ARMY (ANNUAL) ACT, 1890.

[53 VICTORIA, CHAPTER 4.]

An Act to provide, during twelve months, for the Discipline and Regulation of the Army.

[29TH MARCH, 1890.]

WHEREAS the raising or keeping of a standing army within the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland in time of peace, unless it be with the consent of Parliament, is against law:

And whereas it is adjudged necessary by Her Majesty and this present Parliament, that a body of forces should be continued for the safety of the United Kingdom and the defence of the possessions of Her Majesty's Crown, and that the whole number of such forces should consist of one hundred and fifty-three thousand four hundred and eighty-three men, including those to be employed at the depôts in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland for the training of recruits for service at home and abroad, but exclusive of the numbers actually serving within Her Majesty's Indian possessions:

And whereas it is also judged necessary for the safety of the United Kingdom, and the defence of the possessions of this realm, that a body of Royal Marine forces should be employed in Her Majesty's fleet and naval service under the direction of the Lord High Admiral of the United Kingdom, or the Commissioners for executing the office of Lord High Admiral aforesaid:

And whereas the said marine forces may frequently be quartered or be on shore, or sent to do duty or be on board transport ships or vessels, merchant ships or vessels, or other ships or vessels, or they may be under other circumstances in which they will not be subject to the laws relating to the government of Her Majesty's forces by sea:

And whereas no man can be forejudged of life or limb, or subjected in time of peace to any kind of punishment within this realm by martial law, or in any other manner than by the judgment of his peers and according to the known and established laws of this realm; yet nevertheless it being requisite, for the retaining all the before-mentioned forces, and other persons subject to military law, in their duty, that an exact discipline be observed, and that persons belonging to the said forces who mutiny or stir up sedition, or desert Her Majesty's service, or are guilty of crimes and offences to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, be brought to a more exemplary and speedy punishment than the usual forms of the law will allow:

44 & 45 Vict. c. 58. And whereas the Army Act, 1881, will expire in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety on the following days:

(a) In the United Kingdom, the Channel Islands, and the Isle of Man, on the thirtieth day of April; and

(b) Elsewhere in Europe, inclusive of Malta, also in the West Indies and America, on the thirty-first day of July; and

(c) Elsewhere, whether within or without Her Majesty's dominions, on the thirty-first day of December:

Be it therefore enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:

1. This Act may be cited as the Army (Annual) Act, 1890; and the Army Act, 1881, is in this Act referred to as the Army Act.

Short title.

2. (1.) The Army Act shall be and remain in force during the periods herein-after mentioned, and no longer, unless otherwise provided by Parliament; that is to say,

Army Act (44 & 45 Vict. c. 58) to be in force for specified times.

(a.) Within the United Kingdom, the Channel Islands, and the Isle of Man, from the thirtieth day of April one thousand eight hundred and ninety to the thirtieth day of April one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, both inclusive; and

(b.) Elsewhere in Europe, inclusive of Malta, also in the West Indies and America, from the thirty-first day of July one thousand eight hundred and ninety to the thirty-first day of July one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, both inclusive; and

(c.) Elsewhere, whether within or without Her Majesty's dominions, from the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and ninety to the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, both inclusive; and the day from which the Army Act is continued in any place by this Act is in relation to that place referred to in this Act as the commencement of this Act.

(2.) The Army Act, while in force, shall apply to persons subject to military law, whether within or without Her Majesty's dominions.

(3.) A person subject to military law shall not be exempted from the provisions of the Army Act by reason only that the number of the forces for the time being in the service of Her Majesty, exclusive of the marine forces, is either greater or less than the number herein-before mentioned. 44 & 45 Vict. c. 58.

3. There shall be paid to the keeper of a victualling house for the accommodation provided by him in pursuance of the Army Act the prices specified in the schedule to this Act.

4. In section one of the Army Act (enacting the figures "1881" shall be omitted.

Amendment of 44 & 45 Vict. c. 58, s. 1 as to short title.

5. Whereas doubts have been entertained whether the Commander-in-Chief of the forces of a presidency in India can, under section fifty-seven of the Army Act, mitigate, remit, or commute the punishment of a person undergoing sentence in a place occupied by troops under the command of that Commander-in-Chief, but not within the presidency of which he is Commander-in-Chief, and it is expedient to remove those doubts; be it therefore enacted as follows:

Amendment of s. 57 as to commutation and remission of sentences.

In subsection (2) (b) of section fifty-seven of the Army Act, after the word "presidency" shall be added the following words: "or in any place occupied by troops under the command of the Commander-in-Chief of the forces of a presidency".

To section one hundred and seventy-five of the Army Act the following paragraph shall be added:

"(9.) The persons holding commissions as officers in the Indian Army reserve when such officers are called out in any military capacity."

8. Whereas it is expedient that the provision as to forfeiture for absence without leave contained in subsection (14) of section one hundred and seventy-nine of the Army Act, should apply only on conviction by court martial; be it therefore enacted that for that subsection the following subsection shall be substituted, namely:—

Amendment of s. 179 as to royal marines.

(14.) A man in the royal marines shall, for absence without leave, on conviction of that offence by court martial, and for fraudulent enlistment, forfeit his service in like manner as he forfeits it for desertion under the Acts relating to the royal marines.

EMIGRATION.

Simla, the 23rd June, 1890.

No. 708-E.—The following draft of proposed additions to the Rules under the Indian Emigration Act, XXI of 1883, is published, under section 81 of the Act, for the information of persons likely to be affected thereby, and notice is hereby given under that section that the draft will be taken into consideration by the Governor General in Council on the 28th July 1890.

2. Any objection or suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to the draft before that date will be received and considered by the Governor General in Council.

Draft of Proposed Additions.

After Rule 178, Chapter V, Section III, page 68, add the following:

"178(a). The drinking-water, limejuice, ghee, flour, rice, meal, &c., shall be frequently tested by the Surgeon Superintendent for the purpose of detecting the presence of lead or copper therein."

Note.—The following is an extract from the Report of the Government Analytical Chemist of British Guiana for the year 1888:

"The most noteworthy of the poisoning cases was that of the captain and crew of the East Indian ship ——— who reached this port suffering from chronic lead poisoning. The water on board being suspected, seven samples of it were brought to the laboratory by the Health Officer. No lead being detected, it was determined to examine such of the ship's stores as were used in common by captain and crew. These were tea, lime juice, and ghee. The latter was found to be the cause of the mischief, as it contained 5·12 grains of lead to the pound. Those attacked recovered under treatment at the Colonial Hospital, although some but narrowly escaped death. Had the ——— carried immigrants, the consequences of using such ghee would no doubt have been very disastrous, especially if the Medical Superintendent had not possessed the means of detecting lead and, as would be probable, suspected only the water.

"To provide against such a mishap occurring, it might be advisable to include amongst the medical stores a simple and ready test for lead. A small bottle of sulphide of ammonium, one of strong hydrochloric acid, and a piece of glass rod would be sufficient.

"To test the water, a cup or any small white vessel should be about half filled with it, and a drop of sulphide stirred in with the glass rod. Any iron, lead or copper contained in the water, even to a smaller extent than $\frac{1}{10}$ of a grain per gallon, would be shown by an inky colouration appearing more or less deep according to the quantity. Should such a change occur, then a drop of hydrochloric acid should be stirred in, when the colour will disappear instantly if due to iron, but persist if due to lead or copper. It is unnecessary to distinguish between lead and copper, as both are highly dangerous.

"To test limejuice, two or three drops of the sulphide may be added to a small quantity. A darkening indicates lead or copper.

"To test ghee, flour, rice, meal, or any light coloured food, about 30 minims of sulphide and an equal measure of the acid should be added separately to two ounces of water and a portion of the food well stirred with the mixture, lead or copper being indicated by the darkening that occurs. Tested in this manner, the ghee from the ——— became like boot blacking. The materials for the test cost only a few pence."

Against Acid, hydrochloric fort in columns "Measure" substitute 6 oz. 4 dr. for 1 oz. 4 dr. and 6 oz. 6 dr. for 6 dr.

Between Ammonia, spirit aromatic and Antim, tart, "Ammonia, sulphide"; and against it in columns "Measure" insert 1 oz.

1. As many hospitals as may be necessary, within or without the limits of the cantonment as the cantonment authority with the concurrence of the District Magistrate may determine, shall be maintained, at the expense wholly or in part of the cantonment fund, for the treatment of persons suffering from infectious or contagious disorders.

2. A medical officer, to be appointed in such manner as the Local Government may direct, shall be in charge of every such hospital.

5. The 10th July, 1890.

No. 942.—The following Memorandum as to Procedure in Extradition cases and cases under the Fugitive Offenders Act, 1881, received from Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India, is published for general information:

MEMORANDUM.

I. The return of fugitive criminals escaping from the United Kingdom may be obtained—

(a) from foreign countries with which there are Extradition Treaties;
(b) from British possessions;
(c) from foreign countries in which the Queen has jurisdiction, and to which the Fugitive Offenders Act has been applied by Order in Council as if they were British possessions.

The surrender of fugitives taking refuge in the United Kingdom is granted reciprocally in each of these cases.

The procedure is governed in the first case by the Extradition Acts, 1870 and 1873 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 52, 36 & 37 Vict. c. 60), and by the terms of the Extradition Treaty in force with each country:

In case (b) by the Fugitive Offenders Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 69);

In case (c) by the Fugitive Offenders Act, 1881, and the Orders in Council applying it. In this case only British subjects and persons subject to the Queen's jurisdiction in the foreign country in question can be dealt with.

There have been a few cases in which a foreign country with which Great Britain has no extradition treaty has surrendered a criminal as an act of international comity: but there can be no reciprocal surrender of criminals by Her Majesty's Government in the absence of an extradition treaty.

Where a fugitive criminal charged with a serious crime has escaped to a country with which there is no treaty, Her Majesty's Government will generally be prepared to inquire whether his surrender can be granted, if they are satisfied that the indemnity and evidence required in extradition cases (para. IV) will be furnished, and that, in the event of his surrender, it is intended to proceed with the prosecution.

Extradition.—Fugitives from the United Kingdom.

Cases in which Extradition can be applied for.

II. When a person charged with crime in the United Kingdom is believed to have fled to a foreign country, the questions to be considered before an application for extradition is made are—

(1) Whether the country to which he has fled is one with which there is an Extradition Treaty.
A list of the Extradition Treaties now in force (31st March 1890) is given in Appendix A.
(2) Whether the crime with which he is charged is an extradition offence, and one included in the particular treaty.
A list of the extradition offences, showing the treaties in which each is included, is given in Appendix C.
(3) Whether the offender is a subject or citizen of the country to which he has fled.

Most Extradition Treaties provide that neither of the contracting parties may surrender its own subjects. The Treaties with the United States, containing no reference to nationality, extend to the subjects of each country equally with other fugitive criminals. The Treaties with Austria, Belgium (as amended by declaration), Russia, Mexico, and Colombia allow each Government the option of surrendering at discretion its own subjects. The Treaties with Spain, Switzerland and Luxemburg exclude the surrender of their own subjects by the Governments of Spain, Switzerland and Luxemburg, but stipulate for the surrender of British subjects by Her Majesty's Government. In the Treaty with Ecuador there is no express exclusion from extradition of the subjects or citizens of either contracting party, though it contains a provision to the effect that naturalization is not to be a bar to extradition. In all the other Treaties the surrender of subjects by either party is expressly excluded.

Application for Extradition addressed to Secretary of State.

III. The application for the surrender of a fugitive criminal from a foreign country must be addressed by the prosecutor or the police to the Secretary of State for the Home Department, who will communicate, through the Foreign Office and the proper diplomatic channels, with the authorities of the place where the fugitive is supposed to be.

Home Office Circulars of 20 June 1881, 6 Nov. 1883.

The chief officers of English police forces may communicate direct with the police of foreign countries for the purpose of giving or obtaining information, but under no circumstances should direct application be made to foreign police for the arrest of a fugitive. Serious difficulties have arisen in cases where this direction has been overlooked.

Where the apprehension of the fugitive is a matter of urgency, the Secretary of State will apply by telegram for his provisional arrest in anticipation of the formal demand for surrender.

Particulars and Documents to accompany application.

IV. The application to the Secretary of State should be made by letter, stating briefly the facts of the case, and giving in detail the information as to the fugitive's supposed whereabouts and the means of tracing and identifying him. It must be accompanied by—

(a) The warrant of arrest or a certified copy of it.
(b) The other documents to be used in support of the demand for extradition (see para. V).
(c) A description of the accused sufficient for purposes of identification, with, if possible, a photograph. (It is usually advisable that the description should form part of the formal evidence.)
(d) An indemnity for expenses (see para. VIII).

The letter should also state whether it is desired that the provisional arrest of the fugitive should be asked for by telegram.

In cases of urgency, if the informations or depositions required to support the demand for extradition have not been completed, it will sometimes be sufficient, in order to obtain the provisional arrest of the fugitive, to furnish in the first instance only a warrant of arrest and the indemnity for expenses, provided an explicit undertaking be given to complete the informations and other documents, and forward them with the least possible delay.

Documents.—Warrant, Informations, &c.

V. A warrant for the arrest of the fugitive on the charge for which his extradition is sought, or a certified copy of it, must in every case form part of the documents to be used in support of the demand. As regards the other documents, the requirements of different treaties vary somewhat. In the case of France and some other countries, it suffices if the warrant is accompanied by an information showing exactly the nature of the offence charged, and by sufficient evidence of the identity of the person arrested. In most cases, however, informations or depositions containing primâ facie evidence of the commission by the fugitive of the offence charged—such as in this country would justify committal for trial—are required.

The requirements of the various Treaties with regard to the documents to be furnished are quoted in Appendix D.

Documents.—Special requirements as to Warrants, Informations, &c.

VI. It is necessary that the utmost care should be taken in extradition cases to secure that the documents—warrant, informations, and depositions—are correct in form, and that the evidence is complete in material points. Several cases have occurred in which, after a fugitive criminal has been apprehended in a foreign country, inaccuracies in the warrant or defects in the evidence have led to his being set at liberty before steps could be taken to remedy the mistakes.

Home Office Circular of 2 Feb. 1886.

Where the flight of the accused is not known until after the warrant has been issued, and especially where an information is hastily laid in order to obtain his immediate arrest, it is in many cases advisable to issue a fresh warrant, on an amended information, before applying to a foreign country for his surrender.

The offence stated in the warrant should be set forth in the terms of the Treaty.

If copies of the informations or depositions are sent instead of the originals (as is usually the more convenient course, fresh copies of these documents being often required when the demand for extradition has to be made to several countries successively), the copies should be authenticated by a magistrate,—if possible by the magistrate by whom the originals were issued or taken.

In the case of extradition from the United States special care should be taken to have the evidence complete from the first.

Application for Extradition on several charges.

VII. Where there are several charges against the fugitive, there should be evidence in the informations or depositions with regard to every charge on which it is proposed that he should be tried after his surrender. After his surrender he cannot be tried on any other charge than the charge or charges on which he was extradited, unless he is restored, or an opportunity given him of returning, to the country from which he was surrendered.

Indemnity for Expenses.

VIII. The indemnity for expenses, which is required in all cases except those undertaken by the Director of Public Prosecutions, must be in the form given in Appendix E, and must be signed by the prosecutor. It need not be stamped.

In the case of most Extradition Treaties (all those now in force, except the Treaties with the United States, Russia, Mexico and Colombia) the foreign Government bears all the expenses which it incurs within its own territories. All expenses not so defrayed by the foreign Government, and not payable as police expenses under the ordinary regulations, must be borne by the prosecutor.

English Police Officers sent abroad in connexion with Extradition cases.

IX. It is sometimes considered desirable, when an application for extradition is made, that an English police officer should be sent out to assist the foreign police in tracing and identifying the accused.

When this is done, the officer should take with him a letter of introduction, which he may present as occasion requires to British ministers or consuls abroad. He should attend for this purpose at the Home Office, with an introduction from the chief officer of his force: or, if it is not convenient that he should attend personally, the chief officer should apply to the Home Office by letter stating the name and rank of the officer about to be sent out. It is also generally advisable that he should be provided with a passport. Home Office Circular of 6 Nov. 1883.

He should, where possible, see the warrant and depositions signed, as cases have occurred where his evidence to this effect has removed difficulties.

An officer sent abroad in an extradition case must confine his action strictly to tracing the fugitive, and furnishing the foreign police with information. Under no circumstances may he himself attempt to arrest the fugitive, interfere in any way with his liberty in a foreign country, or endeavour by threats or undue pressure to induce him to return to England without awaiting the formalities of extradition. If a fugitive whose extradition has been demanded should voluntarily consent to return with the officer without formal extradition, the concurrence of the authorities of the foreign country must be obtained before this course is taken. Home Office Circular of 25 Oct. 1884.

Further Evidence.

X. After the fugitive has been arrested, further evidence is sometimes required by the courts of the foreign country, which must be supplied by the prosecutors. Occasionally the attendance of a witness is required to prove the identity of the person arrested.

Conveyance of Prisoner to England.

XI. When the decision of the Government of the foreign country to concede the surrender of the fugitive is notified, the conveyance of the prisoner to England is a matter of arrangement between the police of the two countries, and should be carried out with as little delay as possible. The Metropolitan Police have standing arrangements with the police of most continental countries with regard to the conveyance of extradition prisoners.

In United States cases it is necessary to send out an officer to bring the prisoner, if surrendered, to England; and it is usually convenient that he should be sent out as soon as information is received of the arrest of the fugitive, as the presence of an experienced officer who can furnish the United States courts with information they may require is found in some cases to facilitate proceedings.

In the case of extraditions from Spain an officer is usually sent out when the demand for extradition is made.

United States cases.

XII. Information as to the extradition proceedings in the United States, and as to the particulars required by the United States courts when an arrest on a charge of forgery is applied for by telegram, are given in the papers reprinted in Appendix G.

Extradition.—Fugitives from Foreign Countries in the United Kingdom.

XIII. For the arrest of a foreign criminal in the United Kingdom, two alternative procedures are provided in sub-section (1) and sub-section (2) respectively of section 8 of the Extradition Act, 1870.

Arrest after formal requisition.

XIV. The first—that under sub-section (1)—is adopted in cases where the arrest of the fugitive is not urgent.

A requisition for the surrender of the accused, supported by the warrant of arrest and documentary evidence, is addressed by the representative of the foreign Government to the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, and transmitted by him to the Secretary of State for the Home Department, who thereupon makes an order to the Chief Magistrate at Bow Street Police Court, requiring him, if satisfied as to the sufficiency of the evidence, to issue his warrant for the arrest of the fugitive. The Chief Magistrate's warrant is effective without endorsement throughout the United Kingdom (and also in the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man), and is usually executed by an officer of the Metropolitan Police, who brings the prisoner direct to Bow Street, where all the subsequent proceedings take place.

Provisional arrest.

XV. The alternative procedure, under sub-section (2), is adopted in cases where the arrest of the fugitive is a matter of urgency. In this case any police magistrate or justice of the peace in the United Kingdom* may issue the warrant for the apprehension of the fugitive "on such information or complaint, and such "evidence, or after such proceedings, as would in the opinion of the person "issuing the warrant justify the issue of a warrant, if the crime had been com-"mitted in that part of the United Kingdom in which he exercises jurisdiction."

In practice, a sworn information showing a reasonable suspicion of the commission of the crime and of the guilt of the alleged offender is required before the issue of a warrant under sub-section (2). This information may, according to the opinion of the Law Officers of the Crown (Sir Richard Baggallay and Sir John Holker, 25th March 1875), and the practice of the Bow Street Police Court,† be based upon a letter or telegram purporting to be from a diplomatic, judicial, or police authority, stating—

(a) the alleged offence;

(b) that a warrant has been granted for the apprehension of the alleged criminal;

(c) that his extradition will be demanded.

The letter or telegram should in every case clearly specify the offence with which the fugitive is charged (which must be one within the Treaty with the country from which he is alleged to have fled), and must state in distinct terms that a formal request for extradition will be preferred.

* In Scotland, any sheriff, sheriff's substitute, or magistrate.

† See also the remarks of Jessel, M.R., in Reg. v Weil, 15 Cox, C.C. 193. "All that the Act requires is "that the evidence should be sufficient 'in the opinion of the person issuing the warrant.' That is a matter of "judicial discretion. There must be some evidence, but very little will do, for it is merely for the purpose of "detaining the man."

There is no restriction in the Act as to the person by whom the information is to be laid, and it may, where necessary, be laid by a police officer; but, as a rule, it is desirable that the information should be laid before the magistrate or justice by the consul or other accredited agent of the foreign Government, who should also produce the despatch, letter, or telegram on which the information is founded. A copy of the form of information in use at Bow Street is printed in Appendix F.

On the issue of the warrant of arrest under sub-section (2), the justice forthwith sends to the Secretary of State "a report of the fact of such issue, "together with the evidence and information or complaint, or certified copies "thereof."

On the arrest of a fugitive by a warrant under sub-section (2), if the warrant was issued at Bow Street, the prisoner is at once brought to that court; if the warrant was issued elsewhere, the prisoner is brought before the justice who issued the warrant, or some other justice having power to issue such warrant, who immediately orders him to be brought before a police magistrate at Bow Street.

The evidence of the officer making the arrest is required in the examination at Bow Street. It is therefore usual, when the arrest has been made elsewhere than in London, that the officer who made the arrest should bring up the prisoner to London and attend with him at Bow Street.

XVI. The arrest of an offender with a view to extradition should not take place without a warrant under section 8 of the Extradition Act, save in the most urgent and exceptional cases, and should then be guided by the ordinary law of arrest. If a person has been arrested without warrant, a warrant under section 8 (2) should be obtained as quickly as possible. Reg. v. Weil, 15 Cox, C.C., 193.

See the remarks of Brett J. in ex parte Terraz 4 Ex. D. 63, 42 L. J., Ex. 214.

Proceedings at Bow Street Police Court.

XVII. After the prisoner is brought to Bow Street, the subsequent proceedings take place in that Court, in accordance with the requirements of the Extradition Acts and of the several Treaties. If the prisoner is committed for surrender, a period of 15 days is allowed him in which he may apply to the High Court for a writ of Habeas Corpus. If he makes no application, or if the application is made and refused, the Secretary of State issues his warrant for the surrender of the prisoner, and he is handed over by the Metropolitan Police to the officers of the government demanding his surrender, either at an English or at a foreign port according to the arrangement in force with the different countries.

33 & 34 Vict. c. 52, s. 11.

Extradition of Convicted Offenders.

XVIII. The proceedings for the arrest of an offender convicted in a foreign country and escaping to England are the same as those in the case of an accused person. The only difference is as to the nature of the evidence required in the hearing of the case at Bow Street.

Crimes committed at Sea.

XIX. In cases of crimes committed on foreign vessels on the high seas, when the vessel comes into a British port, and the surrender of the criminal is sought, the stipendiary magistrate* having jurisdiction in, or in the place nearest to, the port, exercises the powers which in other cases are exercised by the chief magistrate at Bow Street. The Secretary of State directs to him the order made under section 7; the accused, if provisionally arrested, is brought before him. He hears the case with the same powers as the chief magistrate, and commits the prisoner for extradition. His warrant, however, is not effective without endorsement beyond his ordinary jurisdiction.

33 & 34 Vict. c. 52, s. 16.

Expenses.

XX. The Governments of the United States, Russia, Mexico and Colombia, under the terms of the treaties with these countries, defray all expenses incurred in connexion with cases in which they demand the extradition of fugitives. In the case of all other countries, expenses incurred within the United Kingdom are defrayed by the English Government; those incurred outside the British territories are borne by the foreign government.

* In Scotland, the sheriff or sheriff-substitute.

The accounts for the expense incurred in each extradition case are submitted by the Metropolitan Police to the Secretary of State, who claims from the Treasury and foreign government the sums payable by each respectively. Where a person whose extradition is claimed is arrested by provincial police, the expenses incurred in connexion with the arrest, including the conveyance of the prisoner to London, and the attendance of the officer at Bow Street, should be reclaimed from the Metropolitan Police, who will include them in the accounts submitted to the Secretary of State.

Fugitive Offenders Act, 1881.—Fugitives from the United Kingdom.

XXI. When a person who has committed a crime in the United Kingdom has fled to any British possession (i.e., to any part of Her Majesty's dominions exclusive of the United Kingdom, the Channel Islands, and the Isle of Man), his surrender can be obtained, if the offence he has committed be treason or piracy, or any offence for the time being punishable in the United Kingdom, by imprisonment with hard labour for a term of 12 months or more, or by any greater punishment.

44 & 45 Vict. c. 69, s. 9.

No question of nationality arises in this case.

Application for Surrender.

XXII. The application for the surrender of a fugitive from a British possession should be addressed by the prosecutor or the police to the Secretary of State for the Home Department, who will communicate through the Colonial Office with the Governor of the British possession where the fugitive is supposed to be.

The Fugitive Offenders Act does not exclude direct applications by the prosecutor to the authorities of the British possession. The arrest of a fugitive (section 3) may be made on a warrant endorsed by a judge of a Superior Court or by the Governor of the British possession; and, by section 4, in cases of urgency, a magistrate in the place to which the offender is supposed to have fled, may issue a warrant for his apprehension, "on such information and under such "circumstances as would in his opinion justify the issue of a warrant if the "offence of which the fugitive is accused had been committed within his juris-"diction." Direct applications by the prosecutors or the police are, however, found to be attended with difficulties, as the Colonial authorities usually refuse to take proceedings on applications from private persons, especially in the case of telegrams where they have no guarantee as to their genuineness, and no assurance that the expenses they may incur will be repaid. The practice is therefore that all applications are made through the Home Office and Colonial Office, and in cases of urgency a telegram asking for the provisional arrest of the fugitive is sent by the Colonial Office at the request of the Secretary of State for the Home Department.

Particulars and Documents to accompany Application.

XXIII. The application to the Secretary of State should be made by letter, stating briefly the facts of the case, and giving in detail the information as to the fugitive's supposed whereabouts, and the means of tracing and identifying him. It must be accompanied by—

(a) the warrant of arrest in duplicate;
(b) the documents (depositions, &c.) containing the evidence on which the surrender of the fugitive is claimed, with certified copies of the same (see para. XXIV);
(c) a description of the accused sufficient for purposes of identification, with, if possible, a photograph;
(It is usually advisable that the description should form part of the formal evidence.)
(d) an indemnity for expenses (see para. XXVII).

The letter should also state whether it is desired that the provisional arrest of the fugitive should be asked for by telegram.

In cases of urgency, if the depositions, &c., required to support the demand for extradition have not been completed, it will usually be sufficient, in order to obtain the provisional arrest of the fugitive, to furnish in the first instance a warrant of arrest and the indemnity for expenses, an explicit undertaking being given to complete the depositions and other documents and forward them with the least possible delay.

Documents sent in duplicate.

XXIV. The warrant, informations, and depositions are sent to the Home Office in duplicate, in order that two complete sets of documents may be authenticated with the Secretary of State's seal. One set (including the original depositions) is then returned, in order that, if a police officer is sent out in connexion with the application, he may take them with him; the other set (which includes the copies) is despatched to the Governor, through the Colonial Office, to support the official request for the surrender. 44 & 45 Vict. c. 69, s. 29.

Requirements as to Warrant, Informations, and Depositions.

XXV. It is necessary that the utmost care should be taken in cases under the Fugitive Offenders Act to secure that the documents—warrant, informations, and depositions—are correct in form, and that the evidence is complete in material points. Cases have occurred in which, after a fugitive criminal has been apprehended, inaccuracies in the warrant or defects in the evidence have led to his being set at liberty before steps could be taken to remedy the mistakes.

(a) The evidence supporting the demand for the surrender of a fugitive must be such as, "according to law ordinarily administered by the "magistrate" before whom he is brought, "raises a strong or "probable presumption that the fugitive committed the offence "mentioned in the warrant," that is, generally speaking, there must be informations or depositions containing such primâ facie evidence of the commission of the offence charged as in this country would justify committal for trial. 44 & 45 Vict. c. 69, s 5.

(b) Evidence necessary for the identification of the fugitive as the person named in the depositions must be furnished. 44 & 45 Vict. c. 69, s. 7.

(c) There should be a distinct allegation in the evidence, and, if possible, the warrant should also show on the face of it that the offence is one punishable in the United Kingdom, either on indictment or information, by imprisonment with hard labour for a term of 12 months or more, or by some greater punishment. Home Office Circular of 14 Dec. 1883.

Where the flight of the accused is not known until after the warrant has been issued, and especially where an information is hastily laid in order to obtain his immediate arrest, it is in many cases advisable to issue a fresh warrant, on an amended information, before applying for his surrender from a British possession. Home Office Circular of 2 Feb. 1880.

Depositions may, for the purpose of the Fugitive Offenders Act, be taken in the absence of the accused. 44 & 45 Vict. c. 69, s. 29.

The copies of informations or depositions should, if possible, be authenticated by the magistrate by whom the originals were taken. 45 & 46 Vict. c. 69, s. 3.

Application for surrender on several charges.

XXVI. Where there are several charges against the fugitive, there should be evidence in the informations or depositions with regard to every charge on which it is proposed that he should be tried after his surrender. Id. s. 26.

Indemnity for Expenses.

XXVII. The indemnity for expenses which is required in all cases, except those undertaken by the Director of Public Prosecutions, must be in the form in Appendix E, and must be signed by the prosecutor. It need not be stamped. Id. s. 30.

The whole of the expenses incurred, including the cost of telegrams and the expense of sending out an officer to bring home the prisoner, must be borne by the prosecutor.

English Police Officers sent out to British Possessions.

XXVIII. It is sometimes considered desirable when an application is made under the Fugitive Offenders Act that an English police officer should be sent out to assist in tracing and identifying the accused.

When this course is taken the Home Office should be informed of the name of the officer, and of the date of his intended departure, in order that the Colonial authorities may be informed officially through the Colonial Office.

The officer sent out should, if possible, see the warrant and depositions signed, as his evidence to this effect sometimes removes difficulties. In any case he will take with him the warrant and originial depositions as mentioned in para. XXIV.

Further Evidence.

XXIX. After the fugitive has been arrested, further evidence is sometimes required by the courts of the British possession, which must be supplied by the prosecutors.

Occasionally the attendance of a witness is required to prove the identity of the person arrested. If the evidence of identity can be given by a police officer, his services will also be available for the purpose of bringing home the prisoner (para. XXX).

Conveyance of Prisoner to England.

XXX. When the decision of the courts of the British possession to concede the surrender of the fugitive is notified, the conveyance of the prisoner to England is matter of arrangement between the police of the two countries. In practice the prisoner is almost invariably brought home by an English officer. If an officer has not already been sent out to trace the fugitive, one is usually sent as soon as the arrest is notified by telegram, as his evidence (see paras. XXVIII and XXIX) sometimes facilitates the proceedings in the courts, and his presence in the British possession prevents delay in bringing back the prisoner if his surrender is granted. The prisoner can claim his release if not removed from the British possession within one month after his committal, unless sufficient cause can be shown to the contrary.

Fugitive Offenders Act, 1881.—Fugitives from British Possessions in the United Kingdom.

XXXI. For the arrest of a fugitive from a British possession in the United Kingdom, two alternative procedures are provided:

(a) Apprehension under an endorsed warrant (section 3).

(b) Apprehension under a provisional warrant (section 4).

Apprehension on Endorsed Warrant.

XXXII. The first course, apprehension under an endorsed warrant, is adopted in cases where the arrest of the fugitive is not urgent.

The warrant may be endorsed in the United Kingdom, either by the Secretary of State, by a judge of a Superior Court (High Court or Court of Appeal), or by a police magistrate at Bow Street, provided the person endorsing is "satisfied that the warrant was issued by some person having lawful authority to "issue the same." In ordinary practice applications for arrest under this section are addressed by the Colonial Governments to the Secretary of State for the Colonies, and are forwarded by the Colonial Office to the Secretary of State for the Home Department. An endorsed warrant may be executed either by any of the persons named in the endorsement, or by any of the persons to whom it was originally directed, or by any constable in any part of the United Kingdom, in the Channel Islands, and the Isle of Man; and the prisoner when arrested may be brought either before a police magistrate at Bow Street Police Court, or before any justice of the peace, who will then order him to be brought before such police magistrate.

Apprehension on Provisional Warrant.

XXXIII. The process of apprehension on provisional warrant is intended for cases of urgency, and most cases from the colonies fall under this head.

A provisional warrant may be issued (section 4) by any justice of the peace for the apprehension of any fugitive who is or is suspected of being in or on his way to the United Kingdom, "on such information and under such cir- "cumstances as would, in his opinion, justify the issue of the warrant if the "offence of which the fugitive is accused had been committed within his juris- "diction."

In practice a sworn information, showing a reasonable suspicion that a crime has been committed, and that the alleged offender is the guilty party, is required before the issue of the provisional warrant. This information may be based upon a letter or telegram purporting to be from the government or from any judicial or police authority of a British possession, stating—

(a) the alleged offence;

(b) that a warrant has been granted for the apprehension of the alleged criminal;

(c) that further proceedings in accordance with the Fugitive Offenders Act will be taken.

There is no restriction in the Act as to the persons by whom the information is to be laid, and in practice it is usually made by a police officer.

A provisional warrant may, if necessary, be backed for execution. 45 & 46 Vict. c. 69, s. 4.

The justice issuing a provisional warrant forthwith sends a report of the issue, together with the information, or a certified copy thereof, to a Secretary of State, who may, if he thinks fit, discharge the fugitive.

The magistrate before whom the fugitive offender who has been appre- Id. s. 30. hended under a provisional warrant is brought orders him to be brought before one of the police magistrates of the Bow Street Police Court.

The evidence of the officer making the arrest is required in the examination at Bow Street. It is therefore usual, when the arrest has been made elsewhere than in London, that the officer who made the arrest should bring up the prisoner to London and attend with him at Bow Street.

Remand of Prisoner.

XXXIV. The magistrate at Bow Street, before whom a prisoner arrested Id. s. 5, a. 1 fin. on a provisional warrant is brought, remands him for such reasonable time, not exceeding seven days at one time as under the circumstances seems to him requisite for the production of the endorsed warrant.

After the production of the endorsed warrant, the proceedings are the same as if the arrest had been, in the first instance, on an endorsed warrant.

Proceedings at Bow Street.

XXXV. When the prisoner has been brought before the police magistrate, and the endorsed warrant produced, the magistrate proceeds to hear the case, in accordance with the provisions of the Fugitive Offenders Act, 1881, and subject to these provisions in the same manner and with the same jurisdiction and powers as if the prisoner were charged with an offence committed within Id. c. 69, s. 5. his jurisdiction. If he is satisfied that the evidence produced raises, according to English law, a strong or probable presumption that the fugitive committed the offence mentioned in the warrant, he commits him for surrender. A period of 15 days is then allowed him in which he may apply to the High Court for a writ of habeas corpus. If he makes no application, or if the application is made and refused, the Secretary of State issues his warrant for the surrender of the prisoner, and he is either handed over to an officer deputed for that purpose by the Governor of the British possession, or is taken out to the British possession by an English officer, according to the arrangement that may be made in each case.

The prisoner must be removed within one month of his final committal to Id. s. 7. await his surrender; otherwise a Superior Court, on application by the prisoner, will, unless sufficient cause is shown to the contrary, order him to be discharged.

Surrender of convicted Offender.

XXXVI. The proceedings for the arrest of an offender convicted in a British possession and escaping to England are the same as those in the case of an accused person. The only difference is as to the nature of the evidence required in the hearing of the case at Bow Street.

Scotland and Ireland.

45 and 46 Vict. c. 69, ss. 30, 39.

XXXVII. In Scotland the powers exercised in England by a police magistrate at Bow Street, of hearing a case and committing a prisoner to await his return, are exercised by the sheriff or sheriff substitute of the county of Edinburgh; those of a justice of the peace (to issue a provisional warrant, &c.) are exercised by any sheriff or sheriff substitute; and those of a Superior Court by the High Court of Justiciary.

In Ireland the powers of the police magistrate are exercised by one of the police magistrates of the Dublin Metropolitan Police District, and those of a Superior Court by the Court of Appeal and High Court of Justice at Dublin. The power of the Secretary of State may be exercised as regards Ireland not only by the Secretary of State, but also by the Lord Lieutenant, Lords Justices, or Chief Secretary.

Expenses.

XXXVIII. The expenses of arresting and surrendering a fugitive under the Fugitive Offenders Act are to be borne by the Government or the individual applying for his surrender, and cannot be charged either to imperial or police funds.

The police should, therefore, as a rule incur no expenditure, and take no steps,—as by causing an application to be made either for a provisional warrant or for an endorsement of a warrant, or by directing the execution of an endorsed warrant,—unless they are either acting under instructions from the Secretary of State, or have obtained an adequate indemnity or prepayment from the persons seeking the surrender. If, without such indemnity or prepayment, the Metropolitan Police should receive from any private person, or directly from the Colonial police, a request to take any of such steps, they should, wherever time admits, apply for instructions to the Secretary of State, who, where necessary, will cause inquiry to be made at the Colonial Office. Only in the event of emergency, where the loss of a few hours would be irretrievable, will they be justified in taking such action as may be imperatively required; but in that case the matter should, as soon as possible afterwards, be reported to the Secretary of State.

In the case of provincial police forces it is advisable that the same rule should be observed, so far as circumstances admit.

Application of Fugitive Offenders Act, 1881, to Foreign Countries.

XXXIX. By section 36 of the Fugitive Offenders Act, Her Majesty may, by Order in Council, direct that the Act shall apply to any place named in the Order out of Her Majesty's dominions, but in which Her Majesty has jurisdiction, as if such place were a British possession. The Order may provide for carrying out the application of the Act, which may be made subject to conditions, exceptions, and qualifications.

Under this section the Fugitive Offenders Act has been applied to various countries in which Her Majesty's Consular Courts have jurisdiction under the Foreign Jurisdiction Acts.

A list of these countries, with the section of the Order in Council applying the Fugitive Offenders Act in each case, is given in Appendix B.

The preliminary steps to obtain the surrender of a fugitive who has fled from England to any of these countries will be the same as in the case of a British possession: as will also the steps for the arrest within the United Kingdom of a fugitive from any of these countries. Only persons subject to the Queen's jurisdiction in the foreign countries can be dealt with under these Orders, and in most of them the application of the Fugitive Offenders Act is expressly restricted to British subjects.

APPENDIX G.

MEMORANDA AS TO PROCEDURE IN EXTRADITION CASES IN THE UNITED STATES.

Foreign Office,
April 19th, 1887.

SIR,

I am directed by the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs to transmit to you, to be laid before Mr. Secretary Matthews, a copy of a Despatch from Her Majesty's Minister at Washington enclosing a copy of a Minute which he has drawn up of the procedure in extradition cases which now obtains in the United States.

I am, &c.,
(Signed) J. PAUNCEFOTE.

The Under Secretary of State, Home Office.

MINUTE.

Procedure which at present obtains in Extradition cases under Article X of the Treaty of 1842 and Act of Congress of 1882:

I. The demand for Extradition is made under Article X of the Treaty of 1842.

II. The reply thereto states that when the necessary forms of law have been complied with, the usual warrant of surrender will be issued.

III. No warrant for the preliminary arrest of a fugitive criminal is issued by the Secretary of State.

IV. The application for arrest is made directly to the Commissioner, or other judicial officer in whom the function of arrest and examination is specifically vested, by the Consular Officer in whose consular jurisdiction the fugitive criminal may be found, at the instigation of Her Majesty's Representative and upon affidavit of the Consul of his identity.

V. The depositions and warrants duly authenticated are then submitted to the judicial authority or Commissioner, who takes cognisance of the case under the Treaty and Act of Congress.

VI. If held for Extradition thereunder, the papers and certificates are submitted to the Secretary of State.

VII. If the Commissioner's decision in favour of Extradition is approved by the Secretary of State, the warrant of surrender is issued.

VIII. The warrant of surrender is sent to Her Majesty's Representative, who authorises the Consular officer, or such person as he may designate, to receive the fugitive criminal.

OBSERVATIONS.

The demand for Extradition need not necessarily be made before the case is sent to the Secretary of State by the Commissioner, for it is only when he is satisfied that the forms of law have been complied with that the warrant of surrender can be issued.

It is when the case comes before the Commissioner that the defect in the legal procedure is seen to allow of the escape of criminals. To secure the preliminary arrest, it is only necessary for Her Majesty's Representative to instruct the Consular officer to make the demand pending the arrival of the necessary papers, and that the Consul should have means of identifying the criminal. In places where there is no Consular officer, a difficulty would undoubtedly arise in finding some person who could be authorised to act in the case, and it would be advisable therefore that an officer should be sent out who could be authorised by Her Majesty's Representative to make the demand for the arrest, and to identify the fugitive. It is essential therefore for the preliminary arrest, that the Consular officer or person authorised to make the demand should have the means of identifying the fugitive, in order to be enabled to make the necessary affidavit before the Commissioner.

Sir Julian Pauncefote presents his compliments to Sir A. F. O. Liddell, and begs to enclose for his information an extract from a letter from Messrs. Marbury, Counsel to Her Majesty's Consulate-General at New York, concerning the particulars required by the United States Courts when a request for Extradition for the crime of forgery is transmitted by telegraph.

Foreign Office, July 24, 1884.

(Extract.)

It is of prime importance, where a person is apprehended upon a telegraphic despatch, to have as far as possible complete particulars of the character of the offence committed, to secure his detention until the depositions and documentary evidence shall be received. In cases of forgery, the despatch should contain a description of the instrument claimed to be forged, date, amount, if draft or bill, upon whom drawn, name of payee, place of utterance, name forged or character of forgery, and the person defrauded, or as much of these as can be furnished, and more to be supplied as soon as obtained. Where adequate particulars are contained in the despatch, which is the foundation for the complaint, there will be no difficulty in having the accused remanded until the arrival of the papers.

(3.)

AT THE COURT AT WINDSOR,

PRESENT:

The Queen's Most Excellent Majesty.

Lord President.

Earl of Coventry.

Earl of Limerick.

Whereas by the Extradition Acts, 1870 and 1873, it was amongst other things enacted that, where an arrangement has been made with any Foreign State with respect to the surrender to such State of any fugitive criminals, Her Majesty may, by Order in Council, direct that the said Acts shall apply in the case of such Foreign State; and that Her Majesty may, by the same or any subsequent Order, limit the operation of the Order, and restrict the same to fugitive criminals who are in or suspected of being in the part of Her Majesty's dominions specified in the Order, and render the operation thereof subject to such conditions, exceptions, and qualifications as may be deemed expedient; and that if, by any law made after the passing of the Act of 1870 by the Legislature of any British possession, provision is made for carrying into effect within such possession the surrender of fugitive criminals who are in or suspected of being in such British possession, Her Majesty may, by the Order in Council applying the said Acts in the case of any foreign State, or by any subsequent Order, suspend the operation within any such British possession of the said Acts, or of any part thereof, so far as it relates to such foreign State, and so long as such Law continues in force there and no longer:

And whereas by an Act of the Parliament of Canada passed in 1886, and entitled "An Act respecting the extradition of Fugitive Criminals," provision is made for carrying into effect within the Dominion the surrender of fugitive criminals:

And whereas by an Order of Her Majesty the Queen in Council dated the seventeenth day of November one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight it was directed that the operation of the Extradition Acts, 1870 and 1873, should be suspended within the Dominion of Canada so long as the provision of the said Act of the Parliament of Canada of 1886 should continue in force and no longer:

And whereas a Treaty was concluded on the fourteenth day of August, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-six between Her Majesty and The President of the French Republic, for the mutual extradition of fugitive criminals, in the case of which Treaty the above-mentioned Acts of Parliament were applied by an Order in Council of the sixteenth of May one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight:

And whereas an Arrangement was concluded on the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine between the Government of Her Majesty and the Government of the French Republic, acting in the name of the Government of His Highness The Bey of Tunis, for extending the provisions of the said Treaty of August 14, 1876, to Tunis, which Arrangement is in the terms following:

"The Government of Her Britannic Majesty on the one part, and the Government of the French Republic, acting in the name of the Government of His Highness the Bey of Tunis, on the other part, with a view to insure as far as possible the arrest and delivery to the competent jurisdiction of criminals who seek to escape by flight from the action of justice, have agreed as follows:

"The provisions of the Anglo-French Convention of the fourteenth August one thousand eight hundred and seventy-six are extended to Tunis, except that the period of fourteen days, stipulated by Article IX of the said Convention, is prolonged to two months.

