at the City of

WITNESSED BY ME, the Clerk of the Court, this 1st day of December, 1900.

8. In the king's arm, machine-made, five reams were correct, two had one sheet each in excess, and the remaining three reams were two, one, and four sheets respectively less.

9. It will be seen therefore that, excepting cream-laid and white wove paper, whilst the larger descriptions of paper had an excess number of sheets in the reams counted, the smaller had deficiencies. Taking the excesses with the deficiencies, the latter are, as regards the papers examined, more than three times as much.

Stationery.—Copy of letter from Superintendent of Stationery reporting on the deficiency in the supply of paper received from England during the year 1880, transmitted to Government of India.

In the first, two reams had shut each deficient, three, 1 sheet each in excess; one, three sheets in excess; and the remaining four were correct. In Foolscap Machine made, one ream had 1 sheet less, and 10, one sheet each in excess. In the third description, Cream-laid foolscap, only one ream had 5 sheets deficient; the remaining reams were correct.

In White Dove Foolscap three reams contained from 1 to 3 sheets less and one ream had 1 sheet in excess, the remaining 6 reams were correct.

In Quarto post, Hand made two reams had 3 sheets each less, and one ream one sheet in excess. In the Machine made paper of this description the discrepancies were greater, only two reams of the 10 examined being correct, the remainder being deficient to the extent shewn in the margin.

1 Ream	-	1 Sheet
2 Reams	-	2 Sheets each
3 —	-	4 —
2 —	-	5 —

In Octavo post Hand made six reams were correct, the remaining four containing 2, 5, 2, and 1 sheet less respectively. In the Machine made paper 1 ream had two sheets in excess, six were correct, and the remaining 3 reams had 4, 2, and 2 sheets respectively less.
