Copy of a letter No. EA. 7592, dated the 15th Feb'47 from the Office of the High Commissioner for India, Education Department, London to Dr. A.M.D'Rozario, Department of Education, New Delhi.

Please refer to your telegram dated 1st June, 1946, No. F.7-8/46 O.D.II in which brief particulars of the Madras Government Scholar, Mr. R. Padmanabhan were cabled to this Office. Mr. Padmanabhan was selected for Electrical Engineering, exact branch manufacture of electric fans, small motors, etc., etc., and he was to study at London University with Works training at Crompton and the Imsford.

The most important thing for this man is to receive practical training. Universities, as you know, do not train students for manufacture of articles. Personally, I am sure if we placed him at a University he would blame for changing his subject. An application was made to M/S. Crompton Parkinson, Ltd. Messrs. Crompton, however, could not accommodate him in their works owing to the return of ex-service men from the Forces for the completion of their training, which had been interrupted by the war. Various other firms were approached and we are now in a position to give further information. The position is as follows:

1. Newman Industries, Ltd. Yate, Bristol, are prepared to accept him for training provided that he comes to this country through the Ministry of Labour Training Scheme for Indians. We could arrange for settling the necessary technicalities at this end. I think he could start his work with this firm. I ~~xxx~~ would like to add that Newman Industries manufacture small motors, but they are comparatively new and are not widely known.

2. W. Mackie & Co. Ltd., The Palace Engineering Works, 129/133, Lambeth Road, London S.E.1, are manufacturers of rotating electrical machines from the smallest to approximately 10 k.w. output. This firm manufacture D.C. and A.C. Motors and specialise in high frequency Motor alternators, high tension D.C. Motor Generators, Rotary converters etc., to comply with customers special requirements, such as tropical treatment, low ripple, special wave form, Compactness and lightness. They do not manufacture Control Gear, but purchase a variety of types and make which are tested in their works along with the machines for which the Control Gear has been supplied. They do not manufacture Fan Motors.

This firm is willing to consider the training of this scholar. I can advise the acceptance of this offer. The training with this Company should not last more than twelve months.

Please let me know the reactions of the Provincial Government to this offer.

Item 49, Pg 5
cf appx-II B (b)
of (N)

Sri ~~R~~ Padmanabhan is a candidate selected in 1946-47 for the award of an overseas scholarship in "Electrical Engineering - manufacture of Electric fans, small motors and starters". After satisfactory completion of training abroad, Sri Padmanabhan is intended to be absorbed in the
"Industries (Govt. or Private enterprise)".

The Devt. Dept. may be requested to say, in consultation with the Head of the Dept. concerned, whether the Govt. of India may be asked to arrange for the Candidate's training as at "A" on page 3 CF or as at "B" on the same page.

The training suggested at "B"
on p 3 CF would last for only one year
and the Devt Dept may be requested to say if training for one year alone
would be enough for the Candidate.
