PUBLIC DEPARTMENT.

READ—again the following paper:—

G.O., No. 724, Public, dated 27th July 1900.

ABSTRACT.—Requesting the Departments of the Secretariat and Heads of Departments to give effect to the decision of the Government of India regarding the forms of punishment to be inflicted on members of the clerical and ministerial establishments in all Secretariat and other Government offices.

READ—also the following papers:—

From the Government of India, Home Department, No. 2895, dated 29th October 1900.

To the Government of India, Home Department, No. 22, Public, dated 10th January 1901.

From the Government of India, Home Department, No. 315, dated 30th January 1901.

ORDER—No. 184, Public, dated 19th February 1901.

The orders of the Government of India regarding the abolition of fining among clerical establishments, as conveyed in the proceedings read again above, appear to have been misapprehended in some instances. The following instructions received from the Government of India are accordingly communicated to heads of departments for information and guidance.

2. The orders forbidding the imposition of fines should be limited to establishments which are employed exclusively on clerical work and they should not be held to apply to employes in any department or office who have executive as well as clerical duties to perform as, for instance, subordinates in the Revenue department, booking clerks on railways, subordinate officers in the Jail department, members of the line establishment in the Telegraph department, postmasters and others, subordinates in the Postal department, and any other persons similarly situated who combine clerical with other duties. The orders must also be interpreted with a further limitation, viz., that they are not intended to prevent the fining of persons exclusively employed on clerical duties, who are liable to fine under the provisions of the particular Act under which they are entertained. Thus clerks in police establishments, enrolled under Act V of 1861, are liable to fine under section 7 of that Act, subordinate jail officers under rules made under section 60 (c) of the Prisons Act, and public servants disobeying or neglecting the orders of a Collector under section 37 of Madras Regulation II of 1803. Subject to exceptions of a like nature, the orders are intended to apply to all clerical establishments in the service of Government.
