Police officers succeed to a somewhat better paid appointment they are liable to the operation of the 55 years rule which throws them back on unemployed pay, whereas officers in the Army continue to hold the command of Wings, Regiments, Brigades & long after that age. Thus deserving officers are undeservedly shelved and mulcted after years of very arduous duty.

4. I respectfully submit that the 55 years rule should not be enforced in the case of Military officers in police employ who are still thoroughly efficient, unless some Military appointment can be provided for them. Colonel Swanston is still well qualified for police duty mentally and physically. He has served the Government well both in the Army (where he was specially distinguished) and during many years of police work. As for his removal being "injurious to the public service" of course there are other officers in the Police Department well qualified to perform the duties of Deputy Inspector General or Commissioner of Police. At the same time it may may be deemed injuries to the Police service to lose a military officer of long experience who is still thoroughly efficient. I trust that Colonel Swannet's case may receive favorable consideration.

I have the honor to be Sir

Your Most Obedt Servant

Cham
Inspector General of Police
