To The Secretary to the Government of Madras,
Educational & Public Health Department,
MADRAS.

Sir,

On behalf of my Committee, I have the honour to address the Government on the question of the introduction of "Kindness to Animals" as a compulsory subject, in the curriculum of studies, for Elementary and Middle Schools, in the Presidency.

This Society has been, during the past sixty four years of its existence, adopting different means for the prevention of cruel and improper treatment of animals and for the amelioration of their condition generally throughout the Presidency of Madras.

There are many forms of cruelty which the Society is powerless to prevent or even to check by its punitive work but which can be successfully attacked by educational means.

It is learnt that the Government is proposing to introduce compulsory, universal elementary education throughout the presidency. My Committee requests that in the curriculum of studies for such education, kindness to animals may be included as a compulsory subject. The teaching of this subject to all children, my Committee feels, will not only do much to ameliorate the condition of animals, but will be of high educative value for the children themselves.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

H. Rappaport
