2. As regards Dr. Marsden's work, I am to say that soon after he arrived in Madras he visited the several dyeing centres in the Presidency with a view to ^{acquaintance} ~~to~~ (himself ~~acquainted~~ with the methods of dyeing followed by Indian dyers. A small laboratory was there ^{after} ~~upon~~ provided for him at Madura to enable him to conduct experiments ^{with a view to} ~~for~~ improving the indigenous methods of dyeing; and there he opened experimental dyeing classes for the sons of weavers and dyers. These classes were continued till the beginning of 1914, when they had to be closed closed owing to the unsatisfactory nature of the temporary accommodation provided. Shortly after this, he was deputed to assist the Director of ~~Kadma~~ Industries at Madras in connection with the meetings of two committees appointed by Government to discuss general principles in regard to industrial education. During his stay in Madras he also helped the Director in the industrial experiments undertaken by him and in the development of a Bureau of Industrial Information. His time was also largely engaged in investigating and answering enquiries from various parts of the Presidency in regard to dyestuffs - natural as well as synthetic. When the new buildings for the Madura Technical Institute, which are under construction, are ready, Dr. Marsden will open and hold regular dyeing classes

classes there.
