The Govt. believe that a large percentage of ~~so~~ prosecutions fail or are mismanaged on account of ~~the~~ Inspectors' ineptitude. Sir, f 3-4 Cf.

With reference to Judicial Memorandum No.4481,dated 23rd November 1904, I have the honour to state that I wish to press my recommendation on behalf of head constable G. Krishnaswami Nayudu of Bellary district in the matter of his exemption from the examination rules for the following reasons.

The head constable was in charge of the Kuditani station at the time of my inspection in 1903 and gave satisfaction which very few others did. On account of his excellent work and capabilities, he was selected to act as inspector at Adoni, the work of which division, the previous incumbent had failed to cope with. There has been a decrease of crime under house- breaking and dacoity in the Adoni division since he was placed in charge of that division and also an improvement in detection of cases and recovery of property. He maintains discipline well and gets a better class of work out of his station-house officers than was formerly the case in the division. The Superintendent reports that he is trustworthy and that the same opinion has been expressed by several experienced magistrates. The head constable comes of a respectable family connecting thre generations of officers in the Native Army. His want of English is the sole obstacle to his advancement. He is however able to write in that language to a sufficie extent. Both the District Superintendent and the Depu Inspector-General speak highly of him and think that he will turn out a good Inspector.

Exemption from the examination rules.

Orders are solicited as to whether the exemption applied for may be granted. It is proposed to try the head constable as an Inspector of Police. He has passed the station-house officers' test of the Vellore School and his work is reported to be excellent.

The tests from which G. Krishnaswami Nayudu has to be exempted are specified in Col. 4 of the application. The case is analogous to that of S. Venkata Krishnama Nayudu — (C. No. 1872) in the linked file with this difference: that while the latter has passed the Med. School Ex^n. & has acted as an Inspr. before, the former has not passed any Genl. Education test nor has he had ~~any~~ previous experience as an Inspr. of Police.

Temporary exemption w^d. inevitably mean perm^t. exem^n. later on: & we mustn't blink this. Surely this sh^d. come thro' Jud^l. D^pt. It is for Jud. D^pt. to consider whether it is wise & in the public interests to take on for the very important duties of an Insp^or. a man with the imperfect education wh. this H. Const. possesses. An Inspector requires not only to be straightforward & to be keen at Head work as this man appears to be, but to have other capacities wh. will fit him to put up & arrange cases intelligently, which he can scarcely do without education? A large percentage of prosecutions fall thro' or are mismanaged because of Inspectors' ~~ineptitude~~ /

The ordinary H^d. Constable in these days is not likely to be able to do Inspectors' duties properly — And it must be remembered that probably very shortly Inspectors' pay will be largely increased & they will have jurisdiction over much larger areas than is now the case. H^d. Constables pay will also be increased. It was intended that promotion from S.H.O.'s to Inspector sh^d. be very rare indeed. The I.G. says nothing about this man except that he has done well in the Police school. His educational ~~[illegible]~~ attainments seem very small. Submitted that the O.M. may issue —
