These 13 men are all over 45 years of age and 20 years' service. They must therefore have been over 40 years of age when G.O.No.936 Revenue, dated 22nd April 1907 was passed. Some of them were then also over 20 years' service but had not yet become liable to pass the examination in a 2nd language, while --- others, though over 40 years' of age, were not then over 20 years' service. It would perhaps not be unreasonable to exempt these 13 from further liability regarding Test E in a second language. They have at most only 9 years more to serve before they reach 55, in some cases much less. If it is thought that to exempt men of 46 is going too far, the exemption may be limited to men over 46, in which case only 8 men will be exempted.
