I agree with the suggestions contained in the note of the Hon'ble Minister for Education. It is a good and desirable plan to give and a definite basic bias to the existing secondary training course by (1) introducing a craft, (2) changing the syllabus to bring it on a line with a Basic Training syllabus and (3) reorganising the examination more on the lines of the scheme already approved by Government Basic Training. The secondary training course thus reorganised will have several advantages. The change over from ordinary training to Basic training will be done without much dislocation of work and in a very normal way. It will help to incorporate some of the features of the existing syllabus and that of Basic Training. It can be done without much expense. I shall appoint a committee to revise the syllabus and scheme of work in order that it might be given effect to from the beginning of the next school year, if Government pass early orders.

Yours faithfully,

Ref:--Government Order No.27730 Cl/48-6 Edn. dated 8-10-49

The Secondary Grade training syllabuses are now being revised in order to conform to the requirements of the Reorganised courses for Forms I to III and of the development of Basic Education. Pending the revision and issue of formal syllabuses, certain instructions were already issued on general lines for re-orientation of work in Secondary Training Schools, anticipating the contents of the revised syllabuses, so that the Secondary grade Junior Classes formed in Training Schools in 1949-50 might be enabled to be acquainted with the main aspects of the revision and be in a position to work fully according to the revised syllabus as soon as it is issued. Please see a copy of the Director's Proceedings C.No.1346 E4/49 dated 10-6-49 issued on the subject. — 10/16-17

The Draft syllabuses will be submitted to Government as soon as possible.

Sub :- Schools--Secondary--Training--Reorganisation--Scheme of work

In order to enable secondary grade teachers in future to teach according to the reorganised secondary school syllabuses in Forms I to III for such of them as are so required to be members of the staffs of the senior basic schools a revision of the existing syllabuses for T.S.L.C. examination of the secondary grade has been undertaken and is in progress. As it will be sometime before this revised syllabus in its final form is issued and the regulations for the examination under that course framed, certain preliminary indications are given below of the lines of the revision so that the secondary grade junior classes formed in training schools in 1949-50 may be acquainted with the main aspects of the revision and be in a position to work fully according to the revised syllabus as soon as it is issued.

The Chief feature both of the reorganised secondary school course and the senior basic course is the correlation of all educational and social activities. Provision should therefore be made in a substantial measure for the practice of spinning as a craft and gardening as an activity in all training schools for both men and women and in addition either woodwork or weaving for men's training schools and Homecraft for women's training schools. The scheme of work should also provide for a large number of activities which together with spinning, gardening and one of the crafts --woodwork, weaving, or homecraft--should provide the necessary experience and data for study and instruction in the classroom and for correlation with the academic parts of the curriculum. Accounts of costs and out-turn or produce should be correctly and methodically maintained in the crafts and gardening in some clear and intelligible form. Among the activities personal and social hygiene, community service and Citizenship activities should receive prominent attention.

Revised syllabuses in the Principles of Education, School Administration, Methods of Teaching the subjects of the curriculum and Organisation of practice and training in Arts and Crafts and Citizenship will be issued in due course. The chief features of the revision will consist of lines of correlation and co-ordination with crafts and activities, inclusion of the essential practical elements of the existing syllabus in Rural Social Problems of the higher elementary grade in the place of methods of teaching Civics and Hygiene and methods of organising and teaching Social Studies in the place of methods of teaching History, Geography and Civics. Teachers of training schools are therefore expected to acquaint themselves with the syllabuses of the reorganised secondary school course for forms I to III, the syllabuses in Rural Social problems of the higher elementary grade, and the syllabuses for basic schools issued by the Hindustani Talimi Sangh, Sevagram, Wardha. It will be an advantage if they also acquaint themselves with the syllabuses for basic training schools issued by the same Sangh.

Proposals are under consideration to make physical education a subject of examination, the nature of the test such as the proportion of practical work and theory being left to be decided shortly.

Methods of teaching English will be continued but the prescribing of set textbooks for study and the actual contents of these methods are under consideration. Training schools may, however proceed under the existing arrangements. A Library of modern books consisting of standard English readers, books on teaching methods and books on general knowledge in English should, however, be formed without any delay and the students familiarised with their use for reference and study. Similarly a set of books in the Regional Language representing the best literature in the language on the history of the literature should be provided. The syllabus in Regional Languages of the reorganised secondary school course should be carefully and thoroughly studied at the beginning of the junior course.

