GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS.

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.

READ—the following paper :—

From M.R.Ry. V. KRISHNAMACHARIAR, Diwan Bahadur, Registrar of Books, Madras, to the Director of Public Instruction, dated 30th November 1898, No. 459.

I have the honour to submit, for transmission to Government, printed copies of the catalogue of the publications registered during the third quarter of 1898.

2. The works registered during the quarter are 270 in number, 203 of which are classed as "Books" and 67 as "Periodicals."

3. A classification of the registered works in the order of their languages shows that 84 with diglot publications are in English, 60 in Tamil, 76 in Telugu, 11 in Malayalam, 2 in Kanarese, 1 in Konkani, 2 in Arabic, 1 in Persian, 32 in Sanskrit including those published in Grandha and Nagari characters, and 1 polyglot work.

4. Of the total number registered more than 20 per cent. are works designed for educational purposes.

5. In the column of remarks are entered, as usual, brief notes on the contents of most of the registered works. "The Tamil Shorthand" and Mr. Dunsterville's "Illustrated Guide to the Madras Railway" deserve mention as being remarkably clever, novel and interesting books as they are useful.

6. The works copyrighted during the quarter are 101—the highest figure ever reached since the Registration Act XXV of 1867 came into force. The enclosed statement contains an extract of entries relating to these 101 publications whose proprietors have secured their copyright on payment of the prescribed fee. The entry of Domestic Economy in Telugu is the only one made free of charge, as it is the property of Government. The last 19 works included in this extract do not, however, appertain to the publications of the third quarter of 1898, but refer to works delivered for registration in 1897 and during the first two quarters of 1898.

No. 13746.

Submitted to Government.

(Signed) D. DUNCAN,
Director of Public Instruction.

6th December 1898.

A thoughtful address concluding with the moral lesson that love and charity are the only means of raising man to the height of Heaven, and that all should be united in love to be strong as a community.
15th do.	27	8vo ..	1st ..	500	Do.	0 3 0		The best guide which has yet been supplied to tourists in the direction of Southern India travelling chiefly by Madras Railway, and south branch lines. It contains both historical and statistical details of places, people and buildings gathered from reliable sources, and the compiler's own notes of his personal visits to various localities, besides a special article on sport in Southern India by a well known sportsman. The excellence of illustrative plates and photographs and a full index show exactly what visitors will be able to see for themselves, and this marked feature and the whole get up are in contrast with the generality of illustrated books published in Madras.

Copyright registered.
A collection of songs and lyrics written almost entirely for a military audience and for regiments on the line of march and open-air military concerts. The composer gives the British soldier some directions to proper pronunciation of words in singing and useful hints on singing in the open air.

A cheap book containing upwards of one hundred and seventy model letters prepared to meet the wants of Indian students, letter-writing being a form of composition commonly used by all classes of persons. The predominating feature of these letters is the element of narration. Copyright registered.
25th do.	8	4to ..	..	1,000	Do.	Nil.		This large book in raised letters or dots is a modification of Braille Blind alphabet system following the scientific classification of the alphabets of all the great dialects of India and the East. One and the same set of raised dots or character represents always the same letter, whatever be the language, so that there will be but one alphabet throughout, sufficient for the blind to learn from Cape Comorin to Cashmere and from Bombay to Burma and also in the countries where the semitic languages like Arabic and Hebrew are current. Contains a collection of questions selected from the examination papers of different universities and colleges in India and the compiler's own questions and all briefly answered, to guide the thoughtful student who wants to prepare himself for the First Examination in Arts in English. Copyright registered.

June ..	466	8vo ..	2nd ..	3,000	Do.	2 0 0	O. Kandasāmi Mudali, No. 295, Mint Street, Black Town, Madras.	Is intended to give children the first ideas of numbers by means of objects or things and not questions asked about abstract numbers. This text-book is said to be prepared in accordance with the curriculum of studies prescribed in the Madras Educational Rules and considered useful to all Middle Schools in other parts of India as well. The oral exercises in concrete and abstract numbers and the progressive arrangement of the problems in a simple and methodical form make this text-book better than many a class book. The title sufficiently indicates the scope of this book of explanation and exercises in elementary physics and hints to the study of the subject in schools. Copyright registered.

