Educational Department.

Sir,

The second edition of the "Manual of Building Materials and Construction", sanction for the issue of which was accorded in G.O.No. 346 Educational, dated 21st June 1897 is now almost exhausted, and the Principal, College of Engineering requests permission to publish a third and revised edition, to consist of 1000 copies, and he recommends that an honorarium of ₹500 be given to Mr. B.O. Reynolds, the author, who will be entrusted with the revision, "in consideration partly of the work which will now devolve on him and partly on account of the inadequacy of the remuneration he originally received for writing this useful work." I beg to support the Principal's recommendation with the modification that only ₹250 be paid to Mr. Reynolds, as apparently the revision of the work will not be very extensive.

2. The cost of printing 1000 copies of the book is estimated by the Principal at ₹2495 which together with ₹250 proposed as remuneration will amount to ₹2745, so that the net cost per copy will be ₹2.75 against ₹3.1 and ₹3.3 in the second and first editions respectively. Fixing the price of a copy at ₹4-8-0, the sale price of previous editions or even ~~at~~ ₹4 there will be a fairly large profit to Government. The price of the book however may be fixed after the work has been completed.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,
Your most obedient servant.

For Director of public Instruction.