"The present Arrangement shall have the same duration as the Convention of Extradition to which it relates.

"In witness whereof the Undersigned, His Excellency the Earl of Lytton, Her Britannic Majesty's Ambassador at Paris, and His Excellency M. Spuller, Minister for Foreign Affairs of the French Republic, have prepared the present Arrangement, and have affixed thereto their seals.

"Le Gouvernement de Sa Majesté Britannique d'une part, et le Gouvernement de la République Française, agissant au nom du Gouvernement de Son Altesse le Bey de Tunis, de l'autre, en vue d'assurer autant que possible l'arrestation et la remise à la juridiction compétente des malfaiteurs qui cherchent à se soustraire par la fuite à l'action de la justice, sont convenus de ce qui suit:

"Les dispositions de la Convention Franco-Anglaise du 14 Août, 1876, sont étendues à la Tunisie, sauf que le délai de quatorze jours stipulé par l'Article IX de la dite Convention est porté à deux mois.

"Le présent Arrangement aura la même durée que la Convention d'Extradition à laquelle il se rapporte.

"En foi de quoi les Soussignés, son Excellence le Comte de Lytton, Ambassadeur de Sa Majesté Britannique à Paris, et son Excellence M. Spuller, Ministre des Affaires Étrangères de la République Française, ont dressé le présent Arrangement, et y ont apposé leurs cachets.

"Done at Paris the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine.

"Fait à Paris, le 31 Décembre, 1889.

Now, therefore, Her Majesty, by and with the advice of Her Privy Council, and in virtue of the authority committed to Her by the said recited Acts, doth order, and it is hereby ordered, that from and after the sixteenth day of May one thousand eight hundred and ninety the said Acts shall apply in the case of Tunis in conformity with the said Arrangement with the French Republic.

Provided always, and it is hereby further ordered, that the operation of the said Extradition Acts, 1870 and 1873, shall be suspended within the Dominion of Canada so far as relates to Tunis and to the said Arrangement, and so long as the provisions of the Canadian Act aforesaid of 1886 continue in force, and no longer.

POST OFFICE.

No. 3365.

Simla, the 11th July, 1890.

In exercise of the power conferred by section 27 of the Indian Post Office Act, XIV of 1866, and in supersession of the notification in this Department No. 2982, dated the 14th November 1873, the Governor General in Council is pleased to prescribe the following rules for the redelivery to the sender of letters and other articles delivered into a Post Office:

Inland letters, postcards, book and pattern packets and parcels, and foreign registered letters and parcels which have not been despatched from India, may be recalled, after having been posted, subject to the following rules:

I.—No letter or other article posted in any Post Office or letter box shall be returned, except under the orders of—

(a) the Chief Postal Authority in a Postal Circle;

(b) the Director General of the Post Office;

(c) the Local Government or Administration; or

(d) the Governor General in Council.

II.—A fee of one rupee shall be paid in respect of each letter or other article for the return of which an application is made.

III.—An application for the return of any such letter or article may be presented in writing to the said Officers, Governments, or Administrations directly, or through any officer in charge of a Post Office.

IV.—Such application shall be received only from the writer of the letter or the sender of the article, or from some person duly authorised in this behalf by such writer or sender.

V.—The application shall be accompanied by a statement (which may be enclosed in a sealed cover) of the reasons why return of the letter or article is sought. Such sealed cover shall be opened only by the officer or by a Secretary to the Government or Administration to whom or to which the application is presented.

VI.—Upon receipt of such application and statement, together with the prescribed fee as aforesaid, by a Postmaster or other officer in charge of a Post Office, he shall immediately send the application and statement to the Chief Postal Authority in the Postal Circle in which he is serving.

VII.—If the letter or article of which return is sought is in his possession, the said Postmaster or other officer, instead of forwarding it to its address, shall keep it in deposit, and send the application to the said authority.

VIII.—If the letter or article is not in the possession of the said Postmaster or other officer, he shall require the Postmaster or other officer in charge of the Post Office of address in the case of an inland article, and of the office of foreign exchange in the case of a foreign registered letter or parcel, to abstain from delivering it to the addressee or from sending it to its address, and to keep it in deposit. The requisition to such other officer may be sent by telegraph, but all expenses attending its transmission must be borne by the applicant.

IX.—When the application reaches the officer or authority named in Rule I, he or it may order return of the letter or article upon being satisfied that the applicant is the writer or sender, as the case may be, and that sufficient reasons have been given for the redelivery; otherwise he shall order it to be sent at once to its address.

X.—No letter or postcard posted in any Post Office or letter box shall be returned in any case to any one but the writer, or some person authorised by the writer in writing to receive it; and no article, other than a letter or postcard, delivered into the post shall be returned to any one but the sender, or some person authorised by the sender in writing to receive it.

XI.—In the foregoing rules, the word "writer" does not include a person who writes a letter which another dictates or directs to be written, or who copies a letter which has been written by another; but in each of such cases the author of the letter shall, for the purposes of these rules, be held to be the "writer."

NOTIFICATION.

Simla, the 18th July, 1890.

No. 34.—The following Statute is published for general information:

MERCHANT SHIPPING ACT, 1890.

[53 VICTORIA, CHAPTER 9.]

An Act to amend the Merchant Shipping Acts relating to Load-line.

[9TH JUNE 1890.]

BE it enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:

Compulsory marking of load-line.

1. The Merchant Shipping Act, 1876, shall, from and after the expiration of six months after the passing of this Act, be construed as if in the twenty-sixth and twenty-seventh sections thereof the following sub-section were inserted instead of the sub-sections numbered (2) in those sections respectively:

"(2.) The centre of this disc shall be placed at such level below the deck-line marked under the provisions of this Act as may be approved by the Board of Trade, and shall indicate the maximum load-line in salt water to which it shall be lawful to load the ship."

Provided that the position of the disc shall be fixed in accordance with the tables framed by the Load Line Committee appointed before the passing of this Act, subject to such allowance as may be made necessary by any difference between the position of the deck-line marked under the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1876, and the position of the line from which freeboard is measured under the said tables, and subject also to such modifications, if any, of the tables and the application thereof as may from time to time be sanctioned by the Board of Trade.

In sanctioning any such modifications the Board of Trade shall have regard to any representations which may be made to them by any corporation or association for the survey or registry of shipping for the time appointed or approved by the Board of Trade for the purposes of this Act.

2. (1.) The Board of Trade shall appoint the Committee of Lloyd's Register of British and Foreign Shipping, or, at the option of the owner of the ship, any other corporation or association for the survey or registry of shipping, approved by the Board of Trade, or any officer of the Board of Trade specially selected by the Board for that purpose, to approve and certify on their behalf from time to time the position of any such disc as aforesaid, and any alteration thereof, and may appoint fees to be taken in respect of any such approval or certificate.

Regulations.

(2.) The Board of Trade may make regulations—

(a) determining the lines or marks to be used in connexion with the disc, in order to indicate the maximum load-line under different circumstances and at different seasons, and declaring that the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1876, are to have effect as if any such line were drawn through the centre of the disc;

39 & 40 Vict. c. 80.

(b) as to the mode in which the disc and the lines or marks to be used in connexion therewith are to be marked or affixed on the ship, whether by painting, cutting, or otherwise;

(c) as to the mode of application for, and form of, certificates under this Act; and

(d) requiring the entry of such certificates, and other particulars as to the draught of water and freeboard of the ship, in the official log-book of the ship, or other publication thereof on board the ship, and as to delivering copies of such entries.

All such regulations shall, while in force, have effect as if enacted by this Act.

3. Where the legislature of any British possession by any enactment provides for the fixing, marking, and certifying of load-lines on ships registered in that possession, and it appears to Her Majesty the Queen that the provisions of that enactment are based on the same principles as the provisions of this Act, and are equally effective for ascertaining and determining the maximum load-lines to which such ships can be safely loaded in salt water, and for giving notice of the load-line to persons interested, it shall be lawful for Her Majesty, by Order in Council, to declare that any load-line fixed and marked and any certificate given in pursuance of that enactment shall, with respect to ships so registered, have the same effect as if it had been fixed, marked, or given in pursuance of this Act.

Provision as to colonial ships.

Sections one and two of this Act shall not apply in the case of a ship registered in a British possession until the expiration of twelve months after the passing of this Act.

4. Where the Board of Trade certify that the laws and regulations for the time being in force in any foreign state with respect to overloading and improper loading are equally effective with the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Acts with respect thereto, it shall be lawful for Her Majesty by Order in Council to direct that, on proof of a ship of that state having complied with those laws and regulations, she shall not, when in a port of the United Kingdom, be liable to detention for non-compliance with the said provisions of the Merchant Shipping Acts, nor shall there arise any liability to any penalty which would otherwise arise for non-compliance with those provisions.

Provision as to foreign ships.

Provided that this section shall not apply in the case of ships of any foreign country in which it appears to Her Majesty that corresponding provisions are not extended to British ships.

5. For the purposes of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1876, as amended by this Act, the expression "amidships" shall mean the middle of the length of the load water-line as measured from the fore side of the stem to the aft side of the stern-post.

39 & 40 Vict. c. 80.

Definition of "amidships."

6. This Act may be cited as the Merchant Shipping Act, 1890.

PENSIONS AND GRATUITIES (FUNDS, SERVICE AND OTHER.)

No. 3510.

The 17th July, 1890.

In accordance with the terms of G. G. O. No. 1315, dated the 28th December 1872, as republished in G. G. O. No. 560, dated the 23rd May 1873, the Governor General in Council directs the publication of the following documents regarding the condition of the Indian Military Service Family Pension Fund as on the 31st March 1888:

FINANCIAL (FUNDS). INDIA OFFICE,
No. 4. London, 15th May 1890.

To His Excellency the Most Honourable the Governor General of India in Council.

Indian Military Service Family Pensions. Mr. Sutton's Report on Mr. Willis Browne's valuation as at the 31st March 1888.

MY LORD MARQUIS,—With reference to the notification contained in G. G. O. No. 1315, dated 28th December 1872, to the effect that valuations relating to the pensions provided under the Indian Service Family Pension Regulations would be made periodically, with a view to ascertain whether the rates of contribution payable by the subscribers are such as will supply the pensions and no more, I forward herewith, for the information of your Excellency's Government, and for publication in the Gazette of India for the information of the subscribers, reports by Mr. W. Sutton, F.I.A., the Actuary of the Registry of Friendly Societies, and by Mr. Willis Browne, of this Office, relating to a valuation of these pensions as on the 31st March 1888.

2. The results obtained by Mr. Willis Browne in his valuation are satisfactory, showing, as they do, a surplus as at the 31st March 1888 of 62,345*l.*, which represents nearly 9 per cent. of the value of the liabilities as against 3½ per cent. brought out in the previous valuation.

3. Mr. Browne has made a thorough investigation into the rates of mortality existing among the members and their wives and children, and he finds that the rates existing among the members are lower than those adopted in the original tables, and consequently are more favourable, so far as the safety of the Fund is concerned. In respect to the mortality rates existing among the wives and children of members, and to the marriage rates to which the daughters of officers are subject, Mr. Browne considers that, in general, they are somewhat unfavourable. Taking all the circumstances into consideration, Mr. Browne gives the following reasons for retaining the original tables for the purposes of the present valuation:

(a) That the period over which the experience of the Fund extends, viz., 15 years, is very short when considered relatively to the number of lives exposed to risk, and to the limit of age over which the risk is spread.
(b) That the low rates obtaining among the wives and children counteract to some extent those obtaining among the officers.
(c) That General Hannyngton intentionally based his calculations on rates which he considered would cover any risk that might be incurred by any serious outbreak of war.
(d) That the fixed contributions for children are insufficient.

4. Mr. Sutton considers that the course adopted by Mr. Browne in retaining the original tables for the purposes of the present valuation is a proper one. In these circumstances the use of the original tables has received my approval in Council.

5. With respect to the charge for expenses of management, the difficulty of arriving at any conclusion as to the actual cost of management is very great, but I am disposed to think that 2½ per cent. of the total annual receipts and disbursements in India may be taken as the annual charge in India as proposed by Mr. Browne.

6. The question of the mode of distributing the surplus as at the 31st March 1888 has received my careful consideration in Council.

7. The surplus brought out in the last valuation as at the 31st March 1883 was employed in lessening the effect of the fall in the value of the rupee on the contributions of the subscribers in India, and with that object the sterling rates have been converted into Indian currency up to the present date at an exchange of a little over 1*s.* 9¼*d.* The original sterling rates have remained unaltered, and it follows that, by this method of appropriating the surplus, retired subscribers have been excluded from all participation therein.

8. The number of retired subscribers has hitherto been comparatively small, but it is clear that in the course of time a large body of members will have retired from the Service, and, as stated by Mr. Sutton, it may reasonably be contended that any appropriation of surplus by way of reduction of subscriptions should apply to all subscriptions, and not merely to that portion payable in India.

9. Whilst admitting the general principle that a surplus should be applied in the reduction of all subscriptions, Mr. Sutton would exclude from participating in a surplus subscribers who retire from the Service before they attain the age of 50, on the ground that, as retired members pay only half rates of subscription, retirements before that age involve a loss to the Fund.

10. It is true, as pointed out by Mr. Sutton, that in the construction of the original scales of contribution it was assumed that the full rate of subscription would be payable up to the age of 50, and that, as a class, officers who retire early may entail some loss on the Fund, but on the other hand such loss may be counterbalanced by the gain arising from the overpayments of subscribers who remain in the Service beyond that age.

11. It must also be borne in mind that the fraternal element formed an important part of this scheme, and having reference to this fact, and to the difficulty of distinguishing between the claims of members to a share of surplus assets in a body of subscribers entering and passing through and out of the Indian Service on similar conditions, whether as regards recent entrants or early retirements, I have decided that all subscribers shall share alike in any reduction in the rate of contributions allowed as the result of a surplus.

12. The question then arises whether it is desirable to continue the practice of disposing of a surplus by allowing the Indian contributions to be determined by the conversion of the sterling rates of contribution at a favourable rate of exchange, or whether the original sterling rates should be reduced, and the subscribers in India required to pay the exact equivalent of the reduced rates at the official rate of exchange.

13. The proposal made by Mr. Sutton in his Report dated 18th January 1881, that the Indian contributions should be adjusted year by year, so that they should be always equivalent to the fixed contributions in English currency which are assumed to be sufficient to provide the benefits, was not adopted at the time, on the ground, as stated in paragraph 10 of Financial (Funds) Despatch to the Government of India dated 17th February 1881, No. 2, that it would be inconvenient to the officers of the Pay Department in India.

14. The Government of India likewise stated in their Financial Despatch dated 15th October 1883, that "to have rates varying every year would be "extremely troublesome, both to Government and the subscribers." It is, however, objectionable in principle that subscribers in India should be contributing to the Fund rates of subscription which are not the equivalent of the sterling sums required to provide the pensions and no more, and I shall therefore be glad if your Excellency's Government will reconsider the subject, with a view if possible to the adoption of Mr. Sutton's proposal in future years.

15. Tables showing the sterling rates of contribution converted into Indian currency at varying rates of exchange have been prepared by Mr. Willis Browne, and are forwarded herewith. Copies of these tables might be supplied to the various pay offices in India and, if necessary, to the subscribers, and the contributions for each year could be ascertained by reference to the tables at the date of the announcement of the rate of exchange fixed each year for the purpose of regulating transactions with the Imperial Exchequer.

16. In accordance with the principle proposed by Mr. Sutton in 1881, that the fixed contributions in sterling should be taken as the standard and the rupee contributions so adjusted as to secure the payment by the subscribers in India of the equivalent of the sterling rates, the suggestion of Mr. Willis Browne, in which Mr. Sutton concurs, that the rupee rates should henceforth be expunged from the rules and that the sterling rates of contribution and pension only should be given, has been adopted.

17. Mr. Sutton shows that the surplus as on 31st March 1888 would admit of a reduction of the sterling contributions by 16⅔ per cent., assuming the market rate of exchange for the pro formâ account to be 1*s.* 5¾*d.*; and he recommends that the conversion of the original sterling rates into rupees to determine the Indian contributions be continued until the next valuation at 1*s.* 9¼*d.*, which is tantamount to a reduction of 16⅔ per cent. in the original rates. Mr. Sutton also recommends that a reduction of 16⅔ per cent. should be allowed to officers paying their contributions in sterling with effect from the 31st March 1890.

18. The immediate adoption of Mr. Sutton's original proposal, that the rupee contributions should be the equivalent of the sterling rates at the official rate of exchange fixed annually, would be to cause an increase to those contributions in India. Moreover Mr. Sutton proposes to treat the present reduction as temporary, to be in force until the next valuation only, and not as a permanent alteration in the original sterling rates.

19. In these circumstances I authorise you to notify to the subscribers that the original sterling rates will be converted into Indian currency until further orders at the rate now in force, viz., 1*s.* 9¼*d.* per rupee, so that no alteration will for the present be made in the rupee payments. It must, however, be understood that the effect of allowing the value of the rupee to be taken at 1*s.* 9¼*d.* is equivalent to a temporary reduction of 16⅔ per cent. on the original sterling rates of contribution, which the subscribers may, if necessary, be called on at any time to pay in India at the official rate of exchange. A similar reduction of 16⅔ per cent. on the sterling rates of contribution will be allowed to all subscribers whose payments are made in sterling in this country, with effect from the beginning of the month after the publication of these orders in the Gazette of India.

20. A copy of the Regulations, showing the original sterling rates and the temporary reduction of 16⅔ per cent., and also the several alterations which have received my approval in Council, are herewith annexed, for the information of your Excellency's Government.

I have, &c.,

ENCLOSURES.

No. 1.

Valuation of the Indian Military Service Family Pension Fund.

This being the third quinquennial Valuation, I have, in accordance with the suggestion made by Mr. Sutton in his Report on the last valuation, very carefully examined into the rates of mortality existing among the members, and their wives and children, for the past fifteen years, as compared with those adopted by the late General Hannyngton for the construction of the tables on which that officer founded the scheme. This has been done not so much with a view of accepting the results thereby obtained, as with the object of ascertaining whether they exhibit any radical deviations in an adverse direction from the original rates. On a small body of persons, fifteen years' experience is hardly sufficient to warrant the rejection of the original tables founded on a wider experience, more especially when it is borne in mind that the Fund being mostly composed of members who entered at a comparatively young age, the data cannot be depended upon much beyond the age of forty.

The results obtained, however, in respect of the officers and their wives are the reverse of unsatisfactory so far as the safety of the Fund is concerned. They indicate that the late General Hannyngton, in the preparation of his Tables, took especial care to guard against all elements of uncertainty, and to give to the Fund the benefit of any doubt that might be found to exist.

Mortality Experience of Officers, 1873—87.

In the fifteen years, the total number of officers entered at all ages was 2,235, and the number of subscribers at 31st December 1887, 1,937. The total number under observation was 19,765, and the number exposed to risk 18,611, the number of withdrawals and deaths being respectively 73 and 223.

A Life Table having been constructed on the above data, I find that the rates of mortality compare very favourably with those assumed in the original tables. On comparing them with the mortality rates based on the experience of Life Assurance Companies collected by the Institute of Actuaries, I find that at the beginning of an officer's service in India, or at the age of twenty-one, he is subject to a mortality rate nearly three times as great as that of assured lives in England, and that this excessive rate gradually decreases until, at the age of thirty-eight, or after seventeen years of service, up to the age of forty-nine, he is subject to a rate even lower than that obtaining in this country. After the age of forty-nine the mortality rapidly increases, but the number exposed to risk after this point is so small that the results cannot be depended upon. The above bears out in some degree the theory that the lives of officers who have survived the first few years of their service are selected lives, the officers with bad or indifferent lives dying in the earlier period of their service.

Mortality Experience of the Wives of Officers, 1873—87.

In the fifteen years, the total number entered at all ages was 1,130, and the number living at the 31st December 1887, 1,000. The total number under observation was 9,616, and the number exposed to risk 9,037, the number of withdrawals and deaths being respectively 27 and 98.

A Life Table based on the above data shows that the mortality rates now obtaining are higher than those assumed in the tables up to the age of twenty-six, and considerably lower between the ages of twenty-six and forty-six, after which they again rise above the assumed rates. It may be remarked, however, that the numbers exposed to risk between the ages of nineteen and twenty-two, and from the age of thirty-nine and upwards, are too small to admit of any reliable rate being based upon them. The assumption of higher rates than those actually ruling among the wives of officers has the effect of under-estimating the value of the officer's subscriptions and also of under-estimating the value of the wife's pension. The former may in some degree be considered as a set off to the latter, and the latter as a set off to the over-estimate of the value of the wife's contingent pension due to the assumption of a higher rate of mortality ruling among officers than is actually the case.

On the whole, the rates of mortality shown to exist among the wives of officers compare somewhat unfavourably with those assumed in the tables.

Mortality Experience, Married Officers only, 1873—87.

It may be contended, and not without some reason, that the calculations in respect to married officers should be based on the mortality rates existing among married men only. This entails the construction of a Life Table on the supposition that an officer first makes his entry at the date of his marriage or at the date of his becoming a subscriber as a married man. It is obvious that such an assumption is perfectly fair when it is borne in mind that an officer brings no liability on the Fund, either present or contingent, until the date of his marriage, from which time he is assessed at rates so adjusted as to fully meet his contingent liabilities, the subscriptions previously paid by him as a bachelor being in no way taken into account in making that adjustment.

The total number entered at all ages was 1,108, and the number of subscribers, at 31st December 1887, 968. The total number under observation was 9,543, and the number exposed to risk 8,975, the number of withdrawals and deaths being respectively 27 and 113.

A Life Table constructed on the above data shows that the rates of mortality obtaining among married members only are in excess of those obtaining among the married and unmarried together, but that they are nevertheless more favourable than those assumed in the original tables, except after the age of fifty-three, when the experience is so small that it may be discarded. I gather nothing very definite from such a comparison, except perhaps that it may incline me to lean rather more towards the original tables.

Mortality Experience of the Daughters of Officers, 1873—87.

The total number entered at all ages was 1,256, and the number living at 31st December 1887, 1,073. The total number under observation was 9,069, and the number exposed to risk 8,963, the number of deaths and withdrawals by marriage and otherwise being respectively 147 and 36.

The results obtained on the experience of the Fund are very extraordinary, and are directly at variance with any other mortality experience which to my knowledge has ever been collected. At every age the rate is less than half that given in the English Life Table, and in most cases less than a third. After the age of twelve, where the mortality rates of the English Table begin to rise, up to the age of twenty-nine, the experience of the Fund shows that death ceases entirely. A continuation of these rates in the future is practically impossible, and there is no doubt that the result is one of those rare instances which can happen only when the period of observation is short, and the number of lives exposed to risk relatively insufficient. Under the circumstances, and considering the favourable results obtained in respect to the rates of mortality ruling among the officers, I think it desirable to retain the tables at present in use for yet a further period.

Marriage Experience of the Daughters of Officers, 1873—87.

Mr. Sutton, in his report, dated 5th February 1884, states: "I may "observe that Mr. Willis Browne has, in this valuation, used a somewhat lower "marriage rate in the case of daughters than that upon which the original tables "were based. The principle of this alteration is certainly one which I approve, "and the investigation I have recommended to be made in 1888 will, in all prob-"ability, serve to show the necessity of this and other similar alterations." The experience of the Fund in this respect is of the most limited character, the total number who became subject to marriage during the fifteen years being only 673. The results, therefore, should certainly not be relied upon, so far as they may be considered as representing the rates which may hereafter rule. They tend to show, however, that Mr. Sutton's remarks were justified, and that the reduction of the marriage rates, which was determined upon in 1883, was a step in the right direction. I give below the results for what they are worth. They are adjusted and are placed side by side with those used in my last valuation:

Mortality Experience of the Sons of Officers, 1873—87.

The total number entered at all ages was 1,327, and the number living and on the books at the 31st December 1887, 1,843. The total number under observation was 9,901, and the number exposed to risk 9,776, the number of deaths and withdrawals being respectively 194 and 25.

As in the other cases, the rates deduced from the experience of the past fifteen years are lower than those adopted in the tables.

In respect to fatherless sons, the assumption of a higher rate of mortality than actually existing has the effect of undervaluing the pensions. These pensions cease at the age of twenty-one, and, assuming the existing data to hold good in the future, which, however, I am not willing to admit, the extent to which they are undervalued will be seen from the following comparison between the values of the temporary annuities, constructed respectively on the Life Table at present in use and the one based on the experience of the past fifteen years:

In respect to sons with fathers living, the assumption of a higher rate of mortality than that actually existing has the same effect as in the case of fatherless sons in regard to the valuation of the contingent pensions; but, as a set off, it has also the effect of undervaluing the joint life annuities on which are regulated the subscriptions payable by officers during the period of joint life between father and son. The extent of the undervaluation on the one side and on the other varies in much the same porportion, as will be seen from the following comparative statements:

It must not, however, be forgotten that these pensions are only in part provided by the parents, the remainder being made good by the subscriptions of unmarried officers. It becomes necessary, therefore, in order to fully meet the increased value of the pensions, that the latter subscriptions, which are termed the "rate in aid," should in like manner increase in value. But this "rate in aid" is not represented by a present value. It is a varying sum from year to year, dependent upon the proportion of unmarried officers to the number of children, and not upon life contingencies. Its subject is fully discussed herein-after. Hence it follows that, if the results of the experience of the Fund for the past fifteen years, in respect to sons, were to hold good in the future, the retention of the original tables would have the effect in the valuation of under estimating the value of the pensions, and also of the subscriptions, but, in respect to the latter, in a slightly less degree. I do not think these circumstances warrant any alteration in the original tables at the present time.

Reviewing generally the foregoing, I think it desirable, under all the circumstances, to retain the original tables for the purposes of the valuation now in hand.

My reasons are—

Firstly.—That the period over which the experience of the Fund extends, viz., 15 years, is too short, when considered relatively to the number of lives exposed to risk and to the limit of age over which the risk is spread.

Secondly.—That the low rates obtaining among the wives and children counteract to some extent those obtaining among the officers.

Thirdly.—That, although the results show that the rates of mortality among the officers are lower than those adopted in the tables, that fact was foreseen by General Hannyngton, and he so intended it, in order that provision might be fully made against any serious outbreak of war.

Lastly.—That the fixed contributions for children, including the aid afforded by the subscriptions of bachelors, are not sufficient to provide for their pensions. In respect to daughters, but 82 per cent. of the liabilities are provided, and but 78½ per cent. in respect to sons.

Before proceeding with the valuation, I would desire to make one or two observations in reference to the printed rules of the Fund, upon which, of course, is based the modus operandi of the valuation itself.

In the rules in question the contributions are stated in sterling and in rupees. This, I understand, has been done more for the sake of convenience than for any other reason. The specification of the rates in the two currencies would seem to me to imply that the sterling and the rupee rates are equivalent, whereas, in fact, the latter are merely conversions of the former at a favourable rate of exchange, fixed for a temporary period only. In the year 1881 all contributions were fixed in sterling. The reason for so doing was explained in the Financial (Funds) Despatch to India, No. 2 of 1881, which was based on Mr. Sutton's report dated 18th January of the same year. In that report Mr. Sutton remarked upon the fact that the contributions were originally fixed in rupees at a given rate of exchange to meet certain fixed sterling benefits, and he proceeded to point out that, as the marketable value of the rupee was variable, the intentions of the originator of the scheme in this respect would consequently be frustrated. He therefore proposed that the rupee contributions should be reconverted into sterling at the original rates, thereby ensuring an equation between the value of the benefits and that of the contributions; and he further proposed that all payments in India should be made at the marketable value of the rupee, or at such rates as might from time to time be determined upon so as to ensure the Fund Account against any loss by exchange. These proposals were sanctioned by the Secretary of State, and the full sterling rates of contribution were furnished to the Government of India, in the Despatch above alluded to. I am not unaware that the Government of India, in publishing the regulations of the Fund, mentioned the fact that the contributions were liable to alteration in respect to exchange or otherwise, and that, in the regulations themselves, there is a proviso to the effect that the contributions, &c., are prescribed "for the present;" but, as every item has been paid in sterling, I would suggest that the rupee rates be expunged, and that the sterling rates only, as given in the Despatch No. 2 of 1881, be retained, but with fractions cleared in respect to donations. I do not think that the adoption of this proposal would entail any very serious inconvenience in India, as, at each quinquennial valuation, when the temporary rate of exchange is fixed, the conversion of the sterling contributions at that rate might be forwarded to India as an accompaniment to the Actuary's report.

I would also observe that the pensions, as well as the contributions, are stated in rupees at an exchange of 1*s.* 1*d.*, and a note is inserted to the effect that annuitants in India must draw their pensions in Indian currency. The application of this rule would result in a gain to the Fund at the cost of the pensioner. When the constitution of the Fund is considered, it seems rather hard to force annuitants to accept their pensions in Indian currency, which, at the present value of the rupee, viz., 1*s.* 4½*d.*, would be less than three-fourths of the prescribed sterling rates, and which are met in full by the contributions of the officers. I would therefore suggest that the pensions also should be stated in sterling only, and that annuitants residing in India should be allowed to receive the same either in this country in sterling, or in India at the official rate for the year. It is argued, I am well aware, that it is very undesirable that the amount of the pension of a widow should vary from year to year, and that this is the reason for its being fixed in rupees. The soundness of this argument must be admitted, but it is to be presumed that a widow would rather that her pension should vary slightly from year to year than that it should be fixed at a rate which, in all probability, would always be short of the minimum amount to which she would be entitled were she allowed to receive her pension at the official rate. The contributions of the officers are such as to provide for the full amount of the pension in sterling. It seems rather hard, therefore, that a widow, who may find it convenient to reside in India, should not be allowed to draw her pension in full, as provided by her late husband.

In Table VI of the Rules there is a note, which reads as under:

"The Europe rates of subscription are payable after retirement and during furlough, and whenever full Indian pay is not received."

The latter portion of this note seems a contradiction to Article 27, under which an officer on half pay must subscribe at full rates for full benefits, and can only subscribe at lower rates conditionally on the benefits being reduced. I would therefore suggest the elimination of the words "and whenever full Indian pay is not received."

Under Article 17 officers are permitted to exempt themselves from contributions after retirement by subscribing during service at increased rates to be determined by the tables appended to General Hannyngton's Report. I may state that, for the purposes of valuation, these tables are adjusted on the assumption of an average age at retirement. This assumption holds good for valuation purposes, and is on the safe side when dealing with the members as a body, but, when applied to an individual, it must invariably prove incorrect. By way of explanation let me assume a case. Take an officer of the age of thirty, who elects to pay an additional subscription during service in order to be exempt from retired subscription. Suppose that officer be retired in a year's time at the age of thirty-one. What happens then? It will at once be perceived that, as the additional subscription is calculated under the assumption that it will continue until the age of forty-nine, and that the loss of retired subscription will not commence until that age be attained, the addition must indeed be very small. This small additional subscription, then, would be paid for one year only, and the loss of retired subscription would commence immediately afterwards. Consequently the Fund would sustain a considerable loss, as will be seen from the following figures:

The total value at age thirty of retired subscriptions in Class IV to commence at average age (49)=21·247*l.*
This value (21·247*l.*) is equivalent to an annual payment during active service (according to the tables) of 2*l.* 6*s.* 4*d.*
Consequently at the age of thirty-one the Fund would have received one payment, viz.	2	6	4
When the officer would retire and become exempt from all further payments. Had he not commuted, the value at age thirty-one of his retired subscriptions would have been	131	1	3
Consequently the Fund loses a sum of	128	14	11

It may be said that the Actuary is not bound to accept the age of forty-nine, and that he might adjust the tables so as to assume any age he might consider applicable to the particular case. This is quite true, but what better could an Actuary do, in assuming an age, than to assume an average?

I used the expression "when applied to an individual," and I may justify that expression by explaining that but one officer has availed himself of Article 17 since the constitution of the Fund, fifteen years ago. In addition to the above reasons against the Article, its retention, if availed of by many subscribers, would not only cause a loss to the Fund, but would be the means of bringing into future valuations intricacies of the utmost difficulty to surmount, thereby considerably depreciating their value; and I may add that, in a Fund of such magnitude, simplicity is an element not only desirable but essential. I accordingly suggest that Article 17 be rescinded.

Under Article 18 an officer "may at any time commute his future payments into a single payment." Here! again it is almost a certainty that the calculations for finding the value of the further payments of an individual officer will prove incorrect. We cannot possibly tell when the officer will retire, nor in what class he will be subscribing at the date of retirement. For this reason, and as only one officer has availed himself of the Article, I would suggest that it be altered so as to read as under:—"An officer may, at the date of retirement "or at any subsequent period, commute his future payments into a single payment, the amount of such payment being regulated by the tables appended to "General Hannyngton's Report, dated London, 7th June 1870, or by any other "tables that may be hereafter substituted by the Secretary of State for India in "Council."

Under Article 27 married officers placed on half pay may withdraw from the Fund, receiving back such portion of their contributions as is in excess of the risk borne during the term of their membership; but, on their return to full pay, they must rejoin and pay the subscription of their rank, and also such donation as the circumstances of the case may demand. It seems to me that the object of the Fund is temporarily frustrated by this Article. The object being to provide pensions for the widows and children of officers, I cannot understand why, during the period of half pay, that is, during the time an officer is ill, and consequently subject to a greater risk of death, the widow and children should be deprived of the privileges of the Fund. There is good reason for allowing an officer to subscribe at reduced rates, but it is difficult to understand why an officer on half pay and in ill health, any more than an officer on full pay and in good health, should be allowed to risk his wife's contingent pension and those of his children. Then, under the same Article, unmarried officers on half pay may withdraw from the Fund, but, on reverting to full pay, they are required to rejoin.

To force officers to belong to a Fund, and then, when on half pay, to give them the option of withdrawing, and again, on reverting to full pay, to force them to rejoin, appears to me to be a proceeding of doubtful expediency. I would, therefore, suggest that Article 27 should be revised so as to read as follows:

"A married officer on half pay may continue to subscribe at Indian rates for benefits or at half the rates appertaining to his class for half benefits in respect to his wife's contingent pension, but full rates for children must be continued throughout, and full benefits thereby secured. In the event of his return to full pay he will revert to full rates and benefits. An unmarried officer must continue to subscribe at the Europe rate of subscription."

In respect to Articles 9 and 12, I have suggested certain alterations at a more advanced stage of this Report in connection with the subject of promotion. A copy of the rules and regulations with proposed alterations is attached herewith.

I have made bold to anticipate the Secretary of State's sanction to the various proposals contained in the foregoing paragraphs, both in respect to the Life Tables and to the suggested alterations in the rules and regulations of the Fund. I have consequently made the valuation in accordance therewith. It has proved a long and tedious work, fraught with many difficulties, but the results obtained are matter for much congratulation.

PROMOTIONS.

Staff Corps Officers.

A very important subject to be considered in connection with the valuation is that of promotions. Certain average ages on promotion from class to class were assumed in the construction of the scheme, and the additional contributions were fixed for those ages at rates calculated to meet the additional contingent liabilities thereby brought on to the Fund. If, therefore, it has been found by experience that the assumed averages are incorrect, it becomes necessary to examine into the rates of contribution with a view of ascertaining whether they are such as to answer their proper purpose under the altered circumstances. Of course we cannot expect a constant average, and it would seem that the late General Hannyngton, in fixing the contributions, very wisely left a slight margin, evidently with the intention of providing against the effect of this varying element. That officer assumed the following ages on promotion:

	Age.
To Class IV	30
„ III	38
„ II	44
„ I	49

The experience of the Fund, however, in respect to the Staff Corps shows that the ages on promotion during the last fifteen years have averaged as under:

	Age.
To Class IV	31
„ III	39
„ II	45
„ I	54

I find, on investigation, that the financial effect of these differences between the actual and assumed ages is very immaterial, but, as regards Class I, there are special circumstances to be noted. The average age, viz., 54, which was taken from the experience of the Fund, is hardly to be depended upon, as there were only 9 officers in Class I, and it would appear that the average in future will be considerably in excess of 54. There are three classes of Staff Corps officers who pass into Class I, viz., officers who attain to Colonel's allowances after 38 years' service, officers who may attain to Colonel's allowances by vacancy on a fixed establishment, and officers who can never attain to them. But all officers have the option of subscribing in Class I after five years' service as substantive Lieutenant-Colonel. In the case of officers who attain to Colonel's allowances after 38 years' service, we may anticipate that the completion of that period of service will be reached between the ages of 55 and 63. In respect to those officers who attain to Colonel's allowances by vacancy, i.e., officers who entered the Staff Corps between 12th September 1866 and 1st July 1881, it is uncertain at what age they may attain to those allowances.

The Military Secretary states that there is really no limit, and he furnishes me with an example, from which it appears that the particular officers referred to therein cannot succeed to Colonel's allowances before the age of 72. Then, in respect to officers who entered the Staff Corps after 1st July 1881, the only way by which they can become subscribers in Class I is by availing themselves of Article 9, which gives them the option of doing so on completing five years as substantive Lieutenant-Colonel. This Article, however, as it reads at present, is open to objection. The words "an officer who has completed five years, &c., &c.," would seem to imply that he has the option of transfer at any subsequent period. Consequently an officer might elect to subscribe in Class I on his death bed, the Fund thereby losing subscriptions to meet the additional pension. I think, therefore, the words "who has completed" should be struck out, and the words "at the time of completing" substituted. At the end of the Article might be added these words,—"also at any subsequent "period during active service on production of a certificate of health signed "by two qualified medical practitioners."

Now in every case where an officer is transferred to Class I after the age of 56, a loss to the Fund is incurred as will be seen from the following statement:

Age on Promotion to Class I.	Value of additional Contributions.	Value of additional Pensions.	Loss to the Fund.
57	120·3	123·5	3
58	119·0	125·2	6
59	117·7	126·9	9
60	115·2	128·7	13½
61	115·0	130·4	15½
62	113·7	132·0	19½
63	112·4	133·5	21
64	111·1	134·7	23½
65	109·7	135·8	26
66	108·4	136·6	28
67	107·1	137·2	30
68	105·8	137·5	31½
69	104·5	137·6	33
70	103·2	137·3	34

and so on.

I would, therefore, suggest that for every year of age after 56, 3*l.* be added to the promotion donation of 72*l.*, and that Table III of the Rules and Regulations be altered accordingly.

Medical Officers (European).

On the experience of the Fund, I find that the average age of European medical officers, on entering the Service, is 24 years, that is, one year less than the age assumed in the original scheme. At the age of 24 the values of the contributions and benefits in Class V are such as to leave a small margin in favour of the Fund.

The average age on promotion to Class IV I find to be the same as that assumed in the calculations.

The average age on promotion to Class III is 36, or two years less than that assumed. In this case also a margin is left in favour of the Fund.

The average age on promotion to Class II is the same as that assumed in the original calculations.

Medical officers are not promoted to Class I, except in the case of Surgeons-General. At present there are no officers holding that rank on the books of the Fund. There may hereafter be three such officers.

Medical Officers (Native).

The average age of Native medical officers on entering the Service I find to be 25, which is the age assumed in the original calculations.

The average age on promotion to Class IV is 31, or one year over the assumed age. The values at age 31 of the additional contributions and benefits on promotion to Class IV are such as to leave a margin in favour of the Fund.

The average age on promotion to Class III is 37, or one year under the assumed age. In this case also there is a small margin in favour of the Fund.

At present there are no Native officers in Class II, but the above results are indicative of future promotions being made to that class at a somewhat earlier age than that assumed in the calculations. A margin in favour of the Fund will be thereby effected.

Clerical Officers.

Officers of the Ecclesiastical Department join the Fund in Class IV, and the average age at the time of joining I find to be 30, which is the same as that assumed in the calculations for promotion to that class.

The average age on promotion to Class III is 39, or one year in advance of the assumed age. The values of the additional contributions and benefits at age 39 on promotion to Class III are such as to leave a small margin in favour of the Fund.

Clerical officers are not promoted to Class II except in the case of Archdeacons. At present there are only two officers holding that rank on the books of the Fund. There may hereafter be four when vacancies occur.

The results of this investigation, in respect to the various age averages, are, on the whole, very satisfactory. The object I had in view in making the investigation was to ascertain whether the averages assumed in the original scheme were sufficiently correct to answer the purposes for which they were intended. All the donations and subscriptions were calculated upon these average ages, and fixed at such rates as would equal in value the value of the pensions calculated upon the same ages. But it must not be supposed that, in my quinquennial valuations, I assume any average age on promotion from class to class. On the contrary, in respect to each individual subscriber, I estimate the exact age at which he will be transferred to the several classes, and this depends of course upon the age at which he may have entered the Service, or upon the period of leave taken on half pay. I will take as a sample case Register No. 1013. This officer is in Class IV. The ages assumed in the tables for promotion to Classes III and II are respectively 38 and 44, but the officer in question will, in the ordinary course of events, be promoted to those classes at the respective ages of 45 and 51. In the valuation the values of the additional contributions and benefits have been calculated on these ages, and not on those assumed for the purpose of fixing the rates, and the same method has been pursued in all other cases. It follows therefore that in this respect, whatever be the result of the valuation, surplus or deficit, it is real, and not one founded on assumptions.

RATE IN AID.

The term "rate in aid" is intended to signify the annual allotted share to each existing child out of the amount subscribed by bachelor members, so that, in fixing the subscription of a married member for each of his children, a reduction is made to the extent of that share. With a view to ascertain the "rate in aid" for the purposes of a valuation, it is desirable for the moment to put aside the question of exchange. All subscriptions, including those of bachelors, are fixed in sterling money. The amount received in any half year from unmarried members, if divided among the existing children, gives of course the "rate in aid" for that half year. But as the "rate in aid" is fixed with a view of its continuance for a period of five years, due allowance must be made for the varying proportion of married men to bachelors, and for the varying number of existing children. With respect to the proportion of married and single members, there were in—

Married . . .	685	739	779
Single . . .	733	799	841
Excess single .	48 or 7 per cent.	60 or 8 per cent.	62 or 8 per cent.

Married . . .	835	900	949
Single . . .	888	983	1,115
Excess single . .	53 or 6 per cent.	83 or 9 per cent.	166 or 17 per cent.

With a view to safety, it is assumed that in future the number of married and single members will be equal.

In 1883 the number of married subscribers was 685, and the number of children 1,416, i.e., an average of about two children to each father.

In 1884 the number of married subscribers was 739, and the number of children 1,541, which gives an average of slightly over two.

In 1885 there were 799 married members and 1,678 children, which gives an average of slightly over two.

In 1886 there were 835 married members and 1,797 children, which gives an average of slightly over two.

In 1887 there were 900 married members and 1,925 children, which gives an average of slightly over two.

In 1888 there were 949 married members and 2,037 children, which gives an average of slightly over two.

It is considered prudent, however, to assume an average of two and a half children to each father.

The conclusions arrived at, therefore, are—

That the unmarried members as a body will remain in much the same position in respect to rank and age for five years from the date of investigation, i.e., the period intervening between the valuations, and that their number will not fall below that of the married officers.

