To

The Secretary to Government,

Educational Department.

Sir,

In submitting herewith copy of a letter from Mr. Chatterton in which he reports the difficulties experienced by him in securing the services of passed candidates for the posts of temporary clerks on the establishment of the Aluminium department in the School of Arts and requests that the holders of these appointments be exempted from the examination rules I have the honour to request that you will be so good as to obtain the sanction of Government to the relaxation of the examination rules so far as the temporary appointments in the Aluminium Department are concerned.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

To

The Director of Public Instruction,

Madras.

Sir,

I have the honour to request that you will be good enough to obtain early orders of Government exempting from the examination rules clerks on my ^{Temporary} establishment.

2. There is at present in the School of Arts no regular temporary establishment except that sanctioned for the Aluminium Department. Most of the clerks have therefore now to be paid from the lump provision provided for them in the budget and the scale of the establishment whose pay is to be met from that lump provision will vary according to actual requirements. Passed candidates cannot be induced to accept appointments under such regulations where not only have they no chance of permanency but they have to take the risk of being sent away at any moment.

3. Qualified men do join the establishment at times but they do not remain long.

Last year for example, I had to engage a clerk on daily wages (12 as) to cope with the increased work of the Aluminium Department. I tried 3 passed candidates for the place but none of them would stick to it. I therefore took an unpassed man who had previously been employed in Messrs. Binny and Company and I now find that the arrangement has worked satisfactorily. Another instance is, when a few weeks ago, I took a passed candidate in a certain arrangement. The man worked for two days and on the third day he wanted permission to resign the appointment as he thought he had no prospects.

4. The evil of changing hands cannot be exaggerated.

5. I find from experience that for the ordinary routine work of my office which is more or less of a commercial nature an unpassed man is quite as good as a passed man.

I have &c &c

NOTE FOR THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY.

Mr. Chatterton applies for the exemption from the examination rules of clerks, employed on the temporary establishment of the aluminium department in the school of arts and says that passed candidates, though they at times do join the establishment, do not remain long and cannot be induced to accept appointments which are essentially of a temporary nature. The Director in submitting Mr. Chatterton's letter recommends a relaxation of the examination rules so far as these appointments are concerned.

2. Orders are solicited.

Submitted that the recommendation of the Director may be accepted. These appointments are temporary and are not continuous i.e., clerks are taken in when there is pressure of work and their services are dispensed with as soon as the pressure is over. Under such conditions it is difficult to secure the services of passed men.

The draft placed below may issue.
