FURTHER PAPERS

~~I have thought that the notes relating to the subject of language, especially the English and American ones, in the Librarian's list of books, are of some value, and have been sent to the Librarian.~~

The name of this position is the found in the Manual and is applicable to officers in the Dept. 1st rule 11 in the appendix to 1777 Sept. 18, 1864 to 600 vol - but the fact is not. I think this is the admirability of intention and each instruction should be considered

* This might be the case if the English and the Hindustani of the school were mixed together.

I think we are in a state of affairs which is not good. The question whether we offer a more or less mixed course or whether to be more or less English or whether to be more or less Hindustani is a question of fact.

The 'conventional' arrangement which gives the pupils help in the language is the best for the purpose of teaching the language.

for leave to appear for the High Examination in Hindustani.

He will ^{may} probably wish to take the Dist. Ex. in the subject, but before asking a copy to him he submitted that the working of the Public rule is somewhat hard. It would be better to have an offer from appearing in the trial of the Examination to be done in Hindustani, though he left India in a hurry & never thought of a subject.
Further, a success in a subject may require a colloquial acquaintance with the vernacular of the country & the word 'conventional' is undoubtedly sufficient.

The attention of the D.P. will be
