From

To

The Hon'ble the Minister for Education,
Fort St. George.

R.C.No.3824 K4/46 dated 17-8-1946.

Sir,

With reference to your Note dated 21-6-1946 regarding private tuitions in aided Secondary Schools and Colleges, I have the honour to submit the following report:

2. The allegations against St. Aloysius College are vague. Further, Colleges are within the purview of University. But speaking generally there does not appear to be any doubt that private tuitions are very wide-spread and cover almost the entire educational system upto and inclusive of the Intermediate stage. Their growth and prevalence are due to the fact that there is a definite demand based on the necessities, either real or imaginary.

3. On the side of the parents and pupils the feeling has grown up that the school instruction is insufficient for the standard of attainment considered desirable for themselves. Sometimes this means not merely supplementing the work done at the school but actually, as in the case of backward boys admitted or promoted without due regard to their attainments, re-doing the whole work of the school. This tendency becomes more and more marked as on the one hand the schools grow in size, the classes are filled to overflowing and owing to inadequate training facilities and poor prospects of teachers, qualified teachers are becoming scarcer and, on the other, parents anxious to give their children the benefit of higher education do their utmost to push them through the several grades though they might not be quite fitted for such promotions and the Heads of institutions and the staff owing to the conditions in which they are working are unable or are unwilling to resist outside pressure. At the same time the poor paid teachers who cannot subsist on the salaries they get are anxious to supplement their salaries by undertaking private tution. Indeed Government have gone so far as to recognize the existence of the system that a statutory recognition has been granted to the private tuitions.

4. That it has some justification and is at the same time capable of becoming a demoralising force and is probably one such to a certain extent now none can deny.

5. The Department is controlling directly the evil to a certain extent so far as the Government and Local Body schools go. Its control over the practice in aided schools is though not non-existent, is not effective. The fact is it is just one of those needs that has its origin in the present unsatisfactory nature of educational organization, with its large classes, low salaries, increasing number of unqualified teachers. I submit that no amount of rules will check the evil as such till these are remedied and the parents have the satisfaction that schools do actually deliver the goods they are expected to. Even if stringent rules are made prohibiting teachers from undertaking tuition, the result will not be to abolish it but only to bring into existence a class of private coaches over whom Government will have little or no control and thus take away from the teachers the chances they have now of supplementing their poor income and thereby keeping the wolf from the door.

6. There are also real difficulties in the way of detailed rules being drawn up and enforced:

(i) unless the teacher makes himself thoroughly abnoxious, few or no complaints will be received and enquiries will more often than not and end in the benefit of doubt being given to the teacher.

(ii) The evil is probably more rampant in aided institutions and here the department will find the work of checking more difficult.

(iii) At the same time it should be realised that the department has not got the machinery to carry out a watch and ward programme.

7. But at the same time an attempt may be made by drawing up a few simple rules for the guiding of managements and the inspecting officers might deal with this aspect at the time of their inspection.

(i) So far as Government employees are concerned the present rules (Subsidiary Rule 6 of Fundamental Rules 46 & 47) is quite sufficient.

(ii) As regards Local Body employees it might be a direction to the executive authority that no teacher shall be permitted to undertake tuition for more than two students in any one month and that the tuition given to them shall not exceed 10 hours a week of which 4 hours shall be during the weekly holidays. A report to the District Educational Officer is sufficient.

X

(iii) In aided schools the same rules may be applied by managements and all sanctions shall be communicated to the Headmaster and District Educational Officer for record.

(iv) (a) In none of the above categories sanction shall be given unless it is recommended by the head of the institution.

(b) No tuition shall be undertaken except with the prior written approval of the managements.

(c) No member of the ministerial staff shall be permitted to undertake private tuition.

(d) Teachers above the age of 50 desirous of undertaking the work may be called upon at the discretion of the managements to produce medical fitness certificate to undertake the extra work.

8. The above rules will cover the employees of all grades in Government, Local Body institutions and employees in aided secondary schools. I have specifically left out details regarding the upper limits of the remuneration as these are not necessary. In Government these are fixed already. In Local Bodies the employers will have to report the amounts and get the sanction. I would like to leave it to the discretion of the managements to make rules to suit their cases.

As the grant of permission to teachers in secondary schools under Local bodies is now governed by Rule 6(3)(i) of G.O. No.1175 L.A. dated 30-4-1941, it seems desirable that all further instructions regarding the teachers in these schools should be embodied in the same G.O. The following amendments are therefore suggested in regard to the same for the approval of Government:-

(1) In clause (3) of Rule 6, for the words "accord permission to teachers", substitute the following:- " accord permission in writing to teachers".