That the number of existing children to each father will not exceed two and a half.

These conclusions are not unreasonable, and are on the safe side. Founding the calculation, therefore, on the above, and assuming always the subscriptions payable in sterling, the amount received from unmarried members during the year preceding the date of investigation is not relied upon as representing the annual receipts from that source in respect to subsequent years, but is reduced proportionately to the reduction in the number of bachelors to one half of the total number of members. For instance, if there were 100 married and 200 unmarried officers, and if the unmarried subscription for the year amounted to 1,000*l.*, it would be assumed that, reckoned on the total number of 300, there would be only 150 bachelors, and consequently the annual sum to be received would be—

and this 750*l.* would be distributed among, not the actual number of children existing, but the larger number arrived at by assuming two and a half to each father. Male and female children are supposed to be numerically equal, and allowing that the claims of daughters will always exceed those of sons, because the latter go off at age 21, while the former remain till marriage or death, the distribution between daughters and sons is calculated to be in the proportion of 2 to 1. The proportion of 7 to 5 was originally adopted, but I find the former to be more correct.

Now with respect to the question of exchange. As before stated, the subscriptions are fixed in sterling, and they are supposed to be payable in India at the market rate. If this were so, the amount credited to the Fund would be the same as though the subscriptions had been paid in sterling, for all subscriptions are credited each half year at the average rate obtained for bills on India. Consequently the method for calculating the "rate in aid" would not in any way be affected.

At the date of valuation, however, a rate is fixed for the following five years, and in so doing a possible fall in the value of the rupee should be provided for, either by retaining any surplus that may be found to exist, or by fixing the rate of exchange sufficiently low to meet all possible falls.

At the date of the last valuation, when the market value of the rupee averaged about 1*s.* $7\frac{3}{5}d.$, a sufficient surplus was found to exist so as to allow of the favourable rate previously sanctioned being continued. The very heavy fall, however, which has since occurred was certainly not anticipated. At the same time the surplus brought out was ample to provide for any loss, from this cause, that might occur during a period of five years. The loss by exchange, therefore, should not properly enter into the calculations for ascertaining the "rate in aid" any more than it should into the valuation of all other subscriptions which, in fact, are identical with those which constitute the "rate in aid," and which are supposed to be received in sterling.

In these circumstances I estimate the "rate in aid" to be 68·952 shillings for a girl and 34·476 shillings for a boy.

REDUCTION OF SUBSCRIPTIONS ON ACCOUNT OF FURLOUGH.

In the valuation of 1883 I introduced a new item on the debit side of the account, viz., the estimated loss of half subscriptions of officers on furlough. Married officers on furlough pay half rates of subscription for wives, but full rates for children. Bachelor members also pay half rates, but no debit in this respect should be made on their account for the following reason. The subscriptions of bachelors are not valued separately, but, as previously explained under the head of "rate in aid," the annual receipts have been divided among the children, and each allotted share has been valued in conjunction with the subscription payable by the child's father. It is conceivable, therefore, that the value of the bachelor subscriptions should be entered in the Abstract of Valuation as "Subscriptions for Sons and Daughters;" and, as only the actual amounts received from bachelors in England have been taken into account and added to their Indian subscriptions for the purpose of allotting the annual share to each child, it will be seen at once that due effect has already been given to the loss of half subscriptions of bachelors. But, in respect to married officers, the tables of the Fund have been so constructed as not to take into account the loss sustained by half rates being payable in England for wives. In fact, I do not see that such tables could possibly be constructed with any degree of accuracy. The loss, however, is considerable, and it is therefore an element which should on no account be lost sight of. At the date of the last valuation the data at my disposal were not of such a character as to enable me to make any very reliable estimate. They comprised the whole Staff Corps as a body, including both married and bachelor members, and the estimate formed thereon showed that, roughly, about 18 per cent. of the total number of officers remained in this country on furlough. I have now a more complete set of data which gives me the number of married officers on furlough at various dates, such officers being subscribers to the Fund, and from which I can ascertain, nearly enough, the total number of married subscribers at those dates. By this method I find the number of married officers on furlough, which is a varying number, to be generally about $10\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. of the total number of married subscribers on the active list. Consequently the reduction for loss of half subscriptions would be $5\frac{1}{4}$ per cent. on the total value of the subscriptions of active service married members. There is, however, another method which I think more trustworthy. The records which are kept in the Funds Department of this office are so complete that I am able to distinguish between the active service subscriptions of married members payable on account of the wives and those payable on account of their children, alike in India and in this country. The results obtained therefrom show that the total subscriptions paid in India for wives during the five years preceding the date at which these calculations are made amount to Rs. 10,14,239. This sum must be converted into sterling at the rate of 1*s.* $9\frac{1}{4}d.$; for although, as I have previously remarked, the subscriptions are credited to the Fund at the ruling market rate for the time being, the difference is made good out of existing surplus. That is, the subscriptions are practically paid at full sterling rates, a portion by the officers and the rest out of surplus. At this rate Rs. 10,14,239=89,802*l.* The half subscriptions paid for wives by officers on furlough during the same period amount to 6,405*l.* Had no officer taken furlough these subscriptions would have been paid in full, and would therefore have amounted to 6,405*l.*×2=12,810*l.* This sum added to 89,802*l.*, as above, gives the total amount which would have been received, viz., 102,612*l.*, had all active service subscriptions been paid in full as assumed in the tables; and the loss, viz., 6,405*l.*, represents about $6\frac{1}{5}$ per cent. on this sum.

In the Annuity Tables the value of the subscriptions is inclusive of half rates after retirement. I have therefore been under the necessity of making a special valuation of the active service subscriptions for wives. The results are as follows:

Value of active service subscriptions of Staff Corps officers	118,537
Ditto ditto ditto medical officers	50,953
Ditto ditto ditto clerical officers	22,939
Ditto ditto ditto Native officers	5,984

EXPENSES OF MANAGEMENT.

The various subjects with which I have had to deal in this Report have, in a more or less degree, proved satisfactory from a professional point of view, but I am much concerned in respect to the charges which have been, and more especially which are proposed to be, debited to the Fund Account for expenses of management. There has lately been some correspondence with the Government of India on the subject, and I notice that the charges proposed to be made in India will represent no less than 4*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.* per cent. on the gross receipts and disbursements in that country. I base my estimate on the half year ended 31st March 1888, the charges for that half year being made under the new method, which, I believe, is that of assessing the charge upon the proportion of letters despatched in connection with work appertaining to this Fund as compared with the total number despatched from the Office, and of also adding 20 per cent. for pensions, this latter item in itself being most extraordinary.

The gross Indian receipts credited to the Fund for the half year ended 31st March 1888 were	15,951
The gross Indian payments debited to the Fund were	422

The charge for expenses of management was for the same period 766*l.*, or 4*l.* 13*s.* $6\frac{3}{4}d.$ per cent.

For the half year ended 30th September 1887, the Office charges in Madras alone amounted to Rs. 2,892, which is equivalent to about 6*l.* 8*s.* per cent. on the gross receipts and payments in that Presidency.

For the same half year the Fund was debited with Rs. 2,969 on account of Bombay, this sum representing about 6*l.* 4*s.* per cent. of the gross receipts and payments.

But taking the three Presidencies together, the percentage above found, viz., 4*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.*, would seem to be what, under the new system, would be debited to the Fund account, that is to say, a sum considerably exceeding the interest allowed for the first year's use of its annual receipts. It is of course a book account, but the amount is nevertheless debited to the Fund, and, it will be easily understood, has a very prejudicial effect on the valuation. If it is admitted, as I believe it is, that a sum of 200*l.* per annum, which is equivalent to about 1*l.* 8*s.* per cent. on the receipts and payments, is sufficient for the charges in this country, it seems to me that 2½ per cent. on the gross receipts and disbursements is an ample charge to make in India. This rate, then, I have adopted for the purposes of the present valuation. The next proceeding is to find the value of this annual charge. It is evident that, if it were valued as a perpetuity, it would be equivalent to charging the present body of members with sums properly due from future subscribers. When members retire, they give no further trouble in respect to their subscriptions in India, but the work appertaining thereto is transferred to this Office. It follows, therefore, that in finding the value of the annual charge as having reference to the existing body of members, it should be calculated only for the period of their active service. Then, in respect to the annual charge of 200*l.* for this Office, I think it should be valued as a perpetuity. For, as it will be payable not only during the lives of the members, both active and retired, but also during the lives of the pensioners, the value of an annuity for such a long period amounts practically to a perpetuity. The value of the Actuary's fee should, I think, be also taken on the basis of a perpetuity. In these circumstances, I value the Office charges at 12,572*l.*, and I have accordingly entered the same as a debit in the abstract.

ASSURANCES.

The Insurance Branch of the Fund was established with a view of enabling officers to provide, by special contributions, passage money from India for their widows and orphans. The passage money is payable in India in rupees, and it was ruled that in no case should the amount exceed Rs. 1,500. In the event of an officer's family being in England at the date of his death, the amount secured belongs to his estate.

Of 949 married officers who are now subscribers to the Fund, but 36 have availed themselves of this concession, and the amount assured in each case is the maximum. The balance sheet shows a surplus of Rs. 2,490 which is slightly in excess of ten per cent. on the value of the liabilities. It is thus seen that the financial condition of this branch of the Fund is satisfactory, and no remarks from me are called for.

SURPLUS.

Attached is an abstract of the valuation of the assets and liabilities as at 31st March 1888. The results, it will be observed, are very satisfactory. The total liabilities are valued at 712,464*l.* and the total assets at 774,809*l.* Thus there remains a surplus in favour of the Fund of 62,345*l.* In order to ascertain the percentage which this surplus represents on the value of the liabilities, the latter should be reduced by the sum of 12,302*l.*, the estimated value of the loss sustained by reduced subscriptions for wives on account of officers on furlough. For this sum, although placed on the debit side of the account, should properly be treated as an item in reduction of the value of the assets. In these circumstances the surplus represents nearly nine per cent. of the value of the liabilities as against 3½ per cent. brought out in the last valuation.

RATE OF EXCHANGE.

I will not attempt to prognosticate the average rate of exchange for the ensuing five years, but, for the purposes of the valuation, it is incumbent upon me to assume an average. Of course, an average might be assumed which would effectually provide against all unforeseen contingencies in the one direction; but I am very unwilling, in adopting a rate below that which I may consider will be the marketable value of the rupee, to assume a more depreciated value than is consistent with a due regard to the maintenance of the Fund's financial prosperity. If I based my calculations on the assumption of a rate below that that might hereafter be found to obtain, an unnecessary gain to the Fund would be effected at the cost of the subscribers, and, on the other hand, if I based them on the assumption of a rate in excess of the rupee's marketable value, the Fund would sustain a loss. It would, however, require a very appreciable decline to affect the financial prosperity of a Fund constructed on so sure a foundation as this Fund is. In substantiation of this statement, I may note the fact that, notwithstanding the rapid decline in the value of the rupee since 31st March 1883, the surplus of the Fund, which was then 17,333*l., has already risen until, at the present time, it amounts to over 62,000*l.*

* With more trustworthy data, the value of the loss of half subscriptions would have been diminished by 4,610*l.*, and the value of Office charges increased by 4,239*l.* The surplus would, therefore, have been 17,706*l.*

The rate of exchange at the present time is about 1*s.* 4¼*d.* The assumption I feel disposed to make is that the average for the next five years will not materially differ from this rate in an adverse direction. It may probably touch a lower figure, but, on the other hand, its improvement is not impossible.

The favourable rate of exchange which it was the pleasure of the Secretary of State to concede at the date of the last valuation was 1*s.* 9¼*d.* the rupee. Were this rate continued for the ensuing five years, the Fund would, for every 1*s.* 9¼*d.* that it should receive, be credited with but 1*s.* 4¼*d.* It would consequently sustain a loss of 5*d.* in every 1*s.* 9¼*d.*, or about 23½ per cent., which would have to be provided for out of surplus.

I have already shown that the value of active service subscriptions for wives amounts to 198,413*l.* This sum, however, is arrived at under the assumption that full rates are payable during the whole term of active service. I have also shown that the value of half subscriptions of officers on furlough amounts to 12,302*l.* Consequently twice that amount, or 24,604*l.*, would represent the value of their subscriptions during furlough had they been paid in full. Hence 198,413*l.* reduced by 24,604*l.*=173,809*l.*

There are so few married officers who pay promotion donations whilst on furlough that, for safety, I have assumed all such donations in future to be payable in Indian currency.

The subscriptions of bachelors are for the most part paid by active service members, and, for this particular purpose, it has been assumed that no aid will be afforded from bachelors on the retired list.

The value of the subscriptions of married and unmarried officers (active and retired) on account of existing daughters=57,862*l.* Of this amount 31,427*l.* is derived from the "rate in aid," leaving 26,435*l.* as the value of the subscriptions of married officers, active and retired. From this sum must be deducted the value of the subscriptions for daughters of retired married officers, viz., 1,922*l.* Consequently there remains a sum of 24,513*l.* representing the value of the active service and retired subscriptions of active service members. I find that the value of their retired subscriptions bears the proportion of about 28 per cent. to the total value. Hence 24,513*l.* reduced by 28 per cent.=17,649*l.* There is yet a further reduction to be made, viz., the amount representing the value of the subscriptions payable in sterling during furlough. This amount I have calculated to be about 14 per cent. of the full value, but, for safety, I have assumed it to be 12⅝ per cent., as in the case of wives. Thus 17,649*l.* reduced by 12⅝ per cent.=15,461*l.*, which, added to the value of bachelor subscriptions as above (31,427*l.*), gives a total of 46,888*l.* as representing the value of Indian subscriptions for daughters.

The total value of subscriptions for sons = 22,056*l.*, viz., 8,826*l.* representing the value of the subscriptions of married officers, and 13,230*l.* the value of the "rate in aid." Subscriptions for sons are payable for a temporary period only, viz., until they have attained the age of 21 years. On investigation, I find that the value of the retired subscriptions of active service members bears but a very small proportion to the value of their active service and retired subscriptions taken together. It is safer, therefore, to make no reduction on this account. There is, however, a small item of 409*l.*, the value of subscriptions for sons of officers now on the retired list, by which the total value 8,826*l.* should be reduced. Hence 8,826*l.*—409*l.* = 8,417*l.* This latter sum must be diminished by $12\frac{2}{5}$ per cent., as in the case of daughters. 8,417*l.* less $12\frac{2}{5}$ per cent. = 7,373*l.* Adding this to the value of the "rate in aid" (13,230*l.*), the total value of Indian subscriptions for sons amounts to 20,603*l.*

A loss of 5*d.* on every 1*s.* $9\frac{1}{4}$d. would represent a loss of $\frac{4}{17}$ths of the Indian contributions, valued as under, viz.:—

Subscriptions for wives	... 173,809
„ „ daughters	... 46,888
„ „ sons	... 20,603
Donations on promotion	... 29,298

Four seventeenths of this amount=63,670*l.*

Hence it is seen that, if the rate of exchange were continued at 1*s.* $9\frac{1}{4}$d. during the whole period of service of existing subscribers in their present state, the value of the loss to the Fund would exceed the surplus by 1,325*l.*

The next valuation will probably be completed at the end of March 1894, or in six years from the date at which the present valuation is made. For this period the Fund can well afford, out of surplus, to meet a loss of 5*d.* in the rupee, and yet retain a very substantial balance.

It is with much satisfaction, therefore, that I am in a position to recommend, for the consideration of the Secretary of State in Council, the continuation, for the ensuing five years, of the favourable rate of exchange at present in force, viz., 1*s.* $9\frac{1}{4}$d.

No. 2.

Indian Military Service Family Pension Fund.

My Lord, 10th March 1890.

Acting upon the instructions conveyed in the letter bearing date 15th May 1889 from Mr. J. A. Godley, Permanent Under Secretary of State for India, I beg. leave to submit the following remarks upon the report and valuation of the Indian Military Service Family Pension Fund as at 31st March 1888 by Mr. Willis Browne.

I.—As to the Life Tables and Methods of Calculation employed.

2. The suggestion made in my report on the previous valuation of the Fund has been carried out on this occasion. Mr. Willis Browne has made a complete investigation into the experience of the Fund during the fifteen years of its existence. I have carefully examined the results brought out, and on the whole they appear to be of a nature well calculated to show that the data employed at the establishment of the Fund as the basis of computation for the determination of the scales of benefits and contributions were of a suitable character, with, as they should have, a tendency to be on the safe side.

3. As regards the mortality experience, that of the members, both married and single, has been decidedly lighter than that assumed in the original calculations made by the late Major-General Hannyngton. It must not, however, be overlooked that the experience of the last fifteen years is of a somewhat limited character, as must necessarily be the case, and in addition gives little or no information concerning retired life. Moreover, it gives practically no results as regards one very important risk incurred by the Fund—that of war, a risk which in this Fund cannot be ignored.

4. The mortality experience of members' wives is of a still more limited character; and, as far as it goes, while not differing very materially from that originally assumed, cannot be said to show any decided tendency in favour of the Fund.

5. The mortality experience of the children of members would appear on the whole to be lighter than that assumed in the original calculations; but whether this result will be confirmed in the future is by no means certain; and until the data available are much more extensive, no definite opinion as to the probable financial effect can well be formed.

6. On the whole, I am of opinion that the course adopted by Mr. Willis Browne, namely, to retain the original tables for the purposes of the present valuation, is a proper one.

7. I cannot, however, leave this part of the subject without again expressing the opinion that in the interests of the Fund it is most desirable that the entire experience of the Fund should be strictly recorded, so that from time to time comparisons between it and the original assumptions may and should be made by the Actuary, as it is only in this way that the measures, if any, necessary from time to time to ensure the solvency of the Fund can be determined. In connection with this important matter, I have to add that Mr. Willis Browne has made a searching investigation into the ages attained on promotion with the satisfactory result of showing that the assumptions made in the original tables agree with the actual experience.

II.—As to the suggested alterations in the Rules of the Fund.

8. Mr. Willis Browne suggests that in the printed rules "the rupee rates be "expunged, and that the sterling rates only, as given in the Despatch No. 2 of "1881, be retained, but with fractions cleared in respect to donations," and that "at each quinquennial valuation when the temporary rate of exchange is fixed, "the conversion of the sterling contributions at that rate might be forwarded to "India as an accompaniment to the Actuary's Report."

9. As bearing upon this subject, I would beg leave to refer to my Report on the Fund bearing date 18th January 1881, in which I have alluded to this point, and to the Despatch of the Secretary of State for India in Council bearing date 17th February 1881 (to which that Report is attached) where the various questions involved are fully dealt with. There is one point, however, calling for notice not hitherto mentioned.

10. When the rate for the five years following the date of valuation is fixed, no special reference has been made hitherto to those members who join the Fund in the period elapsing before the next valuation, and I presume that such members are allowed the same favourable rate of exchange as the old members, thus sharing in a surplus towards which they have not contributed. No doubt this course tends to simplification of the accounts, and as long as the number of new members in any five years does not vary greatly in proportion to the entire number in the Fund there may be sufficient grounds for continuing previous practice; but I have thought it desirable to bring the matter under notice.

Otherwise, I see no objection whatever to the adoption of the suggestion now made by Mr. Willis Browne.

11. With regard to Mr. Willis Browne's suggestion that "the pensions also "should be stated in sterling only, and that annuitants residing in India should "be allowed to receive the same either in this country in sterling or in India at "the official rate for the year," I have to state that I entirely agree therewith, and inter alia for this reason. In the interests of the Fund it is desirable that there should be, as far as the Fund is concerned, no substantial hindrance to the remarriage of widows of members; and it is by no means improbable that a widow annuitant by remaining in India would be more likely to remarry, and less likely to attain longevity than by residing in this country.

12. I agree with Mr. Willis Browne's suggestion for the words, "and whenever full Indian pay is not received," in Table VI of the Rules, to be deleted; and I would beg leave to suggest that it might be found desirable to revise the wording of the Rules in order to make it perfectly clear when full subscriptions, or otherwise, are payable.

13. In a Fund constituted like this, where numerous assumptions have of necessity to be made based upon averages, it is essential that, as far as possible, opportunities for the individual to exercise a selection against the financial interests of the Fund should be removed; and I have accordingly no hesitation in expressing my approval of Mr. Willis Browne's suggestion that Rule 17 be rescinded.

14. As regards Mr. Willis Browne's suggested alteration of Rule 18, I should be disposed to extend the alteration by incorporating mutatis mutandis Nos. 24—29 inclusive of the Indian Civil Service Family Pension Regulations.

15. By doing this the Rules of the Fund would clearly show, in all cases of commutation of subscriptions, what payments could be commuted, and what liabilities as regards the future would still be outstanding.

16. Mr. Willis Browne points out that under Rule 27 married officers on half pay have the right to leave the Fund, receiving back a defined portion of their contributions, and in the event of their return to full pay are required to join again; and he suggests an alteration in the Rule by which the right to leave would be done away with, and members on half pay would ipso facto revert to full benefits for wives on again coming into full pay if they had elected while on half pay to subscribe only for half benefits for wives, the children's benefits subscribed for being always full benefits.

Bearing in mind the objects of the Fund, it would appear desirable to prevent, as far as practicable, the attainment of those objects being frustrated in individual cases, and I see no objection to the alteration of Rule 27 suggested by Mr. Willis Browne.

17. As regards Rule 9 as it now stands it certainly would appear to justify Mr. Willis Browne's remark, that an officer who has some time or other completed five years' service as a substantive Lieutenant-Colonel "might elect to subscribe in Class I on his death bed;" and on the principle of removing, as far as possible, opportunities to individual members to exercise a selection against the Fund, the suggestion made by Mr. Willis Browne as to alteration of the Rule may well be adopted, including the proposed additional donation when the officer's age exceeds fifty-six.

III.—Valuation and its Results.

18. It is proper in the first instance to state that I have carefully gone through all Mr. Willis Browne's calculations and verified them, and have every reason to speak of them with the greatest confidence.

19. Mr. Willis Browne has given careful consideration to three matters arising in connection with the valuation, viz., the method of appropriating the unmarried members' contributions towards the purposes of the Fund, the financial effect of subscriptions paid on furlough, and the expenses of management of the Fund. As regards the first two of these items Mr Willis Browne appears to have dealt with them in a safe and suitable manner, involving, as they do, difficulties of no light nature.

20. As regards the third matter, the reserve for future expenses of management made by Mr. Willis Browne appears to be arrived at by considering the annual charge in India as 2½ per cent. of the total annual receipts (including interest) and disbursements in that country, and by treating the fixed charges in this country as in the nature of a perpetuity.

21. There appears, however, to be some doubt as to the amount which the Fund should be debited with in India for management expenses; and it would be very desirable on every ground that some definite arrangement should be arrived at. The matter is one of considerable difficulty, inasmuch as there does not appear to be available any ready method of determining what the actual expenses of management really incurred amount to. There is the further difficulty that, whereas in an ordinary life office the expenses incurred in any particular case generally cease when the life assured dies, in the case of this Fund there may be a widow and children left after the member dies, in respect of whom expenses may have to be incurred for many years.

22. I am not prepared to say that the course adopted in Mr. Willis Browne's valuation is not suitable, or that the sum set aside by him for expenses of management is not a reasonable one; but it is manifest that the method adopted in the pro formâ accounts should agree with that adopted in the valuation. Possibly, when the matter is fully and fairly considered, the question may arise as to whether an uniform charge annually for every name on the books might not meet the circumstances of the case.

IV.—As to the Appropriation of Surplus shown on Valuation.

23. The surplus shown on Mr. Willis Browne's valuation is 62,345*l.*, and he shows that, on the assumption of the official value of the rupee in the pro formâ accounts being taken at 1*s.* 4¼*d.*, the surplus would be somewhat more than absorbed by allowing the present active service members to pay their sterling contributions during the whole period of active service at the same rate per rupee as in the previous five years, that is, at about 1*s.* 9¼*d.* per rupee; and, following the course adopted on previous occasions, he recommends that the surplus be thus applied for the ensuing five years.

24. To this important question I have, on your Lordship's direction, had my attention specially called, and have accordingly given it long and anxious consideration.

25. It will be remembered that the question of the fall in the value of the rupee had to be considered at an early stage of the Fund's existence, before, in fact, the question of existing retiring members had any importance. In the nature of things it is, however, clear that in course of time a large number of retired members will be in existence; although, hitherto, in consequence of the depreciation of the rupee, their future existence had not been taken into account.

26. The time appears now to have arrived when it may be desirable to reconsider the question of the method to be adopted in the appropriation of surplus, in other words, as all contributions and benefits are treated as payable in sterling, it may be reasonably contended that any appropriation of surplus by way of reduction of subscriptions should apply to all subscriptions and not merely to that portion payable in India.

27. On the other hand, it may be contended, that as the subscribers in India are and have been suffering pecuniarily from the depreciation in the value of the rupee, any surplus might fairly be applied in their favour alone, particularly as prematurely retired members paying their subscriptions in sterling not only could hardly have contributed to this surplus, but have very probably brought upon the Fund pecuniary loss.

28. It must, however, be borne in mind that the subscriptions for wives and bachelors' subscriptions, were originally fixed on the assumption that full rates would be payable while in active service, and half rates after retirement; and it is clear that, assuming the age on retirement correctly fixed, any over estimate of full rates of subscription, producing hereafter a surplus, would apply equally pro ratâ to half rates. The question is, however, complicated by the fact that members may and do retire prematurely, thus entailing a loss upon the Fund.

29. After weighing the matter over most carefully, I have come to the conclusion that, as regards the future, any appropriation of surplus by way of reduction of subscriptions should apply to all subscriptions; but, as regards subscriptions reduced to half by retirement, looking to the fact that these depend as to their amount on the assumption that retirement will not take place earlier than at an assigned age, it is clear that some recognition of this must be made.

30. It would be impracticable to give exact effect to this so as to meet the circumstances of individual cases, and for practical purposes it may be considered, at all events at present, to treat no retired member as entitled, in respect of subscriptions reduced to half by retirement, to share in any surplus until he has attained the age of fifty, that being the age assumed in the construction of the original scales of contribution.

31. I am accordingly of opinion that the surplus of 62,345*l.*, shown on Mr. Willis Browne's valuation, may be appropriated by way of reduction of all members' subscriptions and donations, subject to the limitation just mentioned.

32. Now, deducting the sum of 12,302*l.* set aside for loss of subscriptions on furlough, the value of future subscriptions and donations, as estimated by Mr. Willis Browne, is 377,720*l.*; and by taking into account the surplus of 62,345*l.* this value would be reduced to 315,375*l.*, that is, by 16½ per cent.

33. The rate per rupee at which Indian subscriptions are at present converted from sterling into rupees is 1*s.* 9¼*d.*, and to enable the sterling contributions to be continued at this rate of conversion is equivalent to assuming that the rate of exchange in the pro formâ account will be 1*s.* 5¾*d.* This will be seen as follows.

If every 1*l.* of subscription had to be converted at the rate in the pro formâ account, then taking this rate as 1*s.* 5¾*d.*, the number of rupees payable per 1*l.* is $\frac{20s.}{1s.\ 5\frac{3}{4}d.}$, that is, Rs. 13·526. Giving now the benefit of the surplus, that is, reducing the full contribution by 16½ per cent., instead of Rs. 13·526 being paid, only Rs. 13·526 × ·835 would be paid on account of every 1*l.* of subscription, that is, Rs. 11·294 per £, which is a rate of 1*s.* 9¼*d.* per rupee.

34. It is true that the market rate of exchange here assumed for the pro formâ account, viz., 1*s.* 5¾*d.*, is somewhat higher than now prevails, or has prevailed for the last two years, but it does not differ much from the rate at the present time; and after the fullest consideration I am of opinion that it may be safely used for the present purpose.

35. I would beg leave, therefore, to recommend that—

(a) As regards subscriptions (including donations) payable in Indian money, the value of the rupee for the conversion of sterling rates may be continued until the results of the next quinquennial valuation are ascertained at the value now in force, that is, 1*s.* 9¼*d.* per rupee; and that

(b) As regards subscriptions (including donations) payable in sterling, they may, until the results of the next quinquennial valuation are ascertained, be reduced by 16½ per cent., members whose subscriptions have been reduced to half by retirement only to participate after attaining the age of 50.

As regards (b), I would recommend that the reduction should only be allowed in respect of subscriptions (including donations) becoming payable after, say, 31st March 1890.

36. I cannot close this Report without expressing my high opinion of the great care and accuracy displayed by Mr. Willis Browne in his valuation and accompanying Report, and without cordially recognizing the valuable assistance I have from time to time received in the preparation of this Report from the Director of the Funds Department, Mr. J. S. Oliphant.

I have appended to this Report a statement of the accounts of the Fund for the five years ending 31st March 1888, which, at my request, the Director of the Funds Department had prepared for my use.

I have, &c.,
(Signed) W. SUTTON.

for India.

THE INDIAN MILITARY SERVICE FAMILY PENSION REGULATIONS.

The following regulations are designed to secure suitable provision for the widows and orphans of officers of the Indian Staff Corps, officers of the Indian Medical Department, and Chaplains on the Indian Establishment not being subscribers to the late Military and Medical Funds.

Such pensions and compassionate allowances as are, by Royal Warrant, granted to the widows and families of British military officers, are already granted, from Indian revenues, to the widows and families of military officers in the service of the Government of India, who are excluded from the advantages of the late Military and Medical Funds; and it is to be clearly understood that the Government of India does not intend by these present supplementary regulations to sanction any further expenditure for this object from the Indian revenues. On the other hand, the Government of India does not, of course, wish that the Indian revenues should in any way profit by these regulations.

The Secretary of State for India in Council has reserved to himself the absolute right to regulate from time to time the contributions to be required from officers, in accordance with these principles, under these regulations, and to make any alterations in the regulations themselves that may appear to him equitable: provided always, that the scale of pensions fixed thereby shall not be reduced in the case of actual incumbents. The Secretary of State in Council will endeavour to adjust the contributions to be levied from officers exactly, so that they shall neither be too large nor too small to supply the pensions provided for by these regulations. But if it should appear on experience that they have been fixed too low, the Government will not require any supplementary retrospective payments; and if they are found to have been fixed too high, no claim to refund will be admitted.

No insurance fund is established by these regulations. The contributions will be credited and the pensions charged directly to the Indian revenues as military receipts and charges. But in order to adjust the rates of contribution from time to time to what is necessary to supply the pensions provided for by these regulations and no more, a separate pro formâ account will be kept of all contributions levied and all payments made under these regulations, and of the interest which would have been allowed upon such contributions if a mutual insurance fund had actually been established.

In accordance with the principle announced in this notification, that the Government does not intend that the pensions provided by these regulations shall be any charge to the Indian revenues, the rates of interest and of exchange with England, to be allowed in this pro formâ account, will be the rates which may be fixed from time to time by the Secretary of State in Council upon a consideration of the market rates of the day.

All needful statistics of ages, births, deaths, and marriages will be carefully registered, and these statistics with the pro formâ accounts, will be submitted at such periods as may be determined by the Secretary of State in Council to such actuary or actuaries as he may select, with instructions to investigate and ascertain whether the rates of contribution are such as will, at the rate of interest and exchange then to be reconsidered and refixed, supply the pensions payable under these regulations, and no more. The expense of such actuarial inquiries and reports shall be debited in the pro formâ accounts reported upon.

Upon the report of the actuary or actuaries, the Secretary of State in Council will order any necessary alterations in the rates of contribution.

The report of the actuary or actuaries, with the orders of the Secretary of State in Council thereupon, shall be published in the Gazette of India, and any alteration ordered in the rates of contribution will take effect from the beginning of the month following the date of such publication. No retrospective adjustments will be made.

Regulations for the Provision of Pensions for the Widows and Orphans of Military, Medical, and Ecclesiastical Officers in the Service of the Government of India.

1. Pensions will be provided under these regulations for the widows and orphans of the following officers on the Indian establishment, not being entitled to the benefits of any of the late Military and Medical Funds:

Officers of the Staff Corps.
Officers of the Indian Medical Department.
Chaplains.

2. Any officer who has entered the service before the 1st of January 1873 may provide pensions for his family under these regulations or not, at his option. (See Appendix, Form A.)*

3. Every officer who enters the service on and after the 1st January 1873 must, as a condition of his appointment, provide pensions for his family under these regulations.

* Officers who elect to become subscribers must pay their subscriptions and donations from the date of the establishment of the fund, with interest.

4. Any officer with whom, by Regulation 2, it is optional to provide pensions for his family under these regulations, but who does not, before the 1st of July 1873, intimate his intention to make such provision, will thereafter be allowed to do so only on production of a medical certificate of sound bodily health. An officer who does not, before the 1st of July 1874, announce his intention to provide pensions for his family under these regulations, will not be allowed to do so save under the special order of the Governor General in Council.

5. For the purposes of these regulations officers are classed as follows:

Class I.—Lieutenant-Colonels in receipt of Colonels' Allowances and Surgeons General, Medical Department.
„ II.—Lieutenant-Colonels, Archdeacons, Deputy Surgeons General, Medical Department, and Surgeons Major of twenty years' service.
„ III.—Majors, Senior Chaplains, and Surgeons Major.
„ IV.—Captains, Junior Chaplains, and Surgeons who have served the Government of India for more than six years.
„ V.—Lieutenants and Surgeons who have served the Government of India for less than six years.

6. The pensions provided under these regulations are payable monthly in India, and quarterly in England, and to date of death.

7. The amounts of the pensions provided are as follow, in addition to any pensions or compassionate allowances granted under Royal Warrant.

NOTE.—Annuitants residing in India may either receive their pensions in Indian currency at the official rate of exchange, or in England in sterling, but having once exercised the option any subsequent change can only be permitted at the commencement of the official year.

8. The pension of a minor orphan will be paid to his or her mother, or other duly appointed or recognised guardian.

Contributions.

9. The contributions for pensions under these regulations, and the pensions of widows will be regulated by the class of the contributing officer. An officer cannot secure a higher pension for his widow by contributing as if he belonged to a higher class.

As an exception to this rule, an officer at the time of completing five years' service as a substantive Lieutenant-Colonel has the option of subscribing in Class I; also at any subsequent period during active service, on the production of a certificate of health signed by two qualified medical practitioners.

10. Contributions will be deducted by paymasters or other disbursing officers from the pay abstracts of officers contributing.

10A. The circumstance that an officer is not in receipt of pay does not relieve him from the necessity of paying his contributions.

11. Donations may be paid in one sum, or in 12 equal monthly instalments. If a donation be paid in istalments, interest on the unpaid portion will be levied at the rate of 4½ per cent. per annum. The balance of any contribution due at an officer's death will be recovered rateably, without interest, from the pensions of his widow and orphans, in 12 monthly instalments in India, or four quarterly instalments in England.

11A. Contributions which become due from subscribers when in Europe must be paid in England in sterling. If a subscriber, previous to quitting India, has commenced the payment of any donation by instalments, he may either complete the payment of the donation in India before leaving or pay the remaining instalments in England at English rates; but an officer on half-pay who continues to subscribe at Indian rates has the option of paying in India.

12. The following are the rates of donations and monthly contributions prescribed for the present:

Arrears.

13. Interest at the rate of 4½ per cent. per annum will be charged on arrears. Donations will become due from the date on which the liability is incurred, viz., on marriage, on promotion, or on the birth of a child; but interest will not be charged on sums paid within one month from the date on which they become due.

Reports of Marriages, Births, and Deaths.

14. An officer who is married at the date of his admission into the service must report the fact of his marriage at the time, and the names and dates of birth of his children, if any have been born to him. A member in the service must report his marriage, or the birth of a child born in wedlock, or the death of a wife or child, within one month of the occurrence, to the Comptroller of Military Accounts in the Presidency.* Forms for this purpose are given in the Appendix.

15. The birth of every child born alive must be reported; but if a child die before it is 30 days old, no payment in respect to it will be required.

15A. If the report of a marriage, or of the birth of a child, be not made within one month of the occurrence, the donation payable in each case will be increased 2½ per cent., and interest thereon charged from the date of marriage, or birth of the child. After six months' delay, donations will be increased 5 per cent., and interest charged as above.

15B. In the event of the report of a marriage, or the birth of a child, not being made by a subscriber during his lifetime, in accordance with the rules, the widow or child will not be entitled to any benefits.

Posthumous Child.

16. A pension will be granted to a posthumous child on payment of the donation prescribed in Table V which may be recovered by 12 monthly instalments in India, or four quarterly instalments in England. The report of the birth of a posthumous child must be made in Form D, the last sentence being omitted.

Commutation of Contributions.

17. Officers may at the date of retirement, or at any subsequent period, commute their monthly contribution by a single payment representing the value thereof during the joint lives of husband and wife, and father and child.

In the event of the wife dying after the date of commutation, contribution at the unmarried rate must be resumed, or, as an alternative, it may be commuted.

A subscriber who has commuted will on re-marrying become liable for marriage donation and the difference between the married and unmarried rates of contribution, or the commuted value on the joint lives.

18. Widowers and bachelors may in like manner commute their monthly contribution for life. On each subsequent marriage they will become liable for the donation and difference of contribution laid down in previous article.

Donation and contribution or its commuted value must be paid for all children born to a subscriber after his retirement from the service.

Duration of Pensions.

19. If a widow re-marry her pension will cease during coverture, but if she again become a widow she will be entitled to revert to her pension as widow of her first husband, or, if her last husband have been a contributor, to receive a pension at her option as the widow of her last husband. A widow can only receive one pension.

20. The pension of a male orphan is payable until he attains the age of 21 years.

20A. Subscribers can make special provision for pension to sons who may become permanently incapacitated from earning a livelihood.

* Or the Director of Funds, India Office, when an officer is in Europe.

The pensions so provided for will commence at the age of 21, if the son be then fatherless, or, after that age, on his becoming fatherless, and as regards the amounts of such pensions, and the subscriptions to be paid to secure them, each case will be considered and determined on its merits.

21. The mother or guardian of a male orphan who has completed the age of 16 may, at any time thereafter (on application in Forms F to H annexed to these regulations), have the residue of his pension commuted into a single payment, for the due application of which the mother or guardian will be held responsible. The following table gives the commuted value of such pensions:

TABLE VIII.—Showing the present Value of the Pension of a Male Orphan according to his Age.

22. The pension of a female orphan continues until her marriage, and then ceases absolutely. It does not revive on widowhood.

Good Conduct.

23. The pensions provided under these regulations shall, in all cases, be held during good behaviour only, and will be withheld if any pensioner is found to be leading an immoral life, or on proof of any gross misconduct. The order of the Secretary of State for India in Council in any such case shall be final and conclusive.

Alienation of Pension.

24. A pension paid under these regulations may not be transferred or assigned, or in any way alienated, from the pensioner to whom or for whose benefit it is payable.

Passage Money.

25. An officer may, by a special contribution, provide passage money from India for his widow and orphans. The amount so secured will belong to the officer's estate, but will be primarily applicable to the provision of passage money and outfit for his widow and children. The amount secured must not exceed 1,500 rupees, and a health certificate must in every case be furnished by the subscriber. The value will be determined by the tables in Major-General Hannyngton's report.

25A. The special contribution can be paid by monthly instalments not exceeding 24, the instalments in arrear bearing interest at 4½ per cent. per annum, and in the event of a subscriber dying before completion of the payment, the balance due at the date of his death will be deducted from the sum insured.

25B. Native commissioned medical officers are required to pay, as in the case of their ordinary contributions, 5 per cent. over and above the ordinary rates of special contribution.

25C. In the event of a subscriber's family not having occasion to make use of the passage money for which special contribution has been made, it will be paid to his estate on his death, irrespective of whether this occurs before or after his retirement, or whether he continued to subscribe to the pension branch up to the date of his death.

If an officer on retirement desires to sever his connection with the Insurance branch, he will be allowed the option of receiving the value of the sum assured at the date of withdrawal from the pension branch.

If, however, the option be then declined, the sum originally assured will be paid in accordance with the rules at the decease of the subscriber.

Transfer to Her Majesty's Corps, and Officers who resign.

26. Officers who may be transferred from the Indian Staff Corps to Her Majesty's Line regiments, and officers who resign the Service, will be entitled to receive back such portion of their contributions as may be in excess of the risk borne during their membership, but they cannot continue subscribers.

Half-Pay.

27. A married officer on half-pay must continue to subscribe at Indian rates* for full benefits, or at half the rates appertaining to his class for half benefits in respect to his wife's contingent pension, but full rates for children must be continued for full benefits. In the event of his return to full pay he will revert to full rates and benefits. Unmarried officers must continue to subscribe at the Europe rate of subscription.

* Which can be paid in India.

Retired Officers.

28. Married officers who retire from the service on a pension may continue to subscribe at the Europe rate of subscription, or they may withdraw, receiving back such portion of their contributions as is in excess of the risk borne during the term of their membership; but the usual subscription will be deducted from the pension of all such officers until they shall have intimated in writing their intention of withdrawing. Unmarried officers may continue their subscription on the same terms as married officers, but will not be entitled on retirement to any refund in the event of their withdrawal.

Dismissed Officers.

29. An officer who is dismissed the service by sentence of a court-martial, or by other competent authority, will cease, ipso facto, to be a contributor under these regulations, and will have no claim to any refund. His family will not be entitled to any pensions under these regulations.

Certificates.

30. Declarations as to continued widowhood and the survival of children must be furnished to the Accountant General, India Office, by whom pensions in Europe are paid under the authority of the Director of Funds.

FIELD OPERATIONS.

CHIN-LUSHAI.

No. 677.—The Most Hon'ble the Viceroy and Governor General of India in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the subjoined letter from the Adjutant General in India, submitting, under the orders of the Commander-in-Chief in India, the despatches received from Brigadiers-General W. P. Symons and V. W. Tregear, reporting the operations of the Burma and Chittagong Columns of the Chin-Lushai Expeditionary Force.

The objects of these operations were to inflict chastisement on such tribes as had committed depredations on British territory, to extend British influence over these and other tribes, to explore the country between Chittagong and Burma, to complete, if possible, a mule road between Bengal and Burma, and, by the establishment of communications and military posts, to ensure the recognition of the paramount power and the pacification of the country. The Governor General in Council heartily concurs with the Commander-in-Chief in believing that these objects have been successfully attained, and he desires to express his great appreciation of the excellent conduct of the British and Native troops, who so well sustained the reputation of Her Majesty's army under circumstances of difficulty and hardship and, especially on the Burma side, in the face of severe sufferings from sickness. His Excellency in Council shares the deep regret with which the Commander-in-Chief regards the death of the officers named and of the soldiers who lost their lives in the service of their Queen and country.

The Governor General in Council has much pleasure in recording his high approbation of the services rendered by Brigadier-General Symons, through whose ability, judgment, and perseverance, the Chin Expedition was conducted to a successful issue, notwithstanding the great difficulties caused by the nature of the country and its unhealthiness. His Excellency in Council also joins with the Commander-in-Chief in his approval of the manner in which Brigadier-General Tregear commanded the Chittagong Column, and of the valuable results achieved; he desires also to signify his concurrence in the commendation bestowed on Colonel G. J. Skinner, 3rd Bengal Infantry, commanding the Northern Column of the Lushai Force, and on Colonel C. McD. Skene, D.S.O., commanding the Northern Column of the Burma Force.

The Governor General notices with satisfaction the excellent reports of the good work done by the Commissariat and Transport under Captain A. H. Clark-Kennedy and Captain Bond, Captain Westropp and Lieutenant Morris, by the Medical Department under Brigade-Surgeon Markey and Surgeon-Major Murphy, by the Signalling service with the various columns, and by the Survey parties under Lieutenants Bythell and Renny-Tailyour, R.E.

His Excellency in Council is glad to acknowledge the services of Mr. E. O. Walker, Assistant Superintendent of Telegraphs, and his department, and of Mr. G. Barton Groves, Deputy Inspector of Post Offices, and the Postal Department.

