(a) Information regarding the present number of girls' schools supported or aided from public funds is not available. The latest information available is for 1913-14 and this is given on pages 50--59 of the subsidiary tables appended to Volume II of the Public Instruction Report for 1913-14. Similar tables for 1914-15 have not yet been received from the Director of Public Instruction and a proof copy has been asked for from his office, in advance.

(b) The total number of teachers in those schools and their qualifications are given in columns 9(a) to (d) of the subsidiary tables, but information as to the number of male and female teachers ~~is~~ not separately given therein.

In regard to Government schools ^{only} information as to the number of male and female teachers ~~and~~ together with their qualifications is contained in pages 14--50 of Volume II of the "List of officers and appointments in the "Educational Department" corrected up to 1st January 1915.

(c) The number of assistant and sub-assistant inspectresses is given on pages 117, 118 and 122 of volume I of the list already referred to.

There is no information as to how many assistant and sub-assistant inspectors are supervising the work of elementary girls' schools.

(d) and (e). No information is available in the Secretariat on these points.

(f).. The scheme for the reorganization of female inspecting agency now before Government contains no provision for the employment of lady supervisors, but it provides for the addition of eight sub-assistant inspectresses.

(g) In view of the answer to (f), this part of the question does not require separate answer.

(a). I am having list prepared for foot. lab. lab. and and schools respectively and will send them very shortly.

(c). I don't quite know what this means. There are two & male sub-assistant acting in files ranges at present owing to the difficulty of getting suitable women. Sometimes we deputise sub-assistant Inspectors to examine files schools when the women inspecting officers have more than they can manage. There is no systematic supervision of files schools by the male officers of the range.

- (d) The two officers I have mentioned above were selected for their special qualifications for the work. Of course they are trained teachers and equally of course they were not trained in public schools.
- (e). It is the duty of the inspecting staff to visit all schools under them at least once in a year and I have no reason to suppose that they do not do at least this. There are not figures in this office.
- (f). Information is in your office.
- (g). Except when absolutely necessary, as noted above male officers do not visit public schools and I do not think it desirable that they should.

(b) the number of female teachers and male teachers in these schools and how many of them are trained;

(c) how many Assistant Inspectresses and how many Sub-Assistant Inspectresses are there in the Presidency at present and how many Assistant Inspectors and Sub-Assistant Inspectors are supervising the work of elementary girls' schools;

(g) in the absence of any such scheme, whether the Government will be pleased to consider the desirability of directing the supervisors and Sub-Assistant Inspectors of boys' schools to visit and inspect the girls' schools as well?

Elementary girls' schools in the Presidency and their establishment and supervision.

148 A.—(a) & (b). Lists giving the particulars asked for will be placed on the Editors' Table.

(c) The attention of the Honourable Member will be invited to pages 117, 118 and 122 of Volume I of the "List of officers and appointments in the Educational Department" as it stood on the 1st January 1915.

Owing to the difficulty of securing the services of suitable women, two male sub-assistant inspectors are acting in girls' ranges at present. Except for the occasional deputation of sub-assistant inspectors to examine girls' schools when the female inspecting officers have more than they can manage, there is no systematic supervision of girls' schools by male officers.

(d) The two sub-assistant inspectors referred to above were trained teachers and were selected on account of their special qualifications for the work.

(e) It is the duty of the inspecting officers to visit all schools in their charges at least once a year. The Government have no figures of the number of inspections made but see no reason to suppose that the minimum number of inspections required was not made.

(f) A scheme for the reorganization of the inspecting agency is under consideration.

(g) The Government do not consider this desirable if adequate inspection can be secured by other means.
