Sir,

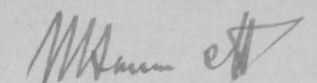

ENCLOSURES.

I have the honour to submit the case of Probationary Inspector P. ^a Chandu Menon of the Malabar Police for the favourable consideration of Government. The Inspector has risen from being a 4th grade head constable. He enlisted in the Police in 1882. He was made a Probationary Inspector in May 1896 having acted as Inspector in 1895 and 1896. He has now failed to pass the Precis-writing test. He is an excellent Inspector of marked good character and his work at Cochin has been approved of by the public and by the Deputy Magistrate there. I inspected his division last year and found it in excellent order. It is difficult enough to get good Inspectors and this man with his thorough knowledge of the West coast is a valuable man. His English is quite good enough for the work he has to do and he always writes a careful intelligent diary. I think as a promoted head constable with 16 years' service his case may be treated specially and I recommend that he be exempted from passing the Precis-writing test.

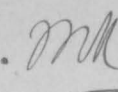

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

Inspector-General of Police.