The admirable services of Mr. G. E. Holland, of Her Majesty's Indian Marine, in connection with the river transport from Kalewa to Kan, the very satisfactory work done by Mr. E. Good, Port Officer and Transport Officer at Chittagong, and the efficient help given by the Marine Department at Calcutta and Rangoon, have been specially brought to notice.

His Excellency in Council cordially recognises the way in which the civil and military officers worked together to the same end, and the acknowledgments of the Government of India are due to Sir Charles Grosthwaite, K.C.S.I., Chief Commissioner of Burma, and to the civil officers acting under him, for the untiring aid which they afforded to the military authorities. In another sphere of action Mr. D. R. Lyall, Commissioner of Chittagong, contributed largely to the success of the expedition; the personal exertions of Mr. Lyall have been especially noticeable. The services of Mr. C. S. Murray, Political Officer with the Lushai Column, and of Messrs. D. Ross and B. S. Carey, Political Officers with the Southern and Northern Columns of the Burma Force, have also been most valuable.

On the Lushai side the Cachar Military Police under Messrs. Daly and Broderick were brought to the front with great rapidity and in admirable order and did most useful service, while the Chittagong Frontier Police did good work under Mr. S. V. Tayler. His Excellency in Council wishes to express the acknowledgments of the Government of India to Lieutenant-General B. L. Gordon, C.B., lately commanding the Burma District, Brigadier-General Auchinleck, commanding the Presidency District, and their Staff, for their labours in aid of the expedition; and also to Mr. J. W. Quinton, C.S.I., Chief Commissioner of Assam, and to Brigadier-General Collett, C.B., commanding the Eastern Frontier District, for the assistance they gave in the police and military arrangements connected with the movements from Cachar.

From the Adjutant General in India, to the Secretary to the Government of India, Military Department,—(No. 4179-A, dated Simla, 16th July 1890).

I have the honor, by direction of the Commander-in-Chief in India, to forward, for submission to the Government of India, the enclosed despatches from Brigadier-General W. P. Symons and V. W. Tregear, describing the operations of the Burma and Chittagong columns of the Chin-Lushai Expeditionary Force.

2. The general objects of the expedition were as follow:

To punitively visit such of the tribes as had committed depredations in British territory, and had declined to make amends or come to terms; to subjugate others that had remained neutral, but were to be brought within the sphere of British dominion; to explore and open out as much as possible the then unknown country lying between Burma and Chittagong; and finally, to establish, where desirable and necessary, military posts along the country traversed, so as to ensure complete pacification and recognition of British power.

3. These objects have been attained by the expedition in a most complete manner, and His Excellency cannot too highly bring to the notice of the Government of India the excellent conduct of all concerned, in having so cheerfully borne the hardships and overcome the difficulties which had to be encountered—difficulties which were considerably enhanced by the physical conditions of the country, and the severe sickness which attacked the force, and which crippled the Burma columns to almost a dangerous extent.

4. In such adverse circumstances, the results which have attended the operations of the expedition must be regarded as eminently satisfactory; for not only has communication between Bengal and Burma been established, and the tribes which had previously given annoyance fittingly dealt with, but all the principal tribes inhabiting the country have been brought under subjugation,—a large number of captives who had been in the hands of these tribes restored to their own homes,—and military posts at certain places for the preservation of order, and as evidence of British supremacy, established.

5. Not the least satisfactory feature of the expedition has been the cordial relations which have at all times existed between the civil and military authorities, and which have in a large measure contributed towards the success of the expedition. The services of the civil officers, in connection with the negotiations which were entered into with the several tribes, have been most useful.

6. His Excellency fully concurs in the remarks made by the Commander-in-Chief of the Madras Army, regarding the good services rendered by Major-General (now Lieutenant-General) B. L. Gordon, C.B., lately commanding the Burma District, for his careful supervision of the arrangements for the organization and equipment of the Burma columns; and to Brigadier-General W. L. Auchinleck, commanding the Presidency District, His Excellency also desires to convey his acknowledgments for similar services in connection with the Chittagong Column.

7. To Brigadier-General Symons fell the responsible duty of conducting the extended operations of the Southern Burma Column, and of co-operating with the Northern Burma and Chittagong columns. These duties he has performed with much ability, judgment and tact, and the thoroughness which characterized his dealings with the tribes, as also the indomitable spirit in which he encountered and overcame the numerous difficulties the expedition met with, shews how fully he has justified the confidence which was placed in him at the time of his selection for this important command.

8. The operations of the Chittagong Column, under Brigadier-General Tregear, have also been conducted with much success and the column is to be complimented on the section of the mule road which, despite great difficulties, was completed as far as Haka.

9. Colonel C. McD. Skene, D.S.O., 42nd Gúrkha Light Infantry, who commanded the Northern Burma Column, was very successful in dominating the Northern Chin tribes, and in operating against the Tashons in conjunction with Brigadier-General Symons' column; and the same success also attended the independent operations against Lienpunga and the sons of Vutai undertaken by Colonel G. J. Skinner, 3rd Bengal Infantry, in command of the Northern Chittagong Column.

10. His Excellency also desires to bring to the notice of the Government of India the excellent arrangements and working of the Commissariat-Transport and Medical Departments, and of the river transport under the charge of Mr. Holland, of Her Majesty's Indian Marine Service, whose invaluable services in organizing the transport, and in conveying stores to the base of the Southern Column under circumstances which are known to have been most discouraging, have very appropriately been brought to special notice by Brigadier-General Symons and the Commander-in-Chief of the Madras Army. The Telegraph Department also worked extremely well throughout the expedition.

11. Finally His Excellency takes the opportunity of recording here his deep sense of regret at the loss which the army has suffered by the death of such valuable officers as Major Ind, Royal Artillery, Major Gordon-Comming, 1st Battalion Cheshire Regiment, Major Stoney, 1st Battalion King's Own Scottish Borderers, and Major Barr, 3rd Bengal Infantry.

12. The list of officers who are considered to be specially deserving of reward will be submitted separately.

From LIEUTENANT-GENERAL SIR C. G. ARBUTHNOT, K.C.B., Commander-in-Chief, Madras, to the Adjutant General in India,—(No. 1847-W, dated Ootacamund, the 27th June 1890).

In forwarding the despatch, dated 1st May 1890, of Brigadier-General W. P. Symons, on the operations of the Chin-Lushai Expedition, together with a letter No. 2293, dated 28th May 1890, from Lieutenant-General B. L. Gordon, C.B., late in command of the Burma District, I beg to endorse the high terms in which the latter officer refers to the services of Brigadier-General Symons.

I desire also to bring to the favorable notice of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India, the services rendered by Lieutenant-General B. L. Gordon, C.B., himself, whose careful supervision in connection with this expedition will, I trust, be considered deserving of recognition by the Government of India.

I can fully endorse the high opinion expressed by Brigadier-General Symons of the services rendered by Mr. Holland, of Her Majesty's Indian Marine Service. That officer's indefatigable exertions in bringing up supplies by river from Kalewa to Kan, exertions continued without interruption, even when suffering severely from fever, are, in my opinion, deserving of the highest praise, and will, I trust, receive full recognition.

I cannot but allude here to the lamentable death of Major Ind, Royal Artillery, the senior staff officer of Brigadier-General Symons when commanding the expedition, which occurred on his way home on leave, owing to sickness contracted on field service. This officer's ability, energy and devotion to duty have been highly spoken of, and it was with deep regret that I heard of his death.

From LIEUTENANT-GENERAL B. L. GORDON, C.B., Commanding the Burma District, to the Adjutant General, Madras,—(No. 2293, dated Rangoon, the 28th May 1890).

I have the honour to submit the despatch of Brigadier-General Symons on the late Chin-Lushai operations.

General Symons has, I think, displayed marked ability, perseverance and patience in the way in which he has conducted the military duties entrusted to him, and has, by his knowledge of the people, his firmness and tact, carried to a successful termination a difficult and delicate political task. I hope his most valuable services may meet with adequate recognition.

2. General Symons has brought to notice the names of officers serving under his command who have rendered him special assistance, and I hope I may be allowed to add to the list the names of the following officers, to whom I am very greatly indebted for the help they have given in organizing and equipping the expedition.

Deputy Surgeon-General J. M'N. Donnelly, C.B., to whom is due the success of the medical arrangements.

Colonel A. B. Morgan, C.B., Assistant Adjutant-General.

Colonel A. Clark-Kennedy, Principal Commissariat Officer.

Captain N. S. Swanston, Chief Commissariat Officer, Myingyan District, on whom fell the very onerous and responsible duty of collecting and despatching the whole of the commissariat stores for both the Northern and Southern columns, and who performed his task with great intelligence and skill.

To Captain Wilson, Her Majesty's Indian Marine, Port Officer at Rangoon, and Mr. Barwick, Marine Transport Officer, Mandalay, I am greatly indebted, for the admirable manner in which the whole of the river transport of troops and stores has been punctually and rapidly carried out by Government steamers alone.

I hope it may not be considered out of place if I here acknowledge how very greatly the success of the expedition and the comfort of all engaged are due to the ungrudging assistance given by the Chief Commissioner, Burma, and the civil officers acting under his orders. The most cordial relations have always been maintained between the civil and military departments, and both have worked for the one end,—the success of the Chin-Lushai operations.

From BRIGADIER-GENERAL W. P. SYMONS, Commanding the Chin-Lushai Expeditionary Force, to the Adjutant General, Madras, through the General Officer Commanding the Burma District,—(No. 1708, dated Camp Haka, the 1st May 1890).

In compliance with the instructions contained in your No. 1615-W of the 4th November 1889, I have the honour to submit the following report on the operations of the Northern and Southern Burma Columns of the Chin-Lushai Expeditionary Force.

2. I assumed command at Pakôkku on the 18th of November 1889, field service having been ruled to commence on the 15th of November.

3. The objects of the expedition, as laid down for my guidance in the Proceedings of Government, Madras, Military Department, No. 6897 of the 9th of October 1889, were—

Firstly.—To punitively visit certain tribes that have raided and committed depredations in British territory.

Secondly.—To subjugate tribes as yet neutral, but now, by force of circumstances brought within the sphere of British dominion.

Thirdly.—To explore the unknown country lying between Burma and Chittagong.

Fourthly.— To establish, if necessary, certain posts in the regions visited, so as to ensure complete pacification and recognition of British power.

4. To carry out these objects, the troops working from the Burma side were divided into three portions :

		Rifles.
I. The Northern Column, strength as in the margin, to operate from Fort White.	1st Battalion, Cheshire Regiment	300
	42nd Gúrkha Light Infantry	477
	No. 5 Company, Queen's Own Sappers and Miners	95
	10th Bengal Infantry	460

II. The Southern Column, strength as in the margin, to advance from Kan into the Baungshé Chin country.	1st Battalion, King's Own Scottish Borderers	500
	No. 1 Bengal Mountain Battery*	84
	No. 6 Company, Queen's Own Sappers and Miners	151
	2nd Battalion, 4th Gúrkha Regiment	410
	2nd Madras Infantry	630
	Burma Company, Queen's Own Sappers and Miners	94

Grand total 3,491 men, with 117 officers.

III. Garrisons to guard the western frontier of Burma, and to hold posts on the lines of communication, were found by the 10th, 33rd and 38th Bengal Infantry, and the 2nd Madras Infantry.

5. To the Northern Column were assigned the duties of continuing and completing the subjugation and pacification of the Siyin, Sagyilain and Kanhow tribes of Chins; and of operating against the Tashons in conjunction with the Southern Column. Under Colonel Skene, the troops have been most energetic and successful. In eight expeditions, or sets of expeditions, the Northern Chins were so harassed that they have sued for peace, and the situation has cleared for final settlement.

6. The task that I set myself as commander of the Southern Column was—

First.—To drive a mule road through the heart of the Baungshé Chin country to Yokwa and Haka, subjugating this tribe as we advanced, and obtaining the restoration of captives.

Second.—To advance, in combination with the Northern Column, to the capital of the Tashon Chins, and compel their submission.

Third.—To advance west from Haka, and, in co-operation with the Chittagong Column, complete the opening of the road between Bengal and Burma, coercing the tribes, and obtaining submission to our authority, on both sides of the line of advance.

Fourth.—To visit villages, force the Chins to cease raiding, and to give up all captives; and to explore the Chin Hills in every direction, as far as the limits of time and the working season would permit.

Fifth.—To establish the necessary posts to hold the country after the withdrawal of the main body of the troops.

7. By the 18th of November, the preparations for the campaign were in the following advanced state—

The Southern Column, of which the strength has been given above, had concentrated at Pakôkku for its march of 165 miles to Kan. This march was successfully carried out by detachments of 200 fighting men with followers marching in succession daily for fifteen days. Shelters had been erected by the civil authorities at all halting places, and such provisions as were procurable stored.

On account of the unusually late rains, the start for the expedition had been put off from the 1st to the 23rd of November. To enable the programme to be carried out, it could be postponed no longer. The leading columns, the first of which left Pakôkku on the 23rd of November, were just able to get through the fast falling rivers and drying country, and although the march was somewhat trying, the troops and followers all arrived at Kan in good condition, with 1·1 per cent. only of total strength, including men who were footsore, on the sick report.

8. The Northern Column was ready at Fort White to commence operations, and only awaited the arrival of its hill coolies.

9. It had been decided to establish ten posts along the northern portion of the Burma Frontier, for its protection against Chin raids. All the garrisons for these posts were sent up the Chindwin River to Kalewa.

The late rains had flooded the Kale Valley, and up to the end of November, the country was impassable to anything but elephants. On the 24th October, 170 fresh mules, with elephants to carry their saddles and gear, took fifteen hours getting through the bogs and swamps, which blocked the last 5½ miles of the road into Kalemyo, the distributing base for all supplies for Fort White and posts in the Kale Valley. The energies of the officers, however, overcame all difficulties, and by the end of December these ten posts were constructed, occupied and rationed.

10. The work of rationing the troops, especially the Southern Column, has been throughout an extremely difficult undertaking. The problem for the Southern Column was how to feed a body of troops advancing into a totally unknown country from a distant base,—the number of transport animals falling far short of requirements.

This base, Kan, was connected on the north by a shallow and swift running river, the Myittha, difficult of navigation, and full of snags and rocks, with Kalewa on the Chindwin River, distant by water 136 miles.

To the south, the other main base, Pakôkku on the Irrawaddy, is 165 miles by land from Kan. On the 23rd November carts could only travel as far as Yebyu, a village 60 miles from Pakôkku. Before the season closed they were working into Gangaw, or within 23 miles of Kan. Both the river and road lines of communication from the main bases to Kan passed through a sparsely inhabited country, in which very few supplies could be obtained.

11. On the 10th of September, Mr. Holland of Her Majesty's Indian Marine Service, having explored the Myittha River, and given it as his opinion that stores could be taken up by water from Kalewa to Kan, orders were issued for 600 tons of stores to be sent by this route.

* Now No. 7 Mountain Battery.

The river transport was placed entirely in Mr. Holland's charge. He devoted himself to the work with most intelligently applied energy, and, in spite of difficulties which on more than one occasion seriously threatened to swamp the enterprise, successfully carried it through. His great troubles were sickness, want of boats and boatmen, and wholesale desertions of the men with their boats. The difficulties caused by the river itself would have been light, if the Burman boatmen could have been depended upon to fulfil their engagements. Unfortunately they took this unnecessary opportunity of exhibiting their national characteristic of dislike to hard work, even for wages of an exorbitant rate.

Rain also fell incessantly up to the middle of November, and this further disheartened the boatmen, and delayed the work.

12. By the end of January 1890, 551 tons of stores had been despatched to Kan, and 638 tons to Kalemyo, by water from Kalewa. In addition, large numbers of details and sick, with their baggage, had been provided with carriage in the boats up and down between these places.

13. From the early days of February, all rations for the Southern Column were brought to Kan, by road from Pokôkku, and so on to Haka, in carts, on pack-bullocks, and on Government transport animals. In this month of February, cattle disease broke out with great virulence in the Kale and Myittha valleys, and the loss of the animals greatly hampered the commissariat and transport officers. In the Kale State alone upwards of 3,000 buffaloes, or more than 90 per cent. of the animals possessed by the people, died; whilst the pack-bullocks were reduced by two-thirds.

14. The first troops of the Southern Column, consisting of the head-quarters and No. 6 Company of the Madras Sappers and Miners, arrived at Kan on the 7th of December. On the 9th the Sappers, with a covering escort of the 2nd Madras Infantry, left to commence work on the road to Yokwa and Haka.

15. Before the expedition started, it was believed that the Southern Column would be enabled to reach Haka in ten, or at latest twelve, days from Kan. On this surmise all calculations were made. Such were the unexpected difficulties of the country, on account of the tumbled net-work of steep hills and deep ravines, that with the whole strength of the force devoted to making the road, 64 miles in length, it took the head of the column 66 days, and the mule road 77 days, to get into Haka. This disappointing delay was not without its compensating advantages in dealing with the Chins. They expected us to make a quick advance, do some damage, and retire. The steady persistent advance, together with the pains that were taken to get into touch with them, and to explain our objects and intentions, paralysed their spirits and efforts for resistance; and thus tribe after tribe submitted and yielded to our terms.

16. The same difficulty that met the Burma Column, also greatly delayed General Tregear. He was unable to get the section of the mule road into Haka until the 13th April. The completion of the mule road through from Burma to Bengal was the crowning success of the season's work. The junction of the two columns, however, occurred too late to allow of our undertaking any operations in concert, and General Tregear returned to the west on the 16th of April.

17. The Chins first met with were the Yokwas of the Baungshé tribe.

18. From the outset, I resolved to try a lenient policy with the Southern Chins, who, before these operations, had not come into contact with us.

19. After one poor attempt by the Yokwas at opposition to our advance on the 28th of December, near Taungték, when they acknowledged to having had 500 men and 300 guns against us, and to having sustained a great defeat, they gave up all hope of keeping us out of their hills.

20. On the 8th of January, two Yokwa Chins came into camp, and from this date onwards we were never again out of touch with the tribes. The objects of our coming, and our terms and conditions, were carefully explained to these two men, and they were dismissed to repeat them to their chiefs.

21. Much delay and difficulty was experienced in dealing with the Chins on account of the numbers of chiefs with each tribe. There is no central controlling authority. Each chief has a following, and all are bitterly jealous one of the other. Negotiations therefore had to be carried on with extreme patience.

22. In my opinion the course we pursued in abstaining from harsh measures, such as burning of villages, has advanced the settlement of the Chin Hill tracts to a point that we could not have reached by any other means in one season's work.

23. Having dealt with the Yokwas, as soon as the mule path was sufficiently forward, the column moved on Haka, arriving there on the 13th of February. The same procedure as observed with the Yokwas obtained the full submission of the important Haka community; and the surrender of these two clans was virtually equivalent to the submission of the whole Baungshé tribe.

24. Whilst waiting for the mule path to reach Haka, reconnaissances were made to the west to explore the country, obtain the submission of the Tlan-Tlangs, get touch with the Chittagong Column, and assist them in their advance eastward. These objects were most satisfactorily obtained. On the 26th of February, the advance parties of the Burma and Chittagong Columns met at Tao village, 52 miles west of Haka.

25. Meanwhile preparations were being pushed forward for a combined march on the Tashon Ywama. It was a matter of the first importance to ensure the success of the movement against, and the submission of, this the by far the most populous and influential of the Chin tribes.

26. At this time, the end of February, sickness amongst the troops and carrier coolies had so weakened the strength of the Southern Column, that a very small force only, one quite inadequate in case of serious resistance, could be taken into the Tashon country from the south. To minimise this risk, it was necessary to arrange for the simultaneous arrival of the two small columns from Fort White and Haka at the Tashon Ywama. A successful and rapidly executed reconnaissance from Haka to within eight miles of the Ywama, on the 26th February and four following days, enabled this movement to be planned.

27. The Fort White Column under Colonel Skene, 350 strong, started on the 8th of March; and the Southern Column, consisting of two mountain guns and 290 rifles, which I commanded, left Haka on the 9th of March.

28. On the 11th March, the two columns arrived from the north and south within one hour of each other on opposite banks of the Manipur or Nankathe River,—without having been opposed.

29. Elaborate preparations for the defence of their capital had been made by the Tashons. Innumerable stockades, breastworks, and obstructions, extending over some nine miles of country, but chiefly intended against an enemy advancing from the north, had been freshly erected at every commanding point. Large numbers of armed men watched both columns as they advanced, but there was no collision. It is difficult to estimate their numbers, but on the south of the Manipur River, near the Ywama, there were not less than 5,000 men, of whom two-thirds were armed with guns, and the rest with spears.

30. The Southern Column, notwithstanding the emphatic protests of three of the chiefs who had come out to meet it, continued its advance to within 1,000 yards of the Ywama, and there encamped. An assembly was called, and the chiefs were asked if they would agree to our terms. To our great surprise, after permitting the columns to approach their capital unopposed, they firmly declined to acknowledge the supremacy of the Government by paying any tribute; and without absolutely refusing, thought it very unlikely that they would be able to pay any portion of the fine of Rs. 10,000, imposed on them by the Chief Commissioner of Burma.

The situation thus became as strained as it well could be. Having warned the Chiefs to think well over the consequences that their persistent refusal of submission would entail, I dismissed them.

31. The next two days were spent in prolonged negotiations, which severely taxed our patience, but with the happy result in the end of the attainment of all our desires.

The tribute due for 1889 was paid, as well as the fine, the latter reduced at their earnest solicitation to Rs. 5,000.

32. A small reconnoitring party having been sent down to Sihaung, both columns withdrew from Tashon territory without mishap.

33. The following would appear to have influenced the Chiefs of the war and stronger party to submission:

In the first place, they were impressed with our mobility and power of concentration. Then they were greatly upset with the information that we should have no alternative but to put garrisons in their country until they gave in. The people also living along our lines of advance, to save their valuable villages, used their utmost persuasion with the Chiefs to urge them to agree to our terms, which we had taken care to have well circulated to them in advance.

34. The Chiefs confessed that to within a few days of our arrival, they had intended to oppose us; that their pride and position as head of all the Chin tribes would suffer a blow from which they would never recover, if they permitted an armed force to approach their hitherto inviolate capital. Thus they were urged to fight; but doubts of being able to successfully resist us, added to the prayers of the outlying villages to be saved from destruction, overcame their pride, and they were obliged to acknowledge themselves defeated.

From the above it will be obvious how correct was the policy of accepting the submission of the tribe only at the Ywama.

35. On the return of the Northern Column to Fort White, operations were actively resumed against the Siyins; whilst the Southern Column was employed to the end of the season in numerous reconnaissances and explorations, which have taught us much regarding these unknown regions.

36. The following is a list of the principal reconnaissances carried out by the Burma columns, embracing a total of 628 miles of country, of which good road reports and sketches have been made and submitted:

I. Yokwa to Gangaw.
II. Haka to the Tashon Ywama.
III. Fort White to the Tashon Ywama.
IV. Tashon Ywama to Sihaung.
V. Sihaung to Hauta.
VI. Haka, west, to Hmûn-li-pi.
VII. Haka, west, to Tao Klang, two routes.
VIII. Haka, south to Naring, and Hripi.
IX. Haka, east, to Myintha, viâ Wunhia.
X. Yokwa, south, to Thetta and Kapi.

37. Numbers I, IV, V, and IX, together with the Kan-Haka route, comprise all the main roads that lead from the Burma frontier into the Tashon and Baungshé circles.

38. Number VIII, Haka to Naring and round by Hripi, was an extremely interesting exploration. It lasted ten days, during which 132 miles over a very hilly and broken country were covered, and much added to our knowledge of the Southern Baungshé country. Naring lies 56 miles south of Haka, on the Boinu River. It contains 300 houses, and the inhabitants possess large herds of cattle. They did not know the value of money, and refused to take any for supplies which they liberally presented. A large number of villages were brought under British control; and the Boinu River was traced in its eccentric windings through a wild country, and its identity with the Tipi, now known to be the upper waters of the great Kolodyne River, established.

39. As the result of the operations, I would claim for the forces engaged that they have carried to a successful termination each and every object of the expedition, and this in spite of sickness from which all ranks have suffered in a great and abnormal degree, and which caused me extreme and unceasing anxiety from the commencement to the end of the operations.

That success under the circumstances was possible, is due no less to the very liberal and complete manner in which the columns were found and equipped in men and matériel, than to the care and forethought with which the expedition was planned, placed, and kept going in the field.

40. The suppression of Chin raids in Burma territory has also been an important object, kept ever in view. From the commencement of field service on the 15th November 1889 to date, there has been only one Chin raid within the field of operations. In this case, 18 Burmans were taken captive. All were recovered within five weeks of the outrage, and the Chin villages implicated were punished.

Again, the Northern and Southern columns of the Burma Field Force have recovered and restored to their homes 187 captives. There is not a single Burmese captive or slave left with the Tashon or Tlan-Tlang tribes; the Haka and Yokwa Chins have given up all theirs. A very few are still in the southern, and as yet unvisited, Baungshé villages; whilst the Siyins and the Kanhows, though surrendering daily, have yet some Manipuri and Burmese slaves in their possession. There is no reason to doubt that the few left with the tribes will all be got hold of in a short time.

As the result of this season's operations, raiding both for slaves and heads has been put a stop to for ever down the western frontier of Upper Burma; and the inhabitants of the Kale and Myittha Valleys have been released from the reign of terror under which they have lived and suffered for years past.

41. The Chin Bok operations, though in no way under my direction or command, but ably, even brilliantly, conducted by Lieutenant Rainey, Commandant of the Chin Levy Military Police Battalion, have squared well with our work, and settled an adjoining belt of country beyond our capability to touch.

42. The Chin situation, as I leave it, is most satisfactory and quiet. Where not settled, it is settling quickly. These wild tribes have accepted the inevitable, and will become peaceable and good neighbours.

43. The discipline and behaviour of the troops and followers throughout have been exemplary.

44. The 1st Battalion King's Own Scottish Borderers joined the Southern Column with a strength of 14 officers and 502 men. They did a lot of hard marching and road making. The regiment lost one officer (Lieutenant Foster) killed, 6 officers invalided, including two commanding officers in succession, whilst 21 men died from sickness, and 273 were invalided.

45. The detachment of the 1st Battalion Cheshire Regiment with the Northern Column saw more service, and were also unfortunate in losing two commanding officers,—one invalided, and the other, Major Gordon-Cumming, to my great regret and that of the whole Field Force, shot in ambush.

46. The 42nd Gúrkha Light Infantry have performed services for the past eighteen months in the Chin Hills that cannot be over-estimated.

47. The 2nd Battalion 4th Gúrkhas, a young regiment, on their first experience of active service, has pleased me greatly. They give every promise of sustaining the reputation and traditions gained in our service by their older battalions.

48. No. 6 Company of the Madras Sappers and Miners did continuous and arduous work, both on the roads and in building the post at Haka. Their services have been very valuable. Between the 15th of November 1889 and the 30th of April 1890, the company lost through sickness 3 officers and 72 men.

49. The Burma Company of the Queen's Own Madras Sappers and Miners also did good work in the Kale Valley and at Haka. It has established its raison d'etre.

50. The post at Haka has been constructed to hold a garrison of—

300 Native Infantry, | 25 Madras Sappers,

75 Followers,

with quarters for—

A commanding officer. | A civil officer and establishment.

6 British officers. | 5 officers' chargers, and 25 mules.

51. The post at Fort White has been reduced to hold a garrison of 330 rifles. It and the posts on the line of communications to Kalemyo have been put in thorough repair, and all will be rationed by the 15th of May. Arrangements have also been made for keeping open communication during the rains between Haka and Kan and Fort White and Kalemyo.

52. It is outside the limits of a despatch to give in detail the working of, and results accomplished by, the various departments; but it is most fair and necessary that their services should be alluded to.

53. The Survey Department under Lieutenant T. F. B. Renny-Tailyour, R E., has accomplished much. Upwards of 3,000 square miles have been surveyed and added to the map.

54. The Intelligence Department, in the person of Lieutenant E. W. M. Norie, Middlesex Regiment, has been indefatigable in collecting information and making road sketches.

THE MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

55. Owing to the very serious amount of sickness, the medical duties, especially with the Southern Column, were most arduous. The skill and energies of the departmental officers and subordinates were severely taxed to grapple with the mass of sick men, not only in the hospitals, but in their carriage and conveyance to the field and base hospitals. Malarial fever and dysentery, in a lesser degree, were almost the only diseases from which the troops and followers suffered.

Sanitation was invariably carefully attended to, with the happy result that no sickness that could be attributed to its neglect ever broke out.

Malaria, or jungle fever, is always more or less prevalent in the valleys and in the Terai lying under the Chin Hills and down the Burma frontier. Owing to the very late and inclement rainy season, the last months of 1889, during which the troops were marching through this part of the country, proved extremely unhealthy. I attribute the sickness from which the officers and men of the Southern Column so grievously suffered to malarial poison alone, imbibed in passing through a tainted belt of country under circumstances which could not be avoided or improved. All that skilful medical treatment and attention could suggest was done to alleviate the disease and minimise its after-effects.

Of the 69 British officers who served with the Southern Column, only 7 escaped an attack or attacks of malarial fever, whilst one died and 26 were invalided from this ailment alone.

On the 26th March, excluding all sick who were previously sent down, there were remaining in the hospital 11 British officers, 86 British and 281 Native troops, and 994 followers. The medical arrangements for both columns worked well and smoothly throughout, and the supply of medicines and medical comforts was ample and good.

56. The statistics of the Northern and Southern Columns, taken together, shew that, of all ranks, 9 were killed in action, 207 died of disease, of whom 72 were fighting men, and 2,122 were invalided (including 1,413 public followers and coolies).

Amongst these the following officers are included:—Major F. E. C. H. Gordon-Cumming, Cheshire Regiment, who was mortally wounded near Old Saglain on the 23rd March, and died the same day; Second-Lieutenant F. A. K. Foster, King's Own Scottish Borderers, killed in action near Taungtek on the 12th January; and Captain L. H. Gramshaw, 5th (Militia) Battalion, Royal Fusiliers, Orderly Officer, who died of disease at Kan on the 11th January.

THE COMMISSARIAT DEPARTMENT.

57. On account of the long lines of communication which connected the main columns of the force with the bases of supply, the variety of the transport employed, and the roughness and difficulties of the road and waterways, I find it impossible to condense the work of the department, and the interesting reports rendered by the Commissariat officers in charge, into the space of a paragraph. All the reports, with my remarks, will be forwarded separately.

From the commencement to the end of the campaign, the troops and followers were fed well and liberally.

It having been necessary to send to Kan and Kalemyo, the two main forwarding depots, large quantities of rations before the end of the rains, it was inevitable but that a proportion would be spoiled. Occasionally the damaged stores escaped detection before issue, but there was never any lack of good food ready to replace them, nor of readiness on the part of the officials of the department to do their very best for the troops, and make the expedition, as far as they were concerned, successful.

58. The Transport Department of the Southern Burma Column has been in charge of Lieutenant A. H. Morris, Royal Irish Regiment. The total number of animals employed with this column has been 69 elephants, 994 mules, 537 ponies, with 975 attendants and the general health and condition of the animals, thanks to the incessant care and attention of Lieutenant Morris, Veterinary-Surgeon Evans, and the transport staff of assistants, has been very good.

59. The Telegraph Department has worked well, under many difficulties of transport labour, and sickness. The construction of the line kept pace with the advance of the troops into Haka. The wire has been invaluable throughout the operations.

60. The Postal Department has also served us well. Our thanks are due to the authorities for their arrangements, which have conduced much to the pleasure and comfort of the troops in the field.

61. The Public Works Department must also be mentioned for its assistance and co-operation. The roads from Pauk to Kan, from Kan to Chaung-kwa (now under construction and approaching completion), from Kalemyo to Fort White, and from Kalemyo to Kalewa,—all heavy and toilsome works in an unhealthy country,—have been carried out at the instance of the military authorities, and to meet their wants.

62. As Chief Political Officer with the expedition, my work has been rendered easy, by the hearty support and assistance rendered me by Mr. D. Ross, Political Officer with the Southern Column, and Mr. B. S. Carey, Political Officer with the Northern Column. We have worked together throughout in complete concord. The services of Mr. Ross have been of great value. His intimate knowledge of the Burmese language, the medium of all our communications with the Chins, and his patience and tact in dealing with the tribes, have conduced much to our peaceful victories. I commend his good services to the special notice of the Chief Commissioner of Burma.

Mr. Carey, at Fort White, threw himself with intelligence and energy into the breach of the troublesome situation that existed round that post when he took charge in December 1889. He has worked hand in hand with the commanding officers at Fort White and in the Kalé Valley, and has been most successful, under my instructions, in bringing about the surrender and submission of the proud and obstinate Northern Chins.

My special thanks are also due to Mr. A. S. Fleming, Deputy Commissioner of Pokôkku, for his assistance in supplying transport and accommodation for the troops, along the lower lines of communication.

63. The campaign has not been one in which regimental officers have had many opportunities of especially distinguishing themselves. Its characteristic has been incessant hard work. In this, and in looking after their men, the officers as a body have entirely satisfied me. The brunt of the work and responsibility has been borne by the staff and departmental officers.

64. I beg to submit the names of the following officers who have rendered specially valuable services to the Burma columns of the Expeditionary Force :

(1) Colonel C. McD. Skene, D.S.O., commanding the 42nd Gúrkha Light Infantry, the Chin Hills, and the Northern Column, has well sustained a reputation previously gained for command.

(2) Major G. Henry, Royal Engineers. This officer, as my Commanding Royal Engineer, and for some time second-in-command, has rendered me most valuable assistance. I cannot speak too highly of the ability and devotion with which he has thrown himself into his work. I commend his services for special recognition.

(3) Lieutenant E. J. Lugard, 42nd Gúrkha Light Infantry, served with distinction in the Chin Expedition of 1888-89, and has displayed conspicuous gallantry and intelligence in leading his men on several occasions during the operations of this season.

(4) First-Grade Officer G. E. Holland, Her Majesty's Indian Marine Service, to whose skilfully applied exertions are entirely due the placing of 600 tons of rations in Kan by water, —a most arduous undertaking, successfully carried out.

(5) Captain A. H. Clark-Kennedy, Madras Staff Corps, has very ably fulfilled the responsible duties of Chief Commissariat Officer.

(6) Lieutenant A. H Morris, Royal Irish Regiment, Transport Officer with the Southern Column, has done particularly good service in his department. I consider him the best animal-transport officer that I have ever met. His services are especially worthy of record and reward.

(7) Brigade-Surgeon E. C. Markey, Medical Staff, as my Principal Medical Officer, has had responsible duties. I commend him for his administrative abilities.

From amongst the thirty medical officers who have served with the force on the Burma side, it is difficult, where all did well, to single individuals for special mention; but—

(8) Surgeon-Major G. D. Bourke, Medical Staff,

(9) Surgeon F. A. Rogers, 42nd Gúrkha Light Infantry, senior medical officer with the Northern Column, and

(10) Surgeon W. H. Bean, Medical Staff, having displayed skill, zeal and energy in their duties, have fallen prominently under my notice.

The following officers have also deservedly earned mention in this despatch for their good service :

Colonel J. K. Clubley, commanding the 2nd Madras Infantry and lines of communication.

Major G. O. Stoney, 1st Battalion, King's Own Scottish Borderers, who commanded the detachment of his regiment, and was second-in-command of the Southern Column for some time before invalided.

Captain E. D. Pickard-Cambridge, Bedfordshire Regiment, Superintendent of Army Signalling.

Captain J. G. Hunter, 10th Bengal Infantry;

Lieutenant T. F. B. Renny-Tailyour, R.E., Survey Officer;

Lieutenant E. W. M. Norie, Middlesex Regiment, Field Intelligence Officer;

Lieutenant D. B. Thomas, 1st Battalion Cheshire Regiment, for distinguished leading;

Lieutenant W. H. Hildebrand, 27th Bengal Infantry, Hill-Cooly Transport Officer;

Lieutenant F. H. S. Thomas, Madras Staff Corps, Assistant Commissariat Officer, Northern Column; and Veterinary-Surgeon G. H. Evans, Army Veterinary Department.

The name of Major Gordon-Cumming, 1st Battalion Cheshire Regiment, would have been added to those mentioned for good services, had he not been killed in action.

It remains only for me to bring to prominent notice the names and services of my personal staff:

Major H. W. Ind, Royal Artillery, has been my senior Staff Officer. The ability with which he has supported me has won my warm regard. His advancement would be a distinct gain to the service.

Captain C. W. W. Burton, Madras Staff Corps, junior Staff Officer, has ably assisted Major Ind, and worked hard for the success of the expedition.

Lieutenant J. M. Stewart, 5th Gúrkha Regiment, acted as my orderly officer, and gave me loyal assistance. I consider him a young officer of great promise, one whose military career is well worthy of watching and encouragement.

65. The campaign was officially closed on the 30th April 1890.

From BRIGADIER-GENERAL V. W. TREGEAR, Commanding the Chittagong Column, Chin-Lushai Expedition, to the Adjutant General in India,—(No. 476, dated Calcutta, the 31st May 1890).

The operations of the Chittagong Column, Chin-Lushai Expedition, having been brought to a conclusion, I have the honor to submit the following report for the information of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief:

2. Composition of Force.—The force under my command was composed of the following troops:

CORPS.	Total strength in officers and men.
No. 2 Company, Bengal Sappers and Miners	177
3rd Bengal Infantry	821
Detachment 9th Bengal Infantry	301
2-2nd (P. W. O.) Gurkha Regiment	779
Half battalion, 2-4th Gurkha Regiment	369
28th Bombay Infantry (Pioneers)	731
Detachment, Chittagong Frontier Police	202

Cachar Column.—Four hundred men of the Cachar Military Police.

The transport consisted of—

2,511 Punjabi coolies.	2,196 mules.
782 local "	71 elephants.

3. The commissariat arrangements not being quite complete at Demagiri, the forward movement of the force had to be delayed for a short time, and the troops not required for immediate use in the front were halted at Chittagong and Rangamatti, where quarters were available and the men easily fed.

4. Objects of the Expedition.—The object of the expedition was—

Firstly, to punitively visit certain tribes that have raided and committed depredations in British territory, and have declined to make amends, or come to terms.

Secondly, to subjugate tribes as yet neutral, but now by force of circumstances brought within the sphere of British dominion.

Thirdly, to explore and open out, as much as can be done in the time, the as yet only partly known country lying between Chittagong and Burma.

Lastly, to establish posts in the regions visited, so as to ensure complete pacification and recognition of British power.

5. Distribution of the Force.—To enable me to carry out the above, I determined on the following distribution of the force under my command:

Rangamatti and Demagiri garrisons and line of communications up to Fort Lungleh	... 3rd Bengal Infantry.
Northern Column (with which the Cachar Column under Mr. W. W. Daly would co-operate).	½ Company, Bengal Sappers and Miners. 250 men, 3rd Bengal Infantry. 300 men, 2-2nd Gurkha Regiment. 100 men, 28th Bombay Pioneers. 50 men, Frontier Police.
Haka Column, and line of communications beyond Fort Lungleh.	½ Company, Bengal Sappers and Miners. Detachment, 9th Bengal Infantry. Half battalion, 2-2nd Gurkha Regiment. " " 2-4th Gurkha Regiment. 28th Bombay Pioneers. 100 men, Frontier Police.

The Northern Column I placed under the command of Colonel G. J. Skinner, 3rd Bengal Infantry, with Lieutenant H. W. G. Cole, 2-2nd Gurkha Regiment, as Staff Officer.

6. When a sufficient quantity of rations had been sent forward to Lower Lungleh, the troops were gradually moved up to hold the line of communication and commence the construction of the road towards Haka.

7. Despatch of the Northern Column.—While the six weeks' rations for the use of the Northern Column were being collected, the route to be followed to Lienpunga's village had been reconnoitred for a considerable distance, and the neighbouring chiefs, all of whom proved friendly, were called upon to clear the path of jungle, which they did. The route followed the Klong river, and as rafts could be used on portions of it, the difficulty of carrying the stores forward was much decreased. By the 28th January 1890, all troops, transport and provisions of the Northern Column had left Fort Lungleh. Considering the work to be undertaken by the Northern Column as most important, and being aware that its success depended entirely upon its being able to move about freely in the hills when once Lienpunga had been reached, I made over the whole of my available Punjabi coolies, 1,611 in number, for its use, keeping but 50 men for the Haka Column and 80 to work the tram-line at Burkal.

8. The following troops were employed with the column :

250 men, 3rd Bengal Infantry.	½ company (80 men), Bengal Sappers and Miners.
300 men, 2-2nd (P. W. O.) Gurkha Regiment.	50 men, Chittagong Frontier Police.
100 men, 28th Bombay Pioneers.	400 men of the Surma Valley Military Police.

9. The work of the column was—

(1) To punish Lienpunga for the raid on the Chengri Valley.
(2) To punish the sons of Vutai for their raid on the Pakuna Rani's village.
(3) To establish a permanent post in the vicinity of Lienpunga's village, to be garrisoned during the summer.

10. These objects were satisfactorily attained by the column; captives were also as far as possible recovered, and two stockades, named Fort Aijol from the name of the locality, were constructed on an excellent and healthy site, which is also politically advantageous. The post was provisioned for about six months, and an excellent road had been nearly completed connecting it with Changsil. This work was done by Mr. Daly's police detachment.

11. Road construction.—Major Leach, R. E., Commanding Royal Engineer, in company with Captain Mullaly, R. E., Field Engineer, arrived at Fort Lungleh on the 29th November, and after consultation with Mr. Murray and Captain Shakespear, who had during the past season been making all necessary inquiries as to the direction the new road should take, and having themselves reconnoitred the country, started the trace on the southern slope of Teriot on the 6th December 1889. From this date the construction of the road was steadily carried on, and the 44 miles to Fort Tregear completed on the 28th February. I would here point out the difficulties which attend road-making in the Lushai country. In the first place, there is the dense jungle, which prevents one seeing a dozen yards ahead; rocks extending over large portions of the hill-sides are constantly met with, and when it was found impossible to avoid them, much time was taken up in blasting operations. Range upon range of precipitous hills, running at right angles to the line of advance, had to be crossed, and the question of a sufficient supply of water at the different camps had also to be considered in determining the trace of the road. Two large rivers, the Matt and the Kolodyne, had to be bridged. These bridges, the former 206 feet and the latter 304 feet long, had to be very substantially built, and were of the crate and trestle type.

12. Establishment of advanced post.—It had been my intention to fix upon a site on the Molum Pui for the advanced post, but, on crossing the Kolodyne, the ascent to it was found so precipitous that the road had to be taken up the Darjow Klang instead. Within a short distance of the top of this hill, and at an elevation of 5,100 feet, an old village site was reached, and as the position was good and well suited for a post in every way, with a plentiful supply of good water close at hand, I determined to build the stockade on it. The work of construction was commenced on the 1st March, and all the barracks, godowns, &c., built, and defensive works completed, by the end of April. At the request of the members of the expedition, I named the post "Fort Tregear." There is accommodation for four officers, 200 troops, and 100 coolies.

13. Garrison for Fort Tregear.—Instructions having been received that the Bengal Government was anxious that the advanced post should be held by troops, the following garrison was detailed for the purpose:—two British officers, one British medical officer and 200 men of the 2-2nd Gurkhas. Captain F. P. Hutchinson of the above regiment was specially selected to command the post.

In addition to the telegraph, heliographic communication is maintained between Forts Tregear and Lungleh, and signalling parties with all necessary apparatus attached to each post.

