 11th Bengal Infantry, charged up a steep and broken ramp that led from the ground west of the work to the terre-plein of the work. Foremost among the stormers were Lieutenants H. T. D. Wilkinson, 12th Madras Infantry, and W. K. Downes, 11th Bengal

Infantry, the former of whom was severely and dangerously wounded, receiving no less than five sword-cuts. A footing having been gained within the redoubt, supports immediately followed, and a hot fire was poured into the Burmans, some of whom found shelter in the casemates, whilst others escaped by the east gate, but only to meet the 2nd Bengal Infantry, to whose fire they were so exposed, that many were shot on land, and the remainder, having taken to the water, were either shot or drowned in the river. Within the redoubt were taken 276 prisoners, six guns of cast-iron, five brass rifled guns, and two wall pieces. The redoubt was prepared chiefly for attack on the river face. Our loss was 1 officer killed, 4 officers wounded, 3 men killed, and 23 men wounded. All the wounded, British and Burman, were on board the floating hospital that night. The enemy's loss was about 170 killed and 40 wounded.

20. The navy were employed first in engaging the Gwe-gyoun-Kamyo for two hours; afterwards the Irrawaddy and Kathleen proceeded to attack the Minhla redoubt and a masked battery of four guns on the right bank that opened on them half a mile below the redoubt.

The service thus performed of attracting the attention of the Burmans was of great value to the force attacking by land.

21. On the 18th the detachments shown in the margin were detailed to garrison Gwe-gyoun-Kamyo and Minhla respectively, and orders were given for the demolition of the former, and for the construction of defensive works for the latter.

The I.M.S. Irrawaddy and the Palow, Ngawoon, and Kathleen were sent ahead to reconnoitre. The Italian officers, Cammotto and Captain Molinari, surrendered to Commander Carpenter, R.N., of the Ngawoon.

22. On the 19th November the force advanced to Menbo, 58 miles from Thayetmyo. A barge containing two 6·3″ howitzers was unavoidably lost.

23. On the 20th November the force advanced to Yay-naug-Gyoung, 78 miles from Thayetmyo.

24. On the 21st November the force advanced to Silaymyo, 115 miles from Thayetmyo.

25. On the 22nd November the force advanced to Pagan, 145 miles from Thayetmyo. The I.M.S. Irrawaddy and the Ngawoon, Palow, Yunan, and Kathleen engaged the enemy's battery on a cliff at Nyoun-goo, were uninjured by its fire, drove the enemy from it, and having landed a party, destroyed eleven guns and secured two King's steamers that the enemy had sunk; a flat that had been towed by them was found aground some miles below Pagan. These vessels would have been sunk in the channel if the enemy had had time to place them there.

4 companies 11th Bengal Infantry.

26. On 23rd November the troops shown in the margin were landed at Pagan, and the force advanced six miles.

27. It may be well here to describe the usual formation of the force during the advance. The I.M.S. Irrawaddy, with the Kathleen, took up station some miles ahead to reconnoitre; the Ngawoon, commanded by Commander Alfred Carpenter, R.N., followed to survey and buoy the deep water channels; then came the head-quarter steamer Doowoon, and, following her in succession, the Palow, Yunan, Ananda, Ataran, Panthay, Shoaymyo, Burma, Shintasawboo, Ashley Eden, Yankeentoun, Irrawaddy (Irrawaddy Flotilla Company's), Aloung-Pyah, Thooreah, Talifoh, Rangoon, Mindoon, Panlang, and Vaikema, in single column line ahead at two cables distance. Owing to the difficulty of the navigation, the steamers frequently went aground, and it was not easy to keep station. Communication was maintained in a great measure by the military signallers under Lieutenant-Colonel Begbie, of the Madras Army, and their devotion to duty by day and by night was most praiseworthy. Without them it would have been impossible to carry on operations with the necessary rapidity, as there were but few launches with the force, and they were in constant motion.

28. During the night the fleet was anchored in the same order at a distance of one cable apart, and two armed steam-launches, manned by blue-jackets, were sent a mile ahead as guard-boats with fire-grapnels and blue-lights on board. Crews were also held in readiness to man all the boats of the Naval Brigade to proceed, if necessary, to their assistance with gun-cotton charges, &c., so that any floating obstacle might at once be destroyed or towed into the bank.

29. On the 24th November the Hampshire Regiment and Sappers landed at Kounyuwa, 166 miles above Thayetmyo, to drive the enemy from his entrenchments, and to carry off the guns from a battery that had fired on the Ngawoon, survey ship, the previous evening, and had been silenced by the accuracy of her fire. There were no casualties last night or this morning.

30. The force then proceeded to an anchorage near Mingyan, 180 miles from Thayetmyo, whence the enemy could be seen in considerable force at a stockade about three miles from the left bank of the Irrawaddy below Mingyan. Gold umbrellas were to be seen moving about in the stockade, and columns of soldiers, dressed some in scarlet, some in white, were evidently marching towards the river.

31. Captain Woodward, R.N., gives the following graphic description of what followed:

"The Naval Brigade, assisted by the Royal Artillery in the White Swan, with the Yunan and a gun barge with the Ataran, were ordered to engage. Fire was opened from the Palow's barge, and taken up by the other ships. On nearing the bank small improvised batteries were found armed with small guns and riflemen. A hot fire was kept up for some time, the enemy retreating into the tall grass in rear of the batteries. The ships slowly advanced, silencing the batteries as they proceeded. On nearing the upper end of the town the enemy was found to be strongly entrenched, and supported by a battery commanding the river. The enemy here showed a more determined resistance, and it was not until 6 P.M. that the fire slackened.

During the night occasional shots were fired, and the enemy was finally dislodged and routed at daylight next morning."

32. Late in the evening the Kathleen returned from her station in front to the head-quarters ship, and orders were issued for the landing of the troops on the morrow.

33. On the 25th November part of the force disembarked to dislodge the enemy, who were commanded by the celebrated Hle-Thin, Atwin-Woon, from his entrenchments; but finding that his ingeniously constructed works that commanded the river were deserted, and hearing that the rear-guard had left the stockade inland, twenty guns were destroyed, and the troops re-embarked.

