ORDINARY MS.

G.O., No. 342

DATED 21.4 1913.

[Despatch Abstract.]

Legislative Council Resolving office note
Connected with the question asked by the Hon^{ble}
Mr. S. S. Krishna Rao Pantulu at a meeting after — held on the 22 April 1913, regarding the payment of gratuity or superannuation allowance, Teachers in Secondary schools

Legislative Department. 2

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.

The Hon'ble Mr. A.S. Krishna Rao Pantulu.

- 67.(a) Is it a fact that any gratuity or superannuation allowance paid to teachers in secondary schools is not recognized as an item of expenditure for the purpose of determining teaching grants? 912 it would appear from the L.P. process.
- (b) Is it a fact that grants are not given in aid of schools under private management, for the payment of gratuities or superannuation allowances to teachers, unless there are endowments started for that purpose? towards the creation of funds for teachers.
- (c) Is it a fact that the managers of most of the schools are not in a position to start any endowment for the purpose of providing gratuities or superannuation allowance to teachers? Section.
- (d) Is the Government aware that there are some managers of secondary schools that are able and willing to set apart some sums annually, from private sources other than school fees, for the payment of gratuities or superannuation allowances to teachers.
- (e) Will the Government be pleased to take steps to modify the rules relating to grant-in-aid so as to afford help to such secondary schools, equal in amount to what the management may annually contribute, for the payment of ~~gratuities~~ gratuities and superannuation allowances to teachers?

There is no definite information as to whether gratuities or superannuation allowances paid to teachers in secondary schools are taken into account in fixing the grant payable to the school. From the D.P.L. proceedings CM 3988 of 14th May 1912 printed on pages 2+3 of G.O. No 5988 of 5th July 1912 it ~~seems~~ appears that grants are sanctioned by the W.P.C. toward the creation of provident funds for teachers. He may, it is submitted, be requested to suggest answers to the several parts of the question.

(a) Will the Government be pleased to take steps to modify the rules relating to grant-in-aid so as to afford help to such secondary schools, equal in amount to what the management may annually contribute, for the payment of teachers' salaries and superannuation allowances to teachers.

(b) Is the Government aware that there are some managers of secondary schools that are able to pay salaries to their teachers from private sources other than school fees, for the payment of gratuities or superannuation allowances to teachers.

(c) Is it a fact that the managers of most of the schools in which there are endowments started for that purpose, do not pay any salaries to their teachers, for the payment of gratuities or superannuation allowances to teachers.

(d) Is it a fact that grants are not given in aid of determining teaching salaries?

(e) Is it a fact that any gratuity or superannuation allowance paid to teachers in secondary schools is not recognised as an item of expenditure for the purpose of determining teaching salaries?

an outlay that was considered reasonable was admitted as expenditure ^{was} ~~was~~ ^{taken} ~~therefore~~ into ~~the~~ calculation in determining the amount of grant payable.

No alteration of the grant-in-aid code is necessary to allow for continuance of this practice.

Should it be found possible to institute a General Provident Fund for teachers such payments for scribbles be discontinued, in the meantime it is hoped that funds will permit of their being made.

Draft answer to Question No: 67.

All outlay looked upon as reasonable was treated as admissible expenditure last year and included in the calculations made for the purpose of determining the amount of grant payable. No alteration of the Grant-in-Aid Code is necessary to allow of the continuance of this practice. But if it is found possible to institute a general provident fund for teachers, such payments will doubtless be discontinued; in the meantime it is hoped that the funds available will permit of their being made.

The question & answers are finally settled as follows:—

Pensions for teachers in aided secondary schools.

Question 66. (a) Is it a fact that any gratuity or superannuation allowance paid to teachers in secondary schools is not recognized as an item of expenditure for the purpose of determining teaching grants?

(b) Is it a fact that grants are not given in aid of schools under private management for the payment of gratuities or superannuation allowances to teachers, unless there are endowments started for that purpose?

(c) Is it a fact that the managers of most of the schools are not in a position to start any endowment for the purpose of providing gratuities or superannuation allowances to teachers?

(d) Is the Government aware that there are some managers of secondary schools that are able and willing to set apart some sums annually from private sources other than school fees for the payment of gratuities or superannuation allowances to teachers?

(e) Will the Government be pleased to take steps to modify the rules relating to grant-in-aid so as to afford help to such secondary schools, equal in amount to what the management may annually contribute, for the payment of gratuities and superannuation allowances to teachers?

Answer 66—

All outlay looked upon as reasonable was treated as admissible expenditure last year and included in the calculations made for the purpose of determining the amount of grant payable. No alteration of the Grant-in-Aid Code is necessary to allow of the continuance of this practice. But if it is found possible to institute a general provident fund for teachers, such payments will doubtless be discontinued; in the meantime it is hoped that the funds available will permit of their being made.

No further action is necessary in this case. The papers may be recorded. The draft below is for approval.