14. Stocking of Forts Lungleh and Tregear.—The stocking of Forts Lungleh and Tregear was commenced on the 29th March, and completed, the former on the 2nd May and the latter on the 3rd May. Upwards of 6,500 maunds of provisions have been put into the two forts to last for a period of eight months. Continuous and heavy rain for six days in the middle of March interfered greatly with the pushing up of stores; the roads became so slippery that it was impossible to take laden mules along portions of it, especially between Demagiri and Fort Lungleh, where the gradient in parts is steep.

15. Road construction towards Haka from Fort Tregear.—Time being short for constructing a permanent road to Haka, it was determined that nothing more than a good mule track should be made beyond Fort Tregear, and the working parties were soon engaged in this work, which was pushed on with all speed and energy. The route to Haka had been thoroughly reconnoitred by Captains Hall and Shakespear, and it was estimated that the road would be 75 miles in length.

The nature of the country lying between the Darjow and Haka is very different from that already passed through, being much more open, free of bamboo, and with but little undergrowth. The last 40 miles into Haka is quite open, and the path used by the natives was found quite good enough in many places for the mules. The mule road was commenced on the 28th February from Fort Tregear, and with the exception of six days, during which all work had to be knocked off on account of heavy rain, completed to Haka on the 13th April—the distance, as measured by the survey party, being 81 miles—making a total of 125 miles of road constructed during this expedition.

16. Commissariat.—The Commissariat Department had as usual a most arduous and difficult task to perform, and when it is taken into consideration that the expedition passed through a country where literally not a grain of food-supply is procurable, I feel bound to say that the manner in which the work was carried out reflects the greatest credit on all concerned.

17. Field Hospital.—The equipment of the field hospitals was most satisfactory and complete.

18. Survey.—A very considerable amount of survey work has been accomplished during this expedition, and reflects the greatest credit on Lieutenant W. J. Bythell, R.E., and the officers under him. Work was commenced from Lungleh early in December, the fixed points on the hill above Fort Lungleh and on Saipuya's old village site, as determined by the late Lieutenant Pollen, R. E., having been identified and observed from, and thus connection secured for an extension of the triangulation eastwards from the bases Saipuya-Rinjam-Chapa Tong, and Lungleh-Rinjam-Chapa Tong, and Kansa Tong. The work from Lungleh, Moisum and Bolpui was completed by the end of January; and the reconnaissances towards Lalthuama's village and Darbilli's village in the month of January and February respectively, which Lieutenant Bythell accompanied, enabled a large amount of detail to be secured.

I was also able to send Lieutenant Bythell, to Haka when the 2-4th Gurkhas marched through to join the Burma Column, and both topography and triangulation have been carried into Haka.

A reconnaissance southwards along the Boinu river by Brigadier-General Symons, which Lieutenant Bythell was allowed to accompany, enabled a large tract of country to the south to be surveyed, and the identity of the Boinu and Kolodyne rivers to be established.

The triangulation has been entirely in the hands of Mr. Stotesbury, Surveyor, 3rd grade, who has worked hard throughout. He is a very willing, energetic and zealous assistant, and has ably maintained his reputation of being a skilled observer and first class draftsman.

19. Telegraph.—During the last expedition the field telegraph line had been completed to Demagiri, and on the 22nd April 1889 the work of laying the wire to Lungsin, 21 miles, was commenced, and completed (with great difficulty, owing to sickness among the coolies) on the 17th May 1889. The whole of the party, Europeans and Natives, suffered from the unhealthiness of the season. The field telegraph office at Lungsin was opened on the 12th September 1889.

Mr. E. O. Walker, Assistant Superintendent of Telegraphs, was appointed to continue the field line from Lungsin to Fort Lungleh, and forwards with the Chittagong Column.

The laying of the field line from Lungsin to Fort Lungleh was started on the 26th October, and finished on the 25th November, a distance of 20 miles. The line between Demagiri and Lungsin had also to be thoroughly repaired, as much damage had been done to it from falling trees and growing vegetation during the rains.

The construction of the line from Fort Lungleh towards Haka was commenced simultaneously with the road, and by the 23rd March had been completed to the Upper Kolodyne, a distance of 65 miles, when orders were received to discontinue the laying of the line towards Haka. Perhaps it is as well that this work has been put off till next winter, when it can be carried out in a permanent manner. The supervision of a temporary line between Fort Tregear and Haka would, during the coming wet season, have been impossible.

The whole of the field work has proved laborious and exhausting to all concerned, owing to steep ascents and declivities, and the dense forest and undergrowth or bamboo jungle everywhere met with. The whole of the work has, notwithstanding these difficulties, been carried out in a most excellent manner, and reflects the greatest credit on Mr. Walker and all his subordinates. Owing to ill-health Mr. Walker had to return to India on the 7th March from Fort Tregear, after which date the laying of the line was carried on by Messrs. Rector and Davies, both of whom have worked very hard and well throughout the expedition; the services of the latter officer I had the pleasure of bringing to notice in my final report on last year's expedition.

20. Signalling.—The signalling party, which consisted of two British officers, six British non-commissioned officers, and 37 Native non-commissioned officers and men, proved of the greatest assistance to me, especially when the Northern Column was detached, and during my march from Fort Tregear to Haka; also when parties went out on reconnoitring duty.

The work of the signalling party was very heavy at times, and was carried out in a most efficient manner.

21. Postal.—The postal arrangements, under the able direction of Mr. G. B. Groves, Deputy Inspector of Post Offices, who accompanied the expedition as far as Fort Lungleh, worked in a most satisfactory manner throughout.

22. The Government of India having decided that the country east of the Upper Kolodyne should be controlled from Haka, no political action was taken by me during my advance to Haka, but a reconnoitring party under Captains Hall and Shakespear, which met a party from General Symons' force at Tao village on the 26th February and proceeded to Haka, was enabled to recover, without resorting to violence, the skulls of the three Europeans, and three rifles, a pair of field-glasses and an aneroid taken at the time of Lieutenant Stewart's murder.

Ten captives have been released and sent back to their homes.

There were six other captives who had been carried off from Lalsewa, and ready to be given up, but they refused to return to his village, being evidently quite contented and happy in their new homes.

There is no doubt that the tribes inhabiting this wild country, and with whom we have come in contact, have fully realized the fact that our advent among them is to their advantage in many ways, that our stay will be permanent, and that as long as they behave themselves, desist from raids, and are friendly to us, we have no wish or intention of interfering with them or their property.

Raids on our frontiers may, I consider, be looked upon as troubles of the past, and it now only remains for the political officers to consolidate the work of the expedition.

23. Return of the Force.—The work of the Northern Column was accomplished first, and that force was withdrawn during March viâ Cachar, under arrangements made by the General Officer Commanding the Assam District.

In the column working towards Haka under my personal command, I was able to begin sending back the troops in the early part of March, and a detachment of the 3rd Bengal Infantry was the first to leave.

24. The troops escaped the worst influences of the country and climate, as they were at Chittagong and Rangamatti comfortably housed until January, and they were almost all out of the country by early in April, with the exception of the 3rd Bengal Infantry, who held the hot and unhealthy posts on the Demagiri-Lungleh line of communications until the middle of May.

25. Death of Major Barr, 3rd Bengal Infantry.—It is with sincere regret that I have to record the death of Major J. E. Barr, 3rd Bengal Infantry, which took place at Rangamatti on the 22nd May 1890, from dysentery contracted at Demagiri. This officer did excellent work on the Demagiri-Lungleh line of communications, and in his death the service has lost a hard-working and reliable officer. I had fully intended bringing his name to the special notice of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief for good work performed during the expedition.

26. Corps and detachments were employed as follows:

No. 2 Company, Bengal Sappers and Miners.

This company, under the command of Captain R. D. Petrie, R.E., was, on arrival at Fort Lungleh, set to work on the road towards Haka. On the 3rd January half the company under Captain Petrie was detached with the Northern Column; the remaining half under Lieutenant H. J. Sherwood, R. E., continued to work on the road, and also took part in building the post at Fort Tregear. I cannot speak too highly of the heavy and excellent work performed by the Sappers and Miners.

3rd Bengal Infantry.

Two hundred and fifty men of this corps proceeded with the Northern Column, and the remainder were employed in garrisoning Rangamatti and Demagiri, and the different small posts on the Rangamatti-Lungleh line of communications. These duties, which at all times prove uninteresting to troops, were nevertheless cheerfully and carefully carried out, under the orders of the late Major J. E. Barr, who commanded the regiment during Colonel Skinner's absence with the Northern Column.

9th Bengal Infantry.

The detachment of this regiment, which had been employed on the line of communications during the last Lushai expedition, and had since the close of those operations garrisoned Rangamatti, was moved up early, as it was my intention that Captain A. T. Weller and his men should have a chance of seeing some service this time. This however, as matters turned out, was not to be, and it was found unnecessary to take them beyond Fort Lungleh. The men of this corps have during both expeditions shown great keenness for service, and although much harassed with fever, have at all times carried out their duties in a spirited manner.

2-2nd (Prince of Wales's Own) Gurkha Regiment.

I was exceedingly glad to have the services of this excellent regiment, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel F. W. Nicolay, placed again under my orders. One wing proceeded under Major F. R. Begbie with the Northern Column, while the other was employed with the Haka Column, 100 men of which, under Captain L. M. M. Hall, led the advance with the tracing party. At a later period 60 men formed the escort of the reconnoitring party under the above officer towards General Symons' force, and was the first of my column to reach Haka. It is needless for me to point out the hard work which Gúrkhas are ever ready to go through, and the cheerfulness with which it is invariably performed. The men of the 2-2nd simply worked splendidly.

2-4th Gurkha Regiment.

Owing to the absence of all opposition, the want of transport, and the difficulty of rationing more than a certain number of troops, the half-battalion of this regiment, under the command of Major Sir C. H. Leslie, was not moved up to the front until the 13th February, from which time the men were employed in road construction, earthwork at Fort Tregear, and in clearing jungle with the advance party towards Haka. On the 27th March the whole detachment started from the Upper Kolodyne to join the Burma Column, as was originally intended, and arrived at Haka on the 1st April, having marched along the native paths viâ the Tao (or Sangal Klang). My remarks regarding the manner in which Gúrkhas work apply equally to the men of this corps, which is as smart a body of men as one could ever wish to serve with.

28th Bombay Infantry (Pioneers).

With the exception of one company, which proceeded with the Northern Column, the whole regiment, under the command of Colonel R. Westmacott, has been employed on road construction towards Haka, and earthwork at Fort Tregear. This is the first occasion on which the men of this corps have been on field service as a pioneer regiment. They have proved most useful to the expedition, and worked cheerfully and well. When the regiment was ordered to commence its return march to India, I kept 100 men under Captain W. St. L. Chase, V. C., for work on the mule-road to Haka, and the zealous and admirable manner in which they carried out their duties, under the above officer, was of the greatest assistance in completing the road.

Chittagong Frontier Police.

During the last expedition I was able to make very favorable mention of the men composing the Chittagong Frontier Police Battalion, under the command of Mr. C. S. Murray, District Superintendent of Police. During this expedition 50 men accompanied the Northern Column, and 100 under Mr. S. V. Tayler, Assistant Superintendent of Police, were employed with the advanced party, and did excellent work. They are the most useful and willing men I should ever care to serve with. Besides being keen soldiers, they can build huts, thatch roofs, construct rafts and, in fact, put their hands to anything, and are accustomed to carry all their own kits.

Cachar Military Police.

In the middle of December 1889, orders were issued by Government for a column of 400 men under the command of Mr. W. W. Daly to be sent from Cachar to co-operate with my Northern Column, in the expedition against Lienpunga and Vutai's sons. The rapid manner in which the men of this battalion were concentrated at Jhalnacherra, and moved up by boat and route march to Changsil Bazar, reflects the greatest credit on the corps. One hundred men were left to garrison Changsil Bazar, which was selected as the base depôt for supplies, and the remaining 300 men marched to Lienpunga and took part in the operations carried out in the vicinity of that village, and were afterwards employed in building Fort Aijol, which is now garrisoned by 200 men. A detachment of 100 men hold Changsil Bazar.

27. Officers.—It now only remains for me to bring the names of the following officers, civil and military, to the special notice of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, and in doing so, I would take the opportunity of acknowledging most gratefully the cordial assistance I have at all times received from all ranks, British and Native, and to bear testimony to the privations and hardships borne by all during this exceptionally prolonged and arduous campaign, with a cheerfulness and devotion to duty which is most praiseworthy.

The discipline of the troops has been excellent throughout the expedition; and the absence of all crime reflects the greatest credit on the force.

I.—Mr. C. S. Murray, Political Officer, who accompanied the Northern Column, rendered me valuable assistance. He has a perfect knowledge of the people of this country, and his hold over them was amply proved by the submissive and rapid manner in which his instructions to the different chiefs to make paths and clear jungle on the route to Lienpunga's village were attended to. Mr. Murray has done much to consolidate our power in the Lushai country since the last expedition, and deserves the greatest credit for the quiet and judicious manner in which he has carried out his political duties.

II.—Mr. E. O Walker, Assistant Superintendent of Telegraphs. The heavy work done by this very energetic and zealous officer is highly creditable to him. The rapid manner in which the wire was laid and offices opened at the head of the road, as each new camp was fixed upon, proved of the greatest convenience to the expedition, and I cannot speak too highly of the work done by Mr. Walker.

III.—Mr. E. Good, Port Officer, has performed the arduous duties of Transport Officer at Chittagong during the whole time the expedition has lasted, and has carried out his duties in a most energetic, intelligent and satisfactory manner.

IV.—Colonel G. J. Skinner, commanding the Northern Column, has carried out the responsible duties entrusted to him in a sound, able and most successful manner, and is deserving of the greatest credit in bringing the operations in the north to so satisfactory a conclusion.

V.—Captain F. S. Gwatkin, 13th Bengal Lancers, who was my Staff Officer during the last Lushai expedition, has again been of invaluable assistance to me, and has carried out his duties in a sound, energetic manner, and with the greatest tact. He is a most reliable and excellent officer, and I cannot speak too highly of him.

VI.—Captain J. Shakespear, Leinster Regiment, Intelligence and Assistant Political Officer, has performed his double duties in a most painstaking manner, and no officer could have worked harder or with greater success. As a political officer his services have been invaluable to me, and the knowledge he now possesses of the tribes we have to deal with will, I feel sure, be of the greatest assistance to Government.

VII.—Major H. P. Leach, R.E., Commanding Royal Engineer, has had very arduous duties to perform in the construction of the road from Fort Lungleh to Haka, the bridging of the Matt and Kolodyne rivers and the building of the post at Fort Tregear, and, as was the case last expedition, a very heavy share of the work of this year's operations has fallen upon him, but it has been carried out with the same intelligence, energy and forethought, and he has again proved himself an excellent and most reliable officer.

VIII.—Captain H. Mullaly, R.E., Field Engineer. The difficult task of tracing the road from Fort Lungleh to Haka, passing as it does for the first 80 miles through a most difficult country covered with dense jungle, devolved upon this officer; but the work was performed with an energy and intelligence which reflects the greatest credit on him. I would also mention Lieutenant R. A. F. Kingscote, R.E., Assistant Field Engineer, as having again performed excellent and hard work during this expedition.

IX.—Captain W. J. H. Bond, Chief Commissariat Officer. This officer, has for the second time, under my command, in the Lushai country, carried out his arduous and most difficult duties in an excellent manner. I look upon him as a most energetic, hard-working and reliable officer. His arrangements, both as regards rations and transport, considering the difficulties to be contended with, have been most successfully carried out.

In the Transport Department I would specially mention—

Captain G. R. C. Westropp, Bombay Staff Corps, Assistant Commissary General,
Captain B. W. R. Ussher, 7th Dragoon Guards,
Captain L. E. du Moulin, Royal Sussex Regiment,
Lieutenant J. O'B. Minogue, Royal Munster Fusiliers, for hard work done and duties zealously performed.

X.—Captain A. G. F. Browne, 2-3rd Gurkha Regiment, Superintendent of Signalling, has carried out his duties in an energetic and successful manner, and rendered valuable assistance, when communication had to be kept up with the Northern Column, and with parties sent out on reconnaissance duty. During the advance from the Upper Kolodyne to Haka, communication was kept open by the heliograph alone.

XI.—Lieutenant W. J. Bythell, R.E., Assistant Superintendent, Survey of India, has worked very hard and successfully during the expedition, and to his energy is due the large amount of survey operations which have been carried out. He is I consider a most excellent and intelligent officer, and afforded great assistance to the engineer officers employed in tracing the road.

XII.—Among regimental officers I would specially mention the following for the zealous, energetic and successful manner in which they carried out their duties:

(1) Colonel R. Westmacott, commanding the 28th Bombay Pioneers.
(2) Lieutenant-Colonel F. W. Nicolay, commanding the 2-2nd Gúrkha Regiment.
(3) Captain A. T. Weller, 9th Bengal Infantry.
(4) Captain L. M. M. Hall, 2-2nd Gúrkha Regiment.
(5) Lieutenant H. J. Sherwood, R.E., Bengal Sappers and Miners.

XIII.—Surgeon-Major W. R. Murphy, Principal Medical Officer, carried out his duties in an able and intelligent manner, and his arrangements both in the distribution of the field hospitals along the line of communication, and for the return of the sick convoys were most satisfactory, and worked without a hitch. I have a very high opinion of this officer. The medical officers attached to the expedition have been worked very hard, and have one and all carried out their duties in a most zealous, careful and praiseworthy manner. Troops and followers have beenequally well looked after, and every assistance rendered to them. I would, however, specially mention the following officers:

Surgeon Major S. F. Bigger, at Demagiri, had the heaviest work of the campaign in dealing with the sickness of the followers, and ensuring their satisfactory transit when invalided to the base. His duties were discharged in a most able and admirable manner, and reflect the highest credit on his judgment and ability.

Surgeon E. Hudson dealt with the very critical and severe outbreak of cholera at Burkal with a conspicuous ability of which I cannot speak too highly.

XIV.—Veterinary-Surgeon J. A. Nunn has carried out his duties in a most able and satisfactory manner, and his services during the expedition, in the care and treatment of the baggage animals, have been invaluable. He is, I consider, a very reliable and sound officer.

I would also bring to notice the names of the following officers who were employed with the Northern Column under Colonel Skinner, and on whom much labor and responsibility were thrown:

XV.—Major F. R. Begbie, commanding the detachment of the 2-2nd Gúrkhas, who accompanied, with 100 of his men, the flying column to Lienpunga's village, and commanded the column detached to punish the sons of Vutai.

XVI.—Captain R. D. Petrie, R.E., as Field Engineer, was unremitting in his exertions in improving the road and river way, and planned and built the stockades at Aijol.

XVII.—Lieutenant G. A. Brownrigg, 28th Bombay Infantry, who was severely wounded in a skirmish near Lienpunga's village on the 23rd February, gave, with his detachment, most valuable assistance in road and river work.

XVIII.—Lieutenant H. W. G. Cole, 2-2nd Gúrkhas, gave me every assistance, and proved himself a thoroughly efficient staff officer.

XIX.—Captain O. A Chambers, Assistant Intelligence Officer, commanded two reconnoitring parties, and collected much information regarding the country and people.

XX.—I was much indebted to Lieutenant (now Captain) W. H. Birkbeck, 1st Dragoon Guards, Assistant Superintendent of Army Signalling, whose duties necessitated a great deal of very hard hill climbing, and through whose arrangements the column was in almost constant communication with Lungleh as long as heliographic signalling was possible.

XXI.—On Captain W. H. Allen, Brigade Transport Officer, ably seconded by the transport officers under him, the very important duty of pushing on supplies to Lienpunga's village devolved. The work was accomplished in, I believe, the shortest possible time, and supplies were always available when required.

28. I would also bring the names of the following warrant and non-commissioned officers to His Excellency's special notice, as having performed good work with the expedition, and who hold out promise of proving themselves worthy of advancement in their respective departments:

Conductor P. McBrien, Bengal Commissariat Department.
Sub-Conductor P. Lyons ,, ,, ,, Sergeant W. G. Hoare ,, ,, ,,
,, H. Fergusson, ,, ,, ,,
,, F. J. Skinner, Bombay Commissariat Department.
,, W. Elliott, Highland Light Infantry, Signalling Department.

Lance-Corporal T. Elkin, Derbyshire Regiment, Signalling Department.
Assistant-Apothecary W. J. A. Hogan, Subordinate Medical Department, Bengal.
No. 266, Hospital-Assistant Sheopurshun Singh.
No. 285, ,, ,, Bukrid Ali.

29. In conclusion, I would beg to tender my sincere thanks—

To Mr. D. R. Lyall, Commissioner of Chittagong, for the very valuable help he has at all times given me in carrying out the objects of the expedition.

To Brigadier-General W. L. Auchinleck, commanding the Presidency District, and the staff officers serving under him, for all the heavy work which has been entailed upon them in connection with the expedition, both in its despatch from, and return to, Calcutta.

To the marine authorities at Calcutta, for their services in connection with the despatch and transport of all troops, baggage animals, materials, &c., to and from Chittagong.

No. 342.—Mr. A. T. Chiodetti, Assistant Engineer, 1st Grade, State Railways, is transferred from the Establishment under the Director General of Railways to that under the Government of Madras for employment on Railways.

The 12th August, 1890.

No. 343.—The Governor General in Council is pleased to publish the following rules under section 22 of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, defining the cases in which, and in those cases the extent to which, the procedure prescribed in sections 17 to 20 (both inclusive) of the Act may be dispensed with :

1. For the following works mentioned in section 20, namely, deviation lines, stations, junctions and crossings on the level, and any alteration or reconstruction materially affecting the structural character of any work, any of which form part of or are directly connected with a railway used for the public carriage of passengers, and have been constructed after the inspection which preceded the first opening of the section of railway in which they are situated, only such notice will be required from the Railway Administration, in lieu of the notice prescribed in section 17 (1), as may from time to time be prescribed by the Inspector concerned, it being understood that in no case are such works to be opened by the Railway Administration concerned without giving the required notice, and without receiving in writing the permission of the Inspector to open the work, whether the Inspector considers an inspection of the work necessary or not.

2. With reference to sections 18 and 25 of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, power is hereby conferred on all Inspectors of Railways, without previous report under section 19, to sanction the opening for passenger traffic of the following works, when forming part of, or directly connected with, a railway used for the public carriage of passengers, if, on careful inspection, it is found that provisions (b), (c) and (f) of sub-section (1) of section 19 have been duly fulfilled :

(a) any temporary diversion, including temporary bridges and their approaches ;

NOTE.—Such temporary diversions may, in cases of accident, be opened under section 21 on the responsibility of the Railway Administration ; but the Inspector should, if the use of the temporary diversion be likely to be extended for more than three days, take the earliest possible opportunity of inspecting the temporary diversion.

(b) new bridges on a line already opened ;
(c) extensions of existing bridges on open lines ;
(d) new sidings to be used for the working of passenger trains ;
(e) any interlocking apparatus to be used for the working of points and signals in connection with passenger trains ;
(f) any extensive alterations in the arrangements for signalling ;
(g) any crossing of one line by another by means of a diamond crossing on the level.

It is to be clearly understood that such works are, with the single exception mentioned in the "Note" to clause (a), to be inspected by Inspectors previous to their being opened for passenger traffic.

In all cases coming under this rule, the Inspector will, on authorizing the opening of the work, report in full detail to the Director General of Railways in regard to the work thus permitted to be opened.

3. In the case of minor works other than those named in the preceding rule, and which form part of or are directly connected with a railway already opened for the public carriage of passengers, the Inspector will exercise his discretion as to carrying out an inspection or not.

Power is also conferred on all Inspectors of Railways to sanction the opening of such minor works not only without inspection in any cases in which the Inspector considers such inspection to be unnecessary, but also without previous report under section 19, provided that the Inspector is otherwise satisfied that such opening will not be attended with danger to the public.

In regard to these works it will be sufficient if the Inspector, either with or without inspection at his discretion, authorizes in writing the Railway Administration to open the work.

Schedule containing modifications in the General Rules for working Open Lines of Railway as recommended by the Railway Conference of 1888—continued.

N.B.—The alterations recommended by the Conference of 1888 are shown in italics.]

Reference to Resolution of the Railway Conference of 1888.	Proposed modifications.	Open Line Rules as existing.
	179 & 240. Except as provided in Rule 180, when a train has been stopped, from any cause, outside station limits on the double line, the head Guard must go, or see that a competent person be sent back, showing danger hand signals, having with him detonators (to be used by day as well as by night) to stop any train approaching on the same line of rails. (Train stopping outside station limits.) The person going to protect the train must place upon the rails, on which the train has been running, two detonators, ten yards apart, at a distance of three quarters of a mile on a gradient of one in two hundred and fifty ($\frac{1}{250}$) or steeper, falling in the direction of the train, or half a mile on any flatter gradient, or on the level; and he must also, on his way out, place one detonator at half those distances respectively. He must remain exhibiting his hand danger signal at the further distance until recalled by engine whistle or otherwise, when he must leave down the two most distant detonators, taking up the other on his way back. On a double line, should both roads be fouled, detonators and hand signals must be used on each line in the manner prescribed, and all trains approaching from either direction must be stopped. In the case of a single line the train must be protected in the same manner in front as well as in rear. If one or more trains approach the obstruction, the train which last arrives must be protected in the rear in the manner prescribed, and when the other train or trains are thus protected in that direction, the person or persons who protected such other trains can return, and the intermediate detonators may be removed. When the mixed gauge is laid, detonators must be placed on each rail, both for the broad and the narrow gauge trains. On the single line the rear of a train must be protected first, and in cases on the double line, when both roads are obstructed and men are not available to be sent out in both directions at the same time, the Guard must use his discretion as to which road should be first protected. When necessary, a fireman must be sent out with the signals for the protection of the train. Should the stoppage occur to an engine not attached to a train, the Driver must take the prescribed precautions for its protection. On the double road, should both lines be fouled, the Driver must aid the Guard, and at once display a "Danger signal" to the front, and if the engine is not disabled, it should be used to convey the person who goes forward to the proper distance. When starting a train which has stopped outside station limits, the Guards and Drivers must exchange signals. Unless these signals are exchanged the Driver must stop.	179 & 240. Except as provided in Rule 180 when a train has been stopped, from any cause, outside station limits on the double line, the head Guard must go, or see that a competent person be sent back, showing danger hand signals, having with him detonators (to be used by day as well as by night) to stop any train approaching on the same line of rails. 230. No Driver shall run his engine with tender, or any portion of a train, or fuel truck, foremost (except within station limits), without a written order, or unless in cases of unavoidable necessity, to be established by the Driver. 338. On a single line, no engine with or without a train shall be permitted to leave one station for another until it shall have been ascertained by means of the electric telegraph that the line between those stations is clear of engines and trains coming in the opposite direction, and of all impediments as far as can be known. Trains may follow one another between stations in the same direction, on both single and double line under the following rules, and in accordance with the Rule 339. (a) No train or engine shall be allowed to follow any other train or engine on the same line of rails within 10 minutes, unless "Line clear" has been received. 339. When one train follows another at an interval exceeding the limits laid down in Rule 338, it must run under the authority of a "Caution message" obtained in the manner prescribed in the rules in force on each railway. (Caution message.)	339. Trains may follow one another between stations in the same direction on both single and double line subject to the following conditions: (Following trains.) (a) No train or engine shall be allowed to follow any other train or engine on the same line of rails within ten minutes unless "Line clear" has been received. (b) No train shall be allowed to follow another unless permission has been obtained in each and every case from the station to which the train is proceeding. No passenger train shall follow a goods train, nor shall a fast goods train follow a stopping passenger train, from a station within fifteen minutes; and in case the distance to the next station in advance exceeds ten miles, the interval must be increased under special instructions of the authorized Officer. (c) The "Caution message" shall contain an entry of the time at which the preceding train left the station.	Resolution No. 134.
341. A Station Master must not apply for a line clear message from the station in advance, until he has received advice that the approaching train has left the station in rear. (Time for seeking line clear.)	341. Except at train terminal stations, no Station Master must apply for a line clear message from the station in advance, until he has received advice that the approaching train has left the station in rear. (Time for seeking line clear.)	Resolution No. 134.

NOTIFICATION.

Simla, the 5th September, 1890.

No. 16.—The following Statute is published for general information :

COLONIAL COURTS OF ADMIRALTY ACT, 1890.

[53 & 54 VICTORIA, CHAPTER 27.]

An Act to amend the Law respecting the exercise of Admiralty Jurisdiction in Her Majesty's Dominions and elsewhere out of the United Kingdom.

[25TH JULY 1890.]

BE it enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows :

1. This Act may be cited as the Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act, 1890.

Short title.

2. (1) Every court of law in a British possession, which is for the time being declared in pursuance of this Act to be a court of Admiralty, or which, if no such declaration is in force in the possession, has therein original unlimited civil jurisdiction, shall be a court of Admiralty, with the jurisdiction in this Act mentioned, and may for the purpose of that jurisdiction exercise all the powers which it possesses for the purpose of its other civil jurisdiction, and such court in reference to the jurisdiction conferred by this Act is in this Act referred to as a Colonial Court of Admiralty. Where in a British possession the Governor is the sole judicial authority, the expression "court of law" for the purposes of this section includes such Governor.

Colonial Courts of Admiralty.

(2) The jurisdiction of a Colonial Court of Admiralty shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be over the like places, persons, matters, and things, as the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court in England, whether existing by virtue of any statute or otherwise, and the Colonial Court of Admiralty may exercise such jurisdiction in like manner and to as full an extent as the High Court in England, and shall have the same regard as that Court to international law and the comity of nations.

(3) Subject to the provisions of this Act any enactment referring to a Vice-Admiralty Court, which is contained in an Act of the Imperial Parliament or in a Colonial law, shall apply to a Colonial Court of Admiralty, and be read as if the expression "Colonial Court of Admiralty" were therein substituted for "Vice-Admiralty Court" or for other expressions respectively referring to such Vice-Admiralty Courts or the judge thereof, and the Colonial Court of Admiralty shall have jurisdiction accordingly.

Provided as follows :

(a) Any enactment in an Act of the Imperial Parliament referring to the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court in England, when applied to a Colonial Court of Admiralty in a British possession, shall be read as if the name of that possession were therein substituted for England and Wales ; and

(b) A Colonial Court of Admiralty shall have under the Naval Prize Act, 1864, and under the Slave Trade Act, 1873, and any enactment relating to prize or the slave trade, the jurisdiction thereby conferred on a Vice-Admiralty Court and not the jurisdiction thereby conferred exclusively on the High Court of Admiralty or the High Court of Justice ; but, unless for the time being duly authorised, shall not by virtue of this Act exercise any jurisdiction under the Naval Prize Act, 1864, or otherwise in relation to prize ; and 27 & 28 Vict. c. 25. 36 & 37 Vict. c. 88.

(c) A Colonial Court of Admiralty shall not have jurisdiction under this Act to try or punish a person for an offence which according to the law of England is punishable on indictment ; and

(d) A Colonial Court of Admiralty shall not have any greater jurisdiction in relation to the laws and regulations relating to Her Majesty's Navy at sea, or under any Act providing for the discipline of Her Majesty's Navy, than may be from time to time conferred on such court by Order in Council.

(4) Where a Court in a British possession exercises in respect of matters arising outside the body of a county or other like part of a British possession any jurisdiction exerciseable under this Act, that jurisdiction shall be deemed to be exercised under this Act and not otherwise.

3. The legislature of a British possession may by any Colonial law,

Power of Colonial legislature as to Admiralty jurisdiction.

(a) declare any court of unlimited civil jurisdiction, whether original or appellate, in that possession to be a Colonial Court of Admiralty, and provide for the exercise by such court of its jurisdiction under this Act, and limit territorially, or otherwise, the extent of such jurisdiction ; and

(b) confer upon any inferior or subordinate court in that possession such partial or limited Admiralty jurisdiction under such regulations and with such appeal (if any) as may seem fit :

Provided that any such Colonial law shall not confer any jurisdiction which is not by this Act conferred upon a Colonial Court of Admiralty.

4. Every Colonial law which is made in pursuance of this Act, or affects the jurisdiction of or practice or procedure in any court of such possession in respect of the jurisdiction conferred by this Act, or alters any such Colonial law as above in this section mentioned, which has been previously passed, shall, unless previously approved by Her Majesty through a Secretary of State, either be reserved for the signification of Her Majesty's pleasure thereon, or contain a suspending clause providing that such law shall not come into operation until Her Majesty's pleasure thereon has been publicly signified in the British possession in which it has been passed.

Reservation of Colonial law for Her Majesty's assent.

5. Subject to rules of court under this Act, judgments of a court in a British possession given or made in the exercise of the jurisdiction conferred on it by this Act, shall be subject to the like local appeal, if any, as judgments of the court in the exercise of its ordinary civil jurisdiction, and the court having cognizance of such appeal shall for the purpose thereof possess all the jurisdiction by this Act conferred upon a Colonial Court of Admiralty.

Local Admiralty appeal.

6. (1) The appeal from a judgment of any court in a British possession in the exercise of the jurisdiction conferred by this Act, either where there is as of right no local appeal or after a decision on local appeal, lies to Her Majesty the Queen in Council.

Admiralty appeal to the Queen in Council.

(2) Save as may be otherwise specially allowed in a particular case by Her Majesty the Queen in Council, an appeal under this section shall not be allowed—

(a) from any judgment not having the effect of a definitive judgment unless the court appealed from has given leave for such appeal, nor

(b) from any judgment unless the petition of appeal has been lodged within the time prescribed by rules, or if no time is prescribed within six months from the date of the judgment appealed against, or if leave to appeal has been given then from the date of such leave.

(3) For the purpose of appeals under this Act, Her Majesty the Queen in Council and the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council shall, subject to rules under this section, have all such powers for making and enforcing judgments, whether interlocutory or final, for punishing contempts, for requiring the payment of money into court, or for any other purpose, as may be necessary, or as were possessed by the High Court of Delegates before the passing of the Act transferring the powers of such court to Her Majesty in Council, or as are for the time being possessed by the High Court in England or by the court appealed from in relation to the like matters as those forming the subject of appeals under this Act.

(4) All Orders of the Queen in Council or the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council for the purposes aforesaid or otherwise in relation to appeals under this Act shall have full effect throughout Her Majesty's dominions, and in all places where Her Majesty has jurisdiction.

(5) This section shall be in addition to and not in derogation of the authority of Her Majesty in Council or the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council arising otherwise than under this Act, and all enactments relating to appeals to Her Majesty in Council or to the powers of Her Majesty in Council or the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in relation to those appeals, whether for making rules and orders or otherwise, shall extend, save as otherwise directed by Her Majesty in Council, to appeals to Her Majesty in Council under this Act.

7. (1) Rules of court for regulating the procedure and practice (including fees and costs) in a court in a British possession in the exercise of the jurisdiction conferred by this Act, whether original or appellate, may be made by the same authority and in the same manner as rules touching the practice, procedure, fees, and costs in the said court in the exercise of its ordinary civil jurisdiction respectively are made :

Rules of court.

Provided that the rules under this section shall not, save as provided by this Act, extend to matters relating to the slave trade, and shall not (save as provided by this section) come into operation until they have been approved by Her Majesty in Council, but on coming into operation shall have full effect as if enacted in this Act, and any enactment inconsistent therewith shall, so far as it is so inconsistent, be repealed.

(2) It shall be lawful for Her Majesty in Council, in approving rules made under this section, to declare that the rules so made with respect to any matters which appear to Her Majesty to be matters of detail or of local concern may be revoked, varied, or added to without the approval required by this section.

(3) Such rules may provide for the exercise of any jurisdiction conferred by this Act by the full court, or by any judge or judges thereof, and subject to any rules, where the ordinary civil jurisdiction of the court can in any case be exercised by a single judge, any jurisdiction conferred by this Act may in the like case be exercised by a single judge.

8. (1) Subject to the provisions of this section nothing in this Act shall alter the application of any droits of Admiralty or droits of or forfeitures to the Crown in a British possession ; and such droits and forfeitures, when condemned by a court of a British possession in the exercise of the jurisdiction conferred by this Act, shall, save as is otherwise provided by any other Act, be notified, accounted for, and dealt with in such manner as the Treasury from time to time direct, and the officers of every Colonial Court of Admiralty and of every other court in a British possession exercising Admiralty jurisdiction shall obey such directions in respect of the said droits and forfeitures as may be from time to time given by the Treasury.

Droits of Admiralty and of the Crown.

(2) It shall be lawful for Her Majesty the Queen in Council by Order to direct that, subject to any conditions, exceptions, reservations, and regulations contained in the Order, the said droits and forfeitures condemned by a court in a British possession shall form part of the revenues of that possession either for ever or for such limited term or subject to such revocation as may be specified in the Order.

(3) If and so long as any of such droits or forfeitures by virtue of this or any other Act form part of the revenues of the said possession the same shall, subject to the provisions of any law for the time being applicable thereto, be notified, accounted for, and dealt with in manner directed by the Government of the possession, and the Treasury shall not have any power in relation thereto.

Power to establish Vice-Admiralty Court.

9. (1) It shall be lawful for Her Majesty, by commission under the Great Seal, to empower the Admiralty to establish in a British possession any Vice-Admiralty Court or Courts.

(2) Upon the establishment of a Vice-Admiralty Court in a British possession, the Admiralty, by writing under their hands and the seal of the office of Admiralty, in such form as the Admiralty direct, may appoint a judge, registrar, marshal, and other officers of the court, and may cancel any such appointment; and in addition to any other jurisdiction of such court, may (subject to the limits imposed by this Act or the said commission from Her Majesty) vest in such court the whole or any part of the jurisdiction by or by virtue of this Act conferred upon any courts of that British possession, and may vary or revoke such vesting, and while such vesting is in force the power of such last-mentioned courts to exercise the jurisdiction so vested shall be suspended.

Provided that—

(a) nothing in this section shall authorise a Vice-Admiralty Court so established in India or in any British possession having a representative legislature, to exercise any jurisdiction, except for some purpose relating to prize, to Her Majesty's Navy, to the slave trade, to the matters dealt with by the Foreign Enlistment Act, 1870, or the Pacific Islanders Protection Acts, 1872 and 1875, or to matters in which questions arise relating to treaties or conventions with foreign countries, or to international law; and 33 & 34 Vict. c. 90. 35 & 36 Vict. c. 19. 38 & 39 Vict. c. 51.

(b) in the event of a vacancy in the office of judge, registrar, marshal, or other officer of any Vice-Admiralty Court in a British possession, the Governor of that possession may appoint a fit person to fill the vacancy until an appointment to the office is made by the Admiralty.

(3) The provisions of this Act with respect to appeals to Her Majesty in Council from courts in British possessions in the exercise of the jurisdiction conferred by this Act shall apply to appeals from Vice-Admiralty Courts, but the rules and orders made in relation to appeals from Vice-Admiralty Courts may differ from the rules made in relation to appeals from the said courts in British possessions.

(4) If Her Majesty at any time by commission under the Great Seal so directs, the Admiralty shall by writing under their hands and the seal of the office of Admiralty abolish a Vice-Admiralty Court established in any British possession under this section, and upon such abolition the jurisdiction of any Colonial Court of Admiralty in that possession which was previously suspended shall be revived.

Power to appoint a vice-admiral.

10. Nothing in this Act shall affect any power of appointing a vice-admiral in and for any British possession or any place therein; and whenever there is not a formally appointed vice-admiral in a British possession or any place therein, the Governor of the possession shall be ex-officio vice-admiral thereof.

Exception of Channel Islands and other possessions.

11. (1) The provisions of this Act with respect to Colonial Courts of Admiralty shall not apply to the Channel Islands.

(2) It shall be lawful for the Queen in Council by Order to declare, with respect to any British possession which has not a representative legislature, that the jurisdiction conferred by this Act on Colonial Courts of Admiralty shall not be vested in any court of such possession, or shall be vested only to the partial or limited extent specified in the Order.

Application of Act to courts under Foreign Jurisdiction Acts.

12. It shall be lawful for Her Majesty the Queen in Council by Order to direct that this Act shall, subject to the conditions, exceptions, and qualifications (if any) contained in the Order, apply to any Court established by Her Majesty for the exercise of jurisdiction in any place out of Her Majesty's dominions which is named in the Order as if that Court were a Colonial Court of Admiralty, and to provide for carrying into effect such application.

Rules for procedure in slave trade matters.

13. (1) It shall be lawful for Her Majesty the Queen in Council by Order to make rules as to the practice and procedure (including fees and costs) to be observed in and the returns to be made from Colonial Courts of Admiralty and Vice-Admiralty Courts in the exercise of their jurisdiction in matters relating to the slave trade, and in and from East African Courts as defined by the Slave Trade (East African Courts) Acts, 1873 and 1879.

36 & 37 Vict. c. 59. 42 & 43 Vict. c. 38.

(2) Except when inconsistent with such Order in Council, the rules of court for the time being in force in a Colonial Court of Admiralty or Vice-Admiralty Court shall, so far as applicable, extend to proceedings in such court in matters relating to the slave trade.

(3) The provisions of this Act with respect to appeals to Her Majesty in Council, from courts in British possessions in the exercise of the jurisdiction conferred by this Act, shall apply, with the necessary modifications, to appeals from judgments of any East African court made or purporting to be made in exercise of the jurisdiction under the Slave Trade (East African Courts) Acts, 1873 and 1879.

Orders in Council.

14. It shall be lawful for Her Majesty in Council from time to time to make Orders for the purposes authorised by this Act, and to revoke and vary such Orders, and every such Order while in operation shall have effect as if it were part of this Act.

REGULATIONS FOR THE OPEN COMPETITION OF JUNE, 1891.

N.B.—The Regulations will be different for the Open Competition of 1892.

1. On the 1st June, 1891, and following days, an Examination open to all qualified persons, will be held in London (a). Not fewer than 31 persons will be selected, if so many shall be found duly qualified; viz., for the Lower Provinces of Bengal (including Assam); for the Upper Provinces of Bengal (including the Punjab and Oudh); for Burma; for Madras; and for Bombay (b).

2. No person will be deemed qualified who shall not satisfy the Civil Service Commissioners—

N.B.—In the case of Natives of India, (i) and (ii) must be certified by the Government of India, or of the Presidency or Province in which the Candidate may have resided.

(iii) That he has no disease, constitutional affection, or bodily infirmity unfitting him, or likely to unfit him, for the Civil Service of India.

(b) The numbers for the different Presidencies will be announced hereafter.

(c) The fee (£5) will be payable by means of a special stamp according to instructions which will be communicated to Candidates.

be admitted to the Examination. The Commissioners may however in their discretion, at any time prior to the grant of the Certificate of Qualification hereinafter referred to, institute such further inquiries as they may deem necessary; and if the result of such inquiries, in the case of any Candidate, should be unsatisfactory to them in any of the above respects, he will be ineligible for admission to the Civil Service of India, and if already selected, will be removed from the position of a Probationer.

4. The Examination will take place only in the following branches of knowledge:

		Marks.
	English Composition	300
(d)	History of England—including a period selected by the Candidate ...	300
(d)	English Literature—including books selected by the Candidate ...	300
	Greek	600
	Latin	800
	French	500
	German	500
	Italian	400
(e)	Mathematics (pure and mixed)	1,000
	Natural Science; that is, the Elements of any two of the following Sciences, viz.:— Chemistry, 500; Electricity and Magnetism, 300; Experimental Laws of Heat and Light, 300; Mechanical Philosophy, with outlines of Astronomy, 300.
	Logic	300

(f)	Sanskrit	500
(f)	Arabic	500

Candidates are at liberty to name any or all of these branches of knowledge. No subjects are obligatory.

5. The merit of the persons examined will be estimated by marks; and the number set opposite to each branch in the preceding regulation denotes the greatest number of marks that can be obtained in respect of it.

