2. I do not advise the supply of Government publications free of cost to the association.

3. Editors of Newspapers are not supplied with copies of the Educational publications such as the Madras Educational Rules , Grant-in-Aid Code, courses of instruction for elementary schools &c., free of cost, the only exception being the Editor, Madras Educational Review. Compliance with the Association's request will, it is feared, create an inconvenient precedent, having regard to the fact that an enormous number of these associations exists at present all over the Presidency. It would be not so much the value of the books &c. to be supplied that would stand in the way of the Association's request being complied with, as the clerical work that will be entailed in the Government Press in connection with the supply. This or any other Association can easily procure exactly what it wants at a very small cost.

This particular association is said to consist of about 20 rich Mirasdars and it is probably more the trouble than the expense that they wish to avoid.
