The salary fixed by the Commission appointed to inquire into the expenditure of the Civil Hospitals in the Presidency in 1865, for the Writer who is also the Steward of the Eye Infirmary, was Rs 20 a month — to the services of a trustworthy person for the performance of these joint duties could not be secured for this salary, and the experience of the present writer in the Office of the Civil Auditor General rendered him a considerable saving to Government. He is retained by the Superintendent who has been dispensing to a certain extent the Government allowance from his own resources. On these grounds the Government has sanctioned the pay of the writer being raised from Rs 20 to Rs 35 per mensem.