6. The marks assigned to Candidates in each branch will be subject to such deduction as the Civil Service Commissioners may deem necessary (g) in order to secure that "a Candidate be allowed no credit at all for taking up a subject in which he is a mere smatterer."

7. The Examination will be conducted on paper and viva voce, as may be deemed necessary.

8. The marks obtained by each Candidate, in respect of each of the subjects in which he shall have been examined, will be added up, and the names of the several Candidates who shall have obtained, after the deduction abovementioned, a greater aggregate number of marks than any of the remaining Candidates will be set forth in order of merit, and such Candidates shall be deemed to be selected Candidates for the Civil Service of India, provided they appear to be in other respects duly qualified. Should any of the selected Candidates become disqualified, the Secretary of State for India will determine whether the vacancy thus created shall be filled up or not. In the former case, the Candidate next in order of merit, and in other respects duly qualified, shall be deemed to be a selected Candidate. A selected Candidate declining to accept the appointment which may be offered to him will be disqualified for any subsequent competition.

(d) A considerable portion of the marks for English History and Literature will be allotted to the work selected by the Candidate. (See notice on p. 4.) In awarding marks for this, regard will be had partly to the extent and importance of the period or books selected, but chiefly to the thoroughness with which they have been studied.

(e) The examination will range from Arithmetic, Algebra, and Elementary Geometry, up to the elements of the differential and integral calculus, including the lower portions of applied Mathematics.

(f) The standard of marking in Sanskrit and Arabic will be determined with reference to a high degree of proficiency, such as may be expected to be reached by a Native of good education.

(g) Marks assigned in English Composition and Mathematics will be subject to no deduction. Each science will, for the purpose of deduction, be treated as a separate subject.

9. Selected Candidates before proceeding to India will be on probation for two years, during which time they will be examined periodically, with a view of testing their progress in the following subjects (h):

	Marks.
1. Law	1,250
2. Classical Languages of India—
Sanskrit	500
Arabic	400
Persian	400
3. Vernacular Languages of India (excepting Hindustani when taken up by Madras Candidates, and Gujarati), each	400
4. The History and Geography of India	350
5. Political Economy	350

In these Examinations, as in the Open Competition, the merit of the Candidates examined will be estimated by marks, and the number set opposite to each subject denotes the greatest number of marks that can be obtained in respect of it at any one Examination. The Examination will be conducted on paper and viva voce, as may be deemed necessary. The last of these Examinations will be held at the close of the second year of probation, and will be called the "Final Examination," at which it will be decided whether a selected Candidate is qualified for the Civil Service of India. At this Examination Candidates will be permitted to take up any one of the following branches of Natural Science, viz.—Agricultural Chemistry, Botany, Geology, or Zoology, for which 350 marks will be allowed. Candidates for Madras and Bombay will also be permitted to compete for Prizes in Hindustani and Gujarati respectively.

10. Candidates will be tested during their probation as to their ability to perform journeys on horseback; and no Candidate will be deemed qualified for the Civil Service of India who fails to satisfy the Civil Service Commissioners of his competence in this respect.

11. Any Candidate who, at any of the periodical Examinations, shall appear to have wilfully neglected his studies, or to be physically incapacitated for pursuing the prescribed course of training, will be liable to have his name removed from the list of selected Candidates.

12. The selected Candidates who, at the Final Examination, shall be found to have a competent knowledge of the subjects specified in Regulation 9, and who shall have satisfied the Civil Service Commissioners of their eligibility in respect of nationality, age, health, character and ability to ride, shall be certified by the said Commissioners to be entitled to be appointed to the Civil Service of India, provided they shall comply with the regulations in force, at the time, for that Service.

13. Persons desirous to be admitted as Candidates must apply on Forms, which may be obtained from "The Secretary, Civil Service Commission, London, S.W.," at any time after the 1st December, 1890. The Forms must be returned so as to be received at the office of the Civil Service Commissioners on or before 31st March, 1891 (i).

The Civil Service Commissioners are authorised by the Secretary of State for India in Council to make the following announcements:

(1.) Selected Candidates will be permitted to choose, according to the order in which they stand in the list resulting from the Open Competition, so long as a choice remains, the Presidency (and in Bengal the Division of the Presidency) to which they shall be appointed; but this choice will be subject to a different arrangement, should the Secretary of State, or the Government of India, deem it necessary (k).

(2.) The Probationers, having passed the necessary Examinations, will be required to report their arrival in India within such period after the grant of their Certificate of Qualification as the Secretary of State may in each case direct.

(h) Full instructions as to the course of study to be pursued will be issued to the successful Candidates as soon as possible after the result of the Open Competition is declared.

(i) These forms should be accompanied by evidence on the points mentioned in Regulation 2, and by a list of the subjects in which the Candidate desires to be examined. Evidence of health and character must bear date not earlier than 1st March, 1890. Applications for leave to alter or add to the list of subjects named will not be entertained unless received on or before the 5th May.

(k) This choice must be exercised immediately after the result of the Open Competition is announced on such day as may be fixed by the Civil Service Commissioners.

(3.) The seniority in the Civil Service of India of the Selected Candidates will be determined according to the order in which they stand on the list resulting from the Final Examination. In view of the change in the limits of age, Candidates selected in 1891 will rank in the Service next below those selected in 1892.

(4.) An allowance amounting to £300 will be given to all Candidates who pass their probation at one of the Universities or Colleges which have been approved by the Secretary of State, viz., the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, Glasgow, Edinburgh, St. Andrew's, and Aberdeen; University College, London; and King's College, London; provided such Candidates shall have passed the required Examinations to the satisfaction of the Civil Service Commissioners, and shall have complied with such rules as may be laid down for the guidance of Selected Candidates.

Candidates are not permitted to migrate from the University originally chosen by them to another University without first applying to the India Office for the permission, and receiving the sanction, of the Secretary of State, who will not entertain such applications unless good and sufficient reasons are assigned.

(5.) All selected Candidates will be required, after having passed the first periodical Examination, and before receiving the first instalment of their allowance, to attend at the India Office for the purpose of entering into an agreement binding themselves, amongst other things, to refund in certain cases the amount of their allowance in the event of their failing to proceed to India. A surety will be required.

(6.) After passing the Final Examination, all selected Candidates will be required to attend again at the India Office, with the view of entering into covenants, by which, amongst other things, they will bind themselves to agree to such Regulations for the provision of pensions for their families as may be approved by the Secretary of State for India in Council. The stamps payable on these covenants amount to £1.

(7.) Candidates rejected at the Final Examination of 1893 will in no case be allowed to present themselves for re-examination.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Public Works Department.

Reduction of account work in departmental offices of the Railway (Construction and Open Line) Branch of the Public Works Department.

Read again—

Public Works Department Resolution No. 64 A.G., dated 28th April 1890.

RESOLUTION.—In the resolution quoted above, the Government of India reviewed the work done by the Committee on Public Works Accounts appointed under Public Works Department resolution No. 374 A.G., dated 22nd October 1888, for the purpose of thoroughly investigating the system of accounting for receipts and expenditure in force in the Buildings and Roads and Irrigation Branches of the Department, and of reporting how far the then existing procedure could be simplified without sacrificing administrative and financial control.

2. Certain of the orders passed on recommendations of that Committee have been made applicable to the Construction and Open Line sections of the Railway Branch of the Department; but the circumstances of the Railway Branch are so different from those of the Buildings and Roads and Irrigation Branches, that the Government of India has come to the conclusion that it is advisable to institute a separate inquiry, on the same lines, into the procedure followed with respect to accounts and returns of cash and stores in the Construction and Open Line sections of the Railway Branch.

3. The Committee will be composed as follows:

President.

Mr. R. G. Macdonald, Offg. Accountant General, Public Works Department.

Member.

Lieutenant-Colonel W. H. Coaker, R.E., Class I, Grade III, of the Superior Revenue Establishment.

Secretary.

Captain C. A. R. Browne, R.E., Examiner of Accounts, IV Class, III Grade.

5. The salaries and travelling allowances of the members and secretary of the permanent Committee will be charged to the head "41, Miscellaneous Railway Expenditure." The payments made to these officers while on deputation should be adjusted in transfer with the Deputy Examiner of Accounts, State Railway Stores, Simla. The salaries of the local members of the Committee will be a charge against the Railways to which they belong. Salaries and allowances of the permanent members and the secretary should be drawn under the audit of the officers who now pass their salaries, and the amounts should be transferred by them to the Deputy Examiner of Accounts, State Railway Stores. The Government of India is pleased to appoint Mr. R. G. Macdonald the "Controlling Officer" for purposes of the travelling allowances of the members of the Committee. The Government of India is also pleased to sanction a grant of deputation allowance to the permanent members and the secretary of the Committee of 20 per cent. of salary, subject to a maximum of Rs. 150 per mensem, under section 98 (a) of the Civil Service Regulations.

6. The duties of the Committee will be to thoroughly investigate the procedure laid down in Volumes III and IV of the Public Works Department Code, so far as it affects the accounts and returns of Executive Engineers, Stations, Departmental Offices and Workshops; and to consider what accounts and returns are essentially necessary for purposes of control, account and audit, and for the compilation of the statistics now required by Government, and what may be dispensed with. The Committee's investigation should also extend to the Examiner's office in so far as its requirements directly affect the executive departments. The Committee should discuss how far the accounts, &c., proposed to be retained can be simplified in order to lessen the labour in departmental offices.

7. The Committee should also inquire into the necessity for the different returns required by the Government of India, and into the possibility of improvements in the manner of collecting and classifying the information which appears to be really necessary.

8. The Committee is empowered to take the opinions of local officers of experience on subjects which fall within the scope of the Committee's duties, and Local Governments and the Director General of Railways are requested to arrange to give facilities to such officers to communicate with, or appear before the Committee.

9. It will be open to any Railway, or Provincial authority, to give evidence or opinions before the Committee.

10. The report of the Committee should be submitted to the Government of India within, if possible, five months from the date the sittings commence.

11. These orders give no power to revise the Revenue Accounts and returns required by Government with reference to working of open lines.

[4TH AUGUST 1890.]

WHEREAS by treaty, capitulation, grant, usage, sufferance, and other lawful means, Her Majesty the Queen has jurisdiction within divers foreign countries, and it is expedient to consolidate the Acts relating to the exercise of Her Majesty's jurisdiction out of Her dominions:

Be it therefore enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:

Exercise of jurisdiction in foreign country.

1. It is and shall be lawful for Her Majesty the Queen to hold, exercise, and enjoy any jurisdiction which Her Majesty now has or may at any time hereafter have within a foreign country in the same and as ample a manner as if Her Majesty had acquired that jurisdiction by the cession or conquest of territory.

Exercise of jurisdiction over British subjects in countries without regular governments.

2. Where a foreign country is not subject to any government from whom Her Majesty the Queen might obtain jurisdiction in the manner recited by this Act, Her Majesty shall by virtue of this Act have jurisdiction over Her Majesty's subjects for the time being resident in or resorting to that country, and that jurisdiction shall be jurisdiction of Her Majesty in a foreign country within the meaning of the other provisions of this Act.

(2) Thereupon those enactments shall, to the extent of that jurisdiction, operate as if the country were a British possession, and as if Her Majesty in Council were the Legislature of that possession.

(b) In such case the British court in the foreign country shall proceed in the examination and cross-examination of the witness as though he had been tendered at a trial before that court, and shall cause the evidence so taken to be reduced into writing, and shall transmit to the criminal court of the British possession by which the person charged is to be tried a copy of the evidence, certified as correct under the seal of the court before which the evidence was taken, or the signature of a judge of that court:

(c) Thereupon the court of the British possession before which the trial takes place shall allow so much of the evidence so taken as would have been admissible according to the law and practice of that court, had the witness been produced and examined at the trial, to be read and received as legal evidence at the trial:

(d) The court of the British possession shall admit and give effect to the law by which the alleged offender would have been tried by the British court in the foreign country in which his offence is alleged to have been committed, so far as that law relates to the criminality of the act alleged to have been committed, or the nature or degree of the offence, or the punishment thereof, if the law differs in those respects from the law in force in that British possession.

No. 3204-I.—The following rules under sections 3, 4, 5 and 6 of the Hackney-Carriage Act, XIV of 1879, as applied to the Cantonment of Nowgong by Foreign Department notification No. 3073-I., dated the 18th September 1890, shall have force in the said Cantonment:

I. No hackney-carriage of any kind shall be let to hire, or taken to ply or offered for hire, except under a license granted in that behalf as provided in these rules.

II. No person shall act as driver of a hackney-carriage except under a license granted in that behalf as provided in these rules.

III. Every hackney-carriage within cantonment limits, and every driver of a hackney-carriage, shall be licensed by an officer appointed for the purpose by the Cantonment Committee, and the said officer shall keep a register in which he shall enter every hackney-carriage under its class, and give it a number by which it shall be known.

IV. The owner of any carriage who is desirous of having it licensed as a hackney-carriage, must apply to the licensing officer, stating the class in which he desires that the carriage may be licensed, and he shall submit the carriage, harness and horses to be used therewith, for the inspection of the licensing officer at such time and place as the said officer shall appoint. The licensing officer shall, after such inspection, decide either to grant the license applied for or to refuse it. When a license is granted, the licensing officer shall deliver the license duly signed to the owner of the hackney-carriage.

The person in whose name any carriage is licensed shall be deemed the owner of such carriage for the purpose of these rules.

V. The following particulars shall be entered in the register to be kept up by the licensing officer, and shall also be specified in the license to be given to the owner, and they shall be inscribed in English and Urdu on a card,* which shall be provided by the registering officer, to be affixed to some conspicuous part of the different classes of carriages:

* A metal plate might, if preferred, be used instead of a card.

(1) The class in which the carriage is licensed and the number assigned to it in the register.

(2) The name and residence of the owner of the carriage.

(3) The description, number and the height of the animals to be employed in drawing such carriage, or the number only, if drawn by camels or bullocks.

(4) The number of persons the carriage is licensed to carry.

(5) The weight of luggage the carriage is licensed to carry.

VI. The following shall ordinarily be the classes of hackney-carriages:

First Class.—Carriages drawn by one horse of the height of 15 hands or over, or two horses of the height of 13 hands or over, regard being had to the condition of the horse or horses and the state of the carriage, which must be such as to entitle it to rank in the first class.

Second Class.—Carriages drawn by one horse of the height of 14 hands or over, or two horses of the height of 12 hands or over, or one camel. Provided, that when any horse or horses are not of the stipulated height, but are nevertheless in the opinion of the registering officer fit to draw the carriage of the class in which registration is applied for, registration may be made in that class.

Third Class.—Ekkas and bullock-carts.

VII. Notice of transfer of ownership of any hackney-carriage is to be made in writing to the registering officer by the transferee within one week from the date of transfer. The registering officer will thereupon make the necessary alterations in the register, license, and card.

VIII. Any person desiring to be licensed as a hackney-carriage driver shall apply in person to the licensing officer, who, after ascertaining that he is not incompetent to drive a hackney-carriage, may grant him a license as a driver. Provided, that the license may be refused whenever the licensing officer is of opinion that it would be inexpedient to grant it to the person applying.

The licensing officer shall keep up a register in which he shall enter the name, father's name, age, and residence of all persons who have been licensed as drivers, and also give to each a number in the register.

The licensing officer shall, at the time of granting the license, deliver to the driver a ticket containing the number, name, &c., of the driver, and the year for which he has been registered.

IX. The following fees shall be payable for licenses granted under these rules:

	Rs.	a.	p.
(1) For a hackney-carriage of the first class	4	0	0	per annum.
(2) For a hackney-carriage of the second class ...	2	0	0	„ „
(3) For a hackney-carriage of the third class	1	0	0	„ „
(4) For the driver of a hackney-carriage	0	8	0

X. It shall be the duty of the licensing officer to satisfy himself from time to time that the animals, harness, and other things used with a licensed carriage are in a serviceable condition and fit for the public use, and also that they are properly kept. A license may at any time be suspended or revoked when this is not the case.

XI. Every hackney-carriage must carry two carriage lamps of the usual pattern, properly fixed with clean glasses, except ekkas and camel and bullock carts, which must carry one good and sufficient light.

XII. The proprietor, or in his absence some responsible person, shall always be on the premises where the hackney-carriages are kept to supply carriages when required. Such officers as may be appointed by the Cantonment Committee may at any time inspect the different carriage yards, premises, and stabling and direct that they be kept properly cleaned and in good order. In default of this the license may be suspended or revoked.

XIII. Licenses issued under these rules shall be in force from the 1st April of the year in which they are granted to the 31st March of the ensuing year.

Licenses granted on any date subsequent to the 1st April shall continue in force to the 31st March following and no longer. Such licenses will be subject to suspension or withdrawal for a breach of any of the rules contained herein by order of a Magistrate in any case which may come before him and under the following circumstances:

(1) Allowing an unlicensed hackney-carriage to ply for hire.

(2) Employing or permitting an unlicensed driver to drive a hackney-carriage.

(3) An owner or driver of a hackney-carriage beating cruelly, ill treating, over driving, torturing, or causing or procuring or permitting any animal drawing the same to be cruelly beaten, ill treated, over driven, or tortured, or carrying a greater number of passengers or a greater weight of luggage than he is licensed to carry.

(4) An owner or driver of a hackney-carriage harnessing or driving, or permitting to be harnessed or driven, any animal which from sickness, age, wounds or other causes is unfit to be harnessed or driven.

(5) Being the owner of a hackney-carriage of the first, second, or third class which has not a legibly inscribed card affixed to a conspicuous part of it as required by these rules.

(6) Being the driver of a hackney-carriage and not carrying with him while on duty his ticket in good and legible condition.

(7) Being the driver of a hackney-carriage who shall be drunk during his employment, or make use of insulting or abusing language or gesture, or who shall wilfully obstruct or hinder the driver of any other carriage in taking up or setting down any person, or who shall wrongfully prevent or endeavour to prevent the driver of another hackney-carriage from being hired, or who being hired by time shall desert from the hiring before he has been discharged by the hirer.

(8) Being the owner or driver of a hackney-carriage who shall demand more than the proper fare to which he is entitled under these rules, or who shall refuse to admit and carry in his carriage the number of persons and amount of luggage for which it is licensed, except on reasonable and sufficient grounds.

(9) Being the owner of a hackney-carriage and omitting to produce the driver employed thereon when ordered by a Magistrate to do so.

XIV. On a hackney-carriage being licensed, the owner shall cause the number of the license and class thereof to be distinctly painted in English and Urdu on the outside of the first and second class carriages, and in Urdu only on third class carriages.

XV. The Cantonment Committee may determine the places where hackney-carriages shall be allowed to wait for hire, and prohibit them from so doing at any other place.

XVII. Fares for distances beyond cantonment limits must be settled by private agreement, as also for carriages of a distinctly superior class kept at hotels and livery stables, for which a special license must be taken out on such terms as the Cantonment Committee may impose. Such carriages may be exempted from all or any of the provisions of these rules at the discretion of the Committee.

A driver of a hackney-carriage is entitled to claim his discharge from any passenger after having been employed by such passenger for a whole day of nine hours, or at any time in case of himself being sick or his horse being lame or sick, provided that in either case he supplies another hackney-carriage to the passenger if required to do so, and another can be found. A driver or owner may refuse to let his carriage under the same circumstances, or when asked to ply beyond cantonment limits, and shall be bound to do so when asked to carry a greater number of passengers or a greater weight of luggage than he is licensed to carry, or any person suffering from a contagious or infectious disease, or a corpse or dead body.

He shall also be responsible that such list is kept in a good and legible condition. Any person wilfully or wantonly destroying or defacing the same shall be held to have committed a breach of these rules

XXI. Every driver of a hackney-carriage, on being licensed, shall be provided with a numbered badge or ticket, and shall produce his license when required by a Magistrate or such other persons as may be duly authorised by the Cantonment Committee in this behalf. Such licenses and badges are not transferable.

XXII. It shall be incumbent on every driver or owner of a hackney-carriage, in which property shall be left, to take the same, unless sooner claimed by the owner, to the nearest police station within twenty-four hours; in default to be punishable under section 7, Act XIV of 1879. The Police Officer with whom any such property shall be deposited shall forward the same to the Cantonment Magistrate or such officer as he may appoint, who shall forthwith enter in a book to be kept for that purpose, the description of such property, and the name and the address of the driver bringing it. STATUTE LAW REVISION (No. 2) ACT, 1890.

An Act for further promoting the Revision of the Statute Law by repealing enactments which have ceased to be in force or have become unnecessary.

[18TH AUGUST, 1890.]

WHEREAS it is expedient that certain enactments which may be regarded as spent, or have ceased to be in force otherwise than by express specific repeal by Parliament, or have, by lapse of time or otherwise, become unnecessary, should be expressly and specifically repealed:

Be it therefore enacted by the Queen's Most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows :

1. The enactments described in the Schedule to this Act are hereby repealed, subject to the provisions of this Act and to the exceptions and qualifications in the schedule mentioned, and every part of a title, preamble, or recital specified after the words "in part, namely", in connexion with an Act mentioned in the said schedule may be omitted from any revised edition of the statutes published by authority after the passing of this Act, and there may be added in the said edition such brief statement of the Acts, officers, persons, and things mentioned in the title, preamble, or recital, as may in consequence of such omission appear necessary.

Enactments in schedule repealed.

Provided that—

The repeal of any words or expressions of enactment described in the schedule shall not affect the binding force, operation, or construction of any statute, or of any part of a statute, whether as respects the past or future ; and where any enactment not comprised in the schedule has been repealed, confirmed, revived, or perpetuated by any enactment hereby repealed, such repeal, confirmation, revivor, or perpetuation shall not be affected by the repeal effected by this Act ; and the repeal by this Act of any enactment or schedule shall not affect any enactment in which such enactment or schedule has been applied, incorporated, or referred to ;

nor shall such repeal of any enactment affect any right to any hereditary revenues of the Crown, or affect any charges thereupon or prevent any such enactment from being put in force for the collection of any such revenues, or otherwise in relation thereto ; and this Act shall not affect the validity, invalidity, effect, or consequences of anything already done or suffered,—or any existing status or capacity,—or any right, title, obligation, or liability already acquired, accrued, or incurred, or any remedy or proceeding in respect thereof,—or any release or discharge of or from any debt, penalty, obligation, liability, claim, or demand,—or any indemnity,—or the proof of any past act or thing ;

nor shall this Act affect any principle or rule of law or equity, or established jurisdiction, course of pleading, practice, or procedure, or the general or public nature of any statute, or any existing usage, franchise, liberty, custom, privilege, restriction, exemption, office, appointment, payment, allowance, emolument, or benefit, or any prospective right, notwithstanding that the same respectively may have been in any manner affirmed, recognised, or derived by, in, or from any enactment hereby repealed ;

nor shall this Act revive or restore any jurisdiction, office, duty, drawback, fee, payment, franchise, liberty, custom, liability, right, title, privilege, restriction, exemption, usage, practice, procedure, form of punishment, or other matter or thing not now existing or in force ;

In this Examination, as in the Open Competition, the merit of the Candidates examined will be estimated by marks (which will be subject to deductions in the same way as the marks assigned at the Open Competition), and the number set opposite to each subject denotes the greatest number of marks that can be obtained in respect of it at any one Examination. The Examination will be conducted on paper and vivâ voce, as may be deemed necessary. This Examination will be held at the close of the year of probation, and will be called the "Final Examination."

11. The selected Candidates who, at the Final Examination, shall be found to have a competent knowledge of the subjects specified in Regulation 9, and who shall have satisfied the Civil Service Commissioners of their eligibility in respect of nationality, age, health, character, and ability to ride, shall be certified by the said Commissioners to be entitled to be appointed to the Civil Service of India, provided they shall comply with the regulations in force, at the time, for that Service.

The Civil Service Commissioners are authorised by the Secretary of State for India in Council to make the following announcements:

(1) Selected Candidates will ordinarily be permitted to choose, according to the order in which they stand in the list resulting from the Open Competition, so long as a choice remains, the Presidency (and in Bengal the Division of the Presidency) to which they shall be appointed; but this choice will be subject to any other arrangement which the Secretary of State, or the Government of India, may deem necessary (h).

(2) Selected Candidates will be required to report their arrival in India within such period after the grant of their Certificate of Qualification as the Secretary of State may in each case direct.

(3) The seniority in the Civil Service of India of the Selected Candidates will be determined according to the order in which they stand on the list resulting from the combined marks of the Open Competitive and Final Examinations. Candidates selected under these Regulations in 1892 will, in view of the alteration in the limits of age, have seniority over the Candidates selected under the previous Regulations in 1891.

* These subjects may not be offered by any Candidate who has offered them at the previous Examination.

(g) These forms should be accompanied by evidence on the points mentioned in Regulation 2, and by a list of the subjects in which the Candidate desires to be examined. Evidence of health and character must bear date not earlier than 1st May 1892. Applications for leave to alter or add to the list of subjects named will not be entertained, unless received on or before the 5th July.

(h) This choice must be exercised immediately after the result of the Open Competition is announced on such day as may be fixed by the Civil Service Commissioners.

(4) An allowance amounting to £100 will be given to all Candidates who pass their probation at one of the Universities or Colleges which have been approved by the Secretary of State, viz., the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, Glasgow, Edinburgh, St. Andrew's, and Aberdeen; University College, London; and King's College, London; provided such Candidates shall have passed the Final Examination to the satisfaction of the Civil Service Commissioners, and shall have complied with such rules as may be laid down for the guidance of Selected Candidates.

Candidates are not permitted to migrate from the University originally chosen by them to another University without first applying to the India Office for the permission and receiving the sanction of the Secretary of State, who will not entertain such applications unless good and sufficient reasons are assigned.

(5) The allowance of £100 will not be paid to any Selected Candidate until he has been certified by the Civil Service Commissioners to be entitled to be appointed to the Civil Service of India; and every Certificated Candidate must, before receiving his allowance, attend at the India Office and enter into an agreement binding himself, amongst other things, to refund in certain cases the amount of his allowance in the event of his failing to proceed to India. A surety will be required.

(6) All Candidates obtaining Certificates will be also required to enter into covenants, by which, amongst other things, they will bind themselves to agree to such Regulations for the provision of pensions for their families as may be approved by the Secretary of State for India in Council. The stamps payable on these covenants amount to £1.

(7) Candidates rejected at the Final Examination of 1893 will in no case be allowed to present themselves for re-examination.

EXAMINATIONS FOR THE CIVIL SERVICE OF INDIA.

SYLLABUS

Showing the extent of the Examination in certain subjects at the Open Competition for admission into the Indian Civil Service in 1892.

The Regulations governing the Open Competition for admission into the Indian Civil Service have been framed with a view to the principle regarded by Lord Macaulay's Committee, in 1854, as essential, viz., that the object of the Competition should be to secure for the Indian Civil Service officers who "have received the best, the most liberal, the most finished education that their native country affords." The scheme of examination has accordingly been made to embrace most of the subjects of the Honour Schools in the Universities of Great Britain and Ireland. In administering the scheme, the Civil Service Commissioners, concurring with Lord Macaulay's Committee in the opinion, "that no Candidate who may fail should, to whatever calling he may betake himself, have any reason to regret the time and labour which he has spent in preparing himself to be examined," desire to avoid all disturbance of the general course of University studies, and to render it possible, with due regard for the principle of Open Competition, for those who have graduated with honours at the Universities to attend the Examination for the Indian Civil Service with good prospects of success. The appended Syllabus shows in outline the intentions of the Commissioners with regard to the extent and character of the examination in those subjects which seem to require further definition. The scope of the examination in the subjects not mentioned in the Syllabus is sufficiently defined in the scheme published in the Regulations themselves. The Examiners will be instructed to keep the Standard in each subject up to the level of the highest course of study pursued in the Universities.

English Composition.—An Essay to be written on one of several subjects specified by the Civil Service Commissioners on their Examination Paper.

English Language and Literature.—The Examination will be in two parts. In the one the Candidates will be expected to show a general acquaintance with the course of English Literature, as represented (mainly) by the following writers in verse and prose, between the reign of Edward III and the accession of Queen Victoria:

Verse—Chaucer, Langland, Spenser, Shakespeare, Milton, Dryden, Pope, Gray, Collins, Johnson, Goldsmith, Crabbe, Cowper, Campbell, Wordsworth, Scott, Byron, Coleridge, Shelley, Keats.

Prose—Bacon, Sir Thomas Browne, Milton, Swift, Defoe, Addison, Johnson, Burke, Scott, Southey.

A minute knowledge of the works of these authors will not be looked for in this part of the Examination, which will, however, test how far the Candidates have studied the chief productions of the greatest English writers in themselves, and are acquainted with the leading characteristics of their thought and style, and with the place which each of them occupies in the history of English literature. Candidates will also be expected to show that they have studied in these authors the history of the English language in respect of its vocabulary, syntax, and prosody.

The other part of the Examination will relate to one of the periods named below, which will follow each other year by year in the order indicated:

1.	1340——1600
(1892)	[Chaucer to Spenser]
2.	1600——1700
(1893)	[Shakespeare to Dryden
3.	1700——1800
(1894)	[Pope to Cowper]
4.	1800——1832
(1895)	[Nineteenth Century writers to the death of Scott]

The Examination in this part will require from Candidates a more minute acquaintance with the history of the English language and literature, as illustrated in the chief works produced in each period, and will be based to a considerable extent, but by no means exclusively, on certain books specified each year by the Commissioners.* The names placed under the dates are intended to suggest the general character of the literary development of the period, and, consequently, the natural limits of the Examination. All the works of Shakespeare, for example, will be regarded as falling within the second period; all the works of Swift within the third; all the works of Scott and Wordsworth within the last.

French Language and Literature.—Passages for translation from French into English, and from English into French; Critical questions on the French Language and Literature.

* The books for 1892 are—

Chaucer: Prologue to the Canterbury Tales; The Flower and the Leaf; The Assembly of Foules; Minor Poems.

Langland: Vision of Piers Plowman.

German Language and Literature.—As in French.

Latin Language and Literature.—Passages for translation from Latin into English; Composition in Prose and Verse (in the place of the latter may be taken, by those who prefer it, a paper of critical questions on the style of the Latin orators and poets, based on Cicero, De Oratore, and Quintilian, Institutiones Oratoriæ, Lib. x.); Critical Questions on the Latin Language and Literature.

Greek Language and Literature.—Translations from Greek into English. Composition in Prose and Verse (in the place of the latter may be taken by those who prefer it, a paper of critical questions on the style of the Greek orators and poets, based on Aristotle's Rhetoric (Book iii) and Poetics). Critical Questions on the Greek Language and Literature.

Sanskrit Language and Literature.—Passages for translation into English from Sanskrit, and from Sanskrit into English. History of Sanskrit Literature (including knowledge of such Indian history as bears upon the subject); Sanskrit Grammar; Vedic Philology.

Arabic Language and Literature.—Translations as in Sanskrit; History of Arabic Literature; Arabic Grammar; Arabic Prosody.

2. From the Third Crusade—The Diet of Worms.
   1193——1521.
3. From the Diet of Worms—The end of the reign of Louis XIV.
   1521——1715.

Periods 3 and 4 will include Indian History.

Greek History.—Questions on the General History of Greece to the death of Alexander; questions on the Constitutional History of Greece during the same period.

No. 2177.—With reference to Rules 3 and 7 of the Rules published in Home Department notification No. 1817, dated 3rd July 1888, and to Rules 3 and 7 published in the notification of the Government of Bengal dated 29th April 1889, it is hereby notified that the examination prescribed for filling up vacancies in the Clerical Establishments of the Secretariat Offices of the Government of India and attached Offices, and of the Offices subordinate to the Government of Bengal, will be held at Calcutta, in the Senate House of the Calcutta University, and at Allahabad and Lahore, at the places to be appointed by the Governments of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh and the Punjab, respectively, in January 1891; the exact dates will be notified hereafter. The hours of examination will be from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 1-30 p.m. to 4-30 p.m. daily.

The probable number of vacancies in the Secretariat Clerical Service of the Government of India and attached Offices to be competed for is one in the Upper Division and eighteen in the Lower Division. Of the latter, nine will be reserved for candidates who may succeed in passing at the examination to be held at Calcutta, and nine for those who pass at the examination to be held at Allahabad and Lahore, provided that a sufficient number of candidates, duly qualified, present themselves at those centres.

The probable number of vacancies in the Offices subordinate to the Government of Bengal will be four in the Upper Division and twenty in the Lower Division. These will be reserved for candidates examined at Calcutta.

Candidates should pay the prescribed fee (Rs. 20 for the Upper Division and Rs. 10 for the Lower Division) into the nearest Treasury, and forward the Treasury Receipt to the Secretary to the Board of Examiners, Calcutta. Candidates paying their fees in Calcutta should pay them into the Bank of Bengal.

Application for permission to appear at the examination, whether for appointments under the Government of India or for those under the Government of Bengal, should be made to the Secretary to the Board of Examiners, Calcutta, between the 1st and the 15th days of December (inclusive).

The attention of intending candidates is called to Rule 6 of the Home Department notification of the 3rd July 1888, and to Rule 6 of the notification of the Government of Bengal of the 29th April 1889, prescribing the particulars* and documents which should accompany the application for permission to appear at the examination.

The Registrar General of Births, Deaths and Marriages for the Bombay Presidency.

The Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, Bombay.

The Registrar of the Bombay Diocese.

The 24th October, 1890.

No. 1569.—In exercise of the powers conferred by section 13 of the Charitable Endowments Act, VI of 1890, the Governor General in Council has been pleased to frame the following forms and make the following rules:

Note.—In these Rules "the Government" means the Local Government or, when the Governor General in Council exercises under section 7 of the Act the powers conferred by sections 4 and 5 on the Local Government, the Government of India.

Cases in which there should ordinarily be previous publication of vesting orders and of schemes.

1. It being the wish of the Governor General in Council that the Government should not interfere under the Charitable Endowments Act, 1890 (hereinafter referred to as the Act), in cases of doubt or dispute and that the jurisdiction of the Courts in such cases should in practice be left unaffected by the Act, the cases with which the Government will have to deal may be divided into two classes, namely, (1) cases of trusts, whether already established or proposed to be established, out of which it may be confidently predicated that contention cannot arise, and (2) cases out of which contention may possibly arise, however remote or unlikely the contingency. To the first class will belong such cases as those of Lawrence Asylums, Railway Schools, and endowments in Government securities in general aid of the funds of specified dispensaries or schools. To the second class will belong most cases in which private persons apply for a vesting order or a scheme or modification of a scheme and all cases in which it is proposed to depart in any respect from the ascertained wishes or presumable intentions of the founder of an endowment. In cases belonging to the first class previous publication of proposed vesting orders and of proposed schemes and modifications of schemes will ordinarily be unnecessary: in cases belonging to the second class there should ordinarily be previous publication of such documents.

Mode of previous publication of vesting orders and of schemes.

2. (1) When the Government, having regard to the last foregoing rule, is of opinion that a proposed vesting order or a proposed scheme or modification of a scheme, should not be made or settled without previous publication, it shall publish a draft of the proposed order, scheme or modification, or a proper abstract thereof, signed by one of its Secretaries, for the information of persons likely to be affected thereby.

(2) The publication should be made in the official Gazette and in such other manner as the Government may prescribe.

(3) There shall be published, with the draft or abstract, a notice specifying a date at or after which the proposed order, scheme, or modification will be taken into further consideration.

(4) The Government shall consider any objection or suggestion which it may receive from any person before such date with respect to the proposed order, scheme or modification.

Incidence of cost of vesting orders and of schemes.

3. The cost of the previous publication under the last foregoing rule of any proposed order, scheme, or modification of a scheme, and any other costs incurred or to be incurred in the making or settlement of the order or of the scheme or modification, shall be paid by the applicants for the order, scheme, or modification, and if the Government so direct, may be paid by them out of any money in their possession pertaining to the trust to which their application relates.

Accounts of trusts consisting of immoveable property.

4. In the case of property vested in a Treasurer of Charitable Endowments other than securities for money, the persons acting in the administration of the trust, and having under section 8, sub-section (3), of the Act the possession, management, and control of the property and the application of the income thereof, shall, in books to be kept by them, regularly enter or cause to be entered full and true accounts of all moneys received and paid respectively on account of the trust, and shall, on the demand of the Government, submit annually to such public servant as the Government may from time to time appoint in this behalf, in such form and at such time as the Government may from time to time prescribe, an abstract of those accounts and such returns as to other matters relating to the administration of the trust as the Government may from time to time see fit to require.

5. The following are prescribed as the fees to be paid to the Government in respect of any property vested under the Act in a Treasurer of Charitable Endowments:

(1) In the case of securities for money—

(a) For the purchase and sale of securities, a commission of $\frac{1}{8}$ per cent., in addition to any actual outlay on brokerage.

(b) For drawing interest, a commission of $\frac{1}{4}$ per cent.

(c) For remitting interest, the actual charges incurred.

(2) In the case of property other than securities for money, the actual charges incurred by the Treasurer in the discharge of his functions in respect of the property.

The Treasurer may deduct any fees payable to the Government on account of any endowment from any money in his hands on account of such endowment. If he holds on such monies the amount should be claimed from the administrators.

6. All copies of vesting orders received by the Treasurer will be filed together and will be numbered in consecutive order of their receipt; when a sufficient number have been received, they will be bound in volumes. A note will be made on each vesting order of any entries in the registers prescribed below relating to the property vesting in the Treasurer under the order.

Accounts of securities for money.

7. On the receipt of any securities for money, or on their purchase by himself, the Treasurer will record their receipt in a register in Form No. 1. He will also keep a separate account for each endowment in Form No. 2, in which he will record all receipts including any amounts sent for investment, and all disbursements. In the cash account the Treasurer will record only his own transactions (such as the payment of the money to the administrators), not the transactions of the administrators of the endowment fund.

8. The Treasurer will keep a record in the appropriate columns of Form No. 1 of all securities returned by him. The return will also be entered in Form No. 2, where the amount returned will be deducted from the capital of the endowment concerned.

9. If the securities elsewhere than in Madras and Bombay consist of Government promissory notes, they will be forwarded to the Comptroller General for custody under the general rules laid down in the Civil Account Code; but the securities held under the Act must be forwarded separately, and the Treasurer will keep a separate register under those rules for these securities, and will also keep a separate file of the acknowledgments.

The Treasurer will retain in his own custody all securities for money other than Government promissory notes.

10. The Treasurer, on receipt of any interest on securities, will pass it through his General Trust Interest Account under a special sub-head, "Interest on Charitable Endowments under Act VI of 1890." The interest will then be distributed to the various ledger accounts (Form 2), in which the gross amounts must be shown, any deductions for fees, &c., being shown as a charge, and the payment of the balance to the administrators being also shown as a disbursement. The entries in the ledger of interest received must be taken out and agreed annually with the total amount of interest drawn.

11. The register in Form No. 1 will show all securities vested in the Treasurer as such, whether actually held by him or by the Comptroller General as his agent. In order to prove the balance actually held by the Treasurer in his own hands, a balance sheet in Form No. 3 will be made out annually and agreed with the actual securities in the Treasurer's possession; such agreement will be certified on the balance sheet.

12. The accounts of the interest and the annual agreement of balance will be made at the time which the Local Government may direct under section 9 of the Act for the publication of the list of properties held, and of the abstract of accounts.

Property other than securities.

13. The Treasurer will enter in a register in Form No. 4 any property other than securities which becomes vested in him, and will record in the same register against the original entry a note of any property of which he is divested.

Publication of lists and abstract of accounts.

14. The list of properties vested in the Treasurer to be published annually shall be in Form No. 5. Part I will relate to properties other than securities; Part II will relate to securities, and will also contain the abstract of accounts required by the Act to be published. The Treasurer will demand and receive acknowledgments from the administrators of the correctness of the balances when published.

Audit of accounts.

15. The Treasurer's accounts will be audited—

(a) where there is an Outside Audit Section of the Accountant General's Office,—by such section annually;

(b) where there is no such section,—by a Deputy Auditor General at such periods as the Auditor General may direct.

SAVINGS BANKS.

No. 5109.

Simla, the 25th October, 1890.

ORDER—By the Government of India, Finance and Commerce Department.

Read—

Report by the Comptroller and Auditor General on the operations of Savings Banks in India for the year 1889-90, and annexed Statements.

ORDERED, that the Report and Statements be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

E. J. SINKINSON,
Secretary to the Government of India.

No. 113, dated Calcutta, 16th October 1890.

From—STEPHEN JACOB, Esq., Officiating Comptroller and Auditor General,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Finance and Commerce Department.

I have the honour to submit my report on the operations of the Savings Banks in India for the year 1889-90. Of these Banks, some are open to the public like the Presidency and Post Office Banks, but others have been established for the benefit of Government employés, such as Railway non-pensionable servants, Civil Engineers, and Non-Commissioned Officers and Privates of British Regiments.

2. I append the usual statements, marked I to VII, containing the accounts and statistics for the year, the principal features of which are summarised in the tables given in paragraphs 4 and 5, from which the following facts are gathered. On the 31st March 1890 there were 6,546 Government Savings Banks in India, comprising 431,840 accounts, which received from Government ₹27,19,057 in the shape of interest and possessed balances aggregating ₹7,54,17,218. In addition to these balances, Government held on behalf of the depositors Government securities amounting to ₹5,23,700, excluding Government Promissory Notes for ₹5,79,500, which were made over to the depositors or sold for them during the year. There has been an increase this year of 309 in the number of Banks and 48,569 in the number of depositors, and a decrease of ₹8,41,749 in the balance as compared with 1888-89.

3. The receipts and withdrawals of the year under review fell short of last year by ₹1,25,49,170 and ₹22,71,110 respectively (see Statement II), but the interest charge was in excess by ₹1,04,227 (see Statement IV). As anticipated in last year's report, the reduction of the limits of annual and total deposits from 1st April 1889 has operated to check the growth of the deposits, the receipts as stated above having fallen short of last year's by over a crore and a quarter. The reduction also appears to have made the depositors more sparing in withdrawing their deposits.

4. The transactions of the several classes of Banks are shown in the following table:

Description of Banks.	Number of Banks.	Number of Depositors.	Interest earned.	Bank balances.	Nominal value of Government Promissory Notes.

5. The subjoined statement compares the figures for the year under report with those of last year for each class of Bank. The Presidency Banks, Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay, show a decrease in the number of accounts and balances owing to the transfer of accounts to the Post Office Banks. The number of depositors in the latter is steadily on the increase and has exceeded last year's number by 47,271. The increase in the Railway and Civil Engineers' Provident Institutions is due to their peculiar nature, the depositors not being at liberty either to transfer their accounts to other classes of banks or to withdraw money from their accounts except under special circumstances. According to Statement IV, there has been a decline in the Bengal Military Banks, while those in Madras and Bombay have increased their deposits.

Increase or decrease in 1889-90, as compared with 1888-89.

6. The investments by depositors in Government Promissory Notes continue to rise as indicated in Statement VI, though the increase is not as large as might have been expected from the reduction of the limits of ordinary deposits. Of the items shown in the columns headed "Notes sold and returned," the great bulk are returned; the sales on behalf of Post Office Depositors for the last three years have amounted to only R21,400, R29,800, and R18,500 respectively, so that it seems a reasonable conclusion that the bulk of the investments are still held by the depositors.

7. Statement VII gives particulars by Provinces of the classification of the depositors and their balances for Presidency and Post Office Savings Banks combined. It is noticeable that while the amount of deposit per head in the Bombay Presidency is R246, it is no more than R137 in Bengal. The percentage of depositors on population is also much larger in the former than in the latter.

8. My ledgers relating to the Railway and Civil Engineers' Provident Institutions have been agreed with the accounts kept by the Accountant General, Public Works Department, and the Examiners of Accounts of the several State Railways and Military Works, but the Finance and Revenue Accounts are not finally closed, and the figures supplied by those officers are subject to revision.

