With regard to the proposal in M^r Marsden's case I submit that the plan of ~~unim~~ sanctioning the retention of persons in the service for a couple of years or so ahead is not a desirable one. It is looking too far ahead; a person is physically & mentally he capable at a certain date of doing good service, & when that is so, it is reasonable to presume that ^(failing accidents) he will be about equally capable up to say, a year in front. But to presume the same thing for a date twenty-five months in advance is, I think, bad policy & unnecessary. Many things may occur before April 1904.

2. The case of M^r Brander is a little ~~unim~~ different. He has to put in two years