The detachment detailed in the margin was left in the entrenchments that had been laid out, and commenced during the day by the sappers and pioneers. The force then advanced to Yandabo, 194 miles from Thayetmyo, the head-quarters ship anchoring opposite the tree under which the treaty of Yandabo was signed in 1826.

2 guns Bombay Mountain Battery.
2 companies Liverpool Regiment.
4 companies 11th Bengal Native Infantry.
1 company Bombay Sappers.

34. At daylight, on the 26th November, a large flat drifted down towards the fleet; she was caught and sent to Mingyan. At 7-30 A.M. the fleet, having been delayed by fog, started and passed through a line of boats filled with stones prepared for sinking. These boats were cast adrift before the steamers towing flats advanced.

35. At 4 P.M., on the 26th of November, near Nagoun, 223 miles from Thayetmyo, a Burman state barge, flying the King's flag at the stern, and a flag of truce at the bow, paddled down the stream, was taken in tow by one of the steam-launches, and brought alongside the Doowoon, head-quarters ship. In the barge were—

(1) Myoung Shoay-ak Kyouk Myoung, Atwin Woon, the Minister of the Interior.
(2) Oo-Shoay-ak Watima Soot, Woondouk.

Colonel Sladen met the envoys at the gangway, and, after being presented to me, they produced a note, unsigned, in a cover bearing the Royal Peacock seal, of which the following is a translation:—

Dated 4th decrease of Tasoungmon, 1247 (=25th November, 1885).

From—His Excellency the Prime Minister,
To—The Commander-in-Chief of the English War Vessels.

"1. Although the treaty negotiated at Simla was not concluded, the Burmese Government were under the impression that the former friendly conditions would still prevail, and they could not, therefore, believe that the English Government would make war on Upper Burma.

"2. The Burmese Government have always had at heart the welfare and prosperity of the English people. They have all along protected the interests of the Irrawaddy Company's teak trade, and the general interests of all British subjects.

"3. We are desirous of still further protecting British interests as far as lies in our power, both at present and in all future time.

"4. The last letter (ultimatum) forwarded by the British Government contained very important political matter, and our sovereign regrets that the time allowed was too short to allow of serious deliberation.

"5. The English Government ought to have known that the only reason why the Burmese Government in their reply to the said letter did not freely concede all the demands made was because we were not allowed sufficient time for deliberation. It must have been apparent from the tenor of our reply that the Burmese Government was desirous of remaining on terms of amity and friendship.

"6. The Burmese Government did not wholly reject the rights and privileges claimed by the British Government, and we are grieved to find that the English Government, which has always been so friendly, should in the present instance have made immediate war on us. We have simply resisted in order to maintain the reputation of the kingdom and the honor of the Burmese people.

"7. The English are renowned for their just and straightforward action in all matters (political). We look forward, therefore, with confidence to their doing what is just and proper in the present instance.

"8. The country of Burma is one which deserves justice and consideration. We believe that it will receive this consideration at the hands of the English Government.

"9. If this is granted, the kingdom of Burma need not be annexed. It is well to remember, too, that on a former occasion Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen-Empress was pleased to declare publicly that there was no intention on the part of the English Government to annex Burma, unless such a step was necessitated on good cause shown. As no such cause exists, the Great Powers of Europe should not have it in their power to say that the Royal declaration has not been faithfully observed.

"10. In addition to the rights and privileges already granted in our reply to your ultimatum, His Majesty the King of Burma has now declared his will to concede all the other demands which were not at first allowed, because we had not the sufficient time to bring them under our consideration.

"11. His Majesty the King is well disposed (in mind and heart);—he is straightforward and just, and expects the English Government will act in accordance with the wishes expressed in this letter.

"12. By so doing, the world will have no cause to say that the English Government have acted unjustly, or with a disregard of the rules of international law.

"13. The English Government entered our country and attacked us with a number of war vessels. We were obliged to resist. We now desire that hostilities shall cease, and we trust the English Government will meet us half-way, and enter into a treaty by which friendly intercourse may be resumed between the two great countries."

To which the following reply was sent:—

"General Prendergast begs to inform the Ken-Woon-Mengyi, in reply to his letter of this date, that, acting in accordance with the instructions he has received from the Viceroy and Governor-General of India, it is quite out of his power to accept any offer or proposal which would affect the movement of the troops under his command on Mandalay.

"No armistice, therefore, can be at present granted; but if King Theebaw agrees to surrender himself, his army, and his capital to British arms, and if the European residents at Mandalay are all found uninjured in person and property, General Prendergast promises to spare the King's life and to respect his family.

"He also promises not to take further military action against Mandalay beyond occupying it with a British force, and stipulates that the matters in dispute between the countries shall be negotiated on such terms as may be dictated by the British Government.

"A reply to this communication must be sent so as to reach General Prendergast by 4 A.M. to-morrow."

By order,

E. B. SLADEN, Colonel,

Chief Civil Officer,

Burma Field Force.

S.S. 'DOOWOON,'

The 26th November, 1885.

36. While the note was being translated, the envoys stated that the Europeans in Mandalay were uninjured. As both notes had to be translated, and copies of the letter in English and Burmese were requisite, the interview lasted about an hour. The Doowoon, which had been leading the column, eased speed, and allowed the fleet to pass on, so that the Burman officials could form some estimate of the British force, and might feel assured that time would not be granted for diplomacy.

37. After the interview Colonel Sladen, with half-a-dozen sailors of the Royal Navy, boarded a King's war steamer that had been guarded by the Kathleen till his arrival. The envoys ordered the crew to surrender her. She flew the Burmese standard, was armed with six guns, her decks were barricaded, she had Burman soldiers on board, and was lying with steam up, close to the shore. When the steamers approached most of the soldiers deserted, but 57 of them were made prisoners, and a party of the Kathleen's crew took possession of her and brought her up to the fleet. She is in good order and a valuable prize.

38. The fleet anchored seven miles below Ava. Orders were issued for the attack on Ava.

39. On the 27th November the force advanced at daylight, but was delayed for an hour-and-a-half by dense fog. After the landing place below Ava had been sighted, the envoys again came in their gilded boats with 40 rowers, bearing a royal mandate received by telegraph, of which the following is a translation:—

NO. I SENT BY ROYAL ORDER.

