OCTOBER.

Major H. D. Love.

Communicating to the Director of Public Instruction copy of despatch from the Secretary of State sanctioning a monthly allowance of Rs. 250 to—, Principal, College of Engineering, for the period during which he performed the duties of Professor of Engineering in addition to his own.

Despatch from the Right Hon'ble Lord GEORGE HAMILTON, Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India, to His Excellency the Right Honourable the Governor-General of India in Council, dated India Office, London, 29th July 1897, No. (Public Works)—19.

I have received your Excellency's letter, in the Department of Finance and Commerce, No. 129, dated 18th May 1897, reporting that Mr. H. T. Keeling, whose temporary appointment as Professor of Engineering at the Madras College of Engineering was approved in my despatch, No. 48-P.W., dated 26th November last, did not join the College till after the Christmas holidays, and that, consequently, the Principal, Major H. D. Love, had for a few months to perform the duties of Professor of Engineering in addition to his own. In consideration of the extra work and responsibility thus thrown on Major Love, you support the Government of Madras in recommending that a special allowance of Rs. 300 per month be granted to him for the period during which he performed the duties of Professor of Engineering.

Read—the following papers :—

Despatch from the Government of India, Finance and Commerce Department (Pay and Allowances), to the Right Honourable Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India, dated Simla, 18th May 1897, No. 129.

We have the honour to invite your Lordship's attention to your despatch, No. 48-P.W., dated the 26th November 1896, in which you expressed approval of our proceedings sanctioning the appointment of Mr. H. T. Keeling, Assistant Engineer, 1st grade, with the temporary rank of Executive Engineer, 3rd grade, to officiate as Professor of Engineering in the Madras College of Engineering during the absence on furlough of Mr. A. Chatterton, the permanent incumbent.

2. We now forward, for your Lordship's information, a copy of a letter from the Government of Madras, No. 724 (Educational), dated the 20th November 1896, from which it will be seen that, as it was impossible owing to circumstances which were not foreseen at the time the Madras Government previously addressed us, to spare Mr. Keeling's services from the Public Works Department until after the Christmas holidays, it became necessary to entrust the duties of the Professor of Engineering to Major H. D. Love, the Principal of the College, in addition to his own duties. The Accountant-General, Madras, has held that, under article 186 of the Civil Service Regulations, Major Love is not entitled to any additional allowance for the extra duty, as the two appointments are on the same establishment, and as the pay (Rs. 500—50—750) of the Professor of Engineering is not more than the pay (Rs. 1,240—14—0) of Major Love's substantive office. The Government of Madras, however, consider that the extra duty materially enhanced Major Love's work and responsibility, and recommend that an allowance of Rs. 300 a month should be granted to him for the period during which he performed the duties of the Professor of Engineering in addition to his own.

3. During the months of September, October and November, which immediately precede the annual examinations, the services of the Professor of Engineering are most needed; and we agree with Madras Government in considering that, for the heavy work of delivering a course of lectures in a subject for which a special Professor is entertained, Major Love should be given some additional allowance. If article 184 (ii) of the Civil Service Regulations had been applicable to the case, Major Love would have been entitled to Rs. 250 a month, but as the case is outside any rule, and as the amount suggested by the Government of Madras seems to us to be a fair recompense for the additional work imposed upon him, we recommend that an allowance at the rate of Rs. 300 a month may be sanctioned for Major Love for the period during which he discharged the duties of the Professor of Engineering in addition to his own.

I have received your Excellency's letter, in the Department of Finance and Commerce, No. 129, dated 18th May 1897, reporting that Mr. H. T. Keeling, whose temporary appointment as Professor of Engineering at the Madras College of Engineering was approved in my despatch, No. 48-P.W., dated 26th November last, did not join the College till after the Christmas holidays, and that, consequently, the Principal, Major H. D. Love, had for a few months to perform the duties of Professor of Engineering in addition to his own. In consideration of the extra work and responsibility thus thrown on Major Love, you support the Government of Madras in recommending that a special allowance of Rs. 300 per month be granted to him for the period during which he performed the duties of Professor of Engineering.

2. If the case had been one to which the regulations apply, the maximum amount which Major Love could receive would, as you observe, have been Rs. 250 a month. After careful consideration, I can see no sufficient reason for granting him an allowance in excess of this amount; but, subject to this modification, I sanction your proposal.
