Read—the following paper :—

Letter—from the Hon'ble Mr. T. T. Logan, B A., Acting Director of Public Instruction.
To—the Secretary to Government, Educational Department.
Dated—the 15th May 1907.
No.—Cur. 3163.

I have the honour to submit herewith a copy of my Proceedings, Dis. No. 2876, dated 11th May 1907, reviewing the report on the working of the Government Training College, Rajahmundry, during 1906.

Enclosure.

Proceedings of the Director of Public Instruction, Dis. No. 2876, dated 11*th May* 1907.

Read—the following paper :—

Letter—from Mark Hunter, Esq., M.A., Principal, Government Training College, Rajahmundry.
To—the Director of Public Instruction.
Dated—the 16th April 1907.
No.—D/35.

I have the honour to submit my report on the working of the Rajahmundry Training College during the year 1906.

2. Staff and distribution of work—Appendix A.—I was in charge of the College throughout the year. In G.O., No. 654, dated 9th October 1906, Government sanctioned the entertainment of two additional temporary appointments for the Practising section. The Practising school, however, is still understaffed. As correspondence has passed during the year under review on the subject of the complete reorganisation of the school staff, it is unnecessary to enter into details here.

There have been a number of changes, temporary and permanent, during the year, all unavoidable and not generally assignable to departmental exigencies.

3. Accommodation.—The buildings recently constructed have been handed over by the Public Works Department and are now in use.

The question of further extensions in relation to the reorganisation of the Secondary school has also formed the subject of a special report.

4. Furniture and apparatus.—Sixty desks with seats attached, each intended for a single pupil, have been obtained during the year.

Scientific apparatus and chemicals have been received from England. Magic lantern slides of an interesting and instructive character have been also acquired.

5. Strength and attendance—Appendices B and C—(1) Training section (Appendix B-i—iii).—The fall in the total strength is due to the discontinuance of the training class for rural teachers. Otherwise the strength of the previous year was more than maintained.

Thirteen students under training held Local Fund or Municipal stipends.

Appendix B-ii calls for no remarks.

Appendix B-iii shows that all the districts except Nellore were fairly represented.

(2) Practising section—Appendix C-i—iv.—The total strength was raised by nearly 100 pupils but this increase was confined to the High school classes, which were undoubtedly overcrowded. The lower classes continue to be miserably weak. This year many applications for admission to the High school have been refused. As I have elsewhere urged, the Practising school cannot hope to become a really efficient

Secondary school, until an approximately uniform strength can be maintained in all classes from the lowest to the highest This, however, is impossible so long as a number of incomplete Secondary schools admitting pupils at a low rate of fee continue to exist in the immediate neighbourhood.

Appendix C-ii shows that non-Brahmans and Muhammadans have contributed to swell the number of pupils.

The other tables in Appendix C appear to call for no remark.

6. Selection of normal students for 1907.—The usual principles were followed in the selection of students seeking training in the higher grades. In the case of graduates preference was given to those possessing superior academical qualifications. In the first time in the history of the college two Masters of Arts have sought admission.

The students in the training class for elementary teachers were selected on the results of an examination held in November 1906 in Telugu Composition, Arithmetic and general knowledge.

7. Results of examinations—(i) Training section—Appendix E-i and ii—(a) L. T. Degree examination.—Twelve candidates sat for the written examination, of whom eight passed. Of the failures, three were in the History of education and one in methods of teaching. Six of the eight successful candidates were also successful in the Practical test. One candidate from this college was placed in the first class, a distinction, which the college had not hitherto gained.

The results in the examinations for teachers' certificates may be regarded as relatively satisfactory.

(2 Practising section—Appendix F-i—iii—Matriculation examination.—Whether the school has fared better or worse than most other schools, I have been at no pains to enquire. The results are bad, and there seems small profit in nicely calculating degrees of badness. The Vice-Principal points out that the percentage of failures is less than that of the previous year. This is true, but there is no comfort in this fact, as the smaller percentage is due entirely to the greater strictness of the mid-term examination. Mr. Venkataratnam adds that the results would have been better if the changes in the staff had been fewer and the same masters continued in charge of the classes throughout the year. Possibly the results might have been a little but I suspect, very little better. The causes of failure lie deeper and many of them are by no means peculiar to this institution. As I have already said, I do not believe that this school can reasonably hope to produce nor continue to produce good Matriculation results, until it has been more or less completely reorganised—the reorganisation including (1) the institution and maintenance of a strong middle and lower school, (2) the appointment of masters to each subject and class with salaries sufficient to attract men of relatively superior attainments and possessed of qualifications, not only professional, but general (and in the case of high schoolmasters also special) sufficient to enable them to teach the respective classes in a thoroughly efficient manner. Until these conditions are attained, it would be more than unfair to assign any large measure of blame for repeated Matriculation disasters to the staff

In separate subjects failures are fairly evenly divided between English, Mathematics and general knowledge.

In the college annual examinations, it will be seen (Appendix F-iii) that considerable strictness in the matter of promotions was observed in the higher classes.

Eleven students passed the Government Technical examinations in drawing out of 21 sent up.

8. Library—Appendix D-i and ii.—One hundred and sixteen volumes were added to the library during the year under review. A better use of the library than in the previous year was made by members of the staff and students under training. On the other hand the number of books taken out by pupils of the Practising school was much smaller. The lower figure is explained by the Vice-Principal as due to the fact that the pupils were encouraged to purchase for themselves and read easy and standard works in literature during each term and during the holidays. The Vice-Principal is to be commended for his efforts to encourage general and holiday reading in this way; but it is to be hoped that the system will not in future discourage general reading of a mere spontaneous character.

9. Physical training.—All students and pupils were drilled as usual.

Foot-ball and tennis are becoming popular.

