7. In para 1, the President has pointed out the object for which the Institution of Engineers was can be usefully employed for examining the course of study and syllabuses that the Government have prepared for the training of the several categories of technical personnel. A very useful piece of work that the Institution can do is to collect statistics of the various categories of technical personnel that would be required in this country for the next 5, 10 and 15 years giving the numbers required for other Departments and giving the numbers required for other valuable piece of information and would also be a check on the statistics that is being obtained by the Standing Advisory Board for Technical Education.
The Government can then base their future plans that they may formulate for opening training institutions for the above purpose.
