This man is a trained Sanitary Inspector. There seemed no reason for exempting him for the Salt & Akkari Dept. & so taking him away from the work for which he was trained.

24.4.08

27.4.08

There are a considerable number of trained Sanitary Inspectors who have no employment, and I do not think that exemption should be refused merely on the ground stated by Mr. Parson. The man has endeavored to better himself, and, although end in view, he worked for some time in a clerical post on R. 15. & is reported to have acquitted himself well as Sub Inspector. In times of epidemic J. B. frequently undertakes on the Salt & Abhari Dept. for men to be placed on special Plague duty, and this man to ~~be placed~~ ^{be placed} in Plague work should stand him good stead.

He deserves to obtain a permissible post in J. B. service - whether of a permanent or permissible post in local & Municipal service. I do not think that the mere fact that a man has undergone training & has had practical experience as Sanitary Inspector should operate as a bar to his employment in J. B. service, if otherwise qualified.

In this case the applicant is not qualified for the post of Sub Inspector, & it is not stated that qualified candidates cannot be obtained. Whether exemption in this case is desirable in the interests of the Sep. Rev. Dept. it is for Revenue to decide. But I do not think that exemption, if deemed otherwise desirable, should be refused merely on the ground that the man is a Sanitary Inspector. A further reference

Certainly to the order work do.
We don't want to man as a Sanitary Inspector. Whether he is he exempted or not this is Rev to day - I'd say that there were no special grounds for his exemption.
The fact that he has been trained as a Sanitary Inspector need not be taken into consideration unless as a fact that officer's such training is useful.
