Considering that Captain Fayer is entitled to only the pay of his rank plus acting allowance on the combined pay of the surgeon of the third district and professor of physiology in the —.

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS.

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.

READ—the following paper:—

From Lieut.-Colonel W. R. BROWNE, M.D., I.M.S., Principal, Medical College, to the Director of Public Instruction, Madras (through the Surgeon-General with the Government of Madras), dated 30th September 1901, No. 303.

I have the honour to forward, herewith, copy of the correspondence relative to the pay of the acting professor of physiology.

2. It will be seen that the Accountant-General maintains that "the assignment to the surgeons of the second and the third districts of professorships in the Medical college will be accompanied by an addition to the salary of each of those officers of Rs. 200 a month" (paragraph 13 of G.O., No. 135, Public, dated 7th February 1900) only holds good to the permanent occupiers of these chairs. The upshot of this ruling is that Captain F. D. S. Fayrer, I.M.S., is deprived of the addition to his salary which, I consider, he is entitled to, and at any rate it presses with very great hardship on any junior officer who may be appointed to take up this onerous duty that demands special knowledge, application and zeal.

ENCLOSURES.

I.

From W. A. WOOLLAM, Esq., Assistant Accountant-General, Madras, to Captain F. D. S. Fayrer (through Messrs. Binny & Co., Madras), dated 9th August 1901, Audit slip No. A.B.H./44.

Captain F. D. S. Fayrer's salary bill for July 1901 for Rs. 689-11-4 has been passed for Rs. 482-13-1 only—vide details below. The salary, Rs. 500 per mensem, mentioned in this office pay slip No. A.B.S./164 of 3rd August 1901, is for both the duties of surgeon, third district, and professor of physiology, and he is not entitled in addition to a separate allowance of Rs. 200 per mensem for the latter duties.

Captain, 1st to 4th July 1901, at Rs. 350 per mensem	45	2	7

II.

From Lieut.-Colonel W. R. BROWNE, M.D., I.M.S., Principal, Medical College, Madras, to the Accountant-General, Madras, dated 3rd September 1901, No. 263.

In your audit slip No. A.B.H./44, dated 9th August 1901, it is stated that the salary of Rs. 500 per mensem for Captain F. D. S. Fayrer, I.M.S., is for "both the duties of surgeon, third district, and professor of physiology, and he is not entitled in addition to a separate allowance of Rs. 200 per mensem for the latter duties". This means that you allow him a consolidated pay for both the duties. I have the honour to point out, however, that under G.O., No. 135, Public, dated 7th February 1900, an addition to the salary of the surgeon, third district, of Rs. 200 a month is sanctioned for his duties as professor of physiology. I request to be informed, therefore, why the sanctioned emolument is disallowed in the case of Captain Fayrer, I.M.S., who has been gazetted to act as professor of physiology.

III.

From W. DOBBIE, Esq., Accountant-General, to the Principal, Medical College, Madras, dated 7th September 1901, No. G. 3108/5961.

With reference to your letter No. 263, dated 3rd September 1901, I have the honour to state that, prior to the introduction of the new scheme for the reorganization of the Medical college, the pay of the appointment of surgeon, third district, to an officer of Captain Fayrer's standing was Rs. 500 per mensem.

2. In the new scheme the pay of the appointment has been raised to Rs. 700 per mensem owing to the assignment of the duties of professor of physiology, and Captain Fayrer's salary has been calculated upon Rs. 700 only as shown below:—

	RS.
Pay of the appointment of professor of physiology and surgeon, third district	700
Pay of rank	300
Half staff salary of the officiating appointment	$\frac{700 - 300}{2} = 200$
	500

IV.

From Lieut.-Colonel W. R. BROWNE, M.D., I.M.S., Principal, Medical College, Madras, to the Accountant-General, Madras, dated 11th September 1901, No. 275.

With reference to your letter No. G. 3108/5961, dated 7th instant, I have the honour to state that it is not understood why the distinction is made in the case of the surgeon of the third district to which the professorship of physiology is now attached, and not in the case of the surgeon of the second district to which the professorship of medicine is now attached. Both professorships are clearly laid down in the Government order as drawing Rs. 200 a month quite irrespective of the rank of the officers who may chance to be district surgeon when appointed to these professorships. It seems to me quite clear that Captain Fayrer is entitled to Rs. 200 per mensem for the professorship of physiology, irrespective of his pay as surgeon of the third district.

V.

From W. DOBBIE, Esq., Accountant-General, Madras, to the Principal, Medical College, Madras, dated 22nd September 1901, No. G. 3168/6467.