Now that we have taken up the reorganisation of secondary education, it is necessary that we should organise our training schools. For this, the training schools are in our control and it is for us to reorganise them. As far as the Higher Grade Training Schools are concerned, they are being organised on the basic model with spinning as the basic craft. As far as the Secondary Grade Training Schools are concerned, it is necessary that we should reorganise them with weaving, carpentry and agriculture as the basic crafts. These are the crafts that will be the basic crafts for the classes that they will be teaching. The D.P.I. may take action for this reorganisation. If necessary, a Committee may be appointed to go into this reorganisation and submit the necessary changes in the syllabus.

2/ With regard to Training Colleges, it must be the University that must face the problem. I have had a talk with the Vice-Chancellor already. We must get the Training Colleges reorganised by the end of this year. The University reorganisation must meet the following needs:-

- (1) Must supply us suitable staff for teaching our higher grade training schools with spinning and horticulture as the basic craft.
- (2) Must supply us suitable staff to man the Secondary Grade Training Schools.
- (3) Must supply us suitable staff to serve in our Technical High Schools and High Schools where bifurcation has been introduced.

The University may be addressed in the matter.

concerned only with the former. It was thought that it would be conducive to greater co-ordination,
if the section dealing with reorganization of secondary

The proposal above may be approved.

In the reorganisation of secondary education, we are introducing the bifurcation system. The Reorganisation and Retrenchment Committee suggested that teachers may be trained as part of the bifurcated courses, i.e. one of the courses in the proposed bifurcation may be the teacher's training. We approved that proposal and asked the D.P.I. to go into the matter. In the three years from IV Form, apart from the general education, the syllabuses may also be made to cover the principles of education, etc., a great part of the syllabus which is being given to higher or secondary grade trained teachers. After this three years' course, they may be given an extra one year's training instead of the present two years' course where greater teaching practice can be provided, in addition to any other instruction that may be necessary. To attract greater numbers to this course, there may be a concession in fees. At present, the fees in the IV, V and VI Forms are Rs. 5-4-0. We can reduce this to Rs. 3/- or we may give a scholarship not exceeding Rs. 3/- to those boys. The concession that we give to these boys in all the three years will be only Rs. 9 p.m. plus Rs. 18 p.m. stipend for the year they have separately undergone training.
The amount that we will save will be Rs. 18 - Rs. 9. It will be a net saving to Government even if we provide a scholarship of Rs. 4, the saving coming to Rs. 6 per individual, which will amount to many thousands. The probability is that we may be able to attract a better type of men and women for the teaching profession than at present. There is a complaint that the Rs. 12 and Rs. 18 provided as stipend is not sufficient. Perhaps this saving may be utilised to enhance the stipends given to teachers for that by this method, we will be able to procure better personnel for the elementary and secondary schools than the existing system. The D.P.I. may be asked to go into the matter and report. He may be asked to give an early report so that if possible, we may introduce the system even in the next school year, that is, in June.

I had suggested in my previous notes that the reorganisation of training schools may be taken up in right earnest. I don't know what steps have been taken in this direction. I hope a Committee has been set up for that purpose. We have approved a syllabus and this syllabus may be followed in the higher grade training schools which are being reorganised as junior basic training schools.

The people trained in these schools are eligible to teach till 5th standard. The Secondary Grade Training schools must be reorganised into senior basic training schools and the elements of the present reorganisation must be introduced in these schools. While the final reorganisation of the secondary grade training schools may take some time and may be finalised before the end of this financial year, interim arrangements must be made for training in crafts, citizenship and social service so that even this set of secondary grade training teachers may have training in the elements of these things so that there may not be any necessity to retrain them and spend money over it. The D.P.I. may be asked to report the steps taken in this direction.

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS

Secretary, E. & P. H.

The D.P.I. was asked to go into the matter of reorganising the Secondary Training Schools consistent with the re-organisation of secondary education that we had taken up. I have not heard anything about it from him till now. He may be asked to expedite the matter so that the training schools may be put on reorganized basis even in the next year so that there may not be any necessity for retraining all those teachers.

From the D.P.T. No. T.M. dated 8-2-50

Please see the further report of the D.P.T. He states that in view of the progressive conversion of Training Schools into Basic Training Schools on one hand and the proposal for the introduction of "Teaching" as one of the subjects of the ^{or}infused courses on the other, the T.S.L.C Board ^{has} resolved not to proceed with the preparation of the syllabus. In view of the above.