From the Hlot Dau to Bo Hmoo, Atwin Woon; Pen Myo-sa Maythit, Atwin Woon; Kyouk-Myoung, Atwin Woon; Wet Ma Soot, Woondouk; Pendalai, Woondouk.

"When the English ships arrive you are on no account to fire on them. Let all the troops keep quiet. Publish this abroad everywhere. The King concedes unconditionally to all the demands made by the Commander of the English Forces as contained in his letter of yesterday's date. You are to let the English Commander know this as quickly as possible."

40. In addition to the redoubt of Ava, the fortified walls of Ava, the Sagain redoubt, and the redoubt of Thabyadan, other entrenchments and batteries had been prepared, and the river had been blocked from bank to bank, so that our vessels and troops might be detained under the fire of the enemy's artillery.

41. Having explained to the envoys that I could not leave a large force with artillery in my rear, I demanded the immediate surrender of the arms in Ava and the adjacent works. They considered reference to Mandalay necessary on this point; but, while awaiting the reply, the envoys accompanied me on board the Palow to point out the easiest place for making a passage through the barrier; and the Palow advanced to Ava, the other ships keeping station.

42. After a channel had been found and buoyed out by Commander Carpenter, R.N., I again demanded the arms, and when there was still delay I signalled to the ships placed under Captain Woodward's orders to prepare to engage the batteries, and to the troops to land.

On this one envoy went on shore, and at once returned with the royal mandate for the surrender of the arms.

43. Colonel Sladen went on shore at Ava, with the envoys, to give orders for the guns and muskets to be relinquished quietly; the Royal Welsh Fusiliers landed, and the Burmans, filing past, laid hundreds of muskets, rifles, and swords at their feet; and fatigue parties of his brigade were employed by Brigadier-General Norman till after dark in carrying off guns from the batteries and small arms from the places where they had been laid down. So at Sagain and Thabyadan, the guns and small arms were taken by Brigadier-General White and his brigade on the afternoon of the 27th, and early on the 28th all the disbanded soldiers were set free. A return of ordnance captured is appended.

44. The three redoubts were designed and built by the Italian Barbieri. Those of Ava and Thabyadan are provided with excellent casemates. Sagain and Ava redoubts are very well placed for disputing the passage of the river at the point where the fair way is contracted by natural rocks and shoals.

45. On the 28th November the force advanced to Mandalay. No soldiery appeared, but thousands of peaceful Burmans crowded to the bank to see the fleet. In the afternoon the force marched unopposed to the palace, and took charge of the gates of the city and palace. Colonel Sladen had a long interview with the King in the palace. Brigadier-General White, C.B., V.C., remained with the Hazara Battery, Hampshire Regiment, and 1st Pioneers to guard His Majesty.

46. On the 29th November, at 2 P.M., accompanied by my staff and the principal ministers of State, I visited the King in a pavilion within the precincts of the palace, and assured him that it was for the good of his country that he should leave it without delay. The Queen-mother and Queens were present during the interview. At 3-30 P.M. Theebaw and the ladies of his family were led forth from the palace through the throne-room, between avenues of British soldiers, to the bullock carriages prepared to carry them to the S.S. Thooreah, in which, guarded by two companies of the Liverpool Regiment, and escorted by the Ngawoon, manned by the Royal Navy, they were conveyed to Rangoon.

Brigadier-General Norman, C.B., commanded the escort consisting of No. 9-1st Brigade, Cinque Ports Division, Royal Artillery, the Mounted Infantry corps, Royal Welsh Fusiliers, and the 23rd Madras Light Infantry.

47. At Mandalay were captured not only 1,177 guns, 369 wall pieces, and 6,723 stand of small arms, but also the royal dockyard, powder factory, saw mills, gun factory, arsenal, and powder magazine, some crown jewellery, and more than a lakh of peacock rupees.

48. A return of casualties, from all causes, will be forwarded with the next despatch. The enemy's casualties included about 180 killed, 333 prisoners, and 100 wounded, but cannot be correctly estimated.

H. N. D. PRENDERGAST,
Lieut.-General,
Commanding Burma Field Force.

No. 1673-A, dated Simla, 28th April, 1886.

From—MAJOR-GENERAL SIR T. D. BAKER, K.C.B., Adjutant-General in India,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Military Department.

With reference to this office No. 1465-Camp of 3rd February, 1886, submitting a despatch from Lieutenant-General Sir Harry Prendergast, relative to the military operations in Upper Burma, and to the report of Major-General Buck with regard to the operations in Lower Burma, received under Military Department No. 352-B-B, dated 5th March, 1886, I am now directed by the Commander-in-Chief to forward, for submission to the Government of India, the accompanying despatch from Lieutenant-General Sir Harry Prendergast, in which the services of the officers and troops engaged in the campaign are brought to notice.

2. The Commander-in-Chief considers that the eminent success which attended this expedition is attributable to the able manner in which the General Officer Commanding carried out his instructions, to the gallant and good service of the officers and troops engaged, and to the efficient organization of the force.

3. The Commander-in-Chief has much pleasure in bringing to the notice of Government the excellent service rendered by the Royal Navy and Royal Marines, and their cordial co-operation, which tended greatly to the success of the expedition.

4. In conclusion, I am directed to state, for the information of Government, that in a supplementary despatch received from General Prendergast, dated 31st ultimo, the following officers have been brought to notice :—

Captain V. A. Schalch, 11th Bengal Infantry, for good service rendered as Brigade-Major.
Lieutenant C. P. Fendall, Royal Artillery.
Lieutenant W. H. Dobbie, 26th Madras Infantry.

Dated Rangoon, 26th March, 1886.

From—LIEUTENANT-GENERAL SIR H. N. D. PRENDERGAST, K.C.B., V.C., Commanding Forces in Burma,

To—The Adjutant-General in India.

1. In continuation of my despatch, dated 14th January, 1886, reporting the operations of the Burma Expeditionary Force from their commencement to the surrender of Mandalay on 29th November, 1885, I have the honor to solicit a reference to my journal of operations since that date, from which it will appear that the important towns of Mogoung, Bhamo, and Shwebo have been occupied to the north of Mandalay, and the stations of Ningyan, Yemethen, Mahline, and Kyouksai established to the eastward towards the Shan frontier; Ava, Sagain, Aloung, and Toungdwingyee being furnished with detachments. Several subsidiary posts have also been located in places where the presence of troops has been considered desirable.