(2) At the end of clause (3), the following note may be inserted:-

Note The grant of permission to undertake private tuition referred to in item (i) above, shall be regulated with reference to the following principles:-

(i) Permission should not be given unless it is recommended by the head of the institution.

(ii) No teacher should be permitted to undertake private tuition for more than two pupils in any one month and the total hours of tuition given for two pupils should not exceed ten hours a week, of which, four hours should be during the weekly holidays.

(iii) Teachers above the age of 50 desirous of undertaking private tuition may be called upon to produce a medical certificate of fitness to undertake the extra work by the authority competent to grant permission.

(iv) Permission given to a teacher to undertake tuition should be communicated to the headmaster or headmistress of the school in which the teacher is employed and also to the District Educational Officer or the Inspectress as the case may be.

(v) The Executive authority shall fix the amount of remuneration in consultation with the District Educational Officer or Inspectress as the case may be.

I agree with the principles contained in the draft order. The draft order may be suitably modified so as to provide for the grant of permission to teachers in secondary schools under private management only.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY TO GOVERNMENT

EDUCATION AND PUBLIC HEALTH DEPARTMENT

One of the greatest abuses in our present educational system is private tuition. Parents arrange for private tuition for their boys with a view that their boys must pass in that subject. In most cases the teachers have the responsibility of passing the boy and so resort to not very dignified methods. The result is either leakage of question papers or over valuation of marks of that particular boy. Various complaints have come in this connection from many high schools and it has been found that these abuses exist in a larger degree throughout the Province. Consequently the integrity of schools have suffered and the respect the teacher commands has also suffered.

In some schools because of the patronage and the income this secures for the teacher who has private tuition from any influential quarters, lot of jealousies have also arisen with the effect of mutual quarrel and recrimination, the atmosphere of the school has suffered. The only way of abolishing these bad tendencies in schools and create a better atmosphere is to abolish this private tuition.

One of the other bad effects of private tuition has been that teachers go in for a lot of private tuition and get tired in that effort and when they come to schools they are not able to exert themselves as much as they should, with the result the efficiency of the school work suffers.

But then certain boys need some private tuition and certain ~~boys~~ parents have so much faith in private tuition that there will be lot of trouble if this is abolished. Besides many of the teachers are paid so poorly, that this gives them a little income and to abolish private tuition when there is so much need will only succeed not in real abolition but doing it surreptitiously and so the real solution for this is not to abolish it by issue of an order but to regulate it so that the evil effects of it may be minimised. Orders may be issued that no separate private tuition for individual students should be undertaken by any teacher. Instead extra tuition may be given to backward boys in the school istelf in out of class hours. The work of this private tuition may be distributed between the various teachers who are prepared ti give service on these hours. An extra fee per boy who attends extra tuition classes may be charged and this extra fee may be divided between the teachers who take these classes. This may be done under the direct supervision of the Headmaster or anybody appointed by him. The Dept. will have nothing to do with the fee charged for this private tuition.

This, in my opinion, will avoid all the evil effects that have arisen out of the present system of private tuition and will largely improve the tone of our schools. The opinion of the D.P.I. may be invited on this matter.

15482 2. I agree that private tuition is becoming a serious evil in some schools and that the time has come at least to regulate it, if it cannot altogether be abolished. The scheme outlined by the Hon'ble Minister for Education will, no doubt, improve the tone of the schools, specially those under public management. I am not, however, confident of its success in aided schools where the managements themselves are conniving, if not encouraging, private tuition, as this would reduce the individual emoluments of teachers.

3. Moreover, a parent who resorts to private tuition for his children desires that his children should be taught in his own house by the teacher whom he fancies. Private tuition in the school at hours specified by the Headmaster and by the teacher designated by him, perhaps along with other pupils may not meet the requirements of the parent, specially if he is well-to-do. The undivided individual attention which the parent can secure for his pupil by having private tuition in his own house would not be possible in a school and the well-to-do or influential parent will naturally try to evade the rule.

4. The possibility of evasion by the teacher is another difficulty. Where private tuition is arranged in the school his emoluments will not be as high as he can earn if he is allowed to make his own terms with the parent. Evasion is difficult to detect and very much more difficult to prove for the purpose of disciplinary action. If the management as in the case of aided schools is also indifferent in this regard and if influential parents are also interested, evasion may be on a large scale.

