Government Order, Home (Education) Department.

Dated 24th July 1918.

No. 972-

Reference thereon No. 1325, dated 15th August 1918.

In their Order No. 972, Home (Education) Department, dated 24th July 1918, Government have permanently exempted S. Apadharana Sastri, typewriting Clerk in the Settlement branch of the Board's office, from the provisions of Article 1 of the Public Service Notification with a view to his employment employment as clerk on pay not exceeding Rs. 35 per mensem in any department of the public service. Prior to his exemption, Apadharana Sastri had been drawing a permanent pay of Rs. 35 as typewriting clerk and his permanent exemption from the examination rules was sought for to enable him to hold appointments in the clerical line. The exemption now granted is of no material benefit to him as it does not enable him to draw more than what he has already been drawing. The Board accordingly requests that Government will be pleased to permit him to hold appointments in the clerical line on a pay of over Rs. 35 a month.

Further exemption from exam. rules of S. Apadharana Sastri, a typist in the office of the Board of Rev. (R.S.)

le-1757/B, from the Board of Rev. (R.S. 1325, 15.8.18)

In the Board's reply disposed of in G.O. No. 972 Edn., dt/24.7.18

July 1918, exemption for app't: up to Rs 35 p.m. was asked for and it was granted, the Revenue Dept. also having supported the app'l. The Board now states that the exemption will not benefit the clerk as he is already drawing a pay of Rs 35 as typist and therefore asks for an unlimited exemption. If the ^{present} application is to be favourably considered, it seems necessary to set a limit of pay up to which the clerk may be allowed to rise.

In the Sastri's, similar exemptions granted in recent years have limited the pay to Rs 60, that being the topmost pay in the lowest division. The remarks ~~of~~ of the Rev. Dept. may be obtained w/o as to the limit of pay upto which the clerk in the present case may be exempted
