The D.P.I. furnishes the info asked for in para 2 of O.M. dated the 11th April 1917. It was transmitted to the Govt of India 2. Under the head 'training teachers of the elementary' the Director points out that training schools (one higher and the other lower elementary) have been opened temporarily that one temporary school has been retained permanent ~~these relate to the years 1916 & 1917~~ It is submitted that since the beginning of 1914 when the programme was up to the Govt of India, this Govt. sanctioned the opening of the mentioned temporary higher + lower elementary training classes:—

- Madras—higher elementary school with lower elementary class
- Ellore— " " " "
- Berhampur—higher elementary class in an existing lower elementary school

the number trained is given only for 1913-14 & 1914-15, for the remaining
period the improvement effected, being given in the form of number of schools opened. This difference is not conducive to an easy comparison between 'measures proposed' & 'measures

this defect, the total of the maximum

ELEMENTARY EDUCATION.

Training of teachers.

Measures proposed.

One thousand additional teachers to be trained annually in a two years' course by temporary arrangements.

Measures introduced.

- (1) The special batch of lower elementary teachers whose training was sanctioned by Government in June 1912 for 22 months continued during 1913-14 also.
- (2) Again in August 1913 the training of a second special batch (695 lower elementary and 40 higher elementary) was sanctioned by Government for 22 months and this batch continued during 1913-14 and 1914-15.
- (3) Six temporary training schools of the lower elementary grade were made permanent and four additional training schools were made permanent.

The status of the lower elementary training school for Muhammadans at Madras was raised permanently to the higher elementary grade.

- (4) Four additional higher elementary and four lower elementary training classes have been opened in certain places on a temporary basis with provision for the training of 105 higher elementary and 130 lower elementary teachers in each batch of three. Three higher & two lower elementary classes were opened in 1914-15 & the rest in 1916-17.

Improvement of pay.

Measures proposed.

- (1) Minimum pay of trained and approved teachers to be raised to Rs.12 and of other teachers to Rs.10.
- (2) Pay of teachers in board schools to be raised to a graduated scale starting from Rs.12; grants to aided schools to be increased so as to enable them to carry out corresponding improvements.

Measures introduced.

- (1) In 1913-14, rule 83 of the Madras Educational Rules was amended by which the teachers in all grades of elementary schools were made eligible for capitation allowance and the list of backward classes was enlarged. To meet the additional demands under capitation allowance resulting from the above, a recurring annual subsidy of Rs.1,14,300 has been granted to local bodies since 1913-14.
- (2) As the above sum was found insufficient to meet the demands in full the Government sanctioned in 1916-17 a further recurring subsidy of Rs.1,15,296.

para 2(a), p. 5 of C.F.

SECONDARY EDUCATION.

Training of teachers.
