Proceedings of the Madras Government, Financial Department,
16th January 1869.

No. 72. Read the following letter from the Secretary to the Government of India, Financial Department, to the Accountant General, Bengal; dated Fort William, 21st December 1868, No. 3728.

Leave and Allowances.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of the letter from the Officiating Examiner of Claims, Calcutta, No. 1777E, of the 23rd ultimo, and in reply to forward an extract (paragraph 3) from a letter, No. 3727, addressed this day to the Accountant General, Madras, from which you will observe that, in calculating the amount of furlough admissible to Covenanted Civil Servants under the rules of the 16th June 1868, the period of any junior furlough taken by them under the rules in force prior to 1855, should be regarded as dies non.

Ordered that the foregoing letter, and the extract therein referred to, be published in the Gazette of India, and communicated to the Foreign and Home Departments; Governments of Bengal, Madras, Bombay, the North-Western Provinces, and the Punjab; Comptroller General of Accounts; Director General of the Post Office of India; Accountants General in Bombay, the North-Western Provinces, the Punjab, and British Burmah; Deputy Accountants General, Central Provinces, Hyderabad and Mysore.

Extract of a letter from the Secretary to the Government of India, Financial Department, to the Accountant General, Madras; dated 21st December 1868, No. 3727.

Para. 3. Paragraph 5.—At the time the new leave rules were promulgated, an Officer who had been compelled by ill-health to take, under the rules in force before those of 1855, what was called a "junior furlough," previously to having completed the residence entitling him to an ordinary furlough, was entitled to the full three years' furlough when he had completed such residence, and could also obtain leave on medical certificate up to a limit of three years; and the declaration in Rule II. of the new rules, that "the maximum period of furlough which can be "granted to any Officer during the whole period of his service is limited to six years" is qualified by the declaration in Rule XXIX., that "whatever aggregate amount out of the three years' "furlough and three years' sick leave under the rules until now at force at present remains to "be taken by an Officer under the old rules shall remain to be taken by him under the rules "now promulgated." It seems clear, therefore, that "junior furlough" does not form a part of the maximum of six years' furlough admissible under the new rules, but that it should be treated as dies non, i. e., that it should neither be credited in an Officer's account as actual service qualifying for furlough, nor debited as furlough taken. Accordingly the entry in the fifth column of your statement against the name of Mr. Robinson should be one year, nine months, and twenty-two days, and the entry in the eighth column should be supplemented with the remark that Mr. Robinson's leave may be extended up to the 4th April 1870, on an allowance of Rupees 1000 per mensem, and may be further extended on medical certificate up to the 4th April 1871, on a subsistence allowance of Rupees 400 per mensem.
