Note by the Chief Engineer for Irrigation.

Since November 1895 two temporary draughtsmen have been employed in this office for the preparation of maps of several irrigation systems for which Capital and Revenue accounts are kept, of other irrigation works under the Public Works Department and of tanks affecting railways which have extended to several districts. One of the draughtsmen temporarily employed having obtained permanent employment elsewhere it was decided after mature consideration, in view to better progress being made than hitherto with the work required to be done, to appoint Mr: C. Taylor, a tracer in the T.R.S. Office who, it is considered, possesses exceptional qualifications in mapping work. He has had, as already stated, 8 years and 4 months' experience in similar work in the T.R.S. Office, and as no passed candidate who could be obtained for the temporary appointment is likely to do this map work as efficiently as Mr: Taylor, he was, in anticipation of sanction, appointed to the vacant post from the 31st August 1897 and his exemption from the examination rules while employed in this office was applied for.

As this sanction was applied for absolutely in the interests of Government, a reconsideration of the orders passed in G.O.NO:545 dated 27th September 1897, Educational Department and communicated with P.W.D.G.O.NO:2834.W.dated 11th October 1897, is earnestly solicited in view to facilitating the completion of the work on which the temporary establishment is employed. Much inconvenience is being felt by the officers of the department owing to the delay in the pre-paration of the maps.
