To

The Secretary to the Government of India
Financial Department

Dated the 11th March 1860.

SIR,

The Madras Government consider that the interests of the Public service indispensably require that the usual period of three months for the consideration of projects of law and for receiving representations upon the subject of them should not be shortened in the case of the important and critical pillar of finance contained in the Revenue and Income Tax Bills.

I have the honor to inform you that a Telegraphic Message, of which a copy is given in the margin, has this day been dispatched to your address.

I have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient Servant.

Signed J. Pycroft.