2. The object in establishing these stations and posts has been the assertion throughout the country of our military ascendancy, the maintenance of our lines of communications, the repression of dacoity, and the protection of the well-behaved inhabitants.

Though the work upon which the troops has been engaged has been of an important and arduous nature, it was not such as to render necessary special despatches from me relating to the various minor affairs which have occurred in different parts of the country.

3. The rapid success which attended the expedition to Mandalay was mainly due, firstly, to the efficient organization of the force employed; secondly, to the very complete information on record regarding the country and its resources; and, thirdly, to the hearty and efficient co-operation of all those who were engaged in the campaign.

4. To the officers, soldiers, and sailors of the Burma Expeditionary Force my acknowledgments are due for willing obedience and cheerful discharge of duties under varied and often trying conditions of service.

Discipline has been well maintained throughout.

5. I would now submit, for the favorable consideration of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief and of Government, the names of officers and others who have more specially assisted me in the conduct of this campaign :—

Major-General L. W. Buck, Commanding the British Burma Division, who most loyally cooperated with me in preparing the force for service in Upper Burma, and subsequently organized the column which operated from Toungoo.

Brigadier-General F. B. Norman, C. B., Commanding the 3rd Brigade.

Brigadier-General H. H. Foord, Commanding the 1st Brigade.

Brigadier-General G. S. White, C.B., V.C., Commanding the 2nd Brigade.

To each of these officers and to their staff my thanks are due.

The judgment and military experience of Brigadier-General Norman, C.B., were highly valuable, and fully justified me in entrusting the command at Bhamo to him at a critical juncture.

To Brigadier-General Foord was entrusted the duty of capturing the redoubt of Gwegyoung-Kamyo.

Brigadier-General White commanded at Mandalay during my absence at Bhamo, and by his energy and determination succeeded in quelling the insurrection around Mandalay. He is an officer of high military capacity.

Colonel D. Shaw, Madras Staff Corps, Commanding at Thayetmyo, protected my base at Thayetmyo by energetic action against the insurgents on the frontier.

Colonel T. N. Baker, 2nd Bengal Light Infantry, commanded effectively the column that successfully attacked Minhla on the 17th November, 1885, and has since then commanded the garrison at that station.

Colonel W. Carey, R.A., commanded the Royal Artillery during the campaign. From the first organization of the siege train, he has been conspicuous by the zeal and ability which he has brought to bear on all matters connected with his arm of the service. He also contributed materially to the Intelligence Branch by publishing notes taken when he was on a visit to Mandalay a short time before the declaration of war.

Colonel P. H. F. Harris, 11th Bengal Infantry, gallantly commanded his fine regiment at Minhla, and has commanded the garrison of Mingyan since its establishment. He has shown great energy and zeal in organizing flying columns for the pacification of the district, and has been well supported by the officers and men of the detachments.

Colonel G. E. L. S. Sanford, R.E., Commanding Royal Engineer to the Force, has afforded me, in addition to his professional assistance, very efficient aid as Chief Engineer of Public Works after the occupation of Mandalay. As a staff officer he is invaluable.

Colonel H. M. Bengough, Assistant Adjutant and Quartermaster General, so organized the staff and conducted his duties that there has been no friction. He is an officer remarkable for energy, tact, zeal, and knowledge of military affairs.

Colonel W. P. Dicken, Madras Staff Corps, Commandant, 3rd Madras Light Infantry, commanded the Tounghoo column, and achieved a rapid and well merited success.

Colonel J. C. Auchinleck, R.A., has commanded the line of communication with firmness and discretion.

Colonel John Tilly, Commanding the 1st Battalion Royal Welsh Fusiliers, has commanded his battalion with zeal and ability, and when entrusted with an independent command accomplished satisfactorily the duty confided to him.

Colonel W. H. B. Kingsley, Commanding the 2nd Battalion Hampshire Regiment, returned to his post from sick leave at the earliest opportunity, and has ably commanded his regiment, which has done excellent service throughout the late operations.

Colonel A. A. LeMesurier, 2nd Battalion "The King's" Liverpool Regiment, has commanded his battalion throughout the recent operations, and has been successful in action as commander of a field column.

Deputy Surgeon-General J. McN. Donnelly, I. M. D., as Principal Medical Officer of the Force, has organized and administered the very efficient hospital arrangements, afloat and ashore, to my satisfaction.

Lieutenant-Colonel W. T. Budgen, R.A., deserves credit for the good service performed by him and the officers and men of the Royal Artillery under his command.

Lieutenant-Colonel A. F. Laughton, Assistant Commissary General, in Commissariat charge. To this officer and to the officers and men of the Department my acknowledgments are specially due.

Owing to the numerous columns furnished by the force, the strain on this Department has been unusually severe; but no instance of failure has occurred, and this can only be attributed to the untiring zeal and energy of Lieutenant-Colonel Laughton and his subordinates.

Lieutenant-Colonel J. H. Gordon, Commandant, 23rd Madras Light Infantry, deserves credit for the admirable state of the regiment which he commands, and has distinguished himself when in command of field columns.

Lieutenant-Colonel M. Protheroe, C.S.I., Deputy Assistant Adjutant and Quartermaster General, served on the staff, of which his ability, industry, tact, temper, and judgment made him an invaluable member, and by his knowledge and official experience has lent valuable aid to the Department.

Lieutenant-Colonel R. J. B. Simpson, 12th Madras Infantry, commanded the assaulting party at Minhla redoubt, and conducted the attack on the rebels at Kadoe on 13th January, 1886, until severely wounded.

Lieutenant-Colonel E. W. Begbie, Madras Staff Corps, has been in charge of the Army Signalling of the Force. I have already in my former despatches had the honor to place on record the great value that the expedition has derived from visual signalling throughout the campaign. Lieutenant-Colonel Begbie, by his sustained personal interest in and unremitting personal superintendence of the working of his Department, has conduced much to the successful results attained.

Lieutenant-Colonel J. G. R. D. Macneill, Madras Staff Corps, Deputy Assistant Adjutant and Quartermaster General, conducted the duties of the Intelligence Department until wounded when acting as guide to the column at the attack on Minhla. It is to this officer's previous labours in the Intelligence Branch that I was indebted for the very complete information afforded me from the office of the Quartermaster-General in India.

