Dated—the 5th December 1900.
No.—Ref. on C. 10357.

With reference to paragraph 2 of G.O., No. 230, Educational, dated 2nd June last, drawing my attention to the Government of India Notification, Home Department, No. 1294, dated 12th March 1868, in regard to the exemption of Government copyright publications from registration, I have the honour to submit that G.O., No. 27, Educational, dated 25th January 1870, dealing with the above notification orders that all books and publications which are brought out by the department or which become the property of Government for educational purposes should be registered in the name of Government. In the above circumstances, I beg to be informed whether the provisions of the latter Government Order are still in force or are superseded by the Government Order under reference.

Order—No. 11, Educational, dated 11th January 1901.

In the circumstances stated, the practice introduced by G.O., No. 27, Educational, dated 25th January 1870, of registering all books and publications which are brought out by the department or which become the property of Government should be continued.

NOTES CONNECTED WITH G.O., No. 11, EDUCATIONAL, DATED
 11TH JANUARY 1901.

[SUBJECT.—Registration of Government Copyright books.]

*From the Director of Public Instruction, dated 5th December 1900,
 No. Ref. on C. 10357.*

In paragraph 2 of G.O., No. 230, Educational, dated 2nd June 1900, the attention of the Director of Public Instruction was drawn to the notification of the Government of India, Home Department, No. 1294, dated 12th March 1868, exempting from registration books, maps, sketches, charts and papers printed or published under the orders of Government or for official purposes and the opinion was expressed that readers and other school books published under the orders of Government need not be registered.

2. The Director of Public Instruction now brings to notice that, under G.O., No. 27, Educational, dated 25th January 1870, the registration of all school books published by Government is compulsory and enquires whether this order is still in force or is superseded by G.O., No. 230, Educational, dated 2nd June 1900.

3. The Government Order of 1870, of the existence of which the office was not till now aware, was based on the Home Department notification No. 4823, dated 21st October 1869, exempting all such books as become the property of Government for educational purposes from certain fees payable under section 13 of Act XXV of 1867. The Registrar of Books argued from it that it was not the intention of the Government of India by the notification of the 12th March 1868 to exclude from registration such books as were the property of Government and Government agreed with him.

4. Books and other things published under the orders of Government are under the earlier notification clearly exempt from registration and this notification has not been expressly modified. It would seem therefore that the Government of India intended to make some difference between publications under the orders of Government and publications which become the property of Government for Educational purposes and that the later notification is applicable only to school books which become the property of Government and

I don't think so.

A.T.P.

not to those which were originally such property. It may be wrong to suppose so, but the doubt was not cleared up in 1870. This may perhaps be now done by a reference to the Government of India.

P. T. THARYAN—13-12-00.

A good many educational books, although official publications, should be registered as this serves to keep off persons who might otherwise feel inclined to pirate them. But the registration of such readers as the Laccadive set is probably quite unnecessary, and in their case the general rule should apply.

The matter should be placed on a proper footing.

We may ask Bombay and Bengal what the practice is in the case of the Educational Departments in those provinces.

A. T. PRINGLE—8-1-01.

No. 11, EDUCATIONAL, 11TH JANUARY 1901.

I can see no objection to continuing the course ordered in the Government Order, dated 25th January 1870, and would merely order the Director of Public Instruction to continue to register books as he has been in the habit of doing. It seems unnecessary to make any reference to other Governments upon the subject.

The draft may issue.