INDIAN RAILWAYS.

General Rules for working Railways under construction and not open for traffic.

[As framed at the Railway Conference of 1888.]

The rules comprised in this Code shall be held applicable to, and are to be observed on, all lines of railway in India under construction and not open for traffic on which locomotives have been authorized to run.

Each Railway Administration may hereafter make such subsidiary rules as may be found necessary or expedient, provided that no such subsidiary rule shall be inconsistent with these general rules.

Every railway servant is bound to obey both the general and the subsidiary rules.

SECTION I.

INTERPRETATION CLAUSES AND DEFINITIONS.

Catchwords.

1. The catchwords in the margin of this Code have been added merely for the purpose of facilitating reference; they are not to be held either as an integral part of the Code, or in any way giving an interpretation to the clauses to which they are annexed.

Definitions.

2. In the rules comprised in this Code, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—

Station limits.

"Station limits" include all lines and premises within the distant signal or signals, if such be provided;

Where no distant signal is provided, the "Station limits" extend to the outside points;

Where there are no points and no distant signal, the "Station limits" extend to the ends of the platform, or other positions fixed in each case;

System of working

3. Every line or section of a line of railway upon which engine power is used must be worked on one of the following systems to be determined by the authorized officer, viz.:—

"Line clear and caution message,"
"Absolute block,"
"Train Staff and Ticket,"
"Pilot Guard,"
"One Engine only,"

in accordance with the rules laid down in Sections XI to XV for the system adopted, subject to the proviso that in exceptional circumstances ordinary working may, under the orders of an authorized officer, be temporarily suspended on any section or sections, and the trains thereon be worked under such special regulations for their safe conduct as the officer suspending the ordinary working may direct.

The working of trains on any of the above-named systems does not in any way dispense with the use of station, distant, or other signals, wherever such signals are provided and worked.

When line is blocked.

4. On the double line should an accident block one of the lines of railway, so as to necessitate the passing of all up and down trains on a single line, immediate steps must be taken to establish single line working on the rules adopted by each railway for working in such cases.

Time.

5. Madras time shall be observed.

Dangerous articles.

6. All due precautions must be observed in the conveyance of explosives and combustibles.

RULES GENERALLY APPLICABLE TO RAILWAY SERVANTS.

Smoking on railway premises.

7. Any person found smoking, or having an open light or fire, in goods sheds or store yards, and who persists in smoking, after being warned by a railway servant or police officer to desist, on any other portion of the railway premises, where such practice may be deemed dangerous by the authorized officer, shall be liable to immediate removal from the railway premises, and to a fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

Disorderly persons.

8. In the event of any person being drunk and disorderly, or causing annoyance to others, the Station Master or other railway servant is to use all reasonable means to stop the annoyance, and, if the offender persists, is to have him removed from the railway premises, and the offender is liable to prosecution under the Railway Act.

9. No trespassing upon the railway shall be allowed, and no person, other than a railway servant, shall be permitted to walk on the line, unless provided with a license to do so signed by an authorized officer of the railway. If the trespasser, on being requested to quit, persists in remaining, he may be immediately removed from the railway by any railway servant or by any other person, and is liable to prosecution under the Railway Act.

SECTION III.

RULES GENERALLY APPLICABLE TO RAILWAY SERVANTS.

Obedience to instructions.

10. Each person in railway service must devote himself exclusively to the service of the railway on which he is employed, residing at whatever place may be appointed, attending at such hours as may be required, paying prompt obedience to all persons placed in authority over him, and conforming to all the rules and regulations of the railway.

Leaving service.

11. Any railway servant who shall quit the service without having given one month's previous notice in writing, or the notice required by his agreement of service, shall forfeit all claim for pay due, and shall also be subject on conviction to the penalty prescribed in rule 25.

Surrender of railway property on leaving.

12. When any one leaves the service, he must deliver up all railway property in his charge; and no money due for wages will be paid until all articles which have been supplied to him shall have been delivered up in accordance with existing regulations. If not delivered up, or if any article be missing or be damaged from neglect or by improper use, the cost of such article, or of the repair of such damage, shall be deducted from any pay due to him or from any moneys held for him by the railway authorities; and if such moneys should be insufficient to meet the claim, the balance will become a debt recoverable at law.

Misconduct, &c.

13. All railway servants are subject to immediate dismissal, or suspension without pay, for refusal of duty, disobedience of orders, negligence, misconduct, absence without leave, or for any neglect of these regulations, and may be held liable for all damages occasioned by misconduct or negligence; and are also subject on conviction to the penalty prescribed in rule 25.

Gratuities.

16. No money or gratuity, in the shape of fee or reward, is allowed to be taken by any railway servant, even although the regular hours of duty shall have expired, without the permission of the Railway Administration. Any infringement of this rule renders the offender liable to immediate dismissal, and on conviction to imprisonment, or to fine, or to both, under the Indian Penal Code.

Spirituous liquors.

17. Drivers, Guards, and others directly connected with the working of trains shall not, when on duty, be supplied with spirituous liquors at refreshment-rooms, except under rules framed by an authorized officer.

Intoxication.

18. Intoxication on duty renders the offender liable to dismissal, and also to criminal prosecution under the Railway Act.

Supply of books of rules.

19. A copy of these rules and regulations, or of such portion of them as may relate to his duties, in a language which he understands, shall be supplied to each railway servant who is in any way connected with the outdoor working of the railway or with the working of trains, and he shall be bound to make himself acquainted with them.

20. Every servant is required to assist in carrying out the rules and regulations, and must immediately report to his superior any infringement thereof, or any occurrence affecting the safe and proper working of the railway which may come under his notice.

Public safety.

21. The safety of the public must under all circumstances be the chief care of railway servants.

Accident.

22. In the case of accident or obstruction, the safety of life and limb must be deemed of the first importance. The most prompt mode of communicating the circumstances to the station on each side and to head-quarters must be adopted, and all possible assistance may be demanded from, and must be promptly rendered by, any railway servant whose services may be needed.

Accidents to be reported.

23. On the occurrence of any serious railway accident, it shall be the duty of the nearest Station Master, or, where there is no Station Master, the officer in charge of the section of the railway on which the accident occurs, without unnecessary delay to give notice in writing or by telegraph of such accident to the nearest magistrate and to the officer in charge of the police station in the jurisdiction of which the accident occurs, or to such other magistrate or police officer as the Local Government from time to time appoints in this behalf.

Special trains without notice.

24. The staff along the line must always be prepared for trains without previous notice.

Breach of rules.

25. Any person committing a breach of rules 11, 13 and 14 shall be liable to a fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

SECTION IV.

SIGNALS.

Colours.

26. RED is a signal of "DANGER"—Stop.

GREEN is a signal of "CAUTION"—Go slowly.

WHITE is a signal of "ALL RIGHT"—Go on.

Hand Signals.

Hand signals.

27. The hand signals shall be made by flags in the day and by lights at night, or in foggy weather or in tunnels.

28. When the line is clear, the Signalman must either stand erect with his flag in his hand, thus—or display a white flag or white light.

ALL CLEAR.

29. If it be necessary to proceed with "Caution," the green flag will be elevated thus—or the green light shown.

CAUTION.

30. If it be necessary to proceed with "Caution" from any defect in the road or rails, the green flag will be depressed thus—or the green light shown, which will indicate that the speed must not exceed 15 miles an hour, or such lower speed as may be ordered over the portion of line protected by such signal.

CAUTION (RAILS).

SIGNALS.

31. If it be necessary to stop, the red flag will be shown and waved to and fro, the Signalman facing the engine thus—or the red light shown.

32. In the absence of flags, both arms raised above the head denotes "Danger," thus—

DANGER.

One arm raised with the hand above the head denotes "Caution," thus—

CAUTION.

One arm held in a horizontal position across the line of rails denotes "All Right," thus—

ALL RIGHT.

33. In the absence of a green light, a white light waved slowly from side to side denotes "Caution"—Go slowly.

Caution with white light.

34. In the absence of a red light, any light moved up and down or waved violently denotes "Danger"—Stop.

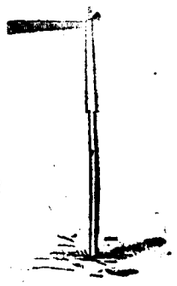
Danger signal with any light.

Fixed Signals when provided and worked.

35. The fixed signals are for the most part constructed with one or more semaphore arms for day signals, and with one or more lamps for night; but disc and other signals are in some cases used.

Fixed signals.

Fixed signals when erected, but not in use, are to be kept permanently lowered to "Caution" or "All right," as their construction admits.



Fixed signals erected, but not in use.

SIGNALS.

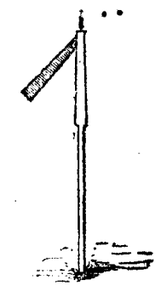
The day signal is invariably made by the arm on the left hand side of the post as seen by the Driver of an approaching engine.



36. The "Danger Signal" is shown in the day time by the arm on the left hand side of the post being raised to the horizontal position, thus—and by the exhibition of a red light by night.

37. The "Caution Signal" is shown in the day time by the arm on the left hand side of the post being placed half way to the horizontal position, thus—and by the exhibition of a green light by night.

38. The "All Right Signal" is shown in the day time by the arm on the left hand side being lowered to the post, thus—and by the exhibition of a white light by night.

Station Signals when provided and worked.

Station signals.

39. Station signals, also called "Main" or "Home" or "Platform" signals, are placed at stations, junctions, sidings outside station limits, and signal boxes, and when in use must invariably stand at "Danger," except when lowered for an approaching train: when at "Danger," no train or engine must pass them or foul the crossings or points to which they apply, unless the Driver is signalled past by hand by a person duly appointed by an authorized officer.

Distant Signals when provided and worked.

Distant signals.

40. Distant signals are fixed at a considerable distance from the station, and are constructed to exhibit the "Danger" and "All Right" signals only, or "Danger" and "Caution" signals only.

Distant signals to fly to danger.

41. Fixed distant signals must be constructed to exhibit danger in case of any failure of their connections.

Use of distant signals.

42. Distant signals must be replaced at "Danger" immediately they are passed by an engine.

SIGNALS.

Observance and working of signals.

Observance of distant signals.

43. When a distant signal is at "Danger," the Driver of an approaching train must bring his train to a dead stop outside of it, and must then ascertain if the line is clear to admit the train within it. If the line be clear, he must at once draw the train cautiously within the distant signal so as to be protected by it, and then stop until signalled into the station in accordance with rules prescribed by the authorized officer. If, however, there is any obstruction on the line so near to the distant signal as to prevent the whole of the train from passing safely within it, the rules for the protection of trains when stopped outside station limits must be immediately carried out (see Rule 63).

Signals apply to proper direction.

44. Station and distant signals apply only to trains or engines running in the proper direction, and must not be used for any other purpose. Trains or engines shunting from one main line to another, or shunting into or out of sidings connected with the main line, must, unless special signals are provided for the purpose of signalling such operations, be signalled past the station signal either verbally or by hand-lamp or flag as occasion may require, it being necessary in such cases that the "Danger" signal should be exhibited at the station signal as well as at the distant signal for the protection of the train or engine so employed.

Signal lights.

45. Whenever any train or engine is timed to run, or from any cause is expected to run on any portion of the line later than sunset and before sunrise, the signal lamps must be lighted and put out at such hour as may be directed by the authorized officer. During twilight in the mornings and evenings both day and night signals must be used.

In foggy or stormy weather, when the day signals cannot be seen plainly, the signal lamps must be lighted and kept burning, and at such times both the day and night signals must be used.

Defective signals.

46. Every Station Master or other person must, in the event of any signal under his charge becoming defective, immediately report the case to his immediate superior and to the nearest Permanent-Way Inspector, and the Station Master shall place a competent man or men with the necessary hand signals and detonators to signal in lieu of such defective signal until it is again in proper working order.

When the Station Master cannot provide proper men from his own staff, he must apply to the nearest Permanent-Way Inspector for competent men.

Defective signals to be reported.

47. Drivers, Guards, and others must invariably report to the nearest Station Master or the official designated by the authorized officer any defective signals, or obstruction of them, or neglect in working them.

Absence of signals.

48. Except at places specially exempted upon each railway, the absence of a signal at a place where a signal is ordinarily shown, or a signal imperfectly exhibited, must be considered a "Danger" signal, and treated accordingly.

TRAINS AND VEHICLES.

Detonating Signals.

Use of detonators.

49. In thick, foggy, or tempestuous weather detonators must be used in addition to the regular day and night signals. When an engine passes over a detonator, the Driver must stop as quickly as possible, and then proceed cautiously to the place of obstruction, or until he receives an "All Right" signal.

Detonators.

50. In foggy or tempestuous weather two detonators, 10 yards apart, must be placed on the rail by the signalman or other trained servant selected by the Station Master at least one hundred (100) yards outside the distant signal-post, or, in the absence of a distant signal, at least seven hundred (700) yards from the outside points. Drivers and Guards must report all cases or omission to do this.

Train Signals.

Engine and train lights.

51. On both double and single line, between sunset and sunrise and during foggy weather, every train must exhibit a red tail light and two red side lights in rear of the train, and every engine running alone must exhibit at least one red tail light. In both cases head lights prescribed by the authorized officer must be exhibited.

In the case of two or more engines running coupled together without a train, the first engine only must exhibit the prescribed head lights, and the last engine only must exhibit at least one red tail light.

Lights on shunting engines.

Shunting engines employed in station yards and sidings must after sunset and in foggy weather carry the head and tail lights prescribed by the authorized officer.

SECTION V.

TRAINS AND VEHICLES.

Brake power, &c.

52. Except in the case of an engine running without vehicles, no train shall be despatched from any station without an adequate provision of brake power, either by engine brake, brake-van, or other braked vehicle, sufficiently manned, and all necessary day and night signals.

Brake on trains.

53. A braked vehicle, manned, must be placed at the rear of every train, unless special instructions are given to the contrary.

Unfit vehicles.

54. Trains must be examined daily before starting by a Carriage Examiner, or in his absence by the Driver. No vehicle which is pronounced unfit shall be run on a train; and no vehicle which has been off the road shall be allowed to run on the line between stations until it has been examined and passed by a competent Examiner, or in his absence by the Driver.

Load of vehicles.

55. No vehicle shall be loaded beyond its marked carrying capacity.

Loading vehicles.

56. Carriages, machinery, timber, and other large articles in open trucks must be loaded within the authorized loading dimensions, except under special instructions and precautions.

Dummy wagon.

57. When the jib of a crane or a load projects beyond its truck, whether standing in a yard or on a running train, it must be protected by a dummy, which dummy may be loaded.

Travelling cranes.

58. Before attaching any travelling crane, the Guard must see that the jib is properly lowered and secured. It must, when practicable, be so placed that the jib will point towards the rear of the train.

Protection of lines obstructed.

59. Before the commencement of any loading or other operation by which any line of rails may be fouled or obstructed, the person in charge of such operation must see that all necessary steps are taken for the protection of the line during such obstruction.

Persons responsible for shunting.

60. Drivers and Guards, or other persons in charge of such operations, must see that the shunting of trains is performed only at such times and in such manner as will not incur danger.

Shunting on inclines.

61. When vehicles are shunted at places situated on steep gradients, proper precautions must be taken to prevent any vehicle from running down the incline; a sufficient number of brakes must be put on, and sprags or hand-scotches used, when necessary, to prevent the possibility of any vehicle running away. At such places a supply of scotches must be kept for the purpose.

Detaching engines on inclines.

62. When from any cause a train has been brought to a stand on the line, where the line is not level, and it is necessary for the engine to be detached from the train, the Guard must, before the engine is uncoupled, satisfy himself that the van-brakes have been put on securely, and, as an additional precaution, must pin down a sufficient number of other brakes, or carry out such other instructions as may be prescribed.

Where line is level.

Where the line is level, the van-brakes must be put on securely.

Trains stopping between stations.

63. Trains, the working of which requires that they must stop outside station limits, when not working on a blocked section (either as contemplated under absolute block rules, or temporarily under orders from the authorized officer, or by means of a written and signed understanding between Station Masters and Guards), and trains or parts of trains which have broken down or become detached between stations, must be secured and protected by the Guard, hand signals or detonators being placed half a mile on both sides, or in the direction from which a train can arrive.

Driver not aware of accident.

64. Should an accident to a train cause an obstruction, and the Driver run forward without being aware of it, the Guard must take steps in accordance with rule 63 to protect either or both lines as may be necessary.

Train parting.

65. Should any part of a train become detached when in motion, care must be taken not to stop the front part before the rear portion has been stopped, and the rear Guard must promptly apply his brake to prevent a collision with the front portion.

To report accident.

66. In the case of accident or obstruction to trains, the Guard must take steps to report in the quickest possible manner to the nearest Station Master; and if the telegraph be injured, or if there be no telegraph, the report must be sent to the stations on both sides.

Securing wagons in sidings.

67. The person placing vehicles on any line or siding either within or without station limits, or moving vehicles which may have been placed there, shall be responsible for leaving them properly secured. No vehicle shall be left in any siding outside station limits without the wheels being secured clear of all running lines.

Securing point

68. When no other arrangements are made for working safety or other points and catch sidings, the person last using them shall be responsible that they are properly set and secured for the protection of the line.

SECTION VI.

STATION MASTERS.

Arrival and departure of trains.

69. It is the special duty of every Station Master, or such person as may be appointed for the purpose, to attend to the arrival and departure of trains. He is also responsible for the general working of the station being carried out in strict accordance with all rules, regulations, and orders.

Misconduct to be reported.

70. The Station Master must report without delay to his superior officer neglect of duty or other misconduct on the part of any of the railway servants within station limits.

Securing stock in sidings.

71. The Station Master is responsible that vehicles standing at the station or sidings are properly secured in accordance with rules prescribed by the authorized officer.

Safety and facing points.

72. The Station Master is responsible that all safety points and catch sidings, when it is not necessary that they should be opened, are closed against the line which they are intended to protect, and that facing points are securely fastened or held for the passage of trains or vehicles.

Vehicles escaping.

73. Should any vehicle or portion of a train escape from a station, immediate steps must be taken to warn the other station concerned, and prevent accident as far as practicable.

Points and signals.

74. The Station Master must report all defects in points, gates, and signals to the nearest Permanent-way Inspector.

Accident.

75. In case of obstruction or accident, the Station Master must obtain all necessary assistance as soon as possible, and report the occurrence by telegraph, or by the most expeditious means, to the next station on the other side of the accident, so that notice may be given to the Drivers and Guards of approaching trains.

SECTION VII.

POINTSMEN AND SIGNALMEN.

Care of points.

76. Pointsmen must be careful to keep their points clear, and, whenever a train or engine has passed, they must remove anything that may have got within the points so as to prevent them from closing.

Facing points.

77. Facing points must in all cases be securely fastened or held for the passage of trains or vehicles.

Injured points to be reported.

78. Whenever points, crossings, or guide rails are injured or damaged, the Pointsman must immediately report the circumstance to his superior officer.

GUARDS, DRIVERS, AND FIREMEN.

Attention to signal rules.

79. Men in charge of signals must pay particular attention to the rules for working signals.

Signals ready for use, &c.

80. All working signals must be kept ready for immediate use. Every man who has charge of, or uses, signals must bring any defect to the notice of his superior.

Hand signals.

81. Signalmen and Pointsmen must have with them, when on duty, flags and hand-signal lamps, which must be lighted when necessary.

Signals in case of obstruction.

82. Should any impediment or obstruction exist upon the line within the sight or knowledge of the Pointsman or Signalman, he must exhibit the "Danger" signals, and must not allow any train or engine to pass in that direction until such impediment or obstruction has been removed, and the line made clear and safe; and he must as soon as practicable take steps to report the obstruction to his superior officer.

Passing trains to be observed.

83. If a Signalman or Pointsman observe anything wrong or unusual in a passing train, he must report the circumstance to his superior; but if it is of such a nature as to involve danger to the train or the public, he must at once take all practicable steps to stop the train.

SECTION VIII.

GUARDS, DRIVERS, AND FIREMEN.

Attendance.

84. Guards, Drivers, and Firemen must be with their trains and engines at such time before starting as the authorised officer may require, and must satisfy themselves that their trains and engines are in proper order.

Equipment.

85. Every Guard and Driver must have with him, at all times when on duty, such flags, lamps, tools, and other appliances as may be ordered by the authorized officer from time to time.

Regulations.

He must also have with him a copy of these Regulations.

Acquaintance with instructions.

86. Every Guard and Driver must make himself acquainted with all instructions requiring his attention on those parts of the line over which he has to work.

To receive instructions from Station Master.

87. Guards will receive instructions from the Station Master or other authorized officer to whom they must apply for anything necessary for the working of their trains.

Inspection of train.

88. Guards are responsible that their brakes and lamps are in good working order, and that the lamps are trimmed and lighted and brightly burning between sunset and sunrise and during a fog.

Duties of Guard in charge.

89. The Guard in charge must satisfy himself before starting, and during the journey, that the train is properly loaded, marshalled, coupled, lamped, greased or oiled, and sheeted; that lashings and chains are secure; also that the brakes are in good working order, and, as far as he can ascertain, that the train is in a state of efficiency for travelling, and has the proper signals attached to it. He must carefully examine the loading of any vehicles he may attach on the way; and should any vehicle become unsafe from the shifting or derangement of the load, he must at once have the load re-adjusted or the vehicle removed from the train.

GUARDS, DRIVERS, AND FIREMEN.

Train under charge of Guard.

90. The train is under the charge of the Guard when there is only one, and of the Head Guard when there are more than one (see Rule 110).

Guards to travel in their vans.

91. Each Guard must ride in his proper van and not on the engine, nor in a carriage or wagon, except under special circumstances.

P. W. men to assist in working signals.

92. The Guard or Brakesman of a train has authority to require those employed on the permanent-way and works to assist him in working signals.

Coolies.

93. Guards in charge of trains must before giving the starting signal tell the coolies working with the train and riding in open trucks to sit down.

To start trains.

94. The signal for starting a train must be given to the Driver by the Guard upon receiving the necessary authority in accordance with the system adopted for working the railway.

Exchange signals.

95. Guards and Drivers must exchange signals with each other on leaving a station or other stopping place. This exchange of signals must also be made whenever a train runs through a station without stopping. The Driver must stop if the proper signals are not exchanged.

To keep a good look-out.

96. Every Guard, Driver, and Fireman when travelling must keep a good look-out, and should they see any reason to apprehend danger, they must use their best endeavours to attract the attention of each other, and give notice of the apprehended danger.

Driver's signal to Guard.

97. In the absence of special rules to the contrary, when the Driver gives three or more short sharp whistles, or sounds the brake whistle (when a special whistle is supplied for that purpose), or applies the communication when such exists, the Guard or Guards must immediately apply the brakes.

Rear brake on steep inclines.

98. In travelling down steep inclines, Guards must, in order to steady the train, assist the Driver with their brakes if required.

Delivery of train.

99. Guards must not leave their trains until they have been properly handed over.

No unauthorized person to ride on engine.

100. No person other than the Driver and Fireman is to ride on the engine or tender without permission from a properly authorized officer.

Whistle to be sounded.

101. Drivers must always sound the whistle before putting an engine in motion, or, when running, on observing any obstruction on the line, or on approaching curves round which a clear view is not obtainable for a distance of a quarter of a mile ahead. The whistle must also be sounded on entering a tunnel, and repeated in long tunnels.

Train obscured by steam.

102. Should a Driver observe a train or engine obscured by steam or smoke on the opposite line to that on which he is travelling, or on a siding, he must sound his whistle and approach it cautiously, so as to be able to stop if necessary.

Drivers to receive orders from Guard.

103. The Driver will receive his orders from the Guard in all matters affecting the starting, stopping, or movement of the train, and he must promptly obey all orders or signals given to him, whether by the Station Master or the Guard, or other person designated by the authorized officer, so far as the safe and proper working of his engine will allow.

To assist in forming train.

104. The Driver must afford such assistance with his engine as may be required for the formation, arrangement, and despatch of his train.

Firemen.

105. Firemen must obey the orders of the Driver in all particulars.

Engine-lamps.

106. The Driver must before starting see that his lamps are in good order, and that his engine carries the proper distinguishing lights, or other indicators of the train. At and after sunset, and during foggy weather, he must have the necessary lamps lighted. He is responsible that they are always in proper order and trimmed, and that when lighted they burn brightly.

Look-out for signals.

107. The Driver and Firemen must carefully observe all signals, whether the cause of the signal being shown is known to them or not. When from fog or storm, or any cause, the fixed signals are not visible as soon as usual, every possible precaution must be used, specially in approaching stations and junctions, so that the train can be stopped short of any obstruction should the signals be against it. The Driver must not, however, trust entirely to signals, but must on all occasions be vigilant and cautious.

Train drawn by more than one engine.

108. When two or more engines are employed in drawing the same train, the Driver and Firemen of the leading engine are responsible for the observance of the signals: the Drivers of the other engines must watch for, and take, signals from the Driver of the leading engine.

To start and stop with care.

109. The Driver must start and stop his train steadily and without a jerk.

He must exercise care in approaching all stations at which his train is required to stop, and in passing stations at which he is not required to stop.

In stopping his train, he must pay particular attention to the state of the weather and the condition of the rails as well as to the length of the train, and these circumstances must have due weight in determining when to shut off steam.

Train without guard.

110. If a train or portion of a train is without a Guard, the Driver is responsible for carrying out all rules and for taking all necessary precautions which the Guard is required to observe for the safe working and protection of trains.

Water columns.

111. After taking water from tanks or water columns, Drivers must be careful to leave the hose or water crane clear of the main line and properly secured.

Driver leaving engine.

112. The Driver, when on duty at stations or on the line, must not leave his engine unless it is absolutely necessary for him to do so, and under no circumstances without a man being left in charge of it.

Speed.

113. Drivers with trains or engines must run within the limits of speed fixed by the authorized officer for the section of the line upon which they are running.

Pushing trains.

114. Trains may be run with a pushing engine, and engines may be run tender-foremost; but in such cases the speed must not exceed fifteen miles an hour, or such lower speed as may be ordered.

Speed through facing points.

115. Drivers must not pass through facing points at a speed exceeding ten (10) miles per hour.

INSPECTORS, PLATELAYERS, GANGERS, AND OTHERS EMPLOYED ON THE PERMANENT-WAY.

Duties of Inspectors.

116. The Inspector or person in charge of each district of the line will be held responsible for the condition of the permanent-way and works in his district. He must also report promptly to the Engineer in charge of the district all accidents and all defects in the road or works that may interfere with the safe running of trains.

Lamps and signals to be supplied.

117. Each gang of platelayers or labourers must be supplied by the Inspector of Permanent-way for the district with two sets of flag signals, two hand-signal lamps, and a proper number of detonators.

Fixed signals not to be used.

118. Platelayers and labourers must not, except in case of emergency, avail themselves of the fixed signals, and must in all cases use their own special signals for their own purposes.

Signals.

119. The signals to be used by the men engaged in repairing the permanent-way are red and green flags and hand lamps and detonators. The flags must be used during daylight, the lamps after sunset and in foggy weather, and the detonators when necessary by day and night.

The red and detonating signals indicate "Danger," and must be used only when it is necessary to stop a train. The green signal indicates "Caution," and must be used when it is necessary to slacken the speed of a train.

Protection of line when obstructed.

120. When it is necessary to obstruct the line, or to do any work of a character to make the exhibition of danger signals necessary, such signals must be exhibited half a mile on each side of the place at which the work is being carried on, and the work must not be commenced until these signals have been exhibited. These danger signals must not be withdrawn until the line is again clear and safe for trains.

Signals when repairing line.

121. When repairing, lifting the line, or performing any operation so as to make it necessary for a train to proceed cautiously, the foreman or ganger must send a man at least a quarter of a mile in either direction from which a train may approach, and as much further as the circumstances of the case render necessary, to exhibit the "Caution" signal, so as to be plainly visible to the Driver of an approaching train.

Rails not to be displaced in fog.

122. In no case, except when absolutely necessary, is a rail to be displaced, or any other work to be performed, by which an obstruction may be made to the passage of the trains during a fog or storm.

Responsibility for lorries.

123. No lorry used for the conveyance of material, or trolly for the conveyance of men, may in any case be placed on the line, except by the authorized person who is responsible for its proper protection and use according to the rules in force on the railway.

Protection of lorry or truck on line.

124. A lorry or truck, loaded or empty, used for conveying materials, must be preceded and followed on a single line, and followed on a double line, at a distance of not less than half a mile, by a man with Danger hand signals and detonators. A lorry must not be run in the wrong direction on a double line. In exceptional cases the authorized officer may issue special rules for the working of lorries and trollies upon any section of the line.

Security of lorry.

125. No lorry or trolly shall under any circumstances be attached to a train, and all lorries and trollies, when not in use, must be taken off the rails, placed well clear of the line, and the wheels secured with chain and padlock.

Road to be inspected.

126. Every portion of the permanent-way must be inspected daily on foot by some authorized person responsible for its condition, and bridges and all other works (including signals and signal wires wherever provided and used) must be regularly inspected in accordance with rules laid down by the authorized officer.

Defects of wires, &c.

127. Each foreman, ganger, or mistry must report to the Inspector of Permanent-way when any telegraph post appears to be in an unsafe state, or any of the signal or telegraph wires are broken, slack, entangled, or touching each other, or any building. He must also see that all grass, creepers, boughs of trees, and rubbish are removed from the wires.

Where the maintenance of the telegraph posts and wires is under the control of the Government Telegraph Department, the removal of grass, creepers, boughs of trees, and rubbish will be carried out by the Government Telegraph officers, and all reports of defects in posts and wires should be made to the officers of that Department by the Inspector.

Blasting.

128. No blasting shall be allowed on or near to the railway without the authority of the Engineer in charge.

Gates to be closed.

129. Gangers must close and fasten all gates they find open.

Works in floods.

130. Each foreman, ganger, or mistry must, in the event of a flood, carefully examine the action of the water through the culverts and bridges on his length of line; and should he see any cause to apprehend danger to the works, he must immediately exhibit the proper signals for the trains to proceed cautiously or to stop, as necessity may require, and inform the Inspector thereof; and, until the Inspector arrives, he must take precautionary measures for securing the safety and stability of the line.

Cleaning of points and signals

131. Gangers must keep clean the working parts of points and signals, unless the duty is otherwise specially provided for.

Line to be kept clear.

132. Each foreman or ganger must keep his portion of the line clear and safe and the fences in repair; and if any sheep, cattle, or other animals be on the line or within the fences, he must immediately remove them, and report the circumstances to the Inspector of Permanent-way.

Defects.

133. Foremen or gangers must see that all broken chairs, rails, sleepers, or other dangerously defective materials are removed from the road with the least possible delay and sound materials substituted.

Materials clear of rails.

All tools, rails, sleepers, pieces of iron or wood, or other implements or materials must be carefully placed so as to be quite clear of the line, and not within three feet of the rails.

SECTION X.

REGULATIONS FOR GATEMEN, WHERE PROVIDED, AT LEVEL-CROSSINGS.

Gate signals.

134. All level-crossings of which the gates close across the railway must be provided with red signal boards, and with lamps showing red, up and down the line, when the gates are closed across the line. The lamps must be kept lighted during the hours prescribed by the authorized officer.

Gateman's signals.

135. Every gateman must be provided with day and night hand signals, which he must know how to use, and must keep in proper order.

Fixed signals to be tested.

136. At level-crossings where fixed signals are provided, the gateman must satisfy himself of the proper working of his signals both by day and by night, and must report immediately any defect to the Inspector of Permanent-way, or other person in charge of the repair of signals, and also to the Station Master or other person under whose supervision he acts.

Gates open to Railway.

137. Unless specially ordered to the contrary, the gates at all thoroughfares must be kept open for the passage of trains, and securely closed across the thoroughfare, except when required to be opened for the road traffic, and must then as quickly as possible be closed again across the thoroughfare. Before opening the gates, the gateman must look up and down the line to assure himself that no train is approaching.

Gates open to roads.

138. Where special authority is given, gates made to close across the railway may be kept open to the public thoroughfare, except when an engine or train is due or expected, at which time such gates must be closed, and fastened across the public thoroughfare; and until such engine or train has passed, the gates must be kept closed, and no person or thing is to be allowed within them. While the gates are closed across the railway and open to the thoroughfare, the "Danger" signal must be exhibited both up and down the line. In opening double gates closing across the railway for an approaching train where there is only one signal lamp to each gate, the half with the signal lamp attached is not to be moved until the other half is shut across the thoroughfare.

Further gates to be first open.

139. The gate towards which road traffic is approaching must not be opened until the opposite gate has been opened, so as to allow it to cross over without stopping upon the line.

Trains to be observed.

140. Every gateman must take particular notice of each train, and if he should see anything wrong, he must show a danger signal to the Guard and Driver.

Position of gateman.

141. In all cases the gateman, when signalling, is to stand in a position clear of the rails, where he can be seen by the approaching Driver.

Obstructions.

142. In the event of the road being from any cause obstructed, the gateman must do everything in his power by warning approaching trains to prevent accident.

SECTION XI.

GENERAL RULES FOR WORKING A LINE ON THE SYSTEM TERMED "LINE CLEAR AND CAUTION MESSAGE" IN RULE 3, SECTION II.

System.

143. Under this system no train shall be permitted to leave one station for another—

Until it has been ascertained by means of the electric telegraph that the line between those stations is absolutely clear of trains and of all impediments as far as can be known, in which case a "Line clear" message must be obtained in the manner prescribed in the rules in force on each railway, or,

Unless the line is occupied only by trains running in advance and in the same direction at time intervals, in which case a "Caution" message must be obtained in the manner prescribed in the rules in force on each railway.

Following trains.

144. Trains may follow one another between stations in the same direction on both single and double line, subject to the following conditions :—

(a) No train or engine shall be allowed to follow any other train or engine on the same line of rails within ten minutes unless "Line clear" has been received.

(b) No train shall be allowed to follow another unless permission has been obtained in each and every case from the station to which the train is proceeding. No passenger train shall follow a goods train, nor shall a fast goods train follow a stopping passenger train from a station within fifteen minutes; and in case the distance to the next station in advance exceeds ten miles, the interval must be increased under special instructions of the authorized officer.

Authority to give "Line clear."

145. No one except the Station Master or other duly authorized person is to give or seek a line clear or caution message.

Time for seeking "Line clear."

146. Except at train terminal stations, no Station Master must apply for a line clear message from the station in advance until he has received advice that the approaching train has left the station in rear.

Drivers to obtain written permission.

147. No engine or train shall be moved from any station until the Driver has in his possession a "Line clear" or "Caution" message written on an authorised form showing that he can proceed. The Driver is to receive this written permission from no other person than the Guard of his own train or from the Station Master, or from one of the station staff duly authorized for such duty; but on all occasions when the Guard does not personally deliver the permission to the Driver, it must be countersigned by the Guard before delivery to the Driver. The Driver must also receive from the Guard the usual starting signal before moving.

When a train is arranged to run through a station without stopping, the written permission to proceed to the next station may be handed to the Driver direct by the Station Master or other authorized person of the station staff, and a duplicate of it handed to the Guard in the same manner.

Station Master to hand message to Guard.

148. The Station Master or other authorized person of the station staff is to hand the written permission to the Guard, who must satisfy himself that it is properly filled up and dated, with the time added, and is signed in full and in ink, and that it applies to the particular train or engine for which it is given and received before it is handed to the Driver. The Driver must satisfy himself on these points before starting.

This written permission is never to be given to the Driver until the train is to start; and when waiting to pass another train, it must not be given to the Driver until the whole of such other train has come in and is clear of the points.

When a train is not timed to stop at a station, and the written permission is handed both to the Driver and Guard of the train, the Station Master will be held wholly responsible that it applies to the particular train or engine for which it is given, and that it is properly filled up and dated with the time added, and is signed in full and in ink.

Forms and books.

149. No forms other than those specially provided from time to time for the purpose are to be used in working under this system. And each station must keep the regular books provided for by the working orders in force.

Messages cancelled.

150. The leaves of these books are to be progressively numbered in type, and, when any message has from any cause to be cancelled, the form to which it applies must also be marked as cancelled both on the form and counterfoil, and must be carefully preserved by doubling it on the counterfoil.

Messages to be numbered.

151. In addition to the progressive printed number, every message from each station must be numbered to stations on each side from midnight to midnight, commencing with number one to each station, and this number is to be treated as a portion of the message and entered on the counterfoil.

Number to be quoted.

152. When a message is in reply to another, each station's number must be quoted at the beginning of the message.

Number to be quoted.

153. When the message bears reference to a former message in the same direction, the number of that message must also be quoted at the beginning.

Train to be described.

154. In train messages the engine or train must be distinctly described, as, for instance, "No. 2 down ballast," "No. 4 up goods," and so on; and for every train a separate enquiry and reply must be sent, but an enquiry and reply message must never be sent on one form.

Line clear enquiries.

155. In line clear enquiries, the time of arrival of the last train in the opposite direction must always be given. If the train follows another on a caution message, the time of departure of the preceding train must be endorsed on the message.

Cancellation of line clear.

156. After a line clear message has been given and has been subsequently cancelled, no train is to be started in the opposite direction on a single line until a telegram has been received stating that the train for which the "Line clear" had been first given is and will be detained, and that the message has been cancelled.

Message to be wholly written before despatch.

157. No part of any message affecting the passage of trains must be forwarded or acted upon until the whole is written out, except when an accident may be prevented, or in other case of emergency.

Messages to be signed.

158. Line clear or caution permissions are not to be written out in full or in part, or signed before they are required.

Form of message.

159. All messages connected with train working, including "line clear" authorities, are to be written in ink or other indelible substance, and are also to be signed in full by the Station Master or other authorized person.

Messages to be filed.

160. Line clear and enquiry messages must be retained for at least a fortnight.

Interruption of system.

161. In case of accident to the line or train, or of failure or interruption of telegraph communication, trains must be worked between stations in accordance with rules prescribed by the authorized officer.

SECTION XII.

GENERAL REGULATIONS FOR WORKING ON THE SYSTEM TERMED "ABSOLUTE BLOCK" IN RULE 3, SECTION II.

Object.

162. The object of this system of electric train-signalling is to prevent more than one train or engine being between any two signal stations on the same line at the same time. This is accomplished by not allowing any train or engine to leave a signal station till the previous train or engine has been signalled clear.

Absolute block working.

163. On those portions of any railway which are worked on the absolute block system, a train or engine must not be allowed to enter any section until it has been ascertained by telegraph that the section is clear of trains or engines.

Except when otherwise specified, a section is to be understood to be the line between two stations outside station limits.

Interruption of system.

164. In the event of accident to the line or train, or of failure of the train signalling instruments used for block working, so that the ordinary signals cannot be forwarded and received, trains must be worked between stations in accordance with the rules to be prescribed by the authorized officer.

SECTION XIII.

REGULATIONS FOR WORKING SINGLE LINES OF RAILWAY ON THE SYSTEM TERMED "TRAIN STAFF AND TICKET" IN RULE 3, SECTION II.

Staff station.

165. Necessary information shall be afforded from time to time as to the places which are appointed staff stations.

Staff or ticket.

166. A train staff or train staff ticket must be carried with each train or engine, and without this staff or ticket no train or engine must be allowed to leave any station.

Staff at station.

167. No train or engine shall be permitted to leave any staff station unless the staff for that portion of the line over which it is to travel is then at that station.

Custody of staff.

168. The person in charge of the station for the time being is the only person authorized to receive and deliver the staff or ticket, and all tickets must be cancelled directly they are handed to him after use.

Staff given to Driver.

169. When a train or engine is ready to start from a station, and no second train or engine is intended to follow before the staff will be required for a train in the opposite direction, it is the duty of the person in charge of the station to give the staff to the Driver, who shall then place it in a conspicuous place provided for that purpose on the engine.

Tickets to Driver.

170. If other trains or engines are intended to follow in succession before the staff can be returned, a ticket indicating that the staff is following must be given by the person in charge of the station to the Driver of the first train or engine, the staff for the section being shown to him, and so on, with any other train or engine, except the last, the staff itself being given to the Driver of the last train or engine, as directed in rule 169. After the staff has been sent away, no other train or engine must under any circumstances leave the station to follow in the same direction until the staff for that station has been returned.

Driver to have staff or ticket.

171. No Driver with a train or engine shall leave a station until he has received the proper staff or ticket for that section of the line over which he is about to travel, and he must not take the staff or ticket from any other than the person in charge of the station for the time being. After receiving the staff or ticket, he must not start until the proper signals have been exhibited, nor when with a train until a signal has also been given by the Guard. But he must not accept a ticket in any case unless he sees the staff at the same time in the possession of the person who gives him such ticket. On arriving at the station to which the staff or ticket extends, such staff or ticket must immediately be given up to the person in charge of the station, and all tickets so given up must be immediately cancelled.

Distinguishing mark.

172. Each staff must have shown upon it the name of the staff station at each end of the portion of line to which it applies. The staff, boxes, and tickets for the different portions of the line must be distinguished by different colours.

Tickets.

173. The tickets must be kept in the proper ticket-box fastened by an inside spring, the key to open the box being the staff to which the tickets apply.

Record of tickets issued.

174. The Station Master must keep a record in a book of each ticket issued, showing the number of tickets and the particular train or engine for which it is issued.

Staff at station.

175. The staff, when at the station, must not be left in the box, but must be in the safe custody of the Station Master.

Staff or ticket to be left.

176. Drivers must not take the staff or ticket beyond the station at which it ought to be left.

REGULATIONS FOR WORKING SINGLE LINES OF RAILWAY ON THE SYSTEM TERMED "TRAIN STAFF AND TICKET" IN RULE 3, SECTION II.

Assisting engine.

177. When trains are assisted by a second engine in the front, the leading engine must carry the staff or ticket; but when the assisting engine is pushing the train, the train engine must carry a ticket and the assisting engine the staff, except in cases where the train and the assisting engine are travelling over the entire length of line to which the staff applies, and have to be followed by another train or engine, when the train and assisting engine must each have a ticket. When the assisting engine is intended to return to the station from which it started without running through the entire portion of line to which the staff applies, it must always carry the staff.

Engine carrying staff disabled.

178. In the event of an engine which carries the staff breaking down between two stations, the Firemen must take the staff to the staff station in the direction whence assistance can be obtained in order that the staff may be at the station on arrival of the engine. Should the engine that fails be in possession of a ticket instead of the staff, assistance must only come from the station at which the staff has been left. But if assistance can be more readily obtained at a station other than that where the staff is, immediate steps must be taken to have the staff transferred to the other end of the section. The Fireman must accompany the assisting engine to the place where he has left his own engine.

Engine carrying ticket disabled.

Ballast train at work on the line.

179. When a ballast train has to work between stations, the staff must be given to the Driver in charge of it. This will close the line whilst the ballast train is at work. The ballast train must proceed afterwards to one of the staff stations to open the line before the ordinary traffic can be resumed.

Ballast trains not stopping to work between stations may run with staff or ticket as ordinary or special trains.

(Back of Ticket.)

When this ticket is given to the Driver, he must before starting see the train staff for the portion of line which he is about to enter.

This ticket is to be given up by the Driver immediately on arrival to the person in charge of the station to which he is authorised to proceed, and such person will be responsible that this ticket is at once cancelled.

SECTION XIV.

REGULATIONS FOR WORKING SINGLE LINES OF RAILWAY ON THE SYSTEM TERMED "PILOT GUARD" IN RULE 3, SECTION II.

This system is only to be held as applicable to short branch lines.

Pilot Guard to start trains.

180. The Pilot Guard will be distinguished by a red dress or badge; and no train or engine shall under any circumstances be allowed to run on the line unless it is either accompanied or personally started by the Pilot Guard wearing such dress or badge.

Pilot Guard, when practicable, to accompany every train.
Exception.

