Schools - Superfluous furniture in Govt. Basic Tg. school - sale to local bodies -

Approved.

Education Department.

Sir,

Re. 8 48-A.2/48 dated 25-4-50

Sub: Furniture - Superfluous furniture in Basic Training Schools Disposal of -

In Basic Training Schools, dual desks, benches and certain other articles of furniture are not used. The students squat on mats and use Karanam's desks for writing. A lot of superfluous furniture is therefore available for release to other institutions. As more and more training schools are being converted into the Basic line it is not possible to utilise these articles in other Government institutions. Therefore a good number of them are accumulating as dead stock and occupying space while District Boards and Municipalities are spending a lot of money on the purchase of new furniture for equipping their Secondary Schools.

I consider that the superfluous furniture in the Basic Training Schools may with advantage be permitted to be transferred to the local bodies that need them. The price of the articles so transferred may be fixed by the Local Public Works Department authorities.

I request that Government may be pleased to approve my proposal and issue early orders in the matter.

Yours faithfully,

R. S. Murugan

for Director of Public Instruction.

The Director has reported that in the Basic Tq. schools under govt. management, articles of furniture like deal desks, benches etc. are accumulating as dead stock as they are not used by the ^{partly} students ^{in the schools} for sitting and writing. He therefore, suggests that these articles may be