With reference to your letter No. 275, dated 11th September 1901, I have the honour to state that in the Government order quoted by you the pay of the surgeons of the second and the third districts has been increased by Rs. 200, and no distinction has been made between the two appointments. Had Captain Fayrer been appointed to officiate as surgeon, second district, with the professorship of medicine attached, instead of as surgeon of third district with the professorship of physiology, he would have drawn precisely the same allowances as are now being passed to him. The full combined pay is admissible only to the permanent incumbent and not to an acting officer, who is entitled to draw acting allowance on the combined pay in addition to the pay of his rank, in accordance with the rules relating to officiating officers. Major R. Robertson, being the permanent incumbent of the appointment of surgeon, second district, draws the full pay of the appointment, while Captain Fayrer, who is only acting surgeon, third district, and who holds no substantive appointment in either the Civil or Military departments, is entitled only to acting allowance on the combined pay in addition to the pay of his rank. Hence the difference in salary in the case of the above officers. I may add that you are wrong in thinking that the pay of neither of the two professorships mentioned is dependent upon the rank of the officers who may hold them, as a reference to the proposition statements will show. I would also refer you to the last clause of paragraph 3 of the Government of India despatch No. 40, dated 7th February 1901, published with the Madras Government order referred to by you. In that despatch it is clearly stated that the surgeon of the third district, on taking up the duties of professor of physiology and histology, will be entitled to the pay of a major professorship, which is Rs. 1,250, Rs. 1,050, Rs. 850 or Rs. 700, according to rank.

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.

NOTES CONNECTED WITH G.O., No. 731, EDUCATIONAL, DATED 9TH DECEMBER 1901.

[SUBJECT.—Pay of acting professor of physiology, Medical college.]

From the Director of Public Instruction, N. Ref. on Cur. No. 7647, dated 16th November 1901.

For the Assistant Secretary—

The reorganization of the Medical college sanctioned in G.O., No. 513, Public, dated 20th May 1901, was brought into effect from the 1st of July last. Under the new arrangement the surgeon of the third district became also the second physician of the General hospital and the professor of physiology with an addition to his salary of Rs. 200—vide paragraph 13 of G.O., No. 135, Public, dated 7th February 1900, at page 6, and the proposition statement at page 11, of G.O., No. 371, Educational, dated 2nd July 1901.

2. In bringing the arrangement into effect Major F. J. Crawford, I.M.S., was appointed surgeon, third district, second physician, General hospital, and professor of physiology, but as he was absent on leave Captain Fayrer, I.M.S., was put in to act for him. Captain Fayrer now claims acting allowance as surgeon, third district, and the full pay of Rs. 200 attached to the professorship of physiology, but the Accountant-General says he is entitled to only acting allowance on the combined pay of surgeon, third district, and professor of physiology. It is not clear how this claim can be supported and it is by no means certain whether the Government of India will treat the case exceptionally. Paragraph 12 of G.O., No. 135, Public, dated 7th February 1900, seems to be in the way: the intention does not appear to have been that the pay of the professorship should be personal. The Public department, which dealt with the reorganization, may however be consulted.

PUBLIC DEPARTMENT.

Chief Secretary—

The Accountant-General is of course right. The surgeons of the second and third districts have merely become entitled to the consolidated pay of major professors. Paragraph 13 of G.O., No. 135, Public, dated 7th February 1900, on which Colonel Browne relies, did not sanction a separate allowance of Rs. 200 to the two surgeons, but merely stated that on becoming professors they would get the higher pay of professors.

A. R. KNAPP.
22-11-01.

Where is the correspondence about separating the professorships in Giffard's and Crawford's cases?

G. STOKES.
23-11-01.

With reference to the Chief Secretary's note above, the papers relating to the grant of allowances to Major Crawford and Captain Giffard for carrying on the duties of certain professorships are submitted:—

G.O., Nos. 336, 337, Educational, dated 12th June 1899.
 " " 338, 339 " " 12th "
 " No. 46 " " 31st January 1900.
 " " 100 " " 2nd March 1900.

2. Those cases differ from the present one of Captain Fayrer.

3. Major (then Captain) Crawford, while holding the appointment of second surgeon, General hospital, and professor of materia medica (pay Rs. 700 a month), was transferred to the charge of the fourth district,* where his pay was only Rs. 650 a month. Under orders of Government, he continued to hold the chair of materia medica in the college, and for this work, which was not connected with his new appointment, he was granted an allowance of Rs. 200 a month with the sanction of the Secretary of State.

4. Captain Giffard was holding the appointment of resident surgeon, General hospital, and professor of pathology, Medical college (pay Rs. 800 a month). He was transferred to the charge of the second district, to which no professorship was then attached. His total pay in his new appointment was Rs. 750. For a time there was no officer on the staff of the General hospital available to take the chair of pathology, and Captain Giffard was directed to do the work in addition to his duties as a district surgeon. For this he was granted an allowance of Rs. 200 a month.

5. Captain Fayrer is now acting surgeon, third district, and professor of physiology, Medical college. The consolidated pay of this combined appointment is Rs. 700 a month for an officer of Captain Fayrer's standing. Captain Fayrer is however only acting in the appointment, and is therefore not entitled to the full pay. As shown by the Accountant-General, his pay of rank plus acting allowance totals Rs. 500 a month. If he had been acting surgeon, third district, without the professorship, his pay plus acting allowance would have been only Rs. 400 a month. He imagines that he should receive in addition to the last-named sum an allowance of Rs. 200 a month clear for the professorship, but this of course is incorrect. The professorship is now attached to the appointment of surgeon, third district, and an acting officer can only receive acting allowances calculated on the total consolidated pay of the post.