181. The Pilot Guard will, when practicable, accompany every train; but, when it is necessary to start two or more trains from one end of the portion of line under his control before a train has to be started from the other end, the Pilot Guard must furnish the Guard in charge of each train not accompanied by himself with a printed Pilot Guard's ticket, where such are provided, properly filled up and signed, and personally start such train, and must himself accompany the last train. The ticket will apply only to the single journey to the station named on it, where it must be immediately given up to the person in charge of the station, and all tickets so given up must be immediately cancelled.

Driver to see Pilot Guard.

182. The Driver must not start his train without seeing the Pilot Guard. But if the Pilot Guard does not accompany the train, the Driver must not start until he has received from the Guard of his train the Pilot Guard's ticket authorizing him to proceed. A Driver working an engine, unaccompanied by a Guard, must observe the same regulations as herein laid down for a Guard with a train.

SECTION XV.

REGULATIONS FOR WORKING SINGLE LINE ON THE SYSTEM TERMED "ONE ENGINE ONLY" IN RULE 3, SECTION II.

This system is only to be held as applicable to short branch lines.

One engine in steam.

183. Only one engine in steam, or two or more coupled together, which are then to be treated as one engine or train, must be allowed to be on the line at one and the same time, except as provided in rule 184.

REGULATIONS FOR WORKING SINGLE LINE ON THE SYSTEM TERMED "ONE ENGINE ONLY" IN RULE 3, SECTION II.

Disabled engine.

184. In the case of an engine or train becoming disabled and requiring assistance, or an accident occurring which renders it impossible for the engine to proceed, the Guard in charge must instruct the Driver to keep the engine stationary until his return, and then make the best of his way to the station whence assistance can be obtained, and inform the person in charge there of the circumstances, who will, on receipt of such information, allow a second engine to enter the line. The second engine must be accompanied by the Guard of the disabled engine or train, who must explain to the Driver where and under what circumstances the disabled engine or train is situated.

Guard of disabled train.

185. The Guard of the disabled engine or train will be held responsible for the safe and proper working of the line until both engines have left it, and it is again clear.

Absence of Guard.

186. Should an engine without a Guard become disabled, the Fireman, or, if necessary, the Driver, must perform the duties prescribed for the Guard.

READ—

Despatch from the Secretary of State for India, No. 45 (Statistics), dated the 15th May, 1890, and enclosures.

RESOLUTION.—In compliance with the representations made by the Government of India during the last ten years, Her Majesty's Government has repealed the duty on the importation of silver plate into the United Kingdom, repealing at the same time the duty on gold plate.

2. The Government of India has always coupled with its representations against the duty a proposal for the repeal of the requirement of compulsory assay and of a fixed English standard of fineness of metal, because the retention of those requirements prevented equal competition between manufacturers in India and manufacturers in England. This part of the proposals has not been complied with, and the English law of assay and hall-marking remains unaltered; but Her Majesty's Government has proposed to provide in a Bill to be introduced in Parliament that Indian silver ware bearing an Indian hall-mark affixed under the authority of the Government of India should be admitted into the United Kingdom without being subjected to the British hall-mark regulations, and the Secretary of State for India has invited an expression of the views of the Government of India on this subject. His Lordship suggests that, if a system of Indian hall-marking is adopted, it might be made voluntary and not compulsory, and enquires what standard of fineness should, with due regard to the practice of Indian silversmiths, be adopted for the Indian silver hall-mark.

3. The most serious difficulty hitherto in subjecting Indian goods to the English assay has been that the nature of that assay is such that the goods are materially injured in the process. Hence it is necessary to send the goods to the assay office in an unfinished condition, and after they have been marked to take them back to the workshop, and finish them for sale. This cannot be done with Indian ware, and therefore in the case of such ware intended for sale in England, it will be necessary, in order to ensure its admission to free competition with English goods, that, if assay is required, it should be made in this country. Another difficulty has been that the English standard is higher than the Indian (rupee) standard, but this will disappear with the admission of an Indian standard or standards.

4. The Government of India does not consider it possible to adopt any system of compulsory assay or hall-marking. No system of assay under Government regulation has ever been in operation in this country; it is not now desired by the trade in India, or by the purchasers of Indian gold and silver ware, and it would necessarily operate unequally and unfairly in a country of long distances, costly transit, and wide distribution of manufacture. Looking, however, to the stage which has been reached, it is desirable to obtain the opinions of the persons interested on the proposal for an Indian assay, and to consider, assuming that an Indian assay should be introduced, what sort of a system should be devised.

5. The points for consideration in connection with the introduction of a system of assay are:—

(1) Should the assay be compulsory or optional?

(2) What standard or standards of fineness should be adopted?

(3) Where should assay offices be located? At the two Mints only, or at other centres also?

(4) What process for assay should be adopted?

(5) What fees should be charged?

(6) What distinguishing marks should be applied to the wares assayed?

6. On the first point the Government is decidedly of opinion that no such restriction of trade as would accompany a compulsory assay and hall-mark can be contemplated. The law which would be required would be of a character entirely contrary to the economic policy of the Government of India, and would be vexatious and restrictive in operation wherever it could operate (as in the Presidency towns). Apart, moreover, from the objections of principle to such a system, it is clear that the law would constantly be evaded, and a serious result of compulsion would be the discouragement of trade in British territory and its encouragement in Native States.

If any assay is to be introduced, it must be optional, and none should be required for articles which under the English law do not require to be marked.

7. On the second and third points the Governor-General in Council will reserve any expression of opinion until he is placed in possession of the views of the Local Governments and the trading and manufacturing community. As regards assay offices, it must be remembered that the establishment of new offices will involve considerable expenditure, which must all be met from fees.

8. As to the fourth point, there are three processes in use in various countries—(a) cupellation, (b) the wet method, (c) the touchstone. The two first are the most accurate, but both involve the slicing or scraping off from the piece of work of a portion of the metal to be assayed, and consequently it is found necessary to send the work to the assay office in an unfinished state, and finish it off for sale after it has been marked. If either of these processes is adopted in India, the manufacturer who works at a distance from the assay office must incur a heavy expense in cost of transit. If, for instance, he is at Delhi, he must send his wares to Bombay; then get them bank to Delhi; and then, after finishing off the work, send them to Bombay again for export. In each transit the goods must be insured.

The last method—that of the touchstone—does not involve any injury to the ware, but it is not so accurate, varying, it is believed, about one per cent. in its results one way or the other. It is consequently in France and other Continental countries used only for small wares, which could not be treated by the other processes. In England it is not used at all. It would probably be best to adopt this process in India: the test is sufficiently good for practical purposes, and it has the advantage of placing manufacturers at a distance from the assay office more nearly on a level with manufacturers at an assaying centre than would be the case if the other processes were adopted.

9. On the fifth point, that of the fees to be charged, no suggestion can be made at present. The fees must bear some relation to the expenditure, and, as said above, that will be large if assays are allowed to be made elsewhere than at Calcutta and Bombay. The Mint and Assay Masters may, however, be asked to suggest a scale which would be sufficient if no new offices were established The fees first charged would be provisional only until it is seen how the scale operates.

10. The Mint and Assay Masters may be asked to advise on the sixth point also.

11. The Governor-General in Council will be glad to learn at an early date the views of the local Governments and Administrations on all these points, and desires specially to be informed—

(a) whether the prospect of the admission of Indian artware in the precious metals to England without the necessity of undergoing there the assay by cutting and scraping is considered of sufficient importance to the trade to justify the introduction into India of a system which must necessarily be restrictive and operate unequally, whether it is compulsory or voluntary;

(b) whether the continuance of hall-marking in the United Kingdom has appreciably minimised the effects that might have been expected from the repeal of the duty on silver plate. The trade has had some experience of the effects of the repeal, and will probably be able to say what practical effect the abolition of the duty has had. It must have stimulated the transmission to England by private persons of articles not intended for sale, and therefore not requiring to be assayed; and in this way trade has probably benefited indirectly, but it is desirable to know whether there has been any substantial increase directly in the supply of articles to be placed on sale in England.

12. One matter deserves special consideration. Section 4 of Act 47 and 48 Vict., cap. 62, is as follows:—

> Articles of foreign plate which, in the opinion of the Commissioners of Customs, may be properly described as hand-chased, inlaid, bronzed, or filigree work of Oriental pattern, shall, subject to the payment of the proper duties of customs, be exempted from assay in the United Kingdom.

The Governor-General in Council is not aware of the precise significance attached by the Commissioners of Customs in England to the terms "hand-chased, inlaid, bronzed, or filigree work of Oriental pattern," but it seems possible that they cover most descriptions of Indian silver ware exported to England. It is important to know how the exemption made by the section quoted above has worked in practice, and whether it has in fact given the substantial relief that it seems to give. The opinions of those engaged in the trade on these points are particularly invited. It is possible that the terms of the existing law are not generally known in India.

13. His Excellency in Council considers it important that the questions raised in this Resolution should be carefully explained to representative native manufacturers, and their opinions obtained. It is also specially desirable that such opinions should be obtained from workers distant from the places where assay offices exist or are likely to be established: e.g., the Chief Commissioner of Burma should obtain the opinions of workers at Mandalay and Rangoon, and the Government of Bombay from Kutch and elsewhere.

ORDER.—Ordered, that the Resolution, together with a copy of the Despatch and enclosures read in the preamble, be forwarded—

(1) to the several local Governments and Administrations for the purpose indicated above;

(2) to the Foreign Department with the request that it may obtain and furnish to this Department opinions from the Native States of Jaipur and Kashmir;

(3) to the Chambers of Commerce of Calcutta, Bombay, Madras, Rangoon, and Upper India for opinion; and

(4) to the Trades Associations of Calcutta and Madras with the request that the Government of India may be favoured with the fullest expression of their opinion and that of individual members and representative dealers and workers in the precious metals appertaining to those bodies.

Ordered also, that these papers be forwarded to the Mint and Assay Masters, Calcutta and Bombay, with the request that this Department may be furnished with their opinion on the question generally, and specially on the second, fifth, and sixth points noticed in the Resolution; and that the papers be published in the Gazette of India.

Secretary to the Government of India.

INDIA OFFICE;

STATISTICS,

No. 45.

To His Excellency The Most Honourable The Governor-General of India in Council.

MY LORD MARQUIS,—YOUR Excellency has learnt by telegraph that it has been decided to abolish the duties on the importation of silver plate into the United Kingdom. The report of the Chancellor of the Exchequer's speech* shows that Her Majesty's Government remitted the duties in deference to the wishes and interests of the people of India.

*Hansard's Debates, 17th April 1890, page 721.

2. The question of abolishing the British system of hall-marking and the views of the Indian Government on the matter were also considered. But it was decided not to interfere with the law and practice concerning hall-marking in the United Kingdom. The majority of people interested in the trade and those conversant with the artistic side of the question are believed to be strongly in favour of retaining the system of hall-marking. Her Majesty's Government proposed, however, to mitigate as far as possible any inconvenience under which the Indian silver trade might suffer, by providing that Indian silver work bearing an Indian hall-mark affixed under the authority of your Government should be admitted into the United Kingdom without being subjected to the British hall-mark regulations.

3. The Bill dealing with the matter will be forwarded to Your Excellency as soon as it is introduced. Meanwhile I shall be glad to learn at an early date what standard of fineness your Government would, with due regard to the practice of Indian silversmiths, propose to adopt for the Indian silver hall-mark. I forward a copy of a Parliamentary return showing the standards of fineness adopted by different European nations which maintain a system of hall-marking.

By book-post.

4. It is perhaps needless for me to observe that, if a hall-mark is established for India, it might be permissive and not obligatory. Any dealer who desired to send silver ware to England without being liable to the British hall-marking system would get his wares assayed and marked in India under such rules as Your Excellency might prescribe. I anticipate that the new law and practice in the United Kingdom will follow the practice now existing, whereby artistic silver ware or ware belonging to private persons and not intended for sale is exempted from the hall-mark regulations.†

†47 & 48 Vict., cap. 62, section 4.

5. I forward a copy of a letter from Mr. W. Carlton Wood, on behalf of Messrs. Orr & Sons, on the subject of hall-marking in India, together with the reply that I have caused to be sent thereto.

I have the honour to be,
MY LORD MARQUIS,
Your Lordship's most obedient, humble Servant,
(Signed) CROSS.

ENCLOSURES.

No. 1.

41, BASINGHALL STREET, LONDON, E.C.,
29th April 1890.

MY LORD,—As representing Messrs. P. Orr & Sons, of Madras, silversmiths, and in view of the answer given last night in the House of Commons by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, that communications would be addressed to the Government of India before the proposed standard for hall-marking Indian silver plate was fixed, I beg respectfully to submit for consideration some practical points on the inherent difficulties of compulsory hall-marking, and with a view of demonstrating that "rupee standard" will not meet the requirements of Indian manufacturers:—

(1) The vast body of Indian silversmiths are of the small trader class. The silver used by them from time immemorial is obtained by melting rupee coins. No other silver is generally obtained by men of that class. They are not silver refiners.

(2) It is a necessity that solder be of a harder and inferior quality to the metal in the article soldered. The Indian silversmith notoriously solders heavily: consequently it is evident that no article made from rupee coins would pass the English Hall if the rupee standard be adopted. It is well known that English silversmiths overcome the difficulty of the solder by obtaining from the bullion dealers silver ½ to 1 dwt. per ounce better than standard, thereby rendering the whole article standard.

(3) Coins in use contract dirt, and it is doubtful if metal obtained from a quantity of rupee coins thrown into the melting pot would pass the English Hall even in the few articles where no solder is used.

(4) The great objection of Indian manufacturers to the English hall-marking is that the system adopted, "the scrape and parting assay," is unsuitable to finished goods, which are thereby rendered unsaleable without being returned to a workshop. The English manufacturers' practice of sending goods to the Hall "in the rough" is practically not open to Indian makers. If hall-marking remains compulsory, I beg to submit that the French system of assaying finished plate by "the touch," which in no way damages the goods, should be adopted here. I recognise that "the touch" is not so absolutely accurate as the "the scrape," but I respectfully submit that a plan proved adequate in France can scarcely be inapplicable in England.

The difficulty of fixing an arbitrary standard that will really meet the requirements of Indian trade is considerable, and I respectfully submit that optional hall-marking is the true remedy. If this is unattainable, I beg to recommend that, subject to Indian plate bearing a stipulated mark or letter defining it as Indian, it be allowed free sale in this country without assay.

I respectfully submit that, if the rupee standard be adopted and hall-marking with the system of "the scrape" be compulsory, no trade in ordinary Indian plate can result, and the assertion will be made in India that the British Government have given with one hand and taken away with the other.

I have, &c.,

From the Mint Master, Bombay, No. 872, dated 8th September 1890.
From the Assay Master, Bombay, No. 20, dated 1st May 1890.

I.—WORKING OF THE MINTS.

Imports and Coinage: Gold.—In the year 1889-90 the net imports of gold amounted in value to ₹4,61,53,038 against ₹2,81,39,341 in 1888-89, the bulk of it (₹4,08,25,128) being imported into Bombay. But a small fraction of this large quantity was tendered for coinage at the Calcutta Mint (value ₹2,15,785), the gold consisting largely of new sovereigns. The Mint coined 15,367 mohurs, being 294 more than in the year previous. No gold was tendered to the Bombay Mint for coinage, and none was coined there.

2. Imports and Coinage: Silver.—The net imports of silver during 1889-90 amounted to ₹10,93,79,000 against ₹9,24,66,000 in the year 1888-89. Net imports into Calcutta were less by ₹4,912,000 and those into Bombay were more by ₹2,07 61,000 than in the year 1888-89. The amount tendered for coinage exceeded that of 1888-89 by 18½ lakhs in the Calcutta Mint and by 99 lakhs in the Bombay Mint. The coinage of silver during the year in both Mints amounted to ₹8,55,11,600 in value against ₹7,28,22,500 in 1888-89. The increase occurred principally in the Bombay Mint, where the coinage amounted to ₹7,45,53,000, exceeding that of the previous year by ₹1,22,05,000.

3. Total Coinage, Gold and Silver —The value of the total coinage of gold and silver at each of the two Mints for the last five years is shewn below :

4. Silver tendered for coinage by the Currency Department.—In 1889-90 silver to the value of ₹59,60,500 was transferred by the Currency Department in Calcutta to the Mint for coinage in exchange for Mint certificates, as compared with ₹39,90,700 of the previous year. In Bombay ₹7,44,87,800 worth of silver was similarly transferred by the Currency Department to the Mint against ₹6,25,22,000 in 1888-89.

5. Re-coinage of old coin.—In the Bombay Mint uncurrent silver coin and bullion received from treasuries for re-coinage amounted to ₹6,46,380 against ₹1,91,554 of the previous year, or ₹4,54,826 in excess, of which ₹3,95,778 represents the value of Cutch koris received from the Political Agent, Cutch. In the Calcutta Mint the uncurrent coin and bullion received from Government Treasuries for re-coinage amounted to ₹55,65,252, being less than the previous year's receipts by ₹16,32,306. Of the uncurrent coin, 2,406,000 were Burma rupees and 2,830,000 shroff-marked rupees withdrawn from circulation principally from the North-Western Provinces and Oudh and the Punjab. Some Arcot rupees, representing 1·99 lakhs in tale, were also received from Madras. The rest of the uncurrent coin was composed of Government coin reduced in weight either by ordinary wear and tear or by fraudulent means.

During the year State Railways were authorised to remit light uncurrent coin direct to the Mint, and such coin of the nominal value of ₹3,783 was received by the Calcutta Mint. These coins had been reduced by fraudulent means, soldered or otherwise mutilated.

6. Copper coinage.—During the year it was decided that the whole of the copper coinage for India should be carried out at the Calcutta Mint, as the arrangements for the manufacture of copper were better adapted for the purpose in Calcutta than in Bombay. In consequence mainly of this transfer, the nominal value of copper coin coined during the year in the Calcutta Mint was ₹17,16,613 against ₹8,73,757 for 1888-89, or about double the amount of the previous year. There was also a considerable coinage executed for the British East Africa Company. The quantity of copper purchased in the year for coinage in the Calcutta Mint was 26,479 maunds at an average rate of ₹29·41 per maund, as compared with 11,733 maunds at an average cost of ₹45·54 per maund in the previous year.

In Bombay the copper coin struck during the first half of the official year, after which no more copper was coined there, amounted in value to ₹3,28,071 against ₹1,41,280 of the previous year.

The Government of India notes with satisfaction the improvements made in connection with the coinage of copper, recorded in paragraph 12 of the report of the Calcutta Mint Master.

7. Gain on copper coinage.—The gain on the copper coin passed into circulation during the last five years is shewn below:

1885-86	1,11,053
1886-87	7,67,040
1887-88	9,03,187
1888-89	6,37,195
1889-90	7,95,992

8. Operative losses.—The operative losses for melting and coining combined, after making corrections for fictitious losses and gains, amounted to ₹6,597 in Calcutta and to ₹42,000 in Bombay. This loss is equivalent to a rate of ₹30 per lakh rolled for the Calcutta Mint and ₹33 per lakh for the Bombay Mint. Considering, however, that it is exceedingly difficult to apply accurately the corrections for fictitious losses and gains, it would be safer, in the opinion of both the Mint Masters, to consider the rate of loss at from ₹25 to ₹35 per lakh for the Calcutta Mint, and from ₹28 to ₹38 per lakh for the Bombay Mint.

9. Revenue and Expenditure.—The total revenue and expenditure of the two Mints for the last five years are as follows:—

	REVENUE.						EXPENDITURE.
	SEIGNORAGE.			OTHER RECEIPTS.
	Calcutta.	Bombay.	TOTAL.	Calcutta.	Bombay.	TOTAL.	Calcutta.	Bombay.	TOTAL.

1887-88	1,85,718	12,46,367	14,32,085	84,442	1,35,363	2,19,805	10,63,703	8,67,196	19,30,899
1888-89	75,292	12,50,441	13,25,733	63,629	1,17,518	1,81,147	9,00,184	8,44,265	17,44,449
1889-90	1,21,514	14,89,741	16,11,255	62,697	1,72,342	2,35,039	9,38,109	10,31,251	19,69,360
			82,42,418					92,63,086

Thus the total revenue of both the Mints during the last five years falls short of the total expenditure by ₹10,20,668, so that the Mints have been worked at an average loss of ₹2,04,133 per annum, which occurs entirely in the Calcutta Mint. It is satisfactory, however, to note that the average loss is gradually diminishing, thus:

Average annual loss for five years ending 1885-86	6,07,380
Ditto ditto ditto 1886-87	5,28,300
Ditto ditto ditto 1887-88	4,69,754
Ditto ditto ditto 1888-89	3,31,124
Ditto ditto ditto 1889-90	2,04,133

The expenditure on salaries and establishments in the two Mints during the year 1889-90 amounted to ₹5,37,483, being more by ₹2,782 than that of the preceding year, as shewn below:

	CALCUTTA.			BOMBAY.
	1888-89.	1889-90.	Increase + Decrease —	1888-89.	1889-90.	Increase + Decrease —
	₹	₹	₹	₹	₹	₹
Fixed Establishment	1,89,560	1,86,376	—3,184	2,23,327	2,20,818	—2,509
Extra ditto	63,031	67,355	+4,324	58,783	62,934	+4,151
TOTAL	2,52,591	2,53,731	+1,140	2,82,110	2,83,752	+1,642

In both the Mints there was a decrease of fixed establishment charges and an increase of extra establishment charges owing to a pressure of work during the year.

10. Local and English Stores.—In the Calcutta Mint the outlay on stores increased from ₹54,190 in 1888-89 to ₹84,644 in 1889-90. The increased expenditure is due principally to the cost of packing boxes and packing paper for copper coin required for the increased copper coinage. The cost of stores in the Bombay Mint amounted to ₹1,60,476 against ₹1,07,614 in 1888-89. The increase is due to the cost of additional crucibles and to larger quantities of coke and coal being used owing to increased coinage.

11. Pro-forma Charges.—These indirect charges in the two Mints compare with those of the previous year as below:

	CALCUTTA.			BOMBAY.
	1888-89.	1889-90.	Increase + Decrease —	1888-89.	1889-90.	Increase + Decrease —
	₹	₹	₹	₹	₹	₹
Cost of pensions and furlough allowances	31,004	30,402	—602	23,639	20,121	—3,518
Interest on stock and block	3,85,936	3,99,200	+13,264	3,48,980	3,82,737	+33,757
TOTAL	4,16,940	4,29,602	+12,662	3,72,619	4,02,858	+30,239

In both the Mints there has been an increase in the charge for interest, as the average balance of silver bullion during the year was higher than that of the previous year.

12. Miscellaneous Work.—The cost of the miscellaneous work done in the Calcutta Mint during the year was ₹66,429, and the total realisations were ₹73,696, giving a net profit of ₹7,267 against ₹3,685 of the year previous. In the Bombay Mint the net profit amounted to ₹2,050, the cost of the work done being ₹13,031, and the sum realised ₹15,081. The most important of these works was the manufacture in the Calcutta Mint of about 13,000 silver ware medals.

13. Coinage for the British Imperial East Africa Company.—After some correspondence with the British Imperial East Africa Company, the manufacture of silver and copper coins for the Company was undertaken by the Calcutta Mint with the sanction of the Government of India. The coins are of the same weight and fineness as the coins of the Government of India, but the designs on them are such as to prevent their being mistaken for British Indian coins. Four tons of copper coins were coined during the year for the Company, and they have made a requisition for a supply of three tons monthly.

14. Capital Account.—In the Calcutta Mint the balance of the capital account at the close of the year stands at ₹76,34,521, being ₹1,878 less than the figure for the last year. To the capital of the Bombay Mint ₹83,875 were debited during the year on account of buildings and plant, the balance at the close of the year standing at ₹36,72,322.

15. Mint robbery and offences against the coinage.—In June 1889 there was a robbery in the Melting Department of the Bombay Mint of about 700 tolas of standard silver. The offenders have not been discovered, but strong suspicion fell upon a clerk and two weighers of the Mint establishment, who have been dismissed, and better arrangements have been sanctioned for the protection of the Mint buildings and premises.

During the calendar year 1889, 771 cases were brought to trial for offences against the coinage, and 550 persons were convicted. Most of the cases were for "possessing or delivering counterfeited coin," the number of prosecutions for "counterfeiting coin" being 29 only.

II.—WORKING OF THE ASSAY OFFICES.

16. Number of assays made.—The total number of gold assays made during the year in Calcutta was 1,002 against 871 in the previous year. The total number of silver and miscellaneous assays in Calcutta was 10,183, against 10,940 in the year 1888-89, and in Bombay 40,964 against 34,764, or 6,200 in excess, due to the increased manufacture of silver coins during the year.

17. Assays of silver bullion alligated to standard.—The average fineness of silver meltings for coinage in Calcutta was 916·069 per mille against 916·158 per mille in 1888-89. In the Bombay Mint the average fineness was 915·78 as compared with 915·72 per mille in 1888-89.

The average fineness of the gold coinage in the Calcutta Mint was 916·375 per mille against 916·333 per mille in the previous year.

18. Parting assay of silver coins.—The average proportion of gold found in the silver pyx at the Calcutta Mint during the year was 0·753 per mille as contrasted with 1·108 per mille in the previous year, and it is estimated that the whole silver coinage issued during the year contained about 8,246 tolas of pure gold, worth ₹1,89,658.

The average proportion of gold found in the silver pyx coins at the Bombay Mint was ·064 per mille against ·090 in 1888-89.

During the year under review parting assays were systematically made in the Calcutta Mint on the principal classes of silver bullion melted for coinage with the view of ascertaining whether bullion rich in gold might not be profitably refined in order to extract the gold before the silver was coined. The results indicated that it would not be worth while to undertake the refining.

19. Pyx trials of gold mohurs.—The average weight of 30 gold mohurs tested in the Calcutta Mint during the year was 180·017 grains, the lightest piece being found to weigh 179·84 and the heaviest 180·25 grains. The average fineness obtained from 16 assays was 916·531. All these variations are within the limit allowed by the law.

20. Pyx trials of silver coins.—The procedure followed in the Calcutta Mint for testing the weight and fineness of these coins during the year was precisely the same as adopted in last year. In the trials for weight, the total number of coins weighed was 880, of which the lightest was 179·23 grains and the heaviest 180·96 grains. Out of all the coins weighed, 17·38 per cent. proved to be of the exact standard weight of 180 grains. Only two coins in as many different trials were found to be heavy beyond the legal remedy allowed by the Act. A second pyx was in each case examined accordingly, and no unsatisfactory coin being found in the trials, no re-weighments were made.

The tests for fineness of rupees were 87 in number, ₹870 being assayed singly, and ₹1,720 in groups of 20 after melting. The extreme variations in fineness of the coins assayed singly were from 914·8 to 918·6, and consequently no coin was found beyond the legal remedy in fineness. The average fineness of those assayed in groups of 20 after melting was 916·855, the highest and lowest figures for all the meltings being 917·6 to 916·4 per mille.

In the Bombay Mint, out of 764 deliveries during the year, one had to be re-adjusted, as more than one coin was found to be beyond remedy in weight. In the tests for fineness, one lakh of rupee coinage had to be re-melted owing to two coins being found to be high beyond remedy.

The results of the pyx trials are summarised below:

	Total number of coins coined.	Number of coins weighed singly.	Number of coins assayed singly.	Number of coins assayed after melting.	Average weight in grains.	Average fineness of coins assayed singly (per mille).	Average fineness of coins assayed after melting (per mille).	Proportion of gold in pyx coins (per mille).

21. Pyx trials in England.—The result of the examination of the pyx coins of the Indian Mints by the Royal Mint at London was satisfactory, the Deputy Master and Comptroller of the Mint having reported that "the standard weight and fineness of the coins have been maintained with accuracy."

22. The Governor-General in Council acknowledges the efficiency with which the Mint and Assay Departments have been controlled and worked by the officers in charge.

ORDER.—Ordered, that this Resolution be published in the Gazette of India.

Ordered also, that copies of this Resolution be forwarded to the Mint Masters, Calcutta and Bombay (with printed copies of the two reports on the working of the Mints), and to the Assay Masters, Calcutta and Bombay (with printed copies of the two reports on the working of the Assay Departments).

From the Government of Bombay, No. 206, dated the 30th August 1890, and enclosures.

RESOLUTION.—The question raised by the Government of Bengal in the correspondence included under the first of the heads mentioned above extends over a wider range than the treatment of three-decked vessels of the type described. That question may be thus stated: Vessels with a lower deck (between-deck) and upper deck (poop and main decks) have been altered by running a covering (or shade deck) over the main deck, and shutters have been attached to the sides of the main deck for the purpose, as stated by the owners of sheltering the passengers on that deck in rough weather. As the vessels stood originally, the main deck was an upper deck, and the owners contended that the attachment of shutters to it made no material difference, and that they should be allowed to continue to treat it as an upper deck, the shade deck being regarded as an additional upper deck.

2. The Government of Bengal considered that this contention was inadmissible, and that the closing in of the sides with shutters practically converted the main deck into a between-deck. Thus, whereas the owners claimed that such a vessel should be treated as one with two upper decks and one between-deck, the Government of Bengal ordered that it should be treated as a vessel with one upper deck and two between-decks.

3. The order in the case issued by the Government of Bengal was withdrawn on the advice of the Advocate-General that it was not legally competent for the local Government to issue such an order under the terms of the Native Passenger Ships Act. The case is now referred for decision by the Government of India, and in referring it the Government of Bengal expresses the opinion that, if the main deck and the shade deck are both treated as upper decks, the vessels will be able to carry more passengers than they should be allowed to carry; that, in fact, the law and the rules now in force permit of the carriage of an excessive number of passengers; and that they should be amended in such manner as to provide more space for passengers carried on each deck.

4. The questions thus raised are of the first importance alike to the owners of the vessels engaged in this extensive trade and to the Government whose duty it is to require that suitable provision shall be made for the safety and reasonable comfort of native passengers. As regards the classification of the main deck, the Government of Madras has already given a decision contrary to the decision proposed by the Government of Bengal, and such a large proportion of the native passenger traffic is carried on from and to Madras ports that the opinion of the Government of that Presidency is entitled to great consideration in all matters affecting the traffic. Only the Government of Bengal has as yet complained that the law and rules as to the allotment of space permit overcrowding.

5. The question of the treatment of a main deck when covered by a roof and closed at the sides can only be decided after actual investigation of the facts and conditions. Is it the fact that the attachment of shutters deprives the passengers on the main deck of light and air to such an extent as practically to make that deck a between-deck, and to require that additional space on the awning deck should be allotted to the main deck passengers? Or, on the other hand, do the shutters merely improve the conditions of the main deck, giving the passengers additional shelter while they retain all the advantages of an upper deck? The question has given rise to so much controversy between the Government of Bengal and the managing agents of the British India Steam Navigation Company that it is expedient that it should be fully investigated by competent and impartial authorities. His Excellency in Council has accordingly come to the conclusion that the most satisfactory way of dealing with the two questions in issue will be to refer them to a special Commission of Enquiry for consideration. It is proposed that the Commission should consist of a member or members to be nominated by each of the local Governments which are concerned with the native passenger traffic, namely, the Governments of Madras, Bombay, and Bengal, and the Chief Commissioner of Burma. With them should be associated three or four non-official members, representatives of the large shipping companies identified with the same traffic. These companies have their head-quarters at Calcutta and Bombay respectively, and the Chamber of Commerce of each city should be invited to nominate the gentlemen whom it considers most representative of the interests concerned. The Commission will be presided over by Surgeon-Major A. S. Lethbridge, M.D., C.S.I., Inspector-General of Jails in Bengal.

6. The Commission will enquire into the facts at such ports as it considers necessary, and will invite and receive evidence from witnesses. It will probably not be necessary that the non-official members of the Commission should travel with the Commission to any places outside the limits of the Presidency in which they are nominated, but the same facilities for doing so should be given to them as will be given to the official members if they wish to accompany the Commission on its tour. The President will decide, in communication with each local Government, whether or not it will be necessary for any local official member to travel beyond the limits of the administration by which he is nominated.

7. The Commission, after making all needful local enquiries, will return to Calcutta, where it will hear such further evidence as may be placed before it, and settle its report for presentation to Government.

8. The Governor-General in Council considers that it is expedient to take advantage of the appointment of a Commission to refer to it for consideration the other questions touching the operation of the Native Passenger Ships Act which are now before the Government of India.

Of these, the first is a proposal to require the attendance of a medical officer on board native passenger ships. This proposal has been more than once pressed on the Government of India, but has been set aside on the grounds that a medical officer is not required for the passenger traffic beyond Indian limits, this being quite trifling except in regard to pilgrims and emigrants, for which classes the law requires the appointment of a medical officer; and that for passenger traffic within Indian limits there is no real need of a medical officer, the longest voyages being between the Madras and Burman coasts, occupying more than five days only at certain seasons of the year. Most of the traffic is conducted on what are termed in the Act "short voyages," being voyages of not greater duration than 120 hours, as will be seen from the table appended to this Resolution. The Government of Madras now proposes that a medical officer should be required on every vessel, irrespective of the duration of the voyage, when the number of passengers carried exceeds 200: the Chief Commissioner of Burma would require one only on a long voyage when the vessel carries more than 300 passengers; the Government of Bombay would also require one only on a long voyage, but would fix the minimum number of passengers at 100; and the Government of Bengal proposes that a medical officer should be required on every vessel proceeding on a voyage of greater duration than 48 hours, irrespective of the number of passengers.

It will be left to the Commission to endeavour to reconcile these conflicting proposals, and make a recommendation which shall be acceptable alike to the Government and the carrying Companies. It should consider whether a medical officer is required or not; if required, what class of medical officer should be employed, and in what classes of vessels.

9. With these three questions the Commission may also expediently consider the other less important questions raised in the correspondence. These are (1) whether the passenger space in the between-decks of a vessel should be divided by a rail or rope in order to prevent such a calamity as occurred on board the steamer Bhandara when a number of passengers were killed and wounded by being hurled from side to side of the vessel as she rolled heavily in the trough of the sea; (2) whether a luggage rack should be required in such spaces, the space so assigned for luggage to be deducted from the space measured for passengers; (3) whether boats and life-saving appliances should be required in accordance with the requirements of the Board of Trade for passenger vessels; and, if not, whether any, and what, modifications are required in the existing rules. The suggestions of the Port Officer of Bombay made in connection with the foundering of the Vaitarna may also be considered.

10. The Commission will also enquire into any other cognate matters that may be brought before it, or which it may itself consider proper to be examined. In dealing with all these questions, the Commission will bear in mind that the Government is not desirous of imposing on the traffic any restriction which is not essentially required to secure for the passengers the minimum space and quality of accommodation which are necessary for comfort, health, and safety, or which will involve increased expenditure in the form of higher fares in excess of the means of the persons who ordinarily use the vessels in question.

11. On intimation from the local Governments and the Chambers of Commerce at Calcutta and Bombay of the names of the gentlemen whom they propose to serve on the Commission, it will be formally constituted.

ORDER.—Ordered, that copy of the Resolution and of the papers read in the preamble be forwarded to the Governments of Madras, Bombay, and Bengal, and the Chief Commissioner of Burma, with the request that their nominations may be made at an early date.

Ordered also, that copy be forwarded to the Chambers of Commerce at Calcutta and Bombay.

RESOLUTION.

The 12th December, 1890.

Read—

Despatch from the Secretary of State for India, No. 190 (Financial), dated 28th August, 1890.

RESOLUTION.—In this Despatch the Secretary of State deals with the recommendations made in the report of the Select Committee of the House of Commons on East India (Civil Servants). His Excellency the Governor General in Council directs the publication of the decisions arrived at on such of the questions raised as can be disposed of without further reference.

2. In regard to the rate of exchange for payment of pensions, the Secretary of State has decided that all pensions granted in rupees, which are payable at the Home Treasury to residents in the United Kingdom, or which are payable to residents in any other country in which the standard of currency is gold, shall be paid, with effect from the 1st of April, 1890, at the rate of exchange annually fixed for the adjustment of transactions between the British and Indian Governments, subject to the condition that the rate of one shilling and nine pence the rupee is fixed as the minimum rate at which the conversion into sterling shall be effected.

3. In regard to the recommendation of the Committee that some period of furlough should in all cases count as service for pension, the Secretary of State has proposed, and the Government of India has agreed, that one year's leave with allowances in 15 years' service and two years in 25 years' service shall be allowed to count as service for pension, provided that such leave is taken out of India.

4. The recommendation of the Committee that service should qualify for pension from the age of 20, instead of 22, has been accepted.

5. A list of amendments to the Civil Service Regulations is appended to this Resolution, showing the additions and corrections made in accordance with the foregoing decisions.

6. A further Resolution will issue subsequently dealing with the remaining questions regarding the leave and pension rules when they are finally decided.

ORDER.—Ordered, that this Resolution be communicated to all the Departments of the Government of India; to all Local Governments and Administrations; to the Comptroller and Auditor General; to all Accountants General and Comptrollers; the Director General of the Post Office of India; the Mint and Assay Masters, Calcutta and Bombay; the Commissioner of Northern India Salt Revenue; and the Superintendent, Government Printing, India.

No. 1110.—With the sanction of the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India, the Governor-General in Council directs that the changes detailed below be made in regard to the corps named, with effect from the 1st January, 1891, or such subsequent dates as may be practicable :—

I.—The 33rd Regiment of Bengal Infantry, as at present constituted, will be mustered out at Delhi, and to replace it, a regiment of Punjabi Mahomedans, to be styled "THE 33RD (PUNJAB) REGIMENT OF BENGAL INFANTRY," will be formed at Jhelum. The nucleus of the new regiment will primarily be formed from carefully selected volunteers from the 21st, 24th and 28th Regiments of Bengal Infantry, and from the Cis-Indus Punjabi Mahomedans now serving in the various Hindustani regiments; but, where specially recommended, men from other Punjabi regiments will also be eligible for transfer. The regiment will be completed by Punjabi Mahomedan recruits drawn from the neighbourhood of the Indus, from the Salt Range, and from the Rawal Pindi District.

II.—The 38th Regiment of Bengal Infantry, as at present constituted, will be mustered out at Lucknow, and to replace it, a regiment of Dogras, to be styled "THE 38TH (DOGRA) REGIMENT OF BENGAL INFANTRY," will be formed at Sialkot. The nucleus of the new regiment will be formed from carefully selected volunteers from the Dogras now serving in Hindustani regiments, from the Dogra company of the 1st Punjab Infantry (now under reduction to make room for Afridis), and from the Dogra company of the 22nd Bengal Infantry.

III.—The 39th Regiment of Bengal Infantry, as at present constituted, will be mustered out at Jhansi, and to replace it, a regiment of Garhwalis, to be styled "THE 39TH (GARHWALI) REGIMENT OF BENGAL INFANTRY," will be formed from the six companies of Garhwalis now in the 2nd Battalion of the 3rd Gurkha Regiment, and from volunteers from the two companies of hill-men forming part of the present 39th Bengal Infantry. The Garhwali companies of the 2nd Battalion, 3rd Gurkha Regiment (which are now serving in Burma), will take the new designation set forth above, from the date above specified: the re-formed regiment will eventually be stationed at Lansdowne (Kaludanda).

IV.—The 40th Regiment of Bengal Infantry, as at present constituted, will be mustered out at Cawnpore, and to replace it, a regiment of trans-frontier Mahomedans, including Baluchis, to be styled "THE 40TH (BALUCH) REGIMENT OF BENGAL INFANTRY," will be formed at Quetta.

V.—A new 2nd Battalion of the 3rd Gurkha Regiment, to replace the battalion broken up in forming the new 39th Bengal Infantry, will be formed at Lansdowne, to be eventually located at Almora with the 1st Battalion. The nucleus of this battalion will be formed from the two companies of Gurkhas now forming part of the present 2nd Battalion, 3rd Gurkha Regiment.

2. The men now serving in the 33rd, 38th, 39th and 40th Regiments of Bengal Infantry will be disposed of in the following manner :—

I.—The Punjabi Mahomedans who do not belong to the classes designated for the new 33rd Regiment, together with the few Dogras and Sikhs serving in these corps, will be permitted to volunteer for transfer to the establishment or the reserve of any of the Punjabi regiments which enlist those classes.

II.—Jats and Hindustanis.—A careful selection will be made from the men of these classes now serving in these corps (all men whose retention in the service is from any cause considered undesirable being eliminated), and these selected men will be allowed the option of transfer to the establishment or the reserve of any Hindustani regiment they may select. The remainder, together with all Native officers and non-commissioned officers, will be discharged on the following rates of pension and gratuity :—

(a) The superior rates of pensions specified in Art. 500 (a), Army Regulations, India, Vol. I, Part II, to officers, non-commissioned officers and men who have completed 25 years of service and upwards.

(b) The ordinary rates of pensions to all officers, non-commissioned officers and men who have completed 14 years' service, and have less than 25 years' service, with a bonus of one month's pay (including good-conduct pay) for every two years' service.

3. Free passes by rail to their homes will be given to all officers, non-commissioned officers and men discharged on pension or gratuity under these orders.

6. The British officers will be selected by the Commander-in-Chief, Madras, as far as possible from volunteers from the Madras Army, but the British officers now serving with the Police Battalion about to be converted, if belonging to another Presidency, may receive suitable appointments in the new corps, for a period of three years, should they be willing to remain with it and should it be desired to retain their services with it.

7. The rule [Article 266, Clause (a), Army Regulations, India, Vol. I, Part I] requiring commandants to vacate on completion of seven years' tenure, will not, for the present, be applied to the commandant of the corps now formed.

8. The pay and allowances of the British officers of this corps will be the same as those allowed for the Native Infantry of the Indian Army, but in consideration of the circumstances of local service in Burma, each British officer will receive, in addition, a local allowance of R100 per mensem, and will also be eligible for the indulgence of three months' privilege leave in each year.

9. The British officers of this corps, belonging to the Madras Army will be eligible for general staff employment, in the same way as all other officers of that Army. They will be subject to

15. Former service in the police battalion and in the Army will count towards the period of service required for the grant of good-conduct pay and pension.

16. All ranks, including Native officers, will be granted free rations, as in Army Regulations, India Vol. V, para. 522.

17. Furlough and leave will be granted under the regulations in force in the Bengal Army.

20. The 4th Regiment of Burma Infantry will be composed in the first instance of Punjabis, but hereafter Karens, Shans and Kachins may be enlisted for it.

21. In view of the excess of senior officers at present in the Madras Army, the commandant to be displaced, or one commandant of the Madras Army or other officer of that standing to be selected by the Commander-in-Chief in that Presidency, will be eligible to retire on a pension of £150 per annum, in addition to the pension to which he may be entitled under the regulations.

22. The Native officers, non-commissioned officers, and men now serving in the 32nd Madras Infantry will cease to be borne on the rolls thereof from the 31st January next, and will be disposed of as follows:—

(b) Native officers, non-commissioned officers and men of 15 years' service and upwards will be transferred to the pension establishment on the ordinary pension of their rank (irrespective of the period they may have served therein), plus rice compensation, with the option, in the case of non-commissioned officers and men, of joining the garrison reserve, and in the case of privates only who have not completed 21 years' service of being transferred to other regiments.

(c) Native officers, non-commissioned officers and men of more than 10 and less than 15 years' service to be transferred to the pension establishment on two-thirds of the ordinary rate of pension of their rank (irrespective of the period they may have served therein), plus rice compensation, with the option, in the case of non-commissioned officers and men, of joining the garrison reserve, and in the case of privates of being transferred to other regiments.

(d) Non-commissioned officers and men of more than 5 years' and less than 10 years' service will receive a gratuity of one month's pay (including good-conduct pay) for each year of service, and join the active reserve, or have the option of being transferred to other regiments.
