CIRCULAR No. 90.

MEMORANDUM.

The Surgeon General, Indian Medical Department, has the honor to furnish each Municipality and Local Fund Board with copy of a circular letter sent out in 1873. The outbreaks of cholera of the present year have shown to all Boards that the Medical Officers who are servants of the Government are too few to meet the demands of the civil population, and the Surgeon-General again suggests that selected young men be sent from the districts to the Madras Medical College or other Medical School. The College Session opens 1st October next.

SIR,

I have the honor to mention that I was recently required to ascertain and report to Government the cost of educating a young man as a Hospital Assistant (formerly styled Dresser), and, as it may be convenient for you to be acquainted with the result of my calculation, I have the honor to subjoin copy of the paragraph in which the information was communicated:—

"The estimates given by me in paragraphs 4 and 10, as to the cost of educating a medical man, viz., Rupees 528, permits allusion to another subject which has been discussed in the past correspondence, viz., whether children of the hereditary medical men of the country might receive a medical education; and, as some Municipalities may wish to send pupils, it might be intimated that Rupees 528 is the cost of a medical man's education, including his four years' subsistence allowance, and that any private student whom they may choose to send could be supported and educated for that sum."

I have the honor to be,
Sir,
Your most obedient servant,
