XLIX This Council recommends to the Governor in Council to open additional training schools in the Presidency.

Home (Education) Department

Attention is solicited to para 52, 51, 53, 56 and 59 of the Report on Public Instruction for the quinquennium ending 1916-17, which set out the progress made in the provision of additional facilities for the training of teachers during the quinquennium.

3. Collegiate Institutions.- With a view to provide facilities for the training of Telugu teachers, the Government Training College at Rajahmundry was re-opened in July 1917. A class for the training of L.T. students was ^{also} opened in the St. Josephs College, Trichinopoly, the cost being met from the Imperial recurring grant of four lakhs sanctioned by the Government of India last year.

3. Training Schools for Masters.- During the quinquennium ending 1916-17, ^{eight} higher elementary and two lower elementary schools - four of these being temporary - were opened and a temporary secondary training class was also opened at Berhampore for the benefit of ~~the~~ Uriyas. Special batches of students were also admitted in some years into almost all training schools. The number under training rose from 3553 in 1913 to 3940 in 1917. With the aid of the Imperial recurring grant of four lakhs sanctioned by the Government of India in 1917, the Government sanctioned the opening of new training institutions under Government or private management. These institutions provide for the training of additional teachers as shown below:-

In G.O.No.835,Home(Education)dated the 25th June 1918, the Government sanctioned the opening temporarily for a period of three years, of a higher elementary training class in the Govt.Training School at Chicacole. Recently the Govt.have also sanctioned the opening at Bezwada, through the agency of the C.M.S.Mission, of a school for ^{the training of} Panchamas. Proposals for the opening of a temporary higher elementary training school at Amalapur are now under consideration. The recent orders of Government raising the rates of stipendiary grants ^{to} ~~in~~ aided institutions to the full amount of stipends allowed in Government institutions will tend to raise appreciably the number of students admitted into ~~to~~ aided institutions. Further, a portion of the Imperial recurring grant of 5½ lakhs sanctioned by the Govt.of India in the current year may be available for opening additional training schools.

4. Training Schools for Mistresses.- The number of mistresses under training rose from 444 in 1918 to 799 in 1917. Among the new schools opened, may be mentioned the Government Secondary and Training School, Triplicane and the higher elementary training school for mistresses at Cuddalore. The Coimbatore Government Training School ^{was} ~~has~~ also raised to the secondary grade in 1916.

5. Attention is solicited to the letter to the Government of India No.471,Home(Education),dated the 11th April 1918 from which it will be seen that the Government are fully alive ^{to} the need for providing additional facilities for the training of teachers in the Presidency. The question is however mainly one of funds. When the Elementary Education Bill

NOTES CONNECTED WITH A RESOLUTION ON MATTERS OF GENERAL PUBLIC INTEREST.

[For the meeting of 19th November 1918.]

[SUBJECT.—Opening of additional training schools.]

HOME (EDUCATION) DEPARTMENT.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO PANTULU:—

XLIX. This Council recommends to the Governor in Council to open additional training schools in the Presidency.

Attention is solicited to paragraphs 52, 81, 82, 86 and 89 of the Report on Public Instruction for the quinquennium ending 1916-17 which set out the progress made in the provision of additional facilities for the training of teachers during the quinquennium.

2. Collegiate institutions.—With a view to provide facilities for the training of Telugu teachers, the Government Training College at Rajahmundry was reopened in July 1917. A class for the training of L.T. students was also opened in the St. Joseph's College, Trichinopoly, the cost being met from the Imperial recurring grant of 4 lakhs sanctioned by the Government of India last year (G.O. No. 1433, dated 15th November 1917).

3. Training schools for masters.—During the quinquennium ending 1916-17, eight higher elementary and two lower elementary schools—four of these being temporary—were opened and a temporary secondary training class was also opened at Berhampur for the benefit of Uriyas. Special batches of students were also admitted in some years into almost all training schools. The number under training rose from 2,552 in 1912 to 3,940 in 1917. With the aid of the Imperial recurring grant of 4 lakhs sanctioned by the Government of India in 1917, the Government sanctioned the opening of new training institutions under Government or private management (G.O. No. 1433, dated 15th November 1917). These institutions provide for the training of additional teachers as shown below:—

Grade.	Number of additional teachers provided for.
Secondary grade	175
Higher elementary grade	120
Lower elementary grade	40

In G.O. No. 835, Home (Education), dated the 25th June 1918, the Government sanctioned the opening temporarily for a period of three years of a higher elementary training class in the Government training school at Chicacole. Recently the Government have also sanctioned the opening at Bezvada, through the agency of the C.M.S. Mission of a school for the training of Panchamas. Proposals for the opening of a temporary higher elementary training school at Amalapur are now under consideration. The recent orders of Government raising the rates of stipendiary grants to aided institutions to the full amount of stipend allowed in Government institutions will tend to raise appreciably the number of students admitted into aided institutions. Further, a portion of the Imperial recurring grant of 5½ lakhs sanctioned by the Government of India in the current year may be available for opening additional training schools (G.O. No. 1336, dated 11th October 1918).

4. Training schools for mistresses.—The number of mistresses under training rose from 444 in 1912 to 799 in 1917. Among the new schools opened may be mentioned the Government secondary and training school, Triplicane, and the higher elementary training school for mistresses at Cuddalore. The Coimbatore Government training school was also raised to the secondary grade in 1916 (G.O. No. 581, dated 3rd May 1917).

5. Attention is solicited to the letter to the Government of India, No. 471, Home (Education), dated the 11th April 1918, from which it will be seen that the Government are fully alive to the need for providing additional facilities for the training of teachers in the Presidency. The question is however mainly one of funds. When the Elementary Education Bill now under consideration becomes law more funds will be forthcoming for the training of teachers.

6. Orders are requested whether the resolution should be discussed at the Executive Council whether further particulars should be called for and as to who should be in charge of it.

C. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR—4-11-18.

To Director of Public Instruction for remarks. Any additional proposals or information in his office?

R. RAMACHANDRA RAO—5-11-18.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION.

I intend addressing the Government on the desirability of opening two training schools for mistresses—one at Nellore and another for Muhammadan mistresses at Trichinopoly. I have also under consideration the opening of secondary training classes at Vizianagram, Nandyal and Salem, but these schemes have not been worked out yet. These will be for male teachers. I think I may safely say that we are opening as many schools as funds permit.