July ..	290	16mo..	1st ..	1,000	Printed.	1 8 0	V. G. Sūryanārāyaṇa Sāstri, B.A., No. 326, Tambu Chetti Street, Black Town, Madras.	A newly composed play no doubt. Though King Jayatungachola is a historical personage and his conquest of Kalinga or Telugu country is a historical fact, yet the other names are fictitious and the plot as a whole is pure fiction, or a jumble of oriental and occidental modes of love-making which is clandestine intercourse before marriage. The introduction of a harlot on the stage is demoralising and the presence of more than 200 quotations from classical poets in and out of season and of alliterated words in the prose portion mar the otherwise simple language of the author. In spite of the erotic matter unsuitable for class teaching the book is recommended for study in colleges.

Do.	50	Do.	1st	500	Do.	0 6 0		This commentary attempts to explain a well-known vedic hymn in praise of Vishnu not as usually understood, but with perverted renderings of such proper names as "Nārāyana" and like epithets of Vishnu into names of some Sivite saints or devotees, and gives a Sivite colour throughout in a manner likely to be questioned by Vishnavites and the general reader that hardly seem to concern the commentator. The frame work of this book of comment denying the divinity of Vishnu comes out too plainly and the fanciful interpretation and at times a laboured style do not appear to go much to conceal the writers' sectarian spirit.

Harikrishna Padaiyāchi, Vāndūr East Street, Kumbakonam	This is a clever imitation of Pitman's scheme of shorthandwriting, making sounds the ruling principle, and the Tamil author's rendering is suggestive of a mixed treatment, which seems to merit fair trial in all the Vernacular languages of India in which words are fossilised by phonetic spelling. Though the system is mechanical and might need be improved upon, it is not wanting in utility for the present to Teluk Cutcherries, District Munsif's courts and native banks, where Tamil correspondence is general. This is a Vaishnava work containing an account in prose of a Sivite youth Ándhrapárna and his conversation with a Vaishnava ascetic on his way to Melkote, his conversion from the disgusting sacti worship and appreciation of the meritorious act of wearing the Vaishnava mark on the forehead and of the Chank and Chakra on the shoulders instead of vibhati or ashes, and the benefit of rendering homage to Vishnu and other sectarian matter, all supported by quotations from vedas, smritis and puráns and other authorities.

An interesting pamphlet on pearls, animalcules and other wonders of the sea already published in English. A pictorial account of an imaginary travel through the several countries of Europe for the use of Telugu-speaking families and schools. The coloured map-pictures are a novelty and are so set as to show all important features in a country, its national flag and its emblem, the striking objects or class of people to be met with readily by the traveller; and the value of this illustrated work is that it is substantially a pleasant reading in geography though it seems at first to be a picture book.
February.	91	8vo. ...	1st ..	500	Printed.	1 0 0	T. M. Séshagiri Sástri, M.A., Kabálisvarar Temple, North Máda Street, Mailápúr, Madras.	Copyright registered. The book is full of curious learning, tracing verbs back to their original source, pointing out the analogy between the parent word and its offspring and supplying the links where missing, the whole bringing together linguistic information of an interesting character, but considered by some to be perversions of philology or amusing oddities as mere conjectures.

31st July.	244	4to ..	1st ..	400	Printed.	4 0 0		This is the first part of a voluminous lexicon in Sanskrit which may be said to be both tedious and clever. The compiler has clearly studied the etymology of Sanskrit words closely, as he traces each word to its root and separates the affixes and prefixes and other letters which supply a link, and explains their grammatical bearing as well as all orthographical variations which a word in its different phases undergoes. This being the scope and elaborate character of this huge lexicon, it is more likely to gratify the literary curiosity of a Pandit than help the general reader who only wants to turn to a word and find its meaning at a glance.

A new magazine is devoted to the exposition of Visishtadvaita, and the story of Rāmānuja, the founder of that system, and this number contains the legend of a discourse between a Brahman and a tiger and how he obtained beatification. This is the continuation of the subtle vedantic teaching conveyed from the standpoint of Visistadvaita school respecting the salvation of one who surrenders the soul at god's feet. It includes an account of the author of the Bhāshya comment on Rāmānuja. This is part 3 of the same vedantic work serially published as No. 171 above and contains the panegyrics of Yatirāja, the great commentator and comments the grant of land and food to the deserving poor.