Lieutenant-Colonel G. Baker, Hampshire Regiment, commanded the battalion till the arrival of Colonel Kingsley after the surrender of Mandalay, and has been twice selected for the command of detached columns.

Major F. W. Hemming, 5th Dragoon Guards, Deputy Assistant Adjutant and Quartermaster General, took over the charge of the Intelligence Department on his joining the force, and showed zeal and activity in acquiring and formulating information.

Major (now Lieutenant-Colonel) R. F. Williamson, Royal Welsh Fusiliers, admirably commanded the detachment at the important post of Shwebo. In this command he displayed high military qualities, fought four successful actions with the rebels, and did much to secure the pacification of the district.

Major W. P. Symons, Deputy Assistant Adjutant and Quartermaster General, has proved himself possessed of the highest qualifications for staff duties in the field and in the office, and merits recognition.

Major H. P. Law, Royal Scots Fusiliers, commanded for some months the Toungdwingyee column with signal boldness and success.

Major R. H. T. Hill, Madras Staff Corps, as Director of Transport to the Force, has rendered valuable service. Great demands were made on the Transport Department for the many flying columns despatched for the suppression of rebellion, and, thanks to Major Hill's energy and resource in organizing a local transport, the wants of the Expeditionary Force have been satisfied.

Major W. B. Warner, 2nd Madras Lancers, commanded the first cavalry detachment sent to Upper Burma. He has on several occasions been selected for the command of columns, and has exhibited zeal, energy, and knowledge of his profession.

Major E. C. Browne, Royal Scots Fusiliers, personally organized a body composed of Mounted Volunteers, Mounted Infantry, and Mounted Native Police for service with the expedition,—a force which proved itself of great utility.

Major A. J. Stead, 11th Bengal Infantry, commanded the detachment at Pagan, and successfully operated against the insurgents in the district.

Major E. P. Ommanney, 11th Bengal Infantry, successfully commanded a column against the enemy near Mingyan.

Major C. H. Sheppard, 11th Madras Infantry, officiated as Deputy Judge Advocate to the Force, in the absence of any regularly appointed officer of that Department.

Major J. E. Collins, 2nd Hampshire Regiment, for skill and energy in command of several expeditions against the enemy near Mandalay.

Major C. C. Campbell, 23rd Madras Light Infantry, commanded the expedition sent up the Chindwin to Kandat in December 1885, and showed much ability and perseverance in carrying out his mission.

Major C. W. Walker, 19th Madras Infantry, performed the duties of Deputy Assistant Adjutant and Quartermaster General efficiently, both in the field and in quarters.

Captain A. R. F. Dorward, R.E., commanded the Queen's Own Sappers and Miners, and was a most efficient field engineer. He showed eminent qualifications for command when selected to command a mixed force in the field.

Captain R. L. Milne, Deputy Assistant Adjutant and Quartermaster General, is a staff officer of merit and deserving of recognition.

Captain D. A. A. Macpherson, Field Paymaster, has conducted the duties of his Department with much ability and courtesy.

Surgeon-Major C. Sibthorpe, in medical charge of the Head-Quarter Staff, has shown himself always ready to afford any professional or personal assistance in his power.

Captain R. O. Lloyd, R.E., owing to his knowledge of the Burmese language, was very valuable as a field Engineer. He was severely wounded.

Captain W. Aldworth, Bedfordshire Regiment, has not only efficiently performed the duty of Aide-de-Camp, but has also given me most valuable assistance as Military Secretary.

Lieutenant G. A. Ballard, R.N., proved a most efficient Aide-de-Camp. His knowledge of his profession and his willing assistance as Secretary were of great advantage to me.

Lieutenant C. D. Learoyd, R.E., was a most useful orderly officer. His professional knowledge and skill as a surveyor enabled him to perform valuable service with detached columns.

Captain T. P. Cather, R.E., is an invaluable Transport Officer, and has remarkable talent for organizing and commanding men.

The following junior officers have been brought to notice by Officers Commanding Brigades and Heads of Departments in this Force, and I would hope that His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief will be pleased to take them into his favorable consideration :—

Captain R. A. P. Clements, South Wales Borderers, Brigade Major, severely wounded.
Captain M. C. Barton, R.E.
Captain J. E. Preston, 12th Madras Infantry.
Lieutenant W. K. Downes, 11th Bengal Infantry; distinguished gallantry at Minhla.
Lieutenant G. L. Angelo, 23rd Madras Infantry.
Lieutenant J. A. Tanner, R.E.
Lieutenant H. E. Porter, 24th Madras Infantry, Transport Officer.
Lieutenant P. M. Carnegy, 12th Madras Infantry, severely wounded.
Lieutenant W. A. Cairnes, R.E.
Lieutenant R. D. Burlton, 2nd Madras Lancers.

Lieutenant R. C. B. Haking, 2nd Hampshire Regiment.
Lieutenant J. R. Dyas, 2nd Hampshire Regiment.
Lieutenant R. I. Forbes, 2nd Hampshire Regiment.
Lieutenant B. Holloway, 2nd Madras Lancers.
Lieutenant A. P. D. Harris, 11th Bengal Infantry, success in command of a detachment.
Lieutenant A. P. G. Gough, Royal Welsh Fusiliers.
Lieutenant W. A. J. O'Meara, R.E., severely wounded.
Lieutenant C. C. A. Sillery, 12th Madras Infantry, severely wounded.
Lieutenant R. A. T. Dury, Bengal Staff Corps, attached to 11th Bengal Infantry (killed).
Lieutenant H. T. Brooking, 21st Madras Infantry.
Lieutenant L. de R. Jervis, Royal Welsh Fusiliers.
Lieutenant J. H. Gwynne, Royal Welsh Fusiliers, severely wounded.
Lieutenant Q. G. K. Agnew, 4th Battalion Royal Scots Fusiliers, Transport Officer.

6. I trust the European warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and privates, and the native officers, non-commissioned officers and men mentioned by Brigadier-Generals Commanding and Heads of Departments will receive suitable recognition of their services.

7. The Revd. E. T. Beatty and the Chaplains of the Church of England and Priests of the Church of Rome appointed to serve with the force have shown much zeal and earnestness in the discharge of their du ties.