One of the pupils of the school won the District Grigg Memorial Medal.

10. College societies.—The Teachers' Association is reported as having worked well during the year.

Magic lantern exhibitions were given by the members of the staff for the benefit of students under training and pupils of the Practising school.

11. School garden.—The garden was extended in the course of the year and in other respects good work was done.

12. School expeditions.—The students under training were taken to see interesting sights and places in the neighbourhood to extend their knowledge of nature and the local industries, such as carpet and cloth manufactures, oil pressing, etc.

13. Finances—Appendix G-i—iii.—No part of the Principal's pay has been this year debited to the Training College. Nor do I think it necessary to credit the Training section with any part of the Practising section fee receipts.

The cost of maintaining the Training section was Rs. 18,399.

The profit to Government on the working of the Practising section was Rs. 6,771, and would have been increased by another Rs. 1,000 but for the unusual expenditure under contingencies. The high figure under this head is due to the purchase of special furniture and apparatus for the college.

14. The Educational rules have been observed.

15. Discipline has been maintained.

16. History of students.—The register has been maintained.

17. All the service books have been verified to date.

18. I have to acknowledge the zealous and valuable services rendered by the Vice-Principal and the staff.

[SUBJECT.—Report on the working of the Rajahmundry Training College during 1906.]

From the Director of Public Instruction, dated 15th May 1907, No. 3663.

The report does not seem to call for any special remarks.

2. The Director of Public Instruction observes that the practising section continues to be unsatisfactory and that the question of its reorganization is under consideration.

3. A draft recording the report is placed below for approval.

4. The Honourable Member does not want to see these college reports unless any important question arises in connection with them. Please see K.W. G.O., No. 353, Educational, dated 19th May 1906.

T.K.—2-6-07.

The low percentage of success at the Matriculation Examination, namely, 35 per cent. is explained by the Principal in paragraph 7 (2) of his report.

K. RANGASWAMI AIYANGAR—3-6-07.

Nothing of note. Numbers have increased very considerably.

C. A. SOUTER—3-6-07.

The question of training schools has been under special consideration during the year and paragraph 7 (2) of Mr. Hunter's report on page 3 is worth perusal.

Government Training College, Rajahmundry.

Read the following letter from MARK HUNTER, Esq., M.A., Principal, Government Training College, Rajahmundry, to the Director of Public Instruction, dated 16th April 1907, No. D/35 :—

I have the honour to submit my report on the working of the Rajahmundry Training College during the year 1906.

Mr. Venkataratnam adds that the results would have been better if the changes in the staff had been fewer and the same masters continued in charge of the classes throughout the year. Possibly the results might have been a little but I suspect, very little better. The causes of failure lie deeper and many of them are by no means peculiar to this institution. As I have already said, I do not believe that this school can reasonably hope to produce nor continue to produce good Matriculation results, until it has been more or less completely reorganised—the reorganisation including (1) the institution and maintenance of a strong middle and lower school, (2) the appointment of masters to each subject and class with salaries sufficient to attract men of relatively superior attainments and possessed of qualifications, not only professional, but general (and in the case of high schoolmasters also special) sufficient to enable them to teach the respective classes in a thoroughly efficient manner. Until these conditions are attained, it would be more than unfair to assign any large measure of blame for repeated Matriculation disasters to the staff

In separate subjects failures are fairly evenly divided between English, Mathematics and general knowledge.

In the college annual examinations, it will be seen (Appendix F-iii) that considerable strictness in the matter of promotions was observed in the higher classes.

Eleven students passed the Government Technical examinations in drawing out of 21 sent up.

8. Library—Appendix D-i and ii.—One hundred and sixteen volumes were added to the library during the year under review. A better use of the library than in the previous year was made by members of the staff and students under training. On the other hand the number of books taken out by pupils of the Practising school was much smaller. The lower figure is explained by the Vice-Principal as due to the fact that the pupils were encouraged to purchase for themselves and read easy and standard works in literature during each term and during the holidays. The Vice-Principal is to be commended for his efforts to encourage general and holiday reading in this way; but it is to be hoped that the system will not in future discourage general reading of a mere spontaneous character.

9. Physical training.—All students and pupils were drilled as usual.

Foot-ball and tennis are becoming popular.

One of the pupils of the school won the District Grigg Memorial Medal.

10. College societies.—The Teachers' Association is reported as having worked well during the year.

Magic lantern exhibitions were given by the members of the staff for the benefit of students under training and pupils of the Practising school.

11. School garden.—The garden was extended in the course of the year and in other respects good work was done.

12. School expeditions.—The students under training were taken to see interesting sights and places in the neighbourhood to extend their knowledge of nature and the local industries, such as carpet and cloth manufactures, oil pressing, etc.

13. Finances—Appendix G-i—iii.—No part of the Principal's pay has been this year debited to the Training College. Nor do I think it necessary to credit the Training section with any part of the Practising section fee receipts.

The cost of maintaining the Training section was Rs. 18,399.

The profit to Government on the working of the Practising section was Rs. 6,771, and would have been increased by another Rs. 1,000 but for the unusual expenditure under contingencies. The high figure under this head is due to the purchase of special furniture and apparatus for the college.

14. The Educational rules have been observed.

15. Discipline has been maintained.

16. History of students.—The register has been maintained.

17. All the service books have been verified to date.

18. I have to acknowledge the zealous and valuable services rendered by the Vice-Principal and the staff.

Proceedings, Dis. No. 2876 of 1907.

Recorded.

2. Out of 48 students under training in the Collegiate and Secondary sections so many as 39 were from the First Inspector's Circle and only 9 were from the Second. The admissions should be of a more representative character.

3. The condition of the Practising school continues, in spite of the increase in its strength, to be unsatisfactory. The question of its reorganisation is under consideration.
