GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.
INDIAN MUNITIONS BOARD.

MEMORANDUM.

Dated Delhi, the 26th December 1917.

Owing to the extreme difficulty of obtaining tin, iron and steel sheets for the manufacture of drums and other receptacles for articles such as paints, oils, etc., it is essential that care should be taken in the preservation of such receptacles in order that the fullest use possible may be made of them.

2. Complaints have been made to the Indian Munitions Board that manufacturers find great difficulty in getting customers to return receptacles in which goods have been sent out. Manufacturers charge only a nominal amount for these receptacles, and customers apparently consider that they are at liberty to retain the receptacles after payment of this nominal charge. It should, however, be realised that when receptacles have been specially made for a manufacturer's products it is highly desirable that they should be returned to the manufacturer for re-filling rather than that they should be sold in the bazaar even when higher prices than the nominal prices charged by the manufacturers can be obtained.

3. The Government of India, therefore, trust that all officials will do their best to preserve all metal receptacles and whenever desired will return them to the manufacturers in good condition for re-filling.
