Rule 6(h) of the rules relating to the Provident Fund for teachers provides that, in cases where a subscriber, at the time of his retirement, is entitled only to his own contributions with interest, and not to the contributions by the management, the amount unpaid should be credited to the Govt. The D. I. C., Saidapet, p. 2 suggests that the rule should be amended so as to provide that the amount unpaid should be refunded to the management.

2 At the time when amendments to the Provident Fund rules were under consideration, the Missionary Educational Council of South India made a similar suggestion. The

The Director then pointed out that the suggested amendment was open to two objections: —

(1) that the teacher might have taught in six or seven schools, the management of each school having contributed some amount and that it would ~~be~~ be difficult to distribute the amount due to each manager, since both principal and interest were involved;

(ii) that it seemed fair for the Government to reserve to itself such lapses as a set off against the expenses of running such a large scheme as the present one.

The Board agreed with the Director and no change was, therefore, made in the rules.

3 The D. & C., ~~entirely~~, and the Association of managers of aided schools in the Punjab made representations on the subject and their requests were negatived by the Govt. A draft order declining to accept the proposed amendment is submitted.
