Educational R.O.

Educational Department.

The Manager of the Panini office, Allahabad, requests that the name of that office may be included in the "distribution list of such government publications as bear on Sanskrit learning." The Sanskrit publications of Government are now supplied free of cost, to persons and institutions interested in Sanskrit learning according to a distribution list issued by the Govt. of India and the latest list is that given in G.O. No. 333 Educational, dated 3rd July 1912. The name of the Panini office does not appear in this list, though in August 1909 the Govt. of India informed this Government that it had been included in the list. It is not known why the name has been omitted in the revised list. On a previous occasion when the Manager, Panini office, Allahabad, applied to this Government for the free supply to that office of certain Government publications, a reference was made to the Government of the United Provinces, and on the recommendation of that Government the request of the Panini office was complied with. It is for consideration whether on the strength of that recommendation the Panini office may now be supplied with all Government Sanskrit publications, or the Manager may be told that the free supply of Government publications will be made only to those persons and institutions whose names are included in the list issued by the Govt. of India.

2. The draft order may, however, be now accepted in Educational.

S.K. 2-2-13.