5. In spite of these difficulties, I consider that the scheme is worth trying. On the basis of the performance of the pupils in the class or entrance examination or on the report of the class teacher, the Headmaster can decide in what subjects a pupil is really deficient, and needs some special tuition. He can then inform the parent or guardian in what subject or subjects the pupil is below the standard and agree to arrange for special instruction if the guardian is willing to pay the special fee. The Headmaster of each school should be required to prepare a scheme for private tuition, in consultation with the staff, fixing the scale of special fees for each class and subject, the time-table and the manner in which he proposes to apportion the money received on this account. Care should be taken to see that these special classes do not encroach on games. The fees collected from the pupils should generally be distributed among the teachers who teach them in proportion to the time devoted by them. Such a scheme should be approved by the management and a copy of it should also be sent to the District Educational Officer for file.

6. Till we are able to assess the success of the scheme, Headmasters should be given full liberty to draft their schemes to suit local conditions. It may also be possible to include in this scheme poor children who cannot afford to pay any special fee but this should be left to the discretion of each Headmaster. At the beginning, the scheme should be elastic and the question of framing uniform regulations can be taken up at the end of a year.

Sir,

Schools - Secondary - Private tuition for backward boys.

Ref: Government Memo No.64224-B1-47-4 Edn., dated 1-5-48. pp 31-32 ante

I consider that it is not necessary for individual teachers to obtain permission to undertake private tuition under the new procedure. It is enough if the Headmaster of the school concerned obtains the necessary general permission from the management.

The provisions as they now stand in respect of private tuitions require modification and I am suggesting the following amendments accordingly:-

LOCAL BODY SECONDARY SCHOOLS.

Item "(i) Private tuition for pupils" under Rule 6(3) of G.O.1175 L.A. dated 30-4-1941 may be deleted and items (ii), (iii) and (iv) renumbered as (i), (ii) and (iii) respectively.

The following may be inserted as clause (5) under Rule 6:-

The President of the District Board / The Executive Authority of the Municipal Council may accord permission to teachers to undertake private tuition for pupils and for acceptance of the remuneration on the consolidated application made by the Headmater of the school concerned on behalf of the teachers, subject to the condition that no tuition other than those arranged for by the Headmaster can be undertaken by any teacher.

Secondary Schools under Aided Managements.

The words 'private tuition' occurring in clause 5 of the terms of agreement to be entered into between the teacher and the management as approved in G.O.2406 Edn., dated 7-11-1947 may be deleted.

As regards the imposition of penalty on the managements which permit individual teachers to engage themselves in giving private tuition except of the kind provided for some time should elapse to see how far the managements co-operate in this matter. A report may be called for after the scheme has worked for a year and if it is found that the managements failed to carry out the instructions, penal measures may be thought of.

ANNEXURE.

"Private tuition has become a widespread and serious evil in our schools. It has led to jealousies among teabhers and demoralisation among pupils. It has also affected the morale and efficiency of schools.

Though the abolition of private tuition is the x best way to put an end to these x evils, it is realised that some pupils who are backward in one or more subjects need special attention. Besides it will not be fair to deny a teacher the chance to earn a small additional ~~xkexx thxx thx~~ income without prejudice to his legitimate duties. It is therefore clear that the real solution is not the total abolition of private tuitions but to regulate it in such a way xx that the evil effects are minimised. ToThis end, the scheme outlined below is communicated for adoption inall Secondary Schools.

On the basis of the performance of the pupils in the class or entrance examination or on the report of the class teacher, the Headmaster of the school will decide in what subject or subjects a pupil is deficient and needs special tuition. He should then inform the parent or guardian in what subject or subjects the pupil is below the standard and ascertain, if the guardian desires tuition and agrees to pay the special fee. The Headmaster of each school should prepare a scheme for private tuition outside school hoursx in consultation with the staff, x fixing the scale of special fees for each class and subject the time table and the manner in which he proposes to apportion the money received on this account. Care should be taken to see that these special classes do not encroach on games and extra curricular activities.

The fees collected from the pupils should be distributed among the teachers xxgx engaged in giving the tuition generally in proportion to the time devoted by them. Such a scheme should be approved by the management and a copy of it should also be sent to the District Educational Officer or the Inspectaress concerned for file.

The managements of Secondary Schools and the teachers employed therein should be clearly made to understand that private tuition as it exists to day as a private arrangement between individual students or xxx parents and the teacher must cease.

The Inspecting officers are requested to submit a report to the Director x after watching the working of the scheme for a year.

This note of the D.P.I. is with regard to private tuition in schools. Private tuition has led to very painful effects but still, in the present circumstances and with the poor pay that we are giving to the teachers, it seems impossible to avoid it. In these circumstances, it may be allowed under the limitations laid down by the D.P.I. in the memorandum that he had sent herewith.

A draft order is submitted below for approval. It may be sent to the DPI for ~~[illegible]~~ perusal & remarks if any before issue. The Director may be requested to state whether rule 6(3) of the rules relating to the personal conduct