8. To Captain R. Woodward, R.N., and to the officers and crews of the Naval Brigade serving under his orders, my thanks are specially due for valuable co-operation rendered afloat and ashore with the heartiness and thoroughness characteristic of the Royal Navy.

To Captain Woodward personally I am indebted for the energy, willingness, and professional skill continuously placed at my disposal.

I would beg to endorse the recommendations of Captain Woodward of the officers and men serving under him, hoping that the services of Commander W. R. Clutterbuck, R.N., Commander J. Durnford, R.N., Commander C. J. Barlow, R.N., and Lieutenant F. P. Trench, R.N., may receive special recognition.

Commander Clutterbuck, in command of Her Majesty's I.M.S. Irrawaddy, in concert with Lieutenant Trench, in command of the steam-launch Kathleen, gallantly captured a King's steamer under the fire of a battery at the outset of the campaign, and from that time to the occupation of Mandalay these two officers have led the van of the river fleet.

Commander Durnford served on my staff until the occupation of Mandalay, and his tact, energy, and professional knowledge were of great service to me.

Commander C. J. Barlow's march of 120 miles through the country with a detachment of blue-jackets reflects great credit on that officer and his party.

The manner in which Commander A. Carpenter, Her Majesty's I.M.S. Investigator, conducted the duties of the river survey, is deserving of special recognition, and his labours will, I am convinced, prove to be of great practical value.

Major W. M. Lambert, Royal Marine Artillery, and the non-commissioned officers and men of the Royal Marines attached to the Naval Brigade, have lent me very willing assistance whenever possible.

9. The officers and men of the Indian Marine have worked admirably throughout the expedition, and I trust some recognition of their excellent services may be afforded to the following officers :—

Captain A. Campbell, Her Majesty's Indian Marine.
Mr. C. W. Hewett, 1st Grade Officer, Indian Marine.
Mr. H. S. Black, 1st Grade Officer, Indian Marine.
Mr. W. Chandler, 1st Grade Officer, Indian Marine.
Mr. G. A. Lye, 1st Grade Officer, Indian Marine.
Mr. G. L'E. Mathias, 1st Grade Officer, Indian Marine.

Captain A. Campbell, Her Majesty's Indian Marine, as Senior Marine Transport Officer, was of invaluable service in organizing and marshalling the large fleet of river steamers that conveyed the force to Mandalay.

10. I would beg to tender my sincere acknowledgments to Mr. C. E. Bernard, C.S.I., Chief Commissioner of British Burma, for the hearty support and co-operation which he has extended to me from the commencement of the expedition; and to Colonel Sladen my thanks are due for the able assistance which his extended acquaintance with Upper Burma has enabled him to place at my service.

11. I would also wish to acknowledge the services of Mr. Kennedy, the Manager of the Irrawaddy Flotilla Company, and of the Commanders and crews of the steamers of the Company, who by their skill and willing co-operation have contributed so much to the safety and comfort of the troops and to the success of the expedition.

12. I would solicit the attention of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief to the special opportunities afforded by this campaign in its latter phases to officers of comparatively junior rank to show the military qualities that they possess, owing to the great number of independent minor operations which have been undertaken. It has thus been possible to select a considerable number of junior officers as deserving of special notice, and I trust that each may obtain some recognition of his services.

As regards the officers of the Madras Army thus brought to notice, I would venture to invite His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief to bear in memory that the Coast Army has lately had few opportunities of seeing service, and I would very respectfully submit that the present is a favorable opportunity to give promotion to comparatively young officers who may appear to merit it, thus infusing a new life into the army without injury to the professional feeling of those who have not been fortunate enough to participate in the campaign.

13. In conclusion, I have the honor to enclose despatches from General Officers Commanding Brigades and others and Heads of Departments as per margin. I regret that up to the present no despatch has been received from the 3rd Brigade. It has been again called for, and on receipt will be forwarded. The report of the Officer Commanding Toungdwingyee Column will also be submitted on receipt.

PUBLIC DEBT.

Simla, the 11th June, 1886.

No. 1347.—As it does not appear to be generally known that Government Promissory Notes can be readily converted into Stock Certificates, and reconverted into Promissory Notes, at the option of the holders, and that Stock Certificate-holders enjoy certain special advantages, the attention of holders of Government Securities is drawn to the following particulars:—

1. Government Promissory Notes can be converted into Stock Certificates and reconverted into Promissory Notes at any time, at the option of the holder.

2. The holders of Stock Certificates are not required to present them in person or by agent when the interest becomes due. On application made, interest will be paid to Stock Certificate-holders by warrants on any Government Treasury, which warrants will be sent by post, on the day the interest falls due, to the Stock Certificate-holders direct, or through the Treasury Officer, as they may desire.

3. Stock Certificates are not negotiable by endorsement, and are consequently of no value in the hands of a wrongful holder, and the risks arising from the possession of, or repeated transmission of, negotiable Securities are thereby avoided.

4. In the event of the loss of a Stock Certificate by theft, fire, &c., a fresh Certificate will issue on satisfactory evidence of loss.

MERCHANT SHIPPING.

The 25th June, 1886.

No. 1572.—Under the provisions of Section 61 of Act VII of 1880, the Governor-General in Council is pleased to fix the following rates of payment for the subsistence and passage of distressed seamen and apprentices who are sent on board a British ship under Section 57 of the said Act, and are in excess of the number wanted to make up the complement of the crew:—

(a) In the case of lascars—for each man, six annas daily if the ship is a sailing vessel, and twelve annas daily if she is a steam-ship.

(b) In the case of Europeans and other seamen who live as Europeans—for each man, not being a master, one shilling and six pence daily, and for a master two shillings daily, if the ship is a sailing vessel; and for each man, including a master, three shillings daily if the ship is a steam-ship.

No. 1574.—In exercise of the powers conferred by Sections 58 and 67 of the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1880, the Governor-General in Council is pleased to make the following rules regarding the relief of distressed seamen or apprentices in Bengal:—

Relief of distressed seamen.

