Rules - Madras Educational Service (Women's Branch) - Lecturer in Domestic Science - Qualifications - Amendment.

Separate file ---
I am to say that in connexion with the examination recently held by the Commission for the recruitment of a Lecturer in Domestic Science in European Schools it has been found that there is a great disparity between the subjects and syllabus prescribed for a degree in Domestic Science of an Indian University and the subjects falling under the head "Domestic Science" taught in European Schools, and that the holder of a degree in Domestic Science of the Benares Hindu University, for instance, is not qualified to teach that subject in European Schools. In the Commission's opinion the qualifications prescribed in rule 6(a) (read with the Annexure) of the special rules for the Madras Educational Service for a Lecturer in Domestic Science (Category 2 of Class IX) should be amplified so as to prescribe them separately for Lecturership in that subject in European Schools and for Lecturership in that subject in other schools where it is taught, in order that persons qualified to teach the subjects included in Domestic Science, which are actually taught in the respective schools, may be obtained for the posts.

I am to request that the Director of Public Instruction may be requested to suggest suitable qualifications for incorporation in the rules.

Your obedient servant,

Cheluvana Murugesu
Secretary.

Sir,

Sub:- Madras Educational Service - Lecturer in Domestic Science - Amendment to the special Rules - Proposal submitted.

With reference to Government memorandum No.22177-A.1.Edn., dated 30-4-46, I have the honour to state that there is only one post of lecturer in Domestic Science in the Madras Educational Service at present and that the qualifications prescribed for the post refers only to the Lecturer in Domestic Science for EUROPEAN schools.
As such there is no point in prescribing a degree in Domestic Science of any University as is now the case. A person holding a degree in Domestic Science of an Indian University will not be quite suitable to Handle Domestic Science subjects in European ^{and} Anglo-Indian Schools.
I therefore consider that a degree in the subject of any western University/and that the designation of the post may also be changed as indicated below. Accordingly the following amendments to the special Rules for the Madras Educational Service are submitted for the consideration of Government:-

In Rule 1 of the Rules relating to the Madras Educational Service in class IX category 2, FOR the designation of the post
"Lecturer in Domestic Science" SUBSTITUTE "Lecturer in Domestic

p 6, Book 113
Domestic Science for European and Anglo-Indian Schools".

In Rule 2 of the said Rules under class IX for the designations of the post of "Lecturer in Domestic Science" occurring under Col. (i) of the table, read "Lecturer in Domestic Science for European and Anglo Indian Schools."

In the Annexure to the special rules for the Madras Educational Service for the existing entries under class IX category 2, the following entries may be substituted.

Under Col. 2. for "Lecturer in Domestic Science".

Read "Lecturer in Domestic Science for European and Anglo-Indian Schools".

Under Col. 4. delete the existing entries in item (1) and substitute the following:-

"(1) A degree in Domestic Science of any of the University in Great Britain or the United States of America, with a Collegiate Teachers' Certificate and 5 years' experience of secondary school work".
