Sir, Through the Principal Presidency College.

I have the honour to submit that a simple guide to the wild and introduced plants of the hill stations of S. India has long been considered desirable in the interests alike of visitors and residents in these places, and of science. The latter especially as the plants there are utterly different from those on the plains, and appear to be largely relicts left of a previous wide distribution when the climate was perhaps cooler, of genera now confined at sea level to Northern Europe and America or New Zealand. The bearing of this on the Science of the Geography and distribution of plants, will be clear, and also the desirability of an investigation on these lines, from the point of view of all the new and advanced Honours Course which I shall have to conduct. Hitherto the expense of publishing an illustrated Flora has prevented anything being done, but the Secretary of the Bombay Natural History Society has expressed his willingness to undertake the publishing of such a guide in their journal.

I have the honour to be
Sir

P. F. Fyfe

* Note I propose to spend the first three or four weeks of the vacation on the Ghats of Mysore, in order to study for the benefit of my college work the Botany of that district, which is specially rich in plants at elevations ^{of a character} ~~and~~ intermediate between the plains and the hills. Except to do the 'Flora' work I would not visit either of the places mentioned above in the body of this letter.