In these rules the term "distressed seamen" includes—

(a) all seamen and apprentices being native Indian subjects of Her Majesty who have been shipwrecked, discharged, or left behind at any place in British India, whether from any British ship employed in the merchant service, or from any of Her Majesty's ships, or who have been engaged by any person acting either as principal or agent to serve in any ship belonging to any foreign power, or to the subject of any foreign State, and who are in distress in any such place;

(b) all seamen and apprentices not being native Indian subjects who have been shipwrecked, discharged, or left behind at any place in British India from any British ship registered in British India, and who are in distress in any such place.

2. In taking charge of distressed seamen, the local authority will provide them with subsistence and clothing, as their necessities may require, but upon the most reasonable terms possible, and no more expensive clothing should be supplied to an officer than to a common seaman. Beds and bedding should not be supplied except under special circumstances, and the value of clothing should not exceed Rs. 10 for each person. In any case of unusual expense, when the local authority considers it absolutely necessary to deviate from the foregoing rules, or to provide relief for a longer period than one month, a statement of the exceptional circumstances which necessitated the further outlay is to accompany his accounts when transmitted for audit. Money payments to the seamen themselves for purposes of relief must be avoided as far as practicable.

3. In all cases to which Section 62 of the Act applies, a report should be submitted by the local authority to the Government, in order to admit of the seaman's wages (if any are due) and the expenses incurred in his behalf being recovered from the master or owner or other person liable under Section 63 of the Act.

Conveyance home of distressed seamen.

4. Distressed seamen who are in receipt of relief are to be sent home by the earliest available opportunity, and British vessels requiring men to make up their complement should be preferred in order to admit of the seamen earning wages while being so sent; but if no such vessel can be found, and if there is no immediate prospect of any such vessel requiring men, they should be sent as supernumeraries on board the British vessels (whether registered in British India or not) that may be in the port at the time, and bound to their homes, or to ports near their homes, as the case may be; provided, however, that no ship be required to convey more than one supernumerary to every fifty tons of her registered tonnage. Distressed seamen who refuse to work, if able, for their passage home, cease to be entitled to further relief under these rules.

5. The local authority will endorse upon the agreement of the British ship, on board which distressed seamen are sent under Section 56 or Section 57 of the Act, the name of each man sent on board, and the day on which he was sent on board. He will also, in the case of a distressed seaman sent on board under Section 57, fill up, sign, and deliver to the master an order with certificate in Form A for the seaman's conveyance.

6. Whenever there are no British merchant vessels to which distressed seamen can be allotted, and the local authority thinks it desirable, in order to avoid expense, to engage a passage for them in foreign merchant vessels, he may do so on the best terms he can obtain. He should avoid, if practicable, making any payment beforehand for such passage, but should report the terms to the Government, and direct the master to apply for payment to the shipping master at the port to which the vessel is bound.

TELEGRAPH.

The 24th June, 1886.

No. 164.—In directing the publication of the following extract from a Report by the Director-General of Telegraphs on the operations of the Telegraph Department in connection with the recent advance into, and occupation of, Upper Burma, the Governor-General in Council desires to place on record his appreciation of the excellent services rendered by the Department under circumstances of much difficulty and danger.

The Telegraph Department is organised as a Civil Department; and the ready devotion to duty which was displayed by all the staff employed in cheerfully accepting the hardships and risks involved in operating with an army in the field in an enemy's country, reflects no less credit on the Department than the foresight and ability displayed by the Director-General in organising the arrangements to secure effective results.

The Governor-General in Council expresses his cordial thanks to the Director-General, Mr. A. J. Leppoc Cappel, for the admirable manner in which the operations of the Department were organised, and also to the following officers, who are specially brought to the notice of Government for the services rendered by them—

Mr. W. R. Brooke, Director of the Construction Branch.
„ T. C. Hill, Chief Superintendent, Burma Division.
„ H. M. S. Mathews, Assistant Superintendent in charge of Telegraph operations with the Expedition.
„ A. L. Palmer, Assistant Superintendent.
„ R. Elrington, „ „
„ R. O. Lees, „ „
„ A. J. L. Grimes, „ „
„ P. W. Kingsley, Sub-Assistant Superintendent.
„ E. D. Shave, „ „

Extract of Report from the Director General of Telegraphs in India, to the Secretary to the Government of India, Public Works Department, No. 420 T., dated Simla, the 31st May, 1886.

On the 31st October last I received official instructions, in connection with the contemplated despatch of an expeditionary force to Upper Burma, "to be prepared, on requisition from the local authorities or the General Commanding, to repair or re-erect the telegraph line beyond the frontier as the troops advance, so as to keep up communication between the Army and Rangoon." I had received and acted upon an unofficial intimation to the same effect four days earlier. On the same date I received an urgent telegram from Rangoon, stating that the Chief Commissioner required the early construction of a line from Tonghoo to the frontier, about 45 miles, and preparations to be made for a possible extension thence to Ningyan in Upper Burma; these arrangements were approved in the Military Department on the 1st November.

On the 13th November a completely equipped telegraph party, in charge of Mr. Assistant Superintendent H. M. S. Mathews, was organised in readiness to start with the expedition from Prome. This party was accommodated on a flat in tow of one of the steamers of the expedition, and, besides having material for flying lines and for renewing the Burman line, which was known to be very unreliable even if intact, had some miles of river cables, complete equipments for six separate telegraph stations, and twelve signallers.

It had been arranged by Mr. Hill, the Chief Superintendent of the Burma Division, in communication with the General Commanding, that Mr. Mathews should land at Minhla, and if, as was feared, communication thence to the frontier was interrupted, he should despatch a working party along the line. He was directed to do the same at the next Burman Office, and if there was reason to apprehend that the line had been seriously injured, he was to land his whole party and stores and commence the work of reparation. This programme was not, however, carried out. The General Commanding found himself unable to give permission to Mr. Mathews to land his party, and informed him that he wished him to accompany the expedition to Mandalay and then work back from that place repairing the line; at Minhla he, however, left a small line establishment. On arrival at Pagan on the 23rd

November, Mr. Mathews again urged upon the General the advisability of his landing and commencing the line repairs towards Minhla, but the latter considered it inadvisable to commence operations at that time, and Mr. Mathews proceeded on to Mandalay. He arranged, however, to open an office close to Pagan where the detachment was encamped, and left there signallers, some workmen, and a small quantity of line material. At Myingyan he did the same.

