Sir,

SUB: Colleges - Presidency College, Madras - History and Mathematics Department - Conversion of one post of Professor in each department into that of an Additional Professor.

I have the honour to submit for the consideration of Government a proposal for the conversion of the posts of Professor in Indian History and Applied Mathematics in the Presidency College, Madras, into that of Additional Professors.

2) Unlike in the case of English physics, Chemistry, Botany and Zoology for which there is one Professor (Head of the department) assisted by an Additional Professor, there are two professors of equal status for the department of History - One for History and Politics and the other for Indian History. There is really no need to have two departmental heads in the History Department. On the other hand a division under two heads of equal status is likely to lead to unnecessary rivalry not conducive to the smooth administration of the department. I therefore suggest that ~~that~~ the two departments may be amalgamated into one with a Professor as the Head of the Department and the other post Professor of Indian History may be converted as an Additional Professor. The seniormost Professor of History will be the Head of the Department irrespective of the branch of History he is incharge. At present there is also a professor of Economics. I would suggest that this may continue as at present a separate department.

3) Similarly there are two departments in Mathematics - Pure & Applied - under two Professors. With the retirement of Sri K. Ananda Rao in September 1948, the post of Professor of Pure Mathematics which is now in the I.E.S. will be relegated to the M.E.S. with the result that there will be two professors of equal status for the subject.

Here also there is no need to have two departmental heads.

As the position is quite similar to that of other departments, it is desirable to amalgamate the two departments into one with a Professor as the Head of the Department, the other post viz. Professor of Applied Mathematics, converted into that of Additional Professor. The Senior most Professor between the incumbents may be the Head of the Department irrespective of the branch he is in charge of. The conversion may be effect to only in September

1948 when the post of Professor of Pure Mathematics is relegated to the M.E.S.

4) I request the favour of early orders.
