Sir,

3. Having started service in the Salt Department I spent the early part of my official life in qualifying myself for that department by passing the principal tests, among others Test A (Criminal) which embraces practically the same subjects as the Criminal Test in the Revenue Department, and it is hard luck that I should now be required to pass the Criminal Higher Test and that that test should block my way to promotion to the post of deputy collector.

5. I beg to request that, in consideration of the above facts,

(i) Salt Test A (Criminal) in which I have passed may be taken as equivalent to the Criminal Test Higher Grade, and

I beg to remain,
Sir,
Your most obedient servant,

P. Castelino.

The only matter which requires decision at present is whether Salt Test A may be accepted as the equivalent of Criminal Higher. The two tests are compared in my note dated 12th September 1907 on page 14 of notes 703, as follows:-

Criminal Higher.	Salt Test A.
Indian Penal Code.	Indian Penal Code.
Criminal Procedure Code.	Criminal Procedure Code.
Indian Evidence Act.	Indian Evidence Act.
Medical Jurisprudence.

I do not think that the fact that the Salt Test A does not include Medical Jurisprudence need make us force a man who has passed once in the Indian Penal Code, Criminal Procedure Code and Indian Evidence Act to pass a second time. Salt Test A was accepted as sufficient to secure exemption from Criminal Higher in the case of Deputy Collectors Mr. Waite and Mr. Green and I think it may now be so generally accepted, without any special reference to the case of Mr. Castelino.

A draft of the section
- up the permanent exemption of Mr. P. Leavelle from the biennial judicial test, higher grade, is submitted.

2. It is presumed that no general orders ~~relating~~ declaring the Salt Test A. to be equivalent to the biennial highest test are necessary with reference to the note at A in page 1 ante. It does not seem to be intended that such orders should issue; the point will be borne in mind in dealing with similar cases.