In view of the importance attached to the early establishment of telegraphic communication with Minhla, a second party was organised, in charge of Mr. Sub-Assistant Superintendent P. Kingsley, with the object of advancing by land as soon as the river expedition had started. These arrangements were explained to General Prendergast before he left, and escorts were promised, but they were unfortunately not obtainable; and as the necessity for an escort was proved within two miles of the frontier by the party encountering a band of dacoits who had just shot and brutally treated a Burman and his wife, they were compelled to wait until Mr. Hill could induce the military authorities to supply one. The escort, when available, was without carriage, and, after further delay in procuring carts for them, a start was made on the 20th November, but owing to the continuous rain, which had set in on the 18th, the road was found impassable by carts, and the detachment returned to Laingha.

On the following day another start was made, the baggage and food of the party being sent by river, and 10 miles of line were repaired. On the 22nd they accomplished another 8 or 10 miles, and opened an office for the night at Sinboungweh to report progress and to communicate, if possible, with Minhla. Hearing nothing from the party which was supposed to be on its way downwards from Minhla, they continued to work towards that place, which they reached on the 25th, the march having been made under heavy and continuous rain, through mud knee-deep in many places, and for two days they were without food, the steamer which carried supplies (a capture from the Burmese) having broken down.

A telegraph station was at once established at Minhla, where it was ascertained that Mr. Mathews' party had proceeded to Mandalay, as already explained. To meet the altered conditions, the party which had repaired the line from the frontier to Minhla was then divided into two,—one remaining under the charge of Mr. Sub-Assistant Superintendent Kingsley, the other being in charge of Mr. Sub-Assistant Superintendent E. D. Shave, an officer specially sent to Burma for the work,—and these two parties started at once northwards repairing the line, section by section, as far as Pagan, and had advanced beyond that place before Mr. Mathews' party from Mandalay was encountered. Communication as far as Pagan was established on the 30th, but the line was immediately cut, and was continually cut by the enemy as fast as it was repaired. Mr. Mathews started from Mandalay on the 30th November, having made his own arrangements for the carriage of the baggage and food of the party, and arrived at Myingyan on the 6th December, having effected temporary repairs to the line, which was found in very bad order; but, like the parties working from the south, Mr. Mathews found that the line had been cut behind him, and he was compelled to send back a party to again repair it while he continued his work southwards to Pagan.

Through communication with Mandalay was opened on the 11th December, but it was of short duration, the line being constantly cut in numerous places, and the work of the telegraph staff was arduous in the extreme. To strengthen their hands, intermediate stations were opened at Sinboungweh and Yenangyoung, but the greatest difficulty was felt between Myingyan and Mandalay, where the attacks of the dacoits were incessant. To facilitate the work of the troops on this section, intermediate offices were opened at Ava and Myotha, and a third has recently been established at Myinthen.

The extension to Myohla (Gyobin) on the Tonghoo frontier, which was sanctioned on the 1st November, was completed by Mr. Assistant Superintendent A. L. Palmer, the officer in charge of the Rangoon Subdivision, on the 26th idem. The country was extremely difficult, and the weather as bad as that which was experienced on the Laingha frontier. Mr. Assistant Superintendent R. Elrington took charge of the work on this frontier on the 28th November, and continued the line to Ningyan. The progress was at first slow, owing to physical difficulties and to the reluctance of coolies to cross the frontier, while all the transport of the district had been secured for the troops. The line was completed, however, on the 24th, and the office opened on the 29th December.

The above is a brief record of the operations which may be considered properly to belong to the initial expedition. The subsequent work of the Department in Upper Burma, and the larger operations which have followed my own special visit to Mandalay in March last, will be reported hereafter; but I may mention that, notwithstanding frequent attacks upon the line and upon our working parties, a substantial insulated line to Mandalay has now been erected, and that, when not maliciously cut, communication is maintained as regularly and rapidly with that city as with any part of India. For a long time the want of troops, as escorts, stopped all progress in the erection of new lines asked for by the military authorities, but these are being pushed on rapidly wherever the military are strong enough to protect the working parties; and the energetic Superintendent, Mr. Landon, who is now in charge of the Upper Burma Telegraphs, assisted as he is by an excellent staff of officers, may be relied upon to do all that is humanly possible.

This brief notice of the primary operations of the telegraph in connection with the advance into Upper Burma would not be complete without some mention of the serious outbreak of disturbances in the Shwegyin and Pegu districts, which added materially to the anxieties and responsibilities of the Superintendent, Mr. Hill. The dacoits destroyed the telegraph line in many places, cutting up both wire and posts, and for a time held the district; and, but for the rapid and vigorous action of Mr. Assistant Superintendent R. O. Lees, telegraphic communication between Rangoon and Moulmein would have been impossible for weeks. This officer and another Assistant Superintendent, Mr. A. J. L. Grimes,* whom I had just sent to Burma to strengthen Mr. Hill's hands, behaved admirably on this occasion.

* Mr. Grimes has since been working in Upper Burma, where he has proved himself to be a most valuable young officer.

In connection with the events of 1885, I beg to bring specially to the notice of Government the services of Mr. T. C. Hill, Chief Superintendent of the Burma Division, upon whom devolved the labour of organising the working parties and directing their movements. Mr. H. M. S. Mathews, Assistant Superintendent, also deserves special mention. He was in charge of the main party, and, later on, of the whole line. He carried out the duties entrusted to him with great energy and judgment, and amply justified his special selection. Assistant Superintendents Messrs. A. L. Palmer and R. Elrington also did excellent work on the Tonghoo frontier, and Messrs. R. O. Lees and A. J. L. Grimes in the disturbed districts of Lower Burma; while the energy, intelligence, and zeal shown by Messrs. Kingsley and Shave, Sub-Assistant Superintendents, are in the highest degree creditable to them.

To my principal Construction officer, Mr. W. R. Brooke, I am greatly indebted for the ability and energy with which he seconded all my efforts. As on every previous occasion of emergency, his assistance was most valuable; and I have great pleasure in bringing his services prominently to the notice of Government.

W. S. TREVOR, Colonel,
Secretary to the Government of India.

The Officiating Resident is pleased to direct that every Criminal Court in the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore shall adopt the accompanying form of diary in connection with each case coming before it, whether for preliminary enquiry or for trial. 3. The Head Ministerial Officer of each Court will be held responsible for the correctness of the entries made in the diary.
