This does not answer the question at all. It refers to girls' age.
The question refers to grown-up girls and women.

The draft answer may be amended to this effect

No scholarships are available for women who have passed the age of twenty-two years or of twenty-four years in the case of Native women.

For the condition under which scholarships are awarded to persons below that age the Harbour Master is referred to C.O. no 1623.

Revenue dated 17th May 1910 which has been placed on the Editor's table. There are 199 scholarships in all of which 50 were awarded to girls in 1910
