I have the honour to invite your attention to the letter of Sir Thomas Whittaker M.P. chairman of the Royal commission on paper in England printed in the Times of May 18, 1916 inviting the municipal authorities throughout the country to organize a system of collecting waste paper in their respective localities, and venture to suggest that in this country something might be done in the same direction. In Government offices alone in this country a considerable quantity of old paper which is at present burned might possibly be repulped by paper manufacturers and if this could be done it would assist in developing the paper industry in India where at present only few paper mills exist. If this suggestion be approved, it might be considered by the Commission on Industries in this country.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

Abington
District Judge.

COLLECTION OF WASTE PAPER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES.

Sir,—I am desired by the Royal Commission on Paper to ask you to allow me, through your columns, to invite the municipal authorities throughout the country to organize a system of collecting waste paper in their respective localities. Waste paper is now valuable, and is much needed by paper makers, owing to the impossibility of obtaining adequate supplies of paper-making materials from the ordinary sources abroad. There is no organized industry for collecting it, and our suggestion is that the municipal authorities should undertake the work. We are assured that it would be remunerative, and certainly it would be a valuable service rendered to paper users. If the proceeds were devoted locally to aiding sufferers from the war it would not be difficult to secure the cooperation of the public. We are told that paper makers would welcome, and gladly arrange to take, this addition to their supply of paper-making material. I hear that some corporations—Birmingham and Eastbourne, to wit—are already doing something in the direction suggested.

Yours, &c.,

THOS. P. WHITTAKER, Chairman of the Commission.

C. No. 2380 From the DE Judge, Finimvelly No. 2940, dated 26. 6. 1906.

SUBJECT.

Suggesting that waste paper in public offices may be collected & used for the manufacture of paper-pulp.

para 45-

cf.

Under the rules of the Stationery Manual waste paper accumulated in public offices should be sold periodically. From the letter of the District Judge of Finimvelly it appears that this rule is not strictly followed in several offices and that a large quantity of waste paper is being burnt. A copy of the letter with an extract from this note may be sent to the Financial Department to consider the question whether any further instructions should be issued on the matter.

2. The waste paper sold from public offices is apparently even now used for the manufacture locally of some kind of rough material - like card board, &c. A copy of the letter may perhaps be sent to the Director of Industries and Commerce for such action as they they deem fit to take. It may be left to them to place the matter before the Industrial Commission or not.
